Run Down By Car Man Finds Sisters Lost For 30 Years

HOUSTON, Tex., July 1—A 65 year old man was in a hospital here today cheerfully smiling despite a broken hip, sustained when struck by an auto. For thirty years D. A. Skipp had been looking for three sisters. He advertised in papers and conducted a search through a detective agency. Yesterday an auto struck him. One of the three sisters, Mrs. Emma McVickers, 78, read of the accident and hurried to the hospital. They discovered they had been living in the same town for ten years. The other two sisters are expected here for a family reunion in a few days. They are Mrs. Nanny Rives, 85, of Abilene and Mrs. Betty Johnson, 80, of Sweetwater.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 1 Luck that smiled on D. A. Skipp, 69, turned to death today.

He was a member of the Baptist church which he joined at an early age.

Wichita County 'Bolters' Cases Will Be Heard

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., July 1—Claims of 46 "bolters" for places on the democratic primary ballot will be heard Saturday by the court of civil appeals at Fort Worth, where application for a mandamus to compel the printing of their names is pending. The action is brought against the Wichita County Democratic Executive Committee, which refused to certify the names of the "bolters" on the grounds that their applications did not state their party affiliations. All of the 46 involved bolted the party in 1928 to vote for the republican nominee for president.

Endurance Plane Continues Aloft

CHICAGO, July 1—The City of Chicago continued on its way to a new refueling continuous flight record today when it passed the 47th hour of flying at 2:40 p. m. They were 58 hours beyond the old record at that time and kept going with no indication of coming to earth.

Tornado Strikes Oklahoma Town

DEVOL, Okla., July 1—A tornado struck here today, injuring three persons and destroying several buildings in this town in the southwestern part of Cotton county near the Texas boundary. The storm cloud dipped down across the Red River shortly after 8 a. m., and cut a swath a half-mile wide through the town. Considerable property damage was done to adjacent cotton farms.

NEW YORK, July 1—A police guard was established today over the home of the Rev. J. V. Cooper, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church in Brooklyn, after he had received a second letter, threatening death, and signed by "E. X." Police were inclined to believe the letter was the work of a crank and not of the maniac who killed Noel Sowley and Joseph Mozyznsky in lonely sections of Queens Borough.

Several days ago Cooper received a package containing a hemp rope tied into a hangman's noose, accompanied by a note advising him to "do it now." Today Brooklyn police made public the second note received by the minister.

BILLIE DOVE HAS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, July 1—Her story of how she was once knocked down and frequently beaten won a divorce here today for Billie Dove, beautiful screen actress.

Her director husband, Irvin Willat, had no control whatever over his temper, she told superior judge Archibald and this lack of control meant physical and mental suffering for her. "Once," she said in telling of asserted mistreatment at his hands, "I sensed he was about to have a fit of anger. I ran to the door but he caught me and knocked me to the street with a blow. "He had no temper control and he often struck me with his fists. Three years ago he hit me before a number of guests in our home." His frequent manhandling of her she asserted, kept her covered with black and blue marks on her arms and shoulders.

"He resented my work in motion pictures," she said quietly. "And he even resented my smoking a few cigarettes."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 1—Approximately 300 men were thrown out of work and the labor situation here was disturbed when the local union of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers declared a strike this morning. The walkout of the iron workers came with the beginning of the five day week here and a new wage scale for the building trades, in accordance with a contract made in March between the building trades council and the Builders' Association of Kansas City.

Sister Aids World Record Endurance Flyers

Chicago's world's record endurance flight in which four brothers are participating—two in the endurance plane and two in the refueling plane—is indeed a family affair because Irene Hunter, a sister, prepares the food that is sent up to the tireless flyers. These pictures show Miss Hunter carving a juicy chicken and the endurance ship, piloted by Kenneth and John Hunter, being refueled from above the supply ship, piloted by Walter and Albert Hunter. The remarkable closeup above, made by a flying camera-man for NEA Service, shows a contact being made; below, just as the two ships parted.

Justice Department Takes Over Prohibition Enforcement Today

WASHINGTON, July 1—Ending a decade of prohibition enforcement, the Treasury today transferred 2,700 of its agents, special investigators and administrators to the Justice Department which now is charged with enforcing the laws under the eighteenth amendment. The transfer, carrying out a pledge made by President Hoover during his campaign, paves the way for what is generally expected to be the supreme effort to make the United States a thoroughly dry nation. It was authorized by the Williamson bill which Congress passed recently. Meanwhile, a last minute drive to pass more of the legislation recommended by the Hoover-Wickensham law enforcement commission for improving prohibition enforcement was launched in the Senate today. Three of the four bills recommended by the commission and passed by the House, designed to handle petty prohibition offenses, were expected to be reported favorably by the Senate judiciary committee. The fourth bill, one to authorize trial of petty offenses before U. S. commissioners, was not slated to be approved. The other bills define petty offenses, liberalize the Jones "five and ten" law and provide for waiver of jury trial. Policies under the Justice Department were still in the formative stage today, but it was strongly indicated that henceforth new stress will be placed on obtaining local co-operation in apprehending prohibition law violators. Headed by a "fighting lawyer" Amos W. Woodcock, who has a distinguished local and military record, enforcement under the Justice Department will be non-sensational but none the less effective. Pittsburgh Press Gets Note Signed By Noted "3XX"

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 1—Threatening death to nine persons in Pittsburgh—the first victim scheduled to die in Schenley Park Wednesday night—a second mysterious letter signed "3XX," similar to the symbol used by the maniac killer of Queens Borough, New York, was received by the Pittsburgh Press today. Police and postal authorities after inspecting the letter showed concern. They fear it may have been written by a second maniac intent on duplicating the acts of New York's madman who took two lives and threatened 14 others with death. The latest note read: "I am out to revenge the death of my buddy 3 that wrote you a note not long ago. I shall kill (9) warn police. "Last victim at Schenley Park Wed. Nite at 11 a. m. 3 X X."

