PLANS FOR JULY 4TH CELEBRATION ARE NOW WORKING OUT RAPIDLY

H. J. Tanner, secretary-manager of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, stated Thursday that plans for the big Fourth Annual Fourth of July Celebration, were shaping up nicely, and all indications were that the celebration would be bigger and better this year than ever before.

"There have been several entries received in the bathing review already," Tanner stated this morning, "but there is plenty of room on the program for many more entries in all classes. Applications can be made on the blanks to be found on the front page of each issue of the Eastland Telegram, or by applying at the office of the Chamber of Commerce."

Tanner also pointed out that there were handsome cash prizes being offered this year, as has been done in years past. The finance committee has held meetings and have collected funds to start work on the celebration. There is still money to be collected, both on pledges and from those the finance committee members have been unable to see as yet, but all indications point for a more successful celebration this year than ever before.

Carl Johnson reported that much interest was also being shown in the boat races, which were inaugurated into the program last year for the first time.

"We have not made definite arrangements about the classifications under which the boats will race this year," Johnson said Thursday, "but we are already getting inquiries as to the rules and regulations under which the races will be staged, and are getting applications from entries. There will be a small entrance fee charged, and all the entrance fee, plus half the gate receipts, will be divided among the first three winners of the races. It is expected that final arrangements for the races will be made very soon now."

Last year the boat races proved very popular, in fact more popular than had been hoped, and it was indicated Thursday that this would be an even larger attraction this year than it was last. The races are held at Lake Eastland.

Besides the bathing review there will be many more events on the two-day program, starting Wednesday, July 3, with a street dance, and ending Thursday night, July 4, with a bathing review and a gigantic fireworks display.

A number of events will be staged throughout the day Thursday, including greased pig races, a horned frog race, and many many in which everyone can participate. And there will be big cash prizes awarded in many of the events.

U. S. Develops a Plan for Rural Construction Aid

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Department of Agriculture has developed plans for a broad rural construction and rehabilitation program designed to offer employment to surplus farm laborers and to strengthen the nation's resources.

The plan, which has not reached the final stages and for which a large appropriation would be necessary, is being sponsored by Dr. W. W. Alexander, Farm Security administrator.

He suggested a five-point program:

1. Conservation of the nation's land resources.
2. A gigantic rural housing program.
3. Reforestation and forest culture.
4. Water conservation and flood control.
5. Supplementary tasks to increase farm market facilities.

Alexander told congressmen that the plan offers "a matchless opportunity for building new industrial well-being out of the fields of rural America."

Start Only Made

Present programs have "barely made a beginning," Alexander said. One of the most challenging problems which confronts the nation is the fact that growth of population is daily "outstripping the expansion of opportunity," he said.

"Its eventual solution lies in the adoption of a broad permanent program, based on an entirely new conception of land—a conception which recognizes that although the legal title to land and forests and other resources may be in the hands of individuals, they must be preserved as the basic resources for American generations to come."

Agriculture Department reports show that 500,000 to 600,000 farms in the nation are so worn out that the occupants will "literally starve to death" if they continue to cultivate them. The reports said the fertility is "nearly destroyed" on another 500,000 to 600,000 farms.

Erosion Dangers Stressed

Alexander said that "the life of our nation depends" upon the halting of this erosion, whether the land be in public or private hands. There is work for many thousands of rural laborers in soil conservation work, he declared.

Slum-clearance in the rural areas is a vital need to protect the health of the nation, he said. He added that rural laborers could be given millions of man-days of work repairing and rebuilding farm homes. It was estimated that $3,500,000,000 could be profitably spent in that program.

A much needed reforestation and forest culture program giving work to many thousands would be in a large degree self-supporting, Alexander said. Millions of acres of sub-marginal land are suited to reforestation.

Parrot Landmark Of Lubbock Gone

LUBBOCK, Tex.—Polly, the parrot landmark of Lubbock, is no more.

