BOYS' AND GIRLS' ENCAMPMENT MEETS HERE

Annual Affair To Be Largely Attended, Report

Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28 are the dates. Entertainment to feature splendid program.

The encampment of the boys and girls 4-H clubs of the county will take place on Friday and Saturday through that until 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

Approximately 150 boys and girls from all over the county are expected to be present and many will take part in the contests that will be staged on Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

The municipal park will be the site of most of the club activities during the two day encampment and the meals for those who will be served on the grounds, assisted by the Boy Scout boys of Eastland.

On Friday afternoon the program will start with the basketball tournament in which several teams will participate. This will be followed by grain judging, and stock and poultry judging.

The girls will have an appropriate contest and judging of pressed club sewing and food preparation and preservation.

The boys judging will be under the direction of George W. Simpson, agricultural agent of the Texas and Pacific Railway.

The girls work will be judged by Miss Viola McKenzie, home demonstration agent of Stephens county, and Miss Gertrude Brent, home demonstration agent of the county.

Southern Cross Lands At Harbor Grace At 6 a. m.

By JOHN T. MEANEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, June 25—Captain Charles E. Kingsford-Smith and his three companions landed their airplane Southern Cross on the Harbor Grace flying field at 6 a. m. E. S. T. today.

They were the second ever to reach Newfoundland on a westward flight across the ocean. The first was the Bremen which landed on Greely Island off the coast of Labrador in 1928.

The Southern Cross, which in 1928 flew across the Pacific from San Francisco to Australia and then last year flew to London from Australia, left Port Marnock, eight miles from Dublin, Ireland, at 10:25 p. m. (EST) Monday. It had been in the air 31 hours 35 minutes.

The flight, which went on auspiciously until about 9 p. m. Tuesday, was beset with difficulties during the final hours, but all were surmounted and the plane was brought safely to earth.

The fuel supply, planned to last 28 hours, was depleted by headwinds until about 2 a. m. today and Captain Kingsford-Smith was forced to give up hope of reaching the Maine Coast where planes were waiting to refuel the Southern Cross in flight.

Between the hours of 9 p. m. Tuesday and perhaps as late as 3 a. m. today, the navigators of the plane could not obtain an accurate bearing and they flew for hours without knowing their exact position.

LET'S GO TO OKRA TONIGHT

The 4-H Club of Okra is sponsoring an entertainment here tonight to raise funds with which to defray the expenses of representatives of that organization to the agricultural short course at A. & M. College in July. To this entertainment the people of Eastland county have been invited.

The merchants and other business men of Eastland, as they did at Alameda a short time ago, have taken a special interest in the affair and will have a big part in the program.

This is as it should be. Eastland wants the trade and good will of every rural community in this and adjoining counties—at least it wants their good will and a fair portion of their trade—and there is no better way to gain these than by personal contact such as can result from a patronage of entertainments such as the one tonight.

Citizens of Eastland, who are not engaged in business owe it to themselves, their home town merchants and the people of Okra to attend the entertainment at Okra tonight. You doubtless will spend an hour or two driving around, why not drive out to Okra and take part in the entertainment.

We have trailed long enough, let's lead from here on.

Wrecked Plane Believed Maury Graham's, Found

LOS ANGELES, June 25—An unopened parachute, found by the side of a partially wrecked plane in the Wasatch mountain range of Utah, today was received as mute evidence that Maury Graham, missing Western Air Express pilot, died in a snowstorm during his mail run last January.

The parachute was brought to Cedar City, Utah, by Ward Mortenson and Elbron O'Roton, sheep herders who discovered the wreck. It was believed that Graham was unhurt or only slightly injured when he was forced to land in that mountainous region. It was feared, however, that he met death in the eight or ten foot snow drifts as he attempted to fight his way to civilization.

Western Air Express company organized for a complete search of the mountains for Graham's body. Graham left Los Angeles the night of January 9 and late the next day refueled at Las Vegas, Nev., before turning the nose of his plane into a raging snowstorm and heading for Salt Lake City.

When the flier failed to arrive at his destination one of the greatest searches ever conducted for a missing aviator was started.

About a month ago a sensation was created when a mechanic working in Elk City, Okla., claimed to be Graham. His claims were declared a hoax.

Graham, during the world war, made a distinguished record. He was the American aviator who discovered the famous lost battalion and flew over the distressed unit to drop supplies. After the war he married a French girl who lives in Hollywood with a small son and daughter.

Youth Is Killed
SAN ANGELO, Tex., June 25—While celebrating his 19th birthday, Briano Glasscock was killed Tuesday afternoon when the car in which he was riding overturned on loose dirt 18 miles south of Big Lake.

WASHINGTON, June 25—The Justice Department's investigation of charges that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals have violated the corrupt practices act has been virtually abandoned, it was learned today.

