once in an effort to develop the oil sand encountered in the Hyman well around 1300 feet. It is planned to drill several wells down to this oil sand.

Durham No. 2 of the Chicago-Texas Oil & Gas Syndicate, one and one-half miles south of here has been on the pump daily for the past week. Each day the well is pumped, it shows an increased output of oil. It is believed that when the well clears itself of accumulated impurities, the production will be materially increased. In the meantime, preparations for drilling Durham No. 3 is going forward.

The Magnolia Company's Mary Foster well No. 1, in W. L. Foster's Mitchell county pasture near Iatan, 30 miles northwest of here, is making around 180 barrels per day. The Company now has storage for about 3000 barrels, and a pipe line to the railroad at Iatan. The Magnolia well 600 feet south of the Foster well is drilling around 600 feet.

Clark well No. 2, 13 miles southeast of here, is drilling in the red beds around 1050 feet.

WEDNESDAY LUNCHEON CLUB

A goodly number were in attendance, a snappy meeting was in order and an adjournment promptly at one o'clock marked this week's meeting of the Wednesday Luncheon club. The "cats" were much better than usual and this helped considerably.

Jno. F. Wolcott, who served as toastmaster said the speeches would be short and sweet as the adoption of a charter and by-laws and the election of officers of the club would be the main order of business.

The Wednesday Luncheon Club is to be the name of the permanent organization and every business man, professional man, farmer, railroad man and laborer can become a full-fledged member upon payment of the regular monthly dues of $2.50. Club members must pay for guests invited to luncheon, except same be invited by directors or toastmaster.

Robt. T. Piner re-read the charter which had been read at the previous meeting and after one or two changes it was adopted.

Mr. Piner tendered his resignation and the resignation of the other officers of the club so the election of officers might be entered into at this time.

For the office of general chairman, the following were nominated: Rev. R. L. Owen, J. F. Wolcott and C. W. Cunningham; Rev. R. L. Owen being elected.

For first vice-chairman J. F. Wolcott was nominated and his election by acclamation followed.

For second vice-chairman Wm. Fisher and W. W. Rix were nominated, and Mr. Fisher was elected.

For chairman of arrangement committee James Wilson was nominated; and elected by acclamation.

For kitchen police, Sam Hall and W. G. Hayden were nominated and told to get returns.

There being no other officers within the gift of the organization toastmaster Wolcott said there was time for a few short talks and called on Rev. Owen to tell how it felt to be elected. Rev. Owen said he thought he could have picked a better looking fellow for the place but that he was willing to tackle the job and would do his best. He suggested dividing the membership into about four squads and let them compete as to furnishing the snappiest program. He said he would call the officers together at an early date and map out some plans for the club.

Mayor Clyde E. Thomas was called upon to tell the members something of the plans for paving the streets of Big Spring. Mayor Thomas stated that R. W. Baker had been employed as City Engineer and instructed to prepare plans for paving. He will need at least two months to prepare such plans so it will be possible to start paving early next year. Mr. Thomas stated that City Engineer Baker was also going to prepare grade lines for the entire city. So if you are ready to build a sidewalk in front of your home the city will furnish you a grade line without the cost of a surveyor's fee.

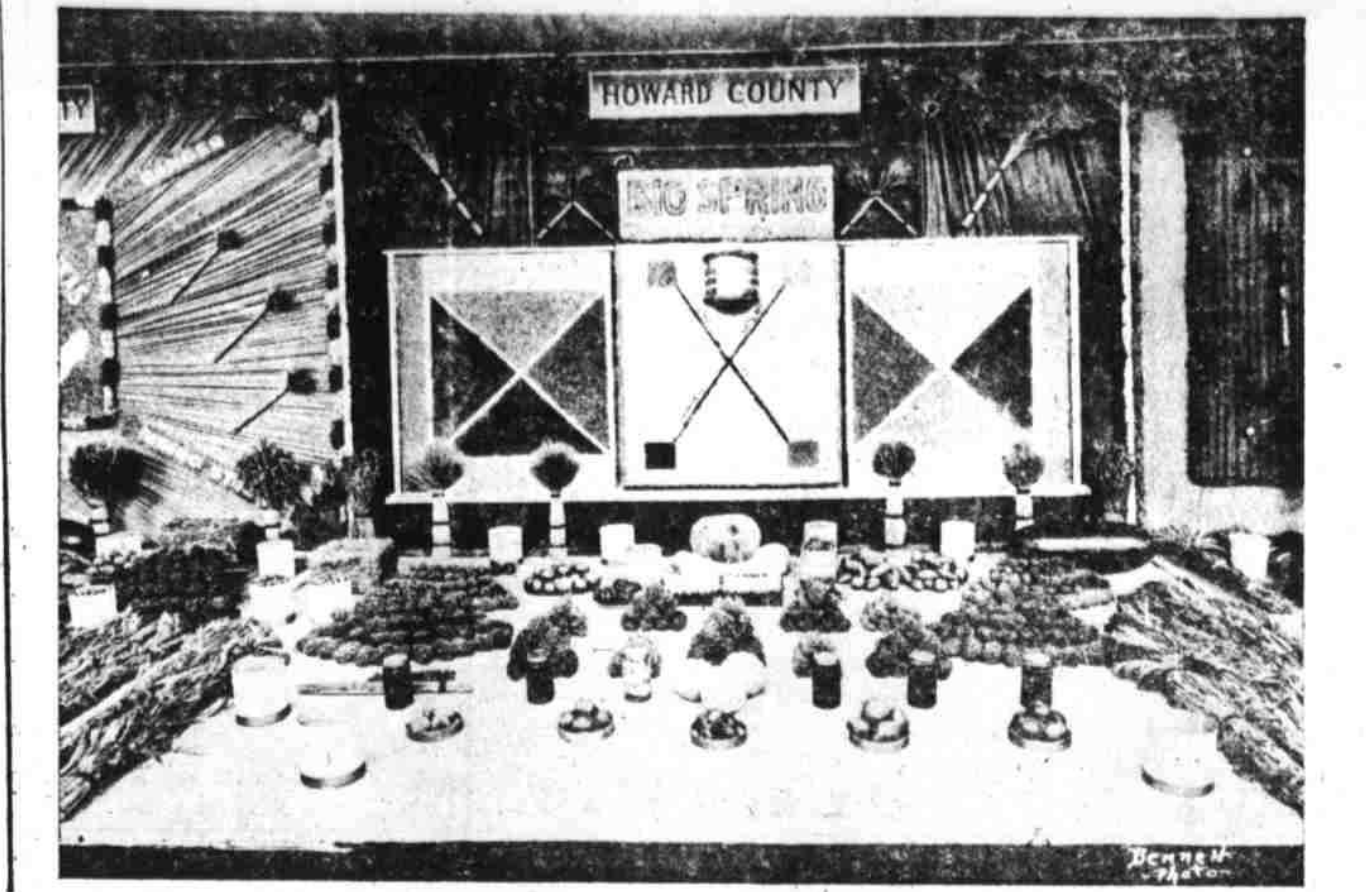

Wm. Fisher was asked to give his opinion as to widening the sidewalks when the paving was laid in the business section. Mr. Fisher said if we had saloons here he would be in favor of making the sidewalks wider, but he didn't see much need for it while the Volstead law was in effect. However, if it would be a benefit to widen the sidewalks he was in favor of it. He suggested that the weekly meetings take up matters of this kind and when necessary go to the City Council and Commissioners' Court and ask for measures that will benefit our city and county. Asked as to paying for paving the Mayor stated that property owners were to pay one-sixth down and the balance in five equal annual payments at 6 per cent interest.

T. S. Currie, when called upon stated he did not favor widening the sidewalks. He also pointed out the necessity of packing and tamping the lines where waterworks mains had been put in before paving work was begun.

Toastmaster Wolcott also suggested that while we were on the job of fixing up our town that we make all sidewalk curbs line up and also require an evening-up of awnings in front of business houses. All awnings he said should be the same distance above the sidewalk.

HOWARD COUNTY EXHIBIT AT THE DALLAS FAIR

This exhibit won twenty-third prize for Howard County at the Dallas Fair. The exhibit is in charge of Miss Nell Hatch, secretary of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. As Howard County held forty-second place last year this splendid showing wherein our county passed nineteen others in the race for a gain of 65 per cent in points is an especially fine showing and this season has been anything but a favorable one.

