We Shun Editorial Conflict And Face Internal War!

You can always make honest Americans indignant by reminding them that the world never yet has devised any way of settling disputes between nations but the costly, wasteful, and inexpressibly painful resort to force.

Everyone agrees that this is a sad commentary on the good sense of the human race, especially that part of the human race which lives in the ancient, proud, and incurably pugnacious countries of Europe.

We don't seem to be able to understand, however, that we in the United States have been equally stupid.

For our internal quarrels also get settled by force—force which, in its application, in the toll it levies on innocent bystanders, and in the general hit-him-below-the-belt air which pervades it, is a direct and ugly parallel to the force used in international warfare.

Right now we may be walking straight into a great steel strike. No one above the kindergarten age needs to be told that such a strike would be horribly expensive. It would be expensive not merely to the $5,000,000,000 steel industry and to the far-flung labor organizations which partake of it directly, but to the rest of the country as well.

People would be killed, property would be damaged, hatred and suspicion that will be years in dying would be created, national prosperity would be a direct and possibly ruinous setback.

It is a national problem just as inescapably as invasion of our land by a foreign army would be a national problem.

The no-man's land of American life is a broad land indeed. Corporations with an aggregate wealth greater than that of some independent nations can exist in it; struggles as bitter and as deadly as Central American war can take place in it; embattled labor unions numbering more men than are enrolled in both the United States army and navy can fight in it; and the United States government can do nothing to interfere.

To all intents and purposes this great industry, with its half-million workers and its vast aggregation of capital, exists outside the United States. But the rows that it gets into, the bloodshed and hatred that these rows engender, the financial losses that they cause—all these take place right in our midst.

It is American blood that is shed, American minds that are inflamed by hatred, American money that is lost, American property that is damaged.

It may indeed be very stupid of the human race to go on putting up with war as the one method of settling disputes between nations. What, then, is to be said of the world's richest nation when it puts up with war as the one means of settling a great industrial dispute?

Life of the Saint Of the Day

By REV. S. E. BYRNE

St. Henry Duke of Bavaria once saw a vision in which two words were visible "aiter six." This moved him to prepare for death, and for six years he continued to watch and pray, then at the end of the sixth year he found the warning come true in his election as emperor. Thus trained in the love and fear of God, he entered upon his rule with but one thought: to reign for the greater glory of God.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquirers must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. What are the average annual receipts and disbursements of the Texas Highway Department? E. J. New Braunfels.

A. For the past nine years receipts have averaged approximately $35,000,000 a year and disbursements $34,500,000. The last fiscal year showed $39,198,753.20 receipts and $38,646,425.07 expenditures.

Q. Why was Dr. Mark Francis, who died recently at Texas A. & M. College, called "The Father of the Cattle Industry"? Z. M. O. Laredo.

A. He discovered the cattle-tick organism that transmitted the deadly cattle-tick fever and made possible its destruction. This saved the lives of millions of cattle in every country in the world and gave Dr. Francis international fame.

Q. What part of Texas is included in the term "Heart of Texas"? A. B. Kaufman.

A. It is the central area of the State around Brownwood and Brady, the outer circumference of which has never been fixed. It includes a large part of the State to the southwest that is often referred to as "The Hill Country."

Q. When was "Waterloo" settled and where was it? A. R. Round Rock.

A. Waterloo was settled in 1836 and was about two miles southeast of the present State capital on the west bank of the Colorado river at what is now known as Montopolis bridge. When the capitol site was selected in 1839, four families lived there. The village was moved across the river and the name changed to Austin.

HOUSE OF SHADOWS

CHAPTER XII

CLAIRE went to Eb and laid her hand on his arm to attract his attention. He was evidently in a half-frenzied condition. "Eb," she said. "Tell us where you've been. What happened?"

