NEW FLAG, NEW HOLIDAY

A new flag at Holy Souls School this morning was used in a ceremony commemorating a brand new holiday — Veterans Day. Here, students are shown in flag-raising ceremonies, part of the program the school observed in honor of the new holiday which replaces Armistice Day, anniversary of the end of World War I. The flag was the gift of the Home and School Association. In foreground, left to right: Jerry Lewis, Kevin Chisholm, John Owen Jr., and Mike Valesquez. Father Moynihan, pastor of Holy Souls Church, looks on.

Nation Observes Vet Day

Ceremonies Make 50,000 Citizens. By UNITED PRESS. Some 50,000 persons, of every race and more than 50 nations, became American citizens Thursday at public celebrations of naturalization across half the world. Bands played. The flag flew for salute from Maine to the island of Guam, from International Falls, Minn., to Puerto Rico. Parades disbanded and stood at solemn attention for the unique ceremony of a national holiday that celebrated together the strong arm of the nation's war veterans and the welcoming hand of a peaceful America. Federal courts convened in two New York ball parks, in San Diego's Balboa Park, on the deck of the Battleship Missouri, to administer the oath of citizenship to refugees from war and communism to those who fled poverty and to those who traveled for adventure and for love. Citizens by Choice. Only about 15,000 American citizens will be born Thursday. The 50,000 new citizens could remember proudly the little joke President Eisenhower told their representatives at the White House on Tuesday. He recalled one woman's reply to a friend who boasted her ancestors had reached America on the Mayflower: "My parents came over when immigration regulations were much stricter."

Hagler Insurance Swindle Plot Told

$200,000 Scheme Bared By Friend. By PRESTON MCGRAW. DALLAS, Nov. 11 — O. K. Bivins, director of the Oklahoma Crime Bureau, announced Thursday that Frank St. Clair of Irving, Tex., has admitted that he and David F. Hagler were involved in a $200,000 insurance swindle plot. Hagler, 36, vice president of the U. S. Asphalt Corp. is charged with the murder of a half cremated corpse, still unidentified, that was found in the blazing station wagon of his ex-wife near Davis, Okla., on the morning of Oct. 10. St. Clair, 47, is an Irving auto mobile salesman with whom Hagler had planned to go into business on promotion of an ice-making machine. They had reciprocal insurance policies of $10,000 and $25,000 which would have paid double indemnity of $70,000 in case either met violent death. Other beneficiaries. The beneficiaries of other insurance policies totalling about $200,000 were Hagler's mother and his wife, the former Elizabeth Maria Bergmann, 25, whom he married about a month ago. Bivins said St. Clair made a statement Thursday night in Dallas before Capt. Will Fritz of the Dallas police homicide detail and Agents Golden Kennedy and Ivan Gates of the Oklahoma Crime Bureau. He told them that Hagler "was supposed to get a corpse from a morgue for $500." Bivins said St. Clair doesn't know whether Hagler ever actually got a corpse from a morgue but that an autopsy showed that the corpse found in the station wagon was alive when it was set on fire. Bivins said that St. Clair may have been told that a corpse would be burned to make the plan more palatable. Took Lie Detector Test. St. Clair went to Oklahoma two weeks ago and took a lie detector test. Bivins admitted Thursday that although crime bureau agents are (See PLOT, Page 2)

AF Sabrejets Take On Role As Protectors. EDITOR'S NOTE: The powerful U. S. Air Force Sabrejet fleet has gone into action to protect American reconnaissance planes flying over northern Japan. The following dispatch by the United Press chief correspondent and manager for Japan tells of the tense watch now being kept for trigger-happy Russian MIG fighter planes. By RUTHERFORD POATS. TOKYO, Nov. 11 — UP — Crack American Sabrejet fighter planes are now escorting reconnaissance planes over northern Japan, ready to give battle to encroaching MIGs of the Soviet Russian air force. Long standing orders to shoot down invading Red jets have been forcefully restated. It is indicated that both the United States and the Russian air forces now are operating on a "shot first" basis in the event of any contact over or near the north Japan area. A high American officer said that reconnaissance flights of United States Air Force planes, and mapping flights by B-29s near the explosive frontier would continue. The new situation was disclosed less than 24 hours after President Eisenhower said in a press conference in Washington that if a fighter escort was necessary in any area where planes of this country had a right to go, then escort planes ought to be used. The new situation arises from the shooting down by the Russians Sunday of a B-29 mapping plane over northern Japan. In that instance, the captain of the B-29 did not give orders to shoot back. In the future, it is indicated, there will be no such failure to meet a Red challenge. I survey the situation over northern Hokkaido Island on a recent visit, before Sunday's attack. There always has been a constant watch for the MIGs. A handful of lonely American radar men watch the MIGs go through their paces every flying day.

Betty Hutton's final curtain call at the Desert Inn in Las Vegas brought tears flowing from her eyes as she thanked the audience who gave her a standing ovation. Bidding them goodbye, Betty said, "This is the end; I'm giving up show business." (NEA Telephoto)

McCarthy's Friends Seek Compromise. WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — UP — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's forces worked hard behind the scenes Thursday to whip up a compromise formula to blunt or at least soften the apparently unfeeling move to censure the Wisconsin Republican. Some of the senator's chief supporters said privately they were drafting amendments aimed at taking the sting out of the Watkins committee's censure resolution and possibly scuttling one part of it entirely. They made the disclosure as Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) proposed that the Senate call off its temper-rattling censure debate until January to remove the issue from the present atmosphere of post-election fatigue. The big Senate debate rolled into its second day Thursday with Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.), a member of the censure committee, slated as the first speaker. Case was holding the floor late Wednesday at the windup of a turbulent initial session in which McCarthy and Chairman Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) waged a fist-pounding argument over the merits of the censure committee and its report. There were reports in some quarters that Republican leaders have shown some interest in the compromise possibility being talked up in the McCarthy camp. But there was no confirmation of this from reliable sources. Senate GOP leader William F. Knowland asked the Senate late Wednesday to approve a motion that would make it easier to amend the censure resolution. But he withdrew the request when it appeared it "might be misunderstood" as representing a stand by him on the censure issue. If it comes from a Hardware Store We have it. Lewis Hude. Adv

Court Okays County Vote

The Gray County Commissioners' Court Wednesday declared all apparent victors in the Nov. 2 general election the official winners and authorized County Judge J. B. Maguire, Jr., to certify the action for Secy. of State C. E. Fulgham. The entire court was present for the vote canvass which the Texas elections laws state should be made the first Monday after the general election. The court, however, recessed until Wednesday to give County Auditor Ray Wilson more time to get the bills ready for court action. In other action, county commissioners approved spending of an amount not to exceed $8,000 on curb-and-gutter work on U. S. Hwy. 60, from the Pampa city limits to the Recreation Park entrance, and authorized County Treasurer Oia Gregory to make out a check to the Texas Highway Department. The highway department will be asked to widen the roadway for that span, the court minutes read. The distance is an estimated 1,327 feet.

Sheppard Trial Is Recessed

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11 — UP — Bay Village Policeman Fred Drenkhan will give more details Friday of what he observed in and around the home of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard the morning the doctor's wife was murdered. Sheppard's trial on charges he killed his wife was recessed Thursday because of the Veterans Day holiday. Drenkhan passed the Sheppard house five or six times in the early hours of July 4 before being summoned there on a call of homicide. The village policeman identified pictures of Mrs. Sheppard's blood-soaked body when he testified Wednesday. He will be recalled to the witness stand when the trial resumes Friday. One piece of vital evidence was confirmed by Drenkhan when he examined a picture of Sheppard's jacket as it lay neatly folded on a couch in the Sheppard living room. He said the jacket in the picture was in the same position as he had seen it a few minutes after he received reports of the murder. Prosecution witnesses testified that Dr. Sheppard was wearing the jacket over a T-shirt when he fell asleep on the couch a few hours before the murder. The T-shirt has been missing since the murder. Drenkhan said also he saw no one on foot in the vicinity of the Sheppard home on the morning of the murder.

Pampa Street Work Underway

Street work on Varnon Drive was underway today with the 1400-block of Williston and 700-block of North Faulkner next on the list. Asst. City Engineer R. B. Cooke also reported today that curb-and-gutter work on the 400- and 500-blocks of Powell — in the city's new Red Deer Addition — was going on. Scheduled for the next day or so is the moving-in of dirt for the 300-, 400-, 500- and 600-blocks of Decatur, Cooke said.

Flags Fly For Veterans On Their Day

Though all Pampa business firms were open today, the commemoration of Veterans Day was well in evidence by the number of flags displayed on many of the town's business streets. City and county offices remained open, but some federal offices were closed, among them the post office, and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office. A Veteran of Foreign Wars color guard will place a new flag in Fairview Cemetery at 5:30 p.m. today in honor of all war dead, according to Commander Bud Hogan. This morning a new flag was raised in the Holy Souls School yard in commemoration of Veterans Day, Rev. Myles Moynihan officiating. The new name "Veterans Day" instead of Armistice Day was recently made official when President Eisenhower signed Public Law 380.

Dixon-Yates Talks Recessed By AEC

BULLETIN. WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — UP — Chairman W. Sterling Cole (R-N.Y.) of the House-Senate Atomic Energy committee said Thursday that the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract has been signed. That was indicated late Wednesday when Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.), one of the contract's sharpest critics, brushed aside testimony that Mr. Eisenhower has been ill-advised on the contract. "I've excused the President on the basis of bad advice as long as I care to. As far as I'm concerned the gift tag on the Dixon-Yates contract has President Eisenhower's name on it."

Shots Fired At Helicopter

FORT WORTH, Nov. 11 — UP — Someone shot at a helicopter with a high-powered rifle Wednesday night as the pilot was preparing to land at a controversial heliport in a residential area. The bullet narrowly missed the head of W.O. (Jr.) B.L. Pearson, 26. A piece of the windshield, broken by the rifle bullet, cut his right cheek. He brought the helicopter in to a safe landing, however.

Ike Relaxes In Home Town

ABILENE, Kan., Nov. 11 — UP — President Eisenhower relaxed in his boyhood home town Thursday. He dedicated a museum of trophies and souvenirs and swapped stories about when a pair of five-cent socks meant a lot to the Eisenhower boys. The President returned Wednesday night to the one-time cattle town where he and his brothers grew up. He was scheduled Thursday to review a Veterans Day parade and then dedicate the $225,000 museum housing family mementoes and trophies of his military and political career. Two of Mr. Eisenhower's brothers, Milton and Earl, accompanied the President to Abilene and joined him in recalling their boyhood. The President's party also included his wife, Mamie, and his son, daughter-in-law and three grandchildren. Shortly after their arrival, the three Eisenhower brothers paid a visit to their old family home. It was then that Earl Eisenhower, now a LaGrange, Ill., newspaper publisher, harped back to the time when "Ike" drove a heavy pick into his brother Edgar's foot when they were working in the yard. "Right through my new 25-cent socks," Edgar protested, more concerned with the damage to his hose than the physical injury.

Crop Reins Trim Output 3 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — UP — Drought and federal crop controls have trimmed this year's farm production prospects 3 per cent below last year pointing to the fifth largest on record. An Agriculture Department report Wednesday pointed out that while farm output this year still will be "relatively large," it has been topped in four of the past six years. Next month's report will give final production figures for basic crops. But according to current harvest-time reports, record crops of soybeans, rice and sugarbeets have helped keep this year's farm output as large as it is, offsetting federal cutbacks in wheat, corn and cotton. Farmers are also expected to harvest above average crops this year of oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, sorghum grain. Farmers planted more of their crop this year on acreage idled by controls on basic crops. The current corn crop estimate is down 10,950,000 bushels from last month to 2,839,000,000 bushels — a 7.5 per cent drop from last year. But the key livestock feed grain crop is still large enough to swell to 120 million tons the expected output of all feed grains. That would be the largest since 1950 and the sixth largest on record. The expected production of 32 million tons of food grains would be except for 1951 the lowest in seven years. Fatal Egg. LATHAM, N. Y. — UP — Laying a king-sized egg apparently was too much for a chicken owned by Edward Onyon, 10. He found his hen dead beside an egg that was described as being four inches long and six inches in circumference.

Socialists Sanction West Treaty

PARIS, Nov. 11 — UP — France's powerful Socialist party formally threw its support behind the new Western European union Thursday in an Armistice Day vote that practically guaranteed ratification by the French national assembly. The Socialist party, largest in France, has 104 votes in the assembly. This means Premier Pierre Mendes-France almost certainly has enough support to win ratification of the London-Paris accords rearming a free West Germany. The Socialists split their vote on the European Defense Community project and EDC was defeated. A special Socialist party congress voted overwhelmingly — 2,817 to 454 — to instruct the Socialist deputies in the assembly to vote for the new western defense organization. At the same time the Socialists called on the French government to take the initiative for a new meeting with Russia as soon as the Western European union is ratified and without waiting for German rearmament to begin.

Newsman Revisits Korean Battlefield

EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press correspondent Jack Russell has revisited the former Korean battlefield nearly a year and a half after the truce went into effect. In the following dispatch he tells what he found along the only sector now held by Americans.) By JACK RUSSELL. WITH 1ST MARINE DIVISION. Korea, Nov. 11 — UP — Marines holding down a 21-mile-long section of the former Korean battlefield are the only United States troops along the line where Americans once bore the brunt of the bitter fighting. It is left to a handful of these marines to push out into the demilitarized zone — now referred to as the "DMZ" — on patrol each day. Three-man squads, armed with .45 calibre automatics, M-1 rifles and a radio, patrol the southern side of the zone on round-the-clock missions to see that the armistice is not violated. About the only "enemy action" the Americans encounter is an occasional Communist rifle or field glass camera pointed at them. About the only shots fired in anger are at line-crossers — who could be either spies or North Korean residents escaping to freedom across the two and one-half mile wide no-man's land. Isn't Impressed. Capt. Nable Leslie Beck, commander of the First Provisional DMZ Police Company, First Marine Division, said the Red soldiers who patrol the northern half of the zone look "dedicated and mad at us but didn't impress me as being persons hard to fight — though I'm sure they are. "They occasionally point weapons (See NEWSMAN, Page 2)

Cpl. Batchelor Begins Term

CAMP CROWDER, Mo., Nov. 11 — UP — Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor of Kermit, Tex., began serving 20 years at hard labor in the disciplinary barracks at Camp Crowder Thursday for helping his Red captors while a POW in North Korea. The 22-year-old Batchelor was sentenced to life by the court martial which found him guilty Sept. 30 at San Antonio, but the sentence was cut by Lt. Gen. I. D. White, Fourth Army commander. He was flown to Camp Crowder Wednesday from San Antonio. Batchelor's trial must be reviewed by the Army judge advocate general's office in Washington, and he can then ask the military appeals court, composed of civilians, to look at it, too. Batchelor's sentence also included a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of pay and allowances. Army sources said he would be eligible for parole, assuming good conduct in prison, after serving six years and eight months, a third of his sentence.

Clarks Vote 'No' To Union Rule

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Nov. 11 — UP — Employees of five of 18 stores picketed for a year voted unanimously Wednesday against being represented in collective bargaining by the Sabine Area Industrial Union Local 1814. The election was ordered last week by the National Labor Relations Board and was supervised by Clifford Potter, in charge of the sub-regional NLR office in Houston. The unanimous verdict may not have any effect on the picketing.

