Syria agrees to free captured airman

today freed U.S. airman Robert O. "Goodman Jr., a month after his Navy attack jet was shot down over central Lebanon and five days after the Rev. Jesse Jackson arrived here to appeal for his release.

Goodman was brought to the Syrian Foreign Ministry shortly before noon in a civilian car and, as he went up the steps, told reporters: "I'm very

He and Jackson emerged together moments later, raised their hands in the V-for-victory sign, then were driven in a limosine to the Sheraton Hotel where Jackson, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. has been staying

Goodman change into a well-tailored suit following his release with Jackson

'It's unfortunate that people are killed." Goodman said, when asked how he felt to be free. "I'm a naval officer and the fact that I'm sitting here is just fate. It could have been 1,000 other" servicemen who were shot down and captured.

Goodman, 27, of Virginia Beach, Va. was navigator-bombardier on a A-6E Intruder jet that was shot down Dec. 4 during the only American air strike against Syrian anti-aircraft positions in Lebanon. The plane's pilot was killed in the raid, which was in retaliation for attacks on U.S. reconnaissance flights.

Asked why he thought the Syrians granted Jackson's appeal for his release. Goodman said: "I think he was able to come from a different point of view" than the Reagan administration.

Earlier, Goodman refused to speculate if efforts other than Jackson's could have succeeded. "I

Jackson has denied that he made the mission because of race reasons. Goodman is black

Jackson, sitting at Goodman's side during the news conference, said his successful mission "says we must expand our options," referring to U.S. Middle East policy

He did not specifically explain what he meant, but earlier, during an interview with CBS, Jackson pointed out that he had been to Syria before and knew the country's leaders

The Syrian Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying it was releasing Goodman as a step to "facilitate the withdrawal of American troops from

The statement said Syria "hopes that the U.S. government will take measures to end its military involvement in Lebanon, such involvement which has contributed pain and suffering to Lebanon, to the

The Pentagon in Washington said a U.S. military plane was dispatched to bring Goodman home. Jackson said he also would be on the flight, and that it would probably stop en route to the United States so Goodman could "go through the necessary medical examination and the necessary debriefing" before arriving home.

At a news conference at the Sheraton Hotel, Goodman said the first thing he planned to do upon arriving in the United States was "hug my wife."

Goodman said he learned he was being released only minutes before it occurred. "I was told I would be released on several other occasions." but had waited in vain until this time.

Jackson called the agreement to release the airman "a giant step toward peace." He said it was "built upon President (Hafez) Assad's willingness to put Lt. Goodman's category

The Reagan administration had refused to endorse Jackson's mission. saying such personal efforts might disrupt official negotiations Reagan declined to return a series of telephone calls from Jackson concerning the trip

"We cannot have a policy that's effective wherein our leaders do not know Arab and African leaders," Jackson told CBS.

Of Goodman's release, Jackson, an ordained minister, said: "We are delighted to announce our prayers have been answered

Jackson called the agreement to release the airman "a giant step toward peace." He said it was "built upon President Assad's willingness to put Lt. Goodman's predicament in the humanitarian category.

Jackson met with Assad for 90 minutes Monday 10 miles south of Damascus at a villa where Assad is recovering from a heart ailment attributed to fatigue.

U.S. Ambassador Robert Paganelli, who had worked to arrange Goodman's release, appeared at today's press conference and was asked what effect he thought Jackson had had. He responded "I don't know I'm sure it helped. Reverend Jackson has a great deal of respect in this part of the Jackson, responding to questions from reporters, said, "I have not stopped to calculate the political effect" of winning Goodman's release.

'Fantastic' exclaim parents after learning their son will go free

By The Associated Press

The jubilant parents of Robert O. Goodman Jr. exclaimed "fantastic" and "absolutely great" today after hearing that Syria had agreed to free their Navy flier son held captive since Goodman's wife, Terry Ann, "was so excited she could hardly talk" in a telephone call telling her mother the news, said Goodman's mother-in-law, Loraine Bryant of Portsmouth, N.H.

"I just need more details," said Marilyn Goodman, the airman's mother, awakened at her home in New York City. "Oh God, it's unbelievable."

'Absolutely great," said Robert O. Goodman Sr., 50. of York, Pa. "No words to describe the feeling of elation Mrs. Goodman called the news after meeting with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim-Khaddam, Mrs. Goodman said. "He was very hopeful and very pleased," she said. "He said he was going to stay and work on it."

Mrs. Goodman credited Jackson for "a humanitarian plea" on her son's

"I think the point he was trying to make is sometimes the admistration's hands are tied in certain areas and sometimes a humanitarian plea can work better than the political aspect."

she said. "In that I think he was right. Mrs. Goodman, a bank teller, said she would stay home from work today and await further word on her son, whom she last saw during the July 4 weekend.

"I'll just wait for the phone to ring. she said "What can I tell you? It's absolutely great

Goodman's father, a reti ho is now an executive for a food processing equipment firm, spoke with his son in a television hookup between Damascus and the ABC "Good Morning America program

Calls for peace effort

Reagan 'delighted' by release

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan said today that he is 'delighted' the Syrians released captured airman Robert O. Goodman Jr. and the president called on the Syrian government to work for peace in Lebanon / "All Americans must be pleased that the government of Syria has told our ambassador that they have agreed to release Lt. Goodman as a result of the efforts of the Rev. Jesse Jackson." Reagan said in a statement

'We are delighted that this brave young man will soon be united with his family and that his ordeal is over

The president continued: "We hope that the Syrian government will continue to work for peace in Lebanon so that all foreign forces - Syrian. Israeli and the MNF - can come home and allow that country to be united. independent, and sovereign once Reagan planned to meet today with his Middle East envoy, Donald Rumsfeld, about a Pentagon plan on redeploying U.S. Marines in Lebanon. Goodman's plane was shot down during a Dec 4 air strike against Syrian outposts in Lebanon.

Reagan's statement was read by Bob Sims, a deputy White House press secretary who said Reagan was "notified promply this morning" about the Syrian announcement in a conference call with National Security Council staff members, White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III and State Department officials.

Last week, White House officials sought to put as much distance as possible between the administration and Jackson's efforts because, Sims said, the president believed that "any chance of Jackson's succeeding would be because he was not officially representing the president and not an

Friday trying to win Goodman's release Sims said Reagan had been "praying for Goodman's release Sims also said Reagan appreciated the efforts of all who made the release possible, and saw Jackson's effort from the start as a "humanitarian effort." He said the government was beginning to make arrangements for Goodman's

In today's meeting. Reagan was to receive a report on Rumsfeld's recent trips to the Middle East.

