Kid Pony Show Has 100 Entrants

A crowd of highly enthused fans cheered wildly last night at the Grand Opening of the Top of Texas Rodeo and Horse Show's Kid Pony performance. Approximately 100 kids and their favorite ponies rode in the colorful grand entry behind brightly dressed flag bearers, who were mounted on beautiful Palominos.

Not only was the show a study in lightly blended colors, it was a masterpiece of contrasting dimensions. Divided into four age groups, riders and their ponies of all sizes, literally filled the arena.

Kids were grouped to compete with others within two years of their own age. Ages were divided in three-year brackets, the youngest age five and the oldest 16.

The riders performance consisted of riding the ponies at a fast gallop around three barrels in the arena in such a manner as to exercise the entrant's riding ability and show off his horse.

The winner were: 1st Group—(first, second and third place winners stated respectively): John Ed Fry of Pampa riding Tony; Bobbie Lee, Andie of Skellytown riding Duke; and Jim Bateman of Knox City riding Jo Ann.

2nd Group—Danny Bristler of McLean riding Squaw; Fred Albert, Jr., of Guthrie riding Blue Darter; and Linda Beth Kelley of Stimmert riding Tony.

THE FIRST FISTCUFFS OF any prominence ever to be staged in the Texas Panhandle is scheduled to be held at the Amarillo Municipal Auditorium August 15, when Johnny Dabbs, Texas welterweight champion, and contender Ben Evans, Oklahoma champ, pull on their leather mittens with the hope and intention of battering each other into oblivion. It isn't likely to happen.

Dabbs, whose pugilistic prowess is recognized throughout the entire South, is a rugged puncher from Beaumont. He is noted for his ability to absorb punishment like a Model T Ford. In five years of crawling through the ropes, he has the admirable record of 46 wins.

Evans, the contender, is also noted for his ability to absorb punishment, and still be able to stagger back to the center of the ring and invite further bloodshed. He has absorbed such punishment at the hands of Fritz Zivic, Freddie Dawson, Major Jones and Nick Moran, and has never been knocked out.

So, we're not going to the title bout expecting a knockout. Both men have faced stronger opponents and withstood the damage. We are going, however, because we feel that there is significance in the first title fight ever held in the Panhandle. It can only be a step in the right direction—and we know most of the sports fans would like to see more of it.

Tickets for the fight went on sale yesterday. They sell for $2.40 ring-side, $1.75 reserve seats and $1.25 general admission. These prices include all state and federal taxes. Mail orders should be addressed to Charles Hoppin, Vulture No. 689, 214 East Seventh, Amarillo.

PERRYTON HIGH SCHOOLS Ranger football team, which is expected to have a top club this season, is having lots of difficulty matching games. Coach Floyd Murray is trying to fill two of three successive open dates.

On Friday, Sept. 12, the Rangers are on paper to meet the ever powerful Wellington Rockets at Perryton. They meet Shamrock's Irishmen at Shamrock on Sept. 19, and follow that next Friday with a game with the Pirates at Lefors.

Then the trouble begins. October 3, 10 and 17 are all open, and at least one of them should be filled or the Rangers are liable to suffer from lack of experience and loss of interest. Coach Murray has asked us to send up an SOS requesting anyone who has an open date to let him know.

Coach Murray said that if the opposition could beat the pants off his Rangers, it was all right. He would like them to have some tough competition before heading into a rugged conference schedule. Detailed information can be had by contacting Coach Murray or Superintendent of Schools J. D. Anderson at Perryton.

Oilers Move to Third; Beat Blue Hose Twice

Pampa's rampaging Oilers took both ends of a double header from the Abilene Blue Sox 5-4, 8-0, in Oiler Park last night. It was the Oilers' seventh straight win and it moved them into third place five percentage points ahead of Lamesa and Albuquerque, who are tied for fourth.

After first sacker Bob Bailey's two-run double in the last of the seventh had pulled the opener out of the fire, the Oilers jumped on Abilene's Leroy Sparks for 11 hits to take an easy win in the night-cap.

