Rebels Nearing Hanoi

French Retreat Before 3 Crack Red Divisions

HANOI, July 3 - UP - French forces pulled out of Phu Ly, the gateway to the "Mandarin route" into Hanoi, Saturday with three crack Red rebel divisions hard on their heels.

Phu Ly, only 35 miles from Hanoi, was the southern anchor of France's newly revised Red River delta defense line. Thousands of French troops had just retreated to the city in the evacuation of the southern provinces of the delta, when they were forced to pull back again.

The Day River valley, 30 miles south of Hanoi, reverberated with tremendous explosions as French army engineers blew up munitions stocks before the retreat.

The withdrawal was ordered after French tanks and artillery smashed a major Red attack at about noon 10 p.m. on Friday, the French high command said. The French claimed 400 Communists were killed or wounded in the futile attack.

The Reds had the defenders of Phu Ly under constant artillery fire from emplacements on the limestone cliffs across the river. Three Communist Gen. Ho Nguyen Giap's Red division pressed and pounded against the French defenses. Three days ago the Red 304th, 316th and 320th divisions surged into the area on the heels of the retreating French.

The French forces pulled back from the southern delta had joined with Phu Ly's garrison to repulse a defense against the advancing legions, even as the high command debated whether to stand and fight or retreat.

Planes Cover Convoys But Saturday the retreat was ordered and every French plane in the delta was sent up to cover the miles-long convoys of trucks and equipment back with men and supplies.

The bridge across the Day River at Phu Ly was blown up as the French retreated.

Viet Minh raiders hit the withdrawal maneuver 10 miles north of Phu Ly on colonial route one at Nahit. As soon as the Reds engaged the French, rebel re-inforcements were reported rushed up to harass the retreating French.

shoddy service and work not performed. Simon said the hearings here will continue until Congress adjourns about Aug. 1. The committee then will begin field hearings across the nation.

Holiday Death Toll Mounting

Cut UN Funds?

U.S. To Veto China Bid

WASHINGTON, July 3 - UP - Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland predicted without reservation Saturday that Congress will vote to cut off funds from the United Nations if the UN admits Communist China.

"This is one fight we're not going to lose," he told reporters. He said he expects the Senate to attach an amendment to the bill.

Adlai Hits Knowland's UN Stand

PORTLAND, Ore., July 3 - UP - Adlai E. Stevenson Saturday said a recent statement by Senate Majority Leader William Knowland (R-Calif.) that he would move for withdrawal of the United States from the United Nations if Red China is admitted to the UN was "foolish and dangerous."

"Nothing will help communism more than the break up of Allied coalition and the driving of the United States into isolation," Stevenson said at a press conference in his hotel room here.

Knowland said there was likely to be a Communist victory of "no mean proportions" in Indo-China and as a result he expects a "serious effort" to be made to bring Red China into the UN through action by the General Assembly. He said if Red China is admitted he will resign as majority leader of the Senate to devote his full efforts to ending United States membership and financial support of the UN.

Stevenson arrived here Friday night for a week's vacation at an isolated ranch before addressing a state Democratic rally at Eugene next Saturday.

Commenting further on the fight against communism in Asia, the former Illinois governor, said this country must make friends and hold them together "not by threat and intimidation but by persuasion and give and take."

He said statements such as Knowland's were interpreted elsewhere as proof of Communist propaganda that the United States is inflexible and determined to rule the world in our own way.

The 1952 Democratic presidential candidate also criticized some statements made recently by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and said it is "becoming difficult from day to day to tell who is secretary of state."

The Vice President first talks "massive retaliation and no more about sending troops to Indo-China," Stevenson said. He quipped that Nixon is "running far ahead of the field as international irresponsible No. 1 and I am sure he is a great source of anxiety to the President."

House-approved foreign aid bill to deny U.S. funds to the UN if Red China is admitted. He said the same action may be taken on the foreign aid appropriation bill, which comes later.

Violence Claims 124 Lives, Highway Mishaps Take 84

By UNITED PRESS Traffic deaths mounted as the July weekend moved into high gear Saturday with millions of cars jamming the nation's highways.

Late Saturday evening the toll of persons killed in holiday accidents rose to 124, 87 of them in traffic and 20 by drowning. Five other persons died in plane crashes and 12 in miscellaneous accidents.

Four members of one family were killed when their car collided with an empty bus near Mahwah, N.J.

The National Safety Council estimated that 430 persons would be killed in traffic before the holiday period ends midnight Monday. The record for a three-day July 4 holiday is 356 deaths, set in 1950.

All-Time Record of 490 The all-time record of 490 was set during a four-day holiday period in 1950.

Fair, hot weather throughout most of the country lured motorists to the open road in apparently record numbers. The safety council estimated that 40 million cars would be on the move.

But violent thunderstorms early Saturday cut traffic in portions of the Midwest.

In Chicago, 17 persons were injured when a short circuit shot up a street car pole, snapping the trolley power line. About 40 passengers were trapped in the car, and 17 were hospitalized with cuts, bruises and minor injuries suffered in a rush to get out.

Car Short-Circuited The short circuit occurred when the street car ran through a flooded street.

A line of thunderstorms 160 miles long stretched from eastern Iowa across Illinois and lower Lake Michigan.

Skies blackened as the storm hit Chicago with wind gusts up to 60 miles per hour. One gust toppled a 20-foot smokestack atop a 21-story building. It fell on the roof of a three-story building, damaging the roof and stone steps, crushing a milk truck and damaging a car.

Temperatures in the 100s baked the southern Mississippi basin as far east as Alabama. It was almost as hot in southeastern Colorado, Kansas, Missouri and southeastern Nebraska.

Two Perryton girls were killed and two Pampan injured in two separate traffic collisions, marking the first part of the Fourth of July weekend in the area.

The two girls were among the first of the 31 Texans the State Department of Public Safety has predicted will die in traffic during the weekend. National prediction is 430.

Miss Caroline McCree and Mrs. Laveta Williams Wilson, both 17, were killed about 2 a.m. Saturday when the car in which they were riding collided with a gasoline transport truck near Farmworth, nine miles west of Perryton, Mrs. Charlotte Forney, 16, of Perryton, a passenger, suffered only slight injury.

Harold Lewis, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lewis, northeast of Pampa, and William Ralph Milliron, 10, 1017 Huff Road, were involved in a collision early Saturday afternoon at "Four Corners," 800 yards west of the city limits on the Borger highway. Both were taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital, given emergency treatment and released.

Miss McCree was driving her car east toward Perryton, officers said, and it collided with the truck operated by Dale Sill, Lyndon, Kan., who suffered a slight shoulder injury. The truck, headed west, was considerably damaged but the gasoline did not ignite. The car was demolished.

Lewis was headed east on the Borger highway in his car when it collided with Milliron's pickup, headed west. The truck had just made a left turn off the highway when the wreck occurred, the highway patrol reported. The Lewis car was demolished.

A year ago Fourth of July weekend, 1953 - two Wichita Falls men were hospitalized from an accident near Briscoe and there was a minor fender-bumping mishap at Francis and Starkweather, the same intersection where Mrs. Barbara Lueddecke, 412 Hill, and Miss Janaree Boshor, Canute, Okla., were injured in a wreck Friday morning.

Eddie J. Rasco, Sheppard Air Force Base, and Allen L. West, in the July 4, 1953, accident, were hospitalized after their car collided with a tractor-plow combination operated by Harold L. Lee, Wheeler.

May Get Million Bushels

Area Harvesting Nearly Complete

Wheat harvest in the immediate Pampa area was almost complete, but in other sections of Gray county harvest is not expected to be completed before the end of this week.

There still is a large amount of wheat to be harvested in the southwestern part of the county, particularly in the Groom area, as well as that portion of the county near Laketon.

A wide variation in yields has been noted throughout the county this year, according to grain elevator operators. Some areas reported yields as low as three bushels per acre, with others reporting yields of from five to eight bushels.

Apparently the best yields have been in the Groom area, where reports of as much as 25 or more bushels to the acre have been received.

While much of the grain has been of No. 1 quality, most of it has been No. 2 and No. 3. The moisture content has continued to be low, ranging from 11 to 13 per cent.

It is expected that the county's wheat production will amount to between 900,000 and a million bushels from an estimated 90,000-plus harvested acres. The overall county yield is expected to be about 10 bushels per acre.

In other areas of the Northeast Panhandle harvest is reported to be from 50 to 75 per cent complete. Roberts county's harvest is about half completed and should be finished by July 8. The grain there has been tested from 52 to 60 per cent. There was no report as to average yield.

HempHill County Harvest is about 75 per cent complete in HempHill County with yields averaging about eight bushels per acre. While this yield is not good it is better than had been expected. Approximately 95 per cent of the county's 43,000 measured acres are being harvested. Yields have ranged from five

THE MARQUEE

BY DICK KLEINER

Don Herbert, who runs NBC TV's prize-winning "Mr. Wizard" science show, got this letter from a youth listener:

"Dear Mr. Wizard: Do you have any experiments about animals? Our mother thinks it is too dangerous to work with metals and chemistry sets, so if you have any experiments with animals like snakes and bugs we would like to have them."

