Salvadoran military aid nearly ready in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, split in recent days over a $617 million compromise with the Reagan administration on military aid to El Salvador, are reported nearly unanimous in support of a measure to bar use of U.S. troops for combat in Central America without clear congressional authority.

senator's support is expected to attract backing from moderate Democrats who have sided with him on the administration compromise. The $617 million military aid package on Tuesday survived an attempt to withhold 15 percent of the money until the Salvadoran government obtains a verdict in the 1981 murder of two U.S. labor advisers.

will push legislation through the House this session that would revolutionize the nation's immigration laws. O'Neill, D-Mass., told reporters on Tuesday that he expects the controversial issue to come to the floor in early May, following several days of hearings before the House Rules Committee.

Furious spring storm spawns 25 tornadoes and flash flooding

By The Associated Press A furious spring storm hammered its way across the Southeast today after hurling two dozen tornadoes at the Mississippi Valley and pouring up to 6 inches of rain on Florida, while efforts to reopen snow-buried roads in Colorado were hampered by 45 mph winds.

were destroyed, and a church near Bowman was turned to rubble. Tornadoes also touched down in Missouri and Illinois, where the tops were torn off a church and a house, the National Weather Service said. No injuries were reported.

Swamp to the Gulf of Mexico, officials said. Colorado authorities, meanwhile, said they have accounted for all motorists missing during a near-blizzard that dumped up to 15 inches of snow on the eastern part of the state Tuesday. But Interstate 70 and 12 other major highways in the east-central part of the state remained closed as winds hindered clearing away 6-foot snowdrifts.

series of tornadoes cut a path of death across Georgia and the Carolinas on March 28. But for northeast Arkansas, Tuesday was a flashback to March 15 when twisters there killed six people. Only minor injuries were reported this time, but a dozen homes were reported destroyed in Craighead County and several farm buildings and 16 farm trailers were damaged in Gosnell.

Ledbetter. Besides Gosnell, tornadoes were reported in or around Oil Trough, Salem, Tuckerman, Grubbs, Otwell, Paragould, White Oak, Laredo, Marked Tree and Blytheville. More than a dozen tornadoes slammed into Missouri on Tuesday, the weather service said, most of them darting around the towns of Senath, Cardwell, Honersville and Arbyrd in the state's boot heel.

Light rain and drizzle were reported from Pennsylvania to southern Lower Michigan. Snow flurries and light rain showers lingered across Nebraska. Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 21 in Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eagle, Colo., to 77 in Key West and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Neighbors are stunned by mother's confession ever spoke to us." "I thought she was running a Bible group or something," said the first neighbor. "I know she was very religious, and she always had something religious out on her door." Mrs. Cross allegedly revealed the killing last fall while talking with the bishop about the Biblical commandment "Thou shalt not kill," a church leader said Tuesday.

Rape no longer exists under Texas law

By JEFF Langley Senior Staff Writer Sexual assaults occur daily in Texas, but rape no longer exists. "As of January first, there was no longer a rape statute in Texas," explained David Hamilton, Pampa's new assistant district attorney. "It's still a crime to use weapons, violence or threats to force sex upon a woman against her will, but the name of the act was changed from rape to the broader term 'sexual assault,'" Hamilton said.

18-year-old Pampa woman on March 28. Hamilton said the state has charged Remy with the element of burglary in addition to sexual assault because burglary carries a "more severe penalty" than "plain vanilla rape." The prosecutor explained that burglary is classified as a first-degree felony, punishable by a prison term of five to 99 years or life and a $10,000 fine. Simple sexual assault (rape) is classified as a second-degree felony, punishable by a prison term of two to 20 years and a $5,000 fine. Aggravated sexual assault (aggravated rape) is classified as a first-degree felony, but a conviction for that offense calls for proof that a deadly weapon was used, or that the victim suffered "serious bodily injury."

rape. He said the woman wasn't seriously injured, however. Police have said the rapist "wrestled" with the young woman in a frustrated attempt to rip off her clothes and finally delivered two hammering blows to the victim's face. "Shut up or die!" police said the attacker commanded the struggling woman. Hamilton said if the suspect in the sexual assault is convicted, the more severe element of burglary will allow jurors or a judge to assess a heavier penalty. The teen-age wife, whose husband was working the night shift, unlocked her front door to put out a cat about 1 a.m. a week ago today. Before the lone woman could close the door, a bearded man wearing a nylon stocking over his face and socks over his hands, burst into the victim's home, police have said. Once the rapist had subdued the woman, he subjected her to a series of sexual assaults that didn't stop until he just got up and left about 4:30 a.m., police said. Police initially reported that the woman could only give a sketchy description of the attacker. However, Hamilton said Tuesday that the woman and the suspect knew each other prior to the repeated rapes. "The woman knew him, even though he tried to disguise himself," Hamilton said. The prosecutor also said police found fingerprints at the scene that led them to Remy. After his arrest Saturday, Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge arraigned Remy on a charge of burglary of habitation with intent to commit sexual assault and set bond at $20,000. The suspect remained in custody in the Gray County Jail this morning.

Mondale wins big in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — New York loved Walter Mondale beyond his fondest expectations, and the former vice president — insisting the Democratic presidential race remains "very even" — is moving on to Pennsylvania with a formidable delegate lead over Sen. Gary Hart.

Mondale won a New York primary landslide, with an 18 percentage point cushion. Equally surprising was Hart's margin over the Rev. Jesse Jackson — 1 percentage point.

can work in the short term. It cannot work in the long term." New York Democrats gave Mondale a lopsided triumph in the state that will send the second largest delegation to the Democratic convention in San Francisco next July.

With nearly half the committed delegates to the Democratic nominating convention now chosen, Mondale has 861.25, while Hart has 512 and Jackson 140.5. It takes 1,967 to win the nomination.

Voter registration deadline Thursday

Area residents wanting to vote in the upcoming May 5 primary elections must register to vote by 5 p.m. Thursday with their respective county tax assessor-collector offices. Gray County Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray said notices mailed out with bank statements in Pampa incorrectly listed the deadline as Friday, April 6. Persons coming in Friday to register will not be able to do so because of state law, she said. "Also, if you have a change of address, or if you move and change precincts, you must notify us by Thursday," she added, noting that the deadline applies to people who move within their present precincts. Those wanting to register may come by the assessor-collector's office to fill out an application. "If you want to take an application for members of the immediate family, you may," she said.

"We have been successful, we've run a good campaign," said an exuberant Jackson. Hart said the race was only half over and predicted he would "come on strong" the rest of the way. "I'm not taking anything for granted," Mondale said. "I would guess in Pennsylvania we're about even."

Mondale won 133 New York delegates compared to 72 for Hart and 47 for Jackson.

In Wisconsin, there also was a Republican primary, with voters facing the alternative of voting "yes" or "no" for President Reagan. "Reagan Yes" won 95 percent of the vote.

Worker dies of injuries

A 36-year-old Ingersoll - Rand Oilfield Products employee died about noon today of chest injuries sustained earlier today in an accident at the plant located west of Pampa. Tom Castagnetta of 711 N. Zimmers died in the hospital's surgery unit after undergoing emergency surgery for approximately two hours, hospital attendants reported. Company officials shortly after noon today said cause of the mishap was unknown. Castagnetta reportedly was crushed when a piece of equipment toppled onto him, injuring his chest. Castagnetta, who had been employed at the manufacturing plant since August, 1977, was working alone at the time of the accident, the company spokesman said. The company was launching an investigation of the mishap.

Guinea evolution possible model for other nations, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military coup in Guinea opens an era of political uncertainty in a country long the subject of intense interest here because of its pro-Western evolution after close association with the Soviet Union, American officials say. Under the leadership of President Ahmed Sekou Toure, who died last week after 26 years in power, Guinea was a Marxist enclave in West Africa for well over a decade after gaining independence from France in 1958. For much of the past decade, however, Guinea has indicated disillusionment with the Soviets and has gradually embraced the Western approach toward development. Although officials say it would be a mistake to overestimate Guinea's importance, they believe that country's political realignment could be a model that other African countries could emulate. If such a pattern were to develop, officials believe it would undercut Soviet claims to be the "natural ally" of African and other developing countries.

They also sense that after Guinea's experience, marked by a chronically declining economy, other countries tempted to align themselves with the Soviets while turning their backs on the West might be dissuaded from doing so. At the same time, however, the officials recognize there is a potential for instability in pro-American countries in Africa, such as Zaire and the Sudan. There are no assurances that the United States will not soon find itself on the defensive in these countries.

U.S., Soviets to reopen cultural exchange talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Cultural and consular exchange talks between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, suspended since the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, are ready to resume. The New York Times reported today. U.S. Secretary of State George Schultz met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin in Washington and U.S. Ambassador Arthur Hartman met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Monday, and the Times said the meetings were aimed at reopening the exchange discussions. State Department spokesman John Hughes confirmed the meetings, but refused to release details. The Soviet news agency Tass also wouldn't detail the meetings. Then-President Jimmy Carter suspended the cultural exchange talks and the establishment of new consuls in December 1979 because of the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan. The Times said the Reagan administration had been prepared to lift the ban and reopen talks last summer, but postponed action when the Soviets shot down a South Korean airliner last August. U.S. officials were optimistic about establishing a new consulate in Kiev and beginning negotiations on a new cultural, scientific and educational exchange agreement.

Veterans land program to be explained here

Lorenzo M. Sedeno of Lubbock, Veteran Outreach representative for the Veteran Land Board, will be in Pampa Thursday to provide information on the Texas veterans land program and housing assistance program. Sedeno will be at the Gray County Court House library from 10 a.m. until noon to pass out literature and to answer questions on the two programs. The programs are available to armed forces veterans who have served anytime from 1940 to the present. The veterans land program offers long-term, low-interest loans to eligible veterans to purchase a minimum of 10 acres of land. Sedeno said. Veterans can receive an application form at his presentation tomorrow by submitting a non-refundable fee of $25. The loans can be obtained for up to $20,000 for a minimum of 10 acres, with monthly payments of only $138 a month, he said. The newly created housing assistance program offers low-interest loans for up to $20,000 to apply to the purchase of a home. The program is available to veterans who wish to purchase an existing loan or to build a new one. The loan can also be used in conjunction with a no-down-payment home loan from the U.S. Veterans Administration, Sedeno said. There is no limit on the amount of acreage bought with the home. Texas Land Commissioner Gary Morrow said, "I intend for this to be the finest land program in the country and to be a model for other states to follow. I want to urge each of the 7,694 veterans in Gray County to participate in these excellent programs. We don't need to do our veterans a favor - we need to repay them one." Sedeno is field representative for 54 counties in the northern part of the state, including the Panhandle area. In addition to veterans in Gray County, veterans in any of the surrounding areas are also invited to attend the meeting with Sedeno. Those not able to attend the meeting can receive information on the programs by calling 1-800-252-8387 in Austin.

