American teens turning away from marijuana

NEW YORK (AP) - After peaking in the late 1970s, marijuana use continues to decline among American teen-agers, who experience less peer pressure to "turn on" and are wary of how pot will affect their health, government and private studies say.

"We're finding surprisingly little drug use among teen-agers in the 14-18 age range. They haven't done drugs and don't want to do drugs," said Amy MacDonald, an editor at TeenAge magazine in Lowell, Mass.

Ms. MacDonald, whose magazine is doing a survey on teen-agers' attitudes toward drugs, said, "The most common comment is that they don't want to ruin their

Heather Hanson, 16, a junior at Wheeling Park High School in Wheeling, W.Va., said there is plenty of marijuana available in her school. "I could get it free," she said. "I have so many good friends who have surplus."

But Heather said she has never even tried marijuana A new Gallup Youth Survey of 542 respondents ages 13 to 18 said 19 percent reported smoking marijuana at least once, down from 40 percent in 1980.

The government's latest statistics, compiled from surveys of 17,500 high school seniors, indicated that 6.3 percent smoked marijuana daily in 1982, down from the peak of 10.7 percent in 1978.

"But that still means that 1 of every 16 high school seniors smoke marijuana daily," said Carol Sussman, a press officer at the National Institute on Drug Abuse. That's a lot

About the same number - 1 in 16 - report that they drink every day, she said.

The percentage of high school seniors who say they have tried marijuana - 6 of 10 - has remained the same in recent years, but those who say they had smoked pot in the last month declined from 37 percent in 1978 to 29 percent in 1982 Those who said they had used marijuana in the previous year dipped from 50 percent in 1978 to 44 percent

The trend toward less marijuana use among teen-agers is expected to continue when the National Institute on Drug Abuse releases the results of its 1983 survey of high schjool

Jerald Bachman, one of the University of Michigan researchers conducting the survey for the government, said the decline in marijuana use parallels an increase in health concerns associated with smoking pot. Thirty-five percent of the respondents said smoking marijuana was a great health risk in 1978, compared with 60 percent in 1982.

The surveys and studies offer no consensus on whether teen-agers are turning to other drugs, including alcohol, instead of marijuana

'Gag order' in effect during Grandstaff trial

BY JEFF LANGLEY Staff Writer

AMARILLO - Jury selection was scheduled to begin under a "gag order" at 2 p.m. today in Amarillo federal court in a $5 million lawsuit filed by the family of a 6666 ranchhand killed by police in 1981.

Parties to the civil - rights lawsuit verbally agreed to the gag order prohibiting them from discussing the case during a pre - trial conference Friday in Amarillo, according to Elaine Sprang, secretary for Federal Judge Mary Lou Robinson.

The case was officially called for trial at 9:30 this morning, clearing the way for jury selection this

The lawyers have said they expect the trial to last from four to six weeks.

James Grandstaff, 31, was shot to death in front of his north - camp home Aug. 11, 1981 on the 6666 Ranch east of Borger

Borger police had chased a fleeing suspect east from Borger on Texas 152. The fugitive's truck crashed through two fences and onto the pasture in front of Grandstaff's home. The suspect, Lonnie Cox, then 26, abandoned his truck, and officers lost sight of him.

Grandstaff drove a few hundred yards down to the pasture to investigate the commotion raised by the attempted arrest. He stepped out of his pickup and was shot in a "flurry" of police gunfire.

A subsequent state grand jury investigation of the cowboy's shooting death returned no charges against police, though jurors did rule that officers killed Grandstaff.

The officers named in the lawsuit filed by the victim's family and widow, Sharon, deny responsibility for cowboy's shooting death.

Defendants to the suit are the City of Borger; Hutchinson, Carson and Gray Counties; officers Ricky Morris, Bailey Roberts, John Robert Alonzo, John Wayne Turner, John Ray and "other unknown police officers.

The City of Pampa was dropped as a defendant last Aug. 23.

The lawsuit charges that after Grandstaff's death, police and officials tried to "cover up and whitewash this vile murder...and the

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - U.S. Marines tightened security today following an ambush which killed an American corporal, and police said six people were killed in new fighting between Druse and Christian militiamen south of Beirut

Police said rival militias were engaged in battles with mortars. rocket-propelled grenades and machine guns this morning in the Kharroub region, 20 miles south of Beirut and three miles from Israel's front line along the Awali River. Police said all six casualties were civilians

Despite the fighting, negotiators met again today in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, in an effort to resolve final details of a proposed security plan that would disengage Lebanon's warring factions and stabilize an often-broken cease-fire.

In west Beirut, the Marines moved their helicopter landing zone several hundred vards northward on the main seafront boulevard following a guerrilla attack Sunday that killed a Marine. He was the 258th member of the U.S. contingent of the multinational force killed since the Marines arrived in Lebanon in September 1982.

The official rate in Pampa for the month of November dropped to 5.6 percent, down from 6.7 percent for October, and down from 8.7 percent recorded in September.

The unemployment rate for the remainder of Gray County in November dropped to 6.3 percent, down from 7.5 percent recorded in October, and from the 9.7 percent in September.

"We've had five consecutive months where our unemployment rate has released the latest rate.

"This is indicating a gradual improvement in Pampa's economy. he said. "We're falling along with the national rate.

Pampa's 5.6 percent unemployment rate for November (reporting of local rates lags one month behind national and state figures) was well below the 8.2 percent national unemployment rate and a 7.7 percent statewide rate reported for December.

"We've had no major layoffs, and we've had a steady increase in hiring...We're getting within a normal range gradually," Vance said.

Former EPA official Lavelle gets six-month prison sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Environmental Protection Agency official Rita Lavelle was sentenced today to six months in prison and fined $10,000 for lying to Congress about her handling of the government's $1.6 billion toxic waste cleanup program.

Ms. Lavelle, 26, could have been sentenced to a maximum of 20 years and a fine of $19,000

U.S. District Judge Norma H. Task force finds no evidence of 'rampant hunger' in country

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's task force on hunger said today it has "not been able to substantiate allegations of rampant hunger" but has no doubt there is some hunger in America.

'We cannot report on any indicator that will tell where and by how much hunger has gone up in recent years," the task force said in a report. "But we have also found that for the vast majority of low-income people, the private and public parts of the income maintenance and food assistance efforts are available and sufficient for those who take advantage of them.

