Ranger Girl Asked To Writers' Session

DENTON, Feb. 24.—A special invitation has been extended to Miss Mary Rose O'Neill, daughter of Mrs. James O'Neill of Ranger, to attend all sessions of the Writers' Conference to be held at Texas State College for Women Feb. 27 through March 4. A limited number of students at the college who are interested in the technique of writing will take part in the meeting, which has been called the "outstanding literary event in the Southwest this spring."

Eastland Youth On Fine Arts Program

Leslie Cook of Eastland was presented on a Fine Arts program at John Tarleton College in Stephenville when the club met recently. Cook sang one number. It was "Tell Me Not of a Lovely Lass."

McCALL GOES TO HIS DEATH FOR KIDNAPING

By United Press RAIFORD, Fla., Feb. 24.—Franklin Pierce McCall, 21-year-old preacher's son, died in the electric chair today for the kidnap-murder of James Bailey Cash, Jr., a South Florida youngster. McCall died in the execution chamber of the State Prison Farm. His last hope of escaping the death penalty had vanished when justices of the U. S. Supreme Court and the U. S. Circuit Court had declined to intervene. McCall, however, had seemed confident to the end that he would not pay with his life for the kidnap-slaying of the little boy, with whom he used to play and take fishing. Only when a guard called to him to come and did McCall show emotion. Quickly, however, he straightened up, half smiled and started the death march, 10 steps from his cell to the chair. At 10:45 a. m. sheriff D. C. Coleman read the death warrant to McCall. He was taken into the death chamber a few minutes after 11 o'clock and the switch was thrown at 11:08. He was pronounced dead at 11:15 a. m.

BAIRD LIGHT CASE AFFIRMED BY HIGH COURT

Judgment of the trial court which held valid an election at Baird which resulted in favoring of a proposal voting $163,000 in bonds to construct a municipal electric light and power plant was affirmed Friday by the 11th Court of Civil Appeals. It was understood the case would be appealed to the Supreme Court of Texas. It was styled T. E. Powell et al. vs. City of Baird, et al. In the trial court the city won and the plaintiffs appealed to the Eastland court, charging certain citizens were denied suffrage because they did not possess city poll taxes.

Three Communities Hear Plans For An Electrical Program

A large group of rural residents met in the Oakley schoolhouse Wednesday night to hear plans for the Rural Electrification Administration program for the Colony-Oakley-Bullock area discussed by Mr. Patterson, a representative of the REA. He was accompanied by Mr. Lacey, county agent of Stephens County, and H. C. Wilkinson of Ranger. The project contemplated is a part of the Comanche Country REA program, which is being extended over all of Eastland County. It was stated at the meeting that a line had been approved to a point two miles north of Colony and this line could be extended through the other two communities. Requirements for a power line include an average of three customers to the mile, it was stated. Light rates were quoted at $2.45 for the first 27 kilowatts, 6 cents for the next 25 kilowatts, 4 cents for the next 50 kilowatts and 2 1/2 cents for the next 100 kilowatts. Everyone at the meeting was highly enthusiastic over the opportunity to have electric service extended to the farming area, it was stated today by Wilkinson.

Hopkins To Urge Business Confidence

By United Press DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 24.—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins will hold out the new deal's olive branch to business in his first major speech as a cabinet member tonight. The speech will be broadcast over an international hookup to the United States, South America and Europe from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., CST.

Oil Taxes Over West Central Texas Have Increased

DALLAS, Feb. 24.—Reduced oil production, coupled with increased ad valorem tax levies, boosted the average tax per barrel of oil produced in the West Central Texas district last year to 11.1 cents, an increase of 0.2 cents per barrel over the already higher than average rate prevailing in 1937, according to a regional oil tax survey recently completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association. Nine counties in West Central Texas contributed last year in State and local taxes $678,380 on oil production aggregating 6,108,047 barrels. While oil production declined nearly 625,000 barrels last year, tax levies increased more than $58,000. Loss of markets to other states, particularly Illinois where the tax levied on oil producers is less than two cents per barrel, caused a seven per cent decline in Texas oil production last year. This, in combination with increased ad valorem tax levies, boosted the average oil tax in Texas to 9.3 cents per barrel, an increase over 1937 of nearly one cent per barrel. West Central Texas oil operators contributed heavily to the increase in Texas oil taxes last year and at the same time sustained a substantial share of the loss in production of Texas oil caused by competitive factors, in which taxes are proving a serious handicap to oil operators in this section of the State. As it is, West Central Texas oil operators are now paying a substantially higher oil tax rate per barrel of production than the average for the State, despite the fact that 96 per cent of the producing wells in this region are in the high-cost stripper class. Last year, the daily average production from more than 8,400 wells was only two barrels per well.

