'Exhibition season' ends in Iowa

Demos make first choice

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Democrats begin the process of picking their presidential candidate today with former Vice President Walter F. Mondale looking for victory in Iowa's precinct caucuses — the start of the long trail to the nomination this summer in San Francisco.

The candidates have all but wrapped up campaigning in the longest, most expensive "exhibition season" yet, as eight Democratic men fight for the right to challenge President Reagan in the fall elections.

Today, as the Rev. Jesse Jackson says, the "regular season" begins.

Mondale, leading in the polls both here and in New Hampshire where the first primary will be held next week, stopped short of claiming victory.

"I think we are doing well in Iowa,"

he told reporters in Jacksonville, Fla. "Iowans will now decide. I'm content we've done everything we could to deal with the issues."

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, locked in a tight race for the No. 2 spot behind Mondale, made one last campaign swing here Sunday before heading for New England.

Mondale was campaigning in Illinois today, before flying back tonight for what his campaign has planned as a victory celebration. Sens. Gary Hart of Colorado and Alan Cranston of California, former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern and former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew were scheduled to do a little last-minute campaigning and telephoning around the state today.

Jackson and South Carolina Sen. Ernest F. Hollings made little effort here, preferring to concentrate on New Hampshire and its Feb. 28 primary.

Perhaps 100,000 Iowa Democrats will gather in living rooms and schools across the state to be the first Americans to officially pass judgment on the eight hopefuls. The weather forecast was for a moderately chilly night with no new snow.

A poll by the Des Moines Register found Democrats likely to go to the caucuses giving Mondale 44 percent of their votes, far more than any other candidate.

That lead focused much of the interest in Iowa on the No. 2 spot behind Mondale, where the poll said the race is very tight.

Glenn, long thought to be Mondale's prime challenger, has been slipping somewhat in the poll results.

Glenn had 11 percent in the poll, compared to 17 percent for Cranston and 14 percent for Hart. McGovern was at 7 percent and Jackson at 4 percent. Hollings and Askew did not show in the survey conducted by telephone Feb. 12-16.

Since the poll results are based on interviews with 66 Democrats who said they will definitely go to the caucuses, the sample error margin is plus or minus 12 percentage points.

"That's a little thin. I think it leaves a little bit to be desired," Glenn told reporters Sunday.

The Democratic precinct caucuses are the first step in Iowa's complicated caucus-convention system that will eventually pick 58 of the 3,933 delegates scheduled to attend the national convention in San Francisco in July.

Glenn 'thumbs up' despite poor polls

Reagan moves to grab share of headlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is irritating Democrats by making a political journey to Iowa in time to split the headlines with former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, the heavy favorite in tonight's precinct caucus voting.

As Iowans prepare to attend the caucuses that will provide the first public test of the eight major Democratic presidential candidates, Reagan will be the star attraction for thousands of Republicans at pre-caucus rallies in Waterloo and Des Moines.

It was perhaps symbolic that Reagan and his political strategists chose Iowa to demonstrate that even though he's an incumbent with high popularity in the polls, he plans to campaign in 1984.

In 1980, Reagan spent little time campaigning in Iowa and lost the precinct caucuses to George Bush, now vice president. The vote, 30 percent to 33 percent, surprised Reagan and led to a change of campaign tactics.

"We want Republicans around the country to understand that this can be a tight election," Reagan's campaign press secretary Jim Lake said shortly after the visit was announced. "We don't want our folks to think that Ronald Reagan thinks he can sit back in the White House and not campaign."

The trip was "political — start to finish," in the words of presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. That means the Reagan-Bush '84 committee will pick up the tab, not the taxpayers. John Buckley, a committee spokesman, said he had no estimate of the cost.

The nine-hour tour today was Reagan's first, and perhaps only, visit to a state engrossed in a political contest.

Senate expected to re-establish death penalty for some crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to re-establish the death penalty for espionage and certain other federal crimes is heading toward a final Senate vote, with proponents and opponents predicting passage by a comfortable margin.

The Senate will complete work on the long-debated death penalty measure this week, but will first pause to honor George Washington on the national holiday set aside to honor the first president's birth.

Although the House doesn't end its 10-day recess until Tuesday, the Senate was scheduled to return today for a traditional reading of Washington's farewell address to Congress. This year, freshman Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., will deliver the 30-minute speech.

Passage of the death-penalty legislation appeared assured when the Senate on Feb. 9 broke a threatened liberal filibuster against it on a 65-26 vote.

That vote limited further debate on the measure to a maximum of 100 hours, but it seems unlikely the full allowable time will be used.

The legislation is designed to comply with Supreme Court rulings establishing constitutional standards for use of capital punishment.

It authorizes the death penalty for treason, espionage, homicide on federal property and, under certain circumstances, attempts on the life of the president.

It also could be imposed in cases where death results from explosives, murder of foreign officials, aircraft piracy and kidnapping.

Later in the week, the Senate may take up legislation extending for six years a ban on exporting oil from Alaska's North Slope. It was imposed as part of the agreement for building the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, but many in Alaska want at least a partial lifting of the prohibition. Many senators, however, hold that the United States should not export any of its limited domestic oil production.

On Wednesday, the House is expected to vote to establish a Select Committee on Hunger that would study the problems of hunger and malnutrition in the United States as well as worldwide. The panel would also review issues addressed by the recent Presidential Commission on World Hunger.

Both chambers this week will continue to monitor the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon ordered by President Reagan, but the foreign policy spotlight may shift to Central America, at least temporarily, as House and Senate committees review the administration's military and economic aid package for El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua.

In committee action, the Senate Judiciary Committee will hold a hearing Tuesday on efforts to pass a new Equal Rights Amendment.

Injunction signed

Baptist Temple takes step toward appeal

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

The Pampa Baptist Temple has taken the first step necessary to appeal District Judge Don Cain's ruling that orders the church to either license or close its day care center, according to the state official who obtained the court order.

Cain signed a permanent injunction against the unlicensed church-operated day care center on Feb. 8. The same day, the defendants asked for "findings of fact and conclusions of law," asking the judge to explain his ruling and put it down in writing.

C. Ed Davis, special assistant attorney general working to force the church to comply with state licensing, said the defendants' motion is the first legal step in making their expected appeal.

Davis said he will draft the ruling and cite the appropriate laws for Judge Cain's approval.

"I hope to have the findings to Judge Cain in 15 to 20 days," Davis said last week.

The Rev. Jerry West has said the Temple will appeal the licensing issue all the way to the Supreme Court, if necessary.

"We will not close," West said in defiance of the injunction Cain granted Jan. 4.

The Rev. West and his lawyer, Dan Loomis of Cleveland, were scheduled to meet with Davis to discuss the case on Thursday. But Loomis reported he was ill and canceled the meeting.

Davis said he expects the church's formal appeal will be filed within 45 to 90 days.

The state's lawyer said he believes would rule on the expected appeal by late spring or early summer this year.

Davis has said he will ask Judge Cain to refuse to lift the injunction during any appeals of the order. However, he also said he hopes to avoid a confrontation with the church over its refusal to license the day care center.