In the opener the Sox' Bill Meier and Oiler Dub Scott locked in a pitching duel in the fifth, however, it was the fourth by right fielder Art Bowland's four bagger over the left-center field wall.

The Oilers overcame the one-run deficit in the fifth, however, when right fielder Ray Bauer singled and catcher Whitey Warren lofted one over the left-center field barrier.

A single by center fielder Range, doubles by Manager Stubby Greer and left fielder Pressly, and a base on balls given Bowland, totaled to hand the Blue Sox three runs, and a two-run margin in the top of the sixth.

A double by Bailey and a single by Warren gave the Oilers a run in the last of the sixth, but still left them trailing, going into the fifth, by one run.

After leading the Sox from scoring in the first half, the Oilers collected a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh to earn their ball game. After left fielder Ben Gregory had struck out, pinch hitter Al Johnston doubled, second baseman R. C. Otey reached first on Bowland's error, short stop Tom O'Connell grounded out, Greer to Meier, and then Bailey blasted his prize-winning double that scored Johnston and Otey, for the winning runs.

The Oilers were never pushed after a three-run third inning in the nightcap. They went ahead to score again in the fourth and then their four more times in the fifth.

Oiler hitting was paced by O'Connell and Gregory. O'Connell got three singles and a double in four trips to the plate. He stole two bases and scored three runs. Gregory batted out a three-run four-bagger.

Feature of the shutout was left hander Moe Parks' two-hit burning fastball which the Oilers on five-day look. Most fans will recall that he pitched a game or two for the Oilers last year and several more for Borger. He lives at Borger and has been told, a member of the old Huber team.

Buffs Trample Sports 8 to 2; Cats Close Out Oilers 3 to 0

By The Associated Press. Tulsa's Oilers have a chance of climbing into the sixth inning division if Houston and Dallas cooperate the next three days.

The Oilers move into Dallas tonight for a three-game stand while Houston's league leading Buffs continue against Shreveport—a club that lost its fifth straight to the Buffs last night, 8-2.

Tulsa's 3-0 setback against second place Fort Worth still left it within half a game of fourth place Shreveport.

The wildest game of the night took place in Dallas as the hot and cold Rebels came from behind to down Oklahoma City, 8, in ten innings early this morning.

Beatum cracked San Antonio's four-game winning streak, 3-2, in the loop's other tilt.

Houston protected its two-game lead behind Clarence Beer's five-hit pitching as the big righthander won his 18th game of the season. John Hernandez sent the Buffs ahead with a three-run homer in the first inning.

Willard Ramsdell notched his 13th consecutive victory, his 17th of the season and his fourth in a row over Tulsa, he gave up but four hits.

Manager Gus Mancuso, of Tulsa, finished the game under protest after a dispute arose over Fort Worth's first run. It came in the midst of an argument in the fourth inning and no one, presumably, had requested and no one, presumably, had requested umpire Ernest Gigliello to call "time."

Ferrell Anderson's 12th homer of the year scored the remaining two runs in the sixth.

After Oklahoma City had jumped on Dallas for seven runs in the first three innings, the Rebels pecked away at this lead and tied the score in the ninth inning.

Bob Finley's single had started a three-run rally in the eighth with a home run. Al Rosen hit for the circuit for Oklahoma City. The game lasted over three hours after being delayed half-hour by a series of field contests between the two clubs.

Harry Grubb scattered ten hits to break San Antonio's brief fling. Penton Mole's home run proved the winning run in the sixth inning.

Houston continues against Shreveport tonight, but the rest of the league changes sites. Tulsa, of course, comes to Dallas, while Oklahoma City moves over to Fort Worth. San Antonio switches to Beaumont.

Bitter Battle Forming in Lone Star League

By The Associated Press. The Lone Star League was beginning to shape up for a bitter battle the remaining four weeks of the season.

