

Moore... ABOUT EASTLAND

by Virgil E. Moore

Mrs. Glenn Justice of Carbon has submitted the first entry in our cute saying contest. She told of an occasion which occurred two years ago.

"One morning as my four year old son (Harry Glenn) and I walked in the lobby of the hospital to receive a vaccine shot, I mentioned to him that a good friend of ours, a 15-year-old-girl, was a patient in the hospital. He asked, 'Does she have a baby?' (We had been to the hospital a few days before to see a friend that had a tiny baby.) I told him no, that she wasn't married and that you had to be married before you had a tiny baby. He answered, 'Sure wish we had one.'

"Later, upon entering the technician room, the technician (whom we had never seen before) looked my son over and asked him, 'Are you married, son?' Harry Glenn, sitting in a chair with his leg flung over his arm, replied, 'No sir, and my Mother and Daddy aren't married either.'

"Yep, those youngsters can come out with some good ones. In case you missed our column in which we announced this contest, here are the rules again. All you have to do is submit a "cute saying" made by one of your youngsters or by a child you know. It makes interesting reading, and a nice clipping for their scrapbook as well. To make it more interesting, we have arranged with Canaris Studio to award an 8x10 picture, free of any charge, to the person who submits the best saying. The picture, of course, will be of the bright child who made the remark in the first place.

We are really enjoying ourself this week. Joe Gray, who recently started writing a Sunday column for the Telegram called "Gray Matter", crawled into our office Monday morning with a sick look on his face.

"They're after me," Joe said glancing at the door. "Who's after you Joe?" "Those teachers. Every teacher in town is out to get me. I didn't dream that column I wrote about foolish English rules would cause so much disturbance."

We couldn't resist the urge to say we told you so. For when Joe started writing his column we warned him that no matter what he wrote sooner or later someone would be out to get his scalp. You just can't state an opinion without getting a little criticism.

But (oh, oh, we shouldn't start a sentence with a conjunction) old Joe hasn't given up. He will be back for another try Sunday.

The Court of Criminal Appeals in Texas is getting almost as much criticism over the state as the national Supreme Court is. And this column believes rightly so. The Associated Press carried a story dated July 13 which told of some of the criticism. It mentioned a case which is of local interest. A 91st District Court jury found an Eastland man guilty of assault with a deadly weapon. An appeal was made and the Criminal Appeals Court ruled that the three fourth of an inch long knife blade is not a deadly weapon and reversed the decision.

That doesn't sound too bad until you take a look at the knife. It was one of those linoleum blades. You know the type. It has a curved thick blade which is razor sharp. We personally would like to see the man who couldn't be killed with the weapon.

The Court has also reversed decisions on such "important points" as misspelling the name of a county, ruling that the date "before, or about" is indefinite, and that alleged false

Little League Crown Is At Stake Tonight

A sixth-inning runoff by the Comets sent the Eastland Little League city champion playoff series into a third game last night. The Comets handed the favored Lions a sound, 11-2, wallop.

Tonight the two teams will meet in the third and final clash of the series, with the League crown at stake. The Comets won the first half of play to earn the right to get into the playoffs and the Lions won the second half, then copped the first game of the series. Tonight the Lions will probably start ace moundman, Bubba Hunter, while the Comets are expected to rely on Larry Howle.

If that is the case the rest of the Lion line-up will read something like this. Tim Stacy will be behind the plate, Ray Edwards will be at first, Jerry Dukes at second, Hayden Wilson at third, and Cliff Thomas at short. In the outfield Phillip

Water Skiing Class to Begin Here Thursday

Senior High School teenagers, interested in water skiing classes, were told today to report Thursday at 11 a.m. at the swimming pool for pre class swimming tests and instructions.

There will be two sessions weekly for four weeks. Entry fee is $3.00 for "Y" members and $6.00 for others. The "Y" also announced a change of dates for the youth center. In the future Juniors will meet from 8 until 11 p.m. on Fridays and Seniors will meet from 8 until 11 p.m. on Saturdays.

Club Solves Old Problem

Eastland Rotarians are vitally interested in two things: their club and business.

Therefore club members voted this week to solve a long standing problem. All future meetings will end sharply at 1 p.m. Some of the meetings in recent months have dragged on and on.

How will the club do it? President Don Pierson has announced that an alarm clock will go off sharply at 1 each Monday.

