

Is The Army Justified In Putting Cpl. Batchelor On Trial?

F. R. HORTON
"I'm not sure"

By T. D. ELLIS
Quizzing Cameraman

"Do you think the Army is justified in putting Cpl. Claude Batchelor on trial for 'collaboration with the enemy' after a UN truce team promised him immunity if he would accept repatriation?"

This "question of the week" was asked at random of 15 persons on Pampa streets. Of the 15 questioned, six were of the opinion that Batchelor should not be tried, two persons were unsure and six refused to comment for publication. Only one said yes.

As a special feature, and in addition to on-the-spot questioning, your Quizzing Cameraman went to the one Pampa man who should know first-hand about the situation.

James Hart, ex-Korean prisoner of war, 109 N. Dwight, had this to say:

"I think that anyone who collaborated with the Communists should be punished. Each time an American GI agreed with them they doubled their efforts to sway the others, thus making it harder on the rest of us.

"If all the GIs had stuck together, we would have had far less trouble with the enemy.

"I think if the Army promised the boys immunity, that promise should stick. But I can't understand why anyone would turn traitor to their country. Dreams of the U. S. and home, were all we had while we were in those prison camps.

"A person can't understand the situation, though, unless he was there.

Here are the opinions of nine other persons:

F. K. Horton, fireman with Santa Fe, 1018 E. Jordan, "He should have come home when the others did when he got the first chance. As far as saying that the Army should try him I am not sure. That's not for me to say."

Marie Griffin, decorator, 809 S. Gray, "I don't think they should put him on trial because he has already gone through enough having been a prisoner of war."

Frankie Williams, computer, Midland, "No, since they promised him they wouldn't do anything to him they are turning their back on their word. That's not the way a democracy operates."

Bill F. Hawkins, Sr., radio and TV sales, 818 Reid, "Yes, the Army has a right to put him on trial if they feel that he has done something to go on trial for. Any man might slip, but there are thousands who went through those things and didn't. I think the trial is to find out how much pressure he was under and if they find it was more than he could stand then they will set him free, if not he should be sent up for a term."

J. T. King, assistant operator of gas plant, 1004 S. Nelson, "I don't think so. After all they did promise the 22 POWs if they came home they would be free. There was a nation-wide plea for people to write letters asking the boys to come home, they get home and to what? A court martial!"

B. H. Spencer, pumper, Lefors, "I suppose the Army has a right to try him. If they asked me to try him I couldn't do it but they know more about the situation than I do. A man can't afford to say what they should do."

Buddie K. Gray, pumper, Lefors, "I definitely do not think the Army has a right to put him on trial. What is a man's limitations? One man can stand more than another. He has been through too much for them to jerk him

NEW PLANE DEMONSTRATED

Comments ranged from "It's a honey," to "Out of this world!" as Pampa business officials were taken aloft in a new twin-engine Cessna 310 late this morning. Alighting from the plane is Cap Jolly, pilot for the Cree Companies. Pilot of the Cessna is Bill Norris, Wichita, Kans., company representative. The craft was also demonstrated to M. K. Brown, E. L. M'Carthy Hearing Recessed

Morse, Flanders Defend Fairness Of Senate Probe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 — UP — Sens. Wayne Morse and Ralph E. Flanders declared their full confidence Friday in the fairness of the committee which is studying their censure charges against Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

They aimed their statements at McCarthy who has been wrangling with Chairman Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) over whether the committee is or has to be completely impartial.

Flanders, Vermont Republican who first launched the censure move, said Watkins was "perceptibly logical" in ruling that all members of the group did not have to be impartial. McCarthy has labeled this view "fanatical."

Flanders also voiced his firm belief in the impartiality of Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.), committee member under fire from McCarthy for not confirming or denying he once said Democratic leaders "loathe McCarthy."

And Morse, sponsor of seven censure charges, told a reporter "I am convinced the committee is thoroughly competent to render an impartial decision."

The two senators spoke out as the committee took a day off because of the funeral of Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S.C.). The group Thursday finished presenting all the evidence it had on five general charges against McCarthy but Watkins said some more may be put in the record when the hearings resume Tuesday.

If additional evidence is not ready then, however, Watkins said the group may invite McCarthy's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, to begin presenting his case. McCarthy expects to testify in his own behalf.

Meanwhile, however, the "impartiality" dispute raged on with out letup outside the hearing room. McCarthy said Friday that "I am still hoping that Ed Johnson admits or denies the accuracy of the story in the (Denver) Post."

President To Sign Red Control Bills

World War II Exploded 15 Years Ago

By UNITED PRESS

Fifteen years ago Friday Britain and France went to war against Germany. World War II had begun.

The Streamer headlines in the New York Herald Tribune read: "Great Britain declares war on Germany."

"Mussolini urges parley, Hitler considers it."

"Poland reports 1,500 killed in air raids."

In London the double-deck buses halted in the middle of streets and people clustered around radios in brilliant sunshine at 11 a.m. to listen to Neville Chamberlain, the man with the umbrella.

"As a result of this (Hitler's) ignoring Britain's ultimatum on Poland," he was saying, "I regret to tell you that a state of war now exists between this country and Germany."

Queues wound from schools throughout the city. The children were leaving. Gas masks were distributed from civil defense centers. (See WAR, Page 3)

USEFULNESS OF MOTHERS-IN-LAW DISPELS ALL FORMER PREJUDICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 — UP — The Lewyt Corp., doing research for vacuum cleaner sales, set out to find how hated mothers-in-law were.

More than 10,000 married men were interviewed. Sixty-three per cent said mother-in-law was OK. They found her particularly helpful in caring for children and being available for financial aid.

Dulles In Philippines For SEATO Session

MANILA, P.I., Sept. 3 — UP — U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived Friday from the United States to head the American delegation to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) conference.

Dulles reached the site of the forthcoming meeting of foreign ministers as delegates tightened their security regulations as the result of the arrest of a suspected spy.

Members of some delegations thoroughly investigated their hotel rooms to make sure there were no hidden microphones. Secretariat staffs received warnings against loose talk.

There was a growing feeling that the Communists are worried about the conference, which opens next Monday, and may try to disrupt it.

Philippine Vice President Carlos P. Garcia, who is also secretary of the foreign office, took action to co-ordinate the investigation into an alleged spy ring.

Garcia instructed the foreign office's chief of intelligence to take part in a co-ordinated investigation with army and police agencies already in action.

New Law Limits Party Activities

DENVER, Sept. 3 — UP — President Eisenhower, returning to his summer White House office after a brief fishing trip, plans to sign into law Friday two major Communist control bills and the mutual security appropriation bill.

All three of the measures are designed to strengthen the fight against communism.

One strips convicted Communists of their citizenship, another provides the death penalty for peacetime espionage, and the mutual security measure authorizes spending of $3,243,375,795 to help friendly nations resist communism.

The first of the domestic Communist control bills was a primary proposal of the Eisenhower administration. It brought more application than any item in Mr. Eisenhower's State of the Union message when first he introduced it.

The new law would revoke the citizenship of anyone convicted under the Smith act of conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the United States by force and violence.

Anyone thus deprived of citizenship would have the permanent status of an alien and could be deported. (See PRESIDENT, Page 3)

'Mystery' Illness Takes Third Life

EDINBURG, Tex., Sept. 3 — UP — Two more health investigators were rushed to Lower Rio Grande Valley from Austin Friday following the third apparent polio death in the area in less than a week.

A nine-year-old boy died in the polio treatment center at Valley Baptist hospital, Harlingen, Thursday night. He was LaMotte Parker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Parker of Mercedes.

Authorities were still uncertain whether the disease that has shown a sharp upsurge in the last three weeks in the Valley was actually polio. The Hidalgo county health officer, Dr. Charles H. Miller, believes the disease is a form of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness.

Miller said the two additional investigators, who were sent by the state health officer in Austin, will help collect blood samples from new victims of the disease. The samples are refrigerated and sent to the state virus laboratory in Austin, where experts are trying to identify the malady.

Miller said over 100 samples so far had been obtained. "I'd say we

Newspaper Reverses Attlee Stand

LONDON, Sept. 3 — UP — British newspapers which had criticized a Labor party delegation's tour of Communist China changed their stand Friday and said it was not such a bad idea after all.

London's million-circulation tabloid Daily Mirror said the statement issued by Clement Attlee, former British prime minister and head of the delegation, at Hong Kong Thursday cast a different light on the visit.

"They didn't fool Attlee," the Mirror's bannerline said. "Americans can relax — and the British Tory papers need to worry any more."

Attlee said at a press conference that he urged Red Chinese Chief of State Mao Tse-Tung to use his influence with the Kremlin in an attempt to slow down Russian armament and stop Soviet interference in the affairs of satellite nations.

82 Killed In Train Wreck

MANILA, Sept. 3 — UP — The remains of some of the 82 victims of one of the worst train crashes in Philippine history were recovered from the wreckage Friday.

The accident occurred Thursday near the lumber town of Fagrica, in the southern province of Negros Occidental. Three coaches carrying logs and more than 100 passengers were derailed onto a bridge and tumbled 40 feet into a valley.

More than 50 injured were rushed to the town hospital, many in critical condition. Seven of these died Friday.

Rescuers Face Alaska Wilds

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 3 — UP — Rescuers struggled through a thickly wooded, bear-infested wilderness on Admiralty Island near here Friday toward the wreckage of a government plane which crashed Wednesday, apparently killing four persons.

Two men, Gus Hilsinger, Fish and Wildlife Service biologist, and pilot Robert Meeks survived the accident when they were thrown through the twin-engine craft's windshield after it plunged to earth. Hilsinger was rescued by Juneau pilot Dean Goodwin and flown to a local hospital, but the injured Meeks was still at the scene of the crash.