Judge Cain ruled in January that the state has a "compelling interest" in licensing day care centers for children's protection, and he rejected the Temple's claim that licensing violates its religious freedom.

Lefors child killed in traffic accident

Services for a 7-year-old Lefors girl killed in a traffic accident Saturday in Matador are pending with Campbell Funeral Directors at Spur.

Laci Renee McCloy, daughter of Monte and Nan McCloy of Lefors, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident at the intersection of U.S. 62 and Texas 70 in Matador, according to investigating officers.

The girl and her two brothers, Matthew Bond McCloy, 9, and Clint McCloy, 2, were riding in a pickup driven by their mother, officers said. The truck collided with a car driven by David Siegler of Paducah about 10 a.m. Saturday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Justice of the Peace Roy Smith pronounced the child dead at the scene. Nan McCloy, the two boys and Siegler was treated for injuries at Caprock Hospital in Floydada.

Siegler was treated and released.

The McCloy's were transferred to Lubbock General Hospital. Matthew Bond was treated and released. Clint and Nan McCloy were hospitalized and were listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

The child was born Jan. 19, 1977 at Shamrock and had lived there most of her life. The McCloy's moved to Lefors a few months ago.

In addition to her parents and brothers, survivors include her grandparents, Boney and Doyleene Winkler of Calgary, Tex., Willard and Bea McCloy of Morse; and her great-grandmothers, Sue Winkler of Calgary and Thelma Hinson of Crosbyton.

Valley voters registering big

SAN JUAN, Texas (AP) — State officials said they were surprised at the size of the turnout at a voter registration rally held to kick off a statewide campaign to register 200,000 new voters before November's presidential election.

"This is incredible," said State Land Commissioner Garry Mauro who attended the rally Sunday at the Triple City Ballroom.

Despite the rain, about 1,500 gathered to hear Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby applaud their plans.

"The next president of the United States is going to be elected in the Rio Grande Valley," Hobby said.

"The person who will be the next president has got to carry Texas and to carry Texas you need to carry the Rio Grande Valley," he said.

Hobby said Democratic Party candidates lose to Republicans in Dallas and the High Plains, break even in Southeast Texas and win in the Valley if registered voters cast ballots.

The meeting was sponsored by Valley Interfaith, a coalition of 30 parishes and churches, and the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project. The groups hope to register 25,000 people in the Valley as part of state-wide effort to get 200,000 new voters to the polls.

Vandals hit high school

Someone who doesn't care much for art broke into the Pampa High School this morning and shattered a glass display case, police reported.

Earl Meaker reported the break-in at the high school about six this morning.

Police said the person or persons broke the glass in a door on the northeast side of the school and entered the building.

Once inside, the vandal or vandals went to work on a glass display case containing ceramic works made by school art students, police reported.

Italian troops leave Lebanon; Marines may be out in week

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Government troops fought off rebel attacks on the strategic mountain town of Souk el-Gharb today, and Italy withdrew its peacekeeping troops from their positions in Beirut.

The U.S. Marine contingent of the peacekeeping force has begun moving equipment and non-combat personnel from its base at Beirut's airport, and an American source said today he expects the Marines to be out of the city by next week.

"The redeployment plan has been approved, and the Marines are just awaiting the order to execute it," said the source, who asked not to be identified. "I don't expect the Marines to be at the airport next week."

Police said 16 people were killed and 60 wounded in battles overnight in central Beirut and at Souk el-Gharb, which overlooks the presidential palace and the Marine base.

The army garrison at Souk el-Gharb is under attack by Druse insurgents, while the fighting in Beirut pits Shiite Moslem militiamen against army troops and Christian militiamen along the line dividing the capital's Moslem and Christian sectors.

The Italians abandoned their positions in west Beirut's Sabra and Chatilla Palestinian refugee camps by midmorning to board landing craft headed for navy vessels off shore. An Italian spokesman said 100 members of the 1,400-man contingent would stay on shore as a clean-up crew, 300 would remain on ships off Beirut, and about 1,000 would sail home.

President Reagan's national security adviser, Robert McFarlane, said Sunday in New York that the 1,200 Marines remaining at the airport had begun their pullout also.

McFarlane said the Marines "are moving already and I'm sure there are some aboard ship by this time." He said all would be aboard the ships by mid-March.

But a spokesman for the Marines in Beirut said today that although they were loading equipment onto the ships, they had not received orders to start the troop redeployment.

"We don't have the orders yet," said Air Force Capt. Jack Giese. "The equipment going out is support equipment."

Giese said such support personnel as cooks and supply workers had been flown out. He referred to the evacuees as "extras" and said "nothing is going on" concerning the movement of combat troops.

The Reagan administration had said last week that the Marines would start pulling back from their bunkers to 6th Fleet ships off the coast of Beirut over the weekend.

The Marines will remain in the Mediterranean, McFarlane said. "Their mission will remain what it has, to respond wherever they are needed, and if that is Lebanon, then Lebanon is where they'll go," he said during an interview on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Injured bicyclist improving at Amarillo hospital

A 5-year-old Pampa boy, who was critically injured Thursday when a vehicle struck his bicycle in the 1200 block of East Kingsmill, was reported improving today, according to hospital personnel.

Curtis Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson, of 2304 Rosewood, was scheduled to be released from the intensive-care unit at North West Texas Hospital in Amarillo, a hospital spokesman said this morning. The child remains in serious condition, the spokesman said, but has improved enough to be moved out of ICU.

The Wilson boy was hit by a Ford Bronco driven by Gary Wayne Niccum, 25, of 417 Lowry, about 6:20 p.m.

Thursday, police said. No citations were issued in connection with the accident, police said.
 The child sustained severe, multiple injuries in the crash, according to medical personnel. He was transferred to the Amarillo hospital late Thursday night. At that time, a hospital spokesman said the boy was listed in extremely-critical condition.

Air force helicopters downed

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Leftist rebels firing mortars hit an air force helicopter flying troops into battle, sending it crashing into a second helicopter and killing all four pilots and 24 soldiers aboard both aircraft, an army official says.

The U.S.-made Huey helicopter hit by the mortar fire exploded and collided with a second helicopter that then smashed into the ground, Col. Ramon Morales Ruiz told reporters who visited the battle zone after the attack Sunday in San Miguel province near the Honduran border.
 Ruiz is a member of the armed forces chiefs of staff.

In San Salvador, a military observer who asked not to be identified said Sunday night the crash may have been the first time the government has lost helicopters to enemy fire.

"They have taken ground fire before, but to my knowledge we have never had any helicopter just before to ground fire," the observer said. "We've had them hit before, but they have always made it in."

A Defense Ministry statement said the two helicopters collided at 7:30 a.m. between the towns of San Gerardo and San Luis De La Reina, 50 miles northeast of the capital and four miles south of the Honduran border.

The crash victims were among 2,000 U.S.-trained soldiers participating in a drive against rebels in the northern part of San Miguel province.

An official at the U.S. Embassy, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said no Americans were on board the helicopters.

The Salvadoran military has about 21 Hueys, but a military source only 15 were operational before the two helicopters were destroyed Sunday.