Ranger Bible Class To Visit Eastland Class Next Sunday

The Men's Bible Class of the First Methodist Church, Ranger, will visit the 9:49 Class in Eastland Sunday. Judge Seaberry is teacher of the class in Eastland, and a pleasant, as well as a profitable, visit is expected. The Ranger class plans to meet at the First Methodist Church early enough to leave for Eastland at 9:15 a. m. It is hoped that most of the members of the Ranger class will be able to make this visit. Other men who may wish to make the trip are cordially invited to go along. Most of the members are planning to return to Ranger for the church services after the Sunday School period. It is believed that there will be plenty of cars to take all who wish to make the trip.

Olden Seniors Have Class Entertainment

Misses Mary Lois Robertson and Ella Mae Fidler entertained the Senior Class members and other invited guests Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Vermillion, with a George Washington birthday party. Several games were played and contests held. Evelyn McMinn, May Edna Ward, Rex and Ray Howell, were prize winners. The red, white and blue motif was carried out in the refreshments. Those attending were: Christine Holt, Jack Fidler, Norma Jeanne Supulver, Evelyn McMinn, Ray Howell, Rex Howell, June Edwards, Jiggs Fowler, Adra Lee Fox, Louise Baggott, Margaret McClarney, James Robertson, Marjorie Witt, Christine Wilkerson, Gene Carter, June Graves, Bob Collins, May Edna Ward, Doris Langston, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Scruggs, Mary Lois Robertson, Ella Mae Fidler, Mrs. Frank Fidler, Vela Grace Vermillion, Nita Holt, and Mr. and Mrs. Vermillion.

Ranger Girl Is On Baylor Debate Team

Avis McKelvain of Ranger, student at Baylor University, was on the winning debate team in the senior women's division, at Norman, Okla. Her teammate was Helen Neeley. They defeated a team from Oklahoma City University. Forty-five colleges, represented by 114 teams from eight states, participated in the first mid-west forensic tournament, sponsored by the Delta Sigma Rho fraternity, national debating fraternity.

German Taxes Are Greatly Increased

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—Drastic tax increases, hitting rich and middle class alike, were decreed by the German government today, apparently as part of the belt-tightening program of the five-year plan. An official commentary, accompanying the law, said that some of the increases were designed as social measures to iron out existing inequalities between rich and poor and that others were matters of "simple necessity." Under the new law the average middle class German will pay approximately $40 a year more in income taxes, while the higher income tax brackets will be hit much harder.

Richberg Expected To Make Demands

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 24.—Government leaders believed today that Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator of the United States, would make sweeping demands when he arrives Thursday to confer with President Lazaro Cardenas on the oil expropriation question. It was understood that Richberg had been delegated to represent all of the United States oil companies, whose properties were seized by the Mexican government last March 18, except the Sinclair interests.

Cattlemen See More Imports To State From Mexico

By United Press EL PASO, Feb. 24.—West Texas cattlemen today credited high cattle prices and a stimulated demand for an apparent increase of cattle imports from Mexico. Border places reported a "fair to heavy" movement of cattle from Mexico. A total of 49,351 cattle has been checked through the U. S. Customs office in El Paso from Mexico since Jan. 1. In addition 5,633 cattle have been placed in bonded pastures until the April 1 quota is re-opened. The quota of 60,000 cattle for the first quarter of 1939 was filled on Feb. 1. Numerous buyers from the west and middle-west were in El Paso today, unable to buy beef from southwest ranges.