Studies strengthen link between smoking and cervical cancer risks

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A series of recent studies clearly shows that cigarette smoking increases a woman's risk of getting cervical cancer, a University of California researcher says. Warren Winkelstein said Tuesday that his most recent study, published in January, removes major doubts concerning the link between smoking and cervical cancer, which is expected to strike 16,000 American women and cause an estimated 6,800 deaths this year. In fact, smoking was found to be nearly as great a risk as sexual activity with multiple partners, widely believed to be the most important factor in causing cervical cancer, Winkelstein said. Winkelstein, who detailed his findings at an American Cancer Society science writers' seminar, said he began to investigate the relationship between smoking and cancer of the cervix in 1977. The idea was prompted by earlier studies showing that elevated rates of cervical cancer were common in the same geographical regions where lung cancer rates were elevated, said Winkelstein, an epidemiologist (a specialist in statistical studies of disease patterns) based in Berkeley. Also, cervical cancer involves the same type of tissue involved in lung cancer, which most researchers agree can be caused by smoking. Both diseases occur in skin-like cells called squamous epithelial cells, he said. Statistical studies soon showed that there was indeed a link: women who smoked had higher rates of cervical cancer. An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association last July said that, although it was not known how smoking causes cervical cancer, "the causal role is sufficiently clear" to say that reducing smoking would reduce the incidence of cervical cancer. But it was also believed that sexual promiscuity would increase the risk of cervical cancer. Was it possible that women who smoked were also more sexually active than non-smokers? If so, that would mean that the smoking was not a contributing factor to cervical cancer, Winkelstein said. In a study published in the American Journal of Epidemiology in January, Winkelstein and his colleagues showed that it was "most unlikely" that the increased risk for smokers was due to sexual practices. Skeptics had also questioned the plausibility of the link between smoking and cervical cancer. It seemed hard to explain how cancer-causing substances in cigarette smoke could reach the cervix. In the January study, Winkelstein and colleagues also showed that many cancers are caused by chemicals circulated through the bloodstream to remote sites in the body.

Extra fee issue postponed until after elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate leaders have agreed to postpone until after the 1984 elections a congressional fight over whether credit-card users will have to pay more than cash customers. The agreement calls for enactment of a House-passed compromise bill that would extend until May 31, 1985, the law that has forbidden businesses from adding surcharges to credit purchases. The law expired Feb. 27, but there have been only isolated reports of merchants adding extra charges to the bills of credit customers. The extension bill passed 355-34 by the House on Tuesday in the face of a mass appeal by American Express for its 8 million U.S. cardholders to write Congress protesting against surcharges. The bill calls upon the Federal Trade Commission and the Government Accounting Office, the investigative wing of Congress, to study the extra fees. The Senate last month passed a bill authorizing surcharges of up to 5 percent.

Stop worrying about bills and get rich

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Back in the early 1970s a young man from Salt Lake City struck a sensitive nerve in millions of Americans who found themselves strapped and frustrated in the battle to make ends meet. Mark O. Haroldsen, who earlier had written nothing but a few letters, knocked out a book on how he rose from the ranks of the jobless to make a million dollars in real estate using other people's money. His message was simple and direct: Borrow money, risk it on a house that could be fixed up, sell or rent the house, reinvest the proceeds. He didn't just write the book, "How To Wake Up The Financial Genius

Inside You." He published, advertised and distributed it by mail at $10. He sold 1.35 million copies, and Bantam Books sold another 350,000 in paperback. Then, having developed a list of names and addresses of people who wanted to make something of themselves, he produced a magazine, "The Financial Freedom Report." This year he hopes circulation will reach 100,000. Many things followed: Formation of The National Institute of Financial Planning, a tax newsletter, another book, "Goals, Guts and Greatness," and seminars, hundreds of them, around the world. And now another book, "The Courage To Be Rich," just published by G.P. Putnam's Sons, in which, said Haroldsen, "I talk about new discoveries and things that were left out or not emphasized in the other books." The message, however, is the same, right from the very first paragraph: "If you, like most people, spend your time worrying about next month's bills and only dream about a life of financial security, Mark Haroldsen has something to say to you: Stop worrying and get rich. All you need is courage." As it turns out you do need more, but Haroldsen seeks to assure readers that the rest follows. It did for him. Be yourself, do your own thinking, trust your talent, take the plunge. "Courage is going against the odds, against popular opinion," he says. "It's doing what most people are unwilling to do because of the criticism and flack they know they will receive from family, friends, or even strangers."

'No-growth' state budget sought

AUSTIN (AP) — State agency heads predict cutbacks in programs in view of a letter they received from the speaker of the House and the chairman of the House appropriations saying agencies should expect no increases in their budgets from the 1985 Legislature.

In a letter released Tuesday, Speaker Gib Lewis and Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd said the state's economy "has been more adversely affected by recession in the past year than at any time in the recent past."

"In view of that, and considering the comptroller's projection of only a $15 million surplus at the end of this biennium, we are recommending that you prepare a no-growth budget for the coming biennium," the letter said.

"We suggest that you not include any considerations for inflation, salary changes or growth," Rudd and Lewis told agency heads.

The 1985 Legislature will set state pending for 1986 and 1987.

"It would mean we would be actually cutting back programs if we receive no increase whatsoever," said Herman Miller, Department of Health deputy commissioner for management and administration.

Department of Public Safety Director Jim Adams said his agency needs more money to meet the state's growing law enforcement needs.

"Our concerns are based largely on the growth factors over which we have no control," he said. "One of our top priorities is going to be additional licensing and weight enforcement officers. It doesn't make any sense to spend billions of dollars for highways if you don't have an enforcement program to keep heavy trucks from destroying the highways."

DPS now operates on an annual budget of $145 million. Adams declined to "hazard" a guess as to how much the agency will need from the 1985

Legislature. But he acknowledged he'll be battling other state agency heads for money.

"I don't think there's any question but that there's less money projected to be available — without new taxes — than in any session in recent history," said Adams.

"We are going to try to cut everywhere we can. But we can't ignore inflation. Our people are underpaid now," he added.

Mark Goode, engineer-director of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, said his agency wants a $1.9 billion a year budget increase.

"If we don't get it, we will cut back to fit whatever funds are available," he said, adding that such cuts would mean "increased congestion" on city roads and continued deterioration of state highways.

Too much water hurting Alamo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Alamo survived a ferocious siege by 5,000 Mexican soldiers 148 years ago, but now the historic mission appears to be threatened by something infinitely more subtle — underground water.

The interior and exterior surfaces of the Alamo, which withstood Mexican general Santa Anna's wrath in 1836, are beginning to crumble and chip away, the marketing director of an engineering firm says.

An underground stream might be the cause of the slow deterioration process, said Charles Reid of Dabney-Byrn & Associates.

"There are many things that could be causing the walls to slough off," Reid said. "It could be water leaking up into them from below ground."

The Alamo Committee of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas hired Dabney-Byrn to collect core samples to determine if water is the culprit.

Engineers know that some water is underneath the historic mission, but want to determine "to what extent," Reid said.

The Alamo is called the "cradle of Texas liberty" because of the heroism of the more than 180 men who held off Santa Anna's army for 13 days.

The defenders, who came from across the nation and several foreign countries, all died, but Texas eventually gained its independence from Mexican domination.

Reid said the crumbling poses no immediate danger since the Alamo's walls are about 3 feet thick.

"We're talking about only a fraction of the surface coming off," he said.

Engineers plan to set up a well-drilling rig today in front of the Alamo, Reid said.

Four 30-foot-deep holes will be drilled at each corner of the building, and an instrument will be inserted to measure the flow of underground water, he said.

Further tests will be made by drilling small holes in the walls themselves, with core samplings being examined.

Jury sees Lucas videotape confession

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — A confession Henry Lee Lucas made on videotape about the 1979 murder and sexual attack on a woman hitchhiker — despite repeated warnings from an attorney that he might end up on Death Row — has been played to the jury at Lucas' capital murder trial.

"I've still got to make a statement. People don't realize the truth," Lucas told his lawyer, Don Higginbotham, during a videotaped interview along Interstate 35 north of Georgetown, where the woman's body was found Oct. 31, 1979. "There's no sense in me being alive any more."

Jurors heard Lucas add in a second videotaped confession, "It's the only way I can get peace of mind. If they kill me, they kill me. I can't do anything about that."

A total of five confessions — two on videotape, two on tape recording and one written — were presented Tuesday to a jury of four men and eight women here, where the trial was moved because of massive pretrial publicity in Central Texas.

The trial recessed about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday until 9 a.m. today so defense attorneys could review the original, unedited versions of the confessions.

The confessions presented Tuesday had been edited by the prosecution. One videotape contained 30 seconds of silence. Prosecutor Ed Walsh would not say what was cut out, except to comment that it was not relevant to his case.

Defense attorneys had tried unsuccessfully to bar the prosecution from introducing the confessions into evidence.

The woman the 47-year-old drifter is accused of murdering has never been identified. Lucas told Williamson County Sheriff Jim Boutwell he picked the woman up near Oklahoma City, had sexual relations with her at a roadside park, and strangled her when she later refused his further advances.

Lucas said in his confessions that he also had intercourse with her after he killed her — something he has told officers he did with many of the women he claims to have killed across the country over the past decade. Later, he dumped the body in a culvert near Georgetown, he said.

When Boutwell reminded Lucas that his attorney had warned him of the possible consequences of the confession Lucas replied: "If they give me the death penalty, I can't say it's wrong. I've done this and I've done that. ... To me, the death penalty for what I've done is not wrong."

At the end of Tuesday's court session, Higginbotham said he believed he already had grounds for appeal.

"I think there's some error in here already," he said. He would not elaborate.

Politics program will be studied

AUSTIN (AP) — A program in which University of Texas students earn college credit by working on political campaigns is an academic pursuit, not a method of providing cheap labor to election efforts, university officials say.

However, UT President Peter Flawn says, the school will review that program because questions have been raised about its legality.

"They must write papers, do a daily log and keep in frequent contact with the instructor. We're not in the business of providing bodies for political campaigns. We're in the business of providing educational experience for the students," Flawn said.

Flawn said the University of Texas System is looking into whether the internship program violates a state law involving political activity by state employees.

According to that law, a state employee "may not permit the use of a program administered by the state to interfere with or affect the result of an election or nomination of a candidate, or to achieve any other political purpose."

Flawn said he doesn't yet know whether the UT intern program violates that law.

"It would depend on how strict an interpretation our attorneys made of the statute. Clearly if we turned out 1,000 students to work for a particular candidate, it would be improper," Flawn said.