A chemical child, Noah Clasp, was told by his Ma, with a gasp.

Quit chemistry, Noah.

"Or a nice, gentle poisonous asp."

In their first producing venture, C. W. Christberry, Jr. and David E. Graham are flaunting about every known bit of a super-scientific show in (1) opening a new show in the summer; (2) bringing it into an off-Broadway house by choice; and (3) presenting three one-act plays on a single bill.

"But don't get the idea this is experimental," says Christberry, a tall, blond man with a short, blond mustache. "We just think we're doing the sensible thing."

Under the overall title of "Balloon on a String," the Christberry-Graham team has three one-act plays by Paul Green. Christberry says there've been, on Broadway, successful spotlighting of acting talent alone — such as "An Evening With Beatrice Lillie" — so why not turn the spotlight on a playwright. These are three vignettes by Green, the author of the famous "Lost Colony."

Off-Broadway, Christberry selected Christberry says, because it gave them a chance to save money, yet not sink on cast or sets or other necessities.

"To open downtown," he said, "we'll run somewhere around $35,000. The same thing in a Broadway house, what with higher union scales and theater guarantees, would cost $65,000 to $80,000. This way I can go to a potential backer and tell him honestly that he has a good chance of making a profit. They'll open at the Theater de Lys, which has had a run of hits — like "The Three Penny Opera" and "Bullfight" — and is, according to Christberry, an excellent-equipped theater, although small.

Summer was picked for the opening because Christberry feels the old idea of no openings after May 1 is "silly." His arguments: air conditioning, the influx of tourists and the great success of the late-opening "The Pajama Game."

"We're not in this to have a ball," Christberry said. "We've got 38 backers we have to answer to. This is serious business, and I think we have a good show and at good financial odds, too."

Billy Dew's latest bon mot: "The trouble with people on panel shows is that they say nothing and keep repeating it."

Lola Lee is a pretty and talented comedienne. Right now she's doing her comediennes overcast, appearing with an entertainment troupe the armed forces, sent to Europe with the cooperation of Philip Morris. Lola's letters are full of the excitement of playing to the troops. One paragraph was especially warm:

"We've just finished our show at the U. S. Army Hospital in Frankfurt and in this gal's humble opinion, entertaining in the hospitals is her comediennes overcast, appearing to put a smile on the face of a sick boy who hasn't too much to smile about is the most soul-satisfying feeling, and then, too, we get into Canada and we're able to follow them when they tell their experiences. I can still hear the indignant tone in the voice of the loud little orderly from the lower east side of New York City coming to me in a friendly way, saying, 'hey make ME a male nurse!' As long as they keep their sense of humor, that's the best medicine in the world."

And nice people like Lola Lee do no harm, either.

Trotsky Killer May Get Parole

MEXICO CITY, July 3 —UP—Reliable sources said Saturday that "Jacques Mornard," pickaxe murderer of exiled Communist leader Leon Trotsky, has applied for a parole that probably will be granted.

Mornard, who has been a "model prisoner," became eligible for parole Dec. 30, when he completed two-thirds of the 20-year term to which he was sentenced for slaying Trotsky in 1940.

He made no attempt to regain his freedom at that time, and it would be assumed in turn if he left the protection of the prison walls. Reliable reports Saturday said he has asked the interior ministry to set him free.

The real name of the prisoner, who sometimes calls himself "Frank Jackson," is not positively known, but he has been fairly definitely identified as a Spaniard.

Ike Assistant A 'Playboy' After Hours

WASHINGTON, July 2 —UP—Backstairs at White House: Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President, is a man of great contrasts. During his working hours, which are long, Adams is the living example of primness.

Once Mr. Eisenhower tells Adams that the day's work is done, the white-haired former governor of New Hampshire pulls on a gleaming jacket with matching cap and speeds out through West Executive Avenue in a top-down green convertible.

Kenneth Royall, former Army secretary under ex-President Truman, is an Eisenhower friend and comes to call on occasion. He came in the other day and deposited five children in the President's swimming pool.

Mr. Eisenhower knew more than most people about the illness of former President Truman in Kansas City. The chief executive had a daily briefing on the serious illness of Mr. Truman, the man who tried hardest to keep the presidency out of the Eisenhower grasp.

The President was completely philosophic about Prime Minister Churchill's artistic ability. Mr. Eisenhower painted for the most part, oil portraits of his friends or his three grandchildren. Churchill painted landscapes.

Someone at the White House was comparing Churchill and Eisenhower canvases the other day. Obviously the American officials had to say something nice about the President's artistry as compared with the work of Churchill.

"After all," said the White House policy maker, "He's (Churchill) been at it much longer."

The White House has not announced it, but the President and Mrs. Ike will drive up to their farm at Gettysburg, Pa., Friday. After a look at the renovation of their ancient farm house, the Eisenhowers will motor back to their Catskill mountains hideaway at Thurmont, Md. They'll be home Tuesday.

The Eisenhower establishment at Thurmont is about eight minutes by fast car from the highly secret "underground Pentagon" at Camp Ritchie, Md.

It is better than an educated guess around the White House that when and if an enemy drops a bomb on Washington, before the missile hits, the President will be in the Catskill Mountains.

It would be of relatively little help to a Russian spy to print now how the President travels to his hideaway. The reason is that Mr. Eisenhower seldom travels up in the mountains by the same route.

Many Offer Name For New Texas Lake

RANGER — (Special) — July 1—Numerous names, many showing imagination, are being poured in for Texas' newest lake built through the joint efforts of Ranger and Eastland. The person first suggesting the winning name will receive $100.

Among the entries are Lake Independence, "because we can still do things for ourselves," a reference to the fact that the two cities built the $1,500,000 lake without federal or state aid; twin City Lake, Friendship Lake, Midway Lake and Lake Halfway, the last two being based on the fact that the lake is equidistant from the two cities. Other typical suggestions include:

Lake Necessity, "because the lake is a necessity for both cities," ending the threat of rationing in hauling in water; Lake Providence, Legend Lake and Hidden Treasure Lake, these two alluding to the legends of Spanish silver and California gold run bandits' loot supposed to be buried in that region.

The lake will impound sufficient water for four times the present population of the entire county, will be a recreational attraction and will afford the cities opportunity to obtain new industries. The contest is open to anyone anywhere except the water district board members and contest committee members and their families. Entries should not be based on the names of either or both cities and should be equally appropriate to either city; one entry per person. Deadline is July 15 and entries should be marked "Contest" and mailed to Chamber of Commerce in either Ranger or Eastland.

Bus Business Reported Good

A. C. Howell, owner-operator of the Pampa Bus Line, Saturday night reported business was "pretty good" and that he anticipated no large reduction in the foreseeable future.

Several weeks ago, Howell had said he thought he might reduce the fares — 15 cents for adults, 10 cents for school-age kids — and try and make up for it in business volume.

At the time, he thought business might pick up in the summertime. Saturday he said it had.

Pampa was without a city bus line from Oct. 1 to April 5 when Howell took over. Up till Oct. 1, Jay Nichols had operated the line, but he quit for lack of business.

Howell has two buses, one running east and west, the other north and south. A third bus is a spare. Each bus covers about 150 miles a day. Service is maintained from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

5 Cases On Court Docket

At least four jury cases and one non-jury case were on the docket for jury session of 51st District court here Monday.

The four jury cases to be heard before Judge Lewis M. Goodrich are: F. Harris King vs. June Marye King; G. E. Cree Jr., et al vs. Duggs and Sons Oil Corp.; Ben P. Tuba vs. Elmer Immel, and Pat Shelton vs. City of Pampa. The non-jury case is that of J. H. Slagle vs. J. C. Daniels.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

SO SORRY!—After a collision at home plate the Cincinnati Redlegs' Andy Seminick scores as the ball, upper right, is knocked from Dodgers' catcher Roy Campanella's glove during their game at Ebbets Field. The play occurred when Cincinnati's Roy McMillan hit to left field and Jackie Robinson threw to Campanella who got an error on the play. Redlegs won, 13-1.

PINT-SIZE SCHOLARS—It looks as if tiny Michele Haven is singing or making a speech, but she's actually yawning during the realistic graduation ceremony for kindergarten pupils in Lenox, Mass. Caps and gowns—black for boys and white for girls—were made by the children's mothers and were worn when the diplomas were handed out. This must have made them feel grown up.