Chuckle Corner

It's a lot more fun to stop adding up your troubles and turn to counting your blessings. In about two months everybody will love a fat man — if he's dressed like St. Nick! Even some kids who don't drive cars on the highway know what bad grades are. Canada always has a swell wheat crop. More power to Americans' well-bred Canadian cousins. Kids finally got their ears cleaned — bobbing for Halloween apples.

Fifth Amendment Is Topic Of County Attorney Waters

It is getting to the point where a man is guilty until he can prove himself innocent. County Atty. Bill Waters Wednesday night further told the Pampa Optimist Club that persons in high places in the U. S. government can now merely point their finger at a man and say they think he is a Communist — and ruin his life.

Panhandle Wet Weather Due In 1962

The Panhandle of Texas is in for several more years of dry weather, according to H. C. Winburn, chief meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau in Amarillo, who spoke at the luncheon meeting of Rotary Wednesday. Winburn pointed out that wet and dry cycles for this area run in periods of about 11 years and that the present dry period should end in 1962.

Rev. Brooks Chairmans Cancer Panel

There were 223,000 persons in the United States who died last year of cancer — and 73,000 of them "died needlessly." Those figures came out this week in a business meeting at the annual fall Cancer District 3-North meeting in Amarillo.

Soviets Make Propaganda Of Religion

MOSCOW, Nov. 11 — UP — The Communist party's central committee Thursday assailed newspapers and political groups for making "insulting attacks" against clergymen and religious believers in the Soviet Union.

It also accused the guilty parties of committing blunders that violated the Soviet Union's policy of religion.

For the first time in 15 or more years, the party's decision was signed by an individual, Communist Party Secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev, instead of the committee as a whole.

(Soviet newspapers have claimed since the death of Josef Stalin that there is no religious intolerance in the Soviet Union. Officials also have been ordered to protect churchgoers in carrying out propaganda on atheism.)

The decision charged local party organizations and individuals in a number of districts with "administrative interference in the activity of religious unions and groups as well as a rude attitude toward the clergy."

It also upbraided newspapers and propagandists for "depicting some servants of religious cults and believers without any foundation as people unworthy of political trust."

Accused Ex-Cop To Testify In Own Defense At Dope Trial

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 11 — UP — Foy Melton, former chief of the Houston vice squad, was expected to testify in his own defense Thursday at his trial on charges he mishandled narcotics.

Defense lawyers asked Federal Judge Allan Hannay Wednesday, immediately after the government rested its case, for a directed verdict of acquittal. Hannay denied the request so far as one of the two counts against Melton was concerned, and took it under advisement on the other count.

Prosecutor Carlos Watson Jr. denounced his second witness in two days, for allegedly giving different testimony than he had to a grand jury earlier. The witness was George Seber, assistant police chief at Houston.

Seber, who preceded Melton as vice squad chief, said it was customary to keep seized drugs in desk drawers, rather than the regular police property room, because cabinets there were "none too good."

Seber said when Melton took over the squad there were no orders that drugs had to be turned in to the property room, and Melton apparently was following custom when he failed to turn them in.

L. D. Morrison, former police chief, was the first government witness whose testimony surprised Watson. Hannay Wednesday overruled Watson's request that Morrison's testimony be thrown out.

Final witnesses for the government were two Houston policemen, J. P. Conley and E. H. Bennett. Both had testified previously.

Conley was unable to find a small slit put in a package of heroin seized in a drug raid, and Bennett, who made the slit, couldn't locate it either.

Scientist Disagrees With Bible

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 — UP — Atomic scientist Harold C. Urey disagrees with the Book of Genesis about the origin of life.

Urey told a meeting of business leaders Wednesday that "life evolved through gradual chemical evolution."

As for the Biblical version that life started on the third day of creation, Urey, a Nobel prize winner, said, "I just don't believe this is correct."

Urey said "the question of how life began is one of the most complicated subjects in all science" and suggested that man will never be able to describe exactly how life began.

But he said man will be able to put together "bits and pieces." Urey said jocularly that he might be in bad company with "the theory of chemical evolution of life."

He noted that A. I. Oparin, Russian biochemist, was an author of a similar theory. Oparin says that the organic compounds that serve as the basis of life were formed when the earth had an atmosphere of methane, ammonia, water and hydrogen.

When this young lady opens her handbag, a real live parakeet could fly out. Called a "Para-Tote," the plastic bag features a special ventilated compartment for taking a pet bird on a shopping tour. The unique accessory won the prize in its field in an Allentown, Pa., store's annual contest.

Douglas Edwards, CBS' fine radio and TV reporter, suggested the tug-of-war analogy.

"We're always having a tug-of-war," he said, "between those who want a TV news show to be more pictures and those who want it to be more news. We have big conferences frequently, devoted to this problem."

Edwards didn't say on which end of the rope he was pulling, if either. Presumably, he's playing it coy and just sort of hanging around the middle. He realizes that TV news coverage still has a long way to go.

"Five years from now," he said, "it may all be different. At present, we devote about two-thirds of my TV news show to pictures, with the voice in the background, while the other third is simply the news being reported vocally. That proportion is almost certain to be changed in five years."

Edwards says that when he is at home he listens to radio news rather than television. He thinks eventually TV will do the better job.

"It's logical to believe that," he says. "Television starts out better than even with radio. Both can use sound, and television can also use sight. So TV should do a better job, and maybe it does."

Edwards, who just signed a brand-new seven-year contract, is a veteran of 22 years in radio and TV news. This, at the age of 37. He started as a teen-ager on a small station in Troy, Ala., "doing everything from announcing to playing records."

Now he just reports news. And watches tugs-of-war.

More people die on the stage in the new war play, "Fragile Fox," than anything Broadway's seen since "Winter's End." And there is even a demonstration of how to set a broken leg. It's a good play, as long as you sit far enough back to avoid the shell fragments.

Helen Grayco, who hasn't done much since her marriage to Spike Jones but tour with Spike's "Musical Insanities," seems to have a new career ahead. Her first record on X, "Oop-Shoop," made bookers Grayco-conscious, and she's had offers of many sorts. She reports that, after the current Jones tour winds up late in the winter, they may make a West Coast or Las Vegas night-club appearance. The whole town's talking about the Jones boy's gal.

GETTING TO KNOW YOU—"Coco," the monkey, looks slightly bewildered as his pony pal, "Henri," tries to make friends with "Chiquita," a small leopard. The meeting took place at an animal get-together in Paris, France.

We're The Boosters

You may not believe this, but it is not our nature to knock. We would rather praise than blame. We scan the papers each evening looking for something praiseworthy that we can say a few nice things about. Of course, we always have the wonderful Texas weather which we hope nobody ever tries to do anything about.

Another thing we think deserves praise is "Christmas Unlimited." This has a happy sound and the membership is devoted to seeing that the less fortunate among us have a merry Christmas. We're for this idea of voluntary giving of time and goods to the betterment of humanity. And the betterment isn't all to the unfortunate — 'tis better to give than to receive, and character is a grand virtue when viewed from any angle.

Charity builds character both for the giver and for the recipient, so long as both recognize it for what it is. When the giving is forced, through taxation, and the receivers are taught to expect public benefactions as their right, as in public welfare, that is different; and is more apt to destroy character than to build it. But here we go knocking again. Just consider that we gave "Christmas Unlimited" a boost. The rest, we hope, is constructive criticism, not knocking for knocking's sake.

How Can It Miss?

Memo to anybody who likes to plan vacations well in advance: by all means go to England next summer. It seems that the British Sunbathing Association will be making a bid for new members during the hot months of 1955. And it may turn out to be barely exciting.

The BSA (not to be confused with the Boy Scouts of America) is going to work it this way: "Flying squadrons" of pretty young girls, dressed in Bikini bathing suits without tops will be taken to most of the popular bathing beaches during the summer months.

The idea: to collect crowds and rouse interest among prospective members of the association.

How can it miss? If pretty girls in snowsuits can promote beer, and pretty young girls in evening gowns can promote cigarettes, then certainly pretty girls in hardly any clothes at all can promote sunshine and fresh air.

By next autumn the BSA (not to be confused with Button Society of America) ought to have a queue of eager, cheery, bare novitiates from Dover Beach to Cornwall waiting to join.

Hankering

That Small Type On Price Tags Is Pet Hate Of Hank's

By HENRY McLEMORE

I wish Department: That advertisers would print the full price of their products when they print them and do away with the teeny-weeny, baby italic type which says "plus tax" and "optional at extra cost." What would be wrong in letting the buyer know right off the bat how much he is going to get socked? No use in straining both his pocketbook and his eyesight.

That there was a Federal law with lots of teeth in it, against the printing of signs reading "Use Next Window" and "Closed on Mondays." Monday is the only day on which people ever visit restaurants which own signs like that. It's hypnotism or something. Try to name me anyone who has ever gone to the right window first when there was another window available with that other food sign on it. And I wouldn't cry if I never saw another "For Official Use Only" sign, either.

That someone would send me a simple recipe for chesecake, and by simple I mean one that doesn't call for the use of a sieve, which I haven't got. That I could remember when to use "farther" and when to use "further." The older I get the further (or farther) away I get from the proper use. That TV producers would declare a holiday on opening any show with a song and dance sequence. That Caesar and Coca would get back together. They are good by themselves, but great together. That the movies would quit making all State Governors look the same. Before I die I'd like to see one slim, smiling Governor. That James Thurber would write a book each week of the year for the next ten. That American haberdashers sold those wide, flannel suspenders (braces to you) that are available in any good English men's store. They're better looking and much more comfortable. That any woman who gives a man a cigarette that has been stored in her purse near face powder could be given a light, corrective jail sentence.

That the people who choose the TV football games of the week would have to sit through them. Most of them have been as devoid of interest as a battle between two lightweight caterpillars. That all Christmas presents were sold ready to go — wrapped, addressed, stamped, and insured. That cocktail lounges featuring a wandering accordionist be placed off limits to the human race. That places selling barbecue really had to barbecue their meats, and couldn't get by with roast meat sloshed with some sort of goo. This is reaching crusade proportions with me.

That I owned a Sherman tank with reinforced fenders so I could teach bus drivers that they own only nine-tenths of the street. That I could shave with a straight razor, sleep sitting up as so many people can, learn to like gamecock rare, didn't have a kitchen so I would have an excuse to eat dinner every night at Chianti Restaurant and had a counterfeiting machine approved by the Government Bureau of Standards.

Why I Believe Labor Unions Keep Wage Levels Down

Since the belief is very generally held in recent years that labor unions can raise real wage levels and since it is such a pleasant belief that wages can be raised by collective action without increasing production, I want to try to present in a logical, mathematical manner how labor unions that arrive at wages by strikes or threats of strikes keep wage levels down rather than raise wage levels. I will try to establish truisms or facts and then reason from these facts.

The starting premise is that total wages cannot permanently be greater than total production. Does anyone dispute that fact?

Now, if the premise is true that total wages cannot be permanently greater than total production, then it follows logically that anything that reduces total production must eventually of necessity reduce total wages. If that is true, then if we demonstrate that labor unions that try to establish wages by strikes or threats of strikes retard production, then it is logical to conclude that the total real wages must of necessity be less.

They retard production by limiting hours. That is, by making an employer pay extra for overtime.

They retard production by seniority — by keeping the least efficient man operating a machine when a more capable man could produce more. Thus they reduce production.

They retard production by doing work that is not useful to any individual. This is commonly known as featherbedding. As an example of this, the Printer's Union requires the resetting of ads that come into the union shop in plate or mat form. The Printer's Union will permit the printed plate to be used but it requires the printers to reset the ad and throw the type away. This is of absolutely no value to anyone. It is a waste of human energy, and anything that wastes human energy reduces production.

They reduce the total production by limiting the number of apprentices that can learn complicated trades. Thus work that is badly needed is not done to the extent it would be done if the number of apprentices were not limited.

They reduce the total production by minimum wages that keep the slow and inefficient workers from being able to learn a trade or even get a job of any kind.

Here is the primary reason why labor unions reduce production. Labor unions cause unemployment by getting wages arbitrarily established on a non-free market basis. This makes unemployment last longer than it would if wages were arrived at by a free competitive market, rather than by majority rule in an industry or business.

Business Simply Exchange Of Labor

The reason arbitrary wages cause unemployment is that business is nothing but an exchange of labor where both parties believe they are benefited. When one party's wages get so high that the other worker does not believe he is benefited by trading his labor with the other high wage worker, then we have unemployment. That is true because men do not buy things when they do not think they save them labor.

The real wages, or the real standard of living, depend upon the exchange of labor. Practically every one would perish if labor was not exchanged, and to the degree that we have a free division of labor, where there is no obstacle for the man changing jobs and finding the job that uses his talents to the best advantage, to that degree will production increase. Anything that interferes with a free division of labor, which is the primary objective of labor unions, reduces production.

Now if labor unions contend that they raise wage levels because they reduce the profits or the interest on money, then the answer to that is that profit is only a reward for efficiency. Rent is the reward for use of tools that is necessary to secure tools, and the greater the rent for tools, the more tools there will be available to produce more goods. If there be no profit to the entrepreneur for his work or profit for the use of tools, there would be no employees whatsoever, incentive is absolutely necessary for the entrepreneur, the capitalist, and for labor.

Also remember that when wealth is produced, it must be distributed in one way or another. Either it is invested in more tools or used for the enjoyment of the owner. So if labor unions contend that they can raise wage levels by reducing profits, they are only reducing future production, and therefore future wages.

These statements are believed to be facts by every individual who will answer questions without evasion or contradiction. And if these be facts, as they most certainly are, then unless labor unions have some method of increasing production that counterbalances these decreases in production we must conclude that production is less because of labor unions rather than more.

