

Full week of rodeo concludes

A full week of rodeo activities in Pampa ended with one of the better Top O' Texas Rodeo parades in recent years Saturday morning and a large crowd on hand for the third and final performance Saturday night.

The parade, which included hundreds of horses and a number of western-decorated floats, wound through the spectator-lined streets just before noon Saturday.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Floyd Sackett said the large number of riding clubs participating this year helped make the parade a sparkling success. Around 10 clubs showed up, with the Coors Riding Club taking top honors, followed by Southern Skies and the Gray County 4-H riding Club.

Mendota Cattle Company won the prize for most typical ranch entry, with C.T. Rasco coming in second.

Coors had the most attractive commercial entry, followed by Tigrett Butane. Best civic organization entry was the Gray County 4-H Riding Club.

The judges picked Ray Schultz as the male participant with the best western costume and Sandy Davis as the best-dressed female.

New leaders emerged in three events during Friday night's rodeo performance, with the

Demos begin fussing on eve of convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Walter F. Mondale worked awkwardly Saturday to realign the Democratic party leadership, as convention delegates gathered here to nominate him for president and celebrate his choice of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro for vice president. The convention opens Monday but the Democrats began quarreling in advance after Mondale ousted national party chairman Charles Manatt, effective with the close of business next week.

Word swept through the convention hotels that Bert Lance — Jimmy Carter's old confidant — would get the job, but that seemed to risk a party revolt, and Mondale quickly assigned Lance another post.

The very possibility of appointing an old confidant of Jimmy Carter stunned some party officials. "The Republicans are already running all over the United States talking about Carter-Mondale," said Texas party boss Bob Slagle. "This will just give them something else to talk about."

The hullabaloo intrigued campaign rival Gary Hart, whose aides produced names of delegates ready to bolt from Mondale over the move to elevate Lance to Manatt's job. Hart himself paid a visit to the convention hall to test the hydraulic device that adjusts the speaker's platform. "I accept your nomination," he said, laughing, to a sea of empty seats.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson arrived to a welcoming rally and said he will work inside the hall to represent the "locked out."

The Mondale-Ferraro ticket was on the minds of the delegates thronged to one of the nation's loveliest cities, until the Lance episode began.

In South Lake Tahoe, Calif., where he was preparing for convention week, Mondale made a personal appearance before reporters to deny overnight rumors that the job was going to Lance. He named Lance general chairman of his campaign instead and said Manatt's successor will be named next week.

Mondale and Ms. Ferraro suspended their strategy sessions long enough to greet runners carrying the Olympic torch across California. Only 48 hours on the ticket, Ms. Ferraro confessed, "I'm not used to having Secret Service in the house. I heard them walking around the house all night long."

Two hundred miles from Lake Tahoe, the band inside the Moscone Center practiced "Country Roads," evidently to be ready when West Virginia's delegates cast their ballots, and workmen hoisted the red, white and blue standards that mark where each state's delegation resides on the convention floor.

Chautauqua gets even bigger

Children's area doubled for Pampa's Labor Day event

Chautauqua, Pampa's community Labor Day event, will feature a children's area more than double that of last year — and many of the events will be free.

Planned for the north area of Central Park, the children's Carousel will expand west across Cuyler into the Frontier area with more than 20 booths.

The free stage show in the main area of Central Park will have three bands, including the Mariachi Band of Amarillo. The bandsmen will be dressed in authentic Mexican costumes and will play as they stroll through the park.

More than 20 organizations will have food and soft drink booths.

Another 35 individual artists and organizations will have exhibits and displays at the Sept. 3 festival. Other individuals and organizations will be planning activities for the third annual event.

Pampa Fine Arts Association is organizing and sponsoring Chautauqua to promote the arts and folklore. Visitors not only see art works and watch artists perform, but they can actually participate in some of the activities.

"Fine Arts members have made every effort to avoid the carnival atmosphere and keep the original tradition of Chautauqua, an educational program for all ages," said Darlene Birkes, chairman.

With a Texas Arts Council grant, PFAA will sponsor a free pottery throw conducted by the Pampa High School Art Club under the direction of Janice Sackett. Watercoloring techniques will be demonstrated by Jeryl Vance of Amarillo.

Chautauqua '84 will open officially with a blessing by a local pastor at 9:30 a.m. Labor Day.

Early morning events preceding the opening will include registration for the Pizza Inn Metric Century Bike Tour and Fun Run from 7 to 7:45 a.m. at the former Gibson's Store near the Duncan Street bridge. Registration for the Coors 10K Classic Run and Fun Run will be held at the same time in the same area.

Chairman of the bike tour is Larry Hendricks. Gary Meador is the run director.

A $10 deposit is required for sales booths; the deposit will be refunded at the end of the day at the stage area. The PFAA will collect a 10 percent gross profit on all sales; the money will go toward a park improvement.

The 1982 celebration provided $2,000 for trees, and the 1983 event gained $1,200 for a stage at the park. The stage is due to be erected as soon as city crews complete landscaping at M. K. Brown

Texas' future teachers flunk first tests

AUSTIN (AP) — First tests given would-be teachers in Texas schools show 47 percent of them are lacking in reading, writing and mathematics skills, the State Board of Education was told Saturday.

"Now we have some information that this board and future boards can use in setting criteria for youngsters entering our education schools," said Dr. William N. Kemp, Houston, chairman of the board's committee on teacher preparation.

The board discussed the report, prepared by the Texas Education Agency, but took no immediate action on changing the Pre-Professional Skills Tests that all undergraduate students wanting a degree in teacher education must pass.

The education reform bill passed by the recent special session will require all current teachers to take similar competency tests by June 30, 1986. However, details of those tests, highly controversial among teachers organizations, must be decided by the 1985 Legislature.

Two special meetings of the state have been called, for July 21 and Aug. 3-4, to discuss implementation of the bill signed Friday by Gov. Mark White.

Board member Will Davis, Austin, pointed out Saturday that the TEA report showed only 1,440 prospective teachers, most of them college sophomores, passed out of 2,687 taking the first pre-professional skills examination last March.

Another 4,800 college students who want to be teachers will take the tests July 21.

Only 19 percent of the Hispanics taking the first test passed, 10 percent of the blacks and 62 percent of the whites.

"One of the most interesting things in this report," said Kemp, "is that the differences in the ethnic groups is very similar to the differences shown at first in the basic skills tests given secondary students some years back.

By state law, students in third, fifth and ninth grades must pass tests in reading, writing and arithmetic in order to advance. The recently signed bill will expand those tests.

"However, we have found that the ethnics have been progressing in the basic skills tests, the gap is narrowing," said board member Kent Grusendorf, of Arlington. "Hopefully the differences will narrow in these new education school tests."

"To me the most disappointing thing about these tests is not the grades, but how few prospective teachers we have taking them," said Board Chairman Joe Kelly Butler, of Houston.

The Pre-Professional Skills Test was given at 51 of the 65 teacher training institutions in the state. Students did not have to be enrolled at a college to take the test there.

Lefors trustee quits to take principal job

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

LEFORS — Trustees of the Lefors Independent School District employed Gene Gee as new principal of Lefors High School in a special called meeting Friday night after accepting his resignation as a member of the Lefors school board.

The action came after trustees had interviewed applicants for the principal position at their regular board meeting Thursday night.

Gee was one of eight applicants the board had considered for the position left vacant by the resignation of Allen Jenkins earlier this month.

Gee submitted his resignation Friday, clearing the way for the board to hire him as principal. He has been employed on a 12-month contract. In addition to his administrative principal position, Gee also will teach at least one class.

The board appointed Joe Watson to fill the vacancy left by Gee's resignation and employment. Watson had previously served on the board. He had come in third in a three-way school board race in April, with only eight votes separating him from second place. The top two vote-getters had won the two vacant positions.

The trustees elected Arnold Story as vice president of the board, replacing Gee.

In other action Thursday, the trustees adopted updated policies

JIMMY VINSON

Local youth may see at last

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

A Pampa youth blind since birth may see the world for the first time if an operation later this month is successful, the teenager's family said doctors have told them.

Jimmy Vinson, 16, son of Robert and Leona Ray, 911 E. Browning, may be able to see from one eye if the scheduled operation works.

Jimmy, a talented musician and student at the Texas School for the Blind in Austin, is scheduled for the operation on July 23 at Austin.

The youth was featured in a 1980 Pampa News story about his gifted ability to play musical instruments. The story included a photo of Jimmy meeting blind performer Ronnie Milsap at a concert in El Paso. In the meeting of the two blind musicians, Milsap reportedly promised to find a publisher for the youth's first musical composition, a song called "There's No Living Without You."

Since the meeting, Jimmy has continued his musical studies at the Austin School. He can play most any instrument, though the piano remains his favorite. Teachers at the school say the Pampa youth also is a gifted student in other areas of study.

The family has its hopes up for the scheduled surgery. Doctors plan to scrape and shave away tissue covering the pupil of Jimmy's "good eye," the one with which he sees "shadows" and detects movement. Doctors also plan to repair a detached retina. Jimmy's blindness is a defect caused by a premature birth.

The Rays are on a fixed income and without major medical insurance. The family estimates the operation will cost about $10,000. Jimmy's friends have established a fund at the First National Bank to help cover the expense. To donate to the fund that could give a Pampa youth the gift of sight, contact the bank.

amateurs in the double muggin' contest providing as much excitement as the professionals in the riding events.

Shawn and Sammy J. Whatley had the big nights in the muggin' competition. First, they teamed with Wendell Shultz to post a sparkling time of 37.5, only to have 10 seconds added because of a barrier penalty. Then the dynamic duo teamed with Gary McFall for a legitimate time of 34.5, and later, when they must have been exhausted from wrestling with the big steers, scored 60.5 with Shultz.

Three-time world champion Lynn McKenzie of Shreveport took the lead in the cowgirls' barrel race with a 17.83, narrowly bumping off Nancy Eaton, the first-night leader at 17.89.

A mother-daughter team from Canyon, Vera and Tamara Hammons, also cracked the 18 second barrier. Tamara was timed in 17.92 to narrowly beat her mom's 17.94, as they moved into second and third place, respectively.

Hard-riding Buddy Reynolds of Slaton moved to the front in barebacks with 76, passing first-night leader Stony Zolman who had 72.

Best time of the night in the calf roping was a 10.8 by Marty Jones of Hobbs, which put him fourth overall at that point in the competition.

Kerry Chapman of Haskell remained the saddle bronc leader with his opening-night 75. Top ride Friday night was a 69 by Herman Brune, just a point better than Thad Greene of Pampa who had a ride that looked every bit as good. Lee Lowrey of Pampa drew a bronc that was reluctant to buck and scored a 58.

Larry Dawson made a long dive at a speeding steer and clocked a 6.2 for the top steer-wrestling time of the night. Stan Williamson needed an 8.0 to take the lead, but had to settle for an 8.3.

The bulls turned out to be tough again, with only two riders able to go the distance. Taos Cribbs moved into second place with a 70. Keith White was the only other rider staying on to the buzzer. Brent Hanks, the first go-round leader with 74, didn't manage to stay on his second attempt.

The final results in all the events will be published in Monday's Pampa News.

Chautauqua

Memorial Pool, Birkes said.

The petting zoo will again be one of the major features of the children's area. The Junior League will sponsor the fishing booth, and Lamar Full Gospel Assembly will stage its puppet show.

Girl Scouts will teach necklace making with macaroni and sponsor Smokey the Bear, who will promote his anti-litter campaign during the day. Local 4-H groups will feature sand castle building, wood sculpturing and a variety of races. Action, the ACT children's drama workshop group, will present pantomimes.

Matt Parsons will be the strolling clown. St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church's PACE will sponsor a dunking board, and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will provide pony and covered-wagon rides.

The First Presbyterian Church youth will present confetti egg making. The Dust Devils will provide joy jumping with the trampoline. The Board of Realtors will have a fingerprinting booth for parents wishing a record of their children's fingerprints.

Other promised booths include face painting, Art Aches (or the artistic bandaging of pretend wounds), a pillow fight and hat making.

Non-profit organizations and individual artists wishing to participate may contact Chautauqua chairman Darlene Birkes, 665-9044. Carousel chairmen include Martha Campbell, 669-7109; Elizabeth Connor, 669-2863, or Lilith Brainard, 665-4579.

Artists wanting to exhibit their crafts should contact Jackie Kastor, 665-4835.

on the Special Education Cooperative, consisting of Pampa, Lefors and Grandview-Hopkins school districts.

The policies, concerning programs for special education and handicapped students, had to be adopted to meet federal guidelines, Supt. Collins reported. The changes relate mainly to confidentiality of records and rights of parents for students in the programs.

The board granted five percent salary increases to two custodians and a seven percent increase to another custodian. Members also approved a 10 percent hike for two cafeteria workers.

In other action, the trustees adopted a new updated policy manual for the schools, approved insurance for all school buildings with Panhandle Insurance Agency and reviewed education reforms and programs in House Bill 72.

The board decided to put up a 1977 Chevrolet Suburban for auction. Bids will be opened at the Aug. 9 board meeting.

Democrats meet

Mondale's advance selection of the 48-year-old New York congresswoman drained the convention of all suspense. But what it lacks in mystery, the Democratic meeting may make up in emotion. For nearly half the delegates are women, and they will cheer Ms. Ferraro to the arches of the huge, underground convention hall.

And suspense or no, the four days in the Moscone Center in San Francisco mean free publicity, Mondale's opportunity to launch his White House campaign on nationwide television. His nomination for president will occur on Wednesday night. He accepts it officially on Thursday, immediately after Ms. Ferraro enters the history books as the first-ever woman on a national ticket.

Hart, whose destiny has been to go from darkhorse to contender to also-ran in six dizzying months, came Friday to the convention city with the allegiance of 1,300 delegates and a major say in the party platform. He will speak on Wednesday — just before the roll call that snuffs out his campaign.

Jackson will address the convention on Tuesday, the final speech of an often chaotic campaign that helped bring many black voters to the polls for the first time.

Mondale is hoping that each will give him a parting gift of unity, a peace that would contrast with the brawling campaign they waged against him and would heal the party in time for the uphill battle ahead.

He arrives Monday, survivor of a campaign season he began as consensus front-runner, only to be upset by Hart in the very first primary.

Mondale's nomination will cap a career in Democratic politics that began in the 1940s, when he signed up to volunteer in Hubert Humphrey's mayoral campaign in Minneapolis. Along the way, the 56-year-old Mondale served as attorney general of his state, U.S. senator and then vice president under Jimmy Carter. He has spent the last four years seeking the prize he claims this week.

Ms. Ferraro emerged from Mondale's own search for a running mate, skilled in the internal politics of the House of Representatives, but relatively little known outside Congress and her congressional district in New York.

The four-day convention will be marked by political speeches, tributes and rituals.

The highlight of the opening night is New York Gov. Mario Cuomo's keynote address, traditionally the theme-setter for the week. Carter also will address the convention, and the delegates will see a film memorializing Harry Truman in the centennial year of his birth.

Tuesday night comes the platform report — drafted under Ms. Ferraro's guidance before she became Mondale's running mate — and Jackson's speech. The Mondale and Hart forces worked together on the platform, although Hart may offer one minority plank and Jackson may press for votes on four others.

The nomination of a president will occur Wednesday. Before the main event, though, there will be a film on Eleanor Roosevelt, a cross section of delegates will speak on "Why I am a Democrat," and Hart will make the final speech of his campaign.

On Thursday night comes the vice presidential nomination, followed by the acceptance speeches by the winners.

White hails education bill, but fails to talk about Texas tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The celebrants who jammed the Capitol rotunda to hail the signing of the education reform bill got a warning from the man wielding the pen.

"Let us do more than celebrate and congratulate each other on the success of this effort to build a first class education system," Gov. Mark White told them.

"Let us also pledge that we will never allow the pendulum of education to swing back to the side of mediocrity and public indifference again," he said at the Friday bill signing.

After reading a four-page speech that made only a quick reference to the $4.6 billion tax hike he also signed, White sat at a desk with sentimental value and signed the education bill.

"If I had one wish, it would be that my mother were here today. She devoted her life to teaching in our public schools, and hers would be more than just a mother's pride in seeing this day come to pass," he said.

The governor's mother, Sarah Elizabeth Wells White, died in 1971 after a 40-year teaching career.

The desk used in Friday's bill-signing ceremony was from Briar Grove Elementary School in Houston, where she taught first graders.

White used a string of superlatives to describe the education package approved by the recent special legislative session.

"This act is a watershed in our history. It declares that no longer will we accept mediocrity in our schools. It declares that no longer will we settle for anything short of the best. It declares that no longer will we treat our teachers like second-class citizens," he said.

His only reference to the tax bill — of which $2.8 billion is for schools and the rest for highways — came when he called it "the bill that will enable us to meet (the school bill's) financial obligations."

The tax hikes include a one-eighth of a percent increase in the state sales tax.

The education bill is based on recommendations from H. Ross Perot's Select Committee on Reform in Education. The measure abolishes the 27-member elected State Board of Education and replaces it with a 15-member panel appointed by the governor. The board reverts to an elected panel in 1988.

Under the new law, all Texas teachers will get at least a $170 a month pay raise. Minimum starting teacher salaries will go from $1,110 a month to $1,520. A "career ladder" system makes teachers eligible for additional raises.

Beginning in spring 1985, students with failing grades will not be allowed to take part in extracurricular activities, including sports.

Teachers must pass a competency test by 1986, and high school seniors face a graduation test.

Social promotions in schools are outlawed immediately. A student must earn a grade of at least 70 in every course to advance to the next grade.

Beginning in the 1985-86 school year, schools must offer pre-kindergarten programs for educationally deprived 4-year-olds, if there are at least 15 needing the service.

COURTESY ARREST - A Springfield, Mo., family was surprised and pleased to be stopped by two Gray County Sheriff's deputies and two Texas Department of Public Safety officers Thursday afternoon on I-40 south of Pampa on their way to Amarillo. The Jameson family was "arrested" and sentenced to spend an evening at Pampa. "I didn't know what was going on," said Richard Jameson, but the family was delighted to delay their trip a day. They were given a room at Coronado Inn, treated to a meal at Dyer's Bar-B-Que and given a box seat at last night's opening Top o' Texas Rodeo performance. ## Texans have to split pennies

AUSTIN (AP) — Thanks to the tax bill signed into law by Gov. Mark White, Texans who pay and collect the state sales tax face the confusing prospect of splitting pennies.

White on Friday OK'd a $4.6 billion tax hike that will raise the sales tax from 4 percent to 4.125 percent on Oct. 2. Other increases, including a doubling of the 5-cent a gallon gasoline tax, go into effect Aug. 1.

The one-eighth of a cent hike in the sales tax might tempt Texans to pull out a calculator to figure out what they owe, or an ax to chop up their pennies.

"Don't try to do that," said John Moore, spokesman for Comptroller Bob Bullock. "We are going to send out new rate charts. Nobody will have to calculate it. Just look at the rate chart."

Basically, the state will collect the additional fraction of a penny by shifting the "breaks" at which an additional penny tax is due. For example, under the current 4 percent tax, you add a penny for the state to any purchase from 13-37 cents.

Under the new rate, you'll pay that penny on purchases of 13-36 cents. At 37 cents, you'll pay 2 cents in sales tax.

The new charts will show that 2 cents tax is due on purchases of 37-60 cents, 3 cents on 61-84 cents, and 4 cents on 85 cents to $1.09, according to Moore.

So, the bottom line on a $1 purchase will remain the same — 4 cents for the state.

Most Texans also pay a 1 percent local sales tax, and some big city residents pay a transit authority sales tax.

The tax package signed Friday by White will raise $4.6 billion over three years. Education will get $2.8 billion of it, with the rest earmarked for highways.

