

Over 100 attend hospital re-opening

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

GROOM — More than 100 people came to Groom Memorial Hospital Tuesday, but none were admitted as patients.

They were county ambulance workers, residents and other well-wishers visiting the 36-bed community hospital which had been closed for four years.

Among those who greeted the visitors at Tuesday's Open House was the town's new physician, Dr. W. T. Hartman, a Dallas native. Hartman received his D.O. degree from Texas Tech University. He practiced medicine in two Oklahoma towns of Cushing and Drumright.

"I have roots here," he said. "My wife's grandparents live in Pampa and my family is from south of Lubbock."

Despite his "roots," he is not yet settled in Groom for good.

"I'm here now on a working vacation, so I'm not yet permanent," he said. Hartman's family will be living in Pampa with relatives.

In addition to being on-call at the hospital, Hartman will also operate the 20-room clinic across the street from the hospital. He spent most of the afternoon shuttling from the hospital's Open House to the clinic to set up his office.

He had not yet set up office when he realized the need for a hospital in Groom. In a two-hour period between 2 and 4 p.m., Hartman saw six patients, the first being a local girl with a chest cold. So far, he reported, no patients were admitted to the hospital and there were no emergencies.

"The phone has been ringing off the wall," he said. "It's been kind of exciting getting this thing going. The hospital has a lot of potential."

Hospital employees spent the Tuesday afternoon and this morning putting finishing touches on the hospital. Rooms in the clinic, which haven't been touched for four years, were swept and sterilized. Nurses, aides and custodians stocked swabs, gauze, and other materials on shelves.

"This morning they're trying to get the telephones in," Hartman said, speaking from the hospital's and clinic's only telephone located in the front admission office.

A pharmacy, which will be operated by a pharmacy group which serves small hospitals, is being stocked.

Closed since April, 1980, the hospital has re-opened under the management of Futura Health Care Services of Drumright, Okla. The company, which operates several community hospitals in Oklahoma, has made application to re-open and operate McLean Hospital. A decision on that hospital's application is due late in the fall.

Hartman pointed out that the Drumright hospital where he worked is slightly larger than Groom's. He said he was impressed with the size and equipment at Groom hospital.

"It's unusual for a town this size to have a hospital like this," he observed.

He attributed most of the hospital's quality to the late Dr. John Witt who opened Groom Hospital in 1947. Witt and Dr. John B. London opened the hospital in an eight-room hotel. Witt operated the hospital until his death in 1982.

"It shows that old Dr. Witt was well-liked, well-respected," Hartman said. "He built this hospital."

"And people do not want to drive 30 miles to a doctor if they have to."

Richard Cumbie, the hospital's acting administrator, missed the Open House because of a death in the family. Cumbie was administrator for a hospital in Moorland, Okla.

A survey of Medicare and Medicaid programs will be taken Thursday to determine the hospital's eligibility for such programs.

Dr. William Hartman sets up his clinic in Groom.

Director of Nursing Nell Schyler examines hospital records.

Lawsuit by Dorchester will be tried in Lubbock

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

100th District Judge Robert Montgomery of Memphis has said he will move the trial of a lawsuit brought by Dorchester Corp. against an independent oil producer from Pampa to Lubbock.

Dorchester asked for a change of venue in its lawsuit against the Amarillo-based Harlow Corp., claiming it wouldn't receive a fair trial in Pampa.

In a letter last week, Montgomery told the parties that he intends to approve the motion and move the trial of the suit that contests ownership of gas and oil rights in the Panhandle Field.

"I had planned to withhold my ruling on the plaintiff's motion for a change of venue until all pre-trial matters had been completed. Pre-trial is taking so long that I feel I should tell you now that I intend to transfer this case to the 99th Judicial District Court of Lubbock County, Texas, for trial on the merits," Montgomery wrote the parties in a letter dated May 26.

The judge earlier set the case for trial on June 18.

Montgomery's letter isn't an official order on the motion to move the trial, but the judge instructed Pampa District Clerk Mary Clark to place the letter in the case's file.

The statement that Montgomery will move the case for trial on the merits, also indicates that the judge will deny Dorchester's motion for a summary judgment in favor of the major company.

Dorchester had asked Judge Montgomery to rule in its favor and avoid a trial of the lawsuit.

The major company said it had presented enough evidence for a ruling that Dorchester owns "gas of all kinds, including casinghead gas, in all horizons except those wholly below sea level."

Harlow countered that a jury should decide who owns the disputed territory's oil and gas, and Judge Montgomery apparently agrees.

A four-day hearing on Dorchester's motion to move the trial from Pampa concluded on April 18. The company claimed it couldn't seat an impartial jury here because a majority of local residents' jobs would be placed in jeopardy by an unfavorable ruling against an independent producer.

Independents are so important to the Pampa economy that Dorchester wouldn't get a fair trial here, the company claimed.

Dorchester is suing Harlow over the rights to produce petroleum products in a section of land in Gray County, part of a 49,000-acre section producing oil and gas in Gray and Carson Counties. Dorchester claims the title to the "gas rights" in the section. Harlow claims the "oil rights." The major company alleges that four "oil wells" owned by Harlow are producing natural gas that belongs to Dorchester.

Harlow denies the charge, claiming its disputed wells produce "crude oil" and "casinghead gas."

The outcome of the district court "title dispute" could affect rulings pending before the Railroad Commission and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in a larger drilling war between major oil and gas companies and independent producers, according to lawyers involved in the case.

The major dispute before the courts and state and federal agencies involves basic issues such as legal definitions of "oil" and "gas" and who owns the rights to produce the petroleum products in the local field, reserves with an estimated worth of $25 billion.

Governor begins touting taxes on television

AUSTIN (AP) — Beginning today, Gov. Mark White will take his pitch for school reform and higher taxes directly to voters through a pair of television commercials touting his proposals.

The commercials begin airing in 18 major metropolitan television markets less than a week before the Legislature convenes in special session to consider White's reforms and $4.8 billion tax hike.

Ann Arnold, White's press secretary, said Tuesday that $175,000 was donated by three corporations to film and broadcast the commercials. More money is being sought, she said, and the amount spent on broadcasting the ads could total $300,000.

The two 60-second commercials show White, House Speaker Gib Lewis, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Ways and Means Chairman Stan Schlueter discussing education. Each gives his views on the importance of school reform.

White aide Janis Monger said the governor decided against seeking free air time by billing the commercials as public service announcements.

"Since it deals with a political, legislative issue, the decision was that the public service announcement route was not the route to take," she said.

Although the commercials will air only days before lawmakers begin considering White's proposals, both Ms. Arnold and Ms. Monger said the governor doesn't view the commercials as a bid to pump up public pressure on lawmakers to accept his tax increase.

"They don't urge the public to call their legislators. It wasn't envisioned as any kind of pressure on legislators. The commercials show a unity of purpose between the House and Senate leaders and the governor on education reform," Ms. Monger said.

"The governor wants to increase public awareness and support for education reform. It is not intended to be harsh or confrontational," Ms. Arnold added.

Texas law struck down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that states may not bar any resident alien from becoming a notary public, a job that involves witnessing sworn statements.

By an 8-1 vote, the justices struck down as unconstitutional a Texas law that prohibited aliens from holding such jobs.

The high court said the position of notary public does not fall into that class of occupations "that go to the heart of representative government" and may be limited to U.S. citizens only.