"We have not been able to substantiate allegations of rampant hunger," said the report, a draft version that forms the basis for discussions by the 13-member group in its first public meeting, held to ratify a formal report to the president.

The group held seven hearings around the country since being named in September by Reagan, who has said he was puzzled by reports of hunger in the nation.

Critics have charged that the Task Force on Food Assistance was preparing to whitewash administration policies. One member of the group predicted "very heavy discussion and debate" before a final document is approved for presentation to the

Still another solution offered for Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP) - Over the past generation, a stream of fact-finding commissions, task forces and special emissaries have gone to Latin America on behalf of a succession of presidents puzzled about what American policy toward the region should be.

This Wednesday, a new chapter will be added to the ritual when, after five months of labors and two trips south, the National Bipartisan Commission on Central America, headed by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, presents its report to President Reagan.

After hearing from more than 300 experts and visiting eight countries, Kissinger and his 11 commission colleagues are now ready to submit their findings. The commission will recommend $8 billion in U.S.

economic aid to the region over the next six years, The Washington Post quoted commission officials as saying in its The New York Times, in today's editions, quoted three unidentified commission members as saying that the panel will recommend continued aid to insurgents seeking to overthrow the Nicaraguan government. The report sees aid to Nicaraguan rebels as an important way to promote negotiations for a regional settlement in Central America. rather than a way of trying to overthrow the Sandinista government, the Times report said.

The Times quoted the panel members as saying they agreed to tie further U.S. military aid to El Salvador to periodic legislative review of progress on elections, land redistribution, a better justice system, human rights and the halting of right-wing death squads.

Previous missions have varied in size and scope but their mandates have been fundamentally similar: to make recommendations that will produce stability, peace, prosperity and pro-Western democracy in an area where violent revolution seems an attractive alternative to the millions who have no stake in preserving the existing

In 1953, Milton Eisenhower undertook a trip to 10 South American countries in 1953 on behalf of his newly inaugurated brother.

Similarly, in his first year, President Carter sent first lady Rosalynn to Central and South America. The most ambitious fact-finder of all was Nelson A. Rockefeller, who undertook four weeklong trips to Latin America in May and June of 1969. He reported back to President Nixon on a mission marred by demonstrations, riots and bombings. Three countries refused to receive Rockefeller and his 23-member commission

Eleven years earlier, Nixon himself had gone on perhaps the most memorable of all the hemispheric fact-finding missions. He encountered riots in Peru and a rock-throwing mob in Venezuela that threatened his life.

His experience convinced the Eisenhower administration a new policy was needed and, four months after Nixon's trip. the United States announced it was dropping its long-standing opposition to establishment of an inter-American development bank.

The sense of alarm about the hemisphere nowadays is Kennedy sent former Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson to Latin America in 1961 to help him formulate a new policy. Kennedy also used another method of learning about Latin American opinion: A month after he took office, nine of the hemisphere's best known economists were recruited to submit a report to the new president.

Subsequently, the Alliance for Progress was formed, representing perhaps the boldest departure in hemispheric policy of any administration from what had come before. It was an ambitious program of economic and social development, generously financed by the United States.

Justifying the program, Kennedy said, "If the only alternatives for the people of Latin America are the status quo and communism, then they will inevitably choose

That same concern prompted Reagan to form the Kissinger commission. Kennedy was worried that it was 'one minute to midnight" in Latin America for the United States. Nowadays, the hour seemingly is at least that late in Central America

To the age-old White House question of "Where do we go from here in Latin America?" Reagan is hopeful Kissinger and his commission can produce some persuasive answers.

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Ali Ghadar welcomed Israel's invasion of Lebanon in June 1982. He took advantage of the unofficial peace to visit the Jewish state and met socially with Israeli army officers.

Now, however, the 52-year-old Shiite Moslem merchant says Israel has lost the confidence of local residents and he predicts more Lebanese will take up arms against Israeli troops unless changes are made quickly.

"The Israelis are killing the life of the city. People here can't take any more." Ghadar said Sunday in his second-floor shop filled with lamps and rolls of wallpaper.

The Israeli army, fearing car bomb attacks along its main supply route, has forbidden parking on the street. On Saturday at least two unattended cars were shot up by Israeli soldiers in armored vehicles, residents said.

"Why drive tanks and trucks down the main street? There are other roads and this is killing the life of our city. I ask you, would they like it if somebody drove tanks down Ben Yehuda Street (in Tel Aviv)?" said Ghadar.

There has been a recent upsurge of anti-Israeli guerrilla attacks, encouraged by local Moslem clergymen. Israel has responded by steadily tightening its control of roads and bridges that link southern Lebanon with Beirut, 25 miles to the north.

At the Awali River, people streamed across the bridge on foot past tanks and barbed wire in both directions. Cars, taxis and trucks loaded with merchandise crossed more slowly, one every 10 minutes or so.

There were women balancing unwieldy bundles on their heads, children putting wheelbarrows of personal relongings and men struggling to open bulging suitcases for inspection.

California attorney is linked to agency accused of fraud

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A California attorney has been linked to an adoption agency accused of defrauding American couples trying to adopt Mexican children, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in a copyright story

The newspaper reported Sunday that it had obtained copies of canceled checks that showed Los Angeles attorney Duran Cook deposited money into an account controlled by Bryan Martin Hall of El Paso.

According to a consumer fraud lawsuit filed in June by the lowa attorney general's office, the bank account was used by Hall, Debbie Tanner of Willcox, Ariz., and Becci Kelley of New Market, Iowa, for deposits of hundreds of thousands of dollars from couples trying to adopt Mexican children.

At least 80 families around the country say an adoption agency run by Hall and Ms. Tanner took their money and never delivered the children as promised.

The FBI, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and authorities in six states say they are investigating the adoption

Cook denied any financial link to the agency. He told the newspaper in a telephone interview that he has been active in adoptions of Mexican children, but said his operation was "completely different" from the one run by Hall and Ms.

At least one check mailed by Cook ended up at a Colorado bank and was cashed by Ms. Tanner, the Star-Telegram

The newspaper said the attorney used the name of a fictitious Mexican lawyer as the benefactor of checks when dealing with clients wanting to adopt Mexican children.

The service is sometimes operated under the name, "Casas Para Los Ninos," which means "Homes for the Children" in Spanish, said John Grubb, the police chief of Chase, Kan., who is investigating a complaint from a local couple.