The Department has been considering for several months the charges made by Rep. Tinkham, Repn. Mass., who asserted Bishop Cannon and the Methodist Board failed to report campaign contributions as required by law.

Woodrow Davis Tells Of Murder Of Lucian Shook

Sam Davis, Father of Accused Boy, Takes Stand in Son's Defense.

The state rested in the Thomas Davis murder case early this afternoon and the defense attorneys began calling witnesses.

Sam Davis, father of the accused, took the stand in his son's defense and testified that he believed his son did not know right from wrong. Other defense witnesses were called to the stand to testify that Thomas Davis had been subject to fits and convulsions during his childhood and that they thought he was of subnormal mentality.

Woodrow Wilson Davis, 12 brother of Thomas Davis, took the stand today in the Davis murder trial and testified to the actions of the three boys who were implicated in the murders of Lucian and Leon Shook on the night of September 8, 1928.

Under examination Woodrow said that on Wednesday night preceding the murder the three boys, Woodrow, Thomas and Clyde Thompson, went to the Shook cabin in the suggestion of Thompson. Lucian Shook was not at the house when the boys arrived and they sat on the front porch waiting for him. After twenty or thirty minutes Thompson entered the cabin and returned with a shotgun and banjo belonging to Lucian. The boys then went to the Davis home.

On Friday night they again went to the Shook house and found Lucian and Leon Shook who they asked to go hunting with them. When they got to a stock tank a short distance from the house Thompson drew the .45 caliber Smith & Wesson revolver he had taken from the Davis home and shot both Leon and Lucian. Lucian ran and Thompson pursued him as the two Davis boys remained behind the dam of the tank, according to the testimony. Thompson then went to the Shook house and returned to where Leon lay and hit him over the head twice.

Woodrow said that Thompson then went to the body of Lucian and took $13.35 and a watch from his pockets and gave them to Woodrow. Thompson then washed his shirt in the tank and the three went to the Shook cabin, where they got Lucian's car and Thompson said he was going to get the two bodies and burn them in the cabin, but he could not find the way to get through the line fence that was between the garage and the tank where the bodies lay.

Thompson then went into the house, Woodrow testified, took several suits of clothes, some shirts and other clothing, which he gave to Thomas Davis, who carried them from the cabin. On the way home they stopped at the tank again and got Thompson's shirt, which he put on. The clothes, gun, money and watch were hidden on the Exall lease, a short distance from the Davis home.

On cross examination Woodrow stated that Thompson gave as his only reason for wanting to kill the two Shook boys that he wanted to "use them kink." He also stated that Thompson said that if the two Davis boys said anything about what had happened he would kill them, saying that he now had two notches on his gun and before he was "kinked" he would have 21 notches on it, two of which would stand for the deaths of the Davis boys if they told.

Woodrow testified that at no time during the night had the shotgun, which they carried when they left the Davis home, had been fired, and that at no time had it been nearer than 200 feet of the scene of the crime.

It was evident from the amount of testimony taken during the trial that if not longer.

Senator Small Speaks To Large Audience Here

West Texas Candidate For Governor Given Close Attention and Much Applause.

Senator Clint C. Small of Wellington, Democratic candidate for governor, brought his campaign to Eastland in an address before voters in the court house here this afternoon. He was introduced by Frank Sparks, former county attorney.

Expressing the belief that voters were exhibiting an intense interest in the gubernatorial contest, Senator Small said that in his opinion the candidates whom he termed "professional politicians" were going to receive a shock at the coming primary election.

"Some of these fellows are mistaking earnestness for lethargy in Texas voters and are trying to raise interest by shooting off flares of fantastic political promises," he said. "I feel certain that July 26 will prove that voters in Texas are tired of the old political ballyhoo and campaign promises. What they want is an assurance of a sensible business government at Austin."

Opposes Bond Issue

'Chink' Is Given His Choice Of Slow, Quick Death

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 25—Woo Dak San had the choice today of death in the electric chair or of redemption in the service of humanity.

Sentenced to death for the murder of a countryman, the Chinese was given the alternative of submitting to inoculation with trachoma germs that science may learn more about that disease that is the scourge of Indian tribes.

The plan to offer Woo life imprisonment instead of the chair on this condition was presented by Dr. Polk Richards, U. S. research physician at the Albuquerque Indian school.

Dr. Richards promised Alvin White, the slayer's attorney, that every effort would be made to have the death sentence changed if he would grant the use of the Chinese for experimental purposes. If the Chinese will not agree to the plan of Dr. Richards, he must die next month in the electric chair. Neither White nor Woo has made a decision.

'Religious Shams' Flowers' Subject Tonights' Sermon

Largest Crowd of Revival Heard Mrs. Flowers Last Night. Humburgery in Eastland Churches to Be Discussed.