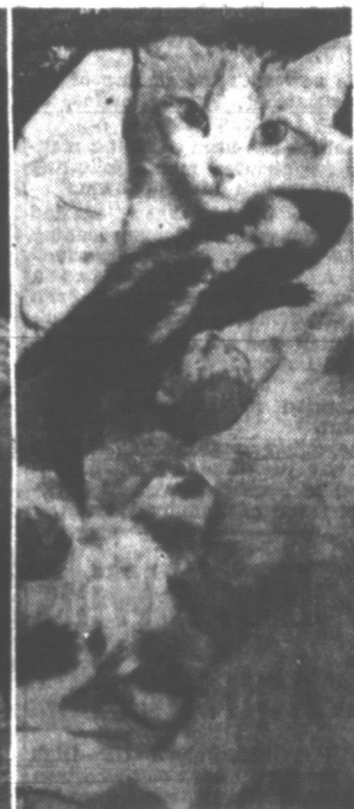

MUST BE TRUE!—It's a well-known saying that people rarely notice a waiter's face and actor Dane Clark tested that theory at Manny Wolf's in New York. He dressed as a waiter and is shown in two photos as he served some patrons. Clark was not offered a permanent job in the restaurant, but he did prove his point; no one recognized him.

HER BEST BOA—Giving an apt illustration of how to literally wrap one's boy friend in knots is Marysia Szmanska, who has an African Rock python entwined about her in London. The 20-year-old Polish girl is visiting the National Aquarium Exhibition and of its 970 exhibits, this reptile is the one Miss Szmanska chose to be photographed with.

SKUNKS ARE HAVING THEIR INNING

FIELD DAYS—Lawrence Sloan is feeding a baby skunk some milk from a doll baby bottle in Minneapolis, Minn., left. That tiny animal was one of seven orphans and Lawrence is doing a good job of keeping it alive and healthy. Passengers aren't weighed for airline trips, but a little skunk had to get on the scales in Miami, Fla., center, as traffic clerk Mrs. Dixie Hooper weighed him gingerly. He was being flown to the University of Puerto Rico for experimental work. In Topeka, Kans., Red, a mother cat, welcomed a homeless baby skunk with a "more the merrier" attitude, right. A dog had killed its mother and now the little skunk feeds and sleeps with the cat's own kittens. It's actually one of the family.

THE MODERN WAY—An employe of a poultry farm in Kingston, N. H., is not playing a game with that inquisitive chicken. He's using an IBM machine card punch to record the weights of pedigreed chicks. The punched cards are used as source records of breeding information, and the new system is aiding poultrymen all over the U. S. to evolve better strains of birds.

NEW DOG—OLD TRICKS—Dog trainer Willie Necker is holding the collar of Watch I, famous jumping dog, at Stand Rock near Wisconsin Dells, Wis., as the dog's successor, Watch II, does the old trick of jumping back and forth to the unusual rock formation. The dogs will do a lot of jumping this summer to entertain tourists who flock to the popular vacation spot.

PRETTY PAIR—Two lovely sights in St. Petersburg, Fla., are June Ramsey and Kay Kayse, strolling along the beach with parasols. The gals were hoping it wouldn't rain and they didn't mind the hot sun as long as they had that protection from getting too much of it.

SAFE!—Patrolman Charles Viola seems to have the situation well in hand as he "brings in" 19-month-old Benjamin Fox who had shed his clothing in order to cope with the heat at Palisades Park, N. J. It didn't take very long for Officer Viola to re-unite the lost youngster with his parents—and with the bathing suit he was so determined to be rid of.

WORTHY CAUSE—Actress Dale Evans is presenting a $10,000 check in Hollywood to Dr. S. G. DiMichael, executive director of the National Association for Retarded Children. The check brings to $25,000 the amount Miss Evans, wife of cowboy star Roy Rogers, has donated to the association. The money represents royalties from the sale of a book she had published two years ago. It's certainly a large check—in more ways than one.

June Permits Above 1953's

Value of building permits issued during the month of June this year was $60,782 greater than for the same month last year, according to City Engineer James Cowan. However, for the first six months of 1954, the value of permits issued by his office was $255,911 less than for the corresponding period in 1953.

Let's Stand Up And Be Counted

How Many Would Sign
The Declaration Today?

Fourth Of July Editorial

by Thaddeus Ashby

An Editor of Freedom Newspapers

I watched a crazy inventor in our town fiddling around with a funny looking contraption he called a "Time Machine." He pressed a row of buttons and turned a sort of a dial of numbers until the digits 1776 popped up.

All of a sudden bells began to ring, whistles went off and a cloud of smoke swirled around the machine until you would have thought it was the Fourth of July. It was.

The smoke began to clear, the inventor spun a wheel, a bank vault type door swung open and there inside a cell surrounded by wires and tubes stood a fellow dressed up in a Colonial suit for a fancy ball, powdered wig, lace hanging out his sleeves and knee britches.

He was a handsome, aristocratic sort of a man. He blinked, extracted a lace hanky from his sleeve and dabbed the smoke out of his eye. We looked at him. He looked at us. I expected him to say: "Where am I?"

But he didn't say that. Instead he said:

"My name is Thomas Jefferson of Monticello. I don't believe I have had the honor."
"You're in the Twentieth Century," the inventor told him. "Don't go away! I want to get a couple of reporters and photographers to record this great event. What do you know?" he shouted in my ear. "It works! Watch him for me!"
The inventor went running off in the direction of our paper. I stared at Mr. Jefferson. He smiled back.
"Could we take some air? It's stifling in here," he said.
"Sure! I'll get my car. Listen, you can't go out in the streets like that. Come home with me and I'll lend you a suit of clothes. We'll get back here for the pictures in plenty of time. I'd like to show you around."
"I should like some tea," Jefferson said.
"We've got plenty of tea," I said. "Let's go."
"How much is tea in this country?" Jefferson asked.
"This country is America. And tea is . . . $1.50 per pound."
"Outrageous," said Jefferson. "If Sam Adams were here, he would throw it overboard. And although I cannot countenance violence, I . . ."
"Here's my car," I said.
"Strange . . . Perhaps we could have our tea while they are hitching up."
"Hitching up? Look, Mr. Jefferson, you are going to find a job of strange things here. This isn't a coach, it's already to go as it is. It has an engine under this hood. It's a . . . horseless carriage."
"Amazing. And on what principle does this engine run, Sir?"
"Well, it . . . It just runs. You put in gasoline, here, see, and then it burns and, well, it's really very simple."
"I see," Jefferson smiled at me.
"You'll get to talk to an engineer," I assured him. All the way out in the house Jefferson kept asking me embarrassing questions.
"What's that?" he pointed to the instrument panel.
"That's a radio. Like to hear it?"
"He listened a moment. 'That's quite enough,' he said. 'And how does this work?'"
"Well, a man talks into a thing called a microphone and the sound is transmitted thru the air and, uh, it comes out here. It's really very simple."
"Simple," said Jefferson.
"A friend of mine owns a radio station," I said. "He'll be glad to . . ."
"What's that?" Jefferson was looking at a neon sign flashing on and off. It said "Beer - Get it Here!"

"That's a neon sign."
"How does it work? Yes, of course, it's really very simple."
"Mr. Jefferson," I said, "I know you were an architect, scientist, inventor, farmer, lawyer, Jack-of-all-trades. Well, I'm not. Everything is specialized today. A mechanic can tell you how our engines run. All I can tell you about is politics."
"Politics? Good," said Jefferson. "My supreme interest. The imperfections, the errors which you have encountered in my day must all have been solved by now. You speed thru space, throw your voice thru the air . . . you must have overcome the problems of government with equal ease."
"Sir," I said. "I believe we're worse off now from the standpoint of government than you were in your day."
"But this mechanical progress," said Jefferson. "Do you mean you have not shown similar progress in the field of government?"
"In my opinion we've gone backwards," I said.
"I can't believe it."
"Here we are, Sir," I said, pulling into my drive.
He looked around. At the electric light switches, the gas furnace, the plumbing fixtures, the radio-phonograph, the quality of printed type on papers and books. We had some tea. After a moment Jefferson said:
"But to me the quick of the ulcer . . . the specialists can explain these mechanical miracles to me. You tell me about politics."
"I got out my history books and showed him how one Supreme Court decision after another had transferred more power to the Federal government. I told him about the Reconstruction Period which violated the rights of the states, how the government got into the business of subsidizing private citizens, creating monopolies, beginning with railroads, ending with airlines and government ownership of eighty corporations operating in competition with private corporations."
I told him how his "poor" schools had become socialized education proselyting for more government. I told him about the income tax, the draft law, our entangling alliances abroad, police actions, and the U.N.

