This picture shows Mrs. Barton as she now appears, having wasted away to the extent of 142 pounds.

News From The State Capital

AUSTIN, Tex., June 19.—Requisitions for the necessary State appropriations to correct the defects at State eleemosynary institutions will be put before the State Board of Control at a series of budget hearings beginning next Monday. Needs of the girls training school at Gainesville will be taken up Monday and also the Waco home for dependent children. On Tuesday the Corsicana State Orphan Home and the Boys Training School at Gatesville will be heard. Wednesday, Terrell State Hospital and the Confederate Women's Home at Austin will be considered. Thursday the Abilene and Wichita State Hospitals are down for hearing and on Friday the Rusk State hospital and the tuberculosis sanatorium at Carlsbad. Dates for others are to be fixed later.

A charge, met by denial, that the issuance of a permit for one of the motor truck lines operating between Fort Arthur and Houston via Beaumont was not sought in good faith was made at a hearing here today before Railroad Commissioners C. V. Terrell and Lon A. Smith and director Mark Marshall of the motor division of the commission.

The charge was made by J. M. Wald and denied by State Senator W. R. Cousins who appeared in behalf of securing a transfer of the line's state certificate to J. A. Young.

Wald asserted that when the permit was sought other operators did not protest because they were told the line would cease operation.

Percy Howell also protested. He claimed to have seen a contract by which Young agreed to buy still another line effective in 1931. The commission declined to postpone today's hearing to permit testimony on the good faith charge, saying that matter already was passed upon.

Approval of the proposed transfer was taken under advisement.

Davidson Quits Governor's Race

HOUSTON, Tex., June 19.—Former Lieut. Governor Lynch Davidson of Houston today withdrew his name as a candidate for governor. Davidson's name had been placed on the ballot by a petition of Hunt county citizens.

"In my judgment," Davidson said in withdrawing, "most of the number who are now contesting for the governor's office are professional politicians seeking the office solely for selfish reasons. The election of Love, Mayfield or Ferguson would be a great drawback to the interest and welfare of Texas. If my remaining on the ticket would assure their defeat, I would not hesitate to do so."

"On the other hand it is possible my remaining on the ticket might further scatter the votes and serve to bring about their election. For the good of Texas, and for that reason only, I have decided to withdraw my name from the ticket."

Later Davidson said, he will declare for the candidate who nearest meets his ideals of government.

The Houstonian has twice been a candidate for governor. In 1924 he missed getting in the second primary by 2500 votes and in 1926 he ran third in the Moody-Ferguson battle, polling 126,000 votes.

COMMISSIONERS FACE NEW POLITICAL ISSUE

DALLAS, Tex., June 17.—Whether or not the Dallas county commissioners' court is to employ a wolf-trapper for the northern part of Dallas county may yet become a political issue.

Asked by some farmers to put a man in the field to fight wolves, the court was beset today by protesters from court who object to planting steel traps. Their cats, dogs and livestock get their feet in them, they claimed.

The court is undecided as to what to do about it.

As Morrow Campaigned for Office

Alumnus of the rich House of Morgan, Dwight W. Morrow seems to find it just as easy to adapt himself to Main street as to Wall Street, when campaigning for political office. Here is an informal photo of Colonel Lindbergh's father-in-law, taken as he partook of an impromptu meal at an eleventh-hour rally in behalf of his campaign for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate in New Jersey, the rally being staged on the high school field at Ridgewood. He won the nomination by a big majority.

'Old Rip' Has A Rival For Long Distance Sleep

HOUSTON, Tex., June 19.—At this late date comes another frog seeking Rip Van Winkle honors.

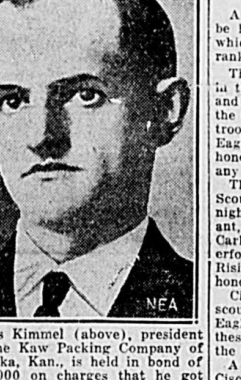

Mrs. M. Butler tired of her old refrigerator which she had for 30 years, and bought a new one. But she dismantled the old one, as she wanted to save an opal glass built into it.

"I took off the glass plate, exposing a thick piece of tar paper, which was intact," she said. "I took that off and found this space tightly packed with asbestos. As I pushed my screw driver into the asbestos, I saw a lead and a pair of eyes looking at me."

The frog, small and scrawny, still was alive.

"The refrigerator was made in Indianapolis," she said. "Nothing could have got in the place, at least since we have had it, and we've had it 30 years."

Held as Author of Death Plot

Louis Kimmel (above), president of the Kaw Packing Company of Topeka, Kan., is held in bond of $25,000 on charges that he got an employe, Virgil Pointer, to murder Roy Kramer, vice president of the company. ### Business On The Upgrade Banker Tells Dallas Meet

DALLAS, Tex., June 19.—Depression felt by business for the last year and a half has about reached its peak, and there are reasons for bankers of this district to feel optimistic, W. M. Massie, chairman of the Stockholders' Association of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank told that body at the annual meeting here today. About 150 stockholders were present.