In the wake of explosions, sniper fire and artillery attacks that killed more than 260 servicemen in Beirut last year. Reagan is facing a Congress increasingly hostile about the use of the troops in the Middle East and looking for ways to scale back the 18-month limit it put on their mission

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has called a meeting of his Lebanon monitoring group to discuss the implications of a special Pentagon commission's report that was sharply critical of Reagan's policy in Lebanon, particularly the military role

The monitoring group consists of 14 Democrats who had voted in October with O'Neill's approval — to authorize the Marines to stay in Beirut for 18 more months, unless Congress changes

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said aboard Air Force One as Reagan returned to Washington from the New Year's vacation in Los Angeles and Palm Springs that the Rumsfeld meeting was unlikely to result in any

He said that Reagan had already been given a Rumsfeld report presenting some new ideas which the president will take under advisement.

Who's No. 1?

Fifth-ranked Miami foiled a last-minute two-point conversion play to upset No. 1 Nebraska 31-30 Monday night in the Orange Bowl, throwing the race for the national championship into a state of confusion The previously unbeaten Cornhuskers had been ranked No. 1 all season., Second-ranked Texas was also defeated earlier in the day, losing to Georgia, 10-9. Third-rated Auburn won its bowl game, but lost to Texas earlier in the year.

The Hurricanes, cheered on by a hometown crowd of 72,549, scored on each of their three first-period possessions and then overcame one Nebraska rally that tied the score early in the third quarter and another in the final 81/2 minutes.

Nebraska's Jeff Smith, subbing for the injured Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier in the final 19 minutes. scored on runs of 1 yard and 24 yards in a furious fourth-quarter rally by the Cornhuskers that fell just short.

His second touchdown came with 48 seconds left but the Cornhuskers. needing only to kick an extra point for a tie that would have left them as the nation's only unbeaten team and probably assured them the national championship, decided to go for two points and a win.

Turner Gill's pass caromed off the hands of Smith, who was closely covered by roverback Kenny Calhoun.

The 50th Orange Bowl was one of the most exciting and capped a day of bowl upsets that left the nation without an undefeated team. Nebraska wound up 12-1, while Texas and No. 3 Auburn, which nipped Michigan 9-7 in the Sugar Bowl. finished 11-1 along with Miami.

In other bowl games Monday, Ohio State defeated Pittsburgh 28-23 in the Fiesta Bowl and UCLA defeated Illinois 45-9 in the Rose Bowl. See the complete bowl results in today's sports section.

The Associated Press will announce the national champion at 6:30 p.m. EST today.

Gas line accident

White Deer man killed Monday

BY JEFF LANGLEY Senior Staff Writer

A Getty Oil employee was killed instantly in an accident shortly before noon Monday at the Getty gas booster station between Skellytown and White

Byron Walter Thoms, 34, of White Deer, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Skellytown Justice of the Peace Sharion Harper. who ordered an autopsy.

"He was killed instantly, there was no guess work about it," Carson County Sheriff Connie Reed said, explaining Thoms suffered severe head injuries. Thoms, working alone, apparently was servicing a natural gas line at the Schafer No. 1 Booster Station, about three miles south of Skellytown, when he was killed in the accident under investigation this morning.

'We don't know what happened. We're trying to figure it out," a Getty spokesman in Tulsa, Okla., said today. "The procedure he was following was right out of the textbook," said Charles

Smith said obviously something pushed by great force - he doesn't know what, how or why - hit Thoms in the head and killed him.

E. Smith, Getty's manager of public

He said the accident occurred sometime between 11 a.m. and noon Monday. The gas - collection station is located just off the "old Skellytown White Deer Highway." about 31/2 miles south of Skellytown. The company spokesman said the relief operator, who had worked for Getty for about two years, was assigned to run a "pig" through a gas - gathering line at the station. The ball-type device is pushed through a line to clear it or to separate different substances in the pipe. Smith said the procedure assigned to the employee would involve closing valves and bleeding off air or gas pressure in the gathering line. Something went wrong, and Thoms

"We are at a loss. You feel so helpless when you don't know what happened." Smith said

"Apparently something blowed out on him. It hit him," Sheriff Reed said. Smith said there was no apparent damage to equipment.

"There doesn't seem to be anything amiss," he added See WORKER, Page two

Local store is robbed

A robbery was reported at the Minit Mart at 1104 Alcock at 6:45 p.m. Monday.

Two Hispanic men in their early wenties, wearing blue jeans and denim jackets, allegedly sprayed a chemical similar to mace into the face of the clerk. Then they then allegedly took an undetermined number of $5 and $10 bills from the cash drawer.

One suspect is reported to be 5'6 tall, with curly collar length hair. The other is reportedly 5'8", and was wearing a dark ball cap and light green top.

The two men allegedly ran west down an alley from the store. Police suspect an older model white over green Pontiac Gran Prix with Colorado license plates was waiting

American rediscovers 'Nineteen Eighty-Four'

DALLAS (AP) - Book sellers say it will be hard to find a copy of George Orwell's novel "Nineteen Eighty-Four" on their shelves since the arrival of the new year, even though it's not on the latest best-seller list

The novel, written 36 years ago: details Orwell's perception on the future in the year 1984. It was sold out at four of five

Dallas-area book stores Monday. "We are sold out right now," a spokeswoman for Century Book Stores in Dallas, who asked not to be identified, said. "They have been selling very well. "All the high schools have assigned it as required reading - even more than the average number - and other folks are reading it as well." the The store had had only a few copies of the book on hand since Christmas, she And workers at B. Dalton Booksellers at Six Flags Mall in Arlington were forced to restock their supply after selling out early Monday.

"We have sold quite a bit, but we still have some here, " store clerk Al Fratina said. "Some have read it previously, but it has been so long since they have, that because of the hype, they are reading it again.

Another book dealer reported all copies of the book had been sold, but an loyee there said that it was too early to tell how much sales of the novel had increased.

Texas death toll climbs toward predicted totals

State highway patrolmen say they fear that a final rush of motorists returning home from the three-day New Year's weekend will push the holiday slaughter to earlier predictions of 39 deaths

'We're not optimistic at all," said Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd on Monday. At least 35 people had died in Texas prior to the end of Operation Motorcide, which recorded traffic deaths between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday.

The death toll was pushed upwards by a four-fatality accident in Southeast Texas and three two-fatality accidents reported Monday. State troopers and local police have been encouraging motorists to avoid speeding and drunken driving.

The DPS said the latest reported fatalities resulted from a wreck just west of Austin. Todd said a 58-year-old man and a 40-year-old woman were killed shortly after noon Monday.