Six teams have a chance at the four spots in the post-season playoff with the standings juggled a bit today.

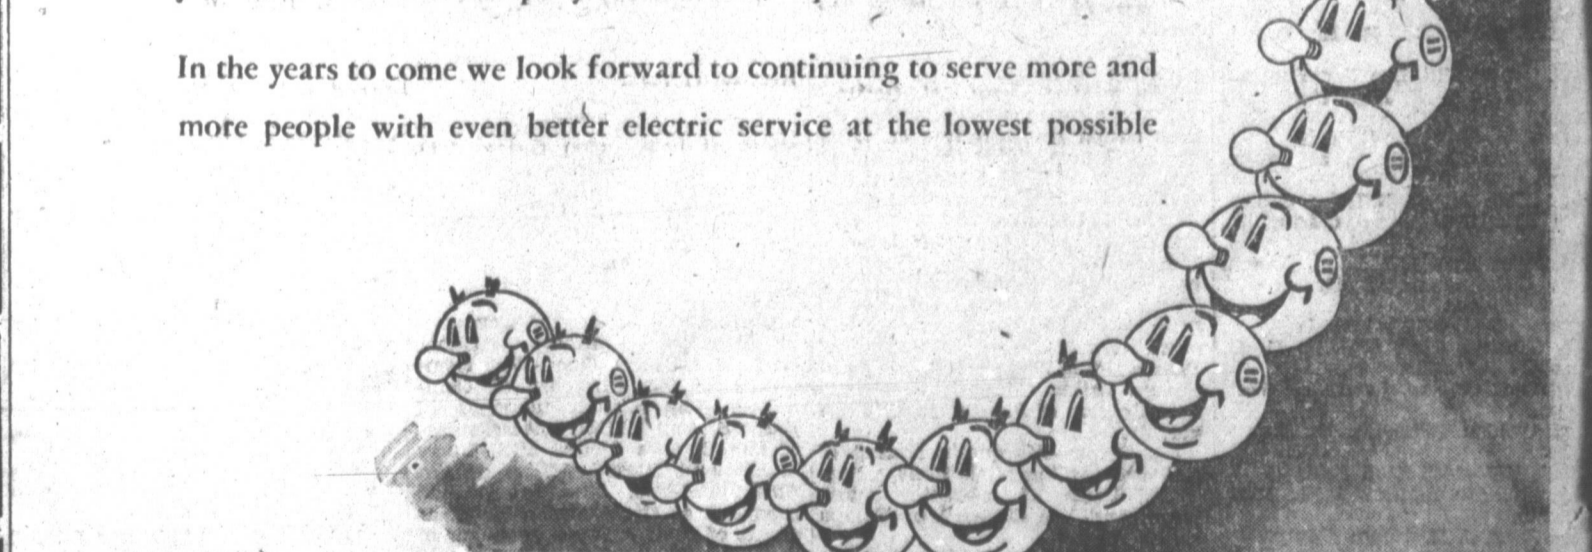

Marshall took over third place on his 8-4 victory over Lubbock, dumping the Foresters into fourth.

League leading Longview had its margin cut to two-and-one-half games when Bryan won, 6-2. Henderson defeated Tyler, 5-2, but left the Trojans a chance at fourth, while Jacksonville dropped a game behind Lubbock 4-2 licking at the hands of Kilgore.

The Dobson fly is known under 16 names in the state of Rhode Island.

Brooks' Lead Cut To Six; Braves Grab 4-2 Victory

By The Associated Press. It is still anybody's race in the National League and as long as Big Johnny Mize keeps clouting those long ones, the homer hitting New York Giants are not to be sold short.

Mize not only is keeping the Giants very much in the pennant fight, but is seriously threatening what is probably the greatest batting feat in baseball—Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs in the 1927 season.

The hard hitting first baseman walloped two into the Polo Grounds stands last night to lead the Giants to a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. The victory, coupled with the Braves' 4-2 win over Brooklyn in Boston reduced the league leading Dodgers' margin over the third place Giants to seven games.