WALLACE SEES EVILS IN CROP PRICE SETTING

By United Press WASHINGTON, D. C.—Agriculture Department officials have begun a campaign to head off enactment of any farm program which would provide for dumping of American farm surpluses abroad. Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace is leading an administration counter-drive against domestic allotment plans calling for price-fixing. Several midwestern congressmen of both parties are sponsoring them. The administration strategy appears to be to cling to the present farm program, for 1939, at least. Minor administrative amendments will be approved, but any major changes will be opposed, Wallace has announced. Recent speeches and statements by Wallace and his chief administrative aids have been directed at what they consider to be the vulnerable spots of price-fixing schemes. Wallace has warned that they would result in a "chaotic farm situation." Briefly, the domestic allotment plan would provide that the secretary of agriculture establish a fair price for farm products for home consumption and permit the remainder of unlimited production to be dumped abroad at whatever price it would bring. Administration opponents of the plan assert that it would lead to unprecedented regimentation of agriculture and distributors and to certain failure. The cost to the government, they argue, would not be prohibitive. Establishment of a fair price, or cost of production, on products for home consumption would entail a complicated formula giving each farmer a quota on which the government would guarantee him a certain price based on his costs. Proponents of the plan differ as to whether the government would require processors to pay that price or the government would allow products to be sold at market prices and make up the difference by direct subsidy payments. Administration officials object most strenuously to dumping features of the plan. It calls for the sale abroad of all products not needed at home for whatever price they would bring. Such a plan, Wallace said, could not succeed. Importing countries would raise their tariffs or would exclude unwanted surpluses through quotas or embargoes, he said. R. M. Evans, Agricultural Adjustment Administrator, said dumping would lead to "retaliation and trade wars." It would result, he said, in excessively high costs to American consumers and the passing of bargains over the counter to foreign consumers. "Every bushel of wheat or bale of cotton or pound of lard that moves into export trade at a price less than it actually costs to produce in labor, capital and soil fertility is an absolute loss—never to be recovered," Evans said. "That is the final weakness of any farm philosophy that encourages dumping."

Polish Students Demonstrate At Nazi Embassy

By United Press WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 24.—Thousands of Polish students rioted in the streets of Warsaw today in the largest anti-German demonstration since Poland and Germany signed a non-aggression agreement five years ago. More than 2,000 students attempted to march on the German embassy after mass meetings at four Warsaw universities and colleges. Speakers bitterly attacked German policy. Police reserves were called out when the meeting broke up and the students began to march through the streets. A cordon of police was thrown around the embassy. Firemen were summoned and the students were driven back with fire hoses.

WEST TEXAS—Partly cloudy to cloudy tonight and Saturday. Somewhat colder in north and west portions tonight.

TWO JUNIOR COLLEGES MAY BE RE-RANKED

By United Press AUSTIN, Feb. 24.—A bill to increase two state junior colleges at Arlington and Stephenville to four-year ranking, was finally passed today by the Texas house of representatives after debate that threatened, once, to cause a fight between members. Vote on the final passage to the senate was 82 to 59. The house, overnight, reversed its attitude on the bill concerning North Texas Agricultural College and John Tarleton College. Yesterday members had voted to postpone consideration of the matter until March 27. The postponement was reconsidered today despite sponsors by opponents that the bill's sponsors had "traded" votes with disinterested members. During the argument a near-fight arose when Rep. Bose Rieder of Stephenville, rushed toward Rep. Robert H. Wood of Marshall, the chief opponent of the bill, after Wood declared that passage of the measure would react against state teachers colleges when bills affecting them come before house committees. However Sergeant-at-Arms Ernest Boyett stepped between the two representatives and decorum of the house was restored within a few moments and the bill finally passed.