Massie presided at the session and gave an annual report to the stockholders. Lynn P. Talley, governor of the bank, also spoke. He said the high discount rates put into effect during the stock market debacle last fall had worked toward bringing business back to normal.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., June 19.—Five Cardin officers appeared before Federal Judge Franklin Kenamer today for sentence after their conviction last night on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

Immunity Not Granted Bishop Caraway Says

Anyone Who Says Immunity Was Granted Is a Willful, Common and Malicious Liar, Chairman Caraway Declared in Speech on Senate Floor.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby committee declared in a senate speech today that anyone who says the committee granted immunity to Bishop James Cannon, Jr., when it failed to press its examination of him, "is a willful, common and malicious liar."

Caraway, who admitted his speech was a breach of parliamentary language, said the same description applies to any one who says he had changed his position in order to exempt Cannon. The Arkansas senator offered to defend his position in the Senate or out of it.

The committee refused to go into Cannon's anti-Smith activities and his handling of the accounted for $65,300 contributed for use in the 1928 presidential campaign, because it has always refused to go into purely political activities, Caraway told an attentive Senate.

"The same rule was invoked," Caraway asserted, "to protect Chairman Huston of the Republican National Committee and Chairman Raskob of the Democratic Committee, Henry Curran of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and Josephus Daniels.

Asserting the committee did not press for prosecution of several law violations.

"The intimation has been made on the floor of the House that Bishop Cannon was in this political fund for his own private purposes. 'Well, we did not ask any prosecutions when we found the chairman of the Republican national committee used a lobbying fund of the Union Carbide Company to bolster his account with a broker."

"We did not call in the prohibition authorities when he wound the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment had $76 worth of liquor at a banquet given to former senator Wadsworth of New York."

"We didn't ask the State Department to take any action when we found the Cuban ambassador here was keeping a lobbying fund to defeat (sugar) legislation before the Congress."

"We didn't take the matter up with the War Department when it was disclosed a retired army officer was taking pay from the government against his country."

The chairman submitted the majority report of the committee, containing merely the record of all questions asked of Cannon, those he answered as well as those he refused to answer. No recommendation was made for pursuing the matter further.

Caraway said he could produce 50 letters, some of them from people high in professional walks of life, asking the committee "to pursue Catholic organizations."

"I think the Senate should hesitate a long time before deciding to coerce the church organizations."

Rising Star To Have Court Of Honor Tonight

A Boy Scout court of honor is to be held at Rising Star tonight at which four boys will receive the rank of Eagle Scout.

There are but two Eagle Scouts in the Oil Belt Council at present and both of them are members of the Rising Star troop, making that troop not only the first to have an Eagle Scout but it also has the honor of having six Eagles before any of the other troops have one.

Those who will be made Eagle Scouts at the court of honor tonight are Lionel Lee, Weldon Bryant, Russell Day and Charles Bucy. Carl Rottrammel and Charles Rutherford are the other two boys from Rising Star who have received this honor.

Cisco and Eastland both have scouts that will be ready for the Eagle badge within a short time as these boys have almost completed the required work.

A court of honor will be held at Cisco on Friday night with more than 33 scouts receiving merit badges.

Bee Hive With 16 Pounds Honey Found In Window

Joe Driskell and Walter C. Hammond noticed that bees were going in and out of one of the upper windows of the Masonic Temple and started an investigation yesterday.

After going up stairs they watched the bees to see where they were going and discovered a large beehive in one of the windows of the building. The two then proceeded to rob the hive and secured 16 pounds of honey.

It was thought that the bees had been using the window casing for a hive for the past two years and had been storing honey there all the time without being noticed.

Knob Knockers' Reward Is Small On Cisco Jobs

CISCO, Tex., June 19.—Knob-knocking is a poor way to gain a livelihood one or more members of that shady profession will testify after a descent upon three Cisco institutions last night which netted little more than $12 in cash and a number of negotiable checks.

The three places visited were the Texas and Pacific and the M. K. and T. freight offices and the Triangle Welding and Machine Shop. The M. K. and T. lost heaviest to the stealthy visitor and the Triangle shop the least. At the former $9.36 was obtained along with a sheaf of checks which were found discarded under the overpass over the railroad at Eighth street. At the Triangle the safe had been left open with no valuables of any consequence to reward the thief for his pranks.

At the Texas and Pacific office $3.32 was obtained from the cash drawer.

Knobs on both the T. and P. and M. K. and T. safes were broken off and the cash drawers prized open. Contents of the safe were scattered, recklessly about the floor. The cash drawer at the Katy was taken off bodily together with a number of records. Entrance to both offices was gained by prizing open the front doors. At the Triangle the burglar entered through the rear door.

Mystery Shrouds Death Of Two Men In New York City

NEW YORK, June 19.—The maniac slayer, who unflinchingly killed two men as part of his announced plot to murder 16 persons to retrieve some mysterious "papers," wrote today that he had spared his third victim—"W. R. V-8."

It was the second note the slayer had sent to the New York Journal today. In the first he boasted that he had killed this third victim—despite vigilant watch by hundreds of detectives in the College Point section—and that the body would be found on the "Boston Road." The first letter said the dead man's name was "Harold Bridenbach," and added, "find the woman and you've got me."

The second letter today did not mention the previous boast of death but said "W. R. V-8" had returned the "papers" and $37,000 blackmail money.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The murderous maniac, who already has claimed the lives of two men, today claimed his third victim and directed police to the Boston Road where, he said, they would find the body of Harold Bridenbach.

