Less spent on basics in Texas

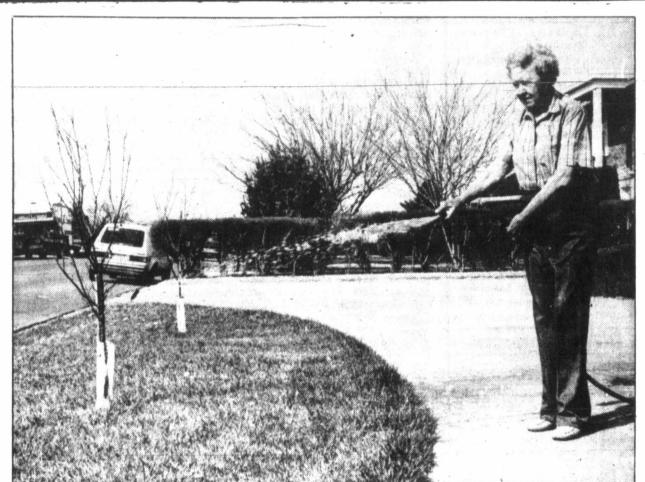

AUSTIN (AP) - A sample study of -Texas schools shows less money is being spent for instruction in basic studies than for other studies including vocational education, sports and special education, the Texas Research League said today.

Dr. Jared E. Hazleton, president of the privately funded research group, said the study, which was requested by -the Select Committee on Public Education, focuses on 20 school districts but the preliminary report released today was based on partial - data from only 12 of those districts.

'The percentage of instructional salary costs devoted to the core academic curriculum in the sample "high schools ranged from 12 percent to 48 percent, "the report said

Hazleton said the "core academic curriculum" include all courses in English, mathematics, science, social studies and foreign languages.

"On the average, the rest of the high school instructional dollar broke down this way: 25 percent for vocational education, 13 percent for electives, 10 •percent for competitive sports. 7 percent for special and compensatory education and 5 percent for health and physical education," the report said.

Ruling hits small gas producers

Court orders rebates for pipeline companies, distributors

DALLAS (AP) — Small natural gas producers could be hardest hit by a · Supreme Court decision forcing rebates to pipeline companies and distributors, an industry official says

In addition, the $1 billion estimated to *be returned to consumers under the decision will amount to "pretty small peanuts" to the average natural gas customer, a pipeline distributor said.

The reaction came Tuesday as industry officials began calculating the impact of the high court decision forcing them back to a previously abandoned pricing structure. The justices on Monday left intact a lowercourt ruling scrapping the gas pricing structure created by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission four . years ago

The lecision is expected to save natural gas customers about $1 billion immediately and hundreds of millions in lower heating bills in the future. Gas producers who had been charging higher prices under the new system were ordered to refund the difference between the new price and the old price.

Dallas-based Diamond Shamrock Co charged the higher rates but kept the difference - about $3 million - in a special account, spokesman Roger Schrum said

"As soon as the new price structure came out in 1980 it was involved in a legal battle so we put all the monies into a contingency fund pending the outcome of court action. The money won't have to come from our earnings. said Schrum

"But I don't think a lot of the small producers did that." Schrum said 'Small producers work on a shoestring and have to use every dollar they get lown the road (small) producers hurt very badly

Bob Wells, a spokesman for Houston-based Coastal Corp., said his company had not yet learned details of

"It's too soon to calculate the thing entirely. We think we'll be recovering on a retroactive basis about $30 million from producers, and that will flow right through to consumers," said Wells.

But to the average gas customer Wells said, the effect will be minimal. "A billion dollars is pretty small peanuts as far as total gas bill for the nation is concerned." he said. Texas consumers would not notice much difference in their bills, but customers at the other end of the pipeline, such as in the Northeast, could notice some difference," one Houston

executive said

The justices, with one recorded dissent, left intact a ruling that the FERC acted illegally when in 1980 it changed the system of calculating how much pipeline companies pay gas producers. The change centered on measuring the energy content of gas in terms of British thermal units, the amount of energy needed to raise the temperature of water by one degree

Fahrenheit. The previous pricing system understated the BTU total in natural gas and, therefore, tended to lower the price that could be charged.

Some producers, such as Texas Oil and Gas Co., stuck with the old pricing system until the issue was resolved. said spokesman Mike Dixon

The new system, which was made retroactive to 1978 when implemented. was a more accurate pricing structure but had the effect of raising the BTU count and the total price

Natural gas pipeline companies challenged the new system, and the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington struck it down last Aug. 9. saving Congress never has shown any intention of raising natural gas prices 'as much as possible

In seeking Supreme Court review, the producers argued the appeals court misread Congress' intent in passing the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978

Schrum said gas producers were disappointed in the ruling because we're going back to something we felt was not the proper way to price natural

Mondale blunts surge of Hart with Illinois win

Mondale, blunting Gary Hart's momentum and predicting "a long tough race ahead" before the Democratic presidential nomination is settled, moves from his Illinois primary victory into a batch of big state contests led by New York

By winning in Illinois on Tuesday, Mondale took the biggest primary prize so far and boosted his comeback after a string of early primary loses to Hart in New England and Florida Mondale also won caucuses Tuesday in his home state of Minnesota.

But both Mondale and Hart noted that the road to San Francisco and the party's nomination is destined to be 'The debate has just begun." said Mondale, dismissing a suggestion that he has once again assumed the front-runner status that crumbled in New England. "I have a long way to go before I'm nominated.

Hart conceded that Mondale won a "a significant primary" in Illinois but said he would battle the former vice president in a series of industrial-state contests coming up in Connecticut. New York and Pennsylvania.

'As he is, I'm prepared to go on to Connecticut, New York and beyond, the Colorado senator said

The Rev. Jesse Jackson drew 21 percent of the vote, compared to Mondale's 41 percent and Hart's 35 percent. But nine of every 10 of Jackson's votes came from blacks. belving his claim that women Hispanics and other minorities will eventually join in a "rainbow coalition" to win him the nomination.

Among blacks generally, 70 percent voted for Jackson, television networks' exit polling showed, while Mondale led Hart for the remainder.

Nonetheless, Jackson said he would press on and insisted there is a now a three-man race for the nomination.

'This is a three-man race,' said Jackson. "And the only way it'll be a two-man race is if Mondale or Hart

School purchases football equipment

Staff Writer

Members of the board of trustees of the Pampa Independent School District awarded bids for new football equipment, accepted recommendations for new textbooks and approved contract renewals for staff and teachers at its meeting Tuesday night.

Bids totaling approximately $17,600 were awarded to six sports stores for the purchase of new football equipment and supplies for the 1984-1985 school year for Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School

Supt. James Trusty said the bulk purchasing by bids "will certainly save us money in the long run" instead of making piecemeal purchases throughout the year as in the past.