Presumed dead were George Kelez, assistant fisheries administrator for Alaska; Richard Shuman, fisheries supervisor; Larry Kollson, Seattle biologist, and Patte Bitwell Davis, a secretary for the service.

Clarence Rhode, regional director for the Fish and Wildlife Service and an expert pilot himself, said apparently the plane had been flying about 100 feet above the ground to permit the biologist to survey a salmon escapement in a stream. He said the Grumman Goose probably crashed while trying to make a turn.

Rustler Roundup In S. Dakota Reads Like 'B' Movie Script

By JO ANNE SMITH

MARTIN, S.D., Sept. 3 — UP — South Dakota's recent smashing of a ring of cattle rustlers sounds like a plot out of a Grade-D western movie — only cornerier.

There were the villains — big spenders, flashy dressers, spent lots of time in saloons with painted women.

The young sheriff — handsome and 30 — knew those guys were the ones stealing the cattle but couldn't get the goods on them.

Enter the stranger. Whispers about his past. Just out of jail in Hot Springs. Plenty of cash. Ready to buy "hot" cattle.

Rustlers Get Desperate
The rustlers getting desperate.

No trouble snatching the cattle from the range at night. But tougher and tougher to sell them. Take a chance. Sell them to the mysterious stranger.

Presto! Stranger proves to be law officer. Bad men caught flat footed. Fadeout on bars swelling closed on them.

Bennett County Sheriff Robert R. Shebal, 30, laughingly confided that's just about how it worked.

Shebal said the real-life rustlers were operating in trucks at night over South Dakota's vast range where there are ranches of up to 20,000 acres and herds numbering 2,000 cattle.

Call Secret Huddle In Batchelor Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 3 — UP — More secret testimony was expected Friday at the court martial of Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor, turnabout POW accused of conniving with his Chinese Communist captors.

A Negro Army captain who took several statements from Batchelor in Tokyo, after the 22-year-old Kermit, Tex., soldier was repatriated last Jan. 1, testified Thursday behind closed doors. The Army did not reveal the name of the captain, an intelligence officer, and said he would go back on the stand Friday.

Meanwhile, it was announced former Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, who, like Batchelor, first refused and then accepted repatriation, would be a witness "for both sides." Dickenson, of Cracker Neck, Va., is serving 10 years' in prison after his conviction on charges somewhat similar to those against Batchelor.

The Fourth Army also said Frank (Pappy) Noel, Associated Press photographer who was a prisoner in Camp No. 3 at Pyok-dang, North Korea, with Batchelor had been subpoenaed as a defense witness.

Batchelor has said that he and Noel planned an escape attempt from the prison camp, but gave it up when "Operation Little Switch" began in the spring of 1953, because it appeared likely all prisoners would be repatriated. At one point in Thursday's ses-

Youth Center Study Group Is Chosen

The committee to select the incorporators for a proposed Community Center apparently worked faster than its chairman thought possible. The incorporators are already selected and a meeting has been scheduled.

Yesterday morning, Aaron Sturgeon, chairman of the group, told The Pampa News that the announcement of the names of the incorporators would not be made for several days, although the public's choice of the 11 persons had already been received in the form of ballots.

Committee Works Fast

Sturgeon said some members of his committee were out of town, and that they would have to get together before plans could proceed. He said also that before names could be released, the group would have to canvass the selected persons to determine if they would be willing to serve.

Vienna Becomes Mecca For Spies

VIENNA, Sept. 2—UP—Austrian police now figure there are 45,000 spies and informers making headquarters in Vienna. One for every lamp post, and then some. Vienna straddles the Iron Curtain. It is a beehive of agents on the prowl for information. Police estimate the number of full-time agents for various governments at 10,000. Another 35,000 are informers and tipsters who peddle scraps of news and gossip for whatever they can get. Austrian tourist officials wish people had never heard of the movie "The Third Man." The film atmosphere of intrigue and sudden death has scared tourists away from this capital once noted for its devotion to wine, women and song. Though surrounded by Soviet-held territory and peopled with 45,000 cloak-and-dagger characters, Vienna is "as safe as New York" so far as tourists are concerned, the tourist men say. Anton Karas, the Zither player whose "Third Man" theme music became a hit tune, wants to open a night club with the money he earned with his zither. But he gets nothing but sour notes from city officials. They won't give him a liquor license. With a critical food shortage behind the Iron Curtain, Vienna has become a mecca for gourmets from the Red satellite nations. Restaurant are stocking special food for visiting Communists, who often can't get their "national dishes" back home. Romanians come here to get Romanian shikabob, the Hungarians to get Hungarian goulash, the Czechs to get powidlice (tatachkes plum dumplings) and the Bulgarians to get their fiery Bulgarian pepperone. Vienna's gigantic ferris wheel, which like the Eiffel Tower of Paris is a city landmark, will be spinning out its last summer. Owners of the site where the 82-year-old wheel stands are demanding more rent. Owners of the wheel say their receipts are barely enough to pay the present rent. The case will be settled in court this fall.

Gary Crosby's Show Biz Bow Was Delayed

By GARY CROSBY
Written for United Press
HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3—UP—My introduction to show business would have been much happier if it hadn't been cut short by a case of mumps. I was traveling with Dad entering troops in California, Arizona and Texas during World War II when the mumps caught up with me just before we hit Texas. I was side-tracked for two years. I was seven at the time. My act wasn't much. I used to sing my entire repertory for the fellows in service. It consisted of "Rose O'Day." I've increased my repertory since — I found people can listen to "Rose O'Day" for just so long. Then they get tired. My next appearance as a professional took place two years later, in 1942. I was nine years old when Paramount signed me to appear in a supporting role in "Star Spangled Rhythm." My dad was in it, too. I had a great speaking part. Two lines. The first was "He's in there" and the second was "You've got the wrong Crosby." Paramount didn't call me again for three years! Then in 1945 there was a picture called "Duffy's Tavern," all the Crosbys worked in that one. Lenny, Phil, Dennis, me and Dad. Our wardrobe was very simple. We wore our pajamas and appeared in one scene. I don't think they even let me say two lines in that one. I was 16 before Dad would let me solo with him on his radio show. Barbara Whiting appeared with us, and we had a date after the program. There was a lot of funny dialogue on the show about how upset Dad was to find that I'd grown old enough to have dates with girls, and how it was all right with him, but he'd go along as chaperon. It was all pretty funny on the show. But I couldn't find anything to laugh about when Dad did come along as chaperon on my real date. The first record I made with Dad was "Sam's Song" which turned out to be a first class hit, with the latest sales count hitting 1.3 million. The label read "Sam's Song" with Gary Crosby and friend. I'm sure that "and friend" sold the records. I really hadn't planned to make a career in show business. I'd always wanted to make my living playing football. But during my freshman year at Stanford I broke first one shoulder, then the other. I just ran out of shoulders and had to start singing. War II Vet Kills Father

GRAPELAND, Tex., Sept. 3—UP—Louis Parker, 37, a disabled World War II veteran, shot his 60-year-old father to death here Wednesday during a family dispute. County Attorney Nat Patton, who charged Parker with "murder with malice," said young Parker admitted the shooting after he said his father, Chester Parker, had "threatened to shoot all of us."

LET'S KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT

By J. A. Hill
The above quotation says: "The Panhandle Plains Historical Museum has received $161,500 in itemized state support during the five years of Governor Shivers' administration. It had received no direct appropriation whatever during the previous twenty-eight years of its existence." By the side of that statement I should like to place these facts of record. 1. The first state appropriation ever made for the use and benefit of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society was signed by Governor Ross Sterling in the sum of $25,000. It was engineered through the legislature by Clyde Warwick, Clint Small, and Lee Satterwhite, and was widely publicized at the time. That was somewhere near the time that Mr. Shivers cast his first ballot. Sterling's name is on the cornerstone of the museum. 2. During the depression the legislature at different times appropriated small sums to West Texas State to match WPA funds. The museum got its share of this money, be it ever so small. 3. In the spring of 1947 the legislature, thanks to Senator Grady Hawwood, appropriated $10,000 for the museum for each year of the following biennium. Governor Beauford Jester signed it. For proof examine the Fourteenth Annual Report of the State Board of Control. 4. Since September 1, 1928, West Texas State College has contributed out of its Local Funds (student fees and other local revenues) the sum of $32,803.89 to the museum. Verification of this statement is found in a financial statement from the Business Office of the College under date of June 12, 1954. The minutes of the Historical Society from February 8, 1921, to September 1, 1928, indicate that the College (the state) just about kept the society going for their beginning years. It may be argued that Local Funds are not state money, but the Attorney General has held otherwise and in the last five years has begun requiring all such funds to be put in the state treasury. If this had been the practice during the Society's first twenty years, there would be no museum on West Texas State campus — that is, unless the Society had found a Santa Claus somewhere else. Now, folks, I am not trying to embarrass the good men who signed that unfortunate letter. I don't like to embarrass my friends. Nor am I seeking to detract from Governor Shivers' laurels. He was not responsible, I am sure, for the misinformation that was so widely circulated. And surely he would regret that the College, the Ex-Students Association, and the Historical Society, each of which is doing a magnificent job, but each of which needs all the friends it can get, should be brought into bitter partisan politics. It all goes to show how easy it is for even good people to make mistakes in the heat of political battle. In such ways the reputation of each candidate has suffered irreparable damage and regardless of who is elected today each candidate will carry the odor of a political election to his dying day. Too bad for them and too bad for Texas! Let's keep the record straight and keep our public institutions out of political rows. B-36 Crew 'Lasts' Out Crash Scare

FORT WORTH, Sept. 3—UP—A B-36 superbomber attempted a belly landing at Cushing, Okla., Thursday with one engine dead and smoke pouring from the right wing, then decided to go on "to its destination." The plane last reported in from 25 miles north of Cape Girardeau, Mo., and continuing to its destination since there was no immediate danger, Maj. Robert Spence, public information officer at Carswell Air Force Base said. The plane was based at Walker Air Force Base, Roswell, N. M., and was on a routine training flight. The plane first radioed from Cushing after deciding against the belly landing that it would land at Tulsa, Okla., municipal airport. Tulsa authorities called out crash equipment. The Oklahoma Highway Patrol next quoted Carswell that the plane had landed safely at Joplin. But Carswell authorities said it had not landed and they had made no such report. Joplin CAA operator Roland G. Fay said the pilot told him by radio that apparently the trouble was an oil leak instead of an engine fire and that he had shut down an engine and was continuing. The B-36 had 10 engines — six propeller-type and four jets. The next report came from 35 miles north of Cape Girardeau.