At the end of an hour Mr. Jefferson got up.
"Let's go," he said. "Introduce me to the revolutionaries."
"What?" I said.
"The men who intend to revolt and overthrow the tyrannous government you've described to me."
"Oh, you mean Communists. I don't know any, personally."
"But I understand you to say," said Jefferson, "that the Communists advocate extension of the power of the Federal government. If so, I don't mean them. I mean the Revolutionaries who wish to restore the principles of the Declaration of Independence."
"Oh," I said. "Those men don't believe in violent revolution. Why, they're called Conservatives! Not revolutionaries."
"The name is unimportant. After all, I was called a Democrat. Take me to these Conservatives. I intend to help them with their revolution."
"Well, go, Mr. Jefferson," I said. "I'll take you to them. But I don't think they'll be interested in a revolt. If you start talking about revolt they'll think you're some kind of a dangerous radical."
"I was," said Jefferson. "Shall we go?"
"Who do you want to see first?" I asked, not knowing what to do.
"Take me to the outstanding man in your community. As you know, the signers of the Declaration represented all the professions. I should like to talk to the men in corresponding professions today."
"O.K.," I said. "Let's start off in alphabetical order. What was John Adams?"
"Second President of the United States, Sir," said Jefferson.
"I mean what trade was he working at when he signed the Declaration?"
"Lawyer," said Jefferson.
"Then I'll take you to the best lawyer in town," I said. "But do you mind changing out of those knee britches and taking off that wig?"
After ringing for a special holiday appointment, driving downtown in ten minutes, looking for a parking place for twenty, we were admitted to the law offices of Wiley, Craft and Schuyler.
"Mr. Schuyler, Mr. Jefferson," I said.
"Jefferson?" said Schuyler, laughing. "Name is familiar. Any relation to THE Thomas Jefferson?"
"I am the son of Peter Jefferson of Shadwell, Albemarle County."
"Ah, yes," said Schuyler, meaning: "THOSE Jeffersons, of course!"
"They tell me you're the best lawyer in town," said Jefferson.
"I'd like to know what action you would be interested in taking about the Income Tax?"
"Certainly, Mr. Jefferson,"

"Why, I assume they made out all right. We won the war, didn't we?" asked Schuyler.
"The majority of them suffered deeply," said Jefferson. "Thomas Hayward, a farmer, lost $50,000 when the British seized his estates. He was thrown into prison, where he composed popular patriotic songs. Would you have signed, Mr. Schuyler, if you knew you'd lose your fortune and be thrown into prison? They pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor. Would you?"
Schuyler sat staring at his hands, clasped over his vest. He looked up at us, lowering like a bull.
"Get out of here!" he cried. "What right have you to bait me like this? Would you? Would you have signed?" he shouted at Jefferson.
Jefferson got up, smiled at Schuyler pityingly, turned and walked to the door. I followed him. Jefferson turned toward Schuyler, snarling his rage with gentle irony.
"You wouldn't believe me if I told you, Mr. Schuyler," said Thomas Jefferson. Schuyler sat, his mouth hanging agape, staring at us stupidly, and his eyes became very frightened.
"See what I mean?" I asked as we got into my car. "I don't believe you," said Jefferson. "Not yet. Take me to a brewer."
"Sam Adams was a brewer. He's next on the list and the most fiery fighter for freedom I knew."
"I'll take you to see George Blatenbrau," I said. "He's a conservative."
"Have you no radicals to show me?" asked Jefferson.
"Well, darn it," I said. "The men whose thinking is closest to yours, who believe in the Declaration of Independence, are called Conservatives."
"All right, Blatenbrau," said Jefferson.
"Blatenbrau was a fat German with a butch haircut. He contributed liberally to the Republican Party, and he was one of the most loyal people to American principles I knew."
"We don't have much time, Dutch," I said, as we entered his office. "This is Jefferson. He wants to know if you'll join a movement of revolt against the Income Tax and all the other governmental restrictions we're up against."
"Certainly, I will choin," said Blatenbrau.
"I want you to understand," said Jefferson. "This means fighting, perhaps even laying down your life for liberty. Do you know the last line of the Declaration?"
"Yes, I memorized it when I became a citizen. It was mutually pious to each other one life, our virtues, and our sacred honor."
"I'm glad to meet you, Sir," said Jefferson. "Would you actually sign such a pledge?"
"Yes, vor vat goot it would do," said Blatenbrau.
"Jefferson doesn't mean merely to sign as a gesture, I believe. He means to be actually willing to go to jail if it came to that, to refuse to pay your income tax, to organize active resistance to every part of our government which has betrayed the principles laid down by the Founding Fathers."
"Wait a minute," said Blatenbrau. "I'm chust a brewer. Not a big singer with my brain. Vat would happen to my wife and children, if I was put in chail?"
"Did you know that Sam Adams was also a brewer?" asked Jefferson. "He was a small time brewer, but he was a fighter for freedom for yourself and the sake of your children. He said: 'I should advise persisting in our struggle for liberty, tho' it were revealed from Heaven that we were to perish and only one of a thousand to survive and retain his liberty! One such freeman must possess more than a thousand slaves, and let him propagate his likes and transmit to them what he has so nobly preserved.'"
"I agree with dot idea," said Blatenbrau. "But I wish to stay alive vor de sake of my children, so I can teach them de ideas of liberty. If I am put in chail my children will die of starvation. Zen vat goot is it to propagate my like and transmit to sem vat I so nobly preserved?"
"Brewer Sam Adams" served thru our war for independence," said Jefferson. "His health was broken. He died in 1788, survived by his father. The father spoke those words, he gave his only begotten son the cause of liberty, and was unable to propagate his creed."
"I do not wish to lose my son," said Blatenbrau. "Do them wish to lose theirs," said Jefferson. "But they could not love their sons half so well, loved not their liberty more, Abraham Clark, a signer from New Jersey, saw his sons captured by the British. They were thrown in a foul prison and tortured because their father was a signer."
"I will not listen to you, Mr. Jefferson," he said. "I should want such a ting to happen to my son."
"You are concerned about our loss of liberty, Sir," said Jefferson. "That is why you give money to the Republican Party. But unless you put liberty first, before life, fortune, family, and all other things, you will lose it. You said you would sign the Declaration, Sir. But would you sign it if it meant losing your son?"
"Would you?" asked Blatenbrau.
"I have already seen all my sons die, Sir. I can answer, yes, yes, and again, yes. I would sign it again, even if I knew that action of mine caused my sons to be stricken. I would sign it again, Sir, if it meant losing everything. At the time, we knew for many of us, it did mean losing everything."

The brewer stepped backward a few paces. "I don't know vat you mean, 'sign it again!'" Sweat broke out on the brewer's forehead.
"Forgive me," said Jefferson. "I cannot speak for you. You must decide for yourself. Goodbye, Sir. Forgive me for raising a conflict in your heart."
We left the brewer biting his lip and frowning his brow.
"Let's see a farmer," said Jefferson. "Farmers understand liberty better than most men."
"Here's a friend of mine, name of Jefferson," said Blatenbrau. "Jefferson told Farmer Gimmy what he had in mind."
"Sounds like a Red plot to me," calculated, Farmer Gimmy. "This is just the opposite." I said. "Jefferson wants to restore Constitutional government."
"Would I lose my wheat support checks?"
"Yes," I said.
"Milk support checks?"
"Yes," I said.
"Butler?"
"Fraid so."
"Are you crazy?" asked Farmer Gimmy.
"John Hart was crazy," broke in Thomas Jefferson.
"Who was John Hart?" asked Gimmy.
"Just a simple farmer," said Jefferson. "He signed the Declaration of Independence. He was 85 years old when he signed. He had a lot to lose. A wife, thirteen children, not much material wealth, except 400 acres of farm land which he loved, along with his grist and saw mill, which he built by hand. After the Declaration was signed, it was transported to King George who gave the order that those who signed it should be hunted down and hung. In a few months the King's hired soldiers reached John Hart's farm. John had to leave his sick wife in bed. He told his thirteen children to take to the woods."
"What happened to him?" I asked.
"Hart spent a year hiding out in the woods, begging bread, eating berries, hunting, always hiding from the British soldiers. He wouldn't leave the area because he hoped to return and rescue his sick wife. When he finally returned his wife was dead. His mill was burned, all his acres were smoke-blackened. His health and heart were broken. He died in 1778, even before knowing whether the Americans would win the war. Yet I know Farmer John Hart would sign the Declaration again, if he were asked."
"How do you know?" asked Farmer Gimmy.
"I know," said Jefferson. "That farmer loved America and the liberty it stood for, more than all the things he lost, more even than his own life."
"Do you think I don't love America?" demanded Farmer Gimmy.
"Not more than your subsidies," I said.
"Wait a minute," said Farmer Gimmy. "I'll sign your document, on one condition."
"Condition?" asked Jefferson.
"That all the others getting subsidies, the labor union men, the business man with his tariffs, the rest of them sign it first, and agree to give up their subsidy checks too!"
"If the men in Philadelphia had each waited for a member of a different occupation to sign it first, do you think we would have ever won our Independence?" asked Jefferson.
"Who did sign it first?" I asked.
"The man who had the most to lose," said Jefferson. "John Hancock, one of the wealthiest men in America. He could have refused to sign . . . he would have risked his fortune, except loss of his self-respect. But he chose to risk everything."
"You ask too much!" declared Farmer Gimmy. "Pledge your life, your fortune, and your sacred honor," said Jefferson.
"What do I get out of it?" asked Farmer Gimmy.
"Lewis Morris was a rich farmer. He had nothing to get out of, by signing and everything to gain by refusing. He signed. The British desecrated his manor house, set fire to his 1000 acres of trees. His family endured seven years of hiding and hand-to-mouth living."