The decision was a victory for Efrém Bernal, who has been living in this country for 20 years and since 1978 has worked as a paralegal for a legal aid office in Hidalgo County, Tex.

The justices said that refusing to commission Bernal as a notary public simply because he is not a citizen violated his equal protection rights.

Foreign trade deficit sets another record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's foreign trade deficit surged to a fourth straight monthly record in April, with imports surpassing U.S. exports by $12.19 billion, the Commerce Department reported today.

The deficit had reached ever-higher record levels in January, February and March, hitting a total of $10.26 billion in March.

The imbalance for the first four months of 1984 stands at $42.01 billion, meaning the deficit would soar to just over $126 billion for the year if the current pace continued. Officials have said they expect a total of more than $110 billion, far in excess of last year's record $69.4 billion.

The largest U.S. trade deficit before that was the $42.6 billion imbalance of 1982.

Government officials and private analysts have said the high trade deficit is mainly due to two factors.

—The relatively high-valued U.S. dollar, which makes American exports expensive overseas and makes foreign goods less expensive here.

—The fact that most foreign economies have recovered less robustly than America's, leaving those nations less able to buy U.S. exports and Americans better able to buy from overseas.

In April, the new report said, total imports rose 6 percent to a record $29.71 billion, while exports declined 12 percent to $17.52 billion.

Part of the increase in imports was accounted for by an 8.5 percent rise in the value of oil products coming into the nation. The average number of barrels per day of imported oil rose to 6.2 million from 5.6 million in March, while the price per barrel rose to $29.65 from $29.60, the report said.

It said an increase in non-petroleum imports "was the result of sizable increases in a variety of manufactured goods — including new passenger cars, telecommunications equipment and parts, organic chemicals, footwear and numismatic coins — agricultural commodities and nonmonetary gold."

The decline in exports reflected lower figures for such commodities as wheat, animal feeds, soybeans, tobacco, chemical products and oil, the report said.

SADDLED UP — Bill Clements may no longer be governor of the State of Texas, but he has friends in Pampa who still appreciate his actions in office. Clements and his wife Rita flew into Perry Clemons Field about noon Tuesday to pick up a custom-made saddle commissioned by area ranchers. At the airport George and Bill Arrington, left, area ranchers and oilmen, present the saddle to Gov. Clements and his wife. Hanging from the saddle horn is a plaque reading: "Presented to Gov. William P. Clements, Jr., in appreciation for establishing efficient and effective state government for all Texans from his Panhandle friends." The saddle, designed by Reid Errington of Canadian and crafted by Will Snyder and Dave Trimble of Pampa, has an intricate floral pattern and the state seal on each side. (Staff photo by Ed Copeland)

Attorney says utility proposals may be difference in life, death

AUSTIN (AP) — State utility rules proposed in response to consumer complaints should make the difference in life and death for some elderly people, says an attorney for senior citizens.
Lanetta Cooper of Belton, counsel for Senior Citizen Crusaders, recalled Tuesday that 59 people had died in Dallas of heat-related causes in 1978 and 1980, and said, "This summer has all the indications of another heat wave."
She said, however, Senior Citizen Crusaders views rules proposed by the Public Utility Commission as a commitment to Texans "that we will no longer have to hear the horror stories of elderly men and women dying from heat stroke or heat exhaustion or hypothermia because of the fears that their electricity will be disconnected."

One proposal would prohibit an electric utility for up to two months from discontinuing service to a residence if halting the service would result in someone becoming "seriously ill or more seriously ill."
"Under the proposed rules, consumers receive more time, more rights, more information and a more workable system of utility regulation," said Carol Barger, executive director of the southwest regional office of the Consumers Union.
Ms. Cooper and Ms. Barger were joined at a Capitol news conference by state Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, and spokesmen for the Office of Public Utility Counsel and the Texas Tenants Union.
Price said one of his constituents had complained, "Utilities are monopolies, and they act like it."

"Most customers have no idea what rights they have, and utility companies don't have the habit of telling customers about their rights," Price said.

Miami youth's condition better

A 17-year-old Miami youth has improved from critical to serious condition following a traffic accident near Miami that also injured a Pampa teenager.
Eric Lee Roy Smith, 17, of Miami, and Scott Bradley Howard, 16, Star Rt. 2, Pampa, were injured early Saturday morning when the pickup Smith was driving went out of control and flipped.
The accident occurred about 1:30 a.m. Saturday a half mile south of Miami on FM 748.
Investigating trooper Dan Pierce said the teen-agers were northbound on the farm road when Smith lost control of a 1982 Dodge pickup. The pickup went into a skid, hit an embankment, and flipped. The truck came to rest on its top on the opposite side of the road.
Pierce said

Homosexual citizenship court appeal rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has refused to hear the appeal of a Dallas homosexual who was denied citizenship by two lower courts because of his sexual preference.
"It is a nightmare," said Richard John Longstaff, 44.
Longstaff, a native of Britain, has lived in the United States legally since 1965.
The Supreme Court also left unresolved the issue of whether the federal government can refuse citizenship based solely on homosexuality.
The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled earlier that Longstaff should never have been admitted to the country because his homosexuality made him an "excludable alien." The court, at the time of its ruling, skirted a 1983 ruling in a California case that the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service could bar a person only after a Public Health Service medical examination.
"The inconsistency is one of the things we were hoping the court would resolve," said Leonard Graff, an attorney for Longstaff who is also affiliated with the National Gay Rights Advocates in San Francisco.

Longstaff was admitted to the United States as a permanent resident on Nov. 14, 1965, and issued a valid immigrant visa.
At the time of his admittance, he was asked on an application: "Are you now or have you ever been afflicted with psychopathic personality, epilepsy, mental defect, fits, fainting spells, convulsions or a nervous breakdown?"
He answered no.
Court records show that the government, in amending the 1917 immigration law in 1965, intended the phrase "psychopathic personality" to include homosexuals.
Longstaff, calling the law unjust, asked, "Can a lay person declare someone a psychopathic personality just by looking at him?"
In 1975, INS recommended that Longstaff be granted citizenship. But a Dallas judge denied the request saying he entered the country unlawfully when he answered "no" to the INS question.

Man dies after saving drowning nephew

PLANO, Texas (AP) — A 39-year-old man, who friends say cared too much for the safety of others, died after saving his nephew from the waters of an area lake.

Don Fowler rescued his 4-year-old nephew, Mark, who had fallen from a ski sled Sunday. But authorities said the elder Fowler, known as a strong swimmer, became exhausted fighting high waves and undercurrents in storm-tossed Lake Lavon.

"Don had a quiet, patient way with children that couldn't be matched by most psychologists," said the Rev. Erroll Bosley, Fowler's friend and pastor.

Members of a search party found his body Tuesday. Officials were awaiting autopsy reports to determine whether Fowler, who had high blood pressure, drowned or died of a heart attack.

Witnesses said Fowler fought the rough waters to swim to the boy, who had fallen off the sled that was being towed by Fowler's boat.

Mark's mother, Karen Fowler, had dived in to help the child but had been knocked under the hull by high waves. Fowler helped her into the boat, said Fowler's sister, Mary Fowler Harper.

"When Mark saw his mother go under, he began screaming even more so and began swallowing water," Mrs. Harper said. "Before anyone knew it, Don dove in and was swimming after the boy."