THE MARQUEE
BY DICK KLEINER
TV STAGE RADIO RECORDS PEOPLE

The Record Shop: Hey, you on the third level! 'Com on out here a minute. Guy named George Marek wants words with you. Marek is head of the classical record division at RCA-Victor. And that third level business is his phrase. He says there are three levels of record-listening. "The top level is the true music lover, the high-fidelity audience," Marek says. "Below this is what I call the 'Nutcracker Suite' level. The tastes of this audience are not so varied or sophisticated as those of the first group. Finally we have the level of silence — people who are not interested in playing records at all." As an official of a record company, this silent level is no help at all to Marek. So he sat down with pencil, paper and thinking cap and came up with a pretty good idea. When the book industry wanted to hypo sales, it dreamed up the "digest" gimmick. Why not musical digests for this non-buying third level? And that's how RCA's new "Listener's Digest" came about. It's a series of 45 RPM records, containing five hours and 50 minutes of famous music carefully condensed to less than half that time. The set is packaged with a 45 RPM phonograph, the theory being that the third levelites don't have a player. "By applying the concept of condensation so successful in the book and magazine field to the field of recorded music," Marek says, "we hope to make available classical works that will be inexpensive, friendly, short and easy to enjoy." For example, one of the works in the set is Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. In the complete, unpigmented version, this runs 32 minutes, 12 seconds. In the Listener's Digest version, it's only 14 minutes 41 seconds. So here's a chance for you out there all alone on that nasty third level to move up. Elevator for the second level is now loading. "Board!" Robert Q. Lewis, star of radio, TV and horned-rim glasses, has signed to make records for Coral. Another new record contract signer is Gettrude (Molly Goldberg) Berg. And surely he would regret that the College, the Ex-Students Association, and the Historical Society, each of which is doing a magnificent job, but each of which needs all the friends it can get, should be brought into bitter partisan politics. It all goes to show how easy it is for even good people to make mistakes in the heat of political battle. In such ways the reputation of each candidate has suffered irreparable damage and regardless of who is elected today each candidate will carry the odor of a political election to his dying day. Too bad for them and too bad for Texas! Let's keep the record straight and keep our public institutions out of political rows. "With malice toward none and charity for all," to quote a good Republican, I am Sincerely yours, J. A. Hill

SLUSH PIT BURNS

A pall of smoke hung over Pampa and vicinity for a short while this morning raising some fears that trouble might be brewing on an oil lease operation. However, it was only a periodical burning of slush-pit waste southwest of Pampa. The above photo shows the smoke billowing out from the source. (News Photo)

Pressure On For Segregation End

EDITOR'S NOTE: Last May 23 — six days after the U. S. Supreme Court outlawed public school segregation — the National Association for Advancement of Colored People issued here what it termed an "Atlanta declaration" setting forth the NAACP's program for implementing the court's decision. Here are some results of that action.

In New York a girl named Mary Martin was wowing them with a song called "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." A few blocks away, Talullah Bankhead was emoting in Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes."

In Berlin Adolf Hitler was leaving for the Polish front. The anti-aircraft guns were going up on the Reichstag. Even Goering felt uneasy about his boast that no bombs would drop on Germany. There was a blackout for the third straight night. The headlines screamed: "England has dropped the mask." A government bulletin outlawed listening to any but Nazi radio broadcasts.

In Washington, Congress was in recess. Franklin Roosevelt issued a statement from the White House. He said he was hopeful the United States "will keep out of war." He ordered the State and Justice Departments to get together on a detailed neutrality program.

It was a lovely day in Paris. People were coming back from holidays, the harvests were excellent, the wine was vintage. Then they heard Premier Edouard Daladier proclaim that France had decided to keep its word and defend Poland. The country was stunned even though France had known it would come. Reservists had been moving all week to fill the marvelous Maginot line.

In Moscow the men in the Kremlin were silent. Josef Stalin was playing the waiting game.

W. L. Hill, laborer, White Deer, "He was a POW, isn't that enough? I don't think they ought to prosecute the fellow. In the first place we had no business in the Korean War. In the second place, he was probably drafted and forced to go to war. He probably made a good soldier and fought until he was taken prisoner. Besides, who can say how much torture he was submitted to before he agreed with the Communists?"

Other anonymous comments were: "That is a dirty double-cross. I am not in a position to make a statement. Even the apostles deserted Christ when the pressure was on. Who cares what I think about the matter?"

Varnon Dr. Street Work Is Underway

About 1,500 feet of curb and gutter work is being done today in Prairie Village in the first stage of paving work for Varnon Drive.

The work is being done by the City Engineer's department, on Varnon Drive from Crawford to Huff. This is a curved street. As soon as curbing and gutter work is completed, the base for the paving will be laid. City Engineer James Cowan said the process would require about 10 days, to two weeks.

Topping of the street will be handled next summer, Cowan said.

Cleric Hits Sex Accent

CHICAGO, Sept. 3—UP—Samuel Cardinal Stritch said Thursday night that modern society is preoccupied with sex.

Stritch, archbishop of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, said the sex problem really results from the degradation of womanhood.

Stritch told delegates to the National Federation of Catholic College Students that primitive cultures respected the value of women in society.

But as society proceeds, he said, this initial respect is gradually replaced by a new concept, the "Venus woman."

Novel AF Recruiting Method Will Be Tried Here Sept. 10

What the Air Force recruiters in Chicago couldn't do, Texas has done, and now a Pampa recruiting sergeant is going to try it on the local level.

Sgt. Bill Neal has set Sept. 10 as a target date for a "Recruit Airlift" which would provide for the flying of new recruits in the Air Force from Perry LeFors Field to a training area in San Antonio.

Sgt. Neal said he would have to have 10 new recruits in order to carry out the program. He said the enlisting officer from Amarillo would come to Pampa where the recruits would take part in ceremonies here. Then the new recruits would get an advance sample of Air Force life, a swift trip to the training grounds.

This program was first tried by a recruiting officer in Chicago, Neal explained, but it was not successful because some parents objected to their sons flying.

But a few weeks ago, he said, Capt. James Carr, recruiting officer for the Amarillo office put the program over, flying 15 recruits, including three from Lefors, to Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

Sgt. Neal said he would include the "Buddy System" program in his drive for Airlift. This makes it possible for friends to enlist and remain together at least through Public school registration hit the 4,408 mark as of Thursday, and Superintendent Knox Kinard said by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week he anticipates it will reach 4,500.

"Many people were on vacation and will not be able to enroll their children before the beginning of next week," Kinard said. There will be no classes Monday, Labor Day.

Registration Thursday totaled 2401 in the elementary schools; 1068 in the Junior High School; 790 in the Senior High School, and 149 in Carver School.

Union Loan

A number of newspapers have commented editorially and enthusiastically about the granting of a loan by the AFL Union Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union to a millinery manufacturer. It's really something great, is the tone of the approval, and it just goes to show that unions are peachy, good-hearted kids who want to help everyone.

It is interesting to note, however, that the union itself is $1,000,000 in debt because it financed a 10-months strike against another hat maker and that all of the money being loaned to the first outfit has to come from individual members which amounts to about $200 per employee.

The Chicago Sun Times, a New Deal publication, adds that "if an employee does not have the money available, arrangements are being made for him to borrow it at a local bank and pay the loan back from future wages" and, we might add, with interest tacked on.

Just how it makes sense to the union members or anyone else to close one plant by strike for 10 months and then borrow money and pay interest so that another plant can operate, maybe again at a loss, is something that hasn't been explained. It seems logical to believe that many of the union members would just as soon not find themselves in this position but are so dominated by the union bosses that they have little choice in the matter. It may be that after they have "been in business" for a while with their own money that the union members will find out that a company has to make a profit to survive and that if the money is pooled the union members and the company will be a whole lot better off if they drop the union and the expense of a union boss and work together as associates. If so, it will have been worthwhile.

Hank Says Good Reporters Don't Use Tape Recorders

By HENRY McLEMORE

Mr. Andy Crevelin, the California horse owner who won the 1954 Kentucky Derby with Determine, is being criticized, and real hard, for what he said about horse racing.

Mr. Crevelin was interviewed by representatives of "Blood Horse," a racing magazine published in Lexington, Ky. He was quoted as intimating that horse racing is crooked.

I think Mr. Crevelin was wrong in what he said but I believe he was interviewed by men who were not too friendly to him.

The two men who interviewed Mr. Crevelin brought pencils with them, lots of copy paper, and a tape recorder. If you are not expecting a man to hang himself, why bring along the tape recorder? I have been in the newspaper business for 25 years and am familiar with the best reporters in America. The good reporters don't do what the "Blood Horse" reporters did.

Mr. Crevelin was carried away by the great horses he has. Vanderbilt takes each year to get a Kentucky Derby winner, and misses Mr. Crevelin hit the jackpot almost overnight. He stood at Churchill Downs and accepted the Kentucky Derby trophy; two hours later he won another $100,000 handicap at San Francisco. That's more than enough to go to any man's head. All of a sudden he's the top horse racing owner in America. Out of a clear blue sky he's topped Woodward, Whitney, Greenree, Calumet and all the other famed stables which have tried for years to do what he did in one short day.