"Didn't they have friends?" asked Farmer Gimmy.
"Well," said Jefferson. "Thomas McKean, another signer, said: 'The consequence of signing) was to be hunted like a fox by the enemy, and (disliked) by those who ought to have been my friends. I was compelled to remove my family five times in a few months, and at last, fixed them in a little log house on the banks of the Susquehanna, more than a hundred miles from his place; but safety was not to be found there; for they were soon obliged to remove again, on account of the incursions of the Indians.'
"Did many of them die before the final victory?" I asked.
"Some," said Jefferson. "Philip Livingston, a signer from New York, was hunted by the British along the Hudson like a common thief. He died in 1778, without knowing whether his act of signing would bear victorious results. I cannot tell you what you would get out of it," said Thomas Jefferson. "Many of those who signed were sustained only by their belief in freedom, the freedom America stood for then."
"Times have changed," said Farmer Gimmy.
"The issues have not changed," said Jefferson, sternly. Then he changed, and his voice sounded sad. "But you may be right that men have changed. Come," Jefferson said to me.
We drove back to town without speaking. We stopped off at my house so Jefferson could change back into his sullen suit. When we arrived back at the Time Machine in the inventor's lab, the place was deserted; the reporters had gone.
"Won't you wait until my friend the inventor can get the photographers to come back. They won't believe this without pictures," Jefferson said to me.
"No," said Jefferson. "I am satisfied that you are right. You have gone ahead in science, but backward in philosophy. There is no point in staying."
"Wait," I said. "There are some people, not just reporters, scattered here, distant places all over America, just a few, called Libertarians. I met some of them at the Congress of Freedom in Omaha."
"They signed a policy statement which called for your Declaration. There are others, some of them just waking up to the necessity for making a strong, extreme stand for liberty. If you would stay in the States, I know you would be back to my own time. I envy you your automobiles, your electric lights, I shall tell Ben Franklin about all these things. But we were free men in my time. For that I would give up anything else. If you get enough men together, so you are successful in restoring freedom in America, you will know what I mean."
"I'll sign," I said.
"Tell them, if they ever falter, the dying words of John Morton, a signer from Pennsylvania. Morton died in 1777, when all our hopes seemed lost and the Declaration appeared to have failed for lack of support. Many of Morton's friends were Tories and loyal to the King. They had turned against him when he signed the Declaration. Tell them," Morton said "that they will live to see the hour when they shall acknowledge it to have been the most glorious service that I ever rendered my country." These Morton died, sure in his soul that freedom would win. Goodbye, and God grant that you will find signers of a new Declaration in your time," said Thomas Jefferson.
He closed the vault-like door behind him. The lock clicked. Lights flashed. After a moment I opened the vault. It was empty.

Now we are without Jefferson's help.
Can you see a new Declaration of Independence, reworded to fit our needs? Could we use this one paragraph from the Official Policy Statement adopted by the Congress of Freedom:
"WE OPPOSE ALL GOVERNMENT ACTIONS WHICH TAKE BY FORCE, OR THREAT OF FORCE, THE MONEY OR PROPERTY OF ONE MAN TO GIVE TO ANOTHER."
That would declare our independence from bad government. If the idea were widely supported it would overthrow the Federal bureaucracy! And without any violence.
I would sign that Declaration myself, then look for new signers. How about you? Would you sign?

describe Mays. The Giants just mumble when asked about him. "He's Willie Mays, that's all," says Red Maglio.

Leo Durocher perhaps gives you the best description of Mays. "One word from me and he does exactly as he pleases," says Manager Durocher. "He hits the way he pleases, runs right through stop signals on the bases, then makes the extra base. He plays center field the way he wants to and not along the ideas of anyone else. When I wigwagged him to play in, he played out. When I wigwagged him to play out, he played in."

When Mays gets hot, he really burns up the league. After his 23rd hit, he had beaten Warren Spahn and the Braves and given him the home run leadership in both leagues. Mays' batting average for 22 times at bat was .636, for he had 14 hits. Since he went above .300, May 26, he has batted .359. In an earlier streak, he hit .700.

The veteran southpaw, hampered by a sore arm the past six weeks, struck out seven in racking up his fourth win in 12 decisions. It was Keilner's best game since May 9 when darkness ended in a game with New York at 4-1.

The only trouble Keilner experienced was in the third, fourth and ninth innings. A double play erased the threat in the third, one run scored in the fourth on Karl Olson's single and two more scored in the ninth on Grady Hatton's triple and pinch hitter Del Wilber's single.

The Athletics rapped five Boston pitchers for 13 hits including Gus Gernert's 14th homer of the year, a two-run blast to the left field. It was his seventh off Boston pitching this year and put him in a second place tie with Al Rosen of Cleveland in the American League homer derby. They are only one behind Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees who has hit nine of his 15 homers off Boston hurlers.

Starting pitcher Truman Cleveland lasted only a part of an inning because of a pulled muscle in his right arm. Then the Athletics proceeded to get two runs apiece off Sid Hudson and Russ Kemmerer in the third and fourth innings. Philadelphia got three more in the fourth on four hits off Hector (Skinny) Brown, the fourth Boston pitcher. The loss was charged to Hudson, his third in as many decisions.

Distance Turns West Coast Major League Franchise Bid

EDITORS NOTE: This is the last of a series of four dispatches on major league franchise shifts. This one deals with Los Angeles and San Francisco.

By HAL WOOD
SAN FRANCISCO, July 3 (UP)—Los Angeles and San Francisco have the greatest potential of all major league "gold mines" but ironically, they also have more complications in obtaining franchises than any other cities.

The lack of ball parks of major league standards plus adequate parking for automobiles, and 2. The complete disruption of the Pacific Coast League which would occur if either or both Los Angeles and San Francisco moved to the majors.

ly votes to expand to 10 teams, it is not likely that the West Coast will get big league baseball in the next year or so. After years of ill-founded excitement and optimism brought on by rumors that the Browns, Braves, or Athletics were moving west, "within the next 30 days," the people of both cities have settled down for some long range planning.

So there is a bond issue for a new $5 million park to be voted on in November. There is a catch to it, however. Before the bonds can be issued, even if the voters approve, negotiations must first be completed for a major league franchise. Work on the stadium would not begin until a big league team was a certainty.

By UNITED PRESS
Los Angeles, Calif. (AP)—Dallas' veteran first baseman, increased his batting average 11 points last week and his .385 percentage still tops the Texas League, latest official averages disclosed. The averages include all games of Wednesday, June 30.

Dallas' Russ Clarkson, who has been in and out of the lineup because of injuries, fell off in his home run hitting. But his 20 circuit clubs were still good for first place, one more than the 19 by teammate Willie Brown and Harry Haelst of Shreveport.

We Hold These Truths...

Independence Day is a time to review some of the principles advocated by our forefathers in the famous "Declaration." Through the ages, the old have explained to the young the self-evident truths: "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Life is one of the principal God-given rights, and what better illustrates this than the family, the incubator for our future adult citizens. Liberty is the individual's right to individuality. As such, it is so many things, eluding definition, just as surely as Liberty itself escapes those who hold it carelessly. Among the things it means to all are the rights of free press, speech, worship and assembly. The pursuit of happiness is exemplified by our children, playing together, free from fear.

How they shouted! What rejoicing!
How the old bell shook the air,
Till the clang of freedom ruffled,
The calmly gliding Delaware!
How the bonfires and the torches
Lighted up the night's repose;
And from the flames, like fabled Phoenix,
Our glorious liberty arose!
That old State House bell is silent,
Hushed is now its clamorous tongue;
Still is living — ever young;
And when we greet the smiling sunlight
On the fourth of each July,
We will ne'er forget the bellman
Who betwixt the earth and sky
Rung out, loudly, "Independence";
Which, please God, shall never die!

from "Independence Bell — July 4, 1776"—author unknown

THE FOURTH IS FUN... and independence is something to celebrate... and pray for...

BET THERE'LL BE A LOVELY DISPLAY at the Country Club this evening... The fairytale colors can usually be viewed from a long ways off... Still remember what a grand time the kids had last year. In our day we had no such extravaganza but do remember vividly the fat strings of "baby crackers" and the little black pills that turn into lovely wiggy ash "snakes" Very early in the morning, the popping of fireworks would awaken us. Glad that the sale and use of fireworks are restricted though. Sometimes there were some really serious accidents.