The bird whose shrill whistle embarrassed many a passerby in the vicinity of Mrs. Nora Painter's residence, died of injuries suffered in a fall from a perch in her cage. Polly's claws, hung in the side of the cage, causing her to fall and be hurt to such an extent that she never recovered.

Mrs. Painter bought the parrot 24 years ago in Mineral Wells.

Polly had been the pet grievance of bus drivers who were frequently stopped by her whistling. The drivers often thought that the whistle came from persons who had missed the bus.

And once she also fooled a doctor. Her whistle stopped him and he returned to the Painter residence only to find the whistle had come from the parrot.

SENATE HAS VOTED TO LET FINN DEBT GO

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The United States Senate today adopted a resolution refraining from accepting Finland's semi-annual war debt payment, which has been offered by the Finnish Government. The payment is due Saturday, June 15, and Finland has notified the United States that it will be paid on time.

The Finnish payment on her World War debt, which is the only one which has been met promptly, amounts to slightly less than $160,000 semi-annually. The last payment was made Dec. 15, in spite of the fact that Finland was in the midst of a war with Russia at the time.

There was some talk in December, of returning the Finnish payment on its war debt, because of war conditions, and the action today was based upon the dire need of Finland in her attempts to rehabilitate her war-torn country.

APPEALS COURT RULES FILLING STATIONS ARE SUBJECT TO CHAIN TAX

The Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals today handed down a decision in the case of the State of Texas vs. the Standard Oil Company of Texas, affirming a lower court decision from Howard County that the Standard company was liable to state chain store taxes.

The decision of the court of appeals upholds a decision of the Howard County court that the company must pay $2,886.81 in chain store taxes.

The company contended that it was exempt from the chain store tax because it was acting on an agency basis in the operation of 20 filling stations.

The state tax exempts service stations which sell petroleum products and service automobiles only.

The opinion of the court, in confirming the case, stated that it was of the opinion that the trial court conclusions were correct in ruling that the stations involved are stores selling merchandise other than petroleum products, and do not come within the scope of Section 5, Article 111-D of the penal code, because they are not "engaged exclusively in storing, selling or distributing petroleum products and servicing automobiles, in that they are selling other products, petroleum products being the only article that may be sold within the exemption."

We are of the opinion that the stations operated under the same general management and are controlled by the Standard Oil Company of Texas, from all of which it results that the stations are liable to the chain store tax.

Saturday Is Last Day for Candidates To File For Office

Oscar Lyster, chairman of the Eastland County Democratic committee, has announced that Saturday, midnight, is the deadline for candidates to file for places on the ballot in the coming democratic primary election.

The committee will meet Monday, June 17 at which time places on the ballot will be decided.

College Education One Fourth Wasted

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—American colleges "are ruining a lot of good janitors and truck drivers," in the opinion of M. M. Boring, college personnel director of the General Electric Co.

He told the National Education Association that there is a serious shortage of skilled labor and said that a survey showed that 27 per cent of college graduates should not have gone to college at all.

He said that at present in America there is only one man training for every 483 workers. This, he believes, will result in a grave shortage of workers.

Roosevelt Doubts Pledges Of Hitler

WASHINGTON, June 14.—In his regular press conference today President Roosevelt cited Germany's broken promises in the past in discounting reports that Adolf Hitler has said that he has no aspirations in the Western Hemisphere.

BRITISH AIRMEN BLAST BRIDGES ALONG SEINE

By Richard D. McMillan
United Press Staff Correspondent
WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, June 14.—British aircraft today dumped ton after ton of high explosives on German positions near Paris and RAF pilots reported they had blasted out every bridge but one in a 60-mile stretch of the lower Seine.

Wave after wave of British bombers, aided by French planes, are rearing over the German lines. Air men reported they were dropping bomb loads with such regularity that the constant explosions sounded like the thunderous beat of a mighty combustion engine.