There are two effective dates in the bill. On Aug. 1, the motor vehicle fuels tax goes from the current 5 cents a gallon to 10 cents; the diesel fuel tax goes from 6.5 cents a gallon to 10 cents; the motor vehicle sales and rental tax goes from 4 to 5 percent, and motor vehicle registration fees go up.

Under the new motor vehicle registration procedure, the cost will be based on the vehicle's age, instead of weight.

The rest of the tax hikes — including the sales tax — go into effect Oct. 2. In addition to raising the sales tax, lawmakers added to the goods and services covered by the levy.

Stricken from the exempt list and made taxable were newspaper and magazine subscriptions, cassettes, movie tickets, recreational activities, cable television, parking, some repairs (not automobiles), computer software, laundry and dry cleaning.

Texans also will pay more to smoke and drink beginning Oct. 2. The cigarette tax goes from 18.5 cents a pack to 19.5 cents. Another penny will be added Sept. 1, 1985.

The beer tax goes from $5 per 31-gallon barrel to $6. The wine tax will increase by 3.4 cents a gallon, and the liquor tax goes up by 40 cents a gallon.

Hance says his world hasn't come to an end

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kent Hance says the only thing that bothers him these days is sympathy.

"Some of my colleagues, you can tell they feel a lot of sympathy for me like my world's come to an end. Well, my world hasn't come to an end. There's a new venture out there waiting," the Lubbock congressman said.

"I guess that's the only thing that's upset me since it was over," Hance said. "There are some people that want to give me sympathy."

When Hance lost his race for the U.S. Senate this year, he also lost his House seat because he could not run for both.

He had surprised political pollsters, who figured him for a distant third, by finishing first in the tight three-man race for the Democratic Senate nomination. But it was state Sen. Lloyd Doggett who won the excruciatingly close June 2 runoff.

Instead of moving to the other side of the Capitol as he had hoped, Hance will be moving back to Texas at the end of the year.

Hance said he had expected to return to Lubbock, but is weighing "lucrative" offers from large law firms and investment groups in Dallas and Houston. Still, he said, the political arena beckons.

"I invested so much time and effort and money in it to walk away from it," Hance said.

"It's something I like and in a few years, if there's something that looks like it would be a good position to run for where you could accomplish a lot, well, I'll talk it over with my family and if it's all right with them, I'll be back."

Hance, a lawyer, former state senator and Texas Tech University professor, is popular in his district and could have counted on a long career in the House. Did he regret giving up a sure thing for a long shot?

"Not one minute I wondered about that before I made the decision, whether I would. I made the right decision," he said. Otherwise, "I'd be sitting around today saying, 'What if, what if...'"

Hance was one of the House Democrats tagged with the nickname "Boll Weevil" for supporting President Reagan's economic policies. Fellow "boll weevil" Phil Gramm of College Station switched parties and now is the Republican nominee for Senate.

Hance said he is supporting Doggett, a liberal, though he thinks he would have had a better chance against Gramm. He said does not regret the times he supported Reagan.

"When I thought he was right I helped him, when I thought he was wrong I opposed him, and I did that with (former President Jimmy) Carter," Hance said. "I just don't want to ever in politics get in a position that some other official thinks that they own me."

Politics aside, Hance says, he has left his legislative mark.

"In 1981, I passed the largest tax cut in the history of the country. It was the Conable-Hance bill. It has my name on it," he said proudly.

It was the "Hance amendment" that kept the Carter administration from instituting withholding on savings accounts, Hance said. In the tax bill passed last month was a Hance-sponsored provision that reduces the capital gains holding period to six months.

Some members who lose elections "lose interest," he said, but he expects to be involved in trade legislation and farm and environment policy before he leaves.

Last month, as he was hearing that a recount had not changed the results of the runoff, Hance was plotting strategy for defeating the immigration bill.

Standard blood tests may hold cancer clue

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Researchers say standard blood counts may give doctors a tool for early detection of digestive cancers.

Dr. David Bessman of the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston said Friday he has been able to distinguish iron deficiencies from a common genetic disorder by observing standard blood counts.

A Coulter Counter, the standard machine used to show red blood cell counts, produces a graph to show differences between iron deficiency and thalassemia, a genetic defect described by Bessman as "nature's attempt to combat malaria."

If the graph indicates iron deficiency, further tests are ordered to determine its cause. Iron deficiencies are most common in women of menstruating or child-bearing age and are usually treated with simple iron supplements.

But in men, he said the disorder is an indication that the man is bleeding. Ulcers or hemorrhoids are typically suspected of causing male iron deficiencies, but in both sexes the cause may be a cancer of the digestive tract.

Bessman said the early detection method is significant because colorectal cancers have the worst cure rate and are not responsive to drug therapy unless caught in the very early stages.

Testing for digestive cancers was until recently limited to testing of the stool — but only after standard blood testing indicated a risk.

Such tests are time-consuming, more expensive and embarrassing to the patient, he said.

But the Red Cell Distribution Width, the graph produced by the Coulter Counter, will immediately alert physicians to the likelihood of a deficiency, and a second test now will be needed only for confirmation, Bessman said.

The school's Coulter Counter is one of only four in the country capable of producing Bessman's Red Cell Distribution Width, but the researcher says the device is "immediately applicable" to thousands of units nationwide.

He said the ease of the test makes it appealing for screening large groups of people.

"This is not a test to detect cancer," he said. "It's a test for iron deficiency and its causes and we know that cancer is one cause."

More than 120,000 new cases of colorectal cancer are diagnosed in the U.S. each year, and the five-year survival rate is less than 20 percent.

Mexico City shakes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A moderately strong earthquake rocked the capital and central Mexico on Saturday but there were no immediate reports of damage or injuries.

The earthquake began at 5:04 p.m. EDT and lasted 50 seconds. The Tacubaya national seismological institute in the capital had no immediate reading, a tape-recorded telephone answering device said.

A police spokesman in the capital said he had no immediate reports of major damage or injuries.

The quake also shook Acapulco, a Pacific Ocean resort 247 miles southwest of the capital, with an intensity of 3.5 on the 1-2 Mercalli scale, a seismological station there said.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covering commandment.

Opinion

Congress should follow own laws

You may not have know it, but there is still an institution in this country that can discriminate on the basis of race, sex, creed or national origin, that can hire and fire at will without worrying about the civil right last: that can, in sort, ignore every piece of legislation dealing with equal rights in employment so far enacted.

That organization is the U.S. Congress. Whenever Congress has passed a civil rights law that could affect it, it has specifically exempted itself from the legislation. Thus, laws that forbid discrimination in employment—in hiring, in firing, in promoting, in everything that is supposed to protect employees from unequal treatment on the job—do not affect the very people who wrote these laws.

This double standard is defended by the legislators on the premise that congressmen must have freedom to manage their staffs because of the very personal nature of congressional employment. But may other employers, such as doctors and lawyers, have the same type of personal staffs, yet are given no exemption from the laws.

An amendment to the new civil rights bill passed by the House would require Congress to folldo the civil rights laws to the same extent that other federal entities are covered by those same acts. But the effect of that working is unclear because some federal agencies are also exempt from these laws.

The law should clearly require Congress and every federal agency to practice what the Constitution preaches.

What we need is workers

Having weathered years in New York harbor, the Statue of Liberty is being restored in anticipation of its centennial celebration in 1986. Miss Liberty, France's gift to us to commemorate U.S. - French friendship daing back to the Revolutionary War, has been a welcome sight to tens - of - millions of immigrants seeking freedom, hope and prosperity.

The weather's toll on the grand Lady pales in comparison to the erosion of her spirit which is captured by the inscription: "Give me your tired, your poor, huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost, to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

That expression of man's humanity to man was seriously diminished during the recent political debate leading to Congress' approval of the new immigration law - the Simpson - Mazzoli Act. Among its features are: amnesty for Mexican illegals who've resided here since before 1982; citizenship for Mexicans if they keep a clean record and learn English and civics; and heavy penalties for employers who hire illegal aliens. House passage of the controversial bill was by a narrow five - note margin. There was considerable opposition to its amnesty feature. According to the Washington Post, Rep. Kent R. Hance (D. - Tex.) said, "You're missing the entire issue - the issue in this debate is jobs. If it's one job (taken by a legalized alien), it's one too many." Rep. Clay Shaw (R. - Fla.) asked, "How many people can the U.S. accommodate and the quality of life continue?... We must put the citizens who are here to work first."

Rep. Peter Rodino (D. - N. J.) got it right when he said illegal immigrants are a decent society composed of people who came here seeking an opportunity. Work and opportunity lie at the heart of the issue. Unions and their followers want to close our borders. None of this is new, just the language and tactics have changed.

Compare the rhetoric of today's restrictionists with that of the founder of the American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers. "But the Caucasians are not going to let their standard of living be destroyed by Negroes, Chinamen, Japs, or any others." (Federationist, 9 - 19 - 05). Gompers elaborated on this in U.S. Senate Document 137 (1920): "Some Reasons For Chinese Exclusion, Meat Vs. Rice: American Manhood Against Asiatic Coolieism, Which Shall Survive" where he said, "The yellow man found it natural to lie, cheat and murder and ninety - nine out of one - hundred Chinese are gamblers.. he goes joyfully back (from work) to his slum and his burrow to the grateful luxury of his normal surroundings--vice, filth, and an atmosphere of horror."

Immigration has always been good for America. It was good in the case of the Irish, The Italians, The Jews, The Poles. And all other nationalities. And is still good today with Mexicans joining our ethnic mix. When yesterday's immigrants migrated here we did not have a welfare state, and therefore we know people would work when they got here; the alternative was starvation. Today, because of the welfare state, we cannot be so sure. People can come, not work, and live off the rest of us. We have too many American CITIZENS doing that now; we don't need more. We DO need people who will work.

Mexico will have to get its own house in order. We need to reduce the welfare state and continue those policies that contribute to a rapidly growing economy. But meanwhile, what do we do with the inscription on the base of Miss Liberty?

Today in History

Today is Sunday, July 15, the 197th day of 1984. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On July 15, 1971, President Richard Nixon announced he would visit mainland China to seek what he called a "normalization of relations."

Ten years ago: Cypriot troops led by Greek army officers overthrew the government of Cyprus.

Five years ago: In a nationally broadcast speech, President Jimmy Carter proposed a new energy program as he spoke of a "crisis of confidence" in American attitudes.

One year ago: Several people were killed when a bomb went off at Orly Airport in France. An Armenian group claimed responsibility.

Today's birthdays: Alabama Sen. Jeremiah Denton is 60. Actors Ken Kercheval and Alex Karras are 49. Actor Jan-Michael Vincent is 40. Singer Linda Ronstadt is 38.

The tricky road to success

There was a radio program in the 1940s called Quiz Kids. It featured super - smart youngsters who knew all the answers.

What do you suppose happened to them. What are they doing today?

One of the Quiz Kids of the Forties was Ruth Duskin Feldman. She, now a journalist, has traced the careers of others featured on that program. I have written a book called, "Whatever Happened To The Quiz Kids?"

The book is contributing to a re - evaluation of the I.Q. of youngsters, of how it is measured and what it is worth.

"What is an 'apteryx'?"

The boy who, at age 7, knew the answer to that question: "A small New Zealand bird" was Gerald Darrow. He was on the cover of Life magazine when he was 9.

After years of menial jobs and welfare checks,

Darrow died of alcoholism at 47.

But then--

James Watson was a Quiz Kid an he later discovered the key to genetic engineering, received a Nobel Prize for DNA.

"What is an 'arachnida'?" A spider.

"How far does a phonograph needle travel when it plays a 10 - inch record?"

Answer: "Two - and - a - half inches -- sideways."

Surely society was justified in expecting real things of the youngsters who knew things like that. But when Mrs. Feldman sought out and relocated 80 former Quiz Kids it became obvious that they had enjoyed neither more success nor less than others less scholarly.

Harve Bennett produced the "Star Trek" movies.

Jack Lucal interprets the Pope's pronouncements.

Vanessa Brown became a movie star. Joel Kupperman became a professor.

But author Feldman deduces that those who succeeded succeeded less as a result of their extraordinary intelligence and more as a result of two other factors: persistence and willingness to work.

"Intelligence can be a trap," says Mrs. Feldman. "It can lead a young person to expect success will come easily. It almost never does."

Two University of Chicago psychology professors, Getzels and Jackson, are convinced that we need to re - assess the I.Q. as a measure of intelligence.

They believe the outstanding characteristic of giftedness is not intelligence, but creativity.

And hear this: "The outstanding characteristic of the creative child is a sense of humor."

Isn't it just a few races?

Does anybody really care what is the official mayonnaise of the 1984 Olympics? There must be an official mayonnaise - there is an official everything else.

I wonder who decides what is going to be the official whatever for the Olympics?

"OK, today we have a very important decision to make, and that is, what is going to be our official mayonnaise for the 1984 Games?"

"This is not a decision to be taken lightly. Need I remind you the entire world is watching us on this one? We make a mistake on the official mayonnaise, and the French could announce an immediate boycott. You know how finicky the French are.

"OK, Schwartz, what are our choices?" "Sir, we have narrowed it down to two. First we have Hellman's. It spreads easily, has a nice, soft texture and is light enough that it won't sit on the stomachs of the high jumpers and pole vaulters.

"Then, we have Miracle Whip. Some say Miracle Whip is a salad dressing, but others swear by it as a sandwich spread."

"Thank you, Schwartz, and I believe our choice is clear here. If we choose Miracle Whip, we could cause our government enormous embarrassment if somebody claimed we were trying to pass a salad dressing off as mayonnaise. Think of the field day the Russians could have with that. Hellman's it is. Now, what about the official bologna?"

Picking the official products of the Olympics must have taken months of planning. Screw - ups were bound to happen, of course. There was one just the other day.

At the U.S. Olympic track and field trials in Los Angeles, a blimp flew over the stadium advertising Fuji film. Fuji is the official film of the 1984 Olympics.

Unfortunately, Kodak is the official film of the 1984 U.S. track and field trials. The Kodaj people went berserk when they saw this Fuji blimp and had the stadium announcer beseech the spectators, "Please do not look at the blimp."

Ever notice how we tend to make a big mess out of things that should remain so simple?

The Olympics have become a big political issue, people kill each other at the Olympics, television coverage is massive, and the advertising hype is endless.

I realize advertising is important to the pursuit of free enterprise, but to answer my earlier question, no, I don't care what is the official mayonnaise of the 1984 Olympics and I don't know anybody who does. Wasn't this originally supposed to be an outing for amateurs?

I took part in something like an Olympics once. When I was in fourth grade we had country school field day, we ran three - legged races, sack races, and there was a race where you had to carry an egg on a spoon.

I ran in the potato race. There are four cans at 10 - yard intervals from the starting line. Each team has four contestants. The idea is to run to your can, pick up the potato in the can, and run back and put the potato in the can at the starting line, at which point the next runner sprints to his can. First to retrieve all four potatoes wins.

I ran to the second can. I dropped the stupid potato. My team lost the race and we didn't get a ribbon and I cried.

"Don't cry," said my teacher. "It was just a potato race."

"That's really all the Olympics are, just a few races. If everybody would just leave the kids alone and let them run and jump, the Olympics would be a lot better off.

But that won't happen. The Olympics will just get further embroiled in politics, and we'll probably be hearing about an official dog food before the Games are over, and ABC will continue to increase its coverage.

Speaking of ABC, is Howard Cosell going to be a member of the Olympics broadcast team? That's all we need. Howard Cosell, the official potato head of the 1984 Olympics.

Letters to the editor

An exercise in futility

Dear Editor,

I have just returned home from what can only be described as an exercise in Democratic futility—it was publicly referred to as a "Pampa City Commission meeting." Numerous citizens presented their very valid complaints about the city's reasons for tearing out driveway pipes, etc. Most of the so-called "reasons" seem completely invalid.

1. To allow city snow plows and street sweepers to get through. (In nearly 14 years on this same block, I have never seen either piece of machinery come down this street. Most people at the meeting indicated they hadn't seen it in their scattered areas of town either.)

2. The pipes obstruct water drainage. (Maybe some of these complaints are legitimate, but as one citizen pointed out, the city could specify an adequate pipe size and require that they be kept free from blockage. Several citizens said they still have the same problems since the pipes were removed, so that was not a 100 percent solution.)

3. The city could be liable if someone hit one and had an accident. (How many people have tried to sue the city over that? None, that they could tell us about—straight answers were difficult, if not impossible to get at the meeting.)

4. They cause deterioration of the streets. (Several gentlemen said they had checked the streets where the pipes were removed, and they were in better condition than the nearby areas which had been left free of pipes and asphalt.)

These are only samples. Among the valid citizen complaints is that now we are really tearing up the streets and our vehicles trying to get in and out of driveways connected to streets with high curbs and low gutters. In some cases, they have either had to replace tail-pipes or start parking in the street. The type of vehicle—height and wheelbase—was immaterial, as all were being affected by the problem of scraping.

Mr. Moore, the city public works director and a relative newcomer to Pampa, says we'll just have to adjust our driveways and the city can't be responsible for "defective contracting" when the drives were put in. Does it occur to the city commissioners and the esteemed engineer that maybe 20-30 years ago when the drives were laid that the streets didn't have a 20-year accumulation of sealcoating on them either? With streets built high in the center and gutters to allow of occasional water drainages, we must have "pipe overpasses" to bridge between the driveways and the street.

Several citizens pointed out that they are on fixed incomes and can't afford several hundred dollars to rip out and build a new driveway—besides which, it probably wouldn't solve some of the problems anyway. When asked for specific solutions to the problem—assuming we have to live with the situation—Mr. Moore simply had no specific answers. Well, some of us had solved the problem very nicely with pipe and asphalt, thank you, and with city cooperation, and now that can't let us have that or come up with anything better either.

It's nice to know the city commissioners are much more responsive to the city employees than to the citizens who pay the taxes to run the city and hire those employees. The statement was made that they would "do what the staff had instructed them to." They would not make a motion to accept the petition presented to them, either.

Is this the best our elected representative can do for the people who elected them, that is listen with closed minds to valid complaints by people who are not rabble-rousers, but who have a right to express their opinions, then why do we even need a city commission? If the city employees dictate the policies, we can just eliminate any parody of democracy by not having any elected officials to "represent the taxpaying citizens."

I do not always agree with your editorial stands in the paper, but your editorial on Sunday, July 8, was right on target.

MRS. ROCHELLE LACY

have reacted in an orderly and civil way. I know I was very upset with the methods used, though I do agree that very probably the pipes needed to come out in some instances.

As landowners we must notify the city when we plan to make structural changes in our property. Surely the city would want to offer that courtesy to its constituents.

To sum up... Yes, I do think we are fortunate to live in this great town for it is a good town with good people and I hope we never become so complacent that any one individual can start to "run our town".

F. LEE CORNELISON

Writer's Note:
I wrote the above letter on July 9, 1984, the day before the front page story relating the sorrow of the mayor and director of public works that they had not foreseen the anger of some citizens when their (citizens) driveways were

"corrected."
I know we are a minority who oppose the tactics by which this action was taken, but you know it is the minority who does everything. Certainly, it is the majority of the voters who decide actions, but you will find that the majority of the voters who vote are the minority of the voters who could vote.

Please let me say thank you to the crew who took out my pipe as I am convinced that mine needed to come out, just as there are larger pipes that need to be removed at the intersection of Duncan and 23rd St. Those are really hazardous to drivers and street equipment alike. I suggest everyone be careful of turning on that corner.

I especially like the way the crews drop the large pipes on your lawn when they take it out. It's a real boon to the turf.

You know, you can feed people anything you want, but thank God you can't always make them swallow it.

The culverts should go

Dear editor,

Those who know me are aware that I campaign for the beautification of our city in general and improvement of streets in particular.

The driveway culvert controversy has caused me to drive up and down our streets and try to determine what is best for the city.

Many of us have installed these culverts with the cooperation of the city. Have we made a mistake? I think so.