Collin County sheriff's investigators said Fowler, a technician at Texas Instruments, talked the boy into getting back on the sled. Relatives in the boat then used the ski rope to pull Mark to safety.

Fowler's wife, Carole, dived from the boat and his brother, James Fowler, swam out from shore to help Fowler, but both were hindered by high waves and could not reach him in time, officials said.

"The boat kept drifting further and his wife had trouble starting the engine because ski rope had become twisted in the motor," Mrs. Harper said. "It was like one of those nightmares you hope to God never really happens."

Mrs. Harper said Fowler had bought the boat last year and recently renovated it.

Claims total $75.7 million, documents show

DALLAS (AP) — The filing of a $25.5 million federal lawsuit against former Dallas Cowboys owner Clinton W. Murchison Jr. has raised the total claims pending in Dallas County against the investor or his companies to $75.7 million, court documents show.

The lawsuits, all alleging nonpayment of debts, have been filed by lending institutions, a real estate company, Shreveport businessman Herman K. Beebe and Marriott Corp., owner of an international hotel chain.

Lending institutions that filed suit to seek repayment from Murchison include Paris-based Saudi European Bank S.A., New York-based Citicorp Real Estate Inc. and Bank of Dallas, records obtained by The Dallas Morning News show.

Efforts by the newspaper to reach attorneys for Murchison were unsuccessful Tuesday. Murchison, in all the other pending cases, has filed court papers contending the debts were not owed.

U.S. District Judge Joe Fish in February awarded a $2 million judgment to a Cleveland, Ohio, bank after ruling that Murchison and business associate Louis A. Ferris Jr. owed the money.

Little Rock-based First Federal Savings of Arkansas F.A. filed the $25.5 million suit last Friday in the Dallas court of U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders.

The First Federal suit alleges that Murchison guaranteed a loan from First Federal Savings to Hillandale Development Corp. Inc. in November 1982.

Records in the Saudi suit show that the Hillandale loan was for construction of an exclusive residential neighborhood in the Georgetown area of Washington.

The Saudi bank is seeking $4.4 million in connection with the housing development from Murchison, Tecon Realty Corp. and TSI Holdings Inc. All are listed in papers filed in the suit as guarantors of loans made to Hillandale.

Murchison is listed in court records as director of each of the three companies.

Toby L. Gerber, Dallas attorney for First Federal Savings, said Tuesday that on May 16 the savings and loan notified Hillandale that it will initiate foreclosure proceedings against the residential development unless the loan is repaid soon.

Judge denies woman custody, visitation rights

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state district judge has ordered an investigation into allegations that a woman who wants the child she gave up for adoption previously considered private placement of the child.

On Tuesday, State District Judge Frank Sullivan denied custody and visitation rights to Ellen Breeding, who is seeking to get back her 4-month-old girl.

He set a jury trial date for June 25 to determine whether or not the 19-year-old woman's parental rights should be terminated.

The child was born Jan. 20 at the Edna Gladney Home and on Jan. 27 Miss Breeding signed papers relinquishing her parental rights.

"We weren't expecting this," said Richard Alley, the woman's attorney. "Last week, all of us thought she was going to win. I really don't believe it is in the best interest of the child not to visit with her mother."

Two weeks ago, she went to court to contest termination of her parent rights sought by the Edna Gladney Home.

Sullivan ordered the Tarrant County Family Court Services to prepare a study. The study showed that Miss Breeding had a history of instability and it raised questions about whether she could care for the child, Sullivan said.

Testimony during Tuesday's hearing painted Miss Breeding as a rebellious teen-ager who had tried drugs and had run away from home at age 17.

"Things looked pretty good a week ago," the judge told Miss Breeding. "I thought we had it all ironed out. I assumed if the social study was favorable, you would receive your baby today. Based on the evidence today, it concerns me to put a child in a position of being swapped back and forth."

Investigator Denise Robison said Miss Breeding was financially unable to support herself, "much less a newborn baby," had failed to prepare a child care plan and had smoked marijuana.

Ms. Robison testified that she would be "reluctant to place the child with her mother at this time."

Sullivan ordered court services to investigate fully a letter received from a

Paper: NASA official gets UT job

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas regents were scheduled to meet today, and a published report said the regents, who are in command of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, would name Hans Mark, deputy administrator for NASA, who also served as secretary of the Air Force from 1979 to 1981 and undersecretary for two years before that.

"I assume the regents will have some announcement related to the selection of the chancellor. If that is correct, there is a strong possibility that the new chancellor will be introduced," said regents spokesman Joe Roddy.

Regent Jess Hay of Dallas, asked if the new chancellor was to be named today, said that is "a possibility." But he declined to say whether Mark would get the post.

Mark declined to talk about the chancellor's opening.

UT regents have conducted a nationwide search for a new chancellor to replace E. Don Walker, whose resignation is effective Sept. 1.

The UT chancellor is the chief executive officer for the university system which includes 14 campuses.

118,000 students, a $2 billion endowment and an annual budget exceeding $1.6 billion. Only four other states have larger university systems.

The current annual salary for the chancellor is $132,600.

Mark, 54, is a physicist and engineer. He has a bachelor's degree in physics from the University of California at Berkeley and a doctor's degree in physics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He has been a research associate and assistant professor at MIT and a research physicist at the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Lab at Livermore. He joined the faculty of the University of California in 1960.

Youth faces extradition in ax slaying

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP) — A 17-year-old DeSoto, Mo., youth has refused to sign papers allowing Texas authorities to extradite him to face murder charges in the bludgeoning death of a San Antonio man.

William B. Krodringer Jr. was arraigned Tuesday in St. Francois County Circuit Court. His refusal to sign the papers means Texas authorities will have to extradite him through Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond's office.

Krodringer's alleged accomplice in the murder, a 15-year-old St. Louis youth, may also be fighting extradition, according to Sgt. George Cobb of the St. Francois County Sheriff's Department.

The teen-agers gave separate statements admitting that they used a crowbar and a hatchet to bludgeon Kenneth E. McEachern to death Saturday in a motel room in Austin, authorities said.

The youths told police they killed McEachern, 40, because he had threatened Krodringer. The victim's body was found Sunday. He had bled to death after being struck in the head a number of times with a blunt object.

The suspects told police McEachern had taken them on a weeklong stealing spree, in which they would steal radar detectors and citizens band radios and sell them at truck stops for gasoline money, said Trooper Ralph Sturdevant of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

"We could not find any criminal history on either boy," the trooper said.

Krodringer was being held Tuesday.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Take advise if you like stripes

A lot of working Americans are discovering how much those two great "Social Security Bailouts" (1977 and 1983) are actually costing. That "discovery" will be more and more painful between now and 1990 as the maximum SS tax heads for the stratosphere and many younger Americans wonder "Is there any way out of this?"

America's leading "tax rebel," Irwin Schiff, is counting on questions like these to stimulate interest in his new book "The Social Security Swindle - How Anyone Can Drop Out," a step - by - step, 256 - page manual on how to stop paying Social Security taxes, and drop out of the system. We lack the legal expertise to tell you how dangerous it would be to take Schiff's advice, and you should know, though the book jacket doesn't inform you, that Schiff spent time in federal prison for taking his own advice on his last book "How Anyone Can Stop Paying Income Taxes." But the new book makes eye - opening reading for anyone who wants to understand the number of deceptions politicians and the courts have had to use to "sell" the Social Security system to the American people.