A military officer in Cabanas province said an additional 1,000 soldiers left Sensutepeque, the provincial capital, in trucks on Sunday to reinforce the troops in San Miguel.

The officer, who insisted on anonymity, said there was heavy fighting Sunday morning in the area around Nuevo Eden De San Juan, about 10 miles west of where the helicopters collided.

In Nicaragua, Defense Minister Humberto Ortega said the leftist government's troops had killed at least 30 anti-Sandinista rebels in Yelaya, a province on Nicaragua's Caribbean coast.

He did not give government losses, but military sources, who asked not to be identified, said Sandinista troops also suffered heavy casualties.

Ortega said the rebels were killed in fighting that began Feb. 12 near Siuna, more than 200 miles northeast of Managua.

Another military source said the rebel force is made up mainly of Miskito Indians who fled to Honduras after the Sandinistas ousted the pro-American government of the late rightist strongman Anastasio Somoza in July 1979.

The Miskito rebels accuse the Nicaraguan government of burning and bombing their villages because they refuse to accept Marxism. The Sandinistas say they moved the Indians from their ancestral villages to get them out of the combat area.

Bald eagle is saved by surgeon

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Wildlife experts say it will be at least a year before it will be known whether an American bald eagle whose leg was shattered by a rifle bullet will be able to return to the wild.

Dr. James E. Doyle, a director of the Phoenix Bird Rehabilitation Center, operated for four hours Saturday to save the eagle, which was gunned down in the Texas Hill Country. The bird is one of about 200 of the endangered species remaining in Texas.

"He made it through surgery OK," said George Stewart, a biology professor at the University of Texas at Arlington. Stewart also is a director of the Phoenix Center.
 "The leg is pinned, and now all we can do is wait and hope for the best," Stewart said. "His leg is a mess, but we're optimistic we can save his life. We don't know, though, if we can save the leg or if he'll ever be able to be returned to the wild. We certainly hope so."

The bird was discovered last week by a hiker and taken to the center, a non-profit corporation dedicated to treating injured wild birds and setting them free.

The center was founded by Stewart and his wife, Breck, who serves as its director, five years ago as a backyard hobby. Since then, about 2,000 wild birds have been nursed back to health.
 The eagle must undergo several more operations over the course of a year before it can be set free, Stewart said.

 If the bird cannot be returned to the wild, it will be placed in a captive breeding program with a female bald eagle brought to the center 18 months ago, Stewart said. The female eagle was shot through a wing and can never fly again, he said.

The male eagle, which stands about three feet high and has a wingspan of seven feet, is one of about 12,100 American bald eagles remaining in the United States and one of 202 in Texas, according to the National Wildlife Federation.

Although the national population has increased from 9,800 in 1979, the state's bald eagle population has declined from 359 in 1982 to about 200 now.

Closed prison investigation session today

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas prison board planned to meet behind closed doors to discuss a series of investigations that could lead to a major reorganization of management within the state prison system.

Assistant Texas Attorney General Jim Sylvester, chief of the anti-trust division, was expected to attend today's meeting of the Texas Board of Corrections to report on three inquiries by the agency.

Those investigations and other probes by at least four other state agencies and the TDC have uncovered fiscal mismanagement, improper purchasing practices, questionable hiring of professional consultants, excessive architectural and engineering fees, construction cost overruns and brutality.

The TDC's fiscal problems first surfaced after the board took the suggestion of the state auditor's office and hired an internal auditor.

The state auditor's office had asked the corrections board and prison director every year since 1976 to add an independent internal audit staff to oversee fiscal affairs.

The state auditor's office wanted more controls over construction funds, better inventory and warehousing controls, better training of inmates, better control over vehicle mileage reports and better control over cash accounts.

The pleas were ignored until last summer, when the board finally acted.

Last month, investigators from the state attorney general's office and the state auditor's office also were assigned full time to the prison system.

The state auditor does not check the books but uses spot checks and a computer model to evaluate the prison audit, said Worth S. Ferguson, assistant state auditor in charge of the TDC. Information from the TDC's construction staff and the state auditor led the attorney general to file a $6.5 million civil lawsuit in Austin last month against former TDC construction estimator, a Houston supply company and the firm's president.

The suit alleged bid rigging and anti-trust violations in connection with purchases for the Beto Unit near Palestine. The loss to taxpayers was estimated at more than $100,000 on hundreds of improper spot purchases and emergency purchases.

At least two large material supply companies in Houston that delivered asphalt and concrete materials on emergency purchase orders now face problems collecting more than $200,000 because the orders were not approved by the state purchasing office, officials said.

Inmate-pen pal romances rising

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — They introduce themselves in writing and see each other only briefly through a mesh and glass window.

The face on the inside might belong to a robber, a murderer or a rapist. The one on the outside could be just lonely or perhaps a religious crusader.

Texas Department of Corrections officials say liberalized policies lifting limits on inmate correspondence have produced an increasing number of romances between prisoners and pen pals who get their addresses from magazines or religious organizations.

As many as 10,000 pen pals are writing to inmates, Clyde M. Johnston, director of chaplains for the TDC, told the Dallas Times Herald. He estimates that 5,400 inmates — about a sixth of the prison population — have developed serious romances with women they met through the mail.

Diane Hughes says she doesn't mind that her wedding will occur without a groom. She plans to marry by proxy her 24-year-old fiancé, Rusty Welch, who is serving a 45-year term on a burglary conviction.

"If I have to wait three more years (for his parole eligibility date), I'll wait," says Miss Hughes, 23, of Seabrook. "He's the one God picked out for me. He's got more love for me than anyone else."

Contact is limited to the mail or brief visits through the glass window of the prison visiting room. If a wedding results, it must be conducted with a stand-in reading a notarized statement, or while the groom is on furlough.

Some religious groups have abandoned programs encouraging members to write spiritual encouragement to inmates. Officials say many of the women find themselves abandoned by the inmates after supplying money and a good word at the parole board.

"I knew one Mexican boy who'd get $200 to $300 a month from three or four women he was writing to on the outside," said recent parolee Bill Sheffield. "He was just playing the field. He was using them for anything he could get."

Claudia Irwin, 20, of Houston, said she sent 28-year-old inmate Ricky Irwin $20 a month from her salary as a drugstore cashier after she began corresponding with him in 1982. They were introduced on visiting day by her stepfather, a TDC inmate.

They were married last July, several months after Irwin's release, but he disappeared. Now, she says she hears from him only sporadically.

"I guess we never really had a chance to talk about different things that have happened in our lives," she said. "It doesn't change the way I feel about him, but what can I do?"

Inmate counselors say the pen pals range from poor, high school dropouts to college graduates from middle-class homes.

"Some women just aren't happy unless they have a bird with a broken wing," said Ellis Unit chaplain Avery Timmons.

Bea Pratt, who operates the New Life-New Hope Ministry in Amarillo with her husband, said she stopped encouraging male-female correspondence since a 50-year-old volunteer married a 35-year-old inmate by proxy in July 1982.

"I talked with her until I was blue in the face," she said.

Farmers invent water-saving methods

DALLAS (AP) — West Texas farmers are not waiting for technology while the water level in the Ogallala Aquifer slowly drops. They are becoming inventors, trying to find ways to save the precious moisture.

