Criticism of the President.
Senator Hale of Maine is chairman of the senate naval affairs committee. He is a republican. He has branded President Hoover's delay order as illegal. Fred ten of Illinois is a republican. He is chairman of the house naval affairs committee. He is incensed at account of the Hoover order. He says there is no authority under existing law for the suspension of cruiser construction.
Senator Hale and Republican administration should be told that the failure of administration does not mean a dog. Herbert Hoover is the stick. He thinks he has public opinion behind him. Now if necessary he will use the big stick. Theodore Roosevelt used it. He had a disappointed man, Woodrow Wilson used it. He died a heart-broken man.
Practical politicians are senators; practical politicians are leaders. They hold the purse strings. They make the appointments of the president. A president is given full swing while his term is on. Nearing the end of the second term, if he is a second term, he is given congressional ax.

STOLEN CAR SOAKED IN OIL, BURNED

Boys at Play Claim to Have Seen Two Men Strip Body Before Setting Fire to It.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 10.—Four New Jersey gangsters were sought by police today in connection with the killing of a man whose charred skeleton was found in the rear seat of an automobile in the city dump last night.

Frank Ferrara, watchman at the dump who is held at police headquarters to protect him from possible harm, said he could identify two of the four men he saw flee from the dump last night in an automobile.

A bullet was fired into the victim's brain before the automobile in which his body was found, was set afire. The car, a new Packard sedan, was soaked with gasoline by the murderers.

It was learned the sedan was stolen in New York last May.

Detectives left today for Clifton, N. J., to investigate a bundle of blood-stained clothing which was found near Dundee Lake last night by three boys.

The bundle contained a shirt and underwear, which had been pierced by bullets, socks, shoes and a pair of brown trousers. Police believed the clothing might help them to establish identity of the murder victim.

Clifton police said a group of boys who had dug a cave near Dundee Lake watched the slayers address the victim before driving to the Newark City dump and setting fire to him.

Man Has Chance To Recover; Has Forgiven Youth

"I Didn't Know What Daddy Was Going to Do to Mother," the Boy Told Officers.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 10.—"I didn't know what daddy was going to do to mother. He had made several threats lately and I was afraid he was going to beat her up."

That was the explanation Clifton Reid, north side high school sophomore, gave Saturday while awaiting a hearing before C. E. Baker, Tarrant county juvenile officer.

Charges of juvenile delinquency were filed in county court-at-law No. 1 against young Reid Saturday.

Young Reid shot his father, J. G. Reid, 39, garage mechanic, at their home late Friday, after the older Reid had grabbed his wife and was threatening to strike her.

According to the boy's statement, his father and mother had had words and his father called her "a fool" while he was working on his auto.

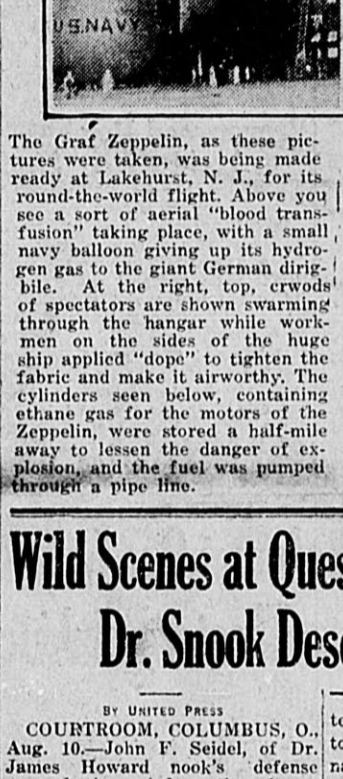

After dinner, Reid told his wife to wash the dishes and she replied that she would do so when she got ready, the boy said.

Reid grabbed his wife and started scuffling with her. When he pushed her down into a chair, the boy fired from about eight or ten feet away, he said.

The older Reid is expected to recover.

Boy and father forgave each other.

Grooming Graf for Its World Flight

The Graf Zeppelin, as these pictures were taken, was being made ready at Lakehurst, N. J., for its round-the-world flight. Above you see a sort of aerial "blood transfusion" taking place, with a small navy balloon giving up its hydrogen gas to the giant German dirigible. At the right, top, crowds of spectators are shown swarming through the hangar while workmen on the sides of the huge ship applied "dope" to tighten the fabric and make it airworthy. The cylinders seen below, containing ethane gas for the motors of the Zeppelin, were stored a half-mile away to lessen the danger of explosion, and the fuel was pumped through a pipe line.

