Planes Take Exploration Deep Alaska

WASHINGTON.—The Government for the first time this year has sent planes for exploration of Alaska. S. R. Capps, geologist, Gerald Fitzgerald, topographer, both of the Geological Survey, who have returned from interior Alaska, have been to the Interior Department for the saving of time due to the use of airplanes.

The Geological Survey has been working upon a map of Alaska. There are still many unexplored areas in Alaska the planes of which are still to be mapped.

One of the rugged regions in Alaska is a rugged region in the mountains which is a semi-circle between the Fairbanks, which are the government railroad end of these mountains is about 100 miles west of Fairbanks. The summer season which it is possible to fly in this region is but a few weeks and it has been three weeks to get into the mountains.

At the beginning of the season the use of airplanes instead of going in by rail, the members of the expedition and their supplies were taken on the journey which was made in a few weeks.

From a quarter of a mile describes this method of Alaska by saying that the planes contained two men and that one of them was the pilot and the other the observer. The space given over to the passenger and the pilot was small. But one passenger was accommodated on the plane. He was placed in a seat and was tucked up to his chin. He was taken to his destination, the airplane, which was lighted on the water. The plane was returned to Anchorage and the passenger accompanied by a pilot and a third passenger.

For a third passenger the initial party had mapped the region that could be reached in a few days. At the time the pack train made its way to the mountains, the planes were used to map the mountains and by triangulation the location of the mountains in a certain area and Mr. Capps' observations and even photographs, of which he found several streams during months of intensive work in the mountains.

The world's map-making had never penetrated to the Alaskan range and out to the north where the mountains exist.

Dallas Man Killed Following Dispute Near Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Texas, Oct. 24.—A. A. Bergdorf, 46, a carpenter was held in the Howard county jail charged with murder today as the result of having shot to death Charlie Wallace, 27, of Dallas, at a filling station, eight miles north of here.

Wallace was killed instantly by two bullets from a rifle. The bullets struck him in the head. He had come here with a companion, R. A. Jones, also of Dallas, to look for work. The men were standing at the filling station when Wallace and Bergdorf got into an argument and the shooting followed.

HERE TO TELL ABOUT CHRIST AND THAT ONLY

Evangelist At Church of Christ Says He Is Not Advising People On Politics or Civic Work.

A large crowd filled the auditorium of the Church of Christ last night to hear Brother Busby deliver a very able address. Among some of the things he said, was that he did not come to Eastland for the purpose of making political speeches, advise the people how to run the town, or the school board how to run the schools, but that his mission was to preach Christ and Him crucified. His exhortations were splendid.

Many spiritual songs were sung by the congregation, and at the close of the services three young women were baptized.

The services will close tonight, and a large attendance is expected.

Barbers Meet To Plan Betterments

A bill that is to be presented to the next legislature was read and discussed and other matters for the improvement of the barbering business were discussed.

Mystery Surrounds Death Of Girl

LARNED, Kans., Oct. 24.—Mystery today surrounds the death of Miss Imogene Ragliff, pretty 23-year-old Larned girl, who went for an automobile ride Monday afternoon, and was never seen alive again.

A secret post mortem was being held today over the body of the young woman found Tuesday night in shallow water near the bank of Pawnee Creek. County authorities are saying nothing in connection with their findings in regard to the girl's death.

Miss Ragliff, a graduate of the local high school and a telephone operator, drove away from her home late Monday afternoon. The car was noted standing near where the body was found.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Oct. 24.—Colonel Charles Lindbergh took off from Eagle Pass at 10:40 this morning for LaBabia Ranch in Mexico, where he will be the guest of Hal Mangum, owner of the ranch, on a bear hunting expedition. ### When Good Southerners Get Together

It took the nomination of Governor Alfred L. Smith for president to end the political feud of years standing between Senator Hoke Smith (center) and former Governor Joseph M. Brown (right) of Georgia, leaders of rival factions in the Democracy of Georgia. The other man in the picture is John R. Slater, manager of the Georgia campaign for the Smith-Robinson ticket, to whom the old political foes came simultaneously to bury the hatchet and work for the New York Governor.

COMPLAIN OF INDICTMENT OF THOMAS DAVIS

Defense Attorneys Point Out Alleged Defect and Ask Arrest of Judgment. Motion for New Trial.