James Mitchell, 50, has tried developing more efficient sprinkler systems and coating the leaves of the cotton plants on his 1,600-acre farm in Lubbock and Lynn counties.

A sprinkler system that sprays the water closer to the ground instead of shooting it straight up "almost eliminates wind evaporation," Mitchell told the Dallas Times Herald.

He has experimented with growth regulators that shorten the leaves of the plants so they need less water. He has tried spraying a chemical on the leaves to keep water from evaporating from them.

"I got an extra 60 pounds of lint an acre," a 10 percent increase, Mitchell said. "It also looks like it's possible the plants will use up to 20 percent less water during the hot summertime."

The High Plains averages 18 to 20 inches of rain a year, but most of the water Mitchell puts on his crops comes from wells in the Ogallala Aquifer, a huge underground reservoir that dropped from 500 million acre-feet of water to 385 million from 1930 to 1980.

An acre-foot is the amount of water it would take to cover an acre of land with a foot of water.

The aquifer is being drained at the rate of about 10 percent a decade.

"Over 70 percent of the water used for irrigation in Texas comes from underground, and there's no question that it's being consumed faster than it's being replenished," said Dr. Wayne Jordan, director of the Texas Water Resources Institute at Texas A&M University.

Although only 25 percent of the state's 32 million acres of cropland is irrigated, the Texas Department of Water Resources says that 50 percent of the state's farm revenues come from irrigated land.

"In the next 30 years, we're probably going to see a decline in our agricultural sector; it may be as much as a 50 percent decline, but that's just a guess," said Jordan.

Some farmers are turning to growing grapes for wine.

No complications for Stormie

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Texas girl, the world's first simultaneous heart and liver transplant recipient, drank chocolate milk and watched cartoons with her mother Sunday, hospital officials said.

Stormie Jones of Cumby, Texas, requested the chocolate milk, doctors said. Her mother, Lois Jones, spent the day with her.

"Her heart continues to function as expected," said Dr. Basil Zitelli, staff pediatrician at Children's Hospital.

Stormie was listed in critical but stable condition, considered normal after transplant surgery. No complications had been reported, Zitelli said.

Doctors said before Stormie underwent the history-making operation that she had less than a year to live.

Two teams of surgeons implanted first a donor heart, then a liver in a 16-hour operation that began Monday evening.

Stormie, a brown-eyed blonde, was born with a rare genetic disease that elevated her blood cholesterol to dangerous levels, damaging both her heart and liver.

Doctors hope the new liver will correct the cholesterol imbalance, according to hospital spokesman Dick Riebling.

Although a labor-intensive crop, grape vines can survive on rainfall. Ranchers are planting knot grass in basins that fill with water during the summer rains. Knot grass is forage for cattle and can survive inundation.

"We don't miss a bet," said A. Wayne Wyatt, general manager of the 15-county High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

Water of Wyatt's own experiments is being tested by the Texas Water Resources Department with a $250,000 grant from the Legislature.

While potting a cactus, Wyatt noticed that the sand in the pot retained most of the water he put in. He theorized that the Ogallala Aquifer retained moisture, too.

In an experiment at home, he filled a container with sand, then water. A third of the water drained out. He sealed the container, and using a small compressor, he pumped air into it. Another third of the water was forced out.

The department has conducted three successful field tests of Wyatt's idea, but the cost of the process is still higher than the worth of the water.

Wyatt says he thinks the cost can eventually be dropped to $25 an acre-foot, "which is within agriculture's ability to pay."

Scientists estimate that Wyatt's method could almost double the water available from the aquifer.

"That's something that could change all our projections and preserve the irrigated life of a region for a number of years if it works," said Jordan.

"The real world," said Wyatt, "is that there's lots of water left."

Lawyers to question man who looks like Geter

DALLAS (AP) — Lenell Geter's defense strategy in his second trial on an armed robbery charge will include a lie detector test of a prison inmate who resembles him, Geter's lawyers say.

Ed Sigel, a Dallas lawyer representing Geter, said Jerry Jerome Stepney previously failed a polygraph test when questioned about the holdup for which Geter was convicted and given a life sentence.

Geter, 26, was freed in December after serving nearly 16 months of the sentence. Prosecutors said public pressure and allegations that Geter was arrested because he is black prompted them to agree to a new trial.

Stepney is in prison for a robbery similar to the August 1982 holdup at a Balch Springs fast food restaurant with which Geter is charged.

"We can subpoena him (Stepney) up here and if he denies committing the robbery with which Geter is charged, we can ask him why he failed the lie detector test," Sigel said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Is there a need for embassies?

A minor aspect of the withdrawal of Americans from Beirut raises a question that deserves more extensive consideration. Is it really necessary to have so many people working in embassies in Beirut and other foreign capitals? To take it a little further, are embassies themselves something of an anachronism?

Our government recently decided to remove 22 embassy employees and 17 dependants from Beirut, eventually leaving 36 employees in place. That would be enough, said a State Department spokesman, to continue to perform essential services, whatever those might be. The question that nags is this: If the embassy can perform all its "essential" services with 22 employees gone, were all those employees really essential in the first place?

It would help to remember that most of the institutions of diplomacy were established at a time when it often took weeks to travel from one country to another, before the telephone and even the telegraph, let alone airplanes. A diplomat posted in a foreign country was not only the "eyes and ears" of his country abroad, but could be expected to make important on-the-spot decisions about minor flaps and explain major and minor policy fluctuations to his host government.

Such functions have continued into our era, and embassy staffs have expanded to include economic specialists, sociologists, tourist specialists, sub-assistants and, in most countries, a few CIA men whose "cover" is probably looser than they hope. In the same era, however, we have seen the development of international telecommunications, international mass communications, air travel and overnight package delivery.

When heads of state can by in direct communication by picking up the telephone, is the traditional diplomatic function as important as it used to be?

Add to this the fact that U.S. embassies overseas have become favorite targets of terrorists. Might the time have come when most embassies could be (at the very least) reduced to a skeleton crew with rented offices rather than an impressive building, or even closed?

If the essential services in Beirut can be done with 22 people gone, perhaps they should come home for good, and a similar standard should be applied to other embassies. If we're prepared to rethink just how essential those services really are, perhaps we'll conclude we don't need all those embassies and all those bloated embassy staffs.

Reagan's organization awesome

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (NEA) - With primary elections soon to be held throughout the country, the eight contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination increasingly are becoming the focus of public attention.

But a ninth major candidate also is seeking the presidency - and his powerful political organization has fashioned a campaign operation which already is a model of planning and execution.

His name is Ronald Wilson Reagan. Although he enjoys a wide range of benefits which accrue only to incumbent presidents, his 1984 re-election campaign is awesome even when measured against traditional White House standards.

Everything is elaborately orchestrated and occurs precisely on schedule. There are no surprises because nothing is left to chance. The entire environment in which the president operates is thoroughly controlled by his staff.

The White House provided a preview of Reagan's re-election campaign when the president recently visited this city to address a Nevada Republican fund-raising luncheon which attracted more than 550 guests at $500 apiece.