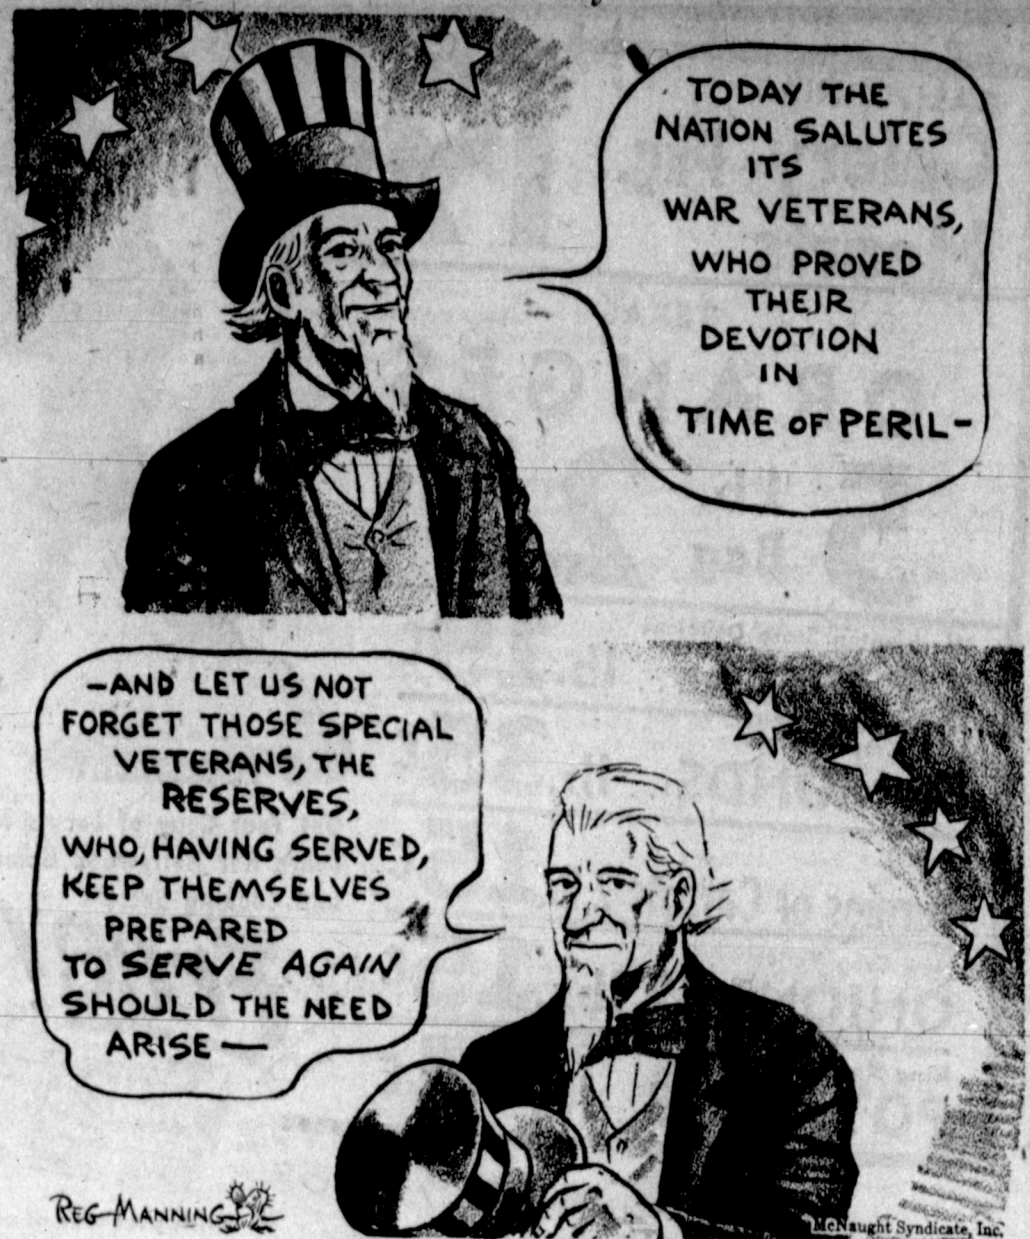

The only argument I have ever heard on how labor unions could increase production is that they help train and select help. But training and selecting help are done by individuals and not by groups. And their training is invariably a non-competitive training. They insist on training workers in certain ways and will not permit a more minute division of labor. And every man who will answer questions knows that the more we divide labor the greater will be the production.

It is strange that in face of these facts that have been known for centuries that so many people now believe that labor unions can raise wage levels.

The columns are open to anyone who believes that labor unions can permanently raise wage levels in certain ways and will not permit a more minute division of labor. And every man who will answer questions knows that the more we divide labor the greater will be the production.

American Zionists Counting On Reversal Of Arab Policy

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — American Zionists count heavily on the next Democratic Congress to reverse and repudiate the Administration's allegedly pro-Arab and anti-Israel policy in the strategic Middle East. They placed their hopes and their votes on the opposition in the recent off-year election.

Although it is not generally realized, resentment against the Eisenhower-Dulles program for building an anti-Communist front in this area figured importantly in the November 2 contest. Politicians estimate that a vast majority of the Jewish vote in the large and small cities went to the Democrats because of this single issue.

It is believed to have accounted for the defeat of Senator Irving M. Ives by Averell Harriman in the New York Governorship fight, and for Franklin D. Roosevelt's loss of the Attorney Generalship to Representative Jacob A. Javits. Another victim in the controversy may have been John Lodge, Republican Governor of Connecticut. He lost out to Abraham A. Ribicoff.

With the Congressional races so close, a few thousand votes away decided the outcome. The pro-Israel forces staged a determined propaganda drive on the eve of election, admittedly in an attempt to elect friends to Congress. In reply to protests by Representative Jacob A. Javits, another victim in the controversy may have been John Lodge, Republican Governor of Connecticut. He lost out to Abraham A. Ribicoff.

The pre-election campaign began on Oct. 25, when the leaders of sixteen American Jewish organizations called on Secretary Dulles. They represented groups interested in labor, civil, welfare, veterans, religious and public affairs.

They protested formally against any grant of arms to the Arab states until they agree to negotiate a final peace with Israel. They also demanded that military aid be given to Palestine.

The delegation also criticized the settlement of the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over the Suez Canal base, which President Eisenhower and Dulles cite as a major diplomatic achievement. They argued that this agreement, with our subsequent promise to lift the arms embargo on Egypt, would further upset the military balance in this area.

The American Zionist Council next issued a pamphlet, entitled "Stop the War against Israel." It charged that "our Government is actually subsidizing aggression, strife and social decay" in the Middle East.

Secretary Dulles promised to give variously a non-competitive training. They insist on training workers in certain ways and will not permit a more minute division of labor. And every man who will answer questions knows that the more we divide labor the greater will be the production.

It is strange that in face of these facts that have been known for centuries that so many people now believe that labor unions can raise wage levels. The columns are open to anyone who believes that labor unions can permanently raise wage levels in certain ways and will not permit a more minute division of labor. The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

"Can any harm come from a lot of coffee drinking?" writes Mrs. C. "I do not drink coffee between meals but take three cups with each meal and one at retiring."

If my arithmetic is correct this adds up to 10 cups a day. Coffee contains an active drug known as caffeine and 10 cups a day of reasonably strong brew coffee would mean that quite a lot of caffeine had been taken into the system. Whether this is too much for Mrs. C. is hard to tell since apparently some people can tolerate large amounts of caffeine better than others; indeed the ability to get by with this amount of coffee often varies from one time of life to another.

Caffeine as a drug has certain well-known actions. It affects particularly the heart, the blood vessels and the nervous system. Caffeine is sometimes employed by physicians to produce particular effects on these organs or systems. If view of this fact it seems somewhat strange that so many people can take so much coffee without producing more changes than is usually the case.

Coffee is an ordinarily consumed acts as a mild stimulant. It increases the physical and mental energy and makes a person feel less tired. Perhaps other ingredients of coffee aid in this comforting effect — the heat, for example — but it is the caffeine which doubtless makes coffee drinking so particularly pleasurable.

Some people, especially those who live outdoor lives, seem to be able to drink almost unlimited amounts of coffee without noticing ill effects. Others, especially those of a "nervous" temperament, find that coffee gives them headaches, digestive disturbances, interferes with the sleep or brings other unpleasant symptoms. Such things must be considered as evidence of chronic poisoning.

McCarthy Treason Fight Not Spreading Communism

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Whoever says Joe McCarthy's fight against treason in the national government of these American states has hampered the efforts of that government to unite Europe against Communism is a liar. Not that it matters, because Europe is shot to pieces, the intelligent Europeans know that the United States jumped on the only nation which actually made war on Communism and won that war for the Russian Communist empire.

We not only beat Russia's two enemies but deliberately undertook to set her up in business as a great industrial power to take the place of industrial Germany. We shipped Russia mountains of industrial equipment including whole factories, railroad vehicles and miles of copper cable for power lines which had no conceivable relation to her "war effort." They were frankly intended for her post-war prosperity.

Back around 1942, contrary to my general policy of keeping my mouth shut at public occasions, I made a speech to the Exeter alumni in which I took a fall out of a Hollywood character named Donald Ogden Stewart, supposed to be a humorist who followed me in the wind-jamming, and drove a window of a noxious Red, old Lincoln Steffens, a famous brain-picker of the magazine trade in the muck-raking days, and when I warned these people not to trust any Communist in any circumstances, because they would be at our throats the instant the danger to Soviet Russia was over, he screamed like a horse in a burning barn.

I didn't mention his name but he blew up and made such a spectacle of himself that his own fellow alumni booed him. I recall this to prove that I knew the nature of the Russians then and never changed my mind about them and have never been wrong as Roosevelt and Bubble-head Wallace and Hopkins and most of the Roosevelt-Truman State Department were.

A great many of our ordinary, walk-around citizens made the same stupidly credulous mistake. Most of them, who haven't died, are still trying to pretend that they didn't fall for Communism when they regarded Russia as our "ally" which she never was in any sense of the word. We never made an alliance with Soviet Russia and she never treated us as anything but a rich sucker.

Millions of our kids have come out of college and out of the armed forces, but especially out of the army of World War II, all addled up about "democracy" and an idiotic superstition concocted by anti-Americans, that God somehow gave "United States" a "mandate" to the rest of the world. They got this by "indoctrination" slanted by Communists. God never did anything of the kind and if we don't start minding our own business and get home we are going to get the worst of the history of mankind. All such officious, pretentious, sanctimonious world posers get their ears blasted off soon or late and we will be no exception.

The Nation's Press

STABILITY VS. PROGRESS (Christian Economics)

Mr. Reuther says he's going to get the guaranteed annual wage for the United Automobile Workers. Does he mean he's going to force the American people to buy enough automobiles to keep the workers busy the year around, or does he plan to force the government to stockpile the surplus as public expense? Possibly he may be banking on paying out wages for surpluses in paying out wages for the making of goods that cannot be sold.

Mr. Reuther says his program will stabilize the automobile industry and that it will spread to other industries, stabilizing them too. The objective, apparently, is to stabilize all industry according to some master plan so that just so much of everything and of certain kinds, sizes and styles will be produced, and everyone will have to consume his quota.

To operate such a plan, government authority would have to be supreme, and the people, including their private organizations such as the United Automobile Workers, would lose control and have nothing to say. All opposition would have to be silenced and each one do as he was told by the bosses.

Everyone desires steady work and a regular income, but are we willing to enslave ourselves according to the communist Russian model in order to obtain it? Do we want stability and enslavement at the price of progress and freedom? With all our problems and difficulties in this country, life is still better than in the countries following centrally planned economies. Are we ready to give up the system that has produced more well-being and better living than any other, and adopt the terror, hardship and coercion existing in the stabilized government-managed economy countries?

Nehru To Resign As Party Chieftain

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru is quitting as president of India's dominant political party, but he still will be a pretty busy man, he has limited himself for years.

In addition to being premier of a country of 357 million people, Nehru has remained India's foreign minister, defense minister and minister for scientific research.

He also is bidding for the diplomatic leadership of a bloc of East Asian countries and he dreams of Queen Elizabeth only as a symbol of a larger bloc of Asian and African countries. He is making India's voice heard in all world affairs.

Inside India, he has to keep a wary eye on the small but active Indian Communist party, which has 27 members in parliament.

At the moment, he is deciding what to do about the 700,000 headhunting Naga tribesmen, in the dense forests over by the Burma frontier, who have proclaimed themselves "the people's sovereign republic of Nagaland."

It seems unlikely that, as he approaches his 65th birthday Sunday, Nehru will be able to permit himself more than the 4-1/2 to 5 hours of sleep a day to which he has limited himself for years.

Ever since India attained its independence in 1947, Nehru has been this country's one dominant figure.

He has made India, which at first had dominion status, a sovereign republic which recognizes Queen Elizabeth only as a symbol of the unity of the British commonwealth of nations.

He has been embroiled in disputes with India's neighbor Pakistan, over the state of Jammu and Kashmir, and with France and Portugal over the little colonies they settled in the 16th and 17th centuries on the Indian coast.

Nehru also has been exceedingly free in his criticism of United States policies in southeast Asia and in the world generally.

At the moment, he seems to get along better with Mao Tse-Tung and Chou En-Lai, the Chinese Communist leaders.

Nehru agrees with Mao and Chou on the possibility of "peaceful co-existence" between the Communist and free worlds.

Just One Objective

But Nehru is neither a pro-Communist nor a fellow-traveler. He is strictly an Indian and an Asian, determined to give his country its place in the world and to make Asia a continent ruled only by Asians.

He expressed his own political philosophy in a speech in New Delhi Tuesday.

"The picture I have in mind is definitely and absolutely socialist," he said.

Nehru explained that he did not mean socialism in its doctrinaire sense. What he believes in, he said, is a society in which the means of production would be owned by the people, for the benefit of all. There still will be plenty of room in such a society, he said, for private enterprise.

"We must realize that the day of the acquisitive element of society has not passed but is passing," he said.

This is the log cabin retreat of Secretary of State and Mrs. John Foster Dulles, at Main Duck Island, Canada. At right is one of the signs erected by Dulles, a political internationalist, with a preference for personal isolation. Built in 1943, the cabin is almost identical to those built by American pioneers. The single-story cabin is 25 feet square and has 3 rooms.

Man Hopes Soon To Use H-Power

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and last in a series on power.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—UP—Despite official disclaimers or silence, the belief persists in scientific circles that H-bomb violence may some day be tamed for production of industrial power.

In the early days of H-bomb development, the notion that the super-bomb's city-killing violence could be controlled was derided.

As recently as last April 7, President Eisenhower said at a news conference that scientists know of "no direct application of the hydrogen bomb principle... to peacetime power."

But the notion will not die. The potentialities of atomic energy are limited by the relative scarcity of uranium and thorium, the raw materials of atomic fission.

Uses Cheap Elements

The H-bomb, however, gets its power not from fission of scarce and costly heavy elements but from fusion of abundant and cheap light elements. Obviously, if its violence could be quelled, fusion energy would be a tremendously greater source of power than fission.

The planet is poor in uranium, but its oceans, seas, lakes and rivers are rich in the lightest element, hydrogen.

As a matter of fact, hydrogen energy is older by far in the annals of scientific theory than atomic energy. It has been just 15 years since atomic fission was discovered. But scientists had begun to tumble back in the late 1920s to the fact that fusion of hydrogen nuclei was what kept the sun and stars going as energy machines.

To the layman, it is hard to figure how the sudden violence of an H-bomb might be slowed to a pace that would make its energy available for peacetime power.

The A-bomb reaction can be controlled, as in atomic reactors, for readily understandable reasons. But how can you control an H-bomb whose reactions will not "go" — or so it has been stated — except in the presence of the A-bomb's multi-million degree heat?

An Unconfirmed Report

There is reason to believe it may be possible to do it—and that the Atomic Energy Commission is financing studies to that end at Princeton University and Livermore, Calif. The AEC will not, however, confirm that.

So many authorities have hinted at hydrogen power possibilities that John S. Walter, a Washington attorney who used to be counsel to the House-Senate Atomic Energy committee, recently composed a scholarly criticism of the new atomic law on grounds its provisions are "inadequate" to deal with peacetime development of hydrogen energy.

Among scientists who believe hydrogen energy may some day be tapped are Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked in the wartime A-bomb project; Dr. George Gamow, famous theoretical physicist at George Washington University; Dr. Edward Teller, one of the fathers of the H-bomb; and Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer, former AEC director of research.