His announcement was contained in a letter to the Evening Journal, and it started police on search of the Boston Road. For hampered their work during the early hours of today. The maniac, who is searching for some "important papers" eluded police last night when 2,000 patrolmen deployed through Queens Borough where he had announced he would kill the third of 16 persons whom he had marked for death.

The letter to the Journal, written in part in the cabalistic code which the murderer has filled all his communications said:

"Where is X8V-8. He is already dead. He is on the Boston Road. His name is Harold Bridenbach. Find the woman, old man, and you've got me."

A preliminary check-up failed to reveal any "Harold Bridenbach" in the metropolitan area. While there was some inclination to believe the maniac was making an idle boast in his letter, his information regarding the location of his victims' bodies has been so infallible in the past that police immediately began their search on the strength of the communication to the Journal.

Already the maniac has killed Noel Sowley and Joseph Moynskil. In both cases they were shot as they sat in parked automobiles with young women. The two girls, Catherine May and Betty Ring, are at liberty in $5,000 bail each as material witnesses.

If the man who signs himself as "X-8," the man behind the gun, really has committed another murder, he has displayed the same cunning that has characterized his career of crime. It was pointed out that he chose the Boston Road for his latest exploit—a section that is miles away from College Point where police were massed all last night on the strength of a letter from "X-8," boasting that his next crime would be in that district.

Given 'Solitary' For Contempt Of Kangaroo Court

DALLAS, Tex., June 19.—Geo. Reed, ex-pugilist and "cop-hater" was held in contempt of the kangaroo court in the Dallas county jail Thursday, and put in solitary confinement. But so was Dewey Hunt, under the death penalty for a murder, judge of the court.

Reed, who is a pacifist and gave another lively tussle last week when they attempted to take him to jail. When transferred to the county jail, he was arraigned by his fellow-prisoners as is the custom, but he objected to the sentence and sent a right hook to Hunt's jaw.

Hunt countered. Jailors were called and stopped the struggle.

WILL ROGERS' AUNT IS DEAD IN OKLAHOMA

WE NEED A SWIMMING POOL
With the advent of the swimming season Eastland citizens are again brought face-to-face with the question of having to leave the city to enjoy the summer sport of swimming. Every summer we talk of building a bathing pool, but keep going along spending Eastland money out of town.

CONDITIONS HERE ARE GOOD
That Eastland and this section is in a better condition financially than other towns, is attested by those who have had occasion to visit and spend time in other sections of the country. While conditions here are not as good as they were during the boom days and not as good as we would have them be, yet they are not at all bad.

LET'S CELEBRATE THE FOURTH
July Fourth is coming just around the corner. Are we going to have some kind of celebration in Eastland? Every year we have given way for Ranger or Cisco to put on this entertainment. We can never build up Eastland when we work all of the time for the other fellow.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS
Olden, with a little less than 1,000 people, is nearer to Eastland than any other town yet the bulk of its trade goes to Ranger. Why? It is true Olden has its own stores, but there is no attempt to supply the citizens of the town with their every need and as a consequence a good portion of their trade goes elsewhere.

Eastland, as its nearest neighbor, is entitled to much of Olden's trade, and could have it if it went after it in the right manner.

Olden wants and needs telephone service. Eastland needs very much to have them connected with the exchange here, which would help to center their interests here.

It is stated that if a trunk line between the two towns could be built, the telephone company is willing to build a plant at Olden and the Olden people are willing to pay the service charges for the convenience of the telephone.

Resolution Authorizing Congress To Suppress Or Regulate Liquor Is Offered By Former Dry Congressman

By RAYMOND CLAPPER, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 19—Though anti-prohibitionists are still cherishing the victory of Dwight W. Morrow in New Jersey, drys insist it means nothing so far as a change in the federal liquor laws is concerned.

In the wake of Morrow's victory, House members had before them today a definite resolution to change the existing prohibition setup by amending the 18th amendment. It was introduced late yesterday by Rep. Michaelson, Rep., Ill., hitherto classed as a "dry."

He also made a statement advocating a national prohibition referendum or a referendum by the states.

His resolution would authorize congress to suppress or regulate intoxicating liquor. Its purpose, he explained, would be to allow the various states to be "wet" or "dry" as they choose.

The Illinois representative explained his changed views on the prohibition question were impelled by the Literary Digest poll, the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago, and a belief that the present prohibition system was detrimental to the nation's political welfare.

In viewing the present political situation as it may affect prohibition changes, observers find the present congress is about 75 per cent dry in both houses. Primaries have been held in 12 states to select candidates for the House and Senate of the next congress. Candidates for ten senate and 143 house seats have been selected.

Drys, scanning these primary results, are convinced that supporters of prohibition are being sent back to congress regardless of signs which wets claim to have discerned that the country is turning against prohibition.

If Morrow is elected to the senate in November he will bring great personal prestige to the anti-prohibition cause. It has been lacking in leadership and had had no one of the calibre and strength of Morrow to fight its battle in congress.

However, repeal of the 18th amendment can come about only in two ways. One is by legislation of two third of the states calling upon congress to summon a constitutional convention to consider amendments. The other is by two-third of each house voting to submit a proposed repeal amendment which would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states.