Three Bandits Kill Guard And Hold Up Train

Escape With $40,000 Taken From Company's Collector; Robbers Believed Headed By "Baby Face" Willie Doody.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Detectives pried into all the haunts of "gang-land" today for Willie "Baby Face" Doody, whose criminal exploits in the last few weeks have almost eclipsed those of "Terrible" Tommy O'Connor. This time Doody is wanted as one of the three bandits who last night held up an Illinois Central suburban train, murdering a guard, and escaped with $40,000.

Numerous murders and robberies are written after Doody's name on the police books but none so cold-blooded as last night's.

The trio boarded the electric train at the Randolph street station, the origin of the line near the loop. Seventeen other passengers rode the two car local, including Delbert Sudds, former policeman, and Jerome Carey, the I. C. Bank and Trust company, and his companion, Jeremiah Carey, who carried the receipts of a dozen suburban stations in a handbag.

As the train left the Central station at Twelfth street, the bandits held up Carey and snatched the bag. Sudds reached for his revolver and the leader of the robbers, described as a small man, unhesitatingly shot him in the right eye, killing him instantly.

The three forced the motorman to stop at 27th street, where they alighted and entered a small automobile. The car sped away, vanishing in the Black Belt.

Doody, who also is known as "Wee Willie" because he is only 5 feet 6 inches tall, has been accused of a half dozen murders in the last few weeks, including that of Chief of Police Levy of Berwyn, and more than a score of holdups, all of them daring. He has on several occasions taunted the police on their inability to catch him and has sworn he never will be taken alive.

Dozens of suspects who look like Doody have been arrested, one of them a reputable business man, several times.

In connection with last night's I. C. robbery, police recalled that just 10 years ago Tommy O'Connor got his start as a bad man by robbing the Randolph station, killing a policeman, Dennis Tierney. O'Connor later walked through a half dozen locked doors of the county jail and escaped from the death house. He was to have been hanged in a few days for the murder of a policeman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Three bandits, one of whom police believe was "Baby Face" Willie Doody, sought for murder and robbery, took possession of an Illinois Central suburban train as it pulled out of Roosevelt Road station last night.

They shot and killed Delbert Sudds, 53, a former policeman guarding Jeremiah Carey, 55, collector for the railroad who was collecting the day's receipts from suburban stations.

For two miles, until they jumped off at 27th street and fled in a waiting automobile with $40,000, they obtained from Carey after disarming him; the gunman terrorized 17 passengers and the train crew.

Carey and Sudds, after making their collections from south-side agents, boarded the two-car local train at Randolph street to take the money to the I-C bank. They sat facing each other at the front of the second car.

Two of the robbers, all three of whom had boarded the train at Roosevelt Road, the principal downtown station, arose from their seats in the second coach and with guns drawn approached the collector and his guard.

They ordered Carey under a seat. As one snatched the bag from Carey, Sudds reached for his shooting birds.

The giant ship, carrying 22 passengers and a crew of 49 men, landed at the airport just 55 hours and 20 minutes after it had taken off from Lakehurst, N. Boy, Asleep On Railroad, Killed

With Two Companions, Who Barely Escaped With Their Lives, Had Stopped to Rest When Struck By Train.

DALLAS, Aug. 10.—Two small boys, survivors of a hair-raising experience which cost the life of one of their companions related today how they narrowly escaped being ground to death under the wheels of a Southern Pacific train when they fell asleep on the tracks.

J. C. McKeller, oldest of the trio, was crushed to death and Leslie Wright, 14, was barely spared his life when jerked from the path of the moving train a split second before it passed.

McKeller, Wright and Edward Fletcher, 15, stopped on the tracks near midnight Friday. The boys were on their way to the Tennonson golf course where they are caddys. Realizing they were much too early, they stopped on the tracks to pass the time away and all three fell asleep.

Fletcher said he was awakened by the shriek of a locomotive and, with the engine scarcely more than a box car length away, began yelling and pulling at his companions to get them to safety.

Wright was lying parallel to the tracks just outside the rail. McKeller was sleeping inside the rails. Fletcher tried to awaken McKeller and in so doing showed the sleeping form of Wright down an embankment to safety.

McKeller awakened and sat up to rub his eyes just as the huge engine bore down on him. Fletcher said the boy had just put his hands to his eyes when the train struck him. His body was carried 200 feet down the track where it was picked up and carried to a funeral home.

Notified of her son's death, Mrs. Molly McKeller collapsed.