Ray Pritchett, a garage mechanic was seriously injured when the wind demolished a service station in which he was working. W. C. Dillow and his father, T. C. Dillow, were slightly injured at the same place. Residents of the area, known for its cyclonic storms, were sent hurrying to storm cellars when the twister was seen coming across the river. Seventeen high tension power lines and several telephone poles were blown down as the storm passed out of town, leaving the village without lights and communication.

Joe Stephen motored to Sweetwater Monday to join his wife, for the wedding of Miss Ina Lee Ely, at 8:00 o'clock last night.

The regular meeting of the Order of Eastern Star will be held tonight at 8:00 o'clock, in the Masonic Temple. All members are urged to be present.

Merchants Asso. Votes To Close Stores July 4

Members of the Retail Merchants' Association met yesterday afternoon and voted to close their stores all day on Friday, July 4, according to a statement made this morning by J. C. Day, secretary of the association. Since many of the stores are to close their doors for that day it would be well for the people to keep this in mind and remember to buy enough groceries, meat and other supplies to last them over the holiday in the event that the stores they regularly patronize are among those which will not be opened on the Fourth.

New President Of Local Lions Takes Office

Dr. W. S. Poe Presides at Today's Meeting of Club. Rev. R. L. Flowers and Russell B. Jones Are Speakers.

Dr. W. S. Poe, newly elected Lion president, presided today as leader of the Lions at his first session of the year, and was promised the wholehearted support and cooperation of the club in order to make this one of the most successful years in the history of the local service club. The program for Tuesday's meeting was of unusual interest and the members of the club enjoyed the meeting from the beginning to the closing Lion roar for Rev. R. L. Flowers and Russell Jones, the speakers of the day. At the close of the meal Russell Jones, chairman of the airways committee of the American Legion, made an interesting talk on the Eastland landing field and the possibilities offered by the town through the airport. He pointed out many of the advantages to be derived from the airport and mentioned that Eastland had now reached the point where she must either come forward and support the airport and make it an assured fact and become a part of the great network of air routes or slide back into a backward and unprogressive town. Rev. Mr. Flowers made a short and interesting talk. He said that the church was the outstanding institution in the city of Eastland and the greatest influence on the morals of the people. He mentioned that out of 978 convicts questioned in the Texas State Penitentiary 12 said that they had regularly attended Sunday school, 84 said that they had attended very little and the remainder of more than 800 admitted that they had never entered a Sunday school. He said that the cause of most of the crime of the country was because of lack of moral training and proper religious education in children between the ages of 8 and 14, pointing out that there were 27,000,000 children in the United States who were not attending Sunday school regularly.

Mob Is Feared At Holdenville, Okla.

HOLDENVILLE, Okla., July 1—Possible mob violence was averted here early today when officers took L. W. Harris, filling station operator, charged with murder in the mistake shooting of two youths, to the State Penitentiary at McAlester for safe keeping. Harris was charged in the death of Edward Greer late yesterday after a jury reported the shooting was "without excuse or justifiable cause." Edward was shot to death and his brother, Henry was wounded when Harris opened fire on the youths and their four companions who had parked their car near the Harris filling station to repair a tire. Physicians held little hope for Henry's recovery today. Harris said he thought the youths were going to rob him and that "I fired at their tires to frighten them." A large crowd packed the courthouse lawn last night when the verdict was rendered and threats were reportedly made against Harris.

Palace Drug Store To Open Under New Management Soon

W. G. Williamson has purchased the stock and fixtures of the Palace Drug Store and will re-open the store for business on Thursday morning, July 3 under the management of Eugene Witt, formerly a druggist at Eastland. Mr. Witt has had considerable experience as a druggist, having formerly managed a drug store in the location now occupied by the Corner Drug Store. The building has been remodelled and the shelves restocked. The fountain has been improved and will render good service for the customers. Mr. Williamson is a farmer living about three miles north of town who made considerable money in oil during the boom days in Eastland county.

The directory library of the Board of City Development has two new directories which have been added within the past two days. One of the directories is for the city of Midland and the other for Santa Fe, New Mexico. Both are 1930 directories.

American Legion Must Raise $3,000 For Big Airport

Drive Will Last Five Days During Which Time Necessary Money Must Be Secured.

The Dulin-Daniel Post of the American Legion will start a short and intensive drive in Eastland Wednesday morning for the purpose of raising $3,000 for the purchase of land, clearing and fencing of the airport and a few incidentals necessary for the completion of the details of the landing field. It is necessary that the money be raised in order to secure the $11,500 in government improvements that will be allotted by the government for the field. This money, which is really a small amount in comparison with the money that will be spent by the government and the benefits that are to be derived from the field, must be raised within the next few days in order that the field may be made ready to turn over to the Department of Commerce so that contracts may be let for grading and installing the lighting fixtures.