As to modification of the Volstead act, sentiment in congress at the moment appears still opposed to it.

The administration is preparing to make a supreme effort to enforcement with the transfer of the machinery from the Treasury to the Justice Department, July 1. If that does not improve conditions, some modification proposals might be made late next year, possibly.

Commenting on his changed views, Michaelson, who voted for the severe penalties of the Jones "five and ten" law, said in a statement printed in the congressional record:

"I believed, as did the people generally throughout the country that a more severe penalty for the commercialized law violators might produce a deterrent effect on organized crime."

"Whatever hopes anyone had in this regard have since been dashed to the ground. Crime is on the increase and the emphasis that was put on the stone piles as deterrents is meeting with contempt."

Charlie Koenig, Ex Pitching Ace Of '87 And '88 Never Sees Games

By PAUL H. KING, United Press Staff Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, June 19—Although Charlie Koenig was among the greatest pitchers in baseball in '87 and '88 while a member of the St. Louis Browns, he admits he has not witnessed a game since 1887.

Koenig now 63 years old, is classed along with Amos Rusie and others as among the greatest of the game ever produced.

The old timer, who says the game is as good today as it was in his times, keeps in touch with its progress by newspapers, although his home here is but a short distance from the major league park.

"I simply got over my crave for the game and went to work to build a nest egg," he said in commenting upon his drifting from the national pastime.

"I suppose I have done better than some of the fellows who tried to hang on as coaches and other jobs," Koenig explained as he pointed to a green garden and a yard filled with chickens.

Koenig's career reached its height in 1887-88 when the Browns completed in two championship series. Charley Comiskey, now owner of the Chicago White Sox, was captain of that team.

In the 1887 series, Koenig, then but a youth, fancied his height in 1887-88 when the Browns completed in two championship series. Charley Comiskey, now owner of the Chicago White Sox, was captain of that team.

DANCING

JUDITH

COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 WITH GRANT, beautiful model, shares her Green-Village apartment with MISSA MORLEY, known as "Chummy," a beautiful girl who her memory seven years ago her lover, ALAN STEYNE, mysteriously disappeared. Steyne back on the scene and Judy arranges a meeting with him, but Chummy fails to recognize her former lover. Steyne, meanwhile, tells Judy that she no longer loves him, instead he calls freely on Judith, and finally he declares that he loves her. Judith spurns him, and refuses to let him provide medical care for her, whose mental condition she returns home to find her radiant with happiness. She tells her that she has learned that Alan has returned.
 GO ON WITH THE STORY
 was a miracle. Judy could believe her eyes or her Chummy had mentioned

Alan Steyne's name. She had spoken it for the first time since Judy had known her.

Moreover, there was a difference in her face. Something had come into it that Judy had never seen—a brightness, a shining beauty, which made it look in its frail pallor as if it were illumined by a flame from within.

Judy could only marvel as she hung over the bed. Chummy's memory had come back! This illness had been a blessing in disguise.

Judy was beside herself with excitement. Only the instinct of her loyal little heart made her say and do the right thing. She might have made irreparable mistakes in those first moments; but she just listened to Chummy's voice, with that new note in it—the tender note of the woman talking about the man she loves.

"You never knew Alan, did you, Judy?" It is funny, I should have dreamed about him just now. Something queer must have happened to me. I seem to have forgotten a lot of things. He went away long ago—I think it was long ago. We were awfully poor, you know. He was wonderfully clever, but he never got on; and he couldn't wait, you see. It's awfully hard waiting—when you're a man."

"Oh, Chummy, and this—this was your own particular boy?" asked Judy in a trembling voice. "I was awfully fond of him, Judy, and—I think he was awfully fond of me," said the low voice; "but I never heard from him. I think I must have forgotten him for quite a time, but just now I had this dream, and it was so clear and real! Alan looked quite different, and so much better and stranger, but it was Alan, and he had come back."

"I expect that means he will, Chummy," said Judy decidedly. "I always thought there was a lot in dreams; but now you go to sleep, or you'll be getting tired. If your young man's coming back, you must be quite well and strong." Chummy turned on her pillow and looked at her friend.

"Judy, tell me, is there anything the matter with me?" she asked in a voice of utter bewilderment. "I really do feel queer. Do I look any—any different?"

Judy laughed merrily.

"Chummy's got her memory back, Bastien. She dreamed Alan Steyne had come back."

"Well, you look prettier than I ever saw you, darling! I call it worth while being ill. Perhaps you had lost your memory a bit—such funny things happen—and it's coming back to you all of a sudden; but don't worry, whatever you do. Go to sleep now and dream about your Alan again, and I'll make you some tea."

Chummy seemed to be satisfied. She was still very weak, and she fell into a comfortable doze.

Judy went to make the tea over the gas ring in her box in the attic. While the kettle came to a boil, she stood lost in profound thought.

Chummy's memory had come back! A picture rose before Judy's mind of the night when Alan Steyne had really returned—when Chummy had smiled her baby smile at him, and looked at him without recognition, and with complacent vacancy, had called him a handsome boy and a nice boy.

When Chummy was strong again, she would be like everybody else. The next time she saw Alan Steyne she would know him. Judy was overjoyed. No personal consideration would ever disturb her loyalty to her friend.