Athletic Director Bill Balcolm, who made final recommendations on the bids, said the school system spent about $15,500 on football equipment purchases for this school year. The more than Balcolm said probable rescheduling of some athletic events next year and other changes will result in some budget decreases allowing for the equipment purchase price increase. One of the reasons for the $2,000 hike is the need to buy "badly needed" football helmets for PMS, he said

Board members accepted the recommendations of the Textbook Committee concerning purchase of new textbooks in subject areas of English, reading, algebra, geometry. trigonometry, world history studies, French, Latin, vocational agriculture marketing and distributive education and metal trades. The selections were made from state-approved textbooks.

Supt. Trusty said committee members had been studying the textbooks since November. "A great textbook selections, he said, commending the committee members for their efforts

The quality of the textbooks overall is good." said John English, assistant superintendent

Among the approved texts were supplemental readers to be used in grades 1-3 for students needing to reinforce reading skills. None of the 20 passengers aboard the bus was injured, said officials, although a woman wth a history of heart problems was taken to Kingman Regional Hospital after complaining of chest pains and shortness of breath.

Marie Osby, 56. Shamrock, Texas, was listed in stable condition at the hospital, where she was being held for observation, said officials. The alleged gunman, who held a 20-year-old woman hostage briefly before he was disarmed, was identified by Mohave County sheriff's deputies as Robert M. Petticord, 38. Whitehall, Ohio.

Petticord was being held in the county jail in Kingman on 20 counts of aggravated assault and 20 counts of kidnapping, said sheriff's Detective Evan Williams.

'He was kind of crazy. He said he had a hearing problem. He said everybody was talking about him and it insulted him," said Dan Albrizio, 27, of Enfield, Cnn., who took a 38-caliber revolver from the gunman as the driver wrestled him to the floor of the

McIlhany claims judicial immunity in federal suit

BY JEFF LANGLEY Senior Staff Writer

You just can't sue a sitting judge based on his judicious acts - or even injudicious acts - a local judge who wants out of a $400,000 federal lawsuit has pleaded. * 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany, 65, of Wheeler, has filed a motion to dismiss the lawsuit, which the Texas Civil Liberties Union brought against the judge in response to a 30 day jail term he gave a woman for writing a critical letter. The federal lawsuit was filed Feb. 13 in U.S. District Court in Amarillo on behalf of Doris Adams, 51, of Miami. Judge McIlhany sentenced Adams to 30 days in jail last Oct. 7, because he said her letter accused him of being a "taker

The TCLU lawsuit claims McIlhany

"acted wholly outside his authority and jurisdiction," when he jailed Adams for contempt of court

In McIlhany's response to the suit, which was filed on Friday, he asked Federal Judge Mary Lou Robinson to dismiss the case, citing judicial immunity

"Judges are immune from liability for their judicial acts so long as those acts are not performed in a clear absence of jurisdiction," McIlhany's motion to dismiss pleads. The state district judge ordered Adams, a divorced mother of six, to show up in his Roberts County courtroom for the October hearing and explain why, if she could, she shouldn't be punished for writing the letter. Adams didn't have a lawyer at the short hearing. After reading the letter aloud, McIlhany said, "That's good enough for me," and ordered the letter writer jailed for 30 days. She served 28 days of the sentence

Adams' letter complained about the way the judge and Roberts County lawmen had treated her sons in connection with a wide variety of criminal charges against them.

"The law stinks and stinks bad." the complaining mother wrote to

"The only way you can win with the law anymore is if you can buy your way out, and it's done every day. You know I can't pay, so you stick my boys good," Adams' letter continued

Judge McIlhany interpreted the latter statement as a bribery accusation and words that merit 30 days in jail

Austin TCLU spokesman James

The lawyer whom Adams phoned, Harold Comer of Pampa, has confirmed that he discussed the situation with the letter writer. Comer has told the Pampa News that McIlhany once appointed him to defend one of her sons on a charge of burglary with intent to commit rape (a charge later dismissed), but that he refused to represent Mrs. Adams at the contempt

Pampa teachers set discussion on education committee report

Association has given its qualified support to the Select Committee on Public Education's proposals to extend the length of the school year, but called the blue ribbon panel's failure to address the 1984-1985 salary increases for Texas teachers 'appalling

Meeting in Austin Friday, TSTA's policy-making State Executive Committee reacted to the preliminary report approved March 15 by the Select Committee, chaired by H. Ross Perot of

The state committee will seek public opinion and issue a final report in approximately the next four to six weeks to be considered by Gov. Mark White and the Texas Legislature if a special legislative session is called.

The local chapter of TSTA, the Pampa Association of Educators, will conduct a meeting for all its members at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Pampa High School library. Among the items to be discussed will be the report of the Select Committee on Public Education

Daniel Barker, PAE local president was able to secure a complete copy of the special report and will have copies available for all in attendance. New salary schedules proposed by the State Board of Education will also be distributed and discussed.

The Executive Committee of TSTA. the state's largest education association with 95,000 members. stated the association could support the Perot committee's recommendation to extend the school year by ten days only if "additional funds are made available for the necessary 24 percent across-the-board pay raise on the current 175-day instructional year.

TSTA also wants assurances that classrooms be adequately air-conditioned if necessary in order to provide "optimum learning conditions.

TSTA opposes lengthening the regular work day of certified professional teachers because "if the interruptions are eliminated from the current school day, a sufficient amount of instructional time may be available without extra hours after school.

Though TSTA supports increasing the minimum starting teachers salary from the current $11,100 to $16,000, the association's Executive Committee said it "recognizes" the Select Committee's recommendation to increase the base starting pay to $15,200 is a significant increase.

"But the committee's failure to address the issue of salary increases is appalling to Texas educators," said TSTA President Dale Young. "The report does not even mention a salary schedule of any kind, let alone address salary increases for teachers who have already been asked to wait too long.

'One of the original and primary purposes of this committee was to develop a plan to compensate teachers already in the profession and to attract the very best candidates into the education profession. TSTA absolutely insists that this most important issue be seriously addressed.

In other action, the TSTA leaders voted to oppose another committee recommendation to significantly change the way the state funds minimum teacher salaries. TSTA officials said it clearly could result in providing local school districts with a substantial financial incentive to hire inexperienced teachers instead of experienced teachers with advanced degrees

Young said the current system of funding, in effect, encourages local school districts to hire experienced teachers with advanced training and education. To change the system 'could result in a real setback in the effort to achieve excellence in our schools.

The TSTA Executive Committee also went on record in opposition to the Select Committee's recommendation to administer various competency tests to current teachers and administrators because there is no test that can effectively identify incompetency among the state's educators.

"Administering a test will not provide the information the committee and the public wish to have. No tests now exist that will achieve what the committee apparently wants," Young

Instead of using "paper and pencil tests," TSTA favors an effective and comprehensive evaluation process to accurately identify "incompetent" teachers who may need to be removed from teaching without significant improvement in their performances.

