SOVIET SEEKING TRADE WITH UNITED STATES

MOSCOW.—A special American section has been organized here by the All-Union Western Chamber of Commerce, for the specific purpose of encouraging and facilitating the growth of trade between the Soviet Union and the United States.

This will be the only special division functioning in the trade organization—an indication of the anxiety of the Soviet leaders to bring about closer commercial contacts with the United States. All other countries falling under the jurisdiction of the Western Chamber of Commerce are taken care of by the regular officials of the Chamber, but American matters will hereafter be referred to the special section.

Charles Smith, who represents the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce here, was active in the organization of the American section. He told the United Press that every effort will be made to co-ordinate the work of the American and the Russian groups, through an exchange of information and mutual assistance to visiting businessmen.

MYSTERY BLAST ENTAILS LOSS OF $1,000,000

Texas Company Investigating Disaster At Port Arthur Which Imperiled Many Workmen.

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 13.—The Texas Company officials today were investigating the probable cause of the mystery blast which shook the new Gold Treating plant of the local refinery, resulting in a blaze which caused damage estimated at $1,000,000.

The explosion occurred last night just before the midnight shift went on duty. Flames spread quickly through the entire plant, which was rebuilt recently following a fire which destroyed it in February.

More than a score of workmen barely escaped injuries. One man suffered slight burns on one foot. The workmen were again imperiled when a frantic crowd of relatives and friends of the employees crashed against the gates to the refinery at the foot of Texas Avenue.

More than 1,000 autos were parked in the driveway and officers sought to keep back the throng which fought hysterically to ascertain the fate of those inside the gate.

PRINCIPLE IS PLACED ABOVE PARTY LOYALTY

Oklahoman of Oklahoma City Turns to Support of Herbert Hoover, Making Editorial Announcement.

OKLAHOMA, Aug. 13.—Declaring "principle and not party is the important factor in the presidential campaign of 1928," the Daily Oklahoman, Democratic newspaper, came today to the support of Herbert Hoover.

Announcement of its alignment with Hoover was made by E. K. Gaylord, editor and publisher, in a lengthy editorial in this morning's issue.

Joining of the Oklahoman with the Hoover forces leaves forces of Governor Al Smith without metropolitan newspaper support in Oklahoma. The Tulsa Tribune, a Democratic newspaper, earlier had announced its opposition to Smith and its support of Hoover.

Surgeons May Try Operation To Part Siamese Twins

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Additional X-ray photographs probably will be made today by surgeons studying the possibility of an operation to sever Mary and Margaret Gibbs, old Siamese twins of Holyoke, Mass.

Several X-rays already have been taken and doctors said they had increased the belief that such an operation—never before successful—could be performed.

The twins are out at the Park West hospital and are extremely happy at the prospect of the operation which, if successful, would release them to a normal mode of life.

Shopping Center of Paris Shifting

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris this year are justifiably astonished by the transition that has taken place in the so-called "de luxe" business sections of the capital.

Time was when the Rue de la Paix, the Rue Royale and the Grands Boulevards were the meeting place for the devotees of Fashion. But these thoroughfares, like the ancient Palais Royal's arcades, seem to have lived their days and there is a general shifting of "luxury" firms in a westward direction.

Jewelry firms still remain in the Rue de la Paix quarter, but a score of dress-making establishments, most of them created after the war, have left the Opera district and are now to be found in side-streets near the Champs Elysees, or the new prolongation of the Boulevard Haussmann.

If asked for a reason for the change the increasing cost of rent is usually given. As a matter of fact, this is the least of worries for the luxury trade. They have merely responded to a new movement for concentration of the shops in definite districts.

The Champs Elysees, once the home of the aristocracy, seems destined to have nothing but high-priced hotels and automobile show-rooms, with bicycles, motorcycles and aviation appliances in the prolongation—Avenue de la Grande Armee—behind the Arc de Triomphe.

The Grand Boulevards are for novelties, haberdashers, cafe terraces and cinema theatres. The Boulevard Haussmann has its magnificent modern hotels and "specialty" stores for silverware, footwear, etc., and the only portion of the city which remains about as it was two decades ago is the Rue de Rivoli, opposite the Tuileries Gardens which promises to remain forever the centre of Parisian souvenirs and picture postcards.

Inter-American Commission Takes Up Complex Nationality Laws For Wines

By HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Star Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—A woman who marries a foreigner may find she is literally "a man without a country"—a citizen of no nation. On the other hand she may find she is a citizen of two nations.