Alan Steyne was Chummy's property. Now that she would know him, and still loved him, he must prove his faith and marry her at once. Through her brain, filled with the mists of forgetfulness, his image had already struggled, though she believed she had seen him only in a dream.

Judy's next thought was to consult Doctor O'Shane. The nurse had come back, and Chummy was settled for the night. Judy saw the doctor in his office. She told him her great news, and he expressed approval of her conduct. Nothing must be hurried, he said.

He is going to Paris."

"To Paris!" "Yes—some business or other. This old collector he was secretary to left some pictures to the Louvre and the Luxembourg, and there's some dispute that Steyne has to settle."

"It's a good thing," Judy said. "I do want Chummy to be quite well when she sees him again. Of course, he's been inquiring for her, and it would be difficult to have to explain it all. Oh, Bastien, isn't it wonderful?"

But the young man's face was gloomy. "You can take enough interest in other people's love affairs," Bastien said. "Oh, Judy, you'll drive me mad!"

"Don't be absurd, Bastien," she answered, with the straight, kind look that she always had for him. "Let me tell you a discovery I've made, old boy. Clara Jenks is crazy about you!"

He gave an impatient exclamation, which caused the girl to continue with a touch of mischief: "It's perfectly true, Bastien. I tell you that girl's a duck and a brick, and one of the very best; and, mark my words, one day she'll be a star. Anyone who could make me laugh as she did while Chummy lay dying is simply bound to be famous! And yet all the time her heart was bursting with misery, just like mine. Bastien, if Clara loves you as much as I think she does, you're a lucky chap—indeed you are!"

"Judy, stop it!" was all he answered. "You're mocking me."

It was February—a soft day of mist and sudden warmth with just a shimmer of green upon the trees in the parks, as if carelessly brushed on, but by an unerring hand.

Judy stood with Alan Steyne in Chummy's room, which was furnished up as far as their slender resources allowed, and bright with spring flowers, contributed almost blossom by blossom by the "boys" of the Cafe Turc as tokens of their joy at Chummy's recovery.

"Chummy's out," Judy said. "She is quite well again, and her memory has come back. I tried to write to tell you in Paris, but it was too difficult. She dreamed about you first, but it must have been in her mind that she had seen you. She—she loves you awfully. O'Shane told me I wasn't to hurry her memory; but I've been telling her that I believe in dreams, and I know she thinks you're coming back."

Steyne looked perplexed and troubled.

"Judy," he said, "it is no good. It's only asking for trouble. It's much better to let her know at once that I never cared for her like that. Judy, you know it's no good!"

Suddenly he stopped. There were footsteps outside. Judy had said that Chummy was out and would not come back until late. She was meeting a relative with whom she had communicated something had happened during Chummy's illness to break down the blank wall of forgetfulness.

Judy went on to the Cafe Turc. Dan, the long, lean waiter with the face of a Roman emperor and the sunny tenor voice, was the first person to whom she imparted her splendid news.

"Dan, Miss Morley is ever so much better. And what do you think?—she's got her memory back again! When you see her again she'll be her old self, just like you and me!"

Bastien Dumont was late in looking in that night. Judy had almost given him up, and she was frowning with the irritation of having to bottle up her feelings—which, after all, Bastien would understand better than anyone else, because he was Chummy's oldest friend among the crowd.

When she told him, she threw it at him like a bomb.

"Chummy's got her memory back, Bastien. She dreamed Alan Steyne had come back; and she looks—well, I can't tell you how she looks. I never saw anyone like her! So now, you see, it's going to be all right. They'll meet, and Chummy will know him, and they'll be married and live happily ever after!"

Bastien's eyes kindled as they rested on her eager face. He had been nursing miserable, jealous thoughts about Steyne lately. He had seen Judy with him; he knew that they had been out together the night that Chummy was taken ill. There could be nothing in it, after all. Judy could never talk like this if she had a spark of feeling for Steyne herself.

He expressed his delight, and drank to Chummy's health. Then he said:

"I saw Steyne this afternoon.

He is going to Paris."

"To Paris!" "Yes—some business or other. This old collector he was secretary to left some pictures to the Louvre and the Luxembourg, and there's some dispute that Steyne has to settle."

*In the U. S. Public Health Reports of 1923, Volume 38, Page 1271, we find the following: "Among short men less than 5 feet 7 inches in height an excess (in weight) of 20% involves an added mortality of 30% above normal. A 40% excess adds 80% to the mortality." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. ### Wanamaker Heir Is Wed Descendant of a famous family of merchants, Rodman Wanamaker 2d is shown above with the former Alexandra Van Rensselaer Devereaux of Oreland, Pa., after their wedding at Whitmarsh, Pa. Young Wanamaker, who is a grandson of the late John Wanamaker, is an aviation enthusiast and recently assisted in the organization of the New York air police force. The bride made her debut in Philadelphia society in 1928.

EEL PASO, Tex., June 19.—Mistaken identity was believed today responsible for the fatal shooting of Antonio Visconti, Juarez bartender, at Juarez last night. Visconti was shot seven times, according to police, by William Meers. Meers' only statement after slaying was: "I wanted to kill him." He is held in jail at Juarez. Officers said they believed Meers thought the bartender was Manuel Villareal, train robber and bandit, wanted here for the murder of Meers' father, William J. Meers, former El Paso train clerk.