Under the write-up of the big Dallas Fair in the issue of Monday, October 20th, the Dallas News has the following concerning the Howard county exhibit:

The Howard county exhibit, a West Texas exhibition, is in charge of Miss Nell Hatch, secretary of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, and one of the few women chamber of commerce executives in the State. Products shown in the exhibit were gathered through the assistance of Roy Green, a farmer of Big Spring. The showing of the exhibit at the State Fair was financed by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce.

The background design of this exhibit is one of the attractive and ingenious backgrounds to be found in the rows of county exhibits. It features Big Spring, the county seat of Howard county, showing this town at the junction of the Bankhead National Highway and the Glacier to Gulf Highway. It emphasizes the fact that Big Spring, reached by rail over the Texas & Pacific, is of easy access and when reached furnishes an operation point for the growing of virtually any crop that will flourish in the soil of West Texas and there are many such crops.

A big rectangular poster is used as the central piece of the design. Against the background of this poster the two highways mentioned are shown. A miniature bale of cotton, held together by bands gilded by gold, is set in a position just above the junction of the two highways, marking the location of Big Spring. Corn, oats, wheat, white and red milo maize, feterita and millet seed are used in the decorative scheme. The background was designed by Elmo Wasson of Big Spring.

Grain sorghums are stressed in the Howard county exhibit. Cotton is also raised in considerable quantities in that county. A yield of 23,000 bales being produced in 1924 with the yield for the present year being estimated as about the same.

Very little corn is grown in the county though fine feed crops, grain and sweet sorghums are produced. Sweet sorghums displayed include sudan, red top cane and the like. In the vegetable display are included sweet potatoes, beans, carrots, bell peppers, beets, onions and cabbage, watermelons, kershaws and pumpkins. Canned apples, pears, peaches, strawberries, cherries and figs represent the fruit exhibit.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the Howard county display is found in the fine samples of peanuts. These came from the only peanut crop of any importance produced in the county this year, being from the farm of C. F. Morris, eight miles north of Big Spring. Mr. Morris, who cultivates a farm of 1,280 acres, planted peanuts on a 250-acre tract, on which cotton has been grown for years, for the purpose of enriching the land. Rain came at just the right time and the peanut harvest proved a very rich one. Various ones who have seen the crop estimate, according to Miss Hatch, that Mr. Morris will harvest $20,000 worth of peanut hay alone.

In addition to fertilizing his cotton land, the peanuts have furnished a fine food for the herd of 800 hogs

CLEAN-UP INSPECTION NOW IN PROGRESS

Official inspection of the various districts in the city is now in progress, and an announcement of the prize winners of cleanest districts will be announced in our next week's issue. Since the close of the clean-up campaign, the committee has been inspecting the different areas, but the work is incomplete at this time.

The school children have turned in their reports stating the amount of cleaning up each one has done and giving the address of the premises cleaned. This data will aid the inspectors in determining the district which had the most work done, but a visit will be paid to the different places.

Good results have been obtained in most districts from this clean up work, and a cleaner and healthier city is ours since the campaign has been carried on.

COACH JACK BRYAN IN DALLAS SANITARIUM

The injury sustained by Coach Jack Bryan, while in scrimmage with the High School football team last week, proved to be a serious one, and he found it necessary to go to Dallas for treatment. The ligaments in his left shoulder were so badly torn from the muscles, that it was necessary for him to have a portion of the ligament on one of his legs removed and placed in his shoulder. The injury was indeed a painful one, and Mr. Bryan will have to remain in the Sanitarium for the next two weeks, and will be out of the football game for practically the rest of the season.

COTTON RECEIPTS 4303 BALES

Up to Thursday morning Public Weigher T. W. Angel had received 4303 bales of cotton at Big Spring. This is an increase of 1000 bales over last week's receipts and is a good showing when you consider that we have had unfavorable weather about half the time. The largest amount received for any one day of the past week was 287 bales received Wednesday.

The total receipts at Coahoma are now around 1500 bales making a total of more than 4800 bales for the county.

With more threatening weather in store it appears as though our farmers will be months yet in gathering their crops.

W. R. SETTLES PLANS TO BUILD NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Settles plan to build a handsome brick home in the Cole and Strayhorn addition, sometime in the near future. The work on their servants house and garage was started this week, and the progress on them is well underway. Mr. and Mrs. Settles will make their home in the servants house upon its completion, until their new home is erected.

Our Texas Fairs

By Phebe K. Warner

Of all the two thousand fairs to be held in the United States this year none will be greater than our own Texas State Fair. Few of the states have the diversity of products that Texas has. Every body knows that. No use to waste time and paper on that. Texas is the greatest producing State in this nation. In fact the production of raw products seems to have been Texas special mission in the Union. And if the men and the women would study the sociology of Texas they would discover some most interesting facts along this line.

Production of Wealth

Texas produces more of the raw materials that clothe this nation than any other half dozen States. One third of all the cotton in the nation and most of the wool and mohair and think of the hides that are raised in Texas. And even silk is made in Texas. That is the worms are grown and the thread produced. But what becomes of all our products? Texas produces more wealth every year than any other State because she has so many resources in her earth, air and sea. But who gets the benefit of all this new wealth every year. Do the children who help produce this wealth get the benefit of it. Do the people who toil early and late get the full benefit of their labors? Who lives best off of Texas? The home folks or the other folks? This is one of the problems that the 1925 State Fair in Texas will try to solve. Agriculture has been trying to solve it for a number of years. But things have become so complex in this day that no one institution or interest can work out any of our big problems alone. Conditions of life will soon compel cooperation among all people.

Texas' Weakest Features

The weakest features in our state life is that it is not balanced. Texas has developed most of her thought and energy to the production of raw products. She has kept her children out of school to raise cotton for others to weave and make into finished garments to clothe the world. She has cheated her own children out of their own State birthright in order to furnish the people of other states and other nations something to do. She has held her self LOW in order to build other countries up. That may go on for a few generations and the State will stand. But it can not and it must not go on forever. And the time has arrived when it is the duty of Texas to look to the welfare of her own people. And whether it means the greatest amount of cash for the next few years or whether it means the greatest amount of cash for safety of the people it's got to come and the sooner the whole State recognizes its greatest weakness and its greatest social problem the quicker we will all get down to the work of adjusting our new conditions to our new needs.

What Texas Needs

First of all Texas needs to re-adjust her agricultural program to fit the needs of HER OWN children and not all the other little toilers of the world. Texas must re-adjust her production program so that children will not be kept out of school to make business for other people. Diversified farming will do that in time. And we will have a better fair when we have more diversified farming. And then, Texas' new day must include the industries. We must make a way in Texas to manufacture more of our raw materials into finished products and thus give our own trained workers something to do at home. We must stop sending all our products out of the State at the lowest market price and shipping them back in at the highest market price and giving all the profit in between to foreign people. Some of this profit should stay at home to help build up the interest of our own people.

The Manufacturers Exhibit at the Fair

That this work has already been exaggerated and that it has advanced beyond the belief of us will be demonstrated this year at our Texas State Fair at Dallas. If you go to the Fair don't fail to visit the manufacturers building and take a look at what is not only being RAISED in Texas but MADE IN TEXAS. And then GO HOME and tell it to the world. Especially that part of the world that lives in Texas. Tell it to the children. Tell it to the high school boys and girls. Let's all wake up to the possibilities of Texas New Industrial Day.

As long as this world stands, folks will have to eat. The manufacturer of foods will never go out of fashion. So long as the world stands people will wear some kind of clothes. It may not be much but it will be something. As long as we have homes we will need some kind of furniture. Texas has the raw products for all these commodities. And it seems that transportation has become a universal fad as well as a necessity. Texas has the raw materials and the raw fuel to keep the nation on the go.

Texas has everything a nation needs to live. But most of it is RAW. Suppose we were to be isolated some night? How many of us would have to stay hid until some body could build a factory and make us some clothes? How soon would our supply of imported food run out? Where would our next installment of wool blankets come from. For Worth and Post might keep up in sheets, pillow slips and a few other garments for a while and Port Arthur would keep us in oil and gas for awhile. Then what? Let's revive the old slogan of Buy It Made In Texas. Let's eat it raised in Texas. Let's wear it raised in Texas. Yes, and let's see it raised in Texas. It's time for Texas to practice a little justifiable selfishness. She has allowed her industrial opportunities to go to waste entirely too long for the good of not only her own people but for the good of the whole nation. Texas is not living the ABUNDANT LIFE we hear so much about today. Yet we are producing every thing of material wealth in abundance. We have our standards of livestock. We are improving our roads for ourselves and the tourist traffic of the nation. We are improving our methods of agriculture. We are improving our methods of transportation. But how about ourselves? ARE WE, the people of Texas, getting much better? Are we living more happily and contented in our homes? Are we killing fewer of our fellow beings? Are we indulging in less crime? If we are not of what value will all the other improvements be?