The runner-up St. Louis Cards now trail the Dodgers by six games following their 8-2 triumph over the Cubs in a daylight game in Chicago.

Mize's pair of round trippers, his 33rd and 34th of the season came in the Giants' 9th game and put him two games ahead of Ruth's record hitting pace.

Taking advantage of 10 bases on balls to add to their 11 hits of four Cincinnati hurriers, the Pittsburgh Pirates disposed of the Reds in Pittsburgh 12-4.

The Yankees stretched their American League lead to 14 games over the runner-up Boston Red Sox by defeating the Athletics in Philadelphia 8-5 in a night game while the Sox were losing a 3-1 decision to the Senators in Washington.

The Cleveland Indians downed the Tigers in a twilight game at Detroit 8-4.

Ed Lopat handcuffed the Browns in St. Louis with four hits in pitching the Chicago White Sox to a 5-1 night game victory.

The major opportunity of our generation to increase the wealth of the nation lies in the development of our great river systems—President Truman.

WE, THE WOMEN

With Changing Styles Fashion Is Fun Once More

BY RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

The fast changing fashion picture had women worried for a little while.

That was when the fashion authorities were prophesying that women were going to have to do everything in their closets and start new in order to stay in the fashion picture.

But women have risen to the occasion.

Right now they are perfectly contented figuring out ways to make clothes in the closet conform to new style edicts.

They're lowering hemlines, ripping out heavy shoulder padding, figuring out ways to drop waistlines—and having a wonderful time.

Going through their closets with a speculative eye as to how much can be salvaged is as much fun for

FASHION IS FUN AGAIN

Clothes are fun again, because once again fashion is a challenge. The frozen styles of the war years were practical but a dull business.

Now a woman has to look at last year's suit in one hand and a fashion picture in the other and figure out some way to make the two look alike.

When she has figured out the way, she is pleased and excited about the whole business. Once more fashion is fun.

THE EUROPEAN ROAD

It has been but two short years since the United States showed its ability to produce the materials needed to win World War II. The electric utility companies of the nation rendered outstanding service in making this production possible. They were able to supply electric power when and where needed to meet the exorbitant demands of war. This is the record of one of the nation's outstanding industries during a national emergency.

President Truman is asking a quick start on a ten-year program for controlling floods and developing the water resources of the Mississippi River basin. This is a sound, non-commercial function of government. But it is a safe bet that the advocates of socialized electric power in the United States will use flood control as the vehicle to build power dams and proceed with such tax exempt properties to force present private electric companies into government ownership in the territory affected, thus establishing a government monopoly of electric power in another vast area of the United States.

President Truman makes no reference to existing electric companies in the flood control message, no invitation is given to private industry to work with the government in the development and distribution of electric power at the various dams. If allowed to do so, private enterprise, publicly regulated, would undoubtedly be glad to join with the government in financing electric development, thus saving the hard-pressed taxpayers enormous sums. Investor-owned electric companies would thus be creating vast new taxable assets to help support government, in contrast with government-owned tax exempt power plants which gradually put taxpaying private plants out of business.

This is something to think about unless the country is ready to go whole hog towards socialization of industry. Are we going to follow the European road to the ultimate destruction of private enterprise and individual opportunity?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By RAY TUCKER

WASTE—A review of lobbyists' effect on legislation during the recent Congress reveals that the supposedly heavy-spending representatives of the "interests" fared no better than the special pleaders for labor, the veterans, the farmers and similar groups which know from long experience that girl and champagne parties and Hollywoodish entertainment constitute a waste of money at Washington.

The utilities, for instance, obtained cuts in funds for irrigation, reclamation and power projects throughout the country. But the economies were largely due to the general bipartisan drive to reduce federal costs, and lower tax rates. Congressional inquiry had disclosed that many of the projects were oversold with payroll patriots and spending cash for projects never authorized by the Congress.