Russell Jones, chairman of Airways Committee, says: "Eastland must either go forward or slip back, and now is the time for her to go forward by getting in on the most outstanding movement in her history. We will soon be one of the centers of air transportation in the State." Ralph Crouch, Commander of the Dulin-Daniel Post, says: "The people will either be behind us or they won't. On their attitude toward this step in the advancement of the city depends the future prosperity or failure of Eastland. It is the turning point in the life of the town." The Legion considers this one of the most important projects in the history of Eastland for several reasons. Eastland will be the center of the air route between Fort Worth and El Paso and will also be an important point on the new Amarillo-Wichita Falls-San Antonio route that is to be inaugurated before long. This will put Eastland at the crossing of two major air routes, making it one of the important places along the routes, as it will be the junction point of the two routes, and it will also be the mail bus division for routes airport which may serve the two that will bring passengers to the important lines of air transportation.

It has been pointed out by those who have had most to do with the securing of the landing field that the Legion Post has not acted in the interest of the Legion but in the interest of Eastland in securing the field and that the people of Eastland will, no doubt, realize that it is for the advancement of the town and not the Legion Post that they will be asked to assist in the financing of the field. Everyone will be asked to help, even if the contributions are small, as the committee wants everyone to have the privilege of donating something toward the movement. A committee has been appointed to solicit the funds and everyone will be called on for whatever they may be able to give. A large "thermometer" has been placed at the two main entrances to the courthouse and the progress (Continued on Page 2)

One good way to reduce taxes in Eastland is for everyone to pay their city taxes promptly thereby reducing the cost of operating the city government. The city must have money for operating expenses, but the unpaid drains interest and it costs money to collect taxes. Taxes paid promptly cuts down these costs.

With the date for the Eastland county fair only about two months off it is time that the committees in charge of arrangements for the fair are getting busy.

Wednesday evening Eastland citizens are to attend a picnic and candida speaking at Flatwoods, four miles east of Eastland. Flatwoods people, in making their plans for the entertainment, sent a committee to Eastland to invite Eastland merchants and others of this city to co-operate with them in putting on the affair. We told them we would—Let's make good.

Farmers of this immediate section are complaining that their crops are burning up. This, perhaps, is true. But it is only true of small sections of the county. Eastland county as a whole is not suffering for rain.

The Eastland Retail Merchants' association has been doing a great work along the line of securing new roads leading into Eastland from the rural districts. There is much yet to be done in this respect, however, and other civic organizations of the city should lend a helping hand to the merchants' organization.

Our Modern Crusaders
 Once upon a time a Pied Piper played a magic song and the children of Hamelin town followed him to Paradise. When the door in the hillside opened to receive them there was only one child who did not enter.

Perhaps you will remember that there was a little crippled boy whose crutches wouldn't carry him far enough in the story-book village. So he went back to a town that was dull and lonely, sobbing a little, as he hobbled over the stones, because the music had told him so plainly that he would be well and strong and gay if only he could hurry.

The International Rotary, celebrating its silver anniversary in Chicago, is endeavoring to answer the pitiful cry of the little cripple who wanted to walk like other boys. This very fact should confute the views of those who say that charity is dead, since knights in steely armor no longer ride the windy highways. The practical applications of the philosophy of helpfulness that Rotary and other service clubs are putting into action today are infinitely more worthwhile than any ancient quest to find a silver Grail or root a giant.

The crippled child has been Rotary's special task. This organization is attempting to straighten twisted legs; to make small, thin bodies round and plump.

It is not always possible to make children well again, of course, but the Rotary clubs and those who are working with them, have learned that one can always open a glorious world of imagination where no one need watch the door of the promised land swing shut. They are endeavoring to give the children whom they serve so many merry, happy things to do that they won't miss the lollipop trees the Pied Piper promised to let them climb, or the singing hills that were made for their crimson hoops.

This new lease on life which the Rotary gives crippled children, aside from its other services, is reason enough for its being. To help a little crippled child realize that there is a place for him in the work fields and the play fields of the world, and to make him strong enough and brave enough to fill it, is a most fitting task for modern crusaders.

officials predicted. Woodcock is to be sworn in today.

The statement by Maurice Campbell, recently resigned New York administrator, for repeal of the 18th amendment, created interest in official circles today.

Informing that Campbell also had charged certain Treasury officials with insincerity in enforcement, former prohibition commissioner Doran said, "that doesn't apply to me." Doran is remaining in the Treasury as head of the industrial alcohol permissive section which is being retained by that department.

WASHINGTON, July 1—Prohibition enforcement passed into new hands today under a shower of charges that high officials here had been insincere in their efforts to suppress liquor traffic.

On the eve of the change, Maurice Campbell, New York prohibition administrator for three years, retired and issued a statement charging political manipulation in prohibition enforcement and advocating repeal of the 18th amendment. This charge brought a quick report from assistant secretary of treasury Lowman, a New York upstate Republican leader, who declared Campbell had been solely responsible for enforcement in New York and that "if he were influenced in his action by politicians it demonstrates a weakness of character on his part."

