New York 5, Cleveland 2

(Condensed from UP Reports) POLO GROUNDS, New York, Sept. 29 — Dusty Rhodes broke up the exciting 1954 World Series opener here Wednesday when he slammed a three-run pinch homer in the bottom of the 10th inning to give the New York Giants a 5-2 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

Rhodes' blast came off Bob Lemon who went all the way for the Indians. Marv Grissom, who came on in the eighth inning for the Giants, pitched magnificently rest of the way to gain credit for the win.

In the Giant 10th, Willie Mays, who had earlier made one of the greatest catches in World Series history to chill a Cleveland threat in the eighth, started the winning rally by drawing a walk with one away.

Mays then stole second and Lemon passed Hank Thompson purposely to set the stage for Rhodes' dramatic homer. Rhodes was sent in to hit for Monte Irvin and he responded nicely by slugging a Lemon pitch into the stands and the Giants were the first game victors.

The Indians jumped into a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning on two hits, the big one being Wertz's triple with two aboard. Al Smith led off by getting on via hit-pitcher and raced to third on Bob Wertz's single and an error by Giant right fielder Don Mueller.

Maglie apparently was working his way out of trouble as he got Larry Doby and AJ Rosen on infield pop-ups but Wertz then came through with his first of four hits, a long triple off the right center-field wall, which easily scored Smith and Avila.

The Giants came back to tie the game up in the third at 2-2 and that's the way it stood until Rhodes broke it up in the 10th with his three-run pinch home run.

SEN. PAT McCARRAN ... dies after speech

Senator M'Carran Succumbs

Dies Following Political Speech

HAWTHORNE, Nev., Sept. 29 — U. S. Democratic Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada, a "front row hell raiser" and frequent fiery foe of presidents for nearly a quarter of a century, died of a heart attack Tuesday night at the age of 78.

McCarran, sixth senator to die this year, had served in the Senate since 1932 and was one of its most influential members.

He presided as chairman of the powerful Judiciary committee for many years before the Eisenhower administration took office in 1953.

Death came to the outspoken, white-haired senator a few minutes after he completed an eloquent speech at a Democratic party campaign rally at Hawthorne, site of a huge naval ammunition depot 150 miles south of Reno.

McCarran did not face re-election until 1956 but had urged election of Democrats not only in Nevada but throughout the nation in November.

"It is imperative that Democratic Congress be elected in order that your senator may resume his position as head of the Judiciary committee of the Senate and continue his fight against communism," McCarran declared only moments before his death.

"At no day in history has the United States been in such jeopardy as it is today," he added sternly. "It is beset with enemies from within and from abroad in greater numbers than ever before."

A few minutes after completing his speech, he collapsed in the auditorium in which the rally was being held and slumped to the floor. A fire department resuscitator failed to revive him and he was pronounced dead by Drs. (See McCARRAN, Page 5)

Ex-Red Official Tells Field Story

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — U. S. — The United States has some evidence that former U. S. diplomat Noel Field died in a Hungarian prison although the State Department "assumed" he was alive Tuesday.

UP Report On Juvenile Delinquency

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first in a series of three on juvenile delinquents. It is based, in part, on a survey of 10 of the nation's largest cities.

By JACK V. FOX NEW YORK, Sept. 29 — U. S. — You've seen him time and again. A good-looking boy, about 18, tanked up on beer. He's swaggering along a downtown street with three or four of his buddies, calling out a lewd remark at a passing girl, elaborately pretending not to notice he is forcing a passerby to step into the gutter.

The world is his oyster this night. More beer is easy to come by and adventure is in the wind. Maybe it will come in smashing the high school windows. Maybe in picking through a burglar in the dimly lit suburbs, or rifling parked cars.

If he's an old hand at this sort of thing, the night may produce not only a thrill but some cash through a burglary in the dimly lit suburbs, or rifling parked cars. Maybe he's got a mean streak in (See UP REPORT, Page 3)

Nationalists Beat Off Invasion Scare

TAIPEI, Formosa, Sept. 29 — U. S. — Nationalist defenders of the Matsui island group Wednesday beat off what appeared to be an invasion flotilla of "several scores" Communist junks.