Again the menacing finger pointed accusingly at Susie. "Ask her," Eb said grimly. "She can tell you how she brought me food down in that room of Lyman Fosdick's. But all the time I was tied, hands and feet. All I could do was kick against the wall in hope someone would hear me. For a while I thought someone did hear me, but I guess I was wrong. If the tree hadn't been struck I'd seen there yet. Sawed the ropes off on a bit of sharp stone."

"Lyman Fosdick's room!" began Claire. "Eb, was it under the pine tree? Sit down there and tell us." "Yes. Where Lyman Fosdick used to keep his blasted jewels," he old man explained. "I allers said they'd bring him no good, nor Susie either."

All eyes turned to Susie, but she only tossed her head. "He's out of his mind. I've said so before and now you can see for yourselves. He—"

Eb's cracked voice rose almost to a scream as he sprang to his feet. "Then ask him!" he pointed at Nick Baum. "Ask him what's between him and this wicked sister o' mine!"

Susie shrank back. "No. It isn't so! Nicky never had nothing to do with it. I was the one wanted to find the jewel. I—"

"But he's the man who pushed me down the mine shaft," broke in Pat. "When he offered to light my cigaret just now, I noticed the little finger of his hand is cut off at the second joint. And the guy who fought with me in the tunnel was shy a joint of one of his little fingers."

"For a moment Nick Baum's handsome face held a suspicion of fear. Then he turned to Claire. "Is this the way you usually treat your guests? Of course it is perfectly absurd—"

Dan Dallas unexpectedly took command of the situation. "Not so absurd as it seems, Baum, when they know that you're Susie's son." One hand was concealed in his pocket, and now that pocket showed a menacing bulge. "The time Susie spent in the city when she was young was long enough for her to have a son by some unknown father. It was not hard to discover that that son was still living, and now, of course, grown. That made a workable basis for the theory that Baum and the son were the same person. Then when I discovered Susie was hunting for another treasure of Lyman Fosdick's, what more natural than that she should enlist her son's help?" Claire shuddered as she looked at Nick's dark face which had lost all its handsome charm. "Now see how you've messed things up!" he snarled at Susie. "You and your talk about the damned jewel."

"Nicky!" Susie's cry was desecrated, heart-broken. "I only wanted it for you, Nicky."

But he turned his back upon her and addressed Dan Dallas. "All right, let's get going, since the game's up. I suppose you've got handcuffs and all the trimmings."

He held out his hands, but as Dallas moved toward him there was a sudden brief skirmish, a sharp report, and the confessed criminal dropped to the floor in a twisted heap. The gun he had tried to fire at Dallas fell between them.

"Dead!" Dan's tone had the finality of a curtain line. Later, with the remembrance of Susie's agonized weeping still ringing in her ears, Claire stood in the library of the House of Long Shadows where Pat and Bob and Dan Dallas were grouped about the fireplace that bore the sign of the broken arrow.

DAN DALLAS walked to the bookcase and looked at it closely. "Has it always stood out from the wall like this?" he asked. "Why, no!" Claire answered. "It must have moved. Maybe when I was fussing with it—"

She did not finish, for at the pressure of Dan's fingers, the bookcase swung slowly forward, showing a doorway with a flight of narrow stairs leading downward.

"To the secret room, I'll bet! Come on!" Pat said excitedly, and started down.

Another very low door at the bottom opened directly into the half-ruined place Eb had described, with the gaping hole which the tree roots had torn open at one side.

"Look at that, will you!" Dallas threw the ray from his electric torch on the opposite wall.

The shock of the tree's fall had wrenched the big, wooden cupboard in the cellar room from its place, disclosing the solid back of the shelves, hinged to swing open to make another entrance into the secret room.

"Eb said he heard me in the tunnel," Pat took the torch and went over to inspect the outside. "Why, of course he did—see here!"

"Only a thin wall of earth separated the secret room from the other cut where Pat had dug his way out of the old mine. "And we're still directly under the house, the library and the cupola side," Pat went on. "Do you suppose this is the way he hid his wonderful blankly. "Yes," Bob Steele answered positively. He had been cutting one of the walls. "See and there? There's no telling pure this stuff will run. Uncle's jewel was a gold mine! Claire, and what a mine!"