The association's policy-making group also opposes the version of a 'career ladder" plan recommended by the Select Committee. The members agreed it could support such a plan if it included "multi-criteria" for moving from one level to the next and if upward movement within each of the four levels being proposed is "based on years of

Prayer amendment supporters vow they'll fight another day

Reagan and other backers of a rejected constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools vow they'll return another day to wage another battle

Senate leaders, however, say it's unlikely the politically sensitive issue can be brought up again this year even in a different form

The Senate on Tuesday ended more than two weeks of debate by turning down the proposal, which Reagan had lobbied for, on a 56-44 roll call. That was 11 votes short of the two-thirds majority required for a constitutional Supporters talked of several possible routes to revive the debate: another try at winning support for a silent-prayer-only amendment, already rejected once by the Senate; and a proposal to limit jurisdiction of federal courts on matters like prayer.

The proposed amendment read: "Nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayer in public schools or other public institutions. "I can do a lot of things and I'm physically capable to handling any kind of job," Bishop said. His last job here was as a truck driver with C&C Oilfield Service. Married and the father of one child. Bishop can be contacted through the Texas Employment Commission office in Pampa, Hofheinz estate auction brings in $3.1 million

HOUSTON (AP) — The estate of Roy Hofheinz, the flamboyant Harris County judge who pushed for construction of the Astrodome, attracted 7,000 bidders and brought in $3.1 million, an auctioneer said.

The seven-day auction that ended Sunday included more than 2,000 items and was "far and away the biggest sale held in Houston," said auctioneer Jerry Hart, who owns the gallery where the auction was held.

"The bottom line should come out at $3.1 million, give or take $50,000," said

Fetching the largest price was a Gustave Dentzel menagerie carrousel that sold for $325,000.

Other pricey items on the auction block included a Francois Linke cabinet sold for $175,000 to a buyer who paid $45,000 for a Linke desk and $25,000 for a Linke pedestal.

A brass floor-mounted 19th century telescope sold for $5,000.

Slot machines also fetched good prices. A rare double Caille slot machine sold for $21,000 and others averaged $2,500. Two eight-foot-tall marble dogs were auctioned for $55,000 and may be placed on view in Galveston, said Hart. He said a walnut bedroom suite was purchased for $8,500 and is to be placed in a Hart said he was surprised at the high prices offered for some of the baseball memorabilia and antique telescopes, most of which were purchased by men.

"This was a good example of men turning into boys," he said.

Hart said the auction triggered some of the most heated bidding battles I've been in the middle of."

Board Vice President Mary Braswell presented a certificate of commendation to Parrish Potts, PHS valedictorian. The certificate noted his recognition as "an outstanding student" by other students and the administration, praised his 'exemplary standards' and leadership, and commended his musicianship skills, exemplified by his being selected to the All-Region Band for four years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Potts, both teachers in the Pampa public school system. Jerry Haralson, business manager and tax assessor-collector, presented a status report on the school budget for the year. He said $7,144,630.07 in revenue has been received to date, or 68 percent of budgeted revenues, with expenditures of $6,508,635.16, or 65 percent of budgeted expenditures. Both are about normal for this time of year. he said.

Haralson also reported about $4,492,000 in school property taxes had been collected as of Monday. This is 99.7 percent of the amount budgeted, he

Production that is more than the market can absorb has caused prices to drop for both catfish and crawfish, and some of the aquafarmers are looking for more profitable critters to grow in

'As long as the Texas market for crawfish and catfish is as it is, with the lax economy, we have overproduction for what the market can bear." Nederland restaurant owner Joe Heinen told Beaumont Enterprise environmental writer Kevin Carmody.

Heinen has 600 acres of ponds used to raise crawfish, but he said Louisiana farmers in recent years have more than doubled their ponds, to a total of 100,000

Experts estimate that at least 100 million crawfish will be harvested this vear in Texas and Louisiana. That's a lot of mudbugs, as crawfish are called, and the market is flooded with the Heinen said he believes "the market is out there", but he said it will have to be developed through more effective distribution and marketing.

Catfish farmers also are having problems, principally because of overproduction from Mississippi, the nation's catfish capital.

"Catfish (prices) have been in a depression about a year," said Charles Free, owner of the Galilee Fish Farms in Anahuac "With the oversupply in Mississippi, they could process them and ship them to Texas cheaper than you could raise them here.

Free said that whoever gets into catfish farming now "needs to be heavily capitalized. The interest clock is ticking for the two years it takes to sell a first crop." Some entrepreneurs who pioneered aquafarming in this area are looking at Another type of shellfish, called prawns, also looks promising. according to Robert Nailon; county extension agent-marine in Chambers and Jefferson Counties.

"If the demand and price of marine Gulf shrimp keep going up and the stock keeps going down, this would provide an alternative," said Nailon.

Kerr article was based on facts

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - An El Paso Times reporter has testified that before he wrote a 1978 column claiming former Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr lied to a federal jury, he thought the federal prosecutor was a good attorney. "I liked his style," said Ronald. Dusek. "I thought he was good."

But Dusek said he questioned a statement made by Kerr to a jury in 1978 because "I always have questions. It's my job.

Dusek was the first witness called Tuesday in the trial of a $40 million libel lawsuit filed by Kerr in 1979 against The El Paso Times

Dusek said the column he wrote charging that Kerr lied to a federal jury. was an opinion based on fact and not an attempt to characterize the federal prosecutor as a habitual liar.

"I wrote this article to express my opinion," said Dusek. "I'm not the actor. Mr. Kerr is the actor. I just report what he does. That is my sole purpose. I gave my opinion and I substantiated my opinion with facts."

Kerr's lawsuit alleges a column written by Dusek and published by the daily newspaper Aug. 6, 1978, which stated "Kerr lied" during a drug conspiracy trial, was "false, libelous and libelous per se."

Kerr also contends in the lawsuit that the column implied he cheated while performing his duties as federal

The article, entitled "Federal System Less Than Just?," was written by Dusek while he was a reporter for the Times in El Paso. Dusek, 35, currently is the Times capital reporter in Austin

In the column, which appeared in a Sunday edition of the Times on the newspaper's commentary page. Dusek wrote that "Kerr lied" when he told a jury hearing a drug conspiracy case that one of the defendants in the trial had admitted to being the money man for financial backers for drugsmuggling.

According to court records, the defendant's alleged confession was made to a paid informant, Richard George Gross, and a government undercover agent.

FRANKLIN, Texas (AP) -After hearing Billie Sol Estes on the record for the first time in the 23 years since Henry Marshall's "suicide." a Robertson County grand jury has ruled that the agriculture official was murdered but that there is no one left alive to indict.

Marshall, 51, then an employee of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. was found dead on his ranch near Franklin with five bullet wounds in his side in June 1961. His own 22-caliber, bolt-action rifle was found near his body. His death was ruled a suicide.