TWELVE DUE TO LEAVE, PUSH CITY INVITATION

Henry Pullman, commander of the Eastland American Legion post, announced Friday that approximately 12 members of the organization will leave Saturday to attend the 17th district legion convention at Sweetwater and seek to secure the next meeting. The next meeting will be in three months. The program will open at 4:00 o'clock Saturday with a reception for registered members, at Musicians Post 333, with headquarters in the old Orient station building. Saturday night the group will be honored with a dance on the roof of the Blue Bonnet hotel from 9 to 12 p. m. Sunday's program will start with a band concert in the lobby of the Blue Bonnet. Church services, conducted by national chaplain, will be held at 11 o'clock. The place has yet to be designated. Luncheon at 12:15 on the hotel roof will be featured by an address by Vincent Chiodo, Houston, State American Legion commander. From 2 until 4, separate business sessions are to be held. Fred Parnell, Mineral Wells, District commander, will preside in the Legion meeting. Ed Riedel, 5th Division Commander is to be the principal speaker. Mrs. Mildred Beaty, Albany, District Executive committee-woman, will preside for the meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary. Addresses will be made by Mrs. W. A. Wyatt, San Marcos, State president of the Auxiliary; and Mrs. J. M. Merritt, Colorado, 5th District president. Geo. Barber is general chairman of arrangements. He will be assisted by the following committee chairman: Lester Turner, registration; H. A. Walker, reception; Phillip Younger, program; John Majors, entertainment; L. N. Geldert, dance; Ed F. Neinstadt, luncheon; Joe B. Routh, church service, and Lance Thompson, colors. Mrs. Lance Thompson is chairman of the auxiliary part of the convention. She will be assisted by Mrs. Rufus Arr. Mrs. Arnold Dressler, Mrs. M. E. Mitchell, and Mrs. Beulah Schoddy.

CROSBY RINGS UP ANOTHER HIT

A thoroughly satisfying bit of motion picture entertainment from every angle, is the new Bing Crosby comedy, "Paris Honeymoon," which opens at the Lyric Theatre Sunday.

It has actors, a brilliant, fast-moving story, good music and plenty of laughs, all skillfully blended by Frank Tuttle, who is responsible, among other things, for "Waikiki Wedding," "College Holiday," "Roman Scandals" and many other outstanding comedies with music.

Headed by the inimitable Bing himself — at his very best — the cast boasts of lovely Shirley Ross and Cecil B. DeMille's "find," Francisca Gaal, who demonstrates that besides being a wholly charming and beautiful young person, she is also a comedienne of no mean ability. Then there are

Ferdinand the Bull" in Eastland Today

WORLD'S MOST POPULAR BULL TO APPEAR ON LYRIC SCREEN TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Ferdinand, before January 1st was just an unheard of bull that was "too big to go anywhere" but on the first of the year Walt Disney heard that Ferdinand was different from other members of the Bull family in that he didn't like to fight, but preferred to set under a tree all day and smell flowers, so Disney took him to Hollywood and made a cartoon character out of him and today he is the number one Cartoon sensation of the world and is being mentioned for the 1939 Academy Award.

When interviewed the other day, Ferdinand said that he was glad of the chance to appear in Eastland today and Saturday in his technicolor hit, "Ferdinand The Bull."

"Sky Devils" Is "The Cock-Eyed World" Of The Air Topping Every Thing For Spectacle - Thrills - Laughs

"Sky Devils," the Howard Hughes production which opens Sunday at the Connellee theatre, is easily the laugh-sensation of the year.

More than that, it is the most spectacular production seen hereabouts in many months—its amazing air scenes unmatched since "Hell's Angels."

Here is a sure-cure for the hard times blues. No matter how depressed you might be, this slambang comedy of the air will lift you to roaring heights.

It amuses, it thrills, and at times it moves you with its down-to-earth and light-hearted romance. If ever a picture had everything —this is it. Literally and figuratively, "the sky was the limit" when Howard Hughes produced this one.

The same quality or rare comedy found in his "Two Arabian Knights" is contained in "Sky Devils"—and the air-thrills are as awe-inspiring as those in "Hell's Angels."

"Sky Devils" is the amusing and impertinent tale of three dare-devil American flyers, who violate every rule of war for a good time.

Spills, thrills, court-martials, and Richthofens flying circus—all are just part of the day's work in the lives of these carefree clowns of the air.

The "Sky Devils" are Spencer Tracy, William Boyd and George Cooper, and each gives an outstanding comedy characterization.

Put "Sky Devils" on your list of "musts"—whether you are young or old, male or female—you will enjoy every moment of this superlative entertainment.