A Monday morning accident in Williamson County killed a husband and wife from Copperas Cove, he said. And a three-vehicle wreck near Bay City early Monday killed four people. Authorities identified the dead as

Brian Gregory Simons, 24, of Bay City;

DeLeon, 56, of Rosenburg; and David Deleon about 24, of Richmond

The DPS said Simons and Teutsch were riding a pickup truck, while the DeLeons were the occupants of a van . The accident, which took place about 1:10 a.m. on Texas Highway 60 about nine miles north of Bay City, injured . five other people.

The $1 million ark will be 11/2 football fields long, 41/2 stories tall and the centerpiece of the 96-acre park, says Phil Kendrick 'Walt (Disney) is not the only one who can do things like this," Kendrick said. Kendrick and his 80-year-old mother. Phyllis, don't plan to stop with the ark.

One day, they say, their 96-acre biblical theme park will include a replica of the Tower of Babel and a "Jordan River" canal to carry visitors through the area.

The park already includes a museum of 146 wax figures representing scenes from the Old and New Testaments along with outdoor facilities for its ever-popular play. But the ark will be the largest undertaking of all

"We will have all the live animals and birds named in the Bible - 65 to 70 animals and 200 birds - the animals or their closest relatives." Kendrick told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram "Then we will continue adding on until we have a complete zoo.'

He already has a menagerie for the Passion play, including a camel.

The ark project is too large for the Kendricks to build themselves and too expensive for their non-profit organization to finance from play and museum entrance

In a ground-breaking ceremony in November, the Kendricks kicked off their fund-raising campaign to build the ark at a cost of up to $1 million.

Kendrick, 48, first had a vision to put on a Passion play 19 years ago and the family built a three-level stage for the production on top of their swimming pool An expected crowd of 500 for the 3:30 a.m. performance and free breakfast multiplied into 5,000 the first year. By the second year, the Kendricks and constructed a 365-foot-long outdoor theater with 12 stages, running streams and live animals. Now, a cast of 35 people, all local, play multiple roles and perform 63 scenes in two hours. At the urging of Texas Highways magazine, the Kendricks in 1977 began offering the play on Thursday and Friday evenings during the summer and started charging admission to pay the local actors. Three years later, Texas Monthly magazine called the play the best outdoor wilderness system a hattleground on which the Reagan administration and its environmental foes have fought for the last three years, passed a milestone with the beginning of the year as millions of protected acres became permanently off limits to energy

Under terms of the Wilderness Act of 1964, which created the preservation system. Saturday was the last day the government could approve new mining claims or drilling leases in designated wilderness areas. The provision affects at least 25 million acres of wilderness preserves.

The 1964 law gave mineral companies almost 20 years to explore for minerals and file mining claims in wilderness

But effective with 1984, the act specified, wilderness areas "are withdrawn from all forms of appropriation under the mining laws has put riders on annual appropriations pertaining to mineral leasing" except acting for mining rights already in effect.

The Wilderness Society says "a companies. handful" of oil and gas leases have been height of the dispute over wilderness official program. But he complained in drilling, the figure was put at less than 50. No national figure exists on memos about resources locked away hard-rock mineral claims, since from development, and the department records of those claims are not kept in Washington.

However, about 1,000 applications for oil and natural gas leases were on file with the Interior Department last year seeking drilling rights.

ALICE, Texas (AP) Mathew Murphy was working the night shift nine years ago in what was to be his last patrol for the Alice Police

During the wee hours of a chilly December day, the policeman was killed in the line of duty. His murder remains unsolved.

Murphy was felled with a 22-caliber automatic Dec. 1; 1974. It is believed he was attempting to question the occupants of a vehicle with Iowa license plates at a city intersection.

He was shot four times, twice in the chest and two times in the left arm. Murphy was pronounced dead at 12:45 a.m. shortly after arriving at the Alice P&S Hospital emergency room. He never

This was the last transmission from Murphy. The next voice heard over the APD radio came at 12:33 a.m. and was from patrolman Eleodoro Garza, who had been on patrol and was moving to his routine backup position to assist Murphy. "He's shot," radioed

According to police records, Garza had been temporarily confused by the reflection from Murphy's unit realized he had been misled. As he was making a U-turn to drive back where he could see Murphy's parked unit, he saw the officer stagger and fall. It was then Garza made his report of the shooting.

Jim Wells County Sheriff Oscar Lopez was chief of police at the time of the slaying and he remembers Matt Murphy as an "outstanding officer."

Lopez said that as soon as he arrived at the scene, he ordered an all-points bulletin on the Iowa license plate, roadblocks in the area and recalled all off-duty personnel.

"I rode with Murphy in the ambulance to the hospital. but he never regained consciousness.

'As far as we are concerned the case is still open. It may be five, 10, 15 or 20 years before we get a good

"The file is in the DA's office and we will certainly follow up any leads. We flew all over the state with leads in other counties to follow up reports. We even went out of state on a lead, but it turned sour," he added.

In an unsolved murder case like this one. Lopez said. there are no witnesses or nobody wants to come forward.

"There may be two or three people involved and in the years ahead they may get mad at each other and come up with information," he said

Lopez added that even now the Murphy case is still a topic of conversation among area lawmen and "we still have the case pending.

Murphy previously had worked in the narcotics division in undercover work and in April 1974 had been commended by the Alice City Council when 35 narcotic violators were taken into custody as a result of his undercover work.

Lopez said he did not feel that Murphy's slaying had any connection with his undercover narcotics work.

Shortly after the Murphy slaying, a task force was formed to lead the investigation, Lopez said Alice Mayor Joe Ramirez also started a fund for any information leading to a conviction. But the case never was solved.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - A Seventh-day Adventist pastor says that God saved him from a man who held the minister's family hostage and later tried to shoot him before killing himself.

The man, identified Monday as Amado Cadena, shot himself in the head in the kitchen of the pastor's home about Sunday evening. Investigators say that the man wanted the Rev. George Morales to order the girlfriend to marry him, but the minister refused.

'The only thing that saved me was God," Morales told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times through a translator Monday. "I

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Was Orwell wrong, or just a bit early?

The dawning of the new year brought with it a considerable amount of discussion about whether author George Orwell was on target with his book "Nineteen Eighty-Four," which depicted a world that had evolved into a totalitarian society by this point in history.

While most commentators and philosophers we've heard do see similarities between Orwell's world and modern society, they point to a growing number of democracies as proof that his prophesy of "Big Brother" government exercising total control over all individuals cannot come to pass.

We are not that certain.

