CANDIDATES WINDUP THEIR CAMPAIGNS WITH HOPES OF EASY VICTORIES SATURDAY

By United Press
Candidates for political offices in Texas, from governor to justice of the peace, wound up their campaigns Friday and hoped for the best in Democratic primaries Saturday.

Most of the candidates for state offices went back to their home towns for final speeches Friday. A few took the last day off.

Ernest O. Thompson, running for re-election to the railroad commission, was among the "short campaigners." He made his final address Thursday night at Amarillo, his home city.

His speech was a resume of his record. "There is one thing that I never have done," he said, "and never will do. That is to try to please the 'hot oil' boys. The abuse of that crowd is a badge of honor."

Gov. James V. Allred, seeking re-election, returned to his home in Wichita Falls for a final radio appeal tonight. Speaking in Waco last night Allred answered charges he was using the highway department for political purposes.

F. W. Fischer of Tyler expressed confidence in Houston today that he would receive strong support from West Texas.

"Fischer rallies at which thousands of people have appeared, strengthened my belief the western sector of the state will join East and Central Texas in giving me a decided advantage," Fischer said.

Sen. Roy Sanderford of Belton went to Marlin Friday, in his campaign for governor. He urged that old age pensions be paid "in full to everyone qualifying under the constitution."

That reminds me...

Today is the final go-round for candidates to do their last minute staff. Tonight at the city softball park there will be speaking by all the candidates. Crowds are expected to be on hand to hear what each candidate has to say. One thing that has been up to this writing locally is that all county candidates in the field have been conducting a clean and constructive race. That is commendable and certainly the voters have had a better chance to make up their minds intelligently rather than a lot of emotion mixed with it. The state races have been full of mudslinging in some instances.

Gov. James V. Allred no doubt has the edge of all his opponents in Eastland county and rightfully so. Hon. Wilbourne B. Collie has a senatorial record that no doubt will swing a good majority for him throughout his district. W. H. (Bill) McDonald is definitely in the race for state land commissioner and from indications has a good chance to land the job.

There is no more to say, and it's up to the voters. The main thing is to go out and vote and vote your choice of candidates that you will think will make you the best county and state officer.

$202 In Premiums For County Fair Approved by Executive Committee; Many Merchandise Prizes Planned

A premium list of $202 for agricultural and livestock exhibits in the Eastland County Fair to be held at Eastland Sept. 16-19 was approved by executive committee members who met Thursday afternoon in the chamber of commerce building at Eastland.

In addition to the cash awards for the tenth annual fair, committee members plan to arrange 12 merchandise prizes in the livestock department and first, second and third place ribbons in all departments.

The premium total this year exceeds the 1935 figure. A more ambitious show is planned in the addition of new classes for the second livestock show to be held in conjunction with the fair. New classes added to that event are Shorthorns, White-face, Polled Angus and other stock specimens.

The 4-H Jersey heifers purchased recently by club boys will also be exhibited at the show. Preparation and solicitation of advertising is expected to be completed soon and the catalogue printed in ample time for consideration of exhibitors before the event.

Ribbons will be awarded in the art division of the women's department. In that division will be knitting, quilts, bedspreads, plain and fancy sewings, rugs, etc.

SCIENCE ENDS OIL DISCOVERY BY GUESSWORK

By HENRY WOOD
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO—New, highly perfected seismographic instruments, ordinarily used for recording earthquakes, are being tried throughout California, Texas and other western states for the detection of new oil fields, the California School of Technology reveals.

The perfection of the old-time seismographs, the invention of new instruments that permit of a practical use in delving into geological formations far beneath the earth's surface, constitute the latest contribution to this branch of science by California research workers. The men most responsible for the discoveries and inventions are Dr. Joshua L. Sosek and Dr. Raymond A. Peterson, research workers at the Institute of Technology as well as Dr. Russel Ratt formerly in the physics department of the institution.

Equipped with a complete set of their newest instruments, they are exploring the underworld over various parts of California in search of oil. Results are said to be satisfying.

Equal success has been achieved in Texas and other states. The newer instruments for the search of oil are modification of Dr. Hugo Benioff's earthquake recording seismograph, perfected and adapted to record higher frequency disturbances below the earth's surface, usually artificially generated by dynamite.

Other principles, notably those used in Oceanography, also were utilized in developing and perfecting the new instruments. The basis on which the oceanographers work is to send sound to the bed of the ocean, and record its echo when it returns to the surface. By knowing the velocity of the sound waves and the time consumed in the trip, it is possible for the scientists to determine the exact depth.