Tonight at the Flowers revival that is being conducted at the Methodist church, Evangelist Flowers will discuss "Humburgery in Eastland Churches." He will answer several questions that have to do with his general theme, namely: Is a gambler an honest man? Does Eastland have any pagans? Flirting husbands and wives.

Mrs. R. L. Flowers, wife of the evangelist delighted a large crowd last night with a stirring message. Seldom does one hear a woman speaker who has the command of an audience and of the language that Mrs. Flowers possesses. The largest crowd of the meeting was in attendance. From the first the crowd have grown until a great interest is being shown in the religious meeting now being conducted at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Flowers said in part: "I cannot understand how any woman or girl refuses to owe her allegiance to the church when every privilege she has today comes from the liberating influence of Christianity. When Jesus Christ was born, to be a woman was a disgrace. She was not allowed to be seen on the street or in the place of worship with her husband or brothers, but because Jesus was born of a woman he has forever glorified womanhood and motherhood until today women are loved and honored because Christ came. There are millions of women in the United States who never enter a church door or give Jesus Christ a single thought seemingly."

The young folk service that is being held at 8 p. m. is one of the attractive features of the Flowers campaign. Much enthusiasm is being shown for these meetings. Friday morning at 10 o'clock there will be held a special service for the old folks. A message in keeping with the occasion will be delivered.

Rev. Day Has A Special Message

The Wednesday night sermon at the Baptist Revival is to be a special message to all lodge members of Eastland according to the announcement by Rev. E. Day at last night's service. All members of all lodges in Eastland are especially invited to be present for the special message.

The attendance for this week has steadily increased over that of last week on corresponding nights. Wednesday's day service proved to be the best week day service since the revival began according to Pastor W. T. Turner who states that more than one hundred people were present and that the service was a deeply spiritual one.

CHICAGO, June 25—Fastidious even in death, Mrs. Ida May Galbraith, 63 year old nurse, sealed her lips with adhesive tape, and leaped into Lake Michigan last night to end her life.

To make certain identification would be positive and swift, Mrs. Galbraith taped her purse to her body before committing suicide. Police found on the beach beneath a rock, a note, a pair of manicure scissors, one of her rings and the remainder of a roll of tape.

After listing friends and relatives she wished notified, Mrs. Galbraith wrote one line: "Notify them that I've just gone on."

Citizens, Headed By Band, Will Make The Trip

Merchants Donated Large Quantity of Merchandise to Be Auctioned Off at Meeting Tonight.

Between 50 and 75 merchants, business and professional men of Eastland, accompanied by the Eastland Booster Band will assemble on the south side of the courthouse square this afternoon at 6:30 and will go in a body to Okra to attend the big ice cream supper, political meeting and auction sale to be conducted there tonight by the Okra 4-H club.

Okra has made elaborate plans for the entertainment of the guests from Eastland and other cities of the county, and plenty of refreshments and entertainment has been promised for the large crowd that is expected to be present.

A good all-weather road leads from Eastland to the progressive community of Okra, and the motorcade is expected to reach the scene of the festivities within a half an hour after leaving Eastland.

It is anticipated that the Eastland delegation will reach Okra early in order that the band may give a short concert before the beginning of the entertainment.

A committee of Eastland merchants has made a canvass of the city and have received a large assortment of merchandise to take with them to be donated to the 4-H club. These articles of merchandise will be donated to the club and the members will be allowed to dispose of them in order to help raise money.

The tabernacle at Okra, which will be the scene of the ice cream supper and political speaking, has been improved within the past few months. The women's club recently raised $200 for these improvements and have made the tabernacle one of the best places in the county for holding a meeting of this kind.

The main object of the entertainment is to raise money for the 4-H club in order that representatives of the club may be sent to the A. & M. short course in July. The member of the club who has the highest standing in various departments will be sent to attend this short course and the club will help to defray expenses. Both a boy and a girl will be sent if the required work has been completed and a good showing is made, and as the Okra club is one of the most active and progressive in the county, it goes without saying that there will be two club members sent to the A. & M. training school.

This is the second of the large picnics and entertainments to be held in the county in recent weeks in which the merchants of Eastland have taken particular interest, and it is expected that an even larger crowd will attend the Okra celebration than was present at the picnic at Alameda.

All the county candidates will be called on to make a few remarks to the assembled citizens of the county, and a master of ceremonies will be on hand to introduce each candidate and to see that none of them use more than the time allotted to them for the purpose of furthering their campaigns.

WASHINGTON, June 25—President Hoover had before him for signature today the Omnibus rivers and harbors bill carrying more than $138,141,902 for port and waterway projects throughout the entire country.

Senator Small

bond issue on the ground that such a measure would encourage graft and poor engineering work on the state's highways. He pointed out to voters here that even if this issue was approved by the people and put into effect, they would be reimbursed by the state only for the principal highways and not the lateral roads. Further, he said, the county would have to accept the terms of valuation put upon the highway by state engineers at a time when these state officials deemed it advisable to survey the road.