A fallacy shared by those who express extreme optimism is that they equate democracy with freedom. But the best that democracy can possibly hope to achieve is dictatorship by the majority, and that's not the same thing as freedom.

Totalitarianism is defined as a society ruled by an autocrat or a hierarchy in which citizens lose their sovereignty and are regarded as servants of the state. Under that definition, is it not possible for a democracy to also be totalitarian?

In fact, there is considerable evidence that the United States has drifted toward that type of society in spite of our form of government.

When citizens must work nearly half the year in order to give government the taxes it has demanded, how far are they away from being "servants of the state?

When the national Congress and state legislatures pass hundreds of laws each year governing almost every aspect of citizens' lives, how much of their sovereignty is

When government gathers and preserves vast amounts of information concerning citizens' personal and financial activities, doesn't that mean "Big Brother" has an eye on you. A democracy can become totalitarian if either a majority of the citizens or the ruling hierarchy fails to maintain a respect for individual human rights, and exercises its power to deprive other citizens of the right to control their property or live their lives as they wish. Big Brother" does not have to be an individual; he can be 50 million citizens who vote for a government because it promises to take something away from other citizens and give it to them; or he can be the majority in Congress or a legislature which decides that it has the right to impose its version of morality on others. And, simply because citizens have the right to elect a "Big Brother," government, it does not follow that this makes them free. Just because you are allowed to choose your master, if you don't also have the choice of not choosing any master, you are no less a slave.

So let us not be deceived into thinking we can avoid totalitarianism simply because we have a democratic form of government

Freedom survives in a democracy at the whim of the majority. It survives only as long as that majority believes freedom is a fundamental characteristic of man, and that no individual and no government has a moral right to control another's life or take his property for any reason.

The decline of that belief in the United States, especially in recent years, makes us fear that Orwell might have been right, but just had his date wrong.

If the West capitulated

The ABC film "The Day After" is being used by proponents of unilateral disarmament to promote the notion that Red is better than dead. Unfortunately, the U.S. public isn't likely to hear the other side of that proposition from the networks.

If they wanted to do so, the networks could produce a realistic film with the title "The Other Day After." The "Other Day" would be the fictional day when the U.S. and its NATO allies capitulated to the Soviet Union.

What would happen if the West were brought to the nuclear brink by Soviet posturing, and decided to yield to the USSR? There might or might not be an immediate movement of Soviet armored formations to the Atlantic Certainly, the Soviets have the forces in place for such a thrust - scores of divisions in East Europe and the Western zones of Russia.

One can be very sure that the Soviets would move immediately to take over West

ETTA @1983 FORT WORTH STAR TELEGR

Only the Western garrison in Berlin prevents such a takeover. For the West Berliners, the Iron Curtain would fall

The Soviets might not find it necessary to send military units into the NATO countries. Capitulation would mean the demobilization of European NATO forces and the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the While Americans might be allowed to withdraw quietly with their conventional arms intact, departure of the Americans would be a kind of latter - day Dunkirk. Once home. American armed forces also would be demobilized, for yielding to Soviet nuclear blackmail would mean the end of all resistance to Soviet totalitarianism.

The political order in Western Europe would change overnight, as it did when Hitler defeated France in 1940. Again, the Soviets might not occupy all the former NATO countries. They would be able to find active collaborators, as Hitler did more than ...40 years ago. The Soviets would be able to rely on the European communist parties and the peace movement

The Soviets would find political leaders to do their bidding, as Hitler did in France with Petain and Laval and with Quisling in Norway. There would be an abundant supply of Quislings among the peace activists who have no interest in freedom. In this connection, it is interesting the Monsignor Kent, the general secretary of the Campaign For Nuclear Disarmament in Britain, was, in the language of the London Times, given "a rapturous reception as guest of honor of the 38th Congress of the Communist Party of Great Britain Nov. 13.

Very shortly, Western Europe would assume the same character as the captive nations of the East Bloc. The U.S. would not be exempt from the changes. Disarmed and helpless, it would have to do the bidding of the Soviet Union - or else. American leftists. who openly voice their hatred of U.S. institutions and traditions, would be placed in positions of power over the American people. The Soviets would not destroy America's industrial and agricultural capacity, but would use both to supply the needs and wants of the USSR, as is the case with Soviet captive nations today

The American people in the wake of capitulation would find themselves in involuntary servitude to the S.U. Freedom would exist in underground circles of resistors. Those Americans who were outspoken would find themselves in gulags in Alaska and elsewhere. A new dark age would descend over the world.

This is what the "Other Day After" would be like. It's the living death that would be the result of unilateral disarmament by free nations of the West.

Legacy

In this feature, we excerpt material that has appeared on editorial pages in past years, whether from the editorials or the column written for many years by Freedom Newspapers founder R.C. Hoiles.

We a man believes he is his brother's keeper, he can prove anything he wants to be right. He then is the norm of rightness by which things are measured.

No man can be keeper over another man. He should, however, be his brother's helper or his brother's brother. "The Lord is thy keeper, the Lord is thy shade," Psalms 121:5. It is the Lord who keeps us when we put ourselves in harmony with His laws and by no stretch of the imagination could a Christian contend that a man was another's

To attempt to keep another is to attempt to limit his right of choice. Cain is supposed to have asked God, "Am I my brother's keeper?" He well knew that in any court of justice no judge would contend that a man was keeper for another free man.

There is all the difference in the world between trying to be a helper when the person is free and can determine whether or not he wants help, and trying to be your brother's keeper.

This happened to David De Vault, age 27, Chardon, Ohio. He bought six numbers in the Ohio state lottery and they happened to be the ones needed to win the jackpot which other buyers with their dollar bills had accumulated

Saturday morning, December 17, he bought $50 worth of numbers and they happened to contain the six right ones. He had never won before. He was as surprised as anyone. It was the second largest jackpot in the history of lotteries in the U.S.

It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy. David is single, an engineering technician at Structural Fibers Division, Essef Industries, Inc. When reporters asked him what he would do now he has become a millionaire, he said. "I'll continue working until a replacement is found.

If David DeVault is normal, as we judge him to be - he is a baseball fan - he wants to do something with his money that will be satisfying. He won the money honestly. It is his; not a dollar of it belongs to the state. There is no good reason why the state or any level of government should get a penny of it.

I suggest that he would do well to give considerable amounts to good causes, to reliable organizations that will use it to benefit genuinely poor people, blind children, ignorant adults. There are many such causes to which he can make such gifts that will be tax - deductable. Such gifts will evade the tax collectors and will win David that warm gratitude of many people, permanently. He has indicated an interest in economics and business. How would the "David DeVault College of Business Administration" look in print? Very appropriate it would be: Business is speculative, businessmen have to take chances. DeVault took chances - 50 of them at $1 apiece - and he won.

