

County tables action on vehicle registration hike

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

Responding to a taxpayer's objection to an additional tax, Gray County Commissioners tabled action Wednesday on a decision to adopt a new tax that would raise the cost of registering vehicles by $5.

Counties were given authorization to impose new tax during the last session of the Legislature.

Objecting to the measure, Stan Franke of Pampa told commissioners the citizens of Gray County don't need to pay any more taxes. He said he feels the people are subject to more than enough taxation on their property.

According to House Bill 965, the counties would retain 97 percent of the optional fee with the remaining three percent being remitted to the Motor Vehicle Department.

County tax collector Margie Gray said the additional $5 paid on each of about 14,000 cars, trucks, trailers and motorcycles registered in the county would bring in an $70,000 more tax money each year. The state would get $2,100 and Gray County would keep $67,900.

If approved, the fee would take effect

Jan. 1, 1985, and each participating county would have to collect the tax for five years.

"If the county elects not to participate, it will be 1990 before we would again have the opportunity to take part," Gray explained.

The Motor Vehicle Department has set March 1 as the deadline for making the decision. The Commissioners' Court is expected to take final action at its next regular meeting Feb. 15.

After some deliberation, commissioners reluctantly approved a 1984 fire contract with the City of Pampa, which included an "automatic" 10 percent increase in the cost of fire protection.

Under the contract, the county will pay the city $532 each time a city fire department vehicle answers an emergency call in the county.

Commissioners Ted Simmons and Ronnie Rice were appointed to study alternatives to the city-county contract, including the possibility of Gray County establishing a volunteer fire department.

Simmons suggested buying surplus equipment rigged with a water tank and manned by volunteers.

Rice wondered what would happen in the event of a chemical or oil-field fire. However, he said, "I'm not happy with this 10 percent increase in charges, because eventually you get to the point of diminishing returns and I think we are just about there now."

County Judge Carl Kennedy said the county needs to save money where it can if a workable fire protection alternative can be found.

According to Rice, it will take at least a year to put an alternative fire protection program into effect.

Commissioners authorized Judge Kennedy to increase from 30 cents to 50 cents per capita the county's dues payment to the Panhandle Regional Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program.

Kennedy said he will meet with Judge Jack Powell of Moore County to discuss the future of the program and to see what other counties are doing to support the service.

In other action, commissioners authorized Precinct 3 to advertise for bids for a road sweeper.

Cabot Pipeline Corp. and the Arington Companies were authorized to run pipelines under county roads.

House Democrats push for quick Lebanon vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are pushing for swift action on a resolution calling for withdrawal of U.S. Marines from Lebanon, but Republicans are demanding more time and President Reagan says he won't pay any attention anyway.

After a telephone call Wednesday from Speaker of the House Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. saying he would like to see the measure on the floor next week, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called a hearing for today.

Fascell said he wanted to get the views of State Department representatives on the issue and then schedule it for a vote by the committee on Friday.

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said, "You are going to shove this down our throat in 48 hours."

Other Republicans expressed similar views during a two-hour procedural debate in the committee.

Fascell, however, said, "I would like to go in the normal process, but this is not one of those normal matters. This, in my judgment, is an urgent matter."

O'Neill said he telephoned Fascell in the hope that the measure could be scheduled for floor action before Congress takes an 11-day recess beginning Feb. 10.

Reagan, meanwhile, was asked to comment on the resolution while posing for photographs with Yugoslav President Mika Spiljak and replied, "It's too happy an occasion to talk about anything Democrats are doing."

Pressed by reporters, the president said, "I'm not going to pay any attention to it."

Asked to comment on the president's remark, O'Neill said, "The onus is on the president of the United States. We tried to build a bipartisan policy, but when it fails we have a responsibility to speak out against it. We would be derelict if we did not."

O'Neill and House Majority Whip Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the bill received overwhelming support in a closed-door caucus of House Democrats Wednesday, although no vote was taken.

"Everybody was pretty much in agreement," the speaker said.

But Rep. Jim Leach of Iowa, a Republican member of the Foreign Affairs Committee who is often critical of administration foreign policy, said, "There is something a bit offensive about a bill that is a product of a partisan caucus."

Republicans took particular aim at the preamble to the resolution, which describes administration policy in Lebanon as a "failure" that has led to

"widespread concern among the American people" and "failed to impress upon the government of Lebanon the urgent need for it to develop a viable reconciliation plan."

Rep. Douglas K. Bereuter, R-Neb., told Democrats on the Foreign Affairs panel they could "make it a lot easier" for Republicans to accept the resolution if they tamed down the anti-administration rhetoric.

Committee members said the preamble language was added to the resolution to mollify some Democrats who thought the measure was not strong enough and would have preferred setting a specific date for withdrawal.

O'Neill opposed a specific date, and the resolution does not contain one, but it does call upon Reagan to report to Congress within 30 days what action he has taken to get the Marines out.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said he would work for a compromise within the committee designed to meet the Republican objections and secure bipartisan support.

"A resolution will pass," Solarz said. "The question is by how much and with how much Republican support."

Also on Capitol Hill:

Democrats took turns castigating President Reagan for the $180 billion deficit in his 1985 budget proposal, while Republicans called for an end to the finger-pointing and the need for a bipartisan effort to blur the red ink.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., attacked Reagan for his 1980 promise of a $93 billion surplus by 1985. "It takes a Ronald Reagan to brag about that kind of performance with a straight face," he said Wednesday.

Lawton Chiles of Florida, the senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, said the proposed $925.5 billion budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 is "a stay-the-course budget... certainly not an agenda for action in reducing the mounting deficit."

Phil sees shadow; brace for a longer winter

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — A sniffing, wriggling groundhog emerged from his burrow at dawn today and saw his shadow, thus predicting another six weeks of winter for the nation — for the 92nd time in 97 years.

"Phil," this town's famed woodchuck, was pulled from his electrically heated burrow on Gobbler's Knob to the cheers of tuxedoed members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club and hundreds of cold spectators.

"In the dimness of the early winter dawn, he stood for a moment, tall and proud. Then, in seconds, he saw a thin, gray shadow," said club president James H. Means, 60, a local contractor who claims to be the only translator for the groundhog.

Folklore dictates that on Groundhog Day, if a groundhog sees his shadow six more weeks of cold weather follow. If he doesn't, spring arrives soon.

Today, clear skies and temperatures in the 20s greeted Phil. And, in special ceremonies after the prediction, the 10-pound male groundhog was matched with an 11-pound female brought from the Philadelphia Zoo.

Last year, Phil the groundhog failed to see his shadow through the rain, predicting early spring for only the fifth time.

Reagan says wait till next year for deficit cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, decrying the huge deficits in his own new budget, promised today to submit a plan to eventually dry up every drop of red ink. But he said he won't do it till next year — after November's elections.

Submitting such a plan in this election year wouldn't do any good, he said.

Reagan noted that he has already asked Congress to work with his administration toward $100 billion in still-unspecified deficit reductions over the next three years.

But even assuming the effort bears fruit, "the deficits projected for fiscal 1986 and beyond are totally unacceptable to me," he said.

One day earlier, Reagan had sent Congress his budget message for fiscal 1985, including projections the government would outspend its income by about $180 billion a year through 1987. The deficit would still be over $120 billion by the time he left office in 1989 if he won a second term — a painful forecast for a president who had vowed as a candidate to balance the budget by 1983.

"I am committed to finding ways to reduce further the growth of spending and to put the budget on a path that will lead to a balance between outlays and receipts," he said today. "In 1985 I will submit a budget that can achieve this goal."

Reagan made his statements in his annual Economic Report to Congress, a document with a generally upbeat view of the current state of the U.S. economy despite the prospect of deficits sticking near last year's record $195.4 billion.

Reagan said the budget he proposed last year — including a standby tax increase he backed away from this year — would have reduced the deficit to less than 2 percent of the nation's economic output by 1988 and would have put the government "on its way to a balance of revenues and outlays."

But he added, "The unwillingness of the Congress to accept the proposals that I offered has made it clear to me that we must wait until after this year's election to enact spending reductions coupled with tax simplification that will eventually eliminate our budget deficit."

He gave no details other than to say, as he has before, that he has asked the Treasury Department to recommend ways "to make our tax system fairer, simpler and less of a burden on our nation's economy."

Most observers agree with Reagan that there will be little deficit cutting this year, with Congress unwilling to accept new trims in social programs and the president unwilling to increase revenue by raising taxes or to greatly scale down his plans for more military spending.

Building down for fiscal year, but shows first-month increase

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Valuations of buildings permits issued by the city show a slight decline for this fiscal year to date, but are up for the first month of the calendar year, according to figures released by the Department of Building Inspection.

Fourteen building permits with a total valuation of $632,706 were issued by the city in January, an increase over the 16 permits with total valuation of $559,316 issued in January of 1983.

However, valuations for the fiscal year to date are $3,737,196, down just under $64,000 from the $3,800,919 in permits issued for the same fiscal period in 1982-1983, Shirley Muns, assistant building inspector, said.

Sixty-three building permits have been issued to date, compared to 95 for the same period last fiscal year period.

Building permits for January included five for single family dwellings, with a total valuation of $484,506; one for a mobile home, valuation of $18,500; one for a sign, valuation of $2,000; four for alterations-additions to dwellings, total valuation of $64,700, and three for alterations-additions to commercial buildings, total valuation of $63,000.

The figures do not include a permit for previously announced construction of the new 160-unit Harvester House Apartments, with a value of $4,590,000. Developers have not yet picked up their permit, Ms. Muns said. Construction is not due to start until later this month or sometime in March.

Total fees collected for building permits in January were $1,385.25, compared to $525.50 for December. Total fees collected in January of last year were $1,514. Fiscal year to date building permit fees total $6,150.25, compared with $9,347.25 for the previous fiscal year period.

Fourteen electrical permits were issued last month, with $348.08 in fees collected, Ms. Muns noted. In December the city issued nine electrical permits and collected $77.68 in fees. In January, 1983, the city issued 13 electrical permits, with $92.10 in fees.