Towns along the Seine valley where German troops—both infantry and mechanized forces—are concentrating for the push on Paris in flames, RAF men reported.

"Every bridge in a 60-mile stretch of the Seine but one has been destroyed," one RAF pilot reported. "The one bridge which hasn't been completely destroyed is dangling with the eastern end sagging into the river."

Throughout the night medium bombers of the advanced air striking force roared off in relays to attack German objectives. British air activity is even greater than during the desperate days when the air force was protecting the evacuation of Dunkirk.

The bombers were concentrating on rivers where German units were working feverishly to throw across pontoon bridges on which mechanized forces could cross.

One hurricane pilot said: "The enemy is coming in in masses, but it is difficult to see them because of the haze of smoke from the fires."

A huge explosion was caused at Gisors which the Germans were believed to be using as an advance base. The forest of Gobain was also bombed heavily.

The RAF was fighting against odds. In one encounter seven Hurricanes took on 80 Messerschmitt 109's and were reported to have downed five of them.

Used To Odds

"We are used to heavy odds by now," an airman said. "We just waded in to it for a whirlwind battle, with every man for himself. You don't get much time to see what happens to the Germans. When you've got him on your sights you just give a burst where it hurts him worst."

Another Hurricane pilot got separated from his companions in a flight over the Somme north of Rouen.

"I thought I was flying with the other boys," he said, "until I got a shock. I was flying in a formation of Messerschmitts. I did the natural thing—started in on them and managed to scramble out all right."

Defendant Acts As Attorney In Suit

In a divorce suit, styled Nannie Slaughter vs. Gus Slaughter, which was heard in 91st district court Thursday, the defendant acted as his own attorney.

After a two-hour hearing Judge George L. Davenport announced he would take the case under advisement and would hand down a decision July 8.

W. Layton, minister of the Church of Christ conducting the services. Interment will be in the Russell Chapel, 10 miles south of Thurber.

The child was born in Ranger, Sept. 10, 1935, and had lived in the town all her life.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Jim Vinson, her step-father, Jim Vinson, one sister, Muriene Howard, a half brother, Jimmy Ray Vinson, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Keener and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Howard.

Eastland Red Cross Station Is Now Being Operated Each Week

Eastland has opened a Red Cross Station, at the request of the Washington headquarters. The production program started, with delivery of garments to the Red Cross headquarters not later than Sept. 1.

Requests have been made for renovated garments for children from two to 12 years of age, including layettes for infants, knitted sweaters, socks for men and children, knitted sweaters and shawls for women, aprons for school children, cutting bed garments for soldiers and other items of clothing.

Eastland is not asked to make bandages or hospital dressings in this quota.

The station will be open every Wednesday from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. All women interested in sewing or knitting for the refugees are asked to call at the station, which has work rooms on the second floor of the city hall.

Each person is asked to bring her own needles, thimble, scissors but sewing machines will be furnished by the chapter.

Mrs. E. Roy Townsend is general chairman of the station, and women who have accepted chairmanships of the different departments include:

Mrs. Oscar Chastain and Mrs. Kenneth B. Tanner, officers of the day.

Mrs. H. O. Satterwhite, Mrs. M. E. Lawrence and Mrs. Jack Ammer, renovated garments.

Mrs. W. S. Poe and Mrs. Donald Kinnaird, layettes.

Mrs. Curtis Kimbrell, Mrs. Curtis Hertig and Mrs. Tom Harris, knitting.

R. C. Kinnaird and Carl Johnson, packing and shipping.

Instructions and special measurements will be given for the different articles being made any time on Wednesday at the city hall. Articles and equipment will be checked in and out by the officer of the day and persons will be allowed to take articles home.

NAZIS CLAIM FRENCH CAN'T MAKE STAND

Rumor U. S. Ambassador Is In Custody Is Flatly Denied By The Germans.

German troops clattered into Paris today and predicted that a total collapse of the French Army is imminent.