This action at tiny Pei Kantang island in the Matsui group about 120 miles northwest of Formosa, came as unconfirmed reports here said Red China was massing air power and paratroopers on the mainland for possible invasion of this Nationalist bastion.

The reports originating in Formosa said the Communists had moved 150 MIG fighters into airfields in Fukien province near threatened Quemoy island, about 90 miles west of Formosa.

Another report by the Nationalist Chinese news agency said 50 Russian-built planes had been shifted into East Chekiang province near the Nationalists' northern-outpost islands of Tachen, about 240 miles north of Formosa.

Still other reports said that an international Red air brigade of Russians, Poles, Czechs and East Germans had been formed to fly the planes against the Nationalists. Gen. Chang Yi-Ting, the Nationalist military spokesman, noted the reports at his daily briefing Wednesday and said they were being checked.

He revealed the latest Nationalist air force reconnaissance flights over the Fukien area, however, had found no evidence of Communist aircraft at the five military airfields in the province.

June Talk

By JANE KADINGO

Pampa News Women's Editor

WHILE TALKING with Jo McMurry (Mrs. L. C.) the other day, she revealed how she made the decorations for the Beta Gamma Kappa treasure hunt party Saturday evening. Since it was very interesting, I thought I'd pass it on to you.

YOU NATURALLY think of piñatas and a tropical island when you think of a treasure hunt. They just seem to go hand in hand, and on that basis, Jo fashioned her decorations.

She began by making palm trees of corks, stuck together, with Chenille, twisted like leaves, for the top. While sticking the corks together, she made sure they bent as she got up toward the top of the tree. It was very effective.

Another item was treasure chests. After racking her brain for an idea of what to make them of, Jo came up with the idea of using plain, ordinary pill boxes. She glued a block of balsa wood, rounded on the top, onto the cover of the pill box. Her next step was to paste construction paper "straps" on the balsa wood top, and then paint the whole deal brown. Inside the box, she stuffed tissue paper, leaving a few edges sticking out. These edges she sprayed with gold gilt and that completed her "treasure chest."

It always amazes me how people can make such cute decorations out of such simple things. It is really an art.

Jo used the above decorations as table centerpieces. She made squares of aluminum foil and filled them with sand, after folding up the edges of course. Then she placed her palm trees and treasure chests and miniature "treasure maps," in the sand.

Skellytown Brownies Have First Meeting

SKELLYTOWN — (Special) — The Brownie Scouts of Troop 49 held their first meeting this week in the Skelly Schaffer Club house.

Second and third-year Brownies started projects of basket weaving, and the first-year Brownies are weaving on small looms, under the direction of Scout leaders, Mrs. R. E. McAllister and Mrs. W. L. Aulbert. Refreshments attending were Sheryl and Christy Stroh, Rosalie Weaver, Jean Fields Jan Aulbert, Beverly Heaton, Kay Hanna, Karen Slavens, Nan Harmon, Eva Jo Duncan and Sally Banks.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE — Mrs. P.'s six-year-old son Paul is being terrorized by a bully who lives down the street.

Some time ago, a missile flung by the bully sent Paul to the hospital. Protest resulted in threats by the bully's family and defense of his action.

Then another stone was thrown at Paul as he rode his new tricycle past the bully's house. Under the momentum of her angry fear, Mrs. P. sat down and wrote:

"What can I do? This boy's mother is a member of my club. We have just bought our home. I don't want the neighborhood to think of me as a trouble-maker."

If a bully faced me with Mrs. P.'s problem, I would do this: I would take my son by the hand and saunter over to the bully's house. There, I would knock at his mother's door. When she came, I would ask her to call him.

Then to the bully and his mother, I would say, "In a minute or so, Paul and I are going to walk past your house. No stone will be flung at us. No stone will be thrown at us now or at any other time from this moment on."