"He wasn't there (at Marshall's death), but he knew what happened," Paschall said Tuesday of Estes. "The ideal thing would have been for Estes to testify 22 years ago. But if he had, he would have been a dead

Texas Ranger Clint Peoples said he was convinced that Marshall was murdered because he knew about a swindling scheme that later resulted in a prison sentence

"It is my personal opinion that it would have been beneficial to a vast number of shady operators for Mr. Henry Marshall to have been disposed of," Peoples said in his' book, "Captain Clint Peoples - Texas Ranger.

Peoples, who investigated the case in 1962, also testified before the grand jury on Tuesday. He arrived at the courthouse carrying the gun that fired the fatal shots.

"If he comes up here and says 'I'm the one who killed him,' we're out the window. But if it was a homicide, let's find out.

In a brief statement issued after the Tuesday session, the grand jury said the death was a homicide, but that those involved are dead and "therefore, it is not possible for the grand jury to return an indictment. The Marshall case received national attention in 1963 when then-Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman said Marshall had been a 'key figure'' in an investigation of Estes, a one-time confidant of Lyndon

He began serving a 15-year prison sentence in 1965 after conviction for federal mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud. Creditors claimed Estes owed them $38 million.

Estes was paroled in 1971, but the parole was revoked in 1979 after he was sentenced to terms of five years each for two convictions, one on mail fraud and the other conspiracy to conceal assets to avoid paying back taxes.

DOE recommends two Texas Panhandle sites

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark White says the federal government has decided to conduct more tests at two sites in the Texas Panhandle to see if they might be suitable for depositing high-level nuclear wastes.

In February the U.S. Department of Energy designated a 300-square-mile area in Deaf Smith County and a 190-square-mile area in Swisher County as possible sites for storing nuclear wastes in salt beds more than 2,000 feet underground.

White said Tuesday those potential storage locations have been narrowed to two nine-square-mile sites about five miles northeast of Tulia and 10 miles southwest of Vega

The implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act by DOE, to date, has been less than satisfactory." White

"DOE's continuing lack of sensitivity to state concerns over technical, environmental and socioeconomic issues is disturbing.

"We intend to fully evaluate these latest site recommendations. The issuance of these reports at this time, without the benefit of final siting guidelines, is simply a convenience for the DOE and, in our view, does not respond to the spirit of the Nulcear Waste Policy Act," White added in a prepared statement

The governor said the DOE had informed landowners on Monday that further tests for a site would be made.

The federal act requires that the DOE select three potential disposal sites. where exploratory shafts can be constructed, by 1985. The DOE plans to recommend one proposed disposal site to the president in 1990.

White said his Nuclear Waste Programs office would hold public hearings in the Panhandle and conduct its own review of the latest DOE site proposal during the next 45 days: Comments from the state would be forwarded to the DOE.

We will be scrutinizing what criteria the DOE used to recommend that these smaller tracts in the Texas Panhandle undergo further testing." White said.

Other candidates for the high-level nuclear waste disposal site include Hanford, Wash, the Nevada Test Site two locations each in Utah and

Mississippi and one in Louisiana. Spent fuel from nuclear power plants. which remains radioactive for thousands of years, would be disposed

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Chemical warfare must be stopped

That war is hell is one of the oldest truths in human experience, but the war between Iran and Iraq is reaching a level of barbarity that is especially appalling. Reports from the Iraqi plane tell of casualties in the tens of thousands after human-wave attacks by the Iranians. Some of the Iranian "troops" are said to be no more than schoolboys, as young as 12. Some are said to be used as human mine sweeps.

In the Middle East, the clash of armies with bloody results is not in itself unfamiliar, so the most alarming development may be the evidence that Iraq is using poison gas to repel massive assaults by Iran. In spite of the other brutalities of modern warfare, there has been restraint in the use of chemical weapons—until recently.

There is compelling evidence that chemical weapons originating in the Soviet Union have been responsible for death and injury from "yellow rain" in Southeast Asia and Afghanistan. The Soviet Union is the chief supplier of arms in Iraq. Is it only a coincidence that these reports of a resort to chemical warfare involve only the Russians and their clients

Iran has asked the United Nations to investigate the evidence of the use of mustard gas by the Iraqis. Considering the difficulty in getting the United Nations to embark on any project potentially embarrassing to the Soviet Union, that avenue does not look especially promising. Pressure on Iraq and any other nations resorting to chemical weapons may have to come from governments acting on their own initiative.

This is a genie that must be put back in its bottle. International conventions against the use of poison gas and other chemical or biological weapons are the only agreements in the field of disarmament that have succeeded in limiting the scope of warfare since World War I. If violations are allowed to take place without international sanctions against the offenders, we will ose one of the few humanitarian influences on the art of

Public still wants school prayer

It is argued by foes of the school - prayer amendment - which the U.S. Senate rejected yesterday - that, phooey, we don't need such an amendment; the U.S. Supreme Court never abolished school prayer, Uninformed and Misleading Allegations to the Contrary.

Which, translated, means, who's going to stop a kid from silently - remember that, kid, silently - intoning, hey, Lord, cudja pull me through this trig test that I really meant to study for, but, hey, I was pooped last night, and ...?

Yes, there can be, and doubtless is, school prayer of this character - and probably of a more elevated character as well.

But this misses the point. The reason the school - prayer movement hasn't died after all these years (twenty - one, to be exact) is that the public really wants formal acknowledgement of religion's historic place in the social order.

According to the Gallup Poll, 81 percent think the Constitution should be amended to allow school prayer. That is more than want the ERA, a mandatory balanced budget, or the latest Michael Jackson album. The prayer amendment - which President Reagan and Republican senators like Hatch, Thurmond and Baker pushed strongly - could become an election issue. This wouldn't be at all strange, because, courtesy of the federal courts, school prayer is a political issue year - in - and year - out.

Meanwhile, at the grass roots, says The Wall Street Journal, there is outright defiance of court decisions that inhibit school prayer. This is what often happens when unelected officials try to force the pace of social change.

Let us be clear about one thing: The matter, over two decades, has become painful and complex. As the cliche would have it, there are no easy answers - not even to the question of how to word an amendment protecting school prayer.

One key element is, how do you simultaneously protect the rights of students who, for one reason or another, don't want to pray?

The task is formidable but doable: Confine praying to voluntary occasions, like preschool gatherings; or simply let the class rise for a moment of silence. I imagine most reasonable folk would prefer that loudspeaker prayers be confined to schools where just about everybody wants to pray.

The majority, in fine, must not roughly impose its will on the minority, although that's not the problem right now. The minority is presently imposing its will on the majority

From the school - prayer decision, some prayer - amendment backers trace the country's much - remarked moral decline. That is extreme (as is common with simple explanations). Plenty of today's debauchees did not pray even twenty years ago.