He is also interested in education. He takes night courses in engineering to better himself in his daily job, and he may enroll in courses in economics, investments, etc.

Against welfare to rich, shunned by PACs

By T. LEE HUGHES

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Ron Paul, named - by Conservative Digest as one of a dozen up-and-coming conservative leaders, says he pays a price for applying his tight-fisted principles to , federal aid for powerful economic interests.

He is running for the Senate, but is pulling in virtually no money from business-oriented PACs. That is almost unheard of for a conservative candidate, especially in Texas.

Paul said he has raised between $350,000 and $400,000 for the Texas Republican primary "but I haven't had one political action committee donation, unless there are one or two that I'm not aware of

In 1981 and 1982, Paul received only about $50,000, or 11 percent of his total campaign contributions, from PACs affiliated with various special interests. according to campaign finance reports. That's far less than usual for the Texas congressional delegation, whose members averaged $139,000, or a third of their total contributions, from PACs, the "Political action committees, especially so often the business PACs, want special privilege," said Paul, who is seeking the nomination to run for the seat being vacated with the retirement of Sen. John Tower, R. Texas.

...I vote for no special privilege and therefore they don't give me very much money." Paul said. Paul's GOP opponents are Houston businessman principal congressional architect of President stop them first." Reagan's first budget in 1981.

Gramm received considerable credit in conservative circles for his role in crafting that budget, which curbed the growth in federal spending. But Paul voted against it - because he felt it didn't slash that growth enough.

Gramm is "much more of a non-free market person than I am," Paul says. "I'm for the free market across the board.

Paul acknowledges he is an underdog to Gramm, but says, "I have been an underdog in every race

Paul is against welfare payments for the poor, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, and a host of federal programs aimed at helping the needy. Such nedds, he says, can better be met through private efforts.

But he is also opposed to what he calls "welfare for the rich" - federal support for banks, large corporations and foreign governments provided through such agencies as the Export-Import Bank. Commodity Credit Corp., Overseas Private Investment Corp. and the International Monetary

"These are all immoral use of government power to help special interests," says Paul. And indeed, in whittling down the role of government, Paul says his first target would be the big economic interests.

When we develop our priorities we attack those who have received the greatest benefit, and who Robert Mosbacher and Rep. Phil Gramm. a use the power the most," Paul said. "We should

If he had his way, Paul would return the federal government to the bare bones role he says was originally envisioned in the Constitution: protecting individual freedoms, providing national security, encouraging free trade between the states, and providing a sound currency. To revamp the defense program, he would gradually bring U.S. troops home from foreign soil and stop increasing the nuclear arsenal in favor of developing a space-based missile defense system.

To promote monetary reform, he would reinstitute the gold standard, again tying the value of the dollar to gold, and eliminate or curtail the power of the Federal Reserve, the nation's central

"The capitalist system has been just about destroyed." Paul said "The money is on its last legs, and the interventionism ... that we've been involved (in) around the world is about to bring the world to the brink of a military confrontation. Slender and soft-spoken, Paul was raised in Pittsburgh, where his father ran a dairy.

. I can remember at a very young age helping in the dairy, and delivering newspapers, and doing all those things which I think are very instructive. rather than accepting that what you get is what you demand and you have a right to it." Paul said.

After receiving a medical degree Paul served as a surgeon in the Air Force, a stint that took him in 1963 to Texas, where he decided to settle

Paul was trounced in his first bid for Congress in 1974, won a special election in April 1976 only to lose again that November

Pentagon learns to live with Bell breakup

By NORMAN BLACK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -For the past two years, communication specialists have mounted an unprecedented planning effort designed to ensure that in war and in peace, the Pentagon will be able to compensate for the loss of 'one-stop shopping" with the Bell System.

Government and industry are activating two 'command posts," ready to respond to emergencies 'without worrying about corporate boundaries," says Lt. Col. Jerome A. Landry of the Defense Communications

Throughout the long. contentious process that led to the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph, the Department of Defense was the one government arm that never wavered in its support of a unified Bell System.

Now the brass hats are singing a different tune, born of necessity after the consent agreement that led to Sunday's breakup of AT&T.

Officials say the nation's communications system is just as secure today as it was

"I've never believed the whole world was going to end on Jan. 1 because of the breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph," says Landry. "It's been more difficult to get things done. but we've managed to get

The Defense Department spends more than $860 million a year on leased long-distance communication systems, plus another $500 million on leased facilities on military bases. "We lease about 95 percent of our long-haul system," says Landry, "and the majority of that is from the Bell System." Concern that the system could be compromised by splitting up AT&T led the Defense Department to oppose Justice Department antitrust efforts. In the end, the Pentagon was unsuccessful; in 1982 AT&T agreed to spin off its 22 local Bell companies into seven regional firms. And the planning process began, involving industry experts and national security professionals at the Defense Communications Agency (DCA); the Federal Communications Commission and the National Communications System.

Starting this month, a 24-hour-a-day National activated by the National Communications System, an umbrella organization meshing the government's civilian and military emergency systems. The center will work with government officials and representatives of AT&T. Bell and independent phone companies, equipment makers and long-distance competitors. The new Bell companies. meantime, working through a new corporate entity they own jointly called the Central Services Organization, have activated a special Watch Center to iron out coordination problems,

> AT&T's role Landry describes the two centers as command posts that will work around corporate boundaries whenever necessary.

essentially taking over

In many instances. however, the National Coordinating Center won't need to become involved. asserts Marvin Konow, an assistant vice president of the Bell companies' Central Services Organization.

"The same Bell people who were doing the job vesterday (in the field) are doing it now," says Konow. "If this Coordinating Center will be thing is going to work, it's going to work at the grassroots level and I'm positive that's going to

"I think we'll have a better system than before the breakup," adds Mimi Weyforth Dawson, a member of the FCC. The breakup has forced the government "to deal with an old system that had flaws," she explains.

Of course, the breakup raises delicate new issues. The FCC, says Dawson, will face crucial questions as the Defense Department moves to "harden" or secure portions of the commercial phone network for use in the event of a nuclear attack

The National Coordinating Center will work with many more firms than just AT&T and the Bell companies. William G. McGowan, chairman of MCI Communications, says the Defense Department appears to have finally realized that companies like his can actually enhance national security by offering 'redundancy' long-distance networks that are separate from AT&T's Before, they had an easy solution with AT&T and they relied on that," says McGowan "They have options now they never had

Shrine burners are urged to seek help

HAWLEY, Mass. (AP) - If angry Vietnam veterans are responsible for the fire that destroyed a tiny Buddhist shrine in this western Massachusetts town, they should call fellow veterans for help, counselors urge.