But the power people lost their biggest battle. They failed to force through several measures designed to restrict the Federal Power Commission's authority over the production and sale of natural gas, petroleum and hydroelectricity.

PACE—The real estate lobby has been constantly assailed for its activities against permanent rent controls and enactment of the Taft-Wagner-Eliender housing program. Here again, says President Truman, man recognized, a start toward releasing rentals from governmental regulation had to be made some time.

Moreover, neither the White House nor the Democratic introductors—Senators Wagner and Eliender—lifted a finger on behalf of federal subsidization of home building over a period of years. And it is generally believed that the GOP leadership will revive this program at the next session for the political support it may win them in a presidential year.

Lastly, President Truman set the pace for turning this problem over to the private construction industry when he scrapped the elaborate scheme outlined by former Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt. It was also Mr. Truman who lifted many controls originally designed to give preference to veterans and people requiring inexpensive dwellings.

POOLISH—The fact is that the most clamorous, heavily financed and effective lobbies at the Capitol are operated by such groups as organized labor, the American Legion and its allies, the farmers' aid, professional representatives, consumers' interests and the federal government itself.

Unlike John Meyer, who reported that he paid "party girls" $100 a night for merely dining with Army-Navy and WPB officials, they do not entertain on an openly lavish scale. But, year in and year out, their aggregate expenditures for headquarters, research staff, legislative agents, special reports, propaganda movements and salaries will far exceed the more spectacular outlays by inexperienced industrialists and

60 Million Jobs

By Peter Edson

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Recent announcement that the U. S. now has over 60 million employed workers brings back some funny memories. It recalls the days, two years ago when the full employment idea was first being considered in Congress. There was a lot of stuff flying around then about how silly it was to expect that there would ever be 60 million employed in this country.

There is of course only one right way to deal with economic predictions. That is to file 'em away and forget 'em. Then, a couple years later, dig 'em out and see how wrong they were.

Anyone who will take the trouble to dig back in the morgue on the 60-million-jobs subject should profit by the experience. For a lot of predictions of boom and bust are being made today. Properly appraised they are all guesses. Nobody knows what's going to happen in the future, as the following old testimony by experts should prove:

The origin of the mystical 60 million number can be traced back to S. Morris Livingston, chief of the National Economics unit in the Department of Commerce. In 1943 he estimated that after the war there would be between 59 and 60 million people in the labor force. He thought there might be a surplus of 10 million people unemployed from time to time. He set 57 million as a goal for full employment by 1948.

As usual when people play the numbers game, the figure rounded out to 60 million jobs. In the 1944 campaign, President Roosevelt promised 60 million jobs, if re-elected.

At first that was too much for even Henry Wallace, who won the P. D. R. "Your goal of 60 million jobs is perhaps high, but I glory in your daring." Henry thought Livingston's 57 million was about right. But later Wallace revised the figure upward and wrote a book "Sixty Million Jobs."

FIGURES "PROVED" IT
An economist named Dr. John Lee Coulter working for the Committee of Americans, Inc., proved mathematically that 60 million jobs was impossible. He took the trends in population growth, number of women workers, increased age expectancy, increased college enrollment, subtracted a couple million for the armed forces and three million unemployed. He came up with the prediction that the labor supply in the postwar year would be only 56 million plus. He said that would give us an unexampled abundance.

The National Association of Manufacturers, which should know about these things, said in January, 1945, that after the war private business could furnish jobs for only 22 million workers, plus 11 million agricultural workers—a total of 33 million.

NAM experts said that if 60 million were employed, the other 27 million would have to be given government jobs. They said that unnamed government planners were actually figuring on employing two million people on a federal housing program, two million on a youth program, five million on public roads programs, nine million on new "valley" plans TVA, and four million on other government employment.

HOW WRONG THEY WERE
In case you wish to compare this prediction with the way it worked out, 45 million are now employed in private industry. In round numbers agriculture is employing 10 million, the armed forces 1.4 million, the Federal government two million, state and local governments 3.1 million, and there are 2.5 million unemployed.