Leaders Foresee Use

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), co-chairman of the House-Senate Atomic Energy committee, and the committee's first chairman, the late Sen. Brian McMahon (D-Conn.), both foresaw use of hydrogen energy for power.

Dr. George R. Harrison of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology pointed out recently that if the thermonuclear fusion reaction can be slowed down — water itself "can become the fuel that inventors have long dreamed of."

Each water molecule consists of two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen. If hydrogen fusion can be tamed, Harrison said, "humanity should never need to worry about its energy supplies again."

Elementary Schools Host Dads Tonight

Five Pampa elementary schools — Sam Houston, Woodrow Wilson, Lamar, Horace Mann and R. M. Baker — will hold a "father's night" tonight, as part of the observance of Texas Education Week.

The sixth, Carver, has nothing scheduled.

In Sam Houston, the program begins at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Roy Sullivan providing the music and leading the school choir. The school's Parent-Teacher Association will meet at 1 p.m. in the cafeteria.

In Woodrow Wilson, where the program also begins at 7:30 p.m., the parents will visit classrooms to view their children's work.

Fourth grade room mothers will act as hostesses.

In Lamar, Pampa Schools Supt. Knox Kinard will be the featured speaker on the program which starts at 8 p.m. Jim Austin will provide special music. The school's P.T.A. will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the office of Principal J. Aaron Meek.

In Horace Mann, County Atty. Bill Waters will speak on "Establish Justice" and the Squeaky Door Four, a barbershop quartet, will sing. Program begins at 7:30 p.m. and the school P.T.A. meets at 1:15 p.m.

In R. M. Baker, Mrs. Tom Rose, will speak on "We, the People Government by Law," the meeting will run from 7 to 8 p.m.

Lewd Movies Cost Tavern Owner $750

AUSTIN, Nov. 11—UP—A $750 fine assessed W. D. Satterwhite, Fort Worth tavern operator, on charge of showing lewd and lascivious movies at a private stag party was sustained Wednesday by the Court of Criminal Appeals.

The defense contended Satterwhite had rented his establishment Nov. 13, 1953 and did not know the nature of the entertainment to be presented at the stag party.

However, the court noted in its opinion that "the offense was committed in the presence of many spectators in appellant's place of business and while he was conducting his business of selling beer in the same room. He saw the showing of the first film and the second; the intervening indecent exhibition and the third film, the showing of which was interrupted by the arrival of raiding officers."

"Not only did he fail to interfere, but at one time applauded," Judge K. K. Woodley wrote in the court's ruling.

Cardinal Bruno Dies Wednesday

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 11—UP—Giuseppe Cardinal Bruno died Wednesday at his Rome apartment, 24 hours after receiving the extreme unction of the Roman Catholic Church and a special blessing from Pope Pius XII.

The 78-year-old cardinal had been in critical condition since undergoing an operation for a tumor of the liver about 10 days ago.

Vatican sources said he died at 8:58 p.m. (10:58 a.m. est.).

Stolen federal government property valued at $2,887,487 was recovered by the Army's military policemen during the past year.

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—The Laugh Parade: Sign in a North Hollywood food market: "Customers wanted, no experience necessary."

Burt Lancaster vows it happened in Kentucky, on location for his new film, "The Kentuckian." An assistant director called for the movie's still man (photographer) over the public address system and a grizzled old-timer nearby whispered: "Don't go hollerin' like that. You'll flush out the revenooers."

Television's bright new comic, George Gobel, broke the home-tween applause meter with this one:

"I was sitting at home having a conversation with my wife. That's something we do when the TV set is broken."

The touring "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" played a college auditorium in Moorhead, Minn. Because the stage was too small, 80-heavy cafeteria tables were set together and used as a stage instead.

"Those tables," writes Paul Douglas, "never held so much bang."

REAL PEARY says his favorite Italian restaurant is now serving a Mario Lanza special. Preheated spaghetti with meat balls, canned two years ago.

A story Eddie Cantor uses on the subject of having fun while you're alive:

Jimmy Walker was the toast of New York for many years before he died. When he passed away, they put on a testimonial for him in a large theater. George Jessel was the master of ceremonies. There were only 15 people in the theater and, after Jessel looked around, he said: "Have fun. You don't live long after you're dead."

Zippy, the chimp who plays Cheta in the latest Tarzan film, "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle," visited a night club with his owner, Lee Ecuier. While Lee was talking to a friend Zippy, who had a penchant for telephones, wandered over to one of the phone booths.

There was a fellow inside who was feeling no pain. When he finally completed his conversation, he opened the door and came face to face with the patient chimp, standing there as if waiting his turn at the phone.

But the bleary-eyed one was up to the occasion.

"I beg your pardon," he said to the chimp. "I'm an actor. I kept you waiting because I thought you were my agent."

OVERHEARD at the Mocambo: "Some girls think low-cut evening gowns are indecent. Others have good figures."

Robert Mitchum and Broderick Crawford played the roles of doctors in "Not as a Stranger." When Brod finished his work in the film, he found a goody gift in his dressing room from Mitchum.

It was a large X-ray photograph of a stomach, warmly inscribed:

"So you'll know me when next we meet. Sincerely, Bob."

Sign seen by Rodney Bell in a small Oklahoma town:

A HOLLYWOOD producer, it's being told, put an ad in the paper for an exceptional pigeon to play a role in a new movie. Next morning his secretary announced that a pigeon was waiting to see him about the ad.

"In person?" said the producer with a surprised look.

"Well then throw him out," yelled the producer. "How good can he be? He ain't even got an agent!"

Sign in a TV producer's office: "If there's anything I dislike, it's one thing more than another."

A Hollywood hat designer had a telephone order from a movie starlet.

"Is the hat for a short or a long bob?" asked the designer. There was a moment's silence and then the starlet giggled:

"The Bob is about six feet tall!"

Overheard at the races: "Not that I'm a sore loser, you understand, but this horse comes up to me in the grandstand and asks, 'Which way did they go?'"

Texas Oil Output Gains

TULSA, Nov. 11—UP—A spurt in Texas led a 60,300-barrel increase in the nation's daily average oil production the past week, the Oil and Gas Journal said Tuesday. National daily average for the week ending Nov. 6 was 6,224,825 barrels, compared with 6,164,525 the previous week. Cumulative production still lagged behind the figure at the corresponding time last year. Total so far this year was 1,982,703,425 barrels, compared with 2,015,648,169 in the same period of 1953. Texas daily average increased 37,300 barrels last week. Other increases were Oklahoma 5,700, Louisiana 5,325, New Mexico 3,425, Wyoming 3,400, Illinois 2,400, Mississippi 2,275, North Dakota 1,200, Indiana 900, Kentucky 890, Michigan 1,600, Montana 500, and Nebraska 100.

EASY ON THE EARS

The problem of quieting the ear-splitting roar of jet engines was partially solved by a South Marston, England, aircraft company. They met the problem by using a giant muffler. The plane is moved into a walled-in pen, top, with its tail section centered in the exhaust muffler. A close-up of the muffler, bottom, shows the details of its design. It supposedly reduces the noise level to a point where it's practically inaudible at a distance of 1,000 yards.

The approach of the Metropolitan Championships, scheduled to be held in New York this week end, reminds me of an amusing hand from last year's tournament. One of the players found himself so marked with a particular card that he might just as well have taken it out of his hand and put it face up on the table.

The bidding was quite normal and West opened the six of spades. East won with the king of spades and promptly led the six of hearts. South won and returned the seven of diamonds, putting up dummy's king, and East won with the ace of diamonds, putting up dummy's king, and East won with the ace of diamonds. East cashed the ace of spades and returned the six of hearts.

Now, you might think that South would have to stop to agonize over the second round of the trump suit. Should he finesse, or should he put up the king of trumps in the hope of dropping the queen? Actually, South had no problem at all. He knew where the queen of trumps was just as surely as though he had seen it.

East surely had the queen of trumps because he had so obviously avoided leading a third round of spades. South therefore finessed quickly and confidently on the second round of trumps, making his contract with no further difficulty.

Here is declarer's full line of reasoning: If East started with only two small trumps he would have some reason to hope that his partner could overruff the dummy on a third round of spades. Therefore East would lead a third spade if he had only two small trumps.

It was therefore clear that East had the queen of trumps.

Pregnancy Test Used To Spot Cancer

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11—UP—Two Texas doctors Wednesday told the Southern Medical Association that a test, usually given to determine pregnancy, can detect cancer in early stages.

Dr. T. C. Terrell and Dr. H. H. Beard, both of Fort Worth, said a test of more than 30 milligrams of chorionic gonadotropin in a 24-hour volume of urine has proven 94 per cent accurate.

An Oklahoma physician, Dr. Stewart Wolf of the University of Oklahoma, blamed frustrations for ulcer symptoms.

Drs. Terrell and Beard said their research for Terrell's laboratories and the Terrell medical group showed that the urine test could detect cancer even before clinical evidence of its presence could be found.

They reported that although identical results are found in pregnancy, approaching motherhood could be determined otherwise in the laboratory.

Although they consider their conclusions preliminary, Dr. Beard declared that "if I ever get a positive, I'm going to do something about it right away."

Dr. Wolf said he found that "hard work and heavy responsibility may not necessarily be considered stressful" in causing ulcer symptoms.

He cited a lawyer who had been refused a partnership in the firm for which he worked and had peptic ulcer symptoms. When other members of the firm went into service in World War II, he assumed the workload and his symptoms disappeared.

However, after the others returned from service and he was still refused a partnership, the symptoms returned—worse than before.

VIDEO VICTIMS—A yellow-shafted flicker, one of many birds killed by flying into a TV tower in Topeka, Kans., is studied by Harrison Tordoff, Kansas University ornithologist, and Mrs. Walter Huxman, of the Topeka Audubon Society. Some of the others killed are spread on the table. The birds were stopped short in their north-to-south migration.

SQUATTER'S WRONGS—Mexican fighter Ramon Tiscareno is squatting during the third of his four trips to the canvas in the first round of his bout in New York with South Africa's Gerald Dreyer. Referee Pete Scalzo stopped the fight just as the bell rang ending round one. Fight fans protested that it be continued and a free-for-all was precipitated.

HERS IS REAL—Models wearing some new designs in Paris just couldn't grow their own hair to the required length in time for the fall showing, so various false hairpieces were used. The model at right, posing prettily with a wooden steed, wears a long pony tail hairdo made of the hair from a lot of actual pony tails.

THEY'RE A CONTRAST—One female who is not complaining about the de-emphasizing lines of the new Dior flat look is five-year-old Linda Garcia, who proudly exhibited one of the new styles at a fashion show in San Francisco. At left is Pat Howell who compromises as best she can with the new H-look design, and seems to be doing all right.

LOVELY TO LOOK AT—Actress Mara Corday is a welcome sight as she poses along a lake in southern California in a leopard swim suit. She's wearing a pair of matching bracelets; one decorates her arm as the other graces an ankle.

UP AND OUT—Police in New York are shown hauling a 1½-ton truck from the East River. Some youngsters had reported seeing men drive up in an auto, throw a suitcase into the water and then drive the 1946 truck off the pier. The truck had been stolen and contained a commercial refrigerator. The mysterious suitcase was also recovered.

FLIGHT FROM AFAR—Trailing clouds of vapor, a fleet of sleek B-47 Stratojets roars over Dayton, O., en route non-stop from England to March Air Force Base in California. The six-jet medium bombers made the trip in less than 15 hours. The Boeing Airplane Company's plant in Wichita, Kans., recently turned out its 1000th Stratojet for the U. S. Air Force.

PIPE DREAMY—Indulging her king-sized taste for tobacco with an over-sized pipe is Florentine Arroch, a member of the Ladies Pipe-Smoking Club in Paris. The group maintains a private room so members can enjoy briars and meerschaums to their heart's content.

GRAB THAT BALL!—Since you can't score without the football, every effort is made on Saturdays to latch onto the pigskin. There are various approaches. For instance, Michigan's half-back George Corey begs for it, upper left; UCLA's Rommie Loud outmaneuvers Stanford's Gordie Young for it, lower left, and Dartmouth's Donald Gray seems to "dance" for it, right.

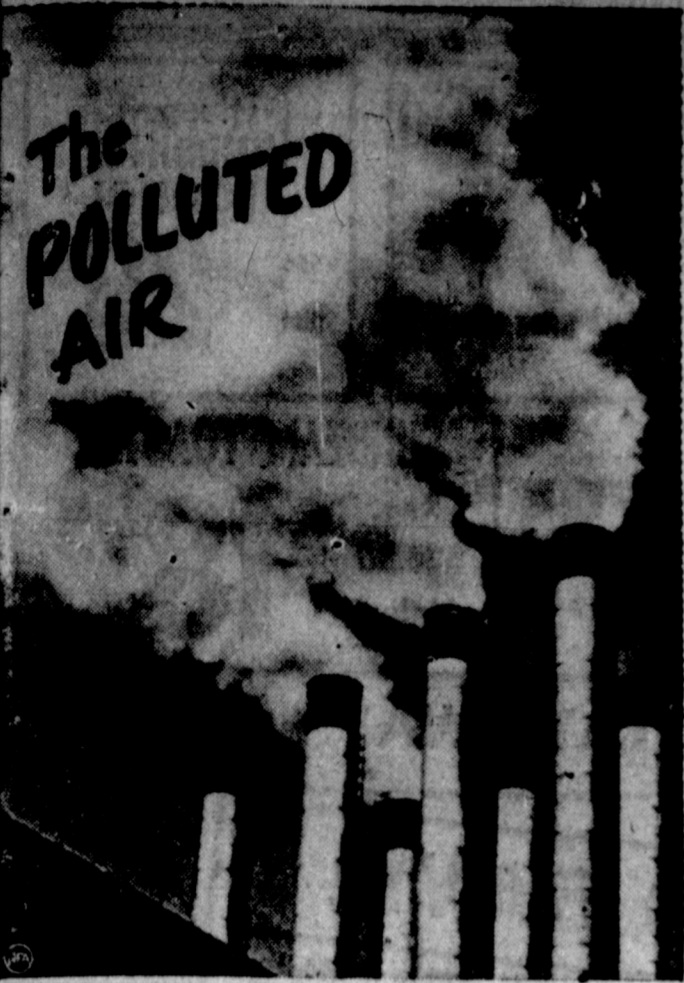

FIRST PEEK—Japanese actress Shirley Yamaguchi is viewing a 9½-foot piece of sculpture by her husband, Isamu Noguchi. The couple were visiting the Metropolitan Museum in New York to see the pink Georgian marble sculpting owned by the museum.

THE ANIMAL WORLD—Coco, a tiny monkey, is worried as his pony pal, Henri, tries to make the acquaintance of Chiquita, a young panther in Paris. Chiquita is only five months old, but her paws are sharp enough to do a lot of damage to an inquisitive pony.

BLANKETING AMERICAN CITIES, smoke pours from chimneys like these over vast metropolitan areas of the nation.

Air Pollution Linked To Cancer Of Lungs

EDITOR'S NOTE: The real-life detective story of air pollution and its part in the lung cancer mystery is becoming a perplexing and alarming community problem over vast metropolitan areas of America. For this report on smog, the third of four dispatches, NEA Staff Writer Kenneth O. Gilmore went to the top authorities in the U. S. now tells the story of smog and how science is working to track down the killer in the skies.