Some of the culverts are flattened and rusted into shards. They are unsightly. They slow or stop drainage, trap debris, and cause the growth of vegetation in the gutters. They hamper street maintenance, hasten street deterioration, and debilitate limited street funds (our taxes).

I regret that removal of the culverts work an undeniable hardship on some. For the greatest good, however, there is no doubt that the culverts should go.

Wall Street's eyes on Federal Reserve

NEW YORK (AP) — While the political spotlight turns to the Democratic convention this week, many Wall Streeters will be keeping an eye on the Federal Reserve.

The Fed's Open Market Committee meets Monday and Tuesday to consider what monetary policies to pursue in the months ahead.

Though no official report of any decisions the committee makes will be made until late August, investors in the stock and bond markets will be looking for earlier clues.

They may get some from the behavior of interest rates in the next several days. And they will be listening to the carefully chosen words of Paul Volcker, the Fed's chairman, when he testifies before Congress later this month.

By some measures, the Fed appears already to have achieved its mission of subduing inflation. Prices of many industrial commodities are depressed.

The government's Producer Price Index of finished goods has been unchanged for three straight months.

Yet there is widespread expectation in the financial world that the Fed will keep the brakes on expansion of credit, or even step down on them a bit harder.

"So the guessing game begins," said Deborah Johnson at the investment firm of Prudential-Bache Securities. "Will the Fed tighten? Will the committee vote to hike the discount rate to 9.5 percent?"

"Our answer to both these questions is yes. Apparently the current level of interest rates isn't high enough to dampen economic activity. We believe this leaves the Fed no alternative but to tighten."

Henry Kaufman, Salomon Brothers Inc.'s chief economist, said Friday that "no dramatic decision" was likely. He described the Fed's likely approach as one of "caution."

Meanwhile, in the past week as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.70 to 1,109.87. The New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 82 to 87.08, and the American Stock exchange market value index was down 3.70 at 193.52. Big Board volume averaged 79.98 million shares a day, up from 67.78 million the week before.

Amid all the pervasive concern about Fed policy and interest rates, some optimistic voices still can be heard on Wall Street.

"Many, perhaps most, stocks are 'cheap,' measured by just about any standards we have used in the past," contended Heinz H. Biel at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc.

William Kent at Philips, Appel & Walden Inc. predicts a rise in the Dow Jones industrial average to at least 1,250 within the next 12 months.

His argument: "Pessimism is rampant. This extraordinary negativism means that the bearish fundamentals have been largely discounted. The insiders of listed companies have been buying for three months...."

"If you believe the Fed will overdo any tightening and jeopardize President Reagan's November chances, you believe in the tooth fairy."

Biting the wrong hand

Dear Editor

Regarding the problem that taxpayers have in the City Engineering Department: Why is it that when one gets a feather in his hat, he thinks he is Solomon. Whoever is responsible for this Johnny - come - lately needs to take a second look at his hole card and reconsider until he has matured and his ego is under control.

Most affected taxpayers were paying taxes before he was born so why bite the hand that feeds you.

MADD activities defended

Dear editor,

This letter is in response to Mr. Larry Jones. The first point I would like to clear is that MADD is not a bunch of women prohibitionists. MADD does not oppose drinking - unless the drinker intends to drive. Then the drunk driver becomes everyone's problem. The MADD organization is composed of men, women and students that are very concerned about drunk driving.

There are 9,000 teen - agers killed in drunk driving auto related crashes every year, that approximately 246 teen - agers dying per year. If someone was killing 246 teens every day, would there not be a loud outcry for someone to put a stop to it? I feel very fortunate that our Federal Government thinks enough of the people of the U.S. to make laws to keep us and our children alive.

As for the money and audience that Candy Lightner thrives on, her traveling and speaking are at her own expense, and I'm very thankful that she has an audience, for that's what has made the public aware of this tragedy - "Socially Accepted Murder" called drunk driving.

If the MADD organization had

Can't make us swallow

Dear Editor,

You know, many good and beautiful things happen in Pampa every day and I often think I'll take the time to comment on them in a formal sort of way, i.e. this letter. But you know what usually happens; I just don't get around to it.

There are friendly citizens who will smile, wave and encourage each other on their daily trek getting to work, getting to school or just getting along.

There is the prospering economy for which we are all grateful. (What town wouldn't like to make that statement and know it was true? New industry and new people coming here all the time.

And there are the churches and civic groups that are absolutely too numerous to mention. I don't mean groups that meet on Tuesday and to home... I mean organizations that are constantly striving to achieve goals aimed at helping the ingredient, the incapacitated and the wayward.

Who would deny that Pampa,

Texas has the most beautiful sky and breathtaking sunsets in the world? No one visits the parks of Pampa without commenting on their potential as one of the most beautiful in West Texas.

Pampa and this area is probably blessed with more philanthropists per capita than any other similar area in the country. So many people who have become financially successful and still chose to live here because they love it. And they don't just stay here, they invest in the land, the churches, the clubs, the charities. And if that isn't enough they then give a lot of their money away to help other people become successful thru scholarships, grants, etc.

Oh, we should be proud to be Pampa Americans.

We should be proud of our heritage here and work to make it stronger and better.

When we are confronted with a distasteful act, such as the recent ripping up of the driveway pipes, I feel proud that the citizens affected

Jacksons draw crowd

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Rock superstar Michael Jackson and his brothers kicked off their weekend "Victory Tour" at Texas Stadium with screams from more than 39,000 loyal and enthusiastic fans and an unexpected appearance by fellow rocker Eddie Van Halen.

Jackson, wearing a white-sequined coat and black pants, rose from the bowels of the giant stage Friday night with his brothers and made a rhythmic entrance amid a halo of red and green laserbeams and blinding white lights.

The group played for 1 hour, 45 minutes, and at the end, Jackson's fine, curly hair was limp with perspiration.

One crowd favorite, "Beat It," was marked by an impromptu walk-on by Van Halen, who was in Dallas for a concert of his own Saturday night.

The audience, many of whom had been waiting for five hours in 90-degree heat at the semi-domed Texas Stadium, got a look at Van Halen, lead guitarist of the heavy metal band of the same name, when he walked across the stadium floor before the Jackson extravaganza.

The Jacksons also won over one of their chief critics.

Ladonna Jones, 11, whose criticism led Jackson to order changes in the tour's ticket-buying procedure, got a kiss on the left cheek and a hug from the singer when she met him backstage for a few minutes before the opening act of the Jacksons' second tour stop.

The Lewisville sixth-grader had written a heart-tugging letter to Jackson, her idol, complaining about the high price of tickets.

"It was great," a beaming Ladonna said when it was all over.

"'Billie Jean' was my favorite," PepsiCo Inc. four promoters, gave Ladonna four concert tickets which the youngster thought were on the front row but instead were in Section 1, Row 28.

"I thought the seats were on the front by the maps," said Ladonna's mother, Marie Martinez.

Many fans drove long distances to see and hear their idol.

"It wasn't long enough. No matter how long he played, it wouldn't be enough. I'd want him to go on forever," said Lisa Harris, 25, who paid $125 for her ticket, drove 10 hours from Corpus Christi and wore a white glove on her hand — a copy of Michael's trademark.

As in last week's Kansas City appearance, Jackson and his brothers Jermaine, Tito, Marlon and Randy opened with rowdy, upbeat songs.

Couple is charged in infant's slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police returned Saturday from Oklahoma with a man and a 15-year-old girl charged in the shooting death of a 2-year-old boy who authorities allege was used as a shield from a gunman.

Sgt. Carl Kent, one of two homicide officers who made the arrest in Slick, Okla., said Houston police were questioning Lloyd Daniel Reecem, 32, about the slaying of Shaun Givens.

Police said the child was playing in the yard of his northeast Houston home Monday evening when a gunman chasing a woman ran past. A bullet that grazed the teen-ager's hand and struck the toddler in the right side, piercing his heart, said Sgt. D.B. Osterberg, who accompanied Kent to Oklahoma.

The boy was dead on arrival at Ben Taub Hospital. The woman told two police officers the child had been run over in an accident and as a consequence, the officers did not detain her at the scene, Police Chief Lee Brown said.

"We're in the process of talking to the man right now," Kent said Saturday after returning to Houston on a Continental Airlines flight.

Reece is charged with murder in the death.

Police were surprised to find hospital records in Oklahoma showing the girl, Edna Denise Cole, was only 15 and not 22 as they had believed.

Records in the Harris County district attorney's office show her birthdate as Aug. 1, 1961. Charges of evading arrest and prostitution were filed against her early this year but were dropped, said a clerk who declined to give her name.

Kent said Ms. Cole had been turned over to juvenile authorities.

Yugoslavia train collision kills 36

DIVACA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A freight train smashed into the rear of an idling holiday express to the Adriatic coast Saturday, killing 36 people, according to a state radio broadcast.

There were about 1,500 people on the overnight passenger train, the official Tanjug news agency said. It quoted railway station officials as saying all those killed were Yugoslavs.

The "death toll rose to 36," said the unattributed radio report. Earlier, Investigative Judge Tine Rozanc told reporters at least 30 had been killed.

The radio did not specify whether more bodies were discovered on the scene or if some victims in hospital had succumbed to injuries.

Tanjug said 24 people were hospitalized, some in serious condition. Officials said most of the passengers were young Yugoslavs, heading south on the first weekend of the peak vacation season.

The accident at this village about 15 miles south of the Italian border city of Trieste occurred at 6:10 a.m.

The freight train, moving at about 37 mph, plowed into the 14-car express stopped on a shunting rail, derailing and heavily damaging the last three cars, according to Tanjug.

The freight train engineer was held while investigators tried to find out if he failed to respond to a flashing stop signal or if the device malfunctioned, said Tanjug. It said the freight train began braking only about 15 yards before collision.

"All of a sudden there was a terrible crash," passenger Vera Milojevic, 41, told Tanjug. "Coaches started to break and steel to crack."

"A girl fell into my arms; she did not survive."

Her own injuries were reported as minor.

Zdenka Milojevic, identified by Tanjug as her niece, said: "The only thing I remember is cries of help, then weeping, then smoke."

Judge Rozanc said most of the dead were in the heavily battered last unit, subdivided into freight and passenger compartments.

Of the injured, 17 were hospitalized in nearby Isola. Dr. Mario Gasparini, a surgeon at the hospital in the town near the Italian border, told reporters many had "serious injuries of the extremities."

The express was heading from Belgrade, capital of this Balkan nation, to the Adriatic seaside resort town of Koper and then on to Pula, another coastal community about 50 miles south of here.

The section remained closed to traffic at sundown, with cleanup work not expected to be completed before midnight, according to Tanjug. Heavy equipment was removing the wreckage.

It was the worst postwar rail accident in the Yugoslav republic of Slovenia, Tanjug said. The Slovenian railway company estimated damage at about $442,000, and said 16 freight cars were damaged, 10 beyond repair.

"SOME GREAT THING"

"And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? How much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean?" (2 Kings 5:13.) Naaman was a captain in the Syrian army. He was a great and honorable man. Yet, he was a leper. The dreaded disease, then, was considered virtually incurable. Those afflicted with it were willing to try just about anything to be rid of it. An Israelite maiden informed Naaman's wife that there was a prophet in Israel who could heal Naaman of his leprosy. When Naaman heard of it, he left for Israel with gifts of money and clothing. He finally came to the House of Elisha the prophet (v. 9).

Elisha sent his messenger to Naaman and told him to "Go and wash in the Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean." (2 Kings 5:10.) Naaman was angry because he thought the prophet would come out, call on the name of his God and wave his hand over the leprosy and he would be clean. Further, he considered the rivers of Damascus far better than the Jordan.

It seems the simplicity of the commands to be cleansed were beyond Naaman's comprehension. He, like many today, had his own ideas as to how God ought to do things. He was about to leave when he was persuaded to do what the prophet told him to do. When he did, he was cleansed of his leprosy. We note that it was only when he did everything required of him that he was cleansed. This is a valuable lesson for us today. Not only must we do what the Lord commands, we must do everything He commands.

Many question the commands of God, such as baptism for the remission of sins. Perhaps, they, like Naaman, are expecting some "great thing" such as a miraculous working in order to their salvation. When we seek salvation from God, let us be of a mind to simply do what He tells us to do with no questions or misgivings. Billy T. Jones

India gives government more power

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government, troubled by Sikh unrest in Punjab and insurgency in northeastern India, gave itself sweeping powers Saturday to declare areas "terrorist affected" and set up special courts.

An ordinance signed by President Zail Singh said the powers were designed to cope with security "in certain parts" of India where terrorist actions have made "peaceful and proper conduct of court work extremely difficult."

The special act applies to the whole country except the northern Himalayan state of Kashmir.

Under the new ordinance, the government has the power to declare any area terrorist affected for up to six months, and set up special courts there to try "specified offenses which are very heinous in nature and impinge on the security and territorial integrity of the country."

The offenses include "waging war against the state, abetting mutiny, promoting enmity between classes and assertions or imputations prejudicial to national integrity."

The act was believed part of India's efforts to deal with unrest in Punjab state following the army's assault on the Golden Temple in Amritsar last month, and growing insurgent activity in the remote northeastern state of Tripura.

HOW TO USE COUPONS

- Be sure to bring your coupon book with you when you shop. If you did not receive a book, come to our credit office in each store and you will be given a complete book.
- Select as many coupon items as you wish in each department. Be sure to get enough the first time, as you can only use the coupon once.
- Present the corresponding coupon side and the savings stated will be deducted from your coupon purchase. When the first coupon side is used, the sales person must initial it. When the second side is used, the coupon must be surrendered.

PLEASE REMEMBER...

- Quantities of merchandise for this sale limited to stock on hand. Sorry, we cannot fill mail or phone orders.
- Catalog merchandise is not eligible for discount coupon.
- Only purchases made with a coupon will receive the additional coupon book saving.
- Hold onto your book; its savings are just for you.

Suzanne Rogers plays Maggie on "Days of Our Lives."

Suzanne Rogers enjoyed the west coast and following the Los Angeles run of "Follies." Rogers decided to move there from New York and pursue an acting career. She got an agent and the role of Maggie Horton on "Days of Our Lives," a newly introduced character who was permanently disabled and required crutches to walk. Sophisticated, sympathetic and solid, Rogers' Maggie established an immediate empathy with the series' audience and became one of the show's most popular characters.

Recap - 7/9 - 7/13
Previews 7/16 - 7/20

GENERAL HOSPITAL-- Andrews is sentenced to 15 years with no chance for parole until he serves 7 years. Celia is disturbed and takes off to be alone. Jimmy Lee rescues a drunken Celia from the Bucket of Blood, the next morning Jimmy Lee and Celia make love. Later, she regrets it. Allister tells Beatrice he's on the lam. Unknown, Holly invites him to stay with her and Scorpio. Beatrice is seemingly in pain after an accident following Edward's attempt to fire her.

THIS WEEK: Brock plans a party. Claudia waits for test results.
ONE LIFE TO LIVE-- Willard is killed when the bomb explodes. Bo hides out at Vicki's place. Joy is saved from drowning and later hears a familiar voice talking with Clint. DiDi plans to go to Japan with Mark now that he's agreed to get a divorce. Ed comes to the conclusion that Willard's murderer was out to destroy the factory - not kill Willard. Courtney plays up to Ed to aggravate Carla. Danny tells Laurel he knows she was a hooker. She tells him he doesn't have his facts straight.

THIS WEEK: Laurel gets tough with Makana. Joy is confused.

ALL MY CHILDREN-- Brooke leaves town to have her baby. Adam saves Erica from Stuart strangling her. Erica demands Adam to put Stuart away. Erica gets into a slapping match with Joanna when she tries to fire her. Mike gets impatient with Erica and threatens to go back to New York. Zach moves back in with Donna. Tom wants to join Alcoholics Anonymous. Jessie is concerned with the loan shark.

THIS WEEK: Erica tries to have her cake and eat it too. Jessie and Angie talk about their problems.
ANOTHER WORLD-- Felicia and Cecile are arrested while trying to get information on Royal's patients. Cecile, however is able to get a list anyway. Cass has to bail them out. Ross plans to kill Sally but make it look like an accident. Liz falls into the trap, however, and has to be rushed to the hospital with Kevin. Mark and Alice spend their night together. Catlin tries to escape but M.J. orders him to freeze.

THIS WEEK: Alice is troubled. M.J. has second thoughts.

EDGE OF NIGHT-- Logan takes Jamey and tells Raven the only way she can get him back is to reconcile with Logan. Del sees Kritch leave with a gun. Dave climbs through the fire escape to steal the formula from Geraldine's safe. Sky is on his way up the elevator. While Gunther is on his way up the fire stairs and Raven is on her way downstairs. Del tells Preacher he was recruited for a con but now wants out. DiDi won't take Raven's custody fight to court because she can't prove that Logan is an unfit father.

THIS WEEK: A shocking event takes place. Preacher wonders about Del.
GUIDING LIGHT-- Rick and Philip move in together. Maureen tells Jim he has no right to stay in the lab. Lujack pretends to return to the gang so he can find out who's out to get Beth and Alexandria. Darcy gets a gun. Claire agrees to be Josh's private physician. Jonathan plans to live with the Chamberlains. Annabelle senses a cold spot in the bedroom. Mike senses something is wrong with the cottage.

THIS WEEK: Beth is confused by Lujack's actions. Hillary worries about Jim's next move.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS-- Jack, suspicious about the marriage of his little sister, talks to Cricket. Cricket promised Danny not to say anything about Traci's attempted suicide, so she doesn't tell Jack anything. Tim goes to Danny's apartment and finds Traci. Marc apologizes to Jill for any inconvenience he has caused her by bringing to light the invalidity of John's and Diane's divorce. Danny tells Tim that he and Traci are married. Tim leaves a beaten man. Danny admits to Traci that he feels pretty empty after having told Patty he is now married. Just as Nikki and Victor are about to leave for the airport, Kay arrives with the news that the doctor ran some tests on Cora and she is dying of cancer. Victor is in shock by the news and immediately postpones the European trip.

THIS WEEK: Victor puts aside his differences. Traci feels guilty.

CAPITOL-- Zed seeks revenge but Maggie's out to stop him. Wally tries to get Brenda's attention. Clarissa and Mark make tentative plans. Jordy sidesteps Beth's questions. Scotty's birthright is in jeopardy.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW-- Once again impressed by his ability, Liza offers Cord a position at T.I. While seemingly reluctant, he records the proposal on tape. Lloyd learns that his mistrust of Cord is unfounded. Chase confronts Adair about her sudden departure from school, made possible by his loan of one thousand dollars. Justine overhears. Liza finally breaks down over Travis' death. Cord consoles her, but it is T.R., who opens the window to her feelings of love again. Chase seduces Wendy and gets her to do another favor. While Suzi waits for Cagney to show up, Justine tries to walk, unable, she becomes hysterical. Cagney cannot leave her. Sunny's first most eligible bachelor turns out to be a hero of Hogan's.

THIS WEEK: Suzi realizes how Justine operates. Liza relies heavily on Cord.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES-- Melissa begins to tell the truth to Abe: that Pete shot her father. But at the last moment, she simply can't do it. Alice is miserable and wants to tell Bo all about Hope and the phoney marriage and pregnancy, but Bo forces the truth out of Marie learning that Hope is having a child. Abe gets on Bo's case about having no job and having turned down Maxwell Hathaway. Mickey will not see Abe or anyone, saying he is thinking things over, and it begins to sound pretty strange. Pete feels hopeless, knowing that someone will accuse him soon of the shooting.

THIS WEEK: Bo mends his broken heart with Megan. Alice is very upset.