THESE MUMPS, they're still with us. Dr. Brauchle has recovered from his bout we understand... Mrs. George Cree Jr. wasn't able to attend her own party Tuesday because her cheeks bloomed that very morning... It was a very lovely party, Fanny, but not as much fun as if you'd been there. Margaret Holt pinched her with her co-hostess Mrs. G. Cree Sr. at the luncheon-bridge in the Amarillo Club... twelve tables I believe there were. Peg wasn't one of the lucky ones to be awarded the ivy centerpiece for cutting high... Could have used one of those silver and crystal prizes too... but no such luck. Margaret by the way looked especially attractive in white polished cotton and real-Frenchy-looking shoes

JESS O'BRIENT could only be nicer and cuter if she were twins... Another very lovely person is Mrs. Tom Rose Sr. Have you seen Harriet Schwartz this summer? Our little is growing up!... ditto Greta Miller and Phoebe Carter. Speaking of the young and beautiful, feast your eyes on Anita Southard... How fresh and young can you get?

WELL GIRLS, CURSE THE POWERS THAT BE in the fashion world as you will but they do manage to supply us with a new look every new season, particularly for fall... Wonder when Epitosis Sigma Alpha girls plan to have their annual (I hope) fashion show? Heard that Mrs. Terry Cully, sometimes called the Marilyn Monroe of the Pampa School system — is willing and qualified to give instructions on the proper way to model... Hope this gets underway even though we are not exactly the model type... Would help 'em sure... We're still plugging for male models... Love the new black and pink combinations so popular for men now... like Kay Fancher's pink and black sport shirt.

OF COURSE IT REALLY DOESN'T MATTER BUT... Bob Mitchell — at a local furniture store — has the prettiest big brown eyes, although he may not appreciate my saying so... Mrs. Tex Evans was spotted in a handsome outfit of avocado green... we miss Mrs. Louis Clark who has gone East for the summer... What is her tall boy doing these days?... also East for a few months is Nell (Mrs. Bill) Kelly... saw Sis Ledrick who looks too fragile to cope with such husky children... Maybe she does as I often do... lets them cope for her... Mrs. Clayton-Husted and daughter, Glenda are seen many mornings swimming together... Add lawn mower haircut addicts, Bill Webster.

HEARD SOME VERY NICE THINGS about Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tooley's bright daughter, Jo, whom you would know in a minute if you'd never seen her before... She's that much like her affable parents... She's off to church camp now at Cedar Glen.

BECAUSE OF THE LONG WEEKEND there will be golfing Monday at the local course. The Club will be closed Tuesday instead... Heard that Lulu Kuhn dug for a precious ball in the water hole on the back nine and pulled out a big goose egg. Those cool and placid geese ought to have a sedative effect on tempers that seem about ready to explode at that point on the course... The young-uns are playing too. Among these are offspring of the Grahams, Cree, Finnells and McMurtlys.

WISH ALL COULD HAVE Garry Nell Griffith's recipe for shrimp creole. Another marvelous cook serves praline cookies for dessert with those yummy cream tacos of Betty Mark's. Peg printed it about this time last year I believe. Here are the cookies, almost as rich and even better according to this accomplished cook than praline candies... Sara-Meaders'

PRALINE COOKIES
1/4 cup butter
1 1/2 cups brown sugar
1 tsp vanilla
1 cup pecans
1 egg
3/4 cups flour
Cream butter well. Add sugar and egg. Add flour, vanilla and nuts. Mix well. Shape in balls the size of a nut and place on buttered cookie sheet and flatten out to about 1/8 of an inch thick. Bake in 375 degree oven for 12 minutes or until nicely browned. Makes three dozen cookies.

Neighbor of Dow's on Mary Ellen Street must have gotten a jolt if they looked out the window Friday morning and saw carloads of women casually strolling into the house attired in apparel which was extremely informal to say the least. Collette, Sophie Rasmussen and Helen Tuit "kidnaped" guests for an early morning coffee bridge. Everyone had to come exactly as they were or pay a fine for each article added. There was quite an interesting array of unmentionables! Van Finnell, Katie Key, Ruth Smalley, Betty Whitney and Betty Farrow were the lucky winners of some of those handsome enamel and copper original earrings of Collette's.

By now,
Your Peg.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Friend Grace
Would you or any of your readers be able to help me?
I am all alone since my husband passed away this past month. I just can't seem to carry on by myself. Since my husband is gone I am so lonely.
I have tried to find work but when you are past 50 you just can't find a job.
So here I am with doctor bills and a home that is not paid for. If only I could find work. Maybe I could be a housekeeper or get sales work in a department store. I might be a seamstress or kitchen helper, even in a factory maybe.
I am still able to turn out a good day's work if only I have a chance.

Dear Mrs. T.
Don't sit at home and wait for a job to turn up.
Make the rounds of the factories in your area and of other places where you feel you are capable of holding a job. Being over 50 isn't considered the handicap it once was and I am sure that if you persevere you will find a job.

Don't overlook reading the help wanted columns in the newspapers. You might find someone offering the very kind of a job you can do best.

HOBBY CLUB
Dear Grace Friend
I wish to acknowledge the service you have rendered by publishing my letter in regard to starting the creative Hobby Club for adults.

I have received a few replies to date; however, the letters have given the impression that this is a hobby club for women. This is not the case. The club would be for a mixed adult group, both men and women.
Would you be so kind as to publish a supplement to the previous letter stating the fact?
E. W. B.

Sound Off By A Leaguer

If there were ever someone who gets things done quickly and efficiently, that someone is Lillian Jordan. She is a hard worker and a good one and we're more than delighted to see that she's heading up the committee on Jury Service for Women for the Pampa League of Women Voters. Texas is one of only six states that will bar women from jury service on the basis of sex. Now we wouldn't for the world try to tell you how to think, for we're just not that kind, but we do hope that between now and November, you'll try to find a little extra time and read up on this question. It's one you'll have to answer soon for it is to be one of the Texas Constitutional Amendments to be voted on this coming November.

Speaking of elections, did you realize that the first primary is just around the corner, so to speak. It's the 24th of July, a Saturday, and we also understand that both party precinct conventions are to be held on that day. Why don't we make a big red circle around that day and make plans to be there.
We've heard more complaining this year about changes in the Democratic and in the Republican party than we have ever noticed. If we REALLY want to see some changes, here's the only sure-fire method to do it. Start right here at the "because" level and do something about it. Of course, we realize that this is easier said than done.
If you've ever attended a precinct convention, you've really missed something. Call up some member of the League of Women Voters and tell them you'd like to go along... for you can be sure that most of us will be there. Or call up a neighbor and take them along.
WE'LL SEE YOU JULY 24TH AT THE PARTY PRECINCT CONVENTION!

Cutting and chopping should not be done on pastry boards, because the smooth surface of the board will be damaged. Pastry boards must be smooth to roll ahead dough, unless a pastry cloth is used.
Diamonds that are worn often should be cleaned once a month to keep their sparkle. Detergent in a cup of steaming water is all the cleaning matter necessary.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

One way to lose friends is by always having to be right and by being determined to make the other fellow see things your way. That attitude makes for irritation with people and a feeling of superiority toward them. It's the attitude of the always-right man who said:
"You don't have to agree with me — but you must admit I'm right."

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

GO FORWARD

This is a time when leaders of governments from all parts of the world are gathering . . . that a nation or group of nations might go forward toward peace.

In Exodus 14:15, we find these words: "And the Lord said unto Moses, wherefore cry thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward."

It is time for the people to make the consecration and go forward with God. And when peace (as only God can give) has come to us, then we can sing this song with Moses found in Exodus 15:2: "The Lord is my strength and song, and He is become my salvation: He is my God, and I will prepare Him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt Him."
Let's go forward with God!

U.S., Canada Rigs Dip 53

DALLAS — A total of 2615 rigs was active in oilfields of the United States and Canada for the week of June 29, 1954, according to a report to American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors by Hughes Tool Company.

This compares with 2668 reported a week ago, 2692 a month ago, and with 2825 in the comparable week of 1953.

A comparison by principal areas for the past two weeks shows:

Pacific Coast, 138, down 1; Oklahoma, 211, up 1; Kansas, 178, up 11; Rocky Mountains, 240, down 20; Canada, 118, up 9; Ark-La-Tex 172, same; West Texas and New Mexico, 473, down 10; Gulf Coast, 531, down 24; Illinois, 138, down 8; North Texas, 222, down 11.

Moderate Hike In Oil Production

Despite increasingly vigorous competition from other Middle Eastern areas, a moderate increase in crude oil production was achieved during 1953, the Arabian American Oil Company reported Saturday. The company also reported substantial contributions to Saudi Arabia's social and economic growth.

In its report of operations, presented to the Saudi Arab Government and printed in both Arabic and English, Aramco showed 1953 crude production of 208,294,245 barrels, or 844,642 barrels daily. The comparable 1952 figures were 301,860,850 and 824,758.

Miller has succeeded Young as superintendent. Both Adams and Hunter began in the Pampa plant's gas department, Adams in 1933, Hunter one year later. Young first joined the company in Tonkawa, Okla., and was appointed superintendent in 1949. Miller joined the concern in 1947 as junior mechanical engineer. He was area gas engineer in Tulsa before getting the Pampa appointment. He, his wife, and three children will live at the plant.

