Community Fairs Have Much To Interest People

EXHIBITS OF FARM PRODUCTS ARE VERY FINE

Pleasant Hill, Scranton and Carbon Attract Many Visitors To Their Community Displays.

Community fairs held Thursday at Pleasant Hill, Friday at Scranton and Saturday at Carbon attracted hundreds of visitors. All had interesting exhibits of farm produce and the work of rural housewives and the displays were of such high order that it was difficult for the judges to decide which was better than others and make awards.

A new and interesting pea was shown at Scranton and aroused much comment. In size and shape it resembles the Crowder pea but it is spotted instead of being speckled. A story goes with it, too. Several years ago a man in Missouri killed a wild goose and in its craw found three peas such as he had never seen before. He planted them and they grew and flourished. Some of these peas were obtained by a Scranton citizen, brought to Scranton and planted and the "goose peas," as they are called, exhibited at the Scranton community fair came from that planting.

At Carbon the exhibits of hogs and poultry was especially fine. More than 500 persons enjoyed a one-act play on the street Friday evening and an interesting program Saturday.

TWELVE-YEAR OLD DAVIS BOY GRANTED BAIL

Judge Been Fixes Bond At $2,500 On Each Of Two Murder Indictments and It Is Given.

Woodrow Wilson Davis, twelve-year-old boy, indicted two times as a juvenile for murder in connection with the slaying of Lucius and Leon Shook the night of September 7, was granted a habeas corpus hearing by Judge Elzo Been of the eighty-eighth district court and admitted to $2,500 bail on each indictment. The boy's father, Sam Davis, readily obtained bail and the boy is again beneath the parental roof.

J. R. Stubblefield, Eastland lawyer, will defend Clyde Thompson, who has made a signed statement in which he claims to have shot and killed the Shook brothers, and because he will be engaged in the trial of other cases the latter part of this month it is probable that Thompson will not be arraigned for trial until early in October.

LOBOES WIN GRIDIRON GAME FROM INDIANS

First Game of Season In Oil Belt. Cisco Gridsters Play Well. Score 62 to 6.

An abundance of spectacular plays featured the overwhelming victory of the Cisco Lobes over the Haskell Indians, 62 to 6, Friday afternoon at Cisco, in the first game of the season in the Oil Belt. A crowd estimated at 1,500 viewed the clash, which comes very near being a record for attendance for a non-conference game.

Little, the flashing halfback of last season, dazzled with end runs and with gallops after pulling down passes, most of which were hurled by Van Horn, a stocky lad who did some pretty running on his own account. Miller, 175-pound end, started at pulling down the tosses and, for a man off in rugged build, manifested surprising swiftness after he caught the ball. Eddie-man, the big fullback, ripped through the line for substantial gains. The entire Cisco line, led by Anthony, six feet, four, did excellent work.

While the Lobes were doing all this, the Indians, who, so far as size and fight were concerned, had plenty—were unable to pierce the lobe line. Their two fast backs—Pitman and Kimbrough—were unable to get loose due to the charging of the Cisco line.

Indians Make Touchdown. The invaders scored a touchdown, however, in a clean-cut fashion via the air. A heavy penalty and a poor punt by Cisco gave Haskell possession of the ball whereupon Pittman shot a pass to Henshaw for 13 yards and a touchdown. The play apparently caught the second ary defense flatfooted, as no one was around Henshaw when he plucked the pigskin from the atmosphere.

But with this one exception, the Indians could never get going.

Despite the heat—it was a summer day—the game started off as though it would be well-matched. Cisco received and after two plays punted. After an exchange of kicks, Anthony blocked a Haskell punt and Slaton recovered for Cisco on the Indians' 18-yard line. Eddie-man and Van Horn made good gains and then, on a fake play, Eddie-man carried the ball over. Kellogg kicked goal.

Lots of Scores. On a pretty cutback through right tackle, in the second quarter Van Horn made 25 yards and a moment or two later he went through the line for a touchdown. Again Kellogg kicked goal.

Then it was that Mr. Little decided to do some stepping. On a short end run, he got left end, passed the entire opposition except the safety man, wrenched loose from him and completed a 75-yard sprint for a touchdown. Goal was again kicked.

Haskell, aided by a 15-yard penalty and a poor punt, obtained the ball in scoring position and Pittman flung a pass to Henshaw to score the first touchdown of the against the Lobes.

Two bodies were taken from the wreckage shortly before 11 a. m. today, bringing the known dead toll to nine.

In addition there are nearly 70 persons in hospitals suffering from injuries received in the storm. Some of these may die, it was said today.

In honor of these two Glen Rock citizens, whose names oddly coincide with those of the candidates—even to the middle initial—the 800 residents of that village staged a big parade.