The "Blood Horse" reporters interviewed a sitting duck, a man carried away by unbelievable success. The story the "Blood Horse" reporters wrote received international attention, but if I were they, I wouldn't be too proud about it. Let us consider one of the supposedly important things Mr. Crevelin was quoted as saying—that he saw horses pulled in a filly race in Chicago. I don't believe Mr. Crevelin can possibly know if a

The Leftists urged us to drop Atom bombs on Japan — after the Japanese had already offered to surrender. And we did it to weaken a nation that was a check on the Soviet Union. That decision was morally wrong.

The Leftists urged us to be afraid of the Atom bomb, even when it was exclusively in our hands.

The Leftists stole the Atom bomb and gave it to our enemies. If a bomb ever falls on Los Angeles, New York, or St. Louis, it will be the fault of these Leftists. They will be our murderers.

Now the Leftists propose that we should hand over our atomic defense to a United Nations that is the creation and the creature of the Soviet Union. Through fear, they seek to persuade us that we will be safe from bombing by a ruthless and deceptive enemy if we surrender the ability to reply with bombs.

How long will we fall for the Leftists?

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

The World Council of Churches "Responsible Society" Since the World Council of Churches is having a meeting at Evanston the last two weeks of August, what is discussed at this meeting and the means proposed to bring about certain conditions should be of interest to every American.

Edmund A. Opitz has a very interesting article in the August issue of The Freeman magazine under the heading of "From Amsterdam to Evanston." Here is part of what he says:

Political Society "According to the preliminary material issued on behalf of Evanston, the Responsible Society—which is supposed to be the Church's remedy for social ills—will include the right to subsistence, to health, security, housing and to employment." In order that our modern technical societies may function there must inevitably be a large degree of planning, i.e. the planning of other people's lives by those who exercise political power. The Responsible Society is akin to what in America, "is sometimes called 'welfare capitalism' which has closer similarities to the economic developments in Britain than is usually realized on either side of the Atlantic. . . . No major political group would now dare to advocate the repeal of the major New Deal social legislation," and a church wishing to be politically effective must mobilize majorities in the way they are going. In short, the Responsible Society, in its political and economic aspects, is what is otherwise labeled the New or Fair Deal, the mixed economy, the Welfare State, or the middle-of-the-road policy.

"This is the kind of a society to which the social thinkers of the eumenical movement are committed, and they have every right to follow their convictions in this matter—the same convictions which have led them to a merry chase during the past couple of decades. But they are utterly misguided in their zealous efforts to shape the Church into a sounding board for their views, all the while protesting that because they are board members of the program of political interventionism follows no carefully thought-out pattern, but instead plays it by ear, they are not hitching a social system in the Church.

Church Behind Collectivism "This is no recent effort, the endeavor to put the weight of the Church behind some variety of collectivism. The Christian Socialist movement began more than a century ago in England, and the Social Gospel movement rose in this country during the latter half of last century. Both movements attracted able and high-minded men, however mistaken one may think they were. But they were right about one thing; that if you are going to engage in political action you must command or appear to command votes. They wanted to talk to legislators, and to do this they had to speak the language politicians understand. Out of this need on the part of social gospellers to present what seems to be a united front, came the movement for church unity, and the founding of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and the various local councils.

"In support of this contention one may quote from an authoritative source, The Quest for Christian Unity by Robert Bilheimer, Executive Secretary for the forthcoming Evanston Assembly. He writes that the movements directed toward a Church able to speak with one socialized voice stemmed from:

"... a concern which in fact did not stir the mass of church membership greatly, but chiefly the leadership of the churches. Local councils and the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America alike had their origin mainly in the response of church leadership to the evils of industrial society. The first of the city councils of churches were organized principally to combat in a united way the problem created by industrialism. . . (the main impetus came from those who were principally concerned with moral life of the nation and the impact of the churches on the social order. . . . From its establishment in 1908 until its merger in 1950 into the National Council of Churches of Christ in America. . . maintained a strong insistence upon the need for bringing the Christian conscience to bear upon the problem of social injustice. It was a rallying point for all concerned with the social gospel."

"Further support for the view that the moving spirits in the various councils of churches were apostles of social change comes from C. H. Hopkins, historian of the social gospel. He writes, "The influence of the social gospel upon movements toward the unity of the churches was an important aspect of the rise of social Christianity. . . The federative movements that came into being around the turn of the century were based on social-active impulses rather than creedal or doctrinal agreement."

"So, one need not be surprised at the kind of social thought that by and large characterizes the pronouncements of church councils from local to world level. The councils were organized by men with a strong collectivist bent for the express purpose of making social Christianity effective and that is what their successors are trying to do. Unless something unforeseen happens, Evanston will put itself on record even more explicitly than did Amsterdam on capitalism and communism and the Responsible Society.

Despite Labor Hopes, GOP Men Favored In Vermont

By RAY TUCKER

(While Ray Tucker is on vacation there will be guest columns by several prominent newspaper editors. Today's column is by Stephen E. Billings, Assistant Editor of The Barre (Vt.) Daily Times.)

By STEPHEN E. BILLINGS On September 14, if Green Mountain political tradition holds good, Republican voters will choose the candidates who are to beat the Democrats in November. It was then, a shock on August 22 to hear C. E. St. Amour of St. Albans, new president of Vermont Federation of Labor, tell Labor's board may endorse one after the other. Stephen E. Billings, Assistant Editor of The Barre (Vt.) Daily Times, said it casually and the L. L. P. E. took no position on candidates. The Federation's executive board may endorse one after the other. But E. Frank Branon, Democratic candidate for Governor, addressed the L. L. P. E. banquet, outlining his record of state senator in the 1953 Vermont Legislature.

As a Republican by birth, by conviction, and because the party needs good men, I was disturbed by Senator Wayne Morse's casting of GOP leadership in his recent performance on "Meet The Press."

Granted that the last two years did not develop evidence of outstanding political genius among the Republicans, even the loyal opposition's political acumen seemed rusty at moments.

But Senator Aiken, who had not been an outspoken supporter of President Eisenhower, had the grace to be quiet about any misgivings he may have had and worked harder than ever for the success of his party along lines where his convictions coincided with those of the President and Secretary Benson. Here in Vermont we regard that as much more constructive service to the nation than Morse's carping comments.

deprivation of spiritual religion — of joining its fortunes to a particular political structure, or to a definite world view, or to a specific scientific theory. But just when the Church gets itself comfortably adjusted, new facts pour in and an upgrading of man's understanding occurs. Then the Church is temporarily pushed off into one of life's backwaters. Fortunately, Christianity has a vitality beyond its institution, the Church of any given age; it survives.

"The late Dean Inge summed up the matter with his characteristic wit. In answer to the argument that the Church must be up-to-date and go along with the times he answered, 'If the Church marries the spirit of this age, she will be a widow in the next.'"

I have often wondered whether our ancestors were as much troubled with allergies as we are today. It may be that they were, but with the exception of asthma they had so far escaped. My paper is supporting Johnson. He has not been spectacular as lieutenant governor but has a fine record of public service in Senator Planders' home town of Springfield, including 20 years as chairman of the school board.

As a Republican by birth, by conviction, and because the party needs good men, I was disturbed by Senator Wayne Morse's casting of GOP leadership in his recent performance on "Meet The Press."

Fair Enough

Meddling By Letterhead Groups Threatens Nation

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — There is a very dangerous threat to the government and the safety of this nation in the pernicious activities of clandestine letterhead political slush-funds. It has occurred to me that the clamor against Joe McCarthy and his "methods," including the unworthy, un-American, out-cry against "fear" is a ruse to divert attention from this queer development. Possibly some few genuine Americans do believe that McCarthy and Senators Bridges, Welker, Jenner and McCarran and Congressman Velde and Hoffman among many have been too inquisitive and brusque in their pursuit of information exposing traitors and patrons of traitors and union racketeers and their protectors.

However, the best that can be said of those few is that they are thoroughly, if honestly, mistaken. They are in very bad company. Their comrades in alarm and apprehension certainly are anti-American to the extent that they put the welfare of this country behind other interests including Soviet Russia. We were furious when the Nazi bund was exalting Hitler's Germany above everything else in the world and blacklisting American individuals by business pressure. That was outrageous! And we reacted in the normal patriotic way. But now, pro-Americans who would maintain the stars and stripes above the hammer and sickle, the cancerous device of the United Nations and other alien emblems, are vilified as fascist-minded hate-mongers and xenophobes, a double-dome word meaning persons who distrust foreigners, and bigots. Many of us are afraid to open our mouths.

Certainly many of the high-binders who raise this hateful clamor are pro-Soviet and anti-American. But the whole lot of them, including those problematical few who might be honestly overworked victims of propaganda, are not going to get away with it. This fight is going to continue and disclosures yet to come in Congress will demonstrate why those who scream about "fear" are so frightened of the truth. They have good reason to be afraid. Their book-burning censorship and suppression of discussion, their boycotts and their silent sabotage will beggar the worst atrocities of the Nazis and the Fascists in our midst a few years back.

There is a close, interlocking relationship between these stealthy forces (with their pretentious programs of peace-through-brotherhood and love-through-understanding) and the powers that presume to butt into the public elections of New Hampshire, Texas, Nevada, Vermont, Montana — in fact all the states outside New York. It cannot be said they butt into New York elections, for New York is their home, their address and the polluted source from which their propaganda flows.

As of now there is no legal offense in such intrusion into the politics of the several states. But that defect can be mended when the public and Congress have been made resentfully aware of the impudence and mischief of this scheme. We can pass laws to put an end to this manipulation of public elections in our sovereign states by a few arrogant, secretive rich men and women, mostly on the eastern seaboard. But first, the affront and the danger to our constitutional form of government must be publicized with dramatic furor and emotion.