He told his audience that under the present system of taxation the state highway department would have available for its use this year approximately $37,500,000.00. This sum, he said, would be increased each year.

"In my opinion any three men who spend this great sum of money wisely, economically and judiciously within the period of one year will be doing the state a very great service," the senator said.

He said that a movement already has been started to issue state bonds for other purposes, providing the road bond amendment was put into the constitution, and warned citizens against it, and predicted would be a "bond issuing bureau."

Senator Small said that the next 10 years will present problems more complex than ever have been experienced in Texas. One of these problems is that of employment, he said.

"It should be the duty of your next governor to do what he can to see that there are no vacant buildings in Texas towns and cities, there should be no vacant farms and no idle men," he said.

Develop Natural Resources
Encouragement of the development of our natural resources and invitation to new industries to come to Texas would be on the gubernatorial program of Senator Small if he is elected chief executive of the state, he told his audience.

Equalization of the tax burden and a shifting of the old practice of shifting taxes from one subject to another, was advocated by Senator Small as one means of lightening governmental levies. He scored candidates who, he said, have been advocating removal of the ad valorem tax and the placing of special levies with which to carry on the government.

"There is one candidate in this race who tells people he is a great statesman," Small said, "yet this man tells the voters that he favors abolishment of the ad valorem tax and putting a tax on gin, cotton and malt extracts. I don't know what you folks here use gin, cotton and malt extracts for, but they tell me that in many places over the country they use them to break the prohibition laws with. In my opinion any man who would legalize home brew making to collect a tax should have no place in the Democratic party. There should not be enough malt extracts sold in Texas to raise any sort of a tax."

Removal of the ad valorem tax at this time is impractical and governmentally unsound, Small said. He advocated seeking out all property that is now going untaxed and making it bear its proportionate share of the tax burden.

Prisons Discussed
The senator vigorously denounced the plan to remove the prison system to another site in Texas. Industrialization of the penal institution to a point where it would be self-sustaining is the solution of the problem now confronting the state, he said. He said that certain interests wanted to sell out the present prison lands because there was an oil field approaching them and it "may embarrass these parties."

The race for governor now has narrowed down to but seven candidates, in the opinion of Senator Small. He said that he was the only candidate in the contest west of Dallas and that he would get a good vote in north and east Texas. "People there," he said, "are looking for someone to lead them out of the political wilderness. They are tired of the old lineup of professional politicians and want a little new blood and a young man in the governor's office. Why some of those fellows have had their name on every ticket for the past 20 years. It is time to put them out in the pasture. I think that after July 26 they will find themselves there."

ed the state road bond proposal as a means of lightening county taxes and making it possible for the counties to build lateral roads, in an address here Tuesday in behalf of his candidacy for governor. In addition to the highway question, Sterling spoke on tax adjustment, school support, labor needs and other planks in his platform.

DAINGERFIELD, Tex., June 25—Three hundred voters from this vicinity heard Earle B. Mayfield of Dallas discuss taxation in connection with his candidacy for governor Tuesday night. Mayfield expressed the belief that cigars, cigarettes and cold drinks should be taxed and that the franchise tax, charter fees and intangible taxes should be materially reduced. Chain stores and chain banks should be heavily taxed, he declared.

New Midget Golf Course Is Opened

The Eastland Midget Golf Course which is located on Lamar street opened Tuesday night. The ladies played free and each man was given a courtesy card which entitled him to one free play anytime. Two prizes were given, one for the ladies and one for the men. The lowest score, Miss Faye Hock was awarded the prize for the ladies and Scott Key Jr. for the men. Each prize was a week's free pass. A large crowd attended the opening. Ice cream was served to everybody.

Committee From Wisconsin Pleased With This State

HARLINGEN, Tex., June 25—If the governors of Texas and Wisconsin had conferred three months ago there never would have been a dispute between the two states over the sale of Rio Grande Valley land. F. H. Clausen, president of the Wisconsin Manufacturers Association, said here today.

Clausen is a member of the committee of six appointed by Gov. Walter Kohler of Wisconsin to investigate land sale practices in the Rio Grande Valley and to determine if the Wisconsin real estate board was justified in banning Texas land companies from that state.

"I have been greatly impressed by my visit here," Clausen said. "Frankly, we have been stalling on this trip—trying to put it off as long as we could, because we did not realize its importance. I thought the Rio Grande Valley was merely a narrow stretch of land, whereas I have found that it is many times larger than I thought."

Clausen would give no indication of what the committee would report. The committee will leave here today for Houston, leaving there Thursday for Wisconsin.

Yesterday the group inspected the Brazos-Santiago deep water port at Point Isabel and visited Matamoras, Mexico.

