

Moore... ABOUT Eastland

By VIRGIL E. MOORE

Someone at the Quarterback Club ice cream supper asked Coach Jon Tate how many football games the Mavericks would win this year. Tate, not one to be put on the spot, pointed to Coach Carol Shelton and said, "You'll have to ask Shelton, he has the paper in his pocket."

Shelton himself, in his talk to the Q-backers, didn't come out and say the Mavs would win district, but he did say, "We don't plan to lay down and die for anybody." The Mav head coach, who took Eastland to an all-time high in football last year, says he will have a heavy team this year, but one with "little experience."

Asked how the Mav opponents looked to him, Shelton said, "Well, Cisco is a lot stronger, and so is Ranger, Albany and Clyde. In fact every team we play this year will field a better ball club than they did in 1956."

Through the grapevine we hear that Monday's meeting of the County Commissioners Court should be an interesting one. In case any of you citizens have forgotten it, all meetings of the Court, and for that matter the city commission and the school board, are open to the public.

Back to the Quarterback Club meeting for a second. We got a kick out of some of the pipe comments that went on during the meeting. For instance, when Gordon Smith, who is resident engineer here for the Highway Dept., got up to report on building a couple of new rest rooms at Maverick Field, some Q-backers wisecracked, "How much right-of-way are you gonna need, Gordon?" And then when Treasurer Milton Underwood, who does the bookkeeping for Coca-Cola Co. here, got up another yelled, "Frosty man, frosty."

Albert Wood decided this past week that the senior citizens of Eastland County were being mistreated. For years now the benches being used on the courthouse lawn have been in terrible condition. Wood has solved the problem. He went around collecting donations for some new benches, then went to Olden and purchased three from the Baptist Church there. "Those old benches were a disgrace to Eastland County," he asserted. Now Wood is out to get the new benches painted. We understand President I. Commissioner J. B. (Tip) Arther sees the writing on the wall and is hunting for a paint brush.

All of which, reminds us of the situation Jimmie Gillentine, publisher of the Hereford Brand (one of the newspapers we once worked on), got into. Jimmie always has been one for spotting a newsworthy item, and when ladies of Hereford demanded that benches on downtown streets be removed to keep fellows of that community from sitting in them all the time "and looking at the girls go by," Gillentine didn't let it pass. He wrote a nice little item about it in his column and politely rebuked the society girls for taking away the traditional benches. The next morning when he started for work he came out the front door of his home to find a row of benches in his front yard. The ladies of Hereford had gathered up every one they could find and put them there with a note which read, "Since you like benches so much, here's a few for you." Jimmie wasn't outdone yet. He phoned for a Brand photographer and posed standing on the benches. Then next day he ran the picture on page one.

Far be it from us to get pessimistic at this point of the game, but perhaps it should be pointed out that June was a below-normal rain month. Normal rainfall for the

Game Preserve Plans Barbecue Tuesday

"People planning to attend the barbecue of the Sabanna Valley Game Preserve Association Tuesday, July 9 can look forward to some first class entertainment as well as a first class feed," Berry Greenwood, secretary of the Association, said Saturday.

The barbecue will be held at 7 p. m. at the Center Point community house, five miles south of Carbon.

Pete Tyrone, who for two years headed a group of vocalists known as "Your Gospel Singers," on radio station KXOX, Sweetwater, will have his quartet at the barbecue. Tyrone and his group have sung at singing conventions in Eastland County before and in recent weeks have won much praise, Greenwood said. Further entertainment will be provided by Bryant Houston, fiddling champion of Texas, and his band, "The Texas Blue Eagles." With him will also be his niece, Houston and his band will play before and during the dinner. After that Tyrone and his singers will take over.

Ranger Firemen Tie Eastland In Pump Race

Firemen from Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Breckenridge, Mineral Wells, Gorman, Comanche, Weatherford and Palo Pinto were served a chicken dinner on the roof garden atop the Crazy Water Hotel, and transacted quarterly business.