This is not a new development. It is just a new phase of an old problem. We thought we had cured the trouble when, after the Lorimer case, we adopted laws forbidding corporations to buy up senators with slush-funds. Nobody foresaw a time when the "foundation" exempt from income tax could use its exempt income to drug the intelligence of a state's electorate with vicious smears against a patriotic American senator published in the interest of a candidate devoted to unrestricted immigration, to recognition of the Red Chinese enemy, to the proposition that the U.N. should have legislative powers superior to those of Congress.

These evil societies are even going after governors now. It is not fantastic to conjure a situation in which, by the use of money, a few furtive schemers in New York will absolutely control Congress and thus control foreign policy, defense policies and the national economy.

As matters stand, these paper bunds which need have no substantial entity at all, are required to file with the clerk of the House of Representatives schedules of contributions given to candidates in federal elections.

However, the plotters can hide their identity by listing the contributors. They do not have to disclose the true identity of the individuals who manipulate the machines. And, worse, the law does not regard primaries as federal elections, a defect which permits the master-minds to keep undercover in primaries which are finally decisive.

They have not yet achieved their goal, which is control of the whole government of the United States and of many of the states with all the alarming implications of that purpose. It seems likely that they will be frustrated, but first,

Pampa News Women's Editor

THE PROBLEM of make-up is a difficult one for many of us... just how much of this cosmetic to use and how much of that. What shade and type is most flattering.

The problem was taken up recently by Madame Helena Rubinstein, in its relationship with hosiery shades.

"IT IS APPARENT that many women have difficulty in recognizing their own skin tones. You are one of them if your make-up is never really 'quite right,' doesn't enhance your complexion as much as it should. Today, hosiery shades as well as make-up must flatter your skin type so it becomes doubly important to discover which skin tone is yours and eliminate forever the costly 'mistakes' that make your face and legs look less than perfect.

"One simple way to determine your own skin tone is to observe Hollywood stars in technicolor productions. Since there are only six basic skin types it should be easy to check and see which of these famous beauties has a skin tone most nearly like yours.

"Lana Turner, for instance, has a medium complexion as do most American women. Miss Turner enhances her famous legs with stockings in a shade called crack-jack. If your skin is similar to hers, you'll find that shade completely flattering and easy to remember since it is named for the face powder and foundation shade ideal for your skin.

"Delightfully feminine Janet Leigh has pink skin which she carefully highlights with peach-bloom minute make-up, peach-bloom hosiery.

Cyd Charisse is an exotic beauty, whose olive skin is beautifully alive and glowing. If your skin is in this color area, foster rosy undertones with rose beige hose and rose beige face powder and foundation, shades especially created to give warm, pink undertones to the olive complexion.

"If you are one of the fortunate few whose skin is in the ivory tone which distinguishes beautiful Elizabeth Taylor, you will find that rachel stockings as well as rachel foundation and face powder are just exactly right to give a luminous quality to your flawless skin.

"Radiant skin types, such as lovely Esther Williams has, are best surrounded in a warm beige shade.

NOT TOO LONG ago, the subject of corsets and under garments was very much taboo. But recently the subject has appeared in print quite often. Part of this was through interviews with Hollywood and television glamor girls who voiced that they were or were not for the corseted figure. "were not" caused quite a stir.

Now, another "were not" has come out with a very strong article on the subject. Since it is highly entertaining from beginning to end, whether or not you agree with her, I decided to reprint parts of it in this column.

THE GREAT TORSO MURDER NEW YORK, N. Y. — The battle of the girdle is on — with the opening salvo fired against corset conformity by Marya Mannes in the current issue of "The Reporter." Expressing sentiments likely to be welcomed by millions of women, Miss Mannes says, "a girdle is just another facet of conformity" molding every woman into the shape considered right for 1954, or 1955 or 1956.

Charging that the girdle restricts real freedom of movement and neutralizes true femininity Miss Mannes says "an enormous industry has been built predicated largely on a sense of guilt about the body." Approximately $220 million worth of girdles, corsets, and combinations were sold to American women in 1953 — an example, according to Miss Mannes, of one of the "greatest triumphs of salesmanship over instinct ever achieved in the field of women's attire."

"For no matter what the admen or the corset people or the fashion editors said, the compression — however slight and artificial of a vital area of the anatomy was neither natural nor desirable. It had become, through a masterful campaign of indoctrination, mandatory.

Returning to her emphasis on femininity, Miss Mannes says the girdle "is an intensely Puritan garment; a feminine hair shirt (worn) to expiate the sin of being a woman!" The emphasis on the girdle as necessary to good grooming elicits the following comment: "It's the obliteration of the nymal in us — the healthy animal at that. Look at all your small-les, bumpless, lineless dumplings! Where's your female essence gone?"

To the person who might claim there is nothing attractive about a fat, sloppy woman, Miss Mannes points out, "they're fat and sloppy because they haven't been taught to eat right and walk right and enjoy their bodies."

"I have three children of my own, now, and the baby takes a lot of time. My husband works so hard and he'd like to have it as quiet as possible on the week ends, at least, but it seems we have my little sister with us almost every Friday until Sunday night. My parents take lovely jaunts and I take lovely care of their baby. I would like to take off some week end, too, and get a rest with my husband, who is so sweet and long-suffering. But when we want to go — sorry, but we won't be home this week end."

"I shall I just refuse to take my little sister any more, or do you have a suggestion as to how I can let my mother know that she is imposing upon me and my husband? Give me the exact words to use, please, and I'll just memorize them!"

You are so kind, Trudy.

Dear Trudy: Next time your mother brings your little sister over make a date with her to take your boy. Make it well in advance so that she will be prepared to have him. If she is "busy this weekend" suggest the following:

Or just tell her that you are planning to be away yourself and suggest that if she would like to share the cost of a baby sitter for both little ones you will be glad to have her leave her girl with your boy.

Just be friendly and matter of fact about it and I am sure she won't be resentful. But be firm. And perhaps the first time you adopt this attitude you had better have a trip in mind that you will be able to make and a baby sitter in mind that you can hire.

WEDDING PRESENTS Dear Mrs. Friend: What do you think about people who put on the wedding to end all weddings for their daughter and use the telephone book for their invitation list and then the girl is too rude or too ignorant even to send you a "thank you" for the gifts.

I admit there were so many presents that she probably would need a secretary to thank the people who sent them but I feel that practically two months should be enough for any bride to get her thank-you notes written.

Actually my complaint is that I am not sure she ever received my gift. I went to a great deal of trouble to choose a nice present for the girl even though I hardly know her because I believe if you are invited you should send something. I had the store send it out and that is all I know. Did she get it or not?

After waiting a decent interval I inquired at the store and they assured me that they had sent it but how do I know? How can I be sure until I hear from the girl?

Dear Provoked: Two months should give any bride time enough to thank those who sent her gifts unless she is on an extended honeymoon trip.

a thin slice of sharp processed cheese on each of 4 patties. Cover with remaining 4 patties and pinch edges together to seal. Grill over hot coals, until desired doneness, turning just once with a wide spatula. Allow about 5 minutes for medium rare burgers. Serve between toasted hamburger buns.

Shape into 4 thin patties. Place

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend: My mother has a little girl that is younger than my own little boy, so mother is always bringing my little sister over "to play" with her uncle. At first I didn't mind, but now I have turned into a baby sitter and I am getting very tired of it.

I have three children of my own, now, and the baby takes a lot of time. My husband works so hard and he'd like to have it as quiet as possible on the week ends, at least, but it seems we have my little sister with us almost every Friday until Sunday night. But judging from the type of answers to the question of how to cure a sloppy husband of his slovenly ways, there may not be any gentle way of effecting a cure.

Let's plea brought in a number of letters. Most of the women who claimed they had effected a cure confessed to having used drastic means.

One wife, fed up with either having to step around her husband's dirty clothes, or pick them up and put them in the clothes hamper, announced that in the future any clothing she found on the floor was going in the trash can.

She claims only one dirty shirt got as far as the garbage can before her husband got the idea that she meant what she said and started using the clothes hamper.

Another gave fair warning that she was tired of endlessly picking up after her family and that her solution to keeping the house straight was going to be to open the basement door and toss downstairs the possessions nobody thought enough of to put where they belonged.

It took only a week of the throw-it-in-the-basement routine to get her family in the habit of putting things away. They discovered it was easier to open a closet or bureau drawer than to climb the basement stairs.

Another course of action — rather inaction — that worked was reported by another reader. She just left things where they were thrown for a week — and her husband got the point.

These methods all seem pretty drastic to recommend to other wives and so they aren't being recommended — just reported.

MATURE PARENT

BY MURIEL LAWRENCE
When Peg was 5 her parents were divorced. Soon after, her father remarried. From then on Peg spent all her summers with him and his growing family.

Now she is having a hard time making a go of her own marriage. For Peg is driven by some need to depreciate her husband. If he has an argument with the boss, she must suggest that it may mean dismissal. Often before their friends, she will plaintively discuss his salary limitations.

She talks endlessly of the economies that as Bill's wife she must make. If you admire a dress she money bought, she is compelled to tell you that it's "just an old thing made over."

If Peg knew the source of her depressive attitude, she might be able to do something about it. She doesn't.

The two immature young people who broke her home after bringing her here knew nothing about the possible effects of their action upon her.

They could not help her with her disappointment in her father. He never registered the loneliness of the daughter who used to stand aside when he gave her stepister swimming lessons long ago.

So Peg goes on depreciating Bill without any idea that her poor expectations of him are her disappointed expectations of her father. Without awareness of her fear that Bill will let her down because Daddy did, she cannot control his destructive effects on her marriage.

In our country, it is estimated that about 10,000,000 children are deprived of fathers by death and divorce.

This is a statistic to give us pause. For a father's service is not primarily to give children financial support. It is to define manhood to them.