For the fiscal year to date, 51 electrical permits have been issued, compared to 80 for the previous fiscal year period. Total fees total $1,071.95 for the current fiscal year period, compared to only $568.30 in fees for the previous fiscal year period.

Indictments returned

The 31st District Grand Jury for Gray County has indicted two brothers, natives of Chihuahua, in connection with a tear-gas attack and the Jan. 2 robbery of the Minit Mart, 1106 Alcock.

The grand jury indicted Salvador Alarcon Vargas, 17, and Raul Alarcon Vargas, 20, in connection with the robbery of the Pampa convenience store last month. Police reported two Hispanic men entered the store about 6:45 p.m. Jan. 2 and sprayed the clerk in the face with tear gas. The robbers made off on foot with an undetermined amount of cash, police reported.

Police later arrested the brothers, natives of Chihuahua, Mexico, at a home at 736 E. Craven and charged them with the store robbery.

During their session Wednesday, the grand jurors also returned indictments against five other Pampa area residents. Those indicted and the charges against them include: Jerry Rhoten, 29, of Pampa, burglary of a habitation on Jan. 20.

Kenneth Dean, age unavailable, 911 1/2 E. Browning, forgery by making and passing on Dec. 4.

Sammy E. Fields, 34, 1912 N. Nelson, felony theft on Nov. 22.

Hoyt Eugene LaRue, 18, 207 N. Ward, burglary of a building on June 1.

Terry Tate, age unavailable, of Pampa, forgery by passing on Jan. 11.

The meeting Wednesday was the second for the grand jurors since 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny swore them in for a six-month term on Jan. 9.

The 12 new grand jurors who will consider all criminal cases in Gray County for the remainder of the term include Deanne Faye Baker, Joyce Cornell, Mae L. Franklin, Boyd W. Thurman, A.P. Coombs, Phillip Eugene Hamilton, William Arthur Brady, Nancy Jane Landry, Sammy Ray Condo, Jimmy Don Humphrey, Francis W. Cox and B.T. Coffee. Landry was selected as foreman of the grand jury.

Phil Gramm raises more money than both opponents combined

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Rep. Phil Gramm, the former Democrat making his first statewide bid for election as a Republican, last year raised more campaign money than his two opponents combined in the race for the GOP Senate nomination in Texas, reports show.
Gramm also received over three times as much money as his opponents from political action committees affiliated with special interest groups, according to campaign finance reports made available Wednesday by the Senate.
Gramm spent less on campaigning last year than either of his opponents, Rep. Ron Paul of Lake Jackson and Houston businessman Robert A. Mosbacher Jr., who polls have indicated are underdogs.
But he had over four times as much campaign cash on hand at year's end as his opponents combined, the reports show.
"Obviously, I believe we're off to a strong start," said Gramm, of College Station. "Fund raising in a primary is hard. It's harder than raising money in a general election."
Gramm, Paul and Mosbacher are seeking the Republican nomination in the May primary to run for the seat being vacated with the retirement of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Gramm attracted national attention a year ago when he quit the Democratic Party and his House seat after Democrats removed him from the Budget Committee because of his support for President Reagan's budget proposals. Gramm then won re-election as a Republican in a special election.
Campaign finance reports showed that last year Gramm raised $1.08 million in campaign contributions for the Senate race, compared with $598,568 for Paul and $386,694 for Mosbacher.
Gramm reported receiving $93,171 from PACs, compared with $11,249 for Paul and $14,000 for Mosbacher.
Gramm also transferred $337,326 to his Senate campaign from his congressional campaign committee, and Paul transferred $187,500 from his congressional committee.
Gramm said he spent $231,585 on the Senate campaign during the year, compared with $573,859 for Paul and $307,057 for Mosbacher.
And Gramm listed $1.2 million in cash on hand at year's end, compared with $212,209 for Paul and $80,782 for Mosbacher.

Gramm's PAC contributions came from PACs affiliated with a wide range of commercial interests, including banking, energy, construction, real estate and insurance.
Among his largest PAC contributions were $4,750 from the PAC of the National Association of Realtors in Chicago, $5,000 from the PAC of the Associated General Contractors of America in Washington and $5,000 from the PAC of Dart & Kraft, Inc. of Northbrook, Ill.
Mosbacher received more than half his PAC support, or $9,500, from four PACs affiliated with Houston law firms.
The bulk of Paul's PAC contributions, or $10,500, came from three conservative organizations which support Paul's call for a return to the gold standard-Silver Dollar PAC, Coral PAC and the Fund to Keep America No. 1.
Five Democrats are seeking the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat, among them former Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, state Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock.
None of their campaign finance reports were yet available for inspection at the Senate.
In his previous statewide race as a Democrat, Gramm lost the Democratic nomination for the Senate in 1976 to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

Nicaraguan says panel advised two invasions

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) - One of Nicaragua's top leftist leaders, in Venezuela for today's inauguration of a new president, says the Kissinger commission secretly advised President Reagan to order an invasion of Nicaragua and El Salvador.
Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the Sandinista junta, made the charge after arriving Wednesday for the inauguration of Jaime Lusinchi, Secretary of State George P. Shultz is representing the United States at today's ceremonies, but there was no immediate comment from him or other U.S. officials on Ortega's allegation.

Lusinchi's Social Democratic ticket was elected in December by the largest majority in the 26 years that Venezuela's two main political parties have alternate power.
Several of the 50 or so nations that sent envoys to the inaugural are involved in the conflicts and peace negotiations in Central America.

Gramm campaigns in Pampa Saturday

A reception for U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Sen. John Tower, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Gray County Republican headquarters, 1064 North Hobart.
Rep. Gramm, who will be making his second campaign trip to Pampa, announced his candidacy for the Senate seat in September. Since then, he has visited more than 150 communities across Texas and named steering committees in more than 60 counties.
A Ph.D. economist who taught for more than a decade at Texas A&M university before winning election to Congress in 1978, he first drew national attention as co-author of the Gramm-Latta budgets which implemented President Reagan's economic program.
Last year, after the National Democratic Party's leadership punished Gramm for his work on the budget by removing him from the House Budget Committee, Gramm resigned his seat in Congress, switched parties and easily won re-election.
"I had to choose between you and Tip O'Neill," he told voters, "and I chose you."

Ed Barker hired as probation officer

A former minister and policeman is the new Gray County Juvenile Probation Officer.
Ed Barker, well known to Pampans as the voice behind the Crime Stoppers messages, took over his duties as juvenile probation officer Wednesday.
Barker replaces Bill Leonard who resigned in December after 24 1/2 years.
Barker told County Commissioners Wednesday he hoped he can do as good a job and last as long as his predecessor.
Barker was selected from a field of eight candidates. His appointment was kept secret to give Barker time to resign from his position as Crime Prevention officer and school liaison officer with the Pampa Police Department.

Ortega, in an impromptu news conference, charged that the National Bipartisan Commission on Central America, led by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, had secretly advised Reagan that an invasion of Nicaragua and El Salvador was "indispensable."
"The United States is opposed to the democracy we are building in Nicaragua," Ortega said.
The United States, which contends that the Sandinistas violate human rights, aids Honduras-based rebels in their fight to overthrow the Nicaraguan government. Other anti-Sandinista insurgents are based in Costa Rica.
Ortega said his government is prepared to accept the withdrawal of all foreign military advisors from Central America as well as the closing down of all foreign military bases in the region.

Grandstaff deliberations continue

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - After deliberating for more than seven hours, a jury was told to come back today and try again to reach a verdict in a $5 million wrongful death suit filed against law enforcement officers who shot and killed a ranch foreman after mistaking him for a fugitive.
The family of James C. Grandstaff, 31, brought the civil suit. He was killed about 4:45 a.m. the morning of Aug. 11, 1981, after he and his wife awoke to the sounds of police shouting in a pasture on the 6666 Ranch near Borger.
Grandstaff, who was a foreman on the ranch, got out of bed to investigate. After learning police had chased a department issued 38 plumbing permits and collected $217.50 in fees.

For the current fiscal year the city has issued 132 plumbing permits for $3,230.40 in fees, compared with 168 permits and $1,189.50 in fees for the previous fiscal year period.

Other fees in January totaled $650, compared to $1,155 for December and $483 for January, 1983. Total of other fees for the fiscal year to date is $1,905; for the previous fiscal year period, $1,158 was collected for other fees. Six thousand dollars had been assessed in fines for the comparable 1982-1983 fiscal period.

Panel says shortage of funds prevents day care inspections

DALLAS (AP) - Texas parents often are unaware they are sending their children to a day care center whose license has been revoked, according to a report from a committee looking into the operation of such facilities.
The report, released on Tuesday, said the risk to children in Texas day care centers has "substantially risen" because of budget restraints that have caused the number of state inspectors to be cut in half since 1977 while the number of day care centers in Texas has more than doubled.

The committee recommended increased financing for day-care regulation, more frequent inspections, better training of inspectors and better communication with prosecutors in court cases against substandard centers.
The report will be presented to members of the Texas Board of Human Resources at a meeting today in Beaumont.
The panel of six administrators from the Texas Department of Human Resources was formed last year by DHR Commissioner Marlin Johnston to review the department's day-care licensing branch.
Personnel shortages have caused "ineffective inspections of day care centers," superficial complaint investigations... failure to take enforcement actions and markedly low staff morale," the report said.
The agency "contributes to lack of concern... about the need for meeting standards" by those who operate registered family homes, which are not inspected by the DHR, the report said.
Supervisors in day-care licensing offices "are doing very little substantive supervision of staff" because of workload demands, the panel said.
"I think this is a good foundation document," Johnston told The Dallas Morning News. "We feel it's a base document to be used for many years to come."
The committee "called the shots the way they saw them," Johnston added.
While many of the committee's recommendations can be implemented quickly, Johnston said, he predicted that the advice to funnel more money into day-care licensing will be difficult to do.
"If it were going to be done now, we'd have to rob Peter to pay Paul," he said. "That's one of those bridges that has not even begun to be crossed."