COOLING-OFF PERIOD — It gets hot in New York and Jonathan Weider, 16 months, isn't one to let a little matter like clothes hamper his comfort on a sweltering day. The ultimate in casual summer wear, Jonathan stops for a refreshing drink at a fountain.

Price of admission will be 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. A choice of barbecued goat or beef with the usual trimmings of potato salad, beans, pickles, onions and home made cake will be offered.

Funeral services were held for James Franklin Mansker in the Hamner Funeral Chapel Friday at 4 p. m. with Rev. Richard Smith officiating.

Mr. Mansker's body was brought here from Portland, Oregon where he passed away June 29. He was born Nov. 15, 1881, in Eastland and was reared here.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susie Bessie Mansker, two sisters, Mrs. Mattie Watson of 608 West Plummer and Mrs. Winnie Sue of 906 South Seaman, a brother, C. J. Mansker of 713 West Commerce; several grandchildren, great-grandchildren and a number of nephews and nieces.

Lions Cinch 2nd Half Crown In Little League

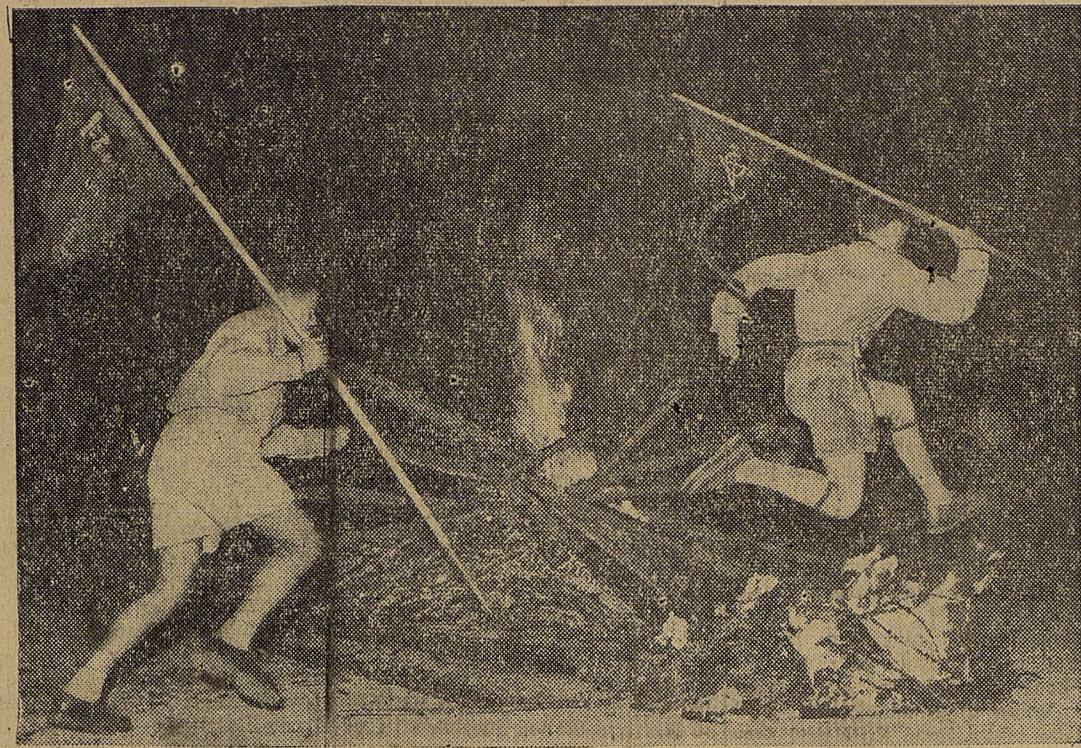

The Lions wrapped up a cinch for the championship in second half play of the Little League here Thursday night when they smashed the Medics 17-5.

