Car-train crash near Kingsmill fatal to Pampan

BY CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

A 27-year-old Pampa rural mail carrier was killed Thursday afternoon when the car she was driving was hit broadside by a 37-car freight train approximately one-half mile west of Kingsmill.

Karen Lea Henline of Rt. 1, Box 85-T was pronounced dead at the scene by Gray County Justice of the Peace Marge Prestidge.

According to Highway patrol troopers Luis Flores and Dan Pierce, Henline was hit by a westbound Santa Fe train at approximately 12:50 p.m. as she crossed the Santa Fe railroad tracks on a county road about one mile east of the Gray-Carson county line.

Flores said that she was traveling south on the county road within the 55-mph speed limit and apparently did not see the train in time. Flores said she apparently hit her brakes "at the last second," about 30 feet from the tracks.

The trooper added that Henline's vehicle, a 1983 Oldsmobile Delta 88, was hit broadside at the door on the driver's side of the vehicle. The westbound train apparently dragged the car about 225 feet before depositing it in a field north of the tracks, the trooper said. Henline, the only person in the vehicle, was pinned inside.

The train's engineer, V.H. Roberts of Amarillo, was not injured. According to Loren Simmons, staff assistant to the Santa Fe general manager, the train was moving about 68 miles per hour before the collision.

"The engineer always sounds a horn at every grade crossing," Simmons said, not indicating whether the engineer did Thursday. "They just do."

The train came to a stop several hundred yards from the point of impact.

"A train is not like an automobile, you can't stop it within a few feet," Simmons added. "You often cannot stop it within a mile."

Although train damage estimates were not available, it was agreed that damage was minor. Simmons said a grab rail at the right front of the engine was bent. Trooper Pierce said that a cattle guard on the front of the train was bent.

Henline, a carrier for about five years, was finishing up her daily route west of Pampa when she was hit, according to Pampa Postmaster Richard Wilson.

"She was pretty nearly at the end of her route, due in about 2 p.m.," he said, adding that the woman had been with the postal service about five years. "She's been on this route for 1 1/2 to two years."

Mail was scattered along the field between Henline's car and the tracks. Postal workers, assisted by railroad employees and sheriff's deputies, picked up as much mail as they could.

"I hope nothing is lost," Wilson said. "But I don't think anything would be. It was all tied up in bundles. So, I think we can deliver it all. It may not be in the best condition, but we'll pick everything up."

Services for Mrs. Henline will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and the Rev. George Warren, associate pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Memory Garden.

Born January 16, 1957 in Dallas, she moved to Pampa in 1974 from Guymon, Okla. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

A 1975 graduate of Pampa High School, she married Russell Henline in Pampa in 1975.

Survivors include her husband and two sons, Eric and Phillip, all of the home, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Earl, Jr. of Pampa; three brothers, Bobby Earl, Melvin Earl and Johnny Earl, all of Pampa and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Melville Earl of Waco.

Softer-talking Reagan says door open for Soviet summit meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, softening his tone toward the Kremlin, says he's opening the door to a possible summit with Soviet leader Konstantin Chernenko, while acknowledging he's not quite ready to extend an invitation.

"The door is open," the president declared at a nationally broadcast news conference dominated by U.S.-Soviet relations. "And every once in a while, we're standing in the doorway, seeing if anyone's coming up the steps."

But when asked if his remarks could be taken as an invitation to his Soviet counterpart, the president replied "We haven't reached that point yet."

Reagan also said he hasn't given "a flat no" to Chernenko's suggestion that the superpowers negotiate a ban on anti-satellite and other space weapons. "We're studying that whole situation," he said.

Several times, Reagan spoke positively about his willingness to talk with Chernenko. At one point, the president said, "If they're ready to talk, we are, too." At another, "I am willing to meet and talk any time."

And, at still another, "We're ready, willing and able."

At the 25th news conference of his presidency Thursday night, Reagan also said "I would look forward to a debate" with his Democratic opponent during the fall election campaign.

His campaign never received the briefing book prepared for President Jimmy Carter before their political debate during the 1980 election campaign. Although copies of a "Presidential Debate Briefing Book" were found in the files of at least two campaign aides, Reagan said "the so-called debate briefing book of the Carter team never has been in our possession" — all that was uncovered were some position papers. "He'll sign legislation raising taxes only if he has assurance that legislation cutting government spending was on its way."

"He supports a House-passed bill imposing fines on employers who hire illegal aliens because it will help America regain control of its borders. But he said care had to be taken to avoid discrimination by employers who don't want to bother to determine whether an individual is legal or not."

"If re-elected in November, he intends to serve all four years of a second term. What the devil would a young fellow like me do if I quit the job," asked Reagan, who is 73.

"He's not willing to say yet whether he'd support changing the federal civil rights laws to prohibit job discrimination against homosexuals."

"There's been no discrimination of any kind in this administration" and he's done more for minorities than any other White House occupant.

"The Republican Party platform should call for military parity with the Soviet Union, not superiority, which would be counterproductive."

Food prices plunge 1.2 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sharpest food price decline in almost two years held wholesale prices flat for the second straight month in May, the government said today.

The two-month showing was the best since last spring. May's food costs, paced by cheaper prices for meat, vegetables and eggs, dropped 1.2 percent, the most since a 1.4 percent decline in July 1982, said today's Labor Department report on the Producer Price Index. Food costs had declined 0.6 percent in April.

Balancing the falling food prices was a 1.5 percent spurt in energy costs, including increases of 5.2 percent for fuel oil and 2.0 percent for gasoline.

So far this year, wholesale prices are rising at an annual rate of 3.5 percent, a bit better than economists' predictions of an increase from 4.5 to 5 percent for all of 1984. Last year's increase, the best in 20 years, was only 0.6 percent.

In May, today's report said, food price declines included 14.7 percent for vegetables, 14.3 percent for eggs, 7.8 percent for beef and veal, 4.9 percent for poultry and 2.0 percent for pork.

Fruit prices rose 10.6 percent, dairy prices edged up 0.2 percent, and fish costs gained 0.3 percent. As for energy, the May increase followed a more moderate 0.7 percent rise in April and included a 0.7 percent rise in natural gas costs.

In other details, today's report said: —New car prices fell 0.7 percent after declining 0.3 percent in April. Light truck prices held steady. —Capital equipment costs rose 0.2 percent after gaining 0.3 percent in each of the previous two months. —Clothing prices rose 0.7 percent and non-prescription drugs were up 0.9 percent while household appliances prices moved ahead 0.1 percent.

The two months of steady overall prices provided the best wholesale inflation performance since prices declined 0.1 percent and then were flat in March and April 1983.

If May's rate were repeated for 12 straight months, it would result in a 0.4 percent decline for that year, a price decrease too small to be reflected in the rounded-off calculation for last month.

The actual increase for the last 12 months was 2.6 percent. In May, the department's index stood at 291.5, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $29.15 last month.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

In advance of today's report, private analysts commented that continuing food price declines would hold down prices overall in coming months.

Donald Ratajczak, director of Georgia State University's Economic Forecasting Project in Atlanta, said he expected lower prices for a wide range of foods, including vegetables, eggs, beef, fish and pork.

'Guest worker' plan approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has moved to grant legal status to the hundreds of thousands of aliens who now risk arrest every harvest season by crossing U.S. borders to work in farm fields.

The action Thursday, which some members of Congress said could jeopardize passage of the overall immigration reform bill now before the House, was praised by agriculture interests but condemned as a form of legalized slavery by opponents, including organized labor.

The bill also for the first time imposes federal penalties on employers who hire undocumented foreign workers, and provides amnesty and legal status for illegals who have been in the country since Jan. 1, 1982.

President Reagan, in his news conference Thursday night, said the bill was needed because "the simple truth is, we've lost control of our borders and no nation can do that and survive."

Reagan said he did not believe the Republicans would be politically damaged by the legislation. It is fiercely opposed by Hispanic voters who fear discrimination against Hispanics legally in the country because of the bill's penalties for hiring illegal aliens.

The president said his administration would "take every precaution" to counter such discrimination and that opponents of the bill should look to its "very generous" amnesty provisions.

House members voted 228-172, with Republicans leading the charge, to establish a new "guest worker" program offering visas to foreign workers if U.S. growers request them and say they are unable to recruit enough labor locally.

The proposal was sponsored by Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., a member of the Agriculture Committee whose state is the nation's largest user of hired farm labor. It was approved by 90 Democrats and 138 Republicans, while 157 Democrats and 15 Republicans opposed it.