Department personnel conducted 35 building inspections in January, the same number they conducted in December. Forty such inspections were undertaken in January, 1983. Personnel have made 182 building inspections for the fiscal year to date, compared to 169 for the previous fiscal year period.
Nineteen electrical inspections were conducted last month, compared to 29 in December, Ms. Muns said. In January, 1983, department personnel conducted 31 electrical inspections. Total electrical inspections this fiscal year to date are 144, compared to 162 for the previous fiscal year period.
Personnel made 52 plumbing inspections last month, the same as the number conducted in December. The previous January, 61 plumbing inspections were made. Plumbing inspections for fiscal year to date total 284, down slightly from the 300 made in the comparable previous fiscal year period.
Total miscellaneous inspections for January were 33, only half of the 66 made in December. Only six miscellaneous inspections were conducted in January, 1983. For the current fiscal year period, 161 miscellaneous inspections have been made, compared to 79 for the previous fiscal year period.
Total inspections in January were 139, an average of 6.32 a day. For the fiscal year to date a total of 771 inspections have been conducted, compared to 710 for the previous fiscal year period.

Texas grain dealer's conviction reversed

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Wednesday erased a five-year sentence given Robert Wilson of Plainview on conviction of theft of more than $10,000 involving several grain deals.
The court reversed the conviction and ordered Wilson acquitted.
Court records show that the indictment against Wilson, manager of Transco Corp. in Plainview, alleged that on Aug. 29, 1979, Wilson "with intent to deprive the owner, Werner Fuchs (president of Westphalia Fertilizer and Grain in Lott) of property, namely, milo grain and did knowingly and intentionally, without the owner's effective consent, unlawfully appropriate such property which has a value of more than $10,000."
There was testimony at the trial of several transactions between Fuchs and Wilson and of several drafts drawn against Transco that were returned marked "insufficient funds."
Fuchs testified that when he asked Wilson about the grain, Wilson said the grain was sold "and he got the money and said he didn't know what happened with it."

Witness heard blows in Lozano's cell

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A man who was imprisoned in the Ector County Jail the night that Larry Lozano died testified that he heard the sound of blows coming from Lozano's cell after eight deputies rushed in.

The jail became quiet, but a short time later, Robert Lee Dawson of Dallas said, he heard one of the deputies say, "That ... is still moving."

"There were more blows that lasted for a few seconds," Dawson testified.

Lozano, who was being held on traffic violations and a charge of resisting arrest, died the night of Jan. 22, 1978 after eight officers went into his cell to restrain him.

Dawson became the fourth man to testify, in a civil lawsuit against two former sheriff's deputies, of hearing the sound of blows coming from the area of Lozano's jail cell on the night he died. Lozano's two sons filed the suit. They contend that Jackie Perkins and Randy Tenney — who were Ector County deputies at the time — used excessive force to restrain Lozano during the jailhouse scuffle.

The trial is the second resulting from Lozano's death. In August 1981, a federal court jury ruled in favor of county and law enforcement officials, but an appeals court last fall overturned the decision regarding Tenney and Perkins and ordered that portion of the suit to be retried.

Dawson and three others who were in the jail that night testified that Lozano had been telling jail personnel that he wanted to be moved from his jail cell.

Dawson said he heard "someone beating on the walls" in the area where Lozano was jailed. He said he heard Perkins "come up and he asked the man to be quiet."

The noise stopped for a while, Dawson said, but when it began again, Perkins and other deputies approached the cell.

In testimony Tuesday, Tenney, now a Stanton police officer, testified Lozano had smashed the observation window of his cell. Lozano was bleeding heavily, but was also holding jagged pieces of glass in his hands, Tenney said.

Lozano "took a step toward me. That was it. I felt like my throat was going to be slashed. I took a step toward him and we clashed. I tackled him," Tenney said. But he denied that he struck Lozano during the scuffle, after which the prisoner was handcuffed and laid face down in a hall outside the cell.

Salvadorans found dead in rural area

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Three Salvadoran refugees, including a teen-ager trying to avoid being forced into the army in his homeland, died on a roadside in rural South Texas and authorities are trying to figure out why.

Abdul Flores Perez, 15, of San Salvador, and two traveling companions, Marta Irene Flores, 27, of Yucuaquin and Maria Lucia Flores, 55, were found dead near an abandoned dairy barn Wednesday morning.

Authorities in Willacy County are awaiting toxicology tests to determine what killed the trio.

A tote bag found near the victims contained personal belongings, passports for the two young Salvadorans and visa papers allowing them to legally enter Mexico, said Jimmy Duddleston of the Duddleston Funeral home in Raymondville.

Duddleston said no papers were found granting the Salvadorans legal entry into the United States.

Willacy County chief deputy Larry Spence said illegal aliens travel through his jurisdiction following State Highway 77 north to Corpus Christi. The three were found about 7 a.m. near an abandoned dairy barn on FM 2629, about 9 miles southwest of Raymondville.

Duddleston said it appeared that the travelers became ill while spending the night in the barn to escape the cold and rain.

"The boy must have gone to get help and he got about 100 yards to the roadside before he fell dead. The little girl went about 60 steps and her mother got about 15 feet before she died near the barn," Duddleston said.

Perez and the two women were taken to Valley Baptist Medical Center where autopsies were performed.

A preliminary autopsy on the boy did not show "any signs of being stabbed or hit or strangled or anything like that," said Spence.

Harlingen pathologist Dr. David Flory said toxicology tests are being run to check the victims' stomach contents, blood and liver against "something like fertilizer" found in the barn where they spent the night.

Authorities at the scene speculated that the three died of poisoning, but Flory said "we haven't any leads" on the cause of death.

"There's lots of room for speculation, but we won't have anything firm until we get the lab tests back," he said.

Abel Claudio of Jersey City, N.J., who is married to Perez' sister, Catalina, said the boy called Saturday to say he was leaving El Salvador for the states because "the army was trying to grab him."

"The army doesn't give you a choice. If you don't go they blow you away right there and then they hurt your family," Claudio told the Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Perez' sisters also live in New Jersey, but his parents remain in San Salvador because "they are too old to come, but they tried to save their sons by sending them away."

Judge rules other Jones evidence admissible

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors trying to prove that a nurse killed an infant with an overdose of a hard-to-trace drug have won permission to introduce evidence they believe shows Gene Jones engaged in a "continuing plan" to endanger babies.

State District Judge John Clark listened to a day and a half of testimony on six "extraneous offenses," and then ruled Wednesday that the testimony could be repeated for jurors.

That process began Wednesday afternoon with testimony from two Army emergency medical specialist who airlifted a 7-year-old boy from Kerrville to San Antonio.

During the flight, they said, Ms. Jones injected the stable youth with a drug. Moments later, the child went into respiratory arrest, they said.

Ms. Jones, 33, is being tried in the Sept. 17, 1982, death of Chelsea McClellan, a 15-month-old girl who died after two injections from the vocational nurse.

Prosecutors allege Ms. Jones killed the girl with by injecting her with succinylcholine, a powerful muscle relaxant.

She is also charged with injuring seven children, including Chelsea. The six other indictments form the basis of the "extraneous" offense testimony.

Carter's ruling was a victory for prosecutors, who had argued the testimony about unusual respiratory arrest and suspicious deaths of infants in San Antonio and Kerrville was necessary to establish a motive in the bizarre murder case.

Army Sgt. David Maywhort, who flew two of the six children in August 1982 from Kerrville to San Antonio, testified that 7-year-old Jimmy Pearson was stable during the flight until Ms. Jones injected a drug into the boy's intravenous bottle.

"I was yelling at (Spec. 5 Gabriel) Garcia, telling him to stop her," Maywhort said.

Soon after the injection, Jimmy "went into respiratory arrest," he said. The helicopter was landed in an open field and the boy was revived, he said.

Maywhort said he first suspected something was wrong when Ms. Jones told him she was listening to sounds inside the boy's chest with a stethoscope — a procedure he said was impossible during flight because of the noise and vibration.

"It's highly unusual anytime a person in the medical profession tells you she's doing something you know to be physically impossible," Maywhort said.

Garcia, who was in command of the flight, testified that Ms. Jones told him before takeoff that Jimmy, who had been having seizures but appeared to have been stabilized, "might go sour" in flight.

"She was yelling at me, 'He's seizing,'" said Garcia, describing the incident in the air. "I looked at him and he looked fine to me." That was before Ms. Jones made the injection, he said.

After the helicopter arrived at a San Antonio hospital, Ms. Jones talked with Jimmy's mother, Ellen Pearson.

"She was pale, she was trembling," Mrs. Pearson said of Ms. Jones. "I can't even explain the look she had in her eyes."

Assistant Bexar County District Attorney Nick

Rothe said the testimony of alleged "extraneous" offenses "will give jurors the larger overview of the case."

"There are striking similarities between all these extraneous offenses and this case we are trying," Rothe argued before Carter Wednesday morning. "They are almost precisely the same set of circumstances and the nurse there (is) the common denominator."

The testimony, he said, shows Ms. Jones was acting out "a continuing plan" of injuring children.

"In this case we have a peculiar type of circumstances where the defendant is charged with injuring a child with a drug and the defendant is — at least to some degree — a member of the medical profession," Rothe said.

"The jury could not infer from the action itself that the intent of a nurse giving an injection was to cause serious bodily harm," he said.

Defense attorney Jim Brookshire said he "always knew" the judge would rule in favor of prosecutors on the issue of "extraneous" evidence, but would not elaborate.

"That doesn't mean I agree with the ruling," Brookshire said.

Defense attorney Laura Little argued that the "extraneous" offense testimony was a "smokescreen" designed by prosecutors to confuse jurors.

"If it's shown that Gene Jones indeed injected Chelsea McClellan with succinylcholine, then the intent can be directly inferred," she argued.