Proceeding with the same principle, Dr. Sosek and his associates decided to apply it to vibrations in the earth. Vibrations in the earth were set up by explosions of dynamite at various depths and in various geological formations until it was possible to create positive data not only to ascertain the depth from which the vibrations were reflected upward but also the nature of the geological formations through which the vibrations passed.

It was utilizing this data that it eventually became possible to sound out with the seismometers underlying strata and to ascertain whether there was the presence of oil, oil bearing shale or similar deposits.

Fort Worth Chief Of Detectives Is 'Grand Old Man'

By United Press
FORT WORTH, Tex.—Chief of Detectives Tom Jackson is the grand old man of the Fort Worth detective department—and he's never worn a uniform.

For 31 years he has been a peace officer—an officer of the old school with scorn for newfangled devices such as lie detectors. "Just let me grill them a little, that's all I want," he says.

And what a grilling they get. It has been said that certain criminals prefer solitary confinement to questioning by the "Chief." Few men can stand up under his close scrutiny through kind but searching eyes. Few men can long falsify statements when he says, "Now tell me the truth."

Just plain simple language he deals out, but the effect is more potent than polished oratory. Criminals respect him and his detectives love him. "My boys," as he calls the city investigators, swear by their chief and jump at the slightest suggestion he may make, whether it be a bargain at the store around the corner or a new lead on a big murder.

Jackson started his career as a deputy sheriff shortly after the turn of the century. He was a member of the Teddy Roosevelt escort when the president visited here in 1905. Later he joined the city police and was one of the few men to go directly into the detective department without preliminary training as a patrolman.

Navy Is Greater Insurance For Peace Than For War

One of the odd things about a navy is the fact that the less it is actually used, the more valuable it is to its possessor.

This fact is worth the attention of a nation which, like the United States, is spending hundreds of millions of dollars every year to put its fleet in shape.

"If through the existence of the navy," remarked the admiral "we are spared the ordeal of war, and for generations the navy never fires a gun in anger or is engaged in battle—I say to you that no matter what it costs us, it is cheap at the price. Any amount of fire insurance premium is cheaper than a fire."

The weather is a bit sultry these days for any serious arguments over military policy. But the navy is a deep-water institution, and it goes where there are cool and salty breezes, so perhaps the current heat wave makes it a timely subject.

And it must be said that even if one does not go all the way with Admiral Standley in his conception of a navy as a war-preventive, there still is a great deal in what he says.

A navy's chief value is as a threat rather than as an actual weapon. If the other fellow knows you have one, and knows that it can take care of any fuss that may develop in its own waters, he is not apt to come around and pick a quarrel.

And because of the inescapable geographical fact that any nation which plans to invade, oppress, or otherwise bedevil the United States has to come by water, the American navy does in fact represent the kind of fire insurance that Admiral Standley mentions.

For our navy does not merely insure us against invasion; it makes it as certain as anything can be certain in this chancy world that no invasion of our shores will be attempted.

That is why those great gray ships of ours, so expensive, so cleverly devised for grim combat, serve their purpose best of all when there is no enemy on the horizon.

Now it is perfectly possible of course, for us to misuse the power that they represent. We could get ourselves into a war in Asia or in Europe, send our fleet far afield, and use it for purposes not strictly connected with defense of our own shores.

But we needn't, if we play our cards carefully. We never will, if we once learn the lesson that our navy is built for peace rather than for war.

The longer our navy exists in the piping times of peace the better is it proving that it is worth what it costs.

By HARRY GRAYSON

CHICAGO—Max Schmeling will defeat Jim Braddock, if they collide in September.

Schmeling would belt out Joe Louis every night in the week.

Max Baer would do the same thing to Schmeling.

Louis would never have any more trouble with Baer than he had last fall.

These are the opinions of Jack Kearns, who managed Jack Dempsey to the championship and million dollar gates.

"I doubt that Braddock can get in sufficiently good condition between now and the end of the current outdoor season to repel the Schmeling who came out of the Louis fight," says Kearns, now the proprietor of a loop restaurant.

"Joe Gould was guilty of a colossal blunder when he permitted Louis to beat Braddock to the Schmeling scrap.

"I have an idea that Schmeling knocked Braddock out of his one chance for a really important purse when he convinced Louis of the folly of carrying his chin so high. The Negro was the lad who was packing them in.