Wild Scenes at Questioning Of Dr. Snook Described By Witness

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 10.—John F. Seidel, of Dr. James Howard Snook's defense counsel, charged from the witness stand today that Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., threatened to "ruin me in ten minutes" if he did not make his client, Dr. Snook, confess the murder of Theora Hix.

Seidel went up to the witness stand just before noon adjournment today.

He described a wild scene at the city jail during the questioning of Dr. Snook, following Snook's arrest.

It occurred when, after Seidel had a conversation with Snook, he went to Chester and told him the professor had nothing to confess. The, according to Seidel, Chester flew into a rage, demanding he make Snook confess, cursed him, and threatened him with ruin.

Then Seidel was permitted, he said, to listen to the questioning of Snook.

"I heard them mention a strap," he said.

Then Seidel, according to his testimony, asked a question and a detective told him that "if you don't get out of here I'll throw you out."

"I put on my hat and coat," Seidel said, "and I went out and told reporters that Jack Chester was the most unethical dog I ever knew."

Robert W. Terry, chemist, took the jury in the Snook-Hix murder case today through a lecture course and demonstration of the physical characteristics of the two allegedly excitant drugs said to have been taken before her death by Theora Hix.

He was called as a defense witness to attack testimony of C. F. Long, state chemist, who identified the drugs said to have been found in Miss Hix's stomach.

Terry testified he could not identify one of the two drugs by its tissue, as Long said he had done, although his method increased his chances of finding it, 10,000 to one.

Then a quantity of the second drug in powdered form was placed in a small porcelain dish and with a magnifying glass was passed to the jury. The jurors handled the drug gingerly as they squinted at it through the glass, observing tiny green particles it contained. The inspection was repeated with the powder ground still finer.

Women Unable to Cope With Men in Politics

The women unable to cope with men in politics? Are they capable executives in politics? Are they fitted for political life? Clara Ogden Davis who gave to the political world the novel "The Woman of It" returned an adverse verdict. This daughter of Texas, now a dweller under the skies of the Empire state of the East, will not be a candidate for office. She knows better. She has been in the newspaper game 15 years. She was in Texas in all the battles fought when the Klan was a powerful force and Farmer James E. Ferguson was ever in the spotlight. Now the author of "The Woman of It" admits that the exceptional woman may do well in politics, if she does not aspire to executive positions, but she insists "the made of softer stuff should stay out entirely." Isn't it true that the men made of softer stuff should stay out entirely? This is the critical verdict of Mrs. Davis. When the suffrage amendment was ratified I did not believe women would work a revolution in politics nor even clear any political bogsties. An adult woman has as much right as a man in the vote but fail to see women as saviors of the body politic. Admitting women to suffrage probably has doubled the small intelligent vote; it has doubled the huge ignorant vote. I have known, interviewed, stored and followed the careers of some of the women prominent in American politics, as a newspaper writer since 1917. I have yet to find a woman I consider fitted by heredity or training to cope with the shrewd, the crooked, the hypocritical man politician with whom every executive must deal. Politics in almost all its phases, is a cold, hard fight without quarter. The future may develop a woman hard, shrewd, and merciless enough to play the game fighting toe to toe with men. Perhaps.

This biting critic of the woman in politics is a native Texan. Her mother's people were 1836 pioneers from Missouri in the closing days of the war between the states. It is her proud boast that her ancestors were American pioneers in early colonial days. Her foreword has been given. Now as to her conclusion which may interest the women who are in the political arena, those who are on the fringe and those who are on the outside: "I am not meeting at any individual target. This is not the story of Miriam A. Ferguson, first woman governor of Texas, with whom I was associated during the first half of her head-breaking two years in office. It is a purely fictional account of what could happen to any typical old woman with a thirst for power, elected to executive office by political accident, who has to swallow a bitter potion of failure because of her essential womanhood. In what I have said what I think, after 22 years on the inside of the picture of politics. I wrote it as an honest opinion, not as propaganda, but if it makes American women stop and take stock of their qualifications for running public affairs, it may clear the air of a lot of silly claims and spouting about woman's great mission as a political crusader and reformer. Men are sheep minded enough in the political courses, but did you ever try to shoot a hen through an open gate? Women, almost all women, looking for a way out of a political dilemma, are hen-minded. I don't expect them to change for the better very fast."