This situation, resulting from contradictory and differing laws of various nations, will be the first subject investigated by the Inter-American Commission of Women, recently appointed by the Pan-American Union to report to the 1933 Pan-American Conference in Montevideo, its suggestions for eliminating obsolete and unjust laws affecting the so-called weaker sex.

Nearly all of the laws discriminating against women and their children, Doris Stevens, commission chairman and the only person under 40 to attain the director of an international board of jurisprudence, said today.

"In the United States a woman retains her nationality upon marriage with a foreigner only if he is himself eligible to United States citizenship," she said. "In other words, a woman may lose her nationality upon marriage; a man never does."

"The work of this commission will help to draft a uniform proposal for the civilized world, we hope," Miss Stevens said. "Not only women, but all governments, are frankly in a quandary under the present system."

League to Study Question
"The complicated problem has led the League of Nations to place the question of nationality on the Agenda of the The Hague conference on international law next year."

"Again, in the United States a woman who marries a foreigner and lives two years in her husband's country is presumed to have lost her nationality, and to maintain it must overcome this presumption. A man under the same circumstances is never presumed to have lost his nationality. If a woman from the United States marries a foreigner and lives with him five years anywhere outside her own country, according to the United States law she is presumed to have lost her nationality."

Many Laws Conflict
"In some countries, including the United States, when a child is born abroad, the country will give nationality to the child only if the father has that nationality. The country gives the mother's nationality to the child in such cases only

TWO ELEVATED TRAINS MEET IN COLLISION

Ten Persons Hurt, None Seriously, In Crash At New York. Due To Train Stalling On Tracks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Ten persons were injured today in a rear-end collision of two elevated trains which were bringing 800 people into Manhattan from Brooklyn and Long Island suburbs.

Fire which broke out in one of the cars was quickly extinguished by firemen from a station almost directly under the spot where the crash occurred.

The accident happened when a three-car train crashed into the rear of a train of ten cars which had been stalled, apparently by a blown fuse. Passengers were thrown to the floor and trampled in the panic that followed the collision. None of the injured was in a serious condition.

MILLER WANTS LOVE'S NAME ON THE BALLOT

Does Not Want His Opponent In Lieutenant Governor Race To Assume Martyr Role.

AUSTIN, Aug. 13.—Evaluating the active aid of all Democratic leaders of the State, Loyal Democrats of Texas launched probably the most vigorous campaign ever carried on in the State on behalf of the national ticket.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 13.—The Democratic state executive committee is expected to leave the name of Thomas B. Love, candidate in the August 25 primary for Lieutenant Governor on the ballot, as the result of a plea made to the committee here today by Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller.

Love is opposed by Miller in the runoff primary. It had been reported that the committee would be asked at its meeting today to omit Love's name from the ballot because of his affiliation with the anti-Smith faction of Democrats.

"I do not want Love to assume the role of a martyr," Miller told the committee. "I urge that his name be left on the ballot."

"I feel certain the voters will take care of him in the runoff primary."

THE ROCKER
The passing of the rocking-chair is thus mourned by the New York Herald-Tribune:
"What is happening to the vogue of the old-fashioned rocking-chair? Is the rocking chair destined for the dusty attic corner, to lie among stereoscopes, jardinières, black marble clocks, motor goggles, corn poppers and mah jong sets? Are there soon to be no rockers in existence, save on summer hotel verandas, in farmhouse parlors, and perhaps in the corner of the sewing room by the window? Smart furniture stores do not herald the latest thing in rockers. Furniture designers of the modern school have ignored them completely. It is safe to say that few June brides received them this year. The rocker would seem to be on its last legs.
"To most adults it signifies the passing of an old friend. Who does not recall affectionately the shamelessly broad, lumpy old leather rocking-chair, with room for a grown-up in the middle and a child on each arm? What sensation does present-day furniture afford comparable to the old chair's soothing backward and forward motion? What sounds so friendly as its regular, companionable squeak? Is any forbidden pleasure of today more alluring than rocking rapidly around the room to make electric sparks come out of the carpet, than coming up suddenly behind one's oldest sister and tipping her rocker back as far as it would go?
"A thousand times, no! It is one more example of the fact that children nowadays do not get half a chance to have any fun."

