Agent Must Pay
Bridgroom's Sad Story,
Farmer Gets Riled,
Liquor Plea.

A policeman's badge isn't good enough for a free drink, a woman unsuspectingly told a federal agent, after he had been served a bottle of beer. "It's worth a bit of anybody's money," she testified as officers arrested her.

A Beaumont bridegroom-to-be, after his notice of intention and secured his license. He left the license with a soda fountain operator, and the paper blew behind the teaglass back of the fountain, working all day trying to retrieve it, he had to telephone his wife and the marriage had been indefinitely postponed for another ten days.

H. J. Thaxton, state official, reported that Southwest Texas farmers are losing from $1 to $2 a bale their cotton because of short staple scales at the gins. He estimated 30 pairs of scales, and reported nearly all were weighing light.

Hugh Dickson of San Antonio, in his home a still was found told officers he doesn't drink, but rather than see his friends drink the bootleg stuff, he wanted to make chemically pure liquor to give to his friends "to save them from poisoning themselves," he said.

While engaged in prayer in a national army meeting, Graham Taylor, Big Sandy man, collapsed and was taken to a hospital.

Composed to Houston by the supposed death of his father, J. M. Taylor, Jr. mourned at first but mourning was turned to joy when he was reunited with his father whom he had not seen for years. The dead man turned out to be somebody else.

This will be used as an argument for the Texas three-day notice of intention to marry law. C. O'Meara flew from San Antonio to Louisiana to marry. A day after the ceremony she died and a suicide verdict was entered.

Baby Newton Butts of Thornburg had an open safety pin lodged in his throat for seven days. It was taken out and he is feeling all right again.

Texas people living near El Paso witness again the religious observance of San Lorenzo, which lasts 10 days in the town of San Lorenzo, Mexico. The dance has not been held since the religious controversy arose between the government and the churches.

"Billy the Kid" who grew on a ranch 65 miles from a railroad, is his way to a post in official life Washington. He was sent to receive the pet goat, Captain Bones' Secretary of State Stimson failed to produce a passport and Stimson arrived from the Philippines.

Wotton Deteriorates, Ginners' Report
WACO, Aug. 12.—Deterioration of cotton the last ten days has exceeded that of any similar period in the history of Central Texas, according to representatives of the Central Texas Ginners' association session here Monday.

It was estimated not more than 10 percent of the crop produced last year in Central Texas may be expected this season. The estimate is based on a poll of representatives from the various counties in the district.

Resolutions of the meeting were passed over by Lawrence Westbrook of Waco, president of the association.

Former Associate Of Bill Cody Dies
DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 13.—Jas. Beitel, 83, former associate of William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody, died at his home here today.

Gang of Thieves Are Operating Is the Belief

Number of Cars Found; Also A Large Number of Tires and Other Accessories Have Been Uncovered.

Evidence that leads to the belief that an automobile theft ring is operating in this section was uncovered this morning when two automobiles were found partially submerged in Leon Lake three and one-half miles southeast of Eastland. The officers also have other information that would tend to show that car thieves are operating in Eastland and adjoining counties on a rather large scale. Sheriff Virge Foster and his men have not been asleep, however, and already have data which they believe will solve the disappearance of a number of cars in this territory.

The two cars found in the Leon lake have evidently been in there for some time. One of them bore 1929 license, which the records show to have been issued in January. Also the records show the car belonged to McKinley Cooke, employe of the Prairie Pipe Line company at Ranser. Mr. Cooke has not communicated with the sheriff's department this morning in regards to the car.

It is not known whether other cars are hidden by the waters of Leon lake. At the place where the two cars were found are located the water level is not so deep and shrinkage of the lake brought the water level down to where the tops of the cars could be seen.

The cars were on the south side of the lake under a 30 foot bluff. There is plenty of evidence to indicate that the cars were pushed off the bluff into the water after they had been stripped, or partially stripped.

Sheriff Foster last Sunday found a car and accessories from other cars in the Horton pasture, southeast of Olden.

Four Burned In Mine Explosion
POTTSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 13.—Four men lay seriously burned today as firemen and mine workers battled stubborn blaze in the Sherman colliery, half a mile south of Pottsville.

Twenty-one other miners related the story of how they were trapped by the gas blast for three hours, finally finding their way out through another opening, and returning to their duty to fight the underground fire.

Marvey Hilbert, mine foreman; W. C. Schott, colliery engineer, and Guy Irvin, all of Pottsville, and Leo Berski, of Minersville, set off a powder charge to loosen the coal and rock.