Contending that the indictment on which Thomas Davis was tried for murder in connection with the slaying of Lucian Shook, September 7, was not a grand jury indictment, motion for the arrest of judgment was filed in the 88th district court Tuesday by Grisham Bros., attorneys for the defendant. Davis was found guilty as charged and sentenced to death.

In their motion, defense attorneys declare there is no such organization as "grand jurors" known to the law and that there is no averment in the indictment that it was by a grand jury or that the body of grand jurors was ever organized into a grand jury. The bill of rights is referred to in support of the claim that the failure of the indictment to show a return by such organized body is fatally defective. It is contended that the terms Grand Jurors and Grand Jury are not synonymous in law or fact. The attorneys insist:

"Wherefore no grand jury of Eastland county, duly organized as such, has ever returned any indictment against this defendant, same should be considered as no indictment, and the defendant prays that for said defect, in substance on the face of said indictment fully apparent, the judgment should be arrested and never entered in this cause."

Defense counsel also filed a motion for a new trial, subject to the motion in arrest of judgment, urging eighteen reasons for a new trial.

Two Victims When Dynamite Explodes

EL DORADO, Ark., Oct. 24.—A dynamite explosion at the Lion Oil Refining company's well No. 9 this morning killed Wesley Terrell, 26, and painfully injured Elma Marsha, 22, both of El Dorado.

The well was an abandoned one and a crew was removing remnants of a recent operation when the accident occurred. Terrell's stomach was pierced by a huge piece of iron pipe and Marshall's left wrist was nearly severed.

Lindbergh To Hunt Bears In Mexico

EPISCOPAL CHURCH HEAD IN TEXAS DIES

Rt. Rev. George Herbert Kinsolving, Bishop of Texas, Ends 55 Years Service.

AUSTIN, Oct. 24.—The Rt. Rev. George Herbert Kinsolving, bishop of the Texas diocese of the Episcopal church, died at his home here late last night of heart trouble. He was the fourth in his church in the United States at the time of his death.

The death of Bishop Kinsolving elevates the Rt. Rev. Clinton S. Quin, formerly coadjutor bishop of the diocese, to the position of bishop of Texas.

Funeral services will probably not be held until Saturday to allow time for Bishop Quin, now in Washington, and others high in the church to reach Austin.

The bishop's period of service dated back to 1874, when he served as assistant minister in Christ church, Baltimore. He had been bishop of Texas since July 11, 1892.

HUNTED MAN DEFIES POLICE, GETS KILLED

W. A. Fletcher, Dallas, After Creating Disturbance, Is Shot To Death In Gun Battle.

DALLAS, Oct. 24.—W. T. Fletcher was shot to death about 8:30 o'clock this morning in a gun battle with police, as the climax of a manhunt which was organized following the shooting of A. A. Ivey, emergency squad policeman of the Oak Cliff district.

Ivey was shot in the arm after he had gone to a house in answer to a disturbance call. A few minutes after Ivey was shot, a manhunt involving about 400 persons was under way in the thickly wooded section in and around Marselis Park, where Fletcher had fled after Ivey was shot.

When Fletcher was found, the officers called to him to surrender. "I won't give up," Fletcher shouted back at them, raising his gun to shoot.

This precipitated an exchange of pistol fire and Fletcher was killed. Motorcycle Officer Karr had a narrow escape from death when a bullet from Fletcher's gun passed through his cap.

Fletcher's body was taken from a clump of bushes to an undertaking establishment.

Escaping Gas From Broken Sewer Pipe Gets Four Victims

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 24.—Overcome by gas escaping from a broken sewer, three laborers were asphyxiated last night and another was in a serious condition at a hospital today.

The dead are: J. D. Blaing, James Bush and Merle Manker. John Clem was removed to the hospital where it was said he had a chance to recover.

The asphyxiation occurred when the men accidentally tapped the sewer while bricking up a cess pool.

Alleged Cattle Thief Arrested Loading Cows

Sheriff's officers arrested, on Tuesday night, a man who was in the act of loading five cows belonging to Ed Samford into a trailer attached to a Dodge car.

The cows were running in the W. B. Samford pasture, about five miles south of Eastland. Some one saw the cows being herded into a corral and sent word to Sheriff Hart, who soon had his officers at the scene.