H. C. Witwer, The Humorist, Is Dead, Hollywood

Author of "The Leather Pushers" and Other Popular Works, Succumbs After Long Illness. HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10.—H. C. Witwer, nationally known as a humorist and most famous for his "Leather Pushers" stories, is dead here after a long fight to regain his health. The clever slang writer passed away in his home here yesterday after taking it had turned three weeks ago. Witwer came to California in 1925. He enjoyed the country and told his own story in "Fighting Back to Health in California." Friends thought he had recovered completely in the years that followed, but apparently his physique was not sturdy. He was 39 years old. Witwer commenced his career as an errand boy in a butcher shop, then took to bell hopping in a hotel and later managed prize fights. He was a reporter on the Cloud, Fla., Tribune, the New York American and the Brooklyn Eagle. In 1917 he was a war correspondent for Colliers. There is a story told of Witwer that his success did not really begin until he started his fiction work. It is said that his wife was the first to realize the market value of the little features in slang he did. She pressed him to send them to magazines and when he did he was on the road to public approval. Best known among Witwer's works are "The Leather Pushers," "Baseball to Bosches," "Alex the Great," "There Is No Base Like Home," "Rubylat of a Freshman," "Fighting Back," "Classic in Slang," and a play "So This is Harris."

OUT OUR WAY

He is credited with 125 stories for the screen, some of which were adapted from his 375 magazine short stories. Witwer's wife, Mrs. Sonia Witwer and his son, Allan H. Witwer were at his bedside when he died.

Moody Cuts More Than $3,000,000 Appropriations

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—Governor Moody today issued his vetoes of items in the state appropriation bills passed by the last session of the legislature. He cut $3,016,999 from the appropriations. The governor filed without signature the bill withdrawing unsurveyed school land from market. This permits the law to become effective. The appropriation bills as sent to the governor, exclusive of rural free school aid, totaled $42,792,935. The rural free school aid bill appropriating $5,000,000 has previously been approved. With the more than $3,000,000 struck out from the other bills by the governor, it is likely the state ad valorem tax rate will be around 26 cents. It was 22 cents last year. The educational appropriation bill has the building program approved by the legislature cut out with the exception of building for the Teachers' College at Commerce and at Alpine. Except for the building appropriations that are stricken out, the appropriations left for the various schools are approximately the same as was appropriated two years ago. A total of the vetoes of appropriations made for the first of the two years covered by the bills shows a reduction of $75,270 in the judiciary appropriation; $171,227 departmental; $726,568 educational; and $289,361 eleemosynary. An appropriation to pay miscellaneous claims was reduced $391,190 but an appropriation of $85,928 to pay claims against the highway department was approved.

Arrest One In Theater Bombing

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 10.—The police inquiry into the bombing of the Victor's uptown theatre early Friday morning had netted one arrest today. Another man held for questioning was released when he proved an alibi. A charge of arson was filed against Burley Shipp, 25, said to be the son of a wealthy San Antonio family. His arrest followed comparison of a substance found on the rumber seat of an automobile with that on a piece of tile in the theatre. Shipp was arrested in Dallas several weeks ago and brought here to face charges of robbing the girl cashier of the same theatre June 16. Damage caused by the bombing was estimated at $3,700. No one was injured although a couple passing in an automobile narrowly missed being hit by debris blown into the street.

Hoover at 55 Brings to End Crowded Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—President Hoover today celebrated his 55th birthday, his first since entering the White House. Born on August 10, 1874, at West Branch, Iowa, a little town in the heart of the great American corn belt, his birthday found the president engrossed with the mighty task of seeking to benefit the farmers of the country through the operations of the newly-organized farm board and through the enactment of a tariff law which will protect farm products. A year ago today, Mr. Hoover was in the midst of his campaign for the presidency. In the intervening twelve months he has taken important steps in many spheres of international and domestic endeavor. During the year Mr. Hoover's most significant achievements, as appraised by friends, have been the following: 1—A trip to South America, which many felt had given an impetus to inter-American friendly relations and to practical understanding of problems; 2—President Hoover saw to a successful termination of the steps undertaken by the previous administration for adjustment of the Chile-Peruvian Tacna Arica problem; 3—Through his spokesmen at Geneva and London, the president had given new impetus to the discussions of naval limitation, contemplating an eventual international agreement based upon a very careful appraisal of the many factors in defense and offense; 4—In the early weeks of his administration, President Hoover established a law enforcement board to study legal conditions in the United States with view to finding means to alleviate crime, and perhaps ultimately to promote a more intelligent understanding of the merits and demerits of prohibition; 5—At a special session of congress called by President Hoover a farm relief bill was adopted in approximately the form desired by him; and the legislation now is being put into effect as rapidly as possible; 6—A commission was named to survey the Nicaraguan Canal Project.

In a statement to the county attorney, Reasoner said the shooting was accidental.