The explosion was followed by the bursting of a mine pocket, whose blast badly burned the four men, hurled them down a chute of the mine, loosened a shower of coal and rock which blocked the entrance to a level in which 21 other men were laboring, and started a blaze which quickly spread through the underground passages.

Complete Jury In Stallworth Murder Trial

CANYON, Aug. 13.—Three witnesses testified at the morning session of the trial of Mrs. Levi P. Stallworth on a charge of murder in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Grace Morrison of Plainview.

The witnesses were S. A. Weber, traveling salesman, Joe Henderson, railroad employe and Roy Slay, undertaker. The state has twelve witnesses and the defense twenty-five and it was considered unlikely that the case would reach the jury much before Thursday.

Throughout the session the courtroom was well filled, most of the spectators being women and coeds from the West Texas Teachers college.

CANYON, Aug. 13.—All twelve jurors had been selected today in the trial of Mrs. Levi P. Stallworth on a charge of murder and testimony in the case was commenced at the opening of district court this morning.

The jury, completed at a night session of court, consists of six farmers, three gasoline station operators, a carpenter, theater owner and a salesman.

Upon the shoulders of these men rests the huge responsibility of deciding whether Mrs. Stallworth was justified in shooting to death Mrs. Grace Morrison of Plainview on the streets of Amarillo several months ago.

A similar jury at Mrs. Stallworth's first trial in Amarillo was unable to decide the question, thus indicating to some degree the division of sentiment that exists over the case.

The defendant believes her act was warranted and may build her case around the unwritten law. She claims Mrs. Morrison had stolen the affections of her husband and broken up her home and that the shooting grew out of this infidelity on the part of Mrs. Morrison and Stallworth.

BLUE RIDGE COUNTRY FOLK TO SEE PRES

Citizens of Madison, Va., and Surrounding Countryside Volunteer to Prepare for President's Welcome Saturday.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
United Press Staff Correspondent.
MADISON, Va., Aug. 13.—Men and boys of the Blue Ridge country left their harvesting today to join the volunteer cleanup squad which is preparing Madison county fair grounds, a mile beyond the village, for Virginia's official welcome to President Hoover, fishermen resident of the "Old Dominion" next Saturday.

Two hundred citizens were called to the fair grounds this morning. They came with rakes, shovels, hoes, paint and carpenter's tools. The truly rural fair grounds which now closely resemble the adjoining pasture land, must shine like a polo field by Friday night, according to the rallying calling of County Clerk A. H. Cave, general manager of arrangements.

The famous Richmond Blues, symbol of Virginia's proud aristocracy as well as of her militant democracy, are to arrive in Madison Friday night to act as military guard of honor to the president and his party.

Governor Harry E. Byrd will motor from the state capital with a group of state officials to deliver the address of welcome. President Hoover will motor down from his Rapidan camp, ten miles away, with an official party of ten, escorted by six motorcycle police detailed by the Virginia department of motor vehicles. The president will respond briefly to the address of welcome from a speaker's stand erected beneath a clump of pines on a cool green knoll two hundred yards from the country road.

This speaker's platform in Madison is being equipped today with the first loud-speaker system which ever has blazed the trail of civilization into the Madison which has never known a railroad.

During its 108 uneventful years Madison has regularly received its mail daily from Orange, fifteen miles distant. One shaky telephone line connects the county seat with the outside world, through Culpepper, twenty five miles away.

Several new bridges over the Brazos river also will be built out of the bond money.

Pair Human Hands Found Under Hedge

DALLAS, Aug. 13.—Detectives today sought to solve the mysterious circumstances surrounding the finding of a pair of human hands under a hedge in the yard of a south Dallas home.

Two detectives were assigned to investigate. The hands had been treated with a preservative after being cut from the arms at the wrists and were believed to be those of a woman.

Detectives were without a fact to work with but believe the hands may lead the body of some murdered person or may have been the result of a prank of medical students.

It was expected that all evidence would be completed before noon recess and arguments would be well towards completion by night. A verdict by Wednesday night was confidently expected.

Chicago Police Get 'Baby Face' Willie Doody

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The hue and cry of "Get Willie Doody" was silenced today when three squads of detectives arrested the wizened diminutive fugitive in a west side apartment without a struggle.

For weeks "wee Willie" the baby faced bandit, has been the chief quarry of the police department. Every crime of any consequence from robbery to murder, was blamed on him. Doody retaliated with taunts to the police that he never would be taken alive and "come and get me if you think you can."