If our young people continue to try to build marriage on romantic love, what's going to happen to the American idea of manhood? One-wonders. For of course fashions in romantic love change along with the movie stars who ordain our standards of romantic appeal.

There's little hope that we plan to do anything about our cult of romantic love. Not for some time, anyway. As an alternative, what would we think of a new divorce law requirement?

What would we think of the idea of asking parents who want divorces to undertake special child guidance study before the divorces are granted?

It might help. Angry women might stop producing sons who re-express the instability they associate with manhood, or little daughters who grow up to drive their own husband away from them by distrust and fear of more hurt.

Beauty Tips

Here's a good exercise for improving the bustline. Stand with feet apart, and hold a heavy book between your fingers, keeping elbows bent and arms at shoulder level. Press hard against the book with your hands, release the book, sure and press again. Do this with fingers pointed down and upward while holding the book. Do this exercise 20 times altogether.

To fill hollow thighs, try this exercise. Lie flat on your back and raise the legs high in the air. Use your arms and place your hands on your hips to support yourself. Then, swing your legs as far apart as possible. Bring them together in scissor fashion. Do this ten times daily, increasing to 50 in several weeks time.

Young And Pretty

The popular high-waisted effect is so pretty on this school or party dress for young girls. Wear with or without a belt.

Pattern No. 8154 is in sizes 18, 20, 22, 24, 26 years. Size 18, monotone, 3/4 yards of 29-inch. Collar 1/2 yard contrast.

Picnic At Home Makes A Labor Day Adventure

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food & Markets Editor

On the banks of the Mississippi River at Davenport, Ia., Dr. and Mrs. Glenn live with their six children. They have given us suggestions for a Labor-Day-at-Home Picnic, the kind they and their children love.

We may not be able to watch boats pass up and down the river the way the Glenns can, but we certainly can enjoy a get-together with family and friends around a wiener roast or a steak broil in our own back yard.

Mrs. Glenn says one of their favorite picnic meals is roasted frankfurters, which the older children help prepare. Buttered buns, crisp and lead green and yellow vegetables including carrot sticks, celery, radishes and also a small ripe tomato. Dessert is chilled watermelon slices and frosted cup cakes from the neighborhood bakery.

Cool, blended fruit juices make a delightful beverage.

Qualifying Today For Top O' Texas Tournament

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor
Firing began this morning on qualifying rounds for the annual Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament on the Pampa Country Club course with between 150-200 amateurs on hand to bid for tournament honors.
Activity on the local course actually got underway yesterday with a West Texas Pro-Amateur event that annually precedes the Top O' Texas tournament.
A team captained by pro Vern Farquhar of Amarillo captured top honors in yesterday's pro-amateur with 138 total points. Yesterday's pro-amateur was conducted on a point basis with each eagle, birdie, par and bogie good for points.
Charlie Douglass of Canadian was the low amateur of the day with a 66 while three tied for second among pros, Johnny Austin of the host club, Joe Houck of Borger and Bud Posey of Hereford, each of whom carded a 69.
C. F. McGinnis of Pampa captured the runner-up in the pro-amateur team play with 133.
There was a two-way tie for third place between teams captained by Bud Posey of Hereford and Buster Carter of Pampa.
Members of the winning pro-amateur team captained by Vern Farquhar were Tom Davis of Petersburg, Erma Abbott of Borger, Bill Bailey of Medina and Fred Elbert of Wichita Falls.
Defending champion Rex Baxter, Jr., of Amarillo is here to defend his title but he will not be required to post a qualifying score.
Malcolm Douglass of Pampa, last year's tourney medalist, was trying for a second straight medalist honor when qualifying began this morning.
It is highly possible that last year's entry list of 182 will be topped this year.
Yesterday's pro-amateur entry list of 119 topped last year's field for the pro-am of 106 by 14.
First round of match play will begin tomorrow. Second and third rounds will be played in the 32-player Championship Flight Sunday while only second rounds will be played in the other flights that day.
Semi-finals and finals in all flights will be unreeled on Labor Day (Monday).
The Calcutta Pool will be held tonight at 7:30 at which first round pairings will be announced.
Following are the pro-amateur teams in the order they finished yesterday and the medal scores of the captains:

Joe Bauman Whacks 69th

ROSWELL, N.M., Sept. 3 — UP — Joe Bauman tied professional baseball's home run record here Thursday night as he blasted his 69th homer of the Longhorn League season in the Rockets' 7 to 4 victory over Midland.
The 32-year-old first baseman, who has never played higher than Class A ball in his career, still has four games to go to set a new individual record. He tied the mark of 69 hit by Joe Mauer at Minneapolis in 1923 and later matched by Bob Crues of Amarillo in the West Texas-New Mexico League in 1948.

PHS 11 Sets Night Drills

The Pampa Harvester gridsters will work out under the lights at Harvester Stadium Saturday and Monday nights over the Labor Day week end, according to head coach Aubra Noonester.
No game-condition scrimmages are set as Noonester is holding back on this phase until his charges get back in better physical condition.
The Harvesters have lost tackle Burl Kirble for at least two or three weeks. Kirble injured a shoulder in yesterday's workout.
Previously the Harvesters had lost center Bill Culppepper who also injured a shoulder in an off-the-field accident. Culppepper hasn't worked out this week.
Several other Harvesters are nursing minor injuries.
The Harvesters will open the season two weeks from tonight at Harvester Stadium against Austin of El Paso.
Season tickets for Pampa's six home games are now on sale at the school business office.
Price of the season tickets is $6.

Blue Sox Invade Oiler Park Tonight

Dukes Spoil Appreciation Night, 10-6

Albuquerque's Dukes spoiled everything at Oiler Park last night when they took a 10-6 win over the locals before more than 2,000 fans who were on hand for "Oiler Appreciation Night."
The Oilers thus lost ground in their battle with Clovis for first place who eked out a 7-6 decision over Abilene last night.
Abilene will be out for a little revenge for the two licks received at the hands of Clovis the past two nights when they rally on the Oilers at Oiler Park tonight.
It will be a single game, to start at 8. Jose Valesquez, Manager Hersh Martin's mound choice for the Oilers in tonight's game.
The packed house last night was treated to a nip-and-tuck affair between the Oilers and Dukes and except for the 11th inning "nightmare" the fans were well satisfied with the showing of the Oiler ball club.
Last night's game was preceded with a ceremony at which time the Oilers were recognized by the City of Pampa for their fine efforts on the field this season. Dr. Joe Donaldson, a member of the Chamber of Commerce sports committee, was the M. C. for the ceremony.
Mayor Tom Rose spoke on behalf of the city in its praise of the Oilers.
And Clinton Evans, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, recognized the Oiler owners, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Mills, who have enabled Pampa to have professional baseball the past five years.
Evans, on behalf of the city, presented the Mills' with a plaque expressing the appreciation of the fans for their contribution to Pampa by keeping professional baseball alive here.
The Oilers played catch-up for most of the night last night and it wasn't until the eighth inning that they were able to pull even with the visiting Dukes at 5-5.
The two-run Oiler eighth was all the scoring until the 11th when the Dukes exploded with five runs, four of which were unearned. The Oilers got one run back in the bottom of the 11th but it wasn't near enough.
Dick Hairston pounded a two-run homer and a double and Rudy Tanner collected two doubles and a single to share the hitting honors for the Oilers.
Bobby Westfall, who sent the Dukes ahead for good in the 11th when he slammed a 3-0 pitch with two away for a solo homer over the centerfield wall to touch off the Likes big inning, led the Dukes with four-for-six.

Both men know what to expect of each other."

Canadian Wildcat 11, 1953 I-A Co-Champs, Potent Again

(Another in a series of articles dealing with 1954 football prospects of area high schools);
By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor
CANADIAN, Sept. 3 — The Canadian Wildcats, co-champions of District 1-A last year, are back with another pennant contender for the 1954 campaign.
The Wildcats, although they actually won the 1-A race outright last fall, were forced to share the crown with Memphis. The Wildcats compiled a 4-1 conference record while Memphis had a 5-1-1 slate in the 1953 season. Memphis' tie game (with Lefors 6-6) however, was made a victory on a 20-yard penetration ruling which made their record read the same as Canadian's — 6-1.
Memphis, by virtue of having beaten Canadian in the regular season was then given the right to represent the district in the post-season playoffs.
Five starting members of last year's co-champs are back for another campaign, three linemen and two backs. Both starting tackles are returning, Bill Hines (195) and John Briggs (190). The other up-front starter coming back this fall is guard Roger Freeman (184).
Both backs returning this year are halfbacks, Pat Tipps (178) and Jerry Green (175).
Coach Johnny Cardinal, starting his second year as the head man of the Wildcats, has a returning letterman for the other vacant spots that were created by graduations with exception of quarterback.
Cardinal is in the process of searching for a quarterback to replace the departed Raymond Ramirez. He has three lads off last year's B team working at this spot, Dennis Hill, Tom Hobdy and Dickie Waterfield.
Eugene Schoenhals, who played a lot of ball for the Wildcats last season, will likely fill in at the tail back position.
End lettermen returning are Bill Miller (160) and Phil Waters (140). They have the inside track on filling in the vacancies at the terminals. The other letterman guard besides Freeman is John Ramp (188).
Bill Chumbley, 175-pounder, will probably be the Wildcat center this fall. Chumbley is one of two three-year lettermen on the Wildcat roster. The other three-year vet is Tipps.
Several members of last year's B team are battling the vets for starting berths and some of them may crash the starting lineup if the vets falter.
Coach Cardinal is a 1949 graduate of West Texas State. He will be assisted this fall by another WTS ex, Grady Burnett.
Canadian will open the season Sept. 10 at Spearman.
The Wildcats are expected to give the 1-A favorite, McLean, a run-for-the-money in this year's pennant race.
Following is the Canadian schedule and team roster:

Sept. 17 — Wheeler at Canadian

Yankees Revive Pennant Hopes

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
Manager Casey Stengel discarded "the book" in favor of a radical "backs-to-the-wall" strategy Friday in a desperate attempt to launch the New York Yankees on a "do or die" drive for a sixth straight American League pennant.
Granted a reprieve when his old champs beat the Cleveland Indians 3 to 2 Thursday, Stengel revealed a new plan to throw the full weight of the Yankee bench into the September stretch drive. Although Thursday's triumph cut the Indians' lead to 3 1/2 games, Stengel conceded, "We just gotta win every game we're gonna play if we're gonna catch 'em."
"OJ Case" — discarding standard baseball procedure — announced he will thrust his strong pinch-hitters into action "every time Gerry Coleman or Willie Miranda comes up with runners on base."
Pinch Hit Any Tim
"I don't care if it's the first inning," Stengel barked. "Those two fellows just can't hit good pitching and I gotta get runs. I've been losing games by waiting to pinch hit for 'em until the sixth or seventh. Well, from now on those pinch-hitters are gonna go up there as soon as we get men on base."
Stengel said the strategy was set in motion Thursday when the Yankees announced the purchase of infielder Woody Held from their Kansas City farm club in the American Association. Held was brought up in order to permit Stengel to pinch-hit for Coleman in the early innings, with Bill Skowron in reserve after Stengel bats for Held. Phil Rizzuto is Miranda's replacement.
Pinch-hitter Ed Robinson delivered the blow which enabled the Yankees to score the decisive run in Thursday's second straight win over the Indians. It was a low liner that handuffed first baseman Vic Wertz on the first bounce. Irv Noren scoring from third when the ball hopped off his glove.
Ed (Whitey) Ford yielded only three hits in 8 1/3 innings but Stengel removed him in favor of Allie Reynolds when Larry Doby's 29th homer of the year cut the Yankees' margin to 3-2 with one out in the ninth. Reynolds walked Al Rose but then retired Wertz and Dave Philley to end the game. Sam Denton's fifth inning homer produced the Indians' first run.

Cats Strengthen Hold On 4th Spot

By UNITED PRESS
Manager Al Vincent's Fort Worth Cats, who were all but counted out of the Texas League race two weeks ago, held a solid two-game lead over the sinking San Antonio Missions Friday with but five games left to play for each contender.
San Antonio has apparently suffered a complete collapse. Thursday night's 5 to 2 loss to eighth-place Beaumont was the Padres' eighth straight setback.
Fort Worth, on the other hand, is playing its best ball of the season in a desperate last-ditch effort to preserve a fine Texas League record. The Cats, in recent years, have been the consistently best team in the circuit. They haven't finished out of the first division since 1941. Thursday night's 3 to 1 win over Oklahoma City was Fort Worth's eighth victory in the last 10 games and the 10th straight without a loss, over the Indians at Oklahoma City.
Oklahoma City lost second place to Houston as the Buffs downed leading Shreveport 7 to 4. In one other game, Tulsa beat Dallas 4 to 2.
San Antonio threatened to score repeatedly against Beaumont but the only Missions' tallies came across on solo home runs by Chuck Oertel and Witty Quintana. Ben Taylor put the game out of reach with a two-run homer for Beaumont in the ninth inning.
Houston combined a six hit, five-run eighth inning and Dick Atkinson's five-hit pitching for a 7 to 4 win over Shreveport.
The big eighth broke a 2-all tie and a nifty pitchers' duel between Atkinson and Sport southwest Paw Bob Smith.
Lefty Murph Murszewski of Tulsa weathered a shaky start to pitch a four-hit victory over Dallas. Murszewski threw eight straight balls to open the game and gave up the two Eagles' runs, then settled to blank the home club the rest of the way.
Friday night's schedule — Tulsa at Dallas, Fort Worth at Oklahoma City, Shreveport at Houston and Beaumont at San Antonio.

Oiler Manager, PHS Coach Guests At Lions Club Lunch

Considerable mirth and laughter was added to the Lions Club lunch on Thursday when Manager Herschel Martin of the Pampa Oilers was interviewed by Warren Hasse, of KPDD.

Giving his limited views on the Tuesday-night fracas the Oilers had at Plainview, Martin said, "I was face down on the ground eating dirt with four men on top of me, so I can't tell you too much about it."

Talking about Wednesday night's double header and "Sad Sam" Williams giving up a few extra hits, Martin said he became concerned about the solid line drives whizzing near the stands.

Martin said he cautioned Sam, "If you don't stop giving up those hits, you'll kiss some of the married women."

Aubra Nonacater, Pampa High School coach, talked briefly on fall prospects.

He wasn't overly optimistic about Saturday afternoon on the gridiron as far as Pampa is concerned. "We had a smaller squad show up for practice than last year — only 38 men."

Yarborough 'Landslide' Vote Explained

HOUSTON, Sept. 3 — Self-imposed segregation was given Thursday as the reason why a challenged Negro precinct at Crosby rolled up a 324 to 0 vote for Ralph Yarborough in last Saturday's election.

E. S. Griffin, principal of the Negro high school where the box (Precinct 251) was located, pointed out that Precinct 97, predominantly white, adjoins the mostly Negro precinct.

"Some of our people registered in Precinct 97 came here to vote and white folks from our precinct went to Precinct 97," Griffin said.

He added that the situation "has existed for years and I was told that it was all right to let them (Precinct 97) vote here."

W. Gail Reeves, a supporter of Gov. Allan Shivers who asked for an investigation of the precinct "which voted 115 per cent for one man," said he learned that at least 31 Precinct 97 voters had cast ballots in Precinct 251.

The precinct at Crosby, east of Houston, returned 312 votes for Yarborough and none for Gov. Allan Shivers, although there were only 292 names on the poll list.

Election officials said only 10 of the persons on the poll list failed to vote and 60 others voted by affidavit.

East Texas Publisher Dies

GLADEWATER, Tex., Sept. 3 — UP — T. W. Lee, 59-year-old millionaire East Texas oilman and publisher of the Gladewater Daily Mirror, died Thursday night.

Lee had been seriously ill for two months and died at his home, presumably of a blood clot.

In addition to the Mirror, which he founded in 1948, Lee owned a radio station KSLJ in Gladewater, and had extensive holdings in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; two brothers, Claude and Jesse, and his mother, Mrs. Annie Lee of Longview, Tex.

Funeral services were scheduled for Saturday afternoon at the Church of Christ in Gladewater. The family requested, in accordance with Lee's long-standing request, that no flowers be sent, but suggested his friends might wish to make donations to the Boies Home, an orphanage at Quinlan, in Lee's memory.

Ike Admits Error, Reverses His Veto

FRASER, Colo., Sept. 3 — UP — President Eisenhower Thursday committed a rare act for a chief executive — he admitted he was wrong and reversed a veto.

On Aug. 27, Mr. Eisenhower killed by pocket veto a bill which would have given federal rights to oil and gas properties owned by Mrs. Pearl O. Marr of Crossroads, N. M.

"It now appears that an error was made," he said Thursday. He reversed his decision and signed the bill to issue a federal patent for the mineral rights on Mrs. Marr's property.

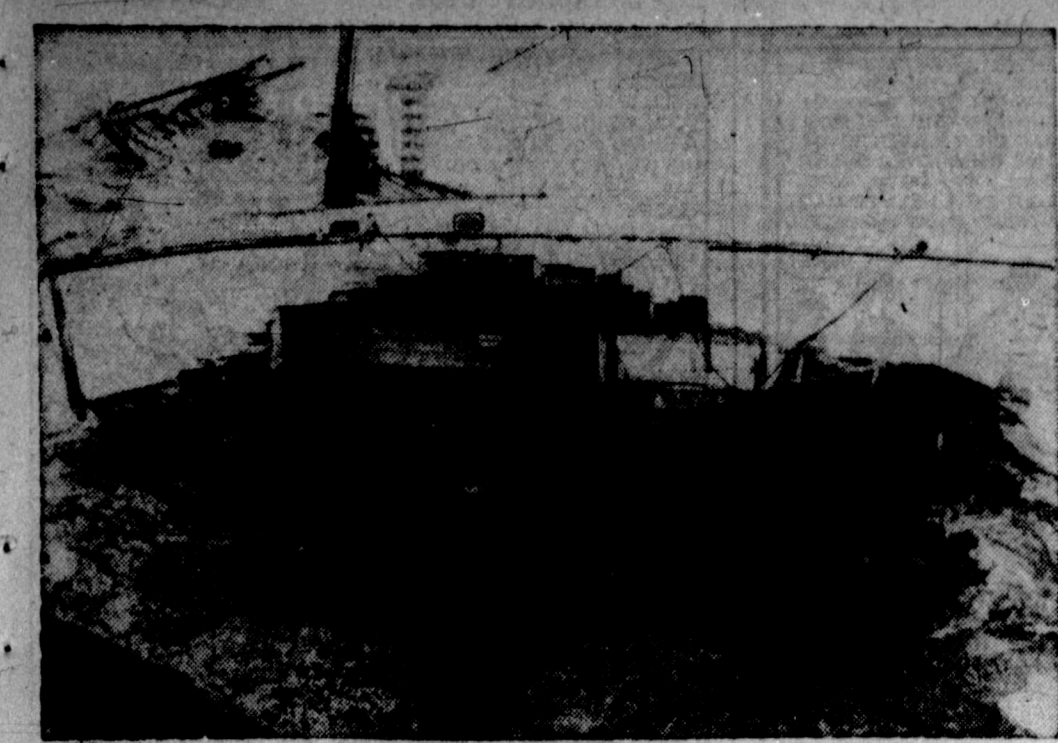

The president said that in August, the Interior Department advised him Mrs. Marr's case was old hat and she should not receive special treatment. The department based the opinion on a law which says that public lands valuable for certain minerals may be deeded only if the mineral rights are served for Uncle Sam.