"It's a tremendous victory for agriculture," said C.H. Fields, a spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm group. "It will make it possible to make the shift from employment of illegal aliens, which some of us have been uncomfortable with for some time, to legal workers."

But Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, said the importation of farm workers provided by the Panetta amendment "would even offend a slave driver. It's a rent-a-slave amendment."

The Farm Bureau estimates the 300,000 farm laborers, mostly from Mexico and the Caribbean, enter the country illegally each year.

'Viola' finally cleared

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Arthur H. Dauer says he has finally ended 46 years of guilt by apologizing in a newspaper ad for "the worst thing I've ever done" — falsely accusing a 6-year-old classmate of stealing a penny's worth of peanut butter and crackers in 1938.

"Viola, I am sorry," begins the $70 advertisement placed by Dauer, 51, who still remembers how his "very quiet, very meek" classmate didn't return to school for several days after he wrongly named her as the thief.

"I've carried a guilt feeling about this for many years," said Dauer, who left Trenton after graduating from high school in 1950 and now lives in Jupiter, Fla. "I've thought about it many times since then," the stockbroker said. "I just wanted to get something off my mind and my conscience."

Viola's vindication comes in an ad prepared for today's editions of The Trenton Times. It reads: "In the McClellan School in East Trenton in the school year 1937-38, we were in Miss Cunningham's first-grade class. I was forced to accuse you of stealing a 1-cent peanut butter and saltine sandwich. I did not think you were guilty — and I have always been sorry. Arthur H. Dauer."

Rare vote by VP

Bush tiebreaker averts MX ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The MX missile has survived another close call in Congress as Vice President George Bush cast a rare, tie-breaking vote to give the Reagan administration's prized nuclear weapon its narrowest victory yet.

Bush broke a 48-48 tie late Thursday in the Republican-controlled Senate, casting the ballot that provided a 49-48 defeat of an effort to ban 1985 production of 21 of the 10-warhead weapons.

His vote capped eight hours of MX debate, during which President Reagan lobbied by telephone for the weapon. Shortly before the vote, Reagan appealed in his nationally televised news conference for Congress to "support our strategic modernization program to keep America strong and convince the Soviets it is in their best interest to choose the course of negotiation, not confrontation."

Earlier in the day, the Senate had voted 55-41 to kill a proposal that would have eliminated all money for the MX. That measure was more sweeping than the amendment on which Bush voted. The votes came as the Senate worked into the early morning hours today on a bill authorizing the Pentagon to spend $291 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

In other votes, the Senate: —Voted down, 55-43, an attempt to limit the Pentagon increase next year to 5 percent, rather than the 7 percent hike now in the measure. —Killed on a 49-45 vote an amendment aimed at providing a 5.5 percent pay hike for the 2.1 million men in uniform. Reagan proposed a 5 percent hike, but the Armed Services Committee trimmed it to 4 percent.

Bush, who only votes in case of a tie entered the chamber as the MX debate wound down and it became clear the effort by Sens. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., and Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, might pass.

"The Senate being equally divided, the vice president casts his vote in a affirmative and the amendment fails," Bush said to the hushed chamber.

Utah woman convicted of smuggling Mexican babies

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge says a Utah woman convicted of smuggling infants into the United States broke the law out of a desire to help impoverished Mexican children and not for personal gain.

U.S. District Judge George Kazen on Thursday found Nelda Karen Colwell, 39, of Layton, Utah, guilty on three counts of conspiracy and aiding and abetting in the falsifying of records.

Kazen deliberated for about an hour and explained his decision for 30 minutes before pronouncing the verdict.

"Our laws of immigration sometimes interfere with our sense of what's human and what's right," Kazen told Mrs. Colwell, who trembled and wept.

"It's a tough responsibility and a very sad case because I don't view you as a baby peddler. I think you are a sensitive person... and this became a situation where your heart overruled your head," he said.

The judge said he would set a date for sentencing later.

Mrs. Colwell faces up to 15 years in prison and a $14,000 fine, but Assistant U.S. Attorney David Almaraz said he "really couldn't see her spending a day in jail."

"She probably didn't mean to get into this situation," he said.

Mrs. Colwell was indicted April 10 with three Laredo women who pleaded guilty to lesser charges in a plea bargain with the government. The indictment charged that the women offered to find homes for newborn infants of poor, expectant women in exchange for medical care, food and clothing.

Prospective parents from Utah would fly to the border to pick up their babies who were smuggled across, authorities said.

In most cases, the children ultimately were adopted legally in both Mexico and the U.S. But because the Mexican adoption process and applications for American visas took so long, parents said they smuggled their children rather than wait months in Mexico.

Defense attorneys called five adoptive parents who testified they smuggled their children without Mrs. Colwell's knowledge because they feared the children would suffer in Mexico while awaiting legal documents.

Almaraz accused Mrs. Colwell of playing on the emotions of adoptive parents and of encouraging parents to violate immigration law.

"When you want a baby that bad, sometimes you let your heart rule your head," he said.

Bite victim to save pet bear

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An Arlington woman has agreed to undergo rabies treatments in order to spare the life of a Himalayan sun bear that bit her.

Charles Airehart, the husband of bite victim Dorothy Sue Airehart, said Thursday that his wife "has decided to spare the (bear's) life. My wife has agreed to undergo (rabies shots) and will start treatment immediately."

The procedure is required by state law when a wild animal bites a person, said Public Health Director Brooks Taylor.

he said.

Mrs. Colwell did not take the stand during the four-day trial. But her self-proclaimed partner, Sandra Green, 35, of Hooper, Utah, told the judge about how the women got into the business of finding adoptable babies for Mormon families wanting children.

Both women learned how to find and adopt foreign-born infants in the process of adopting children themselves. Mrs. Green has seven adopted children, including one handicapped Mexican boy, and Mrs. Colwell has seven adopted children.

Both have brought in some of their own children illegally, but consistently advised couples they were helping to obey the law, Mrs. Green said.

Mrs. Green said 15 of the approximately 70 "brown babies" they helped parents adopt may have entered the country illegally.

Defense attorney George Handy said the adoptive parents violated Mrs. Colwell's warnings because "these people get so baby-hungry that they would do almost anything."

Handy said no decision had been reached on whether to appeal the verdict.

San Juana "Cuca" Martinez Lope, the government's chief witness and one of the women indicted with Mrs. Colwell, testified that she hired another woman to smuggle the babies across the border and then hired a Laredo midwife to falsify American birth certificates.

Almaraz said a decision would be made within the next few weeks on whether to indict the parents.

House panel votes down appointed board

AUSTIN (AP) — Calling it a "sacred matter" to Texans, a Farmers Branch lawmaker persuaded a House committee to retain the elected State Board of Education blamed for many of the state's school woes.

Republican Bill Blanton also won House Public Education Committee approval Thursday for competency testing for teachers.

The appointed board measure, pushed by education reformer H. Ross Perot as vital to improving schools, won a 4-3 Senate subcommittee vote Thursday that moves it to a committee made up of the entire Senate.

Blanton told the House committee that all his mail has been in favor of retaining the 27-member, elected State Board of Education.

"We would be remiss if we try to force something on the people of this state that they don't want," he said. "There are times the state board has not performed as it should. But there are times the Legislature has not performed as it should."

Perot, chairman of the Select Committee on Public

Education, has griped about the elected board for months. He has said he would lobby against an education reform package that does not scrap the elected board.

Blanton's amendment, approved 5-3, was to a compromise bill endorsed by Speaker Gib Lewis and Gov. Mark White. The bill would set up a 12-member board picked by the governor. The board would revert to an elected panel in 1989.

Committee member Milton Fox, R-Houston, voted for the elected board Thursday and said he does not fear a battle with Perot.

"That suits the hell out of me," said Fox. "If Ross Perot wants to kill it, let him kill it and explain why he did."

Rusty Kelly, a Perot lobbyist, and Lewis, who sat through the five-hour meeting, called the House vote "just the first step."

Blanton said the elected board is a "sacred matter to the people of Texas."

"I know there is a lot of support in places for an appointed board. But I don't think the whole thing is going to sink if we maintain the right of the people to elect their board," he said.

But Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi and sponsor of an appointed board bill, said the vote could be an indication that the special session called by White will fail to approve education reform.

"I think the whole package is in trouble on the (House) floor," he said. "I don't think I can support an education package or a tax bill without some restructuring" of the State Board of Education.

The committee vote is not the House's final action on the board question. Assuming the committee sends some education bill to the House, a floor amendment could revive the appointed board.

Any differences between House and Senate bills would be worked out in conference committee.