Marine Reserve Secure Beachhead In California

CORONADO, Calif.—At dawn today, while most of the young men their age were sleeping comfortably in their homes in Eastland, several Eastland high school students went over the side of an attack transport of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Forces, down the cargo nets, into assault craft, and moved shoreward toward a white sandy beach.

These high school students of a few weeks ago, are now United States Marine Corps Reservists on active duty in an amphibious assault with the 87th Special Infantry Company, USMCR, of Eastland, here at Landing Force Training Unit, Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado, California.

The Eastland Marines boarded the huge transport yesterday afternoon and as the ship put out to sea, were given a tour of the ship by the Marine embarkation officer aboard. Then for the next couple of hours, the local Leather-necks went through a form of training known as wet net training.

When the ship reaches the point of debarkation, cargo nets are dropped over the side and Marines go over the side, down the nets, and into the waiting landing craft for the ride to the beach.

With a 60 pound pack and weapon this is difficult on a dry net, but when the big ship is rolling with the swells and the little craft are bobbing about like corks, this can prove to be quite a difficult task.

However, after making runs of embarking and disembarking via the nets for a couple of hours, the Eastland Marines stopped for the night and spent the remainder of the night aboard the ship.

Kline will be in left field, Richard Jones will be in center field and Mike Seibert or Ronnie Pack will get the call in right field.

For the Comets, the infield will look something like this. Wayne Harris will catch, Tommy Beck will hold down second, Mike Miller will be on third and Jodie Cooper will get the call at shortstop. In left field the probable starter is Joe Basham, with John Manueley in center field and Manuel Herrera in right.

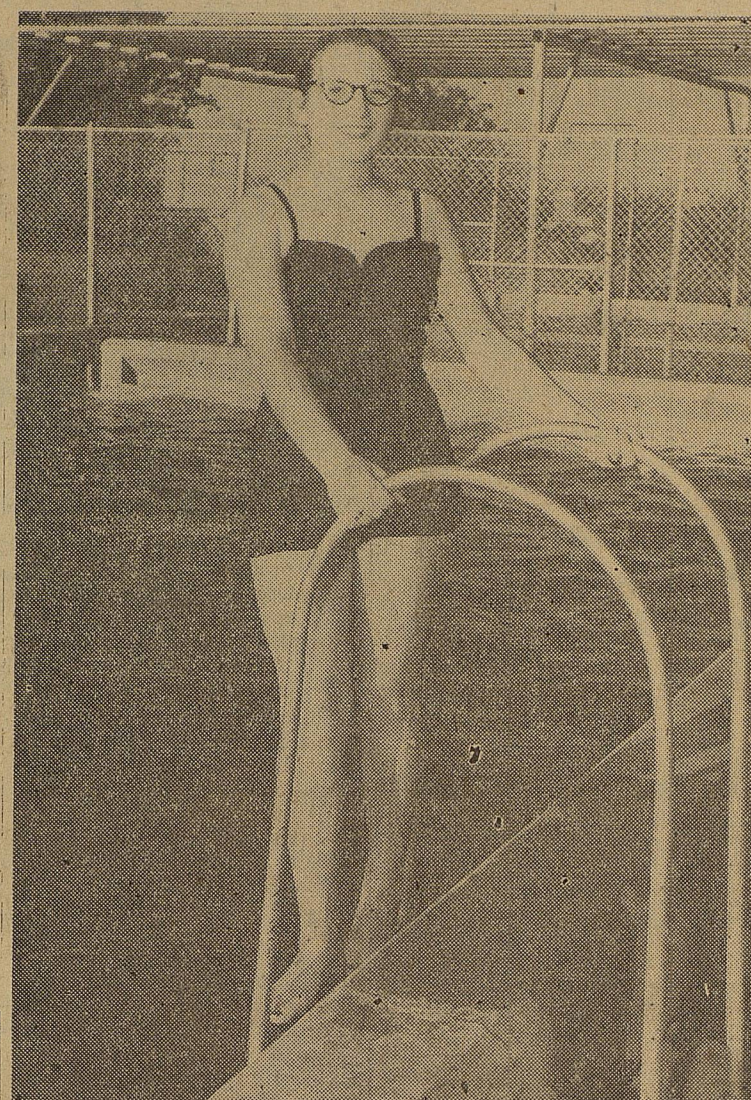

Cooper Is Winner

Jodie Cooper got credit for the Comet win Wednesday night. The little moundman gave up a double and two singles in the first inning allowing two Lion runs-and then pitched no-hit ball during the remainder of the tilt. He put the Lions down one-two-three in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth, with the help of some great infield work by his teammates, and faced only four batters in the third inning.