The trailer in which the cows were to be loaded had high sides so that it might be hauled along the road and the cows be hidden from passers by.

Complaint against Jim Reed charging cattle theft was filed Wednesday with Justice of the Peace, Steele.

Catching 300 Miles Per Hour

IN these days of 250 miles per hour racing cars and over 300 miles per hour aeroplanes, human eyes and nerves become of little use in determining speed rates in racing contests. Yet the apparatus shown above can record these tremendous speeds and give the racing speeds in miles per hour within a few seconds after the completion of the race. The elapsed time for each lap is taken from the recording tape of the electric timer which appears in the lower right hand corner of the picture, in hours, minutes, seconds and hundredths of seconds. These figures are recorded separately for each participant and turned over to the man on the left, who with the aid of a Monroe calculator, figures the miles per hour correct to four decimal places within a few seconds after the race is over.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The entire $24,000,000 appropriation for Mississippi River flood control work during the current fiscal year will have been exhausted by June 30, the war department announced today in a bulletin which reported that the flood control program was progressing rapidly.

In addition, the announcement said, allotments amounting to more than $400,000 has been made from the $1,000,000 emergency fund appropriated at the last session of Congress for rescue work and maintenance and repair work on the tributaries of the Mississippi, made necessary by the flood of 1927 and subsequent floods.

Thus far the work has been divided into four general classes—enlargement and strengthening of main river levees, bank reversion, dredging and preliminary work on other and more permanent features of the project, the bulletin stated.

Accidents Afflict Two-Year Old In Rapid Succession

GSEENVILLE, Tex., Oct. 24.—Little Ernest Doan, 2-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Doan, believed he has been the victim of enough misfortunes for one week.

One week ago Ernest lost a finger while playing around a binder. Tuesday he was kicked in the head by a mule and his scalp half torn off. While he was being rushed to a hospital the family car crashed into another machine and the boy was thrown out, receiving cuts and bruises.

Physicians, however, reported that Ernest will recover.

LOBOES WILL FIGHT TO BEAT THE BUCKAROOS

Cisco High Must Win Game Next Saturday or Be Eliminated From Conference Race.

Can the Loboes come back? That is one of the burning questions of the day. The 13-13 battle between Cisco and San Angelo last Saturday reduced the conference standing of the Big Dam team to .750 as a tie counts half a loss and half a victory. The Loboes MUST win Saturday at Breckenridge—or be eliminated from the race. If Cisco goes down in defeat, it will be the first time since 1922 that the team did not remain in the race until the district finals.

In 1923, they lost in the district finals to Abilene, who captured the State championship. In 1924 and 1925, Cisco won the district championship and went on to the State semi-finals. In 1926 they lost the district title to Ranger in a play-off game. In 1927, they went down in the final game before the Abilene Eagles.

If Cisco loses Saturday, it will mean that they are out of the race a full month before Thanksgiving Day—when the race is officially over.

But the Loboes haven't lost yet. Reports that trickle out of the secret workout sessions say there is a deadly earnestness about the players that bodes ill for the Buckaroos next Saturday when they will clash in the presence of a record-breaking crowd.

Without seeking to minimize the showing of the San Angelo team, it should be borne in mind that Cisco was greatly over-confident. Had the Loboes not entered the game feeling that they had a cinch, they would have been in a frame of mind to really fight and the score probably would have been different. They are entering the game against Breckenridge in that fighting frame of mind. Furthermore when they suddenly found going tough at San Angelo, there were only a handful of faithful fans to cheer them. When they meet Breckenridge, nearly half the crowd—that whole east side of the field—will be a shouting mass of fans pulling for a Lobo victory.

Another thing: The Buckaroos are a strong team but they do not have the experienced backfield that Cisco has. Experience does not crack when nerves are tense—at least, it is less likely to break under the strain of a (Continued on Page 2)

Eastland and Baird to Play Here Friday

Eastland and Baird high schools will compete for football honors on the Eastland athletic field Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Baird has been playing splendid ball this year in the Class B conference and may be expected to put up a hard fight against the Mavericks, who will have to exert themselves if they expect to come through the contest with honors. Superintendent P. B. Bittle said that school children would be admitted to the game for 25 cents and adults would pay 50 cents.