A traffic census taken recently by the State Highway department is of interest to citizens of Eastland county since some of the observers were stationed near Eastland and the figures compiled, or at least a portion of them, have to do with State Highway No. 1, known as the Bankhead, and which traverse Eastland county from east to west. The census was taken over a period of forty days, twenty hours each day, from 4:00 a. m. to 12:00 p. m. The traffic shown is an average for one day. Horse drawn vehicles averaged from one to four per day. On Highway No. 87, which passes through Eastland and the county from north to south, the observer's report shows that 15 out of state passenger cars and 544 in state passenger cars passed per day. Also that no out of state motor trucks passed, but that 59 in state motor trucks passed, making a total of 607 motor vehicles that passed over the highway in one day. Suffered Twenty Years

Daughter Says She Now Feels a New Woman Since "Killing Orzgono," Says Cisco Mother.

Months ago when my first started taking Orzgono one could have told her she would have received the wonderful results which she has and say she has found her true self. I feel like shouting "I'm a new woman," said Mrs. S. V. Parrish, of Mrs. Eva Davis, residing at Fifteenth St., Cisco, Texas, days ago.

More than twenty years ago, Mrs. Parrish, my mother, had been suffering from a trouble and no one knows how long and worry she had to her appetite was very bad. Her digestion bothered her all day and the hurting in her was something awful. About months ago, she was told Orzgono and although she had to get any relief from it else she decided to try it. It is a poor woman, even more than she did and now I feel more satisfied for than I am for what Orzgono has done for her. It has done like a miracle than a with her and brought her real relief she has had in long years. She has only three bottles so far, and has gained several pounds in but the best of it all is, she is a new woman. Her countenance is clearing up and the in-pains have all disappeared. Any body who knows the condition she was in, can see a wonderful change Orzgono made in her. Those back and back pains don't bother like they did, her pain is all gone. She sleeps child every night, and gets the morning feeling rested, almost distracted over her before she took Orzgono. Now I feel better over her than in many years and I know how to express the really feel over her wonderful relief. We gladly recommend Orzgono to all suffering women. I honestly believe from this has done for my daughter, is the best medicine that has ever been made."

Orzgono is manufacturing one of the world's largest series and is not a so-called patent remedy but a new bile treatment and is sold in Eastland, exclusively by Texas Corner Drug stores, phone 4358.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

BY WERNER LAUFER

DAVE SHADE, veteran of nearly 200 fights, is past his peak as fighting goes. He is already of the class of fighting troopers fast approaching the "trial-horse" stage.

But just a few years ago Dave, after fighting his way through the welterweight ranks, fell short of winning the championship, when a referee, influenced by Champion Mickey Walker's desperate last round rally, gave the decision against the California challenger and saved Walker's crown. After Dave had handed Mickey one of the worst lickings of his life.

He Squelches Comers

Since then Dave has never quite reached the peak again. But he has been ashes in the beer of more than one fighter who counted his champion chickens before they were hatched.

The most recent case of Dave exploding the rice pudding was when he whipped Rene DeVos in a torrid 19-rounder. DeVos had so originally been called the uncrowned king of the middleweights. They said he was the hardest hitter in his division.

True, he had lost to Ace Hudkins, but illness and poor condition had kept him from demonstrating his greatness. The boxing commissions were considering him as heir to Mickey Walker's pawmed crown jewels. He took on the slipping Shade for the exercise but Dave fooled him. Dave ducked and bobbed to the decision.

Slaps Slattery Silly

A few years ago out of Buffalo skyrocketed Jimmy Slattery. He was on his way to the light heavyweight title and nothing could stop him. Critics called him the class of his generation. He had everything, including patent leather hair and a capacity for night life. He was matched with Shade. It looked bad for the lantern-jawed Dave, but when the

BUILDING NEW ICE STATION

RANGER, Texas, August 11.—A modern ice distributing plant is under construction by the Peoples Ice company just beyond the T. & P. tracks from Main street and near the Pickering Lumber company.

The new building—which is expected to be completed within the next two weeks—will be a modern and newly equipped ice distributing in every respect.

Constructed of face brick, it will contain a completed refrigeration system which will keep ice in the same condition as that which is stored in ice manufacturing plants, according to George H. Coyle, manager of the Peoples Ice company.

Ample storage room will be provided in the building, Mr. Coyle states.

A feature of the distributing unit will be a driveway around the building so as to afford further accommodation and more rapid service to customers. Mr. Coyle points out. The driveway will be constructed of concrete or possibly of a durable gravel, it was stated. Either will add much to the attractive appearance of the finished plant.