Sources told the newspaper that Cook is being investigated by the California State Bar for his legal work in adoptions involving Mexican children.

"At no time did we ever retain, pay to or in any way reimburse anything (to) Debbie Tanner and Bryan Hall,"

He said any money linking him with the pair was the result of Hall or Ms. Tanner "diverting" it from its destination attorneys in Mexico.

"Those checks that you mentioned, if in fact they are real, they were no doubt diverted by either Hall or Tanner," Cook told the Star-Telegram. He identified Hall as a go-bet ween who picked up the mail at an El Paso post office box and took it across the border.

Neither Ms. Tanner nor Hall could be located for comment. Cook said he began working with Mexican adoptions about 21/2 years ago, through Mexican attorneys referred to him by

"Tanner was retiring and didn't want the whole system of working with American couples to be lost." Cook said. "It turned out after about four months that she in fact decided not to retire.

Cook said he used Ms. Tanner's contacts in Mexico to start "completely different" from the one run by Ms. Tanner and

Son finds mother after almost 14 years

By KAREN OGLESBY Pecos Enterprise

PECOS. Texas (AP) - They agreed it was the best Christmas gift either one of them could have hoped for - a mother and son reunited after more than 13 years.

A search for Betty Rayos of Pecos began after Christmas, when 21-year-old Joe Mitchell Avent came to West Texas from his home in Oklahoma City looking for his Avent said he and several Reeves County clerk's office employees spent more than two hours digging through old records to find what his mother's married name might be now or where she could be living. Three hours later, he was talking with Mrs. Rayos on the telephone.

"My heart was beating so fast when she answered the hone," Avent later recalled. "I asked her if this was Betty Rayos and if she had been married to Joe Mitchell, my

"Then I said, 'Yes, and we had a son named Joe Mitchell, too," Mrs. Rayos said.

"Then I told her I was him - I had to say it twice for it to sink in," Avent said, laughing.

"It was so far from my mind that it could be him." Mrs. Rayos said, laughing with her son.

Avent's mother and father divorced shortly after his first birthday. When his father remarried, he only saw his mother a few times, the last of which was almost 14 years

"I always knew that when I grew up, I wanted to find my mother," Avent recalled. He joined the Navy after graduating from his Oklahoma City high school, and only last month got the leave that gave him the time to do just

"It was my main mission to find her this time." Avent said. Although he had spent the first year of his life in Pecos, he had no real assurance that his mother was still

"Dad said he thought she moved to California, and her last address we found was in Carlsbad," Avent said. "But something just told me that she was in Pecos.

He asked some people at a local restaurant if they had heard of his mother, but as she had since remarried, no one connected her with the Avent name. His next stop was the courthouse, where he and clerks spent more than two hours searching through old documents until they found her married name.

"But we still didn't know where she lived," said county clerk official Juana Jacquez. "I was about to give up." She then consulted other county employees, one of whom knew After Avent called Mrs. Rayos, she drove to the courthouse to get him. "I was so excited," she recalled. "I kept trying to picture how he'd look, and all I could think of was how little he was.'

"When I saw her, she did look taller - or I was bigger, that's what it was," Avent said.

"At first we hugged," Mrs. Rayos said.

"Then we were saying 20 things to each other at the same time," Avent added.

"We both started crying," Mrs. Rayos recalled. "Then all the ladies there started crying, too.

The two spent the rest of the afternoon visiting with Avent's brothers and his sister still living in Pecos. He pointed to a portrait on the wall of Mrs. Rayos and those children, now ages 16 to 25.

"Now I know where they are and I'll call and write and keep in touch," Avent said. "And next time I come home, we're going to have another family portrait made - with Hull said he hauled in about 800 pounds of black drum on Thursday, about what he was landing before the freeze.

Black drum was one of the most prominent species killed by the Christmas freeze, said C.E. Bryan, director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's shellfish program in Austin. The other two species hardest hit by the freeze were mullet and silver perch, which are used for bait, he said.

Although it's too early to gauge the impact of the freeze, "preliminary indications are it's not as bad as they first thought," said Kenneth Rice, a parks and wildlife employee who was part of a massive state effort to count the washed-up

Garnet is the birthstone for January. It comes in almost every color except blue and is at its best in a deep, rich red. It is regarded as the gem of faith, constancy and truth and was believed to possess many cura-tive powers. Because of its blood color, it was once considered to be an excellent cure for blood disorders. Its name is de rived from the Latin "granatus," meaning "seed-like," because garnet crystals in their natural form look like pomegranate seeds. The most expensive garnet is the brilliant green variety, which approaches the emerald in shade nd exceeds the diamond in its ability to disperse light.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Nation remembers and says 'thanks'

As every American over 30 years of age must know, Dr. Albert Sabin developed an oral vaccine that, together with Dr. Jonas Salk's vaccine, helped to conquer polio, that cruel crippler of children and young adults. No one who remembers the fear caused by even the thought of polio and its attendant paralysis can doubt that Sabin and Salk deserve just about whatever a grateful nation can bestow on them, and then some.

Accordingly, it seemed especially ironic and unfair when Dr. Sabin, now 77, developed a mysterious ailment and then became paralyzed some months ago. Indeed, Sabin nearly died from the effects of his paralysis after surgery on his spinal cord in August.

Sabin's plight, his close scrape with death and his struggle to recover were duly reported by the news media. But this was just another news story until Chicago columnist Bob Greene penned a request the week before Christmas for his readers to give Sabin a demonstration of just how much he and his good work are appreciated.

Now, Greene's column is syndicated in several hundred newspapers across the country. But not every paper carries every column Greene writes. And even a widely published piece on an eye - catching topic often generates less mail than many readers might suppose. After all, it is one thing to be moved by something you read and quite another to sit down and write a letter or go to the store and buy a card.

So. Sabin, his wife and the staff at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md., where the doctor is a patient, were astonished when about 4,000 letters and cards arrived within the first few days after the Greene column appeared. Every day since, the mail has poured in from every corner of America. School children have written. Whole classes of school children have written. Parents have written. People who can remember polio and people who cannot have written.