"Fighting largely is a matter of styles," asserts Kearns, explaining his picking Schmeling over Louis, Baer over Schmeling, and Louis over Baer.

KEARNS considers Braddock as nothing more than an extremely fortunate individual who caught Baer in worse condition than Louis found the Californian.

"At that, Braddock might have gone on for another two or three years against the blokes who are around now had he kept busy," declares the dapper doctor.

"Braddock shows the almost inevitable result of a chap suddenly coming into what to him is big money after five lean years. Braddock is one of the finest men who ever boxed. Naturally a good fellow, he has reveled in the many banquets that have been tossed his way.

"I'll charge another large mistake to Gould if he sends Braddock into a Schmeling battle this year without something in the way of a warm-up, and the stevedore scarcely has time for anything more than that between now and another indoor season. Jim can't be sharpened up in a gymnasium."

KEARNS cannot comprehend Baer's comeback activities to date any more than he can understand the management of Braddock.

"Ancil Hoffman first should have taken Baer into the woods and had him ready for something out of the ordinary this fall," says the man who signed for Dempsey while the Manassa Man was making boxing big business. "Schmeling's knockout of Louis presented Baer with a golden opportunity.

"After all, he stopped Joe Jacobs' entry. A great majority suspect that Louis experienced, an off night against Schmeling. Any first class ballyhoo bureau could do a first class job of selling the customers on the possibility that Baer had two off nights a few weeks apart last year.

International Harvester Has Dallas Exhibit

Gwendolyn Rupe, a Rangerette, tries to hold the International Harvester milker as it milks the mechanical cow in the Hall of Transportation at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas. Frank Roberson is the local dealer for International Harvester products.

The International Harvester Company exhibit at the Texas Centennial Central Exposition occupies all of the west wing of the Transportation Building—an area comprising 10,810 square feet of floor space. This exhibit includes displays of historic and educational interest not only to users of farm machines, motor trucks, and industrial power equipment made by the Harvester Company, but also to all men, women, and children interested in the social and economic progress of the past century.

A replica of the first reaper, built in 1831 by Cyrus Hall McCormick, is on display, as well as models of many of the machines that evolved from the reaper. A full-sized 16-foot McCormick-Deering harvester-thresher is displayed operating slowly so that visitors can see how each part functions. This mighty monarch of the harvest fields can cut, thresh, and clean the grain from 40 to 50 acres a day.

Much of the progress of the past century is a direct result of American ingenuity in perfecting not only the modern grain binder but

POPULAR PAIR ARE REUNITED IN NEW FILM

"The Princess Comes Across," first film to reunite the screen sweethearts who make their bow together in "Hands Across the Table," is bright, sparkling entertainment of the romantic comedy order.

Fred MacMurray and Carole Lombard skip their way through a story kept a high-tension by intrigue and a double murder mystery.

The picture, which opens today at the Connellee Theatre, presents Miss Lombard as a beautiful American girl who poses as a Swedish princess in order to land a film contract. Aboard a trans-Atlantic liner, on which all the action of the picture takes place, she meets MacMurray, the leader of a swing band.

The romance begins immediately after the concertina-playing band leader and the phony princess bicker for the ship's royal suite. It is disrupted almost at once by the first of two murders.

Five international detectives, en route to New York to attend a convention, are enlisted in a hunt for the criminal. Never for a moment slackening its fast comedy pace, the story leaps from suspense to romance; from blackmail to concertina serenades; from a ship's party and swing music to drama.

Additional comedy is provided by the wisecracking of Allison Skipworth, a trouper posing as lady-in-waiting to "Princess Olga," and William Frawley, general manager for MacMurray's band.

The supporting cast, in addition to Frawley and Miss Skipworth, includes Douglass Dumbrille, Porter Hall, George Barbier and a score of others.

RETURN FAMED ROGERS COMEDY

In days of old, when knights were bold—and told dreadful fibs—is when the action of "A Connecticut Yankee" starring Will Rogers and coming Saturday night to the Connellee Theatre, is set.

Brought back in response to the requests of millions of Will Rogers fans who considered it his greatest picture, "A Connecticut Yankee" is a droll, fanciful story, full of riotous comedy and adventure.

The plot of the story begins when Rogers goes back to the days of King Arthur in a dream. Just as much surprised by the knights as they are by him, Rogers gets the supper hand when he starts showing a little modern magic.