However, he said, it would be stretching it to say that 10 or 12 students working in a campaign under academic supervision "are improperly affecting the outcome of the election."

Through the internship program, 27 students have been involved in about six political campaigns, including those of state Sen. Lloyd Doggett and former Congressman Bob Krueger.

The student interns receive three to six hours of college credit, depending upon the number of hours they work for the candidates, said Robert Mettlen, UT vice president for administration.

The government department internship program began in the autumn of 1981. It also places students in administrative agencies and offices of state legislators for course credit. Mettlen

State lease sale totals $17.5 million

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says changes in leasing policies on state lands paid off the first time they were tested, which was Tuesday.

The policies were put into effect after a commission appointed by Mauro found that in recent years the state's bonus for land in the Gulf of Mexico has averaged $191 per acre, compared with an average for federal land of $2,796 per acre.

Mauro said bids received by the School Land Board in Tuesday's lease sale of 81,000 acres of land earned $17.5 million for the Permanent School Fund, which totals $4.1 billion.

Mauro, chairman of the board, said new leasing policies implemented by his office resulted in an average bonus bid of $216 per acre.

"The average is about twice what we received in the October lease sale — $120 per acre bonus — and is an indication that our new leasing policies are paying off," Mauro told a news conference.

The new policies raise the state's minimum per acre cash bonus from $10 to $20 for wildcat tracts, $20 to $50 for uplands and rivers, $20 to $100 for bays and inlets and $40 to $100 per acre for Gulf of Mexico tracts.

The policies increase from 30 days to 60 days the advance notification on tracts to be included in lease sales; establish a $100 nomination fee to discourage companies from nominating tracts they have no real interest in; and identify tracts with significant potential for oil and gas development, which call for higher bonus payments.

Mauro said this recommendation alone raised state revenue by $700,000 at Tuesday's sale.

"Without these policy changes," Mauro said, "Tuesday's lease sale would have produced substantially less income for the state."

Getty Oil Co. with a bid of $860,650 on a 1,701-acre tract in the Gulf had the highest single bid. Amoco Production Co. had the highest number of successful bids with 18 totaling just over $4.7 million.

Mauro said at the October sale high bids on 10 tracts in the Gulf were rejected because the bonus offered was significantly below that which the federal government had received for adjacent tracts. Four of those state tracts were leased Tuesday for a combined overall bonus of nearly $2.7 million.

Local school boards can solve school problems, Bush says

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush says the reform of American schools rests with local school boards and not with the federal government.

"We just don't believe that judges and Washington bureaucrats should be running our schools from afar," Bush said Tuesday in a speech to the National School Boards Association, which is holding its 44th annual convention in Houston.

Even though federal spending for education has more than doubled in the last 10 years, aptitude tests continue to show "a virtually unbroken decline," he said. "We've found that vastly increasing federal spending is not the answer to improving the quality of our education."

The vice president, citing a recently released poll of high school students, called drug and alcohol abuse in schools "a national plague."

"We must do whatever it takes to help our children turn away from the nightmare of drugs and toward the light of learning," he said.

Bush told the educators he favored merit pay for teachers and said a survey of 152 junior and senior high school principals showed 75 percent of those polled favored merit pay. Eighty percent of those surveyed dismissed the idea of federal spending because it creates more "red tape, paperwork and ridiculous rulings," Bush said.

At a news conference later, Bush said he hoped in the upcoming election campaign to "put forward the truth and the positive aspects of what we've accomplished. You don't get much of that because the primary action seems to be emphasizing the more negative aspects of things."

In response to a question, he said President Reagan "has not written the black vote off. We need to point out the things that are positive about the record, the fact that black unemployment is falling.

Talk show host is threatened

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two Molotov cocktails were found behind the house of a controversial cable television talk show host who blames youth gangs for crime and advocates heightened neighborhood patrols, authorities say.

The wife of television personality B.J. Lunsford found two teen-agers lurking in an alley behind the couple's home, police said Tuesday.

The youths ran, but left behind the handmade explosives — glass bottles filled with gasoline and stuffed with cloth fuses, said Lunsford's wife, Linda.

Lunsford, 41, hosts the "Lunsford File," which appears on a local cable channel every Saturday.

"I'm not sure if this is related to the show," Lunsford said Tuesday, "but I do talk about crime a lot."

The neighborhood has been plagued recently with burglaries and break-ins, he said.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Crack develops in wage opposition

A small, unexpected crack in the wall of opposition to President Reagan's proposal for a "sub - minimum wage" has appeared.

Syndicated columnist Donald Lambro reports that the National Conference of Black Mayors, breaking with the Congressional Black Caucus, appears ready to support the proposal, which would allow employers to pay workers between 16 and 22 an hourly minimum wage of $2.50, instead of $3.35.

Mayor Johnny Ford of Tuskegee, Ala., president of the mayors' group, says the conference will probably vote to support the lower minimum for young people at its April meeting only because "we need something and in a hurry" to deal with the continuing high unemployment among black youths, still almost 50 percent.

It is the cities - and their mayors, Ford said, that have to face the social problems that can be associated with such high numbers of idle youths. On the other hand, members of the Congressional Black Caucus only have to face the wrath of organized labor, for which the minimum wage is most sacred of sacred cows.

Ford says the conference continues to support the minimum wage in principle. Support for the teen - ager sub - minimum is a special circumstance. Ford doesn't buy the underlying free - market arguments for modifying - or ultimately abandoning - a statutory minimum wage.

However gingerly he explains his reluctant support, Ford's - and his group's - embracing the sub - minimum is welcome. And notwithstanding his disclaimer, he has indeed, accepted a fundamental free - market principle regarding the cost of labor and the number of jobs available.

The sub - minimum wage recognizes the reality of the free - market principle that labor, like any other commodity, is purchased more often the less it costs. Ford and his fellow mayors would not even flirt with the idea if they were not convinced that lowering the minimum wage will, in fact, create new jobs for black youths.

The minimum wage is a particularly cruel Catch - 22 for teen - agers, many of whom are unskilled and inexperienced. It is the minimum wage, which employers cannot afford to pay such unskilled workers, that keeps them from getting the job experience that would make them more valuable in the market and allow them to move to more skilled and better - paying jobs.

Union leaders argue that each job taken by a sub - minimum wage youth will be at the expense of a more highly paid adult. But this assumes that the economy is a zero - sum game, in which one person's gain is always another's loss. What is more likely to happen is that the sub - minimum wage will result in the return or increase of jobs that have become too expensive for businesses to maintain.

Sub - minimum wage proposals have twice been proposed and defeated in Congress. The support of the National Congress of Black Mayors may not be enough to get the law passed this time. After all, last year Congress ignored a study by its own investigative arm - the General Accounting Office - that concluded the minimum wage generally reduces the number of available jobs, especially for low - skilled and unskilled workers.

The support of the black mayors at least might assure that the issue will be discussed among opinion leaders who once would have rejected it out of hand.

The job of smearing Ed Meese

NEW YORK (NEA) - To anyone who remembers the job the liberal Democrats and the media did on Richard Allen, or the jobs they tried to do on Bill Casby and Ray Donovan, there is a distinct sense of deja vu about the job they are currently doing on Ed Meese, President Reagan's choice for attorney general.

We've been through it all so often before. (And not only in this administration - remember Jimmy Carter's Bert Lance, who was smeared right out of Washington, only to be acquitted, ultimately, of all charges by a jury of his peers?) First comes a fusillade of accusations, innuendoes and rumors, along with demands from hostile congressmen for the victim's tax returns and all other conceivable documents. The first bucket of allegations is promptly exploded and swiftly forgotten, but various discrepancies (real or apparent) can always be found in any stack of papers, and these are promptly leaked to friendly reporters who can be counted on to put the worst possible interpretation on them.

The Justice Department is thereupon badgered into investigating whether perjury, or misprision, or some other exotic felony may have been committed - then denounced as biased before it can complete its investigation. That lays the foundation for sensational demands for appointment of a functionary lasciviously misdescribed as a "special prosecutor," whose job is not to prosecute anyone at all but merely to determine whether any conceivable grounds for prosecution exist. His investigation may drag on for several months. However it turns out, the attackers win: Either prosecution is recommended, or it isn't - in which case the hullabaloo has ended the victim's usefulness anyway, as well as tainted the administration with a flavor of wrongdoing.

The case of Meese is particularly unfortunate for two reasons. In the first place, he is one of the finest and most honorable public servants ever to be subjected to this sort of brutal, cynical degradation. Liberals rightly fear, however, that as attorney general, and later on the Supreme Court (if, as rumored, that is his final ambition), he would be a powerful conservative influence. Hence the passion they are bringing to the process of his destruction.

In addition, Meese had the bad luck to draw for the assignment of his nemesis a man who has pioneered whole new aspects of sleaze, both in his business career and in the United States Senate. Howard Metzbaum, an Ohio millionaire who threw in with Big Labor in return for a second career as a Democratic senator, is notoriously indifferent to the unscrupulousness of the means whereby he achieves his effects.

In the case of Meese, Metzbaum began by obtaining various materials from a Democratic congressman, Don Albosta of Michigan, whose own inquiry into Republican possession of Jimmy Carter's briefing papers collapsed a couple of months back for lack of evidence of any indicatable offense. Among the materials were Meese's informal statements to members of Albosta's staff, denying that he knew anything about the briefing papers in question.

Then, at Meese's confirmation hearings, Metzbaum questioned Meese closely about his knowledge of various routine, unclassified Carter campaign documents. Meese answered, truthfully, that he had been aware of certain ones that reached Reagan headquarters.

Metzbaum next waited until the confirmation hearings had closed - so that Meese would no longer be available to answer questions under oath. He then began leaking stories to the media and to his Democratic colleagues in the Senate, suggesting that Meese's statements to the Albosta staff (about the briefing papers) were somehow inconsistent with his testimony to the Senate committee (about the routine Carter campaign documents).

Against tactics that low, truth is at a near-fatal disadvantage. In time, of course, such deliberate obfuscation could be cleared up - but time is precisely what is in short supply. The presidential campaign is already under way, and it is clear that Metzbaum and his Democratic colleagues intend to drag the issue of Meese's confirmation as attorney general right through the middle of it, if possible.

The Senate is Republican - controlled, however, and Meese himself has now called for appointment of a special prosecutor. Together, they can bring this farce to an end just as soon as they have satisfied themselves that there is no basis for the Metzbaum charges. That shouldn't take long. Not only Ed Meese but the American people and the whole cause of good government deserve a speedy resolution of this controversy.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, April 4, the 95th day of 1984. There are 271 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 4, 1968, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was shot to death in Memphis, Tenn.

