

Sellers Declares Swift Suit Is Issue In Attorney General Race

B. PAUL BOLTON.
AUSTIN, July 29 — Charges that Swift & Company conspired to fix the price of cottonseed, eliminate independent competition and divide Texas into territories for those two purposes became an issue today in the run-off race for Attorney General between the incumbent Grover Sellers, and State Senator Jesse Martin.

Sellers promised to take the big lawsuit to the people, following radio speeches by Martin. According to Sellers, Martin charged that the suits against Swift and other defendants was a scheme to force the big livestock purchases out of the state. Martin also criticized the fact that the state has appealed one of the several cases, Sellers added.

Assistant attorneys general who prosecuted the cases explained that the state's objective was to enjoin Swift & Company from engaging in the cottonseed business. Since the company's permit to do business is for the purposes of meat packing and lending money on livestock.

"I'm not worried about a $500 million dollar corporation. While I am attorney general, it has got to respect the law just like any individual," said Sellers. "I Swift & Company don't have to obey the law as to price-fixing on cottonseed, cattlemen would have slim pickings if the company decides to fix prices on cattle."

Background for this political fight is: The state, while Gerald Mann was attorney general, filed four suits charging several defendants including Swift & Company, with the cottonseed price fixing conspiracy. Four of these defendants paid fines and were enjoined by court order from engaging in the activities alleged by the state. Those defendants were: Wesson Oil & Snowdrift and Southern Cotton Oil company, $42,500; Southland Cotton Oil company, $10,000; and Magnolia Provision company, $1,000. Left in the cases, now awaiting trial are defendants Swift & Company and Anderson Clayton company.

Gathering evidence for the anti-trust suits, state's attorneys found Swift & Company had no permit to do a cottonseed business. So a fifth suit was filed asking all the usual penalties for operating without a charter, including forfeiture of operating privileges.

An assistant who helped prosecute the fifth case explained that during the trial he told the court that the state's primary objective was to prevent Swift and Company from engaging in the cottonseed business without a permit, rather than ousting it, as a meat packer, from the state. At this point, Sellers interjected his defense of Swift & Co.

"Why, such a policy would close the door on free enterprise in this country," he exclaimed. "Free enterprise cannot possibly exist when one corporation is allowed to follow a procedure denied to others."

Back in 1915, he added, an almost identical suit was filed naming, in addition to Swift, Armour and other big packers. Judgment was entered enjoining all of the packers from engaging in the cottonseed business, and all of them excepting Swift went out of the business. Swift obtained a legal decree, he went on, authorizing them to continue until they disposed of their cottonseed properties, and enjoining them from investing further assets in such properties. But the company, he asserted, did not dispose of its properties; then in 1938, and over the protest of the then attorney general, William McCraw, a district court set aside the original order against Swift

Interpreting War News— HANDWRITING ON WALL LOOMS PLAINER FOR NAZI BRIGANDS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The plain evidence of critical Nazi shortage of manpower was written across the war maps this bitter weekend of the struggle for Germany. It was being shouted, too, from the housetops in Germany itself by a triumvirate of fanatical party followers desperately boot-strapped to supreme powers to meet a multiple crisis.

There were intimations that, shaken by his own narrow escape from death at German hands, Hitler had virtually divested himself to all but the symbolism of his leadership, turned over the actual authority at home and at his faltering fighting fronts to Messer, Goering, Himmler and Goebbels.

In the east the Nazi front, from the Baltic to the Carpathian passes that lead down into the Hungarian plain was buckling under an all but continent-wide torrent of Russian attack. Berlin openly admitted flight in process along the whole line to some shorter front to conserve manpower, and the dispatch of jealously hoarded home reserves to meet the Red avalanche.

Stanislaw, Lwow, Brest Litovsk, Bialystok, Kaunas and Narva all were left behind. Siaulial, halfway across Lithuania to the Baltic coast, fell to the Russians. That cut the only remaining land escape route southward for up to two score Nazi divisions in the upper tier Baltic states.

Far to the south Berlin admitted "withdrawal" into the Carpathian foothills between the upper Dneestr and the Son. Prezemysl seemed doomed to split the German east front apart and expose Craco wand German Silesia. In the center collapse of the Brest Litovsk eastern outguard exposed Warsaw to frontal assault. A double headed Russian attack rolled northwestward up the east bank of the Vistula less than three score miles from the Polish capital. It appeared aimed at clearing the great bend of the Bug river.

It might be intended, too, to crack a possible new Nazi short line defense from Warsaw northward behind the Narew tributary of the Bug.