TAKE CARE OF YOUR TEETH

In the National Museum at Washington, D. C., there is on exhibit a row of over 200 skulls of Indians who lived 200 or 300 years ago. Only one tooth in the entire collection of skulls shows dental decay. Contrast this with a recent study made in West Virginia of 7,059 children in whose teeth 16,151 cavities were found, not counting cavities that had been filled. Undeveloped jaws and irregular teeth are all too frequent.

It seems that the Indian boy and girl living years ago had a much better chance to have a perfect mouth and teeth than our children have today. The cause of dental decay, scientists say, is due to our civilized diet, and to the fact that there is little need for tearing our food apart with our teeth; in fact, some of it can be purchased already chewed. Therefore we have the responsibility of caring for our teeth to counteract our lack of food requiring long mastication.

Teeth are given us for chewing our food. Properly chewed food is easily digested in the stomach, but if food is not thoroughly masticated, proper digestion is impossible, and proper nourishment is not attained. Intestinal irritation and constipation frequently result, meaning a lowered vitality and consequent predisposition to disease. Sound teeth are needed for proper mastication, which means breaking the food into small particles, and grinding and mixing it with saliva before it is swallowed. Teeth that are used are healthy.

The mouth and teeth must be kept clean. Lack of cleanliness in the mouth produces decay in the teeth. Cavities in the teeth harbor germs of various diseases, which multiply and spread throughout the system as they are swallowed with food. Once the enamel or outer layer of a tooth is decayed, the softer tissues lying underneath the enamel dissolve rapidly, and a large cavity, or loss of the tooth is the result.—The Prairie Farmer.

Interesting and instructive programs were given each day. It was decided to hold the next convention in Barstow sometime in the fall. Seventy-five delegates from Barstow, Big Spring, Barstow, Stockton attended this convention.

CARD OF THANKS
 To our friends and neighbors:
 We take this method of expressing to you our appreciation for your many acts of kindness and your tender sympathy during the sickness and ultimate death of our son, Luther J. Smith, and especially do we wish to thank you, Mrs. Larmon, for your thoughtfulness and kindly acts which added so much to his comfort.
 We will ever remember and cherish the kindness of each and all of you.
 While our son has gone away from us, we have the consolation of the sweet remembrance when he was happily converted and united with the Baptist church, in Jones county, Texas, and the sweet assurance that he has gone to be with his Savior whom he trusted for eternal salvation, and where there is no more pain, no sickness and no suffering.
 Yours sincerely,
 His Father and Mother.

Worth the Money
 Quick action will secure you this fine 400-acre tract of good land; well improved, plenty of good water. To sell quick $15 per acre. $1600 cash will handle. Good terms.

MRS. BERNICE WILLIAMS WINS DANCING PRIZE IN EL PASO
 Mrs. Bernice Williams, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nail of this city, won the distinction of being the most graceful and smoothest dancer on the floor at the West Ysleta Club dance in El Paso Saturday evening, and was awarded as a prize a $5 gold piece. Seventy-five couples were on the floor to try out for this prize in this contest, and eliminations were made until Mrs. Williams and her partner, Paul Lovellen of Los Angeles, California, were declared the winners.
 The Bobby Miller Orchestra, a local band of musicians was playing for this dance at the West Ysleta Club House.

PLANNING FOR FEEDING EXPERIMENT AT U. S. STATION
 V. V. Parr of Washington, D. C., and J. M. Jones of the extension department of the Texas A. and M. College, are expected here early next month to select the 45 head of yearlings that are to be used in the 180-day experimental feeding tests at the U. S. Experiment Station here. A committee composed of representatives of the U. S. Animal Husbandry department and the packing plants will also be here to grade the young cattle that are to be placed in the feeding lots.

RUMMAGE SALE OCTOBER 24
 The South Side Circle of the First Baptist church will conduct a Rummage sale at the "M" System store Saturday, Oct. 24. Good second hand clothing will be sold at a big bargain at this sale.
 Take the citizens of Big Spring as a whole and they are fairly good waiters. Most of them seem more willing to sit tight hoping that some turn of fortune will make a city out of Big Spring. If it is going to cost them any money or effort they are not in on it—they prefer to wait and hope. A bunch of hustlers, with the big opportunities that are at hand, could make a city out of this, but the waiters and hoppers refuse to budge. Maybe the next generation will have the "pop" to start things.
 Get the old mattress made like new at J. R. Creath's. We guarantee satisfaction and will be here to make the guarantee stick. J. R. CREATH. 5-2t
 Mrs. Ira Thurman of Wilmington, California, arrived Tuesday morning for a short visit here with relatives and friends, enroute home from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Menger and family in San Antonio.

STEERS TO MEET STANTON TEAM AT STANTON TODAY

The Big Spring Steers go to Stanton this afternoon to engage in battle with the Stanton football team, and they go with the vim and confidence that is sure to bring them victory. The Stanton team has made itself a record this season, and the Steers know that they will have to fight their way, but with the lines strengthened by the men who have been out from injury and illness back on the field, they feel capable of battling the worst. J. T. Johnson, the stellar player of the team, will be out of the game, because of an injured rib, but if needed can go into the game for a little while.

Rix, who has been out with an injured leg, and Segell, who has suffered a fractured rib, are back in the game, and will probably start the game in the backfield.

The probable line-up will be: Ends, C. E. Johnson and McGinnis; Tackles, Hoover, Knaus; Guards, Collins, M. Gay; Center, Z. Gay; Quarter, Rix; Halves, Segell, Harwood; Fullback, Wasson.

The Pep Squad will accompany the team, and give its aid with its cheers and yells. A large crowd of interested patrons are expected to drive to Stanton for the game, and help the boys to bring home the victory.

ROBERT PETREE DEAD

Robert Petree, twenty-eight years of age, passed away in an Abilene hospital Monday afternoon, October 19, at two o'clock. Mr. Petree had been suffering from mastoid trouble for the last three weeks, and had gone to Abilene only a week ago to receive treatment, but the medical aid proved of no avail.

The remains were brought to this city Tuesday and the funeral services were held at the home of his father in law, G. O. Rice, in the north part of the city at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Interment was made in Mt. Olive cemetery.

Mr. Petree was a farmer in the Center Point community and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He is survived by his father, who resides in Abilene, his wife, five children, three brothers, and three sisters, and other relatives, who sincerely mourn his death.

Deepest sympathy is extended the grief stricken family in the loss of their loved one.

J. G. CARTER RECEIVES FINE BUCK THIS WEEK

Probably the finest specimen of the sheep family that has been brought to this section arrived Thursday from Michigan and is the property of J. G. Carter, well known Glasscock county ranchman.

This was a Cottswool buck, four years old, which was secured for breeding purposes, and will be crossed with Mr. Carter's Ramboulette and Delane ewes. By such a cross he expects to secure better animals and producers of a higher grade wool. This buck stands thirty-four inches high and at the last shearing produced thirty-six pounds of wool.

Mr. Carter has long since learned that it pays to secure the best animals that money can buy when it comes to playing the livestock game.

ALL WEST TEXAS EXPOSITION

OCT. 26-31, AT SAN ANGELO

The All-West-Texas Exposition at San Angelo, October 26 to 31 inclusive, is aptly described by its president, W. E. Blanton, as the "Show Window" of the great district it represents. The fair is of and for the immense territory from the South Plains to the Rio Grande and the free will donation of $10,000 by San Angelo business firms, is the city's annual contribution to the advancement of the empire called West Texas.

This year, keeping pace with the phenomena' prosperity and growth of the country, the All-West-Texas Exposition is offering the most varied and elaborate program of education and amusement in its history. Everything to delight a West Texan is provided—horse races, twenty-five of these; polo games; college football; roping contests; wonderful music all the time by the famous McKenzie's Scotch Highlanders; lavish vaudeville programs; the South's greatest midway show company; a horse show; a $50,000 style show; a magnificent pageant; four great fireworks programs.