The state and local GOP organizations, which shared the gross proceeds of more than $250,000, provided seemingly unlimited amounts of wine to their guests. Otherwise they kept expenses to a minimum by dispensing to each guest a lunch of five asparagus spears, two cherry tomatoes and two pieces of cold roast beef.

"There can be no pictures taken when the president is speaking or eating," the crowd was admonished before Reagan arrived. Entertainer Wayne Newton, a Las Vegas fixture, was recruited to lead the audience in a day-late rendition of "Happy Birthday."

A choir was on hand to sing all three verses of the national anthem (two of which are very seldom heard) and a band offered the audience its version of everything from the fight song of the University of Nevada at Las Vegas to "Happy Days are Here Again."

The event was held in an airplane hangar in a remote corner of McCarran International Airport here. The dreary building was freshly painted for the occasion and festooned with hundreds of yards of red, white and blue bunting.

Reagan arrived on time, paid homage to the state and local Republican leaders present and then launched into a campaign speech which has been so carefully distilled that its single-spaced typewritten text almost exactly filled two sides of a single sheet of legal-sized paper.

The speech was unrestrained in its criticism of the Democratic Party:

"They gave the country double-digit inflation that ravaged the elderly, the poor and the middle class. They gave us economic stagnation from which we are just now recovering. They gave us interest rates that knocked the auto and home building industries right off their feet.

"They gave us high taxes, big spending and government that didn't work. They gave us pessimism and self-doubt as never before experienced in this country."

There are personal touches - an anecdote about "a working mother in Oklahoma" who wrote the president to express her joy over his economic program as well as a mildly funny joke about a boy selling puppies.

There are brief but emphatic calls for everything from prayer in the public schools and a balanced federal budget to tax code simplification and line-item budget veto power for the president.

There also are sure-fire applause lines - "Today the roar of economic recovery is drowning out the naysayers and hand-wringers," and "Fundamental American values have been under attack for too long and it is about time we stand up and say enough is enough."

As the crowd roared with approval, the president concluded his speech with an appeal not to become overconfident, said farewell and promptly was guided out a rear door.

Conveniently parked only a few hundred yards away stood Air Force One, waiting to carry the president to his California ranch after a flawless campaign stop which consumed less than 90 minutes of his time.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Feb. 20th, the 51st day of 1984. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Feb. 20th, 1962, astronaut John Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth.

On this date:
In 1792, President George Washington signed an act creating the U.S. Post Office.

In 1872, Silas Noble and James Cooley of Granville, Mass. patented a toothpick-making machine.

In 1965, the Ranger 8 spacecraft crashed on the moon after sending back thousands of pictures of the lunar surface.

In 1971, radio and TV stations across the country were erroneously given a presidential order to leave the air because of what was called a "national emergency."

And in 1980, the United States announced it would boycott the Moscow Olympics to protest the Soviet presence in Afghanistan.

Ten years ago: Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee voted to test President Richard Nixon's willingness to cooperate with its impeachment inquiry by asking the White House for specific items of Watergate evidence.

Five years ago: Sponsors of the New Orleans Mardi Gras parades canceled all remaining parades for the 1979 carnival because of a strike by police officers.

One year ago: Secretary of State George Shultz said a military threat by Libya against the Sudan had "receded," and Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy was "back in his box."

Excitement of the Olympics

"Hey kids, the Winter Olympics from Sarajevo are on."

"We don't want to see the Winter Olympics."

"What kind of talk is that? ABC paid $105 million to bring you 6 1/2 hours of pure sport. Stop doing your homework and sit in front of this set."

"Aw, Dad. All they do is show people pushing turnip carts down cobblestone streets, and sheep in snowdrifts, and they keep going back to the 1980 American-Soviet hockey game."

"That's not ABC's fault. A lot of events had to be postponed, and it isn't easy to fill all that time. Hey, look, there's the inside of a Sarajevo restaurant with people eating real Slavic sausage and grape leaves. You don't see that on TV every night."

"Can we go back to our school work now?"

"Aren't you interested in how the American hockey team does?"

"We know how they did."

"How would you know that?"

"It's already been announced on NBC, CBS, PBS, Metromedia, CNN and every radio station in the country. They even broke it into 'Casablanca' this afternoon with a Special Bulletin."

"I think it's unfair for the networks to announce the results of the Olympics before ABC has a chance to show them on television."

"Maybe they do it so we won't watch the Olympics, but their shows instead," one youngster suggested.

"That's a rotten way for another network to behave. I'll bet if CBS had the rights to the Winter Olympics ABC would never do it to them."

"Why not?"

"Because Sam Donaldson is too nice a guy. Look, kids, they're having a blizzard on the screen. I'll bet none of you have ever seen a blizzard in Yugoslavia."

"I have to study for a math test."

"You can always study for a math test. But you'll have to wait four years to see another Winter Olympics."

"It's boring. The East Germans and the Soviets keep winning all the gold medals."

"That's because they're professionals. They practice for four years. Our kids don't get to see snow except during their spring college breaks. Here comes the women's luge competition. This should be pretty exciting."

"It's boring."

"It isn't boring. It just looks boring. Do you realize those sleds go 75 miles an hour?"

"If you've seen one East German woman lie down on a luge, you've seen them all."

"Wait a minute. They're going to go to a Sarajevo discotheque after the commercial. I'll bet you kids never knew Yugoslavia had discotheques."

"I've got to write a paper on Paul Volcker."

"Paul Volcker can wait. You're going to stay here and watch the Olympics whether you want to or not. The cross-country skiing is coming up very soon and it's an educational experience I don't want any of you to miss."

"I'd rather do a paper on the Federal Reserve Bank."

"That's out of the question. Look, there's a wonderful shot of the Yugoslav Army removing snow from the downhill race finish line. Now they're doing it in instant replay. Don't tell me you've seen that before."

"I think I'll go to bed. Wake me up if an American does anything interesting."

"I'm disgusted with all of you. You have no sense of history. Do you realize World War I started in Sarajevo?"

"What has that got to do with watching Comies win gold medals at the Winter Olympics?"

"If you hang around just a little longer, I'm sure Jim McKay will tell us."

Equal pay proposal dangerous

In another attempt to draw the federal government even more deeply into our day-to-day affairs, congressional liberals are reportedly reading legislation that could result in federal bureaucrats deciding how much we should earn in the private sector.

The legislation, rumored to be nurturing in the office of Senate Edward Kennedy (D.-Mass.), calls for the establishment within the U.S. Department of Labor of a national "pay comparability" panel, board, or office, modeled after the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. The commission would be charged with determining how much a certain job is worth; whether painters, for example, should be paid more than secretaries; or whether nurses are worth more or less to society than zoo keepers. In other words, the new federal authority would be charged with setting wage scales.

in the process voiding labor-management contracts, and creating chaos within the economy.

The "equal pay for comparable work" scam - long on the radical feminist wish list - was given a big boost by a recent federal court decision which ordered Washington state to increase the pay of some 15,000 state employees, mostly women. The ruling will cost state taxpayers an estimated $25 million or more over the next two years.