There are some hilarious episodes as Rogers conquers villainous opponents, installs bathtubs in Merry England. But the punch of the picture is reserved for the close when Rogers rides off to save a damsel fair from the clutches of Queen Morgan Le Fay, played by Myrna Loy.

Fighting Face of Rep. Lemke

Here was the fighting face upon which 10,000 Townsends, gathered in the Cleveland, O., stadium, gazed as Congressman William Lemke, Union Party standard bearer, made a vigorous bid for their votes. ### Lyric Now Playing nurse, Florence Nightingale, opens at the Connellee Theatre Tuesday with Kay Francis in the stellar role.

The picture paints in fiery drama the fight of Florence Nightingale, a wealthy English society girl, to remedy conditions in army field hospitals and the neglect of dying soldiers. All the tragedy and pathos of the battlefield is pictured in the film, as well as the beauty of the life of sacrifice of Florence Nightingale and her specially picked nurses.

The film is set in the middle of the last century during the Crimean war, and the most thrilling scenes take place at the base hospital at Scutari, a small Turkish town on the north shore of the Bosphorus, and at Balaclava, where the immortal six hundred of the Light Brigade rode "into the jaws of death."

No more powerful nor romantic theme could have been selected by First National than that of the life of the great nurse who gave her all to humanity by revolutionizing the hospitalization system of the world, and whose efforts laid the groundwork for the establishment of the Red Cross.

The picture is enacted by an exceptionally talented cast of principals, with more than one thousand persons in extra roles. Ian Hunter, famous on the London stage and in films, and Donald Woods have the two leading masculine roles.

Others in the cast include actors famous in America and abroad, among them being Nigel Bruce, Donald Crisp, Henry O'Neill, Billy

MCCORMICK-DEERING

Speed and flexibility are brought to the row-crop farm by the Farmall tractor. It is so far ahead of horses when it comes to planting, cultivating, and doing other row-crop and general farming work that there is no comparison. And most important of all, Farmall farming means lower-cost farming.

Until you own and operate a Farmall you cannot appreciate the benefits and advantages of it. But just ask any Farmall owner about it. He is the man who is enthusiastic about the Farmall. He KNOWS. He has farmed with horses and with the Farmall and you can bet that he isn't going back to horses.

If you want a real demonstration of the Farmall, call us up and we will arrange one for you.

NEA Service, Inc.

HE DID NOT answer directly, but in a low voice, "I'm mighty glad you shot it into Barnes about the credit list he's been carrying. I've argued with him for months."

"I'm awfully pleased to know you agree with me," Helena said. "I'm going to need your help, Mr. Lassiter."

HE did not answer directly, but the slightest pressure on Helena's arm was all the reassurance she needed.

Gently he guided her to the floor above the mezzanine, to the small auditorium which was sometimes rented out to clubs, or used for demonstrations—or, less often, for a meeting of employees. In a moment they were joined by Courtney.

"Barnes is sending word through the store that the new owner would like to have the employees convene up here," he told Helena and Lassiter.

Soon they began to drift. Helena could sense their ill will. Barnes stepped to the platform. "Employees of the Henderson Department Store," he began in stilted fashion, "we have with us here the new owner of this organization for which we have all worked and planned together." He turned to Helena with an artificial smile. "Mrs. Henderson..."

Helena rose. There was a faint wave of applause. "I've got to win this," she thought. "If I don't do it now, I'm lost." Unsteadily she moved to the edge of the platform.

"I-I've never made a speech in my life," she began. Then panic struck into her heart—and was quickly dispelled at the wave of sympathetic laughter which greeted this confession. Regaining her composure, she answered the laughter with a smile. "But I've stood on my feet behind counters a good many hours, so I don't see why we can't understand one another."

"One thing I want to assure you—there won't be any sudden changes in the personnel. I hope there won't have to be any at all, sudden or otherwise. I haven't any definite ideas about the store." She smiled again. She stopped a moment, looking over the little audience. "I think that's all I wanted to say—except that I hope I'll have your help."

As Helena turned to Lassiter and Barnes and the attorney she could feel the heavy silence down there in the auditorium. "I've muffed it," she thought. "They don't trust me. They—" Then suddenly it came, a wave of spontaneous and prolonged applause. John Lassiter leaped from his chair and clasped Helena's hand. "You were marvelous!" he exclaimed.

Barnes was not enthusiastic, however. "I thought," he said, clearing his throat, "that you intended to outline some policy to them. I'm afraid it isn't a good idea to keep them after closing time just for a general handshake, Mrs. Henderson."