NOT ALL PRODUCERS
The cost of drilling "wildcats," most of which fail to find oil, is set forth in the following article from an industrial publication:
"The general public, which is always thrilled by the advent of a 5,000-barrel oil well, probably has no conception of the amount of money the oil companies put back into the business in their search for new fields. In the 13 years dating forward from 1914, California operators spent close to $80,000,000 in exploratory work alone within the state.
"During that period, according to yearly reports of California State Mining Bureau, 1461 wildcat wells were drilled, at an average cost of about $55,000. Engineers estimate operators drilled more than 3,000,000 feet of hole out of which they did not get a single barrel of commercial production. The cost averaged about $20 a foot.
"The ratio of field discoveries is exceedingly small compared with number of dry holes drilled. Of 1070 wildcat wells drilled in California between 1914 and 1924, only 15 new oil fields were discovered; and the drilling of 391 wells in 1925 and 1926 resulted in finding only two new fields.
"When the foregoing facts are considered, the low prices which are charged for petroleum products, are truly marvelous. Such prices are the result of efficient production that unrelentingly fights against waste."

Long Island Town Prides Itself On Its Many Trees

NEW YORK—Flushing, on Long Island, one of the oldest and quaintest of the suburbs of New York City, is calling the hikers in increasing numbers this summer, for it is abloom and, almost everywhere, green with trees.

From the days when the Huguenot immigrants planted the young fruit trees which they had brought with them from France to the middle of the nineteenth century, when several famous nurserymen planted seedlings from various parts of the world throughout Flushing, there has been a direct emphasis on tree culture in this town.

Now, according to a recent survey, there are nearly 2,000 individual varieties of trees in Flushing, representing 140 genera. Also Flushing has been said to be "more remarkable for its tree treasures than almost any other town in the United States."

History has put its mark on some of the trees of Flushing. There was the Nursery established by William and Benjamin Prince in 1732 which was considered so valuable that during the Revolutionary War, Lord Howe placed special guards over it to preserve the growth during the British occupation.

One of Flushing's oldest trees is a white oak which is of the same variety as the celebrated "Fox Oak" which once stood on another street in Flushing and under which, it is said, George Fox, companion of William Penn, preached before the Quakers.

In addition to the Prince brothers, the early nurserymen who were responsible for the remarkable growth and varieties of trees in the town were Sam Parsons and his two sons and the Bloodgood Nursery.

The "Cedar of Lebanon" which recently attracted wide attention because of the success of efforts to save it from the advances of building operations, is said to be 125 years old and the largest of the few trees of its kind in the United States. Two tulip trees, each 75 feet tall and three feet in diameter at the base, are others which are in the "exhibit" class.

"Where is Mr. Lee?" Oscar Callaway of Comanche, candidate for congress from the 17th district, cried out to an almost packed house at the district courtroom Wednesday afternoon in his fifth speech since opening his second campaign for the August primaries.

"Mr. Lee, why are you not here to defend yourself? Didn't I tell you I was going to discuss your record as a successful railroad president? Why don't you come out in the open and debate these things with me? Why don't you stand here and let us thrash these things out together?"

Mr. Callaway talked at Albany Wednesday night along the same lines as he discussed here. He is making a vigorous campaign throughout this district, and banks his success on his past experience in congress, his ability as a successful farmer, and the record of his opponent.

Homer Shanks of Clyde, fourth man in the congressional race in the July primary, preceded Callaway on the floor and lauded Mr. Callaway as the logical man for the office on his record "as an experienced man with government affairs, a successful lawyer and farmer."

(From Abilene News)

ALBANY, Aug. 8.—Oscar Callaway of Comanche, candidate against Col. R. Q. Lee for congress from the 17th district, continued his scathing attack upon the Cisco man in an address at the Shackelford county courthouse here tonight before a fair-sized and responsive audience. W. Homer Shanks of Clyde, a defeat-hungry congressional candidate in the first primary, again introduced Callaway. He praised the honesty of Callaway, whom he termed the "farming" candidate and ridiculed his Cisco Chamber of Commerce for its alleged actions in Lee's campaign as well as Lee's claims to being a farmer.

CISCO, Aug. 11.—R. Q. Lee, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress, who led the field in the first primary, will open his speaking campaign in the run-off election on the federal lawn in Abilene, Monday at 8:30 p. m. Mr. Lee will make a whirlwind speaking campaign through the time intervening before the election on August 25, and has prepared an itinerary equally as strenuous as that which he followed in the diversification campaign which he put over in 1925.