That Doody was caught unawares was obvious. He had an ironing board laid from the ledge of his third floor bedroom to the ledge of a window next door which he said he was going to use for a getaway but didn't have time to get to it.

"It is in this hope that you may be able to devise some plan which can be placed in operation on a nation wide scale to make use of abandoned automobiles through a system of salvage that I call this situation to your attention. DALLAS, Aug. 13.—Larman Cox, Fort Worth right fielder, has been suspended without pay for three days, and will be ineligible to participate in Texas league games until August 16, it was announced at the Texas league office today.

The right fielder followed the umpire to the official's dressing room where he used threatening and abusive language, drawing the fans to the umpire's quarters.

Cox is the first victim of a recent executive notice given all Texas league clubs that three-day suspensions would be meted out to players using abusive language towards the umpires. The suspension removes him from the line-up in the last game of the Dallas series today and from the first two games Wichita Falls Tomorrow and Thursday.

Former Lieut. of Carrie Nation Fights Bare Legs

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 13.—Myra McHenry, years ago lieutenant of Carrie Nation, the saloon hunter, has donned her war paint and is rallying her cohorts again.

But, she isn't after saloons today. This time bare legs is her target. She launched her initial attack in a street car, scathingly denouncing two young flappers who wore without shoes.

"You should be locked up in a pest house," she declared. "Just look at those nasty, dirty legs. Your mothers ought to whip you till you can't sit down. But if they won't stop you, I will. I'll get a law making you criminally responsible if you appear in public barelegged."

The girls shamefacedly left the car at the next stop. But that did not satisfy Myra.

Last night she appeared before the city commission and urged a law forbidding stockingless girls and women to appear in public.

"This is a civilized community," she told the commission. "If they want to go barelegged let 'em go to Africa."

Mayor Charles S. Lawrence agreed with her and now the commission is making an intensive study of bare legs with the object they said of formulating an ordinance forbidding them on the streets of Wichita.

Mrs. McHenry, a widow, is as active in reform work here at 83, as in the days of her youth with Carrie Nation.

Myra got the spotlight during the past presidential campaign when Governor Al Smith appeared in Wichita. A few feet from the crowd surrounding his train, she stood at the statue erected to Carrie Nation and delivered a fiery denunciation of the governor as the arch foe of prohibition and civilization.

She has long had a feud with Senator Henry J. Allen. She made many charges of "hypocrisy" never substantiated. She has often stood in front of the office of the Wichita Beacon, formerly owned by Senator Allen, and when a crowd had collected, she would exhort Allen to "mend his ways."

Senator Borah Has Sugar Tariff Plan

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A sugar tariff scheme which would reduce the existing rate rather than nearly doubling it as the house bill does, has been worked out by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, and probably will be offered on the senate floor to combat what-over increase is proposed by senate republicans.

Borah's experts who worked out his plan for a lower tariff and a treasury bounty to the sugar and cane beet growers have informed him his project will save the American sugar consumer $150,000,000 a year. They estimate the house 2.20 cents a pound Cuban sugar rate would cost $443,000,000 and that the present law rate of 1.76 cents a pound is costing $293,000,000 a year.

Coupled with the Borah plan there is understood to be a restriction proposed on Philippine imports either through a tariff to be levied if Philippine production runs too high or through a limitation preventing the Philippines from importing more than a certain amount of duty free sugar into this country each year.

The most important stump orator of the republicans in the last campaign believes his plan is the best way to offer protection to the American sugar producer and yet safeguard the public against excessive sugar costs. He has not yet completed all phases of it, and may not announce it until the tariff bill is brought up in the senate September 4.

Two Are Killed In Play Park Mishap

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 13.—Thrown from their seats in a roller coaster, a young man and a girl, apparently strangers to each other were killed instantly in an amusement park here last night.

Miss Helen Brockmeyer, 15, fell to the tracks on a lower deck and her body was severed as the car in which she was a passenger passed over. Part of her body was found lying on the ground but it was some time before another half was discovered on the roof of dressing rooms of the swimming pool under the opposite side of the track.

The young man, Ralph E. Clark, 23, fell 40 feet to the ground and died of a broken neck and fractured skull.

Seek Slayers of Government Agts.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Aug. 13.—Gangsters and an automobile thief ring mingled today in a maze of clues to the murder of Paul Edward Reynolds, department of justice agent, whose body was found Monday in an irrigation canal.

Four fellow agents were en route here today from El Paso to avenge the death of their co-worker by bringing the slayer or slayers to justice.

Reynolds was thought to have been investigating a huge automobile theft ring, which frequently was revealed to be flooding Arizona with automobiles stolen in coast cities.