While the Lions were winning, the Bulldogs downed the Comets, 13-7, to pull up into a tie with the Comets for second place in the League.

Bubba Hunter hurled the Lions to victory, giving up only four hits. The Lions scored one run in the first frame, four in the second, seven in the fourth and four in the fifth to win easily. Terry Norwood and Gale Whitley had doubles for the Medics, and Hayden Wilson, Jerry Burkes, Bubba Hunter and Ray Edwards had two base hits for the Lions.

Mike Thornell was the winning pitcher in the Bulldog-Comet game and Larry Howle was the loser. The Dogs got one run in the first inning, four in the second, three in the third and five in the fifth to win. The Comets had one in the second, three in the third and two in the fifth.

LEAPING FLAMES — It takes more than a crackling bonfire to stop these members of a Sudeten German Federation youth group as they hurdle the flames during the organization's midsummer-night festivities in Augsburg. The traditional celebration attracted thousands of participants. Leaping the fire is supposed to bring good luck.

HENRY'S PALAVAR

Problems Of Scrap Yard Owner Are Explained In Open Letter

(Editor's Note: Home town people make a home town news paper. With that in mind, the Telegram is pleased to publish the following article. More like it—from all our readers, will not only be accepted, they will be welcomed.)

By HENRY PULLMAN

For years I have been reading on the left hand side of the Eastland Telegram a column called "Moore About Eastland." Then, to my surprise last Sunday I looked for "Moore About" and couldn't find it. In its place was a new, enlightening, and spicy called "Gray Matter" . . . written by our own Joe Gray.

Now, to top it all off, this past week Moore stated in his column that he had been (for years) trying to get local people to submit stories and copy to be used.

As one of my friends said, "It's sorta like eating red beans three times a day when you read 'Moore About . . . ' all the time."

You local Telegram fans will know that we, the Pullmans, for years have been advertising conscientiously. As they say, "If you don't toot your own horn, it won't be tooted."

So, I am taking Mr. Moore up on his request for stories and copy, and herewith submit this humble effort on my part.

Naturally, it will deal with what I know most about. After all, Moore's column is filled with Little League and golf (which he knows most about), and Joe Gray's column was filled with past Eastland history (which he knows most about). I suppose it is only natural for a person to write, or speak, about the subject matter he knows the most about. True, I have known newspaper people who had a habit of writing about things they knew absolutely nothing about.

So, here goes; You know, the average scrap yard is a far cry from a picnic ground. You, the public, see what appears to be a messy accumulation of what is commonly called "eye-offending" junk. And, by the way, the word "junk" is not too well liked in scrap iron circles. The scrap processor, like myself, doesn't like that word. We view our pile of scrap—when the quality is good, the market is active, and prices are right . . . as a thing of economic beauty.

The public generally doesn't understand the scrap processor's vital function in our economy. And, because of this, we yard operators are sometimes put on the defensive in many communities.

Take my own scrap yard, for example. True it does appear, at times, to be a little unkempt in appearance. But, how does one dress up an old burned car body? How does one beautify a pile of rusted pipe? Take it from me, it's hard to do. But we are trying our best. As you know, I have erected a nice building, with a nice neon sign. And, even in the not too far distant future, I will have another beautiful neon sign spread across the top of the buildings.

Another thing we have tried to do is to beautify our location, and make it a cultural asset to our fair city, and to plant pretty flowers. Come by our location on East Main Street. I'll be glad to give you a nice posey, sometime when they are in bloom and the wheat hasn't got them.

Another thing, not too long ago, I leased a lot across the street from my office to one of the major oil companies, and I stipulated that they had to erect a nice appearing building and facility that would add to our town.

Another thing, not only is a scrap yard lacking in appeal to a layman's eye: It also requires quite a bit of noisy activity in the preparation of scrap to meet certain specifications at the mill when it is shipped. And, when you put the combined lack of physical charm along with the noise you have a fairly good idea why some communities have been trying to get their local governments to pass certain ordinances requiring yards to "hide" the activities from view.