Mr. Lee, who has been the target of an attack launched by his opponent Oscar Callaway of Comanche, declares he will answer specifically and definitely all the charges made against him by the Comanche man and he will in turn devote a portion of his time to a discussion of the public record made by Mr. Callaway. He has been devoting the past week to the task of collecting data to use in his speaking campaign and will, in this campaign, talk in plain language and "call a spade a spade."

Mr. Lee in discussing his campaign today, stated that he had refused to engage in a mud slinging contest with any man in this race. That he felt the post of congressman from this great West Texas district was one of too great dignity to be stained by a series of joint debates in which charges and counter charges could not

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Cash prizes amounting to $23,000 will be distributed to winners of events in the National Rifle and Pistol Matches which will open at Camp Perry, Ohio, on August 25. This announcement was made today at the offices of the National Rifle Association in this city.

In addition to these prizes there will be trophies valued at $20,000, and $10,000 has been spent for medals. About one participant in every five will receive some reward according to N. R. A. officials.

In addition to the crack shots of the Army, Navy, Marines and National Guard, there will be more civilian contestants this year than ever before, including boys and girls from 12 to 18 years old.

The distribution of cash prizes has been arranged on the fairest possible plan. It is not necessary for civilians to compete for these prizes against the military experts. Each class of entrants competes for cash only against its own members. Civilians compete with civilians, and service men among themselves. This gives everyone a better chance to take home something of value from the big range on the shores of Lake Erie. It is impossible for a few fine shots to take everything.

TOM CONNALLY will again invade the west, speaking in behalf of his candidacy for the U. S. senate. This invasion will bring him to Breckenridge on the night of Wednesday, August 15, according to word received Friday from Robert F. Higgins of Dallas, Connally manager.

He will be introduced by Ben J. Dean, local commander of the Breckenridge Legion Post. Dean supported Owsley in the first primary.

90 YEAR OLD SAILOR GOES BACK TO WORK

Veteran Of Sea Tires Of Inactive Life In Hospital

Michael O'Grady, 89-year-old Irish sailor, who admits he has "fought the every day Irish battles in every civilized port town," has wearied of the retired life and has gone to work.

Brought to the City-County hospital June 21, from Eastland, he remained here until August 1.

Every day, when Dr. A. K. Weir, assistant county health officer, would walk into the room, the old "sail" would get up, shake hands, and inquire as to the time when he would be released.

"What do you want to leave for?" Dr. Weir would ask. "You are comfortable, you are fed well and you have a bed."

The forthcoming answer was always the same, "I want to go to work."

The first of this month he was released from the hospital. Friday afternoon, he drifted back into his uniform and with a smile extending "from ear to ear."

"Where to, Michael?" he was asked, and the answer was nearly the same.

"To work."

For Michael O'Grady, who is nearing the ninetieth milestone in a life that savors of the sea and foreign ports, had a job. He has on his way to Louisiana where he is going to work for a doctor.

NATIONAL LEAGUE HOME RUN KING WEARS 5 1/2 SHOE

By DIXON STEWART United Press Staff Correspondent.

Hack Wilson, pudgy little outfielder, is unquestionably the most colorful and popular player on the Chicago Cubs roster.

Boos and cheers usually have little effect on the National League's home run king, but his hot southern temper occasionally gets the better of his sunny disposition and results in the acquisition of a new flock of enemies.

Last month while Hack was in the midst of a batting slump, he was the target for frequent criticism by the fans and one day the razzing became so bitter that Wilson jumped into the stands and attacked one of his critics.

"I didn't mind being called a 'big bum' and a 'fat slob,'" Hack opined, "but it got my goat when he called me other things."

Since then Wilson has been made defendant in a $50,044 damage suit by the victim of his wrath and this provides added fuel for those who delight in riding the peppery outfielder.

Arguments between pro and anti-Wilson fans are not infrequent at Wrigley Field. Recently in a fifteen inning game with the Giants Hack struck out when a hit would have sent the winning run across the plate.

A woman fan jumped to her feet, seized a handful of hair belonging to the woman seated directly in front and shouted "Boo him now—will you?" Result—a hair pulling match.

Arguments over Wilson are not confined to the fair sex although Ladies' Day at Cubs' park usually brings Hack his most enthusiastic applause and his most vitriolic criticism.

That Wilson is a member of the Cubs is declared to be an accident, with Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants inclined to voice unstrained criticism of the New York "business office" every time the subject is mentioned.

Hack, who started his baseball career in the Virginia League was purchased by the Giants during the spring of 1924. He played the entire season and saw action in the world series against Washington.