Campbell's charges aroused interest at the capitol as the senate judiciary committee met to consider three prohibition bills proposed by the Wickersham law enforcement commission. It was expected in some quarters that the charges might lead to further developments.

Several months ago the committee considered two resolutions proposing a board inquiry into prohibition enforcement, but took no action upon them.

The transfer of prohibition machinery to the Justice Department is regarded in Washington as marking a new phase of enforcement effort. Attorney General Mitchell issued a statement making clear, however, that enforcement will be seriously deficient in states where local cooperation was not given.

"In those states which have repealed enforcement statutes and whose authorities do not perform a proper share of the work," Mitchell said, "there have been and will continue to be grave deficiencies in enforcement. Where such conditions exist they are a matter of choice with the states."

Woodcock took the oath in the presence of Attorney General Mitchell and Assistant Attorney General Younquist, the new director's immediate superior.

Harold T. Jones, the new assistant director, took the oath at the same time.

TOLEDO, O., July 1—Asserting that "the enforcement of the prohibition law is a falling experiment," and that "the government can hardly hope to successfully enforce the law now, or in the future," William H. O'Neil, chief of the enforcement division of Toledo and North western Ohio today announced his resignation from office.

O'Neil will be succeeded by William F. Brennan.

of the drive will be recorded from hour to hour until the drive is completed.

Headquarters for the drive will be in the Texas State Bank and all committee men will report the progress made in the drive to the headquarters, where it will be tabulated and the amount given to those who are keeping the thermometers at the proper level.

Must Have Support
 The people of Eastland are urged by the Dulin-Daniel Post to get behind this movement as they did behind the Liberty Loan drives during the war and help to push the fund "over the top" as they did then.

The committee, which will solicit funds, consists of the following members, who are asked to report at the Texas State Bank between 9:00 and 10:00 on Wednesday morning to get cards and information in connection with the drive:

Earl Bender, R. P. Crouch, E. E. Freyschlag, Earl Francis, Percy Harris, H. M. Hart, V. O. Hatcher, A. E. Herrin, Mack Hennessee, E. H. Jones, R. B. Jones, Ralph Ma-

Lueders Baptist Encampment Will Open On July 8

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Lueders Baptist encampment on July 8. The camp will continue until July 20. A splendid teaching program has been arranged for Women's Work, Sunday School and B. Y. P. U.

The afternoon will be given for rest, croquet, baseball, basketball, golf, horseshoe throwing, swimming, etc.

The encampment speaker this year will be Dr. Wallace Bassett, pastor of the Cliff Temple Baptist Church, Dallas. He is one of the greatest preachers and pulpit orators in the South. Dr. W. R. White, Secretary of the State Baptist Mission Board, will be present a part of the time and will speak.

Hon. Pat M. Neff, ex-governor of Texas, will speak Sunday afternoon, July 20.

This year twenty-one new buildings have been erected, including two boys buildings, rock ice house, store building and other improvements.

The West Texas Utilities Company has put wires down every street and alley in the grounds with a three-phase wire to enable those who build on the grounds to be able to cook with electricity.

A well has been dug on the grounds, giving splendid drinking water, in addition to the water system that has been extended over the grounds.

A well-arranged cafeteria will be in operation on the grounds and those who remain throughout the encampment will have their meals for the low sum of $10.00 for twelve days.

Fresh groceries, vegetables, fruits, ice, milk, etc., will be sold on the ground at the regular price of such articles elsewhere.

Registration will be required of every one this year. A car will be registered for the sum of $1.00 for the entire encampment, one time 50 cents, individuals without cars 50 cents.

Potpourri BY GAD

Yeah, we are going to help Flatwoods put over that "affair" Wednesday night in the same manner in which we helped Atlanta and Okra to make successes of similar events recently.

A half dozen men loafing in front of a store, spitting tobacco juice at a hole the size of a saucer in the center of the sidewalk. Ever see a scene like this in Eastland? If not you are not a close observer.

If you don't believe figures lie just try to locate some place in the residential sections of Eastland by using the house and street numbers.

The Board of City Development, Rotary Club and Lions Club will have to take their hats off to the local American Legion. The Legion accomplished, in a few weeks, what these organizations failed to accomplish after months of work. The Legion possessed the enthusiasm lacking in the other organizations.

Will someone please inject a little life into the County political campaign.

How is this for high finance; two families reading their local paper off of one subscription. They do it in Eastland.

You boys at the postoffice. You are a bunch of splendid fellows and everyone in this town likes you, but our postoffice and yours is the laughing stock of our neighboring towns. Let's see if we can't induce those responsible to clean up the old shack, doing a little necessary repair work on it and brighten it up a bit.

The Eastland county courthouse lawn is a beautiful place. There are dozens of vacant lots throughout the city that could be made just as beautiful with little effort and at little cost to us, as a town, had sufficient civic pride.

Some Eastland merchants take pride in their show windows and clean and dress them every day, others leave their's looking like last year's bird's nests.

ROMANTIC PAIR IN NEW TALKIE

The audible screen's greatest pair of sweethearts, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, are again co-starred in "High Society Blues," Fox Movietone musical romance, now playing at the Lyric theatre.