Garfield Plays Strong Role In "They Made Me A Criminal" STAR OF "FOUR DAUGHTERS IN EXCITING NEW DRAMA AT LYRIC

Promoted to stardom in his second motion picture, John Garfield, who made his memorably triumphant debut in "Four Daughters," comes to the screen of the Lyric theatre today as the star of the vividly dramatic and exciting Warner Bros. picture entitled "They Made Me a Criminal," with the "Dead End" kids as his co-stars. The extent of the quick rise of this young newcomer from the New York stage can be easily gauged by the fact that he is given the starring position in a truly notable cast assembled by Warner Bros. for this production.

In his support are such players as Claude Rains, Gloria Dickson, Ann Sheridan and May Robson, while the lesser roles are handled by Robert Glecker, John Ridgley, Barbara Pepper, William Davidson, Ward Bond and Robert Strange, among others.

The screen play of "They Made Me A Criminal," which was written by Sig Herzig, was an adaptation of a popular novel by Bertram Millhauser and Beulah Marie Dix, but it would seem to have been tailored to young Garfield's measure.

In the motion picture, he is a professional prize fighter, and not many years ago Garfield himself was a pretty good fighter even though he never deserted the amateur ranks. In the picture he bums his way across the country and works as a fruit picker in California, and that is precisely what Garfield himself did one sum-

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday Susie has nearly finished her beauty program...

CHAPTER XVII
JEFF went back to the lay-out and Susie, in a series of graceful twirls...

Swen came to the piano with typewritten pages. His work was done. He had written instructions...

Left alone in the gymnasium Susie played for an hour, lovely melodies, popular numbers which she had picked up by ear...

ON the following morning Harker's beauty salon was a beehive of activity...

a plain little dress loaned by the Missus section, fresh, glowing, eyes dancing with expectancy...

Followed an exacting process. Susie stretched on a table, eyes tightly closed, gallantly suffered a forest of eyebrows to be removed...

SUSIE'S lunch was served in a dimly lighted room specially set aside for her. Like a mummy, swathed in white, she lay back on a chaise longue...

Jeff came in while she ate chicken breast and thick slices of tomato and thinly buttered toast...

"Oh, Jeff, they are practically killing me and I love it," Her voice had a thrilled undertone...

what you've done? I'll tell him—that's what I'll do. "We know, Jeff," she said softly...

"YOU'RE a great kid, Susie," he said huskily. "Get to be up and at it. No debutante on the day of her coming out ever got more attention."

He looked down at her. "I'll be hanging around," he promised. Susie's face was whisked away. She was taken to a light, corner room...

She was fitted and talked over, pins were placed in foundation garments to guard against even a wrinkle, the length of her skirt was debated...

Again Susie was laid on the table and the thrilling task of final makeup began. A girl sat on a stool beside the table putting the last finishing touches to her curls...

"Beautiful," the manicurist agreed. "Let me see," Susie begged. "After all it's my face."

Yesterday Susie is beautiful, the beautician says after their long work on her...

CHAPTER XVIII
THERE were no mirrors in the room. Susie waited for the first view of herself with the still excitement of a bride awaiting the first peel of her wedding march...

He removed the net and loosened deep waves. He spun soft curls around an expert finger, he tucked in hairpins, bringing the curls close to Susie's white neck...

Fascinated, Susie stared into the mirror. Shining hair, pale brown with golden lights, framed an oval face...

"Look-out," Emily exclaimed, rushing forward with a soft tissue. "Look-out," Pierre repeated. "Dry those tears, girl, or you will spoil everything."

SUSIE laughed shakily and the tears were gone. The clock said 3:30 and she was to be presented to Mr. Harker at 4. The linen apron disappeared, a hat was deftly fitted to her head...

"Ah—" sighed the milliner, "I know it—perfection." She was crowded aside by a young woman with a knee length coat that matched Susie's dress...

Gloves, finest suede, hand stitched, were slipped on Susie's hands, softly crushed at the wrists. Someone handed her a purse, suede again, like the shoes and gloves...

With every passing second Susie's nerves grew tenser. It was becoming difficult to swallow her eyes felt stiff, too wide open...

Someone said, "Mr. Kane is waiting." Someone opened the door. Then Susie, the prima donna, the debutante, Harker's sensation, turned on a temperamental fit...