The blaze at the Mahasiddhi Nyingmapa Center was being investigated by state police. W. Michael Ryan, district attorney for Hampshire and Franklin counties, said

Shortly after the shrine burst into flame Saturday, a caller told television stations and a newspaper that a "Vietnamese pagoda" would be destroyed and warned other Vietnamese sites would be the target of Vietnam

"We've got nothing to lose," the caller, identifying himself as a member of "Tet 84," told The Morning Union newspaper in Springfield. 'We died 15 years ago'.

Bitter cold to affect livestock supplies, prices

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) The huge blanket of covered much of the nation extreme for weeks is bound to have an nd market prices this winter and perhaps well into 1984. say Agriculture Department economists.

J. Dawson Ahalt, deputy assistant secretary for economics, said he had no fresh estimates because the extent of losses to livestock producers isn't known at this

However, Ahalt told a reporter last week, the severe cold and snow affects production in several ways. Marketing operations can be hampered, meaning less-than-normal meat in the pipeline at one time and above-normal at others. That can result in price variations that otherwise might not deep-winter cold that has occur, or at least not in the

Also, Ahalt pointed out, the effect on livestock supplies early arrival of bitter cold weather means that animals require more feed simply to maintain body warmth. That means a reduction in growth efficience - and reduced profits for producers.

Hog production, in particular, can suffer from prolonged cold weather by death losses, smaller litters and reduced conception rates, he said.

Although they have trimmed production, hog producers apparently face some financial problems in the first half of 1984, at least,

The department's Economic Research Service forecasts that market prices of slaughter hogs in 1984 will average $45 to $51 per hundredweight at the major markets, down from an nated $47 or $48 in 1983 And the 1983 price average tumbled 15 percent from an average of $5.44 per hundredweight in 1982. In the first half of 1984, the agency said in a recent supply-and-demand analysis. hog prices may be $41 to $48 per 100 pounds in the January-March quarter and $43 to $47 in April-June. According to agency projections for Corn Belt hog feeding operation, those prices would still be at about the break-even level for

The report said that if a 40-pound feeder pig was bought at an average price of $22.27 in October, the producer would have to get $46.39 per 100 pounds in February when the animal weighed 220 pounds at

In addition to the original feeder pig cost of $22.27, it would take an estimated $34.10 worth of corn - 11 bushels - and $22.04 for protein supplement, plus other expenses for labor and management, veterinary medicine, death losses and other items to produce a market hog.

Those costs add up to $102.06 for a 220-pound hog, or $46.39 per hundredweight, the report said.

The outlook for hog and cattle producers is clouded partly by the government's new program to pay dairy farmers for cutting back on milk production this year. As this is done, USDA economists say that about one million dairy cows may go to market by late summer,

First generation continues to struggle as second on its way to success

DALLAS (AP) - There's usually little conversation between the graying shoemaker and the customers who dash in and out so quickly they sometimes leave their cars idling at the curb

Luis Magana has a little joke about those 27 years of one-sided, hurried conversations: "People come in and ask if I can save their

There was no joke 27 years before, in 1956, when Magana abandoned the small shoe factory he established in Monterrey, Mexico, and brought his wife and 4-month-old daughter to Texas, where he expected to make his fortune and assure his family's future.

The Maganas rode 14 hours in a Greyhound bus to reach Dallas, where a $1-an-hour job and a $15-a-week project house awaited. Magana told the Dallas Morning News he · had hoped to parlay that modest beginning into the luxurious lifestyle of which he had heard so much.

In the intervening years, Magana's dreams of fame and fortune have died.

He has not become the owner of a shoe factory as he'd envisoned. He's a shoe repairman in a small store tucked away in a nondescript Dallas shopping center.

But the shoemaker with a 4th-grade education and his secretary wife have laid a laid a cornerstone of hard work and achievement for the first generation of American Maganas

Martha, who was four when the Maganas moved to America, is a graduate of the University of Dallas and has a master's degree from Sonoma State University in California; Marilu and Leticia are graduates of Stanford University; Joe, perhaps the most Anglicized of the family, has a bachelor's degree from Southern Methodist University; David is a senior at Notre Dame University Gabriela, the baby, is a junior at Stanford.

The dreams of that new generation of American Maganas are of being psychologists, businessmen, broadcasters, social workers

'It pays to have sacrificed; can see that now," the shoemaker says.

"My dreams have been fulfilled through my children. My first duty was to my children; they did not ask to be born into this world. I'm grateful they will do much better than I did.

Magana's neat frame home on the fringe of Love Field is not much of an improvement over the small house he left behind in Monterrey.

Indeed, Magana sometimes ponders whether the decision he made 27 years ago was the right one.

"I am a shoemaker." Magana explains with an accent that almost is lyrical, 'who makes no shoes.

"I had owned my own company in Mexico. I found out that would be impossible here because the equipment was so expensive," he said. Of the stories he had heard, Magana, 53, says, "It was all illusion. My friends told me of how good it would be in the United States, but that was not true. We struggled to make it at first.

"I was blind; I had no idea what I would encounter here. and I spoke little English."

Yet, Magana, whose uncle was recognized by the Vatican as a religious martyr after being fatally shot by government soldiers in 1928 who asked him to renounce his religion, realizes that his children's chances are better than his ever were.

"I'm not wishing any more for me," he says. "I accept that my dreams will not be fulfilled, but my children's

Dear Abby

Sex-change inquiry shocks Abby's readers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am furious, angry and soiling mad! The etter signed "No More Girls" from British Columbia stopped me cold. It was from a man whose wife was expecting their third child. The first two (ages 3 and 2) were girls, and he wanted to know where they could get a sex-change operation for the next baby if it was another

My God! I thought I didn't read it right! The man surely was off his rocker. He doesn't deserve kids, nor does his wife, who must also be a nut to consider such an idiotic

I hope no surgeon would ever perform such an operation. I can't wait to see what other readers had to say about this crazy request.

HORRIFIED IN PHILLIPSBURG, N.J.

DEAR HORRIFIED: Other readers were equally horrified. Many offered to adopt the expected child if it was a girl. Some offered to take the 2- and 3year-old girls off the couple's hands if they weren't happy with female children.

Be assured, no surgeon would consider performing a sex-change operation on a healthy, normal child.

DEAR ABBY: I just started reading your column in the Moline (Ill.) Daily Dispatch, and I need some questions

1. Does a letter have to be signed in order to be answered in your column? 2. If I want a personal reply, will I get one? Or do you send form letters?