AS THE WORLD TURNS-- Jay pulls back from making love to Frannie, insisting that she take time to think about making such a big commitment. She loves him all the more for his amazing self-restraint. Steve is infuriated to learn the negative is missing from Brian's lab. He vows to find out who is getting the jump on his every move. Frank tells Steve what he discovered at the prison. In spite of the fact that the FBI file said Michael Christopher has been dead for ten years, and in spite of the fact that there's no record of his ever having been an inmate at Davis State, the guard remembers Michael very well. Steve is stunned. Diana tells Frank she wants to pay him back for being so good to her. She says she wants to get an annulment. Steve shows up at Davis State in disguise, on the pretext of being an accountant who's going to go over the books. Jason reads to Betsy, who has another dream of Steve.

THIS WEEK: Maggie enjoys being a mother. Steve is in danger.

RYAN'S HOPE-- Maggie almost gets caught by Hutch as she returns the stolen tape. Max still trusts Maggie. Roger agrees to back up Delia's story if she helps in his plans for Maggie. Jacqueline finds Prince, dead in the surveillance room. Roger follows Delia to Steve's apartment and is suspicious when she tells him she only uses the apartment for painting. Max warns Maggie to always be honest with him.

THIS WEEK: Jill is still being pressured by Max. Delia is under suspicion.

Postmaster threw away mail, wanted to save time

FAIRFIELD, Texas (AP) — A postmaster who was placed on administrative leave after admitting he threw away hundreds of magazines because he wanted to save time admits he did something wrong — but doesn't think he should be fired for it.

Ronnie Powell, who has 19 years with the postal service and has been postmaster in this East Texas community for the past two years, vowed to appeal the action.

"I'm going to try to save my job," said Powell. "I don't know if there's any chance or not."

Powell had earlier been the subject of a postal service investigation. Jack Johns, sectional service manager, said Thursday. He said Powell will be fired at the end of the leave if the appeal is denied.

Johns said the magazines thrown away had incorrect addresses and should have been returned to the publishers.

"The only reason I did it ... is that there was lots and lots of pressure" in the job, Powell said in a telephone interview from his Fairfield home.

Arkansas calendar packed with variety of festivals

By LINDA FRANKLIN
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — It used to be easy for the travel writers in the Arkansas Parks and Tourism Department to tick off the upcoming festivals. Not any more.

"All of a sudden, everybody, even the smallest towns are wanting to have a festival," travel writer Kerry Kraus said in a recent telephone interview.

There's the old reliables — the Bradley County Pink Tomato Festival in Warren, the Peach Festival in Johnson County, the Grape Festival in Tontitown, the Turkey Trot Festival in Yellville and War Eagle Fair at War Eagle Mills.

Now, there's Toad Suck Daze in Conway, the Watermelon Festival in Hope, the Brickfest in Malvern, the Mosquito Fest in Stuttgart and Ding Dong Days in Dumas.

The festivals mean camaraderie for the people, civic pride for the towns and tourist dollars for the state.

Charles McLemore, director of research for the parks department, said a 1980 study done by the University of Arkansas of the War Eagle Fair showed an overall economic impact of $6 million in the area. The average expenditure was $167.80.

The department sometimes conducts surveys on state highways. McLemore said 1 to 2 percent of those questioned mention arts and crafts fairs as part of the reason for the trip. The people queried travel at least 200 miles roundtrip or are on an overnight trip, he said. The percentage is substantial if you apply it to the 14 million tourists the state has each year.

Miss Kraus said the number of festivals seemed to mushroom during the past few years. "It's a good way to get everybody involved," she said. They say they have a nice town and want other people to know about it, she said.

"We've had calls from people who say 'Can you tell us a weekend that maybe isn't heavily booked in other cities?'" she said. Festivals are most numerous in the spring and fall.

Arkansas also has a one-man promoter in Dennis Schick of the Arkansas Press Association. He preaches festivals every chance he gets, using a newsletter to prod, prompt and nag newspapers to push festivals in their towns.

'There was no light at end of the tunnel'

NORTHPORT, N.Y. (AP) — At 12, Richard Kasso Jr. was an athlete, getting up at dawn to play football with friends. Then his life took an abrupt turn into drugs, and at age 17 he committed suicide in a jail cell, charged with a satanic ritual killing.

"He wanted to die," said his father, Richard Sr. "He was 40 pounds underweight, had slurred speech, no short memory, and all I thought about was drugs and rock music."

"About a year ago, we realized that whatever we had once in our son, we were never going to get it back," Kasso said in an interview Friday. "There was no light at the end of the tunnel."

Ricky frequently talked about suicide, his father said. Last summer he told a relative: "I think suicide would be the ultimate high — then I would be at total peace."

Ricky hanged himself with a bedsheet in a jail cell on July 6, one day after he was arrested and charged with killing 17-year-old Gary Lauwers.

Lauwers was tortured for three hours last month, stabbed 17 times and forced to say "I love you Satan" before his eyes were gouged out next to a bonfire. Police said he was killed because $100 worth of PCP, the drug called angel dust, had been stolen from young Kasso.

Ricky's friend James Troiano, 18, was charged with second-degree murder, accused of holding Lauwers while he was being stabbed.

Over the last three years, police in this seaside town of 7,500 on Long Island have found the remains of

'Triple play' by economy

By The Associated Press

Bolstered by reports showing moderate increases in both retail sales and industrial production, along with an easing of inflation to an annual rate of just 2.8 percent, President Reagan said the nation's robust economy had earned "a triple play."

In Detroit, meanwhile, the nation's automakers Friday posted a healthy 32 percent gain in sales for early July over last year — the best showing for the period in six years.

Meeting in Washington with a group of Republican women office-holders Friday, Reagan said, "This morning's news looks like America hit the jackpot. We've made a triple play."

"Industrial production in June was up," he said. "Retail sales in June were up. And producer prices were unchanged for the third month in a row — zero point zero."

The Labor Department's report on the Producer Price Index for finished goods — a benchmark for measuring inflation on the wholesale level — showed no increases in the April-June period, easing the overall inflation rate to an annual pace of 2.8 percent.

According to the report, food prices declined 0.6 percent in June — the third consecutive monthly decline — while gasoline prices dropped 0.7 percent due to a worldwide petroleum glut.

Over the past 12 months, wholesale prices have risen just 2.2 percent — well below the maximum 5 percent forecast by economic analysts.

The sales increase was ahead of the 0.5 percent rise in May but well under the strong 3.5 percent gain in April.

charred or tortured animals, apparent victims of sacrificial slaughter. Some graves were dug up.

"We thought they were isolated incidents," said William Keahon, chief of the major offense bureau for the Suffolk County District Attorney. "We now suspect that it is a group of young kids in the area, loosely organized under the name Knights of the Black Circle, who is responsible."

He said Kasso was an influence in the group of about 20 teen-agers.

Half of the cult members "don't have any idea who the devil is supposed to be. ... It was a way for them to feel important," said the Rev. Graham Walworth, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal Church.

He called their way of life "a form of revolution, a rejection against the standards their parents represent. ... We give our young people everything that is essential except a meaning for life."

Kasso, a teacher and football coach at Cold Spring Harbor High School, said he and his wife could be characterized as "over-achievers," but that as parents they were "not hard-nosed."

He recalled that once when his son was failing in school he told him to get on the ball.

"He said to me, 'You know Dad, you expect me to be perfect just because you're a teacher and a coach,'" Kasso said. "I told him, 'No, I don't, but I expect you to pass.' He might have thought he couldn't meet our expectations."

Blond, blue-eyed Ricky started experimenting with drugs at 12.

"I love doing drugs," his father recalled Ricky saying. "I know it will kill me but it's my life and I'm responsible for it."

The Kassos said they tried to help their son, and attempted to admit him to a mental hospital. The hospital refused, saying he was not a serious danger to himself or society.

"We had a tremendous love for Ricky," Kasso said. "Right now we keep going at it, trying to see if there was anything we could have done. We are feeling very guilty."

Wranglers, Stars meet in 'Summer Bowl'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Philadelphia Stars and the Arizona Wranglers, teams of distinctly different personalities but remarkably similar styles, meet here Sunday night in what some are dubbing the Summer Bowl, the United States Football League's second championship.

The Wranglers, who had to win their last six games to get here, are coached by George Allen and are as typical an Allen team as you can find in a two-year-old league — old, older and oldest and led by a gray-haired quarterback, 37-year-old Greg Landry, and a defense that includes such veterans as Karl Lorch, Joe Ehrmann and Luther Bradley.

Philadelphia, on the other hand, is relatively young, with 26-year-old quarterback Chuck Fusina one of the old hands. And they are coached by little-known Jim Mora, the USFL's coach of the year, who guided them to a 16-2 regular season record and two playoff wins this year after a 15-3 record and a runnerup spot last year.

But both teams play the same style — run before pass, then rely on the defense to shut the other guys down. Arizona, in fact, led the USFL in defense; Philadelphia was second.

So the most likely result when the teams take the field at Tampa Stadium at 8 p.m. EDT (ABC-TV) is fireworks, but a lot of hitting.

The teams have met three times before with Philadelphia winning each time, including a 44-38 decision in overtime in last year's semifinals in which the Stars overcame a 21-point fourth quarter deficit. The Wranglers were the Chicago Blitz then, but the Stars beat them again as the Wranglers this year. Once more, it was a come-from-behind win, a 22-21 decision after the Stars trailed 21-6 in the third quarter. Both teams have excuses for that game — the Stars were without star running back Kelvin Bryant and the Wranglers claim they were cheated when films showed that Fusina was over the line of scrimmage on a key 60-yard completion that set up the winning touchdown.

"Normally, I'd say it would be tough beating a team so close to us in ability four times in a row because players sometimes subconsciously let down," says Mora. "But not in a game like this. You have no trouble getting a team up for a championship game."

Mora says he's most worried about Arizona's pass rush, which registered a league-leading 83 sacks.

Its leaders are unsung Kit Lathrop, who made it with the Wranglers after several cups of coffee in the National Football League and eight-year veteran John Lee.

Mora worries about them against the inexperienced men on the left side of his offensive line — second-year guard George Gilbert and first-year tackle Mike McClern, who will play if the injured veteran Brad Oates isn't ready.

"We can't put three men on Lathrop," says Mora. "George Gilbert is just going to have to block him. Our best bet is not to get into second and third and long — passing situations where they'll come flat out."

The 63-year-old Allen, who is also the Wranglers' chairman of the board, seemed in trouble when his team was 6-8 after 14 games and just about eliminated. But they won their last four games to qualify for the playoffs, then beat the Houston Gamblers 17-16 and the Los Angeles Express 35-23 to qualify for the final.

Allen says the main problem was the disorientation of the move from Chicago to Arizona — last year's Wranglers were swapped to Chicago. "We lost 20 players in the move for one reason or another and the other players had adjustments to make, like selling their houses and moving their families," Allen says.

Allen, whose NFL teams at Los Angeles and Washington were known for their special teams play, blames his losses to Philadelphia on the turnovers and poor special teams play and vows no repeats in the championship game.

"It will be decided by mistakes," he says. "Not just turnovers, but things like a holding penalty on a key pass completion or a clip on a punt return. Something like that."

Allen says his biggest worries are the condition of his starting cornerbacks, Frank Minnifield and Carl Allen, both nursing knee injuries. Allen is listed as probable but Minnifield is doubtful and the Wranglers expect Fusina to exploit his expected replacement, Lance Shields.

Still, both teams are expected to do what they've done best all season and that's run.

Philadelphia's attack is built around Bryant, the second-year man who was the league's Most Valuable Player last season, running behind another second-year man, tackle Irv Eatman. Bryant picked up 1,406 yards this year, second in the league with a 4.7 per carry average and 13 touchdowns. Fusina, meanwhile, scrambling and tossing short passes, topped the league's quarterbacks, completing 64.9 percent for 3,827 yards.

Landry, in his 16th pro season, was second among Western Conference quarterbacks, completing 63 percent of his passes for 3,534 yards although he was benched for several games in favor of second-year man Alan Risher.

The Wranglers also feature the game's only true deep receiving threat — Trumaine Johnson, third in the league with 90 catches for 1,268 yards.

But the key to the attack are its tandem rushers, Tim Spencer and Kevin Long, who last year rushed for more than 1,000 yards each and repeated that feat this year — Spencer led the Conference with 1,212 yards and Long had 1,010.

White, Alcott tied for U.S. Open lead

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — Veteran Donna White and former champion Amy Alcott conquered blistering heat, sun-baked greens and gusty winds to move into a tie for the 54-hole lead Saturday in the U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

White, a 30-year-old mother who underwent back surgery last October, equalled par 72 on the tricky 6,285-yard Salem Country Club course for a three-round total of 218, two over regulation.

Then Alcott, the 1980 U.S. Open champ, came charging home to pull into a tie with just one round left in the $225,000 event worth $36,000, plus a ton of endorsement money, to the winner.

Alcott, 28, surrendered the undisputed lead with a double bogey 6 on the 52nd hole, but bounced back with a birdie 4 on the next green. Then she sank a clutch putt on the 54th hole for a third round 73 to go with her previous 71 and 74 for 218.

Rosie Jones, 24, a former Ohio State star seeking her first victory on the women's pro tour, remained in close contention despite a 75. Jones had a 219, just one stroke off the pace.

However, Penny Pulz, who shared the halfway lead at 144 with Jones, ballooned to a 78 for a 54-hole score of 222.

Japan's Ayako Okamoto, winner of two LPGA tournaments this year, ran into trouble on the back nine and took her second 74 in a row for 220.

Only three players among the 62 survivors of the 36-hole cut bettered par. They were 1974 U.S. Open champion and LPGA Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie, who equalled the best score here so far with a 69; 1981 Open champion Pat Bradley, who had a 70; and defending champ Jan Stephenson, who bounced back from a second round 81 for a 71.

Haynie and Bradley were tied at 223, while Stephenson kept alive her title hopes at 224.

Two-time Open champion Hollis Stacy and Betsy King, starting two strokes off the lead, each carded 75 for 221.

Lori Garbacz moved up with a par 72, pulling into a tie with Pulz at 222.

LPGA Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth, winner of 84 tournaments but never the U.S. Open, had a 75 for 223. That tied her with Haynie, Bradley and Cathy Marino, who had a 73.

Patty Sheehan, the LPGA champion the last two years and the leading money winner in 1984, carded a third-round 74. That moved her into a tie at 224 with Stephenson, Heather Drew and Patti Rizzo. Drew had a 76 and Rizzo a 78.

Wood leads Busch Golf Tournament by four strokes

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Willie Wood, the front-running rookie who has led since the first round, shot a 5-under-par 66 Saturday to set another seasonal mark and expand his lead to four strokes after the third round of the $350,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

The slightly-built Wood, 5-foot-7 and 135 pounds, completed three trips over the 6,746-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course in 197, 16 under par and the lowest 54-hole total on the PGA Tour this year.

Wood also set the seasonal mark of 131 for 36 holes after Friday's play.

Only his two playing companions on this juggy day on the banks of the James River, Wayne Levi and host pro Curtis Strange, could stay within striking distance of Wood, the low qualifier in last year's PGA Tour Qualifying School.

Levi, winner of six career titles, scattered seven birdies across his card in round of 68 and finished 54 holes at 201, including a bogey on the final hole after the national television cameras had ended coverage.

Strange, whose home is on this golf course, bogeyed the first three holes, but rallied with an eagle and three birdies for a 69 and 202 total.

Ronnie Black was next at 66-204. Lanny Wadkins, Mike Reid and Gary Hallberg followed at 205, a distant eight shots off the pace.

Wood, with rounds of 63, 68 and 65 has led by margins of two, two and four strokes in the chase for the first title of his short career.

Nationals blanked by High Plains

The Pampa Nationals were blanked by High Plains West, 3-0, Friday in the Area Little League Baseball Tournament at Claude.

High Plains pitcher Tim Davis held Pampa to just three hits, two by Matt Brock, who had a single and double. Ryan Teague had Pampa's other hit, a single.

High Plains scored one run in the second inning and two in the fifth. Barry Coffee pitched the entire game for the Nationals.

Pampa Youth Center to offer swimming, aerobic courses

Pampa Youth Center is offering swim lessons for both youngsters (6 months & older) and adults, and also an aerobic water class for both men and women starting next month. These courses will be held Monday through Thursday from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. for the first three weeks of every month. Cost of the course is $20 per person.

Non-members will be charged one dollar daily for use of the pool. The center will also have a baby sitter on duty with a charge of $50 cents per child daily.

In September, the Youth Center will offer an arthritis program and a physical therapy program. For further information on the courses, contact swimming instructor Linda Longo at 665-0212.

Cowboys release 17 rookies

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Seventeen rookie free agents were released on waivers Friday from the Dallas Cowboys training camp.

They are: Mike Castleberry, linebacker, Arkansas; Joey Charles, running back, Montana; Ricky Edwards, running back, Northwestern; Mark Fleetwood, kicker, South Carolina; Reggie Hines, tight end, Westchester State; Ron Horton, wide receiver, Wichita State; Kevin Jelden, kicker, Northern Colorado. Also released on waivers were: Joe Maida, safety, Westchester State; Richard Mansfield, tight end, Central Washington; Larry Michael, tight end, Washington; Dragan Mustac, punter, Saint Peter's; Steve Newberry, safety, West Virginia; Michael Newton, quarterback, Notre Dame; Eliot Tabron, wide receiver, Michigan State; Bill Thomas, guard, Cincinnati; and Stanley Trice, wide receiver, Murray State.

Switzer charged with drunken driving, vows to change ways

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — University of Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer, arrested on a complaint of driving under the influence of alcohol, vows he's learned a lesson from the experience.

"What I am going to do is take a minus and make it a plus," Switzer told The Oklahoman when contacted about the incident. "I've got to make this a plus and make sure it never happens again."

Switzer's arrest occurred at 12:20 a.m. Friday on Interstate 44 near the state Fairgrounds just west of downtown Oklahoma City, said police spokesman Detective Bill Hanneman.

The arrest came during an off-season in which the school's regents, for the first time, failed to add a year's extension onto Switzer's five-year contract, which means it will lapse at the end of the 1987 season.

Switzer also successfully defended himself in federal court recently against a securities lawsuit.

Switzer still sports one of the nation's highest winning percentages despite three consecutive four-loss seasons. In a statement released by the University of Oklahoma sports information office, Switzer said he and a companion were returning from an anniversary dinner party "when I was stopped for straddling the center line too long after passing another vehicle."

Switzer, 46, who listed a Norman address, was arrested on complaints of driving under the influence, first offense, and

White Sox edge Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Julio Cruz and Harold Baines homered for two of the three hits off Mike Flanagan, and Tom Seaver won the pitchers' duel by hurling the Chicago White Sox to a 3-2 edge over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday.

Seaver, 8-6, yielded seven hits, walking one and striking out seven. He retired 11 in a row until John Lowenstein homered in the ninth. Baines hit a homer in the fourth to snap a 1-1 tie.

The switch-hitting Cruz, batting .200, sliced his homer in the third after Flanagan, 9-7, had retired the first eight Chicago batters.

Flanagan had retired 13 in a row when Carlton Fisk led off the ninth with a single, and the White Sox eked out the game winner on a fielder's choice grounder by Dave Stegman.

Baltimore was safe after an attempted sacrifice was bobbled by third baseman Wayne Gross, and Fisk was forced at third on Ron Kittle's bunt. A wild pitch moved the runners ahead, and Greg Luzinski walked to load the bases. Baines scored when Stegman grounded out.

The Orioles chalked their first run in the third for a tie. Floyd Rayford opened with a single and moved to second when Al Bumby singled. Both advanced on a sacrifice by Jim Dwyer. Rayford scored as Cal Ripkin Jr. grounded out to shortstop Scott Fletcher.

Oilers face new system as training camp opens

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers will report to training camp this week to face a new system, new head coach and new coaching staff but there should be no added confusion among the veterans who check in Friday.

Isn't this the way all Oiler training camps begin? For the Oilers in recent years, transition has been the norm.

The Oilers started last season with Ed Biles as head coach, finished with a 2-14 record and Chuck Studley at the helm and begin anew under Hugh Campbell Wednesday when rookies report to the campus of Angelo State University in San Angelo.