HANNAH sniffed. "Your Lyman would be sure at it just that way. Getting 'most killed!" "There's still one thing, over all his hasn't been explained," Claire marked. "The tapping noise I heard that night I was up in Lyman's room."

"It was probably either a remarkable or Nick doing a little investigation as changing on their own. Miss Fox said Dan Dallas. "Your part rinders, riving unexpectedly must added an extra spur to efforts. Baum was under the one who put the log on the road to block your way."

"One thing I still can't stand, Claire," insisted Pat. "You were going to marry you, but he bother to pull all this losing selection with the danger of gobs caught?"

For a minute she did not then she looked straight at him. "Nick knew he would marry me, I think, Pat."

"Well, this is no place for a man. Mr. Steele, you better getting back where it's warm. Hannah's practical voice brook no more ado she headed toward the steps."

Pat caught Claire's hand. "Hannah's practical voice brook no more ado she headed toward the steps. "Pat caught Claire's hand. "Hannah's practical voice brook no more ado she headed toward the steps."

"How could I after I met myself at you?" Pat's arms closed about and his lips crushed hers. "A minute he reminded her, poor and you're rich now you've got the mine."

"But the mine won't buy happiness, and if I haven't I'd rather the old tree was making it the House of Shadows, with Uncle Lyman's jewel hidden under its cupboard. Please, Pat, don't stand there saying you won't have me, just cause I've got something that almost the end of us all."

Pat grinned. "They walked out through cellar and, as they came along the steps, a shaft of moon touched the cupola of the house with a silvery glow. "Looked up at it with a smile. "See, Pat, dear, the shaft have gone. From now on going to be the house of long and happiness."

Tonight All-church night, honoring new members, 8:15 p. m., lawn, Methodist Church.

Sub Deb Club Honors Boy Friends Ray and Dave Hill, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hill, who leave the first of the month to make their home in Headland, Okla., were given a party, hosted by members of the Sub Deb Club, on Monday night.

The young folks gathered on the high school campus at 8:30 and were conveyed in six cars to Cisco lake, where they had a swim before the dancing on the pavilion and the supper served at 11 p. m.

Sub Deb members proved themselves capable young hostesses in the alfresco supper of fried chicken, baked Virginia ham, potato salad, pickles, olives, sandwiches, topped off with ice cream. Members and guests were Miss Katherine Utz and Tom Harrison; Frances Lane and Billy Satterwhite; Edith Rosenquest and Bob Sikes; Katherine Garrett and J. Hammett; Gladys Davis and Jack Sikes; Evelyn Collins and Ray Hill; Helen Butler, president of club, and Samuel Butler Jr.; Misses June Hyer, Mary Lou Harbin, Earline Pitzer; Cyrus B. Frost Jr., J. T. Awalt, Dave Hill, and club sponsor, Miss Ila Mae Coleman, and Truett Fulcher.

Women's Missionary Society Meets at Church

An unusual program in business and study interest engrossed the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church at their Monday afternoon session, held in lower assembly room.

Mrs. E. R. Stanford, superintendent of study, opened the meeting with song service, "Work for the Night is Coming," and "Jesus Calls Us," led by Mmes. P. L. Crossley, and Bert McGlamery, pianist, closed with prayer by Mrs. W. H. Mullings.

The scripture reading was brought from Matthew by Mrs. Frank Crowell, and in business session, the all-church night party, honoring new members was announced for tonight on the church lawn, and all urged to attend.

Mrs. McGlamery, chairman of Christian social relations, requested that all attend the better films, shown this week, "Life of Louis Pasteur," at Connelley, also "Showboat," and "Sutter's Gold," at Lyric.

Personnel of this committee, Mmes. Wayne Jones and J. F. Little.