The Eastland Mavericks will go into action Friday afternoon when they face the Baird eleven on the Eastland gridiron.

Although Cornie Smith and Norton will be out of the game due to injuries sustained in the valiant fight against the heavy Abilene team last week, the Mavericks have a good chance to emerge victorious. It would be their first win since early in the year when they won their first two games—against Cross Plains and Rising Star. In their last three starts, they have drawn three of the strongest teams in the state—Breckenridge, Ranger and Abilene. In all of those games, however, the Mavericks—light, young, inexperienced—have given their best and they have never quit fighting.

For the splendid work that the Eastland team has put up, it deserves the support of every local fan. The presence of several hundred Eastland rooters at Abilene last week encouraged the boys in their fight against big odds. Another large turnout of fans Friday afternoon would aid the morale of the team greatly, would help them to defeat Baird, and would enable them to enter the game against Brownwood next week in a victorious frame of mind.

Most of the 1928 Mavericks will be back next season and if the fans prove that—win or lose—they are back of the team from start to finish, it will mean much toward building the foundations for a bunch of Class A victories next year.

SAN ANGELO—Highway No. 29 will be improved in areas traversing oil fields west of here.

GOVERNOR WILL AID CAMPAIGN FOR DEMOCRATS

Senator George Norris of Nebraska, "Progressive" Promises To Speak For Smith.

DALLAS, Oct. 24.—Democratic leaders supporting the national ticket today received word from Governor Dan Moody that he will speak in Dallas Saturday night in answer to Senator William Borah of Idaho, who spoke for Hoover at Fair Park auditorium Monday.

Moody's address probably will be made from the same platform occupied by Borah, according to C. U. Renfro, chairman of the Democratic Speakers Bureau.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Democratic strategy achieved today one of its most vital campaign objectives—definite endorsement of Governor Al Smith by Senator George Norris of Nebraska.

The Nebraska Republican leader will tell over the radio next Saturday night why he favored the Democratic presidential nominee, the progressive league for Smith announced.

This simple announcement made by the League's executive secretary, F. C. Howe, through the Democratic National committee, is calculated by party chiefs to appeal to perhaps 5,000,000 voters of political importance.

Many voters classed under the various designations as "progressive" supported the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette for the presidency in 1924. If Norris, their unofficial spokesman, could swing them all to Smith the latter's election November 6, would be practically assured.

Smith would need in addition to the agricultural states he could carry in such manner, only the usual "solid south" and New York state to put him over.

Mexican Rebels Attack Federals, Fight 13 Hours

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—Thirty rebels and federal troops were killed in a 13-hour street battle in the town of Autlan, a dispatch received here said today.

Three hundred rebels attacked the town, the dispatch said. Federal troops and local forces defended the town from trenches, but suffered heavily and were forced to retreat. The rebels succeeded and burned the town and kidnapped two citizens who were believed to have been executed subsequently.

The end of the battle found the streets filled with dead and wounded.

HUNTSVILLE—$404,967 contract let for construction of concrete paving on highway 45 westward to Grimes county.

GIGANTIC HIGHWAY PROGRAM.

America's road building program this year involves an expenditure of $11 for each man, woman and child in the country. It is expected to reach the tremendous total of $1,360,025,776. Widening of old roads is an important feature, particularly the addition of shoulders on paved highways.

According to the American Automobile association, this means that the end of 1928 we will have more than 600,000 miles of surfaced highways. The federal aid system, consisting of 185,000 miles of important interstate trunk lines, will be about two-thirds completed.

Our highways are the arteries that give life to the nation. They take more money than almost any other item in the budget, and they pay it back more rapidly in social and industrial progress.

GUNMEN—ROMANTIC AND OTHERWISE.

Mark Twain, in his "Roughing It," tells of the wild-eyed awe with which he witnessed a shooting affray that marked his first day in Carson City, Nevada, during the gold-rush days.

He had just been introduced to a tall, lanky westerner on the main street when the westerner excused himself, remarking that he saw a man who had recently slandered him. He strode away and confronted another husky westerner. Both men pulled out revolvers and began shooting at one another, carried off to hospitals. Mark Twain's eyes nearly popped out of his head, but the townspeople, after a brief flurry of excitement, paid little attention. It was all part of a day's events, to them.