McGraw retained an option on the player, and it was said, intended to exercise it. In some manner the New York business office neglected to exercise this option before it expired and the Chicago Cubs who had been watching for just such a chance, drafted Wilson.

Wilson is hitting home runs with greater frequency than ever was founded, forty years ago. He is perhaps the most universally known and loved man on the staff, according to Dr. Benedict, and his messages always are to the point and offer genuine words of wisdom gleaned from many years of fruitful experience.

Degrees will be conferred on approximately 300 candidates at the commencement exercises, which will be held at the Memorial Stadium on the night of August 27.

A recent report of the British and Foreign Bible Society stated that for every copy of the Revised Version 86 copies of the Authorized Version of the Bible are sold.

Wilson is a unique figure on the baseball diamond. Short and pudgy—he boasts feet and ankles which any bathing beauty contestant might envy with a torso which would drive the same contestants to a diet of tomato juice and lettuce.

Hack stands only 5 feet 6 inches in his stocking feet and carries more than 200 pounds. His feet are the smallest in baseball. He wears a 5 1-2 shoe.

Wilson was christened Lewis Robert. He was born in Martinsburg, W. Va., April 26, 1906 and still makes his home there during the winter months.

Wilson's nickname is not the result of "hacking" the horsehide but was acquired before he became a big leaguer, because of his school day ambition to become a professional wrestler.

New Enterprises Launched In Texas

AUSTIN.—New enterprises organized in Texas during July were above those in June and in July a year ago, according to Berward Nichols, assistant in charge of index numbers in the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"During the month 214 corporations received charters from the Secretary of State," he said. "This compared to 205 in June and 195 in July, 1927. However, most of the companies were small; in fact, a number were capitalized at only $1,000. Total capitalization of the 214 corporations amounted to but $9,083,000, against $102,997,000 in June and $58,314,000 in July last year.

Two building and loan associations were capitalized at $1,000,000 each, and a third at $4,000,000. Thirty-eight companies increased their capitalization by $10,557,000, and permits were

Twenty manufacturing concerns were chartered, against 15 in June and 10 in July. New real estate firms decreased from 36 in June to 19 in July, while the general list shows a sharp decrease. The gain in manufacturing companies is an encouraging feature."

HIGHWAY ROBBERY REPORTED

Ranger Man, While Repairing Flat, Is Held Up Near Here.

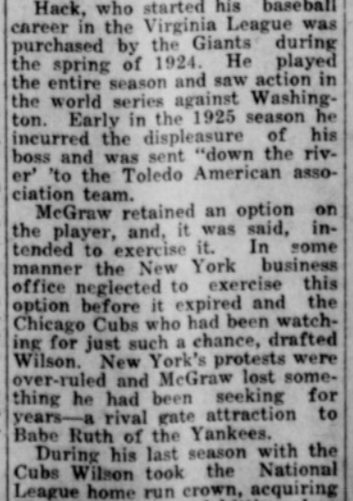

(From Ranger Times) The first hijacking reported to the police department in several months, occurred Friday night, when G. M. Hood, employee of the Waples-Platter Wholesale Grocery company, was hijacked on the Gorman road. He was repairing a flat tire just a few hundred yards off the Bankhead highway, near Fat's Filling Station.

He told officers that a man wearing a white hat and with a handkerchief over the lower portion of his face, stepped to the car and turned a flashlight on him and produced a gun.

He took Hood's billfold containing a small amount of money, his watch and the keys to the wholesale grocery concern.

The Missing Napkins. "Where did you get the handkerchiefs, John?" asked the realist's wife on his return from the big city. "Wal, I'll tell you, Mary. In every place I went to eat they gave me one."

Statistician Points Out How Texas Farmers May Save Millions Each Year By Better Hitching Methods

Special to The Telegram. COLLEGE STATION. — Texas farmers can add $33,000,000 to their annual incomes, whether crops are good or bad, prices high or low, Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, declared in an address before the general session of the nineteenth annual farmers short course in session here.

"This increase in farm earnings can be brought about quickly and easily without measurably increasing the capital investment on farms," Mr. Dinsmore continued. "How by adopting better hitching methods so that the work horses and mules used on Texas farms may do more work in less time and with less expenditure of man hours."

Announcing that he recently completed a trip through Texas, Mr. Dinsmore said one, two and three-mule teams are so common as to vitiate the rule which four, five, six or more mule teams are so seldom seen as to arouse comment.