Keeping Tab On The State Candidates

SHERMAN, Tex., June 25—After eight thousand miles of traveling and sounding out public sentiment he will lead the ticket in the first primary election for governor and win in the run-off an audience here Tuesday night and pleaded for "business like timber in state offices instead of old-time politicians." He was introduced by J. E. Allison, local attorney, who predicted West Texas would vote solidly for Small. Today Small will speak at Eastland and Brownwood.

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., June 25—Clint C. Small of Wellington, candidate for governor, spoke to an audience here Tuesday night and pleaded for "business like timber in state offices instead of old-time politicians." He was introduced by J. CLARA BOW'S BEAUS—HERE ARE FOUR WHO HAVE WON STAR'S CHANGING HEART

Here is Clara Bow, the red-haired "It" girl of the movies, who is reported to have paid $30,000 to settle things with the wife of a young Texas doctor with whom she was infatuated, and four other men said to have won her interest at various times. Clara is at the left, above, while at the right is Rex Bell, cowboy movie star. Below are Harry Richman, Victor Fleming and Gilbert Roland. Harry is shown as he put an engagement ring on Clara's finger.

word?" Judy exclaimed in alarm. "No," he said with a miserable laugh. "You have asked her to marry you, I know. She told me. She is absolutely wild with happiness." "She is not in any hurry," Steyne said awkwardly. "She wants to go on as we are for the present. She wants to work." "Then you are not marrying at once?" "No. Clarissa says six months. I tell you, she wants to work. Her work is splendid. She'll be great. I always thought so." "But she loves you more than her work," said Judy, with a woman's insight. "She'd rather be your wife than the greatest artist in the world," she added, torturing herself willfully. "There aren't any words to express how Chummy loves you." "And there aren't any words to tell how I love you, Judy," said the young man in a broken voice. "The girl sat as if frozen to the seat. "And you love me—I know you do," he went on. "I don't—I don't!"

did. You're all the world to her. You can't go back on her." "I'm not going to; but I love you and you love me, and—I'm glad I've said it." The young voice was reckless. "And I want to hear you say it." "I'll never do that," said Judy fiercely. "You belong to Chummy. You're nothing to do with me." "You foolish Judy, you have said it. You're saying it now. You're saying, 'Alan, I love you. I love you. I love you.' You're saying it all the time." "With a wild effort she got up. "I hate you!" She clenched her hands in a rage of helpless fury. "I'll never, never speak to you again!" Steyne rose, too. He took her arm and drew her into the gathering darkness. "Judy," he said, and now his voice was infinitely tender and humble, so that it wooed the very heart out of her breast. "Judy, don't be angry with me. I couldn't help it. I'm going to do what you think the right thing. Don't say you'll never speak to me again. We won't meet often, we can't—I couldn't bear it; but just sometimes, when it gets too hard, oh, Judy, don't deny me a sight of you, the sound of your dearest voice. I love you a thousand times more for your loyalty to Chummy. I'm willing to admit that I ought to marry her—" Here he broke off, unable to find further words. "In time," said Judy, fighting her tears, but outwardly, thorny and irascible, she would call forget all about me. You only think you want me because you can't have me. All men are alike." So she spoke out of her rather pitiful knowledge of life to try to patch up her own broken heart. "It isn't true, Judy; I shall never forget. I know it won't always be as bad as this. I'm not a fool. But I shall never, never forget." Judy said nothing. They paced on for a few moments. The darkness grew. A sadness caused by Alan's words descended on them. "It won't always be as bad as this." There was no comfort in the thought. It would be almost better to believe that this agony would last to the very end. They turned and walked slowly out of the park. Judy boarded her bus. Steyne walked southward toward his rooms. There followed two days of comparative idleness for Judy. She went shopping both mornings, and took Chummy out to lunch on the second at Gino's, a bohemian resort that the newspapers had not yet discovered. It had highly colored Italian scenery painted on the walls, and bunches of dried grapes hanging from the ceiling, and the cooking was the real thing. It was only a small room, and always packed. Judy had bought a new dress and hat, the latter of the sombrero type she always affected, but black this time. The dress was a rather violent affair, black and yellow check, but it became her amazingly. With her red-gold hair and brilliant face, she looked like some sprite—rather a visitor to this earth than a denizen of it. The next thing to do was to find work. Another artist had sat for did not want a model of her type for the moment. She tried one or two strangers, who were also not in immediate need of her services. She would have to try her luck in a chorus again. That was when the small sum she had in hand was expended, or nearly so. The idea of accepting Gideon's offer never occurred to her. She disliked the man, and she considered he had insulted her. She never wanted to see him again. Something would turn up, no doubt. Meanwhile, other difficulties presented themselves. Chummy always wanted Judy to be with her and Steyne. "Do come out for a walk with Alan and Steyne," Judy said, as must dine with us tonight. "Judy, don't you like him? Has he offended you in any way? You won't join us in anything!" A couple of days after she had met him in the park, Steyne came in a situation somewhat by announcing that he had to go up to Maine for a time. His house had been damaged by a storm, and he had to see to the repairs. It was a respite, Judy felt. When he came back, he would be taken up with Chummy. Six months would soon pass; then they would be married, and it would all be over. And then she reproached herself violently for being glad that Alan was going away, when she thought how lonely Chummy would be.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Dogdays in Washington have begun and although no one who remains here can keep from being hot, almost no one is willing to get all hot and bothered about anything. The news out of Washington seems rather insipid. No one with a federal job dares say anything interesting because this is an election year. And it's too hot for politicians to fight, let alone do any work.