"High Society Blues" is adapted from a short story by Dana Burnet, which details the troubles of a wholesale grocer from a small Iowa town, who sells his business and then tries to crash the exclusive social set of Westchester County, New York.

Miss Gaynor is the daughter of the socially prominent and wealthy family while Farrell is the son of the Iowa grocer, addicted to the ukelele.

The Iowans buy an estate right across the road from Janet's family and try to be neighborly, but Janet's mother, who has arranged an engagement between her daughter and a foreign count, snubs the outlanders.

Even Berlin, far removed from the Rhineland zone, joined in the rejoicing over the departure of the last French troops from Wiesbaden and Mayence yesterday. Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and Sir Horace Humbold, the British ambassador, attended the celebrations held in the municipal stadium here.

The evacuation of the third zone—the last to be freed of French troops—was completed yesterday after a month of preliminary work. Only two battalions of French troops, General Guillaumet, commander in chief of the Rhineland troops, and the Rhineland Commission had remained there, the other troops have been withdrawn gradually for several weeks.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Judith Grant, beautiful artist's daughter, shares the Greenwich Village apartment with Chummy, a lovely girl whose mind has been a blank ever since Alan Steyne, her lover, disappeared years ago. Steyne returns, Chummy fails to recognize him, and she falls for him. Chummy, meanwhile, has aroused the attention of Bruce Gideon, rich and handsome, who offers to star her in a musical show. She agrees and begins studying to become a dancer. Bastien Dumont, a young artist who is also in love with Judith, is in a quandary as to whether to go to Steyne and ask him to marry her, or to go to Gideon's.

MOM'N POP

By Cowan

W GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII
Under other circumstances, Dumont might have been astonished at Steyne's vehemence. As it was, he knew the girl owed him a debt of gratitude, and he felt that she was being unkind to him. "You know the world, Steyne," he said. "You know that when a millionaire, a man of position, takes an interest in a girl, it's all nonsense about his helping her with dancing, and all that." "You mean that she can't dance?" asked Steyne. "Of course she can dance. It's not the point. It's this man's licence that made Guarvenius take her on. The result is that she's killing herself, and one sees things of her kind constantly with this fellow."

"Constantly out with him?" put Steyne with suppressed excitement. "Well, perhaps that's an exaggeration. Anyhow, she does go out with him to lunch and dinner and the play." "Do you know anything against man, Dumont?" "Yes, as a companion for Judy, enough to know that it can't do any good to be seen about her. You don't see Judy with Steyne," he went on. "She thinks she knows the world inside out. Well, in a way she does. I suppose—worse luck! she's perfectly innocent where people are concerned. She thinks she's the best of everybody. She never seems to care what anyone would think of her. That's what makes it so difficult."

"Why don't you speak to her?" "I have, but it's not the slightest use. You see, Judy never would give any notice of me. I thought, you would speak to her—why should she take any notice of me, Dumont?" "Oh, I think she thinks a lot of you. You see, you're a bit different from the rest of us. She knows you have traveled a lot and would know things a bit differently. Then, of course, she couldn't be jealous."

There was a moment's pause. Steyne asked in a very quiet voice, "And would she think you were a poor fellow, Dumont?" "She knows I am!" The Latin of poor Bastien got the best of him. "It's torture to me to hear with anybody, Steyne," he said. "I can't help it. I brought the brute to Lemon Grove not long ago, and she danced with me and then off with him, walking home. I don't dance. It will drive me mad if it goes on!" "That means you love Judy, Dumont," Steyne's voice was still quiet. "Of course I do! And hopefully!" "I—I am sorry," Alan said, and hardly knew whether he meant or not. At any rate, he could help liking the young artist for candor and for his confidence in his friend.

Steyne understood, although Judy had never treated him exactly like that. . . . After that they talked of other things, and drank and smoked; but there was a feeling of uneasiness in the air that no friendliness could dissipate. "I'm afraid I've worried you, Steyne," Dumont said rather awkwardly, when he rose to go. "After all, what can you do?" Alan smiled rather absently. "Anyhow, perhaps it was a relief to have it out," he said. "But you're quite right, Dumont—something must be done." They shook hands cordially. After Dumont had gone, Steyne sat on far into the night, alternately frozen with fear and boiling with indignation. "What could one do but set one's teeth and live on helplessly, like an animal waiting for the butcher's knife? Judy was her own mistress. One could not talk to her as to a child, or as to an ordinary girl. She knew the world—hateful phrase! She earned her own living. She was free to choose her own companions. But reasoning never subdued raging blood. Alan loved her—that was the only thing that counted. He loved her; he loved her as a man loves only one woman in the world. In the middle of the night he flung himself out of his chair, went out on the roof, and gazed, red-eyed, over New York lying asleep. By the morning he was calmer and saner, but it was only a superficial calm. Every nerve was still on edge. He was never in a less suitable frame of mind to appeal to Judy, or to pronounce a warning; and yet it just happened that he met her for the first time since his return from Maine. He was passing the Cafe Turc, having called at a little shop nearby to get some colors. She came out of the cafe alone, walking with her head down, and in a great hurry. He had to speak her name twice before she looked up. Then a brilliant, excited smile flashed across her face. There was an unnatural look about her. She was shabby and made up, as usual; only her careless, happy-go-lucky air had gone. Her whole being seemed to be concentrated on something. "How do you find Chummy looking?" she inquired. "My, but she's making a positive hit!" No place and time, this, for Alan's purpose, and yet he was desperate. He walked beside her. "Where are you going?" "To the dancing school." "Well, I'll walk with you, if I may." "Bless you, I've no time to walk farther than the square. I'm going on a bus."