By KENNETH O. GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA)

There's a killer on the loose who prefers male victims by a ratio of nearly four to one.

Lung cancer claimed the lives of an estimated 23,000 persons during 1953 and 18,000 of these were males.

"One out of 20 male babies who are born today can expect to develop lung cancer sometime in the course of their lives," says Sidney J. Cutler, analytical statistician with the biometry section at the National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md.

Scientists and medical researchers have yet to come up with any conclusive answer to the mystery of skyrocketing lung cancer among men. But this trait gives medical detectives one more clue with which to track down the cause of the disease.

The chemicals, fumes and smoke which fill the air of numerous American cities have been tabbed by noted doctors as one of the possible reasons for the alarming rate of lung cancer.

Air pollutants have a better opportunity to strike at men rather than women, according to Dr. W. C. Hueper, Chief of the Environmental Lung Cancer Section at the National Cancer Institute.

He gives four reasons:
1. More men are extensively employed than women in industries where known or suspected atmospheric cancer producing agents are present.

2. Men have occupations that take them outdoors where there is more occasion to breathe polluted air.

3. Men perform heavy physical labor requiring deep breathing which helps cancer producing air pollutants penetrate the respiratory tract.

4. Men more than women tend to work the entire span of their occupational life within urban areas as white women spend more time in cleaner suburban communities.

Accusing fingers have also been pointed at smoking tobacco as the cause for lung cancer, particularly among men. The highly publicized rumormongering over this supposed relationship has virtually drowned out notice of air pollution.

One of the chief pieces of circumstantial evidence against smoking is the fact that so few women have been developing lung cancer in recent years.

"The point is that as heavy smokers women are lagging considerably behind men," Dr. Charles S. Cameron, vice president of the American Cancer Society, explained the other day.

Looking toward another possible answer to the riddle, Cameron said: "Perhaps there is a hormonal factor involved which makes men more susceptible. Perhaps the person who is by nature an intense smoker is hormonally disposed to catch cancer of the lung."

Dr. Paul Kotin, whose recent experiments at the University of California at Los Angeles produced skin cancer tumors in 50 per cent of the mice he painted with chemical extracts from gasoline engine exhausts, had this to say:

"Until it can be explained why many persons who never smoke get lung cancer, or why there is less cancer of the larynx than of the lung which the smoke reaches last, smoking can be considered only as a possible source but not necessarily the principal offender."

Oil Man Fears For Texas' Oil Conservation Program

MINERAL WELLS, Tex., Nov. 10 — Intervention of the federal government in Texas' oil and gas production will set the state's conservation program back a quarter-century, an oil industry spokesman said Wednesday.

"Texans have a strong and efficient public policy, embodied in stern conservation laws," John W. Wagner of Dallas, public relations director of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, told the 57th convention of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

"This results in efficient management of these natural forces to recover the maximum amount of oil and gas over a long period of time," he said. He illustrated his talk with a working model of an oil field reservoir.

Wagner told of what he said were conflicts between conservation regulations of the Texas Railroad Commission and an order of the Federal Power Commission.

In one case, he said, an oil operator acting under state orders plans to inject gas into oil strata to keep a field alive. But a pipe line company is seeking Federal Power Commission authority to force continued delivery of gas.

"The economic welfare of many phases of Texas life and culture is tied to orderly production practices which result from effective

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

(This column, based on Federal law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)
Alert observers frequently notice some goods or articles are patented, whereas other seemingly similar items are copyrighted. The question accordingly arises as to what constitutes the difference between a patent and a copyright.
Patents are granted to inventors in new and useful articles of manufacture, compositions of matter, methods and processes, ornamental designs of articles of manufacture and certain types of plants.
Copyrights are granted to authors, composers or artists on works such as books (which include not only bound volumes, but also pamphlets, leaflets and even single sheets), periodicals, speeches, plays, musical compositions, phonograph records, works of art, including sculptured works, maps, photographs and motion pictures.
The function of a patent of copyright is to give its owner the right to exclude all others from infringing the patent or copyright—that is, from practicing the invention or copying the copyrighted material. Patents give protection against any infringer who makes, uses or sells the invention, regardless of whether he is a copyist and regardless of whether he actually knows of the patent. Copyrights, on the other hand, give protection only against a copyist and not against one who independently does the same thing.
A patent runs for seventeen years and cannot be renewed. A copyright runs twenty-eight years and may be renewed once for an additional period of twenty-eight years.
An inventor or author may himself apply for a patent or copyright. However, only persons trained in such work should prepare and prosecute the necessary applications, since it often happens that an unskilled person, because of his lack of knowledge of the law and the procedure, will do irreparable damage to the rights to which the inventor or author was originally entitled. Sometimes rights are forfeited completely through the mistakes of such unskilled persons.

Pampa Scouts To Make Ski Trip To NM

Fifty Explorer Scouts will go on a ski trip Jan. 21-24 to the Trestles Ski Run, some 45 miles northwest of Las Vegas, N. M., on State Hwy. 5.
Deadline for making an application in the Scout office, City Hall, for the trip is midnight Monday, according to Denver Allen, chairman of the Santa Fe District winter sports camp planning committee.
The Explorers—50 is the limit—will leave from City Hall at noon Jan. 21 and from the White Deer Post Office at 1 p.m.
The ski run is in Carson National Forest where the mercury is about 50 degrees during the day, but drops to below zero at night, Allen cautioned. The trip is expected to cost each Explorer about $15. Each skier will bring a sack lunch to eat on the bus, will buy his own lunch at the ski run, and will be fed two breakfasts and two suppers at the lodge. They will sleep in the lodge, but will take their own sleeping bags.
Working with Allen on the trip are Paul Buchanan, White Deer, Post 81 advisor, and John Young, Pampa, advisor for Crew 22 in Troop 22.

M'Kay Pushes Private Industry Outer Shelf Oil Exploration

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 —UP— Douglas McKay, secretary of the Interior, Wednesday said the sale of leases on the outer continental shelf to private industry will benefit every person in the country by adding large sums to the federal treasury, creating employment and lowering taxes.

McKay, who is also petroleum administrator for defense, spoke at the 34th annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

He said 31 companies had submitted 326 bids totaling almost $130 million on 97 plots on the continental shelf off the shores of Louisiana and Texas. The plots were 5,000 acres each and were among 180 offered for lease by the Interior Department, McKay said.

He said their sale marked "the end of the long-standing controversy which paralyzed the development of these rich petroleum resources."

These first sales and subsequent ones, McKay said, "will benefit every individual in the United States by adding large sums from the bonus bids and the royalties to the federal treasury."

The sales will also "result in employment for thousands of people and, by helping to balance the budget, aid in lightening our tax burden," McKay said.

The API re-elected Frank M. Porter, of Fair-Porter Drilling Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., president and P. C. Spencer, president of Sinclair Oil Corp., New York, chairman of the board of directors.

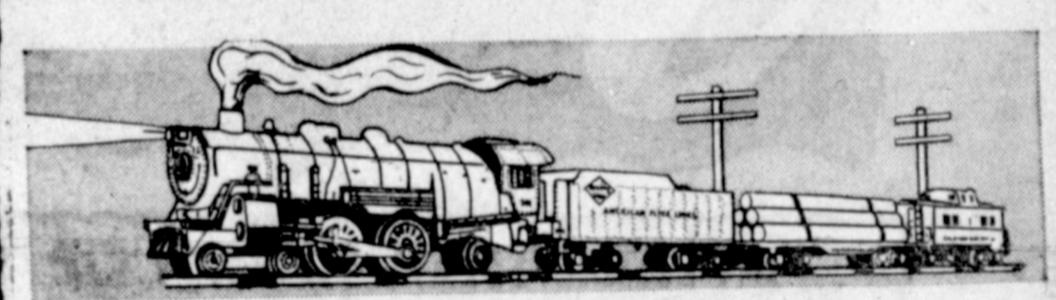

Wallace E. Pratt, 69, geologist and author from Carlisle, N. M., received the API's gold medal for distinguished achievement.
At another session, Porter attacked a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision to place natural gas rates under federal regulation as a "proposition that attacks on a broad front one of the truly basic concepts of American freedom—the right to compete freely."

NEW DEW LINE

Development of Russian jet bomber types has sparked a decision by the U.S. and Canada to erect a new radar fence as far into the Arctic as possible. Officially it's a "Distant Early Warning" or DEW line. Planning for its construction will start at once. Map, above, shows approximate location of the three radar "fences" to protect Canadian and U. S. cities against bombing from the north. White arrows show approximate distances from known Russian air bases. (NEA Photo)

Americans Face $600 Million Loss From Bad Checks In '54

By DONALD JOHNSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
Americans will lose more money chasing bad checks this year than the nation's annual loss through fire.

An estimated $600 million will go into the hands of forgers, kites and counterfeiters.

The Todd Co. of Rochester, which manufactures protective check machines, has surveyed police departments in 98 cities and found that arrests for check fraud in 1953 jumped 11 per cent over 1952 and this year's rate is running still higher.

The crooks range from those who carefully counterfeit the payroll checks of well-known companies to the more primitive type who brazenly draw checks on an account in "The East Bank of the Mississippi."

George W. Adam, head of Todd's insurance department, said the increase in bad check losses "is no credit to the skill of the criminals but a result simply of the more widespread use of checks."

The "special checking account" which requires no minimum balance has flooded the country with checkbooks. Todd's researchers estimate between 90 and 95 per cent of all financial transactions now are handled by check and 14 million of them change hands every day.

"Check fraud is probably the easiest crime to commit," a Los Angeles police official said recently. "If a man tenders a bad check to a merchant and the merchant refuses to cash it, the man just walks out and tries somewhere else. There's nobody shooting at him."

The Rochester firm says it has found that no more than a third of the merchants in most cities demand proper identification before cashing a check. And only a third of those cheated ever do anything about it.

"Such carelessness invites newcomers to the game," Adam said. "I've seen piles of unreported bad checks stuffed in drawers at supermarkets. They seem to be willing to write off the loss as part of the overhead."

While many "pros" work the check game regularly, 54 per cent of the persons arrested for check fraud in 1953 were first offenders. Almost a fifth of them were women. Many were juveniles.

Department stores are the most frequent victims of check artists. Supermarkets come next, followed by liquor stores, taverns and independent groceries. Some 85 per cent of last year's bad checks bounced into these four types of stores.

Adam said there is no shortcut to spotting a bad check artist. Apprehensions are difficult. A mother with three children in tow once cashed $10,000 worth of phony checks before police caught up with her. A minister, collar and all, forged $40,000 worth.

Adam offered these suggestions to the man who is handed a check:

Cash checks only for persons known to you or to a friend; require identification more positive than a driver's license or social security card, which can be forged; call the bank if there is any doubt whatsoever; never cash out-of-town checks or checks for unduly large amounts; don't cash a check simply because it looks "ok."

As the check artist can steal or rent machines to give them an "official" look.

Religious, Replira
PETERSHAM, Mass. — UP — An exact replica of the grotto at Lourdes, France, where nearly 100 years ago a French peasant girl said the Virgin Mary appeared and talked to her, has been built here by the Xaverian Fathers.

'Nuts,' Says Casey Jones' Widow To All Disbelievers

JACKSON, Tenn. — UP—Thousands of persons will argue there was no such person as Casey Jones, the famed engineer. They say he was a product of legend. "They're nuts," said his widow. Mrs. Casey Jones, a small grey-haired woman just recently turned 87, still lives here, but not in the house she once shared with the engineer immortalized in song.

Several months ago, Mrs. Jones fell and injured her hip. She now is in one of Jackson's nursing homes and Mrs. Ruth Ballew, head of the home said Mrs. Jones has a long fight before she will be able to walk again.

"But she never complains," said

Mrs. Jones. "She is an inspiration for all."

Substituted
It has been more than half a century since Casey Jones highballed his way through an early morning mist into immortality. He was killed April 29, 1900, near Vaughn, Miss.

"Casey wasn't even supposed to be the engineer on that run," his widow said.

She explained that he had pulled into Memphis the night before, dead tired from his regular run. When the engineer who was to take over the Illinois Central's "Cannonball Express" became ill, Casey volunteered to fill in.

Jones left Memphis one hour and 35 minutes late on the 188-mile route to Canton, Miss., vowing to run her till she leaves the rail, or make it on time with the south-bound mail.

Mrs. Jones said that when the "Cannonball" ploughed into a line of boxcars stalled on the track, Casey was only two minutes off the regular schedule.

Ballad Gave Fame
She was at home, hanging out clothes when a neighbor came by. "I asked her what she was doing, calling so early," Mrs. Jones recalled. "I said, 'Is anything wrong with my husband?' And then I knew."

Sim Webb, the fireman with Casey on his last run, survived the crash and now works as a brick-layer in Memphis.

Casey probably would have been no more legendary a hero than other engineers who have died at the throttle if it weren't for the ballad, the work of Wallace Saunders, an engine-wiper Casey had befriended.

Polygamists Face Arrest

KINGMAN, Ariz., Nov. 11 — UP — Nine men from the once polygamous Arizona community of Short Creek must show cause why their probation should not be revoked at a hearing tentatively set for Nov. 22.

The nine men were reported to among the 27 men who pleaded guilty Nov. 30, 1953, to a charge of conspiracy following a raid by state officers on the Short Creek community.

The Mohave county adult probation officer filed the petition for revocation of their probation Tuesday after an investigation at Short Creek. It was a condition of probation that the men pleading guilty would refrain from living with their plural wives.

The Short Creek raid attracted world-wide attention July 26, 1953, when about 100 Arizona peace officers descended upon the town, which straddles the Arizona - Utah border.

Light Quake Hits California

UKIAH, Calif., Nov. 11 — UP — A sharp earthquake shook parts of Mendocino and Lake counties in northern California Wednesday. First reports indicated there was no serious damage.

The tremor was felt here and at Lakeport about 12:07 p.m. est. Ukiah residents flooded newspaper and police switchboards with phone calls reporting the shake.

Twenty-Three Die In Morocco Flood

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Nov. 11 — UP — Twenty-three persons were dead and at least 3,000 were homeless Wednesday in the wake of torrential rain and floods in the Draa and Sous valleys, officials said.

The Sous valley already has been ravaged by a locust swarm 150 miles long and 12 miles wide which caused nearly $3 million damage. The rains hampered efforts to spray the area with insecticides.

Reports from the Draa valley indicated it was almost entirely under water.

G-Strings Too Taut, Says Judge

LONDON, Nov. 11 — UP — A dignified British judge who confessed he thought a G-string had something to do with music, fined a costume fitter Wednesday for making chorus-girls' panties so tight the girls couldn't can-can.

Judge Edgar Dale blinked as dark-eyed dancer Bunty Colvin waved one of the offending costumes before the court and said: "The G-strings are too small and the pants are so tight we can't can-can in these costumes."

Judge Dale inquired unbelievably: "Is that the whole costume?"

Miss Colvin said it was and added that "it's more what a nude would wear than the sort of things for girls to dance around a stage in."

Paul Raymond, producer of the night club show, "Paris After Dark," was demanding damages from costume designer George Noon for providing costumes his chorus couldn't use.