Writer learns first-hand terror felt by the police

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK Associated Press Writer HOUSTON (AP) — A New York Times photographer is dead because I shot him by mistake. So is at least one Houston police officer.

And I've been gunned down at least four times in a hair-raising, heart-pounding 10 minutes of terror through eight situations designed to simulate what a police officer can expect daily on the job.

The guns were real. So was the bulletproof vest. My victims and assailants were Houston police officers playing those roles.

I was the cop. The bullets, fortunately, were blanks.

"It's important to realize these are real situations," said Dr. Gregg Riede, director of psychological services for the Houston Police Department.

The forum Wednesday was the "Shoot-No Shoot" obstacle course at the Houston Police Academy, where officials wanted reporters to better acquaint themselves with situations that call for an officer to discharge or not discharge his weapon.

The course, acclaimed by Houston officials as one of the best in the nation, has been in operation since 1980 and is modeled after a similar course used by the FBI. More than 2,000 police officers from around Texas have gone through it. Lt. D.L. Smith said.

"All the scenarios have happened," Officer Jim Conley, an instructor there, said. "It's not something we've made up. These are high stress, life or death situations."

The situations involve such things as a man attempting suicide, a family trouble call, a burglary, a hostage situation.

"Most of you will kill somebody," another instructor, Officer Terry Bratton, said. "Think of what you'd tell your 10-year-old or 5-year-old that you killed someone."

The course is structured to induce stress. My blood pressure, taken before and after, showed a 70-point increase afterwards.

It's not like in the movies. "Clint Eastwood is a big problem," said Officer Butch Grant. "He can do take two, take three, take four. We can't."

"The image we try to fight is Eastwood shooting two hijackers and then finish his hot dog," Bratton added. "After it's over, we have internal investigations, the district attorney investigations, maybe a federal investigation to see if there was a civil rights violation. But we accept that."

Department policy allows an officer to shoot a gun to protect himself or a third party. The decision, however, is split second, almost instinctive.

"You must know how you're going to react," instructors said, citing statistics which show the average confrontation involves three shots, takes 2½ seconds and occurs from 4 to 12 feet between the officer and the gunman. Forty percent involve more than one gunman.

"Here's your pistol," Bratton told me. "It's got six rounds in it."

— A man was threatening suicide. He didn't want to give up the gun despite my orders.

Legislator says TDC keeps two sets of books

AUSTIN (AP) — State prison officials, using a double set of books, have covered-up a "scam" in which top-level employees took home "windfall gains" in free benefits, a state legislator says.

"The whole program reeks with abuse for the benefit of a select few," Rep. Ray Keller, chairman of the House Law Enforcement Committee.

Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley said Acting Director Red McKaskle has asked his staff for an "immediate answer" to the allegation.

But Hartley said a " cursory review" showed there may be "a bookkeeping difficulty as opposed to any fraudulent activity."

Keller, R-Duncanville, released Wednesday what he said seemed to be a list of the actual benefits received by Texas Department of Corrections employees. The list differs from the benefits list, required by law, submitted to the Legislature.

Gov. Mark White planned to meet privately with Board of Corrections members today to discuss problems in the prisons.

Harry Whittington of Austin, a board member, said, "That list is being investigated."

He acknowledged the complicated system of free and low-cost food, housing and inmate houseboys "probably has been abused."

"I'm familiar with the problem from the standpoint of having it been called to our attention that there is another list of emolument eligibility, different from the list turned in to the Legislature," Whittington said.

Keller was tougher in his assessment of the second list. "Our investigation shows an emolument program rampantly out of control," he said.

A Keller aide said the list was mailed to an Austin attorney. The attorney apparently passed it on to Keller.

"We were told it was originally sent to an attorney in Austin because TDC is not supposed to open mail to attorneys," the aide said.

Keller said, "There appear to be at least two sets of documents for emoluments, one that shows a coverage of windfall gains by a select few in the emolument program."

The list submitted to the Legislature is "blatantly inaccurate," according to Keller.

He said the list shows that Hartley — an assistant director — and Warden Jack Pursey have no houseboys although "they definitely enjoy this benefit."

Hartley was upset by the allegation.

"I can guarantee you I'm not part of any scam or fraud with respect to the benefits," he said. "When somebody tells me I'm involved in a scam or fraud I sure like it to be called to my face. I certainly have nothing to hide."

Keller said former director Jim Estelle, who left the TDC payroll on Tuesday, is listed as having two dependents "while the confidential list shows him receiving enough emoluments for six."

Keller also said Assistant Director Jack Kyle is listed as having two dependents but gets benefits for six.

"This is intolerable just so a few can have access to as much as three times the emoluments they deserve by law," said Keller.

TDC officials did not return telephone calls on Wednesday.

Whittington said "at this point (the second list) has not been adequately explained. Until it is, it leads to concern on our part."

Keller urged the Legislative Budget Board to "deal with the benefactors of this scam in the severest sense."

In 1983, the LBB recommended a sharp cut in the emolument program. Most of the cut was rejected by the Legislature.

Whittington said the benefits system "certainly needs to be re-examined and redefined."

An LBB source, who asked not to be identified, said budget examiners have long been suspicious about the emolument program.

"If nothing else, it just doesn't look very good to have this second list," the source told the Associated Press.

This is a job that should not exist

It isn't so much that the daughter - in - law of one of President Reagan's closest friends and heaviest contributors over the years is pulling down $70,800 in a hotshot government job that riles us. What gets our goat is that the position exists to be filled in the first place.

Donna Tuttle, as news stories have indicated, has been appointed undersecretary of commerce for travel and tourism at the salary mentioned above. Her father - in - law, sure enough, is the Holmes Tuttle, famous auto dealer, presidential (and gubernatorial before that) confidante, and GOP heavy hitter. We doubt if it constitutes a major scandal. She can probably perform her dubious duties about as well as anybody else likely to be considered. Being a relative of a friend of the president should not be a disqualification in and of itself.

The more important question is this: why is there such a thing as an undersecretary of commerce for travel and tourism at all? Does the office constitute anything more than a tax - paid lobbyist for the tourism industry?

The giveaway here is in comments from staffers on the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, who sought to reassure scandal - hungry news types that there wasn't any scandal here at all. Donna Tuttle hasn't been opposed for the job, they said, and besides, with her good contacts at the White House, she'll be able to protect the agency's budget and present issues important to the industry.

That, apparently, is the bottom line in Washington: protecting the agency's budget. And you thought the Reagan administration had come in to clean house, to view burgeoning bureaucracy with a skeptical eye, to "cut, squeeze and trim" wherever possible? At least we can be grateful to those unidentified Senate staffers for giving us a glimpse of reality.

As for presenting issues important to the industry, people in the travel and tourism business have diverse opinions. Insofar as the industry has official organizations inclined to present issues to government, it has resisted and bad - mouthed airline deregulation and looked favorably on expanding the CAB's powers in the wake of deregulation. If that's present issues, the administration can do without it.

If the travel and tourism industry wants lobbyists, let it hire them (as it does). There's no excuse for the taxpayers to hire one for the industry.

We have nothing personal against Ms. Tuttle. She's probably competent, and if she's been influenced by her father - in - law, she may consider herself a red hot conservative out to reform the agency. She just happens to have landed a job that shouldn't exist.

And it's not the only undersecretary of commerce position that should be abolished.

Truth about shooting of Pope

If you honestly want to know the purpose of a free press I bid you to shell out fifteen dollars for The Time of the Assassins, Claire Sterling's inquiry into the attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II.

In the end, freedom of the press exists so that journalists like Mrs. Sterling can go slogging along unlighted, unfriendly paths that no one else will tread in dogged conquest of The Truth.

Not every journey ends with the discovery of the truth; not every truth discovered is worth the journey. Yet in Mrs. Sterling's case, the results seem splendidly worth the time, the exertion - even, so far as I'm qualified to judge, the personal and the professional risks she ran.

Mrs. Sterling's theme is two - fold, and it is damning. First she maintains that Mehmet Ali Agca was "an all - purpose hit man at the disposal of a Bulgarian spy ring operating in Italy and reporting to the Russians." Second - and if possible more shocking - she holds that the West has all along been covering up for the Soviets.

For those assertions she provides footnotes and documentation, gathered during on - the - spot investigations in Turkey, Italy and West Germany. The Bulgarian "connection" - Agca's self - confessed link to the Bulgarian secret service, the DS - is of course a familiar story by now. This is partly thanks to Mrs. Sterling herself who a year - and - a - half ago published in Reader's Digest her findings to date. A veteran foreign correspondent and expert on terrorism, Mrs. Sterling doesn't merely pass along Agca's account. She verifies and builds on that account.

She discovers that Agca, contrary to all published reports, is neither a screwball nor a rightwinger - instead an apolitical hit man. She discovers his connection to the so - called "Turkish mafia," drug - runners extraordinary.

She hits on the Turkish mafia's connections to the Bulgarians, writing: "There is clear evidence by now that Bulgaria had in fact set out deliberately to nurture Turkey's terrorist monster, by arming both sides; that this is part of an on - going Soviet master plan to force the collapse of Turkey's democratic order; and that the Turkish mafia was shaped by Bulgaria's secret service as an instrument toward this end."

And the pope? Well, he and Lech Walesa were making life miserable for the Soviets' satraps in Poland. The Bulgarians, doers of dirty work for the Kremlin, got the call to kill both men. Happenstance apparently spared Walesa; the pope, it seems evident, profited from the intervention of his Employer.

But, as I say, this is only half of Mrs. Sterling's story - and not necessarily the more depressing of the two halves. Again and again during her investigations, she discovered that the Western intelligence services didn't want to talk about the murder plot, nor did other journalists (with exceptions) want to write about it.

They were content to see Agca as a lone loony, if not as a CIA agent. "An establishmentarian longing to keep the lid on was apparent wherever I went," Mrs. Sterling writes. Indeed, "in certain circles, my determined efforts to gather evidence on the papal shooting made me... a Red - baiting McCarthyite." Even the anti - Communist Reagan administration scoffed at the hard evidence.