What they all wanted to do is say think you to someone who did something magnificent and now could use a little cheering up himself. Did we say a little cheering up? When the mail to Sabin hit the 60,000 - piece level and kept right on climbing, the NIH ran out of places to put it. Even the good doctor himself took advantage of a hospital - room appearance on ABC's "Nightline." recently to thank the public but asked that no more mail be sent to him. Sabin reports that he is recovering slowly and with some pain, but still recovering. He may well walk again. When he was stricken with his still - unexplained malady this year. Sabin was working on a spray vaccine for measles, a disease triggering secondary infections that kill thousands of children in Third World countries each year. If he completes his work successfully, new generations will be in Sabin's debt.

For now, we want to add our thanks to the tens of thousands already sent to Dr. Albert Sabin. And thanks to Bob Greene for an idea as wonderful as the season.

clear message for Cong

NEW YORK (NEA) - So here we are in 1984, and Ronald Reagan has walked off with the Democrats' clothes on the subject of the economy so completely that now they're trying to tell everyone the big issue this year is foreign policy.
Well, foreign policy is indeed a big issue, and if the Democrats think the American people would prefer a militarily superior Soviet Union and a communist Central America to Mr. Reagan's ongoing efforts to prevent these things, they are at liberty to run on that platform. But thoughtful Americans will not forget the economy altogether - either the spectacular achievements of the Reagan administration to date, or the very serious problems that remain to be solved.

Mr. Reagan can, and undoubtedly will, point with justification and pride to what has been accomplished already: inflation down from the double digits to the neighborhood of 3 percent; interest rates cut in half; the economy on the rebound by almost every index. Even civilian unemployment (which was 7.4 percent and rising in Jimmy Carter's last month as president) is 8.2 percent today and falling rapidly. But the federal budget deficits are huge, and Mr. Reagan is too honest a man and too sound a conservative to dismiss them as unimportant. They represent the great unfinished domestic business of his first administration, and taming them will be the principal domestic challenge of his second.

There is no mystery about what causes these deficits: The government simply spends a lot more than it takes in, that's all. Mr. Reagan was well aware of this, or course, before he was elected, and vowed to put a stop to it by cutting domestic spending and stimulating the economy so that tax revenues would rise. He knew that an increase in defense spending was essential, however, and that this would make a balanced budget impossible for a time. What he didn't anticipate was the worldwide recession (which reduced tax revenues sharply), or how hard it would be to persuade Congress to make meaningful cuts in domestic programs. Hence the huge

Why are deficits bad? Because in fact they don't simply go unpaid: They are covered at once, either by borrowing from the public (which leaves less money available for private investment, and has already made interest charges on the national debt one of the biggest items in the budget) or by printing more money and paying with that (which, of course, inflates the currency, cheapening its value). At the moment, we are not feeling either one of these pains because of the happy fact that foreign investors, attracted by our strong dollar, are bringing their money over here. Congress will shortly raise the legal debt ceiling to reflect this new source of loans, however - and service charges on the debt will go up again.

What to do? Obviously, there are only two choices: Raise more taxes, or cut expenditures. Note, however, that raising taxes won't do a bit of good unless the revenues realized thereby are actually applied to reduction of the debt. And there is not the slightest reason to suppose that any extra dollar Congress lays its hands on will know any fate but being spent.

That is one reason why Mr. Reagan had steadfastly opposed a tax increase. Currently we are hearing proposals for a "contingent" tax increase, under which any increase in tax revenue would have to be matched by an equivalent reduction in spending. But this would merely prevent the problem from getting worse, not solve it. since the revenue raised would undoubtedly

The American people know exactly what the solution is, and they told Mr. Gallup in no uncertain terms when he came around late last year. When asked "If you had to choose between them, which would you prefer: reducing government spending or raising taxes?" 5 percent of those questions had no opinion; 9 percent volunteered "some of each"; 16 percent favored raising taxes; and 70 percent called for reducing spending.

A pretty clear message, wouldn't you say? As the members of Congress assemble for the new session, they'd better heed that message or they may get it again - in

Bright side of cold weather

Because of all the publicity concerning the hunger problem in the U.S., little attention has been paid to the freezing temperatures that have engulfed the nation.

The Safety Net Task Force on Cold Weather has just issued its report on this year's winter. The commission was set up because there was no statistical information as to how many needy cold people there were in America, and whether present administration policies were adequate to take care of those who were really freezing. as opposed to freeloaders who could afford to stay out of the cold

Commission members, all from Southern California, said that the cold weather problem in the U.S. has been "exaggerated by the media, and that television in particular had played a role in making this year's winter much colder than it really is." "There are cold pockets in the U.S.," the report said, "but there is no evidence to conclude that it is nationwide and that freezing temperatures are affecting the poor. Most people suffering from frigid weather are those who can't afford to pay their fuel bills or are homeless. The Reagan administration cuts have not affected them. and the majority of these people are warmer today than they were in 1980.

The task force report went on to say, "There has been a constant drumbeat in the press and on television pointing out that temperatures in this country have been the lowest since 1872. Most of the reports on television have shown people suffering in Montana, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Duluth, to the exclusion of those in Key West, Fla., and San Diego. Calif., where the weather has been glorious. By only reporting where the weather is bad, and not where it is good, the impression left in the TV viewers' minds is that the entire country is suffering from an extraordinarily harsh winter

In a chapter devoted to wind chill figures, the report states that "When Mr. Reagan took over from President Carter the wind chill factor in the U.S. was plus 18 degrees. The Reagan administration has reduced it to minus one, and in some parts of the country minus 25, the lowest in almost a

"By lowering the wind chill rate, the president has provided more jobs for snow can now get work. Auto body repair shops are hiring people once again, gas companies report their best season ever, road sait sales have quadrupled, and people slipping on ice have pushed medical and hospital profits to record levels. The trickle down effect from the cold weather will give the economy the best boost it has had in years. Every segment of the population stands to gain by freezing temperatures."

The task force report went on to say, "We found in our investigation that most complaints about the winter were politically motivated by people opposed to President Reagan's weather policies, or whose pipes had burst because of the freeze. There is no hard and fast evidence that the extreme cold weather has any relation to mass shivering in the U.S. Government programs now in place are sufficient to provide every person who really needs it with heat.

"Therefore we are making the following proposals to see that the heat cheaters are taken oft the government rolls.

"Applicants for supplemental fuel must prove they have burned all the furniture in federal fuel allowances.

"People sleeping on gates who are getting their heat for free from subway systems will no longer be admitted to government temporary shelters.

"A surcharge should be placed on soup kitchens, and the revenues from them should be used to pay for research on why poor people are colder in the winter than they are at any other time of the year.