I know of one dealer who has planted 200 trees around the outside of the yard. In a few years, the trees will completely hide the yard from view. One important thing about the scrap business is that the public is almost completely unaware of the economic value to the community. In my yard, alone, I sometimes pay out as much as $3,000 in cash per day, to customers. We always pay in cash, never by check. Quite frequently I hear some customers say, "Well, now that I've got this money I'm going up town and buy some groceries and a pair of shoes" . . . so, you see, our other merchants benefit directly from the scrap business here in Eastland.

Just the other day, the press and radio and T. V. was blaring the headlines "Steel raised 6¢ per ton." But when scrap iron drops $12 a ton at one swoop, as it did recently the newspapers can't find space somewhere at the bottom of a page and editorial comment is singularly lacking. When this happens, we still try to pay our customers a fair market price for their scrap because we value their patronage, and want them to keep trading with us.

So long as scrap yard operators don't have much bare ground showing between their scrap piles, they will meanwhile have time to think about trees, hedges, and such . . . because crab grass is symbolic of slow business. As a matter of fact, crab grass is a sign of slowness everywhere, not just in the scrap yard. So, (Continued on Page 2)

Eastland Has Quiet Fourth; No Accidents

Eastland's Fourth of July was spent either out of town or in quiet picnics, apparently.

With nothing officially planned citizens went elsewhere for their entertainment. There were no accidents reported in this immediate area, but culprits left Lakeside Country Club members in a sweat when they stole the copper tubing off the club's air conditioner. The Fourth was the hottest day of the year in Eastland, as the mercury rose to 101 degrees.

Merchants were happy Friday, however. One of the busiest days of the year was recorded on the square. Reasons listed were the holiday, nearest to the first, which is payday for many, and a more optimistic outlook caused by prospects for a good peanut crop in the county.

About the main attraction around Eastland seemed to be Lake Eastland and Ringling Lake, with Lake Leon taking a back seat for the occasion. Ringling Lake has a number of fine picnic tables and barbecue pits and no facilities for the public are available at Lake Leon—which probably is the reason.

Gray Matter

By JOE GRAY

It has been just about a year now since the highway department re-topped Seaman and Main streets. At the time they were repaved these two streets were as black as coaltar. But have you noticed how the blackness has faded out. These streets are now a dull shade of gray.

An interesting interview on KERC during the Homecoming broadcasts from the Comellie Hotel lobby was the one in which Willie Speaker made an estimate of how many pairs of shoes he has shined. When asked that question he guessed he had shined at least 2 million pairs since he has been in the bootblacking business on the West Side of the Square. That's a lot of shoes. And in the entire lot I don't suppose he has turned out a poor shine. Twenty years ago he had a reputation for putting the best shines possible on shoe leather. That reputation is still following him. I ran across an old Eastlander in San Antonio last year, and one of the first persons this ex-Eastlander recalled was Willie Speaker. He fondly recollected the good shines he used to get at Joe Laurant's barber shop.

And speaking of barber shops, remember the days when one of the shops' chief business was the bath. In the earlier days of our town there weren't too many indoor bathrooms in all the rooming houses where oilfield workers lived, but all the workers had to have a good clean bath at least once or twice a week. In some cases about the only place to get one was at a barber shop. See a line of 50 to 75 men each Saturday night at Joe Laurent's shop wasn't extraordinary. It was part of a Saturday night in a boom town. But the barbershop bath has sort of gone the way of the coal oil lamp. It isn't with us any longer.