In reading of this episode some are apt to feel a thrill of regret that the wild, picturesque days of the old frontier have passed. They were bad and lawless, but they were colorful.

But it happens that in the year 1928 we have incidents that almost exactly parallel that one described by Mark Twain.

In New York the other day, at 7 a. m., one Louis Weinberg stepped from a sedan to a busy sidewalk and spoke to one Joseph Noe, loitering by a building. "Morning, Joe," he said; and Joe replied, "Morning, Louie." Then each man pulled out a revolver and emptied it at the other.

Both men fell, badly wounded. Weinberg's friends pulled him back into the sedan and drove rapidly away; Noe was taken into a nearby hotel for first aid. In a short time the street had resumed its tranquility.

That affair is strikingly similar to Mark Twain's experience. It does not, for some reason, resemble as picturesque. Mark Twain's gunmen seemed breezy, colorful, almost admirable; New York's are the reverse.

Why should that be? Perhaps it is because the old Nevada gunmen were the logical outgrowth of the free and easy times on the frontier, while the modern gunmen are the perverted exceptions to a rule of peace and order. In the old west a man could pack and use a six-shooter without being a criminal; today that does not hold good. We admire the colorful westerners of the gold rush days, but the city gunman of 1928 fills us with aversion.

Chewing gum has become such a craze in London that cleaners in trams, buses, theatres and motion picture houses are complaining of the extra work of removing the "stuck" wads from under the seats. Dealers say the demand for gum grew greatly during the summer, and they believe touring Americans were responsible for much of it. The Londoners then took up the habit from the visitors.

L. KLEIMAN IS RETIRING FROM BUSINESS

Will Be Succeeded by A. Green, Coming From Wichita Falls. Kleiman To Live Here. The Kleiman Dry Goods Company, of which L. Kleiman is president and general manager, is closing out. Their advertisements have appeared in the newspapers for the past few weeks. A. Green of Wichita Falls has purchased the unsold stock and fixtures and will open up a new business in the building. He states that he will have some announcements to make just as soon as his stock of new merchandise arrives. L. Kleiman, who came to Eastland and engaged in business in 1919, is retiring from business. He will continue to make his home in Eastland, but may be out of the city for a few weeks at a time as he has considerable interests in other sections of the country. "When I came to Eastland ten years ago there was only a small town here, there were no buildings to speak of, the streets were unpaved and some of them were knee-deep in mud," said Mr. Kleiman. "I believed the town was going to grow and would be a good town to live in and do business in. My judgment was proved in that respect and I am proud that I not only came to Eastland, but also that I stayed." Mr. Kleiman said that he wished to thank the people of Eastland and this section for the liberal patronage given his store during the ten years he had been in business. "I appreciate my good friends here and I am going to remain with them and do what I can to help Eastland to continue to grow and prosper," he said. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company predicts that by 1950 Texas will have a population of 7,915,000, a gain of 1,488,000 or 23.7 per cent. The only paper mill in Texas is at Orange on the Sabine river.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—There is just a remote chance that the result of the forthcoming presidential election will be seriously contested by the minority party. There has been no such contest since 1876. There will be no contest unless the winning candidate's margin in the electoral college is very small, or the electoral college majorities are nearly always of substantial size, but the fact that many political forecasters admit the possibility of a close vote this year enhances interest in what might happen. Failure of Congress to reapportion its membership, according to mandatory provisions of the Constitution, is responsible for the raising of this question. Electoral college votes are apportioned in accordance with congressional delegations. Each state has an elector for every senator and representative. Congressional representation is supposed to be determined by population. The changes demanded by the Constitution have not been made since the census of 1920—the first case of such omission in history. Reapportionment was formally refused in a vote by the House during its last session. Thus there has been a chance that some bright lad might raise the issue of whether or not any piece of national legislation passed in recent years could be considered constitutional. No one has quibbled about that, but the matter takes on added importance when it is recalled that the electoral col-

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 20 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you eat food and digest it properly. Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing. Mr. James F. Campbell, of 1012 W. Fifth St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "I had bloating after eating. My rheumatism was so bad I could hardly raise my arms. Now I can eat anything and do a good day's work." If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Great Boxer From Belgium Is a Hero Of The Great War

By HYPE IGOE In N. Y. World This is the strange sidelight of Rene De Vos's career.