On this date:
In 1969, the first complete artificial heart was implanted in a 47-year-old man in Houston until a real donor heart was available.

And in 1975, a U.S. Air Force C-5 transport plane carrying 243 Vietnamese orphans to the United States crashed after takeoff from Saigon, killing 172 people.

Ten years ago: Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves tied Babe Ruth's home run record by hitting his 714th round-tripper in Cincinnati.

Five years ago: Former Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was hanged in the jail where he'd been held since his conviction for conspiring to murder a political foe.

One year ago: The space shuttle Challenger, carrying a four-man crew, was launched on its maiden voyage and later deployed a communications satellite.

Today's birthdays: Former dance teacher Arthur Murray is 89 years old. Actress Gale Storm is 62. And Indiana Sen. Richard Lugar and actor Anthony Perkins are 52.

Thought for today: "I've never been hurt by anything I didn't say." - President Calvin Coolidge (1872-1933).

"We're taking an exit poll here at Hornswoogle Elementary School - coming up next an interview with the losers in the ongoing creation vs. evolution debate."

Wasn't supposed to be in way

I am not one of those taxpayers who is always complaining about the defense budget. I believe the people in the Pentagon know what they're doing, and if they make a billion - dollar mistake here and a billion - dollar mistake there, I think I'm still getting an awful good buy for my dollar.

But every once in a while, even my patience is tested. I lost my cool the other day when a Soviet attack submarine managed to get right underneath the U.S. carrier Kitty Hawk, causing damage to both vessels. It wasn't the cost of the accident that bothered me, but the fact that the carrier didn't know the Russian submarine was there.

"How could this be?" I asked myself quizzically, as I filled out my 1983 tax return. To get an answer I called a friend at the Pentagon and said, "Look, I've been footing the bill for all sorts of fancy anti - submarine doodads for our ships and planes, and I've taken your word for it that an American aircraft carrier is invulnerable from attack at sea. So how could a Russian submarine get underneath one without our captain knowing about it?"

"That's top secret information," he told me.

"Don't give me that," I said. "What happened to all the support ships that I was charged for to protect the flattop?"

"They weren't near the carrier when it happened."

"Why not?" I asked.

"They were out looking for the Russian submarine. You see, we knew there was a sub in the area, but we lost contact with her. Since we didn't know where she was, we decided to take the carrier out of harm's way. Unfortunately, no one knew the submarine was right under the carrier."

"Doesn't the carrier have sonar on board to detect when there is a submarine underneath her?"

"It does and it doesn't. It has airplanes on board that have the ability to spot a submarine under water."

"So where were the airplanes?"

"They were on the deck of the carrier. It's not the job of a carrier to protect itself. We have cruisers, destroyers and attack submarines with billions of dollars' worth of sensitive equipment to make sure that an enemy sub doesn't get within attacking distance of the carrier."

"But they missed this one."

"It's our belief the Soviet submarine was lost and didn't even know it was underneath the carrier. It proves their equipment doesn't work any better than ours."

"Are your Navy people rethinking the vulnerability of a carrier in wartime after this incident? After all, they cost me $3.5 billion apiece."

"On the contrary, we're going full speed ahead with our carrier program. The only thing we may have to do is ask for more money to build extra ships to protect them. Also we're going to design better anti - submarine helicopters and more sophisticated aircraft to detect the subs."

"How much is that going to cost me?"

"If you have to ask, you can't afford it."

"Look, I went along with you people when you took the U.S.S. New Jersey out of mothballs for $1 billion. You said with its firepower it would become the dreadnought of the seas. When it was stationed off Lebanon the only thing it did was flatten two Druze villages and kill 500 sheep. I don't think I'm getting enough bang for my buck."

"You sound as if you're on THEIR side."

"I'm not on the Soviets' side," I said angrily.

"I'm not talking about the Soviets - I'm talking about the U.S. Air Force. They'd love to whittle down our budget so they could get more land - based airplanes for themselves, and people like you are giving them aid and comfort."

"I don't want to take sides between the Navy and the Air Force, but I have budgeted just so many tax dollars to spend on defense, and I don't believe it's too much to ask that when you spend $17 billion to protect one $3.5 billion carrier, that you people know when a Soviet submarine is floating under it."

He sounded hurt. "Nobody's perfect."

Hart's foreign policy naivete

The darndest things happen during presidential campaigns - like Walter Mondale's emergence as a foreign - policy hawk.

Well, I mean, compared to Gary Hartpence, who says that not only would he cut back U.S. troop strength in Europe - he'd do nothing in a military way if Iran blockaded the Persian Gulf, precipitating another energy crisis. Mondale, never exactly the mirror image of Teddy Roosevelt, says he would assert vital American interests a bit more strongly than this!

But it's on Central America that Hart makes Mondale look positively pugnacious. Like Mondale, Hart would cut off U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan freedom fighters. Unlike Mondale, he would pull out the U.S. troops that are shoring up Honduras' pro - American government.

Concerning El Salvador, Mondale would string along with the elected government, so long as it respected human rights. Hart, by contrast, would insist that government and guerrillas "unconditionally" negotiate the country's future.

Well, why not? As Hart declared in Chicago, the "central problem in Central America is poverty, not communism." A man who believes that is bound to believe negotiations with Communists can work. Indeed, he's likely to believe the moon is made of blue cheese.

So the problem is poverty, hmmm? Then why are all those Communist guerrillas running around El Salvador with Communist - supplied weapons, murdering, burning crops, dynamiting power stations, wrecking economic chaos, intimidating potential voters in last - weekend's presidential election?

Hart, to be sure, didn't think up the notion that poverty sows the seeds of social revolution. The theme is an old and, oh, so tired one. History, with the back of its hand, knocks it sprawling.

The empirical truth is, peasants and workers don't start revolutions. Middle - or upper - class leaders - mean far removed far from poverty - start revolutions. Throughout history, as Robert Nisbet writes, "So far were the impoverished from being principals in the revolution in any significant degree that they commonly had to be dragged by the Robespierres, Lenins, Maos and Castros - dragooned and not seldom imprisoned tortured and executed as counter - revolutionaries."

Yes, of course, Central American is poor. But is has been poor for centuries, due less to lack of resources than to locally dominant ways of thinking about economics. As a Guatemalan university president says: "We want to do away with poverty but we are against wealth."

Not that the Communists have had any better luck. One has only to look at Nicaragua, where, almost five years after the Sandinista revolution, the economy is depressed, and there isn't enough to eat: pretty much like the Communist paradigm, the Soviet Union, if you get down to it. All the Salvadorans need do to ensure themselves bliss of this sort is hand their country over to the terrorists.

Whether or not Hart really believes his own official, statements on Central America, the naivete of those statements gives one the willies. A private citizen who thinks loopy thoughts is one thing; a leading presidential candidate is something else again.

"Ideas," as Richard Weaver reminds us, "have consequences." New ideas and old ones; wise ideas and, freakish ones. If Gary Hart worked as hard on his ideas as on his Kennedy impersonation, he might have something useful to tell the American people.

Texas National Guard camp is once again prime real estate

AUSTIN (AP) — A maxim of military strategy is to take the high ground and hold it, which is exactly what the Texas National Guard has been doing with Guard headquarters at Camp Mabry.

Nestled on the west side of MoPac Boulevard at the foot of the Hill Country, Camp Mabry has been held doggedly by the Guard since 1892, when 85 acres was donated. The camp, named for the first adjutant general of the Texas National Guard, expanded gradually and now encompasses 375 acres.

The camp has become 375 acres of prime real estate owned by the State of Texas.

The Guard is facing another of the periodic attempts to wrest Camp Mabry from military hands. At one time or another, developers, environmentalists or city officials have cast covetous glances at Camp Mabry.

"Every three or four years, someone comes with the idea to have the Guard surrender at least some of the land," said Col. L. James Starr, chief of facilities and engineering for Guard headquarters. "Usually when a new governor comes in, someone writes in and suggests that the National Guard be moved out and the land be given back for development. Nothing has ever come of it."

City park officials say they would still like to put at least part of Camp Mabry into their fold.

"The whole thing over Mabry goes way back," said Leonard Ehler, director of the city Parks and Recreation Department. "We don't have any plans for anything at Camp Mabry at this time. But it would be a delightful addition, since we are short of park space in West Austin. That's a prime location."

Not without a fight, say Guard officials. They say the military buildup of the Reagan administration has given the Guard new tasks that call for more use of the land, not less.

Any skirmish over Camp Mabry probably would involve Austin, state and federal officials.

The first 85 acres, the southernmost part of the camp, was bought by a group of residents and donated to the state. Forty-nine acres on the northeast side was bought by another group of residents and donated to the Guard in 1924.

The federal government bought 200 acres on the north side for $5,000 in 1909. This portion was turned over to the state by Congress for Guard use in 1955. But a provision in the law says that if the Guard ceases to make military use of the land, the federal government can take it back.

"If we were forced to move, the federal government is sure not going to fund it," Starr said. "Much of this land was donated to honor those who had served in the military. I would think the Legislature would be very reluctant to give away any land that was given to the state."

Schools for non-commissioned officers are run out of Mabry during the summer, as well as an officer candidate school. Starr said the Guard would like to reopen a parachute training course.

The east side of Camp Mabry has seen much growth over the years. Warehouses, administration buildings, armories, and three generals' houses dot the landscape. The buildings have been valued by the state at $13 million. Classroom buildings valued at $1.5 million are under construction.

The state officially values the land at $1.8 million, but Guard officials acknowledge that is low. Real estate agents familiar with the area say $400,000 an acre would be a good deal — a figure that would make the camp land worth at least $150 million.

Much of the western half of Camp Mabry remains as unspoiled as it was 100 years ago. This sloping terrain often lies unused except during weekend exercises by Guard members. Starr said 2,500 Guard members use Camp Mabry in the course of a month.

"You can't do everything in the classroom," Starr said. "That area is used for patrolling, map reading and driving."

One unit with headquarters at Mabry is the 49th Armored Division. Starr said the unit is expected to grow as part of the Pentagon upgrading of Reserve and Guard forces.

"Every day we are getting new weapons and techniques, and we have to train people," Starr said. "There is now a heavier reliance on Guard and Reserve units to pick-up missions that were once done by active forces. This started in the mid-70s, and the pace has picked up since then."

Starr said Camp Mabry is open to public use during the week, when there is no training. Joggers and cyclists often use it.

BEER COLLECTION—Bill Couette stands next to his collection of more than 1,500 beer cans from around the world in his garage in Pecos. (AP Laserphoto)

Pecos resident collects beer cans

By KAREN OGLESBY
Pecos Enterprise

PECOS, Texas (AP) — If Bill Couette had 99 bottles of beer on the wall, he probably would trade them for a can.