But remorseance only added to Susie's nervous tension. Mr. Harker too was a stranger. She hadn't seen him for six weeks, she didn't want to see him...

"I'm frightened, Jeff," she quavered. "It isn't me—I can't find me. I want them to stop looking at me. My knees are going to crumple..."

and smiled confidently into her eyes. "You're swell, Susie," he said. It was the best possible line...

"Well, that's something," she managed to say. "Boy how you've turned the trick. You're a knockout, a double-barreled knockout..."

HER chin went up, courage took the place of shrinking fear. "Thanks, Mister," she smiled, and walked toward the door...

"Am I all right?" she asked in the manner of a little girl. If Edna could have whistled through her teeth she would have done so...

The department heads had gathered in the outer office to hear the first good word which meant work well done. Susie saw Swen and waved to him. He looked dazed, not even recognizing her...

Kane, who had been mentally reviewing a presentation speech which reflected much glory upon himself, drew back in dismay. "But Mr. Harker asked me to bring you," he objected.

Charles E. Barker Addresses Assembly of High School and Junior College
Recently, the high school and junior college were addressed by Charles E. Barker of Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Dr. Barker, physician to former student Taft was a very forceful speaker and held the students' attention almost all the time.

Dr. Barker gave three rules to follow in order to obtain and retain good health; they are as follows:

- 1. Drink eight to ten glasses of water each day.
2. Don't eat between meals.
3. Take ten minutes of exercise each day.

General Objectives of the Business Administration Department of Ranger Junior College

- 1. The general objectives of the business administration department of a college should be to develop in each student all of the following abilities to the maximum degree possible under existing college conditions.
2. The ability to deal effectively with people, especially those in business relationships.
3. The ability to use effective means of expression and communication including oral and written English, handwriting, typewriting, graphic methods of presentation, mathematical symbols and other means of expression and communication.
4. The ability to use effective tools required for acquiring further learnings, such as the use of reading, of studying, of reference books, and of constructive thinking-reasoning.
5. The ability to use effective social control agencies in his community.
6. The ability to understand sympathetically appreciate economic services rendered by common business and social control agencies of his community, especially as they are affected by their economic relationship with other parts of this country and other countries of the world.
7. The ability to conduct his business affairs more economically and satisfactorily.
8. The ability to manage the business affairs of any small organization (school, business, fraternal, religious, or civic) whose management he is responsible.
9. The ability to direct his own efforts efficiently in acquiring further business abilities as may be needed.
10. The ability to interpret his activities in terms of their social and economic significance.
11. The ability to successfully meet new situations arising in connection with his business activities.
12. The ability to adjust himself happily to the economic level of the kind of economic organization of society in which his producing abilities and life circumstances force him to live.

12. The ability to enjoy a wide variety of interests connected with economic activities and relationships.
13. The ability to select the particular kind of commercial occupation in which he can render satisfactory service.
14. The ability to render satisfactory service in some kind of commercial occupation which he knows how to locate and obtain.

The word, ABILITY is used in the comprehensive sense of including all the understandings, reasonings, habits, skill, mind sets, attitudes, ideals, and desirable emotional reactions necessary for and involved in the effective conduct of any activity.

Why I Go to Ranger Junior College

By Orvil Harrell, Sophomore
I go to Ranger Junior College because it is conveniently located, and I get along just fine.

The teachers and students do all they can to create a friendly atmosphere and to make the Ranger Junior College an institution worthy of the praise it has been given. There is no such thing as classes of students; we are all one class, and no one tries to get above it.

The Dramatics club, Science club, Spanish club, Talent club, and basketball attract the eye of any student. The Dramatics club affords a great opportunity for one to learn the fundamentals and technique of dramatics.

These are only a few reasons of the reasons why I go to Ranger Junior College.

(Editor's Note: This is the third of a series of articles written by the Junior College students on this subject.)

Reading From Reasoning

"Oliver Goldsmith," Mrs. Hunter began after she checked the roll in her Sophomore English Literature class, "is one of the important writers in the period of conventionalism in English literature. His most important poem is 'The Deserted Village'; his most important novel is 'The Vicar of Wakefield'; and his most important play is 'She Stoops to Conquer'."