The task force concluded that "freezing weather is not a serious problem in the U.S. and there are a lot less icicles in peoples' homes than the American people were led to

U.N. food policy discouraging

A recent report from the United Nations' Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) warns that millions from the Third World face starvation unless the West helps them out with an immediate one - million tons of food. Three - times that amount, FAO says, will be needed before the 1984 harvest is in. In the long run, the U.N. agency says, the poorer nations are going to be need heftier supplies of "plant - protection chemicals," fertilizers, animal pharmaceuticals, and help with other aspects of food production.

storage and transportation: Farm futurist Jack D. Early echoes these concerns, noting that as many as 20 million people die each year from chronic hunger and malnutrition. Approximately one fourth of the world's population will die before it reaches the age of 40, Dr. Early says, because of malnutrition.

what is the U.N. doing about the grousing around for more food and echnological assistance from the West? Well, the answer isn't very encouraging.

The FAO is considered one of the U.N.'s least - efficient agencies. Its budget is more than $100 million a year, of which the U.S. contributed $26.5 million (one - fourth of the total) in 1982. The agency's top bureaucrats are paid fat salaries; the agency has been accused of corruption; and the vigor with which it combats world hunger will not leave you breathless.

While the FAO is promoting the freebie distribution of farm chemicals and Western grown food in less - developed nations, r U.N. agencies continue to attack the Third World. The thesis, I guess, is that pesticides are desperately needed if they're provided free of charge; if Third World governments are made to pay for these same pesticides - and somebody in the West might make a profit (a dirty word at the U.N.) - then the U.N. opposes pesticides.

Though it has gone unreported in the daily press, Dr. Early and his colleagues at the National Agricultural Chemicals Association (perhaps not realizing that the U.N. really loves pesticides; but hates profits) have taken measures to diffuse some of the U.N. and Third World's persistent criticism of the American pesticide industry - "bad guys" like Union Carbide, Stauffer Chemical Company, and Working with U.S. environmental and leftist church groups, NACA and other members of the so - called Agricultural Chemicals Dialogue Group have developed voluntary guidelines governing the advertising of agricultural chemicals abroad. The effort - aimed at reducing the misuse of pesticides in developing countries - was coordinated by The Conservation Foundation, one of the more rational environmental groups

While the new guidelines may in some cases reduce the purchase of pesticides overseas, they won't reduce the need. Which means we can expect more FAO pleading for freebies - more calls for U.S. multi national corporations to show that they are 'responsible world citizens' willing to give beloing hand.

It's interesting that as all this has been ing on, some of the same countries that are desperately in need of Western, aid to prevent massive hunger have become involved in a new U.N. crusade. The U.N.'s Third World majority now complains that they don't have enough say in the running of Antarctica. Perhaps they think they might have more success "growing" frozen food?

Honesty still best policy when turning down a date

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Thanks, but No Thanks" asks, "When a woman does not want to date a man, how does she turn him down without hurting his feelings?

It isn't easy to turn down a man without hurting his feelings. As a man who's been turned down a lot, I should know. Be honest. If he has BO or bad breath, tell him. You will be doing him a favor. If you think he's too short, too fat, too young or too old for you, tell him, so he'll quit asking you Giving a guy false hope will hurt him more in the long run than an honest truth. Tell him! He'll live. I did.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I've been turned down for a date with, "Sorry, I have to wash my hair." Now, if a man isn't turned off by that, he must be a masochist. I would have appreciated a lie such as, "I'm involved right now in a personal relationship where I simply don't date, but thanks anyway.'

J.D. IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: If a girl is asked out by someone she has just met and has no desire to date, she could tell him that she has an obligation to someone who is very important to her and she wants to remain faithful to that person, so she must decline. That "person" is herself, of course, but he doesn't need to know that.

SHARI, BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR ABBY: Saying "Thanks, but no thanks" has always worked for me. But it must be said with sincerity and kindness. Don't waste his time or yours. The truth is sure to come out eventually, which will hurt his feelings much more than an up-front, honest answer. And since a lot of women are now asking the guys out, remember, this works both ways.

NO LIES IN MESA, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a cocktail waitress in Chicago, I worked with a very good-looking girl from Columbus, Ga., who had to practically beat the men off with a baseball bat. When someone she didn't care for would ask her out, she'd smile sweetly and say, "Oh, honey, I can't go out with you; my fiance wouldn't like it!" I REMEMBER BUNNY SUE

DEAR ABBY: What's the big deal about turning down a date? There's not a man (or woman) in the world who hasn't been turned down by someone. Be 100 percent honest. If you say, "Thanks, but no thanks," and he asks, "Why?" just say, "Because I don't want to."

The more lies you make up ("I have another date," "I'm coming down with the flu" or "I'm going out of town" etc.), the more guilty you'll feel. And you won't get away with it. A lie always comes home to roost. KANSAS CITY KITTY

DEAR ABBY: What's so tough about turning down a date? I'm a guy who would prefer that the girl just say, "Sorry, you're not for me." Then I'd quit wasting my time and try someone else. BEEN THERE IN ALASKA

DEAR ABBY: I have been teaching sex education in high school for 10 years, and that question comes up often. I tell my students: "If you don't want to go out with someone, say, 'I like you as a friend, OK? I like the relationship we have, so let's keep it light and friendly.'

"You have the right to say no. You don't owe anyone any more than a courteous reply. No apologies, no explanations, no excuses. And don't feel guilty! MARTHA R. ROPER, ST. LOUIS, MO.

DEAR ABBY: I once told a guy who asked me out that I couldn't accept a date because I was involved with another fellow. That didn't discourage him in the least; he kept asking. Finally I told him I was involved with another woman. I never heard from him again. NO MORE HASSLES IN OMAHA

Interdependence necessary to good relationship

A few people I have met enjoy living alone. Like lawyers, accountants and counselors, they're a different breed, a step apart from the rest of us. Each of us, in our own right, has a way of life which works for us.

Most of us enjoy being with someone, whether of the same sex or the opposite sex. The majority of Americans want a full - time partner, companion or mate. It's a good choice, regardless of your preference. The outcome can be the same: living together in agony or in harmony.

How does a relationship endure the numerous distractions, interruptions and temptations that come our way?

The best measure of a harmonious relationship is sound self esteem. People who are positive have a tendency to change those who are depressed, dragging from hour to hour. In a relationship where both people like themselves, harmony can be measured by high marks of satisfied behavior. It is easier to be up than to be negative.