Already, one wall of what used to be Couette's carport is literally lined with beer cans. About 1,500 from all over the United States as well as Holland, Japan, Australia, Germany, Spain and other countries, are mounted on rack after rack along his den wall.

While some beer cans from around the world are worth up to $3,000, most of Couette's are just worth more cans — four to five for the most valuable ones.

"This one here, I could probably get four to one (for cans) for," he said, pointing to a 1949 Schlitz can. "Some guy found it under his porch, and it hadn't rusted at all."

A few of Couette's cans are rusty, especially the older ones.

"The obsolete and real old cans are the most valuable," he explained.

Some of his more unusual cans include those of M.A.S.H. beer, made from the television series and distributed in a camouflage-printed can, and Billy Carter and J.R. beer brands.

For some brands, Couette has collected several cans bearing different prints or from different breweries. His 10 or more Schmidt Beer cans each bear different scenes on the front, and some of his 28 Pittsburg-brewed Iron City Beer cans picture the Steelers during the years they won the Super Bowl.

"It's history on the cans," Couette said with a smile.

Couette also has collected quite a few of yet another Pittsburg brand: Frothingslosh. This beer's claim to fame throughout its history and printed on its cans from year to year was "it foams on the bottom."

Couette explained that when poured into a glass, the foam hung below the beer.

Pictured with the slogan on the cans is another Frothingslosh tradition: a brazen, brunette fat lady clad in clothing from swim suits to a ballet tutu and sometimes clenching a long-stemmed rose between her teeth.

Now, who cares about taste when you could get "foam on the bottom" and a can like that?

Couette and nearly 25,000 other members of the Beer Can Collectors of America club have made hobbies with such unusual cans. The club was established in 1970 in Fenton, Mo., and has since brewed in popularity.

For $20 yearly club dues, Couette has at his disposal — among other things — a complete index of other members' addresses by their name and state. To trade with other members, Couette has compiled an itemized list of all his cans — where and when each was distributed as well as its size and colors.

Couette is proud of his collection, which has especially grown through trading since he joined the club eight months ago. In fact, Couette is so bubbly over his latest hobby that he has nearly canned his others: collecting coins, caps and puzzles.

Across the room from the wall lined with cans are several framed coin collections — just a few of those Couette has secured. At the end of a wet bar lined with glasses is a table full of mind-type games from the Rubik's cube to a horseshoe-and-ring puzzle.

At the opposite side of the den — or game room, or bar room, or collection room — is a wall half-occupied by mounted ball caps of every type, size and origin.

"I only have about half of them up now," Couette said of his 200-cap collection. "I had to take the rest down to make room for more beer cans."

American-born queen working hard for Jordanian development

AQABA, Jordan (AP) — Queen Noor of Jordan, the former Lisa Halaby of Washington, D.C., says she is disappointed with her native country.

"I feel there is a great lack of understanding of Arab society and the issues facing us in this part of the world," she said in an interview with The Associated Press. American policy in the Middle East, she added, "doesn't reflect the values and principles I learned in the United States as a child."

The queen's comments echoed those of her husband, King Hussein, who in recent weeks has been critical of the United States for providing heavy economic and military assistance to Israel without successfully pressuring the Jewish state to negotiate on the Palestinian issue.

Of particular concern to Jordan is the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River, the Palestinian-populated land taken from Jordan by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

"We're talking about brothers and sisters here," said Queen Noor, whose adopted nation of 2.8 million people is more than half Palestinian in origin. "We're talking about one family."

Her quest, she said, was for "a responsible and just and principled" American policy "for the good of all in this region who seek to benefit far more from peace than from the continuing dissension."

The queen spoke of Jordan's concerns and her life here from the veranda of the royal family's summer palace, a modern stucco building that overlooks Jordan's Red Sea port of Aqaba to the east and Israel's port city of Eilat to the west.

A light wind off the sea occasionally caught a loose strand of her long, sandy-blonde hair, which she wore swept up into a chignon at the back. She was dressed elegantly but simply in an embroidered pink silk blouse and white pleated skirt. The low-heeled pumps she favors don't completely compensate for the fact that at 5 feet, 7 inches she's a bit taller than the king.

Queen Noor, 32, was one of the first women to graduate from Princeton University and one of the few in 1974 to earn a bachelor's degree in architecture and urban planning.

Her father, Najeeb Halaby, an American of Lebanese descent, is chairman of a New York aeronautical consulting firm and formerly was chairman of Pan American World Airways.

She credited the combination of aviation and architecture for bringing her and King Hussein together.

"I just happened to be here doing some research on aviation training facilities in the Middle East, and I was based in Amman," the Jordanian capital, she recalls. "I met my husband at the airport. I was working and he — you know he loves to fly — was either visiting or observing conditions there."

Hussein, 48, had been married three times before. Two marriages ended in divorce. His third wife, Queen Alia, died in a plane crash in 1977.

The two were married in Amman on June 15, 1978. One of her wedding gifts was her name — Queen Noor al Hussein, which translates to "light of Hussein."

Queen Noor, raised as an Anglican, converted to the Sunni Moslem religion of her husband after their marriage. She speaks Arabic, but is more comfortable in English.

In addition to her ceremonial duties, such as entertaining Britain's Queen Elizabeth II on her state visit to the Hashemite kingdom last month, Queen Noor has tried to also play a role in Jordan's development.

The nation, covering about 56,000 square miles, has little oil but does extract large quantities of phosphate and potash. Extensive irrigation has helped expand agricultural production, though the arid country is heavily dependent on Arab aid to meet much of its domestic needs.

The queen has actively promoted environmental protection and physical fitness programs around the nation. She also has been active in urban and regional planning projects as well as the preservation and restoration of the nation's many historical sites.

In March, she made a two-week lecture tour that took her to Dallas, San Francisco, Washington and Chicago in an effort at "broadening understanding between the two cultures."

The queen considers herself a "working mother" and worries about the limits on time she has with her children: Prince Hamzah, 4; Prince Hashim, 2½; and Princess Iman, 11 months. She often takes the children along when she travels.

Despite the turbulence of the Middle East, Queen Noor says that she doesn't fear for her safety.

"We don't dwell on fear, on the worst possibilities," she said.

Is this someone you know?

When Sam was 16, he ran away from home to join the Army. After that he took a job in the oil fields, married and had five sons.

Sam is 78 now and seldom goes out. His wife died suddenly last year. His sons visit whenever they can, but they have families and responsibilities of their own. Sam used to barbecue some of the best steaks in the county, but now he lives on cold cuts and cold soup.

His sons worry that he'll forget to turn off the hot plate and accidentally burn down the house.

We've known many Sams over the years. We understand the loneliness, the despair. We've created a special living environment for important people like Sam, who need:

Dear Abby

Seat belts on school buses can make a real difference

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Who says that there aren't seat belts in school buses?

Federal law requires seat belts in all school vans and small minibuses manufactured after April 1, 1977.

Although seat belts are not mandated for larger school buses, any school district that wishes to equip its larger buses with seat belts is free to do so.

In the Greenburgh School District in New York, seat belts have been on large school buses since 1979. Over 90 percent of the children use their belts. Bus drivers report fewer disciplinary problems. And they haven't had a single incident of a seat belt being used as a weapon.

But most important, many children have for the first time started using seat belts in their family cars. They have learned an important safety habit that is reinforced on the school buses twice a day, 183 days a year.

By the way, the letters that you recently published gave your readers the false impression that seat belts on school buses are dangerous. Such arguments were discredited years ago.

ROBERT A. BURNS, M.D., DALTON, GA.

DEAR ABBY: Obviously "Jennifer from Trenton" has never ridden a school bus equipped with seat belts. In our school district, they have a definite purpose: to keep bodies from flying around in case of an accident. Abby, we'd never use them as weapons!

BECKY FAST AND DANIELLE TORNELLO, MIDDLE SCHOOL STUDENTS FROM ARDSLEY, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: For 30 years I have crashed vehicles and studied roadway collisions and injuries. More than 20 of these years were spent at UCLA's schools of engineering and medicine. Included in these studies were dozens of this country's worst school bus and motor coach accidents.

A few facts:

1. In order to reduce the number of accidents, school bus drivers are generally required to have special driver training and to use seat belts.

2. If any vehicle falls into the water, the seat-belted occupant generally remains conscious. It only takes 3-4 seconds to unlatch a belt.

3. School buses are generally quite safe and accidents cause a small number of deaths; however, a large number of injuries do occur every year. If you doubt this, just ask the oral surgeons' and plastic surgeons' associations who have official records on the number of children injured in school bus accidents.

4. Seat belts can't easily be used to "knock out each other's (students') brains." They are lightweight and are relatively short in length. School books are 10 to 20 times heavier.

But most important—seat belts do work, and the school years are the best time to form good habits. How can we expect adults to use seat belts to reduce injuries if we don't teach our children to use them on school buses?

ARNOLD W. SIEGEL, ACCIDENT RESEARCH AND SAFETY ENGINEER, ENCINO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My school board, District 72 of Skokie, Ill., recently voted to install seat belts on the four new buses it will purchase for September 1984. These belts will protect our children during lateral collisions, bus rollovers and sudden stops. We wish to present a consistent message to our children: Buckle up for safety in all motor vehicles!

LAURA G. SCHWARTZ, SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because you are responsible for this problem.

I am a newlywed widower, age 77, and my bride is 70. She is my second wife and I am her fifth husband. (The Lord released her from her first two and the judge released her from her last two.)

The problem is she cannot understand why I need to sleep alone. Tears and arguments follow when I try to leave her and go into another room to sleep.

That is not to say that we never share a bed. We do. But when it comes to sleeping, I must have my own bed. I am a very restless sleeper who changes positions often, and I feel inhibited from moving if I have to worry about disturbing a bed partner.

I also snore. And when I tried to explain it to my bride, she said, "Dear Abby said, 'Snoring is the sweetest music this side of heaven. Ask any widow.'"

Abby, did you really say that?

TROUBLED BRIDEGROOM

DEAR TROUBLED: I plead guilty as charged.

Low calorie food doesn't have to taste like 'diet'

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

Who says low calorie food has to taste "diet?" Betty Osbin, a Pampa dietician, proved to the Pampa News office staff recently that this just didn't have to be so.

Mrs. Osbin enjoys taking a standard recipe, cutting out as many calories as possible, but without losing its original good taste.

We tried out four of the recipes she had adapted on the office and editorial staff of the paper to get their reaction. Not one person reported they were disappointed in the tastes. In fact, many came back for seconds and thirds.

Tuna Stuffed Tomatoes, Seafood Thermidor and Shish Kebob were each prepared by Mrs. Osbin. I made the Cherry Salad Dessert which was amazingly easy and quick to fix.