There is no youth program, no road program, no valley program and no housing program. Citizens National Committee, Inc., whose principal angel is John W. Hanes, put out a pamphlet against the idea of full employment in 1945. Among other things it said:

"Of course, it would be possible to provide extensive employment if something akin to wartime conditions were perpetuated by adoption of a totalitarian economy such as exists in Russia or formerly existed in Germany. It is difficult, to conceive of how full employment can be arrived at short of such a step."

Well, full employment is here, but is this a totalitarian government? If there are any morals in this flash-back, they are: 1. It doesn't pay to be a prophet. 2. Never sell America short.

The hour has come for Europe to organize or die.—Premier Paul Ramadier of France.

More than ever, universal disarmament, renunciation of the weapons of mass destruction under a kind of international control which is the only sound beginning of limited world government, seems to me our sole immediate hope.—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader.

QUICKIES By Ken Reynolds
The declaration came after a conference between the Governor and James E. Mison, acting state forester. Mison described fire conditions in Louisiana's forests during the past month as "bad and daily growing worse."

Davis called on all citizens to aid in preventing further disaster to the state's "all-important timberlands" by preventing fires.

Truman's Economic Advice Harmful

When the government attempts to do more than stop, restrict, restrain one man from doing involuntary acts to another, it sooner or later attempts to run the economic and moral lives of the citizens. As evidence of this, note the statement by President Truman in regard to the new coal wage. He is reported as saying:

"The people of the country have a right to demand that their prosperity shall not be imperilled by immediate increases in the price of coal and the price of steel."

That statement is either done for political purposes and is thus pure demagoguery and dishonest voluntary acts to another, it sooner or later attempts to run the economic and moral lives of the citizens. As evidence of this, note the statement by President Truman in regard to the new coal wage. He is reported as saying:

He would leave the impression that raising prices is a moral question on the part of the coal operators; that they can raise the price as they will; that if they raise the price they are doing it unnecessarily; they are doing it for high profits which the President seems to think is harmful. Profits must be distributed in order to be of use to the men who receive them. Profits cannot be hoarded without eventually being lost. That is what President Truman and most people do not understand.

According to the United States Bureau of Mines, the value of the soft coal mined last year was about $1,200,000,000. The payroll for mining this coal was about $1,000,000,000. The new wage increase which will bring the average of the coal miner's wage up to about $85.00 a week will add $200,000,000 to this cost. It will wipe out all of the reward for the use of tools and for the discovery of the coal and the pay for extracting this natural element. Thus, if the mine operators do not increase the price of the coal, their tools would wear out and their discovered supply of coal would become exhausted and there would be no tools and no new knowledge to mine. Under a free market, prices are a natural result of total cost and profits are a part of any cost. If the operation is not well managed there is no profit and the individual loses his original capital. So profits are a part of the long run cost and must be added in order to insure a continued supply.

Thus the President of the United States would increase the price of coal, their tools would wear out and their discovered supply of coal would become exhausted and there would be no tools and no new knowledge to mine. Under a free market, prices are a natural result of total cost and profits are a part of any cost. If the operation is not well managed there is no profit and the individual loses his original capital. So profits are a part of the long run cost and must be added in order to insure a continued supply.

Now that Truman is President by chance, he chooses to pose as a man who can tell those who have saved capital how they should use it. It is hard to tell whether he does this because he is plainly ignorant of cause and effect. The results, however, are just as bad one way or another. They mean covetousness and hate and in the long run less production and a lower standard of living.

Gracie Reports
By GRACIE ALLEN
Honestly, the silliest things go on in Washington—including the hats that go on the heads of Congresswomen. Our lawmakers at their next session will discuss a bill that would establish a chain of fly-in restaurants for the South for the winter because, if they have their own eating places, they won't raid the farmers' crops.

It's a nice idea, but how will they get the ducks to patronize the restaurants instead of taking quick potluck in the fields? Will they hire pretty girls to ducklings to act as waitresses? Will they put up signs that say it's only five miles to the nearest Do Duck Inn? Will they provide music by Webfoot Walter and his Musical Mallards?