Egyptian-American Names Officers

HOUSTON, July 3 — Appointments to key positions in the newly formed Egyptian-American Oil Company were announced Saturday by Millard K. Neptune, president of Flatte Pipe Line Company. Neptune recently was named manager of Egyptian-American and assumed his new position July 1.

Egyptian-American Oil Company will operate and manage the 75,000-square-mile petroleum concession recently granted by the Republic of Egypt to Concora Petroleum Corporation. The concession will be assigned in the near future to subsidiaries of Continental Oil Company, the Ohio Oil Company, Cities Service Company and Richfield Oil Corporation.

William F. Perriman, who formerly represented Concora Petroleum Corporation in Cairo and who negotiated the concession, will join Egyptian-American as assistant manager in charge of financial and governmental affairs.

James S. Royds, Denver, Colo., presently Rocky Mountain region exploration manager for Conoco, will become exploration manager of the Egyptian venture.

Robert Blair, Salt Lake City, Utah, division geologist for Continental, will become chief surface geologist for the Egyptian-American Oil Company.

Sam Leonard, Houston, assistant director of Continental's employe benefits division, will transfer to Egyptian-American Oil Company as controller.

Chief geologist for the new organization will be Don E. Eicher, who presently is supervisor of exploration for Arabian-American Oil Company in New York.

All of the five key men, along with Mr. Neptune, will make their headquarters at Cairo.

Foreign Oil Import Curb Battle Is On

WASHINGTON, July 3 — UP — The battle to curb foreign oil imports grew in intensity this week and no one would forecast how and when it will end.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America kept the ball rolling with a new-type reciprocal trade proposal aimed at the "big five" importing companies. In substance, it would slap a $1.05-a-barrel tax on all Middle Eastern imports in excess of 500,000 barrels daily.

On another front, coal producers who are steadily losing their markets to cheaper oil and gas, made new pleas to President Eisenhower for help. The chief executive didn't give them much encouragement. He had refused before to interfere in the oil import situation on grounds it would clash with his own foreign trade program.

Issue is Avoided

Congress avoided going on record on the issue by extending the present reciprocal trade act for one year. This means that the next Congress, whether Republican or Democratic, will have to grapple with it.

That is the IPAA's target. It also is the objective of the coal operators and the nationwide committee on industry, agriculture and Democratic, will have to grapple with it.

George B. White Is Promoted

DALLAS, July 3 — Promotion of George B. White, field representative in Pampa, to district representative in Wichita Falls, for U.S. Steel's Oil Well Supply Division was announced today by William Mistkinis, Central Midwest Area manager.

A native Texan, White joined "Oilwell" in 1930 at the division's Anson, store.

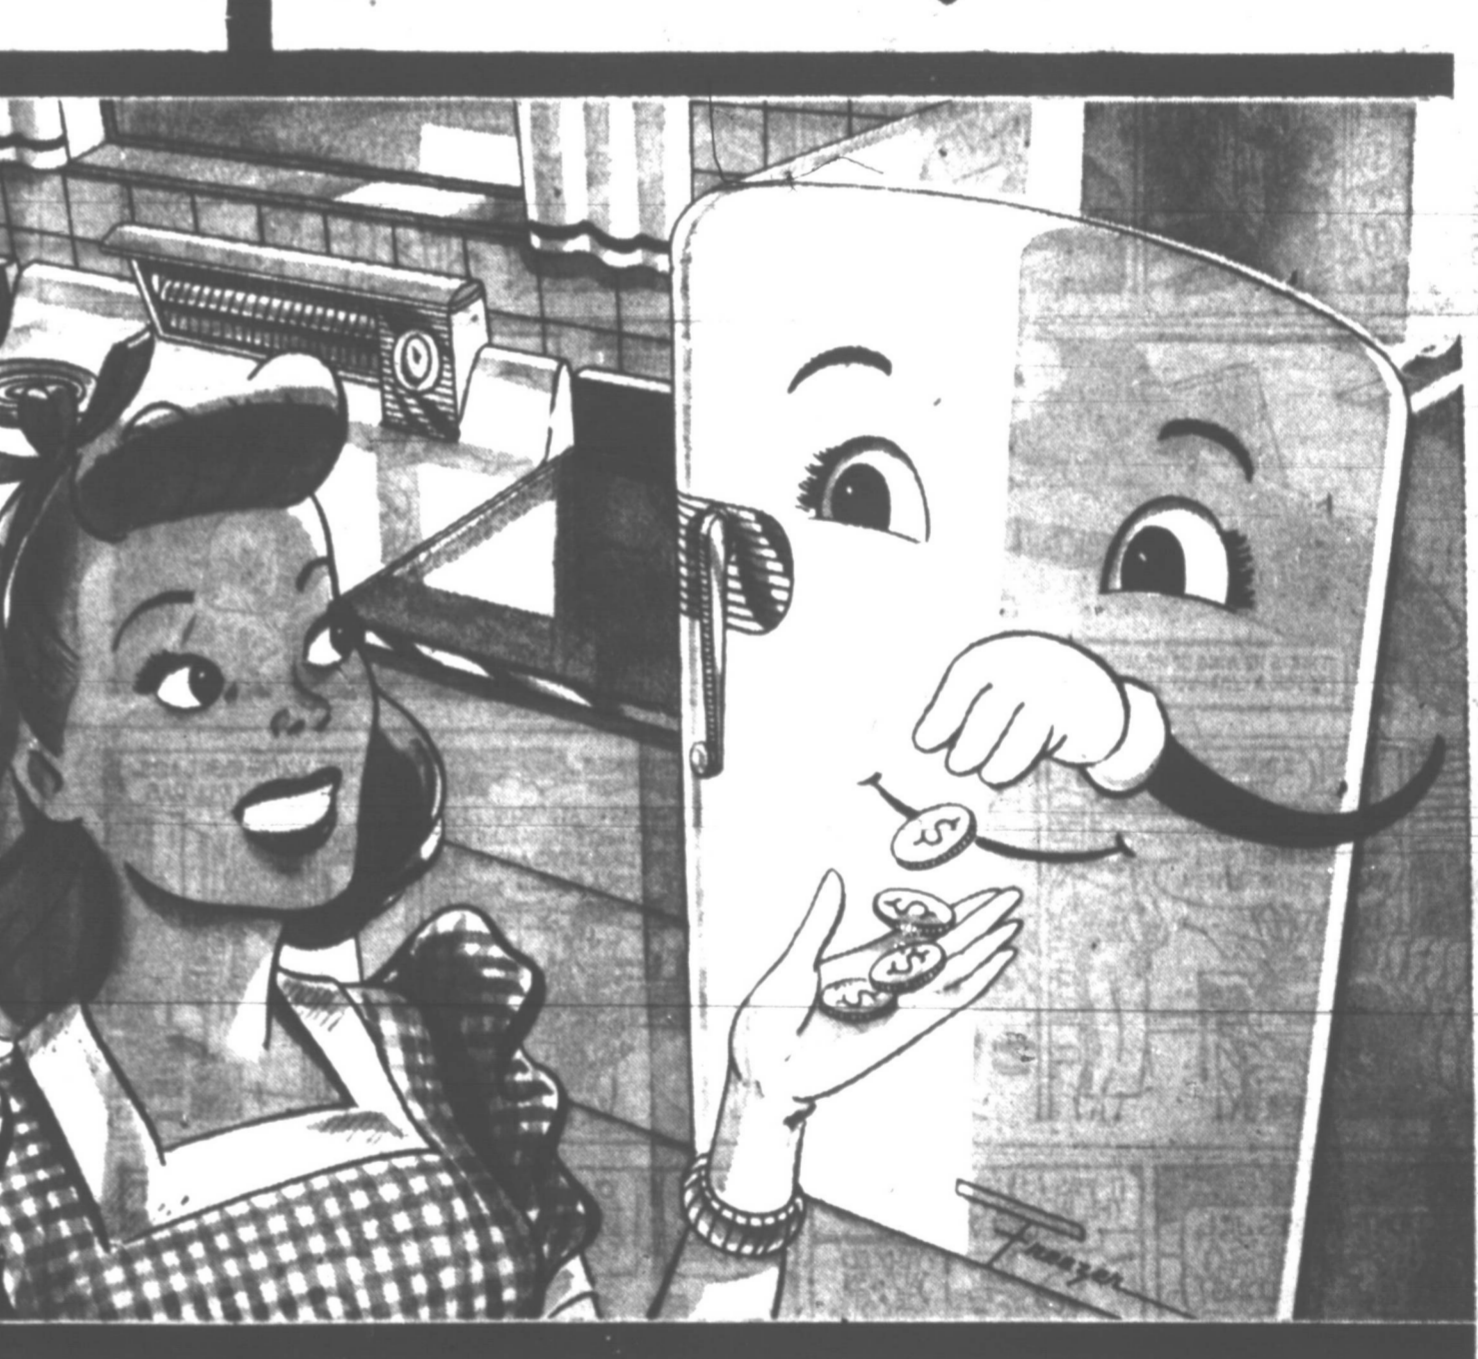

He became field representative in Pampa in 1932. He attended the University of Texas and served with the U.S. Marine Corps in World War II.