"Come one, come all; and help boost your country." is the invitation issued San Angelo for the week Monday, October 26. Room reservations in advance or during the fair may be made at the Board of City Development office in the St. Angelus Hotel building.

STAMPS QUARTETTE APPEAR AT HIGH SCHOOL THURSDAY

The Stamps Quartette of Jacksonville, Texas, a troupe of singers and entertainers, appeared at the High School auditorium last night, as a benefit performance for the High School Athletic Association. The High School students have been selling the tickets this week to defray the expenses, and to make proceeds enough to install a heating system in the High School building for the shower baths. It is dangerous for the boys to take cold showers, after football or any other kind of athletic practice, and this is the means they have chosen to raise part of the funds to install a water heater. A report of the amount taken in at this benefit entertainment will be published next week.

DEDICATORY SERVICES TO BE HELD AT CHURCH OF GOD

The plan for the Dedicatory Service, and the all-day meeting which is to be held at the Church of God Sunday, October 25, is complete, and the public is again invited to come and make this a big day for the Lord. Regular Sunday school and morning services will be held at the Neighborhood Chapel at the corner of Tenth and Main streets on Sunday, following which, the crowd will go to the City Park, where an old-fashioned basket picnic dinner will be served. Everyone attending is requested to bring well filled baskets.

The Dedicatory Services will be held at 2:30 o'clock and a large crowd is expected to assemble to witness this ceremony. A special invitation is extended to all of the business men, who have given their help in the erection of this beautiful new church.

Special music will be the feature of the evening services, which will be held at 7:30 o'clock.

MAY BE ONLY TWO IN RACE FOR GOVERNOR

POLITICAL WISEACRES PREDICT "MA"—Managed by Jim—AND LYNCH DAVIDSON WILL BE ONLY GUBERNATORIAL ENTRIES FOR 1926.

Austin, Sept. 26.—A two-handed battle royal for the gubernatorial honors in 1926, with Lynch Davidson of Houston and Jim Ferguson knight errant for Mrs. Ferguson, the two contestants, seems in the offing. With Lee Satterwhite, Whit Davidson, Eugene Blount and half a dozen other possible candidates out of the way and with the announcement of Wizard Evans that the clan will not take part in the race the field rapidly is being narrowed down to only two candidates.

The Fewer, the Better.
Should there be only two in the race it would be for the first time in several years that the gubernatorial sweepstakes has had such a small field, but the race probably would be hotter than when there are a number of entries.

There would be but one issue in the race—Fergusonism. All of Texas would be lined up in two camps—for and against Ferguson.

A general realization that such will be the issue seems largely the deterrent force that is keeping the other possible candidates out of the race. They know that the more in the field the better it will be for Ferguson and the less chance each individual will have. They know that Lynch Davidson has been a candidate since he was barely nosed out last year and that he has the determination and the means to stay in the race as well as the demonstrated strength to justify his making the race. Consequently the others feel that to get in at this time would but reduce Davidson's chances of beating Ferguson and would not help their own cause.

There is only one other possible candidate who might develop any strength at all and he is Dan Moody, the attorney general. But several forces are at work against Moody's favorable entry into the race.

First of these is the fact that he has just been elected to state office, has had less than a year to prove his ability, and has had no executive or economic training to fit him for the governorship.

Should Moody make the race for governor without resigning from his present office he would be assailed for neglecting his duties while campaigning, for drawing the taxpayers' money while engaged in seeking another job at the hands of the taxpayers. Should he resign to make the race he would have to see his office filled by an appointee of the Fergusons, and Jim Ferguson would be certain to use this in the campaign as a demonstration of Moody's faith in the administration. It is well known in political circles that Moody is being urged by his closest friends to keep out of the race and give the anti-Ferguson forces an opportunity to center their strength behind one candidate. Ferguson has repeatedly tried to bait Moody into the race and his followers are subtly trying to get him in, hoping to split the strength of the opposition.

As between Davidson and the Fergusons the former has much the easier position. The withdrawal of Whit Davidson from the possibility of making the race assures the Houston man many thousands of votes of "either Davidson" people who would have supported either had the other not been in the race last year. Davidson probably has not lost any of his 1924 supporters, and the combined vote of Whit Davidson with his own, plus the general anti-Ferguson vote, gives him a solid position.

The Case of Lynch.
The Houston man has no major problems of any sort confronting him. He has no apology to make for offering for the office. He is known to be rapidly as possible retiring from all business connections, following the policy of the president's cabinet members in that respect. He has the means to make the campaign and to live as governor without having to go in debt to supplement the $4,000 a year paid as a salary by the state—while several former governors have left the office heavily in debt. In fact, his only problem is to get enough votes to win.

The Fergusons are not fortunately situated. In the first place, there stares them in the face the promise which Mrs. Ferguson made last year that if elected, so that the family name could be vindicated, she would not seek office again. That promise more than offsets any value to her of the two term tradition of the democratic party. Besides, it would not be, in fact, her second but the fourth term of the Fergusons should she be re-elected.

It seems the plan of the Fergusons is to overcome their promise by announcing that if their administration is assailed they will seek vindication of the acts of the administration by carrying the campaign to the people for re-election. Jim Ferguson having virtually so said in a recent interview in North Texas. When saying that, Jim Ferguson knew that his wife's administration, as that of any governor, certainly would be assailed by its enemies, and therefore it was a virtual announcement that she would be a candidate. This is further strengthened by letters which have been mailed out by Ferguson asking for poll tax lists and the names of one supporter for every 25 votes in each precinct.

The 1924 Verdict.
When Mrs. Ferguson overwhelmingly defeated Felix Robertson last year, she was generally agreed among the political wiseacres at the time that it was not a victory for Ferguson but a defeat for the clan, and there seems no reason to change that view now. With the issue solely that of Fergusonism next year a hot and bitter campaign is in sight with the odds considerably in favor of Lynch Davidson.—Wichita Falls Record News.

DRIFTING TOWARD ANARCHY.

Eleven thousand homicides in prosperous America in one year as against 200 in England and Wales during the same time; 536 highway robberies in Chicago in one month as compared to forty in an entire year in the city of London; thefts, holdups, and other forms of crime running into the hundreds of thousands in America with similar crimes reduced to a minimum in poverty-stricken Europe, effectively disposes of the old theory that poverty breeds crime.

"What is the matter with America? Why this disregard of life and property rights? Are we too prosperous? Have we too many laws... too many restrictions imposed upon the people by well-organized minorities or small majorities, thus breeding contempt of laws in general and encouraging others in more violent crimes?"

Not a few who have given the matter careful consideration have come to the conclusion that there are many contributing causes. Chief among these we find our tendency to misuse law. We have developed an idea that every defect of human nature and every human tendency can be cured or regulated by law, and we are trying to prove the correctness of this theory by passing laws by the hundreds.

As originally designed, laws are for the purpose of affording protection to people in the enjoyment of their inherent rights. Every person has a right to life, and so we have laws prohibiting murder. Every person has the right to acquire and enjoy property, and so we have laws to protect this property; laws against theft; unfair competition in business and against swindling. Organized society must have rules and regulations, and if there is to be harmony and progress these rules and regulations must be obeyed. Good laws are not a burden, but there should not be so many of them that the people cannot keep track of them.

We have more laws in the United States than in any other country in the world and has less respect for law than any other people on earth. We have so many that it is impossible to enforce any of them. We are trying to regulate every act of citizens from birth to the grave, and in some States they have even gone so far as to want to regulate the hours of daylight. Yet there are hundreds of organizations with salaried secretaries and managers and a lot of members who bask in the sunshine of publicity who are trying to find something else to regulate, or to draw the lines, already binding the people, just a little tighter. Some one says, "We ought to have a law," and, straightway, organized propaganda proceeds to put it over.

Law enforcement and respect for the law in the United States is more than 50 per cent less than it was twenty years ago. The situation is becoming serious. Even those who are naturally law-abiding citizens disregard laws that they don't believe in, and do it without a pricking of conscience. In the meantime there are spasmodic efforts at law enforcement which end in miserable failures. We go on making and breaking laws while criminals murder, rape, and rob with about one chance in fifty of ever receiving adequate punishment. Should this continue, the end will be anarchy.—Farm and Ranch.