But manifestly federal judges have pushed church - state "separation" (a doctrine that appears nowhere in the Constitution, not even in the First Amendment) farther than the Founding Fathers ever intended

In his Farewell Address, 188 years ago George Washington affirmed that "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and moralityare indispensable supports... Reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle." Is Ronald Reagan saying anything so different when he suggests the propriety of prayer on public

Foes of the prayer amendment like to note that various religious leaders oppose it, too. Chiefly, this is at the bureaucratic level: that rarified venue where the National Council of Churches and similar misguided enterprises issues condemnations of tax cuts and military spending. I am afraid religious bureaucrats are as bad as any other variety - that is to say, as out of touch with the Real World.

Interestingly, even as the U.S. Supreme Court, which is said to read election returns, is catching on - a little. Recently, it declared, though just barely, that a municipal Nativity scene doesn't constitute State Religion.

Certainly it doesn't. Who could suppose it did, except someone bent on driving all religion out of the public places and back into the churches, on the implied encouragement of the federal judiciary?

The school - prayer amendment didn't pass Congress this year, such is the tenacity of the opposition, but what a worthy endeavor it is anyway. On, Reagan; on, Baker; on, Thurmond and Hatch.

What conflict of interest?

"Mr. Scrooge, thank you for appearing in front of the committee in regard to the confirmation of Her Majesty's Minister of Justice. We would like you to clear up some questons, please. When did you first get to know the nominee?

"I never really did know the nominee personally, though I became a big admirer of his after he said there were no hungry people in England.

'Didn't you buy his house in Devonshire?

'No, my employee Bob Cratchit bought his house in Devonshire.

'How did that come about?

'Well, to the best of my recollection, someone in the Prime Minister's office contacted me and said the nominee had a house for sale in Devonshire and asked if I wanted to buy it. The home had been on the market for 20 months, and the Minister of Justice had already bought a house in Piccadilly. He was carrying two heavy

although the Marley Savings and Loan people were not pressing him for the money

"Didn't that strike you as strange?" 'Not really. Banks never like to press someone who works that closely with the Prime Minister.

"So tell us what transpired, Mr. Scrooge." "I didn't want the house myself, so I arranged for Cratchit to purchase it. 'Did your employee Bob Cratchit have the money to buy the house in Devonshire?" 'No, my Lord, I loaned him 70,000 pounds for a down payment and then arranged with the Marley Savings & Loan Company for a mortgage for Cratchit of 240,000 quid. "At what interest?"

"I believe it was at 11 percent."

"Wasn't that a very low interest rate for a mortgage at that time?

'Yes, my Lord, but I knew Cratchit had his heart set on the house, and I thought this would be a nice way to make up to him for mortgages, which was quite a burden, what I had done to him in Christmases

"So then, Mr. Scrooge, Cratchit moved in the Devonshire house

"No, he sold it nine months later at a loss. 'Why did he sell it?'

"I'm not sure. I believe Mrs. Cratchit didn't like the kitchen. "When Cratchit sold the house at a loss after you went to all the trouble of loaning very favorable mortgage, didn't you become very angry? "No, Bob's a very good employee and I value his services highly. If he wanted to sell him the down payment, and arranging a the house at a loss that was his business.' What about the 70,000 pounds you advanced Cratchit as a down payment?' "I forgave the loan.

"Mr. Scrooge, our records show that you are a man not known to throw money away. Why would you forgive a 70,000 pound loan to a lowly employee?

"The information you have on my frugality is not correct. Over the years I have become the victim of a bad press. The reason I forgave the loan was Cratchit has a crippled son, Tiny Tim, and the burden of paying it back would only have added to his

"It's very strange you would go to all this trouble to bail out someone in the Prime Minister's office who you didn't even know. Did your appointment as Her Majesty's Undersecretary of Commerce have anything to do with your intervention in buying the Minister of Justice nominee's house'

"Bah, humbug. I was selected for that position on my expertise as a merchant. If I thought helping someone high in the Prime Minister's office out of a financial fix would have anything to do with my appointment, I would have never taken the job.

"Thank you, Mr. Scrooge. Can you tell us if you ever saw the former Prime Minister's briefing book? (c) 1984, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

The liberals and South Africa

NEW YORK (NEA) - For some years now, American critics of South Africa, having no better way of venting their spleen against that country's white-dominated government, have conducted a campaign to force American colleges and universities to rid their investment portfolios of all stocks in American companies that do business in South Africa. Recently the campaign has been expanded to include public pension funds, and bills were introduced last year in 24 state legislatures to compel such "divestment." This gesture, which appeals to college students (and may also appeal to some state legislators, under pressure from white liberal or black constituents), has, of course, no effect on the corporations involved — other than, perhaps, to make their stock transiently available at agreeable lower prices to would-be purchasers as it comes onto the market.

Within South Africa, its principal effect is to discourage slightly any effort to improve the conditions of black employment. U.S. corporations there have generally been in the forefront of such attempts, and indirect efforts to force them out of the country merely lower the competitive pressures for reform. That - and the knowledge that black employment would suffer most if American business in fact ever withdrew from South Africa - are undoubtedly why "divestment" is opposed by virtually every black spokesman, and every white liberal political leader, in South Afri-

None of this, however, stops the liberal and leftist clamor for disinvestment here - naturally, since those who are creating it are far less interested in the real welfare of South Africa's blacks than in cutting a fine figure for "compassion" in front of their own mirrors every morning.

Recently, however, studies have revealed that "disinvestment" would, if carried out in a serious way, entail major costs for the American institutions involved. And that sheds a new and different light on the whole campaign. College students may think it's fun to demand that the trustees unload all stock in corporations "tainted" by some South African connection, but are they ready to watch their tuition costs rise as a result? And, however much public employees may favor similar steps by the huge public pension funds, are they ready to see their benefits reduced in consequence? (Or, will they seek to have the difference made up by higher taxes on the general public?)

Forced to divest, an investment manager (who is usually limited to investments in corporations listed among Standard & Poor's 500) would find himself prohibited from investing in: any major chemical, drug, multinational oil, or electric-electronics firm; 81 percent (by market value) of all aerospace stocks; 82 percent of all auto stocks; and 73 percent of all bank stocks. Altogether, 50 percent of Standard & Poor's 500 companies, representing $500 billion in market value and 30 percent of the U.S. equity market, would be off-

If you think this wouldn't hurt investment programs, consider just its effect on the $20 billion Ohio pension fund. On the conservative assumption that the fund's investment income would drop from 11 to 10 percent, one recent study calculated that in 30 years it would have suffered a loss of $100 billion - quite a price tag to hang on a preening display of liberal compassion that its supposed beneficiaries actively oppose as harmful to their best interests.

By now America is used to seeing liberals' ideas for improving things blow up in their faces. One spectacular recent example was the passage in the early 1970s of new legislation calculated to increase the clout of political action committees - a measure that seemed bound to benefit liberals disproportionately, since by far the biggest PAC around at the time was the AFL-CIO's. Now there are hundreds of the critters, most of them designed to chase liberals out of public office altogether, and liberals are lobbying futilely against their own brainchild. If they manage to get anywhere with "divestment," the ensuing havoc among college and pension fund portfolios will make them wish they had never heard of South Africa.