While this interesting, "one-woman" discussion was taking place, the mind of each student was busy going over its own particular interests of the minute. Mary Louise Ervin was writing down her favorite recipe for cornbread. Beverly Dudley was busy writing a poem about lovely, brown eyes, and Joe Jane Griffith was idly wondering if she should write a news report about Mrs. Hunter's latest method of fixing her hair.

Mary Rayfield, in the beginning, had been listening to Mrs. Hunter; however, when Mrs. Hunter, novelist, Mary's mind wandered. Hunter said something about a off Mrs. Hunter's lecture into the last novel she had read. It was such a thrilling novel. A giant stole the beautiful daughter of a rich, old king and locked her up in a dungeon. Just at the end, a handsome knight, in shining armor dashed up on a wonderful, white horse and rescued the beautiful maiden.

Frank Clement, on the other hand had never listened to any of the lecture; in fact, he had never listened to any lecture since school started in the fall. Even if he had formed the habit of listening attentively, he would not have heard Mrs. Hunter on that particular day because he had just been over at the Recreation building looking at the new, college basketball suits, and he was really excited. They were beautiful! Wonderful! Swell-elegant! Killer-dillers! He had been so thrilled at the sight of them that he had completely forgotten to eat his lunch.

Frank spent the rest of the hour thinking of the lunch he hadn't eaten, and Mary Elizabeth Rayfield spent the time thinking of that marvelous novel she had read. She had found it in Fay Norris' book case; she wondered idly if Fay had any more like it. She would go look as soon as this class was over. Finally the hour and Mrs. Hunter's lecture ended, and the students rose to leave. Mary Rayfield turned to Frank and asked, "Don't you just love novels, Frank?"

Still thinking of his uneaten lunch, Frank answered, "I don't know I never did eat any."

Calling Station W-H-A-S
Written by Pickens Weaver, Freshman

The Republic Broadcasting company's building off Times Square in New York City looked cold and unimposing in the slow drizzle of the chill winter day.

Bob worked like a mad man now. He connected the wires and ran on to the pole. It was all connected right there. He sighed in relief as he looked at his watch, 6:53. He ran madly back toward the truck.

Jim, meanwhile had the equipment ready at the truck. He was praying silently that had the line to the poles.

He glanced at his watch, 6:54. He waited twenty seconds; then picked up the microphone. "W9XAR, somewhere in Kentucky, calling WHAS," he said over and over again. WHAS was to pick him up and send it to the network.

Then picking up the microphone, he coolly said, "Good evening ladies and gentlemen. Republic Broadcasting company brings you exclusively a description broadcast of the flood region of Kentucky from the very center of this stricken area. You would be horand belongings behind them, to be swept down the swollen "Father of Waters." Bob noticed that the telephone lines were sagging from the poles, and a few yards on he noticed they were down completely. Housestops were seen sticking up out of the water, people atop, some waiting for boats to rescue them.

They drove on a few more miles until the water covered the road. Here they stopped and both Bob and Jim got out of the truck. They put on their rubber hip-boots and started looking at their equipment.

"This looks like the place," said Jim. "I'll have to do," Bob replied, wondering if they would get through.

It was 5:45 p. m. then, an hour and fifteen minutes until time to go on the air.

Bob connected the equipment in the truck properly and then handed a wire to Jim saying, "Here, tie this wire to that fence over there," and grabbing a roll of wire, he started running up the road, following the fence. He yelled back, "We'll get through this time, and start calling at 6:55."

He followed the fence until it stopped and here he tied the wire and unrolled it until he came to another fence. He tied the wire to it and ran on up the road splashing water all over himself.

He glanced at his watch, 6:45! Ten more minutes to go. He ran as hard as he could. He saw the lines. But he also noticed another thing. The fence had ended and the wire he had would not reach the lines. Five more minutes. He looked at his wire and then to the lines. He needed another hundred feet of wire.

He thought of the chief, sitting by his radio, waiting for them to get through. Then, turning in despair with his head low, he started back slowly to the truck.

I am now viewing from atop our RBC truck. This area is completely cut off from the outside world. No way of transportation or communication except by radio.

"Debris and lumber from the wrecked houses are floating upon the rushing waters to be washed down the Mississippi. You people in New Orleans may find something that belongs in Kentucky on the shores of this old river tomorrow."