I think the ducks would avoid the cafes and keep right on eating the farmers' crops. They must have heard too many stories about relatives who went into a restaurant and wound up as the main dish.

The average citizen today is completely confused by the whole setup. He doesn't know where his money is going and he wonders where he is going to be hit next. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Permit Britons overseas to spend only $140 on foreign vacations in the 14-month period beginning Oct. 1, instead of $300 in the yearly period as at present. "It may well be that we have relaxed controls too soon," the Prime Minister continued. Greece

(Continued From Page 1) halt, various nations contracted on a time payment basis for materials costing $1,201,000,000. Under this deal Russia was to receive $250,000,000 worth. All were to be delivered by last December 31. Because of strikes and other delaying factors, however, some $34,000,000 worth remained in this country when the deadline fell. Thereupon the Comptroller General ruled that unless Congress decreed otherwise no more appropriated moneys could be used to pay the operating expenses of the program. Hence the goods began piling up in warehouses across the country.

Contesting the ruling, the Moribund Lend-Lease Administration asked the 11 nations involved to put up $873,211 in operating funds. Russia contributed $725,000 of this amount. Simultaneously the agency appealed to Congress for the specific approval of the Comptroller General demanded. This came—for all countries save Russia—just before the law-makers recessed for the year late last month. Russia's undelivered order includes about $16,000,000 in storage and some $9,000,000 still in the process of delivery by manufacturers. The largest single item is $6,971,650 worth of oil refining equipment. In pleading for fulfillment of the contract, State Department officials told congressional hearings that under terms of the 1945 contract Moscow would have legal grounds for refusing to pay for many units already delivered but with some parts missing. While officials said the whole problem still is "up in the air," they noted that some of the equipment involved—chiefly the refinery materials, electric motors, coal mine hoists and other similar goods—may be found useful in the Greek-Turkish program. The rest, they said, appears destined for sale as surplus with the prospect of a sizable loss because the equipment—made to Soviet specifications—would be of little use to other purchasers. The government, they said, must reimburse the contractors for the full price. Whether there might be any legal barrier to Russia's buying the surplus market remains to be seen.

DEATH of a DOLL By Hilda Lawrence

THE STORY: Miss Brady and Miss Small tell Mrs. Marshall-Gill they are going to resign. Mark East is retained by Mrs. Marshall-Gill to investigate the cause of Miss Brady's death. He explains his position to Miss Brady and Miss Small, says he wants to interview some of the Hogg House people.

XXIII THEY crossed the lobby to the elevator through a silent crowd that only parted before them. "I'm only co-operating because I want to leave a clean slate behind me," Miss Brady said. "But before I leave I'm going to write something nasty on it." "Leave?" "Resigning. Both of us. Fed up." When they reached the fifth floor, she preceded him down the hall, shouting, "Man coming, man coming!"

On the other side of a fire door, Miss Brady stopped. "This is Miss Small's," she said. "Go in and wait. Would you like coffee?" "No, thanks." Trying to be nice, she thought, she knew she's in a bad spot. When she left, he made a shameless tour of the two rooms, telling himself that a woman's bric-a-brac said more than words, and chairs and tables could be garrulous. Little Miss Small emerged. No natural taste, he decided, but a good eye for copy. Given enough time, more money and the right example, the arty desk with the bad veneer and the fake pearl inlay would fall into the lap of the Salvation Army. Bought it in the first place because she thought it looked opulent.