Wounded Man Makes Deathbed Statement

DALLAS, Aug. 13.—Condition of Clarence Carter, Dallas electrician and ex-convict who was shot five times in a fight Sunday night by H. C. Gray, garage man, was reported improving at St. Paul hospital today.

During the night, according to reports, Carter thought he was going to die and called for a doctor so that he might make a death bed statement. In his statement he said the shooting followed a fight which arose over an argument about some liquor Carter accused Gray of hijacking from one of his runners.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

THIS HAS HAPPENED MOLLY BURNHAM, sensation-ally successful young playwright, has returned from Europe, to assume the care of little RITA NEWTON, daughter of Molly's dead roommate.

BOB NEWTON, Rita's father, and RED FLYNN, a particular friend, met Molly in New York and traveled to Boston with her. JACK WELLS, Molly's sweetheart, was also at the pier, when the boat docked. But Jack saw RED FLYNN with his arm about Molly, and left the dock angrily. Molly telephoned him later at his office, reproaching him for his foolish jealousy, and asking him to take her to luncheon. Jack says he is sorry, but he has an engagement with an important client, Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. Molly is hurt and angry, and decides it doesn't pay to love a man too much.

Red Flynn reads the script of a new play Molly has written, and declares that it is better than "The Death of Delphine Darrows," which has already made her famous.

When they reach Boston, Molly and Bob take a taxi to Bob's flat and Bob tries to tell Molly of the girl who is supposedly caring for little Rita.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

Bob was so genuinely distressed that Molly felt uncomfortable for him.

"A friend of Rita's? she prompted, willing to help him out.

"Oh, no—Lord no!"

He took off his derby, and mopped his forehead. He straightened his tie, and tugged at his collar.

"The fact is," he blurted, "she's a . . . a . . . well, sort of a cheap little thing, Molly. But she's a decent sort, really. And she's awfully good to little Rita.

"Oh, a nurse-maid," she said (if he would only let it go at that!)

But Bob was honest. Or perhaps he was merely cautious.

"Well, she's a sort of friend of mine," he admitted. "Rita didn't know her. She's not Rita's sort, you see. She worked at the office for a while. Her name's Elsie—Elsie Smith. You'll be nice to her, won't you?"

Molly laughed.

"You don't think I'd be nasty to any friend of yours, I hope! But you won't need her when I take the baby. I mean to look for an apartment tomorrow. I'll need a bigger one now. I'll find something near, so that you can see Rita every day."

"You're awfully good, Molly. I expect I'll be a good deal of a nuisance."

Molly hadn't thought of that before. Now she considered the probability dubiously. Well, anyhow, he hadn't think he could bring his Elsie Smith around!

When they reached the flat Elsie Smith, in pale blue georgette, greeted them effusively.

"It was simply grand of you to come, Miss Burnham," she declared, extending a very small, limp hand. "Bob certainly thinks an awful lot of you. He's talking about you all the time. Rita's out in the park. It's so lovely and sunny I thought it would be good for her."

She was almost pitifully anxious to impress Molly favorably.

"Don't you think Bob looks real good?" she appealed, and added quickly, "seem' what he's been through. I've tried to keep him cheered up, Miss Burnham. Because there's no use, as I say, cryin' over spilled milk. And all the tears in the world won't bring the dead back again. Bob's beginning to get like himself again."

She took his arm in proprietary fashion, and Molly saw that he was wincing under her familiarity.

Streaks Across the Atlantic on Fast Runs

Her speedy record of five days, two hours and 34 minutes for crossing the Atlantic having been broken by the German-built S. S. Bremen recently, the 22-year-old Cunard liner Mauretania headed across the Atlantic from England in a mad dash to break the new record of four days, 17 hours and 42 minutes made by the German greyhound of the seas. evening with that Smith woman. But Bob was not in when she called. And, before she could get in touch with him, she had encountered Miss Smith in the lobby of the hotel.

"Hello," said a strange voice. "I was looking for you."

For a moment Molly did not recognize her.

"It's me—Elsie. You're not tryin' to high hat me, are you? Because I've something pretty important to say to you, Miss Burnham."

"I'll go get Rita," he offered. Elsie said she had better see about dinner, and retired to the kitchenette, to clatter pans, and make a great many busy sounds. Molly suspected that the girl's culinary achievements were largely confined to opening cans. And the meal proved shortly that she was right.

Molly sat in the divan where she had sat the night Rita told of the disease that was killing her. She could see Rita now, in the big red chair, with her head against the high back.