SKELLYTOWN — (Special) — Rebekah Lodge met recently in the IOOF Hall, with Mrs. Al Shubring in charge.

Those reported ill were Mrs. Clyde Weaver, Donald Ray Carpenter and Leon Vandergriff. Members reported making 7 sick visits during the week. A letter was read from Mrs. Maude Buzzard, president of the Assembly, thanking the lodge for donations and asking the team captains to have drill teams at the association, to be held in Perryton in March.

Freeport Rebekah Lodge asked Skellytown Rebekah and Odd-fellow lodges to help furnish a room at the home by buying calendars this year.

Mrs. Clifton Hanna gave a report on the carnival held recently by the Deborah club.

Those on the refreshment committee next week will be Mrs. R. C. Heaton, Ross Neugin, R. E. McAllister and Clifton Hanna.

Present were Mrs. Everett Crawford, R. E. McAllister, Ross Neugin, George Allen, C. M. Estes, Delmar Sims, John Nichols, Robert Marlar, Clifton Hanna, Al Shubring, Miss Addie Fern Lick; and Mr. Everett Crawford.

Applesauce for Waffles
NEW YORK — UP — Next time you serve waffles try this topping: Combined canned apple sauce with honey, powdered cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg. Serve with cups of hot tea for a late afternoon or evening fortifier.

TO PERFORM — Background music for the Beta Sigma Phi table setting contest Friday will be provided by the above group. They are, left to right standing, Miss Ramona Hudgins, Malcolm Brown, and Miss Carol Paxson, all of Pampa. At the organ is Miss Betty Roles of White Deer. The table showing in the high school fieldhouse will begin at 1:30 p.m.

RUTH MILLET

Sound rule for wives: Never run down or in any way belittle your husband's job.

You may secretly think your husband is overworked, underpaid, the boss doesn't understand him, his talents are being wasted, or he should have received the promotion that went to someone else. But keep those thoughts to yourself.

The wife who goes around low-rating her husband's job or complaining about the demands it makes on his time doesn't do herself or her husband any good.

It doesn't make her husband look very bright to picture him as an overworked, underpaid, unappreciated slave to a job.

It doesn't make him seem very intelligent to let the world know that even though his wife knows everything that's wrong with his job he hasn't the good sense to realize it and do something about it.

And low-rating her husband's job doesn't make the wife look very well, either.

It gives a pretty sad picture of the kind of wife she is — disgruntled by her husband's work, vainly trying to push him ahead, secretly convinced that she knows a lot more than he does and that if she were in his shoes she would be a real go-getter.

So if you have any complaints about your husband's job — keep quiet about them.

No one is going to think more highly of you or of him if you go around finding fault with his job. When you run down a man's work, you take something away from the man himself.

And any wife who whittles her husband down, instead of building him up, makes herself look smaller in the process.

THE ROMANCE OF SPICES BY WEBB

Pepper - the World's Most Popular Spice!

There's a shaker of ground black pepper on every dining table. The United States consumes about 35,000,000 pounds a year. It is so familiar a spice, that many people forget its fresh and pungent flavor. Many of our favorite dishes depend on pepper for their character.

A golden rabbit would be blind without a sprinkling of spicy pepper. Cream soups would be pallid and uninteresting. Scrambled eggs would be tasteless and dull. And chicken pie would not attain its full majesty without pepper's sharpness.

Pepper, grown in India, is an ancient and honorable spice. It has influenced the destinies of men and nations for centuries. The nation that controls the pepper market controls the world!

Columbus discovered America because he was searching for a sea route to India. Vasco da Gama wrested the pepper market from Genoa and Venice for his native Portugal when he sailed around the Cape of Good Hope.

In our own country, history is inseparably linked with the spice. The great fortunes made by the New England traders were largely founded on the spice trade. The pepper tax represented five percent of young America's total income for about fifty years.

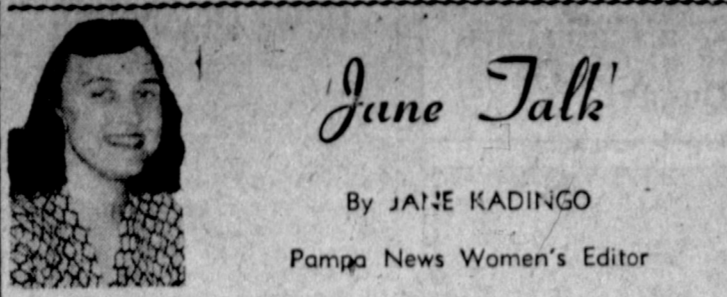

The United States, in its early years, wedged its way into the Dutch monopoly of pepper. Today, we are the world center of the spice trade.

The next time you savor the piquant flavor of fresh black pepper, remember that you are not only using the world's most popular spice, you are using one of the world's oldest, most respected and most romantic seasonings.

Plans for Christmas Made By WD Group

WHITE DEER - (Special) - Mrs. Bert Isbell of Kellytown was hostess to the Venado Blanca Study Club recently. Plans were made for a Christmas dinner with Mmes. Clint Davis, Jo Hy-Smith and Gene Gaston as the committee for food planning. Names were drawn for exchanging Christmas gifts, and the annual Santa's treat night has been set for December 16.

Those attending were Mmes. David Grayson, Horace Ledbetter, Gene Gaston, H. C. Little, Jr., Velma Marx, Jo Hy-Smith, D. V. Biggers, Ben Hand, and Miss Claudia Everly.

THE WORD "CHRISTMAS" brings many things to mind, but one thing is fruit cake. There are many recipes for it and hundreds of variations. I have an aunt who puts in chocolate chips, some make it with candied fruit, some add brandy or rum. Since we can't give them all, Miss Helen Dunlap, Gray County home demonstration agent, has supplied one, along with hints for greater success with them.

Many homemakers prefer to make their Christmas fruit cakes during the month of November. This allows a month or more for mellowing and blending of the flavors, which is all very important to the cake flavor.

"One of the secrets of fruit cake making is the long period of baking in a slow oven. The length of time of baking depends upon the size of the cake, but a general rule is to allow 45 minutes per pound in an oven 250 to 275 degrees. This long period of baking often tends to produce a cake too brown and rather dry. Some prefer to keep a pan of water in the oven during the baking period to help overcome this difficulty. Others get the same results by covering the top of the pan with heavy brown paper and then tying it in place for baking. The paper helps to hold the steam inside the cake and results in a moist cake. This method will not be necessary in all ovens.

Still others prefer to steam their cakes, similar to the way Boston brown bread is made. In case this method is used, the surface should be dried in a slow oven for about 30 minutes. Storage is important in fruit cake making. The cake should be thoroughly cooled after baking, before it is stored. The paper, which lined the pan during baking, should be left on the cake. It is then wrapped in a layer of heavy waxed paper. A stone crock makes the ideal container for storing, but other light containers are good. Some people prefer to freeze them.

"It is often well to supply moisture in storage of the unfrozen cakes. It can be done by placing oranges or apples in the container. Apples are often cut in halves to give added moisture. The fruit needs to be replaced often.

Some people like dark fruit cakes, while others prefer the white ones. The Gray County Home Demonstration women have been demonstrating a dark one to their groups this fall. It seems to be a favorite with some of the women, because they say it is moist after baking. Others might like this recipe:

2 lbs. raisins
1 lb. currants
1 lb. dates
1/2 lb. candied pineapple
1/2 lb. cherries
1/2 lb. blanched almonds
2 cups shelled pecans
1/2 lb. orange peel
1 tsp. nutmeg
1/4 tsp. allspice
4 cups flour
1/4 lb. lemon peel
1/2 lb. citron
1 cup molasses
1 cup sweet pickle juice or berry jelly
1 cup sugar
1-12 cups butter
1/2 tsp. soda
8 eggs
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. cloves

"Cream butter. Add sugar and beat thoroughly. Add the molasses and pickle juice. Add eggs, well beaten. Sift the spices and soda that have been dredged with part of the flour. Line pan with brown paper greased on both sides. Place a pan of water in bottom of oven and bake very slowly 3-1/2 to 4 hours.

"Some of the women have been substituting fruits which their families like in preference to some of the recipe calls for. For example, they have been substituting watermelon

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Two days after the Christmas I was eight years old, a lovely thing happened to me - I found a still-unopened gift. It was a book, and reading it, I came upon one of those sentences that sinks unforgettable into the heart of childhood: "In fact, the fairies had turned Tom into a water baby."

The book, which was "Water Babies," of course, told me this as casually as I had been told that Alice walked through the Looking Glass, and that Pinocchio's wooden fingers snatched the wig of old Geppetto.

Its author, like the writers of all great children's books, knew that Nature suspends her laws for them as she does for saints.

So when I come upon a "juvenile" book that treats miracles as commonplace, I rejoice for childhood. Such a book is the just-published "Beyond the Pawpaw Trees" by a young man named Palmer Brown. It is a lovely book. And I envy the child who will climb up on Anna Lavinia's desert mirage to learn the secret of its musical fountain.

Real fairy tales are rare in this world of ours, so anxious to face "reality." We have, I think, some ideas that they are psychologically wholesome for children. We are scared to encourage wonder in what we believe does not exist - and thus prefer to give them books on the wonders of Boulder Dam and the auto industry.

As a consequence of this refusal to feed children's imagination with imagination, it is starved in many American youngsters.

This, if I may say so, seems psychologically unwholesome. For Susan's imagination, as part of her nature, cannot be denied without making trouble. If it is starved in childhood, it can later become ravenous.

Thus, in the very country that frowns on real fairy tales for youngsters, we have an adolescent population that adores the false kind. Our teen-agers can't gobble up enough of the bad fairy tales told them by second-rate movies, juke boxes and love pulp magazines.

So I'm for magic in the magical age of childhood.

"I find preserves or pie melos preserves for part of the currants or raisins. They find it does make a more moist cake, too."

FELT DUSTER COATS

Perhaps it was the unseasonal warm weather... perhaps it was the drought, whatever the reason, New York manufacturers were stuck with too much merchandise and not enough cash. Our buyer (loaded with cash) flew to New York and consummated one of the greatest coat and suit purchases of his career. He bought the merchandise so low that we are able to offer it, in most instances, at less than actual cost! We honestly believe that these are the greatest values that Pampa has seen in years. BAKES ROLLS — Mrs. W. A. Greene, north of city, puts some of her rolls into the oven for baking. Her recipe, adaptable for bread, sweet rolls or cinnamon rolls, was given to her when she was a bride. For a small family, the dough keeps for several days in the refrigerator. (News photo)

This Is My Dish

Roll Recipe Presented Mrs. Greene As Bride

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Woman's Editor
A roll recipe given to her by her sister when she was married is one of Mrs. W. A. Greene's favorites. A Pampan for 27 years, Mrs. Greene met her husband here and for 23 years has lived on their farm north of Pampa, by the airport.
Mrs. Greene cooks for her husband and four children now, and also has a son in college. Although she says her family keeps her pretty busy, she does belong to the First Baptist Church, Wayside Club and Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association.
From her roll recipe, Mrs. Greene sometimes makes bread, sweet rolls or cinnamon rolls. You can use it for any of those.

ROLL RECIPE

Scald 2 cups milk and cool. Dissolve 1 cake yeast in 1/2 cup lukewarm water to which 1 tsp. sugar has been added. Let set 45 minutes. Cream 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tsp. salt and 1 egg. Add the dissolved yeast and some variety like the red delicious apple. Knead on flour board until right consistency. Put in greased pan

Salad From Apples, Crisp Cranberries

Here's a sparkling and colorful salad that fairly sings of Thanksgiving for it pairs two traditional feast day fruits, fresh spicy red apples and bright, crackling crisp cranberries. The cherry-flavored gelatin picks up the individual flavors and the raw cranberry and apple combination provides excellent texture contrast. For best results select a good eating apple variety like the red delicious from Washington State that's tender and juicy and, though most stores carry pre-packaged cranberries, it's still wise to check for defined color and crispness.

While the salad is chilling in the refrigerator, cover the mold with waxed paper to prevent the top drying. To unmold, loosen the edge with a small knife and quickly immerse to the top of the mold in lukewarm water. Do not use hot water as this may melt the gelatin. Shake the mold gently to loosen gelatin, then place a serving dish over the top, invert and lift off carefully.

FRESH CRANBERRY-APPLE SALAD
1 cup water
1 pkg. cherry flavored gelatin
1 cup orange juice
2 cups raw cranberries
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 cup chopped pecans
2 red Delicious apples
1 cup sugar
Rind of 1 orange
Heat water to boiling and pour over gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Cool, then stir in orange juice and chill until mixture is sirupy. While gelatin is cooling, run cranberries and orange rind thru food chopper, using a fine blade. Cut unpeeled red Delicious apples into small bite-sized pieces and add nut meats and sugar. Combine with cranberry mixture and fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Spoon into 1 1/2 quart mold. Chill until firm in the refrigerator. Unmold and garnish with crisp salad greens. If desired, center of ring may be filled with cottage cheese. Serves 6.

Cook Book Author Claims Good Food Makes Poor Cooks

NEW YORK — UP — We Americans would eat better if we weren't fed so well.
All the good food in this nation has turned us into poor cooks, said Myra Waldo, author of a new global cookbook with recipes from 84 nations.

"American cooking, other than that along the coastal areas, is pretty sad," said Miss Waldo, "but for a wonderful reason. Ours is such a bountiful land ... food is so plentiful we haven't had to develop fancy sauces and complicated recipes."

"It's been a case of too much meat, too little imagination. In Europe, the woman has more time for cooking because she's usually home all day," she explained. "She has more help because it is cheaper. There's one to cook, one to clean, one to wash up."

Miss Waldo, in real life the wife of Roberto Schwartz, an attorney who also writes, rates three countries as tops in cooking. They are France, China and Italy, with Germany a strong contender for top rating.

"England's the worst," she said. "Nothing but Brussels sprouts." The author's "Round the World Cookbook" was compiled with the assistance of Pan - American airways offices in the 84 countries.

"I had to have some help," said she. "I've traveled a lot, but if I tried to visit every one of those countries I'd been 20 years writing the book."
When she wanted to double check whether recipes were typical of the country, she would just visit its consulate in Manhattan. "I took a recipe of curried fish balls to the Burmese consul for checking," she said. "He looked it over and said he'd never heard of it back home. But it sounded so good he was going to try it."

Canning Hints

Apples for your jar:
Baked Apples — Use whole apples, or cut into halves. Wash and core. Make a thin syrup using sugar or a medium honey syrup. Place the apples in a pan and pour the syrup over them until it is about 1-4 inch deep in bottom of pan. Mix 1 tsp. sugar and a small amount of cinnamon or ginger for each apple. Sprinkle over apples. Bake until about half done. Then pack hot apples into hot glass jars. Cover with hot syrup and process 20 minutes in a boiling water bath.

Plain Apples — Wash and core apples. Cut into halves or quarters, or slice, and pare. Drop apples into salt-vinegar water (2 tb. salt), 2 tsp. vinegar to 1 gal. water). Rinse apples and boil in light or medium syrup for 5 min. Put hot fruit into hot glass jars and cover with hot syrup. Process for 20 min. in boiling water bath, or for 10 min. at 5 lbs. in your pressure canner.