Then I would say, "Good morning," and with my child, walk past the bully's house.

If, after this, a stone were thrown, I would call the police. I would ask for a police officer to accompany me and Paul as we walked again past the bully's house.

I would act in this way because I am more interested in children than in what neighborhoods think of me.

And because of this, I have a certain tenderness for the neglected children who have been infected with such hate and fear of themselves that they must attack us in despair of receiving anything but our angry terror in return.

Experience has taught me that such children need the unexpected. So instead of showing myself awed by the violence which frightens them, I have learned to refuse them awe.

For as they fling their stones, I can hear them cry, "Stop me please. Nobody has ever loved me enough to stop me. Lend me your strength."

Thus, in Mrs. P.'s shoes, I'd have to put an end to the bully's attack.

After time has passed, I should expect him to come calling. When he came swaggering up my front porch, I would not hide my child nor slam the door in his face. I would invite him in.

We would not discuss stones or police officers. I would have cold milk and cookies ready for discussion, along with awareness that my guest had come for another portion of grownup strength.

I'VE HEARD

of all sorts of showers, but just the other day I heard of a new type — and really one of the nicest, in my opinion. Friends of Mrs. Jim Garrett complimented her with an "appreciation shower" just because she does so many nice things for them. I think it is a wonderful idea. We've all been to given bridal and stock showers, but I think this is the best kind. We all appreciate what someone else does for us, but we seldom give them a party to show it. . . . and what nicer way is there to honor someone who is habitually doing things for others. Hats off to the woman who thought of it!

EVERY DAY more votes are coming in on our contest for Pampa's most distinguished man. Dr. M. C. Overton, Jr. is still leading with Dr. E. Douglas Carver in second place. Other candidates are F. ## Mrs. Allan Hodges Tells Of Hawaii At Twentieth Century Clubs' Coffee

"Your opinion changes the longer you stay and the more people you meet," advised Mrs. Allan Hodges during her speech on Hawaii at presidents' coffee, Tuesday morning in Pampa Country Club, presented by the Twentieth Century Clubs. For her presentation, Mrs. Hodges was dressed in a native costume.

Hawaii was settled by the Polynesians who immigrated from the interior of Asia between 1150 and 1350, Mrs. Hodges explained. It was these people Captain Cook found when he discovered the islands in 1778. The Polynesians were primitive, but happy, people, she pointed out, with their religion tied in with every phase of their lives.

In 1820 the missionaries came with "their inherent idea of the equality of all men in the eyes of God and of brotherly love," she stated. They taught the natives how to read and write and formed a 12-letter alphabet for them. They interpreted the Bible for them and translated it into Hawaiian.

The "liquid alphabet" of the missionaries resulted in the interesting names you still find in Hawaii, she pointed out. Words with several vowels in a row. With the establishment of sugar plantations on the islands came the Swedish, German, Japanese, Filipino, and English laborers, but only the Japanese, Filipinos and Chinese have left much trace of their culture and civilization, she explained.

In illustrating the contrasts of Hawaii, Mrs. Hodges sketched the members of one family she knew. The grandmother was born in Japan and spoke no English. "She smiles, loves you, waits on you and loves her home," Mrs. Hodges explained. "She is the traditional Japanese homemaker."

The mother, born in Hawaii, is an American citizen. She wears kimono, skirts and blouses, and slips into oxfords when she goes shopping. The father has gone to night school and citizenship classes and is a naturalized American citizen.

David, one of three sons, is a graduate of the University of Hawaii and is now attending Yale Divinity School. He will return to Hawaii as a Methodist minister. William, another son, is a graduate of the University of Hawaii, a Phi Beta Kappa, and served in the U.S. Army. Joe, the third son, has been in the U.S. Army four years and has traveled all over the world. The daughter, Cynthia is a Girl Scout, plays basketball, wears skirts, blouses, bobby socks and moccasins.