"The hard part in a period of transition is to have the lines of communication open so that everybody knows what is expected of him," said Campbell, the Oilers' 12th coach in the franchise's 24-year history. "We've been impressed with the amount of people working out on their own and getting ready."

"If the sampling of the team that is here in town is true of the team as a whole, their conditioning will be such that our main efforts will be toward the education experience of training camp rather than the conditioning aspects."

The new hope for a better season lies in the arrival of quarterback Warren Moon, making his National Football League debut after playing for Campbell in the Canadian Football League.

Another new face will be former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Butch Johnson, traded to the Oilers in the offseason for wide receiver Mike Renfro. Johnson had his best season as a Cowboy last season with 41 catches.

The rookie crop is headed by Nebraska offensive lineman Dean Steinkuhler, the second player chosen in the NFL draft.

Running back Earl Campbell also returns, happy that his contract squabbles are behind him. Campbell and receiver Tim Smith gave the Oilers their first rushing-receiving 1,000-yard performances last season.

Defensive end Doug Smith of Auburn and defensive back Bo Eason of California-Davis had not signed their contracts going into the weekend and could be late shows.

Campbell said he was working both sides of the negotiating table to get all players signed.

"The actual truth behind the scenes is I am hammering at (General Manager) Ladd (Herzog) to get them signed and I'm hammering at the players to get them signed and in camp," Campbell said. "I'm taking both approaches."

The rookies will begin workouts twice on Thursday and the veterans will be in place for a pair of Saturday workouts. The Oilers will leave San Angelo July 25 for Greeley, Colo. where they will drill three days with the Denver Broncos.

"I think there is a couple of advantages there," Campbell said of the combined workouts. "It's just plain boredom. You get to go against somebody different. The other is the learning experience of going against people who have been taught other techniques."

The Oilers open preseason play at Tampa Bay Aug. 4. Their regular season opener will be in the Astrodome Sept. 2 against the Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders.

Pearson may not play

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Drew Pearson, the Dallas Cowboys' all-time leading receiver, probably will not be able to play this year because of a liver injury that threatens his early retirement, Coach Tom Landry said Friday.

Pearson said in Dallas Thursday that he had learned it could be fatal for him to play with the injury, which resulted from a March 22 auto accident that killed his brother and left Pearson with a small hole in his liver.

"The last time I spoke with Drew was in May, before my vacation, and at that time he wanted to play," Landry said at the Cowboys' training camp at California Lutheran College.

"But after talking to the doctors since that time, I didn't feel there was any chance he'd be healed enough to play this year," Landry said.

The heir apparent to Pearson's flanker position is Doug Donley, a fourth-year man from Ohio State who ranks just behind Tony Dorset as the fastest player on the National Football League team.

Pearson's physician, Dr. Lee Bourland, said that Pearson's liver injury "could rupture on impact and he could bleed to death before he gets to the hospital."

Bourland advised Pearson not to play until his liver heals and that could be mid-October at the earliest.

"The timing of this is going to be enough to keep him off the field this year," Bourland said.

Olympic cagers rout rugged NBA squad

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Pushed and shoved and hammered and hacked.

The U.S. Olympic basketball team got all it wanted Friday night in taking a 94-78 victory over an aggressive National Basketball Association team.

"That definitely was the most physical game we've played against them," said Olympic guard Alvin Robertson of Arkansas. "But that's really going to help us. We're going to have to play physical teams in the Olympics."

"That was tougher than any game I've played in except for the Chicago playgrounds," added Glenn Rivers of the Atlanta Hawks with a laugh.

There were 74 fouls called in the game, 36 against the U.S. team and 38 on the NBA squad.

Olympic Coach Bob Knight was assessed a technical foul early in the second half after arguing a charging call on Olympian guard Vern Fleming. He was a vocal participant from the sidelines the remainder of the game.

"People shouldn't be subjected to that kind of officiating," Knight said in a post-game news conference. "The officiating was horrendous tonight, but we should be prepared because that thing can happen in the Olympics."

The teams also nearly came to blows on two occasions in the final half.

Patrick Ewing, the center from NCAA champion Georgetown, squared off against Danny Schayes of the Denver Nuggets after bumping under the basket. They had to be separated by their teammates.

Rivers believes that Knight's rages at the referees will serve the Olympians well in the Games. "I think the refereeing tonight is typical of what they'll face in the Olympics," he said. Knight "keeps the referees nervous. He gets them to making the calls he wants."

The play, for the most part, was sloppy.

The NBA team, coached by Oscar Robertson, turned the ball over 34 times while the Olympians made 20 floor mistakes in the wide-open game.

The Olympians broke the game open midway through the final half, going on a 17-2 run, all from the free-throw line, to take a 79-58 lead with 5:21 to go. Robertson sank five free throws during the spurt.

The NBA team could get no closer than 90-76 on Rivers'

With Chris Mullin scoring 12 points, the U.S. team took a 41-34 lead at halftime. Mullin and Robertson hit two baskets apiece from the field during an 8-0 burst that gave the Olympians a 39-32 lead late in the half.

The Olympians hit only 26 of 59 shots for 44.1 percent while the NBA team was 24 of 64 for 37.5.

Quintin Dailey led the NBA team with 17 points, followed by Terry Cummings with 15 and Wes Matthews 13.

Mullin led the Olympic team with 18 points, while Robertson had 13, Michael Jordan 12 and Sam Perkins 10.

The Olympic squad has won all seven games it has played against professional players.

McEnroe, Fleming win Davis Cup doubles match

ATLANTA (AP) — John McEnroe and Peter Fleming turned back Jose-Luis Clerc and Martin Jaite 7-5 3-6, 6-3, 6-1 in doubles Saturday to clinch a U.S. victory over Argentina in a quarterfinal Davis Cup match.

In contrast to two singles matches Friday night, Saturday's contest became an emotional battle. McEnroe and Clerc argued at the net, and McEnroe became so enraged by two line calls he bellowed, "America" at the officials.

The doubles victory gave the Americans an insurmountable 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The match turned on a string of service breaks in the third set.

With the match even at one set each, the Americans broke Jaite to open the third set when the young Argentine netted a volley at 15-40.

But Fleming then dropped his own service on successive double faults.

Clerc then found himself serving a break point. He fended off two blistering groundstrokes from McEnroe before the American's third drive at him tipped the net cord and bounced over Clerc for a winner and a 2-1 U.S. lead.

Clerc returned the favor in the fourth game with a wide return on break point that McEnroe netted to even the set at 2-2.

At 3-3, Clerc lost his serve, missing wide with a high volley on break point.

This time, the Americans held the advantage. McEnroe held his serve and Jaite lost his service on a netted volley to lose the set 6-3.

The third set also featured a long verbal exchange between McEnroe and Clerc, bringing French referee Patrick Flodrops onto the court to restore order.

McEnroe apparently accused the Argentines of hitting at the Americans.

U.S. defeats Japan in Olympic baseball game

HOUSTON (AP) — John Marzano drove in three runs to lead the U.S. Olympic team to a 11-2 baseball victory over the Japanese Collegiate All-Stars Saturday in the Astrodome.

Don August, 3-0, a No. 1 draft choice of the Houston Astros, pitched five innings and gave up two Japanese runs while striking out both and walking three to record the win.

The victory extended the USA's record to 19-3-1 in its 32-game exhibition tour leading to the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

The USA took a 3-0 lead in the second on a walk to Marzano, a Gary Green single, a Barry Larkin two-run double and a sacrifice fly by Oddibe McDowell.

Marzano capped a three-run third with a two-run homer after Will Clark singled, stole second and advanced to third on catcher Shinji Hata's throwing error.

Step back 50 years or 50 million

A visit to the White Deer Land Museum

CLOTILLE THOMPSON, the museum's curator, works hand in hand with the future and the past in the offices of the White Deer Land Museum, 116 S. Cuyler.

Ring the bell to the White Deer Land Museum, 116 S. Cuyler, some afternoon and the door will open up to a time machine that will take the visitor back 50 years ... or 50 million years.

Curator Clotille Thompson or her assistant Mona Blanton will probably be the guides to the excursion, sparking the tour with tidbits of extra information and adding a dimension of life to the museum's pieces.

The White Deer Land Museum was the brain child of M. K. Brown with the help of his long-time secretary, Clotille Thompson. He was once an employee of the White Deer Land Company whose offices were housed in the building which holds the museum. The building was built in 1916. White Deer Lands, an English syndicate, was organized to sell the land in and around Pampa during the late 1800s.

Thompson and Brown worked to restore the building during the early 1960s. "We fought leaky plumbing, falling plaster and, oh, the cobwebs," she remembers. The 86-year-old Brown, however, died in a car accident in 1964. But before he died, he instructed his lawyers to allow Thompson to complete his plans for the museum.

The museum opened formally in 1970 with Thompson as its curator and run by Gray County after it was given to the county by the M. K. Brown Foundation.

"Mr. Brown came to Gray County from England with only a $100 in his pocket," Thompson explains. "All that he made here, he wanted to give back to the county. And that is what he has done."

But let's return to the tour...

Before entering the museum, visitors can find a mural on the wall of the adjacent building showing a view of Pampa's main street as it was in 1910. A quick look north down Cuyler gives the same view as it is today.

In the foyer are pictures on the wall of men who worked for, or owned, White Deer Lands. All have Pampa streets named for them. A portrait of Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Duncan, Pampa's first mayor and his wife, also look down from these walls. A mannekin in one corner wears turn of the century fashions once worn by the Duncan family women.

Waiting to be hung is a poster history of the Red River Expedition of 1852 which located the headwaters of the north fork of the Red River, six miles south of Pampa. Thompson says a historical marker, presented by the Pampa High School Class of 1948 and sponsored by the Gray County Historical Commission, is soon to be placed at the spot on Texas 70.

The parlor serves as a meeting place for local organizations. It once housed the city's post office and was used for the Catholic Church until they had a building.

Chandeliers in the room came from the First Baptist Church which burned about a decade ago. Artifacts, clothes and photos from Pampa's pioneers are displayed in this room.

The next room is a replica of a small chapel. Methodist Baptist and Christian denominations are represented. A painting on the south wall called The Garden Tomb was painted by the Rev. D.D. McSkimming, a Congregationalist

SATURDAY NIGHT BATH — This fellow may be a mannekin but he's still not happy about having to take a bath in the wash tub on Saturday night. His watchful mother wears a turn-of-the-century house dress in white cotton dotted with dainty cornflower blue posies.

EVERYTHING YOU NEED if you lived in the early 1900s can be found in the White Deer Land Museum's grocery store located in the upstairs section. A general store features clothing, antique toys, purses and jewelry. In the corner stands a tiny ice cream parlor.

ALMOST 150 YEARS of spinning has passed around the wheel of the spinning wheel built by the grandfather of David Marvin Jones. The wheel was built in 1837 in Chatooga County, Ga. Laying across the wheel, displayed in the museum's Sewing Room, is a coverlet handwoven in 1870 from thread spun on this wheel.

LOST ART. Many handsewn items shown in the museum's sewing room are lost, or almost lost, arts such as lace making and tatting. Many of the quilt designs shown here have yet to be identified, Mona Blanton, assistant curator said. Some of the sewing machines displayed date back to the 1850s.

Thompson-Rice

Margaret Ann Thompson became the bride of Charles Guard Rice Saturday, July 14, in an afternoon ceremony at the Highland Park United Methodist Church of Dallas. The Rev. J.B. Fowler of Amarillo and the Rev. Bill Smith, pastor, performed the wedding service.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy E. Thompson of Pampa are parents of the bride. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Rice of Silver Spring, Md.

Bridesmaids included Mary Sidwell Brown of San Angelo, Carol Tarpley Ray of Houston, Lindy Laycock Stone of Dallas and Kristin K. Reed of Dallas.

Groomsmen were John Colman III, Edmond Westbury, H.E. Hoxie and David Ware, all of Dallas. Ushers were Greg Rice, Gene Thompson and Dan Fiscus.

Musicians were James A. Thompson, the bride's brother and tenor soloist and Steven A. Newberry, organist.

A reception followed in the church's Great Hall with Barbara Rice, Barbara Mandell and Frankie Watt serving.

After a honeymoon trip to Durango, Colo., the couple plan to live in Dallas.

The bride holds a bachelor of science degree from Southwestern University in Georgetown. She is also a graduate of the Baylor School of Dental Hygiene. She is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority and is employed as a dental hygienist.

Rice holds bachelor of arts and master's of business administration degrees from the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, Ark. He is a member of the Blue Key and Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is employed as a financial planner with Pace Financial Management in Dallas.

Schulz-Qualls

Amber Dawn Schulz and Paul Eiland Qualls Jr. recited wedding vows in an evening service, June 28, in the Hill Chapel on the campus of West Texas State University in Canyon. Keith Feerer, minister of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Schulz of Pampa. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eiland Qualls Sr. of Plainview.

Attending the bride were Lyonia Miller of Pampa, the bride's sister, as maid of honor, and Kay Lutes of Canyon.

Groomsmen were Joel White of Gruver, best man, and Mike Carlson of Canyon.

Special wedding music was performed by vocalist Linda Hopper, the bride's sister, and Linda

Test may detect birth defects earlier

HOUSTON (AP) — A new prenatal test about to be analyzed by Baylor College of Medicine researchers is designed to detect birth defects about twice as early as other examinations.

The test, called chorionic villus sampling, is reported to detect many inherited disorders and chromosomal abnormalities by the eighth week of pregnancy, officials said.

Baylor is one of seven centers selected by the National Institute of Health to conduct the three-year study.

Dr. David Ledbetter said the conventional method of prenatal diagnosis, amniocentesis, could only be performed much later in a pregnancy.

The test involves inserting a catheter through the woman's cervix to obtain small samples of chorionic villi, which are coral-like structures covering the chorion, the membrane that surrounds the fetus.

"The biggest advantage of CVS is that we can start testing for genetic diseases two months earlier than with amniocentesis, allowing earlier decisions to be made on the care of the fetus and the mother," Ledbetter said.

Amniocentesis involves inserting a thin needle through a woman's abdominal wall to obtain fetal cells from the amniotic fluid surrounding the baby.

Sweet-Vazquez

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Sweet of Pampa announce the engagement of their daughter, Cassandra, to Leopoldo A. Vazquez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Vazquez of Veracruz, Mexico.

A wedding date of Sept. 1 has been set at the San Miguel Arcangel Church in Veracruz.

Miss Sweet is a graduate of Pampa High School and Texas Tech University of Lubbock. As a recipient of a Rotary International Fellowship, she studied at University Complutense of Madrid, Spain. She is employed by American General Insurance Company of Houston.

Vazquez is a graduate of the University of Veracruz, Mexico and the University of Houston. He is general manager of Atlantic Export and Import Company of Houston.

Beauty Digest

Cream benefits

The newer eye creams are lighter and softer, created to absorb easily into the thin, delicate skin around the eyes. Never pull on the skin there, but pat in the cream with the finger tips.

If daily use begins early in life, the appearance of lines will be slowed, but a cream can't make developed lines disappear. Avoid tanning the eye area, if possible, and use makeup to blend with facial tan to mask the resulting "owl" eyes.

ALICIA HERRERA DESIGNS INC.

The sleek long suede jacket over a straight skirt with pleated hemline is just one look in the Alicia Herrera Fall Collection reminiscent of the "Leisure Class" style of Paris in the Twenties.

"Sahara" jumpsuits, vests over turtleneck dresses, wrap coats in wool brocade and sultry nightclub dresses are also a part of this collection. A collection rich in fabrication and color...with dash and "up to the minute" sophistication.

"More and more women," Alicia says, "want to dress up, even with busy schedules either at home or the office. Women want to make each outfit they wear something special. To express themselves. In this collection, I wanted to give functional clothes on air of romance. I find the Twenties style of Paris very romantic and wanted to bring that influence to this line, while keeping it appropriate for today's lifestyle."

A look at the collection would deem that she has succeeded. The separates in wool jersey or suede are smart, dashing. Slipping from town to country easily. The dresses in jacquard or wool are graceful with an easy air.

Museum houses history

minister, after he had a vision during a severe illness.

Next stop is the Arrowhead Room, an extensive collection by Rolla J. Sailor. Thompson says it is considered to be one of the better collections in the Southwest. This room also holds the museum's most ancient artifacts, snail fossils found in New Mexico which are thought to be 50 million years old and a Folsom point that is about 10,000 years old. Also shown are items from old Fort Elliott near Mobeetie, the only Panhandle military fort.

A pioneer bedroom is displayed in the room following the Arrowhead room. A valuable antique quilt containing many stitches which are now lost art covers a feather mattress wrapped in handmade sheets on an antique bed. Old clothing, shoes and purses are stored in an armoire, and a wash bowl and three ivory dresser sets are displayed on the dresser.

The kitchen features a wood or coal burning stove with warming ovens and a water reservoir. The tools of housekeeping are also displayed — irons, ironing board, lard presses, churns, washing machines, coffee grinders and various cooking utensils. A howling youngster in his skivvies is about to step into a washtub helped by his mother dressed in a housedress of the period. Washing hangs on a line over the stove.

Even the museum's offices house history. Many of the desks are original furnishings of the office — a high desk for bookkeeping, a roll top desk and a double knee - hold desk. A secretary's desk used by

C.P. Buckler's can be found in the foyer.

A painting by Richard Thompson showing Pampa's depot built in 1905 located where Pampa Concrete Company now stands. Comparative historical events happening in the world, United States and Gray County are depicted on the History Wall painted by Jan Ragsdale on the north wall of the office. William J. Ragsdale wrote the commentary. The museum's archives and library are also kept in this room.

On the south side of the office is the new elevator donated by Louise Slenz so that the handicapped and elderly could see the second floor exhibits.

One will also find the M.K. Brown room which contains various items belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Brown — clothing, pictures of his parents, some of his hats and canes and his pool cue. The Boer War case contains many of Brown's awards. And also shown is Brown's paycheck from Cabot where he worked for a day (just to be able to say he had been a roustabout, Thompson says).

Upstairs is the general store filled with items from the past, the grocery store, the tack room and doctor and lawyer offices. One room houses antique wheel chairs while another holds dolls dating back to the early 1900s — bisque and china dolls, the original Campbell Soup dolls and many more. Uniforms and items from various wars are displayed in the Military Room while all types of handwork and old sewing machines are shown in the Sewing room.

One can see a barber shop (with a 25 cent bath) and a beauty shop of 50 years ago, as well as an old - time shoe shine stand.

Don't forget the school room furnished with desks and items from various Gray County schools, the post office, Western Union station and the telephone office with an old - fashioned switchboard.

So many things to see, one day is hardly enough time to do it in.

But why does Thompson believe the museum is important enough for her to spend so much of her time with it?

"The next generation needs to know of its heritage and be proud of that heritage," she said. "We learn from the past and if we don't keep anything from our past, we'll lose one way of learning."

"Seeing something in person is so much better than just reading about it," she added.

Helping Hands

"Helping Hands" is a weekly column appearing on Sundays featuring area opportunities for volunteers. Any organization which would like to be included in this column may call Dee Dee Laramore at 669-2525 or write down the information and send it to her in care of The Pampa News, P.O. Drawer 2198, Pampa, 79066-2198.

Chautauqua

Volunteers of all ages are needed to help paint signs for the 1984 Chautauqua. For more information, call Darlene Birkes, 665-8044.

Coronado Community Hospital Auxiliary

Coronado Community Hospital's Auxiliary program needs couples and individuals of all ages to volunteer in the gift shop, information desk, and many other areas of the hospital. Auxiliary volunteers work generally for one four-hour shift per week. If interested, call Nancy Paronto, 665-3721, ext. 132, for an interview.

Coronado Nursing Center

Coronado Nursing Center needs volunteers of all ages to help the elderly residents in a variety of ways. There is a particular need right now for someone to conduct simple exercise classes.

Volunteers can set their own times for the most part. For more information, call Odessa East, 665-5746.