But, the next issue is not a feminist one; and be forewarned, it is a two-edged economic sword. If the government or courts assume the power to determine the "worth" of various jobs, it is by no means certain they will decide you're being paid too little. You could find you're being paid more than the bureaucrats say your job is worth.

Let's face it: no two jobs or careers are completely alike, just as no two individuals are alike. Different jobs require different skills, education, risk-taking, etc. The market thus determines, considering the supply of workers in a particular category, how much a job is worth. Nurses, for example, used to be paid meager wages; some say they still are. But the Washington Post advertises jobs for RNs paying more than $20 an hour; most cities report shortages of qualified nurses; and trained nurses are hotly pursued by "headhunters," who are prepared to offer them all sorts of bonuses and inducements to take jobs which now go begging.

Comparably pay is not a legitimate feminist issue; it has nothing to do with gender bias. Adopting this radical idea carries the clear and present danger of economic regimentation, bureaucratic regulations, lowered productivity, renewed inflation, increased unemployment, higher tax burdens, and less freedom for us all.

That is too high a price to pay to try and placate the demands of a small segment of the "working" population. (Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

Karen Wilson crowned Miss McLean

KAREN WILSON

McLEAN — Karen Wilson, a senior at McLean High School, was crowned Miss McLean 1984 in recent ceremonies at the McLean High School auditorium.

Wilson is the 17-year-old daughter of Don and Paula Wilson of McLean, formerly of Pampa. Her grandparents are Vera Ratliff and Claude and Edith Wilson, all of Pampa.

Wilson was chosen from a field of 36 contestants. Roxie Littlefield, a senior, was first runnerup. Siphomore Amy Barnard was picked as second runnerup and third runnerup was Jana Harris, a senior.

The young women were judged in personal interview, streetwear and formal wear segments by out-of-town judges.

The new Miss McLean has been a member of the band through high school, serving as drum major her junior year. She is a member of the FHA club, is basketball manager and plays on the tennis team.

During her sophomore year, Wilson's classmates chose her as Most Beautiful and as Most Popular her junior year. This year, she performs as the M.H.S. mascot cheerleader. In addition, she is active in the First Baptist Church and youth choir.

Wilson is to be a contestant in the Miss Irish Rose contest in Shamrock in March.

She plans to attend college and study interior design after graduation.

Learning mathematical concepts in the kitchen

Children begin to learn mathematical concepts long before they go to school. They gain this knowledge through everyday activities, says Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

Early number awareness comes from simple activities:

- Determining the difference between "these" things and "those things."
- Sorting objects which belong together.
- Ordering objects in space.

An example of how children order things in space happened when Jennie was helping her mother put away the dishes, flatware, and pots and pans in the kitchen.

In the beginning Jennie, who is three years old, would push the pots and pans into the cupboard any old way. She discovered, however, that when she did this, the door wouldn't close.

Then her mother suggested, "Why not try to put the cookie sheets in first? I always put the trays on the bottom."

When Jennie accepted that advice, it didn't take too long before she got the door closed. There was really no mystery; she used her knowledge of how parts fit together. Children develop a mathematical sense when they must arrange or share space, food or other materials.

Cooking and baking are rich experiences for language enrichment and mathematical challenges, too.

With sugar, flour, eggs, salt and water to measure, mix, sift and stir, a child can work through abstract mathematical concepts long before starting to school.

Think about all the concepts involved with cooking tasks: "heavy," "light," "long," "short," "more," "less," "a little bit," "a lot," "spoonful," "cupful," "hot," "cold," "cool." They proceed to the complex "more than but not as much as," and comparatives such as "long," "medium," "short."

Water play can be very enriching, too, if a child has a place to play, understands the rules for water play, and has the proper materials — old raincoat, washtub, plastic bottles, funnel, straws, sieve, sponges, soapsuds, egg beater. Bathtime can be a time for experimentation: "What floats? What doesn't float? Why?" A variety of common materials can be used in the tub — sponge, soap, paper, plastic cup, wooden spoon.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month - by - month. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind., 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Dear Abby

Will 'contract for life' encourage teen drinking?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was very disappointed to see you praise the "Contract for Life," an agreement signed by parents and their teen-aged children in an effort to reduce the number of deaths involving drunk drivers.

I totally disagree with this contract, which in reality gives the teen-ager who signs it permission to drink, and obligates the parents to pick up their child at any hour, any place—with no questions asked.

If my teen-ager called me at 3 in the morning from an hour's drive away to say he was smashed out of his mind and needed a ride home, I would tell him to stay where he was until he sobered up, and then take a bus home!

First of all, teen-agers are too young to drink, so why don't they sign a contract saying, "I promise not to drink?"

This so-called "Contract for Life" will not cut down on drunk driving; it will only increase teen-age drinking because they know their parents will provide taxi service for them if they are too drunk to drive.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: True, teen-agers are too young to drink. They are also too young to be parents, yet there are a million-plus babies born annually to unwed teen-agers.

We must deal with reality—not what we think should or should not be.

Also, the contract does not state that there will be no questions asked. It says: "I agree to come and get you at any hour, any place, no questions asked and no arguments at that time, or I will pay for a taxi to bring you home safely. I expect we would discuss this issue at a later time."

I am sure that every parent who reads this would rather pay for a taxi than an ambulance—or, God forbid, a hearse.

DEAR ABBY: The person who couldn't call his mother-in-law "Mother" or his father-in-law "Dad" sure rang a bell with us.

I am a father-in-law who got the same treatment from my new son-in-law. He always greeted me with "Hi ya" and avoided calling me anything at all.

I finally told him to just call me "Fil" (like Phil) for "father-in-law" and to call my wife "Mil" for "mother-in-law."

It's worked out perfectly after I reminded him a few times.

FIL AND MIL IN STREAMWOOD, ILL.

DEAR FIL AND MIL: Thanks. It's better than nil.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FREDDY IN SAN FRANCISCO: Gloria has quit smoking for good. She wants you to call her.

A parent's guide to child's day care

If you are a working parent, you know that happiness is good day care for your child. Whether at home or at a center, the quality of day care can vary widely. So, take some time to consider the options before choosing the arrangement you think is most suitable for you and your family.

To help make sure that your children get the best possible day care, the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services has published a book called "A Parent's Guide to Day Care." It describes the different types of day care, how to choose care that is best for your child, what to do if you have problems, how to improve the arrangements, and where to get more information. For your copy of "A Parent's Guide to Day Care," send $4.75 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 111M, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Whatever type of day care you choose, check the references of your caregiver or the certification of the center or group home very carefully. All states have regulations concerning family day care homes and centers. Family, or group, day care in a private home may be licensed or certified in some way, depending on individual state laws. However, all day care centers must be licensed. To find out what the day care regulations are, contact the day care licensing agency in your state.

Whether you choose a center or a group home for your child, make sure there are a sufficient number of caregivers. For children below three years of age, one caregiver for every four or five children is considered satisfactory. For children three to five years of age, there should be one caregiver for every seven to nine children.

But child-staff ratios aren't the only consideration in choosing the best arrangement for you and your child. Cost is another important factor. If you want a certain type of day care that is more than you can afford, ask about a sliding fee scale. Another alternative is to make up the extra cost in some way, such as by volunteering to help in the office or repair toys.