Molly dashed the tears from her eyes. Elsie was heating tomato soup. And the coffee was beginning to boil. She could hear it percolating. Something had burned. It smelled like toast. She must think of other things, or Bob would come in, and find her crying.

Elsie, nursing an injured finger, appeared in the door. Her cheeks were flushed, and she looked angry.

"I never touch it myself," she said. "But would you like a little drink, Miss Burnham?"

Molly shook her head.

"No, thank you. I don't care for it either."

Elsie went back to her clattering pans. And later, as she took little Rita from her arms, Molly smelled Rita on the woman's breath.

Rita was a lovely child. She showed Molly her dolls, and her new shoes, and her Easter bunny. She confided that she wore her pink broadcloth coat only for company.

"You're comp'ny," she said. "I'd of worn my old blue one, only you was coming."

"Has Daddy told you, dear," asked Molly, "that you're going to be my little girl, too?"

"Elsie told me," announced the child.

Molly smiled.

"We'll go looking for a pretty house tomorrow—shall we?" she asked.

"That would be fun, I dress," declared the little girl politely.

"Will we take my daddy and Elsie? And my dollies, and the big bunny?"

"Oh, we'll have a lovely party!" promised Molly. "And we'll invite everybody—daddy and Elsie, and all the dollies, and the Easter bunny. But I guess maybe we'd better wait until we get all moved in, don't you?"

"What's all moved in?" demanded Rita.

"Such a child!" moaned Miss Smith. "She's a regular caution, Miss Burnham. Always askin' questions. Little pitchers, as my mother used to say, have big ears. The things that child picks up! My word, it isn't decent."

Molly was of the same opinion. The sooner she could get little Rita away from the unwholesome atmosphere of her father's flat, the better it would be.

After dinner, Molly put the child to bed. And, shortly afterward, protesting that she was very tired, asked Bob to phone for a taxi, to take her to the Copley. She would stay there until she found an apartment.

When the cab came, Bob took her to the door. He was very quiet, and Molly was glad that he made no further excuses for the presence of Elsie.

Before she had driven to the end of the street, she missed her bag, and remembered that she had left it on the divan. She had the driver turn about, and, when they reached the apartment, asked him to ring Suite 6, and ask if he might go in for Miss Burnham's bag. A moment afterward, she thought it might be more gracious if she ran in for a moment herself. . . . People like Miss Smith were so apt to take offense at the most trivial things. She ran up the stairs, and reached the door as it closed on her driver. She could hear Elsie's shrill voice.

"Have a drink, Big Boy? Your frosty fare froze this little girl to her marrow."

"Sh, Elsie," remonstrated Bob. "But Molly had turned and fled, burning face in her hands, and tears dripped through her fingers. But, whether they were for Rita, or for her outraged pride, she did not know.

Red was waiting in the lobby of the Copley when she reached there.

"I reckoned you'd come here," he said. "And I had such darn good news, I wanted to spill it in person. Durbin's been trying to get you on the phone all evening. He was so insistent about it that I called him back an hour ago. Told him I was seeking you, and asked if I could take a message."

"Well?" She lifted her tired face questioningly.

"It's like I said, dear. He's absolutely sold on it. Says it has Delphine beaten 10 ways. You can write your own contract, from all I gathered. And he wants to put it on pronto."

Molly was very tired. She felt not at all the way a successful playwright, receiving good news, is supposed to feel.

"That's fine," she sighed. "You're awfully good, Red."

She laid her hand affectionately on his arm. "I've never asked, because you seemed so reticent about it. I've wondered sometimes if you thought me unsympathetic. But I've often wanted to ask you."

"You mean about my mother?" he interrupted. "She's just the same, dear—always just the same. She'll never be any different, till she dies."

"She didn't hear anything about that silly rumor?"

"Not a thing, dear. Don't worry your little head about that."

Red took her hands in his.

"See here, old thing, you're all done up. What's the matter? Did Rita's death hit you so fearfully hard, dear?"

"Oh, it's not just that," she told him wearily. "It's everything."

"Can't you snap out of it? Any girl who can sell plays like the rest of us eat a meal! Good gosh, Molly, what's eating you? You ought to be the happiest kid in the whole damn country."

"I know, Red. Isn't it funny?"

"Yeah—it's a scream. A perfect scream. I'm apt to bust my sides, laughing."

"Well, run along," she advised. "You don't want me weeping on your shoulder, do you? It is funny, you know. I never felt so much like crying in my life."

The next day Molly went apartment hunting. It would be better, she decided, to avoid Bob, until she had a home of her own. When everything was ready for little Rita, she would let him know.