Nor could the Nazi command look westward or southward without added concern. At the very moment when all reserves were needed in the east, an American armored breakthrough of growing scope, speed and power hit them in Normandy. The Aachen gateway to Brittany was threatened in the first real foray of American land power. In Italy allied forces closed in steadily on Florence. And the retreat of the foe on the Adriatic flank indicated final retirement of the foe into the Gothic line defense from somewhere above Pisa to Rimini on the east coast.

Signs were not lacking that the Russians were ready to strike in the nor-dormant Rumanian area. Repeated allied bombing of Ploesti, pressure on Bulgaria to get out of the war and hints of impending Turkish entry into full war partnership against Germany all pointed to early developments to add to German strains.

The Department of State at Washington was first called the department of foreign affairs.

Cotton Rallies To Close On Upgrade

NEW YORK, July 27 — After moving through narrow featureless trading most of the session today cotton rallied toward the close on mill buying and week-end covering to register gains of 15 to 35 cents a bale.

New Orleans interests which had been selling, turned to buying when the market showed signs of steadiness. Volume of trading was light.

STEPS SUGGESTED FOR LESSENING DYSENTERY AND WHOOPING COUGH

Precautions which may be taken against dysentery and whooping cough, both of which are prevalent in Big Spring at present, were listed Saturday by V. A. Cross, sanitarian of the city-county health unit. Flies and germs being brought from outside areas on food were listed as common causes of dysentery. Safeguards include sterilization of dishes, destroying of flies, peeling of fruits and vegetables where possible, washing of fruits and vegetables in solutions and general cleanliness and sanitation. Immunization is the principal safeguard against whooping cough, and in some cases may lighten the ailment if it has already started.

Conveniences In A Foxhole Described By Capt. Allen

Numerous small conveniences amounting to "magnificence" have been added to foxholes in use on battlegrounds in France by American soldiers including Capt. R. T. Allen, formerly stationed at Big Spring Bombardier school.

Captain Allen wrote to Mr. and Mrs. Shine Phillips of Big Spring, describing foxholes and their furnishings, food, and within censorship limits, steps toward victory.

"Although our penetration thus far is pretty thin, we are all optimistic about our chances," he wrote. "It's a tremendous accomplishment to have made a successful landing and to have established a bridgehead. Now we have gone so much beyond that that we all feel a growing conviction that victory can't be deferred too long. The success of the Russians is tremendous, is it not? I haven't heard any one of our boys say that he wants to beat them to Berlin. German prisoners are the exception—they are sure that they don't want the Russians there first..."

He stated they had been in France "for some time—were fortunate and got here in the earliest stages of the invasion." The first week or two were "devoted for the most part to establishing camp sites for the various units and digging in along the Normandy hedge rows."

"Everyone has had sufficient time now to make our original foxholes into high class dug-outs of varying designs and structure. The prime objective was to get them dug deep enough to start with. Now we have added numerous small improvements. We found some German cots and recessed them in the floor to keep us as low as possible. We have installed wood steps, a wooden floor, a few shelves and last week we got our generator for the post working so we have a light in the dugout."

"For our roof, we used strips of concrete type steel mesh... We formed this into a semi-circle over the dugout, covered it with a couple of tent files... lined the sides of the quarters with our pup tents and abandoned German gas capes. We found a small stove in a Jerry pill-box and have hooked it up so that we can cook at night. Compared to former flight jackets for shelter and later pup tents, present quarters amount to 'magnificence'."

Food has been sufficient, if slightly monotonous, he wrote.

The officer wrote of his enjoyment of a year and a half in Big Spring and that he hoped one of his and his wife's first trips after the war would be to Big Spring.

Positions to be filled are janitor, power and heat operator, automobile mechanic, carpenter, laborer, road grader, electrician, junior sheet metal worker.

"Persons presently employed in essential activities need not apply," said Mrs. Hansen.

Guard Company Alters Meeting

Drill sessions for company E, 34th Battalion, Texas State Guard, have been reduced to one night a week by order of Capt. H. L. Bohannon, it was announced Saturday.

Hereafter, there will be a session only on Thursdays from 8 to 10:30 p. m. at the county warehouse, which serves as the company headquarters. Capt. Bohannon urged his men to inform those who were unable to attend the last Thursday session that they need not report Tuesday evening.

From its activation in January of 1942, the local TSG company had maintained a semi-weekly meeting schedule, being one of the few companies in the state which drilled so consistently.