MEASURING ONE THOUSANDTH OF AN INCH

Proper thickness of paint and varnish on your house is important

By Dr. D. V. GREGORY
THE sheet of paper on which this story is printed is approximately .002 of an inch thick. The usual varnish film is .001 of an inch thick and that of paint or varnish-enamel .002 to .003 of an inch in thickness. If the varnish is thicker than that it does not dry well. The paints, because of the pigment, can be thicker but there is a delicate and proper point at which they dry best and produce the hardest best wearing covering. Thickness is of great importance in paints, for on the thickness of the film depends the tensile strength, elasticity, gloss, hiding power and so on. So it is of importance to the houseowner that the paints be mixed with high accuracy rather than by rule of thumb. The ways used in the laboratory of determining film thickness are interesting. One involves making a scratch in the film and then reading its depth with a microscope. Another is more satisfactory and makes use of a delicate gauge such as is made for determining the thickness of paper. In its use, the film is put on a piece of glass previously measured for thickness and then the total paint and glass measured. Freshly applied films can also be measured with another instrument but a method developed by Walker and Steele of the U. S. Bureau of Standards prepares a uniform film very successfully, and uniformity is very necessary when studying paint or varnish properties. This machine is quite understandable to anyone who has ever seen a phonograph. A glass disk is made to spin at several hundred revolutions a minute. Paint, varnish, or duco are poured on the spinning surface. Centrifugal force throws the excess liquid to the rim of the disk leaving a uniform thickness toward the center.

earnest, his emotion dominating anything else—"do listen to me! It's only—" "For my good, I know," she interrupted glacially. "Do listen to me, Judy!" "It's Mr. Gideon you're worried about, isn't it?" she asked, with a sudden veering round to amiability. "I thought so. I can see it plainly—Bastien has been at you. He thinks I am going to the devil, poor soul. He thinks I was born yesterday." "Judy, don't be cross! You are young."

"I know, Methuselah!" "I'm not going to argue. I do want you to think that I've no feeling except that I'm frightened for you." "Thanks very much, but there's no need for it. When I want advice I'll ask for it. Meanwhile, let me assure you that Mr. Gideon is the kindest"—she paused—"most thoughtful"—she paused again—"most considerate person I have ever met."

Judy laughed, and the pansy eyes took on a steely glitter. "We are solemn!" she exclaimed. "I know," Steyne said. "Judy, I'm awfully worried and upset. You must listen to me—if only as your friend." "I know what you mean. You do not approve of my dancing. You are going to lecture me." "It has nothing to do with your dancing," he protested. His jarred nerves made him abrupt, and her fatigue made her as touchy as a cat in a thunder storm. "I only want to warn you." "It was an ill-chosen word. She did not look at him, walking with her head high, her nose pointing heavenward. "Judy"—Steyne grew painfully

Steyne made a gesture of despair. "And," she went on, her hoarse voice growing hoarser every second, "I should advise you to get married as soon as possible, and—to mind your own business." They had reached the square. Without another word Judy darted through the traffic, crossed the road, and jumped on a bus that was just slowing down, leaving the young man dazed and feeling rather as if he had cut himself with a razor. Many Roads....

which one shall I take?

WHEN the long road dips sweetly down a hill and ends up in a blank and puzzled amazement at a jumble of cross-roads, unless you know your way, you'll push down hard on the brakes! And then look around to see where you're going. . . .

Five roads jutting off in various directions of the compass. One road is yours. Four to lead you astray. But a brief glance—and you're off. On the right road. For a sign was over each road to direct your way!

Just as the directions point out the way in a maze of roads; so does modern advertising guide you in the right direction through the multitude of products offered in present-day markets.

Advertising points the way, straight and clear, to economical and advantageous marketing. It distinguishes the good product. It directs your way by indicating the best article adapted to your needs.

Read the advertisements in this paper as carefully as you would the signs above the cross-roads. They point out your buying road as surely and as safely!

IN THE REALM of SPORT

THE TEXAS LEAGUE

Texas League standings for second half of the season re-unchanged today following the first place Buffs over Waco last while Wichita Falls led. The Buffs have won 11 out of 12 games in the second place, have five wins and one defeat for a .833 percentage. The Buffs defeated Waco 10 to 7 when they drove in seven runs. The Buffs used three pitchers all were unable to stem the tide of the Buffs. The Buffs defeated Waco 10 to 7 when they drove in seven runs. Scoring five runs in the ninth, the San Antonio Indians won their first game in six starts, defeating Beaumont, 10 to 7. Kott, Indian third baseman, hit four singles in four trips to bat. The Shreveport-Wichita Falls game had been played as part of Sunday's double header.

With The Majors

Major League standings presented a familiar aspect today with the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Athletics, 1929 pennant winners and favorites in the current race, leading their respective leagues.

Although crippled by the loss of Hal Carlson and Rogers Hornsby and injuries to other stars, the Cubs have equalled the pace set in 1929 and now enjoy a larger lead than they held at this stage of last year's campaign.