Good Samaritan Christian Services

Good Samaritan Christian Services helps provide food and clothing and referral services for the needy. Good Samaritan Christian Services works through its 16 member churches. Volunteers who would like to participate in the program should contact the volunteer coordinator in their church. Food donations through member churches are also needed.

Meals on Wheels

Meals on Wheels, located in the basement of the First United Methodist Church here, supplies hot meals to the elderly and home-bound. This organization needs volunteer drivers and kitchen workers. Drivers are needed for the 10 routes, lasting from 11 a.m. until 11:30 to 11:45 a.m., each day. A dozen kitchen volunteers are needed each week, two hours per day. Amount of time to work is flexible, and can be fitted to the volunteer's schedule. For more information, call Ann Loter, director, at 665-1461.

Pampa Nursing Center

Volunteers are needed from one to two hours monthly at the Pampa Nursing Center. Volunteers of all ages may share their talents with the elderly by playing games, arts and crafts, organizing parties or just visiting. If interested, call Velda Jo Huddleston at 669-2551.

Peeking at Pampa

The whole town hums with diversified activities, varying from trips to newcomers, parties, family get-togethers and more.

Let's start peeking!

Audrey Huff claims July 4th as "her day," and her children help see that it is. Last weekend's celebration was the 18th annual repeat. Saturday morning breakfast prepared on five outside grills consisted of eight dozen eggs, six pounds of sausage, 12 of ham and five of bacon, cream gravy, biscuits, homemade jellies and good cowboy coffee.

Cooks were one son-in-law and grandsons — Sam Gideon, Skellytown; Gordon Moore, Goodwell, Okla.; Kelsey Banister, Amarillo; and Robert Newman, Mertzon.

The flag waved amid yard decorations of red, white and blue streamers, with western centerpieces on the tables. Six daughters and their children attended: Virginia Horton, Judy Bussler, Monty Schaub and Mellvinia Stoking of Pampa, plus Norma Mitchell, Geronimo, Okla.; Ann Banister, Amarillo; and Mary Moore, Gruver.

Walt Chitwood came from Miami, and Juanita and George Garrett from McKinney and Laura Noland from Walters, Okla.

Entertainment included volleyball, pitching washers, card games and lots of visiting with time out for Sunday services at Hi-Land Christian Church.

Audrey is already making plans for next year's celebration on the weekend following July 4.

NOW IT CAN be told! Retha (Mrs. Ray) Jordan was known in her childhood as "Sug." Ray used that name with a childhood picture published in the paper to wish her a happy birthday.

Related birthday wishes to Red Nelson, whose birthday was one day last week.

Ann Carmichael (Sara and Doug) softly reminded her neighbor Susie (Mrs. Dean) Spoonmore of a promised tea party. Then in the politest manner Ann set the date and asked to bring her good friend Meredith Hite (Raymona and Bill) along.

Lo and behold! When the two little ladies arrived, they were dressed for afternoon tea in frilly dresses and Meredith in dainty white gloves to boot.

Susie, who had a teenage house guest — Robin Hayes (daughter of Chuck) of Woodward — brought out her china tea service after the group played some grown-up games. All four ladies sipped tea (punch, by Ann's suggestion) and ate tea cake decorated with tiny roses and visited as ladies do at tea.

P.S. The two little guests are 5 years old!

Congratulations to Charlene and Joe Martinez on the birth of little Danielle. Joe made an heirloom wall hanging for her room out of wood of two little kittens, the girl in a bonnet and the boy in rompers.

WELCOME ABOARD! to newcomers Deanna and David Miles, formerly of Hays, Kan. Deanna is a journalist who is filling in for vacations at The News Herald is an engineer for Halliburton, Barry and Rolanda Bowman and almost-two Angela have come back to Pampa to the delight of Beth and Marvin Bowman.

Steve Jones, who might have done a superb job of batching while Jeannie and the boys visited her parents in Kansas, was happy to see them return.

Jannie (Mrs. Gene) Lewis and Deborah (Mrs. Barry) Hendrick attended the opera in Dallas a month or so ago. Other travelers are Kathleen and Jeff Anderson, Mexico City; Lillian Mullinax, a European tour, and the Roy B. Webb family to Santa Fe for the holidays. Leah and Billie Orrick, Justin and Aaron visited family in El Paso.

Congratulations to the Altrusa

Club of Pampa on plans for establishing the Tra-Lee Crisis Center for Women, Inc., named in honor of Travis Plumley, former social services director of Coronado Community Hospital. The new hotline number — 669-1788 — is already open 24 hours a day. Watch for more details.

A few years ago Altrusans pushed efforts for establishing the Pampa Senior Center, a facility that has made a difference in the lives of Pampa senior citizens.

Sanctuary turns into popular recreation spot

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — It could have ended up as a stretch of neglected flood plain, but 186 acres of wetlands and forests flanking Lake Dardanelle have grown into one of the most popular recreation spots in town.

It's the Bona Dea Trails and Sanctuary, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project that has spanned 10 years and still is not complete.

Recently, the trails and sanctuary were added to the National Recreation Trails System. It has been a big hit with locals, as well as tourists, said park ranger Greg Robus, who works out of the Corps' Lake Dardanelle office.

"It's getting to be pretty well-known — it's one of the busiest parks as far as visitation at Lake Dardanelle goes," he said.

Joggers and walkers travel Bona Dea's 5.6 miles of trails that wind through woodland and grassland, the home of beavers, swamp rabbits, flying squirrels, cottontail rabbits and other mammals. During the course of a year, birdwatchers can gaze at up to 200 species of birds in the sanctuary, including herons, ducks, geese and songbirds.

Robus said Bona Dea had started about 10 years ago when Russellville residents asked the Corps to build a trail so they would not have to walk along the dike that separates the park from Lake Dardanelle on Arkansas Highway 326.

The Corps built a half-mile asphalt loop trail. The requests for more jogging and walking mileage grew, Robus said, so the Corps started saving materials. "Bona Dea was never a budget item," he said. "We just stockpiled material and used our own people to keep adding things to the park."

The drought of 1980 was a boon to the Corps and its plans for the wetlands. That summer was the only time workers could use heavy equipment to remove trees and lay out more trails, Robus said.

For those who want exercise more vigorous than walking or jogging, Bona Dea's 2 1/2-mile fitness trail will test nearly every muscle in their bodies. The 18-station course covers two trails and participants can walk or jog to each one, depending on how zealous they are.

At each station, a plaque tells the participant what exercises to perform. Chin-up bars, balance beams and other equipment are scattered along the course.

The Bona Dea trails and sanctuary are most crowded early in the morning and in the evening, Robus said. Joggers turn out to run before work. During the day, children and others frequent the park, some for a serene walk with the dog. At night, joggers and walkers again are out in force.

Waynes together on stage for first time

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The Wayne brothers first acted together 10 years ago in a western about an old cowboy in search of his grandson.

Little Ethan Wayne played the little boy and older brother Patrick played another character. The movie was "Big Jake" and the grandfather was played by Ethan and Patrick's father, John Wayne.

After years of growing out of their late father's shadow and developing their own acting careers, Ethan and Patrick are together again. This time, they're sharing the stage of Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner in the Neil Simon comedy classic, "Come Blow Your Horn."

The play, which runs through summer, will mark the first time Patrick and Ethan have acted together since "Big Jake" and the first time they have acted together on stage.

The brothers say that this stage experience has taught them about stage acting and about each other.

"We are brothers sure, but we haven't had this much time together when we were growing up," said Ethan, who was still a grade schooler when Patrick was well into his acting career.

"I always lived about 50 miles away from him," Patrick said. "So you don't just pop over for a glass of Coke."

In the production, Patrick plays the older, free-spirited playboy. Ethan is the younger brother who comes to live with him for a while.

"I play the man about town, and as the play opens the younger brother is just out of his mother's wing," Patrick said, adding that "in real life, he is much more experienced than I am."

Although separated by the miles and the years, the Wayne brothers share the experience of growing up under "the Duke's" wing. However, Patrick remembers a more sedate boyhood than Ethan.

"I think it was a fairly normal childhood," Patrick said, adding that when he was growing up, his father was just developing his screen career. "People I went to school with knew me before they knew about my father."

But when he went into the service, people saw him as the Duke's son, Patrick said.

Ethan was also protected from the glare and glitter that falls on the offspring of celebrities — of legends.

"I didn't grow up around many famous people; I grew up in Newport Beach," Ethan said.

Both brothers attended private schools, because, according to Patrick, John Wayne wanted the best for his children.

"My father had strong values and strong opinions," Patrick remembers. "And they are the things I believe in: honesty, reliability."

"But I am not the same person as my father. And you pay a big price for the fame."

Patrick said his interest in acting began on the movie sets when he was 10 or 11 years old. But, he said, his interest waned in college when he studied biology.

But the bug bit again, and soon Patrick found himself back into the acting field. He has made 35 films including "Big Jake" and the Walt Disney nature movie, "The Bears and I." He also emceed the "Monte Carlo" variety show, which was filmed on location in the south of France. He also appeared on numerous television programs, including the short-lived "Shirley" series in which he wooed series star Shirley Jones.

Ethan Wayne was more uncertain about his career.

"I didn't know what I wanted to do when I was in high school," Ethan said. "But it's sort of like a family business. After Dad died (in 1979) I started working doing stunts."

His first "leading man" role will be in the movie "Manhunt," which is scheduled for release next summer.

Patrick said that having a movie star father was "a tremendous advantage."

He explained that accompanying his father to movie sets gave him the opportunity to meet motion picture decision makers.

"It's the kind of opportunity that people would give their eye teeth for," he said.

Patrick Wayne is currently working on an Italian TV western series. His westerns are a far cry from his glamorous "Monte Carlo" variety series, which is a far cry from the bear movie. Still, Patrick finds himself caught in the leading man-hero mold.

"But I'll take almost any character, bad guy or good guy, as long as he has some sort of redeeming quality," he said.

Although he's not about to forsake his acting career or his childhood experience on movie sets, Patrick said he's not going to push his three children into the movie business.

"I want to expose them to everything in life," he said. "I've taken them to ballets, to plays, to ball games. I've encouraged them to use their own abilities."

Consumers warned to shop wisely for food dryer

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Food drying is gaining popularity as a method of food preparation. Food drying can be done by a number of methods. Each method has its advantages and disadvantages, and each gives different results. The method you choose will depend upon the quality you want in the food you are drying and the time, effort and money you are willing to invest.

Successful drying depends on: heat — enough to draw out moisture, but not enough to cook the food material; dry air — to absorb the released moisture; and air circulation — to carry the moisture off.

Food dryers or dehydrators are available now from many manufacturers. A good quality of dryer or dehydrator can be worth the investment. It should have a heat source, a thermostat to control temperature, forced air circulation and adjustable air intake and outlet vents. This type of dryer will produce a good product. The major disadvantage of a dehydrator is the initial cost and cost of operation.

Consumers in the market for a dehydrator should shop wisely. Some dehydrators are safe, well-designed and efficient, but others may be a fire hazard and operate inefficiently. When shopping for a dehydrator, use the following guidelines.

Heat Source — The heat source should be heat efficient and durable rod-type heating elements last longer than porcelain cones. Light bulbs are very inefficient. Suitable wattage for the area of the drying surface is important. Generally, 660 watts is adequate for an area up to 18 square feet. Too little wattage can lead to food spoilage during drying. Also, check to see that the heating element is enclosed and that it will allow even heating without a fire or shock hazard.

Fan or Blower — The size of the fan or blower should be suitable for the internal capacity. The airflow should be between 400 and 700 cubic feet per minute to achieve optimum drying conditions. The fan or blower should be durable and designed to withstand continuous use.

Thermostat — the thermostat should be a capillary type, accurate to within 5 degrees Fahrenheit. It should have a range of adjustment from 85 degrees to 160 F. The dial for changing temperatures should be easy to read and to adjust. The thermostat should also be easy to replace.

Construction — The wall of the dehydrator should be safe, sturdy and durable. Metal is more durable, easier to clean and safer than wood. Walls should be insulated to reduce heat loss. They should be easy to clean, inside and out. The door should open and close easily. They trays should be convenient to load and unload. Look for a vent that can be regulated. Air intake vents should be filtered. The filters should be washable or easy to replace.

Drying Trays — Trays to hold food should be made of screen to let air circulate on all sides of the food. The tray frames are durable and light-weight. The screening should be safe for food and USDA approved. The mesh should be small enough so that finely diced produce will not fall through. Screens should also be easy to clean.

Capacity, Size and Weight — Twelve square feet will dry about a half bushel. Check to see what it weighs and how easily it can be moved.

Economy — Compare the cost per square foot of drying area. Is the size adequate? Consider the time for rotating trays and cleaning and how much electricity the dryer will use.

Safety — Check for an Underwriter's Laboratory (UL) Seal. Other safety factors to look for include: non-flammable construction; enclosed electrical components, properly wired and grounded; high temperature limit switch; non-toxic paint, and no sharp edges or corners.

Manufacturer's Reliability — Don't forget to look carefully at the warranty. Who has to pay shipping charges for repairs? Also check for reasonably priced replacement parts.

For more information on food drying, contact the county extension office.

Peeking

members of the Pampa Moose Lodge conduct a summer blood drive through the Coffee Memorial Blood Center of Amarillo. Quick as a flash the date was set for July 12. Both men and women of the Moose are ever alert to opportunities for service to others.

Jimmie D. Twigg is governor of the Pampa Lodge No. 1385, Loyal Order of the Moose. Venita Fisher is Senior Regent of the Women of the Moose, Pampa Chapter No. 1163. Nancy (Mrs. Charles) Davis, a past Deputy Grand Regent, was recently appointed to the International Board of College of Regents.

Members of Central Baptist Church had open-air Sunday evening services followed by ice cream and cake at Celanese Park on July 1. Amy Parnell accompanied the congregational singing.

Harmony, a group of singers — Lonnie Shelton, Diane Lindsey, Becca Carter, Joyce Field, Paula Barton, Billy Morse and Randy

Lind, singer and director — provided special music.

Jerry Bond, a medical student, is doing volunteer work in the CCH lab.

Charlene Crawford of Arlington came to visit her great-grandson, little Jacob Rynn Braxton, tiny son of Lillie and Jimmy Braxton. Born April 5, the wee one came home July 10, all 4 pounds, 4 ounces, welcomed by grandparents, James and Joan Braxton and Bobbie and Leon Martin.

WARM THOUGHTS of grateful appreciation go to Betty (Mrs. Jim) Brown for her untiring 24-hours-a-day efforts in the Hi-Plains Epilepsy Association, now located in the Red Cross building. People with Betty's dedication make things happen for good.

Congratulations to Cheryl (Mrs. Bill) Every, who was named first employee of the year by Pampa Mall Company headquarters in Houston recently. Cheryl was promoted to supervisor of malls in Texas, Oklahoma, South Dakota, California and maybe more.

Zelda and Wayne Wilson entertained 50 or more workers in the Adult Sunday School Division of First Baptist Church in their wonderfully revamped country home last week. The group sang "Happy Birthday" to John Gikas, whose strawberry ice cream was a conversation piece.

The men's monthly early breakfast at First Baptist Church, always attended by 75 to 100 members and guests, sounds like something not to be missed in spite of the 6 a.m. time. The menu consists of cereal, bacon, sausage, eggs, hot and sweet rolls, and cooked-to-order omelettes, a specialty of John Gikas. Roger Hubbard of the Bible Church was guest speaker on July 5.

Tammy Lane, a participant in the National Pre-Teen Beauty Pageant in Lubbock recently, placed in the top 10 in the talent division in a line of nearly six dozen contestants with her tap dancing.

TO CHEER HER on there and to lend support were her parents, Mary Lou and Jerry; her brother Jeffrey; and grandparents Christine and Howard Lane of Panhandle. Mary Lou, a seamstress of Fifth Avenue, N.Y., quality, made Tammy's gown of aqua taffeta, beruffled in self fabric and lace.

Tammy, full of grace and beauty far beyond her years, is a natural queen by anybody's standards. Later this month, Tammy and Jeffrey will model garments they made in 4-H work at the district show in Canyon.

Jeffrey's summer lawn care business is so big that at times Mary Lou and Jerry pitch in to help him stay caught up. That adds up to a family of busy people.

Sherrie (Mrs. Jim) Olsen's marinated shrimp over noodles is the talk of her crowd. With it she served whole artichoke with drawn butter plus homemade lemon ice cream with chunks of lemon in it. Hungry, anyone?

Stay tuned!

At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

It was one of those days that a mother dreams about.

It was Saturday and I could sleep until I got a headache. The kids were grown and on their own. Nothing in the house leaked oil, dripped water, smoked when you plugged it in, made a funny sound or had a light burnt out. There were no deadlines and the big insurance premium was paid. I didn't have a thing in the world to worry about.

Then the phone rang.

It was one of my kids telling me she was driving to Vegas and not to worry. NOT TO WORRY! Now I had to devote at least five hours to wondering whether the car would break down, or whether some crazy would cross the center line and run her off the road.

Suppose someone ripped off her credit cards and money. Five hours out of a perfectly good day sitting around waiting for a police officer to call and say, "I have someone here who wants to talk to you. Speak up. She's in a traction." Five hours of unrelenting fear. Would she reach over to change stations on the radio and hit a horse that ran out in front of the car? Would she drop into a roadside place for a hamburger and be dragged out on the road by a motorcycle gang who did wheelies around her?

Would a sheriff running for governor pick her up for alleged speeding and accuse her of a crime for which he needed a suspect because he needed national press coverage?

When the phone rang again, it was another child who informed me he was going fishing in a rubber raft in the ocean.

"I hope you're not considering going this weekend," I said. "I'm already half crazy worrying about your sister driving to Vegas, which is going to take at least five hours of misery and mental anguish."

I was going to wash my hair, but what's a mother to do? I canceled that in case a Russian submarine surfaced just under their boat and dumped them into the Pacific.

By my calculations, I had 10 or 12 hours of worry ahead of me when I heard from my third child. "Don't tell me," I said. "You're climbing Mount Everest in tennis shoes just to punish your mother."

"Actually," he said, "I'm staying home this weekend." I couldn't believe his

Low calorie meals topic of program

The fifth program of the Summer Saver Series sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee is scheduled for 2:00 p.m. Thursday in the Courthouse Annex Meeting Room. Low Calorie Meals will be presented by Rebecca Houghton, Home Economist with Southwestern Public Service.

Mrs. Houghton will demonstrate a variety of recipes that are nutritious, easy to prepare and low in calories. Samples of the demonstrated recipes will be available for tasting. In addition, each person attending the program will receive recipes of dishes prepared during the demonstration plus additional low calorie recipes.

The program is free of charge to all interested persons.

A tasty salad for picnics

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A make-ahead salad can be the main dish at a campsite or picnic.

Here is one chock-full of protein from the combination of sardines and shrimp, with a variation of fresh vegetables (such as scallions, onions, radishes and green olives) added to it. These are combined after marinating with wild and long grain rice.

Take along fresh fruit and cookies for dessert and your favorite beverage.

MARINATED SARDINE SALAD

- 1 can (3 3/4 ounces) sardines, drained
- 2 cans (4 1/2 ounces each) canned shrimp, well drained OR 1/2 pound shrimp, cooked and drained
- 1/4 cup sliced radishes
- 1 small Bermuda onion, sliced into eivers
- 2 tablespoons capers, drained (optional)
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1/4 cup stuffed green olives, sliced

- 1 package (0.7 ounces) garlic salad dressing mix
- 1/3 cup white dinner wine or red wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 package (6 ounces) wild and long grain rice

Combine first seven ingredients in a bowl or glass jar. Combine salad dressing mix with white wine, wine vinegar and oil, blending thoroughly. Pour over sardine-shrimp mixture. Marinate in glass container for several hours at room temperature or bottom shelf of refrigerator. Prepare rice according to package directions. Cool to room temperature and pour into plastic bag. Chill. Chill sardine-shrimp mixture. At camp or picnic site, toss marinated fish and vegetables with rice and serve. This kitchen-tested recipe makes six servings.