Capt. Bohannon said the change was being effected in hopes of boosting attendance since many men said they could make sessions once weekly.

Hay Fever Symptoms Yield in Vitamin Test

Marked Relief Obtained in College Study

Tests conducted by an eminent Ohio scientist indicate that Vitamin C—in adequate amounts—may be the answer to hay fever misery.

Head of the chemistry department of a well-known Ohio college, this investigator gave the vitamin to 25 hay fever victims during the late summer of 1942. Marked relief was reported by 22 members of this group.

"I hardly noticed my hay fever in 1943," declares one former sufferer who tried the same simple vitamin program.

While Vitamin C appears amazingly effective in relief of hay fever discomfort, there is no certain evidence that it overcomes the allergy which causes the distress.

Generous amounts of the vitamin are usually required to aid these sufferers. For this reason, Wheatamin CEVIGARDS represent a practical and convenient way to get enough. Beginning a week before "hay fever" season is expected, 5 CEVIGARDS may be taken daily. If this does not prevent the appearance of symptoms, the dose may be increased to 8 or 10 CEVIGARDS for a few days.

Wheatamin CEVIGARDS provide pure Vitamin C in a base containing natural Vitamin B Complex. To make sure you get full vitamin potency, ask for CEVIGARDS by name. Read the pamphlet, "Hay Fever and Vitamin C," offered free at Collins Bros. and Walgreen Drug Stores in Big Spring.

How Amphibious Operations Have Grown

AP Features
THE amazing progress of amphibious operations since 1931 when half these pictures were taken is shown by comparison with recent combat photographs. The 1931 maneuvers were held off the California coast by the Army Transport Grant, the USS Nevada and the USS Arizona. At that time there were no craft designed to run up on beaches and disembark troops. The entire "Elsie" fleet of LCTs, LCPs and LCIs was created after Pearl Harbor. These pictures also prove the problems of getting men and armor ashore were essentially the same then as now.

PERSONNEL

TROOPS crawl down rope ladders to gunwales. Jammed to gunwales, 1931 boats were slow and tricky in surf.

MARINES climb down cargo nets from LST in the Kwajalein invasion. Note landing craft's high armored sides, shallow draft and sturdy, steel ramp for speedy beach debarkation.

HORSEPOWER had to swim in 1931.

EQUIPMENT

SCOUT VEHICLE is eased precariously over the high, narrow bow of Arizona's boat. Improvised landing gear took lots of time and elbow grease to operate.

TANK plunges ashore from LST (Landing Ship, Tank). These craft played big roles at ANI, Rendova, Sicily, Italy, Normandy.

BEACHHEAD

LANDING was a problem even in calm bay waters in 1931. Defensive shore guns would have riddled the wooden boats and unprotected personnel.

GAPING bow doors of six LSTs swiftly discharge Marines, tanks, jeeps, mobile artillery during invasion of Jap-infested Cape Gloucester, New Britain.

With The AEF—

Kindness Abounds, But It Seems A Bit Phoney

By ROGER D. GREENE (Substituting for Kenneth L. Dixon)

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, July 28 (Delayed AP) — The life of a war correspondent here on the western front isn't anything like the glamorous assignment depicted by Hollywood, but you certainly get around faster than a rent dodger in Greenwich Village. We moved again today, for the fifth time since D-Day, and in the seven weeks since I came ashore I have traveled over 3,600 miles along the battlefield.

My first home in Normandy was a muddy slit trench with German snipers crawling in the bushes and hiding in trees and buildings. Camouflaged in their weird green and brown jungle jackets draped like zoot suits, they cut loose with automatic pistols and kept it up through the night. The next morning one was blown sky-high out of a church steeple with a flat gun and another slumped dead in a treetop from a dose of his own medicine.

Home No. 2 was a French chateau whose owner showered us with kindness, who pliered from the Germans, but who mystified us by her eagerness to have battle developments pointed out on the map and by her occasional lapse into German. Once she spoke of her "grossmutter" when any American schoolboy knows the French word for grandmother is "grandmere."

Home No. 3 was the former German staff headquarters, distinguished only by fleas in the German commandant's bed where I slept, and No. 4 was an ancient little inn near the castle where

William of Normandy reputedly set forth to conquer England back in 1058. I say reputedly because Bill the Conqueror, like George Washington, probably slept in every castle for miles around before he crossed the channel.