Popular radio broadcaster Warren Hasse of Pampa will no longer be the "voice of West Texas State University football.

Hasse was fired from the job last Thursday night when the executive committee of the WT Quarterback Club voted to have its radio committee find another announcer. according to news reports.

Hasse is presently vacationing in Mesa, Ariz. but Mike Fox of KDJK-Radio, which airs the WT games, said the Quarterback Club sent Hasse a certified letter telling him of the decision. John Heetland, a member of the executive committee of the WT Quarterback Club and an account supervisor at Berneta Communications Inc., would not comment on the situation. Berneta Communications is in charge of setting up the 10-station WT football network. The Quarterback Club owns the rights to WT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -The good thing about college basketball is that on a given night, anybody can beat anybody, says Louisville Coach Denny Crum.

"It's obvious that Kentucky's going to be the favorite," Crum said at a news conference Tuesday. 'They're supposed to win and we're not, but that just means we're relaxed."

One key, Crum said, is that if Kentucky dominates on the inside, his Cardinals must prove master on the outside.

"We always have trouble with big men, because our center (Charles Jones) is only 6-foot-8," Crum said. "If we let them get the ball inside. it's going to be hard to beat

Land purchase started for farmers, ranchers

AUSTIN (AP) - Hard-working farmers and ranchers who are making a go of it and want to purchase the land they work have been offered a helping hand by the state.

Gov. Mark White and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower announced Tuesday the beginning of the Texas Family Farm and Ranch Security Program, which actually was authorized by the 1979 Legislature.

"The West Texas drought and the recent freeze in the (Rio Grande) Valley have made the past 12 months a difficult time for Texas farmers and ranchers," White said. "This much-needed program to help the state's family farmers and ranchers purchase the land they work will help put this important state industry back on the road to recovery.

"There's no need pretending that this one program is all that is necessary to restore full prosperity back to Texas agriculture," said Hightower, "but it will give people who work the land the opportunity to own their land.

The open-air ceremony took place on the 3,000-acre Dan Berdoll farm, east of Austin, which is in the midst of a U.S. Department of Energy demonstration project to show the feasibility of replacing traditional fuels with farm-produced methane and ethanol. which is grain alcohol.

Berdoll raises grain sorghum which. after processing, is fed to hogs and cattle. The manure is used to produce methane gas which is used to heat the swine barns and power an ethanol plant, which produces fuel used in various farm vehicles.

"Ninety-seven point six percent of us Texans are eaters, rather than growers of food, and we count on the other 2.4 percent of our population who now bring dinner to the table." Hightower "But there is not an endless said. supply of farmers these days, and the future of our dinner is very much in question

'If we keep our farm and ranchers happy we will have a healthy economy," said White.

Hightower said the new Texas Family Farm and Ranch Security Program would allow the Department of Agriculture to guarantee up to 90 percent of the amount for purchase of land for a famly farm and ranch. If the farmer or rancher paid 10 percent down, the state department could guarantee the entire loan for eligible farmers or ranchers.

"We expect to have $40 million available this year for this program," Hightower said. "There is no limit on the amount of the loans.

Hightower said applicants must have a net worth of less than $100,000, not counting the residential homestead. and must use the farm or ranch as their primary occupation. Applicants must show they are experienced in the farm or ranch operation they want to finance and will be able to repay the loans. Loans cannot be made to refinance existing real estate debt, to purchase equipment and livestock, or to provide operating capital

Residents protest against waste du

GIRARDVILLE, Pa. (AP) - Heaps of rock litter the landscape around this old coal town, the surrounding mountains have been strip-mined, and Shenandoah Creek runs a deep rust color - the legacy of acid drainage from decades of mining.

It's no beauty spot, but some residents of this close-knit community are protesting around the clock to prevent what they say would make it worse, the reopening of a chemical waste dump.

Since Jan. 28, about 20 protesters, claiming the support of several thousand of their neighbors, have taken turns at a constant vigil at the site's entrance, said Rob Krick, one of the ad hoc group's leaders.

The demonstrators, many retired or unemployed, sit in a plastic-covered wood shanty displaying an American flag, warmed by a drum of burning coal. At least two people maintain the vigil at any time, the group says.

"There's a great fear that the coal region is going to be dumped on by everyone," said Jackie Reigel, one of the townspeople fighting the Keystone Chemical Co.

The company says this economically depressed section of eastern Pennsylvania, already scarred and polluted from decades of mining, is an ideal place to treat and store 20 to 250 tons of hazardous waste a day. Keystone plans to solidify the waste. then bury it in plastic-lined cavities.

"When you first look at it, it doesn't look as if it's good for anything except to dump." acknowledged Steve Chuba, 64, a retired miner and opponent of the facility who lives beside its entrance. Among the wastes the company wants to process are heavy metals and used to process metals. Keystone attorney Richard Caplan said the company will accept any waste it is permitted to take, but has no plans to truck in PCBs, dioxin or radioactive Opponents say the wastes are bound to seep into ground water, and from there into a creek and drainage ditch that flow through the town of 2,000 people, many of them elderly. Girardville was founded in 1832 and lifelong residents, many living in red-brick row homes, still speak with the accents of their ancestors in Lithuania, Ireland, Italy and Poland.

Opponents of the chemical dump say it will leak because of shifting, subsiding ground from the underground mines, and they scoff at the company's claims for its plastic liner.

"It's just a swimming pool liner. That's what it is," said Krick, 32, who owns a garage near the site."We sit here and say we don't want it. Nobody wants it. But they've picked the worst possible site they could pick.

However, Keystone vice president Mark Alsentzer said: "It's an excellent site for something like this. The groundwater underneath is really of no value. It's already been contaminated by the underground mine.

State officials say Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the nation in generation of hazardous waste - thanks to its high concentration of manufacturing. especially in the steel and chemical industries - but has too few places to dispose of it. A shortage of licensed disposal sites increases the likelihood of illegal "midnight dumping" while raising costs to industry, which must truck its waste long distances, officials

Still, few towns want a toxic chemical site in their backyard. "I can't think of any that are welcomed by the local townspeople," Alsentzer said.

The Keystone site opened in 1980 but was closed in 1982 after the state Department of Environmental Resources ordered the company's previous owners to correct 44 breaches of state regulations. The container for wastes already dumped there does not meet standards, said DER spokesman Mark Carmon, and the agency wants the company to build a new "impoundment," line it with plastic, and transfer the old waste to it.

Once the changes are made, DER says it will let the facility reopen under its current "interim" status. Department officials say they will hold public hearings on whether the site should receive a permanent permit, which would probably require more improvements.

Because the facility already exists, it won't have to meet tighter rules now being developed by the DER on location of disposal sites." If it was a brand new site, chances are it wouldn't be approved," said DER solid waste manager David Lamereaux.

The company dismisses the protesters' claims that subsiding ground will cause leaks.