Into this atmosphere of sweltering quiescence suddenly bursts the People's Legislative Service, flaming with wrath, effervescing with steam and seething with deadly intent to tear the hide off people. This organization does that sort of thing with more gusto, if not with more artistic effect, than anyone else around here. And in all kinds of weather. It is a heritage of the elder Senator LaFollette, bequeathed to—or afflicted upon, as the case may be—the capital after his death.

And here's a sample: "G. O. P. Hurrahs for Bare Bleeding Feet," says Mercer J. Johnston, the Service director, in a nice, restrained way in his latest bulletin.

"Loud cheers and yells," it quotes from a newspaper account, "greeted Speaker Longworth's announcement of the vote" that the Garner resolution to put shoes back on the free list had been defeated.

"It was not in Bedlam," says Mr. Johnston, "but in our tariff-crazed House of Representatives, that this ecstatic explosion occurred. The time was not B. C., but June 5, A. D. 1930.

"The vote to keep shoes on the feet of the poor this coming winter was 110, including 30 decent Republicans. The vote to take shoes off the feet of the poor this winter was 181; including seven Democrats with hopeful smiles and actual rings in their noses.

"It means that bare and bleeding feet will be seen this winter on city streets and country roads in far greater numbers than was ever witnessed at Valley Forge at the apex of the agony of the struggle against overseas oppression.

"Now that the dishes of the Presidential Barmecide Feast for the army of the unemployed are being swept unceremoniously from the boards, and cheap political prosperity chatter even makes the proverbial dog sick, only those who will not see can be blind to the oncoming spectacle. . . . Those 'loud cheers and yells' for bare and bleeding feet are destined to become the mocking refrain of a political funeral march dedicated to the party in power."

The fact is that if these bulletins were getting wider circulation the country would be getting a lot more entertainment than it is now.

Forbidden City Will Be Opened As Big Museum

Rare Collections of Valuable Art Objects Will Be Seen After Repairs.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Olin D. Wannamaker, general secretary in America of the Chinese Cultural Foundation, has announced that active work has started in Peking to put all of the enormous collections of historical and artistic treasures of the Forbidden City, the palaces of the reigning house of China, on exhibition for use of modern observers and students.

Until just 19 years ago none but members of the royal household, ministers of state and those singled out for special honor by the Imperial family was permitted to pass through the gateway entering its walls.

Chinese emperors left one of the most wonderful museums in the world, according to Wannamaker. Greatest treasures of Chinese art were collected by the Emperors. Books, paintings, priceless objects of art, offered by the people as tribute to their Emperors during several dynasties, found their way from all parts of the vast empire inside the walls of the Forbidden City, and into one another of the palatial structures.

The present object is to restore to the Chinese people the objects of art symbolic of the spirit of the Chinese as a race, and to make the great museum the symbol of ancient China for the entire world.

The library contains more than 1,200,000 volumes including the special Imperial Library of 30,000 volumes in manuscript; a special manuscript collection of 11,000 volumes; the Chinese encyclopedia of 5,000 volumes and rare books of the Sung, Yuan and Ming dynasties, from the Tenth through the Sixteenth centuries.

Historical records include practical accounts of the royal household of the emperor, private accounts of the emperor, records of instructions issued by the Emperors, edicts and memorials, maps, portraits, seals and charters, the seals of solid gold or jade.

The picture galleries have 8,000 paintings, dating from the Tsin dynasty, 2265 A. D. Porcelain pieces to the number of 6000 represent every famous kiln from the Sung to the Ming dynasty. A rare collection of jade or great variety numbering about 100,000 pieces varying in size from several feet in height to a fraction of an inch in diameter.

The Forbidden City during the last third of a century has fallen into a state of disrepair. The present movement includes plans for renovating the present buildings housing the treasures, and also erection of buildings to meet the requirements of a modern museum.

As far as possible the plan of the Forbidden City will be left unmodified. Visitors will be able to see how the emperors lived, but palaces in other sections of the city will be turned more completely into general museums and art galleries.