ARKANSAS TOWN HAS ITS WATER PLANT STOLEN

NORPHLEET, Ark., Sept. 15.—The Norphleet Gas and Water Company plant, valued at $50,000 was stolen last night, leaving the city fire department, and 3,500 citizens without light or water service. Removing an entire wall of the sheet iron building housing the public utility works of the small oil town, the thieves sometime between midnight and dawn loaded the pump, engine and all electrical apparatus of the company onto trucks and departed for parts unknown. Only the concrete floor of the building and the bare walls were left as a reminder of what had been one of the most important parts of daily life here.

DEGENERATE IS SUSPECTED OF FOUR MURDERS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 15.—Two persons were under arrest here and two others were sought in Canada today in connection with the asserted murder of four Los Angeles county youths. The actual slayer, according to police, was Stuart Northcut, 20, a degenerate who had abused the boys before he killed them. He was believed to be in Canada. His alleged victims were Louis and Nelson Winslow, 12 and 10, Walter Collins 9, and an unidentified Mexican boy.

Sanford Clark, 16, a relative of Northcut, was responsible for the revelation of the murders, all of which took place on a chicken ranch near Corona, he said. Clark was held here as a material witness, and C. G. Northcut, father of the alleged degenerate murderer, was arrested with him. In addition to the younger Northcut, his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcut was sought in Canada.

Clark was taken into custody on advice of his sister in Sasjatoon, Canada. Several days ago she wired local officials that her brother was in the hands of the younger Northcut and the victim of his degeneracy. On questioning, Clark told of the four murders, and subsequent investigation led to a partial verification of his story.

According to Clark he was smuggled across the Canadian border by the degenerate two years ago. Since that time he was the victim of attacks, but was forced to keep quiet because of fear.

Murder charges have been sworn against Northcut and his mother and Canadian authorities have been asked to search for them.

Hundreds of persons were being housed in public buildings today, while families which have become separated during the confusion were being reunited.

A BRILLIANT MISSISSIPPIAN. After a meteoric career in which he marched steadily from victory into victory, T. Webber Wilson, brilliant young Mississippian, recently tasted defeat's unwelcome cup in a hotly contested race for the United States senate.

Wilson entered the race for the United States senate in the recent primary. His far-visions strategy in making his home in a part of the state remote from the scenes of his boyhood was based upon his ambition, when only a youth, to make the race some day for governor or senator—and he could.

Control of Boll Weevils By Early Fall Clean-Up Declared Effective

Controlling boll weevil by early clean-up.

There is no royal road to success in controlling the cotton boll weevil. It is said and done the much needed fall clean-up remains one of the most practical methods of attacking this insect as well as other crop pests. So states ex-ass. A. and M. College extension entomologist, R. R. Reppert, in outlining a practical plan of insect control this fall. The platform of relief from cotton boll weevil and several others as laid down by Mr. Reppert, our main plans. (1) The prompt removal, after cotton or crops are harvested, of all residues such as stubs by plowing under or otherwise. (2) Fall plowing except where erosion and erosion are big factors during the winter and early spring to keep down weed and growth that would otherwise be as winter food for cutworms and other pests, and (4) preparation of a fine and compact bed for the early planting of crops.

to the soil to aid in continued heavy production.

A noticeable decrease in Nueces county was obtained last year as a result of an almost perfect clean-up campaign staged early the previous fall. The food and breeding places of the weevil were rudely removed for a period of six weeks or more before it went into winter quarters. The crop was often made and picked this season in Nueces county before weevils became sufficiently numerous to be noticeable.

"While other sections do not have the same favorable conditions for such an early clean-up," Mr. Reppert says, "favorable results will follow anywhere in proportion to the length of time from such clean-up to the first killing frost. Such clean up has the added advantage of increasing the moisture holding capacity of the soil, of furnishing increased plant food for the next crop, and of permitting of planting in the spring when conditions are favorable without having to first wait for tedious preparations."

"Weevil and other insect infestations may be further avoided by destroying their winter quarters by burning. Of course where forests might be endangered by such action it will not pay, but it is always feasible to burn trash along fence rows and in other out of the way places where insects hibernate in large numbers. Summer or early fall is a good time for such burning."

"The weevil is not only a pest that can exist for any period of time is during the period of temperatures extending apparently from the time of the killing frost until the time of spring when cotton normally starts above the ground, (4) the weevil must feed continuously in all up to the time of the first frost or it will starve to death, and (5) of those becoming hibernant in the fall only a very small proportion, usually not more than three per cent, live until spring. This small percentage is entirely represented by the hatched ones that enter winter quarters in a well fed condition."