Moral: If you're managing an uncrowned champion, steer clear of Dave Shade.

she goes to Florence, and her sweetheart, JACK, a fascinating ring from silver smith on Ponte.

And the murmur of voices penetrated her consciousness. She raised herself on her knees. Everything was clear. She remembered the cable, sized she had fainted.

rina nodded understandingly. "I shed tears myself," she murmured. "I wiped her eyes.

"bambino?" she asked. "You promised my friend," exclaimed Molly, "that if she died, I would take care of her."

But I never realized the so near. She did not cry. I never dreamed Molly's voice broke.

The sun, slanting through the window, filled it with light. It was amethyst and ruby, sweet grapes from which will revive you," she said. "I drank it gratefully. I feel better already," she de- "I'm sorry I was weak. I must have frightened you. Do you know, Signorina, there is a boat for the morning."

Signorina did not know, but the concierge was busy with the love of mother and daughter—each ready to give her life, to save the other—each believing the other guilty of murder.

A freshman in college had fallen in love with a man whom her parents considered unworthy. Learning of the romance, her father had gone to the boy.

There was a stormy session, during which the youth declared that the girl was pursuing him, that she had thrown herself at his head, and that whatever happened was her own fault.

The next day the mother of the girl bought a revolver. Two days later the boy's body was found. He had gone to a grove, presumably to keep a tryst with the girl. There was a bullet through his head, and, beside his body, was the revolver purchased by the girl's mother.

Both parents were subsequently arrested, and tried for murder. There was a tremendous furore, with the press screaming for conviction.

Molly's sympathies were with the parents. She saw them as wretched creatures, with hearts broken and minds crazed, condemned to witness the inevitable disgrace and misery of their cherished child.

But the press saw only two unrelenting, misunderstanding parents, determined to sacrifice love's young dream on the altar of their selfish ambition for their child. Two fiends with no conception of the idyll of romance.

Molly knew better. The man was an utterly amoral person. And the girl a susceptible and willing creature. She could quite understand how the agonized mother had been tormented beyond reason.

It was, of course, a sensational case. Eventually the mother was committed to an asylum, and the father to prison, convicted of rows. The curtain would come down on the mother's denial. That would get the play off on a note of mystery. The following acts would have to be worked up. The idea had great possibilities. She was sure of that. Greater even than "The Death of Delphine Darrows."

Molly worked every day, and half the nights. It was only by keeping terrifically busy, that she could forget the haunting tragedy of Rita's death. Only by becoming physically and mentally exhausted, could she sleep at all. Utterly weary, she would throw herself across her bed at two or three o'clock in the morning. At daylight, the deck hands, when they came to swab the decks, would waken her. Then she would get to work again. To keep her mind active, she drank a great quantity of black coffee.

When the Conte Grande reached New York, the new play was finished. And Molly was an utter wreck. She had lost 10 pounds in as many days, and looked 10 years older. But the play, neatly typed, lay in her traveling case. She would send it, by messenger, from the pier to Mr. Durbin. He could get in touch with her later, in Boston.

Red, exercising the privileges of the press, boarded the steamer with the doctors at quarantine. He had heard, in the peculiar fashion of newspaper men, of Rita's death, and had called on Bob, to express his sympathy. From Bob he learned of Molly's promise to care for little Rita, and learned also that Molly was returning on the Conte Grande.

He greeted her in characteristic fashion.

"Woman, what you been doing to yourself? You look like hell!"

"That's the way I feel," she told him. "Wasn't it dreadful about you taking the kid?"

"I promised Rita," she explained.

MRS. D. J. FIENSY HOSTESS TO EASTERN STAR SILVER TEA

Among the many beautiful organization entertainments which Eastland has experienced, there has none been more attractive or pleasing than the silver tea given by the Eastern Star chapter Friday afternoon when Mrs. D. J. Fienzy was hostess at her charming home assisted by co-hostesses Mrs. R. L. Young and Mrs. B. L. Mackall at the door, and Mrs. Carl F. Page, with the house hostess. Iced fruit punch was poured by Miss Mabel Hart from a stand on which the bowl was encircled with flowers and ferns and for which the nantel background was banked in blossoms and greenery.

 Entering guests were registered by Mrs. Mackall. The entire residence was adorned with many bouquets of blossoms and windows opened wide to the lawn and big trees provided a pleasing vista.
 An advertising contest in which the names of the firms were guessed was awarded Mrs. Duval, presented a crystal basket as winning favor for having every answer correct.