MILCH GOAT INDUSTRY

GROWING IN TEXAS
The milk goat industry in Texas is steadily growing, according to P. W. Hunt, of Fort Worth, President of the Texas Milk Goat Breeders' Association, and the annual exhibit at the State Fair of Texas, which will be one of the features of the third annual Southwest Dairy Show, is expected to show a decided increase in the number of breeders as well as the number of users of milk goats.

The industry is one of the most unique in the entire State as its growth is being conducted in a large measure by invalids who have been put on a goat milk diet and who continue on the diet after they have been cured. Most of the breeders in Texas believe more in the restorative qualities of goat milk than they do in medicine.

One of the features of the annual exhibit at the State Fair is the dispensing of goat milk to visitors at the exhibit. The purebred goats on exhibit must be milked daily and this milk is distributed in glassful quantities to visitors at the Fair.

GEORGIA "INSURRECTION" CASE REACHED AT ATLANTA

By FOSTER EATON

United Press Staff Correspondent
ATLANTA, June 19.—A legal battle involving the demand of the state for the lives of two white women, two white men, two negroes, indicted under an ancient Georgia statute against "attempt to incite insurrection," was reached on the docket of Fulton County Superior Court today.

The defendants are affiliated with the left wing communistic labor movement in America, which has swung south coincident with the comparatively recent thrust to unionize industry of the south-east.

The frank insistence of the defendant's program for racial equality between whites and blacks injected an element into their cases which their counsel admitted might prove a major, initial stumbling block here.

Prosecution of the cases is led by John H. Hudson, assistant solicitor general of Fulton County, told the United Press he would go early in his investigations demand the death penalty for every communist who came into the county "publicly preaching violent opposition to the state."

Defense counsel is led by William A. McClelland, Macon, one of the south's leading trial lawyers; Oliver C. Hancock, Atlanta; Claude Moore, Atlanta, and E. Sokolov, Atlanta. Preparation of the defense was aided by the International Labor Defense and the American Civil Liberties Union.

The defendants are Mary Dalton, Ann Hulback, M. H. Powers, Joe Carr, Henry Story and Gilmer Brady, charged with "circulating insurrectionary papers for the purpose of inciting insurrection, riot, conspiracy and combined resistance against the lawful authority of the state of Georgia."

Indictment of the six charged that their intent in circulating the alleged insurrectionary literature, was "to abolish, defeat and overthrow by acts of violence the lawful authority of the state of Georgia."

Story and Brady are negroes. Literature specifically mentioned in the indictment included the "Communist Manifesto" of Karl Marx, published in 1848. Incidentally, a copy of this was found on the shelves of Atlanta

Public Library by defense investigators, who also discovered it was a required text in a course in economics at Emory University, in De Kalb county.

Sporadic protests against indictment of the defendants have occurred in the south in recent weeks, notably at Memphis, where four persons, including a Southern University professor, were jailed on charges of disturbing the peace. It was alleged the Memphis meeting was to have discussed racial equality, and to have advanced a negro for governor of Tennessee.

Defense counsel admitted to the United Press they were skeptical about gaining an acquittal in Fulton county, but said they were building their cases with a view of appealing to the Supreme Court of the United States if necessary.

Solicitor Hudson, on the other hand, was equally confident of gaining conviction and of sustaining the verdict through the highest courts. He admitted Georgia had "the stiffest law" in this respect, and frankly suggested that "before any more communists come down here they might better investigate our statutes."

The law in question was first enacted in post Civil War days, and under it one, John T. Gibson, a free person of color, a preacher, was convicted and sentenced to death in 1868 for allegedly encouraging his congregation to attempt the rescue of one, Charles Fryer, from jail.

Gibson appealed, and in 1869 the state supreme court reversed the verdict of the lower court,

Chief Justice Joseph Holt holding "we have come to the conclusion penalty applies only guilty of attempting and not to one tempting to incite."

Two years later "incite" was made a

With The Majors

Eight of the sixteen major league baseball clubs today were counting upon the return of injured players and the addition of athletes secured in recent trades to provide strength for the second half of the 1930 pennant race.

Most of the stars were expected to be back in uniform before the halfway mark is reached, July 4.

Al Simmons, Philadelphia outfielder, got back in the game yesterday and helped the Athletics defeat Cleveland, 7 to 2. The victory increased Philadelphia's American League lead to 1-1/2 games and dropped the Indians from second to fourth place.

Pittsburgh lost a 4 to 3 decision to New York in the only other scheduled game, but the Pirates took renewed hopes in the news that Lloyd Waner had been discharged from the hospital and would be ready to play.

The Giants won the game with a 3-run attack in the seventh but it took an unassisted double play by Hughie Critz to check a Pirate rally in the ninth.

Brooklyn's Robins, National League leaders, opened their western invasion today encouraged by the prospects of shortstop Glenn Wright returning to the lineup. Wright, "sparkplug" of the club, has been on the bench for the past 10 days.

Other National League stars slated for early return include Rogers Hornsby of the Cubs and Frankie Friscl, Ernest Orsatti and Chick Hufey of the Cardinals.

Hornsby was expected to be out for the season with a fractured ankle but now hopes to be ready to play early next month.