De Vos, the middleweight champion of Europe, who has defeated since coming to this country in quest of the undisputed middleweight championship, faces K. O. Phil Kaplan tomorrow night, and when he stalks out to the middle of the ring, you see him, will know that your eyes are resting on a lad utterly unafraid. And I'll tell you why:

When the war broke out, Germany pounced on Belgium and made her citizens virtually prisoners of war. A Belgium lad, Francis Steyaert by name, fourteen years old, was commissioned by the German officers in Belgium to carry messages through the wire entanglements to Holland when there was occasion to communicate with the outside world. His efficiency, shrewdness, and quick wit earned him the name De Vos, the little fox. He had no love for the Germans. Under Titon rule, his heart was with the Allies. He carried the German messages through the electrified barbed wire entanglements, but only because it was a German command. When he passed through the barriers separating Belgium from Holland, the juice was shut off to allow the little fox to pass through unharmed. He knew the key of the mesh and when he appeared the sentry looked over his list, asked for the password and the fox slipped through to fulfill his German commands. He delivered these messages to a little tobacco store in Holland, and German secret service men did the rest.

But there came a slip up. Strangely enough, when important plans for bombardments and attacks were sent through by the little fox, the Allies seemed to learn about it. He always disappeared for ten or fifteen minutes. Then the reason for the leak. He had a friend who could decipher German code messages. De Vos always says to it that this friend got the message before they were carried into Holland. To duplicate in a little steel capsule, stuffed it down the throat of a homing pigeon and the Allies got all the information that the little fox was carrying to German officials. It meant the life of a homing pigeon each time but it was big time information.

Every time the Germans sent out their plans, the Allies were there to block them and then it dawned on the German officers that somebody was tipping off their innermost secrets. But who? There were a dozen who might well be suspected. The Germans had no illusions about the loyalty of Belgian subjects. They would eliminate all the possible leaks until they got their man. Suspicion settled on the little fox. He was entrusted with another message. His friend got it as per schedule.

It read somewhat like this: "This boy is under suspicion. His messages have been going wrong. He has been told that the juice when he goes through. If he is innocent, he will approach the barbed wire without suspicion. If he balks, then we know that he has been reading the code."

The little fox, of course couldn't read it but his friend could. He saw the danger. "You're not going through the entanglement, Francois," he said.

"Certainly," said the little fox. "It's death, they're double crossing you. They've told you that the electricity will be turned off for your ten-minute trip through. It will be on and you will be killed on the spot."

"Can't help that. Hesitation means death. I will take it man's wires."

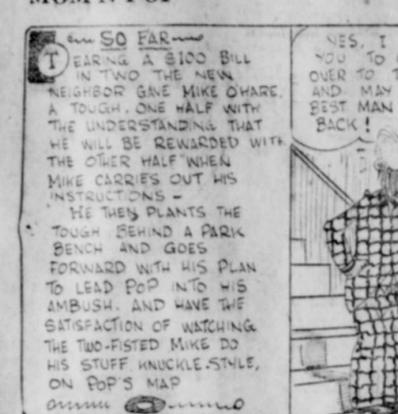

His friend pleaded for him to bolt into hiding. He wouldn't listen to it. He would see the thing through. It was the firing squad or death by an electrical shot, so, after all, there wasn't much choice and the brave front was the better gamble.

De Vos walked to his usual entrance. He was about to step through when the sentry held a gun across his chest. The challenge. His name? Francois Steyaert. The soldier on guard looked over his list of those usually permitted to come and go in the interest of the German Army. Yes, his name was there. The sentry had received his instruction. If the little fox came to go through without batting an eye, then he must be innocent. He wouldn't be fool enough to walk into entanglements that were death traps—death by burning without the chair. The sentry turned him

Don't Expect to Be Beaten

You will notice that both Bob Zuppke, famous Illinois football coach, and Al Nowack, the Illinois captain this year, have broad smiles in this photograph. The smiles are caused, one assumes, from the fact that they don't expect to lose any football games this year. Nowack is at the left.

