MOORE about... EASTLAND

by Virgil E. Moore

Jim Crowder, Abilene Reporter-News sports writer, says that there is only one conclusive thing about District 7-AA, and that is that Eastland will finish last.

Browder picks Ranger to repeat as district champions, with Ballinger second, Cisco third, Winters fourth, Coleman fifth and the Mavs in the also ran position.

Eastland, despite the fact that it simply hasn't gotten it in the past yet that they are a basketball club. In three scrimmages they have won three. (Let us hastily point out that two of the scrimmages were against Class B teams.) Victims of the Mavs in pre-season drills have been Baird, Hamilton and Gorman, in that order.

We don't look for Eastland to win the state championship, but from what we've seen of the Mavs, we don't expect them to be beat by anyone until the final whistle sounds. That's all we expect.

That's gonna be it for today.

Inspection Of Motor Vehicles Is Now Underway

September 1 marked the beginning of a new motor vehicle inspection period for more than four million vehicle owners in Texas, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Inspection stations throughout the state will open their doors for the inspection period that runs through April 15, 1959. There are more than 4300 stations in the state which have been authorized to check automobiles and trucks. In announcing the opening date, Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, suggested that Texas residents have their trucks and automobiles inspected at the beginning of the period. This, he said, would save motorists considerable time and inconvenience annually accompanying long waiting lines at the inspection deadline.

First County Couple Married At Blair's Fort

By Michael Herrington

In 1863, Sarah Jane Blair was happily looking forward to the big event of any young girl's life—her wedding. Sarah Jane was the daughter of Charles C. and Meekie Reeves Blair, who were among the first settlers of Eastland County.

Her home was at Blair's Fort, along with seven other families. (It is now known as Desdemona). Sarah Jane was born in Alabama on March 27, 1846.

Her husband-to-be was Berry Moore Keith, the son of Gabriel and Jane Keith. He was born in Coleman County, near Santa Anna. His mother is buried there.

B. M. Keith and Jim McGough rode to Comanche, the closest town, to procure marriage licenses. On the wedding day, Joe Smith was chosen to bring the preacher, Rev. Coker. The reverend came from Comanche to the home of Albert Swoles on the Sabanno where he was met by Smith. (The two men came upon an Indian trail and shortly discovered a freshly slaughtered cow and a still warm fire. Both of them proceeded with caution until the trail veered westward. Then they quickly sped on to the Fort.)

Broken sunlight fell through the shady oaks onto an excited group of friends and relatives gathered about laden tables and the patiently awaiting preacher.

At four o'clock on a July afternoon in 1869, Eastland County's first bride and groom stepped into the yard. (In the same Fort, the county's first white child was born on Aug. 17, 1861.)

B. M. Keith was 18 years old. He had black hair, a ruddy complexion, and was dressed in blue pants with two big six shooters buckled around him.

Sarah Jane, clutching timidly to his arm, looked very pretty in her wedding dress. It was white embroidered mainsook with a low neck and short sleeves. On her tiny feet were not the glass slippers of Cinderella, but new shoes—hand made by Bill McGough—to look like real "store-bought" ones. Deep blue were her eyes, and her skin was faultless without a speck of color. Her long, blood-tinted hair was combed loosely back and tied with white ribbon.

Before the ceremony began, Keith removed his guns and laid them on a nearby stump. After kissing his new wife, he replaced his guns in their ever-ready position.

Mrs. Lizzie Keith, maid of honor, and Joe Smith, best man, both wore white.

The wedding dinner included turkey with dressing, sliced eggs, venison, bread, butter, coffee, milk and honey cakes. The honey cakes had been provided by a tree which Blair luckily found. (Honey was the only means of sweetening.)

After performing his matrimonial duties, the preacher wanted to preach, but no one would permit it on this wedding day.

The entire night was spent dancing to "Weavely Wheat" and playing games until the yard was empty.

beaten into a powder.

B. M. Keith took his wife to the wilderness, near what is now Desdemona, and pre-empted 160-acres of land and built a log cabin. Here he lived the rest of his life as he increased his original land holdings.