He reminds you that the so - called Social Security tax is not a "contribution" to an insurance or pension scheme, but is in fact, and by Supreme Court decision, an income tax, that supports a straight federal income transfer program. He also reminds you that the so - called "trust funds," we are supposed to be "contributing to," do not, in fact, exist, and never have, except as inter-government IOUs. All the money collected for SS has been immediately spent, either on benefits, or through debt, on other budget items.

Since the system is, by law, forbidden from investing in real or tangible private assets, it can only purchase Treasury bonds (i.e. government debt). There is not now and never has been any "fund" stashed away somewhere for us.

So, Mr. Schiff makes his case that the Social Security system is nothing more than a giant intergenerational "chain letter", totally at the mercy of changing economic conditions (recessions, inflation, etc.) and falling birthrates. That's not to mention the greed of politicians who have constantly expanded benefits to buy this year's votes at the expense of next generation's taxpayers.

As University of Rochester Chancellor W. Allen Wallis, chairman of the 1975 Advisory Council on Social Security, told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress in 1976: "When you pay SS taxes you are in no way making provision for your own retirement. You are paying the pensions of those who already are retired."

This "pay - as - you - go" approach is the reason why, over the last twenty years, Social Security taxes have been rising four times as fast as wages, and by 1990 under the 1983 "reform" bill, the maximum SS tax will reach $8,899 (for both employer and employee), 11.8 times as much as 1970 ($748).

When, in 1990, nearly half of all Americans will be paying more than $3,000 a year in S.S. taxes, we could see a significant "generational gap" developing as growing numbers of younger workers and voters start asking for relief. Aggravating this demand will be the discovery, about then, that the two costly 1977 and 1983 bailouts will suddenly start generating an enormous surplus "bulge" which from 1990 to 2040 will accumulate some $20 trillion. That's right, $20 TRILLION.

Now, of course, all of that will be needed from the year 2040 forward, as the current "baby - boom" generation retires. But, that's based on a "lagging economy" and unfavorable trends in the current adult population. If the economy were to perform better than expected, that surplus could reach more than $70 trillion, far more than would ever be needed.

This is why Stuart J. Sweet, Sen. Paula Hawkins (R. - Fla.) legislative director, warned in the Wall Street Journal recently, "One does not have to be a cynic to see how tempting it will be for politicians to spend surplus funds that won't be needed for nearly sixty years. Who believes they will be able to resist handing out new benefits when a $20 - trillion surplus will accumulate... if they forbear?"

More important, Sweet wonders, "How does the government invest $20 trillion without violating traditional boundaries between the public and private sectors?" The government could easily "buy up" most of the Fortune 500 companies, with what these "surpluses" will generate by the early part of the next century.

Obviously though, such "surpluses" will not, if history is any guide, and it usually is, accumulate. They will be used to finance general government spending - and as Schiff points out, this is because the Supreme Court ruled in 1937 that Social Security taxes are "true taxes, the purpose being simply to raise revenue. The proceeds are paid, unrestricted, into the Treasury as Internal Revenue collections available for the general support of the government." (DAVIS v. BOSTON)

In short, S.S. is an income tax, on top of the income taxes we already pay. Because it is not levied uniformly on all Americans, it is probably, in the strictest sense, unconstitutional. Irwin Schiff argues we should refuse to pay it. With Congress and President Reagan now totally frightened of the elderly lobby, and hopes for genuine long - term reform now dead, some may be tempted to follow Schiff's advice, but they better have deep pockets (for court costs) and a high tolerance for prison food.

Were 'Browns' really helped

When Oliver Brown, on behalf of his daughter, Linda, challenged the legal segregation in the Topeka, Kan., schools 30 years ago, he did so not so much to crack the color barrier, but mostly to save his daughter a walk across a railroad yard and a two-mile bus ride to school.

The Browns lived in an integrated neighborhood. The white children walked to the whites-only Sumner School a few blocks away. Linda Brown—a third-grader in 1954—had to walk across the railroad switchyard to catch a bus to the blacks-only Monroe Elementary School.

Her mother recently recalled the issue in these terms: "There were children right next door who went to school together every day. Linda played with them, but then she had to go to a different school."

So Oliver Brown agreed to be part of a class-action lawsuit filed by the Topeka NAACP against the board of education on behalf of several black families in situations similar to the Browns'. By chance, Brown's name was listed first in the court papers. On May 17, 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its ruling in "Brown vs. the Board of Education," declaring that segregated schools inherently were unequal in the quality of education they provided, and thus were in violation of the Constitution.

Today, in cities across the country under court-ordered desegregation plans—stemming, to some extent, from the landmark 1954 ruling and subsequent laws and tortured interpretations of them—there is a good chance that Linda Brown, were she a third-grader today, would be legally denied the right to attend her neighborhood schools.

There is a good chance she would be legally compelled to ride a bus to an unfamiliar school miles away from where she lives, and separated from her playmates—the same circumstance that angered her father and moved him to challenge the school board establishment 30 years ago.

It is an irony worth noting.

Legacy

In this feature we excerpt material that has appeared on Freedom Newspapers' editorial pages in previous years, whether from the editorials or the column written for many years by Freedom founder R.C. Hoiles.

Whether a state system of medicine as practiced in Norway or England or the United States is accepted by the people is, not in our estimation, the principal question.

The important question is whether the individual patient has freedom of choice.

We submit that the individual in the United States does not have freedom of choice on who will treat his ailments. He does not have freedom of choice on the type of medicine he will use. It is not between him and his doctors. It is between him and his doctors and an agency of the state.

And while most people in Norway and England probably are satisfied with socialized compulsory health plans, and many seem to be dissatisfied with the quasi-socialized system of the United States, there is no reason why Americans should copy a program that will further restrict their freedom of choice.

Solving MX's many problems

The first time I heard of the MX was back in 1979 when a friend of mine at the Pentagon called me and said, "What would you think if we came up with a new missile designed to deter the Soviets from launching a first-strike attack against the U.S.?"

"It sounds good to me," I said. "What makes this missile different from all the other ones we have in stock?"

"It would be based on rails under the deserts of Nevada and Utah. We'll have a hundred of them moving around at all times and the Soviets will never know where they are."

"How much money are we talking about?"

"Would you go for $50 billion?"

"Why not? It's a steal if it will bring the Kremlin to its senses."

He said, "you won't be sorry. I didn't hear any more about it until 1981, when I ran into my friend at a Georgetown party. 'How are you doing with the MX missile?'"

"You mean the 'Peacekeeper'?"

"Is that what you call it now?"

"That's what President Reagan calls it. We scrapped the race track concept and decided to put them into stationary Titan silos in Wyoming."

"I thought the whole idea behind the weapon was that it would be mobile. If you put them in stationary silos, won't they be vulnerable to attack?"

"Not if we harden the concrete. If the 'Peacekeeper' doesn't make the Russians see the value of arms talks, nothing will."

"How much are we talking about now?"

"We don't want to put a price on it until we get in all the bids from the cement companies."

I was so busy with the placing of the cruise missiles in Europe I didn't have time to think much about the "Peacekeeper" until my friend called my last months and said, "Well, we really think we've got the system worked out now. Instead of placing the 'Peacekeeper' in individual silos we're going to put 100 of them in a 'Dense Pack.' Even if the Soviets knock out 80 we can still launch 20 and that should do the job."