RADIO AIDS LEGION MEET

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 12—Two radio programs a week will be put on by radio station KTSA in the interest of the tenth annual national convention of the American Legion to be held here Oct. 8 to 12.

The first program was staged last night. They will be put on Tuesday and Thursday nights until the convention opens. Last night's program included a Hawaiian trio; Bill Lambert, the yodeling tenor; the "mysterious duo." The duo sang many of the songs popular during the world war.

Tomorrow night the feature of the program will be a concert by the Fifteenth artillery band. Lieut. M. Pierson will make a short talk telling of the part the band played during the war. The programs also include brief talks on plans and developments of the convention.

practical clean-up method used in coastal region is to run a cutter down the rows, following it with a disk and then a sweep. A sweep is then often used to uproot the cotton plants, reducing a large acreage of chaff and dead cotton stalks. These tap roots are raked and then the stalk cutting machine has already returned to the organic matter.

Before—and After Taking!

Akeley's Widow to Brave Jungle to Bury Husband

TULSA, Okla.—As a last tribute to her famous husband, Mrs. Carl E. Akeley, widow of the famous explorer, is going to Africa with a copper coffin to hold the body of the celebrated hunter and naturalist, who died in the Belgian Congo a year ago last November. It is being designed by Clarence Dewey of Tulsa, a lifelong friend of Akeley.

When the coffin is completed it will be sent to Africa and transported far into the interior on the shoulders of native carriers. For a thousand miles it will be carried thus, over rivers and through steaming jungles; then, a rock grave cut in the sides of lonely

Mount Mikeno will be opened and the body of Akeley will be taken from its temporary coffin of wood, to be placed in the copper casket and re-buried.

The casket must be made in sections for transportation on the shoulders of natives, and each section must not weigh an ounce over 40 pounds or be more than 30 inches square. It will be put together at the end of the journey. Mrs. Akeley will lead the expedition, and superintend the process.

Construction of the coffin recalls a queer incident in connection with Akeley's last trip to the Congo. When his equipment was being assembled he noticed that one of his assistants had included a package of ten-penny nails.

"What are those for?" asked Akeley. "Don't know yet," said the assistant. "Well, I'll find some use for them." "Well, I've never yet found it necessary to carry ten-penny nails to Africa," said Akeley. The assistant insisted, however, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Akeley and the nails were taken. Months later they were used to fasten together the rude coffin in which Akeley's body was buried. Four years before his death Akeley expressed a wish to be buried on the slopes of Mount Mikeno, which is an active volcano. He had shot a gorilla there, and, as he looked up at the blazing volcano above, he said: "You know, I envy that chap his funeral pyre. I wish I could be buried here when I die."

A woman writer says "Man is no more foolish at 40 than at any other year." We are just wondering if that's a compliment or what.

CRIME TOTALS INFLUENCED BY TEMPERATURES

Six-Year Survey Shows Arrests Advance With Thermometer.

NEW YORK.—Temperature apparently has a marked effect on crime, according to a study, covering a period of six years, just completed by Edwin G. Dexter. The survey was made in New York and Denver.

The number of arrests, Dexter found, increased regularly with the rise of the thermometer. But at 85 degrees crimes of violence began to decrease. Extremely hot weather may make a man feel like fighting but it also takes away the desire to put his inclination into action.

Studies made in many countries seem to indicate that temperature has its effect on the kind of crime committed. Assault and battery, murder and crimes against morals reach their maximum in July and August. In winter crimes against property are in the ascendancy. John Lewis Gillin, professor of sociology of the University of Wisconsin, has given the following explanation:

"In summer, people get out of the houses more contracts are more numerous, the opportunities for disagreement are greater, and consequently, there is a greater possibility of personal violence than in winter. On the other hand, cold indirectly produces crimes against property by reason of the fact that in winter economic need is greater, seasonal occupations are closed down and, therefore, money is scarce with which to buy the necessities of life. The temptations to steal are consequently greater than in the summer."

"There is some evidence to support the theory that heat exerts an influence upon the action of the nervous system," Dexter said. Cloudy weather was found to be the freest from personal encounters due to the depressing influence of gloomy days. Dexter believes that murders increase during excessively dry periods and seemed to accompany high winds.

Women Will Speak Throughout U. S. For Gov. Al Smith

NEW YORK.—A partial list of prominent women who will campaign for Governor Alfred E. Smith from speakers' platforms throughout the nation is announced from the speakers' bureau of women's activities at democratic national headquarters. More than 1,000 women already have been definitely listed for this duty and the list is constantly growing, according to Mrs. Mary T. Norton, congresswoman from New Jersey, who heads the speakers' bureau. The list includes Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Norton, former Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, Mrs. J. Borden Harri-man, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and Mrs. John Harman Amen, the latter a daughter of Grover Cleveland.