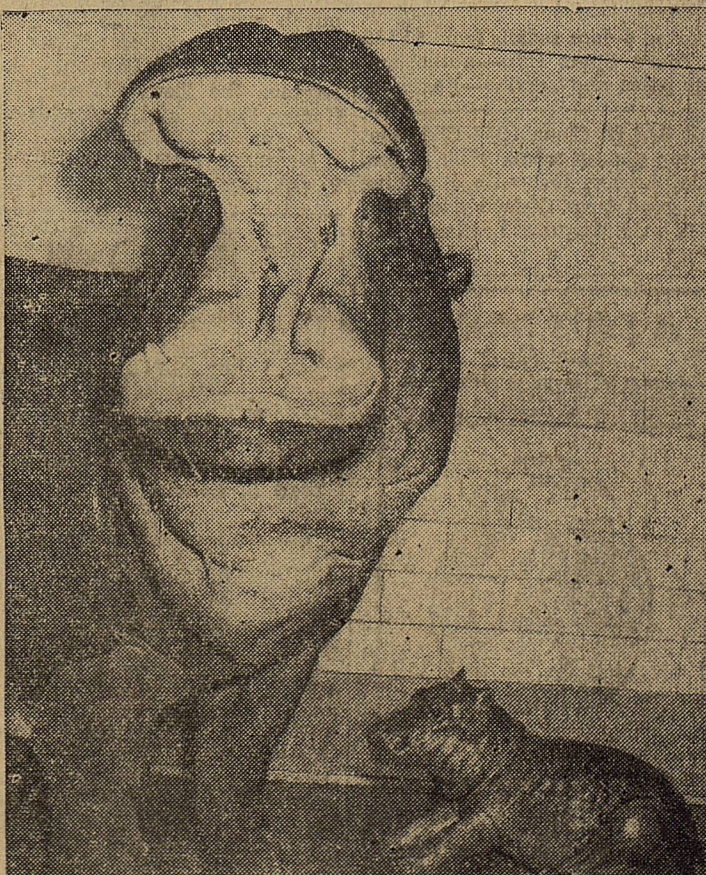

Before the highway 80 was paved to Cisco and Ranger a trip to either of those cities was about an all-day affair. I never will forget one time my father and Len Hightower had gone to Cisco in our old Model T Ford. This Ford had a sort of Special tube in its tires that was supposed to be a non-leaking and non-blowout. Actually, the tubes had something in them that was about the same thing as we kids later used in bicycle tires and called neverleak. The tubes had a gluey liquid in them that was supposed to seal any puncture.

But on this trip to Cisco, things didn't work out the way the tire manufacturer said they would. We made the trip over to the little suburb to the west without any event worth mentioning, but the trip back was a lulu.

About three miles west of town we got mixed up in the ruts somehow and almost lost control of our Ford, clipping along as we were at an unsafe 10 to 15 miles an hour. In trying to get the car under control, my father pulled so hard on the steering wheel that he pulled a tire right out of a rut and right off a wheel. Running along as fast as we were that tire took out for the tall timber. It hit the fence so fast it jumped right

Meeting Held At Mrs. J. F. Drago

The Drago Music Club held a short business meeting in the home of Mrs. F. L. Drago on June 27 at 7:30 p. m.

Mitzi Davis, president, presided over the meeting, and Barbara McCullough, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the previous meeting. Gretchen Hailey, treasurer, gave her report.

The members repeated their club pledge and "Correct." They also sang two songs "America" and "What A Friend We Have In Jesus." Two pianos accompanied the singing. Shirley Smith, Gretchen Hailey, Julie Frost and Sue Koch did the accompanying.

Doris Jumper was a new member who attended.

After the meeting a party was given in the honor of Sue Koch. The hostess was Mrs. Drago and was assisted by Mrs. W. H. Hailey and daughter Gretchen.

The party honored Sue because she is moving from Eastland to Jacksonville. The club presented her with a lovely gift which was presented by Julie Frost.

A social hour followed the presentation of the gift. During the social hour the group enjoyed popular songs and other various music pieces.