"If you've got it figured out, why are you bothering me?"

"It seems some jerk in the General Accounting Office did a study and said the 'Peacekeeper' can't do the job we said it would, so Congress is balking. They don't want to throw good money after bad money. We thought you might call your friends up on The Hill and persuade them that we need the weapon whether it works or not."

"Why do we need it if it doesn't work?"

"We need it as a chip to get the Soviets back to the arms talks in Geneva. If we scrap the 'Peacekeeper' now it will send a signal to them we're not serious about arms reduction."

"Maybe Congress wants to use the money for other weapons that do work. How can I persuade them to go along with one they're not sure of?"

"Just point out to them that it's an election year, and if they vote against the 'Peacekeeper' the president will accuse them of weakening our defense posture."

"You mean you want me to use the MX as a chip against Congress?"

I called up all my Democratic friends in Congress and put it to them. If they dumped the "Peacekeeper" now their political futures were in jeopardy. We worked out a compromise. They said they would hold off funding the MX until April, 1985. If the Soviets still refused to resume arms talks we would start production. Then I called back the Pentagon and told my friend about the deal.

He seemed satisfied. "We can use the time to see if we can make the damn thing work." (c) 1984, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Who makes gulf war possible?

The war in the Persian Gulf is threatening to spread — and may have by the time you read this.

According to a New York Times dispatch from Washington, U.S. forces have not yet been called in by the Saudis and their allies because neither they nor we want the situation "to look like an American show."

The reluctance is just a bit out of date. The Iraq-Iran conflict is already an American show — and a French and a British and a Soviet one.

And has been from the start.

Those are American-supplied F-15s and F-5s the nervous Saudis are reluctantly prepared to put into the air to police a "non-belligerent" shipping lane through the gulf.

Those are American-supplied (to the shah) F-4 Phantoms Iran has been using to attack non-belligerent tankers.

Those are French Mirages equipped with French Exocets — the miracle missile of the Falklands war — that Iraq has targeted on Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal.

And there's more — much more.

The Iraqis absorbed some $3 billion worth of Soviet arms (those were Soviet tanks that led the initial assault on revolutionary Iran almost four years ago) in two decades as Moscow's key client in the region, before ardor cooled and Baghdad turned to Western suppliers.

Those Saudi F-15s are backed up by super-sophisticated AWACS electronic surveillance planes supplied by you know who. The Saudis also have some British-built Lightnings in reserve.

The smaller gulf states may have been politically independent of Britain for some years, but they still do most of their arms business with London.

In brief, the origin of the gulf war may be in the political and religious rivalries of the region but its continuation is a consequence of an international arms trade that has pumped billions upon billions of dollars worth of weaponry into countries that for the most part can neither afford nor be trusted with it.

Despite the consequences, the trade continues. According to a study by the Congressional Research Service, just released, the total value of military deals between industrial and non-industrial countries in 1983 was $26.5 billion. This takes in only sales arranged or sanctioned by governments. There are no precise figures for the secretive private market.

It is both the good and the bad news that the 1983 figure was the lowest dollar total since the mid-1970s.

The United States had a clear lead, $9.68 billion in arms deliveries to developing countries during the year. The Soviets followed with $7.8 billion and major U.S. allies, the other industrial democracies, accounted for a total just short of $7 billion.

The Mideast, where the oil exporters have become accustomed — with encouragement from the sellers — to pouring much of their wealth into arms, is by far the most lucrative market.

Buyers and sellers both tend to play politics. There was the long-term Soviet-Iraqi affair. We once felt similarly about the shah and still do about the Saudis, although out of both pique and prudence the latter have begun to diversify, with the French the primary beneficiaries.

In our distress at the course the gulf war has taken, let us not forget that the combatants would never have been able to carry on so long or so bloodily — or to threaten an escalation with such ominous implications for the world beyond the gulf — without such generous outside military assistance.

Democratic platform writers take testimony on the economy

HOUSTON (AP) — A multitude of labor officials and trade group representatives from around the country wants the Democratic Party to assemble a platform to solve what former Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall calls "the failure of Reaganomics."

"We can no longer ask workers, companies and their communities to pay for an inept and callous administration that has this country lurching from crisis to crisis," Edgar L. Ball, district director for the United Steelworkers of America, added Tuesday as more than 100 witnesses testified before a panel charged with writing the party's election-year document.

The daylong session, the sixth and last of six regional platform committee hearings, dealt with the "hoax" of the economic recovery, according to Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro, D-N.Y., platform committee chair.

"Millions of Americans are still out of work — more than when President Reagan took office," she said. "Interest rates are climbing again, and real rates are higher than they've been since the Great Depression."

Texan travels to Georgia to look at the annular eclipse

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — George Ellis, a self-proclaimed eclipse addict, says the astronomical phenomenon may not be as scientifically useful as it once was.

But he adds that when amateurs see the moon cover most of the sun's disk, the rare experience can be addictive.

Ellis, an engineer at General Dynamics here, has traveled to Mauritania on the west coast of Africa and twice near the Arctic Circle in Canada to watch eclipses.

He'll view the eclipse today in Atlanta, Ga., where thousands of others, including scientists and eclipse junkies, will gather to watch and study the "annular" — or almost total — eclipse.

The eclipse will sweep in a line just under Texas and then from Louisiana to Virginia.

The next annular eclipse is not due to cross the United States until 2012.

"It's a very rare event," Ellis told the Dallas Morning News earlier this week.

Annular eclipses occur when the moon covers all but the outer rim of the sun's disk. Total eclipses occur when the moon, sun and Earth enter the same plane. Partial eclipses are when the moon even slightly clips the line between the earth and the sun.

Evans said eclipses were once heralded as major astronomical opportunities, for it was the only chance scientists could study the sun's outer atmosphere — its corona or prominences — "without blinding themselves."

But in 1930 French astronomer Bernard Lyot invented the coronagraph, a telescope apparatus that masks the bright disk of the sun without obscuring the light emitted around that disk.

The coronagraph, as well as radio telescopes and instruments for chemically analyzing the sun, have "put eclipses somewhat out of fashion" for the scientists, Evans said.

Although amateurs like Ellis are gearing up for the event, scientists are watching more with interest than with enthusiasm, said David Evans, an astronomer at the University of Texas at Austin and a seasoned eclipse watcher.

Evans said scientists still use eclipses to study some questions, including Bailey's Beads.

Paul Maley, a flight controller at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, said "Bailey's Beads" are lingering points caused by sunlight pouring through the moon's mountains and valleys. Maley said these points are still a phenomenon that may have a relationship to the Earth's climate.

"Instead of the balanced budget we were promised, we have truly historic deficits which are truly of the President's making. We shouldn't forget — and we shouldn't let the American people forget."

The parade of more than 100 people testifying before the panel ranged from a vice president for Exxon Corp. to the mayor of New Orleans, and from officials of the National Education Association to the president of Animal Rights Kinship, a Texas group dedicated to protection of all animals.

Each was given five minutes to tell the committee what should be included in the platform to be written by the panel next month.

The document then will be subject to scrutiny and ratification by delegates to the Democratic National Convention in July in San Francisco. Party Chairman Charles T. Manatt hoped the platform could be held less than the 34,000 words that comprised the one in 1980.