Apples for pies — Follow the recipe for plain apples. Use 1 cup of sugar to 4 or 5 cups of water for making syrup.

Applesauce — Wash and drain apples. Remove stem and blossom ends. Slice. Cook until soft, then press through sieve or food mill to remove skin and seed. Sweeten sauce to suit your taste and reheat to boiling. Pour the boiling hot applesauce into hot glass jars and stir to remove air bubbles. Process 20 min. in boiling water bath.

Apple Butter — (like Grandma used to make)

1 peck apples (12 lb.)
1 gal. sweet cider
6 cups sugar
1 lb. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
Wash, drain and slice apples. Cook them in cider until soft, then press through sieve or food mill. Boil until thick enough to heap in a spoon. Add sugar and spices. Boil until thick, then pour hot apple butter into hot glass jars. Process for 10 minutes in a boiling water bath.

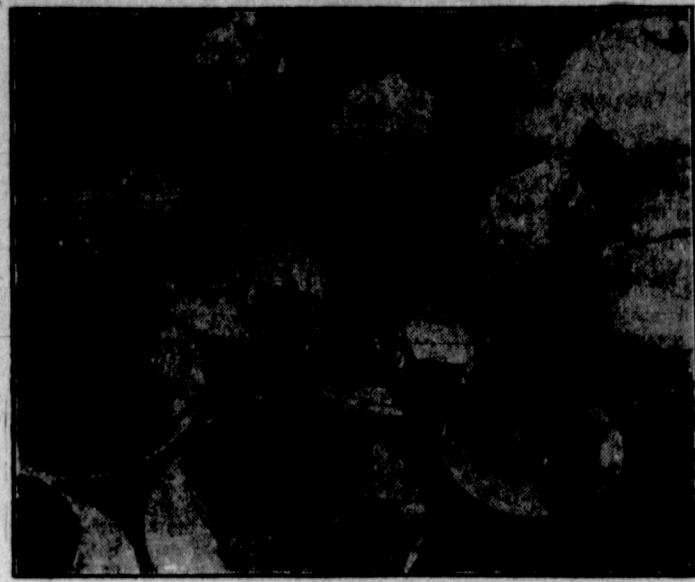

Apple Preserves — 2 lbs. prepared apples
1 3/4 lb. sugar
1 tb. crushed ginger root or mixed spices

Wash, core and pare apples. Cut as desired and weigh them. Add sugar to 2 1/2 cups water. Boil 3 min. Allow to cool, then add apples and boil gently until clear. Pack apples into hot glass jar. Add ginger or spices (tied in bag) to syrup. Boil almost to jelling point and pour the hot syrup over apples. Seal jar at once.

Apple Jelly — Using hard, tart-ripe fruit, wash and discard stems and blossom ends. Slice without removing core or peel. Add water to barely cover and cook until soft. Then drain slowly through jelly bag or several layers of cheesecloth. Measure juice. Heat to boiling and add 3-4 cup sugar for each cup of juice. Stir until sugar dissolves, then boil rapidly until jelling point is reached. Skim and pour into hot jelly glasses to within 1/4 inch of the top. Seal with a thin layer of paraffin when the jelly has set, and cork with tin lid.

Apple Chutney — 8 cups chopped apples
1 cup chopped onions
1 clove garlic
1 sweet red peppers
4 cups brown sugar
4 cups vinegar
2 lbs. seeded raisins
2 pods hot pepper
2 tsp. salt
2 tb. white mustard seed
2 tb. black mustard seed
2 tb. ground ginger
2 tsp. allspice
Wash, core and pare apples. Chop them up and measure. Peel onions and garlic. Remove seed from peppers. Chop vegetables. Mix all ingredients and boil until thick. Pour boiling hot into hot glass jar. Seal at once.

Coffee-Rum Parfait — a Luxurious And Pretty Dessert

If you think of ices and ice cream as dating from the invention of the refrigerator, you have a surprise in store for you. In the 13th Century, Marco Polo told of seeing Mongolian princes eating great dishes of flavored, colored ice when he returned to Venice from the fairy-tale court of Kublai Khan. It's certain, though, that the tabled ices were not for ordinary people, and even Kublai Khan's court never had anything as good as Coffee-Rum Parfait. After all, the poor things didn't even have coffee!
Now that ice cream and coffee are staples of everyday diet, we can airily eat our Coffee-Rum Parfait without caring that such a dish would once have been worth a prince's ransom. For that we must thank progress in general and the refrigerator, dairy and coffee industries in particular. Send your parfait glasses to the table with plenty of steaming coffee for company.

Coffee Ice Cream
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 cup strong hot coffee
1 cup whipping cream
Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add coffee, and cook over hot water 20 minutes, stirring constantly until thickened, then stirring occasionally. Cool. Whip cream and fold in. Pour into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Set control for fast freezing. Freeze until firm, stirring after first half hour and again after 1 hour. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Coffee-Rum Parfait
Cover 1/2 cup seedless raisins with boiling water. Simmer 10 minutes and drain. Put through food chopper, using fine knife, or press through a food mill or sieve. Add 2 teaspoons rum flavoring. When coffee ice cream is stirred the second time, stir in raisin mixture. Freeze until firm. Serve in parfait glasses, alternating ice cream and whipping cream.

Prepare Dinner Now For Thanksgiving

Now is not too early to start preparing your Thanksgiving dinner, many home freezer owners will tell you.

The advantages of the early start are that you can select the various items when they are at the peak of quality and at seasonally low prices, and you can prepare the meal in easy stages rather than in one exhausting marathon. Pre-cooked, partly cooked and ready-to-cook foods all can be stored safely and satisfactorily for weeks at zero temperature, in a home freezer.

To show what a complete Thanksgiving feast might be prepared ahead of time and frozen, the home economics institute of Deepfreeze Home Appliances has planned the following meal for the holiday — everything stored in the home freezer:

Fruit and vegetable juices, cranberry salad, roast turkey, giblet gravy, scalloped sweet potatoes, buttered peas, mashed rutabagas, parker house rolls, butter, mince pie and assorted holiday confections.

Since the turkey, or other holiday fowl, is the main expense as well as the main dish, it is the most important item on which to watch prices, buy at lowest cost and freeze.
Turkey or other poultry may be frozen without cooking if it may be roasted before freezing to reduce preparation time on the day of the big meal. For best results if the turkey is to be roasted in advance, Deepfreeze home economists recommend only partial roasting before freezing.

They advise heating the bird until it reaches 160 degrees according to a meat thermometer and then freezing it. If the turkey is wrapped in freezer foil, the foil may be left on for completion of the roasting before serving. The foil is loosened and the turkey heated until it reaches 190 degrees.

'Hasty Chili' Goes Well On Saturdays

Chili reaches high on the list of favorite foods for casual meals. Your family will love big bowls of hot, spicy chili after a Saturday of chores. Or when you've invited friends over for supper after the football game, chili, chock-full of ground beef, is so right for casual entertaining.

Hasty Chili will suit you, too, says Reba Staggs, home economist. It's so easy and quick to prepare on a busy Saturday.

HASTY CHILI
1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2 small onions, chopped
1 No. 2 1/2 can tomatoes
1 No. 303 can kidney beans
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
3/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Brown the beef slowly in lard or drippings. Add onions, tomatoes, beans and seasonings. Cook slowly for 1 hour. Water may be added if desired and the seasonings can be adjusted to taste. Serves 6.

Maple Sauce for Desserts
NEW YORK — UP — Sic chopped nuts into 1 cup of maple-blenched syrup and chill well for a spur-of-the-moment sauce to top ice cream, cake or pudding.

News Of Apples

Crisp and crunchy is an appealing salad made of fresh, spicy red Delicious apples and crisp bacon bits and it's one of the easiest of all salads to prepare. Simply core and dice two unpeeled red apples, sprinkle with one cup crumbled fried bacon and one-half cup sliced celery. Toss with one-quarter cup mayonnaise and serve on crisp salad greens.

It is estimated that there are more than three and a half million apple trees in the state of Washington, the world's largest apple growing area. This year these trees produced approximately 20 million boxes of apples for fresh fruit eating.

Good eating and lots of nourishment in a salad that teams golden carrots and bright red apples, topped with a peanut flavored dressing. There's practically no preparation time involved for you merely combine one-half cup shredded carrots with one-half cup unpeeled red Delicious apple, diced, one teaspoon lemon juice and two tablespoons chopped peanuts. Toss

Carrots & Onions—Yummy!
NEW YORK — UP — The economical carrot, a favorite in most families, takes on new taste appeal when prepared with onions. Here's how: Slice 1/4 cup of chopped onion in 1/4 cup of margarine or butter in a saucepan. Add 2 cups of thinly sliced carrots, 1/2 teaspoon of salt, and a dash of ground black pepper. Cover tightly. Cook slowly until tender, or about 15 minutes. Place in a serving dish and garnish with 1 tablespoon of finely chopped fresh parsley. Yield, 4 servings.

Washington State apple growers call the Rome Beauty the "King of the Bakers" because this apple holds its superb flavor and shape throughout the baking period. As a treat for the youngsters, fill the centers of the cored apples with broken bits of peppermint stick candy.

Fresh apples are a basic food in reducing diets because the fruit is low in fats, low in calories yet supplies the important protective minerals and vitamins.

Pork Blade Steaks Named 'Wise Buy'

Picture pork blade steaks, juicy and brown. There's plenty of good eating there. They're a boon for a budget, too.

Maximum flavor and tenderness of pork blade steaks are achieved by braising, states Reba Staggs, well-known home economist. Braise the steaks by browning them slowly in a small amount of lard or drippings. Then add a small amount of water, cover the pan tightly and simmer for 45 minutes or until the steaks are tender. A good brown pork gravy can be prepared by thickening the liquid in the pan.

Apples are a natural choice to serve with pork. Try serving glazed apple rings with pork blade steaks. The rings make colorful accompaniments on the serving platter as well as complementing the flavor of the pork.

Senator Kerr Makes Gift To Baptist U.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 11 (UP)—Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.) has given Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee $500,000 the State Baptist Foundation announced Wednesday.

Dr. Augie Henry, executive secretary - treasurer of the foundation, announced the gift at the church's 49th annual state general convention as Baptists launched a long-range endowment program for their institutions in Oklahoma.

Henry said Kerr, a millionaire

oliman, pledged $200,000 in yearly payments of $40,000 for the next five years, for the OBU endowment program.

Kerr also gave $200,000 toward construction of a $400,000 women's dormitory at OBU, Henry said.

Dr. T. B. Lackey, executive secretary of the State Baptist General Convention, recommended the convention borrow $350,000 for the dormitory, to be named the Mrs. W. S. Kerr memorial dormitory.

Kerr was elected to a second term in the Nov. 2 election. Before running for the Senate he served one term as governor.

The real test of a man's principles in the sports-writing business usually comes to the front when he finds his team is partial to using that old dodge, the faked injury, to help them win a ball game.

Of course it's a cinch when the mean old opponent uses it. The wounded sports writer cries "low blow" at the risk of a strained lung and makes a plea for the sympathy of the fans.

It all depends upon your point of view, I suppose.

The fact that coaches and/or players will use the injury routine either in the second quarter or at the end of the ball game.

And watch it in the future. The rule is that after a team has had its maximum number of time out periods, they are not permitted to stop the clock unless a player is injured. The clock is stopped in such instances while the injured player is removed from the field.

For its true purpose, the rule is sound. Certainly you wouldn't want to force a team to continue playing with a genuine casualty. But so much abuse of the rule has been endured that it is high time the law was stricken from the books and something substituted for it.

Soccer Game Scheduled Friday Night

An exhibition soccer match will be played Friday night at Harvester Park with top performers from Pampa High School's physical education classes competing.

Wayne Frizzell, director of Physical Education said the exhibition match, which will close out soccer season for the physical education classes, will be free to the public.

Soccer, played with 11-man teams, has been a major sport in Pampa P.E. classes for the last three years, and some of the performers will be three-year veterans of the sport.

Pampa has picked two 13-man teams for the contest. They will be designated Red and White teams.

Squad lists are as follows:
Red Team
1. Bobby Nelsons
2. Gene Parr
3. William Brown
4. Jim Coffey
5. Lloyd Moxley
6. Billy Higdon
7. Eddie Hughes
8. Harold Studebaker
9. Kenneth Lyoa
10. Earl Evans
11. Allen McPherson
12. Larry Hendricks
13. Lloyd Rayman

White Team
1. Charley Matson
2. James Evans
3. Herman Giese
4. Wesley Cranford
5. Vernon Goodwin
6. David James
7. Raul Ramirez
8. Burl Brown
9. Butch Reynolds
10. Herman Sinner
11. Charley Scott
12. Jimmy Curtis
13. Leland Dorman

McLean Set For Pirates

The long-awaited battle between McLean and Lefors comes off tomorrow night in McLean where the jacked house will see the two District 1-A powers battle for the "Championship" in one of Texas' toughest Class A leagues.

McLean, the favorite, on the basis of a more potent offense, will be remembering the 12-7 defeat they suffered at the hands of Lefors last year when the two teams wound up third and fourth in the district race.

McLean will be powered by last year's all-district Ricky Mantooth and a top scoring halfback named James Smith.

Up front, the Tigers have Arthur Vineyard and James Jolly, both all-district guards lead 15 returning lettermen who have made things mighty rough for McLean opponents through the season.

Lefors has lettermen back this year, and a forward wall that has yielded only four touchdowns all season long presents a major problem for the Tigers.

Only three teams have scored on the Pirates this year Shamrock got 7 points in a 13-7 defeat, Memphis got 7 while losing 27 to 7 and White Deer got 12 in last week's 26-12 victory by the Pirates who were apparently eyeing this big one tomorrow night.

The season records of the two clubs is as follows:

MCLEAN
Shamrock	6
Lockney	6
Wheeler	7
Gruver	0
Panhandle	11
Canadian	0
White Deer	7
Clarendon	28
Dalhart	0
Stinnert	0
Shamrock	7
Memphis	7
Gruver (forfeit)	0
White Deer	0

Elsewhere in District 1-A tonight Canadian is host to Clarendon in a battle to decide third place honors, Gruver plays at White Deer and Memphis is at Panhandle.

New Mexico Back Tops In Punting

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—UP—New Mexico fullback A. L. Terpening isn't letting himself be influenced by graphs which show the nation's major-college punting is dropping to an abnormally low point.

He's minding his own business and booting the ball at a better average than anyone has had in November in four years.

The stocky senior kicked only once against Montana last Saturday, but he kicked 54 yards, and now his average for 30 punts is 43.3 yards. NCAA statistics showed Thursday. The last time anyone was up to the 45-yard level this late in the season was in 1950, when Zack Jordan of Colorado set the all-time record of 48.2 yards a try.

Other leading kickers are doing as well as ever too, with Ted Ronda of Kansas averaging 43.7, Tennessee's Bob Brangle 42.6, and Colorado's Carroll Hardy 42.4. But the national average for all kickers is 34.9, one of the lowest recorded.

In other departments, the top men are Arizona's Art Luppino in scoring with 123 points, California's Jim Hanifan in pass receiving with 26 caught, Iowa's Earl Smith in punt returns with 254 yards, Luppino in kickoff runbacks with 481 yards, and Miami of Florida's Whitey Rouverie in interceptions with six.