"Where four or five mule teams are used they all too frequently are used abreast, even in plowing, and in plowing this means a waste of from fifteen to twenty-five per cent of the power, unless one or more of the animals walk on the plowed ground. In this even, side draft may be avoided but the expenditure of energy on the part of the animals walking on plowed ground will be so great as to tire them very quickly, thereby slowing down the entire team."

"By adopting more efficient methods, driving four-mule teams two-and-two on plows and five-mule teams, three in front and two behind on two-bottom gang plows, it is possible to increase the acreage plowed a day by one man. This increase will amount to a gain of 3-4 acre in the case of the four-mule team and a gain of 1-2 acre in the case of the five-mule team."

"Figures from the 1925 census of agriculture show there are approximately 187,000 Texas farms large enough to employ work horses or mules in units of four or more, in plowing, discing, harrowing, middle-busting and other soil preparation tasks. In all this work the wages of at least one man or four mules of the year may be saved by doubling up on teams so that one man drives as many horses or mules as two men have been driving."

MUSICIANS PAY EAR FOR FALSE NOTE IN AFRICA

Chief Also Often Cut Off Players' Hands If Tunes Were Displeasing

CHICAGO, Aug. — Americans have been heard to lament that when they settle down to a quiet evening at home in certain neighborhoods, the night is turned into pandemonium by the jazz orchestra around the corner. Ear-splitting rattles, walls and moans of drums, saxophones and trombones scatter the serenity of thousands of neighborhoods when the day's work is ended, the lovers of peace and quiet contend. Sufferers are told it is the new music, folk lore from Africa.

One of the other side are those who hum, snap their fingers in time with the music, and drift away into the dance.

Wilfrid D. Hambly, assistant curator of African ethnology at the Field Museum of Natural History, made revelations of interest to both groups in a bulletin telling of African musicians.

The scientist told of a new type of African drum, constructed with a wooden rod through the membrane and played by rubbing the rod with resinous hands. Uncerthly wails and groans come from the instrument, he said. Proponents of jazz believe it offers a valuable addition to their devices.