The panel already has taken testimony on foreign policy and defense, education, civil rights, and farm and urban problems at hearings in New York; Birmingham, Ala.; Springfield, Ill.; Los Angeles and Cleveland.

Manatt noted that Republicans have slated no such public hearings on their platform, a practice he referred to as "Soviet style."

"Our door is open," he said. Ms. Ferraro said she hoped the convention would produce few fights over the platform.

"I'm hoping we can come up with a platform that's a statement of principles, a statement of goals, and truly a contrast of the future under Ronald Reagan," she said.

Supreme Court to review former government policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Tuesday agreed to judge the validity of the government's former policy of prosecuting only those young men who publicized their resistance to the military draft registration.

The court said it will study the case of David Alan Wayte, a 23-year-old former Yale philosophy student from Pasadena, Calif., who says his free-speech rights were violated by the government's "selective prosecution."

Wayte's arguments convinced a federal trial judge to throw out his 1982 indictment, but the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco reinstated the indictment last July.

WATER, WATER EVERYWHERE—Children along the Venetian Causeway near Miami use a small rowboat to cross a flooded street Tuesday as rain continued to pelt the Miami area. Some 11 inches of rain has fallen since Saturday, flooding streets and snarling traffic. (AP Laserphoto)

In other cases Tuesday, the court:

— Agreed to decide whether The Nation, a weekly magazine, violated copyright law when it printed information from former President Gerald Ford's memoirs before his book was published in 1979.

— Agreed to review a dispute between the federal government and the Western Shoshone Indians over 24 million acres of Nevada and California land. The government contends the Indians' claims to the land were extinguished when the United States set aside $26 million as a damages payment to tribal members.

— Rejected the appeal of a gay British businessman, a Texas resident for 19 years, who was denied U.S. citizenship because of a federal law excluding aliens with a "sexual deviation."

— Ruled that an Arizona man, Dennis Wayne Rumsey, could not be sentenced to death for the same crime after he had been given a life imprisonment term.

— Killed an industry challenge of a 1976 agreement between the government and environmentalists to limit toxic water pollution. The justices left intact a ruling that threw out a lawsuit by industry critics of the agreement that sets certain standards for treating toxic wastes.

SCHOOLS OUT!

DRIVE SAFELY

The summer months can be dangerous months for vacation time kids away from school. Busy playing, often on the streets, they act compulsively, foolishly.

Be a good citizen — be a good driver. Be alert for out-of-school kids having a ball. Play ball with the safety rules — drive carefully and let everyone have a great summer!

British Isles Adventure

What's an investment broker doing offering a travel program, you ask? Well, through the years we've offered our customers innovative financial products designed to expand their capital, but we've always felt it's as important for our customers to enjoy their money as it is to invest it.

So, it shouldn't come as a surprise that we've teamed up with the country's largest group-travel company to offer glamorous holidays to the world's most popular destinations. Last year, we offered an unforgettable tour through Germany and Switzerland that many participants rated the best travel experience of their lives.

In October of this year we'll offer our Full-Service Account Holders an even more exciting program: a luxurious, 11-night holiday to Scotland, London and the English countryside. We've put together a full-color brochure which describes this once-in-a-lifetime holiday.

To receive a free copy, call the toll-free number below or drop by our office. We think you'll agree our British Isles Adventure is a sound investment in pleasure.

Dear Abby

It's possible to get pregnant with or without your clothes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This letter concerns an argument with my roommate. She claims she read a letter in your column in which a girl got pregnant without taking off her clothes, and that the guy was also fully dressed. She said they were wearing jeans.

My roommate very often gets confused about things she's read or heard, so I called Planned Parenthood and another family planning clinic to prove her wrong, and they could hardly answer me for laughing.

I told her this, but she still believes a girl can get pregnant while fully clothed.

If this is true, please print the letter again.

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

DEAR CAN'T: You had better believe it because it's true. The item your roommate was referring to is as follows:

DEAR ABBY: I have been told by friends that it is possible to get pregnant through your jeans. I can't believe this!

I am a virgin, just turned 15, and know I am going to be more involved with guys now that I'm dating. If this is possible, I am scared to death to get very close to any guy. I need to know as soon as possible.

I hope you won't think this is a dumb question.

WORRIED IN EL PASO

DEAR WORRIED: It is not a dumb question. It's a very intelligent one. A lot of kids get aroused just by lying close to each other while kissing. Then they just naturally proceed to the next step, which is petting.

It's not possible to get pregnant through one's jeans, but sometimes kids remove some of their clothing because it's "in the way," or they burrow underneath it to explore each other's bodies with their hands. This is known as heavy petting, or "doing everything else but."

The technical (and legal) definition of sexual intercourse is "penetration." (The male's sex organ must penetrate the female's.) However, as impossible as it may sound, in the medical literature can be found cases where there has been no penetration—the girl remained a virgin, but after engaging in heavy petting, she found herself pregnant.

How can that be? Simple.

The boy and girl were lying very close to each other (unclothed), doing "everything but," when a small amount of sperm leaked out ... near (not inside, but very close to) the girl's vagina. The sperm got into the moisture around the vagina and found its way up into it, and fertilized the egg!

The above is from my booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It can be obtained by sending $2.50 to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

DEAR ABBY: You rate four gold stars for your article on the importance of washing one's hands. I cut it out and put it on the refrigerator door for everyone in my family to read.

I am amazed at the number of people who come home from shopping and immediately begin to prepare a meal without washing their hands. And how about all those fast-food places where employees handle the food, handle the money, then back to the food?

I have spoken to several of them about this, and they looked at me as if to say, "So what's wrong with that?"

Let's wash up, America!

Texas fruits and vegetables reach peak

By GAYLA MALONEY
Marketing Representative

The beginning of the summer months signal the forthcoming of the "fresh off the farm" fruits and vegetables from Texas. Fresh Texas fruits and vegetables available for this month include onions (fresh spring from the Valley), summer squash (yellow and zucchini), bell peppers, beets, cabbage, and canteloup and honeydew harvest have begun.

Fruits and vegetables are nutritionally high in vitamins and minerals and provide good sources of carbohydrates in our diet. They are also excellent sources of fiber and generally low in calories. The wide variety of fruits and vegetables provide dieters with a good selection and aids in learning healthier eating habits. We are fortunate, in Texas, that we do not have a month passes by that we do not have a fresh vegetable coming into maturity and being featured in our supermarkets.

Ideas that work

Infants and young children who breathe through their mouths, rather than their noses, may experience abnormal facial bone development and an unattractive positioning of teeth. So reports Dr. Michael Dierkes, chairman of the Department of Orthodontics at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., in the current Family Circle magazine's "Here's News in Medicine" column.

Although an orthodontist can correct these problems when a child is 6 or 7, it's far better if parents keep on the alert for early signs of poor breathing patterns. These signs include mouth-breathing either when asleep or awake, thrusting the tongue out of the mouth or difficulty with speech. Any one of these may indicate nasal passage blockage, perhaps caused by something as simple as enlarged tonsils. Prompt treatment frequently prevents the need for braces and other orthodontic procedures years later.

The Texas fruit and vegetable crop outlook for this summer is good to excellent in most cases. Canteloup and honeydew harvest began the middle of May. Peak season for both of these fruits is the early part of June. Quality for both types of melons is excellent. The leaves of these melons have protected them from the drought.