She found a place in the Fenway, in a new building. It was very grand, and very expensive. On the merits of the baby's nursery, she signed her lease.

It was a delft blue and buttercup nursery, with Mother Goose paper on the walls, and built-in, modernistic furniture, set on queer, straight lines, like geometrical figures. It faced the east, and its broad front was all of glass—a special kind.

"To admit the ultra-violet rays of the sun," explained the glib agent. "There's nothing like ultra-violet rays for infants. Marvelous things, those rays. Marvellous curing tuberculosis with them these days."

That settled it. Maybe it was a lie. Maybe she was stupid and glib. Anyhow, nothing was too good for Rita's child.

Molly's own bedroom was lovely. Luxurious, and feminine. The carpet was soft and green, like moss. The taffeta cushions of her chaise-longue were orchid. And there were orchid organdy curtains that were the daintiest thing in the world, with the morning sun streaming through them.

The drawing room was modern, and Molly hated it.

"But I shan't be entertaining," she reflected. "And the nursery is perfect! I adore my bedroom. And the bath is simply too good to be true!"

She felt, as she signed the lease, very much like a movie actress, because movie actresses, she thought, all had swanky bedrooms. That was an idea she had from reading the soap advertisements.

She wondered if her mother would consider a green porcelain tub immoral. Probably, but her father would think it was great. She must ask him to come and visit her. He could sleep on that funny cubist sofa in the drawing room.

She decided to telephone Bob at his office, to ask him to bring little Rita to her. She could not force herself to spend another evening with that Smith woman. But Bob was not in when she called. And, before she could get in touch with him, she had encountered Miss Smith in the lobby of the hotel.

"Hello," said a strange voice. "I was looking for you."

For a moment Molly did not recognize her.

"It's me—Elsie. You're not tryin' to high hat me, are you? Because I've something pretty important to say to you, Miss Burnham."

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY BAPTIST CHURCH.

Although there was a comparatively small attendance at the meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Baptist church, the lesson presented by W. T. Turner, based on the 22, 23 and 24 chapter of Genesis, was developed with the usual thoroughness and interest by the teacher, and greatly enjoyed by the society.

The devotional was led by the president of the W. M. S., Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett and the period closed with ensemble singing of "Take My Life and Let It Be". The threatening storm and the absence of many of the members from town made a slim attendance.

Those present, Mrs. Elzo Been, who closed the meeting with prayer and Meses. Garrett, Tindall, Overton, John Mays, J. P. Williams, W. T. Turner, Lindsey, Crouch, Nora Andrews Holly and Mrs. J. H. Young of Houston.

CLASS IN EVANGELISM CHURCH OF CHRIST.

Mrs. C. D. Knight conducted a most interesting lesson from the first eight chapters of Matthew, for the women's class in Evangelism of the Church of Christ, yesterday afternoon.

The subject "miracles" was handled in an original, yet very informative manner, that was gratifying.

Mrs. Harrell did not assign the subject for the demonstration, which will be given at 4 p. m. on Thursday next.

There is much sickness among the women of the class, and Mrs. Harry Wood, was reported as being ill.

Those present, Meses. Herring, Courtney, Roper, McClendon, E. D. Hurley and C. D. Knight.

DESCENDANTS OF COL. JOHN EVANS IN FIFTH REUNION.

Fred L. Dragozo of this city, a direct descendant of Col. John Evans of West Virginia, who is the great grandson of Col. Evan's daughter, has received an invitation to attend the reunion of August 18, 1929, at Morgantown, W. Va., and bring his two daughters, Wanda Dragozo-Beall, and Wilda Dragozo-Caton and their families, as well as his own.

This reunion of the descendants of Col. Evans will be staged "as usual" at the Dille homestead in Evansville, Morgantown, W. Va.

Mr. Dragozo and his daughters are direct members of this reunion which is held on the former plantation of Col. John Evans of revolutionary fame.

Mrs. Dragozo is still abroad, but Mr. Dragozo and Mrs. Wanda Dragozo Beall, and family will attend.

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR HONORS MRS. ALLEN HARWOOD; MISS LOIS ALLSDORF AND MRS. J. B. NUNN.

The W. K. Jackson residence was thrown open to the young folk last evening from 7:30 to 10:30 and to a few friends of Mrs. J. B. Nunn of Camden, Ark., who was honored with a table arranged for bridge and which claimed the only man of the party, the host W. K. Jackson.