Why? Why? Why? "There's probably no simple explanation," Mrs. Sterling says. Likely, when Yuri Andropov succeeded

Leonid Brezhnev, hopeful Westerners wanted to go easy on him, as he then was being portrayed as a "closet liberal." This attitude would have been part of the "perpetual disinformation of Western leaders to confront the Russians with their darker deeds."

Likeliest of all, says Mrs. Sterling, the CIA dropped the ball. It failed to follow the Agca case, then "excused" the failure by pooh - pooing the Bulgarian Connection.

What we have got here is "Popegate," a cover - up for which there can be no real justification. The Time of the Assassins, unless smothered by the same inattention that has smothered the Bulgarian Connection, could create an international sensation. It ought to, for the questions it raises about Soviet malevolence and Western pusillanimity are profound ones. They must be talked about seriously. And if governments won't talk about them, then people may - people enlightened in spite of their government.

Books like Mrs. Sterling's - honest and upsetting books - generally don't win Establishment literary prizes. An exception should be made in the present case - for one of the most important books of the year.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 2, the 33rd day of 1984. There are 333 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 2, 1876, the National League of Professional Base Ball Clubs was formed in New York, with teams in Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Hartford, Louisville, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

On this date:

In 1848, the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo ended the Mexican War.

In 1892, William Painter patented the crown cork bottle cap.

In 1912, stunt actor Frederick Law jumped with a parachute from the Statue of Liberty for filming by Pathe News.

And in 1969, actor Boris Karloff died at the age of 81 in his native England.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon assured Cambodian President Lon Nol that the United States would continue to provide the "maximum possible assistance" in the fight against Cambodian rebels.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter led the list of dignitaries attending a memorial service for former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller in New York.

One year ago: Pope John Paul II bestowed the scarlet skullcap and biretta of a prince of the Church on 18 cardinals, including Joseph Bernardin, the archbishop of Chicago.

Today's birthdays: Violinist Jascha Heifetz is 83 years old. Actor Gale Gordon is 78. Author Irwin Shaw is 71. Singer Tom Smothers is 47. Actor Bo Hopkins is 42. And actress Farrah Fawcett is 37.

This year, it's all up to you

The U.S. of America is the most durable, the most consistent, the most stable government this world has ever known.

Resentments do not fester until they become explosive in the U.S. mostly because we vent our frustrations with "a revolution every four years."

This is our year. Our nation's present prosperity is building on quicksand; on a foundation of national debt totaling more than 1.4 trillion dollars.

The economic philosophy we have come to call Reaganomics presumes that if taxes are held down so that people will have more money to spend and businesses will have more money on which to expand - then everybody making more money will eventually be paying enough more in taxes to support our government and pay our debt.

So far Reaganomics has not accomplished the latter objective of amortizing our debt because government spending keeps going up.

Federal spending as a percentage of our nation's Gross National Product has increased an additional 2 percent under Reagan. And spending in 1983 was up 9 percent from 1982.

Congress and the president must share the blame for increased government spending.

The president because he has dared to make only token budget cuts.

The Congress because congressmen in an election year have gone through their regular quadrennial mating dance, offering more subsidies for construction, for farmers; have not dared discipline recipients of Medicare or Social Security.

The Grace Commission has surveyed federal spending, has concluded that 100 billion dollars in fat could be cut from the federal budget.

But the president's White House advisers are as convinced as are the members of Congress that "their first responsibility is to get themselves re - elected."

So expand no significant husbandry this year.

So what is the electorate to do? How do we vote if we want our nation to be solvent again and if we do not want to resume the tax - and - spend formula which was destroying our currency?

Since candidates, albeit understandably, are running so scared this year, we have to rely on the records of individual candidates in past years.

If we want government to take more of our money and spend more of our money there are more than enough candidates with that philosophy. And they are not all in any one party.

If we want government to take less of our money and spend less of our money - essentially Reaganomics - there are politicians who have fairly consistently voted that way.

One year from now leadership will be up to them. This year it is up to you.

Meese move concerns the right

NEW YORK (NEA) - The appointment of White House Counselor Ed Meese as attorney general to succeed William French Smith follows a precedent among recent presidents of making sure that the Justice Department is in absolutely reliable hands.

Pres. Dwight Eisenhower gave the post to his campaign manager; Pres. John Kennedy, to his brother, Jimmy Carter assigned it to his longtime personal attorney, and Ron Reagan followed Carter's example. Now that Attorney General Smith is stepping down, the job goes to Meese, one of Mr. Reagan's most trusted aides.

Whatever the other consequences of the shift may be, the president can take comfort from the knowledge that his Justice Department - the key executive agency involved in the selection of judges, issues of constitutional interpretation, and the general thrust of law enforcement - is in able and sympathetic hands.

Conservatives, too, are entitled to feel very considerable satisfaction over this particular aspect of the matter. Smith was broadly conservative in his approach to his task, but Meese has spent more years on the ideological firing line, and his policies and actions as attorney general can be expected to reflect this experience.

It is among those involved in the murk of White House politics that Meese's appointment causes the most concern, for his departure from the West Wing will leave a lonely place against the sky. From the very beginning of the Reagan administration, and especially since Lyn Nofziger's retirement and Judge William Clark's transfer from the post of national security adviser to that of secretary of the Interior, conservatives both in Washington and around the country have tended to rely on Meese as the most dependable spokesman for their views in Pres. Reagan's immediate entourage.

Presidential Chief of Staff James Baker, an acknowledged "pragmatist" who managed George Bush's 1980 campaign against Ronald Reagan, is widely regarded among conservatives as their enemy, and deputy chief Mike Deaver, who came aboard the Reagan staff along with Meese when Reagan was elected governor of California, has tended to ally himself with Baker in the inevitable backstairs intrigues in the Reagan White House.

Meese's new assignment, therefore, will leave conservatives without a single major White House spokesman, confident or source of input with whom they can feel really comfortable. Of course, Mr. Reagan himself is still very much on hand - the most reassuring fact of all. But few conservatives outside the White House have avenues of communication directly to him, and even those few are understandably reluctant to use such channels for the sort of lesser problems that used to be solved so ably by Meese.

Of course, further down in the executive hierarchy there are committed conservatives still on the job - though the recent resignation of presidential assistant Morton Blackwell, one of the ablest of these, was yet another blow to those keeping score. But no number of Blackwells could substitute, in any case, for a single Meese, who had virtually unlimited access to the president himself.

At this writing, it is unclear precisely who will replace Meese in the West Wing - or indeed whether he will be replaced at all. His various portfolios may simply be divided among Baker, Deaver, Richard Darman and other present members of the White House staff, and his aides scattered hither and yon.

But, whatever the immediate outcome, conservatives will be well - advised not to assume that the shape the White House staff takes in this re - election year is necessarily the shape it will bear (say) a year from now, if Mr. Reagan has been re - elected for another four - year term and is preparing to make his final improvements in the general direction of the American government and society. Nor will any thoughtful observer long forget that, contrary to all the propaganda of his critics, Ronald Reagan has his own agenda, and it is this, and not Jim Baker's or Mike Deaver's - or even Ed Meese's - that will ultimately characterize his administration.

Nudist says outlawing of colony would violate residents rights

HOUSTON (AP) — An executive in charge of converting an apartment complex to a nudist residence says he will go to court to fight any laws imposed to outlaw such housing.

Veal Johnson, who is overseeing the conversion of the Fieldstone Apartments in southwest Houston, said Wednesday an ordinance such as that sought by angry tenants would violate the constitutional rights of nudists.

"It would be discriminatory against our kind of people," said Johnson, president of the Southwest Sunbathers Association and a nudist for 13 years.

Johnson spoke with reporters shortly after residents presented city council members with petitions signed by 4,000 people who favor making nudist colonies illegal in Houston.

"If we don't have such an ordinance, then we need to have one," Dan Schechter, a Fieldstone resident, told council members. "We have support citywide."

He was accompanied by about 10 apartment residents who oppose the change.

Johnson, vice president of the Corsun Financial Corp., which is overseeing the conversion, told council members his group surveyed 1,000 Houston-area residents. Of the 75 percent who responded, all favored the opening of such a colony, he said.

But he later acknowledged to reporters that the surveys were mailed only to members of nudist organizations or people who had expressed interest in joining such groups.

The Camelot Investment Group hired Corsun to lead the conversion after the vacancy rate at the apartments reached 31 percent, Johnson said. He told council members that management will break even when that rate drops to 15 percent.

Fieldstone's problem in attracting tenants has been shared by other apartment complexes in Houston. The current apartment occupancy rate is 82 percent, down from 99 percent in early 1982, said Jenny Cummings, a spokeswoman for the Houston Apartment Association Inc.

Fieldstone's occupancy rate has rebounded to 80.3 percent, Johnson said.

The nudist complex, scheduled to begin operating under new rules April 1, would be the first of its kind in Houston.

Contracts at Club Fieldstone, as the converted complex would be known, require residents to be nude while using the swimming pool, sauna and hot tub, Johnson said. Clothing will be optional in an area surrounding 125 of the 270 units, he said.

Johnson told Councilman Jim Greenwood that the crime rate will not rise because of the nudist complex.

"We feel there won't be any adverse effect," he said. "We plan to segregate ourselves from the community."

Councilman Ernest McGowen suggested a nudist complex would lead to unrestrained sexual activity.

"When people are naked and with each other, how do you control the excitement?" McGowen asked. "Is there a process of going through training?"

Johnson answered that other nudist clubs do not have such problems and that residents who broke club rules would be evicted and those who broke the law would be arrested.

Johnson, president of the Southwest Sunbathing Association, said inquiries from prospective tenants have increased from about 30 a month to close to 100 a week since the nudist concept was mentioned.