In the top of the first a couple of Lion errors gave the Comets their first run, with Howle crossing the plate. The Lions roared back to push two men across home in the bottom of the inning, however, Wilson led off with a clean single. Cooper struck out the next man, but then Cliff Thomas blasted a double. Wilson went to third, then scored on a passed ball. Hunter singled back of Thomas to drive him in.

It was three up and three down for both teams in the second inning, but Wayne Harris led off with a single for the Comets in the third, then Howle followed him up with a hit of his own to drive Harris home. Hayden Wilson, who pitched a fine game for the losers, got the next three men. In the bottom of the third, with the game tied, 2-2, it appeared that the Lions were ready to move ahead. Wilson drew a walk, Dukes struck out and then Cliff Thomas walked, putting runners on second and third after a double steal. With one away and Hunter at bat it looked like trouble for the Comets. But Catcher Harris let a passed ball get by him and Wilson streaked for home. Harris gathered in the ball and threw to Cooper who covered home, for a clean out. Then Hunter struck out. That was all for the Lions, as they went three up, three down for the last three innings.

STRICTLY AMERICAN—Erika Nafe (pronounced to rhyme with Safe) is strictly American today just one year out of Germany. The Eastland High student proves she's a 100 percent by being an avid swimmer. She came to America in July, 1956. It took her 90-days to learn to speak English, and less time than that to love the country.

Erika Is Strictly An American After Year

Living proof that America is still the land which can remake a person in just one year is Fraulein Erika Nafe.

But then you can drop that fraulein business now, for Erika, who this month is celebrating her first

TOUR POSTOFFICE

Eastland Rotarians toured the post office Monday. Mrs. Marene Johnson, postmaster, showed members of the club through the plant. She explained how each department worked, and showed Rotarians how they could help save the post office money.

Eastland's greatest amazement when she first landed in this country was the huge swarms of automobiles that were always everywhere she looked, and she vowed to own one. Celebrating the end of her first year in America, she recently became the owner of a genuine American car, a 1951 Ford, which she likes to drive as fast as the thing will go.

She will be a Sophomore in Eastland High School next year.

anniversary in America, is 100 percent Americanized today.

If you go into the Doc Davis drug store and order a Coca-Cola she is pretty apt to be the one who sees that you get it.

Over in Mainz, Germany, where she lived before coming to this country, Erika had a sister named Anna Maria who married Paul Rogers of Eastland, Paul being a GI stationed in Germany with the Air Force at the time.

Eventually Paul was rotated home, bringing his German bride with him, and eventually Anna decided she would like to have her mother and sister over here, too, so Erika and her mother were sent for. They flew over, landing in New York last July. For a while they lived in Mississippi, where Paul was stationed, and that is where Erika set out to learn the language, making a 90-day project of it. She now speaks English with a cross between a German accent and a Mississippi brogue, and if you think that's not something, enemy of this country, he will have a working background and knowledge of amphibious warfare, to give himself an added courage, a Marine spokesman declared.

The Eastland unit has moved to the Marine Corps rifle range, Camp Matthews, for a week of weapons training under the guidance of the Weapons Training Battalion.

Camp Matthews is located 17 miles inland where the rolling hills offer a natural layout for six huge rifle ranges that are kept constantly busy. It is quite a different setting from the ocean surrounded Amphibious Base here.

The Eastland Marines will return home Saturday via air transport.

NATIONAL SURVEY SHOWS Folks In Eastland Are Above Average Eaters

The average Eastland County family is spending more of its money for food than for any other consumer product but one, according to the results of a nationwide study of spending patterns. The exception is automotive equipment.

Either local residents are eating more than they did before or they have developed more expensive tastes, evidenced by diets consisting of more meat, fruit and vegetables and less bread and potatoes. Whatever the reason, the fact is that their food bill reached $6,061,000 in the past year. It was $5,399,000 in 1955.

Explanation of New Welfare Law Given

Complete and permanent invalids or persons in the community so mentally deranged that they require continuous oversight to keep from harming themselves or others may soon be able to receive small monthly checks from their State Department of Public Welfare through the new state-federal program of aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled, Arla Hallford, welfare supervisor stationed in Eastland, said today.