The amendment approved Thursday actually leaves the bill with no mention of the board. The committee continues its work Sunday. Lewis wants the bill on the House floor by Tuesday.

The 30-day special session ends July 3.

In pushing the competency test amendment, Blanton said the "purpose is not to try to drive people out of the profession."

"Almost everybody is in favor of a teacher pay raise, but my correspondence said that accompanying any teacher pay raise we need to look at accountability," he said.

Doggett certified as nominee

HOUSTON (AP) — State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, formally certified as the Democratic U.S. Senate nominee, has received a pledge of support from the man he defeated, U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

"I congratulate Lloyd on his victory and I will support Lloyd on the entire Democratic ticket in November," Hance said Thursday, shortly after the State Democratic Executive Committee certified results of the June 2 runoff election.

The committee declared Doggett the winner by 1,345 votes in a final tally that gave him a total of 491,251 votes to Hance's 489,906.

Hance had topped Doggett by 237 votes in the six-man May 5 primary.

In Washington, Hance said he had no regrets about the recount and said he plans to be a candidate for statewide office again.

"Although the results are not what I would have liked, I have no regrets about recounting the votes. My supporters gave too much of their time and money for me not to recount the votes," he said.

"They say it's not over until it's over — and its over," Hance added.

Hance aides and party officials have estimated that final costs for the recount in all 254 counties will total between $50,000 and $70,000. Since he asked for it, Hance must pay.

In an interview, Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle said the closeness of the race between Doggett, an Austin liberal, and Hance, a conservative congressman from Lubbock, had not irreparably divided the party.

Slagle said Hance likely would address the state Democratic convention on Saturday and predicted the party would quickly unify to defeat the Republican nominee, U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm.

The first show of unity is expected Saturday when Hance is scheduled to introduce Doggett to the convention.

"Kent Hance is a good Democrat. He's always supported the Democratic nominee," Slagle said.

GOP launches voter drive

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Republicans have launched a voter registration drive designed to produce up to 200,000 new GOP voters in the November presidential election, party officials say.

The party also hopes to raise $2 million on behalf of Republican candidates for positions ranging from U.S. senator to county commissioner, GOP officials said.

Houston oilman Rob Mosbacher will play a key role in both efforts, officials said.

State Republican Chairman George Strake, presiding over the GOP state convention in Fort Worth which officially opened today, announced Thursday that Mosbacher will be the party's new finance chairman.

Mosbacher also will play a major role in the Republican voter registration drive, said Linden Kettlewell, executive director for the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas.

State Republican gathering opens

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Texas Republican Party convention opened today with top Reagan-Bush campaign spokesmen fanning the flames of enthusiasm that the state's faithful already have for President Ronald Reagan. U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, both the national party leader and the national Reagan-Bush director, was scheduled to keynote the convention at 3 p.m.

Vice President George Bush, who calls himself an adopted Texan, has a speech set for Saturday to the 6,000 delegates and visitors. Some party officials admit the 1984 convention will be more of a big pep rally for Reagan than a business session. However, a number of non-party issues will attract attention, including a $30 per person country-western party tonight to help pay for the convention.

One sure subject is the special session of the Texas Legislature, now meeting in Austin at the call of Democratic Gov. Mark White to provide public school and highway improvements, with necessary new taxes to pay for them. The state GOP last week paid $250 each for seven billboards in the Capitol area to remind voters that in White's 1982 campaign he promised to hold the line on taxes.

When the convention gets around to resolutions Saturday there are sure to be intra-party squabbles over abortion, equal rights for women, and possibly the illegal aliens bill in Congress. Pre-convention activities began Wednesday with committee meetings and workshops for party workers. The party's executive committee on Thursday certified election results for the party's nomination in the Sixth Congressional District, where Joe Barton defeated Max Hoyt by 10 votes, 4,632 to 4,622.

Other convention speakers include U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, the party's nominee to succeed U.S. John Tower, who did not seek re-election.

Tower and Ron Walker, director of the Aug. 20-23 national GOP convention in Dallas, also will speak.

Although one of the main tasks of the convention is to rubberstamp the 109-member Texas delegation to the national convention, that job has already been done by the Reagan-Bush campaign. Only the president can make any changes in the delegation to Dallas. On May 27, local Reagan-Bush selection committees picked 81 district delegates — three from each of the 27 congressional districts. Last Sunday, a statewide Reagan-Bush screening panel, headed by Tower, named Texas's 28 at-large delegates to Dallas. There also are 81 district and 28 at-large alternates. The 109 delegates to the national convention include 55 women and 54 men. One GOP delegate is black and 10 are Hispanic. There are three black and 10 Hispanic alternates.

Most of the district delegate slots went to longtime party volunteers and supporters of Reagan.

Most of the at-large delegates are state party leaders and elected officials. Heading the list of at-large delegates are Tower and Martha Weisend of Dallas, who serve as co-chairmen of the Reagan-Bush campaign in Texas.

The other at-large delegates include Gramm, state party Chairman George Strake; GOP national committee members Ernest Angelo of Midland and Fran Chiles of Fort Worth; state vice chairman Diana Denman of San Antonio, former Gov. Bill Clements, Dallas County chairman Fred Meyer; Travis County chairman Richard Box; Lou Brown of Midland; James E. Lyon of Houston; Adolph Canales of Dallas; U.S. Rep. Steve Barrett of Dallas; U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt; former ambassador to Britain Anne Armstrong; and Allen Clark of Austin.

Town seeks calm after police chief fired, mayor resigns

LEONARD, Texas (AP) — Things haven't been the same in this small North Texas community since the election two months ago of women to all three vacancies on the town's City Council.

These three women got elected, incumbents lost out, and they just decided that the people mandated them to come in and change everything," said Mayor B.C. Dunmon, who quit in protest on Wednesday, along with O.H. Nolen, one of two holdover councilmen.

In the regular monthly council meeting Tuesday night, one of the women made a motion that police chief Bob Morning and the only other paid officer, Doyle White, be relieved of their duties. One of the other women seconded the motion, which carried 3-2, with the women — Modine Dockery, Billye Piper and Susan Caldwell — in favor and the two holdover councilmen, Nolen and Mike Eubank opposing. By city charter, Dunmon could not vote.

By the same vote, the council abolished the job of city administrator — a post that Morning also filled — and replaced it with a new position of city secretary.

Leonard is in the southwest corner of Fannin County, 16 miles south of Bonham. "They were out to get our police force and did it. I just felt helpless. We've got a lot of problems in Leonard — our sewer system and our dump ground — without getting involved in petty, get-even things," said Dunmon, a 45-year-old home builder who was elected in April to his third two-year term as mayor.

These three ladies had 60 days on the job and they thought they could handle everything, so I thought I'd let 'em do it. Another thing that concerned me and a lot of other people is that they make a lot of these decisions before council meeting, which isn't right."

He added, "Everyone on the street knew about the firings before the meeting." Ms. Piper denies Dunmon's charge that Morning was fired because he had arrested Mrs. Dockery's husband twice, including once on a charge of public intoxication. "That may be a personal thing that I really cannot comment on," said Ms. Piper, a real estate broker. "It is a true fact that he was arrested, but I cannot speak for her. I can say it had absolutely nothing to do with my vote."

The police chief and the other officer were fired Tuesday night, she said, "after much heated discussion during which many reasons were given for this action."

Among the major reasons, she said, were "inadequacy (Morning's being) really not qualified for city administrator, harassment, and abusive language." Many citizens of Leonard complained that the officers gave out too many traffic tickets, she said. But that wasn't a prominent part of the council discussion before the firings, she said. "They were qualified as police officers, but it was their manner of conduct that we were concerned about," Ms. Piper said.

Dunmon said most of the complaints "were several months old and most of it second hand I was personally involved in some of the things, and their information was totally false."

Until a new police chief and officer can be hired, the town will have protection from the Fannin County Sheriff's Department and from a county constable, Ms. Piper said.

The resignations of Dunmon and Nolen has left the council in a bind "to a degree," Ms. Piper said. But the remaining members of the council will appoint a new mayor and another council member until an election can be held, she said.

Dunmon said most of the people he has talked with since he quit on Wednesday "said they didn't blame me. I've had a lot of phone calls, some of them from people who voted for these women and they're having second thoughts."

Ms. Piper said she got a different reaction.

"It's very mixed, according to the people who have come to me today, but the general opinion is they're agreeable to the dismissal. Some of them just wish we already had them replaced," she said.

Man admits slayings

WACO, Texas (AP) — A 24-year-old man was sentenced to life imprisonment after he pleaded guilty to murder charges in the deaths of three teen-agers found bound, gagged and stabbed to death in a park near Lake Waco.