The Cardinals also count on Burleigh Grimes to aid their pennant fight.

Washington appears to have fared best in last night's American League swaps, securing outfielder Manush and pitcher Crowder from St. Louis and first baseman Art Shires from Chicago.

FACTORS IN FARMING

By CECIL OWEN
United Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON, June 19—The American farmer is the most efficient grower in the world.

Studies by the Farm Management division of the U. S. Agriculture Department have revealed the vital role being played by machinery in present-day farming. While farm acreage and population have decreased substantially in the past decade, production is greater than ever.

In the past half century the average acreage of improved farm land per farm worker has increased from about 30 to nearly 50 acres. Farm hands, who in the day of the grain cradle could cultivate only 30 acres, are now able to handle more than half as much grain.

At the same time the value of machinery on farms has increased nearly ten times, or from $270,000 in 1870 to more than $2,666,000,000 in 1925. There is still ample room, however, in the opinion of agriculture experts, for improvement in the efficiency of the American farmer.

Not all farms are adapted to the extensive use of labor-saving machinery as the cost of the machinery may more than outweigh the added efficiency gained in the case of small farms or those whose land is hilly.

Agriculture exports of the United States continued to decline during April, according to a study just published by the Agriculture Department. The index, based on 44 of the principal farm products, amounted to 65.

With the exception of July a year ago, this was the lowest on record since 1915. All commodities contributed to the April decline with the single exception of tobacco, exports of which were higher than for the same month of the two preceding years.

MEXICO CITY, June 19.—A Mexican commercial agency to promote business between the northern section of the Republic and Texas is soon to be opened in El Paso, according to an official announcement.

OIL NEWS

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 19—Ector county oil producers will ask the state railroad commission to institute proration in the Penn pool, according to a decision made at a meeting here Wednesday. The basis of regulation and control would be left to the commission, representatives of the Penn operators voted. Supporters of the plan pointed out that present yield from more than 20 producers exceeds available pipe line outlet and that at least one company now is being forced to store oil.

CANTON, Tex., June 19—The L. G. Priest well on the Blanche Blewett tract four miles south of here was expected to be spudded in today. Drilling will start soon on the B. P. Hervey lease block surrounding the old Bethel cemetery, nine miles south.

ODESSA, Tex., June 19—Skelly Republic's No. 1 McKenzie in the Penn pool was drilling at 3,565 feet today with 1,900 feet of oil in the hole. It is a south offset to the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil No. 1. One of the best producers in the field, Cosden's Klob, No. 2, flowed 400 barrels of oil in 15 hours after it came in this week.

CHICAGO, June 18—The fact that Mrs. Caroline Czarnecki, buxom blonde, was being held today on a charge of disorderly conduct just goes to prove how easy it is to fool men—policemen included.

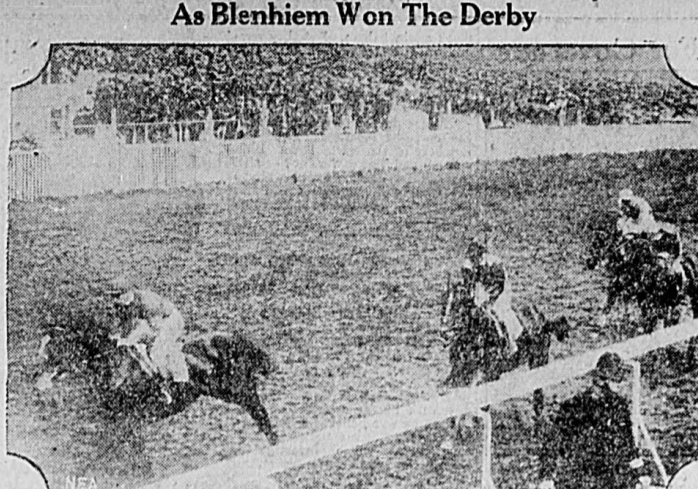

Four officers drove up to Mrs. Czarnecki's residence and sought audience with her in regard to a tenant's complaint that she had threatened a beating in a rent argument.

"She's no lady," growled Hynes, crawling from under the porch after Mrs. Czarnecki exhausted her ammunition and was subdued with tear bombs.

"Very well, madam, don't let us disturb you—we'll wait," replied Hynes.

Then the door opened and out stepped Mrs. Czarnecki, revolver in hand.

"Best it, you huns," she screamed and let fly a fusillade that scattered the policemen.

FIGHT

HARMFUL GUM

If you want a fast, clean, smooth engine—don't make it fight harmful gum.

Use Koolmotor Gasolene—a powerful, clean burning motor fuel from which harmful gum has been removed.

Inferior or carelessly refined gasolenes deposit a sticky, gummy substance on your valves. When you step on the gas for more power, your valves have to fight to get free—your engine labors—valuable compression is lost.