The Athletics are 690 points below their July 1 percentage in 1929 and with New York, Washington and Cleveland furnishing unexpectedly stiff opposition, are in a much less favorable position than at this time a year ago.

The Cubs lengthened their National League lead by half a game yesterday, defeating the New York Giants, 10 to 3, while the second place Brooklyn Robins were rained out at St. Louis. The Cubs pounded Genewich and Mitchell for 8 runs in the first inning and Fred Huake held the Giants slugger in check. The defeated dropped New York to a tie with St. Louis for third place.

Boston beat Pittsburgh, 6 to 5, in the only other National League game and regained fifth place from the Pirates. Richbourg's single with the bases filled in the eighth drove in the tying and winning runs.

The Philadelphia Athletics rallied to score three in the eighth and gave Ed Rommel a 3 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Vic Sorrell blanked the champions for the first seven innings.

"Pip" Marberry held St. Louis to 4 hits and laid down a perfect bunt with the bases filled in the ninth to drive in the run which gave Washington a 2 to 1 victory over the Browns.

Babe Ruth's 30th home run of the season featured the New York Yankees' 15 to 3 victory over the last place Chicago White Sox.

Cleveland scored five runs in and defeat the Boston Red Sox, 8 the eighth inning to break a tie to 3. Hodapp started a rally with a homer which scored Averil ahead of him.

ANNIVERSARY OF ZEPPELIN

By ARTHUR F. DEGREVE
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, July 1—Eleven years ago today scores of workmen toiled feverishly in a huge shed at the East Fortune aerodrome near Edinburgh, Scotland.

Inside lay the R34, Great Britain's mightiest zeppelin. While trained employes inspected it fabric, others examined engines, other machinery and stored its provisions.

At 1:35 a. m. on July 2, the giant clear-shaped bag left the ground. It was bound for America on the first flight of a dirigible across the Atlantic.

Thus, the sensational air voyage served as a forerunner of transforming one of the deadliest weapons of modern warfare into an important arm of commerce and transportation.

Today the world has seen many conquests of the air. They include the Lindbergh trans-Atlantic flight; the San Francisco-Australia flight by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith; the Graf Zeppelin's trips and many other notable ventures.

The future of the zeppelin, air authorities throughout the world agree, is assured. And Great Britain's officials point with pride to her two lighter-than-air craft, the R100 and the R101.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS

By Laufer

Goebel Ready for Atlantic Hop

Colonel Arthur Goebel, winner of the Dole race across the Pacific and famous for his distance flights, has completed plans at Los Angeles for his forthcoming attempt to make a lone flight across the Atlantic ocean, from Paris to New York. He plans to take off soon from Le Bourget Field, France. Two views of Goebel's plane are shown above, and in the lower picture he is standing beside the ship.

struction has a tendency to be opposed by the British. This is the margin ratio between the diameter and length of the zeppelin. The British are inclined to favor the squattier form of craft maintaining it has less air resistance. It was recalled German builders questioned the advocacy of building a zeppelin that had a capacity of 5,000,000 cubic feet when the British announced plans for the R100 and the R101. The Graf Zeppelin has a capacity of 3,708,000 cubic feet.

Now, it is learned, the British are contemplating the construction of an airship 7,500,000 cubic feet capacity. Lord Thomson said the air ministry had spent more than $11,000,000 on the two zeppelins, the ground organization and a design staff.

BROWNSVILLE IS VERY ALLURING TO VACATIONIST

Brownsville, at the tip of Texas, is one of the state's most fascinating cities. It is a mingling of the past and the present. One of the battles in the War with Mexico was fought there—and the city has one of the finest airports in the United States, with regular schedules between Brownsville, Mexico City, Central and South America.

A house where Robert E. Lee and U. S. Grant once attended a dance still stands—and the city is growing so fast that its population shows an increase of 150 per cent in the past 10 years.

—And Another Fight Ended in a Foul

The bigger they are the harder they fall... and here you see how the mighty Primo Carnera looked when he spread his 262 pounds of bulk over the resined canvas after a terrific left hook let loose by George Godfrey, giant negro heavyweight, in the fifth round of their fight at Philadelphia. But Referee Tommy Reilly called the blow a foul and disqualified Godfrey, who is shown standing in his corner.

Grande, is soothed by balmy breezes from the Gulf. Fort Brown, which is located there, is proved by government statistics to be the most healthful army post in the United States.

The Chamber of Commerce, of which G. C. Richardson—formerly of Cisco—is manager, has about the prettiest C. of C. building in Texas with a park where the hibiscus sings in the aloha tree. The house where Porfirio Diaz lived for years before he returned to Mexico to become the ruler of that land can be seen in Brownsville. The oldest locomotive in Texas is there. And there is a street car that looks like the Toonerville Trolley, which was about the first one used in Mexico. It has long since been retired and is now a park ornament.

Not far from Brownsville is the finest native palm grove in the United States. The trees tower to a great height and there is a narrow roadway cut through the dense vegetation—jungle-like in its profusion, so roofed-in by vines and tree-tops as to be dim at noon. The vacationist who visits the Valley, with its pretty towns every four or five miles along a high way smooth as an emperor's carpet, and views Brownsville, and its sister city across the Rio Grande, will look back upon many pleasurable experiences.