Anthony Melendez, one of four defendants in the case, was sentenced Thursday to two concurrent life terms by State District Judge George Allen. Testimony in the trial of another defendant, David Wayne Spence, 25, is scheduled to begin Monday. A jury composed of eight women and four men was picked for Spence's trial Thursday afternoon.

Melendez pleaded guilty to the death of Jill Montgomery, 17, of Waxahachie, and Kenneth Franks, 18.

Court officials said Melendez still faces a capital murder charge in the death of Raylene Rice, 17, of Waxahachie. McLennan County Justice of the Peace Joe Johnson said the girls' throats had been slashed. Franks had a slash wound to his chest and all three bodies had numerous stab wounds, Johnson said.

The trio disappeared during an outing to the lake and the bodies were discovered by a fisherman.

Economy may be cooling off, but should continue growing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Assertions that the economy is cooling must be considered in a larger perspective that includes three important things:

1. The economy may be cooling, but it isn't going into a deep freeze.
2. A cool-down isn't necessarily a bad thing.
3. Any time an economy is hot you'll find dozens of economists talking about the inevitable cooling off. Some of them have been talking that way for a year.

The fact is that by most measures the economy is still growing, and by most estimates it will grow for several more months at least.

Estimates of the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic activity, range from mere fractions to 5 percent for the April-May-June quarter. A cooling to be sure, since first-quarter growth was 8.8 percent.

extra expense involved. A boom overloads the economy. It puts demands on the economic machinery that simply cannot be met. It burns out the bearings, and the proof of that is smoke, or as some call it, inflation.

To retreat from that condition isn't always bad. A slower rate of growth gives the economy time to build the capacity to service the demand — and do so without straining and creating inflation.

Some might even contend that at this period in the current economy a cooling off is as welcome as a cold front intruding into a week-long seige of hot, sultry, debilitating weather.

You may be sure that when the economy is moving along at a hefty pace there will be those who feel it is their duty to remind you that it cannot last. Ronald Reagan, for one, has heard his fill of it.

There is a certain inevitability to such warnings, and it arises from the nature of the economic forecasting business.

There is, that is to say, no great merit in merely telling customers that conditions will stay the same. Calling the turn wins the gold stars, and every economic forecaster tries to get them.

In truth, not many do succeed in getting those stars, although some claim to have as many on their foreheads as football players have on their helmets. Often, though, the documentation is not nearly as clear as the claim itself.

Immigration authorities arrest 92 undocumented aliens

HOUSTON (AP) — In the latest of a series of raids on Houston area employers, Immigration and Naturalization Service officers arrested 92 illegal aliens at three locations in Fort Bend County.

The arrests came as legislators in Washington continue to work on an immigration bill that would make it a crime to hire undocumented workers.

Employers raided by the INS on Wednesday included one who was raided last month. INS district director Paul O'Neill said a dozen INS officers made the surprise raids early Wednesday morning, just as the work day was beginning for many of those arrested.

Forty-seven aliens were arrested at Trees Inc., a Fort Bend County business that was raided last month also.

Other undocumented workers were picked up at a construction site and at day-labor rendezvous site.

Among those taken into custody were 10 aliens from El Salvador. Each one asked for hearings and some are expected to seek political asylum, said O'Neill.

Eighty-two of the aliens agreed to voluntary deportation. They were to be taken by bus to the Mexican border at Brownsville.

During the last six months, INS officers have arrested about 1,000 illegal aliens at Houston-area businesses.

O'Neill said it has become routine for El Salvadorans to request political asylum. During the fiscal year that started last Oct. 1, there have been 4,480 applications for asylum in the Houston district and only 10 have been approved.

The Salvadorans arrested Wednesday were held at an INS processing site awaiting hearings.

The aliens arrested Wednesday held jobs that paid from $5.50 to $8 an hour, O'Neill said.

As the INS made raids here, Congress was considering bills that would affect the illegal alien situation.

The House has approved an amendment to an immigration bill that would penalize employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. Under terms of the legislation, an employer could be fined up to $2,000 per illegal alien hired.

The House also voted a budget boost for the enforcement activities of the INS.

Art is high calling for painter of aircraft

By JEFF BIRD
Associated Press Writer
ASHLAND, Ore. (AP) — For Bill Phillips, there's nothing like a sweaty-palmed light in an F-15 jet fighter to help him capture on canvas the feeling of a dogfight.
"Some people tell me they feel they can walk into one of my pictures and fall 35,000 feet," said Phillips.
Phillips, 38, is one of a small group of painters who specialize in aircraft.
"There's probably only 10 aviation artists in the country," Phillips said in the mall studio in the back of his home on a quiet residential street.

One closet is filled with aviation magazines and books used as references for his paintings. A shelf is covered with plastic models of military aircraft.

A British flight suit, a U.S. Navy flight jacket and a U.S. Army Air Corps silk scarf hang on one wall. Plaques from fighter groups with whom he has flown dot other walls.

On one easel is a painting depicting a British Spitfire Mk-1 and a German Messerschmitt Bf-109 in a head-on pass over the white cliffs of Dover, England.

On another easel is another view of the same dogfight. In his one, two Spitfires are on the tail of a wounded Heinkel II and the Messerschmitt is losing in from the background.

The Messerschmitt is sketched on paper so Phillips can move it around, experimenting with angles, sizes and positions before painting it in.

"I like to be able to tell a story and let the guy looking at it finish it," said Phillips. If you set up a perfect angle, somebody is flaming out, the story is over. I like it when a group of fighter pilots fighting around having a few eers can look at the angles in his and say who screwed up and how it's going to turn out.

One of the paintings will be chosen as the basis of a limited run of prints that will be signed by British and German aces of World War

His original paintings sell for between $1,500 and $20,000, with those signed by pilots fetching the higher figure.

Right now, paintings of World War II aircraft are the big sellers.

"People in the top executive positions now are people who flew missions in World War II," said Phillips. The trauma of death is added into the past. What these people are doing when they buy these things is reliving some of the most exciting moments of their lives.

"As the Vietnam-era fighter pilot gets older, there will be a market for that," he added.

Although his painting of Col. Jimmy Doolittle's bombing raid on Tokyo during World War II — signed by surviving members of the squadron — was displayed in the Smithsonian Institution, Phillips considers himself an illustrator rather than an artist.

"An illustrator makes money and an artist makes philosophy," said Phillips, who is largely self-taught in the techniques he uses to produce a photographic realism with oil paints.

His father was the late character actor William "Bill" Phillips, who, incidentally, appeared as a pilot in the film "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo."

Mindful of the difficulties of making a living from art, his parents wanted him to be a lawyer.

Instead, while working as an Ashland firefighter, Phillips sold four paintings of World War I fighter planes and saw the direction his life would take.

What keeps him going is the love of flight.

Though not a licensed pilot himself, Phillips has had about 30 chances to fly in jet fighters, sometimes taking the controls himself.

"If you can feel the sensation of flight, feel the G-forces, you're getting all the sensations, not just the two-dimensional visual sensations you get from a photograph," Phillips said.

His most exciting flight came in 1978, when he rode in the back seat of an F-15 trainer at the Red Flag operation at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

"It's very intense," said Phillips. "There's a lot of sweaty palms."

"You are maneuvering at very high speeds from 45,000 to 100 feet. You are enclosed in a cockpit. You are strapped to an airplane. You can see outside this bubble canopy and feel the sensation of going inverted at 45,000 feet. You can see the other airplane. From photographs, books, or magazines, you are seeing somebody else's impression."

Reagan turns down LULAC

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — President Reagan has turned down an invitation to deliver a keynote address to the national meeting of the League of United Latin American Citizens, The El Paso Times reported today.

Convention chairman Joe Loya of El Paso said Reagan "doesn't think Hispanics are important enough."

But a White House

spokeswoman blamed "a foul-up from LULAC" for Reagan's decision not to attend the convention, which opens next week in El Paso, The Times reported.