MCCARTY FAMILY RETURNS FROM ABROAD

Young Milburn McCarty's hearty voice and cheery greeting startled Eastland friends Friday, those who thought the McCarty family overseas. They arrived from New York Thursday night and were met in Ft. Worth by the husband and father, Milburn, Sr., enroute home.
 Mrs. McCarty was most interesting in her description of the journeyings of Milburn, Mary, her daughter, and herself which she described as constantly moving, always looking and having been comfortable through it all finding deliciously cool weather. No matter what the country they were sight seeing in, they had to carry suit coats for warmth. They spoke of some of the wonder sights they had taken in of their airplane flight to Monte Carlo, and last of their visit to England and call upon Ambassador Dawes, who evidenced great interest in Milburn in the satisfactory visit they had with him, and who asked to be notified when Milburn had finished his school.

JOHNSON FAMILY RETURNS

Mrs. J. L. Johnson and family, who have spent the past year in Lubbock, will return to Eastland Aug. 25 and will locate with Dr. Johnson at the Lamar Apartments. After a several days' visit, Misses Joyce and Doris and Joan Johnson will return to Lubbock and re-enter Lubbock Tech for the fall term. Prior to that Miss Joan will join the campfire girls encampment at Post, Tex., for their stay.
 The clubs will be glad to welcome Mrs. Johnson whose presence and influence have been missed. It is pleasing to remember that Miss Verna Johnson will be one of the high school faculty this year.

MRS. OUTWARD ENTERTAINS CLUB, HONORING HOUSE GUEST

One of the pleasant events of this week was the little two table bridge entertained by Mrs. W. Z. Outward at her delightful home Thursday afternoon, honoring the Blue Bonnet club, and her house guests, Mrs. John Alsdorf of Ashland, O. who arrived Tuesday for a two weeks' visit. The rooms were glowing with bouquets of lovely pink roses and the attractive bridge appointments in tallies and score cards carried the rose and blue design in gold relief. Iced fruit punch was served during the afternoon and the tables supplied with salted almonds. At close of a delightful entertainment high score guest favor a handsome linen tea cloth and napkins with wide pink bordered design, was awarded Mrs. W. K. Jackson, a similar cloth in gold and blue design being the high score favor for club member, Mrs. Roy Allen. Delicious refreshments of pink and white brick cream and angel food cake with pink icing was served with rose tinted punch cooled with frozen cherry and pineapple sticks. At the refreshment period the party was joined by Mrs. Smith from her ranch near Brennenridge. Mrs. Smith is the sister of Mrs. Outward. Personnel of party:

Mrs. Geo. E. Cross, Mrs. J. O. Earnest, Mrs. Roy L. Allen, Mrs. E. B. O'Rourke, Mrs. Geo. Taggart, Mrs. W. K. Jackson, Mrs. J. M. Ferrell, Mrs. John Alsdorf, Misses Lois Alsdorf and Charlene Outward and Mrs. W. Z. Outward.

Mrs. McCarty added they were glad to see all that they did but that Eastland looked good to them. They are located for the winter in the former Perry Scales residence which they have leased furnished. Milburn will enter the high school for his senior year in September.
 A LOVELY GIFT SHOWER
 Friday afternoon Mrs. T. R. Thomason of 101 N. Ammerman Street, entertained a number of friends in honor of Mrs. W. H. Kykendall who received a dainty shower of good will gifts on this pretty occasion. Pink and blue were the chosen colors used in the decorations and lovely bouquets of pink blossoms in blue crystal vases further conserved the color note. "Forty two" and bridge were the diversions for which high score favors, a pretty flower vase and a silk kerchief were awarded Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Guthrie. At close of a delightful afternoon, Miss Lorraine Thomason appeared like a sprite pulling a dainty wagon covered in pink and blue frill-paper with the wagon heaped with countless tissue paper bundles, the expressions of good will and love of the guests.
 Dainty refreshments of brick ice cream in pink and white, pink iced cake and iced lemonade were served. Mmes. Adams, Wynne Ed. Graham, Mathews, B. Lovelace, Billie Walters, Stiffler, J. T. Drake, Andrew Bargeley, J. H. Roe, T. J. Woods, Jack Narrell, C. E. Rowe, H. Pullman, Fannie Frost, W. B. Griffen, the honoree, Mrs. F. Kykendall, and hostess, Mrs. Thomason.