It turned out that most of Mrs. Marr's neighbors had received federal patents without reservation of oil or gas rights.

"The secretary of interior, therefore," said Mr. Eisenhower, "now recommends that the bill be approved. Accordingly, I have reconsidered the bill in the light of this additional information and agree that this bill shall be approved. Fortunately, the constitutional time period within which I must act has not yet expired."

Hollywood news, gossip and humor are the daily ingredients of Erskine Johnson's column. But from time to time he writes on other subjects. During his vacation, some of these columns are being reprinted as "The Best of Johnson."

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Film producers have been denounced for the stupidity of their screen stories. But they will never devise a plot as completely cockeyed as the average real-life Cinderella story that Fate palms off on Hollywood every day.

Sometimes I suspect fate writes these little dramas in moments of weariness, when she forgets all she ever knew about life.

In the department of sheer insanity they beat the "boy meets girl" plot all hollow. A conscientious critic can only give them the bad notices they deserve. Sorry Fate. But things go wrong from the very first frame.

To begin with, the average Hollywood Cinderella has absolutely nothing to recommend her for a motion picture career except a pretty face and figure. Most of them are devoid of talent. They can't sing, they can't dance and they have never attempted to act.

Their voices are bad, their diction is terrible.

The average Cinderella was just sitting there minding her own business when someone came along and "discovered" her.

After a studio has signed a personable young lady who knows absolutely nothing about the business, it starts worrying what to do with her.

SHE IS CALLED in the make-up department, which changes her eyebrows, her hairline, her shade of rouge and powder. Perhaps a dentist puts caps on her teeth. The hairdressing department changes her coiffure, and it is just as likely to change her from blonde to brunette.

A dress designer tells her what to wear. Half the time she emerges, so thoroughly made over, that when she first bumps into the man who "discovered" her in the first place, he doesn't even recognize her.

Then comes the publicity department. The young lady is invited to tell the story of her life, and is encouraged to make it good. If she doesn't make it quite good enough, the publicity department does it for her when her official "biography" is written.

Then comes the pictures — let

Scouts Didn't Know Legion Was In Town

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 — UP —

What's new in Washington? Thirty-seven Boy Scouts from Columbia filled into town on a good will tour.

But how did they know the American Legion was sleeping in practically every bed in town. The Navy heard about their plight and the men at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia bed 'em and fed 'em.

Not only that, but the sentinels took the kids under wing, since most of the scouts were sons of Korean veterans. Every night one above patrol man or another would peek into the barracks window and if a boy was uncovered, he wasn't uncovered for long.

Free Sightseeing Park police Lt. Vincent Cleary and Lt. Joe Worth of the U. S. park police also took the young visitors under their care and called on Carson Ellis of the Gray Lines to take the kids on a free sightseeing trip.

One stop was at the Washington Post and Times-Herald. One scout looked at the presses and remarked to his pal: "Don't get too close to those things. You might wind up a newspaper."

Five trucks came into our town Thursday from New York, grunting under the weight of 160 tons of bronze. This metal will be struck into a giant likeness of the famous picture of our lads planting old glory on Iwo Jima. The statue will be set up, eventually, on the Arlington cemetery grounds.

It will be so big that a single canteen held by one of the GIs will hold 32 quarts of water.

A Stewed Duck A final note on the legion convention.

A vet from the first World War walked into a bar and grill at 8 o'clock opening time, preceded a duck on a leash. He set the quacker on a bar stool and ordered a beer for "Donald."

The polite bar-keep served, and "Donald" lapped.

After the vet left, the management hired a sign made which read:

Theft Suspect Commits Suicide

CHILDRESS, Tex., Sept. 3 — UP —

A 19-year-old Knox, N. Y., youth who had been sought all night by police shot himself to death Thursday.

Police identified him as Robert C. Ward. They had arrested him and a 16-year-old companion Wednesday night on a routine stolen car check.

At the police station, Ward floored Assistant Police Chief Troy Rogers with a punch to the jaw, ran out and jumped into the car he had been driving and fired a shot toward Rogers. The bullet lodged in the door of the police station.

Police said Ward then leaped from the car and fled on foot.

Early Thursday, he came out of a barn on the E. L. Wakefield farm, some three miles from the city, and accosted Wakefield at pistol point.

He wrote a note and told Wakefield to get it to the police that he was willing to surrender. While police were en route to the farm, Ward shot himself fatally through the heart.

The note sought to absolve the second boy of any part in the theft of the car in which they had been riding Wednesday.

"I take this means of offering my congratulations on your victory. I assure you of my support of all measures for the betterment of Texas," he said in a telegram to the governor.

Shivers, who has been resting at his Tyler county home near Woodville, was scheduled to return to his office Friday.

ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY

Sen. Joseph McCarthy told Senate's censure committee Wednesday it is "absolutely necessary" that he know whether Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) was correctly quoted last March as voicing anti-McCarthy sentiments. If so, he may want to challenge Johnson's qualifications as a committee member. Here, Sen. McCarthy, seated, studies some papers as his attorney Edward B. Williams, left, and Sen. Johnson prepare to take their seats for start of session. (N&A Telephoto)

Six Alleged White Slavers Indicted

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 3 — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted at least six persons in connection with an alleged three-state white slave ring, but the names of only four released.

They were David Lee Best, 24, and Miss Benny Tyball, both of Muskogee, and J. W. Johnson and his wife, Eloise, both of Oklahoma City.

They were charged with transporting women for immoral purposes to hotels in Muskogee, Ardmore and McAlester, Okla.; Fort Smith, Ark., and Temple, Tex. All were arrested earlier.

Shivers Can Thank Party, Says GOPster

AMARILLO, Sept. 3 — UP — The top Texas Republican, National Committeeman H. J. (Jack) Porter of Houston, thinks Gov. Allan Shivers can thank the GOP for his renomination last Saturday.

Porter said Thursday the Democrats should return the favor by putting a Republican in as congressman from Texas' 18th Congressional District.

"There is no doubt whatever that the Republicans of Texas pulled Governor Shivers through," said Porter. "The conservative Democrats talked nearly 80 Republican county chairmen out of holding primaries the first time."

"Now, I'm calling on those people to come back and vote for a congressman who will support President Eisenhower. We are calling on the Democrats who supported President Eisenhower to return the favor which the Republicans did for them in the recent Democratic primary," he said.

Porter was in Amarillo to boost the candidacy of Leroy LaMaster of Perryton, who hopes to unseat Rep. Walter Rogers of Pampa, a Democrat.

The 18th is the only Texas district which has elected a Republican congressman in modern times. Ben Gull, now a Post Office Department official, won a special election and served in the 81st Congress, but was defeated by Rogers when he ran for re-election in 1950.

Porter said he thought Mr. Eisenhower would run again in 1956, and the "elements of the North" would again control the Democratic party.

"The Conservative Democrats will have nothing to do whatever with naming a Democratic candidate," he said.

Mine Workers Threaten Strike

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Sept. 3 — UP — The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Friday threatened a strike against Phelps Dodge Corp. plants in Arizona and Texas.

A joint committee of the union announced Thursday it would recommend a strike of some 2,500 workers, to be staged next Wednesday, unless the company "is prepared to engage in honest collective bargaining."

The statement was released by Castulo Sanchez, Douglas, chairman of the joint committee, who said the union still was willing to negotiate with the company. Affected would be properties of Phelps Dodge, one of the three largest copper producing firms in the nation, at Mornell, Douglas and Bisbee in Arizona and El Paso in Texas.

STREAMLINED ALIBIS HIKE TAKE OF TRAFFIC COURTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3 — UP — Assistant Municipal Court Clerk James Devlin, in checking through his old records Tuesday, noted that in 1934 traffic fines averaged $259 daily. Today the daily average is $3,000.

"In those days," Devlin said, "the alibis were 'I was hurrying,' 'I was worried,' or 'I am sorry.'"

"Today it's 'I blacked out,' 'I took codine,' or 'my psychiatrist says I can't help speeding.'"

For First Time Since 1926 Talmadge Name Not On Ballot

ATLANTA, Sept. 3 — UP — For the first time since 1926 Georgia holds an important election next week without the name Talmadge on the ballot.

The hills and hollows are reverberating with the shouting of nine candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for governor in next Wednesday's primary. But it's not the same without a Talmadge.

Herman Talmadge, 41, is forbidden by law from seeking another term as governor. It's likely he will keep quiet until 1956 when he probably will go after the U.S. Senate seat now held by Sen. Walter F. George.

Should he win, it would be a triumph twice denied old Gene, his colorful father who got his first public job, commissioner of agriculture, 25 years ago.

The late Talmadge still is idolized by his son, who learned all of Gene's tricks, smoothed them out and improved on them. A miniature statue of his father stands on the governor's desk.

"Daddy was just 10 years ahead of his time," Talmadge said recently. "He was the first Democrat

Iwo Jima Statue On Way To Site

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 — UP — The largest statue ever cast in bronze, the Marine Corps memorial depicting the famous flag-raising on Iwo Jima during World War II, began its journey Thursday to its site at Arlington national cemetery in Washington.

Weighing more than 100 tons and standing 73 feet high, the statue was moved by truck from its casting foundry in Brooklyn to its seven-and-one-half acre tract overlooking the Potomac River.

The memorial will be dedicated to all marines who gave their lives since the corps was founded in 1775.

The statue, modeled from a prize winning photograph, depicts the six straining marines who raised the American flag on Mount Suribachi during the bitter battle for Iwo Jima during World War II.

Fleming, identifying parents only as Albuquerque, N. M., residents, is accused of collaborating with Communists after he was captured by enemy in Korea.