Mrs. Drago and Mrs. Hailey served refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, candy and cokes from the dining table which was laid with a white linen cloth and centered with red roses and sweet peas. After the group finished their sandwiches and other things they were served homemade ice cream on the lawn. Everyone had an enjoyable time.

Those present were Sue Koch, Mitzi Davis, Barbara McCullough, Josie Hernandez, Linda Clark of Ranger, Carol June Hilliard of Oiden, Nora Jean Jordan of Carbon, Gretchen Hailey of Staff, Julie Frost, Shirley Smith, Danyse Sherman, Doris Jumper, Kay Poe, a visitor, and Shirley Hageman, a visitor.

The next meeting will be in October.

month is 2.56 inches. Eastland had only 1.38 inches during that period, thus we fell 1.18 inches short. Of course we are still 9.56 inches above normal for the year, having recorded a total of 23.41 inches to date, whereas the average for the first six months of the year is only 13.85. But the peanut farmers are ready for a little more rain, so let's hope a few picnics get spoiled this month!

We finally got around to mowing our yard the other day, after several weeks of severe criticism at the hands of our wife and two boys for not doing so. When we finished up the job, our oldest boy, Trippy, 5, ran in and got his mother and ushered her outside to see the results of our labor. "Hurry up, Mother," Trippy yelled as he went in to get Frances, "Come see Daddy's yard before it grows up again!"

straight up in the air for at least 30 feet and landed another 30 feet on the other side of the fence making a good 20 miles an hour. Then it hit a large boulder and jumped in the air for the second time. This time it landed right in the uppermost branch of one of the tallest postoaks in that part of Eastland County.

But that's not all that old tire did. When it came off the wheel, the tube went off in another direction and blew out at the same time. In blowing out it shot that goey liquid all over the three of us until we looked like we had been tarred and feathered without the feathers. Boy, were we a mess!

And to add to my misery and discomfort, I had a time climbing the tree to get the tire. As I was the lightest and youngest of the trip it became my job to retrieve this wandering tire, which I remember to be a Pennsylvania brand. About half way up to the tire, the limb broke and I came tumbling down like Niagra right after the spring thaws.

Nothing was hurt, though, so I made the ascent again, aided by Mr. Hightower's supplying plenty of body English as I ventured out on first one small limb and then another.

That good old Pennsylvania tire didn't work so well after that, though. In those days the tire people were all busily trying to out contest other tire manufacturers in the development of long-lived and long-wearing tires. This one had an inner-lining just under the tread made of small steel discs about the size of a 1-cent coin. These discs were so spaced throughout the carcass of the tire that no nail was supposed to be able to penetrate the tires. Of course, this was only in theory, as those tires didn't work so well in actual practice.

As we drove on into town after mounting and pumping the tire up, a series of knocks kept sounding under the car. These knocks sounded like someone was throwing rocks at us and hitting us with every throw. Crawling under, I found the source of the trouble. These small penny-sized discs scattered throughout the tire's carcass were coming out one at a time and each time one came out it popped off the underside of those Ford fenders with the noise of a small dynamite explosion.

When we got back into town my father carried me to Dr. Johnson, Verna's father, who looked me over to find any injuries, if any, sustained in the fall from the tree. He gave me as thorough a physical examination as I've ever had. Then removing his stethoscope from his ears, he said to my dad: "Didn't hurt him a bit. He must have landed on his head."

Judge Cecil Collins tells this one about his younger days in the practice of the law. In one of his earliest cases he was called in to represent a fellow who claimed he was unable to pay any fee at all.

After the case started Collins still hadn't figured out whether it would be best to put his client on the stand or not. If he did, he felt sure the jury would convict; if he didn't he felt sure the jury would convict. Finally, the future judge decided to risk all and called his client as defense witness.

After the defendant was sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, the young lawyer asked his non-paying client:

"What have you got to say?"

"With all them limitations," he said, "about me not telling anything but the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, I can't say a thing. You're my lawyer, you do the talking."