..... your Electric HOME FREEZER pays for itself!

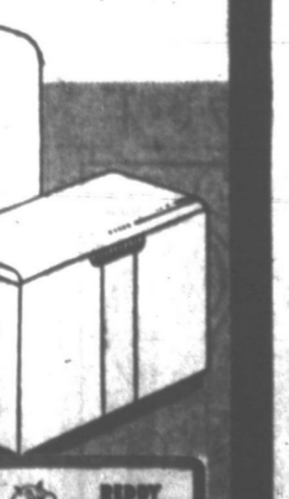

HOME FREEZER PAYS DIVIDENDS IN SAVING FOOD COSTS AND STOPPING WASTE

An electric home freezer is a dividend-paying investment, which will pay itself out in less than three years.

Large families have reported food savings in one year alone of as much as $250, and even average sized families report that they can save more than $100 on the yearly food bill.

And food waste—which eats up 10% of your food budget—is ended with a home freezer. No longer do you have food spoilage, nor do you throw out any food. Just freeze it, and serve it when it's just what your family wanted.

Invest in better food management now. Invest in a home freezer.

Church News

Rev. Richard Crews, pastor of the FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, and his family, left Monday for a vacation in Dallas and Fort Worth. Gene Clark, minister of education, will preach at both the morning and evening services today. Students from Texas Tech will participate in the service July 11, with Bob Willoughby bringing the message.

The church's "Round Up," sponsored by the young people, will be held August 1-4, with Miss Freda Reeves and Rex Mix leading it. There will be meetings for parents, teachers, sponsors and young people in the morning and a service of worship followed by fellowship and recreation each evening.

Nineteen members of the junior department and two visitors went to department camp last week. Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Jackson, Howard Brown, and Miss Joyce Gordon accompanied the group as sponsors.

That a true knowledge of God is the substance of freedom will be emphasized at THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERS CHURCH service today in the lesson-sermon entitled "God." Readings from the King James version of the Bible will be read, (Job 22:21), and from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 140).

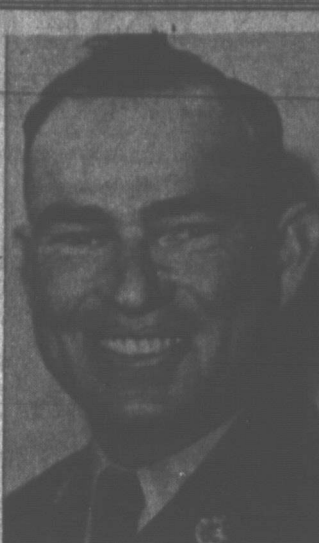

The Golden Text is from the book of Revelation, 15:4: "Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name: for thou only art holy: for all nations shall come and worship before thee."

All Junior boys, ages 9 through 12, of the FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, are invited to go to the Pan-Fork Encampment Monday through Thursday. Boys who plan to go should see Rev. J. R. Stroble for reservations. Junior girls will go for their encampment July 12 through 15.

The youth fellowships are being planned by youth for youth. Every three weeks a new committee will be in charge of the fellowship. The committee, consisting of two people from each of the three departments which attend the fellowship, for the coming three weeks includes David Hutchens, chairman; Wally La Greene, Jane Brown, Wanda Langford, Jana Giddens and LaVada Naylor.

National Independence Day will be observed by the FIRST METHODIST CHURCH today with Rev. Woodrow Adcock, pastor, preaching both services. His subject for the 10:30 a.m. service will be "The Spiritual Foundations of a Democracy." For the 7:30 p.m. service, his subject will be "A Faith Equal to Life."

Don't Mix HARTFORD, Conn. — UP — One and one sometimes equal more than two. A glass of milk is tax free, as is a scoop of ice cream, but mix them together and you have a taxable milkshake.

Jackie T. Ward, naval dentalman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ward of 120 N. Faulkner, recently reported for duty aboard the light cruiser USS Manchester.

Meaneat Thief PROVIDENCE, R. I. — UP — A theft, the like of which hadn't been heard of in years, was reported to local police. The proprietor of Louis Tap said someone stole his swinging doors.

CONNER O'NEAL FARM — Southwest of Pampa is this farm home of Conner O'Neal and his wife, Gladys. The couple has been in this area since 1928. They have five children. This year O'Neal is cutting 12-15 bushels of Red Chief wheat per acre.

Area Farm Of The Week

L. C. (Conner) O'Neal is optimistically looking forward to his harvest this year. And he has reason to be, for the 385-acre crop of Red Chief wheat he was cutting Wednesday was yielding 12 to 15 bushels per acre. It is especially good considering he got only 98 bushels of the same land during the last four years.

Living here are the O'Neals' youngest children, Jerry, 20, and Peggy, 16. Jerry was married last year to Nancy Ford of White Deer. He is a 1933 graduate of White Deer High School and she a 1933 graduate. Peggy, the youngest of the five, will be a senior at White Deer school this fall.

O'Neal has 160 grade Herefords and a herd of 40 registered animals. Three years ago, he was offered $400 a pair for some of his grade cows and calves. "Just look at beef prices now," he ruefully grinned. "I think they will eventually go back up to a reasonable level, though."

"This Red Chief is too hard to thresh. I have some Chetkan on the other end of this field," he said pointing. "and it's a lot better stuff than this."

O'Neal is a member of the White Deer Methodist Church, the Lions Club, and the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raisers Association. A participant in the Gray county Soil Conservation District.

Keeping some of his cattle at Hobestie, Skellytown and Sweetwater, Okla., O'Neal spends much of his time checking on the condition of his stock. He leases grazing land.

"Otherwise, I'd be hurting when this dry weather, his and there's not much grass, and his and there's not much grass."

"I'm a little wary of Benson's flexible price support program. It might be all right, I don't know a lot about his proposals."

O'Neal favors the 90 per cent parity prices and present farm price supports. But he doesn't think beef supports would work.

Have Five Children O'Neal and his wife, Gladys, have been on their place since 1928 and have four daughters and one son. Their oldest daughter, Betty Lou, 27, is married and lives in Borger. Betty Joyce, 24, is married and lives in Bismarck, N.D. Their third daughter, LaDonna, 22, lives in Laredo.

Mrs. Marshall Johnson and two sons of Odessa, are guests of her sister and family. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bussard, Mary Louise and Katy of the Cities Service, Compressor Station south of Higgins. Mr. Johnson will join them Friday for a few days visit.

Neighbors' Boost Aided Farm Widow

By WALT SWITZER, Pampa News Staff Writer Results of "good neighbor" action on the part of five or six Gray county farmers were realized last week. Last fall these farmers devoted a full day in sowing 500 acres of wheat on the farm of Mrs. L. P. Eakin, whose husband died last September. This wheat was harvested last week, with good yields of high quality wheat reported.

Younger brother, 14-year-old Jimmy Eakin, also is a 4-H club boy. "Paul and Jimmy are doing a wonderful job on their farm," Jerry Mobly, assistant county agent said. "They jumped right in and took over the farming of the place following their father's death and, with all that good equipment their father left them, they are going to do all right," he said. Mobly said these farmers who planted the Eakins' wheat for them couldn't have picked a better time for the planting. A good rain fell the next day, he stated. The assistant county agent was high in his praise of the two boys in regard to their 4-H club activities. Being the older of the two, Paul naturally has participated in

"ANY FOOL KNOWS THEY'D BE STOLEN!"

Recently some American movies were shown at our embassy in Moscow. The Russian servants peeped in on these scenes of another world. One scene showed a milkman leaving milk and cream on the doorsteps of several houses. The Russian butler, a staunch party man, was later heard delivering a fiery speech to the help in the kitchen. "Capitalistic lies!" he cried, "leaving bottles of milk on a doorstep like that... Why, any fool knows they'd be stolen!" With milk selling at $1.79 a quart in Moscow, you couldn't blame the guy. In America milk averages less than 25 cents a quart. We have 5 times as much milk and butter per person as the average in other countries.

How come? Well, one good reason is an American practice called Brand Names competition. You buy a well-known brand of product because you figure it gives you the best value and quality. This is tough news to other brands... So they all work doubly hard to offer you new improvements and greater value yet! They put in finer machinery to cut costs... make their products better. They go all-out to win you over to their brand name. So they lay fight for your business... and you win every time. And it all adds up to a country of people who think nothing of leaving precious milk on their doorsteps. Next time you see a well-known brand name on a product in a store... or when you read the ads in this newspaper that feature brand names, remember... they're working for you! They're saving you money. They're giving you more and better things.