China already has provided considerable funds for the work and through deep interest taken by Americans in Chinese culture many have taken an active part in preservation of the finest relics of ancient China as housed in the

"Wonderful Is Konjola," Says Grateful Lady

Freud Of Neuritis And Stomach Trouble — All Else Tried Failed Utterly.

MRS. HEZEKIAH MAYNARD

"For several years I was troubled with a disordered stomach, neuritis and constipation," said Mrs. Hezekiah Maynard, 513 East Twelfth Street, Amarillo. "My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly eat any food. When I did eat I bloated with gas and my stomach became sore. I had to take strong laxatives, was rapidly losing weight, and the pains of neuritis were terrible. I was certainly surprised when the way Konjola went to work. After the first few doses I noticed it was helping me. My appetite increased and the food digested better. The terrible gas pains were eliminated. Now, after taking Konjola but a few weeks, I notice that the aches and pains of neuritis are leaving. I am gaining in weight and feel better than for a long time. I surely recommend Konjola to everyone who is suffering."

Konjola is a systematic treatment taken after meals. Quickly it goes to the source of the ailment and, if taken with regularity, it brings new, glorious and abundant health.

URGENT CARE IN BABY'S DIET

CHICAGO, June 25—A baby's bill-of-fare as important to his health as the mother's is in the building stage. The right food will help the baby's growth and strengthen his bone and tissues. The wrong food not only will cause weakness but often may result in disease as well. What the baby eats is a subject that should be studied scientifically by his mother in cooperation with the family physician, who is the person best qualified to advise her on the youngster's diet.

"In every baby's dietary, two vitamins are necessary, if the infant is to thrive. These are vitamins D and C. Without a supply of vitamin D, the baby is likely to develop rickets, a deforming disease that may permanently impair his health. A quantity of cod liver oil given regularly to the baby and frequent sun baths will prevent this condition.

"Lack of vitamin C may cause scurvy. This can be avoided by feeding the infant orange or tomato juice in the early months of its life, since these foods are high in vitamin C and are easily assimilated by the baby's digestive system.

"The main item on the baby's bill-of-fare, however, is milk. Breast milk is recognized universally as the baby's best food. It is not possible for all mothers to nurse their babies, because of disabilities either to the mother or the infant. In such cases the feeding formula should be determined in consultation with a physician, since each baby is an individual case and requires special attention.

GIVE THIS SOME THOUGHT

You are positively failing to receive full value from your newspaper—you are actually losing money if you do not read every advertisement in our newspaper.

Daily, the Eastland merchants are sending valuable information to you through these columns—information that will help you to buy intelligently, saving money and receiving the newest styles, inventions, etc.

And remember—the merchant that constantly advertises his merchandise is the merchant that is not ashamed of the PRICE AND QUALITY of his goods—he is not afraid to tell the world—your chances to get good values are BETTER when you buy advertised merchandise.

Only recently new low prices on cotton goods have been announced by several Eastland merchants—and today this paper carries several messages of value to you from the live, wide-awake, merchants of Eastland.

"Life Preservers" for Airplanes

Now this is a new idea! A parachute by which passengers in transport planes can be on their way safely to earth 10 seconds after danger develops has been invented at Los Angeles and Miss Helen Eckerston is seen demonstrating it in this picture. The chute is a chest pack and is carried in the baggage racks of the plane. When trouble develops, the passenger reaches up and grabs the chute, slips into a heavy jacket, hooks the parachute to this and steps off. The rest, it is said, is easy. The new parachute was exhibited at Los Angeles recently for the first time and attracted much comment.

cause our wedding date is fixed for September.
She said Captain Kingsford-Smith had promised not to undertake any more long distance flights.

DUBLIN, June 25.—Two young women seen by an amateur radio set here and followed the flight of the Southern Cross with deepest concern.

They were Miss Santoy Saul, sister of Capt. John P. Saul, the plane's navigator, and Miss Zena Marchant, his fiancée. They have been beside their radio almost continuously since the plane left Port Marnock.

The rest of Dublin also was keyed up and newspapers were besieged with telephone calls.

Germany May Again Have A Dictator

Possibility of Such Has Been Discussed For Some Time

By FREDERICK KUH
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, June 25.—A German government dictatorship under article 48 of the Reich's constitution was discussed with increasing seriousness by political leaders today.