One lamp shade in the bedroom was covered with bluebirds, meticulously feathered, and the bedspread was machine-made lace over bright blue silk. He remembered that another flock of bluebirds, in colored glass, had nested on the lapel of Miss Small's well-cut suit. Shoddy background, he told himself, but fairly quick to catch on. When she realizes that her friend is expensively unadorned, she'll chuck the fancy-work, too. In another two years she'll have a footproof accent and say damn like a lady. I'd like, he went on thoughtfully, to see how Miss Brady lives. There we have unmistakable quality and the preposterous innocence that too often goes with it. A twenty-five-cent weekly allowance until she was eighteen, a careful exposure to the procreative process when she was old enough to have a dog and properly call it a bitch; a well-schooled belief that sin is spelled with the same scariet A that Hester Prynne wrote. "Would a grown-up child like Miss Brady stay on the tracks when she met a situation that refuted her code and turned her world upside down? Or would she do as most children do, turn savage and strike? Turn and strike. Lie and run. . . It was worth thinking about. Rich Miss Brady, poor Miss Brady, who read all the books and knew all the words and was younger than Moke and Poke. Resigning because she was fed up. Tut-tut, he grieved, not fed at all.

SOMEONE rapped smartly on the living-room door, and he hurried to open it. A girl stood in the hall, stooping as if she wanted to disguise her height. "I'm Kitty Brice," she began. "Miss Small said you—" He knew her. When he reminded her of their first meeting, she wasn't amused, although she pretended to be. He talked persuasively, apologized for taking her away from her work, condemned his own job ruefully, asked questions and seemed not to need the answers. After a few minutes he was almost sure she was telling the truth, not all of it, but enough. "I didn't pay much attention that night she came," she said. "She was doxy, so I didn't pay attention. You always hope somebody nice is coming, but they never do. I don't know why they're digging her up like this. Trouble for everybody." "I know," he sympathized. "But suicides always hit some people up. Like my client, for instance. She doubts the suicide theory. Do you, even a little?" "No. She was doxy. But—" "But what, Miss Brice?" "I don't know anything, but some people did talk. You know, whispering. There's always somebody in a place like this that whistles. About anything. And this time they really had something. Like why does a girl jump out of a window when she's only lived in a place two days and didn't get any mail, or phone calls, or anything. It won't do you any good to ask me who said that, because I don't know. I just picked it out of the air. And I don't say I believe it, either."

He nodded. "You know, I can't help wondering why she wasn't missed that night. She was a new girl. I'd have thought the rest of you would watch her, help her have fun. Didn't you see her at all?" "Get somebody to show you the costumes. You wouldn't know your own mother." "But there was an identifying mole on Ruth's mask. Didn't you know that?" "Sure I knew. That was one of those secrets that was too good to keep. Everybody knew. But I don't remember seeing her." "Were you in costume, too, Miss Brice?" "Sure. Everybody was, except Heads, maids, and Plummer." "Plummer?" he asked. "Ethel Plummer. She works at the desk, too, and she's kind of old. She talked to Miller once or twice, I know that."

"I see. Well, that's all for now, thanks. You were fine." He opened the door and Kitty seemed glad to go. "Good evening," he said to a girl waiting outside. "Come in, please. You are—" "Jewel Schwab." (To Be Continued)

Finally, the United States, contrary to reports that it might try to achieve a solution outside the United Nations, is definitely and firmly committed to the United Nations and will exhaust all resources of the Charter in trying to solve the question. The General Assembly has authority only to recommend action but it has assumed a great importance as a mirror for world opinion. It cannot make a decision on a case as long as the Security Council has it but the Council majority could drop the Balkans case with the intent of bringing it up in the Assembly.

Hughes (Continued From Page 1) and that he was instructed by Hughes Aircraft. He reiterated again today that he kept his accounts "loosely." Ferguson asked how Meyer learned that Hall had taken over from Roosevelt. Meyer said possibly through the Hughes Company. He added that the entertainment occurred in Los Angeles. Ferguson asked how Hall happened to be in Los Angeles. "He obviously was there to look over our plant," Meyer said. One of the Hughes contracts was a $2,000,000 one for reconnaissance planes. The exchange continued: "Ferguson—see some entertainment down at the bottom here for girls. Why was that charged to Hughes Aircraft?" Meyer—"That's what I am trying to figure-out myself."