The Constitutional amendment, which was adopted by voters in November, limiting the amount of money that can be appropriated for this program to 1.5 million dollars per year, makes aid possible only to those who are helpless and have no relatives able to support them, he declared.

Hallford pointed out this is the only welfare program which requires consideration of the ability of relatives to support. This law defines "responsible relatives" as children, parents, step-children, step-parents, brothers and sisters. He said that for the first time in nearly 20 years the Department's field workers will be required by law to determine the resources of relatives of persons who apply for aid.

The "permanency" and "totality" of the disability will be determined by a State reviewing physician after study of a complete physical or mental examination by the person's own private physician. Complete helplessness from a medical standpoint, rather than inability to work, is the criteria.

The state will pay the private physician for his examination. Funds for assistance payments will not be available until Sept. 1, but applications will be taken after July 15. While the helpless individual will not be able to leave home, the persons responsible for his care may come to the local welfare office and acquaint the Department with his situation. A field worker will then call, as soon as possible, at the home to take the application.

Offices in this area are located: At Eastland in the county courthouse basement. Field workers are on duty from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. At Rising Star a field worker is at the City Hall on the first and third Mondays of each week.

At Cisco a worker is at City Hall on the second Tuesday of each month from 10 a.m. until noon and on the fourth Tuesday from 9 a.m. until noon.

At Ranger a field worker is at City Hall on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month from 10 a.m. until noon.

Two County 4-H Boys to Receive Jersey Calves

Two 4-H Club Boys of Eastland County were selected to receive registered Jersey heifers sponsored by the Eastland County Youth Dairy Program. The boys are Gene Snider of Gorman, and Wornie Kanady of Scranton.

This was decided at a meeting held in the Texas Electric Conference Room on July 11, according to Curtie Boase, assistant county agent.

Those present at the meeting were the members of the Executive Committee of the organization, including A. D. Jenkins, Rising Star, president; Sam Kimmell, Cisco, and Bob Perkins of Eastland. Also attending the meeting were Ben McKinnis, secretary; H. L. Geyer, vocational agriculture teacher at Rising Star and Boase.

Boys receiving the heifers have been very active 4-H Club members in their clubs and at home with their projects, Boase said. Wornie has been a member of the dairy judging team that won first place at the district judging contest this year, has showed an animal in the Eastland County Livestock Show and is now president of the Nimrod 4-H Club.

Gene has done a very good job in the Kincaid Turkey Program and is an active member of the Gorman 4-H Club. He won two ribbons at the Dallas Fair last year on some of the turkeys and plans to do the same this year.

SEOUL—Army Specialist Third Class Bobby A. Hallum, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hallum, Eastland recently was assigned as a member of the Korean Military Advisory Group.

Specialist Hallum, a vehicle repairman, arrived in the Far East last August and served with the 138th Antiaircraft Artillery Group in Japan before his present assignment. He entered the Army in 1953.

CHURCH OF GOD BUILDING—The old W. M. U. building pictured above, located west of Eastland just off Highway 80, will be the home of some 250 to 300 visiting guests of the Church of God from Monday through the following Sunday when the Church's camp meeting convenes. An out of state evangelist, a college quartet and many other special features are expected to make this an outstanding encampment, according to local church spokesmen. The Church of God has done a lot of work on the building and grounds in recent years. The 300 visitors will live in the building during their stay here.

It shows that people's indulgence in more and better food goes hand in hand with increased earnings and reflects a rising standard of living.

The year's food bill in the county, if apportioned equally among the local population, would represent an outlay of $895 per family.

Eastland County families, it means, used 25 percent of their spendable dollar for eatables. Elsewhere in the United States the average was 24 percent and, in the State of Texas, 23 percent.

Bigger food bills are due in part, it is shown, to the growing use of "convenience foods" such as frozen products and heat-and-serve meals.

Locally, increased spending was noted, also, in other lines of retail business covered by the study. There was a general inching upward. Part of it, however, is attributed to higher prices.

Retail outlets for autos and other automotive equipment had sales of $7,635,000 in the year, amounting to 31 percent of all retail business.

General merchandise stores accounted for $1,749,000, another 7 percent.

Home furnishing stores did $901,000, equal to 4 percent and apparel stores, $780,000, or 3 percent.

Worth Food Mart Celebrates Its 25th Anniversary

Worth Food Mart is celebrating its 25th anniversary this week with a special sale. The local store is participating in the giant sale.

Worth Food was founded 25 years ago. The company acquired the Eastland store along with 12 other super-markets in August of last year when they purchased the Pipkin food store chain.