PERPETUATE FORESTS BY SELECTIVE LOGGING
Forests that last indefinitely and sawmills sawing up these forests without ever running out of logs are pictured by the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, in reporting the results of a study of selective logging in the northern hardwoods of the Lake States.

The key to perpetual timber production is selective logging, the Forest Service states, which means a partial cutting of the forest involving judicious selection of trees to be felled, so as to promote and improve the forest and at the same time maintain or increase the profit. Lumbermen in the Lake States with no virgin timber in prospect for cutting after present holdings are exhausted, must choose between going out of business in a comparatively short time or taking steps to put their remaining stands on a self-perpetuating basis.

Costs of logging and milling as determined by the study indicate that in typical Lake State forests trees less than 12 inches in diameter are unprofitable to convert into lumber. By taking only the

IMPORTED PLANTS ADD TO WEALTH OF UNITED STATES
How countless millions of dollars have been added to the wealth of the United States through the introduction of seeds and plants from all parts of the world will be discussed at the Inter-American Conference on Agriculture, Forestry and Animal Industry, to be held in Washington, September 2-24, 1930. The discussion will be led by Knowles A. Ryerson, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Since the office of foreign plant introduction was created, in 1895, the department has brought to the United States more than 85,000 new plants, many of which have become extremely important. Because of the varied climatic and geographic conditions in the other countries of the two Americas, Mr. Ryerson believes that there is for these countries a greater opportunity for their agriculture through the introduction of new plants.

'Book Learnin' Didn't Get Him Far Off Ground

CHICAGO, July 1.—John C. Burchard, 28, son of former governor Groswell B. Burchard of Rhode Island, was almost but not quite, convinced today that one can not learn to fly airplanes by just reading about them.

For seven years Burchard, an engineer and Harvard graduate, studied all the things that have been written about airplanes. He even wrote a book about them himself and experienced flyers have said that he probably knows more about the theory of flying than most pilots ever will learn.

But Burchard never had been in the air. His first trip up, he said, was to be his "hour supreme." To the whole world, and a group of his skeptical friends in particular, he was going to prove that he could fly a plane on his theoretical knowledge alone.

He had no flying license and could not take off from a regular airport, so he picked a cowpasture, had the tall grass moved down, bought an old swallow plane, borrowed a parachute and set out at daybreak to realize his "hour supreme."

Burchard was accompanied by five friends, three of them aviators who protested against the experiment, and another a physician, who took his first aid kit. The young man still was optimistic when he stepped into the cockpit. He followed his book instructions to the letter. The plane roared down the field, left the ground, as it should, rose to a height of 30 feet, wobbled a bit, did a crazy caper or two, nose dived, struck the earth, turned up, over, and landed on its back.

Burchard was out of the wreckage before any of the five terrified onlookers could reach him. His only injury was a bruise on his head. Little harm was done to his optimism or his belief in his book and he remarked, smiling that "oh, well, it's just my first crackup."

SOLVING THE GRADE CROSSING PROBLEM

In spite of the fact that they have been spending more than $60,000,000 a year to eliminate railroad grade crossings, they are increasing in number due to new road building, and according to reports presented to the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

It is stated that the cost of grade separation is too great for the problem to be solved by this method and it is suggested that uniform warning signs, protective signal devices and education of users of the highway provide most practicable remedies.

At every grade crossing is some sort of sign or warning on the railroad right of way. It should be a simple matter for states and the railroads to agree on an outstanding type of sign or signal device which would be noticed by even the most negligent of drivers, and place it far enough from the crossing to give adequate time for cautious approach.

The desire to beat the railroad train to the crossing is responsible for the loss of thousands of lives. Plain ordinary carelessness and incompetence are responsible for thousands more. The most telling commentary of all is found in the fact that a large part of grade crossing accidents result, not when trains strike motor cars, but when motor cars strike trains!

Recently, in a southern state, the engineer of a locomotive saw a car stalled on the track ahead of him with its occupants frantically trying to start it. He jammed on the brakes and the locomotive jumped the track. The engineer was killed. Careless motorists may have a right to risk their own lives, but when they endanger the lives of others it is time to call a halt.

End of "The Ride" in Chicago

Police are shown above loading the bullet-riddled body of Lorenzo Juliano into a patrol wagon after the "alky king" of Chicago's South Side had been "taken for a ride" by gangsters, just as the reorganized police department was massing for a renewed war on crime. Juliano's body, wrapped in gunny sacking, was left in the death car, which had been rolled into a Blue Island claypit, as shown below.

A Leading Fire Cause ...

Misuse of electricity and electric appliances ranks high in the list of fire causes. It results in an annual loss of approximately $14,000,000 in this country.

"Handy-man" installations and extensions may be found in hundreds of thousands of homes where they are a constant menace to life and property. It is a common practice to add unsafe lengths of lamp cord and to loop extensions around nails or other metal projections.

Blown fuses, instead of being replaced, are doctored and made to work, in spite of the fact that they are no longer fuseable. During inspections in one city recently a bushel basket of pennies which had been used to supplement blown fuses, was collected.

Even the best of wiring wears out in time. Unless it is replaced by a capable electrician it presents a dangerous hazard.