Rents will continue to range from $300 to $525 a month, he said, but once the complex is converted, single women and couples will pay $20 less per month as an incentive.

Infant is tested for experimental transplant

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors are trying to determine whether a 6-month-old Idaho boy can undergo an experimental bone marrow transplant that could give his body the ability to fight disease.

T.J. Davis, was born with severe combined immune deficiency, the same rare and often disorder that has kept David, a 12-year-old Houston boy, inside a germ-free plastic bubble since birth. David's last name has never been publicized in order to protect his family's privacy.

T.J. was admitted to Texas Children's Hospital on Wednesday after the UCLA Medical Center in California hospital refused to perform the procedure because the infant's family didn't have the $100,000 payment.

The infant and his parents, Terrence and Linda Davis of Caldwell, Idaho, were flown to Houston by Oil Industry Lifesaving Flights, a nationwide emergency air transportation program underwritten by 43 oil and natural gas companies.

The family has no insurance and Davis was laid off his job shortly before T.J. became ill. Texas Children's is under a research grant that assures T.J. will be covered from the moment he walks into the hospital, officials said.

Doctors at Texas Children's are trying to find out whether T.J. can have the bone marrow transplant, similar to a treatment given three months ago to David. Doctors have said it may be months before they know whether David's body is producing the disease-fighting cells that he needs to leave his bubble.

But T.J.'s condition has been complicated by severe infections in his right eye, cheek and jawbones that doctors at Primary Medical Center in Salt Lake City were unable to cure with conventional antibiotic treatments, said Texas Children's spokeswoman Joan London.

The boy's condition is listed as stable, she said.

Since no matched donor is available, Ms. London said, bone marrow will be taken from T.J.'s mother or father.

The donor marrow will be treated with monoclonal antibodies to remove toxic lymphocytes which could cause rejection and then injected into the infant.

After the transplant, T.J. will be placed in a laminar airflow room, much like David's "bubble," to insure that infections don't reach his body.

US plans permanent Honduran force

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon plans to leave a "permanent" force of 700 to 800 American soldiers in Honduras after military exercises end there this month, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says. Meanwhile, an unpublished House report says the extent of U.S. military construction in Honduras — much done without formal congressional approval — suggests "an ongoing, significant presence" of American forces in the Central American country. "The recent U.S. military exercise has created a substantial, semi-permanent military capability in Honduras," said the eight-page report by the House Appropriations subcommittee on military construction.

Weinberger, testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, was asked by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., about reports that 1,000 American servicemen would remain in Honduras. "As far as a permanent presence is concerned, there will be some men in there in that category," said Weinberger. "I don't think it will be quite 1,000 — somewhere around 700 or 800" to maintain facilities constructed during the exercises. The defense secretary noted that a number of major facilities, including roads, ocean piers, radar stations and other installations, have been built during Big Pine II exercises starting in June. "and you don't take that with you when you leave." Weinberger said more exercises might be scheduled later if Honduras, a strong U.S. ally, invites the Pentagon to participate. "Oh, they will," snapped Levin, who has been critical of the Reagan administration's military buildup. Honduran armed forces chief, Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez, said this week that new U.S.-Honduran maneuvers, to be called Granadera I, will begin in June and that Salvadoran and Guatemalan troops might be invited to take part. Although Weinberger did not identify the troops who will remain, Pentagon sources who declined to be identified said they would include air traffic controllers, medical specialists and civic action teams. The current exercises began last September and involved about 5,000 U.S. troops at their peak. Their stated purpose is to help train the Honduran army and build military facilities inside the country. The presence of U.S. troops was also seen as a warning to leftist Nicaragua, which President Reagan has accused of trying to subvert neighboring countries, including El Salvador, where leftist guerrillas have been fighting a rightist, U.S.-backed government for four years.

Battle continues in corporate takeover

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Natural Gas Corp. fighting a bitter takeover battle with rival Coastal Corp. wants a Delaware court to invalidate recently adopted anti-takeover provisions in Coastal's corporate charter and bylaws. HNG, which operates the nation's largest intrastate pipeline in terms of sales, alleged in the suit filed Wednesday in The Court of Chancery that the so-called "shark repellent" provisions adopted by Coastal in October and January were void under Delaware law. Coastal has headquarters in Houston but is incorporated in Delaware. The suit charged that a proxy statement used at a special meeting of Coastal shareholders contained misrepresentations and omissions and failed to disclose that the company had already decided to make a tender offer for HNG shares. The suit also claimed that Coastal failed to disclose that amendments to Coastal's certificate of incorporation were submitted to its shareholders "for the sole or primary purpose of attempting to prevent HNG from making a counter tender offer to the shareholders of Coastal." Coastal announced last week intentions to buy a majority of HNG stock. On Tuesday, HNG announced it was offering $42 a share for all of Coastal's stock. In addition, HNG filed suit Tuesday against Coastal in U.S. District Court in Houston, accusing the energy firm of violating federal securities laws in its $68 per share bid for 18.75 million HNG shares, for a total of $1.27 billion. Coastal's offer, made Friday, represents 50.7 percent of HNG's outstanding shares.

Radioactive table legs are recalled

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A shipment of contaminated restaurant table legs was radioactive enough to cause "serious consequences," officials said, and the manufacturer said it has recalled other shipments made from the suspect steel. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission ordered an investigation into the table pedestals, made by Falcon Products Co. of St. Louis, after Illinois state police intercepted a shipment bound for a Chicago restaurant and a second tainted truckload was found in Tennessee. The radiation was traced to radioactive scrap metal from a Mexican junkyard that has tainted tons of steel imported into the United States, some of it already discovered in New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and Colorado, the NRC said Wednesday. The Chicago-bound truck was stopped in Des Plaines, Ill., on Tuesday for a random highway check for hazardous material when state police detected the radioactivity, said Don Etchison, director of the Illinois Nuclear Safety Department. "It's good the (troopers) discovered this shipment on the road, because it's highly unlikely the radioactivity would have been detected otherwise," Etchison said. While the shipment posed no hazard to those who came into contact with it en route, the radiation levels were substantial enough that prolonged exposure could have resulted in "serious consequences" for people, especially employees, in the restaurant to which it was bound, Etchison said.

Marbles succumbs to sweepstakes mania

LOOSE MARBLES

LISA PATMAN

Dear Mom and Dad,
I would have written sooner, but the sweepstakes got me again. I know you made me swear I would never touch another entry form, but Ed McMahon came into my life, staring dreamily at me from the face of an envelope. I really tried to resist him, but then he appeared on television, sandwiched between two pizza commercials, begging me to enter, and I was hooked.

It took me a full week before I was finished. First I had to figure out which gold seal went where, which coin to use to scratch off which silver square, and then I had to match all my lucky numbers with my prizes. And as if that weren't enough, I was forced to read through every one of those letters to find out the secret of the "early bird" prize.

Then, of course, there was the big decision — would I really stand a chance to win

$10,000 mink coat. It's obviously too warm for the two-week trip to Jamaica (valued at $5,000, airfare included). And the money — being a good citizen, should I donate my winnings (one of these three people may have won $250,000!), or should I try to pay off my charge accounts?

And should I redo my will so that my offspring (should they ever call home and let me know where they are) will inherit the new home video system, the new family camper, the 19-foot boat, the genuine sapphire and diamond ring, and "one of these exciting" cars?

As you can see, I'm drowning in a luxurious sea of indecision, so if you could answer before March 1, when the first sweepstakes winner is announced, I'll share my dream vacation with you.

Frantically waiting for your reply,
Your baby, Marbles
P.S. After reading my new magazine, my psychiatrist says it's okay for me to chant "help, help help," so long as I remember to put the kernel of corn on the right Bingo number.

We've Got It And We've Got It Good!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby

Fear of fat can have weighty consequences

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who, like many other women, became obsessed with the fear of getting fat. It started while I was in college. I would eat (and drink) whatever I wanted, then induce vomiting. I also used laxatives to excess. I became addicted to this kind of weight control for four years. Everyone remarked on my "beautiful" pencil-thin figure, but nobody knew how I maintained it.

When my menstrual periods stopped, I became frightened and saw a doctor. That's when I found out I was suffering from anorexia and bulimia.

God help me, I never realized the damage I was doing to myself. And because I am sure there are many others who read your column and are doing the same thing, I hope you will print this:

People who try to lose weight and stay slim by doing what I did run the risk of heart failure, kidney failure and liver damage, and they increase the chance of developing tumors (both benign and malignant). Other complications include possible rupture of the stomach or esophagus, loss of dental enamel and chronic ear and sinus infections. Aside from the physical damage, there is the psychological. My bingeing and purging were done secretly because I was ashamed of myself, so my self-esteem suffered, too. Thoughts of suicide crossed my mind. Thanks to a fine physician and a year of therapy at an eating disorder clinic, I survived.

LUCKY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR LUCKY: Thank you for sharing some timely and valuable information with my readers. Those interested in learning more about this eating disorder may write to: ANAD, P.O. Box 271, Highland Park, Ill. 60035. It's a non-profit organization, so please include a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope for its material.

***

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me why a woman says she's been shopping when she hasn't bought anything?

WILBUR

DEAR WILBUR: For the same reason a man says he's been fishing when he hasn't caught anything.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 40s. My father died a few years ago and my mother married a man I absolutely adore.

I do not regard him as my stepfather because I was already grown when he married my mother, so I introduce him as my mother's husband. When I introduce him in this manner, I always feel that I might be giving him the impression that I don't consider him family.

What is the correct way of introducing him?

FEELING AWKWARD

DEAR FEELING: Introduce him as your stepfather because that is what he is regardless of how old you were when he married your mother. However, since you absolutely adore him, quit guessing and ask him how he wants to be introduced.

Sportswear--nautical to trendy

NEW YORK (NEA) — A medley of influences sparks sportswear fashions this spring. A young woman baring a daytime shoulder won't be considered provocative, but merely fashionable in the "flashdance" look. Women in seagoing looks will be everywhere. And classics even show hints of Japanese influence.