Luppino marked time as the scoring leader, being forced out of the Texas Tech games by injury in the first half. The remarkable total he accumulated in his first six games, however, is still almost twice that of the next man, Denver's Rusty Fairly who has 67 points.

Luppino has 18 touchdowns and 15 conversions, Fairly 9 and 13.

The pack is close together on UCLA's heels, though, Penn State's Lenny Moore has 66 points (11 touchdowns), and UCLA's Bob Davenport, Army's Tom Bell, Cincinnati's Joe Miller and Mississippi's Allen Muirhead all have 60 points on ten touchdowns. Oklahoma's Buddy Leake has 58 with seven touchdowns and 16 extra points.

In the punt-return category, the best average per try belongs to UCLA's Sam Brown, 28.1 for nine returns totaling 253 yards.

Five players have intercepted five passes to tie for second place behind Rouverie. Colorado A&M's Gary Glick has returned his five 109 yards, for a fancy 21.8-yard average. The others are Washington State's Bob Iverson, Notre Dame's Ralph Guglielmi, Duke's Sonny Jurgensen and Fairly.

Major Leagues Get Draft List; Plum Picking Starts

By MILTON RICHMAN
NEW YORK, Nov. 11—UP—The annual baseball draft list was issued Thursday to all major league clubs, who will try to separate the "plums," if any, from the many "lemons" within the next 11 days.

Bargain-minded big league officials will have until Nov. 22 to make up their minds. On that date, more than 50 minor league players will become subject to major league draft at prices ranging from $5,000 for an open class.

Although the majors rarely dip lower than triple-A to select a player, they can draft ex-pitcher Jim Waugh of the double-A New Orleans club this year or even Bobo Holoman, who hurtled a no-hitter for the St. Louis Browns in 1953, from the Augusta, Ga., club of the Class A Sally League.

Most major league clubs are eager to draft at least one player since they know they can get their money back for the player if he fails to make good by selling him to the same club they buy him from.

Many ex-major leaguers are available in this year's draft which will be held in New York. Among the more familiar names are the pitchers Saul Rogovin and Ken Ruffalo of Havana, each of whom can be had for $10,000; first baseman Luke Easter and catcher Joe Ginzburg of Indianapolis; outfielder Gene Hermanski of Oakland; infielder Mel Hoderlein of Buffalo; pitchers Earl Mosser and John Rutherford of St. Paul, and infielder Harry Hanebrink of Topeka.

Major league officials realize that the chances of making a really outstanding player in the draft are slim.

"If a player is outstanding, the club that owns him will make sure that his name never appears on the draft list," says General Manager Frank Lane of the White Sox.

Yet the majors keep drafting in the long-shot chance that they'll come up with one of those rare blue-moon wonders.

Of the 18 players selected in last year's draft, only one won a regular job. He was second baseman Forrest (Spook) Jacobs, drafted by the Athletics from Montreal. Even so, he hit only .268.

LEFORS GRIDDERS READY — Undefeated Lefors High School football team is pictured above as they were ready to start a brand new football season in September. Today, two months later, the Pirates stand unbeaten in eight contests and are ready to go into the Tiger den tomorrow night to face McLean's powerhouse. Lefors won last year 12 to 7. (News Photo)

OUT FOR REVENGE — McLean's Tigers, after eight straight victories tomorrow night, brace for an invasion of Lefors Pirates who are out to upset the "experts" and upset McLean too. Both squads have had perfect seasons this year, and the results tomorrow night will decide the championship of District 1-A won last year by Memphis. Last year McLean finished third, Lefors was fourth. (News Photo)

Andrews, Varona STRANGE SWC FINISH TV Rematch Seen

CHICAGO, Nov. 11—UP—A rematch of Al Andrews and Chico Varona on a television program was in the cards for the International Boxing Club Thursday after Andrews' unconvincing win over the Cuban welterweight in a non-division stadium bout Wednesday night.

Andrews won by nearly the narrowest margin possible, a three-point advantage on the card of Referee Frank Gilmer and two points on Judge Ed Hintz' card. Judge Lou Capparelli had the brawl even.

Andrews weighed 156 1-2 compared to 152 for Varona, and the added poundage gave him a stronger finish to pile up the points to win.

"I thought we won," Varona's manager, Bobby Gleason, said. "My boy won seven of the 10 rounds."

SMU, Arkansas Climax Season

By ED FITZ
DALLAS, Nov. 11—UP—Alert, able Arkansas and sometimes superb Southern Methodist, a couple of years ago a second-division choice, write a "strange as it seems" climax to the Southwest Conference championship story at Fayetteville.

It's a weird situation even in the topsy-turvy Southwest in that the game definitely is a title battle for Arkansas, but only the first of three for Southern Methodist in case it can hogtie the undefeated Razorbacks in what is the latter club's final conference game.

Coach Bowden Wyatt's wonder team, a pre-season near-unanimous choice for the loop cellar, has surged to giddy heights on seven straight victories and the spoils in the form of the championship and a Cotton Bowl berth would ride with victory of a tie.

Other Obstacles for SMU
SMU, on the other hand, could get a title and bowl game in its eye by upsetting the nation's No. 4 team only to be smitten in one or both of its remaining loop games against Baylor and Texas Christian and see the spoils revert to Arkansas.

While Arkansas' supposedly "cellar ball club is battling for the championship with an SMU team that was relegated to fourth place by the wisecracks, Texas and Rice—the teams picked to run one-two—will be picking up the pieces of their shattered dreams against TCU and Texas A&M.

Baylor, the only other club with an outside chance to share the crown, sits idly by and hopes for the best as being an SMU victory at Fayetteville. In that case, Baylor could tie Arkansas for the title by beating SMU and Rice, but it would have to turn to Miami or New Orleans for any bowl hopes.

The SMU-Arkansas showdown pits an Arkansas club with a lousy statistical background against an SMU outfit that leads the conference on both offense and defense.

Yet, adding to the strange circumstances surrounding this sold-out game, Arkansas will be the favorite for only the third time in eight starts this season. The Razorbacks, who were rated an edge,

Red Marksmen Highly Rated
CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 10—UP—Otto Horber, former world champion marksman from Switzerland and director of the 26th world championships which get underway here Nov. 15, said Tuesday the Russian team is the best he has seen in 25 years.

Always Pushed Around
Arkansas gets pushed around by all its opponents, yet has come up with the "clutch" plays on both defense and offense with seemingly unshakable poise after cashing in on its foes' errors.

SMU, on the other hand, shoved Georgia Tech all over the field but lost 19 to 7 and looked positively brilliant in smothering Rice and Missouri and in rolling up a two-touchdown lead over Texas. Then, the club has had some about-face performances similar to the last half of the Texas game which ended in a 13 to 13 tie and last week's 4-to-3 squeak past the Texas Aggies.

It'll take a return to brilliancy on the part of SMU to best off to its state's motto—"Land of Opportunity."

DeMarco Readies for Bout
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10—UP—Paddy DeMarco, lightweight champion who meets former titleholder Jimmy Carter in a championship bout here Nov. 17, worked three spirited rounds at his training quarters Tuesday DeMarco, who concentrated on body punches in the first two rounds, knocked spartan Jimmy Walker down in the final round with a left hook and right cross.

Odessa's Broncs Primed For Harvester Invasion

ODESSA — (Special) — Still hopeful of a last-minute chance for a co-championship of District 1-AAAA, Odessa's Bronchos Wednesday night were pronounced in top physical condition for their Saturday afternoon Broncho Stadium engagement with Pampa's Harvesters.

Cooper Robbins version of the double-wing T and have been equally adept at striking through the middle of skirting the flanks. Primarily a passing team last year, Odessa this season has used the aerial route only to keep the defense off balance.

Odessa goes into Saturday's game with a 4-3 record for the season and a 3-1 mark in district play. The Bron's lost to Port Arthur, 13-12; Highland Park, 14-0 and Abilene, 21-7. They defeated Waco, 12-0; Lubbock, 19-7; Amarillo 31-13 and Borger 39-7.

Probable offensive starters for Odessa Saturday will have Reed (175) and Ed Barham (173), ends; Hitt (210) and Melvin McLendon (185) tackles; King (185) and Tommy Reed (165), guards; Carol Dickson (187) center; Tyler (165), quarterback; Scott (184), left half; Taylor (170), right half and White (180), fullback.

Standouts in the front line include defensive end Russell Rumbaugh, a junior who is being compared with Dale Sherrod, last year's great defensive linebacker; double-duty tackle Don Hitt, a 120-pound junior; Billy King, a crisp-blocking senior offensive guard and Monte Reed, a pass-snagging senior end.

Court To Rule On Boxing

Anti-Trust Law Apply To Ring?
WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 —UP—The Supreme Court is expected to hand down a decision later in this term on whether or not boxing is subject to the federal anti-trust laws.

The court heard arguments Wednesday from both sides on the government's appeal of the lower courts' dismissal of its monopoly case against three corporations and two individuals engaged in professional big-time boxing. The lower courts, in tossing out the case, based the action on the recent Supreme Court decision that professional baseball is not a business in interstate commerce and therefore is not subject to the federal anti-trust statutes.

MARVEL HAS GOOD WEEK

'Experts' Agree On 20 Contests
The Pampa News trio of grid-iron experts goes into its home stretch this week with a new slate of 20 ball games to pick. The Masked Marvel last week, Air Force Recruiting Sergeant Bill Neal beat one News expert and tied the other in one of the best weeks of predicting turned in to date.

Neal and Warren Hasse both were correct on 24 games last week. Four were missed outright and two games ended in ties. Sports Editor Buck Francis, who had the handicap of picking a week ahead of time, was correct in 22 cases, missing six and having two ties.

Besides the two tie games, Colorado and Missouri and Alabama-Tulane, the experts were all wrong with a pick of Hardin-Simmons over Texas Western and Florida over Georgia.

This week finds the experts unanimous in their selections in 20 of the football games. The 10 games in which one differs with the other two find the consensus picking: Odessa over Pampa; Alabama over Georgia Tech; Arkansas over SMU; Auburn over Georgia; Tennessee over Florida; Northwestern over Indiana; Minnesota over Iowa; LSU over Mississippi State; Michigan over Michigan State and TCU over Texas.

Maglie Sees 15 Victories Next Season

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Nov. 11 —UP—Leo Durocher can stop worrying about Sal Maglie's aching back. The swarthy right-hander of the world champion New York Giants entertains no thoughts of retirement and he's confident of a 15-victory season in 1955.

Blaik To Miss Game With Penn

WEST POINT, N.Y., Nov. 11 —UP—For the first time since he became a head coach, Coach Earl (Red) Blaik of Army will miss one of his team's games this Saturday when Army clashes with Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Browns, Lions May Decide Pro League Championship

By UNITED PRESS
The National Football League's division races might not be decided this year until the Detroit Lions and Cleveland Browns renew their bitter rivalry in the campaign's final regular season game Dec. 19.

The coach was extremely pessimistic over his team's chances in Odessa Saturday. "I think Odessa is the second best ball club in the district," he said. "They held Abilene to a 27-21 victory, and had a lot of touchdowns in the game," he added.

Fishing Drives Groucho In Seine

The poor fish looking for a few new lines in the river Seine is that well known angle-angler, Groucho Marx. "Don't founder around," he says. "Cast your eyes on the new De Soto for '55. You'll be reely glad you did." Coming to your De Soto dealer's November 17. Go see it!

France Signs Trade Treaty With Russia

PARIS, Nov. 11 — UP — France Wednesday signed a new commercial treaty with Russia, designed to increase trade between the two countries. The agreement provides for some $154 million worth of trade in ships, railway equipment, caviar and other items between Russia and France up to the end of 1955. French and Soviet representatives signed the trade pact at the Quai d'Orsay. France will export some 28 billion francs worth of ships, railway equipment, metal products and textiles to Russia. In exchange, Russia will export to France such products as caviar, furs, canned crab and salmon in the value of some 28 billion francs (80 million). The 18-month agreement replaces a previous pact that expired last July. The original agreement involved trade worth about $34,285,715.

Marine-Navy Dissension Told

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 — UP — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) has asked Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson to check into "rumors" that Navy admirals are trying to "gain control" over the Marine Corps. In a letter to Wilson, Mansfield asked for "proper assurances immediately" from the defense secretary that the laws governing the Marine Corps and its commandant "will be adhered to." Mansfield said he is "concerned by the rumors and press reports" to the effect that "certain high-ranking officials" in the Navy want to place the Marine Corps commandant under the command of the chief of naval operations. Mansfield said the law "clearly defined the status of the commandant of the Marine Corps as a co-equal participant in the joint chiefs of staff in all matters of direct concern to the Marine Corps."

Council Requests More Patrolmen

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 — UP — The Highway Safety Council of Texas Tuesday urged the 1955 Legislature to increase the number of Texas highway patrolmen and pay them more money. Executive Secretary G. C. Morris announced the council's legislative program, which also included: Amending the automobile inspection law to add the steering mechanism to the inspected items; requiring all trucks to use "mud flaps"; strengthening administration of the driver's licensing law, and adding 15 more hearing officers to the driver's license division.

Auto Air Conditioner To Sell For $300

DALLAS, Nov. 11 — UP — President Bert J. Mitchell of the Frigikar Corp. said Wednesday his company had developed an air conditioner for autos that sells for about $300 plus installation. Mitchell said the new unit could be installed cheaply and easily transferred from one car to another. The firm has made a more expensive air conditioner, the Frigikar, since 1949, and also manufactures the Frigikab for trucks.

Weslaco Girl TFFB Queen

GALVESTON, Nov. 11 — UP — Jeannette Waters, 17-year-old high school senior from Weslaco, Monday night was chosen queen of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation. Miss Waters, a brunette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Newell Waters. The runner-up among the 13 contestants was Verma Lee Stephens, 19, of Abernathy. She is a music major at Texas Tech and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Stephens. Miss Waters won a $500 trip to the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in New York next month, at which she will compete in the national farm bureau queen contest. The other girls each will receive a week's vacation at a Mineral Wells resort hotel.

Steel Production At New High

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 — UP — Steelmaking operations this week are scheduled at 78 per cent — a new high for the year — and rising production "threatens to knock all iron Age declared Wednesday. "Spurring more than 26 per cent in less than three months, the climbing steel output already has relegated many forecasts to the ash heap," the national metal-working weekly said. "And there still is no sign it has reached its peak." This week's rate, up two points from last week, is the highest since mid-December of 1953.

Nervous Bandit Takes $25,000

MIAMI BEACH, Nov. 10 — UP — A nervous bandit forced the manager of the Chase Federal Savings and Loan Association to go from window to window collecting money Wednesday and escaped with $25,158 in cash. Manager Robert Swick, who said the loss was insured, was in his office shortly before 10 a.m. when the unmasked white man walked in and took a seat. The bandit shoved a long, printed note at Swick and told him: "Don't look up. Keep your eyes down and read the note. This is a stickup." Then the thief reached into a paper sack he carried and drew a nickel-plated automatic. He instructed Swick to march past Joseph H. Achord and wife; Lot 11, Blk. 5, Lavender Add.