He was a charter member of the Texas Cattleman's Association and the Texas Rangers. Keith also served in the Confederate Army.

He and his wife had 16 children, including one set of twin boys. Two children survive—Mrs. Middle Eoff of Dublin and Alf Keith of Gorman.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith were Baptist Church members.

B. M. Keith died at Victor (in Erath County) on May 5, 1917, his first-born son's birthday.

Sarah Jane died at the home of a daughter in Dublin, on April 17, 1937.

Gray Matter

By JOE GRAY

Advertising pays! If it didn't there is not a newspaper in the land that would be in business for long. All advertising is good advertising, but some of it is better than other.

Milton Fallon's ads in the Eastland Telegram simply tickle me to death. Any time Milton can't make a living selling Chevys and Frigs, he advertises in this column.

But if Milton isn't careful he's going to tell his age and actually he's not as old as they tell on him over at the Ford house. The rumor got out at the Ford house the other day that Milton was as old as Methusalem. However, I'm sure Milton will be happy to know that all Ford men aren't talk about him so viciously. One fellow said it wasn't true that Milton was as old as Methusalem. He added it couldn't be true because Milton was a pallbearer at Methusalem's funeral.

Be that as it may, though, Milton will have to be careful what he said about some of the old days on radio or he will tell his age.

He talked the other day of Amos and Andy and their radio program. At one time this was the most-listened program on the air. Millions of people throughout our nation listened to every word spoken on this program and there are people today who still buy Pepsi-Cola because of the sales approach made on the Amos and Andy show.

Although a lot of people don't remember it, Amos and Andy were on the air three times a night, five nights a week. The three-times nightly show was the same. The first program was heard in this area at 6 p.m. This was the East coast show, and we could hear it here over WLW. Cincinnati, which at that time was experimenting with a 500,000 watt transmitter. This was the world's most powerful station and almost any radio of any size would then get WLW at 6 p.m., especially in the wintertime.

The same program was again broadcast at 10 p.m. for the Central time zone and that's when the local NBC stations copied it. Most of us in Eastland listened to the 10 o'clock broadcast.

Then again at 11 p.m. it was broadcast for the West coast stations of the NBC network. A man with a good strong receiver could get it at that time over KFL, Los Angeles, or some other now-forgetful station on the West Coast. All these broadcasts were live as recording then was not as near perfect as it is now.

Actually in those days some of the better radio stations bragged about not broadcasting any records at all. And of course the EASTLAND NATIONAL BANK "On The Square" MEMBER F. D. I. C.

Don January Doing Okay In Junior Year As Pro

By JIM CAQUIN

PGA Field Secretary

Usually when wasp-waisted Don January uncorks one of his hot rouds—and he can come up with some sizzlers—there are references to the weather.

The headline, "January Hot," should not be construed as a weather forecast.

But January—Don, that is—and the weather have one thing in common. They're both often unpredictable.

Don, born November 20, 1929 can explode some of the most sensational rounds on the PGA Tour—he has shot 64 twice at Tucson, once at Dallas, St. Petersburg and Greensboro. And he's co-holder of the record of 65 at the Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas, Nevada.

"But I shoot some 76s and 77s, too," smiled the talented thumper from Eastland, Texas.

In the first eight months of 1958, Don has won more than $11,000, making his best showings at Tucson (second), Greensboro (tie for second), Colonial (tie for fifth), Hot Springs, Ark. (tie for third) and the USGA Open (tie for seventh).

One of the top three freshmen of 1956 (the others were Don's sidekick, Ernie Vossler and Don Fairfield), January would just as soon forget all about 1957. That war pretty much a lost year for him.

Don started 1957 by contracting the flu while driving to California. He later was troubled by a bone spur on his heel and by a back injury. The latter sidelined him for a month and was his most serious problem.

January's top 1957 performance was at St. Petersburg, where he tied for third and won $1,025. He won only $4,540.78 officially in 1957 and about $8,000 all told.