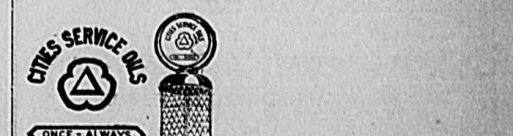

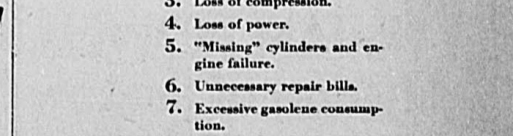

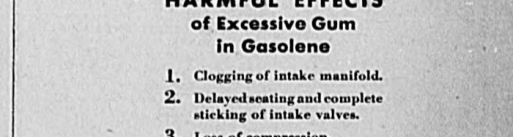

Through extra refining and rigid supervision—known as the Cities Service mini-gum process—the gum content in Koolmotor gasolene has been reduced to a harmless minimum. Valves are kept clean—power kept at its maximum—your engine responds promptly to your desire when you use Koolmotor—the original high test, anti-knock green gas.

Don't pay the impending penalty of gum in gasolene. Keep your tank full of Koolmotor Gasolene. The nearest Cities Service station or dealer is waiting to serve you.

Mystery Shrouds—

College Point were released when Miss Ring failed to identify them. All night the 2,000 policemen kept vigil in Queens as terrified residents of the section barred their doors. Every ruse known to experienced detectives was utilized. Policemen, wearing women's coats with high fur collars, sat with drawn pistols in automobiles expecting any moment to be confronted by the maniac.

Police Commissioner Murooney believes the man worships at the shrine of some strange deity that has commanded him to kill whenever he encounters a man and a girl sitting in a parked automobile.

Return this money spared five other people, the letter said, including a woman slated for death, but the Journal note contained the following listed as a warning to seven others:
"NJ CCK 2 33 AV 3X ROS 4-MLT RP49 6."

In telling of the saving of the third victim the note said:
"W. R. Y. of C. P. has returned the Philadelphia X346 to me tonight after reading your paper—also 37,000 dollars of the black-mail money—thanks to God—if I may use his name. The following document still is missing—N. J. 4-3-44—and 39,000 dollars for this document the following people still are marked for death."

The note then listed in code the seven victims the maniac still wants to kill.

The letters came to the Journal while scores of police searched the Boston Road in the Bronx section searching for the body that the maniac slayer previously had written about.

"Who is X8 W-9. He is already dead," said the first letter that came after police had patrolled "Petters" lanes all night long fearing the slayer might try to fulfill his threat of death as he had in the killings of John Moyznski and Noel Sowley.

The second letter to the Journal today discussed Miss Catherine May and Miss Betty Ring, companions of the two men already killed.

Then this second letter adds: "Sorry for them that's a black mark against them. But they never will find out who I am. One word from me means death or a long term to state or federal penitentiary. Again thank you for your kindness.

"Please do not forget to publish the enclosed message, also the numbers of those who have been spared and those who are still marked for death. I will wait to see what will happen. I will not shoot until they decide their fates themselves."

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, who has been personally conducting the search for the slayer, said he did not believe the slayer wrote the letter saying the third victim was dead.

He said the handwriting did not appear the same as those in previous notes sent to the newspaper.

After receipt of today's first letter from a noted carefully on the death of Alfred Eling, 51, who was found dead in Bronxville today with his head severed. Although he was believed a suicide—having been found beside a railroad track—police investigated, fearing it might have been the third victim.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Police were convinced today that a maniac who considers it his moral obligation to commit 16 murders is roaming the metropolis at large and already has killed two men.

He has threatened in a letter to a newspaper to strike again tonight at College Point unless he receives some "important papers," which seem to exist only in his disordered mind.

Noel Sowley, a 26-year-old radio salesman was shot to death, as he sat in an automobile with a girl, is the latest victim of the man who refers to himself as "3-X, the man behind the gun." Sowley's body was discovered yesterday in a sparsely settled section of Queens. On the lap of the dead man was a newspaper clipping describing the killing of Joseph Moyznski, whose body was found a week ago in a parked automobile at Whitestone, Queens. The murderer of Sowley had pencilled this grim toast on the margin of the clipping:
"Here's Low."

All the elements that go to make up detective fiction were present in the murders that were so singularly similar. Besides the "missing papers" and the coded letters to the New York Journal, two beautiful girls are involved.

They are Miss Catherine May and Miss Elizabeth Ring. The former was Moyznski's cousin, who he was killed and the latter was Sowley's companion. Detectives surmised that the maniac considered himself as an avenging force whose duty it was to kill the escorts of young women whenever he found a couple in a parked automobile.

The account that Miss Ring told police was similar in almost every respect to that related by Miss May. Neither could furnish an adequate description of the killer.

Yesterday the Journal received this letter, the third of the series:
"You have not published the code message sent you—too bad—for your information there is more work for the police now. Tonight at 11 p. m. Sowley was bumped off near Floral Park—and not very far away from the police station. You will find him near an auto junk pile. We have selected this night to do it as Moyznski was buried today. This is our second warning. Thirteen more men and a woman will go the same way if they do not return two of the missing papers. The New York document was found on Sowley last night and also some of our money as in the case of Miss C. May. I advise you to publish the code messages for tomorrow one more will go. You may let them know that 3-X is the man behind the gun. He is the man behind the gun. He

"Bootleg" liquor may be pretty high priced in this section but at that it isn't much higher than water when you have to pay $3 minimum rate.

Just as we were fixing to gripe in this column about the accumulation of dirt and oil along the curb on the "square," the city starts a crew of men to work removing the stuff. We were all tuned up to gripe, however, and we are going to do it. This filth should have been removed months ago. It gets people's automobile tires dirty.