The little inn near the castle was getting too hot so we pulled out. Then on the last night one of the ack-ack bursts slammed into a German plane and Jerry came screaming straight down and crashed with a terrific explosion into the garden behind the inn. The building's stout old walls, a good two feet thick, shook like the crazy house at Coney Island, so we decided it was time to move on.

Tonight we are billeted in a stone-walled farm house in a tiny crossroads village that somehow seems to have escaped the whirlwind of war. The farmyard looks like that of a peaceful Wisconsin farm — chickens and geese running under an apple tree in the back garden, and beyond, fields of newly harvested wheat and lush green pastures with cows grazing and lowing mournfully.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Colson and William Henry left Friday for Childrens where they will make their home.

Army Trucks To Make Paper Pick Up Downtown

To stimulate the collection of paper, which is now No. 1 on the critical salvage list, two army trucks will make the business district Monday morning to pick up whatever character of paper businessmen will place on curbs.

Although the paper collection has not yet been pushed, around 25,000 pounds have been picked up by the soldiers under the command of Lt. J. P. Williams. Moreover, they have collected over 300,000 pounds of scrap metal in little more than a week of operations and have gathered some 4,000 pounds of scrap rubber, which has been taken to Camp Berkeley. Three cars of scrap metal have been shipped.

Approximately 50 men are working the city and county in an intensive effort to bring in every available pound of scrap. They cannot pay for it but see that it gets to mill points quickly so as to help in the war effort.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Colson and William Henry left Friday for Childrens where they will make their home.

Cubs Have Record Crowd For Meet

One of the largest turn-outs on record here in the history of Cubbing marked the regular monthly meeting of pack No. 13 at the city park Friday evening. Besides 40 Cubs, there were more than 60 parents and guests in attendance.

After the "Giants" and "Dodgers" had fought it out in a softball game, Cubs participated in a program which included the pledge of allegiance to the flag, talks by A. V. Karsher, president of the sponsoring Rotary club, Dr. W. B. Hardy, district scout chairman, R. V. Charles Abele, and H. D. Norris, field scout executive.

Afterwards the group had a picnic lunch. Karsher presented a two year service award to W. G. Blankenship, Jr. and a one-year award to Connie Edwards. Five Robert signs went to members of den No. 4. The Rev. Abele drew in his 21 years of scouting experience in his talk. Dr. Hardy talked of relations between Cubs and Scouts, and Norris outlined plans for a Cub day camp late in August.

Den mothers were introduced by D. M. McKinney, Cubmaster, and included Mrs. W. P. Edwards, Mrs. D. E. Winterrowd, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hill. Bill Edwards was the only den chief present.

During the great earthquake of 1911, the Mississippi river temporarily flowed north.

Ford To Observe His 81st Birthday Sunday

DETROIT, July 28, (AP) — Henry Ford, who built a billion dollar industrial empire with an initial investment of $28,000, will observe his 81st birthday anniversary on Sunday confident he said today that "prosperity and a higher standard of living can be attained after the war."

He predicted in an interview that the end of the war would bring a tremendous demand for motorcars and mechanized farm equipment and suggested that the Ford-operated Willow Run bomber plant may be used to manufacture Ford tractors.

This exemplifies his keen interest in the soil.

"The time is coming," Ford said, "when man will be able to determine the length of his life span by controlling his diet. I think he will find everything he needs in wheat—wheat is the divine food."

Winkler Ellenburger Extended, Devonian Test Picks New Lime

By JOHN B. BREWER

SAN ANGELO, July 29 — Extending the Keystone Ellenburger field in north central Winkler county 1 1/2 miles southeast of Gulf No. 46-E Keystone and production from a lower zone by the Texas Co. No. 1-A Ches. W. Hobbs estate, southeastern Crane county discovery and Texas' first producer from the Devonian lime, highlighted West Texas oil developments this week. Four locations were staked near Frankel Bros. No. 1-D University 1 1/3 mile east extension to the southeast part of the Fullerton Clear Fork lime field in northwestern Andrews county. Wildcat locations included one each in Pecos, Culberson and Yoakum counties.

Baker Urges Use Of Child Choral Units By Clubs

AUSTIN, TEX. July 29. —Your service club members: How'd you like to make some homeless kid momentarily happy — give him a glimpse of life as it's lived outside institutional walls — perhaps contribute materially to his chances of becoming a self-respecting citizen, some day, of some Texas community?

Members of the State Board of Control have an idea—but they can't carry it out. That's up to the service club members over the state (and particularly the always-harrassed program directors who have to think up club entertainments). It's this:

Why not consult with other service clubs in your area, in four, five or six towns, and jointly pay the bare expenses to your vicinity of one of the choral clubs or bands of one of the state institutions for children? And then, when these children stay in your town overnight, take one of them into your own home for that brief period?