Mrs. P. L. Crossley directed the program that centered about work in Nanking, China, with 327 graduates from Bible Teachers Training School, throughout China in missionary work, who have just financed a new school building providing splendid equipment.

Mrs. E. R. Stanford told of Ewha College in Seoul, Korea, for girls, with faculty of 25, all Koreans but 12. Described the etiquette room where formal customs of Japan and Korea are taught, and the "prayer room" for proper teaching of prayers. A quiz on the conference minutes, of Central Texas Missionary Society convention, conducted by Mrs. Crossley, is to be continued at session next Monday afternoon, under direction of Mrs. Wayne Jones.

At close of meeting Mrs. Crossley served iced tea to Mmes. J. P. Hearn, Bert McGlamery, Frank Crowell, E. R. Stanford, W. H. Mullings, P. L. Crossley, J. F. Sparks.

Mrs. W. J. Herrington Hostess to Circle 3

Mrs. W. J. Herrington was hostess to Circle 3 of W. M. S. of Baptist Church at her residence Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock with program opened by Mrs. J. B. Overton, chairman.

A personal service report showed 16 visits made this week; and given the Mexican mission; the success of the mission daily Bible school and revival, and several trays of food taken to the sick.

It was announced that no circle session will be held next Monday. The devotional, "The Wheat and the Tares," Matt. 13, prefaced the Bible study, "The Parables of the Bible," presented by Mrs. Herrington.

A Royal Service program followed, prefacing the program of an imaginary trip to Southern Baptist convention, held in May at St. Louis.

The introductory background was presented by Mrs. Herrington, and Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett representing Mrs. J. F. Armstrong, state president, gave glimpses of mission fields in wireless messages, purporting to be the president's address.

Mrs. J. F. Jones' subject, "The Two Jubilees," depicted the anniversary celebration of Sunbeams and the Maryland Baptist Association.

Prayer by Mrs. W. D. R. Owen, closed the session. The hostess served refreshments of icebox cakes and fruited punch to Mmes. W. D. R. Owen, Clyde L. Garrett, J. B. Tompkins, J. F. Jones, J. B. Overton, and Mrs. H. A. Lawson of Olney, who spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Herrington.

Young Women's Association Holds Lawn Meeting

Mrs. Jess Taylor assisted her daughters, Misses May, Fay and Bessie, in entertaining members of the Young Women's Association of the Baptist Church, at their home at States Oil camp, Monday night, with the regular program meeting held on the lawn, lighted by pendant bulbs from the large trees.

The program was opened by Miss Irene Williams, with prayer by Mrs. C. T. Nelson.

A round table was conducted in interest of the work of the Intermediates and Girls Auxiliary.

Plans were perfected for an out of doors meeting in two weeks, with privilege of inviting guests, to be held at the residence of Mrs. L. J. Lambert.

Committee in charge named Miss May Taylor, chairman, of refreshments; Miss Irene Williams, program chairman.

Song, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," and prayer by Miss Allean Williams, closed the program. The hostesses served a refreshment.

Ladies Bible Class Presents Shower Gift

The Ladies Bible Class of the Church of Christ met on the lawn of the home of Mrs. P. L. Harris on Oak street Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock and held their lesson, conducted by Mrs. Loretta Herrington.

Hymn, led by Mrs. Frances Cooper, and prayer by Mrs. J. R. Boggs, prefaced the lesson period, closed with dismissal prayer by Mrs. W. E. Moore.

In connection with the lesson, the afternoon served as a social meeting for the members' shower of bridal gifts to Mrs. Howell Boggs, a recent bride, nee Miss Verna Wright of Odessa.

The gifts were drawn in a tiny wagon to the honoree by little Naomi Wood, and presented by her in a charming manner. A table, lace laid, and centered with a handsome cut glass punch bowl, had the orange and delicious home-baked cake served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. E. Wood, Misses Nelda Beth Wood, Wilaheth Boggs, and Thelma Maxwell.