Today Worth Food, with Gordon W. Foster as president, is recognized as one of the leading food chains in the state. The chain does an estimated $50 million annual volume.

Manager of the local store is Carey Hightower. Homer Meek is market manager. An advertisement appears in today's Telegram giving many of the special values on sale this week at Worth Food.

Moves to Curb Supreme Court Show Congress Getting Fed Up

Congressional resentment of recent Supreme Court decisions is boiling over, as well it should be. "Something must be done" is heard not only on the street corners all over the nation but in the halls of Congress as well. And "something" will be done. At the least, there must be legislation to nullify some of the court's recent decisions, such as those opening the FBI files to subversives, hamstringing congressional investigations, and taking away from the states concurrent jurisdiction in many of cases.

The depth of resentment in the legislative branch is reflected in the moves to require justices to be reconfirmed by the Senate every four years, and the even more extreme move in the House to start impeachment proceedings against the entire Supreme Court. The court had better see the handwriting on the wall and amend its course, and that quickly. This government is made up of three divisions, the Executive, the Legislative and the Judicial. The Supreme Court has undeniably infringed upon the powers of the other two. Not only that, but it has taken away many rights belonging to the states, as well.

Automatic Debt Reduction Plan Has Its Good Points

While Congress has done a creditable job, to date, on reduction of the budget, the whole story will not have been told until about a year hence—after all the deficiency and supplemental appropriations have been made. Meanwhile a permanent program of federal debt reduction has been proposed which deserves the most earnest consideration by Congress. It is a plan which would provide for systematic retirement of the public debt. It is at the same time a plan which would put a wholesome check upon federal spending.

Goat Future Looks Good In Texas

College Station.—The future looks pretty good for Texas goat producers. Many farmers and ranchers are now combining sheep, cattle and goats on the same range and getting better weight gains with higher monetary returns. Selection of heavier-fleeced bucks for breeding herds has increased the average mohair clip three-fourths of a pound in 12 years, says Agricultural Economist John McNeely. Value of 1955 mohair, estimated at 13.6 million dollars, compared very well with the 19.9 million dollars for Texas wool.

Spanish goats are produced for meat, brush control or slaughter and stocker sales. Angora goats are raised primarily for the production and sale of mohair, but are also useful for brush control and eventually are sold for slaughter. Details of the Texas goat situation, compiled largely from a mailed questionnaire sent to farmers and ranchmen in the Texas goat raising areas, are available from the Agricultural Information Office at College Station. Ask for Bulletin 844.

Orange Smoothie Dessert

Here's a foolproof, delicious sherbet recipe for use in your own refrigerator, one that utilizes two of our most nutritious and economical foods, frozen concentrated Florida orange juice and buttermilk. High time you were aware of the fact that Florida citrus products, both the canned and frozen varieties, are one of the few foods that can boast about a price decrease in the last year. Reason enough for using them as often as possible, but when you think of the summer-time refreshment they offer, as well as their vitamin C content so important to us in hot weather, they're muses on your shopping list.

Buttermilk is one of the best nutrition foods we have, and don't shy away from this recipe even if you don't normally drink buttermilk. Its flavor isn't discernible in the finished sherbet; it merely makes it a creamy, wonderfully textured concoction. Lightly easy from the standpoint of ingredients.

Florida Sherbet
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
3/4 cup cold water
1/2 cup sugar
1 6-ounce can frozen Florida orange juice concentrate
3 6-ounce cans (2 1/4 cups) buttermilk
Soften gelatine in cold water. Dissolve over hot water; add sugar and stir until dissolved; pour into bowl. Add orange juice concentrate to gelatine; refill can three times with buttermilk. Add to concentrate mixture; stir well. Turn into freezing tray. When mixture is partially frozen, remove to bowl and beat until smooth. Return to tray and continue freezing until firm. YIELD: 1 1/4 quarts.

Broilers A Big Favorite of Backyard Chefs

College Station.—Cooking out-of-doors is a popular pastime that has been enjoyed for a long time but chicken broilers have only entered the picture in recent years. Young, tender broilers when cooked one to one and a quarter hours provide excellent barbecue, according to Kermit Schlab, extension poultry marketing specialist. Either fresh or quick frozen birds, ready-to-cook, are satisfactory for barbecuing.