"I'll guarantee the entertainment," Chairman Weaver Baker said today. "And if the state had an appropriation for that purpose, we would send out these children at our own expense."

Choral clubs are available at the Corsicana and Waco state homes. Corsicana also has a band.

New Exploration To Test Vincent Field Horizons

Another test in search of the pay in the Vincent area has been staked by Warren Petroleum Corp. of Tulsa, Okla. Location for its No. 1 Chester L. Jones, proposed 5,500-foot wildcat 467 feet out of the southeast corner of section 9-26, H&TC, is in northwestern Mitchell county and is four miles east from the three-well, three-pay Vincent deep Permian pool in extreme northeastern Howard.

Skelly Oil No. 1 W. L. Wilson, northern Howard deep test, was reportedly spudding in section 16-27, H&TC. The exploration is projected for 9,000 feet.

Northern Ordinance No. 1 Clayton & Johnson, south central Borden county wildcat in section 32-21-4n, T&P, cored from 8,312-19 feet in lime with no shows.

Northern Ordinance No. 1 Spalding, section 7-23-2n, T&P in northwestern Howard county had no shows on a drill stem test and was coming out on a third at 5,284 feet. The initial test from 5,090-5,191 feet yielded 240 feet of gas cut mud in an hour and 36 minutes.

In the Moore pool, John B. Hawley Jr. No. 2 Thompson, section 14-24-1n, T&P, was cleaning out at 3,255 feet.

Hunt Oil No. 1 A. L. Wasson, section 19-13n, In, T&P, extreme eastern Howard wildcat four miles north of the Iatan-East Howard pool, was reported below 600 feet in redbeds. Ray Oil No. 1-B Reed, section 48-30-1n, T&P, was in water sand at 1,660 feet, and Cosden No. 1 Foster, section 45-29-1n, T&P, was at 1,565 feet in lime.

Stantland No. 1 G. W. Davis, in the southeast corner of section 47-30-1s, T&P, was testing a pay section from 2,350-80 with 1,000 gallons of acid run from a 2,250-7,475

Mexico To Relieve Lower Valley Drouth

EL PASO, July 29 (AP) — Alleviation of a water shortage in the Rio Grande valley was promised today following approval by American and Mexican officials of the release of water from the Azucar reservoir on the San Juan river in Mexico. Details of the release, announced yesterday, will be worked out between Major J. L. Kytke, project engineer of the International Boundary Commission at San Benito, and David Herrera, engineer-in-charge of the dam. L. M. Lawton, American member of the IBC, said.

Private Uses Bulldozer To Speed Advance Of Yanks In Normandy

By HAL BOYLE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN ST. LO SECTOR, July 15 (Delayed) — A bulldozer ordinarily is used to dig and smooth the roads, but Pvt. John R. Brewer, 22, of Trenton, Tenn., charged a Nazi machine-gun nest with his and buried alive three enemy gunners who had been holding up an American advance.

Brewer saw Germans had pinned down his comrades with rapid-fire weapons and grenades from the safety of a post dug in a hedgerow.

He decided to launch his own attack. Maneuvering his heavy dozer into position he raised the giant scraping blade and ran full force into the hedgerow, tearing out a huge portion which fell on the heads of the entrenched nazis, burying them.

There was no more firing. When the doughboys climbed into the post a few moments later, Brewer again brought up his dozer and shoved aside the earth to help them recover the bodies of the three nazis.

Staff Sgt. Michael Gaydos, Marblehead, O., and his buddy, Pfc. Forrest (Fuzzy) Jones, Peoria, were in a hedgerow across the way from four Germans who were operating from a sniper's emplacement.

Through his field-glass, Fuzzy noted Germans coming up in regular order to take turns sniping at targets in the American lines. So he called over casually: "Take a look around, Mike!"

The sergeant raised up and looked.

When one German took a bead on Gaydos, Fuzzy hollered: "Duck, Mike!"

Mike ducked, and Fuzzy shot the German dead.

Then the sergeant awoke to the role he had been playing in this sniper hunt. He was highly indignant.

"What's wrong, Mike?" asked Fuzzy. "It worked, didn't it?"

Secondary offering of more than $23,000,000 of Rockefeller Standard Oil stocks on Thursday, which was quickly absorbed by purchasers, aided financial sentiment but failed to spur prices of listed oil securities in subsequent sessions.