"I don't agree with you," Helena told him, holding her temper with an effort. "I happen to know that there's one thing a loyal employee appreciates—and that's an occasional word from the owner of the firm."

In the elevator she turned to Barnes. "Could I see a list of the customers whose accounts have been running 90 days or more?"

"Why, yes... of course." In his office he instructed his secretary to bring the list to Helena. Swiftly she surveyed it, saw the name of Leah Frazier, and of Mrs. Frank J. Frazier. Their accounts showed no amount paid for more than 10 months, and Leah's alone was over the thousand mark. Helena turned to Lassiter, handing him the list. "These names mean nothing to me. What would you say about them?"

Lassiter studied the list. "Well..." he said slowly, "it's difficult to generalize. Some of these are farmers with assets, and they'll pay when crops are harvested. Some of the others have had profitable investments in the past, but..." he glanced at Barnes, "I should say that they are taking advantage of their reputations as first families in the town."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

"DARK" AFRICA HAS GIVEN THE WORLD $5,000,000,000 WORTH OF GOLD, AND MORE THAN $1,000,000,000 IN DIAMONDS.

A BEE SELDOM MIXES ITS FLOWERS! IT PASSES FROM ONE PLANT TO ANOTHER, BUT USUALLY DOES NOT CHANGE TO ANOTHER KIND UNTIL IT HAS RETURNED TO THE HIVE WITH NECTAR FROM THE FIRST.

ERMINE, which is the fur of the weasel, taken when in the white winter stage, was very popular with ancient royalty for making various articles of wearing apparel. Whether or not the word "vair" was changed to "verre," as some modern translators believe, there is no denying the fact that ermine slippers would have been a great deal more comfortable on Cinderella's feet.

Japanese Like Western Music

TOKYO.—The new Tokyo symphony orchestra is winning its way to recognition as one of the world's outstanding musical organizations.

It has been honored by an invitation to participate in the International Exposition in Paris next year, when many of the world's most famous orchestras will perform.

The invitation was conveyed by Jacques Thibaud, French violinist, who appeared here in a series of concerts this summer.

The performance and appreciation of Western music is comparatively new in Japan, which has its own musical tradition. But now every concert of the symphony orchestra is a sell-out and the old masters are interpreted in a manner that reflects credit on conductors and players alike.

A typical summer evening in Hibiya Park will find the orchestra playing Mendelssohn, Mozart and Dvorak. The cement and graveled walks, flower-lined, are thronged with music-lovers on their way to Hibiya Hall. There are some foreigners, but mostly they are kimonod Japanese.

Inside the hall girls ushers scurry about. Japanese students in their blue uniforms and peaked caps are smoking a final cigarette before bursting to their seats with a great clatter as the curtains part.

The auditorium seats about 4,000 and it is filled to capacity. The music begins. The applause for the orchestra is surprising in its intensity. And the hearers know their music, with the result that conductors are not annoyed by premature applause or clapping of hands between the movements of a symphony.

McDonald Believes Will Win In Race By 150,000 Votes

DALLAS, Tex., July 24.—The Sabine river-bed contract under which the school children's revenue can be increased $250,000 a year, convict labor and old age pensions are the chief issues in the race for State and Commissioner, said William H. McDonald, candidate for the position, in a final message to voters. Recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident that forced him to give up campaigning the final four days, he declared:

"The State has been flooded with an unsigned, last-minute circular full of misrepresentations of me that the newspapers recognized as such and refused to print. Where did the money come from to pay for printing and distributing these thousands of circulars—and why was it contributed?"

McDonald said his opponent favors convict drilling crews and a plan for the State to wicket for oil which would be so costly that old age pensions would be endangered. McDonald pointed to his legal training, knowledge of the oil industry and business experience, and predicted his nomination by 150,000 majority.

Hickok City No. 2 Gasser

CISCO.—The Hickok City No. 2 well a mile and a half northeast of Cisco today was believed to be good for a million cubic feet of gas or more, after it was given a nitroglycerine shot yesterday. The first test indicated a gas flow of 1,250,000 cubic feet.

Oil rose 150 feet in the hole after the shot, it was announced by company officials. The well, drilled into the Lake Eastland sand, was believed to be on the edge of the producing structure.

Valley to Spread Sales Messages Into New Markets

McALLEN, Tex.—Lower Rio Grande Valley citrus interests this fall will spread their sales messages into two important new markets—the eastern United States and Atlantic coast cities and Europe.