Mrs. Jackson received with the honorees, Miss Allsford and Mrs. Nunn. Unfortunately Mrs. Harwood had been taken very ill, and was unable to be present. She was represented in the house party by her mother, Mrs. J. M. Ferrell.

The hostess was assisted throughout the evening by Miss Geraldine Dabney and Miss Elizabeth Davenport.

The cool front gallery was arranged with five tables for bridge, prettily covered in matching green cloths, with tallies, score books and pencils in pink, rose and gold.

All the tins of summer prevailed in the appointments and the bonbons, in the silver dishes with the tall wicker baskets used in gallery decoration and filled with colorful bouquets.

The entire house was decorated with flowers of every hue.

At close of a delightful evening, iced fruit punch was served, and brook cream in rose and white, with rose iced white cake, and chocolate iced devil food cake.

Services for the card-tables were watching Denison sets in rose and white.

The progression was confined to the gallery, but the table arranged for Mrs. Nunn, placed in the big living room, kept its individual score.

Mrs. Harwood and Miss Allsford were presented honoree favors, of gold framed print, background trays, for water service.

High score favor, a handsome hand tooled white glove skin leather purse, went to Miss Helen Jane Angstadt, and an exactly similar one in material, but dark blue in color, the cut favor, was awarded Miss Belva Dee Hillier.

Consolation, a nest of five Italian pottery bowls, went to Miss Wilma Beard, and slam hand score favor, a satchel of correspondence notes, was awarded Mrs. Nella Mae Cates.

At the "seule" bridge table, Mrs. Nunn was presented an honoree gift, of enamelled bonbon footed tray in size and dark green, a similar tray going to Mrs. Ferrell for high bridge score.

GIRL DESCRIBES THE TAXI PLANE

The impressions of a young girl who sees the work of the air taxis is both interesting and informational. Miss Rachel Holmes of Chicago gives the following description in a note to Mrs. W. K. Jackson:

"We watched the air taxis 'take off.' This is a new thing and under the Grant Park board, if that would assist any should a wing come off over the lake. The taxis are cabin monoplanes and take off in the park harbor. They circle over Chicago and bank over the park and land in the water and taxi up to the ramp. The vump is just like a turn table. The plane slows down and goes up this little chute arrangement and a man grabs one wing and pulls the plane and the vump around so that the side is turned toward the lake and the passengers then climb out. The pilot fills the plane with gas and passengers and a man turns the crank and away she splashes through the water. It's beautiful when the plane leaves the water and mounts into the sky."