3. Are all the letters in your column real? Or do you make some of them up?

4. Where should I address a letter to you? I am sending this to the Dispatch, but I would rather write directly to

MRS. G.H., MOLINE

DEAR MRS. H.: 1. Letters do not have to be signed in order to be answered in my column.

2. Personal replies are sent to those who sign their names and enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. I do not use form letters.

3. All the letters are real. I couldn't make up anything as good as the letters I receive.

4. Address all mail to: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 44 and have been a widow for four years. I have a nice home and three wonderful childrenall college graduates with good jobs. The two older ones are married and the youngest has her own apartment. I have always been there for them when they called or came by for a visit.

-Now, I have met a man that I care about very much. He is a widower with three grown children. We are very compatible. But he lives 200 miles away, with his farm and business there, which means I have to go there if I

I love my children so much, I feel guilty when I leave them. After a week they call, wanting me to come home. And I always do. My friend says I should cut the apron strings. When I am with him, I think about my children, and when I'm home, I think about him.

Abby, please don't tell me my children come first. I don't want to live the rest of my life alone, but I don't want my children to be unhappy. How can I have peace of mind? What do you say?

PULLED APART

DEAR PULLED: Children come first when they're young. But your children are grown with lives of their own. At 44 you have many good years ahead of you, so please don't feel that you have to "be there" for your grown children. This is your chance to catch the brass ring (or the gold one), so go for it. And don't feel guilty.

Creativity brings more use to space in home

AP Newsfeatures

Sooner or later, it happens to almost everyone. The living space that once was more than adequate is suddenly too small. In the 19th century, Americans could simply light out for the frontier when space got tight at home. But eventually there was no more frontier. Then came the era when moving to the suburbs was a popular choice.

Today, many Americans have sound that their options have suddenly shrunk as building and land costs have risen and higher interest rates have made mortgages a sometime thing.

So when a new baby comes or a parent moves in or a new business or hobby is begun, some families find they must stay put and rearrange the home they have to pack more living inside the same four walls.

The problem has led to a spate of articles and books on domestic space planning. One of the books on the subject is Virginia Carry's "Double Duty Decorating." This clearly written volume offers some excellent suggestions on how to get more mileage out of the rooms you already have. A number of the ideas are illustrated with drawings by Robert

In an interview, Mrs. Carry, a former decorating editor and a writer, said she used her own experience in revamping a New York City apartment to accommodate two children and to provide work - at - home space for herself and her husband.

She confided her first efforts were not very successful. After the first baby was born, she converted the family's spacious kitchen into a kind of room for all seasons. In addition to cooking and dining, the kitchen was used as the laundry, play area and television watching spot. In addition, a convertible sofa turned one end of the room into an occasional guest room, and Mrs. Carry's home office was also located in the kitchen.

"It just didn't work," she said. "Even though we have a large three - bedroom apartment, everyone was constantly in the kitchen, and I couldn't get any work done."

The experience led her to formulate her first rule for double duty decorating: limit proposed activities in a room to a few.

After her second baby was born, she developed a more successful scheme that led to her recently - published book.

This time, she relocated some activities to rooms that were under - utilized. The dining room became her home - office. One end of the room was fitted with shelves and sequestered behind a newly - built partial wall. The laundry was moved to a large closet in one of the children's bedrooms and the kitchen remained the family's cooking, dining and social center.

Guests are no longer expected to bunk on the convertible sofa. Instead, they are accommodated in one of the children's rooms. The girl moves in with her brother and shares his bunk beds while guests are in residence.

Looking around for under - used space to find a place for her husband's desk and bookshelves, Mrs. Carry settled on the foyer which was revamped and a former door eliminated. Other ideas she has used to gain more functional rooms in the apartment include the addition of a chaise in the master bedroom. "It provides a comfortable place other than the bed to lie down and watch television or read," she said.

The Carrys also have pressed a large closet into service to store oversized paraphernalia such as bicycles. She says, too, that every household needs a secret space which can hold messy or bulky items out of view for a

The Carry household has several such places. Her favorite is the space beneath the high - skirted beds in the master bedroom and in her daughter's room.

Under the four poster in her own bedroom go cardboard boxes which contain out - of season clothing, toys that are not being used, slipcovers and linens too good to throw away but not currently needed.

She advises readers to consider the space beneath their beds for extra storage space. In order to conceal boxes, plan on using a bedskirt to the floor. Other possibilities include skirted tables which can be file cabinets and folding screens which can go in front of items stored in one corner of a room. A more permanent storage area can be created by building a low platform in a room. The platform top can be lifted to provide shallow storage space for items such as books

Mrs. Carry noted, however, that any storage spot or other idea for using space more efficiently that requires a great deal of effort to get to probably will not be used.

"If you have to move a coffee table and four chairs to open a sofa which you then have to make up into a bed, most people would probably simply roll up in a blanket on the couch and go to sleep," she said.

Some tax forms offer easier filing

Do you have to file the long form?

You must file the 1040 form if any of these statements apply to you.

- Your taxable income is over $50,000.
- You itemize deductions.
- You are married, filing separately, and your spouse itemizes.
- You had income from sources other than wages, salaries, tips, interest, dividends and unemployment compensation. Such other income could include alimony, a capital gain, taxable pension or annuity income, or income from an All-Savers certificate, rents, royalties, S corporations, partnerships, estates or trusts. Also included are prizes won in a lottery or a raffle.
- You did not report tip income to your employer as required.
- You can be claimed as a dependent on your parents' return and you had interest, dividends or other unearned income of $1,000 or more.
- You are a qualifying widow or widower with a dependent
- You were a non-resident alien during any part of 1983 and you are not filing a joint return.
- You claim these adjustments to income: moving expenses, employee business expenses, payments to a Keogh account, interest penalty on early withdrawal of savings, alimony paid or disability income exclusion
- You claim any of these tax credits: credit for the elderly, foreign tax credit, or residential energy credit.
- You file any of these forms: Application for Extension of Time to File (form 4868); Sale or Exchange of Principal Residence (form 2119); Income Averaging (schedule G); Underpayment of Estimated Tax (form 2210); Deduction from, or Exclusion of, Income Earned Abroad (form 2555); Computation of Self-Employment Tax (schedule SE); Exclusion of Income from Sources in U.S. Possessions (form 4563); or Paying Tax on an IRA Withdrawal (form-

Some taxpayers who may otherwise be able to file one of the short forms may find that they save money if they itemize. They then must use the long form.

By Robert Metz

Henry Ford said you could have any color Model T Ford you wanted so long as it was black. Uncle Sam is a bit more flexible.