We feel there's no chance of subsidence occurring." Alsentzer said. adding that the plastic liner - "the best available" - is impervious to the chemicals in question.

Company employees have done no work at the dump site since the demonstrations began in January, and Ms. Reigel said, "I think the picket line intimidated them.

However, Alsentzer maintained that cold weather was the reason for the

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband has made fantastic progress with a large company. (He's in sales.) I am very proud of him and love him very much.

Now the problem: One of his best accounts has social "business" functions for men only. I have asked him to suggest that wives be included, and he said it wasn't his place to make any suggestions. I told him that if enough men, beginning with himself, would turn down such invitations, the company would have to start including the Abby, I feel that my husband has no respect for me or himself. What is your opinion?

FEELING REJECTED

DEAR REJECTED: Assuming that these functions are respectable company get-togethers, your hus-band's decision to go has nothing to do with his respect (or lack of it) for you or himself.

It would be inappropriate for him to suggest that wives be included, then refuse to go unless they that love and quit hassling him. Your present attitude is a millstone around his neck.

DEAR ABBY: For the last few weeks I have been dreaming that I am pregnant! I know it is not a suppressed desire, and it certainly cannot be the fear of pregnancy, because I am 74 years old!

I have all my marbles, Abby, and this isn't of sufficient importance to justify seeing a "shrink." What could the reason be?

IMPOSSIBLE DREAMS

DEAR IMPOSSIBLE: Perhaps you have a fertile imagination.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a dispatcher for a police department in a very small town.

Three officers and I were talking about whether it was proper for a policeman to wear his gun to church services when he's on duty. One officer said it might offend some folks, and possibly the Lord.

On the other hand, thieves are not picky about where they steal. (There's always plenty in the offering.) I personally would feel more secure knowing someone is there

Two of the officers don't take their guns to church services, and one does. Who is right?

DEAR PUZZLED: Very few police officers attend church while they are on duty, but those who do, carry their guns, since an officer in uniform must be

YOGURT CREME SAUCE, submitted by Janet Koehlinger of Huntington, Ind., has been judged first prize winner in the "Desserts for the Family" category of the recent Kraft Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" recipe contest. So easy to prepare, this sauce has just three ingredients, yogurt, marshmallow creme and lemon juice. Complementing any choice of fruit, the sauce is also delicious over pancakes and waffles, with ice cream or pound cake or with fruit tarts.

What do a caramel flavored frozen treat and a sauce for fruit have in common? Each won a $1,000 First Prize in the 1983 Kraft Marshmallow Creme "Easy Secret Ingredient" recipe contest. Both were also submitted by Indiana residents.

Caramel Pecan Cups, submitted by Gloria Shamanoff of Fort Wayne. Ind., won first prize in the "make ahead treats" category. Yogurt Creme Sauce won top honors in the 'desserts for the family' category for Janet Koehlinger of Huntington, Recipe entries to the contest proved that Americans continue to enjoy creative, luscious desserts. There was great emphasis on using high quality, fresh ingredients. Many contestants combined marshmallow creme with fruits, nuts and whole - grain products such as granola, oats and whole - wheat flour.

Yogurt Creme Sauce was the first and only recipe Koehlinger has ever submitted to a contest. The mother of four grown children was confined to bed following back surgery when she read about the contest in the newspaper. "Creating a recipe was the perfect way to overcome the boredom. I've always enjoyed experimenting in the kitchen," Koehlinger said. Once up and around again, Koehlinger "didn't care to spend hours on my feet in the kitchen," so ease of preparation was a primary concern. Her entry proved it. This combination of marshmallow creme, plain yogurt and lemon juice is ready in minutes. Perfect with fruit anytime you serve it, the slightly tangy flavor is also ideal over pancakes or waffles, on ice cream or pound cake and fruit tarts, as school teacher, entered the 1982 contest without winning a prize, so she worked on ricipes throughout the year for this contest. Teaching all day, then working on her doctorate in education, she finds recipe development a

"creative outlet." Caramel Pecan Cups were just what this year's judges were looking for. The rich caramel flavor combines with toasted pecans in just the right balance. The recipe is also quick and simple to prepare. All these factors combine to make this recipe a

Patrons help themselves in this informal restaurant

By FREDERICK STANDISH Associated Press Writer TRAVERSE CITY, Mich.

(AP) - At Stacev's Restaurant, it's OK to put your hand in the till.

It's OK, too, to help yourself to coffee and pie, if you want. Since 1957, the downtown restaurant has been run by Julie Staphakis, and it has taken on her robust, folksy personality.

She calls some customers 'Slim.'' She jokes and, sometimes, trades head good-natured barbs with folks in her eatery, especially the "regulars." And she seldom stops moving.

In her bustling about the art-deco diner, the 57-year-old Mrs. Staphakis rarely stops talking - to the staff, to her customers or

Her fast-paced, often deadpan comments keep the staff and customers grinning. sometimes shaking their

The staff picks up on her style, too. One waitress told a customer, with a flick of her head toward the cash register, "Yours is $2.60, you take care of it."

That was it; she disappeared. It was fully expected that the customer would ring up the bill for himself

The cash register and who operates it is what Stacey's is known for around here.

Not long after he was inaugurated, Gov. James Blanchard showed up for a bite to eat at Stacey's. He got stuck with a bill. Conforming to accepted practice, the governor dipped into the register and settled the account. No one objected.

Regulars and those who know what's up don't hesitate in walking behind the counter, staring at the register for a second, pushing a couple of buttons and making change for the bill.

That makes it easy to spot newcomers - they're the ones holding their bills and looking up and down the counter for the cashier.

When Mrs. Staphakis eyed one such couple, she walked purposefully to the front of the restaurant, wondering to all within earshot why the two couldn't take care of the bill themselves.

After she made change for the couple and gently chastised them, they left, grinning. One of Stacey's regulars is Bill Paulson. He and his two sons, Billy and Adam, had lunch at Stacey's recently. "I don't know how much we had, so I'm going to press $5." Paulson said to no one in particular.

When he could find no change for his $10 bill, he put it in anyway, and said, 'They've given me some meals in the past, I guess." Mrs. Staphakis said she doesn't mind folks dipping into the till.

"It works out about the same," she said. "Some people put in more, some people put in under.

"But 90 percent put in more," she said with a wink. Customers handling their own bills isn't the only thing folks do for themselves at Stacey's.

One regular grunted a "hello" to a couple of people as he headed to the back of the restaurant. He drew himself a cup of coffee and

TIPRO protests offshore unfair gas drilling system

(AP) - Something should be done about the unfair distribution of offshore gas production, according to the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

The gas-producing industry is not drilling enough wells to meet future needs because the current excess of deliverable gas is not fairly distributed among producers. Bruce Anderson, Houston independent producer and TIPRO president, told the monthly allowable hearing of the Texas Railroad Commission on Tuesday.

"The excess deliverability - the so-called 'gas bubble' - is distributed inequitably among different classes of gas producers." Anderson said. "Offshore producers under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Interior are not subject to proration and many gas-producing states have failed to establish reasonable ratable take systems.