The German radio warned Great Britain that an attack on the Isle will come as soon as the French operations are cleaned up. Spokesmen said that the French could not make a new stand now that Paris was gone with its capitol and fortifications.

Meanwhile rumors appeared in Italy that the French cabinet split with several members favoring a separate peace with Germany, but the rumors were entirely unconfirmed.

Tonight Britain said that the war would go on irrespective of the course taken by the battered French.

The Germans said the second phase of the war was now over and that the third—the mopping up of the entire French army would come soon with the invasion of England to follow.

Berlin said nothing was known of the report that Ambassador William Bullitt had been placed in custody in Paris and authorized quarters flatly denied the charges.

Premier Reynaud broadcast a new appeal to President Roosevelt today, asking all possible aid in the war against the Nazis, and warned that this aid should come before it is too late.

The Spanish government announced that troops had been sent to the international zone of Tangier in North Africa, as a protective measure and the Italians said they had repulsed the French in an Alpine Battle.

Turkey remained silent, while mobilization of troops went on throughout the country and the government awaited a Russian move.

The British admitted loss of a 17,000-ton armed merchant cruiser, but said a German battleship had been damaged in Norwegian waters.

Learns Trooper Had Won Grand National

LONDON—The following conversation which ensued between a sergeant and trooper "somewhere in France" has been vouchered for by a soldier:

Sergeant (watching horses being led out): "Well, my lad, do much training in England?"

"Not much, sergeant."

"Well, can you ride?"

"I don't know, Sergeant, but I did win the Grand National."

The other man was Bruce Hobbs of Grand National fame. He won it on a Battleship.

Italy Protests On Anti-Italian Moves

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Italian Ambassador to the United States protested to Secretary of State Cordell Hull against an American campaign to incite feeling against Italians in this country.

SERIAL STORY

AN EYE FOR A GAL BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

COPYRIGHT, 1940. NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: As he starts the game, Hossy is wild. He feels a murderous impulse to beat the batters facing him. Then he hears Dr. Tollivar, telling him to settle down. In that moment he knows Dr. Tollivar threw the ball that killed his father. Hossy comes through, fans the next three batters.

CHAPTER XI

NOTHING like that game could ever happen again, Hossy McAfee well knew, when the last ball was pitched. He had wrought a no-hit no-run athletic miracle out of as unpromising material as one could hope to see.

"Let's go to my office," Coach Hurd nodded, after introducing Ike Hill. They took chairs in the room, pictured with athletic teams; and Hill smoked.

"So you're Ross McAfee," Hill murmured. "I knew your father."

"You did?" Hossy cried.

"Mighty well. I scouted the game when he was killed."

"You did?"

"Absolutely. It was the first Hell'n-Damnation ball game I ever saw—and the last. You know how stories drift out—the wildest, craziest ball players that ever were; feuded even in their ball games; great pitchers, great hitters, great everything."

"But you, bub, have the goods, and no doubt about that. I'm going to offer you a contract that will nail you down, make it possible for you to go on with your education and play ball, and give you time for ripening a little. You're still too green in the husk. Later you'll probably have to be farmed out to one of the bush leagues. But if you grow like I think you will, you'll be up there some of these days dazzling the little old natives in the big time."

"There's the dotted line," Coach Hurd grinned.

"Give me a pen," Hossy said faintly, and he signed with irregular letters that betrayed his joy and excitement.

THAT evening at supper at Dr. Tollivar's the table talk was all about the game, about Hossy's great break. Dr. Tollivar said simply:

"McAfee deserved it. He had it coming to him. Now, Judy, I wish you would wrap up a change for me, and not put in my old straight razor—but the electric. Hossy and I are going up into Hell'n-Damnation early in the morning for the weekend. You'll excuse me now," he smiled. "I have some work at the office before I can get off." He took his hat and went out.

Judy smiled at Hossy. "I'll pack later. Let's sit in the front room and talk about everything. For this is a great day for you, Hossy."