Comments on the Seafood Thermidor included "Seems easy to make. Would be perfect with scallops, but cod is OK." "Very Good. Tender cod and light cheese sauce. Isn't too rich!"

Shish Kebob brought such remarks as: "Excellent—tasted as if grilled outside. Turkey sausage not very spicy, but good." "You don't need to put extra seasoning or butter on the corn. Beef is good, but tough. Mushrooms and sausage are super."

Stuffed Tomatoes were hailed with "Very good. Excellent light lunch;" and "Finally, someone besides my mother can fix eatable tuna salad. Tomatoes are a good idea."

And for the Cherry Salad Dessert: "The cherry dessert didn't taste low-cal. It was so sweet!" "The soda and nutrasweet adds extra tartness. Very good." "Excellent. Not as sweet as most. Needs whipped cream."

All the items used in these recipes are available in local stores, usually in the diet food section. Some brand names are used by Mrs. Osbin, but in most cases may be substituted with other brands, except for the "Equal" sugar substitute. She says for her this brand works best, and does not turn bitter.

Following are the four recipes developed by Mrs. Osbin and tested by our staffers.

SHISH KEBOB

MARINADE:
1 pkg. Butter Buds
¼ c. hot water
2 T. Worcestershire sauce
¼ t. onion powder
¼ t. garlic powder
1 T. olive oil
¼ t. black pepper (optional)
Shake or mix butter buds in hot water. When well mixed, add the remaining ingredients, mix well. Marinate beef one hour or over night. Save marinade.
1 lb. extra lean beef, cut into 16 pieces

1 lb. smoked turkey sausage, cut into 16 pieces
1 med. onion cut into 8 wedges (break into 16 pieces)
1 med. green pepper cut into 16 pieces
8 cherry tomatoes
3 celery stalks cut into 16 pieces
16 mushrooms (fresh or canned)
16 shrimp (optional)
2 slices bacon cut lengthwise and then cut into 16 pieces
2 (6 inch) ears corn, cut into eight pieces
Cut onion, pepper and celery to size. Cook in water 5 minutes in the microwave or 10 minutes in sauce pan. Cool slightly.

Wrap bacon pieces around shrimp using toothpick to hold in place. Place meat and vegetables on skewer alternately until all are used. Pour marinade over each kebob and bake in oven at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until beef is done.

These can also be grilled or broiled. They're good any way! (If you want the beef to be more tender, just don't cook it quite as long so that it is medium, or medium rare, or rare, if you prefer. The rarer the meat, however, the more calories.)

This recipe makes eight large kebobs, at about 335 calories each.

Seafood Thermidor is a filling, yet light, seafood dish. Even those at the office who are not big seafood eaters liked it. Although it's easy to make, it would make an impressive entree for a special dinner. Mrs. Osbin says she adapted this recipe from "Couponing Magazine."

SEAFOOD THERMIDOR

1 lb. fresh or frozen cod
1 small onion, quartered
2 lemon slices
1 (10 oz.) can cream of shrimp soup
3 T. flour
¼ c. milk
¼ c. water
1 oz. low calorie Monterey Jack cheese, cut in small pieces
2 T. dry parsley flakes
2 T. bread crumbs
1 T. Parmesan cheese
¼ t. paprika

If cod is frozen, partially thaw and cut in ¼ inch cubes. Discard bones and skin. In a one-quart microwave casserole dish, place onion, lemon and one cup of water. Cover and cook on high for five minutes. Add fish and cook on high until fish flakes (about three minutes).
Remove fish from dish with slotted spoon and set aside. Discard cooking liquid, onion and lemon.

WAIST WATCHERS won't have a thing to worry about when it comes to these four low calorie recipes adapted by dietician Betty Osbin of Pampa. Pictured, clockwise, are Cherry Salad Dessert, Seafood Thermidor, Tuna Stuffed Tomatoes and Shish Kebobs. (Staff photo by Dee Dee Laramore)

In same dish, combine soup, flour, milk and water. Stir until well blended. Heat on high until bubbly, about four minutes. Stir at least twice. Stir in cheese and parsley. Cook uncovered until cheese melts, about 30 seconds. Fold in fish making sure each piece is covered. Microwave uncovered two or three minutes until edges are bubbly. Trim with parsley. Makes four servings at 195 calories each.

TUNA-STUFFED TOMATOES

1 (2 ½ oz.) can water pack tuna, drained
2 T. sweet relish
2 T. low calorie mayonnaise 1 pkg. Equal
2 fresh tomatoes, about 8 ounces each
2 T. finely chopped celery
2 ripe olives
Drain tuna and flake with fork. Add relish, mayonnaise, Equal and celery. Mix well and chill.

To serve, cut tomatoes in eight wedges like a flower, leaving bottom intact. Gently pull each wedge open. Place on a lettuce leaf. Mound tuna in center and garnish with olive. Two servings at 170 calories each.

OPTION: Make tuna sandwiches using very thin sliced wheat bread and lettuce and tomato slice.

Curry rice

¼-pound stick butter
1 small onion, finely chopped (¼ cup)
1 teaspoon (or more) curry powder
2 ¼ to 2 ½ cups water
1 cup converted-type rice
Fresh coriander or parsley, minced

In a 1 ½-quart saucepan melt butter; add onion and, stirring often, cook until golden. Stir in curry powder, then water; bring to a boil. Add rice and cook over very low heat, tightly covered, until rice is tender and water has evaporated—about 20 minutes. Let stand off heat, tightly covered, about 5 minutes. Turn into a heated serving bowl and sprinkle with coriander. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Japanese women form network to boost careers

TOKYO (AP) — Unable to find a job when she got back to Japan after 10 years of college and graduate school in the United States, Mariko Fujiwara went to a placement agency for help. The man she talked to offered neither a job nor very much encouragement.

"He said it was a curse for a Japanese woman to have a sound academic background and advised me to take secretarial courses," she recalls.

"He said I'd be placed at the top of a company (as an executive secretary) and when there was an opening in a section, I could talk the president into letting me apply."

The advice was not uncommon. Secretarial school is one place that aspiring Japanese career women often find themselves. And, beginning a year ago, that is where they began to discover each other.

"Graduates always came back to me for career advice," said Kaoru Furukawa, founder and director of the Women's Institute for New Studies (WINS) where Ms. Fujiwara went to train for a position as a bilingual secretary.

"But until I was in a bookstore in New York and came across a book called 'Networking,' I didn't realize that that's just what I'd been doing," Ms. Furukawa said in an interview.

"After I saw the book, I decided to formalize a network for working women in Japan."

The network — now 200 formal members and a few thousand WINS alumnae seen by Ms. Furukawa as potential members — doesn't run like a traditional men's "old boy network" of school chums and business cronies, mainly because few Japanese women have such connections to exploit.

Rather, its monthly discussions and gatherings function as a meeting ground for women with careers and women who want careers.

At the first meeting in December 1982, Ms. Furukawa brought together some friends with alumnae of her program to discuss women and careers. One panelist was Ms. Fujiwara, who had found a job as a research director at Japan's second largest advertising agency, Hakuhodo.

"I want to encourage women to continue their career by presenting them with role models," Ms. Furukawa said. "I say to them: you're not outsiders."

But network women, if not outsiders in Japanese society, are exceptions.

In 1982, women made up 5.5 percent of all managers and officials, according to Japan's Labor Ministry. Five years ago, women held 24.6 percent of all managerial and administrative posts in the United States, according to a report at a Tokyo conference last year by Marina Horner, president of Radcliffe College in Cambridge, Mass.

The ambitions and expectations of Japanese women may explain some reasons for the small numbers of them involved in business.

A 1983 survey by the Japan Recruitment Center showed that of about 4,400 two- and four-year college students, about 25 percent said they wanted to keep working while getting married and raising families.

"Japanese women are passive," said Ryo Ochiai, a Sony Corporation employee and network member. "They're not brought up to take initiative."

But for women such as Ms. Ochiai, whose parents were both doctors, and who grew up thinking it natural for women to work and take initiatives, the biggest career obstacle is the Japanese employment system.

In Japan, white collar workers almost invariably are hired out of college and commit themselves to one company for their entire careers. It is widely assumed that women will work only briefly, then quit to marry and raise children. Most do, but some don't.

"Some women are willing to take the same attitude toward life and their jobs as men. The companies, however, cannot distinguish those girls," wrote Hiroshi Takeuchi, chief economist of the Long-Term Credit Bank of Japan Ltd., in a 1982 article in the magazine Japan Quarterly.

Takeuchi said female university graduates were expected to work an average of three years and "it is more profitable to make them serve tea ... than take the trouble to train them" for other jobs.

Ms. Furukawa advises her students to avoid tilting at windmills with Japanese firms and take their skills instead to foreign companies where such attitudes may not prevail. But Ms. Ochiai, who established a support group for women workers several years ago at Sony, disagrees.

"My advice to someone starting out would be for her to keep quiet for the first few years in a company and observe what goes on and then to start to challenge the system," Ms. Ochiai said.

Many network members see themselves as part of a growing trend of women in Japan who expect to work throughout their lives.

Ms. Ochiai predicted the "Network for Working Women" will come to resemble the traditional male system as Japanese women gain power and influence — perhaps as early as the year 2000.

Friends of the Library to honor area writers

The Friends of the Pampa Library, in observance of National Library Week, are to host a reception honoring area authors and writers, Sunday, April 8, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. in Lovett Memorial Library.

Authors to be honored include Nova Schubert Bair, Paula Bledsoe Britt, Pauline Durrett Robertson, Margaret Firth-Eagland Scott, Mildred Crabtree Speer, Cleo Tom Terry, Elaine Ledbetter, Aubrey Nooncaster, Eleta Nolte, Mildred Tolbert, Deborah Lawrence, Stan Thorne, Max White and

Elizabeth Carter. Special invitations have also been extended to area journalists and writers.

Others honored at the reception are to be the Lovett Library staff, library board members and the Family of the Year, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lair, Adria and Claudia.

A balloon launch is scheduled for children attending the event in celebration of National Library Week.

The Pampa library board and library staff are also to host a luncheon on Tuesday, April 10, for the city commission and county commission at the library.

The public is invited to attend the reception and help the Friends of the Pampa Library celebrate National Library Week.

And don't forget that it's also time to gather old books for recycling through the Friends of the Pampa Library's annual secondhand book sale.

The Friends are now accepting hardbacks, paperbacks, children's books and specialty magazines for the book sale on May 12 and May 13.

Books and magazines should be in good condition with covers intact and no missing pages.

Those with items to donate may bring them to the Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston, or call 665-3981 for pick up arrangements.