Heads of several large Valley shipping organizations are now making market contracts in the eastern markets and in Europe, both for fresh and canned citrus opening of the 1936-37 season in which a crop of around 20,000 carloads is expected.

English and European outlets for both fresh and canned citrus and by-products are being sought. Processed grapefruit and other citrus juices and by-products have become very popular in England and France during the past two seasons and it is with the view of expanding and developing these markets that the European trips are being made.

More than a score of by-products plants this season will make a heavy demand on Valley orchard for cull fruit, formerly buried or destroyed. By-products last year brought Valley growers a half million dollars.

Millet May Become New Breakfast Food

ABERDEEN, S. D.—The breakfast food center of America may move westward, successful experiments here with millet as a morning meal cereal indicate.

The experiments were conducted by A. W. Schnuerle, Aberdeen miller, who steam-exploded millet in a breakfast food-making apparatus to eight times normal size. The results were pronounced by Dr. N. E. Hansen, of South Dakota State College, as "tasty cereal, the equal of puffed wheat in flavor, and retaining a tangy flavor other grains lose in undergoing the same process."

Since millet is a dry-weather crop, it can be grown successfully in South Dakota, Dr. Hansen said.

France Profits Little From Sewer Tours

PARIS—The famous sewers of Paris, which are open to the public—but seldom prove a drawing card—attracted 1,107 visitors in 1935. The underground tour from the Place de la Concorde to the Madeleine Church is taken in small boats in the underground passages, made famous by Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

The sewers are open to the public only in summer months, one day a week, and the eerie boat trip can be made for three francs per person. Last year's traffic brought about $285 into the coffers of the French government.

Today Parisian sewers extend from 600 to 700 miles in length, but only a quarter of a mile is available to curious tourists.

Farmers are learning that, before they can begin saving for a rainy day, they must have the rainy day.

Studies Airport for Ocean Flight

The possibility that she would attempt a transatlantic flight to her native Sweden was suggested by the inspection of Roosevelt Field L. L. made by the beautiful Baroness Eva von Blixen-Finecke (above), noted Stockholm aviatrix. With Kurt Bjorkvall, Swedish pilot, she examined the airport's facilities for takeoff of heavily laden planes.

Bicycle Stealing Has Developed Into New Racket

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Bicycle stealing among juvenile delinquents has developed into a well organized "racket" in Fort Worth and is becoming a dilemma for detectives and juvenile officers.

Missing bicycles outnumber missing automobiles many weeks, police reported.

Like the car theft syndicates, the boys have resorted to stripping parts, which are sold separately to dealers or reassembled into new and different bicycles.

Officers find that gangs of five to 15 boys join together in boyish crime. In secluded backyard garages, used as a combination workshop and hideout, officers find scattered parts of bicycles. But the boys are not finding it so easy to market their loot as they have in the past. They almost have been forced to stop going to legitimate dealers as these dealers are becoming detectives in their own right and keep a record of the bicycles they sell and buy. By a quick check-up they can tell if they are buying a bicycle they once sold. If they find they are, arrests follow.

The juvenile gangs have turned to the car theft rings for means of disposal. Now they ship many of the stolen bicycles out of town for sale. Detectives learned recently of a carload of Fort Worth bicycles exchanged for a similar number in Waco.

Artillery Fire Stepped Up By Electric Gear

SEATTLE.—Bill Preisz, Yakima, Wash., sophomore at the University of Washington, thinks his new electrically operated range finder will find favor with the United States coast artillery. Preisz' device would eliminate nine of the 13 men now required to compute an artillery firing problem and reduce the element of error to virtually nothing. Firing data will be computed automatically by the machine instantaneously with the sighting of the telescopes.

It's Playtime, and Marie Plays!

Adding to the harmony of the quintuplet play period, Marie, the petite mouth organist, supplies the lilting strains of a medley of songs she made up all by herself. This little girl with the curl in the middle of her forehead must be very, very nice to entertain her sisters in the heat of that sun.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

"The white flags mark the sailing course... and those two little poles over there? They mean good fishing.

"Probably somebody fished and fished all over the lake with no luck at all until he hit that spot. Maybe he got several good strikes just about there. Must have calculated in his mind just where the spot was and, next time he came out, brought those poles with him and drove them down, so he'd have something to tie his boat to."

Advertisements mean to an experienced shopper exactly what those two poles mean to an experienced fisherman—"good fishing." Advertisements are markers of the best buys—they save "fishing all over the lake."