The woman, an assistant press secretary who asked not to be identified, said the White House could find no record of an invitation being issued before Reagan received an official invitation

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer
DUNBAR, Pa. (AP) — Pechin's Shopping Village has a bad location, a slipshod look, a pockmarked parking lot, no piped-in music — and a $30 million yearly business.
Its rock-bottom prices, like coffee for a nickel and free meals for senior citizens, keep a loyal core of mostly blue-collar patrons coming back from as far away as Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland.
"When people go shopping, they want the best prices and best quality, not necessarily a lot of frilly things," says Donald D'Amico, manager of the earthy emporium in rural Fayette County south of Pittsburgh.
"As for music and soft lights, it's not something our customers expect. We're always working to improve, making it easier to shop. But I don't think we'll ever have marble walls."
Pechin's (pronounced Peech-uns) offers meats, groceries, shoes, jeans, fertilizer, pet food, linoleum, plumbing, pool chemicals, motor oil, lottery tickets, trout lures and rifles in a complex that expanded from one store. If you drive another mile, you can also buy from the family lumber mill.
In the food market, unmarked aisles that have no understandable pattern separate stacks of groceries, some still in crates.
Covered by a sagging, leaky roof is a floor of concrete, tile and patched planks — a sign of hasty expansion for a store that has 250 non-union workers and is closed on Sunday.
Pechin's sits near a fork in a road several miles off U.S. Route 119 past a junkyard at the foot of Dunbar Mountain in this hamlet of 1,400 residents. Gist Run Creek runs along and under part of the store, which makes winter shopping cold and slippery.

"I call it the second worst location in the world. I'm sure there's one somewhere that's worse than this, but I don't know where it is," says Sullivan D'Amico, 60, who opened the store in 1947.
"But we must be satisfying somebody or we wouldn't do business," he adds. "As long as I'm successful, I'm not changing anything. We try to get the best possible prices for our customers. If they aren't saving money, why would they come here?"
The store started in a basement of 500 square feet and grew to over 50,000 square feet of space, although D'Amico never made an exact count. He buys directly from name-brand manufacturers and only when products are on special to keep the markup as low as possible.
The meat department, which offers the store's most prized bargains, butchered 17 cattle carcasses and 3,125 chickens on a recent Friday. D'Amico resorted to a rationing system after brawls broke out among people waiting for choice cuts.
On this day, porterhouse and T-bone steaks sold for $2.59 a pound, $2 less than the price at a Pittsburgh area bargain store.
"It's not a fancy place, but it serves a purpose. If I bought $50 worth of groceries here, it would cost me $75 just up the road," says John Dvorcak, 75. "What do I care about fancy if prices are out of this world?"

Expert on earthquakes tracks Pennsylvania's seismic past

By MARK ABRAMS
Reading Eagle
READING, Pa. (AP) — Berks County leads the 67 counties of Pennsylvania in the number of earthquakes and seismic activity recorded during a period of 245 years extending from 1737 to 1982. That revelation was among the recent major findings of Dr. Madan M. Varma, an associate professor of geology and physics at Kutztown University. Varma has spent hours researching seismic activity in Pennsylvania for an article to be published soon by the Pennsylvania Academy of Science.

He found documentation describing 86 earthquakes in the commonwealth during the period. Of that total, 28 of the disturbances occurred in Berks County.
Most of them, Varma said, have been minor.
And while the April 22 earthquake south of Lancaster heightened public concern about earthquakes, he said, the Lancaster area is only 25 percent as seismically active as Berks.
"We can expect earthquakes of a minor nature in this region," explained Varma, a native of India. "We're always going to have minor earthquakes due to adjustments going on below the earth's surface."
Varma, who lives in Wyomissing, said there was an increased awareness of earthquakes because of elaborate data recording systems that detect the slightest movement or release of energy from below the earth's surface.

Dear Abby Like father, like son, and maybe like daughter, too

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to be married soon. My girlfriend is dumb, but that's OK with me because she knows she's dumb, so she keeps her mouth shut.

I have heard that girls usually take after their mothers, and boys take after their fathers, so if we have children, the girls will take after her (dumb), and the boys will take after me (smart).

What if something goes wrong and I end up with smart daughters and dumb sons?

Please answer soon, as the wedding is in August and I don't want to spend any more money on the plans if I'm going to break the engagement.

PITTSBURGH PETE

DEAR PETE: It's not true that girls "take after" their mothers and boys "take after" their fathers. But if it were, take comfort in this oft-quoted ditty: "A son is a son 'til he takes a wife."

But a daughter is yours for the rest of her life.

So stop worrying. If "something goes wrong," you'll end up with smart daughters looking after you in your old age.

DEAR ABBY: For many years, you have been one of the strong advocates of the Living Will. My wife and I agree with you—should we ever become terminally ill, we do not want our lives prolonged by artificial means.

I've heard that life insurance companies are refusing payment of death benefits when artificial means of prolonging life are available, but not used by the insured.

Last week at a senior citizens' group meeting, someone said that refusing to prolong life by artificial means constitutes suicide, and most life insurance companies refuse to pay if the insured commits suicide.

Please check into this, Abby, and let the millions of us who have signed the Living Will know where we stand.

R.W.B., COCOA, FLA.

DEAR R.W.B.: The Society for the Right to Die, which dispenses the Living Will, has assured me that life insurance companies do pay death benefits irrespective of the use of Living Wills.

Please set your senior citizens' group straight. And thank you for inquiring.

DEAR ABBY: We recently had some cousins visit us from Italy. They were two sisters, and the gentleman friend of one of the sisters. The sisters were school teachers and the gentleman was a psychiatrist. He spoke some English, but the sisters spoke none.

They said they wanted to see Chicago, so we offered to show them around. They declined, saying they preferred to see it by themselves. Then they asked if they could use our car. We said no, but we offered to help them rent one. They declined.

Two days later they packed up and went back to Italy. Before they left they said we didn't treat them very well!

Abby, were we wrong to refuse them the use of our car?

CAR TROUBLE

DEAR CAR TROUBLE: No. There was more than "car trouble." There was a four-door, seven-cylinder communication gap. Capisce?

DEAR ABBY: I heard that you don't write your column all yourself—that you have ghostwriters. Is that true?

CURIOUS IN BOISE, IDAHO

DEAR CURIOUS: It's not true. I have no ghostwriters and never have had, but sometimes I wish I had a few, so I could blame somebody else when I goof.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

White Deer filled with former students

White Deer High School gymnasium was filled to bursting point when 711 graduates and guests attended the 14th White Deer High School Alumni banquet June 2.

Former students gathered earlier in the afternoon at the school to visit with former classmates, teachers and administrators.

Greg Rapstine, 1984 Alumni Association president and a 1956 graduate, welcomed the group. 1983-84 WDHS cheerleaders Philippa Arellano, Lisa Hunter, Tammy Clay, Kim Bowers and Jo Lynne Russell along with former cheerleaders Laverne (McAdams) Travis - 1953; Peggy (O'Neal) Dennis - 1957; Paulette (Burnes) Craig - 1962; Terri (Miller) Stewart - 1973; Tina (Simpson) Burrell (1976) led the alumni in singing the school song.

The Rev. Ken Carter, a 1967 WDHS graduate, conducted a moment of silence for fellow graduates who had died in the service of the country, followed by the invocation.

Donald Nicholson, a 1941 graduate, presented a baton to M. A. Armstrong, Most Distinguished Teacher. The baton was to replace the one Nicholson broke while a band student of Armstrong's. Armstrong was band director from 1932-1936.

Lavelle (Thoades) Becks, a 1952 graduate, was presented a world atlas by Bobby (Powers) Thomas, a 1967 graduate. Becks, of Selatan, Indonesia, was recognized for having traveled the furthest distance.

Viola (Dauer) Coffee, a 1925 graduate, received a corsage from her nephew Jerry O'Neal, 1952, for being named Most Distinguished Alumni.

Burtie Gallegly, secretary to the high school principal for the past 24 years, was honored with the Distinguished Service award, presented by Debbie (Simmons) Phillips, vice president of the Alumni Association and a 1976 graduate.

Following a story about a live mouse being hidden in the journalism teacher's desk drawer by the class of 1958, Greg Rapstine presented Claudia Everly a gold mouse accent pin and a corsage. He told the former WDHS teacher of 33 years, "You get the mouse, but you deserve flowers."

Gallegly and Everly were honored with standing ovations following their respective awards.

Aileen (Shieldknight) Wheately, a 1936 football queen and 1937 graduate, was introduced as the Coming Home Queen. Yvonne (Henry) Shuman, 1953 graduate and 1952 football queen, introduced the award. Chris Urbanczyk, 1983 Homecoming Queen and 1984 graduate, placed a tiara on Mrs. Wheately and presented her with a corsage.

Photographs, oil painting and other gifts by graduates Lee Cornelison - 1966, Brenta (Townsend) Cornelison - 1966, Viola Coffee - 1925, Mabel (Mackey) Rapstine - 1933, LaDonna (Russell) Ramming - 1969, and Kandy (Mynear) Bolding - 1980 were presented as door prizes.

The dinner of steak, baked potatoes, green beans, toast and iced tea was catered by 1958 graduate Willie Rapstine.