The pure Japanese influence can be seen at Tori Ito Bishi Ltd., where designers Charles Marks and Mitchell Silverman lighten its basic architecture by slimming it down and making squared tops, cowl-neck chemises, full skirts and skinny pants in jersey, terry or cotton jacquard.

Sweaters fit any season

NEW YORK (NEA) — The sweater no longer reigns only in fall and winter. New lightweight yarns in everything from lambswool to novel cottons allow for colorful sweaters that go on through spring and into the warm months.

The creative style with the sweater is to regard it as another kind of top to be made as original as possible in pattern and colors. At Aquascutum of London, a lambswool V-neck pullover is front-paneled in a red and white argyle diamond pattern in solid black. In a his-and-hers style, it's wearable for her with a black blazer and white skirt in the winter and as a top alone with skirt or white pants come spring.

String knits in cotton or linen yarn form a big spring trend. They may be done loose and meshy, as in the purple-and-white striped pullover with floppy short sleeves in the de Lanthe sportswear collection. Or in bulky textured effects with several colors of yarn producing random striping, as in the Exclusive collection by Emilio Rossi.

In a number of designer collections, sweaters replace standard jackets for spring. At Blassport, it's long and loose with a squared collar, low double-breasted closing, deep pockets and push-up sleeves, all in red-ribbed cotton knit. This bulky knit is one of the ways cotton is being treated as a true sweater yarn. Another is a soft summer yarn with a creamy feel.

The pliability of cotton yarn makes it ideal for sweater-tops in the flashdance look with draped open shoulders, unseamed edges that flute and a loose cut that falls gracefully over slim pants. It also suits the slouchy dolman pullovers of Adrienne Vittadini, who knits a big single abstract motif in white to curve from one shoulder down to the hem and around the other side of the tweedy blue knit.

Cut your own bangs

If you have decided you want to change your hairstyle and add bangs, you can do it yourself. Of course, make sure you really want them so you won't be sorry after you cut them! You're sure? OK, first make a part about an inch back from the front center hairline, then pull about a quarter to a half an inch from the sides. Clip back the hair you are not cutting. Dampen your hair with water, but remember that wet hair is longer than dry hair, so adjust your cut about a quarter of an inch. Hold your hair in the front between your forefinger and middle finger and cut the hair below your forefinger. your bangs should never be straight across, so cut the curve on the line from the top of your eyebrow down to the center of your ear. Voila! You have perfect bangs!

It also can be found in designer collections such as that of Mary Ann Restivo, for whom the Japanese flair means a loose kimono jacket sashed obi-style over wide, cropped pants. She likes the jacket striped and the pants in solid color, using soft blue, rust and gray.

The Japanese influence has given a new boost to the wide-shouldered, loose look in jackets and shirts. At Inwear, a new firm for the United States but well-known in Europe, the over-sized silhouette takes three forms for spring: military, country and Hindu. Mesh drop-over vests top cotton knit shirts; jump-in chemise dresses have squared cap sleeves and big pockets. Slouchy styles appear everywhere.

Other ethnic touches continue to turn up. Diane Gilman for Ms. Cabal likes the ikat look of primitive striping in gray and white on black cotton-poly blend for an unpressed pleat skirt and T-shaped top. Scottish plaid in black, yellow, red and white is used for a soft skirt at GP Concepts by Gordon of Philadelphia. Its colors are picked up in the spencer jacket of mini black-and-white check and a yellow knit top with shell-stitch detailing across the top.

The nautical look is back, from sailor collars to sweaters knit with sailboat motifs. You'll even find party clothes sequined in nautical details.

Flashdance looks come from more youthful sportswear collections. Smart Alec of California picks up mesh for a top in white Trevira knit with straps to hold the open shoulders and adds big mesh pockets to the cropped knit pants.

The Gitano collection includes fashions in all spring trends. Their flashdance pieces feature over-stitched raw edges, artful cut-outs and no seams. From Europe, they've picked up the proletarian look, with plastic pockets, industrial zippers on tops, mesh shirts and mechanics' jumpsuits in bold colors.

FLASHDANCE INFLUENCE is seen in separates from Smart Alec of California. Knit Trevira mesh top has straps to hold open shoulders, pants have deep mesh pockets. In all-white or white with color. About $43 complete.

Olympics, 1924-84

Record feats mark the Winter Games

The 84 Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, mark the 60th anniversary of the Winter Games. The Winter Games were launched in 1924 at Chamonix, France.

As early as 1908, though, figure skating — which had always been popular in the modern Olympics — was included in the IV Olympiad in London.

After finishing last (at age 11) at Chamonix in 1924, Sonja Henie of Norway won the Olympic gold medal in figure skating in 1928, 1932 and 1936.

Gold medal notables of the first post-World War II Winter Olympics in 1948 included: figure skaters Dick Button of the United States and Barbara Ann Scott of Canada, the Canadian ice hockey team, and Alpine skiers Henry Oreiller of France and Gretchen Fraser of the United States.

Other highlights of the Winter Olympic Games: OSLO, Norway, 1952: Button of the United States repeated in men's figure skating; Jeanette Altwegg of Britain captured the women's gold. U.S. skier Andrea Mead Lawrence was a gold medal winner in the women's slalom and giant slalom. Finland's Veikka Hakulinen won the 50-kilometer cross-country ski race. Norway's Hjalmar Andersen won three speed skating gold medals; America's Ken Henry won the other.

CORTINA, Italy, 1956: Entering its first Winter Olympics, the Soviet Union won three of the four men's speed skating titles. Russia won the gold medal in ice hockey, too. Anton Sailer of Austria won all three men's Alpine skiing events. For the United States, Hayes Alan Jenkins and Tenley Albright won gold medals in the men's and women's figure skating singles.

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif., 1960: The U.S. ice hockey team upset the Russians and Czechs to win the gold medal. In figure skating, gold medals went to two Americans — Carol Heiss and David Jenkins (brother of the 1956 champion). Penny Pitou was a double silver-medal winner for the United States in Alpine skiing. Russia won six gold medals in speed skiing, two by Lydia Skobilova.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, 1964: Speed skater Terry McDermott of the United States was a surprise gold-medal winner in the men's 500-meter race. On ice, Russia's Ludmilla Belousova and Oleg Protopopov won the figure skating pairs competition in dramatic fashion. Soviet ace Lydia Skobilova returned to sweep all four speed skating races. Two French sisters, Marielle and Christine Goitschel, were the stars in skiing.

GRENOBLE, France, 1968: Jean-Claude Killy of France became a world celebrity by sweeping the three Alpine ski races. America's Peggy Fleming earned a gold medal in figure skating. A U.S. trio — Jennifer Fish, Dianne Holm and Mary Meyers — tied for the silver medal in women's 500-meter speed skating. Italian driver Eugenio Monti rode two bobsleds to gold medals.

SAPPORO, Japan, 1972: In the first Games held in Asia, speed skater Ard Schenk of Holland won three gold medals. Japan placed 1-2-3 in the 70-meter ski jumping. Swiss skier Marie-Theres Nadig won two Alpine titles. For the United States, Anne Henning and Dianne Holm won speed skating gold medals. America's Barbara Cochran triumphed in the slalom. The U.S. team won the silver medal in ice hockey.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, 1976: America's Dorothy Hamill won the gold medal in women's figure skating. West German Rosi Mittermayer won two gold and one silver medal in Alpine skiing. Peter Mueller and Sheila Young won gold medals for the United States in speed skating. American cross-country skier Bill Koch earned the first U.S. medal in a Nordic event.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y., 1980: The U.S. hockey team won the gold medal after knocking off the highly favored Soviet squad. American speed skater Eric Heiden became the first athlete ever to win five individual gold medals, at one Olympics. The East Germans topped all nations with 23 medals, the Russians were second with 22.

Tickets available now for Pampa-Borger district game

Tickets for the Pampa-Borger basketball game are available now at the high school athletic office, Athletic Director Bill Balcom announced today.

"We've got 600 tickets and we'll keep selling them until Tuesday or until we sell out," Balcom said.

Tickets are two dollars for adults and one dollar for students. Balcom urged Harvester fans to buy their tickets as soon as possible.

The game between the top two teams in District 1-4A will be played Feb. 7 in Borger's new fieldhouse, located on the southwest corner of the high school grounds. Pampa fans will be seated on the east side of the gym.

Stoudt, booed liberally by Steelers' fans despite the team's AFC Central Division championship and 10-6 record, has since signed with the Birmingham Stallions of the USFL.

Carano and Stoudt are expected to be the opposing quarterbacks when the Maulers and Stallions meet in Pittsburgh on March 11.

SWC roundup

Mustangs move into third place, Baylor wins first league game

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer Southern Methodist took over the coveted third place spot in the Southwest Conference basketball race Wednesday night, and the "Bad Touch" Baylor Bears earned their first league triumph of the campaign.

Baylor hit nine of 10 free throws in the last 98 seconds to defeat Rice 64-52.

Texas Christian won 60-53 and kicked Texas out of the SWC No. 7 berth the two teams shared going into the contest.

SMU, one of the top five shooting teams in the nation, rode 53 per cent marksmanship from the field and Jon Koncak's 17 points, 14 rebounds, and 6 blocked shots to a 70-60 victory over Texas Tech.

The Bears, one of the worst shooting teams in the country, caught the Rice Owls in their cross-hairs and won their first SWC game in eight tries with a 64-52 upset.

In the only other SWC game, Texas Christian whipped Texas 60-53 in the Super Drum to drop the Longhorns into a tie for the cellar with Baylor.

SMU advanced its SWC record to 6-2. The Mustangs are 18-4 for the season.

Texas Tech dropped to 5-3 and the Raiders are 11-8 overall.

SMU built a 16 point lead midway of the first half and owned a 38-24 margin at halftime, but the Raiders cut the margin to a point before running out of gas.

"They really made a great comeback," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss. "We were very fortunate."