It also includes Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr, Pa., Miss Annie Mathews, register of the county of New York, Miss Lillian D. Wald, head of the Henry Street Settlement, Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh, Judge Jean Norris, City Magistrate, Mrs. Daniel O'Day and Miss Marion Dicker.

man of democratic state headquarters, Issetta Jewel Brown, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. William H. Goode, Brooklyn Leader, Mrs. Vanderbilt Webb, Mrs. Grosvenor Allen, Mrs. John Blair, president of the Democratic Union in Washington, D. C. and Mrs. Norman Whitehouse of the society of Women's Suffrage.

All of these women work without pay, receiving only their expenses, Mrs. S. N. Ebens, vice chairman of the speaker's bureau said. Each day brings an average of twenty women to volunteer their services, and a flood of letters from volunteers who want to take the stump for Gov. Smith and his party.

As a consequence the speaker's bureau, conducted on the seventh floor of General Motors Building where women's activity headquarters are located, is one of the busiest places in the gigantic democratic stronghold.

"We have not only women who are prominent in politics," Mrs. Eben said, "but also leading society women, professional women, social workers, actresses and others who are accustomed to platform work, and women generally who feel that they can master the technique of platform speaking and overcome 'stage fright' in order to do their part for Gov. Smith. We give them all a chance and if they show ability at all they are signed up."

One of the volunteers was a woman who said that she had given a speech on a streetcar in behalf of the democratic nominee.

"The motorman told me I was so good that I could use his car any time I wanted to," she said. She related that she had crocheted an American flag for Gov. Smith, requiring five months to complete, and exhibited proudly a letter of thanks from the governor.

In routing the travels of the women speakers over forty-eight states, the speakers' bureau has devised an elaborate system of maps. From the Automobile Club a map of each state has been obtained. These are being used in planning the automobile trips.

Each state headquarters will furnish three automobiles to carry these women from place to place, and as many as five cars in New York and other large states. With a system of colored pins and colored yarns, the itineraries for each state have been charted, showing all speaking engagements and stop-overs for sleeping and eating.

Eighteen states have now been charted in this manner. The mapped territory of the forty-eight states must be completely charted by three weeks before the election.

At that time every available volunteer will be drafted for service by the speakers' bureau of women's activities and several thousand women will be addressing audiences everywhere.

Speaking engagements already are being filled wherever there is a request. A woman and a man are sent in each case. Dozens of requests are received daily for speakers.

Another phase of the work in the speakers' bureau deals with the distribution of campaign literature which will be handed out by girls who will accompany the campaign cars.

JANITOR REBUKED.

PARIS.—Paris concierges who from time immemorial have exercised a sort of police control over the occupants of their apartments have had a severe shock. No longer may they censor the correspondence of their clients.

This was decided when an irate young woman brought suit before one of the Parisian police courts, claiming that her concierge had refused to deliver a post card upon which one of her admirers had written, "I press my lips close to yours. I love you, forever and ever."

"It is indecent," explained the concierge. The court held that the question of indecency was one for the postal authorities alone to determine and imposed a heavy fine and warning.

Big Golf Tourney at Wichita Falls for Sept. 19 to 22

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 14.-Southwestern golfdom will assemble here, Sept. 19, 20, 21 and 22, when the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club stages its first annual invitation tournament. Early responses already are being received from many of the 200 clubs over this and adjoining states, to whom invitations were extended.

Practically the same field that competes each year in the Texas amateur championship is expected to be on hand for the first statewide tournament the Wichita Falls club has ever attempted to sponsor. Assurances have already been received from many of the brightest stars of the state that they will be present and offer competition on a course that will be entirely new to most of the visitors. The Wichita Falls club has not attempted to stage a big tournament in the past because the course for several years has been under a continual program of improvement, according to President E. W. Marriott. Last year the resodding of the fairways and the construction of several new tees and greens completed a program that entailed an expenditure of more than $10,000, and the course now is one of the finest in the Southwest, of full tournament distances and boasting of natural and artificial hazards in sufficient quantity to offer a true tournament test.

Under the watchful eye of professional Bill Strachan, the links will be further groomed during the intervening time before the start of the tourney, and the greens and fairways should be in perfect condition, unless the weather man interferes. The first day of the tournament, Sept. 19, calls for the qualifying round of 18 holes, in which the low 32 scores will be entitled to places in the championship flight. No definite number of flights has been planned and just as many will be played as the starting field will permit, with 32 in each.