Dear Abby

Reader's feathers ruffled by Post Office inaccuracy

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Every time I go to the post office to get my mail, I become infuriated when I see our national bird, the American bald eagle, depicted with a white head, a white neck and a dark rump and tail.

That is incorrect, Abby. Anyone who knows anything about eagles knows that a mature eagle with a white head and white neck should have a white rump and a white tail! When I see these eagles on the U.S. Postal Service mailboxes, mail trucks and postal employees' uniforms, it upsets me.

I wrote to all six South Carolina congressmen and to both our U.S. senators to complain. I also wrote to the White House twice, and the only person I heard from was Sen. Strom Thurmond. He promised to look into the matter and see what he could do to correct it. I am still waiting.

Can you help this cause along, Abby? I suppose it would run up in the millions of dollars to change all those eagles, but in the interest of accuracy, it should be corrected.

EDWIN KERRISON JR.,
LUGOFF, S.C.

DEAR MR. KERRISON: I think you may have hit upon the reason our legislators are slow to move on this. It's too expensive. Considering what's going on in the Middle East and Central America, plus the threat of a nuclear war, I doubt if I can drum up much interest in correcting the color of the rump and tail on our national bird. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Call Me Mrs.," the older woman who resented being called "Kathy" by her doctor: I'm on your side. I'm an older woman, too, and here's how I handled the same situation when my doctor of many years retired and a younger doctor took his place:

When he greeted me with, "Good morning, Lucille," I responded, "Good morning, Bobby." (His name was Robert.)

He was quick to get the message. From that time on, I was "Mrs. Hastings" to him, and he was "Dr. Wittingham" to me.

Try it. And if he doesn't catch on, change doctors. He's an idiot.
MRS. HASTINGS

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 73 years old and have a problem with diverticulosis and what I can and cannot eat. One doctor says eat apples and skin completely chewed. Another says don't eat the peel. Both agree I shouldn't eat seeds.

I'd like to know about peels and skins such as those of grapes, raisins, plums, cherries and peaches, and membranes from oranges. Also, what about vegetables such as lettuce, cabbage, corn and peas, which have a fine skin? Is cauliflower raw or cooked OK? Do tomatoes have too much acid if they are skinned and seeded? What about seeded cucumbers, and celery, which can be stringy?

I take Metamucil every two or three days. Is it all right to take this for the rest of my life?

DEAR READER — Most doctors would urge you to avoid seeds or any foods that contain seeds unless the seeds are removed. Otherwise, bulk in your diet is good for you, including the membranes in citrus fruit and the peels from fruit. The natural fiber in fruits and vegetables is partially digested before it ever gets to your colon, where the little pockets of the colon, diverticula, are located. Solid foods don't escape from the stomach. So the peel of an apple should be pretty well macerated before it leaves the stomach.

The other consideration is whether a food causes gas. Gas-formers increase the pressure inside the colon and can increase problems with diverticulosis. In fact, a spastic colon may be the cause of the symptoms some patients experience, rather than the diverticula. A spastic colon causes less trouble if there is more bulk in the diet.

To help you appreciate the problem better I am sending you The Health Letter 5-6, Diverticulosis. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Yes, you can use Metamucil or some other bulk former every day, and, if needed, more often for life. It is an inert substance that provides gentle bulk and improves the colon's normal rhythm. Such bulk-forming agents are usually helpful for most patients with diverticulosis or with spastic colon problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know how to get rid of cellulite on the back of my thighs. I am a 28-year-

DEAR MRS. HASTINGS: Wonderful. Read on for another solution:

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I'm addressed by my first name and I don't especially like it, I say (with my best smile), "My name is Celeste, but it's perfectly all right with me if you call me Mrs. Hatcher."
CELESTE B. HATCHER, ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY: I keep seeing letters in your column asking whether pregnant women should be in a wedding party as bridesmaids, matrons of honor, etc. You always say, "Why not?"

I will tell you why not: My sister-in-law (married to my brother) was my dearest friend. I was her maid of honor and I asked her to be my matron of honor. She accepted when she was in her fourth month, knowing that she would be somewhere in her seventh month at the time of the wedding. (It was her first baby.)

Well, the morning of my wedding she "thought" she had a few labor pains, but didn't want to "spoil" my wedding, so she didn't say anything. She just made it down the aisle at a 4 p.m. wedding, with her pains coming three minutes apart.

You guessed it. Her water broke, she fainted and the priest interrupted the ceremony to ask if there was a doctor in the house. Fortunately, there was, and my matron of honor took the best man (her husband) with her, and she delivered a 5-pound "preemie" an hour later.

So Abby, next time someone asks if a pregnant woman should be in the wedding party, say, "Not if she's more than five months along at the time of the wedding." Thank you.

Bone disorder keeps girl out of action

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — At age 5, Hilary Trout doesn't know the simple joy of running with her friends, playing hide-and-seek or climbing on a backyard playset.

Instead, she must live the fragile life of a child with abnormally brittle bones, the result of a rare disorder.

While doing nothing more than standing in church or turning in her mother's arms, the Strasburg girl has broken more than a dozen bones.

She has been in a body cast four times, in traction for three-week periods and now is forced to use a walker.

While there is no cure for Hilary's osteogenesis imperfecta, her parents' church has rallied with a fund drive to help offset medical and other expenses.

No fund drive goal has been set by the Lampeter United Methodist Church, but money raised will help pay for full-length, plastic leg braces that will protect Hilary's limbs as she grows older.

The cost: between $1,200 and $1,600.

The daughter of Barry and Joan Trout, Hilary has recently been in an 8-pound cast from mid-abdomen to her toes. The cast was needed because, as it had in the past, her right thighbone had broken simply from the weight of her body.

"We were standing in church," recalled Mrs. Trout, 30. "All of a sudden, she grabbed her leg and said, 'Mommy, I think I broke my leg.'"

Class of '44 to celebrate

Pampa High School's class of 1944 will celebrate its 40th reunion Saturday. Former students will attend from Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Maine, California and various points in Texas.

The celebration will begin with coffee in the M.K. Brown Heritage Room from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. The coffee is open also to former students in other classes, friends, parents and teachers.

The day's activities will close with a banquet at the Pampa Country Club with Charlie Boyles, president of the class, as the Master of Ceremonies. Anyone wishing additional information may call 669-6600, 665-5050 or 665-5625.

Information Day to focus on sick plants, canners

The Gray County Extension Service will be hosts of an Information Day, highlighted by a sick plant clinic and pressure canner gauge testing, Wednesday from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m. in the Pampa Mall.

Extension agents Joe VanZandt, Donna Brauchi and Jeff Goodwin will meet participants and answer questions about extension services as well as agriculture, home economics and 4-H related questions.

The sick plant clinic will assist home gardeners by diagnosing sick plants, soil or insect problems. Anyone with problems relating to diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardening and general landscape plants is invited to bring sick or troubled specimens to the informal clinic. Two Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialists — Bob Berry, plant pathologist, and Carl Partick, entomologist — will also be on hand to assist and counsel homeowners on problems.

In addition, people planning to preserve foods at home may bring their pressure canner lids with geared (dial) gauges to be tested by Donna Brauchi, county extension agent.

The service requires only the canner lid and takes a maximum of about 10 minutes. The extension service recommends that pressure canner gauges be tested each year for accuracy.

Brauchi will also answer any questions about food preservation — canning, freezing, jelly making, pickling or drying. Extension service food preservation publications will also be available.

All of these services are free and provided on a come-and-go basis.

Complete luxury on the blue seas

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Take a cruise and you're taking a chance. You could run into auto mechanics, checkout clerks, podiatrists. Helge Naarstad wasn't thrilled with that kind of democracy when he was president of Norwegian-Caribbean Lines, so he hired a Finnish shipyard to design and build a small cruise ship; called it the Sea Goddess I; called himself chairman of Sea Goddess Cruises, Ltd.; and in April 1984 began sending it around the Mediterranean carrying clientele after his own heart: bankers, oil men, movie types.

FOR A MERE $6,600 per couple, you can take a seven-day cruise on the Sea Goddess through the Caribbean or Mediterranean seas. After a meal of twin mignon in cantaloupe sauce, go dancing, visit the casino or just remain in your luxurious suite to watch cable TV or one of 300 video cassettes on board.

And the elite ate it up. According to Oivind (OY-vind) Mathisen, spokesman for the company: "Twenty percent of those on the maiden voyage either extended their stay on board or booked another cruise for '84 right then and there, which is unusual. And we heard it said that what the ship had to offer had been understated."

The first thing it offers — at $6,600 per couple — is six, seven-day itineraries. You can choose one or mix and match so that you sail around Spain, France, Italy and Greece for up to four weeks without duplicating ports. Or, on Oct. 6, 1984, you can sail the Atlantic from Malaga to St. Croix in the Caribbean where the Sea Goddess will sail for the following few months.

The next order of business is to fill out a "personal preference form": how you want your personal bar stocked (it holds five bottles that are replaced when empty); what kind of caviar you want in your fridge; what kinds of magazines on your coffee table. And if you want to be sure you can get into that dinky new restaurant in Rome or onto the links in Monte Carlo, jot that down, too. Reservations will be made for you before you hit port. Really, it's no trouble.

The Sea Goddess I holds a maximum of 120 "guests," says Mathisen, "but 96 is considered a full ship and since the crew totals 71, it's almost one-to-one service."

The crew, incidentally, is mostly Scandinavian — except for eight Germans and Austrians in the kitchen, an Italian wine steward, some German waiters — but all speak "American English" and know what they're doing.

Come the day of departure, practically all you'll have to do is get yourself to the dock. The social director will meet your car and you and your luggage will be hauled on board to meet the captain. "Then you enter the reception area (note the Persian carpet) to receive your computer-card room key," says Mathisen. And then it's on to your suite, which will be in either pink, light blue or yellow with white oak paneling. Mind you, all suites front the sea and all will harbor fresh flowers and a bowl of fresh fruit changed daily, like the linen. And waiting for you in the bathroom will be velour robes, lots of towels (the "guests" have been copping them, Mathisen admits), plus soaps and shampoos.

Now, unpack. And while you do, switch on your stereo or radio or send out to the library for a set of Monopoly or one of its 300 videocassettes of films, plays, ballets, etc. Then again, you may want to check your cable TV for the latest stock quotations or weather report. Better still, why not ring up Bunkie in Paris? But before you reach for your direct-dial, worldwide phone, be advised that you'll foot the bill. Still, that's all you'll have to pay extra for, unless you order a very costly wine or champagne, Mathisen says, or visit the two-chair hair salon. ("A woman can get her hair done for perhaps $13 to $15," he says, "and a man can get a haircut for $8.")

All this dialing and switching can work up an appetite, but even if dinner is hours away, fret not. The ship provides full room service, all day and all night. And don't worry about making an early or late seating at dinner. There is no seating. "The dining room functions like a fine restaurant," Mathisen says. "You can arrive when you wish and stay as long as you like and if you don't like what's on the menu — twin mignon of venison with cantaloupe cream sauce, for instance — nine out of 10 times the chef can provide you what you want."

Perhaps you'll prefer to dine in your suite with the nice duchess from next door. Well, then, pull the curtain to hide your sleeping area, if you like, and then, if you must, call a lackey to pull out the coffee table in the sitting room. It extends to seat four.

Afterward, go dancing in the main salon; take a chance in the casino; dally at the piano bar; or go to sleep in perfect harmony. "The public rooms are all located away from the suites, which are all sound insulated," says Mathisen.

While you dream of mergers, the ship will sail. Come morning, you can go into port or stay at sea and frolic in it, or above it in the ship's sauna, outdoor swimming and whirlpools. ("They're used frequently," he says, "or the gym ("That's not used frequently," he says).")

If all this appeals but you want it all for yourself, be advised that the Sea Goddess I can be — and has been — chartered for $400,000 a week. In fact, the enterprise has been so successful that come April 1985, the Sea Goddess II — an exact replica — will be launched to sail the Mediterranean while the Sea Goddess I haunts the Caribbean.

Finally, two caveats: Prices rise to $7,200 in December and $8,000 next spring. And while Mathisen acknowledges that a single woman certainly would be tripping over rich men on board, it won't do her much good. "The cruise line is definitely catering to couples," he says. "Out of 60 suites, there are only two singles."

Brazilian singer debuts in America

By PAUL RAEBURN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In 1976, the jazz saxophonist Wayne Shorter released a record called "Native Dancer" in collaboration with Milton Nascimento, a gifted Brazilian composer and singer who at that time was not well known in the United States.
Jazz fans quickly latched on to the recording, and Nascimento developed something of a cult following here. Though copies of his Brazilian records occasionally turned up in record stores, Nascimento himself remained out of sight, enjoying a growing popularity in Brazil, elsewhere in Latin America and in Europe.
In June, Nascimento finally arrived in the United States, making his U.S. debut in two packed concerts at Carnegie Hall. The audiences, made up largely of Brazilians, cheered Nascimento and sang along with the many tunes that are by now standards there.

Nascimento's compositions are deeply rooted in Brazilian and African folk music, an association underscored by his plaintive vocals and his straightforward, simple accompaniment on acoustic guitar.
In Nascimento's hands, that strong folk influence is transmuted into sophisticated, challenging music that retains the universal appeal of folk music but sustains the interest of the most demanding listener. That perhaps explains the music's popularity among jazz musicians.

Nascimento, 42, began his recording career in 1967 with "Codil," a Brazilian record. In 1969, he recorded the first of his five American albums, "Courage," for A&M Records. His first Brazilian LP, consisting of his own compositions, was 1972's "Clube da Esquina."

He was born in Rio de Janeiro but grew up in Tres Pontas in the Brazilian state of Minas Gerais, northwest of Rio. He began playing guitar as a teen-ager in the '60s, by which time he had become friends with pianist Wagner Tiso, who leads his band.

Nascimento, in an interview in his hotel room the day before his debut, talked about why he was now coming to the United States to perform.

"Now is the right moment," he said in Portuguese through an interpreter. "A lot of American musicians and composers are talking about Brazilian music, and the press is interested in Brazilian music."

"The European people like it when I sing in Portuguese," he said. Nascimento understands English but speaks it only haltingly. "It's different in America where the taste is that everybody sing in English. Now that's changing."

Nascimento has written two ballets, three movie soundtracks, a religious work entitled "The Mass of Quilombos" — named after a commune created by freed Brazilian slaves — and has established a music school for young people with Tiso.

He has also acted in three films, including Werner Herzog's "Fitzcarraldo," shot in the Amazon region.

Nascimento hopes to return to the United States to record again with American musicians. He considers the album he made with Wayne Shorter, who was "like a brother," to be among his best.

What made it so, he said, was "the friendship ... American and Brazilian musicians playing together, exchanging ideas."

Daly returns to 'Cagney & Lacey'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tylene Daly is preparing for her return to CBS' "Cagney & Lacey." But exercises aren't part of it.
Nor is she conducting any special research to help this on-again, off-again series, perhaps the only show in the history of television to be retrieved from cancellation and returned to the air.

What Miss Daly is preparing for is keeping co-star Sharon Gless smiling.

"I spent my vacation learning poems and songs to make Sharon giggle," she says. "I know a lot of songs from the 12th century to 1948. Do you know all the words to 'Betty Coed' I do."

A smile and a giggle can take on immense importance when you work a schedule that would wear out a mule.

Miss Daly stars as Mary Beth Lacey and Miss Gless is her New York City detective partner, Chris Cagney. "Cagney & Lacey" also holds the distinction of probably being the only TV drama about two women who are pals. That, in fact, was one of the foundations of the show when executive producer Barney Rosenzweig asked Barbara Avedon and Barbara Corday to write the original movie.

At first it was to be only a movie. Miss Daly starred with Loretta Swit, who played Cagney, in the October 1981 film. Miss Swit was then starring in "M-A-S-H," so there was little thought of making it a series. But it made its debut in March 1982 as a series with Meg Foster cast as Cagney. It lasted only six episodes before CBS decided it had a "harsh women's lib" image and cast Miss Gless as Cagney for the 1982-83 season.

It was dropped at the end of the season because of low ratings. Then the show suddenly gained an audience in the reruns, finishing first one week. The press lobbied for its return and the public sent a flood of letters to CBS. "Cagney & Lacey" returned to the air last March. Its ratings since then have been excellent.

"Barney never had a wrap party," she says. "He always believed the show was coming back."

Miss Daly was born into an acting family. Her father was the late James Daly ("Medical Center") and her mother was Hope Newell.

Nashville wasn't needed by singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — At a recent party that lasted until nearly dawn, entertainer Mayf Nutter and singer Del Reeves discussed fame and fortune in the world of country music.

"You'd have been a superstar 15 years ago if you'd have stayed in Nashville," Reeves told his friend. Nutter mulled over that observation and said a bit later, "I'm not sure he's right."

Unlike many country music figures, Nutter earned his position in the entertainment field outside Music City, U.S.A.

A versatile entertainer, he settled in the Los Angeles area rather than Nashville and followed an acting career along with country music pursuits.

He portrayed radio star Bobby Bigelow for three seasons on "The Waltons" and was Festus' cousin on "Gunsmoke" for one season. Last year he had the starring role in the nine-hour miniseries "Lone Star Bar and Grill" on cable TV's "Showtime," playing a renowned country singer who owned a country music nightclub. He also has appeared in "The Dukes of Hazzard," "The Fall Guy," "Falcon Crest," "Charlie's Angels" and "Hawkins."

Democrat delegates popular with pollsters

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

It's a political year and that means people from coast-to-coast suddenly care a lot about teacher Sue Pate's thoughts on politicians, elections and blacks.

As were all delegates to the upcoming Democratic National Convention, Mrs. Pate has fielded a string of surveys from news organizations unwilling to wait for the convention to see what the delegates want.

"We've been called a lot, but that's all right. About two a day," said Mrs. Pate, a high school history, government and sociology teacher from Bridge City.

The San Francisco convention that opens Monday is Mrs. Pate's second Democratic National Convention. She made a memorable trip to New York in 1980. A television network chose her as the subject of a "day in the life of" feature, and their cameras followed her for several days.

"People on the street in New York stopped me and said they saw me on TV. That was pretty exciting," she recalled.

While the flood of opinion surveys is not new to Mrs. Pate, first-time delegate Cindy Jenkins of Stowell said she wasn't prepared to be in such demand.

"I didn't expect that kind of attention. No one warned me," she said.

Mrs. Pate said she's fielded about as many surveys this year as she did in 1980, when it was a surprise to her, too.

This year's surveys and polls have come by telephone and in the mail. A hint to those seeking Mrs. Pate's answers in the future: use the phone.

"There's been just a bunch in the mail. I haven't sent any of them back. I just rebelled. I don't like to mail things anyway," she said.

She said she tries to take time to answer the phoned questions, even though they occasionally struck her as silly and came "always at six o'clock at night."

She said some of the more inane surveys began with such thought-provoking questions as, "Is your name Sue Pate?"

"Every one of them wanted to know how much money your family makes, which I thought was none of their business. And they also asked how old I am," she said, refusing to reveal her age.

The "dumb questions" she has fielded include: "How do you feel about blacks? How do you feel about women?"

Mrs. Pate said she thought The New York Times conducted the best survey, largely because the "nifty interviewer" seemed interested in her answers. Many others sounded like disinterested clerks gathering data to stuff into a computer, she said.

"You can tell they don't care what you think. They're just going to put it in a computer and put out a composite delegate," she said. "The New York Times was personable and acted like they knew they were doing."

Mrs. Jenkins said the New Yorkers' survey was memorable, too, but for a different reason.

"The New York Times called me twice with the very same poll. I've kept notes on all of them (who called). I knew I'd done it before," she said.