The mightiest achievement in the history of motion pictures. This great drama of the birth of the West was three years in the making. In "The Iron Horse," Mr. Fox has pictured in a very effective way one of the very greatest events in American history. The story of the building of the first transcontinental railway is only to be matched in peace time exploits by the voyage of Columbus, the landing of the Pilgrims and the building of the Panama Canal. If this thought is kept in mind it is easy to get the true perspective of this production. "The Iron Horse" breathes the spirit of one overwhelming gigantic achievement.

It is the romantic, dramatic story, historically accurate to the last degree, of the strange life which began with and accompanied the building of our first transcontinental highway.

These men were the soldiers of civilization, opening a way for peace and prosperity.

"The Iron Horse" is a Smashing, Stupendous Sensation. If you are tired of "just a movie" see "The Iron Horse."

BIG SPRING IN 1849

On the 2nd day of April, 1849, Captain R. B. Marcy, of the United States Army, was sent out by the War Department with 80 men to explore, lay out and mark a route from Fort Smith, Ark. to Santa Fe, N. M. He was directed to follow the Main Canadian river by the most direct and practicable route, as well as to make peace with the Indians and give protection to the immigrants that might be going that way. This was the year in which the gold rush to California occurred, and the many disasters to the immigrants, both from hostile Indians and ignorance of the country over which they traveled, prompted the government in sending expeditions into the unknown wilderness with orders to make correct reports of what they found.

In case Capt. Marcy could find a suitable guide among the Comanche Indians, he was to employ such guide and return to Fort Smith by the southern route.

Starting out on the 2nd day of April, 1849, from Fort Smith, Capt. Marcy and his command reached Santa Fe on the 25th of June following, where they rested until late in August, where Manuel, a Comanche, was secured as guide and the expedition started out to return by the southern route, moving down the Rio Grande from Santa Fe to a point about 60 miles above El Paso. From this point the expedition moved southward to Guadalupe Peak; thence to Delaware Springs at the head of Delaware Creek, a tributary of the Pecos, and then down the Delaware to the Pecos river. Traveling down the Pecos they crossed the river on the 21 day of September by means of a wagon bed buoyed by six empty barrels. The horses and mules were made to swim the stream.

September 22, they traveled nine miles north, 82 degrees east, and camped at a lake. They could see a range of white sand hills to the east about 20 miles. Here, the Comanche guide told them that sand was so deep that the wagons could only pass through a certain gap in the hills, but that there was plenty of water there. On the 23rd Capt. Marcy sent Lieut. Sackett with a detail to explore ahead. On the 24th, a courier from Lieut. Sackett brought the news that the party had explored south for a distance of forty miles, and had found no place where the wagons could cross the sands; so the Captain ordered the course straight ahead, and on the 25th arrived at the sand hills at a point 23 miles east of Pecos river, and where he found plenty of water.

On the 25th, teams were doubled and a part of the equipment moved eastward five miles, where they found plenty of water. Next day, the balance of the equipment was brought up. On the 28th, they traveled eight miles and found plenty of water, fuel and grass. On the 29th they pushed out upon the Plains, not knowing whether or not they would find water nearer than sixty miles, but a scout soon came back and reported that a lake of water had been found about sixteen miles ahead. On the 30th the expedition rested.

October 1st, Captain Marcy was sick, but he marched 1 mile north, 67 degrees east, and camped at a lake. On this march, the expedition passed a pond in which were growing rushes. This, together with the numerous mustang trails leading to the pond, led Captain Marcy to conclude that here was permanent water, and he named it "Mustang Pond." This watering place is probably the one now known as Mustang Fountain, in the southwest part of Martin county. On the 2nd they marched 23 miles north, 72 degrees and 22 minutes east, and camped at a salt lake; but Marcy says a small lake of sulphurous water to the south of the road is fit for us.

On October 3rd, they reached the border of a high plain and descended an easy slope about 50 feet to a bench below. Captain Marcy says: "Here we could see two bluffs on ahead." Manuel, the Comanche guide, told them that near the bluffs was a big spring where they were was a big spring where they were was plenty of water. He said he had often camped there, and that in a battle between the Comanches and Pawnees he had a brother killed.

After a march of fourteen miles the expedition camped at a spring which Captain Marcy said flowed from a deep chasm in the rocks into an immense reservoir of some 50 feet in depth." Here he found "spherical fossil shells of the muschel shell." "Mesquite trees are becoming larger as we descend from the plains."

This is the way Big Spring looked to Captain Marcy on October 3, 1849 but today, 76 years later, a flourishing city, called "Big Spring," shakes its thirst at this famous fountain so well known to the red men of the plains. But don't stop here, but read on and find out why map makers and geographers are still bringing a most egregious error on down to the present day.

On October 4th, the expedition resumes its march. It travels north, 43 degrees east, 12 1-2 miles and camped at "a spring in a beautiful timbered valley. The spring is in the limestone rocks to the south of the road. It is a tributary of the Concho." Evidently, this was what is now known as Moss Springs, northwest of Signal Mountain, and runs into Beal's Creek, a tributary of the Colorado river instead of the Concho.

Since Capt. Marcy filed his report, geographers and map makers have been placing out the North Concho river with the upper reaches of the draws of Beal's Creek. The draws of Beal's Creek do actually extend far out on the Plains in the direction indicated on the average map for the upper reaches of the North Concho but the North Concho heads in Howard and Glasscock counties southwest of Big Spring. Even the government has been promulgating this error through its maps until last winter when it was corrected. — Sterling City News-Record.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER IN THE PANHANDLE

The following clipped from the Southwest Plainsman of Amarillo tells of unfavorable crop weather in that section. With about ten inches of rain since August the fields have been too wet for seeding wheat or harvesting the sorghum grains a good part of the time and gins have shut down in some localities rather than gin the dirty, green stuff that was brought in. A threatened frost was routed on two or three occasions by cloudy weather.

HIGH BRED CATTLE IN DEMAND

Charles M. Filson of Salem, Ill. was here last week to look over this territory to ascertain the possibility of securing high bred cattle for feed lots in Illinois.

Mr. Filson, who represents the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway states there are hundreds of farmers along his line who raise a vast amount of surplus corn each year who would feed cattle if they could get the right kind of cattle at a right price. They cannot afford to have any grazing land, as land in that country at $250 to $300 an acre is too costly for grazing purposes. It is far better for their land if the surplus corn is fed to cattle on the farm than it is to market the corn. With lots of corn, and being prepared to feed, the Illinois farmer can make money by finishing cattle, West Texas because of climatic condition is an ideal place to raise high bred cattle.

Mr. Filson contends that if the proper cooperation can be secured, the cattle raisers of Howard and adjoining counties can always be assured of a good market for high bred cattle. They can get a better price from the corn raising farmers of Illinois than they can from the packing plants.

Mr. Filson is now endeavoring to establish a basis whereby the farmers in Illinois and the raisers of high grade cattle in this section may cooperate to the advantage of both parties. He urges our stockmen to keep improving their cattle, for once it is shown that any section has exceptionally good cattle the buyers are going to favor such section.

MR. AND MRS. J. M. FISHER HONOREES ON ANNIVERSARY

One of the very lovely parties of the week planned in a most unique and original manner was that on Tuesday evening, when the members of the Pioneer Bridge Club gave a surprise party in honor of the tenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fisher.

The guests assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Biles, and at the appointed hour, they drove to the Fisher home on Soupy street, taking with them the accessories for the party. The honorees admitted the group who took charge of the home, and arranged for the evening's entertainment.

Gifts of tin, which is the appropriate gift on the tenth anniversary, were presented to the honorees, by each of the guests and the further appointments of the party carried out this theme.

Bridge was the evening diversion, and at counting time, Mrs. Homer McNew was favored with a tin fork and spoon, prettily dressed in crepe paper, for making high score for the ladies, and C. W. Cunningham was given a tin horn, as favor for high score among the men. Mr. Fisher was favored with a tin smoking tray and Mrs. Fisher was honored with a tin ladle.

Following the play, a pleasant social hour was under way, at which time a buffet luncheon was served. The dining table was an old-fashioned red cloth, and was laid with tin plates, knives and forks. The tempting menu, served in this rustic, yet fitting manner, consisted of potato salad, huns, "hot dogs," pickles, and hot coffee.

LITTLE MISS BILLIE BESS SHINE BIRTHDAY HONOREE

Black cats and witches, prettily expressing the Hallowe'en note of orange and black, gave adornment to the rooms of the Shive's home on Saturday afternoon, when Mrs. Clarence Shive assisted by Mrs. Jake Bishop and Mrs. Fox Stripling, entertained with a birthday party in honor of her daughter, Billie Bess, whose fourth anniversary fell on this day. The little tots enjoyed games until they were invited into the dining room, where the birthday cake, topped with four candles, held their interest for a time. Delicious punch was served with the cake. Each little guest was favored with candy and a toy balloon.