Coffee was served after dinner, followed by dancing at the Community Center and Parish Hall.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Sunday will be a good day to remember Father and you might want to acknowledge other men that are special in some way. Take a SMILE and a kind word to the elderly neighbor. Often, the best gift can be your time. A little time to listen and "remember the good ole days" will last much longer than cake or cookies. The man that lives alone and doesn't have company might enjoy a visit with you and your children. The rapport between the elderly and children is one of our best assets and a beautiful experience for both generations. Everyone likes to feel needed sometime.

Mark Twain wrote on the subject of fathers: "When I was a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

Genealogy is not concerned only with ancestors, but also with families. Remember the living and show that you care. Build a bridge for your descendants to cross with pride. If you have planned a big family dinner for Father's day, jot down a few questions that might refresh someone's memory and help fill in some of the blank spaces in your family record book. Write it down and listen with an open mind because usually there is some truth in the family traditional stories. How did they originate? The door might be opened that will lead to a new approach to your research.

Are you planning a family reunion for the summer? Send me the details. I will print the information in the column and a follow-up when possible. The newspaper article makes an excellent visual aid for your book. Send the information to Gena Walls, Rt. 2, Box 505, Lot 26, Gonzales, La., 70737.

Sorority donates dishwasher

Alpha Theta Omega chapter of Beta Sigma Phi in White Deer recently presented the Pampa Satellite Center with a check to purchase a dishwasher for the Center's new building.

Funds for the donation were raised through a drawing for a painting donated by Viola Coffee of White Deer during Alpha Theta Omega's fourth annual arts and crafts show. Coffee has donated a painting to the organization each year for use in a service project.

Cairo plan aims to improve housing

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — After 30 years of state-run housing programs, Egyptian authorities are using private initiative and self-help in a pilot project to improve living standards for thousands of Cairo's poor.

The project, launched two years ago in coordination with the U.S. Agency for International Development, provides low-interest loans and other assistance to enable residents of six squatter districts south of the city to build or improve their own homes and small businesses.

So far, officials say there has not been a single default on the 1,313 loans — all but 50 of them granted for home improvements. The rest were to build or improve shops.

Here comes the brides

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's brides (or their parents) will spend an estimated $17.5 billion this year on formal weddings, for everything from flowers to furniture to photography, according to a recent study of consumer attitudes.

The figure is nearly 15 percent more than was spent in 1980, according to the survey conducted by Whirlpool Corp.

And next to friends and relatives, the study concluded, most Americans think of the Yellow Pages as their single most important source of where to find information, with their thousand-plus listings of goods and services related to weddings.

Pies, lies, buys slated for celebration

Only one day left until the Pioneer Day Celebration, the first of what the Pampa chapter of Mother's Against Drunk Drivers hopes is many such annual fund-raising events.

If you have not bought tickets for the barbecue in advance, they will be available at the door beginning at 11 a.m., Saturday, June 16, in the National Guard Armory. Members of the Pampa MADD organization are right now roasting the beef and preparing the rest of the old-fashioned barbecue to be served from 11 a.m. and throughout the afternoon and early evening. Tickets for the barbecue also entitle you to attend the many other activities planned for the celebration.

Ladies, you can still enter your pies in the Pioneer Pie Contest. Entries will be accepted until 12:45 p.m. The judging begins at 1 p.m. Following the judging, the pies will be sold by the piece with proceeds going to MADD.

All you Pampans with the gift of gab are encouraged by MADD members to enter the Liars Contest scheduled for 3 p.m., Saturday. Entries will be accepted until the 2:45 p.m. deadline. Trophies will be awarded to the winners in both the Liars Contest and the Pie Contest.

Sharon Potter, president of Pampa's MADD organization, said many exhibits are scheduled including paintings by Justin Wells and water colors by former Pampans Lloyd Waters. Many other types of Western art are also to be shown at the celebration, she said, as well as many local arts and crafts exhibits, including soft sculptured dolls.

A variety of live entertainment is also planned throughout the day such as Ballan Grant and the Lightning R Wranglers.

Grant is known as "Cowboy's Sweetheart," which is also the title of her current single record. She is a regular featured performer at the Orange County Fair in southern California and at many rodeos, fairs and celebrations throughout the country. She has toured Japan as a solo performer.

The Lightning R Wranglers specialize in traditional country - western music much like that sung by the Sons of the Pioneers. Roger Heinen, the bass fiddle player, is a rancher from Bandera who has played with many top country bands and entertainers. He usually provides a bit of comedy relief, even when he doesn't mean to.

Rudy Robbins, leader and organizer of The Lightning R Wranglers, was a professional stuntman for motion pictures and television. He was stunt double for James Arness (Matt Dillon) on the "Gunsmoke" television series, played in many John

Sweet smell of success

GRASSE, France (AP) — The sweet smell of success comes from this little town in the south of France by the dawn's early light.

Its most famous product is jasmine, which is used for making expensive perfumes. One kilo of jasmine equals 5 million flowers, which must be cut by hand at sunrise only, at the moment when the flowers are just beginning to open, according to Guy de Mouy, chairman for Jean Patou Inc., a perfume producer.

Other ingredients used for perfume making include rose oil. One drop of this essence is extracted from the petals of 70 roses, he added.

Villagers seek clues to founder in restored Mexican mission site

By JIM LACEY
Laredo Times
LAMPAZOS, Mexico (AP) — Any hope of finding the remains of Friar Diego de Salazar, founder of this quaint, remote, Mexican village of 6,000, remained scattered among the nearly 300-year-old bones unearthed here this spring.

The skeletons were discovered beneath the flooring of a church located within the walls of this city's oldest structure, Mision de Santa Maria de los Dolores, established in 1698 by Friar Salazar.

When the discovery was made, excited workers ran through the village to a site where architects busied themselves over the restoration plans of three other structures in the city.

Work was immediately halted and a team of archeologists was called in from Mexico City.

Meanwhile, speculation ran high among villagers that the bones might be those of the much revered Salazar, whose burial place has been the object of decades of search by villagers who still venerate him as no less than a saint.

When archeologists arrived, they spent less than two hours at the site. Much to the disappointment of the community, no instruments were available to sieve through the fine sand. No attempt was made to bring in other equipment which might have separated the thousands of bits of debris.

Workers continued excavating with shovels and pick axes. Hundreds more bones were found and many beautiful but rotted pieces of pecan and walnut casket wood were uncovered. A tiny silver crucifix depicting a girl kneeling at prayer was stumbled upon by a Mexican boy no more than 15 years old. He turned the piece over to the village priest.

Workers also ran into a mammoth boulder some 20 feet in circumference. Shovels struck on its surface produced a distinct hollow sound. But attempts to search below its surface were abandoned when even the combined efforts of the workers were insufficient to budge the huge rock.

However, excavation down one edge of the boulder turned up another skeleton. Curiously, the body had been buried in an upright position, the only one so discovered.

Of the nearly 100-foot long by 45-foot wide section of flooring removed, an area no larger than 30 by 45 feet was searched. The remaining 70 by 45-foot section was left untouched, poured over with packing sand and laced with reinforcement bars. By week's end it would be buried under a solid slab of concrete nearly three feet thick.

And except for several daily visits by the resident architect, neither the archeologists nor the architects in charge of operations remained behind to supervise any of the work.

325,000 bees colonize in house

HOUSTON (AP) — John Brasell gave them refuge for a year. But when they multiplied to 325,000 and he'd been stung a couple of times, he decided it was time to take action and called on Darrell Lister for help.

Lister is vice president of the Houston Beekeepers Association.

"We would have been crazy to try and get rid of all of those bees ourselves," said Brasell, who noticed bees in his northeast Houston house about a year ago when a hive had formed between the first and second floors. "I had no idea there were so many."

Lister, who removed about 300 pounds of honeycomb from Brasell's house Sunday and hopes to have all the bees out by the end of this week, discovered the original hive had expanded to five colonies containing more than 325,000 bees.

"These are smart fellows," Lister said. "They like to get in between floors where the temperature is pretty consistent. They've got it made in there."

A bee colony centers on a queen. A new queen starts a new hive by leading part of the population of an old hive away, Lister said. But he said usually a new colony forms at least a quarter mile away from the original hive.

Lister — clad in a beekeeper hat, yellow gloves, a white jumpsuit and black cowboy boots — uses a small hand-held smoker to drive the bees out.