Be sure to have a written or oral agreement with your caregiver so you are clear about additional and optional expenses. Spell out whether you are obligated to pay for days your child is absent and any extra fees for added care your child may require.

Safety is another factor that should not be overlooked. Ask if the home or center has a separate place to care for sick children where they are isolated from the others and can be watched. Are there smoke detectors, first aid kits, fire extinguishers? Do the windows above the first floor have strong screens or bars? Are the outdoor play areas free from litter and well protected? Make sure the caregiver has a safety plan for emergencies and adequate fire exits. Check out the play equipment for safety and suitability.

Make your expectations clear and then be sure to meet your own responsibilities, such as picking up your child on time. Good day care is a cooperative effort that can benefit both you and your child.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS
Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

(1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals... call for in-Depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

This coming year you could be in for some pleasant surprises where your career is concerned. Lady Luck will help arrange breaks previously denied you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to judge others harshly today, because they will be taking their cue from you. Showing disdain invites a similar treatment. The Matchmaker wheel tells you your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours, send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. For your sign's year-ahead predictions, send an additional $1 plus your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Any difficulties with which you may have to contend today can be lessened considerably if you treat them philosophically. Be hopeful, not harried.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll have to be a very sharp bargainer today if you hope to negotiate an advantageous agreement. Don't settle for unfair terms.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you fail to get an early start today, you'll only accomplish a portion of what you set out to do. Keep this in mind when planning your agenda.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not try to manipulate others today. The results would be undesirable. Instead, treat them as you'd like to be treated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be sure to first consult with your mate today before making important decisions. He or she may see things that escape your notice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to take yourself or events too seriously today. If your outlook is hopeful, negative conditions can be improved upon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Financial trends are rather strange today. You could gain in areas where you thought you would lose, and vice versa.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Misunderstandings between you and a relative or family member should be patched up promptly today. An apology eliminates the likelihood of scars.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not forecast events negatively today, because this could veil potential opportunities. Hopefulness produces desirable results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be nice to others today, not for what they can do for you but for what they are. If they think they're being used, they'll work against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Goals can be achieved today, but only if you're consistent. When you get a "No," use it as a signal to redouble your efforts.

GAMBLER RAMBLES—Houston Gamblers' receiver Richard Johnson cuts Tony Hayes during first-quarter action Sunday in Stillwater. (AP Laserphoto) upfield past Oklahoma Outlaw defender

Houston Gamblers spoil Outlaws' debut at home

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The home-state debut of the Oklahoma Outlaws featured high-powered offense, a 20-point first-half barrage and some stellar defense — none of it compliments of the hosts.

"We've got to win first, to get the feeling of what it is like to win," Outlaws Coach Woody Widenhoffer said Sunday after his team was routed by the Houston Gamblers, 34-7, in a United States Football League exhibition game. "This team hasn't won anything yet."

The Gamblers got 102 yards rushing and three touchdowns from Samuel Harrell and completed a perfect 3-0 exhibition schedule, while the Outlaws lost the second of their two pre-season games.

The teams, both USFL expansion clubs, open the regular season next weekend.

Houston dominated the contest from start to finish, getting two first-half touchdowns from Harrell, racking up a 20-0 intermission lead and finishing with 349 yards in total offense.

The Outlaws, meanwhile, managed only four first downs in the opening two quarters — all in the same possession — and ended up with 256 yards in offense, only 92 of them on the ground.

"We must look at our running back position. I have to take a strong look at the films and evaluate the situation," said Widenhoffer, who planned his final roster cuts today. "Up until this point, I thought we were making progress. But today we regressed in every aspect."

Still, Widenhoffer did not portend any radical personnel changes.

"We can't worry about bringing in new faces. This is what we may have to go to war with," he said.

If Houston also goes to war with its current troops, Coach Jack Pardee probably can relax. The Gamblers won their three pre-season games by a combined score of 87-46, and were never in jeopardy on Sunday.

"Our defense looked a lot better today," Pardee said, "and our offense did some things that a team needs to prepare for. Oklahoma hadn't seen us before."

"It's great to win," he said. "I was glad we got to look at some of the players we needed to see."

Oklahoma's only score came after a 70-yard, 20-play drive that ate 12 minutes off the clock in the third quarter.

Twin skiers give U.S. boost

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Lifted by comeback twins Phil and Steve Mahre, the United States closed out the 14th Winter Olympics on a flag-waving high and an eye toward Calgary in 1988.

As the Olympic flame flickered out Sunday, officially ending the 12-day sports carnival, winter athletes from 49 countries paraded out of the flag-bedecked Zetra ice arena to the applause of 5,000 spectators.

"See you in Calgary," was the cry, in song and farewells, as the $135 million extravaganza ended on a snowy night.

Organizers predicted that the Sarajevo Games, among the smoothest ever, would finish in the black.

As expected, the Soviet Union regained the overall medals title, edging East Germany 25-24. But the East Germans, who beat out the Soviets in the 1980 medals race at Lake Placid, headed home with the most golds — nine to the Soviets' six.

Finland, near-invincible in the Nordic events, was third with 13 medals, four gold, three silver, six bronze; Norway was fourth with three gold, two silver and four bronze, and the United States was fifth with four golds and four silver.

The Mahre brothers' stunning 1-2 finish in the men's slalom kept the United States from suffering its lowest medals harvest in 20 years.

Using walkie talkies to coach one another between runs, the 26-year-old twins from Yakima, Wash., gave the highly successful U.S. Alpine team a crowning finish.

Phil Mahre had another reason to celebrate. His wife gave birth to a son in Scottsdale, Ariz., on Sunday, but he didn't learn of it until after the race.

Edwards triumphs with blazing finish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Edwards has some decisions to make. And so does his wife, Jonnie.

But they're pleasant decisions, the happy results of a victory he did not expect in the Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

"I certainly did not expect to win," Edwards said Sunday after he'd stalked away from the best field of the year on the PGA tour with a spectacular, 7-under-par 64 in the final round.

"I was just trying to make a good check, get another good finish," Edwards said.

Instead, he got the first individual victory of his six-year PGA Tour career, a three-stroke triumph nailed down by the best round he's ever played. His only previous PGA triumph had been with his older brother Danny in the 1980 National Team Championship.

The course was the tough old Riviera Country Club layout, which most pros said played at its toughest this year. As an example of its difficulty, only three men broke par for 72 holes. The qualifying figure for the final two rounds was an extremely high 151. In a full tournament — under assault by such stars as Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Seve Ballesteros, Tom Watson, Ray Floyd, Johnny Miller, Hale Irwin and Hal Sutton — it yielded only three scores below 69.

"That's a fabulous score," said Jack Renner of the 64. A winner a week ago in Hawaii, he was a distant second with a 69-282 in this one. Nicklaus was third at 69-283.

For Edwards, the victory was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000. And it prompted Jonnie to start thinking about living room furniture.

"We built a new house last July," she said. "And the living room is sitting there empty. We were just kind of waiting to see how things went this year. I think that's the first thing we do, get some furniture for the living room."

