Idea Is Gen. O'Daniel's U. S., France Discuss Use Of Yanks To Train Natives

WASHINGTON, May 25 —UP— The United States and France are discussing the possibility of using American military officers and technicians to help train native forces for the war in Indo-China, administration sources reported Tuesday.

Informants said the idea of increasing the native training program is a part of a past week by Maj. Gen. John W. (Iron Mike) O'Daniel and Gen. Paul Ely, French chief of staff, who made an emergency survey trip to Indo-China. O'Daniel is head of the U. S. military assistance advisory group in Indo-China.

France in the past has refused to accept large-scale American help in training native troops. But the French might agree to change their previous stand if the United States is successful in lining up support for a collective action program to defend southeast Asia against Communist aggression.

Kelly Field Has Second Air Mishap

SAN ANTONIO, May 25 —UP— A C-46 transport with 43 persons on board made an emergency landing in a potato patch a mile north of Kelly Air Force Base Tuesday. None was injured.

It was the second C-46 accident around Kelly AFB since Sunday. An Air Force C-46 plane with five men on board was down in a heavy rain about 10 miles north of San Antonio Sunday night. Two men aboard it were killed and the other three injured.

The C-46 that had to make the emergency landing Tuesday was operated by Johnnie E. Flying Service, a charter line. The 43 men on board included 39 men who had just completed basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, and four crewmen, all from Seattle, Wash.

Revised SS System May Pass

WASHINGTON, May 25 —UP— The House Ways and Means committee has given tentative approval to President Eisenhower's recommendations for extending the social security system.

The committee scheduled a secret session to take a final look at the measure. It may be taken up by the House next week. The measure, as tentatively approved by the committee, would add about 19 million persons—including farmers, doctors, lawyers, and dentists—to the social security rolls and would boost benefits by $5 to $23.50 a month.

At the present time, some 48 million workers are covered by social security. The committee Monday voted down a proposal by Rep. John W. Byrnes (R-Wis.) to pay old age insurance benefits to all retired persons over 70 regardless of whether they have paid any social security taxes.

City Employes To Get Holiday

City employes will get a day off Monday, in lieu of Memorial Day Sunday.

City Mgr. Fred Brook this morning broached the subject to the Pampa City Commission and received its approval.

It will be holiday except for needed skeleton crews, Brook said.

Dien Bien Phu 'Angel' Freed; Describes Ordeal Under Fire

HANOI, May 25 —UP— Nurse Genevieve de Gallard, Terrance, "angel of Dien Bien Phu," Tuesday described her ordeal under fire and said she spurned comforts offered by Communist conquerors of the Indo-Chinese fortress.

After a refreshing night's sleep, Genevieve went to a beauty parlor for a new haircut and then faced the world press.

In vivid but simple terms she told how she tended the wounded of the doomed fortress in darkness after the electricity failed in the damp, underground shelter that served as a hospital.

Butter Stock Under Study

WASHINGTON, May 25 —UP— project would accomplish the purpose of reducing surplus butter stocks.

He said sales or donations of government butter on domestic markets "will almost immediately replace" current production and mean the government would have to buy more butter under support operations.

The department will continue to study disposal plans as long as big stockpiles, Benson reported. But he said "at the present time there will be no disposal program as we talked of earlier."

Workers May Strike

NEW YORK, May 25 —UP— Mass demonstration that threatened to grow into a nationwide strike against Pan American Airways was scheduled Tuesday by the CIO Transport Workers Union.

The show of strength was ordered for Tuesday at Idlewild airport here, and at fields in Miami, San Francisco, Seattle and Brownsville, Tex.

Involved in the threatened work stoppage are mechanics, ground service workers, flight stewards and stewardesses, and port stewards and senior stewards. Pan American employs 6,400 of the union's members.

Dulles Fears Hemispheric Peace In Peril

WASHINGTON, May 25 —UP— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Tuesday said the Communist arms shipment to Guatemala could be intended for use in building up a military strong point near the Panama Canal.

Dulles said that the important question in connection with the Guatemalan situation is whether Guatemala is being subjected to Communist colonialism.

"The extension of Communist colonialism to this hemisphere would, in the words of the Caracas resolution, endanger the peace of America," he said.

Dulles said that if hostilities should break out in the Central American area, we would expect collective action under treaty obligations to stop them.

He said that a meeting of the American nations could be called on 24-hour notice and, in such an event, he would anticipate possible action speedily.

"Discussing the recent shipment of arms from Poland to leftist Guatemala, Dulles said the shipment "was effected under conditions which are far from normal."

He said the arms were cleared for Dakar, Africa, but "the operation was cloaked under a series of chartering arrangements so that the real shipper was very difficult to discover."

Military sources said that more U. S. arms are expected to follow two rush shipments dispatched to the H. A. Owens home after training union classes at the nearby Second Baptist Church, planted the cross in the Owens yard and set it on fire, then rushed back to the church to attend evening services.

"We just did it to be adventurous," the older boy, son of an Humble Oil Refining Co. employee, told Harris County Juvenile Deputy George Nichols.

"We didn't have any idea how serious it was," one of the boys is 16, the other 15.

They said they didn't even know the Owens family and picked their yard at random because the house, located on a five-acre tract, is so far back from the street in Channelview.

FRANK? — Deputy Sheriff A. W. Heinze holds a cross with the words "KLU KLUX KLAN" imprinted across it which was found burning in the front yard of H. A. Owens in Houston Sunday night. Officers and the Owens family are mystified as to motives behind the cross-burning. Sheriff's deputies have a theory that the burning was the work of pranksters. (NEA Telephoto)

Baytown Students Admit Cross Prank

HOUSTON, May 25 —UP— Two students at Robert E. Lee high school, Baytown, who live at suburban Channelview, admitted to sheriff's officers Monday night they planned a burning cross in a Channelview family's front yard.

The youths said they rushed over to the H. A. Owens home after training union classes at the nearby Second Baptist Church, planted the cross in the Owens yard and set it on fire, then rushed back to the church to attend evening services.

Shivers Aide Changes Jobs

AUSTIN, May 25 —UP— Jimmy Banks, who has been Gov. Allan Shivers' press secretary since Feb. 1, resigned Monday to handle publicity in Shivers' campaign for reelection.

There was no mention of John Van Cronkhite, an Austin public relations man and long-time political associate of Shivers. Van Cronkhite's name was injected into injunctive proceedings against an insurance firm recently.

Passes For Schine Stopped By Order

WASHINGTON, May 25 —UP— Maj. Gen. Cornelius E. Ryan testified Tuesday he stopped week-night passes for Pvt. G. David Schine because of fear that Schine might accidentally kill himself or some other soldier while learning to handle weapons.

Ryan, a stern-faced veteran of 37 years in the infantry, said, "a trainee simply can't go out night after night until 11 o'clock or midnight."

French Troops Pound Rebel Raiding Bases

HANOI, May 25 —UP— French Union troops stepped up attacks Tuesday on Communist rebels for raids on the vital railroad and highway linking Hanoi and the port of Haiphong.

The French high command announced also that bombers and strafers were holding four Red divisions at bay on the road from Dien Bien Phu to Hanoi.

More To Come Rainfall Total Is 4.12 Inches

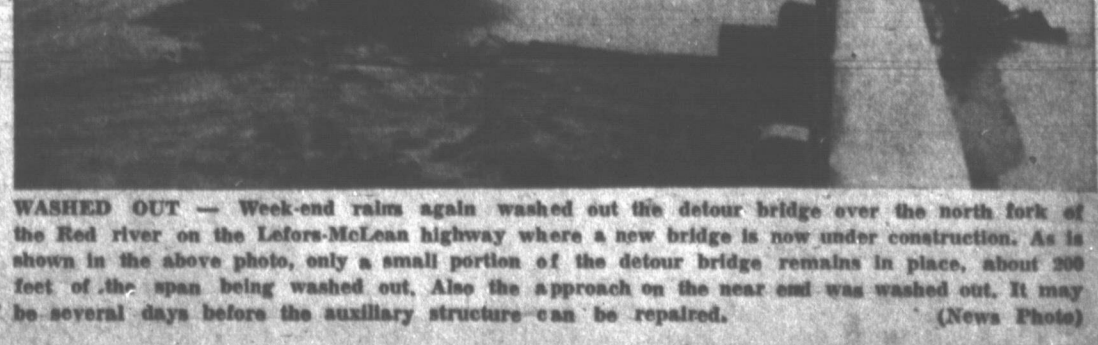

Still more rain was in prospect for the Pampa area today with the forecast for this afternoon and Wednesday calling for widely scattered thundershowers along with partly cloudy and warmer weather Wednesday.

The alternate route from Lefors to Alameda is open. Jerry Mobley, assistant county agent, made a quick tour of several wheat fields in the area Monday afternoon and reported that wheat is looking very good, with the exception of a few spots damaged by the freeze on May 3.

TV Excuse

HARTFORD, Conn. —UP— Edward W. Hennessey, 57, accused of threatening to kill a stranger, got off with a suspended sentence after explaining that he had been seeing too many "blood and thunder" television programs.

Reports from the area reveal that all highways are open, with the exception of the Lefors-McLean road, where a detour bridge around one being constructed over the North fork of the Red river washed out. It is understood that

WASHED OUT — Week-end rains again washed out the detour bridge over the north fork of the Red river on the Lefors-McLean highway where a new bridge is now under construction. As is shown in the above photo, only a small portion of the detour bridge remains in place, about 200 feet of the span being washed out. Also the approach on the near end was washed out. It may be several days before the auxiliary structure can be repaired. (News Photo)

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Exclusively Yours: Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly can stop worrying for the time being at least, about Tony Curtis' hop, skip and jump into the musical field as a movie song-and-dance man.

Reports are coming through that Tony sings as well as either Gene or Fred, and shakes a mean hoof, too, in U-I's "So This Is Paris," but he's undecided about a second musical scheduled for him by the studio.

"First, I want to see the outcome of this," he says. "If it looks great, I'll do more musicals. If it's just all right, there wouldn't be any point in pursuing it."

Gene Nelson, who has a couple of big solo dance numbers in the film, taught Tony to hoof and says: "People are going to be surprised."

The James Masons, who have a five-year-old daughter, have made another date to rock the cradle. The stock's due in October.

James Whitmore told it on the "Battle Cry" set. His cook, an exponent of modern hep talk, set a cheese-baited trap for a marauding mouse. The mouse got the cheese but eluded the trap.

Now that Marjorie Main has drawn up a will leaving her estate to the Good Samaritan hospital, I can reveal the name of the famed character star who picked out her coffin and arranged for her own funeral several months ago. It was Marjorie.

Preview flash: "The High and the Mighty" is in the "From Here to Eternity" league of transforming hit novels into hit movies. It's destined for high honors and slightly box-office figures, thanks to John Wayne, an all-star cast, Producer Bob Fellows and Director William Wellman.

Vivian Lindford, who divorced Director Don Siegel a year ago, is expected to wed novelist George Taber before she arrives in Hollywood to costar with Jimmy Cagney in Paramount's "Run for Cover."

Movie villain Lee Van Cleef writes a Hollywood column for his home-town paper in New Jersey. "But I'm thinking about quitting," he's telling it. "I'm getting more fan mail as a columnist than as an actor."

Overheard at the Palm Springs Doll House: "She's just an old-fashioned girl. She has 10 of them before dinner every night."

Tennis champ Alice Marble is teaching Virginia Mayo how to smack the white ball over the net. . . . High fidelity sound influence on songwriting: Matt Dennis is singing, "Hi-Fi Baby, Don't You Love Fi Me."

MGM filmed "The Student Prince" with Edward Purdon borrowing the singing voice of Mario Lanza. It worked for Larry Parks as Al Jolson, but Purdon says it wasn't an easy decision for him to make.

"I was aware that it was a terrible risk and that it might kill me. Mario was such a big personality. It was necessary to make audiences forget the personality of the singer and see only the personality of the role. I'm still waiting to find out whether it was a mistake or not."

Rio Grande Is Bankful
NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico, May 25—UP—Thirty times as much water as flowed in the Rio Grande a year ago was pouring past Nuevo Laredo Tuesday in the bed of the international river.

Horacio Vidrio Peres, hydrographic chief for the Mexican Boundary Commission, reported Monday's flow was 14,000 cubic feet per second, at a height of 9.28 feet. The average flow in May, 1953, was only 545 second feet.

In June last year the Rio Grande went dry for more than 200 miles above its mouth in the Gulf of Mexico at Brownsville, Tex. It was the first time since records have been kept there was no measurable flow.

Tony, The 'Miracle Cobbler'
He's Called That By Those He Helped

By PATTI SIMMONS NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Passers-by have a right to be surprised at the strange goings-on outside Tony Troiano's shoe shop. They've never seen the discarded braces inside.

Like the time ex-Marine Corporal Robert White booted for the door and disappeared without so much as an explanation. That startled even Tony.

Minutes later he was back, breathless, with an ear-to-ear grin. "I hadn't walked in two years, much less run," White said later. "When Tony laced on that new boot I couldn't resist the urge to try."

Then there's seven-year-old Jay Teates, who had never ridden a bike before he came to Tony. Because he couldn't balance properly he had to cling to the banister and go up a flight of stairs. Today Jay's mother announces, proudly, that her son climbs stairs just like other youngsters with book bag in one hand and his lunch box in the other.

But Mrs. Teates and Bob White and some of Tony's other friends are worried right now. They know how important it is for Tony to be able to help people. And making orthopedic shoes is a losing operation for this garrulous shoemaker sometimes referred to by customers as a "miracle man." At the moment, Troiano is in need of a miracle himself if he's to save his business.

Letters and testimonials from grateful customers won't pay the rent, although one of them, at least, nalls down Tony's trouble. "Where in the city is there another craftsman so interested in his customers, so seldom have you charged for the time you spent figuring out their problem. . . . I guess that was your mistake, Tony."

Is short, Tony's broke. Tony loves helping cripples—the club-footed children and the kids struck down with polio and palsy. He not only spends hours creating shoes for them but plenty of time thinking about each foot before he even picks up his tools. The result is that the time involved often costs more than a customer can pay.

Tony works 10 to 12 hours a day, his wife explains. "If he ever gets back on his feet the only way he can hope to stay out of debt is to charge by the hour. We've talked about this," she declares. "Then in comes someone who can't afford it and Tony doesn't have the heart."

Troiano's first name is really Salvatore and his story begins near the foot of the Italian boot. When he was five his father moved their shoeshop to America. By the time Tony was 17 he was a full-fledged shoeman.

He wasn't sure he liked making shoes, so for two years he went to pre-med school at night. Later he put in a year's law work.

Then Tony took up dental technician work, got his diploma and worked for three years at his new trade. Today Troiano is able to make his own plaster casts of deformed feet as a model for the shoe he hopes to create.

"It's strange, but whatever I went into I usually learned something I could take back with me into the shoe business," he explains.

"It just seemed like I couldn't keep away from the people who wanted me," says the 53-year-old Italian, who doesn't seem 100 per cent sure of the real reason he keeps coming back to the cobbler's bench.

Working closely with orthopedic doctors, Tony's reputation has kept spreading. His customer list is impressive. He's prepared shoes for the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone and was even asked to look at the braces of Franklin Delano

TV STAGE RECORDS PEOPLE

You'll be relieved to learn, as I was, what his friends call Lib-erace. It's been worrying me—four syllables is a lot for a man to lug around. But it turns out that they call him Lee. Whew! That's a load off my typewriter.

Lib-erace, incidentally, will give a concert in Madison Square Garden come May 26. And Lee says—get that, I'm a nickname dropper—Lee says that the Garden is already three-quarters sold out, and he's confident it'll be a full house on the big night. If so, it'll be only the second time in the Garden's history that the place was sold out for an event of this type. Just goes to show you how popular candelabra are these days.

A television career has its handicaps. There is, for example, the little matter of blue shirts. Take Jimmy Blaine, the cheerful announcer, and—sometime—singer. He has a neck that demands a size 16 collar, and it isn't too easy to find a decent blue shirt—a must in TV—in that size.

"So I have them made to order," Jimmy says. "At the moment I have 42 blue shirts in the house."

The guy is, obviously trying to collar the market.

"Jimmy got his big break on 'The Big Break,' Eddie Dowling's old show which was one of the first TV talent affairs. From that came his long stint on 'Stop the Music,' until he got another break—in his skull. Leaving the Ritz Theater one night he was mugged, badly beaten and wound up in the hospital with a fractured skull.

After he recovered, he took it easy and didn't sing too often.

But he still announces on TV and radio, and makes children's records for Peter Pan. He'd like to be an MC, and he has definite ideas about the fine (?) art (?) of being a master of ceremonies. After all, what is an MC? he asks, and promptly answers—just an announcer who can do something else, like sing. Too many MC's today are right out of the mailroom—they can't do anything but talk, and not too well, at that.

Nelson Case, the super-salesman of TV, is looking for a house in the country. Desperately. The Case clan likes outdoor living, and the prospect of an apartment-bound summer isn't too appealing. Especially new, with the lilacs blooming, the seeds germinating and the Japanese beetles stirring in the subsoil.

"I hope we find one soon," he says, "or it'll be too late. It's too late to put peas in already, and almost too late for corn. It'd be tragic if we missed corn, too. Already missed peas."

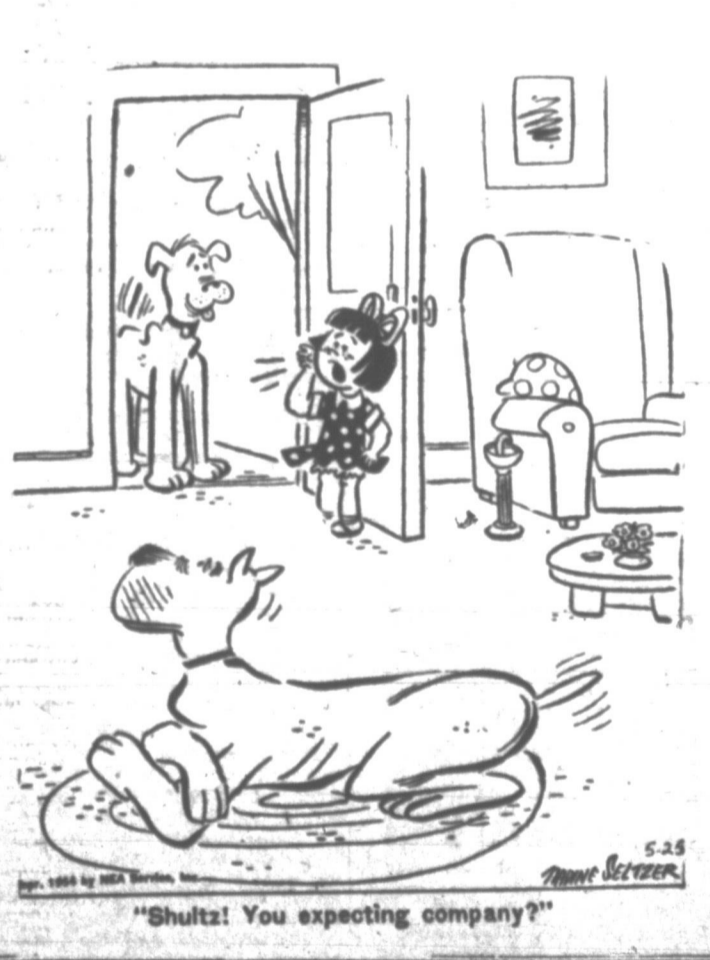

This was delivered in the quiet voice that he uses for selling beer and suchlike. Case feels strongly that TV selling should be a quiet attack.

"I don't believe in loud shouting," he says. "Did you ever go into a store and find a real salesman shouting at a customer? Well, why should they do it on TV? After all, we're salesmen, too."

"With my luck," he said, back to the house again, "as soon as we find one and move in, I'll get an early morning show.

"Who'd cultivate the corn?"

Bathroom Styling Grows

BAYONNE, N. J.,—UP—Bathroom beautification is booming, according to a survey of builders in the New York-New Jersey area. The check showed that in looking at prospective new homes, wives usually walk first to the kitchen, and then the bathroom.

The interest in bathroom beautification isn't limited to new homes, said Jack R. Dick, vice-president of National Vanity, which made the builder survey. He said that a questionnaire to small home owners showed that the "next big modernization project" they planned was in the bathroom. More than one-third said they wanted to add new bathrooms, powder rooms, stall showers, or vanity laboratories.

Dick reported that the sudden attention to this long-neglected room is the result of dissatisfaction with storage space and lack of color.

Bridal Clothes Are Designed This Year For Every Type Of Wedding Ceremony

By GALE DUGAS NEA Woman's Editor NEW YORK — (NEA) — No matter what the dress you pick for your wedding day (formal, informal, daytime dress or suit), you'll find designers this year have created beautiful wedding clothes for every type of wedding.

You may spend as little or as much as you like, have a big church wedding with everyone you know present or just a small affair attended by a few friends and relatives.

If you decide on the big wedding, it follows that your gown will be floor-length and formal. This year, your gown is most likely to be white with just a mist of color (as in filmy white over the palest of pinks) and the headpiece will look more like a tiny hat than it has in past seasons.

There are many beautiful, bouffant nylon tulle and nets, most of them lavish with lace, most of them worn over layers of wide and spreading petticoats. Laces specifically have importance, particularly in designs where there is some draping. Satin is most successful when it's used as a foundation for lace or tulle veiling.

For the very youthful bride (in her late teens) there is special attention in the way of gowns at the new mid-calf length. Otherwise, the liked length is the ballerina which is becoming nearly classic for the very young bride. They want skirts that are easily managed as they trip down the aisle.

The traditional train, therefore, is shrinking to become shorter and fuller, more bouffant. But even though the train doesn't really sweep the floor, it aids in creating the pretty picture every bride wants to present on her wedding day.

There is less straplessness this year, less of the veiled, bare-shoulder look. The strapless gown has been succeeded by a much more discreet and therefore prettier open neckline. These are lots of scoop necklines, or individual cuts for open necklines.

Empire lines are important to youthful bridal gowns, coming through best when they're done in supple tissue silks.

Whenever you can manage it, sit while doing housework. You'll conserve your energy if you sit while ironing, telephoning, preparing vegetables, planning marketing lists.

PATSY LESTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Lester, 717 N. Nelson, appeared in a piano recital Monday evening of students of Mrs. Ramon Wilson and Miss Kay Wilson. Her presentation was "Sur La Glace A Sweet Briar" by Crawford.

Two Piano Students Of Mrs. H. A. Yoder Featured In Recital

Johnlyn Mitchell, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, 928 N. Fatlaker; and La Vonna Andrus, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Andrus of Hopkins, presented a piano recital recently in the home of their teacher, Mrs. H. A. Yoder, 1215 Williston.

La Vonna presented "Prelude in C-Minor" by Bach; "Sonatina Opus 36, No. 4" by Clementi; "Concertino on Familiar Tunes" by Avery; with a second piano part by Mrs. Yoder; "Skaters Waltz" by Waidtfehl; "Squirrel Chatter" by LeMont; and "The Buzzing Bee" by Nevin.

Johnlyn's portion of the program included Prelude in D-Minor by Bach; "Kinder Concerto" by Mozart-Robyn; "Dance Caprice" by Greig; with Mrs. Yoder playing the second piano; "The Skylark" by Tschalkowski; "Cake Walk" by Mokrejs; and "The Butterfly" by La Valle.

The girls' closing number was a piano duet, "Camptown Races" by Foster-Blake.

In the recent National Piano auditions, both girls received international certificates and pins for the preparation of 20-piece programs. They were rated with "extraordinary ability" by the judges.

Both received gold medals and cash prizes for participation in the International Recording Festival, another project of the National Guild.

In the Amarillo Symphony contests in February, Johnlyn placed second and LaVonna third among 18 contestants from the Panhandle area in the competition of children up to 11 years of age.

Following the recital—refreshments of punch and cookies were served to approximately 40 invited guests. The table was centered with an arrangement of flowers in the form of a treble clef with notes of tinted foam. A bouquet of yellow gladioli served as decoration in the music room. Assisting Mrs. Yoder as hostess were Mrs. Andrus and Mrs. Mitchell.

Actress Maintains 20-Year-Olds Are More 'In-Betweens' Than Teenagers

By DEBBIE REYNOLDS Written for NEA Service Since the teens are generally accepted as the problem-filled years, I suppose I'm out of line when I say that I came through them with a minimum of strain, only to find the immediate post-teens presenting a carload of problems. And my friends have had the very same experience. When you're a teen-ager, you know pretty well where you stand. People today accept the antics and fads and the strongly expressed opinions as part of this stage of development. But just where does the 20-year-old fit in? People who have had a grasp on adulthood for some years aren't inclined to accept us into full membership immediately. We're lucky to get an associate membership. And to rate even that, I've discovered, takes thought and planning. I think the worst mistake is to try to become sophisticated overnight. It's impossible to be a frolicking teen-ager one day, and the next (your twentieth birthday), a worldly wise woman. If you attempt it, you'll fool no one, least of all yourself. Realizing you're not acting the part well, you'll probably lose much of the self-confidence you managed to build up during your teens.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend I was wondering if you could please help me settle an argument. This summer I plan on getting an Italian hairdo but my mother says it won't look good on me as I have a round face and wear glasses. Do you agree with her? Also do you think it would be easy to take care of? An answer will be deeply appreciated. Louise

RUTH MILLET

Unknowningly, she caught a man on the rebound. Not until after they were married did he tell her that he would never love anyone the way he loved a girl who had thrown him over to marry someone else. She wants to know what she ought to do. Young lady, be frank with your husband. He has certainly been frank to the point of shabbiness with you. Tell him you suspected he was marrying you to spite another girl, that you never would have married him. That you would have waited for a man who loved you, and you alone. And also tell him that if he wants to stay married he had better grow up enough to quit acting like the lovesick hero of a heart-and-flowers billboard, and realize that he has a wife he promised to love and cherish. Tell him you have no intention of being "punished" because another girl threw him over. That is straight talk, and may be there is some risk involved in using it. But certain you don't want to go through life playing second fiddle to some woman your husband wanted to marry but couldn't get. Better to have your say now and find out once and for all if your husband is willing to start acting like a husband instead of a love-sick school boy than to lose your self-respect little by little as you worry silently over what he has told you. No woman ever gains a man's love or respect by being willing to play second fiddle to anyone—even to a memory. So stand up for yourself. Speak your piece. If your husband loves you, he will wake up to the fact that he must start acting like a grown-up man, or face the danger of losing a wife who loves him. Now fashionable sheath will remain wrinkle free if it's lined with one of the newest wonder fabrics, peltan. It's washable; of course, so it's suitable for lining any hip-bugging dress.

Cook's Book

By GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Food and Markets Editor Chicken celeste sounds pretty special, don't you think? Well, it is. But we have no idea who Celeste is. However, we served this recipe to a friend from Dublin, Ireland, and she said it made her want to play the harp for us. She had a second helping instead. Chicken Celeste (Serves 3 or 4) One frying chicken (about 3 1/2 pounds), cut in pieces for serving; flour, salt and pepper, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 medium-sized onion, chopped; 1 cup sherry wine or vegetable stock; 1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, 1 cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, generous dash of paprika. Dust pieces of chicken with flour. Heat butter and oil in large heavy skillet or Dutch oven; brown pieces of chicken nicely on all sides. Add onion, wine or clear vegetable stock and monosodium glutamate to chicken; cover and simmer gently 45 minutes to 1 hour, or until chicken is tender, turning and basting chicken occasionally. Remove chicken to platter and keep warm. Add mayonnaise to juices in skillet and blend well. Use rotary beater, if necessary, to achieve perfect smoothness. If gravy seems a bit too thick, thin it with a little additional wine or stock. Add parsley and paprika; taste and add salt and pepper if needed. Pour gravy over chicken or pass separately. For a luncheon salad, this is good: Fruit Juice Salad Dressing (Makes 1/2 cup) Six whole cloves, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 1/4 cup orange juice, unstrained; 2 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Allow the whole cloves to stand in the lemon juice in a glass jar for 1 hour. Strain, add the unstrained; 2 teaspoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt to the lemon juice. Shake well until thoroughly blended. Store covered in the refrigerator and use as needed. Especially good on fruit salads.

Ugly Facial Hairs Removed By Needle

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor In the many letters from readers that come to my desk, one of the questions most often repeated concerns the removal of facial hair. This unwanted hair on the lip, chin and at the sides of the face constitutes a tremendous beauty problem to numerous women. Nearly every letter brings up the matter of electrolysis. Is it safe? Is it permanent? Does it hurt? Is it expensive? For expert help, I went to Garo Artinian of New York's famed Kree Institute. I underwent treatments myself in order to get the answers for you at first hand. Thus, I can tell you that in the hands of an expert operator, the removal of facial hair by electrolysis is not painful and is quite safe. The sensation can best be compared to that felt in tweezing your brows. But work should be confined to about fifteen minutes each visit. Hair removal by electrolysis is 75 per cent permanent. This means you may have to have a few additional hairs removed some months after treatment is completed. But then you're through for a lifetime. You may have hair on your legs or arms removed if you like. You may have your hairline or your brows changed. The charge for work done by a good operator is not low, but like many lasting things the results are fully worth the investment. This brings us to an important point, Garo Artinian, whose reputation in this field is very high, stresses that you be most careful in your choice of an operator. Ask to see the operator's credentials and certificates from a recognized school. Or have your doctor recommend a good operator. When buying your summer cottons, look for labels that guarantee the garments will not shrink or lose their color. Vat dyes stuffs are most resistant to fading in washing or sunlight. Lovely and fragile as it seems, silk generally takes very well to washing. However, white silk does tend to become crummy after several washings. Use a very cool iron on all silk fabrics.

Biggest danger in marriage!

If money problems or personality faults! Famous marriage counselor, Dr. Paul Popenoe, shows the astonishing way they are related in the case of a young doctor and his pretty wife. She wanted to keep up with the Joneses. He hit her hard with the "gimmies." Both had to learn the deeper reasons for their feelings toward money. Read how they found help in "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" in the June Ladies' Home Journal. Out today—on all newsstands!

ON THE ACT—Or if he's not actually in it, this young racing enthusiast in Rome is anxious to get in it. He's holding onto his proudest possession and looking hopefully to the starter, as if ready to give his toy auto a violent push to victory. The dad was watching the Mille Miglia race recently held in Italy.

BUSINESS AS USUAL—The acquisition of a pet burro as a gift isn't keeping Mari Blanchard from acting in front of the camera in Universal City, Calif. When Mari was on location recently in Arizona, the picture's technicians banded together and gave her the tiny animal as a present. It's too much of a baby to leave at home while she's working, so Mari solves that problem with a rope—and a few tugs of encouragement.

WANTED: A HANDOUT—Two elephants at the London Zoo are doing their best to coax some tidbits from these visiting schoolboys. The one in the foreground is stretching his trunk to the limit across the moat that separates it from the onlookers, while the other in the rear seems to have been given a morsel. The animals are standing perilously close to the moat's edge.

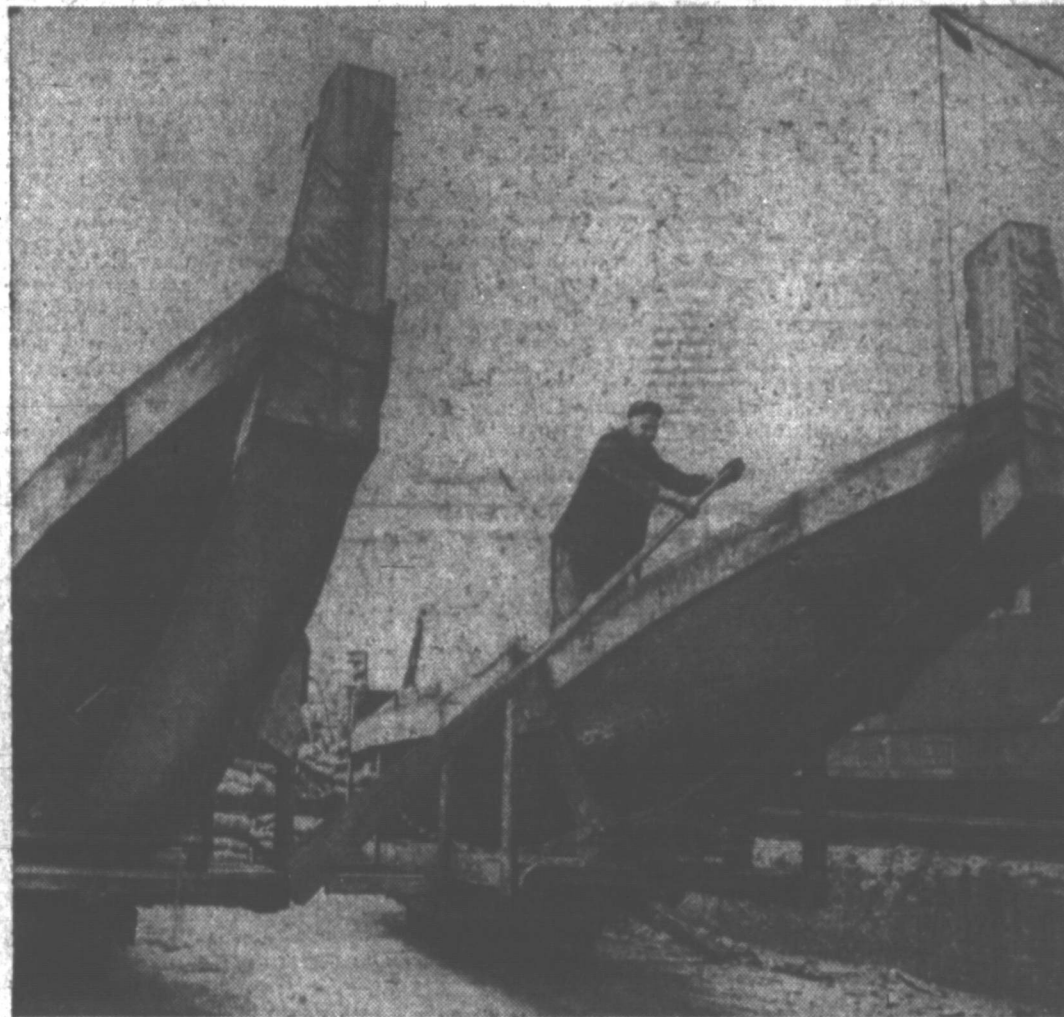

WRONG WAY!—But two-year-old Max Klinger has already discovered that for himself in a shoe shop in Chambersburg, Pa. He tried waiting on his mother while the regular salesmen were busy, but his first efforts were not quite satisfactory—as you can see. Somehow or other, Max is realizing something's wrong.

RESCUE IN BOMBAY—Two firemen and a dog descend a ladder past latticed balconies during a fire in a seven-story building in India. The frightened dog was taken from the third floor. None of the residents was injured, but one firefighter needed help.

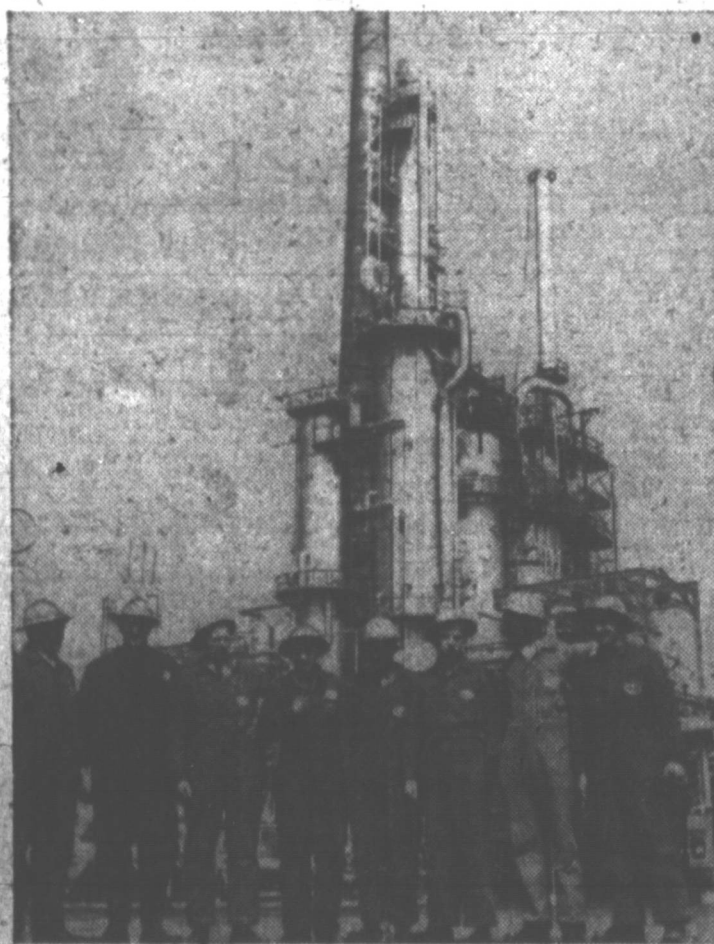

BESIEGED BY THE SEA—Whipping past the torpedo-shaped jetties, violent waves pound the shore at Brighton, England, as angry storm clouds hang on the horizon. Looking toward Hove, the camera catches the angry, hissing waves breaking before the seaside resort hostelrys on shore. This yearly spring occurrence always subsides in time for summer vacationists.

THE REAL THING—Jones E. Franklin, a longshoreman in Chicago, is making like a gondolier as he sees to the unloading of two gondolas imported from Venice. The boats, which weigh one ton each, were brought from Italy to be used by a night club on the Des Plaines River.

PRIVATE PARIS—A baby camel sees no reason to test the highly publicized theory that camels can go for eight days without food or drink; at least, not with mama close by. Papa camel at a zoo in Paris keeps a dignified watch as he rests in the background.

THIS IS WHAT IT TAKES—One supervisor and seven men operate Germany's biggest and most modern catalytic refining plant in Hamburg. More than 11,000 tons of steel and 80 miles of pipes were used in the construction of the plant, which took 16 months to build. Now it's rolling in high gear.

SHE'S BURNED UP—It seems that tiny Gloria Jean Grant was found wandering the dark streets of Los Angeles and was taken to a police station. She was very unhappy about being "arrested," but she did cheer up a lot the next morning when her parents showed up.

Battle On For Stalin Throne, Again

Malenkov Star Waning; Khrushchev On Way Up

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

GENEVA — (NEA) — Another falling-out among the top Red leaders is reported by satellite sources in Geneva.

Chief protagonists in the renewed struggle for Stalin's vacant throne are said to be Premier Georgi Malenkov and Nikita S. Khrushchev, ruthless 50-year-old boss of Russia's Communist Party.

Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, presently chaperoning Red China's Chou En-lai at the Geneva conference, is no longer a serious contender for the late dictator's mantle, the Red sources reveal.

Molotov still holds officially the No. 2 spot in the hierarchy of Soviet rulers. However, during the recent Berlin talks it became clear—as reported by this correspondent—that this humorless man whom Lenin once called the best filling clerk in Russia was waging a losing battle in the Kremlin's struggle for power.

Molotov's political star is now on the wane. In Russia and throughout the Red underworld he has been eclipsed by the younger, tougher Khrushchev.

Nikita Khrushchev being groomed by the Russifiers—the Russia-firsters—in the party and the Red Army to replace the younger and more internationalist-minded Malenkov as boss of the Soviet empire?

Enough facts are now known to permit an assessment of Khrushchev's bid for power.

The former shepherd from Kalinovka has trump cards in his ruthless hands which Malenkov seems to lack. Khrushchev's political career, in many respects, parallels that of Stalin.

His rise in the party ranks, though not spectacular, has been steady. Also, like Stalin, Khrushchev is above all a narrow-minded and ruthless party wheelhorse who knows intimately the working of the Communist machine.

As party chief Khrushchev wields vast patronage powers—powers employed effectively by Stalin in his bloody climb to absolute power. He is also reported to have the backing of the Red Army marshals and generals.

According to the satellite sources, Khrushchev was the leader of the group of Russifiers that asked for the head of the non-Russian, the Georgian Lavrenti Beria, former all-powerful chief of the secret police. Another leader of the group was Marshal Gergory Zhukov.

The actual coup which led to Beria's execution was carried out by General Moskalenko, military commander of Moscow and Khrushchev's former henchman in the Ukraine.

Faction fights behind the Iron Curtain are deadly business. It would be unwise to forecast the final outcome. But one thing is now abundantly clear: The dramatic struggle which followed Stalin's death is still unfinished in the Kremlin.

Khrushchev's star has been rising in recent weeks. In the race for his throne left vacant by the dead dictator he must be included among the favorites.

Flyer Has Close Call

PARIS, Tex., May 25 — UP — W. Hokes, 30, Torrance, Calif., made a scheduled stop at Paris Monday night on his small plane across country flight to North Carolina.

But Hokes' landing place wasn't on his air route map. He had planned to stop at Cox Field, but it got dark before he reached this East Texas city. He circled over Paris for 45 minutes, and finally made a safe landing on the baseball diamond of a boiler factory, which was lighted for a night game.

Police, Civil Air Patrol members, workers at the Babcock-Wilcox factory lined their cars about the field, shining their headlights in to provide more light, when they realized what Hokes would try to do.

Hokes climbed out of his plane, which wasn't equipped with landing lights or much navigational equipment, and said he had been secretly "badly frightened." He estimated he had only 10 minutes of fuel left. But the Californian said he and his pet Collie would resume their flight Tuesday.

Texas Girl Charged With Kidnaping Child

RIVERSIDE, Calif., May 25 — UP — Catherine Cassiano, 20-year-old baby sitter from El Paso, was held Tuesday on federal charges of kidnaping a two-year-old girl in Texas and bringing her here.

U.S. Commissioner Alva D. McGuire Monday ordered the baby sitter held in lieu of $500 bond on mother complex while baby sitting for the child's parents — Mr. and Maria Gonzales, will be held until the arrival of relatives.

Authorities traced Miss Cassiano to Ripley, near Blythe, Calif., through a letter she wrote friends in El Paso saying she was working on a ranch as a hired hand.

FBI agents, who developed the suspect, said she had seized a mother complex while baby sitting for the child's parents — Mr. and Maria Gonzales, will be held until the arrival of relatives.

The child was kidnaped last Tuesday.

LOS ANGELES, May 24 — UP — A bop-talking holdup man flashed a gun at theater cashier Jo Ann McCollum and said, "Baby, I want all your cool gold."

Government Officials Are Rewriting Webster

By HERMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, May 25 — UP — What's new around Washington: Rep. J. Arthur Younger, a California Republican, complains that some government officials are rewriting Webster. Here are some of the "new definitions" he listed in a recent letter to his constituents: "Under consideration" — never heard of it. "To expedite" — to compound and confound chaos with commotion. "Reliable source" — someone who knows less than we do. "In due course" — never.

It's no secret that Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower's favorite flower is the lilac. It's no secret now, either, that the first lady couldn't find a single lilac bush around the White House. She told Rep. Harold C. Ostertag about it when he dropped by for a chat. So the New York Republican and his wife had some lilac blossoms flown in and took them to her. The first lady buried her face in the fragrant bouquet and said: "Wonderful! Just wonderful!"

There was quite a stir among the children of ambassadors along embassy row when a dog bit a child.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin of Clearwater, Fla., first vice president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was in town to testify before the House Commerce committee. The group was considering a bill to ban liquor advertising. Finally Chairman Charles A. Wolverton of New Jersey called Mrs. Colvin's name and commented: "There is nothing more appropriate than to hear from a representative of the WCTU from Clearwater." But Mrs. Colvin didn't hear him. She had gotten weary of waiting and had left.

Pittsburgh Post Quits Publication

PITTSBURGH, May 25 — UP — The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette suspended publication Tuesday because of a union jurisdictional dispute.

A spokesman for the Morning Daily said early Tuesday that publication was halted after a meeting between two FAL unions failed to reconcile their differences over distribution rights.

A Post-Gazette statement issued Monday night said: "Distribution of the Post-Gazette was stopped tonight by a union jurisdictional dispute between the two unions responsible for the seven-week shutdown of all three Pittsburgh daily newspapers in 1950."

"The dispute centers on the question of which union shall have full jurisdiction over the loading of delivery trucks."

Oilers Open Series With G-Sox Tonite

With their entire series with the Clovis Pioneers washed out, the Pampa Oilers are now training their sights on the Amarillo Gold Sox who are slated to move into Oiler Park tonight.

Rain postponed the two scheduled games with Clovis here Sunday and Monday. The two clubs were going to try to make up Sunday's postponement with a doubleheader last night but Old Man Weather again stepped in to halt the proceedings.

The two postponements will necessitate two doubleheaders with the Pioneers later in the season.

Prospects weren't too bright this morning for the Oilers playing tonight. It's going to take a lot of sunshine to dry the diamond at Oiler Park enough to warrant activity and as late as noon today the skies were still heavily overcast.

At any rate, the game will not likely be called off until late this afternoon if it should happen to be postponed.

Rain and wet grounds postponed three of four scheduled games in the West Texas - New Mexico League Monday night.

Two home runs by Frosty Kennedy and clutch pitching by Len Ruyle gave Amarillo a 6 to 4 win over Plainview in the only game played. Ruyle allowed but eight hits, one a two-run home run by Plainview rookie Lloyd Forsyth.

In the ninth, he loaded the bases but fanned manager Jackie Sullivan to end the game, played in near 50 degree weather before 500 fans at Plainview.

Three scheduled doubleheaders were postponed - Albuquerque at Abilene, Borger at Lubbock and Clovis at Pampa.

Softball Slate Off Tonite Due To Wet Ground

All games in the Industrial Softball League scheduled tonight have been postponed, M. E. (Buster) West, league director, announced this morning.

Three games were to have been played tonight. Two games were scheduled last night but were postponed because of rain and wet grounds. Scheduled to play last night were Southwestern Bell Telephone against Pampa News and Skelly against Phillips Oil.

The games that were scheduled tonight were Phillips vs. Celanese; Northern Natural Gas vs. Skelly; and Fanhandle Packing vs. Cabot.

"It looks like our entire schedule this week will have to be postponed," West said this morning. "All fields are underwater and it'll take two or three days of sunshine to dry them out."

Wednesday is an open date in the league and only one game is slated for Thursday. The Thursday game is an exhibition affair between Skelly and the Iowa Colored Softball team.

Skelly officials are hoping their diamond will be dry enough to play on Thursday night since the Colored Giants can't be held over as they have other commitments.

Question: In the last of the ninth, the home team gets a man on base with one out. A pinch runner is substituted. The batter pops to third base. The fielder, noting the fast runner on first, decides to drop the ball intentionally, then throw to second for the force. He does so, and then whips the ball to third base. Where the runner is tagged out. The umpire calls a double play. Why?

Answer: The moment the third baseman intentionally dropped the fly, the batter was out and the runner was not obliged to run. He did, was tagged out and it was a twin killing. The umpire, however, must rule on whether the drop was intentional or not.

John Andre, Shreveport pitcher, won his seventh game against the Oilers in the eighth inning. He pitched a three-run game, with one homer, by Frank Keller in the sixth inning with one on, Shreveport got only four hits off Charley Locke and Mel Held, who relieved in the eighth, while the Oilers got five off Andre.

Dash Men To Hoq Spotlight In NAIA Track Meet

ABILENE, Tex., May 25 -UP-

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) track and field meet here June 4-5 should be featured by at least a half-dozen hot running events if the entries run like they have in past events.

The 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, the 880-yard run and the mile have drawn particularly outstanding runners. Ninety entries have been received thus far from 20 different small colleges throughout the nation.

For instance, five sprinters have equalled 9.6 in the 100-yard dash. They include defending champion Theodosius Bush of Texas Southern; Willie Gaines of College of Emporia, Kan.; Ralph Aldridge of Texas Southern; Bruce Lenoir of Louisiana Tech; and Boyd Dollar of North Texas State.

Dean Renfro of North Texas and Robert Washington of Texas College are but a step behind with 9.7s to their credit.

Washington heads the 220-yard dashers with a 21.1 clocking. Bush, the defending champion in this event also, has been timed at 21.4. Sandwiched between them is Don McConaughy of Arkansas State with a 21.2.

George Adrian and Don Conder, both of Abilene Christian, have done the furlong in 21.5 along with North Texas' Conder.

Adrian, who won the 440-yard dash here a year ago, is back but his best time this year of 48.8 has been equalled by Langston's Washington and is well below his 1933 winning time of 47.8.

Former National AAU champion Leonard Lepp of Abilene Christian is the top 880-yard runner with a 1:52.8 to his credit, but the Korea veteran can expect some competition from North Texas' Paul Patterson, who has run it in 1:53.5.

OUI! C'EST LA VIE! - It's the life, all right, for this trio of French boxers, managed by Jean Bretteau, standing, as they celebrate triple victories in New York. At left, is Hoacine Khalil, who beat featherweight champ Sandy Saddler in a 10-round decision bout. At right is Jacques Royer, who upset Ralph "Tiger" Jones, No. 3 middleweight. Three major upsets in the boxing world, all in eight days, by the battling French. (NEA)

Sluggish Harry Heslet, whose .243 average had dropped him to eighth place in the Shreveport batting order, slammed a three-run home run in the first inning that stood up for a 3 to 2 Sport win over league - leading San Antonio Monday night.

Heslet won the Texas League home run championship both in 1952, with San Antonio where he hit 31, and last year, where he hit 41 with Shreveport. But the veteran outfielder has been slow getting started this year and had only six homers according to latest averages.

Only one other game was played Monday night - Beaumont edging Houston, 4 to 3, on Jim Falcinelli's ninth-inning single that drove in Ev Hall with the winning run. Oklahoma City at Tulsa is postponed because of rain and Fort Worth and Dallas were unscheduled.

John Andre, Shreveport pitcher, won his seventh game against the Oilers in the eighth inning. Waco Nips Austin For 8th Straight Win; Keeps Lead

By UNITED PRESS

The pace-setting Waco Pirates remained in front of the pack in the Big State League by a full game by racking up their eighth straight victory with a 5 to 4 win over Austin Monday night.

Second-place Tyler shut out Temple 6 to 0. Bryan overwhelmed Corpus Christi 10 to 2 and Galveston outscored Harlingen 10 to 8 in other games.

Waco put together back-to-back homers by Jack Falls and Al Grunwald in the third inning for four of their runs, and winning pitcher Pete Nicolis scored the winning run personally in the sixth. It was the fifth straight loss by Austin, and the fourth setback in a row by a lone run.

Gale Prings tossed a five-hitter in blanking Temple 6 to 0, as his Tyler mates lost no time in the scoring department, getting a pair in the first that proved enough for the victory.

Two costly Corpus Christi errors paved the way for Bryan tallies in the fourth and sixth innings as the Indians scored nine of their runs in those two frames.

A ninth-inning collision between Harlingen's Keith Carpenter and Whitt Cap second baseman - manager Chase Riddis injured both men in the 10 to 8 Galveston victory. Riddis was taken to a local hospital for examination, but the extent of his injury was not immediately known.

Rookie Pitchers Sparkle In Majors

By CARL LUNDQUIST

United Press Sports Writer

What a year this is for rookie pitchers making their first big league starts.

Lefty Jim Davis, a 25-year-old hurler with a good mastery of knucklers and screwballs made his first big league start a winning one for the Cubs Monday night when he pitched a seven-hit 6 to 2 victory over the Cardinals, holding the mighty Stan Musial hitless in four times at bat.

Davis thus became the ninth rookie hurler to make his first big league starting assignment a winner this season. On Sunday Ray Cronin of Milwaukee pitched a 10-inning five-hitter to beat the Cubs while last Friday night Frank Sullivan of the Red Sox topped the world champion Yankees with a seven-hitter.

Others Came Through

Others who came through with victories in their first starts were Art Fowler of Cincinnati with a four-hitter against Chicago, Paul Kerner of the Phillies who beat the Cardinals with an eight-hitter, Truman Clevenger of the Red Sox who needed relief help but still beat Washington 7 to 5, and three youngsters from Pittsburgh. They were George O'Donnell with an eight-hitter over the Giants, Bob Purkey with a nine-hitter over the Cardinals, and Jake Thies with a four-hitter against the Cubs.

Davis won his game in the midst of a rhabarby that prompted Card Manager Eddie Stanky to protest the outcome. The protest was lodged on conflicting umpire calls one by Wally Moon, Paul Kerner in the fifth. After four straight singles by Ray Jablonski, Tom Alton, Rip Repulski and Del Rice had produced one run and given Davis his only difficulty, Moon hit a two-run homer in the sixth. It was ruled eventually, caught the ball, but not until a 15-minute delay had ensued. Umpire Hal Dickson ruled it a trapped ball and un-

Tom Gorman called it a fair catch. Joe Garagiola hit a homer and single to drive in two Chicago runs.

Three Straight for Giants

Davis struck out four and had trouble only with Repulski who collected three of the seven St. Louis singles.

The Giants made it three victories in a row at Philadelphia with a 5 to 4 victory while the Pirates after losing four straight to the Dodgers finally beat them 5 to 2 with a four-hitter by Max Surkont.

There were no other National League games scheduled. In the only American League game, the Yankees defeated the Athletics 7 to 3 on rookie Bob Grim's three-hitter.

Monday's star - Rookie Jim Davis, the Cub, who made his first big league start a winning one with a seven-hit 6 to 2 victory over the Cardinals.

Colonial Loses Boros, Heafner

FORT WORTH, May 25 -UP-

Former U. S. Open champion Julius Boros and Clayton Heafner have withdrawn from this week's $25,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament because of physical difficulties.

Tournament chairman E. M. Bingham announced their replacements as Leo Biagetti of Sandusky, Ohio, and Pete Fleming of St. Andrews, Ill., both in their third year as professionals.

Boros, winner of the recent Ardmore, Okla., tournament, told tournament officials by long distance telephone that an abscessed tooth and dental work would prevent him from taking part. Heafner, who won the Colonial in 1948, said he was bothered with a recurrence of an old hand injury.

My Greatest Shot

By BOB TOSKI

I had to birdie the last hole to win the Havana Open the past winter.

The 18th fairway of the Havana Country Club course is tight. Guarding against going out of bounds on the left, in three rounds I pushed my drive to the right of the fairway. The ball landed practically in the same place each time. There wasn't more than 15 yards difference.

So when I was there again in the final round, I knew the shot by heart, said to myself that I hit it should be easy. And I hit the green on each occasion.

I was about 160 yards from the hole. The shot was blocked by a row of royal palm trees. I was too close to hook the ball through and under the palms.

So I elected to face the ball between the first two trees, where I had the most room. The space grew thinner as the row of trees went along.

I opened the club face of a 4 iron so as to fade and put the ball 18 inches from the hole for an uphill putt.

I sank the putt and had the birds that beat Walter Burkeme and Pete Cooper.

That particular iron shot was my greatest.

NEXT: Lloyd Mangrum.

RICH CARBURETOR ROBS MOTORIST Car owners who are wasting money and not getting proper gas mileage due to over-rich mixtures will be pleased to learn of a Wisconsin inventor who has developed a way clever unit that helps save gasoline by "vacu-mating" it. It is automatic and operates on the supercharge principle. Easily installed in a few minutes. Fits all cars, trucks and tractors. The manufacturer, the Vacu-matic Carburetor Co., 7617 70th W. State St., Wauwatosa, Wis., are offering a Vacu-matic to anyone who will install it on his car and help introduce it to others. They will gladly send full free particulars if you write them or send your name and address to a post card today.

which Second Murchison and Richardson purchased for the occasion from the Chesapeake and Ohio, might be disqualified. The New York Central, you see, doesn't think they should be voted, and this has developed into another match—a legal one.

Unseen in Young's corner will be the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, his frequent Newport and Palm Beach house guests.

The deciding factor will be the votes of the 40,000 little stockholders, who hold the big bulk of the 5,457,410 outstanding shares. The big question is who they're going to root for. Many a fighter has been rooted in. Many a fight judge and referee has been away by the roar of the crowd.

Like belligerent statements from opposing training camps, there has been a war of words to woo the proxy votes. It's been conducted in letters from both sides to stockholders, full page newspaper ads touting conflicting claims.

Challenger Young claims that Champ White has grown soft in the hands of blue-blooded handlers. The titleholder contends that the challenger is a built-up stumblumbum who never got out of the club fighter class. Picking this one, don't fail to take into consideration White's stellar performances in his engagements with the Erie, Virginia and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. This fellow may be on the losing side, but he also has demonstrated that he is a stayer.

Young will counter with about 1,000,000. He has good men in his old fields. Clint Murchison and Sid Richardson. The hitch here is that 800,000 shares in Young's corner, which he has about 1,000,000.

Top person in the regional contest will go to Washington, D. C., for the national "Road-e-o," scheduled Aug. 10-14. Plans are presently underway for the two top winners in the Dalhart meet to make the Washington trip, but nothing definitely has been decided, Hopkins pointed out.

Texas oil men are turning rapidly to secondary recovery methods to get more oil out of old fields, but the process could be speeded up if the Texas Railroad Commission would provide more encouragement, the Oil and Gas Journal said today in its special Texas issue.

There are more than 500 water flood or gas injection projects in operation in Texas and more than 100 additional ones getting started, and more than half of these have originated during the past two years, the Journal says, remarking that "in spite of the high rate of wildcatting in virgin territory, Texas is turning to her 'second crop' of oil, realizing that perhaps her greatest petroleum wealth lies in greater recovery from fields already discovered."

Injection of water or gas to increase the ultimate recovery of oil requires the participation of all operators in the field. Some states have compulsory unitization laws, but since this is a controversial issue in Texas the Journal said:

Mussolini Legions Invaded Ethiopia Twenty Years Ago

By CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Foreign Analyst Just 20 years ago Benito Mussolini started provoking in the Ogaden Desert the frontier incidents which led to the Fascist invasion of Ethiopia.

Today, while the bones of Mussolini moldered in their dishonor, the ruler whose country he overruled arrived in the United States as an honored guest. The Emperor Haile Selassie I, conquering lion of the tribe of Judah, king of kings, elect of God, will spend three days in Washington as the guest of President Eisenhower. Then he will tour the United States, Mexico and Canada.

Army-McCarthy Proceedings Bugged By Odd Trial Setup

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — For the U.S. government in particular, and the American people in general, to put up with the disgraceful Army-McCarthy proceedings much longer will require a national fortitude of the highest order.

This is a real test of democracy. If it can take this punishment, it can survive anything the world has to offer — including Russian H-bombs.

This situation has developed from the utterly fantastic conditions under which this probe was set up. There never was a "trial" as the Committee counsel Ray M. Jenkins sometimes calls it — like this Get the picture?

It's An Ordeal For Him...

Hank Feels Like A Criminal When Applying For A Passport

By HENRY McLEMORE

Just as some people are deathly afraid of lightning, snakes, and mothers-in-law, I am deathly afraid of passport offices.

As far as I know I am an American citizen in fairly good standing, but let me walk into a passport office and my brow gets clammy, my knees shake, and I talk in an apologetic whisper.

I am sure in my heart that the officials are going to grab my hand, declare me to be a Lithuanian or a Rutenian, or something else, and hustle me out the back door for deportation.

This has been going on ever since I got my first passport, and it happened again when Mary and I went to have our passports renewed for a trip to Australia on Qantas Empire Airways' inaugural flight to Sydney.

The moment I stepped into the Federal Building I became a middle-aged jellyfish. The nearer I got to the door marked "Passports," the more I wanted to run and hide under an assumed name, slipping out only in the dead of night for "I'd like to get my passport renewed," and I must have said it so low that the man caused me to jump a foot when he barked, "Speak up! I can't hear you!"

He took my passport and then the part of the ordeal that always nearly kills me took place. He started thumbing through it, and I could tell when he came to the page describing the bearer.

I knew what it said. Height: 5 feet 8 1/2 inches. Hair: red. Eyes: green. Distinguishing marks: none. But I knew I had changed a bit since that description was entered. My hair isn't quite as red and there isn't as much of it. My eyes are a bit more watery, and for some reason I believe I have grown an inch or two.

And distinguishing marks. Since you're hiding from someone, "scar on my forehead. And there is a chunk out of the bridge of my nose where I ran into the end of a swimming pool."

The official looked from the passport to me, with the searching eyes of a hawk. I melted. I shut my eyes and waited for him to say: "Where did you steal this passport? You aren't you. You are a fake. You don't look like your-"

If he had said that I swear I would have admitted that I wasn't myself; that I had stolen it, and was ready to pay the penalty.

But he didn't say that. He stamped it, told me to have a nice trip, and called, "Next!"

I stumbled out into the street, happy but groggy.

To Help Needy Boxers... NEW YORK, May 24 — UP—The newly organized American Veteran Boxers Association, Inc., will begin work this week to help needy ex-fighters, Sammy Aaronson, president of the group, announced Monday. All active American and Canadian fighters will be asked to contribute one per cent of their purses to the organization.

Coogan Sidelined... NEW ORLEANS, May 24 — UP—Dale Coogan, former Pittsburgh Pirates first baseman, now with New Orleans in the Southern Association, is expected to be sidelined "for two or three days" after being struck in the face by a pitch in a game against Nashville Saturday. Coogan developed "quite a shiner," but X-rays revealed no broken bones.