"This guy is living in a beehive," Lister said.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to gain the cooperation of associates today, you must show them that what you intend to do is for their good as well as for yours.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This can be a very productive day for you if you can set your own pace and schedule. Try to perform your tasks free from interference.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pleasant experiences are a possibility today in your social realm. A generous companion may even beat you at picking up the lunch or dinner tab.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Spending money in your favorite haunts outside of your home isn't apt to be half as much fun today as having friends over for a happening at your place.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Traveling around a bit today could help soothe your restless spirit. Select several nearby destinations that you can visit briefly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It behooves you to be a comparison shopper today because you may not find your best price at the first store. Spend shoe leather in order to save dollars.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Under your deft management today, situations that could cause problems will be handled smoothly. You'll recognize where your skills are needed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do what needs doing at a measured pace today and you will perform more efficiently. Take time to study each move instead of proceeding impulsively.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An opportunity may arise today that gives you the chance to get more friendly with someone you now think of as merely an acquaintance. Use it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are truly dedicated and persistent where your goals and objectives are concerned today, something of real significance can be accomplished.

AL roundup

Yankees edge Red Sox on Randolph's round-tripper

By JONATHAN VITTI
Associated Press Writer
The Boston Red Sox died by the sword they live by in Fenway Park — the late-inning home run.

Willie Randolph drilled Bob Stanley's first pitch to him in the 10th inning Thursday night for a home run and a 12-11 New York Yankee victory. The 10th inning was necessitated after Don Mattingly tied the game with a three-run homer with two outs in the ninth.

After two late-inning losses to the Red Sox earlier in the four-game series, the Yankees took it all in stride.

"Strange things have been happening this season," Randolph said.

"Runs disappear in a hurry in this park," New York Manager Yogi Berra said. "We can come back, too."

In other American League action, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the Oakland A's edged the Cleveland Indians 7-6, the Seattle Mariners bested the Kansas City Royals 4-1, the Minnesota Twins outscored the Texas Rangers 3-2 and the California Angels dined the Chicago White Sox 9-3.

Randolph's blast atoned for his two fielding errors, the second a costly miscue in the eighth when the Red Sox rallied for six runs and an 11-7 lead.

The Yankees unloaded on Stanley, 1-5, in the four-run ninth. Three singles and an infield out narrowed the Boston lead to 11-8. One out later, Mattingly knocked Stanley's offering over the Boston bullpen, giving him five RBI on the night.

Ray Fontenot, 2-5, replaced reliever Clay Christiansen in the eighth and was credited with the victory. Dave Righetti pitched the 10th and earned his ninth save.

Lou Piniella, who announced his retirement effective Sunday earlier in the day, was 3-for-3 and scored three times for New York.

Brewers 3, Orioles 2
Dion James' two-run single off Storm Davis in the seventh inning gave Rick Waits, 3-2, a home victory over the Orioles.

James' hit off Davis, 6-3, came after a walk, an infield hit and a sacrifice.

Rollie Fingers picked up his 11th save for Milwaukee, getting out of a bases-loaded scrape in the eighth.

Cecil Cooper homered in the fourth off Baltimore starter Dennis Martinez. It was Cooper's 20th career home run and fourth of the season.

Astros down Dodgers

HOUSTON (AP) — If the Houston Astros are going to make a move in the National League, now is the time according to pitcher Mike Scott.

"We have to start winning now," Scott said. "Otherwise, it's going to be a long season."

Scott snapped a personal three-game losing streak Thursday night by scattering four hits over the first 5 2-3 innings in the Astros' 3-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The victory was the fourth for the Astros in their last five games.

"We've got a good team," Scott said. "Nobody can put a finger on what's gone wrong."

The Astros, trying to move out of fifth place in the NL West, used strong pitching performances from Scott and Dave Smith and three hits from Enos Cabell to take their third consecutive victory over the Dodgers.

Scott, 3-4, had now won since May 10 and Smith retired 10 of the 11 batters he faced to earn his first save of the season.

"You have to get those negative things out of your mind," Scott said. "It's not like I had won four or five in a row. Winning this game makes it a lot easier to go out there the next time."

The Dodgers placed three runners as far as third base, pushed across their only run in the sixth on a wild pitch by Smith.

"A lack of timely hitting has been an obstacle for us all year," said Dodgers shortstop Bill Russell. "We have to have patience, but how much patience can you have?"

Fernando Valenzuela, 6-7, allowed all three Houston runs. Once again, Valenzuela's teammates failed to provide adequate support at the plate as they scored only one run for the seventh time in his last nine starts.

"It's hard to believe," Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda said. "We can't generate any offense for him. We have to score more runs than that and we were lucky to score that one."

Houston used a single by Craig Reynolds, Cabell's triple, and an infield hit by Jose Cruz to take a 2-0 lead in the first.

The Astros padded their lead to 3-0 in the fifth on a double by Cruz and Ray Knight's single to left.

Babe Ruth League Roundup

Holmes Gift Shoppe, led by Glen Pruet's eight RBI, blasted Cree Company, 17-7, Thursday night in the Babe Ruth League Tournament.

Pruet went to the plate four times, had four hits, scored four runs and had two home runs. Tracy Jones had three hits in four times at bat and knocked in one run. He also scored four times.

Brahdon McDonald and Heath Cox also had hits for the winners. Cox scored one run and knocked in another.

Bubba Gowin, Shawn Fry, Keith Barr and Brian Hogan had one hit each for Cree. Gowin scored twice and knocked in two runs. Barr had two RBI and Hogan had one.

Lions Club won the second game by forfeit when First National Bank didn't have enough players on its team.

Grant Supply meets Holmes at 6 while Pampa Hardware goes against J.T. Holmes at 8:30 in tonight's tourney games.

Lions Club play the Grant-Holmes winner at 7:30 p.m. Monday night in the double-elimination tournament.

Randolph's blast atoned for his two fielding errors, the

Duran, Hearns fight on tap tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Roberto Duran will try tonight, on the eve of his 33rd birthday, to beat Thomas Hearns.

The Panamanian's bid for the World Boxing Council super welterweight title figures to be a much tougher task than the one accomplished on his 32nd birthday last year.

Then he beat Davey Moore, who was fighting professionally for only the 13th time, for the World Boxing Association's version of the 154-pound class championship.

Hearns, who is 38-1, with 32 knockouts, and who has won two world titles, is a 5 1/2-2 favorite to win the scheduled 12-round bout at a 26,000-seat outdoor arena on the grounds of Caesars Palace.

Duran could care less.

"I'll beat Thomas Hearns by knockout, I'm much better than he is," said the triple world champion, who will be the challenger because he is defying a WBA edict.

The WBA ruled that if Duran fights Hearns before making a mandatory defense against Mike McCallum, it would withdraw title recognition from him.

But Hearns said if he wins — he also is predicting a knockout victory — "I will feel I've unified the title."

Each man reportedly is getting in the neighborhood of $3 million for the match, which will be seen on pay and closed-circuit television. It also will be televised live on a delayed basis to 27 countries.

"Duran is predicting a knockout, and I'm predicting a knockout," said Hearns. "So you know it's going to be a great fight, no matter who gets who first."

Hearns scored 30 knockouts in winning his first 32 pro fights and the WBA welterweight champion is known as the Hit Man from Detroit.

JIM THORPE... shares opening round lead.

Irwin, Thorpe tied with two others for Open lead

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — The monster that was Winged Foot one decade ago was tamed, and Hale Irwin was one of those with the whip.

Returning to the site of the first of his two U.S. Open triumphs, Irwin shot a 2-under-par 68 and tied 1977 Open champion Hubert Green, Jim Thorpe and Mike Donald for the first-round lead Thursday at the 1984 U.S. national championship.

"Winged Foot is not quite the monster it was," Irwin said. But both he and Green warned it could turn tiger again, if cornered.

Ten years ago, at age 29, Irwin captured the Open with a 7-over-par 287. It was called the "Massacre at Winged Foot," as no more than seven golfers could break par for 18 holes in any of the four rounds.

On the first day this time, 11 players broke par-70 on a course that had been made purposely easier than it was 10 years ago.

"The rough is more manageable, and the greens are intentionally slower," said Irwin, who also won the Open in 1979 at Inverness.

Rain that fell Wednesday further slowed the greens and they might stay that way a while longer after a thunderstorm Thursday evening which caused a 45-minute halt in play. The delay forced six players in the 156-man field to finish the first round today.

Temperatures were in the mid-80s with a cooling, clearing trend predicted for today.

The large group at 69, one shot back, included Spain's Seve Ballesteros, David Canipe, Lennie Clements, Fred Couples, Curtis Strange, Mick Soli and U.S. amateur champion Jay Sigel.