Despite the distractions, Mrs. Pate said she didn't mind the calls and letters.

"I just wish the questioners would have been a little more enthusiastic if they are taking my time. They were getting paid and I wasn't," she said.

Life goes on, if a bit interrupted, for a delegate whose opinions are coveted coast-to-coast.

"Just a minute I think I'm burning the hot dogs," she told one recent questioner. "You're the first one that's caused me to burn supper."

Mayor says future of Ohio town promising

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Dayton Mayor Paul Leonard talks about his hometown as a city looking ahead with enough experience to profit from the past.

It's also a city competing for diversified industries which other manufacturing communities want.

"Diversification is the key to the future," he said. "I don't want people just to see Dayton as a factory town."

Dayton lost one-fourth of its population and 35,000 manufacturing jobs in the 1970s, but is recovering, Leonard said.

Federal census figures show its population dropped from 243,000 in 1970 to 193,300 in 1980.

"There were a lot of people who were too quick to pronounce the death of a Midwestern community like Dayton," and who didn't believe the city could move in a different direction and recover, Leonard said.

Population is beginning to show signs of leveling off, and Leonard finds it heartening that "We haven't lost any major industries in the 1980s. As a matter of fact we've gained. We're not growing as fast as Houston or a Phoenix or a San Diego, but we are recovering."

Leonard, in the third year of his first mayoral term, feels Dayton's age and experience give it an advantage over newer and faster growing sunbelt cities which are competing for new industry.

"The new communities that are undergoing terrific growth at this present time have not been through the problems that this city has seen in the 1930s, '40s and '50s. We've got the experience."

"There isn't one problem that could occur in a city in the United States that Dayton hasn't weathered. We are an old community and we have seen it all," he said, adding that the city has shown it "can profit from the good times and the bad times."

"This will always be a General Motors and manufacturing town. It will never again be a town which almost totally relies on those industries," he said.

He is quick to acknowledge the importance of the greater Dayton community's No. 1 employer, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Hightower advises Mondale to use bold farm policies

AUSTIN (AP) — Standing at his antique oak post office desk recently, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower penned a memo to Walter Mondale in which he gave the Democratic candidate advice on beating President Reagan out of the farm vote.

He advised boldness. He did not urge halfway measures to avert what he believes will otherwise be a farm crisis.

Included among his recommendations were a moratorium on farm foreclosures, price supports tagged to production costs and targeting benefits to family farmers.

"What I'm saying to Mondale (is) this is the one to take risks on. This is the one to be the bold Mondale on. There's a mess out there that's only getting worse," Hightower said.

"He wants agriculture to be a centerpiece of his campaign. For the first time, agriculture is going to be in the top 10 category of issues. It's usually number 47."

Hightower, 41, was elected agriculture commissioner in 1982 and has been a prominent voice in Democratic farm policy this year.

He headed the Democratic Agriculture Council and was a vice chairman of the platform committee for the upcoming national convention.

The council conducted hearings around the country and the platform, Hightower said, probably will include "the basic guts of what we were saying," although not all of his specific recommendations.

"They agreed with my assessment of the problem ... But in terms of what the Democratic Party will do, it is still not a concise, sharp statement of what I think we need to campaign on, that we can tack on the grain elevator walls and say, 'Here's the Democratic manifesto,' and farmers can say, 'Yeah. We're for that and let's go.'"

Hightower, who allows that his politics include some "populist" leanings, is convinced that today's farm problems rival those of 1932. He wants Mondale to follow former President Franklin Roosevelt's example.

"I'm saying it's a crisis and you've got to take a Franklin Roosevelt stand — we are going to save the family farm, and here is what we're going to do. Mondale is cautious. I'm urging him to be less cautious."

If Reagan is re-elected, Hightower predicted the Farmers Home Administration and government lending agencies will "continue to pursue their course of moving people out."

Banks that are holding three- to five-year notes "are going to flush those farmers because they know the Reagan administration is not going to put in a program to save them. When I say flush, I think we're talking about a third of what I call the commercial farmers."

Hightower, who delights in poking fun at administration officials, says Reagan's appointees are "people who argue there is no crisis."

Agriculture Secretary John Block, who also farms, "used to argue that, until his bankers started calling. He's taken to singing at the Grand Ole Opry. He's taken up night work," Hightower said.

"Reagan has fallen flat on his face on this one. His program has been a disaster. He has neither the time, nor the inclination, nor the ideological maneuvering room, nor the foggiest notion of what to do to deal with this matter," Hightower said.

"He is very uncomfortable. He has no grasp of the issue. He's a Gucci rancher."

Hightower's analysis is that Mondale must agree the farm economy is reaching disaster proportions and react accordingly.

"Mondale's got to do more than say, 'Let's tinker with the knobs and make some adjustments,'" he said.

"You've got to have a bold program that includes a moratorium on farm foreclosures ... a grace period during which good farmers are not thrown out of business and during which the president and Congress develop a restructuring of the farm debt."

Hightower said a Mondale farm bill should include minimum price protection pegged to the actual cost of producing commodities. It should include mandatory supply management that covers large farm operations, he said.

"We need to target the benefits to the entrepreneurial unit that actually produces the public benefit ... and that's the family farm. Specifically the ones that do not get the benefits are the conglomerate operations, the tax-loss ventures and the integrated superfarms, the John Block-style operation."

Soil conservation should be a major part of land set-aside programs, Hightower said.

The U.S. Agriculture Department needs to launch an aggressive marketing program to develop new outlets for American farm products before increasing farmers' output, he said.

"It is incumbent on us to develop more export markets rather than just saying to farmers, 'Produce everything you can and somehow or other we're going to sell that.'"

Finally, Hightower said, any farm bill should run for six years rather than four, extending past the next presidential election. Such action, the Texan said, would enable Mondale to capture farm votes. But Mondale shouldn't assume he'll win that vote, Hightower said.

Strong pressure finally yields more money for agriculture operating loans

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under pressure from members of Congress and farm-state governors, the Reagan administration has made more money available for farm operating loans by the Farmers Home Administration this fiscal year.

The additional funds — totaling $250 million — were announced Wednesday by Agriculture Secretary John Block. The money is being shifted from other FmHA loan programs to help the agency meet farm operating loan demand through the end of this fiscal year on Sept. 30.

Block had asked White House approval for the transfer of $350 million from other FmHA accounts, including $100 million for farm ownership loans in addition to the $250 million for operating loans. The transfer announced by Block includes $150 million in direct-lending funds from FmHA's single-family housing program, and $100 million in loan guarantees from business and industry loans.

"This move will help ensure that farmers' needs for credit to finance this year's production will be met," Block said. "These funds are in addition to a record high $1.91 billion already budgeted for operating loans this year for Farmers Home Administration."

According to the agency, only $49 million remained in the FmHA's operating loan fund as of June 30, including $30.7 million for direct loans and $18.3 million for guaranteed loans.

Officials said they had no indication whether the Office of Management and Budget had approved or would approve the $100 million balance that had been requested for farm ownership loans.

However, the FmHA farm ownership program, appropriated at $675 million this year, still had $73.7 million available as of June 30, including $51.1 million in direct loan funds and $22.6 million in guaranteed money.

A similar situation arose last year when FmHA juggled about $400 million from other programs to replenish the farm operating loan account. However, only about half of that transfer was actually needed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department analysts say a huge world output of oilseeds is in the making and is putting downward pressure on U.S. soybean prices at the farm.

The farm price of soybeans is expected to average $5.65 to $7.65 per bushel in the marketing year that will begin on Sept. 1, compared to $6 to $8.50 forecast on June 22, the report said Wednesday. Soybean prices at the farm in 1983-84 were shown at $7.75 per bushel.

Although USDA will not issue its official production estimates for 1984 soybeans until next month, the analysts projected the harvest at 2.025 billion bushels, up sharply from the drought-stricken 1983 harvest of 1.57 billion bushels.

However, the new soybean projection was down 50 million bushels from the June 22 report.

Despite the reduction in U.S. prospects, the report said that a record world crop of oilseeds — which include sunflower seed and other oil-bearing crops — is expected to result in "considerable downward pressure on prices for soybeans and soybean products" in 1984-85.

Soybeans, when crushed by processors, provide vegetable oil and high-protein meal used in livestock feed. The beans, oil and meal also are valuable as exports.

The report said that vegetable oil prices in the world market are expected "to do relatively better" than protein meals because inventories of most oils and fats are down from year-earlier levels.

"Much of the weakness in protein feed demand is concentrated in the major consuming areas, principally the United States, West Europe, East Europe and the Soviet Union," the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's grain harvest still is shaping up as the second-largest in six years, although it could produce more wheat and less coarse grains than indicated previously, says the Agriculture Department.

In Agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

Last week I talked about how quick our rangeland had turned around for the better. Now, just about as quick, our hot, dry winds and a couple of dry weeks, turn it backwards again. At least we have grown a little grass this summer — here's hoping we will get a few more summer rains this year.

GRASSHOPPERS NEED CHECKING

Check field margins and dense growth areas of rangeland for grasshoppers. Grasshopper infestations are very heavy in the eastern Panhandle area. Some rangeland areas in Armstrong, Donley, and Collingsworth Counties exceed 30 grasshoppers per square yard. USDA survey counts are not high, but probably represent a more general picture of the rangeland in each county. Their counts range from 17.5 grasshoppers per square yard in Ochiltree County to 5 grasshoppers per square yard in Gray County. The economic threshold for grasshoppers in rangeland is considered to be 8 per square yard.

Field margins in the eastern Panhandle area are heavily infested with differential and lubber grasshoppers. When the grass and weeds that these grasshoppers are currently feeding grain begin to mature and dry down, they will begin moving into crops. Crop margins will sustain heavy losses unless protected. The best time to prevent losses is to take control measures now while the grasshoppers are still in the crop margins. To determine the need for control, producers need to estimate the number of grasshoppers per square yard. If 20 or more grasshoppers per square yard are found in the weedy and grassy areas around the crop, an insecticide application is justified in order to prevent economic damage in the crop. If the lubber (jumbo) is the primary concern, drop the economic threshold to 2 per square yard.

NEW WHEATS RELEASED

Two new wheat releases have been proposed by Dr. Kenneth B. Porter with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Amarillo. These varieties will be well adapted to the High Plains and Rolling Plains of Texas as well as western portions of the Southern Great Plains. The varieties, upon release will be called TAM107 and TAM108.

TAM107 is an early, high quality short wheat with an exceptional yield history under irrigated and dryland conditions. It has been tested under the code name TX80GH 2875 in Texas trials. TAM107 is resistant to a number of stem rust. It is also resistant to powdery mildew and to biotype C greenbugs. TAM107 has displayed good winter hardiness, being comparable to Scout 66.

TAM107 appears to be day length insensitive. At Bushland it is 2 to 3 days earlier in maturity than TAM105, while in Central Texas, TAM107 was 12 days earlier than TAM105. The height of TAM107 is one to two inches taller than TAM W-101 or Vona on dryland and about the same as TAM105.

TAM108 is a short statured wheat with a high yield potential which is resistant to soil borne mosaic and a number of strains of leaf and stem rust. It has exhibited a moderate resistance to powdery mildew. It has been tested under the code name TX 71A562-6 28.

TAM108 appears to have a considerable yield advantage over Vona, TAM105, Scout 66, and Newton, with irrigated yields measured in excess of 109 bushels per acre, nearly eight bushels per acre more than any other variety at Bushland in 1982. It has a slight test weight disadvantages to TAM105 and heads about 3 days later on both irrigated and dryland production. TAM108 is less winter hardy than TAM107 or Scout 66, which may impose a northern limit on its area of adaption.

TAM107 (TX80GH2875) and TAM108 (TX71A562-6-28) performed well in the Southern Regional Performance Nursery in 1982 and 1983. These tests compared 34 to 35 wheat varieties at 30 locations across the Great Plains. TAM107 placed fifth and fourth respectively while TAM108 ranked second and fifth in the same tests. This indicates the two wheats produce excellent yields under a wide range of environmental conditions.

Both of these prospective releases have some distinct advantages over varieties commonly produced in their adapted area.

NEW DELUXE 21-INCH MOWERS

New 21-inch deluxe mowers have a dual safety system. Both the engine and blade stop when the control handle is released. Four models are available—push-type with manual or electric start and self-propelled with manual or electric start. Push-type units have a 3½ h.p. engine. Self-propelled models have 4 h.p. engine and a rear-wheel gear drive for excellent traction. A 2½-bushel rear bagger is available for all models.

Projects or ventures that you personally organize and develop could work out to be lucky for you this coming year. Don't be afraid to step out on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be tolerant and patient when working with persons today who can't do things as quickly as you do. If you moderate your pace, they'll perform better. Major changes are in store for Cancans in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Success in your endeavors is possible today, but the process may be slow and tedious. You might fall if you gamble on shortcuts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless you are insistent that the terms be honored, someone with whom you made an agreement may try to make last-minute changes or back out of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you're performing work for another today, try to be remunerated when the task is finished. The debt may go unsettled if you're a poor collector.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the capabilities today to handle complex and difficult situations with ease, yet, surprisingly, you might be careless with your own finances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep a sharp eye on persons in your charge today so they don't take foolish risks that could cause problems for you, as well as for them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will be safe to discuss confidential matters with old friends today, but disclosures made to mere acquaintances might not be kept secret.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will know the correct steps to take today to strengthen your material security. However, once this is accomplished, you may undo all that you did.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success comes today through perseverance and persistence, so don't permit impatient onlookers to make you hasten your pace. Set your own timetable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In business or financial situations today, do not try to hurry matters beyond their normal pace. Impatient actions could cause avoidable mistakes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though you may be supported by a dependable ally today, do not place all the burdens on him or her. Pitch in and do your share.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a better chance of achieving your ambitious objectives today if you go it alone. Don't encumber yourself with unproductive associates.

SICK PLANT AND PRESERVATION CLINIC
A clinic to assist home gardeners with food preservation questions and to diagnose sick plants, soil or insect problems will be held July 18. The hours for the free clinic are from 2 to 6 p.m. in the Pampa Mall. This is a come-and-go affair for anyone with problems or questions about sick plants, insects or food preservation. Vegetable gardeners can bring pressure canner lids with dial or geared gauges to be tested free of charge by Donna Brauchi, County Extension Agent - Home Economics. Donna will also answer any questions relative to food preservative - canning, or freezing that anyone may have.

Anyone with problems relating to diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardening and general landscape plants are invited to bring sick or trouble specimens to the informal clinic on Wednesday. There will be two Texas Agricultural Extension Service Specialists on hand to assist and council homeowners with problems. These specialists include Dr. Bob Berry, plant pathologist and Dr. Carl Patrick, entomologist.

This informal clinic is sponsored by the Gray County Horticulture and Family Living Committees in cooperation with the Gray County Extension office.

Tell your friends and neighbors about the clinic as this will be the best opportunity to get some answers on sick plants during the entire summer growing season. Bring your sick plant specimens or insects to this clinic and one or more of the specialists will assist advising you on your plant problems. You can get assistance on your food preservation questions and get your pressure canner lids with gauges tested.

Several Extension Service publications will also be available to assist residents with related subject matter.

SUMMER OFTEN MEANS LAWN PROBLEMS

Along with hot temperatures, mid-summer in Texas may bring special lawn problems - drought, weeds, insects and disease.

These lawn problems can cause concerns for homeowners unless accurate diagnosis and proper treatment takes place before they become severe.

Dry spots, thin turf and weeds can result from improper watering, fertilizing and mowing practices. Follow recommended cultural practices before applying a chemical to correct lawn problems.

Drought stress most often occurs in mid-summer and shows up as wilted, discolored turf. Adjust watering schedules to wet the soil to a depth of four to six inches, and water only when grass shows symptoms of moisture stress.

Also, raise mowing heights one-half inch to improve drought tolerance in mid-summer.

Lack of nitrogen or iron often creates a lawn problem. Grass with a nitrogen deficiency may have a pale color and be heavily infested with weeds. A light application of a nitrogen fertilizer will improve the lawn's appearance.

Grass leaves that have yellow stripes parallel to the leaf margins may be deficient in iron. A foliar application of iron sulfate at six ounces per 1,000 square feet will usually solve this problem.

Leaf spot diseases are generally a problem when lawns are under stress and increase with high temperatures, drought, heavy shade and close mowing. While proper mowing and watering will reduce these problems, fungicides may be required to prevent serious damage.

White grubs feed heavily on lawns during mid-summer, and their damage resembles drought injury. If turf does not respond to applications of water, suspect this insect. White grubs can be controlled with insecticides. Drench the lawn after an insecticide is applied for grub control, since grubs feed in the soil.

Bill signing July 20

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and at least a dozen state legislators will gather on Friday, July 20, in the Rio Grande Valley for the signing of the farmworkers compensation bill.

Rep. Juan J. Hinojosa, D-McAllen, said Thursday the ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. July 20 outside the Virgin de San Juan Shrine, at San Juan near McAllen.

The ceremony will be open to the public, said Hinojosa, the House sponsor of the measure.

"Many of the people who help put food on our tables are from the Valley," Hinojosa said. "After 71 years of being excluded, it is only fitting that the workers and their families be able to see this bill signed into law."

Under provisions of the bill passed by the recent special session, effective Jan. 1, all migrant farmworkers and many seasonal agricultural employees will be covered by job-injury insurance. Small family farmers with gross annual payrolls of $25,000 or less will be exempted.

July 17 - County record books will be judged throughout the day (leaders needed)

July 19 - 2 p.m., Becky Houghton with SPS will be presenting a program on Low-Cal Meals, Courthouse Annex

July 17-20 - Texas 4-H Congress in Brownsville

RECORDBOOK JUDGING
All county recordbooks will be judged from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday, July 17. Leaders are needed to come into the office to help judge during the day. There will be two out-of-county judges who will judge all books and then each book will need to be judged by a leader.

The purpose of having leaders judge the book is to help leaders better understand how to put a book together and see what is required for a winning book. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

BROWNSVILLE TO HOST TEXAS 4-H CONGRESS

Theme for the 1984 Texas 4-H Congress, set for July 17-19 in Brownsville, will be "4-H - Fiesta International".

More than 500 4-H delegates, their agent advisors, and members of the Texas 4-H Council which assists with the operation of 4-H Congress, are expected to take part in the activity, to be headquartered at the Forst Brown Motor Hotel.

Representing Gray County in the 4-H educational activities will be Tanya Cummings of the 4-Clover 4-H Club in McLean.

While seminar sessions are scheduled at Jacob Brown Auditorium, adjacent to the host motel, other features of the program will include a study of the interrelationship of the U.S. and Mexico in regard to trade, an educational tour to study the shrimp industry and a boat manufacturing company near Brownsville, and the Gladys Porter Zoo in Brownsville, a source zoo for restocking other zoos around the country.

Featured speaker for the 4-H Congress will be Michael Broome of Charlotte, N.C., a humorist and futurist, who will discuss "Tomorrow's America."

Other special attractions of 4-H Congress include a chartered bus tour into Mexico to study agricultural facilities near Matamoros; a simulated air-sea rescue program coordinated by the U.S. Coast Guard just off South Padre Island, and a tour of historic homes in that area.

Texas 4-H Congress is an annual highlight of 4-H careers of many 15- to 18-year-old club members. It is held in different Texas cities each year to enable use of various unique educational aspects of programming.

PUC chairman to resign

AUSTIN (AP) - Public Utility Commission Chairman Al Erwin, who said several months ago he would not complete his term, will resign next Thursday, according to a source in the governor's office.

Erwin indicated Thursday his resignation was imminent, but would not give a date. The 39-year-old former newspaper reporter has said he wants to pursue his writing career.

Gov. Mark White acknowledged Thursday that he has been looking for a replacement for Erwin on the three-member commission that sets electric, water and telephone rates.

"I think he's done an exceptionally good job and I regret that he is making a decision to go back into the private sector," said White.