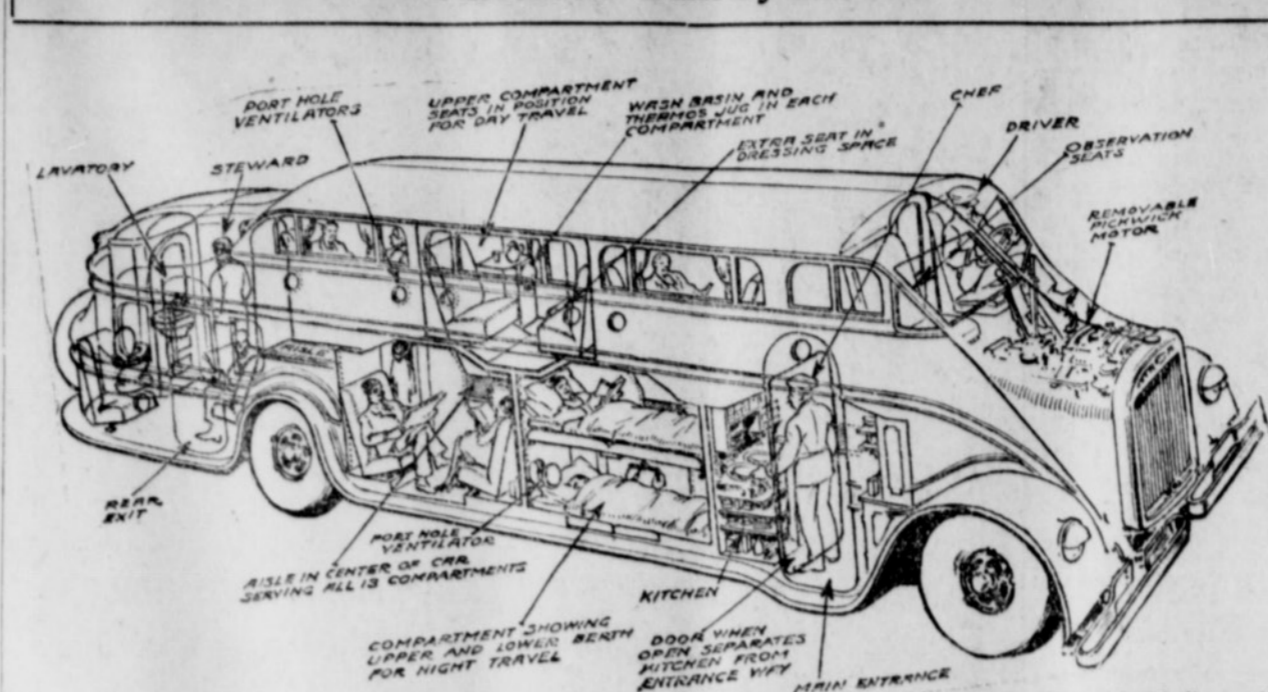

To those who harbor hatred toward the neighbor boy who is "learning the sax to become the life of the party," Hambly's account of cruel mutilations practiced on musicians in the dark continent for errors in harmony and mistakes on the drums, may offer hope. Ears are cut off and hands removed when tribal musicians give displeasure.

"The ethnologist pointed out that the drums in Africa, used for dancing and signalling by means of a code, are watched over by the tribal chief who alone may say when they are to be played."

"And they call them a semi-civilized people," reflects the opponent of American jazz, thinking a little bitterly perhaps of the neighborhood dance orchestra.

"Nitecoach" Built By Bus Line

The Pickwick lines, with which the West Texas Coaches make connections at El Paso for California, have a luxurious coach that has berths for night travel. The coach is 34 feet, six inches in length; eight feet wide and 10 feet high; weighing 14,000 pounds and costing $50,000. The motor is 110-horsepower. The coach is solid metal throughout, with steel frame and duralium body. Duralium is declared stronger than steel and as light as aluminum. There are 13 compartments, each accommodating two people. Cushions of the seats are used to form the berths at night. Each berth is six feet, four inches long. Each compartment has dressing space. In each compartment are five lights, thermos jug of ice water, wash basin with running water, two large drawers for storing personal effects and space to store two suit cases. Each compartment has three windows and two port-holes. The coach has a kitchen, with range, percolator, toaster, ice box, etc., and meals are served at any time on tables in the compartments.

who toiled in the oil business long before the elaborate equipment shown at the exposition was invented. The exposition will be held here Oct. 29 to 29.

The Grand Old Man of the industry will be elected from the list of names secured by a coupon ballot, and that man will be the official host on behalf of Tulsa and the exposition. The Grand Old Man of the World will be the head of the organization of old-timers and the international sponsor. He will be selected at the meeting of old-timers at the exposition. Each will hold office for a year.

The exposition gave the veterans signal honors last year and many more are expected this year. John D. Rockefeller, himself a veteran, sent them medals. Some of the veterans, who had seen the entire development of the industry, were still working.

GREAT REVIVAL OF RELIGION IS NEAR IN TURKEY

Recent Separation Of Church And State Is First Step

CONSTANTINOPLE.—A scientific revival of religion is planned in the new Turkey. The recent separation of church and state and the removal from the constitution of the article establishing Islam as the religion of the state was the first step.

It is understood in well informed quarters that Kemal Pasha did not approve of the premature publication of the Theological Commission's report on the religious reforms to be introduced in Turkey. The president apparently wished to pave the way more carefully for such wholesale revelations. But Turkey's religious cut is out of the bag now, and there is no doubt that the government will go ahead with the suggested reforms.

The Theological Commission was appointed by the Faculty of Theology of Stamboul University, a faculty formed three years ago for the scientific organization of religion within the state. The University authorities would begin reform with the ministers, who are now under a strict state control, by giving them adequate training enabling them to deal with the problems of the modern world and join in the uplift of the people.

Religious reform is an urgent need in Turkey. Religion fell to a low intellectual ebb during the last few decades. The ministers followed a traditionalism which lost adherents in an age of education and reform. The less educated became hopelessly confused, and the educated uninterested.

The monastic orders sunk from their original position as intellectual centers to a pitiable condition approaching debauchery. The orders were dissolved and the so-called saints' shrines and other sanctuaries of popular superstition closed. Hundreds of wandering adventurers who posed as priests and preyed on the superstitions of the ignorant were rounded up. Those authorized to continue their profession were given identification papers and a formal uniform. The green turban, indicative of a supposed special sanctity enjoyed by those who have made the pilgrimage to Mecca was done away with.

The Turks remain proud of Islam, but desire to see it brought to the highest intellectual level consistent with its essentials. They desire to be accepted as the world-wide reinterpreters of Moslemism and hope that other Moslem nations will follow their lead.