And finally, the cherry salad dessert. I'm probably prejudiced because I made this dish, but I think this must taste better than the original recipe. For those who aren't watching their weight, a dollop of whipped cream would taste delightful, but it's great alone. And I challenge anyone to taste this dish without knowing it is low calorie, and say it was made from low calorie ingredients and a sugar substitute. CHERRY SALAD DESSERT 1 (20 oz.) can Lite cherry pie filling 1 (15 oz.) can pineapple tidbits, in its own juice 12 pkgs. Equal

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

You're the type who is happiest when involved in a variety of activities and projects. Exciting times are ahead this coming year that will be tailored to your temperament.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Devote your efforts today to projects that utilize your mental attributes. You're a quick study and adept at either gaining or imparting knowledge. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year ahead are revealed in your Astro-Graph predictions for the coming year. To get yours, mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your possibilities for improving ways to gain material advantages are good today. Keep your wits about you in your financial dealings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You frequently display a rare ability to juggle two complex situations simultaneously and do a good job on each. This can be one of those days.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep a low profile today in doings within your company or organization. Let others compete for attention or play to the grandstand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A little change of pace will prove refreshing at this time. Try to involve yourself today with companions who don't take themselves too seriously.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Considerable personal satisfaction can be derived today from situations where you use your mental prowess to overcome difficult obstacles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Sometimes it isn't wise to offer unsolicited advice. Today, however, if you have suggestions that could help a pal, speak up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In joint endeavors today, let your counterpart do the heavy lifting while you do the brainwork. Your mind is more efficient than your muscles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might have to make a decision today where the alternatives appear to be of equal value. Let experience influence your judgment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Better communication with coworkers can be established today. Any misunderstandings will now be resolved if brought out into the open.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Recreational breaks are not frivolous pursuits today. They can serve as healthy releases to prevent tensions from building up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a possibility you may have some extra domestic pressures with which to contend today. They'll amount to nil if handled logically, not emotionally.

NL roundup

Phillies open with win

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The defending National League champion Philadelphia Phillies, sporting a revamped lineup, once again relied on a couple of familiar faces on a rainy night in Georgia.

Mike Schmidt smacked a first-inning homer and Steve Carlton pitched seven strong innings as the Phillies — minus Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Gary Matthews, among others — opened defense of their crown Tuesday night with a 5-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

"That's the first time I've ever hit a home run my first at-bat in a season," smiled Schmidt after his solo blast over the center field fence.

Carlton allowed just two singles before Bill Campbell, acquired in March from the Chicago Cubs, pitched the final two innings, yielding two more hits.

"When you shut this club out, you're doing something," gushed Phillies Manager Paul Owens. "I thought it was outstanding."

In other NL openers Tuesday, Rose-paced Montreal topped Houston 4-2. St. Louis clubbed Los Angeles 11-7. Chicago downed San Francisco 5-3 and San Diego beat Pittsburgh 5-1.

Schmidt blasted a 1-0 pitch from Len Barker to get the Phillies rolling. The slugging third baseman said he approached the game with "a lot of anxiety" because he had never faced Barker.

"The home run set the key for the game," Owens said. "There was no doubt from the moment he hit it."

Atlanta Manager Joe Torre was full of praise for Carlton, who is trying to rebound from a 15-16 record in 1983, his first losing season in 10 years.

"Carlton was the game," Torre said. "I don't think we did anything to lose the game. Carlton won the game. It surprised me he had that much control this early."

The 39-year-old left-hander walked one and struck out six, raising his all-time leading strikeout total to 3,715 while winning his 301st career game.

Owens said he took out Carlton because "all we want out of our starters right now is a good seven innings. I think he threw in the 80s (pitches), and that's enough now."

Philadelphia scored twice in the fifth on Len Matuszek's RBI single and a throwing error by right fielder Claudell Washington before adding runs in the sixth, on a double by Bo Diaz, and in the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Garry Maddox.

Expos 4, Astros 2

Pete Rose went 2-for-5 in his Montreal debut while Andre Dawson sliced a run-scoring triple and Miguel Dilone added a two-run single as the Expos scored three times in the eighth inning to snap a 1-1 tie.

Rose, who signed with the Montreal after being released by Philadelphia, now has 3,992 career hits, 199 behind Ty Cobb's record 4,191. The 42-year-old first baseman is trying to atone for a 245 mark in 1983, the lowest average of his major-league career.

Tim Lincecum led off the eighth with a single against Houston starter and loser Joe Niekro. Dawson then followed with his triple down the right field line.

Dilone's bases-loaded hit came after Niekro walked Gary Carter and reliever Bill Dawley intentionally walked pinch hitter Derrel Thomas.

Charlie Lea went seven innings for the victory while Jeff Reardon recorded the final five outs for the save at the Astrodome.

Cardinals 11, Dodgers 7

Darrell Porter and Willie McGee each had three hits, including a home run, as St. Louis raked Fernando Valenzuela and Los Angeles for 17 hits.

The Cardinals, who had hitting woes during spring training, pounded Valenzuela for six runs on eight hits in his three-plus innings.

Porter belted a solo homer in the second and contributed an RBI triple during a five-run fourth. McGee's two-run homer came in the eighth.

Reliever Danny Cox pitched four scoreless innings for the victory and Bruce Sutter blanked Los Angeles with three hitless innings for a save.

Cubs 5, Giants 3

Keith Moreland and Ron Cey each homered as

Chicago, with a new look under new Manager Jim Frey, sent host San Francisco to its fifth consecutive opening-day loss.

The Cubs got 12 hits, including two doubles and a single by Larry Bowa and a two-run double by Jody Davis.

Chicago left fielder Gary Matthews, acquired from Philadelphia in March, batted third and went 1-for-3 while scoring a run. Center fielder Bob Dernier, part of the Matthews trade, batted leadoff and was 1-for-4.

Little league tryout continue

Little League tryouts continue into their third day today with 243 new players having signed up earlier this week, according to Jim Pepper, president of the American Little League.

"We have had 132 new girls and 111 new boys sign up," Pepper said. "We would like for all boys 9 through 12 and girls 9 through 15 who have not yet signed up to come today and tomorrow at 5:30 p.m."

Pepper says that the American Little League will have a new sponsorship this year, Vance Hall Sporting Goods, which will be managed by Willis Watson and coached by Harley Knutson. Citizens Bank & Trust Co. will see Blaine Smyth as manager and Phil Savage and Mike Woelfle as coaches.

Gary Coleman returns as manager of One Bull Ranch with Mike Summers and Fred Jara as coaches.

Nelson Medley and Todd Rithaler will work with Wilmart.

Robert Morris and Dannie Cable will head Dean's Pharmacy.

Defending city champion Chase Oilfield will have Dave Brummett as manager again with Rick Harris as coach.

Keys Pharmacy will have a new manager, Rex Britton, and will be coached by Rick Fritz. Ronnie Haynes will serve as manager of Rotary Club again with Allen Snapp as coach.

One Bull Ranch is the defending American League champion.

Pampa golfers win 4th district round

BORGER—Battling gusts up to 50 mph, the Pampa boys' golf team moved closer to a District 1-4A championship with an eight-stroke win over Borger in the fourth district round Tuesday at the Borger Country Club.

Pampa, winner of all four district meets, was led by medalist David Fatheree's 76. Teammates Paul McIntire and David Snuggs followed with an 81.

Pampa shot a 324 for a four-round total of 1,290. Borger had a 332 for a 1,351 four-round total.

Ryan Crosier had an 86 and Derik Dalton 89 for the Harvesters.

Pampa's B team placed third with a 365. The Shockers have a 1,390 total. Craig Chapin led Pampa B with an 83, followed by Clay Jett with a 90, Dyran Crosier 95, Reid Sidwell 97 and Johnny Snuggs 98.

Pampa will compete in the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday. The next district round will be played April 13 at Brownfield.

Team Totals (after 4 rounds)
1. Pampa, 324-1,290; 2. Borger, 332-1,351; 3. Pampa B, 365, 1,390; 4. Canyon, 350-1,393; 5. Borger B, 402-1,519; 6. Levelland, 422-1,529; 7. Canyon B, 384-1,531; 8. Dumas, 382-1,547; 9. Brownfield, 400-1,611.

Winborn nominated for high school All-America honors

Coyle Winborn, who helped lead the Pampa Harvesters to an unbeaten district season, has been nominated to the 1984 Converse National High School Basketball All-America squad.

Carey E. McDonald, Executive Director of the National High School Athletic Coaches' Association, made the announcement Tuesday.

No more than five nominees are submitted from each state by the high school coaches.

If Winborn makes the team, he will be honored with an award plaque, as will Pampa High School Winborn was recently named the top college basketball prospect in the state by the Dallas News.

The All-America roster will be announced in mid-April.

"It's really quite an honor to be nominated," said Pampa Coach Garland Nichols. "Converse picks only the best high school players in the nation for the team."

Winborn, a 6-7 senior, was recently named to the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches' Class 5A First-Team All-State Team. He averaged 21.8 points and 12.7 rebounds for the District 1-4A champions this season.

Other first-team picks were Todd Alexander,

Waxahachie; Kevin Bush, Port Arthur Lincoln; Roger Durdin, Flour Bluff and Carl Jackson, Bay City.

Second-team picks were Chris Hall, Cleburne; Dennis Smith, Waco Midway; Darrell McArthur, Silsbee; Billy Giggins, Dallas Lincoln; William Smith, Mansfield.

Third-team picks were Joe Baker, Kerrville Tivy; Clay Tarver, San Antonio Alamo Heights; Derek Young, Port Arthur Lincoln; Brian Dial, Wichita Falls Hirsch; Michael Johnson, Jacksonville.

Winborn's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Coyle Winborn Sr.

Lady Harvesters place third at golf meet

BORGER—Pampa shot a 459 to place third in the fifth round of District 1-4A girls' golf action Tuesday at the Borger Country Club.

Overall, the Lady Harvesters are just one shot behind second-place Borger going into the final district round Friday at Dumas. The top two teams advance to regionals.

Borger A won yesterday's match with a 456. Dumas finished fourth with a 468, but is still in first place in the overall standings.

Jessica Baker led Pampa with a 107, followed Beth Redell 111, Diana Ma 113, Wendy Winborn 128 and Mary Cross 128.

"I thought the girls played real well, considering they had to play in very high winds and cold weather," said Pampa Coach Frank McCullough. "We stayed close to Borger, giving us a good shot to advance to regionals."

Audra Parker won medalist honors with a 103. Miss Parker's overall 440 total leads the medalist standings. Amy McDougall of Dumas is second with a 470. Pampa's Jessica Baker and Diana Ma are tied for third at 486.

In singles play yesterday, Pampa's Melanie Warner shot a 125 and Jan Marik had a 159.