On and on he talked. Then Bob rushed up, panting for air. He immediately became silent when he saw that Jim was on the air. He went to the controls to regulate the sound of Jim's voice. When their time was nearly over, Jim was saying, "Good evening ladies and gentlemen, remember RBC, always first with the news."

"When, that's over!" he said. By this time it was dark. They disconnected the equipment and started back to New York. Bob led the wire that he needed so badly only a few minutes before.

When they arrived in New York, they went immediately to the office of the president. "Well, how was it, chief?" Jim asked. "Excellent," the chief replied. "Did you have any trouble getting through?" he asked Bob. "Chief, we came nearly missing the air by about one hundred feet," Bob laughed, not telling the chief of the real facts.

The guy who lectured New York subway riders on unemployment during the morning rush hour picked the psychological moment. They were probably all late to work.

Brandies Stood Like a Lighthouse as Tides Changed

Among the gravest necessities of government at the moment is the finding of a successor to Justice Brandeis on the U. S. Supreme Court who can approximately fill his shoes.

In integrity, in steadfast adherence to fundamental principles, Justice Brandeis has stood for more than 20 years like a great lighthouse unmoved by the currents and tides of American life which swirled about his feet.

Today it is interesting to note the comment on his passing from the active judicial scene, because some of the keenest and most obviously sincere regrets are being expressed in conservative quarters.

Yet when Brandeis was nominated to the court by Woodrow Wilson, a tremendous hue and cry went up from almost the same quarters which are now eulogizing his career.

Yet today, many of the same elements which fought him 20 years ago now realize his greatness and lament his retirement. Why?

Because Brandeis, with incorruptible and immovable firmness, has stood by his guns. Distrustful of great concentrations of power in the business world at the time of his appointment (and thus a "radical" in terms of 1916) Brandeis was equally distrustful of great concentrations of power in the governmental world in 1936 (and thus almost a conservative in terms of 1936).

His uncompromising stand for the personal liberty and dignity of the individual was a place of appeal for working men in 1916 against great business combinations which submerged them. Today the same regard for personal rights is a place of refuge for business men who feel submerged in swelling governmental power.

Brandeis once said: "An intolerant majority, swayed by passion or fear, may be prone in the future, as it has often been in the past, to stamp as disloyal opinions with which it differs."

One justice for all men, rich or poor—that stamps the great judge. Justice Brandeis has been a great judge, and the good wishes of many who once hated and feared him followed him into whatever fields of activity he chooses for his remaining years.

Choosing Brandeis was one of Woodrow Wilson's best public acts. To choose a worthy successor is one of Franklin Roosevelt's most pressing duties.

Question Box

The following item is instituted to search for the searching mind. It can either be applicable to those of school age, or those of mature age. Research is the foundation upon which an educated mind is established.

1. How did a pig and some sheep cause a dispute between Great Britain and the United States?

2. How many years did Noah Webster work on his dictionary? 3. Why is number of jewels in a watch always odd?

4. What animal gives Michigan its nickname? 5. What American state contains both the highest mountain and lowest depression in the country?

6. What animal makes its home highest in the mountains? 7. What animal weighs at birth as much as a full grown elephant?

8. What familiar tree bears leaves of three different kinds? 9. Why have certain plants developed the power of catching and eating insects?

10. Which is usually heavier, the brain of a man or the brain of a woman?

First Neighbor: Not exactly, but sister is using it to hold up a window. Ma's cutting biscuit with the mouthpiece and the baby is teething on the cord.

How to Ease CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

LONG AFTER sleep comes, VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion.

Often by morning the worst of the cold is over. VICKS VAPORUB

Snow Delays Man Judge Remits Bond

OMAHA, Neb.—A bondsman subscribed $1,000 to bail the prisoner, but George "Dutch" Volker, failed to appear on a larceny charge and District Judge Fitzgerald forfeited the bond.

When Volker arrived a few days late, he told the judge: "In the Big Horn mountains there was a terrific snowstorm. My car was stuck fast. I walked and rode on buses and here I am."

The judge said the story of Wyoming's snowstorm was worth $1,000 and he reinstated the bond.