Onions from the Valley are currently at their peak supply. Quality is excellent. The new grano variety known as the 1015 is fast becoming one of the sweetest, mildest onions developed to date. Squash supplies will increase by late May. Since the heat and drought have not affected the squash, the quality is good.

Between now and June, cabbage supplies will be good. When temperatures soar above 100 degrees, cabbage starts deteriorating. Peppers, beets and cucumbers are also available. Texas watermelons are currently being affected by the drought. Watermelon size will be smaller than normal due to lack of water.

When purchasing Texas fruits and vegetables, keep these tips in mind:

—Look for freshness: The vegetables should be comparatively dry, because excessive moisture hastens decay. Be sure to check packaged vegetables and fruits for decay.

—Buy vegetables and fruits at peak harvest. Prices and quality are best at this time. In some years the harvest may be a few weeks early or may extend a month beyond the peak times.

Correct preparation of vegetables is crucial to keep in nutrients and improving flavor. Vegetables should be cooked in small amounts of water to the "just done" stage. Steaming and stir-frying help retain color, flavor and texture of vegetables. Grated vegetables can be added to baked items for flavor and texture. The addition of the vegetables helps keep baked items moist. During warmer months marinated raw vegetables are a good choice for snacking and to serve with lighter meals.

The following fresh vegetable and fruit recipes are courtesy of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

GARDEN RELISH

2 c. chopped cabbage
1-3rd c. chopped carrot
1-3rd c. chopped green pepper
1/4 c. chopped red onion
1/2 c. bottled Italian or low-calorie French dressing Combine ingredients, toss lightly and chill. A good snacking relish for calorie watchers. Keeps well in the refrigerator. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

FRESH FRUIT COMBO

1/2 c. honey
1 t. cinnamon
2 T. lemon juice
1 c. watermelon balls
1 c. canteloup balls
1/2 c. sliced strawberries
1 c. seedless grapes
Combine honey, cinnamon and lemon juice; chill. Mix together fruits and pour chilled dressing over just before serving.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

3 eggs
1 c. cooking oil
2 c. sugar
2 c. zucchini, grated
2 t. vanilla
3 c. flour
1 t. soda
1/2 t. baking powder
1 t. salt
1 t. cinnamon
1/2 c. chopped pecans

Preheat the oven to 325 degrees. Grease and flour two loaf pans. Beat eggs, add oil, sugar, zucchini and vanilla. Add flour, soda, salt, baking powder, cinnamon and nuts. Pour into greased loaf pans. Bake one hour and 15 minutes. Yield: two loaves.

Hart resurrects old Mondale praise as Demo hopefuls go west

By The Associated Press
Gary Hart is invoking Walter Mondale's old praise of him as a "brilliant" senator in new television commercials as all three Democratic presidential hopefuls turn their sights to California and its huge delegate prize.

With the presidential primary season down to its final week, Walter F. Mondale is back in San Francisco after ending his New Jersey campaign, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson was heading for California after stops in New Mexico today.

President Reagan was on a political trip too, meeting with Republican supporters in Colorado late Tuesday after visiting U.S. athletes training for the Olympics. Because of the political meeting, spokesman Larry Speakes said, the president's trip was paid for by the Reagan-Bush campaign, not taxpayers.

Hart, who flies to California today from New Jersey, starts airing new television advertisements this evening — different ads by different producers in the two states.

Hart's California commercials quote a Nov. 9, 1979 speech by then-Vice President Mondale endorsing the Colorado senator's re-election.

"Gary Hart is one of the most decent and compassionate public servants I have ever known in my life. He is brilliant... If we lost Gary Hart, it could

France, U.S. blast Soviet militarism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign ministers of the 16 NATO nations are meeting informally in a secluded 18th century mansion on Chesapeake Bay after hearing U.S. and West European leaders accuse the Soviet Union of a reckless and intimidating drive to achieve military superiority.

"Relations have gone down hill and we do not bear the responsibility," said French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson on Tuesday as he addressed the opening of a three-day meeting marking the 35th anniversary of the North Atlantic Alliance.

The Soviets, said Vice President George Bush, have laid down "a trail of adventurism" stretching from Asia to Africa to Latin America.

In their talks at Wye Plantation, a 23-bedroom Georgian mansion on a Maryland peninsula stretching into the waters of the Chesapeake, the 16 foreign ministers will discuss not only the state of East-West relations but such immediate issues as the Iran-Iraq war, with its threat to the flow of oil to the West.

Secretary of State George Shultz, the host for the first NATO parley to be held in the United States since 1969, is expected to use the private meetings to brief his colleagues on the U.S. decision to rush Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia to help protect shipping.

Also on the agenda is the postponement by the Netherlands of a decision to deploy 48 American-built cruise missiles to help counter the expanding force of Soviet SS-20 medium-range nuclear-tipped missiles.

In his opening address in the Dean Acheson auditorium of the State Department — a room named for the secretary of state who presided over the founding of NATO in 1949 — Cheysson said there can be no doubt of Moscow's "obstinate intention to place our alliance, or at least the continental European part of it, under fearful political and psychological pressure."

In his speech, Cheysson said the immediate cause of East-West tensions is the deployment of Soviet medium-range missiles aimed at Western Europe.

"No one can deny that this has changed, has broken the balance of forces," said the French foreign minister as he accused the Soviets of a "massive" military buildup "to acquire superiority and thus the power of intimidation."

In his welcoming address, Bush said NATO allies have a duty to help developing Third World countries protect themselves and to ensure that their freedom and independence "is not destroyed by aggression and subversion."

He called on the Soviet Union to resume arms control negotiations. But he also said he was "not optimistic" about chances for quick progress.

change the course of this entire nation," an announcer quoting Mondale says in the 30-second commercial.

The ads show the "hypocrisy" of Mondale's recent attacks on Hart, says Hart consultant Bill Zimmerman, who produced the commercial.

Zimmerman said Hart is budgeted to spend $335,000 on television advertising. In New Jersey, Hart campaign officials say they will spend another $300,000 or more airing different ads.

Five states hold primaries next Tuesday with 486 delegates at stake. The bulk of them are 306 in California, the biggest delegate state of all, and in New Jersey with 107. Also holding primaries are New Mexico, South Dakota and West Virginia.

"What's at stake in California is the nomination," said Zimmerman.

Mondale picked up more delegates Tuesday when eight uncommitted delegates in Mississippi and two in Alaska — including Gov. Bill Sheffield — said they were backing the former vice president.

Mondale has 1,681.05 delegates, fewer than 300 away from the 1,967 needed to secure the nomination. Hart has 991.75 delegates, and Jackson 311.2.

In San Francisco on Tuesday, Mondale spoke briefly to about 500 supporters at an after-work "Puttin' on the Ritz for Fritz" rally in a warehouse on the bay.

Mondale said he had urged President Reagan to withhold anti-aircraft missiles sent to Saudi Arabia and to "keep these weapons in the United States where they belong."

In New Jersey earlier, Mondale met factory workers at an RCA plant and spoke with former Johns Manville Corp. workers suffering from exposure to asbestos.

Mondale criticized Hart for sponsoring legislation that would have relieved Manville of much of the financial responsibility for claims by workers suffering from asbestos exposure.

A press aide to Hart, Paula Weiss, said Mondale was "mischaracterizing Senator Hart's record." She said he proposed legislation that would seek immediate relief for victims of asbestosis by creating a pool of money from insurance companies, Johns Manville and the federal government.