Miss Bessie Mae Bradley of Rising Star, senior student of C. I. A. summer course, is spending a few days with Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite her aunt, enroute from her college. She will teach in Electra next September. Miss Braley has spent three years in C. I. A. and is well remembered in Eastland where the Braley family formerly lived.
 Miss Ina Mae Vaught spent Friday with Miss Braley at the Satterwhite residence, and that afternoon the two girls were guests of Mrs. Mae Hanson for the matrimonial picture in Ranger.
 Friday afternoon Misses Elizabeth Day, her guest, Miss Belva Dee Hillyer, Marjorie Taggart and Dolores Tanner enjoyed a delightful swim at Trionan lake at Olden, followed by a basket picnic supper, and Connellee picture show that evening.

MRS. CLIFTON HYATT ENTERTAINS AT OLDEN FOR EASTLAND GUESTS

Miss Catherine Birmingham of Atlanta, Tex., who is visiting Miss Geraldine Dabney was the honoree of a most attractive bridge and luncheon tendered by Mrs. Clifton Hyatt Friday morning at her home in Olden. A color scheme in pink and green was carried out, and gorgeous bouquets of marigolds were artistically employed in all the rooms. Five tables were arranged for the game and afterward laid in rose and green embroidered linens for the three course luncheon served. Guests included those from Olden, Ranger and Eastland. The list from this city was represented by Mrs. J. B. Johnson, Mrs. B. D. Mampton, Mrs. Joe Stephen, Miss Geraldine Dabney and the honoree, Miss Birmingham of Atlanta, Tex.

CHURCH OF CHRIST DEMONSTRATION

The demonstration or visualization lesson usually given by the class in evangelism of the Church of Christ each Thursday afternoon was held only in part last week due to Mrs. Harrell, the lecturer, being unable to attend on account of the injury her boy received, and to the fact that her substitute was out of town.
 The demonstration lesson was handled in a "talky" way very beautifully given by Mrs. Hurley and Mrs. McClendon in an interesting way and was introduced by a song service when numbers given were "Bring Them In," "Jesus Loves Me" "Blessed Assurance," and "Sweet By and By," led by Mrs. Hurley. New children attending were Aubrey Foster, Chas. Foster, Leona Chambers, Catherine Garrett and Virginia Nell Garrett. Twenty five children in all were present. The usual demonstration next Thursday.

NOTED VISITOR IN TOWN

Miss Lillian Thomason of Shanghai, China, arrived Friday to be the guest for a few days of her niece, Mrs. Scott Key. Miss Thomason has lived abroad more than 20 years and has a most wonderful library in China; a library of ancient and rare treasures and enriched with curios and many rare and wonderful things. She speaks Chinese dialect fluently and is a most interesting woman in every way. Her visits to Mrs. Key always mean a shower of lovely gifts and this visit is no exception to the rule.

THE LITTLE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT

Only it happens to be the Little House that George is building and moreover putting it underneath the house "as am." In other words Mrs. George Taggart's residence has been jacked up on underpinnings and a first floor will be built beneath. With this rapidly moving upward, going on, there is no disturbance of the family habits, as Mrs. Taggart and her occupations continue peacefully as of yore. She has been heard to say, however, that if she hears a big pop, or cracking sound, that she will not linger long.

SHINING TALENT

You didn't agree to take on the rest of the family, did you?" Molly smiled faintly.
 "Bob?" she asked. "Poor Bob! How is he, Red?"
 "Bearing up," drawled Red. "Bearing up pretty well, I should say. He's got a frowsy little dame to keep him company."
 "Red!"
 "Sure thing," he insisted. "She's taking care of the kid. That's the stall."
 "Why, that's outrageous!" "It's rotten," he affirmed.
 The big boat docked before Red finished with his story. He had secured courtesy of the port for Molly, and the bother of customs was expedited.
 They were standing together, waiting for an inspector to affix his seals to her luggage, when Molly saw Bob outside the gate. She had complained a moment before of feeling faint, and Red's arm was about her shoulders.

"Look!" she exclaimed. "There's Bob now. Lordy, Red, I don't know what to say to him!"
 "Oh, just act natural," he advised. "The poor sap's got trouble enough. That other thing will straighten itself out."
 "Bob!" she called.
 He came toward them, looking back over his shoulder, in a perplexed sort of fashion. He wore a mourning band on the sleeve of his gray suit, and a black tie.
 He took her hand in both of his. And she saw that there were tears in his mild blue eyes. Despite the frowsy lady—despite whatever he might have done—she felt overwhelmingly sorry for him.
 "It's strange," he stammered. "Very strange. Jack was here a moment ago. He seems to have disappeared."