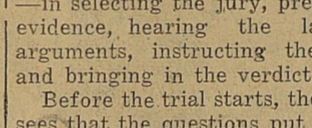

In the way of equipment, Schlab says that portable barbecuing outfits or electric outfits may be used but simple equipment such as a metal rack set up on four bricks standing on end will do. The flavor and aroma of the meat is unchanged.

Charcoal or briquets are most popular for fuel, but good dry hardwood works well. In either case, the specialist advises letting the fire burn down to the coals. Have the coals no higher than 2 inches and replenish if needed. The grill should be 12 to 20 inches above the heat source. Low, even heat is the secret.

The heart of a good broiler barbecue is a spicy, savory sauce, says Schlab. The Poultry and Egg National Board has developed a simple sauce made of 1-4 cup of water, 1 cup vinegar, 1-4 pound butter and 1 tablespoon of salt heated together. Different people may prefer different combinations of these ingredients.

The real fun of a chicken barbecue, beside the eating, is in the cooking. Halved birds are ideal, but they may be quartered if smaller portions are desired. Brush the birds with sauce, laying the skin side up, advises Schlab. Do not pierce the skin. Keep the fire low to avoid scorching and cooking too quickly. Turn the birds every 10 to 15 minutes and baste each time. To test for doneness, twist the drumstick. It turns out of the thigh joint readily when the bird is done, says Schlab.

Broiler barbecues can be made to fit any crowd, and you don't have to be an expert chef to turn out a fine barbecued chicken. Try it on your next outing, suggests Schlab.

IT'S THE LAW

THE JUDGE AT WORK
The judge has many duties in a trial. He sees that it goes in an orderly way and according to the rules—in selecting the jury, presenting evidence, hearing the lawyers' arguments, instructing the jury, and bringing in the verdict.

Before the trial starts, the judge sees that the questions put to prospective jurors are proper. He excuses jurors. He must see to the proper conduct of the litigants, lawyers and witnesses. He must put down public disturbances.

The judge must see that the lawyers keep within due limits in questioning witnesses, in arguing to the jury, and in their attitudes toward each other and the judge. The judge tells the jurors their duties and what questions of fact to decide. He instructs them on what law controls the rights of the parties. He sees that the verdict is due in form. He must decide any requests for rulings by lawyers.

For example, after the plaintiff's lawyer has made his opening statement or presented his evidence, the defendant's lawyer may move for a judgment of "nonsuit." This motion grants the plaintiff's facts but denies their cogency as a matter of law. If granted, the motion will not allow the plaintiff to recover judgment.

A directed verdict also ends the case before the jury can decide it. It is a decision by the court on a question of law. Either plaintiff or defendant may concede the facts but deny, as a matter of law, their power to sustain the other party's case.

A judge may render a "judgment notwithstanding the verdict" after the jury has brought in its verdict, when he should have granted, but mistakenly denied, a directed verdict.

The judge now and then may rule on the law and thereby take the suit out of the jury's hands. His ruling in no way reflects on the jury, but works to keep down needless litigation. When he does this he usually expresses the sincere thanks of the court for the time of the jury in standing ready to do its work.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Quick as a cat can wink its eye

Thanks to the miracles of frozen foods and prepared mixes, the modern housewife can bake a cherry pie or concoct a whole meal "quick as a cat can wink its eye."

But what does she do with the time she saves? Just takes care of three or four kids; makes slip-covers and drapes, acts as family chauffeur and nurse, does the washing and ironing, entertains her husband's boss, probably helps out at the local hospital or maybe serves as Den Mother for ten husky, unruly Cub Scouts.

And she does even more! Chances are she acts as family purchasing agent and bookkeeper. And her family's financial standing depends as much upon her ability to budget and save money as it does on her husband's ability to earn it.

That's why so many women today are helping their husbands get started on a regular savings program in U.S. Series E Savings Bonds. Everybody wants to save, but modern women face the fact that few people can do it on a hit or miss basis. The secret of saving is system, and one of the easiest systems to follow is for the family breadwinner to buy Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. Once a wage earner signs up for this plan where he works, his money is automatically saved for him in safe and sure U.S. Savings Bonds.

Help your family win financial security by encouraging your husband to join the Payroll Savings Plan or invest in Bonds regularly where he banks. He'll thank you for it tomorrow!

Folders Tell How To Catch Catfish, Carp

AUSTIN.—Be you carp or catfisherman? The Texas Game and Fish Commission has some red hot information for you. In pamphlets just issued there is expert advice on how to catch both catfish and carp. The publications also tell how to cook them.