The Red Raiders outscored SMU 11-2 to start the second half and sliced the huge Mustang lead to a point on two occasions, the last coming at 6:04 on a bucket by Tony Benford.

SMU then outscored the Red Raiders 14-5 the rest of the way with Tech going over six minutes without a field goal.

A goal-tending call on Woody Martin at 5:20 sent the Mustangs on a streak in which they scored 11 unanswered points.

"We got careless there at the start of the second half," said Bliss. "We sort of forgot about Jon Koncak for awhile there in the second half. We got away from our meat-and-potatoes."

"Sometimes with a young team like ours it helps you to have a game like this, but only if you win."

SMU and Texas Tech will play again March 3 in Lubbock.

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said "They outplayed us for 25 minutes and we outplayed them for 15. We came back and got control of ourselves in the second half."

He said the Raiders were tight and tense at the outset.

"We were far too cautious in the first half," he said. "When we'd get the ball inside, we didn't know what to do with it in the first half. You have to give SMU a lot of credit. They have a lot of ways to beat you."

He added, "I was pleased that we came back and made a game of it."

Carl Wright also had 17 points for the Mustangs and he doled out a game-high eight assists.

Martin and Quentin Anderson each had 12 points for Tech while Bubba Jennings and Phil Wallace added 11 points apiece.

Texas and Texas Tech went into their contest at 1-6 in the league. TCU improved to 2-6, 9-10 overall. Texas fell to 1-7 and 5-14.

The Longhorns led 35-33 with 10:41 to play, but reserve center Greg Grissom got his only basket of the game for TCU to tie it, and Dennis Nutt added two free throws to put the Horned Frogs ahead to stay.

Behind Tony Papa's seven-point surge in a 3 1/2 minute stretch, TCU built a 49-41 lead with 3:59 left and the Frogs held on for the win.

Papa led the Horned Frogs with 17. Carlton Cooper bested all scorers with 18 for Texas.

Baylor's win snapped its league losing streak at seven games. The Bears improved to 1-7 in the league and 5-14 overall.

Leonard to make comeback try

NEW YORK (AP) — "I wouldn't come back if I had an eye injury or any other kind of injury," says Kevin Howard.

But the 23-year-old Philadelphia fighter is getting a chance at the kind of money that has not been within his reach, despite a successful if relatively unknown career, because Sugar Ray Leonard feels he can come back from an eye injury.

"A number of people have been opposed to my return," Leonard told a news conference Wednesday to hype his comeback fight — a scheduled 10-round bout against Howard Feb. 25 at Worcester, Mass.

However, Leonard again said he feels he's not taking a risk.

"Thank God, that (the injury) is past," he said. "I'll be 100 percent for the fight."

"If I was in my 30s or 40s I wouldn't come back, but I'm 27."

Leonard was operated on by Dr. Ronald Michels of Johns Hopkins Medical Center May 9, 1982 for a detached retina of the left eye. Michels also performed surgery on heavyweight Earnie Shavers, who suffered a detached retina against Larry Holmes in 1979, then fought for three more years without apparent negative results.

"I feel in two or three years I should accomplish everything I want to," said Leonard, who wants to become welterweight and junior middleweight champion again and to win the undisputed middleweight title held by Marvelous Marvin Hagler.

Leonard, saying he never looks down on money — he reportedly will get some $3 million for fighting Howard, who is supposed to be getting $300,000, said "I'm driven by what's inside of me ... my competitive spirit."

Leonard last fought Feb. 15, 1982, when he knocked out Bruce Finch in the third round in defense of the undisputed welterweight championship at Reno, Nev. He announced his retirement Nov. 9, 1982.

"He's a new athlete in a new era," said trainer Angelo Dundee. "I don't think you've seen the best of Sugar Ray Leonard."

Leonard, who also held the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title, has a 32-1 record, with 23 knockouts.

Howard has a 19-4-1 record, with 10 knockouts. But he lost in 10-round decisions to Marlon Starling and Mark Medal in two of his last three fights. He admitted those two losses help get him the match against Leonard.

The fight will be televised live by HBO from the 13,866-seat Centrum at about 10:30 p.m., EST. The telecast will run from 10 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Swim lessons continue at center

Swimming lessons for tots through five years of age continues through May at the Pampa Youth Center. Youngsters can sign up now at the Youth Center and instructor Linda Longo may be contacted at 665-0212 for more information.

Courses offered, including their description, are as follows:

1. Introduction To Water—This course is for those children ages 0-5 that have never been in the water or those who haven't been exposed to the water very much. This course will introduce your child to the water and will overcome any fear of the water in your presence. This course requires that a parent or guardian be present during the lesson.

2. Beginners—Ages 0-5. This course will consist of the teaching of the four basic swimming strokes. It will lightly touch on diving.

3. Intermediate—Ages 3-5. This course will improve and strengthen your child's swimming ability.

Lessons will be three weeks long, two hours a week. Fees are $20 per child.

Longo has been an instructor and pool manager for the past three years. She is also a certified advanced lifesaver and CPR certified.

These lessons will also be offered to non-members of the center.

Carano playing with Maulers

PITTSBURGH (AP) Glenn Carano spent seven frustrating seasons waiting in vain to play for America's team. Now he's happy quarterbacking the Maulers, who aren't even Pittsburgh's favorite team.

"I have no regrets. If I had, I wouldn't have left," Carano, 23, said of his decision to leave the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League for the Maulers, a United States Football League expansion team.

"There have been no second thoughts, no second guessing," he said.

Carano has gone from sitting up for America's best-known professional team to a team that will compete with the NFL's well-liked Steelers for the support of Pittsburgh's football fans.

Carano is familiar with the Steelers, having been a reserve on the 1978 Cowboys' team that was beaten by the Steelers, 35-31, in the Super Bowl.

"I've been in Super Bowls, two of them," said Carano, who played in college at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas. "I've been in the playoffs and everything and they were good experience."

Allison wins over Mobeetie

ALLISON—Mobeetie was defeated by Allison, 44-34, Tuesday night in a District 4-1A boys game.

Allison is 5-2 in district action and 14-6 overall. Mobeetie slipped to 1-4 and 8-14.

Richie Kiker led Allison with 14 points while Destry Colter added 11.

Allison led at halftime, 20-16.

Todd James paced Mobeetie with nine points while Dennis Stuart and Jimmy McDaniel had eight points each.

Mobeetie visits Wheeler Friday night. Wheeler and Kellon boys are tied for the 4-1A lead with 6-1 records.

But there's nothing like playing, and I haven't been playing. Everybody wants to play, and this is my chance to play."

"I talked it over with my wife (Dana) and my family and they were all for it. I've sold my house in Dallas and bought one in Pittsburgh and I'm happy to be here."

Carano played only briefly in parts of two seasons with the Cowboys, backing up starter Danny White. Carano completed 21 of 57 passes for 304 yards, three touchdowns and one interception, but it wasn't enough to impress Cowboys Coach Tom Landry.

"Glenn showed a lot of promise in those two games," Landry said. "He's always had a good arm and a good grasp of what's going on. He has the type of ability that will make him a starter someday."

But Carano will be starting for the Maulers, not the Cowboys.

He's well aware of the pressures facing a quarterback who has sat the bench for years before getting a chance to play. He watched another Pittsburgh quarterback, Cliff Stoudt of the Steelers, experience those same pressures and problems last fall.

Stoudt, booed liberally by Steelers' fans despite the team's AFC Central Division championship and 10-6 record, has since signed with the Birmingham Stallions of the USFL.

Carano and Stoudt are expected to be the opposing quarterbacks when the Maulers and Stallions meet in Pittsburgh on March 11.

BILLY GRAHAM SEN. JOHN MELCHER

Names in the news

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham will be going "into seclusion out of the country" to relax after being released from Methodist Hospital, probably this weekend, an aide says.

"He really does need a complete rest and break from his hectic schedule," said T. W. Wilson, who accompanied the 65-year-old Graham to Rochester on Sunday. "He pushes himself too hard sometimes for a man his age."

Graham was in satisfactory condition Wednesday following treatment for a high fever, an inner ear infection and an acute sinus problem, doctors reported.

Wilson declined to say where Graham will be going but said he will be in seclusion with his wife Ruth for two or three weeks.

Former Pfc. Melcher was 21 and serving with the 78th Infantry Division in Europe in 1945 when he was struck in the left knee by machine gun fire while rounding up prisoners in Germany. That earned him the Purple Heart.

He had earlier received the Combat Infantryman Badge. After the war, Gen. George Marshall, World War II Army chief of staff, ordered that all veterans who received the Combat Medical badge should also get the Bronze Star.

However, most of the soldiers who were eligible already had been discharged, and that created an extensive backlog that remains today.

Melcher received his Bronze Star from Army Secretary John Marsh at a Pentagon ceremony Tuesday.

Later, in a telephone interview, he commented: "I've never seen so many generals in one room in my life."

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Forty years after the fact, Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., has been awarded the Bronze Star.

News in brief

LONDON (AP) — A New York art dealer paid $1.4 million for a first edition of John James Audubon's "Birds of America" at Sotheby's auction house.

The four-volume collection, which contains 435 hand-colored aquatint plates, was bought Wednesday by James Berry-Hill, who has a gallery in Fifth Avenue.

The collection, published by Audubon from 1827 to 1838, once belonged to the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, D.C., and was exhibited for several years at the Smithsonian Institution, said a Sotheby's spokesman.

guardsmen and a civilian in an attack on a police post and agriculture station at a jungle town in the heart of Peru's cocaine-producing region, the Interior Ministry says.

The spokesman said about 30 insurgents of the guerrilla group Shining Path struck at the police station in Aucayacu, 380 miles northeast of Lima in the state of Huanuco, on Tuesday night.

The police station was destroyed, and the rebels planted a red flag bearing a hammer and sickle in the ruins, said the spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

The spokesman said it was the first open attack by the Shining Path in north-central Peru, center of the nation's cocaine production.