FARMER FOOLS BEES; MAKES THEM WORK EARLY

Borale Mathews, an electrical engineer, who is a leader in application of electricity to farm problems in England, reports an experiment in putting bees to work under the stimulus of artificial illumination. Considerably earlier in spring than the normal time for bees to leave their hives he trains beams of light from electric lamps on the entrance to the hives. The bees were soon stirred to action, evidently believing that the first warm sunny day of the season was at hand. They began to issue from the hives in search of food. When dishes of syrup, artificial pollen and water, and a big vase of flowers were placed in their vicinity, with the lights still burning, they began to feed as hens do when the henhouses are artificially illuminated before dawn.

ELECTRICITY ON FARM

A farmer's wife has calculated that she had walked 112 miles a year carrying water or a total of 3808 miles since she began house-keeping. It is in kind of drudgery that makes many farm women old before their time.

Electricity on the farm makes possible hot and cold water in the kitchen, bath room and laundry, and running water in the barn, the garage, the dairy house and in the feed lots. Ask the farmer whose farm is equipped with a water system operated by electricity why he wanted such a system and he will probably reply, "I can best answer that by asking you why you want to eat when you are hungry."

Cochrane Worked for It Mickey Cochrane may not have deserved the American League's most valuable player prize in preference to Heinie Manush, but he certainly worked for it.

By his individual efforts Manush had much to do with the transformation of the St. Louis Browns into a first division club but Cochrane had his own personal responsibilities with an important team in a torrid pennant race.

Cochrane worked behind the bat in nearly every game of the season and he had more duties than to catch what the pitcher threw at him. He had to strain himself in every minute of every game to put some fight in the team.

The ball players say that Cochrane was one of only two "money

Has Highest Salary

He did and the terms for the sale were $1,000 down with $4,000 more if he made good. Today, Vance is probably the highest salaried pitcher in the National League, and has been the best find ever made by Sutton.

The Dodgers once were noted for being strong pennant contenders ever four years, concurrent with the presidential year. Since 1912 the Brooklyn team has won three National League pennants, and were dangerous contenders in 1924. The 1924 season found Vance at his best, being voted the most valuable player in the league, and figuring prominently in the success of the Dodgers with a record of 28 victories and 6 defeats.

However, even with the famous "Dazzler" in the line-up the Robins were eliminated as pennant contenders by the New Giants just two days before the close of the 1924 season. That is as near as Vance has gotten to a world's series, as a player.

Since joining the Robins, Vance has been the most capab performer on the mound for Manager Robertson. Vance won 18 games and lost 12 in his first year, the season of 1922. The previous year he was known as the strike-out king of the "Minors," with a record of 163 strikeouts.

Struck Out For 1922, Vance retired 134 batters by the strike-out route. The next year he won 18 games, struck 15 and struck out 197 hitters. In 1924, he was at the peak of his career, winning 28 games, striking six and striking out 262 batters. For the season, Vance allowed in average of only 2.16 earned runs per game in 35 games.

Sports Matter

Arthur C. (Dazzy) Vance, at the age of 35 a veteran as ball players go but during the 1928 season, with the sixth place Brooklyn Dodgers, he turned in a record of 22 victories against 10 defeats. The big red-faced pitcher again regained supreme in the strike-out division, topping the National League hurlers by fanning 200 opposing batters.

During the past seven years in the older circuit, Vance has proven to be one of the most consistent pitchers in the league. His career is similar to that of Charley Root, of the Chicago Cubs, Ed Rempel, of the Philadelphia Athletics, Tony Knuffman, also of the Chicago Cubs, and Jess Petty, team-mate of the "Dazzler" with the Robins, in that world's series glory has never been theirs to share.

When the Robins won the National League Pennant in 1920, Vance was then toiling with the Memphis and New Orleans teams in the Southern Association. In bolstering his pitching staff for the 1922 campaign, Uncle Wilbert Robinson sent Larry Sutton, Robin scout, to New Orleans to look over a pitcher named Phillips. Sutton reported back to the Fatbush headquarters with the advice, "Thumbs down on Phillips, but buy Vance."

Squire Ebbers demurred, but finally Sutton received permission to buy Vance.

to the imagination. It appears, rather, in brighter colorings and bolder lines on the favorite old designs. The stage comes down more vigorously down snowy streets; the skies are black and have red sunsets to contrast the country scenes; purple ships bounce over green oceans; Christmas trees blaze with big gold candles. They are all so cheerful and modern and full of American vigor.