In addition to Japanese food, the family serves hamburgers. Mrs. Hodges pointed out that Hawaii is the answer to a sociologist's and geologist's prayer — to the sociologist because of the great assimilation and adaptation of so many different people in only three decades — to the geologist because the volcanic eruptions are constant — changing the shape and terrain of the islands.

"People who were Confusionists and Buddhists yesterday, today are interested in education and other religions," Mrs. Hodges stated. "Hawaii is writing a new history — it's an unfinished story."

Mrs. Hodges closed her speech with a plea for those who visit Hawaii in the future to learn more of the island and the people than can be found on the beaches and in the tourist hotels.

A former Pampa, Mrs. Hodges was a member of the Twentieth Century Club here and past president of the local chapter of American Association of University Women. In college, she belonged to Mortar Board, scholastic honorary and is now press and publicity chairman and 7th district program chairman of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. She recently spent a five weeks' visit with her sister, who has taught school in Hawaii for 20 years.

Prior to Mrs. Hodges' speech, the five presidents of Twentieth Century Clubs were honored. Mrs.

AROUND THE WORLD

TOO YOUNG TO WORRY—All the talk about going back to school in Leavenworth, Kans., must have two-year-old Bill Denney, Jr., a bit worried. He's lagging far behind as his mother carries an armful of school supplies and leads his sisters, Linda, seven, and Judy, five, to the new term at the little red schoolhouse. His time won't come for a few years.

HYER AND HYER—Starlet Martha Hyer, the lassie with the classy chassis—as you can plainly see—has what some experts, and amateurs, too, call "The shapeliest legs in Hollywood." The Fort Worth, Texas, girl is beginning to go places in the movies, and talent is having a lot to do with her success.

THANKLESS WORK—To the music of a band, right, peasants of the Soviet-controlled zone of Thuringia in Germany bring in their harvest to the Communist State collecting point in Langensalza. They must raise the quotas set by the Reds before doing any personal barter.

FOR THE LADIES—Brook Robin, 1954's Bubble Bath Queen, stirred up a screen of suds in an old-fashioned bath tub for the National Beauty Trades Show at the Statler Hotel in New York. In addition to Brook, the show featured new cosmetic lines and exhibitions of new hair styles for fall.

WEATHER TROUBLES—During one of this year's numerous downpours in Rome, some Italian horse-cab drivers appear to have St. Peter's Square all to themselves as they huddle under huge umbrellas. This summer scene was a result of continuous rains that have dampened the spirit of tourists who ordinarily fill this square en route to the Vatican.

HE'S THE YOUNGEST—Four-year-old Tommy Lightner, youngest member of the Midwest Old Settlers and Threshers Association, is riding an old Case steam engine at Mt. OPTICAL ILLUSION—This is not an old covered bridge, as it appears; actually, it's a large barrack building being moved over a bridge at Goose Island, Wis., to a new location as headquarters for a wild game club. Too wide for the bridge, it had to be hoisted over.

SHE'S KIDDIN'—Thelma Pelish, left, shed those crocodile tears because she had lost the title of "Miss Pajamas" to Mary Stanton in a contest in Manhattan. The girls are appearing in the hit musical comedy, "Pajama Game," so they were likely candidates for the title even if Thelma did wear a nightie.

TOO HIGH—Bobby Hofman, playing third base for the N. Y. Giants in place of injured Hank Thompson, soared vainly into the air to grab a liner off the bat of St. Louis Cards' Rip Repulski during a game at the Polo Grounds. The liner was good for a single. Giants edged the Birds, 1-0.

EARLY START—Of a newspaperman, this time. Seven-year-old Peter Tubby, of Saranac Lake, N. Y., visited his dad's newspaper office. The lad slipped into a seat at a typewriter and hunted and pecked until he had a very short story. And the camera caught the beginning of a career.

WATCH THE BIRDIE—Of course, it appears unlikely on the surface that this young Parisian is telling the ostrich to do that as he snaps its picture. On the other hand, there never is a birdie to watch during photography, so perhaps the boy said it to this bird.