A driving contest at 3 p. m. and an approaching contest at 4 p. m. also are on the program for the first day. A stag dinner for the players will be held at 7 o'clock. First and second rounds and first round consolations will be played Sept. 20. A dance at the club is scheduled for that evening. Third round play and semi-finals are scheduled Sept. 21, with a putting contest at 8:30 in the evening. The championship finals, 18 holes in the morning and 18 in the afternoon, will conclude the tournament, Sept. 22.

Washington Letter

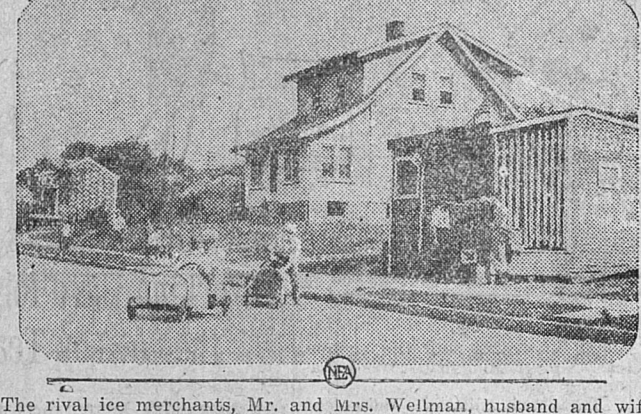

BY RODNEY DUTCHER WASHINGTON-A young man in Maryland recently sent the department of mammalogy at the National Museum a strange bone formation, which appeared to be the skull of some very remarkable animal. It certainly did look like a skull. Great holes appeared to be eyes and a couple of places at each end were almost certainly ears. The bone structure that appeared to be the nose was huge, but it appeared to be the front end of a remarkable head. No wonder it excited the finder with the belief that he had made a discovery of enormous importance. As a matter of fact, it was the pelvis of an ordinary horse. The acetabula had been mistaken for eyes, and so on. Perfectly natural mistake for anyone who didn't know what a horse looked like with its flesh off, but the mammalogy experts, who know all those things, are let in for a great many explanations through correspondence by the fact that the American people don't know their bones. The museum, of course, is America's greatest boneyard. But it specializes on bones out of the ordinary, and that trouble is that bone finders are forever finding bones which appear to be extraordinary, but are really very ordinary, but are really very ordinary indeed.

Divorce Cuts No Ice In Business- But These Two Do!

The rival ice merchants, Mr. and Mrs. Wellman, husband and wife, are shown here at their stations. The Wellman home is between the ice stations, as shown above. CINCINNATI, O.-As if ice men didn't have enough to worry about these days with the spread of mechanical refrigeration, two Cincinnati dealers have added the worries of domestic rivalry to the troubles of the ice game. Mrs. H. B. Wellman operates an ice station in a little shed beside her home. And on the other side of her home, only a few yards down the sidewalk, is a competing ice station operated by H. B. Wellman, from whom Mrs. Wellman obtained a divorce not long ago.

How It Happened. It all happened like this: Wellman owned and operated the station Mrs. Wellman now has. When Mrs. Wellman got a divorce, the court awarded her the family real estate. This included their house and the ice station. "I had to support my two grandchildren, and I couldn't see any reason why a good strong woman couldn't run an ice station as well as a man," she says. "So she took over the business of her former spouse and began running it. This, of course, left Wellman out of a job. So he leased a station from a large-scale ice company and established it beside his former home. And he feels, now, that he is a man with a grievance. "I worked hard to build up a trade, and it's not right for her to take it over after I made it a pay-

Meditate- Your Neighbor Will Take Better Care of You Than a Stranger . . . Consider these things-before you mail your orders out of town. The dollar that you spend out of town is gone forever. The dollar that you spend at home-stays here and works. Whether it goes into civic improvements, via taxes, better schools, churches, streets-or whether it simply goes into more merchandise for your next needs-it circulates at home. URGES PARENTS TO GIVE YOUTH ITS CHALLENGES

Sociologist Says Children Have Right to Question Conventions.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Youth has every right to challenge the conventions of the preceding generation, and it is up to the older generation to defend them, or admit the truth of the charges, in the opinion of Mrs. Margaret Wells Woods, lecturer of the American Social Hygiene association.

"It is the duty of parents to interpret with understanding why we have certain conventions," Mrs. Woods said here. "Clear up that misconception that conventions are thrust upon youth by church and adults," she urged of parents.

"Youth has every right to challenge those conventions of our generation, and it is up to the parents to explain why it is for their good they should observe them. Conventions are no argument for conventionalism."

"Youth challenges the marriage conventions, with no understanding of why those conventions are made. Discuss openly with your boy or girl the different types of marriage, and let youth choose for itself which type is best for the child, society and the parents," Mrs. Wood advised.