Pampa's B team shot a 570, but doesn't qualify for a team for the district tournament. Kim Harris led Pampa B with a 124, followed by Ann Duncan 142, Kelly Finkenbinder 146, Lisa Coon 158 and Leigh Harnley 161.

Team Totals (after 5 rounds)
1. Dumas 468-1,946; 2. Borger 457-2,015; 3. Pampa 459-2,016; 4. Borger B 458-2,105; 5. Levelland 496-2,164.

Lady Harvesters entered in District 1-4A track meet

The District 1-4A girls' track meet is scheduled for Thursday at Borger, and several Pampa athletes have an excellent chance of advancing to the regionals, according to Coach Bill Balcom.

"We should be in the running with Lubbock Estacado and Borger for first place," said Balcom. "I look for us to come through in pretty good shape because there's eight teams entered and the points should be spread out. We might be able to take up the slack in some events. We could sneak in second, or possibly first."

Pampa appears strongest in the relay events. The 1600-meter relay team of Sandy Greenway, Tina Greenway, Beverly Payne and Kristi Hughes have the panhandle's third-best time (4:10.3). The 400-meter relay team (the Greenways, Courtney Brown, Jackie Osby) are ranked sixth with a time of 51.4.

The Greenway sisters have good shots in the 400 and 800 runs. Tina has the panhandle's fifth best time (6:21) in the 400. Sandi is unranked in the panhandle, but she could be one of the best in the district.

Courtney Brown, Osby and Lyssa Dunnam could also place high in the sprints.

High jumper Kristi Hughes and Stacy Bennett and Andrea Hopkins in the discus and shot put are Pampa's top hopes in the field events.

Tomorrow's meet starts at 10:30 a.m.

The Lady Harvesters competed in the North 4A Girls' Relays last weekend at Borger and finished second with 154 points. Borger won with 236 points and Canyon was third with 18.

FILING SHORT FORM NOT SIMPLE," SAYS H & R BLOCK

Two different short forms and new deductions make short form filing more complicated this year.

You may not be eligible or it may not be to your advantage to file one of the two short forms. The short forms, including the new 1040EZ, can only be used by taxpayers meeting certain strict requirements. You are limited in deductions on the short forms. Using the wrong form could cost you money, or even mean an audit.

You will have peace of mind in knowing H & R Block's personal, courteous, and competent service is yours... at a very reasonable price. One Day Service is also available for your convenience at any H & R Block office.

H & R Block's tax preparers are trained to know which of the forms - 1040EZ, 1040A, 1040 - gives you the maximum tax advantage for your individual requirements.

See your telephone directory for the office nearest you or call 665-2161

Uncover hidden cash with CLASSIFIED!

SPECIAL NOTICES

SCOTTISH Rite Meeting, 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 6, Masonic Temple, 900 Wilco Bldg., Midland, Texas 79701 has made application for a spacing exception permit under the provisions of 16 Texas Administrative Code No. 3.37 (Railroad Commission Statute Rule 37.3) to drill Well No. 1, Gili "E" Lease, 640 Acres, Section 7, Block M-2, H&GN Survey, Locke (Tract), Dolomite, Hamon Locke (Granite Wash), Shrikey (Morrow) and Wildcat Fields, Roberts County, being 4 miles in an east direction from Miami, Texas. The location of this well is as follows: 760' from north line and 760' from west line of lease and survey. This well is to be cased at an approximate depth of 11,900 feet. PURSUANT to the terms of Railroad Commission Statute Rule 37 (b) (2) (A), this permit may be granted administratively if no protest to the application is received. An offset mineral interest owner and leasee is interested in this application. They must be prepared to appear at a hearing either in person or by qualified representative and protest this application through cross-examination or presentation of a direct case subject to all applicable rules of evidence. If a hearing is called, the burden of proof of the need for an exception is placed on the applicant. A protest should be prepared, however, to establish standing to protest as an affected person, if challenged. If you have any questions regarding standing or other matters, please contact the Commission at (512) 445-1308. IF YOU WISH TO REQUEST A HEARING ON THIS APPLICATION, YOU MUST FILL OUT, SIGN AND MAIL OR DELIVER TO THE AUSTIN OFFICE OF THE RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS NOT A COPY TO APPEAR IN PROTEST. A COPY OF THE INTENT TO APPEAR IN PROTEST IS REQUIRED BY SAID DATE. THE REQUESTED PERMIT WILL BE GRANTED ADMINISTRATIVELY TO BE EFFECTIVE THE FOLLOWING DAY. THIS NOTICE OF APPLICATION REQUIRES PUBLICATION H-61 April 4, 11, 18, 25, 1984

SOVIET BATTLE FLEET IN ATLANTIC—An aerial view of the 22,000 ton nuclear-powered Soviet Battle cruiser Kirov taken during her sea trials in 1981. The cruiser is reported by the British Defense Ministry to be leading a large Soviet task force in the north Atlantic on exercises. The battle fleet, according to a spokesman, includes 23 warships, five supply vessels, an amphibious ship and a large number of submarines. (AP Laserphoto)

Large Soviet fleet in North Atlantic

LONDON (AP) — A NATO official says more than 200 Soviet naval vessels, led by the nuclear-powered battle cruiser Kirov and including an estimated 20 submarines, are taking part in what may be the biggest Soviet sea exercise ever.

He said the maneuvers in the North Atlantic and the Norwegian Sea were intended to demonstrate the Soviets' ability "to protect the homeland."

The NATO naval source in London said Tuesday night that the exercise included battle groups from two Soviet fleets and surpassed any previous show of Soviet naval strength in the Atlantic.

But he said it was believed to be "primarily of a defensive nature." A main object of the games, expected to end next week, is to test Soviet anti-submarine capabilities, he added.

The source, who asked not to be named, said the maneuvers involved ships from the Soviets' "Red Banner" Northern and Baltic fleets.

At least 25 major surface warships, led by the 22,000-ton Kirov, are at sea from Norway's North Cape to the Faroe Islands north of Scotland, the source said. They are supported by amphibious warfare ships, auxiliary supply vessels and submarines.

U.S. officials said Tuesday the exercises involved at least 100 warships.

A "significant" number of Soviet warplanes, including the new strategic Tupolev bomber codenamed "Blackjack" by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, are involved, the NATO source reported.

British naval intelligence sources, who asked not to be identified, said the exercise is designed to test defenses around the Kola peninsula adjoining Norway's border with the Soviet Union and the big naval base at Murmansk and to test the Kremlin's command control of far-flung naval operations.

The United States is carrying out exercises called Global Shield '84 coincidental to the Soviet exercises, Marine Maj. Jim Pisciotto, a Pentagon spokesman, said Tuesday night. But he said these war games by the Strategic Air Command had been planned for several months.

Other Defense Department officials stressed that the U.S. exercises have no connection to the Soviet sea maneuvers.

The U.S. exercise calls for the air force to launch two intercontinental ballistic missiles, scramble its B-52 bombers, fire an air-launched cruise missile and drop dummy bombs, Pisciotto said. At the same time, key military officers and government officials will speed to alternate command posts where they can ride out a mock attack.

Officials denied the Soviet maneuvers caught Western allies napping. Sources said the ships were under surveillance almost from the moment they left port. What seems to have come as a surprise was the speed with which the Soviets got their fleets to sea.

Churchill's war rooms tourist attraction

LONDON (AP) — The underground bunker where Sir Winston Churchill and his top aides directed much of World War II is about to become London's newest tourist attraction.

After a two-year, $2 million refurbishing, Churchill's Cabinet War Rooms will open to the public Friday. The complex is expected to attract up to 250,000 visitors a year.

The labyrinth of conference rooms, map rooms, bedrooms and long, narrow corridors lies 10 feet below ground in the basement of a government office building at the end of King Charles Street, about a block from 10 Downing Street, the official residence of prime ministers.

Built beneath a three-foot slab of reinforced concrete, the rooms protected Churchill, his War Cabinet and military chiefs of staff from German bombing raids.

It was from here that Churchill broadcast some of his famous wartime speeches and presided over one-tenth of the Cabinet meetings held during the war.

Using contemporary photographs, historians at the Imperial War Museum, custodians of the complex, painstakingly restored 19 rooms for public viewing. In the process, they revealed some secrets.

For example, Churchill had a special cubicle for making trans-Atlantic calls to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. A clock on the wall shows Washington and London time, and a half-burned candle stands beside the black hot-line telephone.

The room was so secret that Churchill had it disguised as a bathroom, with an engaged vacant sign on the door. "The whole place is a bit of a curiosity," curator Jon Wenzel said in an interview during a press preview. "It is a good reflection of how Britain fought the war, entering unprepared and making the most of what was available."

Wartime chairs, desks, wall fans, telephones and typewriters have been put back where they were left, giving the rooms the appearance of having been occupied only minutes ago.

Ink pots, teacups and other items found in the bunker — including Churchill's .45-caliber pistol, chrome-plated helmet and chamberpot — are on display. A weather sign that always said "windy" during air raids hangs from one wall. Hundreds of documents, many of them yellowing with age, are stacked on desks and tables.

"All the documents were found here," said Judith Donald, an assistant to the curator. "There was a vast amount of paperwork down here."

One document was a mock secret memo sent by the 20 secretaries and typists who worked in the bunker. Dated May 9, 1942, it was an urgent request for large quantities of "silk stockings, chocolates and cosmetics" and suggests using "U.S. resources" to get them. Another memo indicates an officer was successful in obtaining the items on a trip to Washington.

Throughout the basement, clocks are frozen at one minute before 5 o'clock and calendars are turned to Oct. 15, 1940 — the time of one of 100 War Cabinet meetings held in the bunker between the outbreak of war with Germany in 1939 and the Japanese surrender in 1945.

In the Cabinet Room, tables covered in green baize are arranged to seat 25 people.

Behind the prime minister's chair is a sand-filled fire bucket for his cigar butts.

"We know for sure he spent three nights down here," Wenzel said. "But he didn't like sleeping downstairs. What he liked to do was go up onto the roof and watch the German bombs."

Admission to the Cabinet War Rooms is $2.90 for adults and $1.45 for children.

Roadblocks are urged for drunken drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety panel, concluding that strict laws alone have not done enough to deter drunken drivers, is calling for nationwide use of police roadblocks to ferret out motorists who have had too much alcohol.

The National Transportation Safety Board, in letters to the nation's governors, urged that so-called police "sobriety checkpoints" be used in all 50 states because it may be one of the few deterrents people will take to heart.

The roadblocks have been used sporadically in 20 states in recent years, although often just for short periods of time or limited to specific counties.

But the tactic, while lauded by many police officials, also has been criticized as an expensive drain on police manpower that uncovers relatively few drunken drivers and has been found to be unworkable if not done with precision and speed.

The roadblocks also have been challenged as being unconstitutional.