Carp fishing has become quite a fad on many Texas lakes and streams, where fishermen have found them to be plentiful and real battlers. Biologists of the commission are doing everything they can to eradicate carp as "rough fish."

There are still thousands of fishermen who like to catch carp. Many private dock owners bait holes for carp fishing. They grow big and fight hard.

The folder on catfish describes the individual fish and tells how the fisherman can identify them. It also tells of methods of taking catfish, and the kinds of baits best suited to catfishing.

Copies of these pamphlets can be had by writing to the Game and Fish Commission, Walton Building, Austin, Texas.

sistant coach of Ranger High School. He served with the army occupation forces in Germany.

Moore About—

We personally can't believe that our law should be based on technicalities.

Hot Weather Hints Given By Safety Council

"HOT WEATHER HINTS" College Station.—The "good old summertime" is here and with it comes highest temperatures and bright sunlight. The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council warns that too much sunlight and overexposure to high temperatures can cause troubles unless precautions are taken.

They point out that heat sickness will occur when the body's heat regulating system collapses during prolonged heat or overexposure to the sun. In sunstroke, body temperature rises, the skin becomes hot and dry, face reddens and a shooting headache develops. Heat exhaustion is an entirely different thing. Its symptoms are below normal body temperature, cold clammy skin, palor, dizziness and a dull headache.

The Council offers the following suggestions for preventing summertime troubles caused by heat. Avoid overexposure to direct sunlight and wear a hat while out-of-doors; avoid overexertion; wear light, porous and loose fitting clothing; increase the use of salt in food and use salt tablets or salt in drinking water; drink plenty of water during the day but avoid ice water and alcohol; eat nutritious food but don't overeat; drink fruit juices or eat fresh fruit for a plentiful supply of Vitamin C and get plenty of rest and bathe regularly.

The Council offers this simple rule if first aid treatment must be given to a person suffering from heat sickness. If the patient is cold, make him warm; if he is hot, make him cool.

Arrange Flowers Easily

At this time of the year the homemaker finds flowers more readily available for decorating the home. Garden flowers in great variety are available in all sections of the country.

However, as beautiful as the flowers appear growing in their natural state, it is often difficult to arrange them attractively in vases. Here is where transparent plastic household wrap can give assistance.

Except for the flat bowls in which flowers are actually floated, the flower arranger will find that pieces of plastic wrap wadded up and placed in the vase will help hold the stems of flowers in the pattern desired. Even a few flowers can be made easily into an attractive, professional arrangement.

As to this handy transparent wrap, it is now available in a new box. Pasturing the colors forest green and chartreuse, the new package has the cutter bar at the bottom of the box. This leaves at least two inches of the wrap readily available at all times and helps to eliminate the "lost end" problem. The homemaker will find that her summer flower arranging will be simplified by the use of transparent plastic wrap and the wrap itself will be so much easier to use in the new box.

Divers Study Fish Habits Under Surface

AUSTIN.—Underwater research has told biologists of the Texas Game and Fish Commission a great deal about the habits of bass, according to the annual report of diving activities just released by the Director of Inland Fisheries.

Most of the underwater operations were carried on in the lower Lake Buchanan, Granite Shoals and Lake Austin. According to John E. Tilton, assistant project leader, the tests were made in both summer and winter months at depths ranging to 50 feet.

Varying degrees of visibility were encountered, depending on the time of day and intensity of the light, according to the report.

"Although little measurable difference in visibility is noted between bottom and intermediate depths, fish and other objects are more easily seen on or near the bottom," the report says. This is because bottom material in the lower end of the lake is composed of light colored materials.

Fish counts are said to be extremely difficult, however, because of their rapid movement. They also dart in and out of hiding places.

The divers found that sunfish, bass and the Rio Grande perch are easily approached and show little fear of the divers. They saw many other species, such as carp, buffalo, river carpsuckers, fresh water drum, log perch, channel cats and white cats and white crappie. These fish are not approachable, however, and soon move out of sight.

The underwater work in pairs. This offers more safety and they are also able to use one another as "yardsticks" to measure distances.

Because of water magnification, they judge distance by the height of one another. They also are able to estimate the size of fishes by the size of equipment carried on their buddies.

The underwater work has many other disadvantages, too. For instance in the winter months it is difficult for the divers to stay down over a few minutes. Under the best conditions the diver is completely fatigued after two hours of underwater work.