STRANGE WORLD GREET'S GIRL AS REGAINS SIGHT

Blind 20 Years, She Readjusts Her Conception Of Life

MILWAUQUEE, Wis., Aug. — Miss Marcella Calkins, 20-year-old Chetek, Wis., girl, who entered a Milwaukee hospital, blind since birth, will return home soon with her normal sight restored.

Six delicate operations were necessary to remove the capsules which blocked the passage of light into her eyes. Now she looks upon a world which has no meaning until she touches objects with her fingers.

Friends, animals, books, even such simple objects as safety-pins are unrecognizable to her until she can touch them, for although she can see perfectly she cannot understand the images which are thrown upon her retina until her touch explains them to her.

One of her greatest difficulties is with colors. Marcella declares that when blind she had very definite ideas of what red, green and blue and the rest of them looked like. But the reality left her gasping.

This new world of Marcella's is filled with such surprises.

"One of the greatest," she says, "is the looks of my friends. I had very strong mental pictures of how people looked, but about half the time I find that those pictures were just opposite from the reality. How did I make my mental images? I think mostly from the voice. The whole personality helped too. And the feel of people's hands."

Marcella is almost cured now, after two months in a hospital. She has traveled about the streets of the city, has seen a movie, she

THE FOOL'S SUIT TO BE FOUGHT IN SUPREME COURT

Channing Pollock Is Accused of Plagiarism Over Famous Play

WASHINGTON, Aug. — "The Fool," the widely discussed play based on the theme: "What would happen to a man who had the doctrines of Jesus Christ as his daily life?" has come before the U. S. supreme court in a plagiarism suit.

Abraham Waxman, of New York, who claims he wrote the same play, with the same characters, action, and idea, in 1918 when he was only 18, has asked the court for a review of his court decisions dismissing his suit against Channing Pollock, author of "The Fool," and Edgar Arch Selwyn.

Waxman's play, "Soldiers of Common Good," was copyrighted in 1911, but never produced. Pollock wrote "The Fool" in 1918, shortly before it was produced. Hence he produced much evidence to show that he first conceived the idea in 1906, when was a dramatic critic here.

Waxman's petition, which was placed before the court, meets in October, was followed by Pollock's reply, asserting that he had no access to Waxman's work and that he independently conceived the story of a young man who loses his job, the woman he loves and other material advantages by trying to follow exactly the words of Christ. Waxman's play deals with a laborer for political campaign with a what similar plot.

AMERICA FACES HARD GOLF FIGHT FOR WALKER CUP

England Sending Great Team For Matches To Be Held At Chicago

LONDON, Aug. — British golfers believe they have a surprise in store for America in the Walker Cup team which will meet the United States team at Chicago August 30 and 31. There is even some hope that the dark horse of the British team may defeat Bobby Jones.

Thomas Phillip Perkins, 23, of Birmingham, present British amateur champion, probably will be Bobby's opponent at Chicago. He is considered the best bet on the British team. Perkins is the Midlands gold medalist, and has been the leading amateur in the British open for the last two years.

T. H. Wethered, who lost to Perkins by 6 to 4 in the final at Prestwick, was selected as a member of the Walker Cup team, but was unable to leave his business to make the trip. T. A. Stout, English champion, and Sir Ernest Holderness were also selected but unable to go to America.

Of the ten men selected, only three played in the last match at St. Andrews two years ago. They are Cyril Tolley, Major Charles Hazlet, and Eustace Storey. T. A. Torrance has played in one Walker Cup match. W. L. Hope has been a member of two Walker Cup teams. The five men who will compete for the first time this year are:

T. P. Perkins, Dr. William Tweedell, John Beck, Ronald Hardman, and Dr. A. R. MacCallum. Perkins demonstrated his worth at Prestwick.

The average age of the players is 30, against an average of 28 for the American team. Pairings on the British side in the foursomes are expected to be as follows: Tolley and Storey; Perkins and Tweedell; Hezlet and Torrance, and Beck and Hope. This would leave Hardman and MacCallum as reserves.

BIZARRE GIFT
GARY, Ind.—An oriental rug three by seven feet which is made as a replica of a United States dollar bill, issue of 1899, is a gift to O. L. Wildermuth, local attorney, by George Rocoof, a Bulgarian client living in Turkey.

The rug is faithful in every detail, bearing a woven likeness of Lincoln and Grant and the signature of Frank White, then United States treasurer. The attorney has never seen his client, their dealings having been carried by mail.