Recently a couple with this problem came for counseling. He was a dependent man who spent too much of his time preoccupied with concern for his mate with whom he felt insecure. He lacked self - confidence in the face of her outgoing, fun - loving personality.

Instead of being an asset to their relationship, he became lazy and irresponsible. This lack of self - worth helped cause the woman to dissolve their partnership.

"I'm tired of seeing a depressed, sulking, angry man when I come home," she said. She wanted him to feel good about himself, be active and enjoy life. Their relationship was in Happy couples fight. Harmonious couples agree more than the conterpart; but there are situations when they view things mutual concerns. Coming through when one could have left to differently. Whenever they can disagree and still feel confident, anger is expressed responsibly.

Arguing is a difference of opinion. It is not blaming or dragging up what happened several years ago. Who's right and who's wrong is not considered. Each person's point of view when understood fosters respect for each other.

Those in a harmonious relationship have no hidden motives. They can talk without being defensive or competitive. Each can say clearly what they feel and listen to the other attentively.

The best results of an argument is getting thoughts spoken without combat. Proving who is right or wrong, isn't Another measure of a harmonious relationship is to firmly believe that expectations are unnecessary. More couples have serious problems because each expects too much of the other. Each day calls for a separate response from the day before Expectations control a person's daily activities and limit spontaneous expressions of feeling good because they feel their partner expects them to do something they don't want to Trust is important in a relationship. By feeling secure within, it's easier to trust a mate.

Happy couples like each other by their responses to ideas. decisions and mistakes. It's like being with your best friend. Anything is accepted. You may not go along on every excursion, but, you like the friend the same at the end of the week as you did at the beginning.

Maturity helps us like one another. Comradship other to struggle alone. Recieve without obligation. Like the other for who they are, overlooking small errors. When error do happen, remember the good qualities and ignore the wron Harmonious couples have a healthy sex life. Good se depends on quality instead of quantity. Performance take second place to enjoyment.

Sex is an expression of fulfillment. In order to evaluate sexual satisfaction, accept your needs being met. If they's complete, your sexual relationship must be a happy one.

A sound measure of one's relationship is in the area interdependence. This means that there are times when yo may be dependent and times when you can be depended or Separate identities are important, even though you can fe your greatest joys in each other.

These are a few ways to measure a good relationship couple can now discuss the total score. If it's low, have som alternative to rely on for improvement. If you're in good shap as a partnership, you know the reasons.

If your relationship is successful, share your good fortur with other couples. There is no better gift than sharin whatever works.

Next week, options for separating will be considered. healthy way to leave a mate will be presented. Living harmony is the best way to live together, but sometime harmony cannot be reached. Then you go, for self preservation.

Some moonlighters can have Keough and IRA

Moonlighting taxpayers take note. If you do not have a Keogh plan, you may be missing an opportunity to save taxes.

Many moonlighters do not have Keogh plans because they are misinformed. They accept a widely held misconception that a taxpayer can have an Individual Retirement Account or a Keogh plan, but not both.

The confusion over Keogh-IRA compatability exists in part because Keogh plans do the same kinds of things IRAs do. In fact, the Keogh plan was the inspiration for the IRA. Keoghs are named after ex-Rep. Eugene Keogh, D-N.Y., who worked for a decade to get Congress to accept the concept. Referring to the number on the legislation, Keoghs are sometimes called H.R. 10 plans.

You should consider setting up a Keogh plan if you are a self-employed plumber, storekeeper, carpenter, doctor, writer, manufacturer's representative or what have you. Under a Keogh, you're eligible to shelter up to 15 percent of your self-employment income up to a limit of

You can contribute to a Keogh as late as the due date of your tax return including extension, but the account itself must have been opened by the previous Dec. 31. Under IRA rules, you are allowed to set up the account initially and contribute to it up to the due date for filing your return including extensions.

Penalties are levied if extra contributions exceed the amount justified in your case, so be careful. Employees covered by Keogh plans have long been able to set aside extra income. Self-employed voluntary contributions are subject to additional restrictions. "A COLD OR SOMETHING"

Harry Owens operates a punch press. He's been working at the plant for more than fifteen years. He's a valued employee, a member of the union, and a good family man. He likes his job, is a good provider and hasn't missed a day of work for a long time.

But Harry may be missing many work days in the near future. His back is starting to bother him. He thinks it's a "cold or something!" But in reality, he may never be at his best again because of a bad back, unless he does something to help himself. Unfortunately, all he does is complain of the severe pain. Beyond that, he just goes on aggravating it.

How many Harrys with this kind of problem do you know? Are you one yourself? Production goes down as pain comes on-and you just don't know on what to blame it, other than a"cold or something."

Good men are hard to replace. Hard for the family and hard for his employer! Progressive companies are doing many things to provide better job conditions in order to avoid as many back problems as possible. But it also takes cooperation and concern from the emp-loyee himself. If he has a backache, he should take it seriously and get professional care immediately, rather than let it linger and become worse.

Backache and illness often result from poor work habits and a low level of physical fitness. Your doctor of chiropractic recommends more attention to keep-ing fit, posture breaks when working, and spinal check-ups regularly. Your family, your employer, your union and your insurance company are seriously interested in keeping you healthy. You should

Raiders, Redskins muscle way into Super Bowl

Los Angeles won't change a thing

The game plan the Los Angeles Raiders' used to beat Seattle Seahawks in the American Conference championship will be kept alive and used against the Washington Redskins in Super Bowl XVIII.

'We're not going to change a thing. We're just going to go after them," linebacker Rod Martin said after the Raiders slammed the door on Seattle's rookie super runner, Curt Warner, wrecked the Seahawks' passing game with five interceptions and rolled to a 30-14 victory Sunday.

Now they have to slam the door on John Riggins, the Redskins' bulldozing runner. the record-breaking Most Valuable Player in last year's Super Bowl game.

Without a doubt, John's a helluva running back," said Lyle Alzado, the Raiders' wild and outspoken defensive end, "and if we get a chance, we're gonna tear his head off. John and I are good friends but when the game starts, he will not be thinking about friendship, and neither will Quarterback Jim Plunkett, considerably more soft-spoken, was considerably more cautious. "I'm quite sure that if we play the way we did today, if we can get on top against the Redskins, that we can beat them," he said.