"Emphasize wholesome interest and an understanding of social values, then show what certain abuses will lead to. Don't say 'petting is wrong,' say, rather, 'this is what petting does for you, and show how one liberally leads to another and still another."

"In years past the general teaching was that sex was an unlovely, degrading thing. Parents should have a truthful answer for every question their children put to them."

"We are no longer in the buggy age. Don't expect youth to play charades and postoffice when youth is geared up to the radio, automobile, airplane and speedy ways of doing everything."

Expect 200,000 at Oil Meetings

TULSA, Okla.—The parking problem has been solved for the prospective visitors to the Fifth Annual International Petroleum Exposition and Congress, here, October 20-29, who intend to make the trip to Tulsa in automobiles. To the large space afforded last year has been added 160 acres of level ground right at the exposition gates, and policing by city and county officers is assured, J. Burr Gibbons, general manager of the exposition, announces.

Numerous caravans are being made up in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas, according to latest reports. With the world's fair of the Oil Industry a thirty-five percent larger show than last year, the attendance is expected to pass far beyond the anticipated 200,000 mark.

Pressure of increasing administration details has made necessary a considerable expansion in the offices of the exposition on the second floor of the Bliss building.

It is pointed out by the general manager that Tulsa's capacity for quartering visitors has increased greatly over last year. Among the larger hotels to be completed before the opening of the exposition are, the Mincks Hotel, Fourth street and Cheyenne; the Alvin, Seventh street and Main, and the Tulsa Hotel, adding 200 rooms, Third street and Cincinnati.

Leave It With Boston

In picking up thirteen and a half games from early July until September and in knocking the New York Yankees one of first place, the Philadelphia Athletics did more actual ground gaining than the Boston Braves did in their sensational drive to the National League championship in 1914.

But there wasn't exactly the romance in the patient plodding of the Athletics that there was in the inspiring rally of the Braves. The Boston club came unheralded from nowhere and won the pennant and then went on to knock off one of the greatest teams in baseball in the world's series in straight games.

A's Should Have Been Up

The Athletics have been a powerful ball club from the very first game of the season. They were one of the favorites in the race and a team that was built at a large expenditure of money particularly for the purpose of challenging the Yankees.

The spurt of the Philadelphia club through the middle of the season was not entirely of their own making. The Yankees went to pieces and helped to make the task of the chasers less heroic. It was the fault of the Athletics themselves that they were in the position where they had to make such a gallant stand to get back into the pennant race.

That 1914 spurt of the Braves is one of the few memories Boston has of better days and the real glory of it should not be taken from it.

He Ain't Sore, Either

Irish Meusel, former Giant star, who was released by one of the Pacific Coast League ball clubs, says he knows now why so many of the highly touted boys who go up from that league do not make the grade.

"We knew in the big leagues that they came up dumb," he said. "But we didn't know the reason. I know now, though. They play dumb baseball in the league and nobody tries to smart up the youngsters."

Meusel says that it was the size of the salary he demanded and not any deficiency in his playing that caused him to be released.

Yanks Real Game

In praising the persistence of the Philadelphia Athletics some should be saved as a tribute to the Yankees for the courage they displayed under circumstances that might have wrecked a club that was not all game.

There aren't many other ball clubs in the game who could or would have carried on without two players who represented as much to them as Herb Penneck and Tony Lazzari.

The loss of Penneck amounted to at least four or five games and when Lazzari was on the bench it was shown rather conclusively that he was a very major part of the whole club.

The Athletics could not have carried on if they had been so handicapped.

Many Good Players Working Hard for the Cowboy Team

ABILENE.—With forty-eight men reporting twice daily at Simmons University, Coach Frank Bridges is making every effort to whip into shape a football machine to cope with the strenuous schedule of thirteen, perhaps fourteen games, which faces the Cowboys this season. Only a week remains until the Cowboys meet Decatur Baptist College here in the first game, September 22.

Twelve letter men faced Bridges at the initial practice Monday. They are: Captain "Red" Moore, end; Smith, Pearce, Ribble, tackle; H. Daniel, C. Daniel and Jennings, guards; Davenport and Sanders, halves; Hyde and Walter, quaters.

Promising new material is showing up in the daily grinds. Houghton, formerly of Jehn Tarleton, Gibbons of Texarkana, Clark and Rhodes of Port Arthur and Marshall of Floydada come highly touted as backs. Some of the most promising linemen are: Tittle, Merkel, Culpepper, Cleburne and Bennet, Slater. Many other freshmen are listed who may earn a letter with the Cowboys this year.

Some of those who showed most strength in spring training who have reported are: Golightly, Marlin, center; Little, Seymour, half; Allen, Abilene, center; Harvey, De Leon, half, and Sims, 190 pound backfield man formerly of the San Francisco Olympic club.