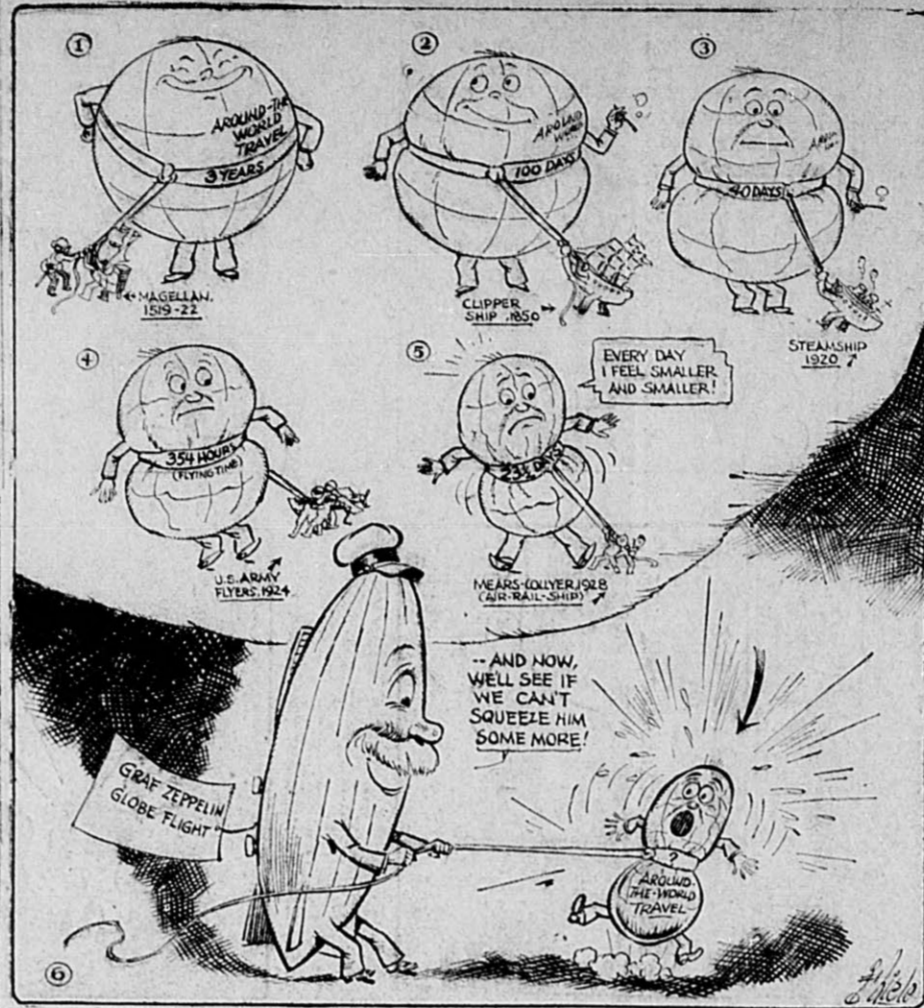

"The city" has built a wonderful addition to Lincoln Park North, of the Belmont Harbor, and stuck up a totem pole. It is supposed to be very ancient but the paint certainly is fresh."

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13.—It was reported semi-officially here today that Pres. Hoover would visit Mexico next December.

The details of the presidential tour, the report said, were still incomplete.

TEXAS LEAGUE

After suffering a 7 to 5 defeat at the hands of the Dallas Steers, the Ft. Worth Cats yesterday came back to take the second game of a double header at Fort Worth 8 to 1. Lil Stoner had the situation well in hand in the afterpiece.

Both games of a doubleheader at Wichita Falls were won by the Shreveport Sports who took the first game, 8 to 5, and the second, one 3 to 0. In the first game, with bases filled, Cashion hit a homer.

When they were defeated, 6 to 3, in their game with the Beaumont Exporters yesterday, the San Antonio Indians lost their 19th game out of the last 20 games played. Poor headwork on the part of several Indian baserunners spoiled the only chances for additional scoring.

morning of having been beaten and stunned with a heavy club. To know how to avoid fatigue is to know how to solve the personal question of modern living; this requires deep study and every adjustment of conditions.

A recent Woman's Journal has this to say on the subject:

"Fatigue is a deadly foe. It should never be accepted as an inevitable committant of life. It lays the body open to the germs of pneumonia and influenza. It thwarts achievement. It kills delight. It saps love. It is sure to bring about complete disaster.

"When completely tired-out, either rest at home—night after night—for at least a week, until the fatigue has vanished, or get a leave of absence and go off somewhere into the country and rest up faster.

"Do not take stimulants and whip yourself to work after you are exhausted, for then both body and mind pass the dangerous point and the ultimate outcome is a nervous breakdown, a severe infection, a lost job or a broken home.

"This form of relaxation has been found to be effective upon retiring—'Lie on the back, head on a small flat pillow, with the arms stretched out at the sides, consciously and definitely relax each joint of the body beginning with the right foot, left foot, etc., all the way up to the neck and eyelids.

"This process of muscular relaxation should travel slowly over the whole body, according to definite plan. It should be repeated as often as necessary, three or often four times, until it seems as if the body had floated away, and as if it were almost impossible for one to move even a finger if one wished to."

Breckenridge Woman Makes Big Gain By Taking Orgatone

Mrs. McCann Suffered For Five Years With Rheumatism.

"My mother has gained on Orgatone since she started taking it a few weeks ago, and of course we think there's no other medicine in the world like it," said Irene McCann, residing at 213 W. Second St., Breckenridge, Texas, in her statement to the Orgatone representative a few days ago.

"She suffered with an awful stomach trouble and rheumatism and was nervous and restless for five years," continued Miss McCann. "The least bit of anything to eat would make her sick, and give her such terrible gripping pains, that she could hardly stand it. She had absolutely no appetite, and couldn't find anything that would agree with her. She could hardly sleep at night, and felt tired and sluggish all the time. She had no energy and very little strength. All her ambition was about gone, and she didn't feel able to do her house work. The fact is, she was just about out of commission, and nothing she tried in the way of medicines, did her any good."

"After taking Orgatone a few days, she felt like a new person. She can eat anything she wants now and enjoy it. She doesn't have any sick stomach or pains of any kind, and she sleeps like a log every night. Her food is doing her good now, or she wouldn't have gained so much in strength. It's the first time in five years she's felt as well as she does now. She feels simply fine, and can stay on her feet from early morning till late at night without getting tired. We both think Orgatone is great, and are telling our friends about it."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Eastland exclusively by Texas and Corner Drug stores, phones 345 and 585.