I need not tell you that, though," she added, as they sat on the sofa. She gave him a penetrating look. "Maybe I shouldn't tell you this, Hossy. But really I want you to know it. You have a lot to thank to daddy for this day's gifts. He arranged for Ike Hill to come, was in touch with him weeks ago about you."

"Daddy has strained every possible point to make college available to you. He secured the scholarship, worked it out with Coach Hurd that you were to stay with us without cost, and from the day Coach Hurd saw you away last summer you have been constantly on his—our—mind."

"You'll forgive me for reminding you. I do it not for any appreciation, but simply so that you will understand other things that may come up."

"I'm glad you told me," he said. "But why is your father so—so interested in me?"

"I think he'll tell you that tomorrow."

Then, without knowing just how it had happened, Judy was in his arms and he kissed her. The radio was going, mutely doing a love waltz by Strauss. Outside the excitement of the afternoon rose and fell, dying hard because of the intensity of it.

Somehow Hossy could not keep on holding Judy there so close to him. He let her ease out of his embrace. Clumsily enough he got to his feet and said, "I reckon I've got a little packing to do too. I'd better be at it. Good night."

He moved quickly out and ran upstairs.

BEFORE dawn Hossy and Dr. Tollivar were driving off the slumbering campus. The powerful car devoured the miles. It was possible by a long detour to come into the village in Hell'n-Damnation in the car, and Dr. Tollivar, to Hossy's amazement, parked in front of Judge Jesse Leverage's Squire Jesse came out and they all shook hands.

"I'll get you the mule and buggy, Doc," Leverage said, and not long afterward Tollivar and Hossy were driving up the winding old road that went to the school house and church on the grounds of Old Ebenezer.

They reached the ball grounds. "Whoa," Tollivar said, and the two got out.

"It's been a long time since I was here," Tollivar murmured.

"Yes," Hossy nodded. "That was the day my pappy was killed."

"Yes," Dr. Tollivar said, not looking at him.

"So you was the pitcher that day for the Tollivars. You are a Tollivar, and not a Tollivar."

"That's right. Before we go into the matter that really brought us here, McAfee, I'll give you some idea of all that was behind that game. Then we'll go have a look at the land in dispute between you and your cousin. I understand, of course, that really hasn't gone into court yet."

"I may as well tell you, however, I have been corresponding with old Jesse Leverage, and I have all the papers on that case. I have had a lawyer down at Mountain City working on it too. Now I think we have something to work on, and it will stand up in court."

"I don't know that I'm keering about the other thing," Hossy said, bitter in spite of himself.

"Let's sit down," Dr. Tollivar said, and they took a seat on the lower planks of the grandstand. The college president lit a cigar, smoking thoughtfully. Hossy did not smoke.

"All right. I was pitching out there. It was up to me to kill your father. I remember that all very well, Hossy—better perhaps than you do or ever can."

"You see, there had been a meeting of the Tollivar clan. My folks and I had only lately come back into the mountains from Texas where my dad had gone to avoid killing a McAfee or getting killed by the McAfees. We had heard the feud had died down and now the clans were playing ball. So father returned. But there was a dispute, bad feeling was roiled again, and just to satisfy the family dad and I went to the meeting at one of the Tollivar cabins that night when lots were drawn for the hand who would kill."

"Well, it was my infernal luck to be it. I know now it was all a put-up job but I didn't know it then."

"I was to pitch that game. They told me, 'You're a great pitcher. You've got everything. But when you're wild you're wild. Tomorrow you need only be wild but accurate. You understand. Bean McAfee. Hit him back of the ear. He dodges right-handed. It will be an accident.'"

"You know what kind of a feeling I took into that game. All I could think of was what he had said. And by some deadly fascination, in my nervousness, I pitched the ball that knocked your father unconscious."

"But it was not that lick that killed him. He was killed by a blow behind the grandstand by a member of your own family."