Plunkett's passes to

Malcolm Barnwell set up fist-swinging, jersey-pulling Frank Hawkins' 1-yard and 5-yard touchdown runs that helped the Raiders build a pass in the third period to Marcus Allen.

By halftime, they were out of the contest. Their two touchdowns, Jim Zorn's passes of 1 yards to Dan Doornink and 9 yards to Charle Young, merely averted the second consecutive shutout in an AFC title game. "We never got to the point where we could win it." said Seahawks center Blair Bush.

Still, just being in the conference championship was quite a feat for the Seahawks, a 9-7 team which upset last year's AFC Super Bowl representative, the Miami Dolphins.

"I'm proud of our football team," said Coach Chuck Knox. "I'm proud the way they came back this year and the way they played. I told them they don't have to hang their heads for anybody didn't want this game to involved in several WASHINGTON (AP) - It complainer. "These things was a struggle for both the Washington Redskins and Mark Moseley, but coach Joe Gibbs' team is on the verge of joining an exclusive club in the National Football League.

Thanks to Sunday's 24-21 victory in the National Conference title game in which the San Francisco 49ers were hit with two crucial penalties in the decisive Redskin drive to Moseley's game-winning field goal, Washington can become only the fourth team to win back-to-back Super Bowls.

The Green Bay Packers, Miami Dolphins and the Pittsburgh Steelers, twice, have done it. On Jan. 22 the Redskins will try to add to the list when they meet the Los Angeles Raiders in Super Bowl XVIII at Tampa. The Raiders won the American Conference championship Sunday with a 30-14 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

Moseley, the Redskins' usually sure-footed kicker, missed four field goals before booting the game winner, a 25-yarder with 44 seconds remaining in regulation time. But the 49ers were livid over calls against cornerbacks Ronnie Lott and Eric Wright that played a major role in the final drive.

"It's too bad that a game like this had to be decided by a crucial call," said 49er coach Bill Walsh, not generally known as a

A 'really super' Super Bowl coming

By HAL BOCK

All the elements are there for what may be the most memorable National Football League championship game yet, a heavyweight showdown between two of the league's real powerhouses.

In one corner, we have the world champion Washington Redskins, survivors in the National Conference title game Sunday with San Francisco 24-21 after the 49ers staged a gallant three-touchdown comeback in the fourth quarter.

In the other corner, we have football's dead end kids, the rough and tumble Los Angeles Raiders, who beat up Cinderella Seattle 30-14 for the American Conference crown. They are anything but gallant.

These are a couple of sluggers with arsenals full of knockout punches.

Perhaps the character of the Raiders is best expressed by defensive end Lyle Alzado and linebacker Rod Martin. After LA's grind-it-out victory over the Seahawks, a game pock-marked by a number of fights up front, Alzado said, "It was a war against Seattle and it will be a war against the Redskins In a war, you want foot soldiers and Washington's John Riggins is one of the best around. His rushed for 123 yards and two touchdowns against San Francisco, a playoff record sixth straight 100-yard game

What did Alzado think about that?

"Without a doubt, John Riggins is a helluva running back," he said.

Then he paused, thought for a moment, and added, "If we get a chance, we'll tear his head off."

That seemed to be the strategy against Seattle as the Raiders limited Seahawks' running back Curt Warner to 26 yards in a rushing defense that included a number of skirmishes up front. Martin said, "We wanted to let them know early that they were not going to beat us in the big one. We're not going to change a thing against the Redskins. We're going to go right after them. That's what San Francisco did. Down 21 points with just 15 minutes remaining, the 49ers burned Washington for three touchdown passes by Joe Montana to tie the score. But the Redskins showed some character of their own, driving down the field one last time for Mark Moseley's decisive 25-yard field goal. The winning kick, with 40 attempts.

"We threw everything we had out there," he said. "We took our best shot. We fired everything we had. I don't think we had anything left there at the end.

Troops are withdrawing from Angola

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - South Africa said its troops were pulling back from positions in Angola today, but a military spokesman refused to say how soon the withdrawal would be completed.

Maj. John Rolt said he could only confirm that the pullback, announced Sunday. was proceeding. He said he did not know how far south the troops will go or whether they would continue roaming Angola's southern provinces in search of black-nationalist guerrillas.

South Africa launched an offensive in Angola on Dec. 6, saying it sought to disrupt the planned rainy-season guerrilla drive by the South-West Africa Peoples' Organization - SWAPO.

On Sunday, two days after the United Nations Security Council condemned South Africa's offensive, Defense Minister Magnus Malan said the guerrilla operations were smashed and troops were to be withdrawn.

Turpin takes up slack for Kentucky

By JOHN NELSON AP Sports Writer

Their season-opener was heralded by the return of 7-foot-2 Sam Bowie, who had sat out two seasons with injury, and thus the Kentucky Wildcats were ranked No. 1 in the preseason

They've slipped a notch in the rankings, falling behind top-ranked North Carolina, and Bowie has yet to become the scoring machine Wildcats fans anticipated. Enter Melvin Turpin, who took up the slack while Bowie was redshirted and continues to lead the club this season as

Kentucky is off to a 10-0 start. On Saturday, Turpin, a 6-11 center, scored a season-high 35 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as the Wildcats trounced ninth-ranked Louisiana State 96-80 at Baton Rouge, La., in a Southeastern Conference game. "Turpin was sensational," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said. "When he is ready to play, he is as fine a player as there is in the country, and he was ready to play tonight. Hall pointed out, however, that while Bowie did not take a shot from the field, scoring all seven of his points from the foul line, he combined with Turpin to help hold LSU to just 10 points in the first 10 minutes as the Wildcats took a 25-10 lead.

"Our defense early was excellent," Hall said. "Turpin and Bowie came up with some blocks and we were intimidating

Another key conference game involving two ranked teams saw North Carolina defeat defending NCAA champion North Carolina State 81-60 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Tar

Heels center Sam Perkins scored 22 points, 16 in the second half, as North Carolina broke open a close game in the final 20

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 4 Georgetown downed Seton Hall 74-63, fifth-ranked Maryland beat William & Mary 58-44, No. 6 UCLA defeated Arizona 61-58, seventh-rated Houston beat Texas Christian 81-67, No. 8 Wake Forest lost to Georgia Tech 68-58 and 10th-ranked Texas-El Paso beat Air Force 72-50.