Those invited to celebrate with Billie Bess were: Jean Hardy Flewellen, Nancy Belle Phillips, Doris Cunningham, Frances Catherine Paylor, Anita and Charline Davis, Bobbie Edwards, Edward Johnson, Richard and Earl Reagan, John and Julia Heard, Emma Ruth Stripling, Lorraine and Robert Ashley Graves, Jake Bishop, Jr., and Raymond Lee Nall.

"HAPPY HUSTLERS" GUESTS OF ELZA JEANETTE BARNETT

The "Happy Hustlers," a Sunday school class of the Presbyterian church, of which Miss Elza Jeanette Barnett is the teacher, were entertained at the home of Miss Barnett in the Cole and Strayhorn addition Thursday evening. The happy group enjoyed various games and contests, and the losing side had to entertain the winners.

The Hallowe'en colors were cleverly used in the favors given each little guest, which were all-day-suckers dressed up a dolls in orange and black crepe paper. Refreshments of hot chocolate, sandwiches, olives, and cake were served.

Those expressing pleasure in the occasion were: Mary Jean Dubberly, Loretta Jenkins, Billy Eileen Barnett, Mary Louise Miller, Vivian Smith, Nellie Mae Sullivan, Emma Louise Freeman and Helen Hayden.

ENTERTAINS WITH LOVELY BRIDGE PARTY MONDAY

Miss Zou Hardy was hostess to friends at bridge on Monday evening when the group assembled in the hospitable Hardy home to engage in a series of bridge games. Daintily appointed tables were arranged, in the rooms, at which unique tallies marked the places for the guests. The bridge hour resulted in Mrs. Fletcher H. Etheridge of Los Angeles winning high score for the ladies and Mrs. B. Fisher second high and Fred Hopkins top score among the men and Lorin McDowell second high.

Delicious refreshments served were a delightful aftermath of the play. Sixteen guests were present at this happy affair with Mrs. F. H. Etheridge of Los Angeles, Cal., being in and out of town guest.

DELIGHTFUL MEETING OF THE EXERCISE CLUB MEMBERS

A happy, lively, and very delightful affair was given the members of the Exercise Club members on Wednesday afternoon, at which time they were the guests of Mrs. W. F. Cushing, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mann, on Main street.

Three tables of players contended in the series of bridge games played, and at counting time, Mrs. J. N. Blue had made high score among the club members, and Mrs. Clifford Hurt won the distinction of making visitor's high score.

Delicious refreshments, in two courses, daintily served, added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

CAMP FIRE HIKE

The Tejas Camp Fire Girls had a most enjoyable time Saturday, Oct. 17 when they attended a hike to a pasture about two miles southeast of town. They studied nature and played games until noon when they were served a delicious lunch. After lunch they practiced their play, then enjoyed more games until about four o'clock when they started home. Those who attended the hike were: Frances Douglass, J. C. Douglass, Winell Kavanaugh, Imogene Runyan, Veta Robinson, Margaret Bettie, Adele Thomas, Elda Mae Cochran, Jennie Doune Rogers, Mary Alice Wilke, Mary Jean Dubberly, Opal Orr, Lucille LaBeff, Elizabeth York, Marie Vick, Zillah Mae Ford, Cora Ashley, Loretta Jenkins, Emma Louise Freeman, Dorothy Driver, Evelyn Creath and their guardian, Mary Duncan.

RECEPTION FOR VISITING FOOTBALL TEAM FRIDAY

A gay affair for the Big Spring Steers and High School students, was held on Friday evening at the home of Miss Lucille Tveit, following the victory in the afternoon contest between the Steers and the Roscoe football team, which ended with a score of 14 to 0 in our favor. Members of the Roscoe football team were guests at this reception, which was held informally, and where students and visitors became better acquainted, and friends.

Delicious refreshments were served the many guests who expressed delight in being present on this occasion.

WHY COLLEGES?

The justification for and the purpose of higher education have been more fully explained than ever before in America. That the president James Rowland Angell, in the course of his address to the freshmen at Yale, he said: "To give the human spirit freedom to make it more fully alive, is undoubtedly the great dominating purpose for which colleges exist."

But when one reads that some of our great universities are conducting courses in swine husbandry, hotel management, scenario writing, photography, accountancy, real estate promotion, stock and bond salesmanship, and railroad operation, we wonder if their interest is in the "dominating purpose" which President Angell so nicely expresses.

To awaken all the intellectual faculties, to free the mind and push back the horizons which restrict it, should be the end sought by the college. Four years is a short period in which to attempt such a task. At best the college never has done much more, in most cases, than begin the process, point the way, inspire the student, who then must carry on the self-education which results later in maturity of power.

A few days ago we read of the success being attained by a large American "college" which is graduating men in its hotel management course. During their period of studies the men serve as bellboys, cooks, waiters, chambermaids, doormen, janitors, elevator operators, clerks, chauffeurs, and finally as assistants to executives. They have four years of it with the science of elevators, cookery, bedmaking, hopping in reply to bells, and all the other duties taught by professors in each art. And then they are thrust upon an unsuspecting world as men of higher education. Much is written under the title, "What is the matter with the colleges?" The answer is that many of them are trying to turn out realtors, hotel managers or stock brokers, and have completely forgotten if indeed they ever understood the "dominating purpose" which President Angell expresses. In four years no human hand can take a high school boy and make of him a man of breadth of vision, cultural ambition, keen intellect, and kindly whatever spark of spiritual ambition exists, and at the same time teach him to promote real estate deals, manage a hotel or master the stock and bond market.

The man may go forth labeled as the product of higher education. He may have a diploma to which a highly paid educator has affixed his signature, his degree may give him comfort, but the college which graduates him has perpetrated a fraud and the man is a walking advertisement of the fact.—Hartford Courant.

MONEY FOR CHARITY RAISED THROUGH USE OF SPECIAL MOVIE

Organized charity is no longer a problem in the average American city. Within the next few weeks benevolent Americans will be asked to contribute millions to the various Community Chests throughout the country. This nation, especially since the war has helped to feed and clothe most of the European nations that were left destitute in resources, by the ravages of destruction.

This past year several nations have suffered tremendous loss thru earthquakes and floods, and in each instance, America has always come to the front in the interest of charity. At this time of the year, in most communities they devote 8 or 10 days in the interests of local charity. It took a generation to find out that to give promiscuously, only tends to duplicate and disorganize the good work of benevolence.

Since the Community Chest idea has grown, more and more, cities are adopting this method to raise their funds. The problem is however, how to reach the greatest many, who are asked to "give once, but give enough."

Mr. H. A. Shaw, a student of business analysis in Denver has made a big study of this problem. Mr. Shaw has prepared a scenario to be submitted to the Community Chest Committee, that will put the idea across by the medium of Motion pictures. This film when produced, will portray children in direst poverty, being helped by children who have never known want, thru the office of the Community.

WARDENS OF CONSCIENCE

Greenville Messenger: The preacher is not fighting you when he points out your sins. He is trying to help you and would do you great good if you just had sense enough to listen and recognize him as a friend.

If the preacher doesn't remind a sinner of his sins occasionally the latter is likely to forget them and proceed as if he were good. Part of a pastor's duty is to keep watch and ward over the consciences of his flock, to the end that consciences do not become hardened or atrophied. Being good can become as much of a habit as being bad. Man's estimate of right or wrong may become impaired for lack of use. It is the preacher's part to emphasize the right in the public estimation, particularly in the estimation of those who are attached to his church. Probably a pastor doesn't enjoy pointing out a parishioner's sins any more than a doctor enjoys pointing out bumps on a patient's liver. But that is duty. Every man of normal intelligence chooses his own moral plane. He can choose it high or choose it low. The preacher urges him to make the former choice. The preacher's natural preference may be for the low plane, and he will come down to it unless he educates his conscience and his sense of decency. Preachers are educators of conscience therefore of conduct. Conduct and conscience usually run along together. Parents often set excellent examples of conduct, but give little instruction in conscience to their children. A parental error. The child should be taught that a good conscience, which is the sentinel of conduct, is the beginning of righteousness, and righteousness the background of happiness.—State Press in Dallas News.