And while she's making those domestic decisions, David said he'll go to work on re-arranging his schedule for the year. The victory made him eligible for his first appearances in three elite events: the Masters, the Tournament of Champions and the World Series of Golf. And, he said, he will give consideration to a first trip to the British Open.

Dan Pohl, with a 66, and Mark McCumber, with a 70, tied for fourth at 284. Miller and Jim Colbert, each with a 70, followed at 285.

The size of a pearl is measured by its diameter in millimeters. Note that a millimeter is approximately one-twenty-fifth of an inch. The prices of pearls generally increase with size because larger pearls are scarcer than smaller pearls. Formerly the unit of weight was the grain, which is equal to about 50 milligrams or one-fourth of a carat. Fine pearls are still sometimes measured this way. In the cultured pearl industry, the standard of weight is the momme, which is a Japanese term pronounced "momme." Each momme is three-fourths of an ounce. A 6-millimeter pearl necklace, for example, would weigh about 5 momme.

News in brief

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Up to 15 of the 110 staff members at the Nebraska School for the Deaf may be charged in an investigation that uncovered sexual relations among students and staff members, drug violations and misappropriation of funds, a prosecutor says.

"Some of them (students) have suffered real psychological damage. Hopefully, the majority can be helped," Deputy Douglas County Attorney Marc Delman was quoted Sunday after the two-month inquiry.

Many of the 156 students live in one of three dormitories on campus. One is for boys in grades 6-12, one is for girls in grades 6-12 and the third is for girls from age 4 through fifth grade.

Moses leads 76ers back into race

By The Associated Press

Moses Malone may not lead the Philadelphia 76ers to another championship, but for the time being he's got them back in second place in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

Playing in his second game after sitting out nine with a sprained ankle, Malone was the catalyst in the 76ers' 101-97 victory over New York on Sunday that ended the Knicks' five-game winning streak and dropped them one game behind Philadelphia.

Julius Erving led the 76ers with 25 points, but Malone collected 20 points—including a pair of free throws with six seconds left — 14 rebounds and blocked two shots. Bernard King of the Knicks was the game's high scorer with 40 points.

"He (Malone) is beginning to react to his teammates, but it will be two more weeks before he's back where he once was," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "The man has been Most Valuable Player (in the NBA) the last two years. We would not have been world champions (last year) without him. The players know that."

In other games, the Boston Celtics defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 107-101, the Milwaukee Bucks trimmed the Chicago Bulls 113-103, the Detroit Pistons edged the San Antonio Spurs 142-140 in overtime, the Indiana Pacers nipped the Utah Jazz 106-104 and the Seattle SuperSonics whipped the Denver Nuggets 132-120.

The 76ers took the lead for good 78-77 on a basket by Andrew Toney, who contributed 19 points, but the turning point appeared to be when Coach Hubie Brown of the Knicks was ejected after his second technical foul. The 76ers led 90-89 at the time and Erving converted the technical along with two free throws for a 93-89 advantage.

About the only member of the 76ers not fully satisfied with Malone's performance was Malone, who is playing with a plastic brace on his weak ankle. Malone said his stamina is fine, but added, "I'm rushing my shots. I didn't get much chance to shoot while I was sitting out."

Celtics 107, Trail Blazers 101
Larry Bird scored 34 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and handed out nine assists as Boston dealt Portland its third straight loss at home for the first time in two years. The victory was the 20th in 27 road games for the Celtics. Jim Paxson led the Blazers with 24 points.

Sidney Moncrief scored 26 points and reserves Paul Mokeski and Lorenzo Romar fueled a decisive 16-1 run to give the Bucks their fifth straight victory. Chicago trailed 77-76 with 1:38 remaining in the third period. But Moncrief made a short jumper to start the surge, during which Romar canned six points and Mokeski and Marques Johnson four each. The Bulls were led by David Greenwood's 20 points.

Pistons 142, Spurs 140
Kelly Tripucka won the game on a 15-foot jumper with four seconds left in overtime to offset a career-high 47 points by San Antonio's Mike Mitchell. Tripucka finished with 32. The Spurs' Ron Brewer had 18, including 16 in the fourth quarter. He made two free throws with 12 seconds left in regulation time to tie the game 129-129. Isiah Thomas added 22 points for Detroit and Bill Laimbeer scored 17 points and grabbed 21 rebounds.

Tripucka canned the winning basket after calling his own number.

"In the (timeout) huddle at the end, I said, 'Let's run our diagonal play.' It's a play designed for me to shoot the ball. I feel very confident with it, and as soon as I let it go I knew it was in," Tripucka said.

Pacers 106, Jazz 104
Clark Kellogg made a three-point play with 22 seconds remaining and Sidney Lowe came up with a steal and free throw 15 seconds later to seal Indiana's narrow victory as the Pacers, who led by 19 points in the first half, scored the game's final eight points. Adrian Dantley, who led all scorers with 28 points, gave the Jazz a 104-98 lead with 2:24 to play.

SuperSonics 132, Nuggets 120
Seattle's Tom Chambers scored a season-high 34 points, all in the first three periods. At one point, Chambers made 12 straight shots, one less than the club record. The string snapped on a desperation 70-footer at the third-quarter buzzer. Alex English had 29 points for the Nuggets, who played without Kiki Vandeweghe, out with a heel injury. Al Wood added 23 points for Seattle, while Jack Sikma had 21 points and 10 rebounds.

Yarborough wins Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough said he could have passed any car at any time, but history has shown him that second was the best place to launch his second straight Daytona 500 victory.

"Second was where I wanted to be," Yarborough said Sunday after he duplicated his 1983 backstretch move to the front on the last lap and captured the 26th annual Grand National stock car classic.

"I didn't see a car that I couldn't pass when I wanted to," said Yarborough, whose Hardee's-sponsored Chevrolet won the pole in qualifying with a track record 201.848 mph on the 2 1/2-mile oval.

The 43-year-old driver from Sardis, S.C., passed Darrell

Waltrip's Chevrolet and finished eight car lengths ahead of Dale Earnhardt's Chevy to capture a total of $160,300 — a stock car record — from the $1.1 million purse.

The winner averaged 150.944 mph in the race slowed by seven caution flags.

Waltrip, the two-time Winston Cup champion who never has won a major Daytona race, finished third, the length of a hood behind Earnhardt.

Neil Bonnett, Waltrip's new teammate in another Chevrolet, was fourth, while Bill Elliott's Ford was fifth and Harry Gant made it five Chevrolets in the top six positions.

Waltrip, who took the lead under a caution flag on the 162nd of 200 laps, was a "sitting duck" for the finish, Yarborough said.

The Franklin, Tenn., driver was helpless to stop Yarborough and Earnhardt from passing him, the winner said.

Earnhardt said he had hoped to pass Yarborough but "when he made his move he was just right on... there was no way I was gonna catch him, so I went after Darrell."

The victory was the 14th overall for Yarborough at Daytona, including four Daytona 500s and four Firecracker 400s. That's more than anyone else.

The three-time Winston Cup champion said his car, prepared by crew chief and engine builder Waddell Wilson, "is the most dominant car I've ever had in this race."