Taxpayers have a choice of income tax forms. There is the 1040 long form and the 1040A short form. Single taxpayers have an additional option, tax form 1040EZ. The tax form 1040EZ is designed for single taxpayers who earn less than $50,000.

A single taxpayer using the 1040EZ may claim only one personal exemption and is permitted no exemptions for children or other dependents. Taxable income must be less than $50,000 with no more than $400 in interest income and no interest at all from All-Savers certificates. Earned income can be from wages, salaries and tips only. No dividend income is allowed. The 1040EZ contains only 11

While most of the instructions needed to complete the 1040EZ are on the form, you need the tax table from the 1040A instructions to figure the tax. You will also need the special work sheet from the 1040A instructions to figure your deduction for charitable contributions. TAX TRAP: Don't let the simplicity of the 1040EZ (or 1040A) trap you. Don't use either tax form unless it is in your interest. Inappropriate use of the 1040EZ or 1040A can cause you to pay more tax than you owe. The way to tell whether you should file a long form is to do a rough calculation. Add up all deductions to which you are entitled to see if they total more than your zero bracket amount. If they do, you will pay less tax if you itemize your deductions. That can only be done if you file form 1040.

Remember, there are different zero bracket amounts depending on your filing status. The zero bracket amount for the filing categories are: married, filing jointly, or a qualified widow or widower - $3,400; single, or unmarried head of house hold - $2,300; married, filing separately - $1,700.

If you qualify and have made sure that using the 1040EZ doesn't cost you tax dollars, file this form according to the instruc-

If you have determined that you will not lower the amount of tax you owe by itemizing your deductions, Form 1040A allows you a little more flexibility than 1040EZ. Form 1040A has been changed from prior years to permit more deductions and credits. New schedules have been added.

Unlike the 1040EZ, form 1040A can be used if: are married or single. You had dividend income. You are claiming a credit for political contributions, child care expenses, or the earned income credit. You had interest income of any amount. You had unemploy

TAX TIP: In 1983 you may deduct 25 percent of your donations to a charita-ble organization up to $100, for a maximum write-off of $25, even if you use the zero bracket amount and do not itemize. In 1984, you will be allowed to deduct contributions of 25 percent of $300 or a maximum deduction of $75. The deduction will increase to half your contributions in 1985, and in 1986 you will be allowed to deduct everything you contribute, up to half your adjusted gross income.

Many taxpayers still must use the long form. These include people who want to itemize, those whose taxable income is over $50,000, those who file a variety of other forms, and those who are married, but filing separately and have a spouse Next: Who must file

Nebraska upset in Orange Bow unbeaten."

MIAMI (AP) - Four months of hard work and sweat came down to a two-point conversion for No.

Success would have assured powerful Nebraska of its first national championship since 1971, but the Cornhuskers' bid to be perfect may well have cost them the crown that's been within their grasp twice in the past three years.

"We were trying to win the game," Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said Monday night after fifth-ranked Miami foiled the Big Eight .champion's last-minute, two-point conversion attempt and came away from the golden anniversary Orange Bowl with a 31-30 victory.

"I don't think our players would have been satisfied to back into it (national championship) by kicking a point after touchdown,' Osborne added. "You can't go for a national title that way. We wanted to win and remain

A tie with Coach Howard Schnellenberger's Hurricanes may have been all the Cornhuskers needed to become the first team since 1945 to hold on to No. 1 in the Associated Press rankings from the preseason to

Now, with No. 2 Texas falling to Georgia 10-9 in the Cotton Bowl, it appears Miami has the best bet of ousting the Cornhuskers from the top spot when the AP releases its final poll at 6;30

Buring the season and Dec. 24 and by surprising another shot at them. Riggins key for Redskins

WASHINGTON (AP) -Washington Redskins coach Joe Gibbs, preparing for Sunday's National Conference championship game with the San Francisco 9ers, will place his team's Tate in the reliable hands of John Riggins.

The 34-year-old Riggins. running out of the Redskins' single-back offense, ran his awo-year streak of 100-plus yard playoff games to five last week as he pounded the Los Angeles Rams for 119 yards and three touchdowns in a 51-7 rout.

Law aimed at ridding schools of guns

HOUSTON (AP) - School officials say they hope a new state law will scare students out of packing guns and knives in the classroom. Under the new law, anyone found on school premises, in a courtroom, court office or polling place with a gun, long-blade knife, club or felony instead of a misdemeanor.

A 17-year-old Houston high school student, whose 25-caliber automatic pistol discharged an grazed a friend last year in a school hallway. was suspended for three

But under the new law that school officials can begin enforcing today, he would have been charged with a felony and subject to a two-to 10-year prison term and a

No New Year's resolutions for palsy victim

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) The blinds are open to the winter sunshine. A few potted plants; anonymous gifts, rest on a ledge. Behind the closet door are hundreds of unopened letters for Elizabeth Bouvia.

The brown-haired, 26-year-old quadriplegic is stretched out on her bed, the tube running into her nose a constant reminder of unsuccessful attempts to starve herself to death.

There are no New Year's resolutions here

"I don't want to spend the rest of my life like this, and I think it is clear that the rest of my 20 years would be in a convalescent home. depending on someone else for the most humiliating of needs," Ms. Bouvia said in an

Associated Press on New Year's Day.

Born with cerebral palsy and confined to a wheelchair, Ms. Bouvia has been trying for several months to convince the courts to let her starve to death while receiving painkillers and hygienic care at Riverside General Hospital.

Her lawyers have filed an appeal with the California Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, she is being force-fed and attended by an around-the-clock nurse. A 24-hour guard is posted outside her door because of two death threats the hospital says she has received.

Officials at Riverside General have said Ms. Bouvia is a "devilish" woman who is basking in the attention her case has generated and doesn't really want to die. Strangers have written to her from around the world, urging her to reconsider her

She remains steadfast. "I don't see how anyone can tell me I should lead the life I'm leading now because it could be a productive one," she said. "Because to me as a person it (life) is humiliating and agonizing. I don't think anyone - disabled or able-bodied alike - should tell me how I should lead my

The furor over her case has obscured her simple wish to escape from a body that keeps her from ever being physically independent, she

"This was a very private matter, but it has become a very big issue. It's been blown out of proportion and, unfortunately, I've gotten lost in there," Ms. Bouvia said. "I wish the hospital would comfortable, and let me die with dignity," she said.

"That's the issue we're fighting here." Superior Court Judge John H. Hews ruled last month that Ms. Bouvia could not starve herself to death at the hospital because exercising her right to self-determination would infringe on the rights of those caring for her. Hews later permitted the hospital to force-feed her.