"HOW LONG SHOULD A WIFE LIVE?"

Bruce Barton, in an address before the National Electric Light Association, discussed the question: "How Long Should a Wife Live?" The idea foremost in the mind of the speaker was that wives, as a rule, are the last to be considered when it comes to providing labor-saving equipment. Mr. Barton went back into pioneer days when it took two or three wives to bring up one family. The men were hardy and could withstand the rough living conditions. The women died young. The average was about eighteen wives for every ten men.

It has been said that you can measure the height of any civilization by the plane upon which its women live. Going back through the history of this country and we see considerable progress, and the extent of our progress is measured by the standard set for the wives in the way of relieving them of a part of their burdens from day to day. Formerly, and it is the same today in a lesser degree in our rural districts, improvements in the way of labor-saving equipment were for the men first. New farm machinery on which the farmer can ride comes before the kitchen sink. Running water to the barn and stock pen before it is piped to the house. Sanitary stables before sanitation for the home, and so on down the list of modern equipment, man has first thought of himself, and too often has forgotten his wife altogether.

There are thousands of farm homes in the Southwest that could be supplied with running water, a kitchen sink, a bath tub, and other sanitary conveniences at less than the cost of a new binder. There are thousands of homes that could be given a modern lighting system without much sacrifice on the part of the husband and father. In many cases the neglect to provide household sanitation and labor-saving machinery is the result of thoughtlessness on the part of the husband and father, and not selfishness. In most cases the husband has an erroneous idea of the cost. Certainly the man in the rural district is just as anxious to add years to the life of his wife as the man in the city, and would provide labor-saving equipment if he thought he could afford it. Many thousands of homes would be equipped with water and lighting systems in the next twelve months if the owners were approached and plans submitted. It should not be that every rural homeowner with modern labor-saving sanitary equipment for the cost thereof. As a campaign and a proper part of the matter should get to Farm and Ranch.

THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

The National Association of Credit Men at their convention in Atlantic City deemed it incumbent upon them to give public warning against reckless expansion of the installment plan of sales.

By an encouraging coincidence, the opinion of the professional experts, who are in the best position to observe the results of indiscriminate extension of credit, was corroborated from an unexpected source; as it is a new and hopeful departure for labor leaders to advise their unions on such topics.

The president and secretary of the International Typographical Union, after extended investigation, issued a warning to the members of the union against getting too deeply into debt, and particularly against allowing salesmen to load them up more things than they can afford to pay for. They deal with the question looking to the moral and economic effects upon the workman buyer.

It is well to consider the matter from every angle. There are three parties in interest—the sellers, the buyers, and the general public.

The interest of the public—that is of everybody—lies in the fact that if selling on credit is carried to excess, the merchants' losses force high prices. The prudent and honest pay for the losses caused by the foolish and dishonest.

Buying on credit is one of the corner stones of business. The merchant buys his goods with credit gained at his bank predicated on the payment of their accounts by his customers. The manufacturer buys materials with money borrowed against bills receivable. And so on, to the wage-earner who builds a house by borrowing against his capacity to earn.

But for the very reason that credit in general, or the "partial payment plan" in particular, may be so helpful if not abused, it is of prime importance that it be used conservatively. The credit men render a good service when they advise both business and the public to act conservatively in the extension and acceptance of credit.

The merchants who extend credit could do much to diminish extravagance and dishonesty. They should consider the law of diminishing returns. If by artifices of salesmanship they induce too many to buy what they do not need or can not pay for, the consequent losses may force prices to a point that will so reduce the sales of merchandise to prudent and solvent buyers that the profit on the high prices becomes much less than would accrue from conservative crediting and lower prices.

President Lynch and Secretary Hayes of the International Typographical Union declare: "Thrift and the pay envelopes are closely related; very often a demand for wage increase may be traced to unwise expenditures, mostly on credit, which have unduly and unreasonably increased the cost of living." Of course, they do not advocate lower wages, but "the better use of wages that are being received by the printers."

They place a major part of the blame for bad conditions on present abuses of salesmanship. In these days almost anyone can "buy" almost anything for a petty cash payment. "That the worker," they say, "is entitled to some of life's luxuries as well as its necessities is a fundamental tenet of trade unionism, but that he should be haggled into mortgaging his future earnings, deprived of independence, and worried into an early grave is decidedly unsound from any viewpoint."

They think that the workman has but little chance of resisting the army of smart professionals who figure out scientific ways to break down his "sales resistance." They assert that salesmen "trained in selling psychology and in 'credit desire', abetted by wives jealous of their neighbors' displays, are constantly waiting to take the bread-winner in a weak moment and unload something on him."

This union's investigators found one man who had obligated himself to meet monthly payments which amounted to more than his monthly pay.

Their report is summed up as follows: "Good wages and healthful working conditions can not add greatly to the wage-earner's happiness if he persists in getting into debt. The root of the evil is the tremendous growth of credit business, which in the last decade has raised a need for defense of the workers against the high-pressure type of salesman. Bankers and business men realize the gravity of this condition, but find it difficult to check the trend away from thrift."

"I do not know any forthright way of defending men when what they need protection against is their own weakness. The only help that can be given directly to the immediate individual victims of abused crediting is through the little-by-little and slow way of enlightenment—moral and economic. To do that, there should, of course, be constant endeavor.

To lay the blame on the salesmen gets you nowhere, unless it may serve to shame some of the victims out of allowing themselves to be persuaded against their will. Salesmen sell on the terms laid down for them by the concerns they represent.

Those who understand both the effects and the causes of the evil can mitigate it: (1) By inculcating and diffusing as widely as possible sound moral principles, the absolutely essential foundation for which is individual responsibility. (2) By disseminating as widely as possible primary knowledge of sound economics, and of the proper inducements to thrift. (3) By convincing managers of marketing houses—through steadfast efforts in trade associations and expert discussions in trade journals—that their own permanent interests forbid such extension of credit as involves losses which must be covered by excessive prices.

Every intelligent wholesaler understands that it would hurt his own business to sell a retailer more goods than he in turn could sell. This is plain to all, because the "come-back" is quick and direct. The same principle is really in force between the retailer and his customers; but because the effects are diffused in time and place of incidence, they are commonly unrecognized or not identified.

A sale must be profitable to both parties, or, in the long run, it will be injurious to both. This, over any large field, is an economic fact. If marketing distributors in every legitimate business would take the long view they would see how the consequences come back upon themselves when they induce ultimate consumers into extravagances which they can not afford.

One consequence I have already mentioned: Prices go too high with diminishing returns. This is evident because it is direct. Other consequences are diffused through the entire commonwealth, falling on the innocent bystander as well as upon the guilty parties; but the latter bear their full share.

The union leaders quoted tell of men being "worried into early graves" by foolish debts incurred under the partial payment plan. Did the employers of those men lose nothing during the period of the worrying? How much would embezzlement and other misdemeanors and crimes be diminished, if excessive and indiscriminate credit had not been extended? The direct loss of such deprivations falls here and there, on the just and the unjust; but all pay heavy taxes for police and courts and prisons, and for the asylums for deserted children and penniless old age.—Texaco Star.

Are you tired all the time; worn-out night and day? Does your back ache as if it would break? Do you suffer dizziness, headaches, rheumatic twinges or distressing urinary disorders? You have good cause, then, to be alarmed about your kidneys. Do as many of your townfolk recommend. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. This Big Spring case is convincing: Mrs. J. B. Sloan says: "I had sharp pains in my back over my kidneys, which were so bad sometimes I could hardly catch my breath. Nights I hurt me so I rolled from side to side. I had spells of nervousness. My kidneys acted irregularly, and I felt all worn-out. I started using Doan's Pills and they gave me immediate relief."

A GOOD TIME TO SELL LANDS
Good agricultural land is too valuable to hold for grazing purposes; and increasing taxation is going to cause many owners of large ranches to dispose of their holdings while there is a demand for agricultural land in this section. Just now West Texas is in the limelight, especially the Plains country, and big ranches are being rapidly subdivided. These owners have the foresight to realize that now is the accepted time to dispose of their holdings.

Some other section of the U. S. may be the promised land in the next year or so, and the demand for West Texas land may not be so keen. Then, too, should the price of cotton drop to the ten cent mark in the next few years there will not be such a scramble to purchase land in Texas, or elsewhere.