Also, No. 13 St. John's defeated Providence 57-52, 14th-ranked Illinois defeated Wisconsin 63-62 in overtime, No. 16 Fresno State downed Pacific 65-47. 17th-ranked Boston College beat Villanova 74-63, No. 18 Nevada-Las Vegas defeated New Mexico State 87-66, 19th-ranked Memphis State downed Tulane 67-65 and No. 20 Virginia lost to Duke 78-72.

In an exhibition game, 15th-ranked Oregon State defeated the University of Victoria of Canada 64-48.

North Carolina, 10-0, led only 34-31 at halftime, and N.C. State cut that margin to 34-33 as Lorenzo Charles scored the first basket of the second half. But Perkins then led the Tar Heels on spurts of 15-2 and 14-4. All-American Michael Jordan and freshman Kenny Smith aided the Tar Heels' cause with 18 points apiece, and Jordan had a game-high 12 rebounds.

N.C. State's record now is 10-4, 0-2 in the ACC. The game was North Carolina's conference opener.

Bill Martin came off the bench in the second half to lead Georgetown over Seton Hall in the Big East. Martin scored 15 of his 17 points in the final half and also had 12 rebounds for the Hoyas, 12-1 and 2-0 in the conference. Patrick Ewing had 12 points as Georgetown eased away from a 29-27 halftime lead. Maryland, 10-1, got 12 points from Adrian Branch and 10 from Ben Coleman to beat William & Mary in a nonconference game. Maryland, which trailed 16-15 with less than 10 minutes gone, took a 27-18 halftime lead.

Trailing 45-38 with 12:22 to play, UCLA rallied behind Ralph Jackson and Kenny Fields to beat Arizona in the Pacific 10. Jackson scored a season-high 18 points, and Fields fought off a bout with the flu to score six of his eight points in the final six minutes. A bucket by Fields and two straight by Jackson gave the Bruins, 9-1 and 2-0 in the conference, a 53-50 lead with 6:35

Michael Young scored 22 points and Alvin Franklin added 18 to help Houston offset a big game by Texas Christian's Dennis Nutt in a Southwest Conference game. Nutt scored 36 points for the Horned Frogs, who kept the game close until near the end. Houston is 12-2 and 2-0 in the SWC.

Scott Petway hit a 15-foot jumper from the baseline with three seconds left to give Georgia Tech its two-point victory over previously unbeaten Wake Forest, 10-1. The Yellowjackets trailed most of the way until tying the score 64-64 on Yvon Joseph's short jumper with 2:50 to play in the ACC opener for both clubs. Mark Price led Georgia Tech with 19 points, and Kenny Green had 23 for Wake Fores Luster Goodwin scored 14 points as Texas-El Paso won its 13th game without a loss in a Western Athletic Conference victory over Air Force. Texas-El Paso led 40-11 by halftime as the Falcons were unable to score in the first seven minutes of the game.

Ralph gets all he wants

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Although Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who is approaching the all-time scoring leadership in the National Basketball Association, taught a few lessons to emerging superstar Ralph Sampson, the Houston rookie got what he wanted . . . a victory over the Los Angeles Lakers

Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points to Sampson's 21 in the first meeting between the two centers, but the Rockets kept the Lakers from returning to first place in the Pacific Division with a 129-118 victory Sunday night.

"We won the game, it wasn't really me against Kareem," Sampson said. "I'm up for each game. I think we respect each other; I have respect for him because of the kind of person and kind of player he is. "I'm not worried about any individual confrontation I may have, I'm just worried about how the Lakers are doing, and right now it's not so good," Abdul-Jabbar said of the Lakers, who have split their last 16 games. "Sampson is a good player, and he's going to be great. Elsewhere in the NBA, Detroit defeated Milwaukee 111-100 and Seattle outscored Portland 125-110.

Lewis Lloyd scored 29 points for the Rockets, who fought off a late rally by the Lakers and then won going away. Caldwell Jones and Robert Reid added 21 and 20 points, respectively, to Houston's balanced attack.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 25 points and 14 assists for the Lakers, while James Worthy and Jamaal Wilkes added 18

Houston had a seemingly comfortable 111-98 advantage midway through the fourth period, but the Lakers scored 11 points in a row to cut the deficit to two with 5:18 left. The teams traded baskets until the Rockets led 118-116 with 2:49 remaining. But Houston outscored Los Angeles 11-2 the Isiah Thomas scored 29 points and Kelly Tripucka 24 as Detroit won at Milwaukee to pull even with the Bucks for first place in the Central Division.

Watson reaches

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tom Watson has launched his bid to regain the influence that made him the dominant figure in golf for five years.

He's changed his swing, plans a heavier schedule and, and in only two days of competition - is a winner again. "My enthusiasm is very high," Watson said Sunday after he'd scored a 2 and 1 decision over Gil Morgan and won the new Seiko-Tucson Match Play Championship, the leadoff event on the 1984 PGA Tour.

"I've achieved my first goal," he said "I'd said I wanted to win, and win early.

Watson, who had won two British Opens but no American tournaments over an 18-month period, said he had discovered a flaw in his swing and was working to correct it.

"I wasn't staying down through the ball — just kind of sliding through it," he said. "As a result, my pitching and chipping was not what I wanted it to be."

Watson's victory came, he said, "in a kind of dull match. "Gil never made any putts to put any pressure on me."

his first goal

never led, and missed at least four putts inside of eight feet The critical one was a 4-footer to win the hole on the 16th. The victory, the 29th of Watson's American Tour career, was worth $100,000, while Morgan collected $60,000 Scott Hoch won $35,000 for his 2 and 1 decision over Lanny Wadkins (a $25,000 winner) in the match for third place. Morgan made a great comeback, winning four of the last six holes, in a 1 up decision over Wadkins in a morning semifinal, while Watson stopped Hoch 2 and 1 in the other.

Hoch was the only man in the final four who started play in the first round last Monday. Watson, Wadkins and Morgan were among the eight leaders of the 1983 Seiko Grand Prix list who were seeded into the fifth round Saturday morning.

Gene Littler dropped a 10-foot par-saving putt on the 18th for a 1 up decision over Don January for the title in the seniors' portion of the two-pronged tournament. He also won $100,000, and January took $60,000

In the seniors' match for third, Australian Peter Thomson beat Billy Casper 1 up.

rest of the way Pistons 111, Bucks 100

Tripucka scored nine points to key a 17-4 spurt in the third quarter that increased a five-point Piston lead to 83-65.