The Cowboys face their first heavy assignment at Breckenridge on October 6 when they meet the T. C. U. Horned Frogs. The following week the ymeet S. M. U. at Wichita Falls.

GIRL OF TODAY FINDS CLOTHING COSTS ADVANCE

But Not 120 Per Cent More Than in 1914. Store Owners Declare.

LONDON.—The Ministry of Labor says that the modern girl pays 120 percent more for her clothes than the girl of 1914.

The big clothing stores of London say she does not.

And so the battle is on.

An official of a west-end store said recently: "The principal difference between pre-war and post-war clothes is quality rather than price."

"Whereas a woman in 1914 might buy an outfit for $100 which would last her several years, and then be passed on to a relative or be cut down for the children, a woman nowadays will buy one for the same cost, or less, but it will not last her so long because the materials are not as solid.

Gloves, stockings, handkerchiefs, and the dainty underclothing which takes the place of the solid woolen and flannel variety, actually cost less, it was stated, than in pre-war days.

The Ministry of Labor and the big stores agree, however, that mere man is groaning under an increased clothing burden, but the stores think that 120 percent is a little too high.

The following figures, they say, are a fair average of the 1914 and the 1928 prices for the same quality:

Suit	$21.00	$52.00
Shoes	3.00	7.00
Derby hat	.85	2.12
Overcoat	18.00	37.00
Collars	12c-18c	24c-36c

Young Samsons Shorn of Locks

HOUSTON, Sept. 14.—Coach Arnold Kirchamer of the John H. Reagan Bulldogs, has his own ideas concerning the old theory that shorn locks deprived an athlete of his physical prowess.

Last week, at the Bulldog training camp, Kirchamer issued an edict that all candidates would submit to the shears and have the curly locks removed. Accordingly, every member of the camp went on strike. The future looked dark for the Bulldogs. It began to look as if there would be no training sessions.

But Kirchamer was firm and the young athletes finally gave up—all but one. He is still at the training camp but is on the "unimpaired list." Training is progressing without him.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 14.—Convention headquarters for the national American Legion convention to be held here Oct. 8 to 12, is being deluged with inquiries from all parts of the United States seeking information on the probable weather conditions here at that time.

For 36 years, according to weather bureau records, the average low temperature for the eight days from October 6 to 13 has been 62 degrees, with the average high 85. The weather bureau records also showed that there was one chance for rain during the eight days.

HUGE FORTUNES EXPENDED FOR ART TREASURES

London Experts Estimate Sales at Half Million Dollars Weekly.

LONDON—More than $500,000 a week has been paid in London salesrooms for rare books and pictures during the past season.

The total for the period was well over $15,000,000. It is estimated that over 50 per cent of it was American money.

All records have been broken over and over again. The Holford art sale at Christie's which realized $1,820,000 on the first day, for example, is a single-day record never before approached in any art auction room.

The price of masterpieces now depends entirely on the acquiescence of the American multimillionaires, art experts in London declare. These Americans are obliged to buy single old masters in this country at a figure vastly in excess of the original cost of many a great English collection.

When Messrs. Knoedler, the American firm, paid $483,000 for two Rembrandts recently, they may well have pondered on the fact that the pictures cost their late owner less than $50,000, and that when the painter went into bankruptcy a big collection of his works was sold for $2,100.

Despite these "paying-through-the-nose" prices, American dealers who buy art objects in England, often make huge profits when they sell them in their own country.

When Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach acquired the famous manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" for $77,000, he promptly disposed of it to an American collector for $150,000.

Better prices, according to the experts, are now obtainable in the London auction rooms than in those of New York.

Many of the prices realized when the Leverhulme collection was sent over to be sold in America were declared to be disappointing, and the sale of a small American collection in London the other day is held to show that London

SCRAPBOOK SELECTIONS

AT HIS BROTHER'S GRAVE

(By Robt. G. Ingersoll)

My Friends: I am going to do that which the dead oft promised he would do for me.

The loved and loving brother, husband, father, friend died where manhood's morning almost touches noon and while the shadows still were falling toward the west. He had not passed on life's highway the stone that marks the highest point but, being weary for a moment, he lay down by the wayside and, using his burden for a pillow, fell into that dreamless sleep that kisses down his eyelids still.

While yet in love with life and raptured with the world, he passed to silence and pathetic dust.

And yet, it may be best, just in happiest, sunniest hour of all the voyage, while eager winds are kissing every sail, to dash against the unseen rock and in an instant hear the billows roar above a sunken ship. For whether in mid sea or among the breakers of the farther shore, a wreck at last must mark the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is rich with love and jeweled with a joy, become at last a tragedy as dark and deep as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death.

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud but the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.