'Such inequities only interfere with orderly. adequate exploration by the total industry." Anderson

"There are many reasons why drilling is below needed levels, and unfair distribution of excess deliverability is one of the. It is time for that reason to be eliminated," he

The Railroad Commission continued the Texas oil production rate for April at 100 percent of market demand, after reviewing oil companies' nominations to buy a total of 2,384,893 barrels of Texas oil per day.

The April nominations represented an increase of 24,867 barrels daily compared with March nominations. The state first went to the ceiling level for oil production in 1972, and March marks the 86th straight month for the maximum allowable.

It applies to most fields throughout the state. Exceptions include the East Texas Field, which was assigned an 86 percent allowable to insure reservoir pressures will not be depleted.

Here are the April nominations submitted by major purchasers for Texas crude oil, in barrels per day. with any changes from March in parenthesis:

Reagan will be globe-trotting WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's aides are preparing their own version of the Democrats' primary election campaign road show: A springtime travel agenda that will have the president playing on stages from China to Normandy, from London to Ballyporeen in County Tiperrary, Central players on the election-year tour include Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, Pope John Paul II and the heads of the seven major industrialized democracies.

Four weeks from Thursday, Reagan heads to California, Hawaii, Guam and China, repeating an election-year visit that Richard M. Nixon took in 1972 when he was seeking a second term and made the first tour to the People's Republic of China by an American president. In June, Reagan will visit the beaches of Normandy, for the 40th anniversary of the Allied invasion that liberated France from Nazi Germany. He will attend an annual economic summit conference in London, and visit his ancestral home of Ballyporeen, Ireland. With the China trip fast approaching, it is commanding the attention of the White House travel, security, and policy

And the political advantages, in terms of public attention paid to a globe-trotting president, are not being overlooked. "I suppose the president comes out of this looking like a statesman," said one White House official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name.

Reagan will confer with the Chinese leaders, including Deng and Premier Zhao Ziyang in Peking at the start of his trip. spending "quite a bit of time with these people," the official said. The last few days of the visit will be spent on more conventional tourist activities

The president will arrive in Peking on April 26. After completing his formal meetings, he will visit the Great Wall. He will make a one-day journey to Xian, in central China, to view an archeological site where some 6,000 terra cotta figures SLENDERCISE EXERCISE CLASSES were unearthed in the 1970s at the site where Emperor Qin Shi Huang was buried some 2,000 years ago.

Businessmen shocked by posters

LAREDO, Texas (AP) - Downtown businessmen are bewildered about who glued hundreds of garish anti-Vatican posters to downtown store windows under cover of darkness last week

"Warning!" the posters' headline stated "People Newsweek, Time, Life magazines are secretly owned by the

About 20 empty downtown stores and other businesses were decorated with the posters, which also accused the Catholic Church of owning all television networks.

The appearance of the posters Friday morning coincided with a visit by Bishop Rene Gracida of the Diocese of Corpus Christi Selma Avigael, whose husband owns a downtown department store, said the posters on the vacant building across the street were "atrocious" and "sickening.

"This bothers me because if people start picking on Catholics, later they go on to other groups," said Les Norton, a downtown business owner who offered to organize a peel-off if church leaders supported the idea.

STEAMING TOWARD CUBA-The Soviet aircraft carrier Leingrad, designed for helicopters, entered the waters of the Caribbean Tuesday accompanied by two

Potential disasters in easy credit

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Easy credit, wisely used, has paved the way to material success for millions of people. And just as certainly, easy credit poorly used has waxed the slide to financial disaster.

Nothing new about that What is new is the recent and enormous expansion of credit opportunities and potential disasters.

A few years ago, it was common enough to hear about the neighbor who almost lost house and home because of an inability to handle department store charge cards.

More recently, the opportunities and dangers were raised sharply by the practice of offering lines of credit, activated by bank cards, in amounts several times the size to which people were accustomed And now we have (1) home equity credit, which allows homeowners to borrow, simply by writing a check or producing a credit card, most of their home equity, and (2)

the adjustable rate mortgage Suddenly, the stakes have been raised, in some instances by 20 or 30 times.

Death row inmate given new hearing

DALLAS (AP) - An attorney for Death Row inmate Ronald Chambers says the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has halted Chambers' scheduled March 30 execution

The court will hear arguments today that could result in a new trial instead. said Judy Spalding, a law clerk and assistant to Chambers' Dallas attorney. Vincent Perini

Perini said he learned of the stay of execution on Tuesday

Chambers, 29, was sentenced in Dallas County for the April 1975 beating death of Mike McMahon, a 22-year-old Texas Tech engineering student.

Ms. Spalding said the defense will argue that Chambers talked to a psychiatrist without being informed that the psychiatrist would testify against him

"What this means is Chambers wasn't told that the statements he was going to make were going to be used against him in the trial in the way that they were used.' said Ms. Spalding.

If the appeals court rules for the defense. Chambers will get a new trial. If not, a new execution date will be set, Ms. Spalding said.

She said Dr. James Grigson, of Dallas, interviewed Chambers and later testified at his trial that he "knew for a fact that he (Chambers) would be a continuing threat to society."

And the question becomes more critical: Is easy credit a bonanza or a potential bust?

Owners of cooperative apartments in the New York City area may, with the stroke of a pen or the flash of a card, borrow more money than they put out to buy their units a couple of years before. Even 10 times the amount.

Consider this illustration

Question: What happens if the value of the apartment declines and the borrower cannot sell it for the price on which the loan is based? If the borrower loses a job? If the borrower does not use the money wisely?

The variable rate mortgage presents other possibilities for opportunity or disaster. particularly because of the manner in which applicants

As an inducement, lenders often offer applicants for VRMs a below-market rate for the first year, and judge terms are based on a plentiful the applicant's ability to pay on the basis of that low rate. In some instances, applicants are offered 9.5 percent for the first year and market rates thereafter, with an upper limit of 14.5 percent.

The cap protects the borrower from extremely high rates but it does not protect against 4 or 5 percentage point increases that are permissable in a period of a few short years.

In each instance the credit supply of money and a strong people know.

however, that there are almost no guarantees about the future, and that one of the few that does exist is that bills incurred must be paid.

Kids who pass this conventional school eye test may see the blackboard fine from the back of the room. But how about up close? Studies prove your child may be one of 15 million school-aged children with reading disabilities due to a visual deficiency this test can't detect.

Is your child giving you any of these early detection warnings?

· Book held only 7 or 8 inches from

· Makes errors when copying

• Uses finger to trace lines in his

· Writes or prints poorly Short attention span while reading · Closes or covers one eye

Proper vision therapy using a series vision exercises and sometimes combined with proper corrective lenses can successfully help many of these problems. Don't take chances with your child's sight. Contact Dr. Simmons who speializes in early detection. It's just too important to risk a failing grade.