January attributes his hot and cold play to streaky putting. Another cause of his inconsistency probably is that he swings very hard at his drives. One of the longest hitters in golf, January sometimes pays a penalty for his length off the tee when he sprays a drive.

"I have improved my chipping," says the lean six-footer, "and my irons are good from the No. 5 through the No. 9. But I'm a spoty putter and my long irons need more work."

Don's won only one major event since joining the tour early in 1956. That was the 1956 Dallas Centennial Open, first prize: $5,000. Thanks mainly to that victory, Don placed 16th on the official money list in 1956 with $17,731.90.

By contrast, in 1957, he placed 47th.

Married and the father of two, Don turned professional May 20, 1955, while completing two-year stint in the Air Force. He played for three NCAA championship golf teams at North Texas State College.

As a youngster in Dallas, January won a host of junior and invitational, tournaments, including the Dallas junior twice and the Dallas city crown twice. He was also medalist in the Trans-Mississippi tournament once and advanced to the semi-finals of that event once.

Wary Don learned to play golf at the Stevens Park Municipal Course in Dallas. After he made some progress in the game, his dad got him a membership at the Lakeview Country Club, Dallas.

Don's father had been a golf professional but has gone into the roofing business since being victimized by a flood that wiped

Water Safety Is Always Stressed By Red Cross

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of stories written by members of the Eastland United Fund publicity committee.)

By JAMES GILKEY

The recent drowning at Eastland's Lake Leon points up the great need for an understanding of the basic elements of water safety.

Since 1914, the American Red Cross has vigorously promoted public education in water safety. The purpose of water safety services, which include courses in swimming, lifesaving, and the handling of small craft, is to make people safe while in, on, or about the water.

With the increase in leisure time in recent years, all forms of aquatics have reached a new high in popularity. Skin diving and scuba (self-contained underwater breathing apparatus) diving have developed into a nationwide sporting activity. And because boating is now the largest family participation sport in the country, with some 30 million people taking part, the accident potential is a great one. Over half the drownings that occur today are from small craft accidents. Since the American Red Cross entered the field of water safety, the annual rate of drowning has been cut more than half. Still, an appalling average of 6,500 drown each year.

On the brighter side, a major development of the year was publication of the book "Teaching Johnny To Swim" to guide parents who want to teach their children how to swim. About 1 1/2 million certificates were granted last year to youngsters and adults who satisfactorily completed one of the many courses in swimming, lifesaving, and handling of small craft.

Your support of the Eastland United Fund, in which the American Red Cross is a partner, help make these courses possible.

August Christmas Is Held by G. A. Girls Wednesday

Christmas carols rang out Wednesday night as the Morgan Girls' Auxiliary met at First Baptist Church for a "Christmas in August" Party. The occasion was planned in order that Christmas gifts for Indian children in Oklahoma might be collected and mailed in time for a December Christmas Party there.

As the girls arrived, they joined in decorating a lovely cedar tree and placed their gifts under its branches. All joined in the singing of carols, and the Christmas story was told by Mary Ann Manning. Roll call was answered with scripture verses.

Red punch and flaming coconut snowballs were served to Sharon Hall, Lois Ann Sims, Anna Kay Smith, Mary Ann Manning, Janet Kimbler, Patricia Liles, Brenda Jennings, and the Counselors, Mmes Gene Rhodes, Herbert Ekrut, and Harvey Kimbler.

Good study habits are easier to form...

when LIGHT is RIGHT for homework

Your school-age youngster will form good study habits more quickly when lighting is right for homework. Good lighting aids concentration... makes homework seem easier... helps develop good study habits that can contribute so much to future success. Check the lighting under which your child studies. Make sure there is enough light and the right kind of light to prevent eyestrain and fatigue.

See your dealer now for the lamps and right-size bulbs you need. He'll gladly help you with suggestions.

A 150-watt bulb is recommended for best light from a table study lamp. The lamp should be placed close to the work area. A diffusing bowl is recommended to soften the light and prevent glare.

Two wall lamps with 100-watt bulbs in diffusing bowls may be used against a light-colored wall or tackboard. This arrangement leaves entire desk top free for books and work papers.