The possibility of a dictatorship has been rumored for more than a week as a result of the involved financial condition of the nation, but a prolonged cabinet meeting last night, which was continued today, and stringent financial demands of the Folks Party, appeared to give more basis for the talk. Last night the Folks Party sent seven demands to the government. They were:

1. Five percent—or 125,000,000 marks—reduction in the Reich's non-essential expenditures.
2. Five percent curtailment of the Reich's subsidies to the German states.
3. At least 120,000,000 marks annual reduction in the Reich's contribution to unemployment doles.
4. Simultaneous reform of the Reich's health insurance.
5. The imposition of a new tax on municipal and state-owned public utilities, hitherto tax exempt.
6. Other cancellations of the

Sees Sweetheart, Remembers

His mind a blank for three weeks, Rex King Morgan recovered his memory when his sweetheart, Miss Zena Marchant, here today, called on him at San Mateo, Calif. Denver nurse, Mrs. Morgan last fall when he was in the city as a federal narcotic agent. Morgan was in the city as a federal narcotic agent. Morgan was in the city as a federal narcotic agent.

Among the best spreaders are soap, certain oil emulsions, glue, and casein. Casein is by far the most satisfactory spreader obtainable at present. In its pure form it does not mix with water and it must be combined with an alkali before it can be put into the spray tank. The manufacturer general-ly does this, but any grower can mix his own spreader by directions the Department of Agriculture will furnish upon application.

Cactus Stew
Several hundred families of Papago Indians migrate into the giant cactus "forests" in Arizona each summer to harvest the cactus fruits. Most families make 3 to 10 gallons of sirup and smaller quantities of conserves from these fruits using no sugar in the process. Some of the older Indians still harvest the flower buds of another species of cactus after seasons of heavy rainfall and use them in a sort of vegetable stew, meat broth, or relish. The United States Department of Agriculture and Department of Interior are seeking to help the Indians make even greater use of the giant cactus and other species of cacti.

Father and Son Hijackers
DALLAS, Tex., June 23.—R. B. Brown told police Sunday that he was apparently waylaid by a "father and son" team of hijackers when he was held up and robbed near his home of $13.70.
A big negro met him as he turned a corner near his home, and commanded him to "stick 'em up" as he flourished a pistol.

the landing field because of the fog.
By radio Captain Kingsford-Smith asked that a plane be sent aloft from the field through the fog to guide the Southern Cross to a landing. All the while the gasoline supply of the plane was dwindling close to the danger point.

Finally at 6 a. m. the field was located and the Southern Cross, after circling it, came to a safe landing.
It had covered an airline distance of approximately 2190 miles but probably had actually flown somewhat farther due to the cruising it was forced to do while off its course during the night.

All four members of the Southern Cross crew—Captain Kingsford-Smith, John Stannace, radio operator, Evert Van Dyk, pilot, and Captain J. Patrick Saul, navigator—reported themselves "feeling fine" as they climbed out of the plane.
The Southern Cross itself seemed to be in good condition considering its long trip.

Plans for continuing on to New York were taken under consideration immediately. A sufficient supply of fuel to re-fill the ship's tanks was on hand at the flying field, but it was believed the flyers would make an inspection of their plane before deciding definitely their next move.
From what could be learned immediately after the landing it appeared that the Southern Cross most probably never passed Harbor Grace at any time during its flight, but from before midnight until well into the morning hours circled over the sea at a distance of from 100 to 175 miles east of Cape Race.

LONDON, June 25.—A Dublin dispatch to the Evening News said today that the father of Capt. J. Patrick Saul, navigator of the Southern Cross, was seriously ill and was sinking.

J. P. Morgan—as Returning Grad

It's in the role of "old grad" that J. P. Morgan, world-famed financier, is pictured here. He had returned to Harvard University, where he was a student 30 years ago, to witness the graduation of a record class of 1945 members. He is president of the university's alumni association.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 25.—Miss Mary Powell, fiancée of Capt. Charles E. Kingsford-Smith, was "spending the day near the telephone" she told newspapermen today when informed that the Southern Cross had reached Newfoundland.
"Oh! Isn't it wonderful!" she exclaimed. "It was the only big thing left for him to do. I thought it best to let him get it over be-

ONCE UPON A TIME

When Postmaster General Walter F. Brown moved into his office at Washington, he had installed, at his own expense, a small kitchen so that he might enjoy his hobby of cooking. Friends often drop in at noon.

Washington Letter

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The House investigation of the red radicals, sponsored, launched and chaired by Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, will move in July up to the chairman's own balliwick, where Mr. Fish hopes it will be getting a lot more publicity than it has had in its first few days.
The country's complete failure to get excited about this investigation of Communist activities is a source of worry not only to Mr. Fish but to other members who hoped there would be good political material in it and to those burning patriots whose chief mission is convincing the nation that it stands in great danger of a bolshevik revolution.

The Forgeries Hurt
Mr. Fish started under several handicaps. He led the anti-red hue and cry after Police Commissioner Whalen of New York had unearthed "documents from Moscow purporting to link the Antor Trading Corporation of New York with Communist International activities in America. The movement lost much steam when the documents were proved to be forgeries concocted in New York.
Then Mr. Fish proceeded to dampen his own firework by calling before the committee some inveterate critics of the Soviet government and communists whose views were already quite well known to the country. One