Many ranchmen are selling their land on the crop payment plan—thereby taking it easy while the other fellow is working for them. They are satisfied if the new owner is able to keep the interest payments coming regularly—as the land is always sufficient security for the purchase price.

There is always a right time to get in on the ground floor and it seems that now would be a good time to cut up some of the larger ranches in this section.

"THE IRON HORSE" TRUE TO HISTORY OF EARLY WEST

Numerous histories of the building of the new west, telling of the first continental railroad, record colorful incidents of that achievement which have been faithfully re-enacted for the screen in the William Fox special "The Iron Horse." As an instance, there is a detailed record in "New Colorado," by Hayes, of an attempt by Indians to lasso a train. The incident is shown in the picture as clearly as it occurred.

"The graders and track layers often had to fight their way and there is a tradition current of an attempt to stop an express train," wrote Hayes. "It is understood that a lariat was stretched across the track, breast high and held by some thirty braves on each side. 'But,' says the narrator, 'when the engineer first saw it, he didn't know what on earth was the matter. For a minute more he kept on laughing and he kept on laughing until he opened his eyes and he struck that lariat about forty miles an hour, and he just piled them on top of one another'—poisonous, you bet!"

John Ford, the director, follows actual history in the picture which has been heartily approved by both press and public.

"The Iron Horse" comes to the R. and R. Lyric theater Monday and Tuesday, October 28th and 27.

There's room for many more folks in West Texas even though the population of the United States does increase by 40,000,000 in the next 25 years, as prophesied by Herbert Hoover. We've got to wake up and go after the homebuilders if we expect to attract them to our particular section for the United States is a mighty big country and there are a number of sections which have a wide awake citizenship. It's funny how folks are just now discovering what a wonderful place is Florida. Most any other good section of the U. S. A. can win more homebuilders if they have the goods and live-lyness to get the dope before the people.

Public Relations

THE West Texas Electric Company is a public servant operating a public utility, designed to meet a fundamental public need. It is fully aware of the limitations -- and the obligation -- involved in such a relationship. The West Texas Electric Company has one thing to sell -- SERVICE. In payment, it must receive from the people not only their money, but also their good will. The good will of the people of this state and of this city is essential to the West Texas Electric Company.

It is our business to DESERVE it and give value received -- just as it is our business to give service to patrons in return for their money.

Good will is based on understanding, and we believe it is vitally important to the future of your community that its citizens shall know and understand the policies -- and the problems of their public utility organizations.

It is important that, in their treatment of these organizations, the people shall be guided by THEIR BEST JUDGMENT of what will ACTUALLY PROMOTE THE WELFARE of this community.

It is important for them to know that, if the community is to enjoy a future commensurate with its opportunities, money must be spent for development in such amounts as ONLY THE INVESTING PUBLIC OF THE COUNTRY CAN SUPPLY.

In its dealings with the public, the West Texas Electric Company realizes that its service must achieve the highest standards of economy, efficiency, honesty and courtesy.

To that end the Company and its representatives will continue faithfully to address themselves.

In return, it asks that the public, in assessing its qualifications for rendering this service, approach the task in a spirit of calm open-mindedness, remembering that, in the last analysis, we share a common aspiration -- the ultimate growth and prosperity of this community.

Since an abstract is a brief of all instruments at the Clerk's Office affecting the title, it must show all the defects in the title, and you may have a perfect abstract and a mighty poor title. Lest you forget, the Dean law, a state statute plainly states that the making of any kind of intoxicating liquor or its possession in any quantity is a felony punishable by from one to five years in the penitentiary. This is a fact that many of the blissful manufacturers of home brew seem to have overlooked. It might be unpleasant for some folks to have a search warrant issued against their premises—and that is particularly true when a prison sentence of from one to five years might be the consequence of getting caught with the goods. We may not like the law, but we had better observe same.

FARMERS NEED MORE LOCAL FACTORIES

Imagine community whose products, above those required for consumption on the farm, are shipped in their raw state half way across the continent to market. A community, too, which has to buy from industrial centers a thousand miles away all the manufactured goods it uses. Think of such a community with everybody in it farming except the doctors and lawyers and preachers and merchants and garage, mechanics and filling station managers necessary to serve the farm families living there. Ask yourself what employment is likely to be available in such a community for laborers when farming operations slow down and where the boys and girls reared on the farm, above those required to take the place of farmers and farm wives worn out or retired, would find employment. When you have drawn that mental picture you have visualized the middle West as a farming region without manufacturers and with no other industry than agriculture.

Of course, this middle country is not without factories; in fact, it is already more than half industrial and less than half agricultural when measured in the value of annual output. In Missouri, for example, the income from factories is at least a half more than from farms. Kansas is a state we still think of as distinctly agricultural, but it has a larger output from industries than from farms. The same is true of Nebraska. Only two states, South Dakota and North Dakota, remain distinctly agricultural.

But the middle West is far from being developed industrially to the point where it produces its own manufactured articles, much less employing its labor and capital for making finished products for other states less well developed. Very far are we from having enough people within our midst to consume the foods we produce on our farms. We still have to rely on New England, New York and Europe as the principal outlets for our products and as sources of supply for the manufactured things we consume. This makes a long, double haul. It takes the profit out of production and adds much to our costs of living and operating farms.

Agriculturally speaking, the middle West is developed, at least until we have a market nearer home to give us a better price for the things we produce. Our farmers will improve their systems only as markets are developed near them. It will be a long, dreary wait for improvement of conditions in the western corn belt and in the winter and spring wheat belts if we continue to ship our products a thousand miles or more to market.

Every time a manufacturing enterprise is established in a city like Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City or the humblest rural village, it helps in proportion to the number of workers it employs, the wages it pays and the kind of products it turns out. It helps the farmer because the workers in the factory are his customers and not his competitors, and they make products the farmer consumes. Sold near home, farm products ought to and usually do bring the farmer a better price than when marketed a long distance away. Locally made goods ought to be and in the long run they are cheaper than those that must be shipped long distances and pass through many hands before reaching the farmer.

In addition to these benefits to farmers growing out of factories is the fact that most factories adapted to our part of the country use raw products of the farm, thus making a local market for all such materials produced in the community. There is little hope for progress in any country so long as it continues to sell raw products.

Industries do not establish or locate themselves. A community does not become a manufacturing center without effort on the part of those who live in that community. There are so many communities about equal in advantages as locations for industry that the community which has its heart set upon getting and supporting factories will develop industrially and the one which has no interest in such matters, whose people fail to exert themselves in this direction, dry up.

A short time ago Mt. Vernon, Mo., a rural village in the Ozarks, came to realize that its very life depended on getting some sort of outside enterprise that would give employment to its people. Happily the leaders in that community realized they would derive a double benefit by securing an industry that would help the farmers in that community equally with the townspeople. The result was that the farmers and townsmen joined in a successful effort to secure a milk condensary for Mt. Vernon. Already Lawrence county has become one of the leading dairy counties of Missouri, and although the condensary has been in operation but two years the farmers of that community now are receiving a million dollars annually for their milk. Mt. Vernon has been completely transformed and the condition of the farmers has been greatly improved.

So striking has been the benefit of this manufacturing enterprise at Mt. Vernon that almost every other town in the Ozarks is desirous of securing a condensary. And the farmers of other communities are desirous of sharing the prosperity of the dairy farmers of Lawrence county. No greater good fortune could befall the farmers of this middle country than to have erected alongside their farms manufacturing enterprises which would give them a good local market and enable them to pursue intensive farming.—H. J. Waters in Kansas City Star.

MONEY IN MOTION

The circulation of money, the circulation of the blood, move through the channels of business as the red corpuscles move through the arteries of the body.

The total sum of money in the country, says President Charles LaSalle University, is $2,000,000,000 of which $4,000,000,000 is in reserve, leaving $5,000,000,000 to circulate. Those five billion dollars wash through American cash registers 14 times a year to keep the nation economically and well.

Every active dollar has its work of 40. That keeps the money stream moving. The economic health of society grows sluggish, we have unemployment. When it speeds up, we have prosperity. "Money moves faster than it does anywhere else," says Dr. Chapline, which is the main reason, if not the reason, why America is a prosperous country.

Every citizen can apply facts to advantage in his local policy. "Whoever gets out of circulation is out of prosperity," says stream of money, it passes it along, in timely and prompt payment of the makes the particular handles work harder, does keep the life-stream moving every dollar earn its living, increases the profits for everybody else.—The Cash can.