Unlike most of the golfers who competed over this 6,930-yard, par-70 west course at the Winged Foot Golf Club, Irwin found the back-nine easier than the front. He shot par-35 on the front and 2-under-33 on the back with birdies at No. 11 and No. 17, a 44-yard par-4 where he holed a 60-foot bunker shot.

Green, a non-winner on the PGA Tour since 1981, shot 33-35, and Thorpe, one of the few black players on the Tour, shot 32-36. Donald, tied for third three weeks ago at the Kemper Open, had 33-35.

A bogey on the 448-yard, par-4 18th cost Thorpe sole possession of the lead.

"I think I can win now," said Thorpe, who led the first round of the U.S. Open in 1981 before faltering. "It'll take under par to win."

The group at 70 included Greg Norman, Gil Morgan, Morris Hatafsky, Andy Bean, Mike Sullivan, Fran Marrello and Michael Reid.

Norman made the turn at 34, birdied the 10th and 12th holes to go 3-under, then gave it back with a bogey at 13 and a double-bogey on 15.

Norman was in a threesome with Jack Nicklaus, who was only three shots back at 71, and Raymond Floyd, who shot 72.

"We walked off the course at 18, and Ray Floyd said to me, 'I felt like Jesse James,'" Nicklaus said. "I said, 'Who am I then?' And Floyd said, 'You're my brother, Frank.'"

"Then Greg would have to be the bank, giving it away," Lee Trevino, a two-time Open winner, turned in the lowest front-nine of 31, 4-under-par, but he had double-bogeys on 14 and 16 and a bogey on 13 to finish at 71.

Calvin Peete, who collapsed while playing the third hole, was treated at a hospital for loss of fluid and released.

Playoff hopes on line in USFL

By The Associated Press

Playoff hopes and winning streaks are on the line tonight when two of the hottest teams in the United States Football League — the Los Angeles Express and Oakland Invaders — battle at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Five of the eight playoff spots in the USFL have been determined but every team in the Pacific Division — Arizona, Denver, Los Angeles and Oakland — has a chance to qualify for postseason play.

Led by rookie quarterback Steve Young the Express — winners of their last four — will try to repel the Invaders who have won seven in a row after an 0-9 start.

The Invaders will secure a playoff berth if they can continue their torrid second half by winning their last two games, both on the road and both in the division, the Express and Denver.

In defeating Michigan last weekend, Oakland received another superb effort from safety Marcus Quinn. He intercepted his 12th pass of the season to tie the USFL record set last season by Luther Bradley of Chicago.

Also tonight, Washington is at Philadelphia, Jacksonville at New Orleans and Arizona at Chicago.

On Saturday, Denver will be at New Jersey, Tampa Bay at Pittsburgh and Birmingham at Memphis.

Monday night will find Oklahoma at Michigan, while San Antonio travels to Houston.

There are no Sunday games scheduled this weekend.

In their first game, the third week of the season, the Express beat the Invaders 10-0 in Oakland.

The Express, of course, added Young, who is 7-4 as a starter, including six of the last seven games. The Invaders have been rolling behind quarterback Fred Besana, who completed 17 of 30 for 165 yards and a touchdown last week, setting a club record for throwing TD passes in five consecutive games.

The Philadelphia-Washington game will send the team with the best record — 15-1 by the Stars — against the team with the worst record — the Federals' 2-14.

The Stars will try to better their 15-3 regular season mark of a year ago.

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Piniella, a veteran outfielder who helped the New York Yankees to four American League pennants and two World Series championships, is hanging up his glove because of a chronic shoulder problem.

Piniella, who will be 41 in August, said Thursday he is stirring "in the best interests of the club and myself."

"We're back in the pack and this will give the club an opportunity to look at some younger people," Piniella said in an interview.

Piniella, who has considered retirement several times in the past, earlier told New York sports writers of his plans

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Democratic Party's convention was set to open today with a visit from a presidential candidate who won't quit and a day after its U.S. Senate recount showed a winner by just 1,345 votes.

But party chairman Bob Slagle predicted Thursday that the delegates will go home from the convention Saturday night unified in purpose — defeating President Reagan and other Republican candidates in November's elections.

"I think you're going to be seeing that Democrats smile a lot," he said. "And we're going to beat Reagan like a drum."

But the party does suffer divisions.

On Thursday, its executive committee certified liberal state Sen. Lloyd Doggett as the Democratic Senate nominee over conservative U.S. Rep. Kent Hance after a recount of the June 2 runoff results.

And the leading Democratic presidential candidates — Walter Mondale and Gary Hart — planned to meet with delegates today as Hart continues to contest the race. Mondale says he's already won.

The state convention will choose the 200 Texas delegates to the Democratic National Convention. It is the third-largest state delegation.

Mondale, who last week said he has secured enough delegates to claim the nomination, said he was confident about the outcome.

"In the precinct caucuses, I did very well in Texas. As a matter of fact, it was one of my best states. So I expect to come out of this convention in good shape," Mondale said.

Hart, who refuses to concede, was scheduled to spend several hours talking with delegates today before going on to California.

"We're still in this race. We are pursuing delegates, we're calling delegates, we're going to where there are uncommitted delegates," said Debbie Graham, a Hart spokeswoman in Washington.

A top Mondale operative voiced doubts that Hart's personal campaigning would gain him much more support than he won in the May 5 precinct caucuses.

"I don't see that it will accomplish much," said Dwayne Holman, who headed Mondale's Texas campaign.

Mondale supporters, led by party chairman Slagle, are firmly in control of the state meeting, and Mondale backers make up the bulk of the convention's delegates and alternates.

The state delegates were chosen in a lengthy process that began with the precinct caucuses. Slagle said

Mondale has about 52 percent of the delegate commitments, Hart 24 percent, the Rev. Jesse Jackson 20 percent and 4 percent are uncommitted.

U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, Hart's state chairman, said Hart was attending the Texas convention as part of his continuing campaign and to make certain he gets his allotment of delegates.

"Texas is an important state. I think it's appropriate for him to come," Frost said. "He wants to make sure we are getting our share."

Slagle said Hart may be invited to speak to the full convention if he wishes and scheduling details can be worked out in time.

Convention committees will hear more than 500 resolutions submitted from the local conventions on a wide variety of issues.

Mondale praises Bentsen, dodges VP question

HOUSTON (AP) — Walter Mondale praised Texas Democrat Lloyd Bentsen's work in the Senate and called him "one of our nation's most respected public officials," but declined to say whether he was considering asking Bentsen to be his running mate.

Mondale, whose arrival in Texas Thursday came a day before the opening of his party's state convention, told reporters that in the next few days — possibly today — he will release a partial list of names of people "who I have asked to meet with, who I am considering as running mates."

Neither Mondale nor Bentsen broached the subject in speeches at a fundraiser for Bentsen Thursday night. The possibility was mentioned only by a member of the audience who interrupted Bentsen's talk by yelling, "We want you as vice president!"

A standing ovation followed Bentsen said, "Uh, thanks, Dad," then concluded his speech with a call for the end to the Reagan administration.

Bentsen, who spoke with reporters briefly before the fundraiser, declined to speculate as to whether Mondale is considering him as running mate.

"I'm not interested in the job if it's a lot of pomp and ceremony and police escorts and a larger house," Bensten said.

He said he was anxious to discuss the possibility with Mondale, adding, "Maybe we'll get a chance to go

Heart-donor death investigated

NEW YORK (AP) — A welfare mother who generated sympathy and gifts after she donated her 4-year-old son's heart to save another child now faces an investigation of her home life and the circumstances of her son's fatal fall, officials said.

The city Human Resources Administration disclosed Thursday that it was investigating the family life of John Ford, but the agency refused to say whether the fitness of his 38-year-old mother was at issue.

A source familiar with the case told The Associated Press, however, that the HRA had received complaints in recent years that the boy's mother, Dorothy Ford, had left her children unattended.

The source, demanding anonymity, also said Mrs. Ford had refused the assistance of a homemaker, which the city wanted to provide

He declined to say whether he thought Bentsen met those standards.

"I have not included or excluded anyone at this point," Mondale said. Mondale was to spend today talking with delegates to the state Democratic convention.

Mondale told the group at the evening affair Texas mirrors the issues concerning the entire United States.

"The eyes of the nation will be upon Texas," he said. "Name an issue that is essential to our nation and you'll find Texas at the forefront."

He cited work in the field of high technology and concern about public education.

Mondale also told the crowd the United States has two choices for its economic future. He said his policies would the federal deficit, larger now than ever before, as potentially disastrous and said "a president in touch would know it and a president in charge would do something about it."

Bentsen said Reagan failed to take blame he was due.