The popularity of greeting cards, not only for Christmas, New Year and other holidays, as well as birthday and graduation day remembrance, is constantly increasing. I learned in New York from R. W. Hicks, the general secretary of the Greeting Card association. Mr. Hicks said. Greeting cards are more desirable in themselves than ever before, as the foremost artists and writers of the day are at work on them through the year. And the habit of sending cards has grown automatically, helped materially by advertising.

The slogan, "seator sunshine with greeting cards," which is seen so frequently in the newspapers, magazines and shop windows, is a constant suggestion to people to remember their friends. More people seem to be doing it more often.

(Editor and Publisher)

When newspaper men of Memphis gathered together after the final editions and "shop talk at thirty" the conversation inevitably gets around to Ralph L. Millett, political editor of the Memphis Press-Scimitar, and his idiosyncrasies, his beats and his brilliant stories.

And always one gem in the veteran Millett's picturesque career is mentioned and dwelt upon at length and with many chuckles. It concerns the time back in 1916 when he was editor of the Memphis Press and did something no editor is believed to have done before—or since.

It came about this way: One day an elongated Western Union messenger boy stumbled into Millett's office with a telegram that should have gone downstairs. Ralph looked at the youth somewhat agast, remarking, "How tall are you, son? You're about the tallest kid I ever saw."

The boy replied he was six feet four.

And Millett, always on the lookout for the unusual, immediately called in a photographer and a picture was run on page one with a little story, written by Ralph himself.

The next day and the next tall boys flocked to Millett's office, and the editor saw he had started something. Since every boy seemed to be a little taller than his predecessor, Millett conceived the idea of finding the tallest youngster in Memphis.

"We had good art for a week," Ralph says, "then the thing sorta died down."

But one day just as Millett was about to declare a winner the grand climax was reached—and hence this story. A sixteen-year-old lad of some six feet eleven

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON — From the standpoint of progressives and of consumers who hope for lower public utility rates through political aid, the results of all contests to date have not been altogether encouraging.

The first of these this year was in Maine where Senator Fred Hale, with the backing of the power interests, defeated Governor Brewer in the Republican senatorial primary. Export of power from Maine was the principal issue and the San Insull interests were a strong factor in the campaign.

The election subsequently ratified the "power trust" victory.

In the Ohio primaries, Attorney General Turner, Republican candidate for governor, came out for further regulation of utilities. He was defeated.

In Wisconsin, where the "power trust" fight was perhaps more predominant than anywhere else, the progressives renominated Senator LaFollette but failed to nominate Congressman Beck, their candidate for governor. The issue now figures in the election and it is assumed that LaFollette and Walter Kohler, the conservative candidate for governor, will be elected.

Critics of the utilities, however, point to some of their own victories past and prospective. Senator McKellar and Congressman Garrett took issue on the power question in Tennessee, where Muscle Shoals is the big problem, and Garrett was licked despite supposed support from the power companies which is now said to have been transferred to the Republican candidate against McKellar.

Senator Howell of Nebraska won renomination while criticizing the utilities and is now using the same issue in his election campaign. The same goes for Senator Frazier in North Dakota, another Republican. Senator Dill received renomination from the Democrats and is now putting the power question while his ward in the campaign, while his Republican opposition has taken the side of the utilities.

Senators Wheeler and Walsh are assailing the "trust" in Montana, where Wheeler is a candidate for re-election and the Montana Power Company is understood to be supporting his Republican opponent, Joseph M. Dixon. In Minnesota the utilities are lined up against Senator Shingler, the Farmer-Labor candidate, who is making power one of his main campaign points.

The power issue cuts party lines, as may already have been observed. Republicans and Democrats are likely to be found on either side of the fence and where the issue is not raised it is generally because both candidates are sympathetic with utilities.

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

When physicians pronounce cascara the PERFECT laxative—why experiment with things that lash the system into action? Cascara, you know, is the bark of a tree, a natural and normal stimulus to the bowels.

The Indians, who used to chew this bark, had no word in their language that meant "constipation!"

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy Cascaret gives us pur cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck
