Pampa police said the shooting is still under investigation.

Nor is there anything discreet about the demonstrations by the supporters of the outlawed union.

'There will be a Solidarity demonstration tonight at the Poniatowski bridge when the crowd returns from the pope's Mass at the stadium," a young priest told American

"How do you know?" "Oh," the priest said, "it was announced all day on the Solidarity radio and in the Solidarity news

"But don't the police listen in on the radio?'

"Of course," agreed the grinning priest. "They are invited too. Suddenly the papal motorcade appeared and the crowd's reaction had become almost ritual: first cheers and clapping for the man in the white

Pampa preacher to get day in court

Los Angeles's Jerry West was for many years an NBA all star guard who scored thousands of points for the Lakers -Pampa's Jerry West is a Baptist preacher who believes he's scoring points for Jesus and the Freedom of Religion by keeping state inspectors out of his Christian school

West's church and school, the Pampa Baptist Temple and Pampa Christian Academy, will once again battle the state over licensing July 18 in Pampa's 223rd District Court. Pampa District Judge Don Cain set the date for lawyers to battle out what the parties see as an issue of Freedom of Religion vs state licensing of day care centers.

West says his school and day care center, the Christian Academy, is an extension of his ministry and church, the Pampa Baptist Temple

Before the state first took West to court in October of 1981. the preacher sent his state license to operate a day care center back to the Department of Human Resources. West said the state has no business inspecting or licensing his school. He said any government intrusion into his school's operation violates his First Amendment rights.

The school and day care center admits children from The DHR says West must submit to inspection and licensing to operate the center. The attorney general, on behalf of the DHR, wants to inspect and license or shut down West's school and nursery.

Some parents have complained their children were beaten while in West's care at the Christian Academy West admits that, based on Bible beliefs, he and the staff administer corporal punishment, but denies he abuses the West is a follower and admirer of the late Rev. Lester Roloff. Roloff was scheduled to appear the last time West and the state were in court here in May last year. Roloff, however, left town without testifying The state's action to close down West's school has been delayed time and again. The two parties were in court for about a week last May, but the hearing was delayed to due an inability to schedule witnesses. The case was reset for Aug. 16, 1982, but was delayed then at the request of one of West's lawyers on account of illness. Again the case was reset for January 14, this year, and it was delayed again, this time at the request of the attorney general's office. C. Ed Davis, who previously handled the case for the state, said the office needed time due to reorganization under newly - elected Attorney General Jim Mattox. Davis since took a job with the secretary of state. But Cain said Davis will again handle the case next month as a special attorney general. The Baptist Temple hearing will start at 10 a.m.

Pope praises workers in bold Poland speech

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP) - To the cheers of a million Poles, Pope John Paul II on Saturday hailed the workers' uprising that gave birth to the Solidarity labor movement, saying it touched the "hearts and consciences" of people around the world

The pope's remarks, made soon after his arrival at the famed Jasna Gora monastery, were his strongest words of support for the banned Solidarity union since he returned to his native land Thursday

The pontiff, whose homecoming has touched off pro-Solidarity demonstrations wherever he has gone. was expected to meet here Sunday with Lech Walesa, head of the outlawed consciences," John Paul said, referring to the August 1980 strikes that spawned the Soviet bloc's first independent workers' union He called the commitment of his countrymen "a testimony which amazed the whole world, when the Polish worker stood up for himself with the gospel in his hand and a prayer on

In his address the pope also spoke emotionally about the monastery's Black Madonna, a symbol of independence throughout Poland. He said the holy icon's eyes were

'tear-filled and sad Two Solidarity banners waved over the crowd, with a banner reading 'Gdansk shipyard workers with the shipyards The pontiff had flown to this southern town from another shrine in the Warsaw area, where he celebrated Mass with 300,000 people in a wheat field, a service that ended with a sea of hands raised in "V-for-Victory" salutes, a symbol adopted by Solidarity

At that Mass, the pontiff blessed members of Rural Solidarity, a banned group that is the farmers' counterpartof the labor union

The Mass was held at the Niepokalanow monastery founded by Maximilian Kolbe, a priest who died at the Auschwitz Nazi death camp in 1941 after volunteering to take the place of a fellow Pole condemned to death

When lightning struck

'Everything was lit up in red'

Lightning struck the Finney's house about 3 a.m. Friday and then things started going wrong. Firetrucks and sheriff's cars answering the call for help' never reached Jerry Finney's home, which is about six and a quarter miles southwest of Pampa

Not only did they get stuck in the mud about five miles away, they were sent in the wrong direction by the Pampa Police Department The whole nightmare - comedy started in the middle of the night when Kim Finney, unable to sleep because of the storm, heard a loud crash, was enveloped in a reddish light, and felt her house shake. "I heard a loud crash and saw red — everything was lit up in red — and felt the house shake," 20 - year - old Kim said. "Jerry thought someone was trying to break in, but when we looked out the (bedroom) window, sparks were flying off the (outside of the) house," she said.

They jumped out of bed and ran for the front door a few feet away, but could not get out because, "flames were (coming from) around the door and it was too hot to touch,

When they turned around toward the kitchen to go out the back door, that way was blocked, too.

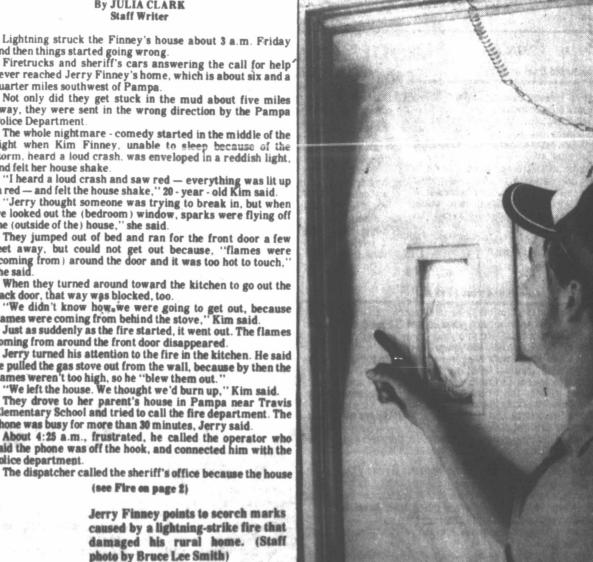

"We didn't know how we were going to get out, because flames were coming from behind the stove," Kim said. Just as suddenly as the fire started, it went out. The flames coming from around the front door disappeared. Jerry turned his attention to the fire in the kitchen. He said he pulled the gas stove out from the wall, because by then the flames weren't too high, so he ''blew them out.''

''We left the house. We thought we'd burn up,'' Kim said. They drove to her parent's house in Pampa near Travis Elementary School and tried to call the fire department. The phone was busy for more than 30 minutes, Jerry said. About 4:25 a.m., frustrated, he called the operator who said the phone was off the hook, and connected him with the

They really tore up the floor at the Pampa Mall Saturday afternoon as the first annual Diaper Derby was held. There were 126 children ranging in age from six months to four years competing in six categories. There was a bit of confusion occasionally on the starting line when some racers couldn't seem to get their engines started. A few of the racers tired halfway through the course and had to stop for a rest, much to the consternation of their parents. Some tired before the race and just sat down when the starting whistle blew.

One racer was almost at the finish line before most of the competition was halfway down the course. Unfortunately that is where he stayed, one foot from the finish line, while one of his competitors roared across.

The course was complicated. For the 4x4 class, crawlers six months and older, it consisted of all the racers being placed in the center of a large circle. The racer that reached the edge of the circle first won. All other classes raced in a straight eight-lane course with different lengths for the various

Arrested nun said she was just saving the Mafia boss's soul

NAPLES, Italy (AP) - A Roman Catholic nun arrested in a massive crackdown against organized crime and accused of being a courier for Italy's most powerful gangster said she wanted to save the soul of the gang boss, press reports said

A priest, several local politicians, suspected gangsters and a popular television quiz show host were among 425 people arrested in what newspapers called "Black Friday" for the Camorra, the Neapolitan version of the Sicilian Mafia.

According to some news reports, the priest was the jailhouse confessor to the gang boss, Raffaele Cutolo, and also met with Mehmet Ali Agca, the jailed Turkish terrorist who tried to kill Pope John Paul II on May 13, 1981

About 10,000 paramilitary police officers made the arrests in 33 cities and officials said another 75 people were still sought, among them Cutolo's 22-year-old wife, Immacolata. As she clutched a Bible to her chest, 56-year-old Sister Aldina Murelli was arrested in Ercolano near Naples at the convent of the Daughters of Charity of Jesus' Precious

"You will not thwart my faith," the news agency ANSA quoted her as saying. "I want to save everybody, especially Sister Aldina is suspected of carrying messages between

MX missile test is successful

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - The controversial MX missile, promoted as the new workhorse in America's nuclear arsenal, soared to a "magnificent" 4,700-mile maiden flight over the Pacific despite attempts by peace activists to stop the test.

The unarmed missile, standing 71 feet high and weighing 195,000 pounds, roared aloft over the California coast at 7:10 p.m. Friday and 30 minutes later dropped six dummy warheads near Kwajalein Atoll.

Air Force officials said the missile performed "exactly" as expected, although the test was postponed for several hours because of a balky computer and bad weather "We feel like we had a magnificent first launch," Brig.

Gen. Aloysius Casey, MX program manager, said following the flight to the South Pacific. Twenty more tests of the MX, which was designed to carry 10 nuclear warheads, were planned before deployment in 1986, with the initial flights to be above-ground launches followed by flights from underground silos. "We have the second missile here" although it's not yet assembled, Casey said. "We're ready for the second shot.

Casey said the original plans had called for a test launch roughly every 90 days and initial indications were that schedule could be met. He added, however, that no date has been set for the second test flight and it will be classified. The Reagan administration, claiming America's 1,000 Minuteman missiles are vulnerable to increasingly accurate

Soviet missiles, has proposed placing 100 MX missiles in existing Minuteman silos in Wyoming and Nebraska. Some opponents argue the new missile system aggravates superpower tension and the arms race and might be interpreted as the instrument of an American first-strike strategy. Others contend the MX system, with $4.5 billion spent so far, would be just as vulnerable as the existing Minuteman force. The Air Force had hoped to start the series of test launches in January. But Congress, as part of a fierce debate over how the missiles should be based, halted testing until the administration offered a new deployment plan A presidential commission in April proposed basing the 100 missiles in existing Minuteman silos while a smaller, single-warhead missile is developed during the next decade. Reagan accepted the proposal, and Congress approved the MX testing, but the president still faces a congressional fight

Mystery man is sought for the Ramada Inn fire

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Fire investigators say they are seeking a 'mystery man' who might help their probe into the causes of last Tuesday's five-alarm blaze at a Fort Worth motel which killed five people and injured 34

The man, investigators said, was one of three people who used fire extinguishers to try to put out the fire after it started in a pile of rolled carpeting stacked in a hallway of the Ramada Inn Central

Ramada chief of security Damon Gregory said that a motel guard on Friday took a polygraph test administered by agents of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and

"What we're looking for is motive, opportunity and things like that," said Jimmy Wooten, resident agent in charge of the Fort Worth ATF office, though he would not comment specifically on the polygraph

Gregory said the guard took the tes's said. because he had nothing to hide. He said the guard had worked for the motel for three from

District Fire Chief Jim Noah said Friday that investigators were still considering arson a possible cause of the blaze after ruling out a theory that a dropped cigarette ignited the carpeting.

'We're not ready to declare arson and we're not ready to say it's not arson," said Noah. "We're in the middle of the investigation and we're going to maintain a no comment stance.

Noah has said that tests of the carpeting and other fire debris are expected to be completed on Monday.

Meanwhile, the investigation centered on a search for the "mystery man" who disappeared as the fire blazed into a five-alarm inferno.

Three extinguishers were used to fight the fire, and officials said they know who used two of them. But investigators are not sure where the third extinguisher came from They want to know who used it, said Lt. Bob Frazier, a Fort Worth arson investigator.

The other two extinguishers were taken from another wing of the motel and used by a motel guest and a security guard, Frazier

Fire officials learned of the mystery man from hotel guest Richard Crain, who said he saw a man trying to douse flames leaping from the piles of rolled-up carpets.

Crain said the man was gone when he returned with the security guard and more

Lawmakers pack to leave for special session Wednesday

By GARTH JONES

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas lawmakers packed Sunday for a return trip to Austin Wednesday as Gov Mark White finished his review of their work in the 140-day regular session that ended May 30.

Quick action on control of the cattle disease brucellosis and extension of the life of the Texas Employment Commission were the two tasks White gave legislators Friday in calling the special session

"I've been assured we can accomplish these two goals in a rather brief period of time and set to rest the concerns that many ranchers have had over what would become of their cattle industry," White

"Also the many people who work for the Texas Employment Commission ... and the people who receive benefits from that commission will be assured of a continuity of seevice." he

Meanwhile, White will be working late Sunday signing

Spokesmen for the Texas State Teachers Association were "disappointed" that White did not include teachers pay raises in the session call but said they had his promises that the issue would eventually be addressed by lawmakers.

"Governor White personally assured me that his commitment to raising teacher salaries in Texas remains as strong as ever and gave his guarantee that the Legislature will address the pay raise issue at a later time," said Barbara O'Neal. TSTA president.

White said earlier he would call a special session to consider teacher pay raises and other educational improvements if recommended by an 18-member select committee named by him, Lt. Gov. Bill

Lewis predicted the special session to meet at 10 a.m. next Wednesday would last "a week to 10 days at the very

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Anthony Randles

What rights do employees have?

Workers of the world, do not despair.

You have lost a champion with the retirement of Douglas Fraser. But you have gained a potentially stronger ally in the courts, which, in a series of decisions in recent years, have begun conferring upon employees rights the United Auto Workers might well envy.

"I think this is the biggest thing in the labor law to ever come down," says Irvine attorney Robert Ring of the slew of what are known as "wrongful firing" legal actions. "It's going to be the non - union answer to Wonderful.

Just when organized labor has begun to trim back its expectations and demands in the face of long - delayed economic realities, come the courts to interfere in the voluntary relationship of employee and employer. conferring of employee "rights" that most of us did not imagine we had.

At least the unions' power is tangentially linked to the fundamental freedom to withhold one's labor. This new court - granted power is enforced only by the aggression of the State

And quite a power it is.

In the same issue of The Register which reported Fraser's retirement this week from the UAW presidency. another story recounted the short, but loaded, history of wrongful - firing cases in Orange County and California.

Among them: Newport Beach chemist Richard Holzmann was awarded $1.5 million as compensation for his 1979 firing from the presidency of Tustin - based Dynachem. The jury didn't even find that the firm had fired Holzmann for unjust cause, but awarded $750,000 because they said Dynachem had humiliated Holzmann by locking him out of his office. Another $750,000 was tacked on in punitive damages. An appeals court later overturned the award:

Shift foreman Thomas Newton won a judgment of $4.7 million against Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana. claiming he had been fired without "good cause" after 21 years of employment and a record of good performance.

Aside from such outlandish cash awards and the costs of defending against even the weakest claims, which must have a chilling effect on an employer's ability to manage his company, there is the especially troubling matter in these cases of the court's discovering and enforcing all sorts of "implied rights" in the relationship between employer and employee.

The overriding claim in these cases is that an employee's total performance over the years creates some legally enforceable "promise" of future employment, or at least prohibits the employer from firing him without "good cause."

But these are all matters of judgment. In the Dynachem case, the jury, not even persuaded that Holzmann had been fired without good cause. nevertheless unearthed another implied right, that being fired ought not be a humiliating experience. At least the appeals judge found that one wanting.

Of course, we all hope that performance and loyalty will be rewarded by our employer, and few fired employees believe they have been treated fairly. But all of us know there is a risk we won't be treated fairly, and most of us, if we're honest, know that fairness is a matter of interpretation. Few of us expect any guarantees (if we do, we ought to have them written into our contracts).

There are, of course, incentives to encourage employers to treat employees fairly, chief among them the continued ability of the employer to attract and keep high - caliber. loyal employees

That sort of internal calculation on the part of employers is certainly to be preferred to external force applied by the courts.

It is dangerous, both to employers and, in the long, run. to employees, to allow the courts to engage in an open ended exploration of this minefield called "implied employee rights. In a free economy, it is essential to allow employers maximum freedom to make decisions based on their own best perceptions of their needs in the marketplace

No business can manage its affairs under the threat that it will be challenged by the power of the State each time it makes a management change. No business can long prosper if its employment practices are no longer governed by its own needs, but by an employees "bill of rights" written by the courts and enforced by the State.

A more defensible, and ultimately much more effective employee "right" is the freedom to seek work in a competitive, growing economy, a freedom that is severely diminished when employers are burdened with arbitrary, after - the - fact regulation of how they hire

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, June 19, the 170th day of 1983. There are 195 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On June 19, 1862. Congress banned slavery in the U.S. territories In 1756, 146 British soldiers suffocated in a dungeon in India that became known as the "black hole of Calcutta. In 1819, the SS Savannah arrived in Liverpool, England. becoming the first steamship to cross the Atlantic Ocean. In 1867, Emperor Maximilian was executed in Mexico. In 1970, the Soviet spaceship Soyuz 9 landed after setting the record for the longest manned space flight - 17 days, 16 hours and 59 minutes. Ten years ago: Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev urged Congress not to let the dispute over the emigration of Soviet Jews stand in the way of cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union

Why lawyers are bullish on the law

It may be my imagination but every young person I meet this June is graduating from law school. The question is how many lawyers can the country support? The answer is that nobody really knows.

Harlan McCugh, a senior partner wiht McCugh, McCugh & Moore McCughs, is one of those who believes the U.S. will never have enough lawyers to serve the needs of the people. The reason why I'm so bullish on the law as a profession is that the more lawyers you have the more business you generate for each other. We're the ones who make the problems for other lawyers to solve

"I'm not too sure I understand." Well, there is a famous story about a lawyer in North Dakota who hung up his shingle in town and was starving to death. Then another lawyer moved in and hung up a shingle across the street. Suddenly they were both prospering. The rule of thumb in America is that it takes a minimum of two lawyers on opposite sides of the street before one can make McCugh continued. "The beauty of the American justice system is that one doesn't have to do anything wrong to have need of a lawyer. All somebody has to do is accuse you of doing something wrong, and then you have to seek legal help to defend youself. Even if you aren't accused of doing something wrong, it's best to hire a lawyer in advance, just in case somebody might take a gamble that you did.

'Another reason why I'm bullish on the law business is that lawyers are taught to write contracts and legal papers that can only be decoded by other lawyers. So when one lawyer draws up a contract, he or she is automatically assuring a fee for another lawyer who has to read it and see that the person signing it is not getting a raw deal.

"I had an instance not long ago where a lawyer for a motion picture studio sent a one - page contract to a screenwriter I was representing. I took one look at it and became furious. I called up the studio lawyer and said, 'Are you crazy or something? My client could sign this contract today. Where the hell did you study law?

"The studio lawyer apologized and said he had a paralegal draw up the agreement, and hadn't realized the young man had written it in plain English. He promised to send over the studio's usual 170 - page contract right away. As soon as I got it, we started haggling over it for three months, and I was able to charge my client my normal outrageous fee. "You were smart not to let your client sign the on

"Another reason I'm bullish on lawyers." McCugh said. is that almost every family in America has a relative who is a lawyer, and you don't even have to leave your house anymore to find one. Now when a mother calls up her lawyer son from the hospital and says. 'I fell on the sidewalk and broke my hip,' the first question he usually asks her is, 'Were there any witnesses?'

'There aren't enough lawyers in America to handle all the accidents that are happening all around us, much less the insurance companies who are refusing to pay.

"You paint a very rosy picture for young people just coming out of law school," I said.

"I'm not making it up," McCaugh told me. "You've got government lawyers working day and night confusing everyone as to what the legislators had on their minds when they passed a law, or repealed one. You have people being poisoned by chemicals, crime is soaring, and the simplest business transaction cannot be consummated without two legal minds in the middle screwing it up. I would say the outlook for the law class of 1983 has never been brighter.

What a wonderful message. Can I print it

Of course. Why do you ask? "I didn't want you to sue me

Court rejects water settlement

commission.

By JAMES H. RUBIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, acting in a nine-year dispute between Texas and New Mexico, today rejected a plan to allow a tie-breaking vote to resolve impasses between the two states over use of the Pecos River

Instead, the court said in a 9-0 ruling that it will remain the final referee in the battle over water rights. But it urged Texas and New Mexico once again to try to settle their differences through negotiation.

"It is difficult to believe the bona fide differences in the two states' views of how much water Texas is entitled to receive justify the expense and time necessary to obtain a judicial resolution of this controversy," said Justice William J. Brennan in his opinion for the court

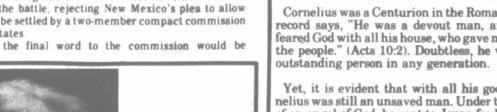

The court ordered further hearings by a special court-appointed federal judge to determine the amount of water that Texas is entitled to.

The dispute began in 1974 when Texas filed suit against New Mexico over water from the Pecos which flows about 900 miles from the mountains of northern New Mexico until it reaches the Rio Grande River in Texas

In 1975, the Supreme Court ruled that it has power to sit. in effect, as a trial court to settle differences between the two states. It then appointed U.S. District Judge Jean Breitenstein as a "special master" to act as the court's

In today's ruling, the court reaffirmed its role as the final arbiter of the battle, rejecting New Mexico's plea to allow disputes to be settled by a two-member compact commission of the two states

Leaving the final word to the commission would be stacking the deck in New Mexico's favor, the court said, since New Mexico as the upstream state can control the flow of water from the Pecos by having its commission member block any commission actions.

The compact commission was created in 1949, with two voting members - one from each state. A third member. representing the federal government, has no power to vote to

Judge Breitenstein recommended last year that the third member be empowered to vote to end deadlock on the

But the Supreme Court said today that although the 'likelihood of impasse on the Pecos River Commission is a serious matter," the court lacks the power to allow such a tie-breaking vote

'The solution for impasse is judicial resolution of such disputes as are amenable to judicial resolution, and further negotiation for those disputes that are not," said Brennan.

The court sent the case back to the special master to decide whether New Mexico has fulfilled its obligations in providing water for Texas from the Pecos.

Under the 1948 compact, Texas is entitled to receive an amount of water equivalent to what would be available to it under conditions prevailing on the river in 1947.

Interpreting the exact meaning of that prevailing condition has been the cause of much of the dispute between

HE WAS A GOOD MAN, BUT....

Cornelius was a Centurion in the Roman army. The record says, "He was a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, who gave much alms to the people." (Acts 10:2). Doubtless, he would be an

Yet, it is evident that with all his goodness, Cornelius was still an unsaved man. Under the direction of an angel of God, he sent to Joppa for Peter. When the apostle arrived. Cornelius said, "Now therefore we are all gathered here present in the sight of God, to hear all things that have been commanded thee of the Lord." (Acts 10:33). Peter explained the acceptance of the Gentiles by the Lord and commanded them to be baptized (Acts 10:34-48). Since baptism is for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38), and since one cannot be saved without it (Mark 16:16; I Peter 3:21), we conclude that Cornelius was still unsaved until he learned and obeyed the gospel which Peter preached

How often do we hear of people today who think they will be saved because they are, like Cornelius, fine moral people. But the truth is that even though a person may be fine morally, still if he hasn't obeyd the gospel he will be eternally lost (2 Thessaolonians 1:6-9).

It is a sin, then, not to obey the gospel and become a Christian. While a person might be everything else he ought to be, if he hasn't been baptized into Jesus Christ for the remission of this sins, he stand condemned in the sight of God.

But not to the National Park Service - it has its top "underwater archaeologists" based in Santa Fe, a city approximately 7,000 feet above sea level. 'It's convenient," said Dan Lenihan, one of three people in the Park Service's Submerged Cultural Resources Center. 'It's centrally located. We're in range of both coasts.' Lenihan and his colleagues are the only fully-staffed underwater archaeology team in the federal government. The group's purpose, according to Lenihan, is to study shipwrecks on Park Service land.

the seas around the world in search of buried treasures. "People make them out to be heroes," he said. "They're not heroes. They're doing incredible destruction by bringing the

Oil hub suffers through another industry slump

Associated Press Writer ALICE, Texas (A?) - The energy business rollercoaster once again has plunged this South Texas oil and gas center into economic hard times, but those who've been down before say they've mastered the ride.

The industry's sudden slump early last year has hurt everyone, they say, but especially the amateurs who flocked to Alice to make a quick buck during the boom vears of 1980 and 1981.

"I'd say history will show this is the worst time our industry has faced, and a lot of that is the speed at which it happened.' said Burt happened, 's said Burt Harkins, president of Harkins and Co. oil and gas drillers and contractors. But Harkins, who has been in the business 38 years, said, 'We know what it takes to survive in this time and we've taken the cost-cutting measures necessary, many of which we learned in the recessions of years ago."

Still, many drilling rigs sit idle as businesses wait for demand for their products to catch up with the oversupply.

Laborers who traveled up to 200 miles from Alice to work in the oil patches also have been left jobless or underemployed, while the rig service and supply businesses centered here are left with little to service or supply. "Until this hit, if you lived in Alice, Texas, and were physically able to work, you could find a job," said Lowell Hunt, Southwest Energy Exposition board chairman and publisher of the Alice

Echo-News. "You could make $10 to $12 an hour and all the overtime you could handle," he said.

Now, the city's 10.1 percent unemployment rate, up from 4.9 percent in July 1981, "is the highest Alice has ever experienced." said Ralph Gomez, Alice Chamber of Commerce executive vice president

Meanwhile, the city's share of retail sale tax revenues has slipped by 30 percent, while several businesses in the this town of 21,000 have failed.

Some say the unemployment figure probably would be higher if so many people had not left the

"A lot of people just flat moved off," Hunt said.

Commercial business loans at First City Bank are down 11 percent from last year, an indication that all is not well in the city, said Steve Hipes, executive vice president.

The oil business, according to Hunt, "has had a lot of ups and downs over the years but, according to the people in the patch, not this far down.

"Right now it's grim," said Gomez. "It's not something that Alice is used to so there's a tremendous amount of adjusting that has to be done. There's going to be a considerable amount of belt-tightening over the next year.

But, says Gomez, people who say these are the worst times ever for Alice "are comparing it to '80-'81 when (the energy business) had never been so good.' For example, the city's ales tax revenues, "which are tied directly to the oil fields," jumped 111 percent between 1979 and 1981, Gomez

Lenihan said the Park Service has identified shipwrecks at national parks across the country, including in California, Florida, the Great Lakes area and the Padre Islands off the An area he said has not yet been explored by the Park

Lenihan's chapter in the publication, "Rethinking Shipwreck Archaeology," stresses that fellow shipwreck studiers must "first examine the historical development of shipwreck archaeology ... then offer some thoughts on the anthropological potential of shipwrecks."

Lenihan said he and his two Park Service co-workers average five trips a year to shipwreck sites. The ventures last anywhere from one week to six weeks, he said.

El Paso's Chinese hear Cantonese sermons

Associated Press Writer

EL PASO. Texas (AP) - A Chinese cemetery seems as misplaced in the middle of the nation's most Hispanic large city as the Cantonese language that is spoken each Sunday to about 50 parishioners at El Paso's Grant Avenue Baptist

The 81 graves inscribed with Chinese writings in Concordia Cemetery reveal the richness of Oriental influence in El Paso, where Grant Avenue pastor Isaac Chan conducts Sunday school classes and sermons in his native Cantonese. A church interpreter translates Chan's sermons into English for the younger Chinese-Americans who don't speak the Chinese dialect

"Most people don't know El Paso has such a strong Chinese past," said Helen Chan, the pastor's wife.

El Paso, a border city where Hispanics make up 62 percent of its 450,000 residents, may seem an unlikely site for Chinese culture, but children of the estimated 600 Chinese-Americans in Texas' fourth-largest city still can learn the language, artful dances and hymns of their Far East homeland.

Cantonese and Mandarin Chinese language classes, the main Chinese dialects, periodically are offered by the church

"There aren't any more opium dens like there used to be, but we do try to teach our children the language and ways of China." Mrs. Chan said.

In the 1880s, about 900 Chinese lived in El Paso, then a city of 8,000 that coveted the coming of the Southern Pacific railroad. The 18 laundries were owned by the Chinese, and opium smoking dens were so common in Chinatown that a city ordinance was passed prohibiting public consumption of the narcotic.

"Chinatown's ... opium dens and gambling halls (are) a hazard to the health of the entire community." an El Paso newspaper said. Two dollar fines were meted out to violators. Chinatown, across the river from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

also became a smuggling hotbed for Chinese who had been turned back by U.S. immigration authorities because of the 1882 Chinese Exclusion Act.

Congress was told the 50,000 Chinese who came to California after the 1849 gold rush would rob Americans of jobs, so the act was passed.

Chinatown "was a honeycomb of underground passages, believed to be used for hiding 'mail-order' brides and the illegal aliens who were smuggled into the country from Mexico," historian Nancy Farrar said.

Few Chinese women initially came to America, staying behind until their husband could send for them or return with savings from his work. El Paso city records in 1910 show only two females among the 325 Chinese.

Chinese legally couldn't enter the United States until 1943. when President Franklin Roosevelt repealed the Exclusion Act to thank the Chinese for their military assistance during Chew Din, born 93 years ago in Canton and an El Paso resident since 1915, went to China after the Exclusion Act's repeal to bring back his wife and daughter. He currently is the Chinese community's elder citizen.

Some of Din's contemporaries are buried in the walled Chinese cemetery, where names of the deceased - such as Carlos Chio and Alberto Cuan- date to the turn of the century when Chinese first intermarried with locals.

Marrying Mexicans once was tantamount to ostracism from the powerful Chinese tongs, or fraternal groups, that operated in Él Paso's almost wholly male Chinatown. But El Paso's Chinatown died away in the 1950s, as did the rigid ban against intermarriages, restaurateur Noon Pon said.

The Chinese in El Paso now say that despite the Westernization of each succeeding generation of Chinese-Americans, they intend to cling to some time-honored

Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Prisoners with time to kill and a legal library for guidance file thousands of suits and petitions in federal courts - but if it isn't free it tends to lose a lot of its

Nearly all of them used to get a free ride in the legal system by applying for the status of forma pauperis - a Latin term meaning one who is flat broke, unable to pay the clerk a filing

In 1982, nine court districts under the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals logged 1.148 prisoner pleas of habeas corpus, which almost always are bids for a new trial, and 2,043 civil rights

"At least 70 per cent of those are forma pauperis," said G. F. Ganucheaux, clerk at the 5th circuit, which encompasses Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas

It's the same in other southern circuit The other half of the old 5th, which now forms the new 11th circuit, headquartered in Atlanta, drew 1,200 habeas corpus and 2.882 civil rights cases in prisoner petitions from Alabama, Georgia and Florida. There were 1,077 habeas corpus and 3,348 civil rights petitions filed in Richmond from prisoners in the 4th circuit states of Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

However, it is becoming harder to get that free ride

The U.S. Supreme Court, in rulings Monday, refused to waive the usual $200 filing fee on appeals in three cases where plaintiffs claimed but did not prove poverty - and even ordered one man to pay the other side $500 as a penalty for pursuing a "frivolous" dispute.

In the 5th circuit, slow change began in the southern district, where headquarters files in Houston were stuffed with petitions from indigent prisoners.

The southern district got twice as many as any of the other district in the circuit. In the latest count, it had 760 civil rights and 329 habeas corpus pending as of June 30, 1982.

So the judges adopted a partial fee payment plan five years ago. A steady flow of petitions continued but it took some of the fun out of filing.

And it doesn't take much to cool off some prison petitioners, especially if their complaint seems a bit thin.

Consider Oss Smith Jr., a Texas prisoner who sued for $70,000 because officials refused to let him have more than two law books at a time. His suit, filed in Galveston, said the two-book rule violated his constitutional right of access to the

After examining his finances, principally his prison trust account, the court decided he could make partial payment. His income had been calculated at $11 to $13 a month, including

Smith was ordered to pay $1 on the usual $60 filing fee and $2 to the U.S. marshal on the service fees.

On Oct. 19. 1982, he filed a new affidavit of poverty, saying he could not make the payment because it took all his cash for stamps, envelopes, legal materials, deodorant, toothpaste,

On Dec. 19, 1982, four months after Smith was ordered to pay $3, his suit was dismissed for lack of payment. He then applied for and was given permission to appeal in forma pauperis to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, bypassing the $70 fee.

In New Orleans, a three-judge panel of the 5th circuit on June 6 upheld the dismissal

Some exotic lawsuits do not survive if is expense is involved. A recent example is a civil rights case in which 48 prisoners at Louisiana's Angola State Prison sued for $10.3 million damages. It crashed in U.S. District Court in New Orleans when the free ride was refused.

The 48 had decided to sue the City of New Orleans, its police department and the district attorney on a claim that officials conspired to addict the black populace to heroin.

Since it would cost nothing — and one can always hope — the 48 joined on seeking damages on a claim that the city's policy was to make dope available to blacks, get them addicted, and then arrest them.

On checking the bid for forma pauperis, Magistrate Marcel Livaudais found that these 48 had money in their prison accounts ranging from a low of $44.86 to $967.39 for a total of

"In light of these financial resources, the plaintiffs request to proceed in forma pauperis denied," he said.

The 48 have not refiled.

AUSTIN (AP) — A small group of state employees has been going around the halls of state government the past six years asking questions that could make the average bureaucrat ighten his jaws.

Like "Why does your agency exist?" And "What good does it do for the people?" "Is it really needed?"

Some oldtimers bristle when youthful staff members of the Sunset Advisory Commission pose such questions. But unless they give the right answers, their agency could be reduced, changed, consolidated - or even abolished

For Bill Wells and his Sunset Commission staff of 20 people whose average age is 30, resentment is an obstacle they have learned to live with. Wells said it was worst in 1977 and 1978, the first two-year period they inspected other agencies to decide which ones should continue and which ones should be

"Like neighbors gossiping over the back fence, they talk to each other," he said. "The first set of agencies told the next set how much trouble it was, so the next set of agencies believed there was going to be trouble and went into it looking at it like

He recalled a personal attack from an official of the Board of County and District Road Indebetedness after Wells recommended in 1979 that board be abolished.

"When they guy came to testify, he made an offer he thought the (Sunset) Commission couldn't refuse. He said if they'd fire me, he'd do the job for free. Luckily, they didn't take him up on the offer," Wells said, and the board was abolished.

Wells and his colleagues, who have evaluated 84 state agencies so far, have recommended that 18 of them be abolished, including several similar to the old Pink Bollworm Commission and the defunct Stonewall Jackson Memorial

The bollworm commission and the Jackson board didn't even have any members when Sunset examiners tried to review them, so their elimination cost nobody a job, or for that matter, saved the state no money

Sunset analyst Tim Graves said when he reviewed the late Board of Tuberculosis Nurse Examiners, he made a trip to West Texas to interview its secretary-treasurer at her home and found she kept the board's records under her bed.

All state agencies except a few that lack statewide jurisdiction such as the Lower Colorado River Authority and the state colleges and universities eventually come under the Sunset staff's scrutiny.

In January, the Sunset Commission made headlines when it recommended that the high-profile Public Utility Commission be abolished. The Legislature did not terminate the PUC, but changed it in many ways after critics complained it was Wells said proposing that obsolete agencies be abolished is only part of his crew's job. They also act as efficiency experts, suggesting changes and telling weak agencies how stronger agencies handle similar situations.

Texas has more than 200 boards, agencies and commissions - too many to review all at once, so the Sunset staff is given 25 to 30 agencies each two years, and each agency comes up for review every 12 years.

Those up for review between now and the 1985 Legislature include the Air Control Board, the School Land Board, the Parks and Wildlife Department, and the Department of

"Once every 12 years, everybody's got the opportunity to bring up whatever ideas they have about how a state agency ought to be operated and to get those ideas out and get them discussed," Wells said. "It does allow for substantial changes in an agency's statutes and operation.

The commission itself, made up of four state representatives, four state senators and two citizens, formally acts on the reports submitted by Wells and his staff, and forwards them to the Legislature.

A report issued earlier this month by the Sunset Commission, which operates on an annual budget of $600,000, said changes recommended and adopted by the Legislature will mean an additional $57 million in state revenue over the next two years.

More than $16 million of that is projected as a result of major changes in the Railroad Commission, Wells said. After an agency has been examined by the Sunset

Commission, the Legislature must pass a bill to keep it operating. If lawmakers take no action, the agency fades out of existence like the setting sun - the simile that gave th commission its name That provision became part of a controversy last monti

when the Legislature adjourned without passing a bill t maintain the mammoth Texas Employment Commission after the Sunset Commission had recommended it be continued wit

As a result, the TEC has one year to phase out of existence beginning Sept. 1. But Wells said whether an "emergency" exists requiring a special session of the Legislature this summer to continue the agency is not clear.

"If the federal government allocates the money in October then TEC can continue for another year. If they say 'no,' either something will have to be done before September or there'll be a large number of TEC programs that will simply cease to function," Wells said.

Most agencies examined are recommended to be continued with modifications," and the Legislature has usually agreed Lawmakers have also gone along with most recommendations for terminating agencies, and in the six years since the process has been in operation, 17 agencies have not been continued by the Legislature.

During that same period, however, lawmakers have created 26 new agencies. Wells said those figures do not mean the Sunset Commission has failed.

You can't say how many would have been created if Sunse hadn't heightened the awareness of the fact that we've got maybe too many agencies now," he said. "There is a heightened awareness of the fact that you need to go a little slower and you need to really have a problem before you create an agency.

Rural postal 'heir' still runs office

PENNSDALE, Pa. (AP) - In the Country Store in Post Office, Zip Code 17761. Pennsdale, Thomas L. Springman moseys across the room and weighs a postal parcel on the meat scales, the ones that just weighed the pork chops, then returns to his pigeonholed

"Could have used the balance scales instead," he said, pointing to a contraption on top of a filing cabinet. "They could be a hundred years old, but they're just as accurate and they never break down.

Springman runs the Pennsdale Rural Branch of the Muncy Post Office. But nobody calls it that. They call it the Pennsdale

'We can do almost anything here that a big post office can,' Springman said proudly

There's no reason to doubt that and there's no reason to doubt that Springman knows what he's doing, because he's been licking stamps practically since the day he was born back in 1920

"My dad was a postmaster here from 1905 to 1942." Springman said. "When he died, my mom took over and ran it 'til she retired in the late '60s.

Then, with years of "apprenticeship" behind him Springman took his turn.

"Mom still tries to boss me now and then, though," he said. His mother, now 86, lives with him and his wife in a house just across the lawn from the post office.

The Country Store itsélf was put up in '39. That's 1839. It's bright red, like the cheeks of the folks who shop in it on a wintry day to buy its famous scrapple, sausage and bacon.

Long-term investment growth

By TOM BYRD

In an earlier column, we were discussed mutual funds whose investment objective was growth. Let's focus our remarks today to those funds whose objective is long - term growth with current income being secondary. Here the fund's management is seeking out investment opportunities in companies, which in their judgment, will offer the possibility of long - term growth of your capital. Long term growth is generally accepted to mean a period of five years or more Now keep in mind as this investment objective is activated, management of the fund will be investing in growth companies. These companies, by and large, plow back their earnings into the business for expansion and yes...GROWTH. They do not pay out generous dividends for income to the company. Thus you can see that when the fund states its objective as "long term growth with current income secondary" this is exactly what their investments will reflect. I find it most interesting and informative to look at the fund's portfolio (that is the list of stocks and bonds they hold). This list of stocks and bonds is available in the fund's quarterly and annual report which is available through your broker at no charge or directly from the fund. Examine the investments they make. Then do a little research work yourself and find out about these companies. If you find good, solid companies, you will feel comfortable with the fund as well. Remember investing is a serious business and it merits more consideration than a 'hunch'

DATES TO REMEMBER

Though sleeping sickness is no longer a major problem in the horse industry. it still exists and all equines should receive a protective vaccine each year. A highly effective combination vaccine is available for horses. It protects against Eastern. Western and Venezuelan types of sleeping sickness as well as tetanus.

Loosing horses to sleeping sickness is unnecessary.

Last year cases of the disease were reported in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama, probably due to an unusually high mosquito population during the summer months.

Equine encephalitis (sleeping sickness) is carried naturally by several species of birds. When mosquitoes bite an infected bird, the disease can then be transmitted by the mosquitoes to other animals. Early signs of the disease include fever, loss of appetite and depression. The animal is usually restless, may walk aimlessly in circles and be sensitive to sound and touch. One common sympton is a horse that stands with his head hung low like he's sleeping. He doesn't fully chew hay or forage, and as the disease progresses, the tongue may actually hang out of the

Reagan opponents win victory

By BOB FICK

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Opponents of President Reagan's plan to cut $3.8 billion from price supports for major field crops over the next two years have won an initial victory in the Senate Agriculture Committee

But they may now be facing action in the full Senate that could cost them even more in 1984 and 1985 support protection for wheat, feed grains, rice and cotton.

The Senate committee, responding to Agriculture Secretary John Block's drive to rein in the skyrocking costs of farm programs, approved legislation Thursday that could cut multibillion-dollar dairy price support costs by more than two-thirds from this year to next.

But the committee was sharply divided over the spending reduction in the so-called target price program for field crops and declined to act on it amid strong lobbying efforts from both

Instead, committee members added to the dairy plan a major overhaul of the government's complex tobacco program that freezes price supports and should, by 1990, end control of U.S. tobacco production by nonfarmers clinging to an antiquated allotment

The target price proposal called for freezing at the 1983 levels the target prices for 1984 and 1985, which otherwise will rise by as much as 6.5 percent a year

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., one of Block's chief allies in the Senate, now says that if the committee persists in refusing to approve the target price freeze, he'll propose abolishing that program completely when the dairy-tobacco program goes to the full Senate for a vote. In 1981, Lugar fell only two votes short of doing just that. Through target prices, the government pays farmers the difference between the target and the actual market price when market prices are depressed. The program will pump $2.7 billion into farmers' pockets this year and another $6.4 billion over the following two even with the freeze.

Block has said that unless farm programs costs, which will hit $21 billion this year, are reduced the future of many government support programs will be in jeopardy because of mounting public concern over federal budget deficits.

"There's a feeling that $21 billion of the deficit is being caused by farm programs," Lugar warned. "That's intolerable

Although Block outlined his own program for slashing that cost, he agreed to accept the compromises worked out by Congress and the industry but only if they included both the dairy cuts and the field crop reductions

Anything short of that could be vetoed, he's indicated, and that would cause serious problems for the dairy and tobacco industries

Dairy interests have been struggling for two years to find a way to slash costs of their price support program. which will cost taxpayers $2.4 billion this year. They fear that if government spending is not significantly curtailed the entire program will be abolished.

The same fear is held by tobacco interests, whose program has survived on only the narrowest of margins as antismoking groups and critics of the allotment system gain strength in Congress.

The committee could take up the target price freeze again next week. But with the panel possibly evenly split on the issue, the members fighting against it say they won't change their minds until they get more information from Block about what his plans are for supply management in 1984.

The dairy plan, an amalgamation of all the methods proposed to reduce spending, is expected to cut U.S. milk production next year by 11 billion pounds and lower price support costs to $711 million, according to congressional budget analysts.

Specifically, it calls for:

-Reductions in the current $13.10-per-hundred-pound price support of up to $1.50 over the next two years. That was sought by Block, Southern dairymen, and consumer groups.

-Payments to farmers who reduce their milk production 5 to 30 percent from the levels of 1982 or the average of 1981 and 1982.

heartworms all year long, but especially during the spring. Heartworms in dogs is related to the mosquito population, since mosquitoes carry the larval form of the potentially fatal

So spring is an ideal time to have the family dog checked for heartworms. Such exams should be repeated every six montths, and vaccination boosters annually

Routine vaccinations for dogs include distemper, hepatitis, leptosporosis, parvo and rabies. Cats are not known to be susceptible to heartworms, but they have their own worries. Respiratory viruses were among the major threats to cats. Rhinotracheitis and calici virus shots should be part of any cat's semi - annual health care schedule

In addition cats need feline distemper shots as well as rabies vaccination. Sadly enough, the owner is often a pet's greatest health threat during warm weather.

Any time dogs or cats are left in the car and the outside temperature is above 85 degrees F., ventilation must be provided. Animals left unattended in cars with the windows rolled up are subject to heat stroke.

When families begin to make vacation plans, considerations must be made for the family pet, whether it is to be taken along in the car or left behind in a kennel.

Dogs and cats are like people, some get excited about traveling, some don't. Among those left behind in a kennel, some will get depressed, others aren't bothered by being separated from their masters. Owners who intend to take the family pet along on vacation should visit their veterinarian beforehand to get a prescription for tranquilizers for the pet. People get motion sickness, so do animals. The motion sickness is sometimes aggravated by the animal's excitement and its inability to see out the window if it is kept in a cage on the floor of the vehicle Used in small doses to prevent car sickness or hyperactivity in the pet, tranquilizers are appropriate in a traveling

Animals that will be left in a kennel might become less epressed if a favorite toy is left with th owners should not leave an entire carton full of the pet's toys, since keeping track of them all would be an unfair burden to place on kennel managers.

Lawmen on the wrong side of law

By SHARON COHEN Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Cook County sheriff's deputies are sworn to uphold the law. But with embarrassing regularity, a few have recently found themselves on the wrong side - accused as hit men, pornographers and swindlers.

Deputy John Gattuso was accused of moonlighting for organized crime after he allegedly pumped three bullets point-blank in the head of a mob gambling boss who lived to

Deputy Claude Bernhard was charged with trafficking in child pornography after he allegedly showed investigators photos of children performing sex acts

And Deputy Jerome Weatherly was snared by the law after he used a judge's chambers in a scheme involving about $37,000 in stolen U.S. savings bonds.

The three — since fired — are among eight current or former deputies in the office of Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod charged or convicted since January. Elrod acknowledges problems, but says it's a few rotten apples.

Others have been accused of rigging auto accidents to collect insurance, selling drugs, shaking down businessmen and running a house of prostitution

Federal prosecutors are investigating the 26-member levy section, which serves warrants, inventories business property and collects taxes due from businesses. The focus is alleged extortion and mail fraud. Three one-time Elrod employees have been indicted in the last year.

In 1982, there were other troubles, including suspension of high-ranking deputies for arranging a reputed crime figure's romantic trysts in empty court chambers.

The flurry of allegations has drawn criticism from county board members, calls for an investigation and tighter screening for hiring deputies - who often get their jobs via patronage recommendations.

The charges tie "the sheriff to certain aspects of organized crime and just plain illegal activity that shouldn't be part of a law enforcement operation," says Republican state Sen. Bob

Kustra called for a probe of the hiring practices of deputies in Democrat Elrod's office by the Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission this year, but the measure stalled

Elrod, a Machine loyalist and former city prosecutor who broke his neck during a melee in the 1960s Days of Rage demonstrations, defends his office.

"If you're dealing with human beings and 5,000 (of them), someone's going to go astray," says Elrod, sheriff since 1970.

Elrod says he is working on improvements in screening processes but feels any wrongdoing by his employees has been kept "to a bare minimum." And, he adds, "we still strive for Elrod's also appointed a five-member committee to recommend improvements in employment practices. Deputy sheriff's jobs start at about $12,000 a year. But there are potential fringe benefits — the authority to carry a badge and a gun - which sometimes draw the wrong people.

"You do have certain types of individuals who gravitate toward a badge and gun for reasons other than public citizenry," says Bernard Carey, a former county state's attorney and a Republican county board member

Richard Doria, Republican sheriff in neighboring Du Page County, noted problems in Elrod's office have not been with sworn personnel protected by the merit system - but with bailiffs, process servers and others of the 1,300-plus member court services division, heavily influenced by patronage. Doria sends his correctional officers to a training program supervised by Elrod's office because he thinks it's better than a state program. "I find him an extremely efficient administrator and very cooperative," he said. Former Chicago police Superintendent Richard Brzeczek says, "Elrod has a reputation of trying to professionalize the In May, the Chucago Crime Commission began checking out potential job candidates not under the merit system, where a more thorough investigation is done. But background checks would not erase the problems of patronage, which surfaced during the recent bribery trial of a Chicago alderman. Ten witnesses testified they paid as much as $1,500 each to get jobs as deputies. Some indicated they wanted the job so they could carry a gun for protection in their businesses Elrod, who supports a merit system for deputy selection, testified he would never hire anyone who had paid money to get a job However, until a recent court ruling limited patronage about 85 percent of appointed deputies came with recommendations, usually from committeemen or aldermen, said Betsy Barstead, a sheriff's spokeswoman. Still, she insisted the department "is not a patronage army

We get recommendations ... from rabbis and priests. Is that patronage? We do try to hire the best people possible and what's better than a friend's recommendation?

Adventist loses suit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Seventh-day Adventist who claimed his religion cost him his job has lost his lawsuit against the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad Co. and a railway union

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon rejected claims by Johnnie F. Turpen that the railroad was guilty of religious discrimination by scheduling him to work on Saturdays, the Seventh-day Adventists' Sabbath.

Mahon also ruled Thursday that the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen had not breached its duty of fair representation. Turpen, 55, worked for the now-defunct Rock Island Railroad from 1951 to 1980. After the joined the Seventh-day Adventist Church in 1974, Rock Island freed him from working on Saturdays, according to court records. When Rock Island went into receivership in March 1980 and MKT began operating on some of its track, Turpen was one of six former Rock Island employees hired to work as carmen in Fort Worth Turpen was fired after failing to report for work on two ed Saturdays in June 1980.

Mahon said MKT had taken "several steps to try to accommodate his religious beliefs" when it learned of Turpen's objections to working on Saturdays. Attempts to rearrange the schedules of the five other carmen failed, according to court records.

Ruling that MKT would have incurred "an undue hardship by accommodating Turpen's religious practices, Mahon said the union had done its part in attempting to find a solution. Turpen's lawyer, David Watkins of Dallas, said he would Harvesting of wheat and oats is in full swing in North Central, Northeast and West Central Texas as well as in the Rolling Plains, where some yields have topped 60 bushels per acre. Wheat in the Panhandle and South Plains will be ready to harvest about July 1.

Hay making is active in many areas, and producers are hoping for a good harvest to replenish supplies drained by extensive feeding the past year, noted Carpenter.

A good peach harvest continues over much of the state, with harvesting in full swing in the Texas Hill Country

A good pecan crop is in the making, said Carpenter, and growers are trying to keep up spray schedules to protect their crop from insects and diseases

Grazing conditions have improved greatly due to recent rains, but parts of South Texas and some western areas remain dry, causing farmers to provide supplemental feed and continue heavy marketings, noted Carpenter. Reports from district Extension directors showed these PANHANDLE: Cooler, damp weather is slowing wheat maturity and cotton growth. Corn, grain sorghum, sugar beets, onions and potatoes are making good progress. Cattle are in good shape and are getting adequate grazing.

SOUTH PLAINS: Despite recent rain showers, some dryland counties still need planting moisture for cotton, with planting time about to run out. Most young crops are making good progress but cool weather has slowed cotton. A good first cutting of alfalfa has been completed. Wheat is maturing and harvesting should start about the first of July.

ROLLING PLAINS: Wet fields are still slowing wheat harvesting and cotton planting in some locations. Some 7,000 acres of wheat, cotton and grain sorghum in Jones County were lost to recent hail. Wheat yields have generally been good, with some reaching 60 bushels per acre. Wheat harvesting is up to 40 percent complete in some counties while cotton planting is up to 90 percent complete in some areas.

NORTH CENTRAL: Wheat, oats and hay are being harvested as weather conditions permit. Cotton, corn and grain sorghum are making good progress due to recent rains. Peanut planting continues. A good peach crop is maturing and pecan trees have set a good crop. Cattle are in good shape. with plenty of grazing.

NORTHEAST: A good wheat and oat harvest is under way and hay making has started. Young cotton, corn, grain sorghum, soybeans and peanuts look good. Early peaches are being harvested and the pecan crop looks good. Cattle have FAR WEST: Recent rains should boost crop and grazing conditions, but more moisture is still needed over the region. Cotton looks good, with farmers applying their first irrigation Some ranchers are spraying cattle to control flies.

WEST CENTRAL: Young crops and ranges are improving with recent rains. Several thousand acres of wheat were lost to recent hail and high winds in Callahan County. Wheat harvesting is active, with fair to good yields. About 60 percent of the cotton crop has been planted. Each harvesting is in full swing in Gillespie County, and the region's pecan crop looks

CENTRAL: The wheat harvest is about complete, with good to excellent yields in some counties. Hay making is active. Cotton, corn and grain sorghum are making good growth, with some farmers cultivating to control weeds. Cattle are getting

EAST: Crops and pastures are making good growth with favorable moisture conditions. First cuttings of hay are being harvested along with early peach varieties. Vegetable gardeni are in production, and pecan trees have set a heavy crop-

Livestock have good grazing. UPPER COAST: Some cotton, corn and grain sorghum still needs rain. Rice fields are in the final flood stage. Home gardens are in production and early peaches are being harvested. Cattle are in good condition and have adequate

SOUTH CENTRAL: Some cotton is starting to set bolls and corn is tasseling. A good peach harvest continues and pecan prospects are good. Recent rains have boosted pasture and range grasses. Livestock are in good shape but hornflies are SOUTHWEST: Recent rains have boosted farm and ranch conditions but more is needed to sustain crop and forage growth. Crop irrigation is heavy. Harvesting of pickles and onions continue along with early varieties of peaches. Livestock are in good condition.

COASTAL BEND: Additional moisture is still needed in some counties for crops and ranges. Rice is starting to head, cotton is setting bolls and some early grain sorghum is turning color. Some corn is suffering from drought stress. Peanut planting remains active. Late peaches are being harested Ranchers are stil feeding cattle in areas that missed recent SOUTH: Most crops are making good progress, particularly those being irrigated. Tomatoes and okra are in fair volume and melon harvesting continues following delays from recent heavy rains. Pasture and range conditions are improving and dream of a lifetime" when he looks out over a stretch of brush-spotted flat land his company owns along the Intracoastal Waterway near here. Baker's son. Larry Baker Jr., sees a nonproductive wasteland that could be turned into a commercial and residential oasis, while putting thousands of people to work. For nearly a year and a half, the Bakers have been battling the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to turn the land into Baker's Port. a $1 billion-plus oil-rig repair and service facility they say would employ 7,000 workers during construction and up to 5,000 people when complete.

Baker's Port, jointly owned by Baker Marine Corp. and PROMET of Singapore, would occupy a nearly 3,000-acre tract in an industrial area near the Corpus Christi Ship Channel and

The combined industrial, commercial and residential development patterned after a similar project in Singapore called Jurong Town, would provide "country club living in an industrial complex." according to the Bakers.

The corps, however, says portions of the property are federally protected wetlands, vital to the water system and the nation's ecological balance. The corps district office in Galveston is charged with weighing the benefits of the project against the damage to the wetlands and then deciding whether itself 23 years ago when it dredged the intracoastal canal. The corps, he says, dumped the dredge waste onto the property, creating a bank along the shore that holds rain water, but leaves the land parched during the dry summers.

Ken Williams, Baker Marine corporate development manager, says the wetlands actually were formed by the corps

The permit process was stymied for 16 months over a lawsuit the U.S. Justice Department filed against Baker Marine and Baker's Port Inc. alleging that two roads built on the site without the necessary permit upset the natural drainage patterns of the waters.

The corps, seeking damage and removal of the roads, had refused to consider the Baker's Port application for a permit until the suit was settled.

Baker's Port officials claim the roads were built to survey the land and inspect the property. On March 21, however, U.S. District Judge Hayden Head in Corpus Christi ordered the corps to process the application. That, in effect, put the suit on hold until after the permit processing phase is complete. Bob Redding, Baker Marine's advertising manager, says he is frustrated with the corps. "If this place out here is some kind of refuge for animals I say let's leave this thing along, but that's not the case," he

People could be put to work and rigs serviced during this time when both workers and rigs are idle due to the worldwide oversupply of oil, Redding said.

"The people who are out of work right now are the people we need buiding this thing," he said. Tom Moore, corps district attorney, said it had been

standard procedure to "remove all legal questions concerning unauthorized activity" before processing an application

Under court order, the corps took written public comment on the proposal until Friday.

Alan Sisselman, corps project manager in Galveston, said earlier in the week that most public comments have favored the project, but his office still must consider reports from other federal and state agencies. Those include the Environmental Protection Agency, which already has issued Baker Marine a nationwide permit for development of the land, the Texas Department of Water Resources, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The corps then must determine if a public hearing and an environmental impact statement on the project are warranted, Sisselman said.

If those steps are taken, the project could be delayed many more months, he said.

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) -His hearing may not be what it used to be. He might not hunt, fish or box much any

And maybe as an 86-year-old great-grandfather he can't get around like he did when he was stalking Bonnie and Clyde back when Al Capone was running the streets of Chicago

But R.M. "Captain" Bob Hammett is still in pretty good shape for "an old speed who says he misses police work yet wouldn't do it again under the restraints placed on police today.

'An officer now is more apt to get prosecuted than the criminal," he says, leaning back in a living room chair and lighting his pipe. "I couldn't'do it. I'd probably be an electrician. Before becoming city marshal of Gorman in 1921 his first official job at what would become 50 years of law enforcement work that included 15 years as boxing and judo instructor for the Texas Department of Public Safety — he helped string the highline between Leon Lake and Ranger, where he later became chief of police.

From 1923 to 1932 he was with the Eastland County Sheriff's Department as a 'speed cop'' - back when sheriff's deputies worked traffic on Texas roads. In 1932, he went to work for the DPS, then known as the Highway Patrol, and retired with the rank of captain on Nov. 1, 1967.

Dec. 23, 1927 is a day Hammett will never forget. That's the day the so-called 'Santa Claus' gang hit the First National Bank of Cisco, killing the chief of police and another police officer during a shootout that also left one of the four robbers dead

The other three - including ringleader Marshall Ratliff. who wore a Santa Claus mask because his mother owned the cafe across the street from the bank - escaped with $30,000

But not for long. After a 10-day chase that 'was a whole lot like Bonnie and Clyde'' Hammett would find himself working eight years later the gang was captured following a shootout near Breckenridge

Hammett was the third of 10 chilren raised on a farm near DeLeon. His father was a Commanche County deputy sheriff and it was from him that Hammett gained his early law enforcement

Noting a lifelong avocation as a boxer who once won $50 by knocking out former lightweight champion (1910-12) Ad Wolgast in the third round of a 1921 exhibition match at Gorman, Hammett said:

"I've been lucky. I never had to shoot anybody. I had quite a few guys jump on me drunks — but I didn't have any trouble knocking 'em off. Every police officer should be a boxer. It saves havin' to kill

As good with a gun as he was with his fists, Hammett won a $20 gold piece for taking first-place honors in the 1928 state law enforcement pistol chamionship at Abilene. And he did it with a gun borrowed from the reigning champ, Ranger Chief of Police Jim Ingram, whom Hammett bested by two points.

"I wish I had kept that gold piece." he said. "No tellin" what it'd be worth now.'

Although the Cisco bank robbery made national headlines, the most famous case he worked was that of Bonnie and Clyde, who were gunned down in a police ambush outside Arcadia, La. in mid-1934.

To be a good cop, Hammett said. "You have to be honest and treat people right - no more bangin' around than necessary. But with the restrictions on the police now. I don't know how they can do their job.'

Legal raid made on the Raiders

AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - The City of Oakland's attempt to get back its pro football team from Los Angeles by condemning the Raiders and seizing the franchise under the right of eminent domain lights some bright lamps of hope in city halls around the

Using the same legal process that the Feds and the state employ to seize private property for the public good, the city fathers in opening arguments at Monterey County Superior Court contended that it appropriate for Oakland to take over the two-time Super Bowl winners because a stadium was built for the Raiders in 1966 and the team's success on the gridiron was integrally linked with the city's economic and municipal well being

Last summer the Californa Supreme Court ruled the state's eminent domain law allows a city to condemn and take over a sports team if it can prove the team is intended for "public use."

There's the legal rub Many a sports spectacle ought to be condemned for the opposite reason: that it is a public nuisance, an offense to the nostrils of sensitive fans.

Certainly the City Of New York should have condemned the 1962 Mets and distributed their hardly used bats and gloves to some needy orphanage. That was the year the Amazing Mets lost 120 games. That was the year when manager Casey Stengel asked the immortal question: "Can't anybody here play this game?'

But invoking the doctrine of "public use," it must be admitted there were those who loved the Mets for their faults, who accepted their diamond absurdities as a municipal blessing, who cherished their dead serious buffoonery as a symbol of the Big City's great big, laughing, loving heart. Among these was writer Jimmy Breslin, the rotund Boswell of the bleachers.

Breslin did not turn up in the press box condemn them but to savor these unique skills that made public spirits soar in ecstasy, "They put fu in life. This was Bert Lahr in 'The Wizard of Oz' o the Marx Brothers in 'Room Service.' The Met tried to play baseball, and the players trying to do i were serious. But the whole thing came out as great comedy, and it was the tonic the sport needed People did not follow the Mets. They loved the

If New York waxes sentimental over the wors team in baseball, what municipal treasures migh! it have preserved had it employed Oakland's legatactics in trying to seize and hold onto a winner?

Surely the Board of Estimate could have invoked right of eminent domain to keep Walter O'Malley from moving Dem Beloved Bums to L.A. and condemn the Giants before Horace Stoneham shipped them to San Francisco was in sole possession of first place with a three-game lead and had 106 RBIs. Oilers vs. Dukes > Pampa would meet Albuquerque in the semi-final round of the playoffs while Amarillo would take on Plainview.

> Pampa opened the series with an 11-2 win as Red Dial pitched a six hitter. Dial had posted a 20-15 record during the regular season with a 3.55 earned run average. True to form, the Oilers hit three offerings over the fence. Hardaway had a homer. triple and double while left fielder Sonny Tims and shortstop Rach Slider each hit solo homers. Pampa continued to combine solid pitching and hitting as the Oilers won the second game, 10-1. Veteran Jack Venable pitched a four-hitter while striking out four and not walking a batter. Venable had led the team in strikeouts (204) while logging a 16-11 mark. Slider and catcher Jim

Martin led Pampa's 15-hit attack with three hits each. Martin had a solo homer. Righthander Tom Pollett. 21-6 during the season, was expected to nail down the third Oiler victory, but he lost a 3-2 decision to Jack Morrill. The Oilers' hitting attack flared up again in the fourth game, unleashing 15 hits in a 12-2 win. Fortin delivered three hits while Tims knocked in four runs with two homers.

Lefthander Tom Harrison allowed eight hits and walked only one batter. Harrison had played Army baseball for four years, coming to the Oilers when he was discharged in 1955. He had a 26-5 record for Kilgore in the East Texas League before going into the Army. Albuquerque bounced back to win the next game, 6-5, by scoring five runs in the eighth inning and knocking Dial off the mound Gil Valentin had a home run for the Dukes. Dub Graves had three hits to lead the Oilers.

Pampa wrapped it up the next game, 9-2, as Pollett pitched an eight-hitter and Halter went four for four at the plate with a homer, triple and two singles. Hardaway added to the 13-hit attack with a single and double, knocking in three runs. Ollers vs. Gold Sox

The Oilers took the next game, 10-7, and their second traight playoff championship. Halter led Pampa with three hits and four RBIs. Martin tacked on a two-run homer. Outfielder Taft Wright knocked in four runs with a homer and two singles for the Gold Sox. Little Dixie Series

Pampa would now meet the Corpus Christi Clippers in what was known as the 'Little Dixie Series.

The Clippers had won the Big State title by defeating Waco, four games to two. Corpus had a powerhouse club. Second baseman Ed Charles and pitcher Bill Toshef, a 20-game winner. would move up to the big leagues with the Milwaukee Braves next season. Charles led the Big State League in RBIs, runs scored and triples Rene Vega, who won 28 games, was the winningest pitcher in the minors in '55. Keith Little hit 47 homers to lead the league in that cagegory while Dean Stafford had belted 37 homers and was the club's leading hitter at Even so, it looked like the Oilers would win the opener. With Dial on the mound, Pampa, was leading 5-1 going into the ninth inning. But the Clippers exploded for five runs in the ninth to win, 6-5. Joe Christian led Corpus with two homers and five

RBIs.

Halter led Pampa with three hits and two RBIs. Corpus coasted to a 14-4 the second game behind the six-hit pitching of Noel Oquendo, a 13-game winner during the season. Don Leppert had a bases-loaded homer for the winners while Stafford, Charles and Toshef all had round-trippers.

The Oilers also had some long-ball hitting with Hairston and Hardaway both hitting home runs. Slider had two of Pampa's six hits. Pollett started for the Oilers in the third game and pitched outstanding, allowing ust four hits. But the Clippers scored four unearned runs in the second inning enroute to a 5-2 win Tosheff and Vega combined to pitch an eight-hitter for Corpus. Two of those hits were off the bat of Hairston. Pampa was not destined to beat the Clippers. The Oilers left 14 runners stranded in an 8-2 loss in the fourth and final Corpus hurlers Larry Burgess and Herb Shankman gave up eight hits while Dial was scratched for a dozen, including a pair of homers by playing manager Connie Ryan and Posada.

Dial and Slider had two hits each for the Oilers. Corpus had won twelve consecutive playoff games, so the Oilers had been defeated by one of the best teams in the minor leagues. The Oilers hadn't been doing badly themselves.

Going into the 1956 season, the Oilers had won three pennants and three regular-season titles (Next: Another League)

Battling Back— Defending champion action Saturday in the U.S. Open. Watson is tied with Seve Ballesteros after 54 holes.

Slaughter leads Texas Amateur by 3 strokes

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — John Slaughter faltered midway through the back nine Saturday but recovered to sink two birdies and hold on to a three-shot lead after three rounds of the State Amateur Golf Championship at the Fairway Oaks Golf & Racquet Club.

Slaughter shot a 75 Saturday to give him a three-round total of 214. Mark Brooks, who fired a 72, was in second place going into Sunday's final round on the 72, 7,077-yard

Andy Magee was third with a three-round total of 216 and Bill Holstead fourth at 217.

Slaughter, an All-America at the University of Houston from Abilene, was one-over par for the day and three shots ahead of Brooks, a two-time champion from Fort Worth, when he hit his tee shot on the 524-yard, par-5 14th hole into a divot. His second shot went into a creek.

He ended up taking a double-bogey on the hole. "I just had a bad lie and I decided to go he said. "I tried to hit down on it and I did hit down on it, but it went left into the creek.

Brooks parred the hole, but missed a five-foot putt for a birdie that would have lifted him into a tie with Slaughter. Both players birdied 15 and bogeyed 16, but Slaughter picked up two shots on Brooks on the final two holes. Brooks missed a three-foot putt for par on 17 and Slaughter sank an eight-foot birdie putt on the final

Both golfers had difficulty putting. "It was just one of those days," said

Slaughter, who had four putts lip out of the hole on Saturday. "Except for 16, I thought I put a good roll on all of my putts. Said Brooks. "To hit some of the shots I hit the first man to make a successful defense of his title since Ben Hogan in 1951, played his third round in a solid 70, one under par. Ballesteros, who won his

But they are not alone in the struggle for the title that Watson insists is a necessary credential for golfing greatness and one that Ballesteros places on a slightly lower plane.

Within two strokes is a roup that includes veteran Ray Floyd, the current PGA title-holder, Calvin Peete, the man who could become the first black to win any of the game's majors, and Larry Nelson, a former PGA champ who had given no hint he was ready to uncork an 8-birdie round of 65.

Nelson, 92nd on the season's money-winning list, one-putted nine times on the fearsome Oakmont greens. and vaulted past 22 players to

Also at that figure was Peete, the man who has led the PGA Tour in driving accuracy for three seasons. He converted his specialty and some surprising putting into a round of 70.

Peete was one of 38 players stranded on the course by darkness Friday. He had to return to the course at 7 a.m. Saturday to play one hole. and bogeyed it. Some 12 hours later, he bogeyed it again, a lapse that kept him out of a share of the lead.

Floyd shot a 72 and was only two away at 214.

Dr. Gil Morgan, the non-practicing optometrist who won the first two tournaments of the tour season, was next at 215. He had a 70 that was all but overlooked by the Open

Andy North, a non-winner since he won this title in 1978, and Hal Sutton, the tour sophomore who won the Tournament Players Championship earlier this year, were at 216. North chopped his way out of the intimidating rough to a 72 and Sutton had a 73. John Mahaffey and Joey Rassett, who shared the 36-hole lead, fell victim to varied disasters and dropped back in the pack. Rassett had a 78-219 and Mahaffey, who has twice before seen the Open slip from his grasp, was a shot higher at 79-220.

Jack Nicklaus, at age 43 still seeking a record fifth U.S. Open title, admitted he'll have to wait until next year after a frustrating and, he said, puzzling round of 77 that left him at 224.

But both he and Arnold

Palmer, the man Nicklaus beat in a playoff for the 1962 Open title, received warm. standing ovations from the huge crowd around the 18th green. Palmer shot a 78 and was at 227.

At one time or another Saturday Mahaffey, Rassett. Watson, Ballesteros, Floyd and Peete all led or shared the lead.

Mahaffey and Rassett fell away quickly. Floyd bogeyed two in a row and didn't again get his numbers in the red.

It came down to the last few holes as a battle between three men of enormously different backgrounds

There was Watson, golf's Player of the Year for five of the past six seasons, four times a British Open champion, a Stanford graduate in psychology.

'Best man I've seen from tee to green since Gene Littler.

said the scrawny man with the gleaming gold in his teeth.

"We might just walk away with the whole shebang.'

The words came from Dolphus "Golf Ball" Hull, an itinerant tour caddie who is lugging the bag for the red-hot Calvin Peete in the 83rd U.S. Open Golf Championship this weekend at the Oakmont Club.

"Golf Ball," who has had a tumultuous relationship with PGA Champion Ray Floyd, hired and fired a half-dozen times over 20 years, has found a perfect partnership with Peete, who is threatening to become the Open crown. Starting the third round

Saturday, Peete, 39, a late-comer to the game, was tied with Masters winner Seve Ballesteros and young Hal Sutton at 143, just two shots off the pace set by John Mahaffey and rookie Joey Rassett

'Calvin is a very cool cookie, very quiet," said the veteran caddie. "He never gets mad at me. If we mess up a hole, he just turns to me and says, 'That's all right, baby. We made a mistake. We'll get it back.' Now Ray is very hot-headed. When he has a bad hole, he sometimes chews me out.

The caddie said Floyd, winner of the Masters in 1976 and two PGA crowns. dropped him recently after he showed up 15 minutes late. Insiders said it was about the sixth time Floyd had fired him but always had got him am fired for good or not," Hull said. "When Calvin heard I was available he asked me to carry his bag. He told me: 'I got a lot of confidence in you. He said he caddied for

Peete in the Anheuser-Busch Tournament Williamsburg, Va., and in Pensacola last year, where Calvin won both, and in the Kemper, where he finished Hull said he especially enjoys working for Peete because the latter has such an easy tempo and is one of the best strikers of the ball he has ever seen.

"You remember Littler," he said "He just brought the club back and hit the ball like on a clothes line. Calvin is the same. He is sneaky long off the tee, hardly misses a fairway and if he has a problem it's on the greens. He missed only four fairways in the first two rounds

Dear Abby

Boxer shorts switch bears fruitful results

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A doctor told me that a couple of years ago he read some letters in your column stating that a man's fertility could be related to the kind of shorts he wore. This doctor also said that this theory was scientifieally valid. Will you please run those letters again? INTERESTED MALE

DEAR INTERESTED: Glad to accommodate you. And how appropriate for Father's Day:

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Childless Couple," who were considering artificial insemination. This may help.

For four years my wife and I tried without success to have a child. We were both tested. She was fine, but the doctor said that because my sperm count was so low, my chances of fathering a child were slim. That's when we considered artificial insemination.

I saw a fertility specialist. He asked me what kind of shorts I wore. I told him I had worn jockey shorts for years. He suggested that I switch to boxer shorts - the loose-fitting kind, instead of the snugly fitting jockey type. When he explained why, I thought he was crazy, but I took his suggestion, and four months later my wife conceived! Our baby is due in March. I'm signing my real name, but please don't use it. Just sign me .

DEAR FUTURE: When I read your letter, I laughed and threw it into my wastebasket. But I quit laughing (and quickly retrieved your letter) after reading several more bearing the same incredible

Read on for a short story that may help some for whom pregnancy is inconceivable:

DEAR ABBY: I am glad you printed that letter about jockey shorts. My husband and I had already started adoption proceedings when a neighbor, bless her heart, told me about the big difference my husband's shorts could make. We laughed at first, but two months after he started wearing loose boxer shorts, I got pregnant. We couldn't

We have three beautiful children now, and our family is completed, so my husband went back to wearing jockey shorts. (I also had my tubes tied when the last one was

Thanks for educating the public, Abby. You can reach more people in one day than we could in a lifetime. PAT IN HOUSTON

DEAR PAT: And to make the theory of jockey shorts more binding, try this on for size:

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an article in a medical journal stating that if men continue to wear jockey shorts and tight jeans, the need for artificial insemination will increase drastically!

It stated: "The male anatomy was created so that the testicles draw close to the body in cold weather and drop in hot weather. It is a natural thermostat at work. Interference with this causes a serious drop in sperm count."

The article indicated that American men have increasingly lower sperm counts, and the problem is compounded by the wearing of tight clothing.

For population control throughout the world, wouldn't it be a great idea to export tight jeans? B. McG. IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on your men's underwear debate? We in our brief-type "Fruit-of-the-Looms" remain fruitless, while our brothers in their boxer shorts remain "heir-conditioned.

ROBERT W. IN WALTERBORO, S.C.

DEAR ROBERT: I wish I'd thought of that.

DEAR ABBY: The fact that too-tight jeans may cause male sterility is nothing new. I wrote this little jingle back

"If your jeans are too tight in the crotch 'Your parental potential is bad.

"Better let out your seams just a notch "If you hope to be somebody's dad!"

Wish List meets needs

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (AP) - Some people wish upon a star. At Pacific University the staff wishes upon a specific list of campus needs.

Helen Lewis, assistant director of university relations, came up with the Wish List idea. She mailed a list of "unfulfilled needs and dreams of every segment of the campus" to the university constituency.

Recipients were asked to pick out an item they would like to give to Pacific and send the university a donation for the cost or a portion of the cost of the item. They could donate an actual item if they had an extra one or one that was no longer needed in their home or office.

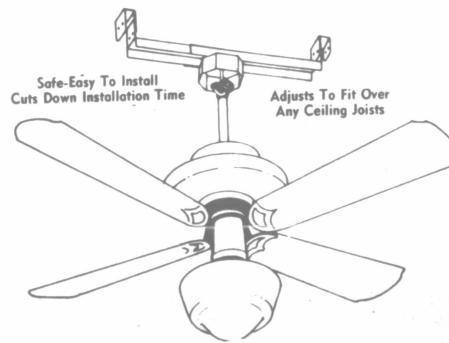

The largest donation received via the Wish List has been approximately $70,000 from an alumnus for the construction of four new, lighted tennis courts.

Others have included two portable microfiche readers for the library, a differential amplifier oscilloscope for science, an analog digital card for computer use. daffodil and tulip bulbs for campus flower beds, and a three-mirror lens and a Fundas lens for the College of Optometry. The most unusual gift thus far has been in response to a request for a human ear for anatomy classes. No, a dedicated alum did not cut off his ear Van Gogh style, but funds were provided to purchase this item from a medical laboratory supply house. They cost $100, incidentally. Still on the list is a human bone priced at $200. Gifts are still arriving in response to the Wish List.

Activities involving the youngest to the senior groups are refreshing, too!

Youth has been redefined today to mean spirit and vitality. Looking and feeling young is easier and more fun than ever. Members of the Sunshine Club of First Baptist Church, youthful senior citizens, get together once a month for a party and take a trip to a far away place once a year. George and Nell Warren planned the details for the 45 who made the trek eastward to Tennessee recently. Their last party was a picnic in the park.

Although these additives go into many processed foods, tanning tablets contain 20 to 30 times what would be found in a normal diet. Some complaints of side effects from tanning pills include nausea, diarrhea, stomach cramps, itching and skin welts have been reported. Tanning pills are also expensive. A month's supply can range from 20 to 30 dollars. Until tests are done to determine the safety of these pills, Texans are advised to stick to the natural means of acquiring a tan from the sun.

Two points to keep in mind are that while we all respond differently to different colors based on good or bad personal associations, our responses are also often conditioned by larger considerations.

And keep that color handy. Your interview may occur in a room whose color scheme unconsciously aggravates your cold feet and clammy hands.

A female dentist in Los Angeles took over an office that had just that effect on her patients, says Mrs. Eiseman. "The light gray walls and light green equipment were intended to be soothing and cool, but the green totally permeated everything and turned it cold. So, following the dentist's personal tastes, we changed the walls to mauve, the carpet to a deep warm wine and added touches of blue-gray in the equipment and the floorboard. You always need a touch of coolness for balance when you use warm tones, and vice versa.

very thrilled with the idea, but the manufacturer of a new device called the Censorview 1200 claims it can give you much greater control over which TV programs they watch and how often they can play their video games - especially when you aren't home. Consumer Reports electronics engineers tested the gadget to see if it could really match the claims.

The Censorview is available from Censorview Ltd., 3303 Harbor Blvd., Suite D-14, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626, for $150 plus shipping. It looks somewhat like a desktop calculator. You use its numerical keypad to program the device to scramble the picture of programs that you don't want the kids to see. The gadget is installed between your antenna or basic cable service and your TV set. Its ac adapter is plugged into a wall outlet.

n't hold the mayo

Many people are uneasy about eating chicken salad, potato salad, and similar dishes at summer picnics because they have heard that foods made with mayonnaise are the most likely to cause food poisoning. according to an American Counsil on Science and Health newsletter.

However, scientists have shown that adding mayonnaise to a food does not make it more dangerous, the newsletter says. Foods containing mayonnaise may actually be slightly safer than similar foods without mayonnaise, because the acid in the mayonnaise slows the growth of the bacteria that cause food poisoning. Mixed foods like chicken salad probably got their bad reputation simply because they undergo a lot of handling during preparation, and this can contaminate them with bacteria.

But while the "mayonnaise theory" has been shown to be a myth, food poisoning itself is no myth and no joke. (Ask anyone who's experienced it.) Outbreaks of gastrointestinal illness caused by bacteria in food are especially common during the hot summer months, when foods may be carried on picnics without proper refrigeration

To prevent bacterial food poisoning, the basic rule is to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Perishable foods (with or without mayonnaise) may not be safe to eat if they have been held at temperatures of 60 degrees F. or higher for more than three or four

One practical way to keep foods safe for a summer picnic is to keep them in a cooler with ice or commercial reusable cold packs until you're ready to eat. If you use ice, remember to pack the food in tight containers or plastic bags so that it doesn't get wet when the ice starts to melt. If you're carrying hamburgers or other raw meat for a cookout, they should go into the cooler, but keep them separate from the other foods. Uncooked meats contain relatively large numbers of bacteria, some of which could be harmful. The common food poisoning types are sensitive to heat, so cooking will kill them, and make the meat safe to eat. These bacteria can cause problems, however, if they contaminate other foods, such as salads, which don't receive further cooking before they are

"If she didn't want to go," he says, "she should have just said so."

None of which discouraged Robert Masello from writing "What Do Men Want From Women?," a book which purports to advise single women on how to find partners in

Given his own track record, single women might wonder where this 30-year-old bachelor gets the nerve

Actually, Masello has had a lot of experience with women, even if it's not all first-hand. For three years he's been writing the "His" column for Mademoiselle magazine.

The monthly column advises women, many of them single, on such matters as how to pick up a man and how to find their type. It has prompted correspondence from women all over the country, and the book takes advantage of the extended exchange.

"The book is based on anecdote and observation. The book is fun," he says, "but I hope with a point."

He also draws on his experience as a single man living in New York and two long-term personal relationships that lasted a total of seven years.

Masello says he'd give the same advice to all women about men:

"Men today are confused," he says, and their confusion stems from women's

Women profess to want sensitive men who don't feel their masculinity compromised, but they actually look for men who are more cavalier and who treat them badly. Masello

If there are cavalier men around, Masello isn't one of them.

He's not the roving bachelor type. When he is involved with someone he wants it to be monogamous, he says. He wants somebody he knows well, who cares about him, and will listen to him drone on about the endless details of his day.

"You can't really invite a woman you've only gone out with once to do that. She'll think, 'This guy is a toad; he is dull, torpid and cheen.'"

While Masello likes a successful and solid relationship, not all men are so thrilled when a relationship is going well.

"There's nothing like a possibly successful relationship getting under way to send some men flying for cover," he says.

Words like involvement and commitment may scare them off because they're ambivalent about growing too close to someone. They view involvement as a confession of weakness or dependence, he says.

Men also don't want to do all the initiating when it comes to dating. They're the ones who have had to summon up the courage, looking toward a possible rebuff.

Masello says, "If there's one masculine prerogative that they're only too willing to share these days, this is the one."

What do men look for in women?
Appearance may be the first thing that turns his head, but physical attributes don't seem to be the deciding factors. Other qualities like compatibility or mutual interests are more important, he says.

When you find someone you want to go out with, Masello suggests something simple, like drinks after work. That way, if things are going well you can slide right into dinner. If it's rotten, it can end in less than an hour.

Masello entered Princeton in 1970 — the first year Princeton admitted women. That was the reason he only had two dates in college.

"There were eight guys to every girl. It was hopeless," he says.

After graduation he went back home to Evanston, Ill., a Chicago suburb, but decided to go to New York and look for a job.

He hired on as a copywriter at Esquire magazine. Later, he and a friend founded a music company that produced radio jingles.

He gradually decided to do fewer jingles and more writing.

Now he contributes to a number of magazines, writing and living in a three-room apartment on the Upper East Side of Manhattan. He goes to museums, galleries and exhibits, activities he also suggests to readers who don't like singles

He's toying with the idea of writing a similar book aimed at men, but currently he's in the midst of writing a novel — "a thriller," he says.

Treating kidney stones

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about medicines that might dissolve gallstones. I was wondering if you could tell me anything about medicines that might dissolve kidney stones.

I've been on a limited dairy product diet and told to drink plenty of water. My kidney stone is the size of a pea. Would it be dangerous if passed? I've been told I do not need an operation.

DEAR READER — It is a safe bet if you pass a kidney stone that large that it will hurt, and I don't mean just a

Yes, there are many different things that can be done to dissolve kidney stones. What should be done depends entirely upon what minerals are in the stone. But regardless of the type of stone, almost everyone agrees that it is important to drink lots of liquids and at least half of the liquids should be water.

This will dilute the urine so there is less chance of minerals aggregating to form a stone. You should pass at least two-and-a-half quarts of urine a day. And you should drink fluids around the clock to keep the urine dilute 24 hours.

The concepts about treating kidney stones are constantly changing. Currently many authorities believe you do not need to restrict calcium in the diet (except for excessive intake) unless you can demonstrate an increased amount of calcium in the urine and particularly increased calcium absorption from your intestine tine.

The crux of the situation is that if you have another disorder that causes an increased level of calcium in the urine and blood, just eliminating calcium from the diet isn't good enough. Your body will just take the calcium from your bones unless the underlying problem is solved and corrected.

The approach to dissolving various types of kidney stones is included in The Health Letter 11-2, Kidney Stones: Treatment Has Changed, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What are platelets? I hear them mentioned more and more. Aspirin affects your platelets to prevent clotting. Are platelets bad for you? Where do they come from and what can you do about them?

DEAR READER — They are cells which are formed in the bone marrow just as red and white cells are, but which are much smaller. There are from 150,000 to 300,000 per milliliter (a teaspoon contains five milliliter)

Whenever the lining of one of your blood vessels is injured, platelets immediately cover the area to start the healing process. If the tear is a little larger the steps that follow produce a blood clot. So it is proper to think of platelets as being the first step in forming a blood clot.

You need them. If you don't have enough you will develop a lot of small black and blue spots all over the body. And you could have a tendency to hemorrhage. Platelets are also called thrombocytes and people without enough of them are said to have thrombocytopenia.

Aspirin and some other medicines act to prevent clumping of the platelets, from thereby preventing the first stage of blood clot formake the

Movie success spurs Superman collectibles

As Superman has gone about his business changing the course of mighty rivers, bending steel in his bare hands and fighting for truth, justice and the American way for the past 45 years, the value of Superman memorabilia has been rising — faster than a speeding bullet, says an expert in the collectibles field.

Spurred on by the recent movies, such items have never been more popular, according to Charles Jordan, editor of Collectibles Illustrated, a national bimonthly magazine published by Yankee Publishing Inc. in Dublin. Collectibles from the '30s, '40s, and '50s are at a premium, he says.

from the '30s, '40s, and '50s are at a premium, he says.

'One of the most prized Superman collectibles is Action Comics No. 1, the comic book produced in 1938 containing the first adventures of the Man of Steel,' said Jordan. 'The book has a current estimated worth of $20,000. The only comic book that is a competitor as the most valuable comic book would be the first Marvel comic.'

Other Superman comic books are not nearly as valuable but they too are sought-after memorabilia items, he adds. Comics in good condition from the '40s generally sell for $15-20; those from the '50s for about $5; from the '60s for about $1 and from the '70s for $1 or less.

"Those comic books with a unique story line are also among the most valuable Superman collectibles," said Jordan. "For instance, there is one comic book which recalled the day President John F. Kennedy filled in for Superman as Clark Kent at a Superman, This Is Your Life party." June 20th

Texas White House remains private home

By SHARON HERBAUGH

Associated Press Writer MORGAN'S POINT, Texas (AP) - Streaks of black mildew stain the limestone exterior of the mansion walls, and weeds have overgrown the sprawling estate once dotted with lush gardens. Worn-out tires chunks of timber and other refuse litter the beaches.

Trains no longer ferry legislators from Austin for galas and for conferences. The ballrooms where astronauts and dignitaries once danced and dined now are silent.

The Texas White House, the celebrated grand manse of former Gov. Ross Sterling, stood vacant for much of the past decade and fell victim to vandals, weather and neglect.

'It takes little imagination to real a magnificent place it must have been 50 years ago," said Pete Dudley, a former caretaker "But there are few people now with the money it would take to keep the place up like it should be. Its enormous size has made it a white elephant.

To passers-by traveling along the winding. narrow road known in the 1920s as the Texas Gold Coast, the stately structure with its portico and sweep of neo-classical columns resembles Ronald Reagan's home at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C.

European aristocrats, oil-rich Arabs and developers often envisioned turning the three-story mansion, 5.6-acre estate on Upper Galveston Bay into exclusive health spas, vacht clubs, restaurants, discos or music conservatories

But each encountered unexpected resistence from neighbors determined to see that the tranquility of this bayshore community 35 miles east of Houston remained undisturbed.

A Houston-based oil and gas company earlier this year was preparing to battle Morgan's Point officials in court to get the community's zoning code overturned to create a condominium complex. The challenge was dropped in April when a Houston businessman purchased the mansion and moved in

"It's not that we don't want to cooperate But this is our home and we don't want all the people and the noise and the traffic that comes with a commercial operation." said one resident who didn't want his name used

Legend has it that Sterling, governor from 1931 to 1933 and founder of Humble Oil and Refining Co., a forerunner to Exxon Co., was perplexed about the kind of home he wanted. When pressed by architect Alfred Finn. Sterling reportedly pulled a $20 bill from his wallet, pointed at the picture of the White House and said. "Oh, hell, make it look like this." Finn did. The 34-room mansion — one-fifth the size of the White House — was completed in 1927. At the time, it was the largest coastal home between Galveston and Miami.

For his money, Sterling got 21,000-square feet of space, including nine bedrooms, 15 bathrooms, seven fireplaces, a dining room that seats 300 and a cedar-line wine cellar. There's also a a sun roof where Sterling reportedly stretched out in a hammock to watch tankers bound for his refineries cruise by carrying the oil that made him millions.

The walls - more than 12 inches thick are constructed of Texas limestone and the foundation is sturdy enough to support a 10-story building, making it soundproof and able to withstand hurricanes

The floors, French doors, woodwork and double staircase are made of maple and the plumbing is solid bronze. Throughout the home are Tiffany chandeliers and silver and gold sconces

The mammoth edifice cost Sterling about $1.4 million. To duplicate it today, architects estimate, would cost about $16 million

Hard times caught up with Sterling. He was defeated for re-election by Miriam disappeared into the abyss of the Great Depression

In 1946. Sterling donated the house and property to the Optimist Club of Houston to be used as a haven for homeless boys called Boys' Harbor An elevator was installed, a junior

Olympic-size swimming pool was added. Woodwork was painted over and linoleum was spread over the floors. The halls and great rooms echoed the shouts of boys who vented their energies by carving names in the

But in 1961, the Optimist Club decided the maintenance bills were too high. Boys Harbor was moved across the road and the mansion - a magnificent shadow from a golden era - went on the selling block.

"It became cheaper to feed, clothe and care for the boys than it was just to keep the place running." said Boys' Harbor executive director Robert Guinn

The late Paul Barkley, a retired Houston banker, bought the house for $92,000 and had planned to turn it into a private yacht club But his neighbors put up such a fuss that he abandoned the idea

After Barkley's death in 1978, the house was sold to Maison Blanche Corp., a Houston-based oil and gas firm

In December, developer Jack Brown was commissioned to draft plans to restore the mansion and transform it into a museum of the White House during the Lyndon Johnson dministration

Brown proposed pumping about $1 million into the project, replacing the Spanish tile roof, refinishing the floors, repairing the elevator to the sundeck and restoring the grounds

Residents didn't object to the idea, only to the method of paying the $10,000-a-month maintenance bills.

Brown proposed building 38 luxury condominiums on vacant land next to the mansion. The units would have been sold on a time-share basis, with the revenues used to maintain the Texas White House and Morgan's Point officials argued that zoning laws only allowed single-family residences and refused to issue building permits. The company filed a state court lawsuit in Houston, contending that condos are single-family dwellings.

20-vear sentences given teenagers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Two teen-agers, including one who married a key prosecution witness, have been sentenced to 20 years in prison for the slaying of a University of Texas student.

Marcial Vela, 18, and Joe Anthony Flores, 16, were convicted Wednesday in the August 1982 stabbing death of Robert Franklin Hogg. of Fort Worth

A jury returned the punishment verdict Thursday.

Last week, midway through the two-week trial. Vela married 17-year-old Esther Martinez, surprising prosecutors who considered her a key witness.

Authorities said they believed Vela and Flores told the girl which of them actually stabbed Hogg, but after Vela married the girl, prosecutors were barred from calling her to testify against him Vela testified that he stabbed Hogg when Hogg came at Flores with a tire iron during an altercation on an Arlington Heights street

Prosecutors said Vela's testimony differed from statements he gave police after his arrest. Vela did not mention the tire iron and at one time said that Flores had stabbed Hogg, they said.

Country - western singer Cathy O'Shea 30s, Miss O'Shea has been chasing the takes a ride on a merry - go - round for a dream of becoming a big star in the recent publicity photo. Now in her mid - business for 20 years. (AP Laserphoto)

She rides a lonely trail seeking the top

By TAD BARTIMUS Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) - The beautiful woman in the pink cowboy hat stands alone in the spotlight. Her outflung arms symbolically embrace the midnight crowd politely applauding her performance.

It is the third time that night, and the sixth day in a row, that Cathy O'Shea has bounded onto the tiny stage and belted out her best to a group of strangers. The red-haired singer is tired. Her throat aches despite the lozenge discreetly tucked between her cheek and gums. She is angry at herself for eating the chili that's caused indigestion all evening.

Cathy O'Shea is chasing The Dream. Capital T. capital D.

She has trouble describing it, but she knows it will come true when several things happen - a long-term recording contract, headliner billing in Las Vegas, a hit at the top of the charts, a five-day work week, enough money to stop worrying about

"that people come to see me for myself, they'll wait in line to hear Cathy O'Shea."

Tpe singer has been chasing The Dream for 20 years. She believes, always, that it's just around the corner, just a day away. "A lot of people out there who work 9-to-5 jobs don't have any dreams," says Miss O'Shea, "and if I didn't believe that someday I was going to be on top. I wouldn't do this. But I know it will have to make it happen.

Miss O'Shea is a country singer. She used to be a pop singer. Before that it was jazz. Before that it was folk. In the beginning, way back in high school in Los Angeles, it was classical music she learned from her mother, a church organist, and her father, a choir director. She made her debut at 16, singing with her brother, Steve, at a Sunset Strip coffeehouse for $10 a night.

"It was going to be just a lark for me," she says. "I went on to college fully intending to be a marine biologist. But then I got a summer job in Oklahoma, singing for $100 a week. I was

Now in her mid-30s, Miss O'Shea says she considers herself lucky to have steady work and credits her husband, Dick O'Shea, for the bookings that earn them a decent living.

"But the life is very, very hard," she says, anxiously eyeing her watch before the first of three 45-minute performances that night in a Reno casino lounge.

There are a lot of pretty little girls out there with some talent who want to get up on that stage. But they soon find out there are tough tradeoffs. You have to want this more than anything else in life. I've made some terrible choices over the years.

The worst came in the late 1960s when her first marriage, to an Oklahoma car salesman, broke up.

"I didn't sing at all for five years — my husband wouldn't let me," she says, a grimace narrowing her large hazel eyes. "Fortunately, he was a heavy sleeper and sometimes I sneaked out to sing a few songs at a local coffeehouse. I tried to make him see that singing was my life, but he wouldn't

And so she left him. Her small daughter stayed

"I gave up my baby to sing," she says, wiping away tears 14 years after the split. 'I knew it was a hard life on the road, and I couldn't do that to her. Fortunately, she still loves me and now she's proud of me. Who knows if it was right or not?"

Her daughter, Wendy, is now a straight-A student at a Texas college. She does not want to be a singer.

In 1981, the O'Sheas spent 273 days on the road. The Cathy O'Shea Show, which includes Dick and four musicians besides the star, grossed $105,000 that year. After taxes, salaries, food, gas, equipment, costumes, commissions and repairs, the net was $7,000. That, says O'Shea, is barely enough for the upkeep on the couple's small rented apartment in Carson City, Nev., and food for their two cockapoo dogs. But Cathy is an experienced finder of silver

"We get to stay in these beautiful hotels, and we are really seeing the country while we're young," she says. "I'm able to write songs on the long drives, and I've got some great fans out there.

"Out there" means Hilton Inns in Kansas, Rodeway Inns in Minnesota, casino lounges in Las Vegas and Reno, and motel bars in Texas and Oklahoma.

The O'Sheas travel in a van outfitted with a small refrigerator, microwave oven, sleeping mattresses, specially-built hangers for the dozens of costumes Cathy needs to make eight changes a performance, the lighting and sound equipment Dick uses as the group's engineer. and the two dogs.

O'Shea, who became his wife's manager the day after their Feb. 14, 1971, marriage, had been an actor before he met Cathy. He walked into a Texas club one night, turned to a friend and said, "I'm gonna marry that girl" when he saw the singer. They wed three months later. The couple moved to California where Cathy helped raise his two sons by a previous marriage. Meanwhile, O'Shea started chasing the brass ring for the women of signed with Monument records, and she had two moderate successes. A switch to MCA brought her two more singles, including her own composition, "Broken Dolls Need Love Too." But the big break eluded her, and eventually MCA dropped her from its stable of country recording artists. Last year the O'Sheas took another blow when Justis, a father figure to them both, died

Sally takes a ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -After 22 years and 57 men, the United States sent a woman into space on Saturday. Sally Ride, a 32-year-old astrophysicist, went right to work, taking the controls for deploying a communications satellite.

"Sure is fun," she told Mission

Neither Ms. Ride nor her four male crewmates aboard Challenger made note of the milestone. But as fire belched from the tail of the shuttle at the beginning of Flight Seven, the voice of launch control exulted: "Liftoff, liftoff of STS-7 and America's first woman astronaut.

Ms. Ride's husband, Steve Hawley, an astronaut who is to fly in space for the first time next year - bade her farewell by radio.

"Sally, have a ball," he said. A crowd estimated at half-a-million urged her upward. Many donned T-shirts with the slogan: "Ride, Sally Ride."

The trip has one more significant 'first.'' If all goes well, Challenger will make the shuttle program's first round trip, Florida-to-Florida, landing at a concrete Kennedy Space Center strip next Friday at 6:53 a.m. And never before have five people gone into orbit on one ship, prompting this boast from NASA: "Space shuttle Challenger has delivered to space the largest human payload of all time - four men, one woman.

Ms. Ride acted as commander Robert Crippen's flight engineer on the Disneyland?" spectacular climb from launch pad 39A over the Atlantic equipped with a rooftop antenna.

The flight was 2½ hours old when Crippen - the only crewmember who has flown a shuttle before - reported that the crew was making use of slack time by straightening up the cabin.

"He keeps saying there's nothing exciting happening," said Ms. Ride. 'I'm not sure I go along with that.''

The others aboard Flight Seven were hardly heard during the early hours of the journey. They are pilot Rick Hauck, 42, and mission specialist John Fabian, 43, and Dr. Norman Thagard, 39.

Thagard, a physician, will conduct experiments - many on himself - to learn why so many astronauts become ill in space. Fabian and Ms. Ride are Patrol both estimated 500,000 people responsible for launching the sawtheliftoff. communications satellite for Canada, and another one for Indonesia, and for using the ship's 50-foot crane later in the flight to release an instrument package and retrieve it.

That maneuver is necessary for later flights when shuttles will haul in ailing satellites for repair.

During 96 circuits of the globe, the astronauts also will conduct more than 20 science and materials processing experiments.