He who sleeps here, mistaking the approach of death for the return of health, whispered with his latest breath, "I am better now." Let us believe, in spite of tears and fears and dogmas, that these dear words are true of all the countless dead.

CHARACTER (By Edward Ward Cormack)

We think when we have quit the schoolroom that we have quit school. In reality our school days have just begun. Though we go forth from one of the great schools of the land, we have but passed through a preparatory school, and are about to enter as a freshman that great university from which we will be graduated at the grave. We have but exchanged kind and patient instructors for one whose tasks are heavy, whose rule is harsh, who will show but little indulgence for unlearned lessons or the broken rule.

The world is now our school, experience our teacher and life our lesson.

The knowing that is not translated into doing is a tree that bears foliage but no fruit. A blacksmith who can shoe a horse well is better educated than the man who can read Greek but cannot make a living for himself or lend a helping hand to his neighbor.

The strongest and most disciplined mind cannot of itself bring honor or happiness; cannot make a good and useful citizen, or entitle one to the respect of his fellowman. The great thing is character; and the greatest men whose names are honored and revered by all mankind were great, not because they were mighty in intellect, but because they were grand in soul.

England has produced grander intellects than Alfred, but she has never produced a greater man. America has produced abler men perhaps than Washington, but she has never produced a more devoted and self-sacrificing patriot.

Karolyi's Speech

A glimpse, this, of Count Michael Karolyi's 48-hour visit to the U. S. He's shown making a brief non-political speech at the foot of Wall street New York. Soon afterward he sailed for Spain, with hopes the state department would allow him to return for a longer stay.

We should not be satisfied to achieve a mere reputation without achieving the character to sustain it. A man's reputation is only what men think him to be, his character what God knows him to be.

"But how," you ask, "can a man form his character?" The rule is simple itself, though the application is difficult. A man may form his character to a great extent through the sheer force of habit. An act often repeated hardens into a habit, a habit long continued petrifies into character. As a bough that has once been bent will bend the more easily in the same direction when subjected to the same force, so the soul that has yielded to the seductions of evil loses something of its power of resistance. On the other hand, every successful resistance of temptation strengthens the man and weakens the power of evil.

Human nature is not vile except to the vile. To the mean man, this is indeed a mean world; to the selfish man, it turns its selfish side; the faithless and inconstant man finds faithless and inconstant friends. The world shows itself to every man just as he shows himself to the world. It is a mighty mirror in which everyone sees his own image and calls it man.

The greatest single influence in the formation of a man's character is the influence of a woman.

It has been said that the world knows nothing of its greatest men; it surely knows nothing of its greatest women. They are around and about us in cottage and hovel where the lean hand of poverty breaks the ash-crust, and in the stateliest homes of luxury and pride. There are among the humblest women in the humblest homes examples of a diviner heroism than that of Joan of Arc; heroines all unconscious of their heroism who have walked with bleeding feet the stony paths of martyrdom, unseen, unknown and unpraised of men.

It is not the throned and sceptered king; it is not the wily statesman with his midnight lamp; it is not the warrior grimed with smoke and stained with blood; it is the queen of the home who rules the destinies of manhood. There is the center from which radiates the light that never fails. The sweetest wisdom of this world is a woman's counsel, and the purest altar from which human prayers ever went to heaven is a mother's knee.

Curious Ad Carries a July the Fourth Greeting of Friend

"The kindest regards and the best congratulations to the great American Nation on their holiday—An unknown European."

"P. S.—Please excuse the small size of this ad."

This advertisement appeared on July 4 in the classified columns of the New York Herald-Tribune. It occupied a space of several inches under the heading "Special Notices." Many who saw it perhaps raised their eyebrows in inquiry, for it was one of the strangest notices that has ever appeared in the paper.

It was a message of a citizen of Vienna, addressed to 120,000,000 people, who, as his letter to the Herald-Tribune inclosing the money for the advertisement explained, sought the only means he had with his limited capital, to reach the people with his message of congratulation and good will.

The letter, which was published by the Herald-Tribune in its news columns, is as follows:

"On July 4 the American people feast their greatest holiday. I would like to send them my best greetings and don't see any other way than to advertise in some of the newspapers. "I am no diplomat, no business man, no political leader. Neither any duty or selfish interest forces me to do it. I only am a human being who intends to give a little pleasure to other human beings whom he esteems very much. I know advertising is a strange way to congratulate the powerful nation all over the world, but I don't see any other possibility.

"Nowadays there only exists authority, political parties, trusts and societies. They are necessary, that is true, but by this way the clearly human expressions of the single man are never heard. By luck there is still an institution, democratic in the purest sense of the word—the newspaper—which will lend my voice the needed power."