State Tax Rate to Be Determined By Tax Board Soon

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, Tex.—What burden will Texas tax payers this year will become known this week. Several months ago a reduction was in sight. Then the State Board of Education apportioned an additional dollar to schools. That used up more than $1,500,000 which it was thought would be on hand as a surplus to start computing the new rate.

The state school tax will depend on what the Board of Education does this week about the 1936-1937 apportionment. How much the other variable taxes will be already known—they will be the maximum possible under the state constitution.

The school apportionment is the amount per scholastic to be given schools by the state to supplement local school taxes. There are approximately 1,555,000 names on the scholastic census. Each dollar apportioned takes $1,555,000 out of the treasury.

The state ad valorem tax for general revenue will be 35 cents on each $100 of assessed value. The tax to pay Confederate pensions will be seven cents. Last year the state school tax levy was 20 cents.

It was believed that this year the school levy could be reduced to 16 cents. That is hardly likely since the extra $1,555,000 that would have been on hand will all be gone. How much the tax will depend on whether the Board again makes an initial allotment of $17.50 or allots $18.50 or more.

The Attorney General ruled that $17.50 is not a maximum. Formal setting of the tax rate will be made by an automatic tax board. Its members are the Governor, State Comptroller, and State Treasurer. Their board duties are strictly ministerial. So much so that the board is designated the Automatic Tax Board.

Money unexpended under current appropriations becomes a nest egg for another year. The school apportionment is part of the needed amount. An estimated revenue from special taxes is arrived at by taking the receipts for half of the present year and the last half of the preceding year.

This, too, is deducted from the total of money needed. Valuations are received from county tax assessors and a tax levied large enough to produce the net amount needed.

The state automatic tax board is expected to meet July 29 to do the computing. Expected is the word. Usually the time is postponed because the reports of values are not complete. A second notice has been sent out by the State Comptroller to Tax Assessors asking speed. Reports already received indicate that the valuations are running about the same as those a year ago when the total was $3,191,608,320 (b) after deducting homestead exemptions.

Fort Worth Ready for Gala Opening

The Last Frontier—Pioneer Palace—Jumbo—Casa Manana—Nude Ranch! Marvels of entertainment will go on parade in Fort Worth Saturday, July 18, when the Texas Frontier Centennial opens its gates to the world. But mere gates, closed during rehearsals, have not kept out the crowds. Bess Harris, for instance, boldly travels the "Sunset Trail" in a modern covered wagon, mustering into service Mr. Star, an Indian youth whose Hopi reservation is on the Centennial grounds, and pausing for refreshment at an old pump presided over graciously by Miss Yellow Spider. And below is Nikki Allen, who takes time out from rehearsals at Sally Rand's Nude Ranch to furnish a good reason for the crowds in the bottom photo.

Boys In Canoe On A 3,200 Mile Trip

By United Press

INDIANAPOLIS.—Two Indianapolis boys are paddling a canoe today on a 3,200-mile trip to Phoenix, Arizona.

Everett and Paul Dye, 20 and 19, respectively, embarked Wednesday on the White River, south of Indianapolis, determined to reach Phoenix in time to enroll in the University of Arizona next fall.

The trip will be made in stages, with plenty of canoeing, hunting and fishing enroute. Heading south from Indianapolis, the boys planned to follow the White River to the Gulf of Mexico, then on down into the Ohio valley, finally along the Mississippi to New Orleans.

From the Louisiana city, their itinerary includes the Texas coast to Orange, Texas, then down the Sabine River to the Gulf of Mexico. The boys plan to paddle through the Inter-Coastal Canal, the Bayou to Houston, Texas, and then on to the Gulf of Mexico.

The trip from Houston to the Gulf will be made by automobile. Nine years of canoeing, mostly in Indiana waters, persuaded the boys for the long journey.

Everett was graduated from high school in 1933 and Paul a year later. They have been working saving money for the trip, and for their college education.