Jackson, returning to the country after a one-day visit to Mexico, campaigned in Albuquerque and Santa Fe, New Mexico late Tuesday, where he defended undocumented workers and attacked proposed immigration reforms.

"We should never use the words 'illegal alien.'"

Projects or ventures that you originate or have sole control over should work out successfully this coming year. Don't bring in others unless absolutely necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Avoid persons today who operate deviously. Although your motives will be above reproach, you'll be stained through association. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest in the year ahead are revealed in your Astro-Graph predictions for the coming year. To get yours, mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your instincts will help tune you into the proper course of action today, but a companion who lacks your sensitivity may dissuade you from following your hunches.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You need people around you today who are sincere and honest. Avoid persons who are pretentious or crafty. They could cause you complications.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Personal accumulation is likely today, provided you don't let self-doubts prevail. It's better to make a mistake than to timidly fail to try.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely selective regarding the goals you set for yourself today. You have the ability to achieve, but be sure your victories don't have a hollow ring.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be constantly on guard today when doing business with persons with whom you aren't familiar, if you get careless, someone will profit, but it won't be you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Before entering into an agreement today, be certain the terms are exactly what you want before signing. A bad deal will be tough to unravel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Persons fond of you will be willing to assist you, but only if they see that you are doing all that you can to help yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A member of the opposite sex may be especially attentive to you today. This flattery will inflate your ego, but don't take it too seriously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) First seek the necessary solutions to solve family problems today before becoming involved with the troubles of outsiders. Blood is thicker than water.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a pretty good negotiator today. Unfortunately, you may be a poor closer. Don't belabor the issue once another has agreed to your terms.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material prospects look encouraging today, but there's a chance you might not derive all to which you're entitled, due to misjudgment.

Worthy key to future success of Lakers?

BOSTON (AP) — James Worthy's play dominated the third quarter when his Lakers won the opener of the National Basketball Association Championship Series against Boston.

It may have been a preview of the Los Angeles offense of the future.

Worthy scored 12 points in the first 5:59 of the period Sunday, including eight straight for the Lakers after Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had left the game with four fouls. He finished with 20 points.

Game 2 in the best-of-seven series will be Thursday night at Boston Garden.

On Tuesday, Lakers Coach Pat Riley was musing about the future of the team after Abdul-Jabbar's expected retirement in 1985.

"I'd like to have a lineup of five 6-foot-9 guys, with Magic Johnson and James Worthy as the nucleus," Riley said. "There would be no positions, just five guys rotating on defense, running, passing and scoring. It would be fun."

Fun, indeed, if Worthy continues to perform the way he has in playoffs. He and Abdul-Jabbar are the only players on the team who have scored in double figures in all 17 postseason games, and in the last three outings, two as a starter. Worthy has scored 23, 22 and 20 points.

"I don't think he's touched the surface of what he can do," Riley said. "He could be on the verge of superstardom. Someday, he'll become the focus of our offense."

Even now, Riley says Worthy trails only Abdul-Jabbar, the all-time leading NBA scorer, as the player the Lakers most want to go to when they need a basket.

"All James needs is a little more pro experience and more consistent concentration," Riley said. "During the regular season, he sometimes has problems maintaining his concentration. But he is on the verge of having that problem be history."

Last season, Worthy's first in the NBA after leading North Carolina to a national collegiate title the previous year, he broke his leg just before the playoffs and had to sit on the sidelines while the Lakers lost four straight games to Philadelphia in the finals.

Worthy blends in well with the Lakers' system, in which nearly every player is used at more than one position.

Rangers fall to Kansas City, 7-5

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A pesky virus allowed Darryl Motley to knock in four RBIs on a two-run homer and a two-run single for the Kansas City Royals.

The outfielder drove in the six runs, including a dead-lock-breaking, game-winning RBI in the 10th inning, after a virus and sore throat sidelined Kansas City regular Jorge Orta.

"I was just happy to get to play," Motley said after the Royals' 7-5 victory over the Texas Rangers Tuesday.

Motley is hoping to complete his first full season in the Major Leagues this year. "It's just a situation where Orta is injured and not ready to play. I was just happy to make the ball club this year and get a chance to play," regular Jorge Orta.

Before driving in the game-winner, Motley also knocked home what would have been the winning run, had the Rangers not tied the game 8-8 in the eighth inning.

"The ability's been there," said Kansas Coach Dick Houser. "Now he's putting it all together. He's got good speed and he's strong."

Dan Quisenberry, 2-2, who pitched three innings in relief of Bud Black, gave up two hits and struck out one in picking up the victory.

Black gave up four runs, three earned on eight hits.

Loser Dave Schmidt, 0-2, gave up five hits after relieving Dave Stewart to open the ninth. Stewart gave up the first five Royals runs on nine hits. He tied a personal high with nine strikeouts.

The Rangers scored one run in the first of three consecutive singles by Larry Parrish, Pete O'Brien and Buddy Bell.

Motley then slammed his fifth homer of the year into the center field seats to score himself and Frank White who had doubled to reach base.

Kansas City scored three more runs in the sixth, bringing the total to 5-1 on RBI hits by Dane Iorg and White.

Pat Sheridan singled to left with one out, stole second and scored on Iorg's double along with George Brett who had walked.

Little league roundup

A two-out bases loaded single in the bottom of the sixth inning brought Glo-Valve Service a dramatic 4-3 victory over Duncan Insurance in Tuesday's National Little League action at Optimist Park.

Ryan Teague picked up his third win of the year against no losses in relief of Kelley Quarles. Mark Wood went all the way for Duncan and suffered his third loss of the season.

Coffee's blow brought home Whitney White, who had doubled earlier in the inning. Catcher Lance Howell had a two-run double for Glo-Valve in the fourth inning. The big hit for Duncan was a two-run triple by Mark Bridges to tie the score at 3-3 in the top of the sixth.

In the late game, John Charles Cooley scampered home all the way from first base when a double steal worked to perfection and the Dunlap Industrial's catcher's throw went into the outfield.

Two runs scored on the play to hand OCAW Union a hard-earned 3-2 win. John Wadsworth was the winning pitcher in relief of Chuck Jones. Matt Daigle, in relief of Jason Stamp, was the loser.

Moose Lodge and Dixie Parts are tied for the second half race with 2-0 records. They face each other Thursday at 8 p.m. Cabot and Celanese square off in the 6 p.m. game.

Noah ready to defend French tennis crown

PARIS (AP) — Perhaps the only person who wasn't disappointed after rain ruined the second day's play at the $1.8 million French Open tennis tournament was defending champion Yannick Noah.

The French star was able to get in only eight games Tuesday — a 4-4 first-set standoff with American Mark Dickson — before a cold, steady drizzle turned the red clay courts here into mud. But as the skies darkened, the cloud of doubt lifted from Noah's mind with each pain-free serve.

Noah, who last year became the first Frenchman to win the French Open in 37 years, had been suffering for two weeks from a pulled abdominal muscle which seriously restricted his ability to serve and hit overheads. There had even been talk last week that the 24-year-old Noah planned to withdraw from the tournament altogether.

But after his rain-abbreviated first-round match Tuesday, his coach, Patrice Hagelauer, put the rest of the field on notice that Noah was ready to defend his crown.

Today, weather permitting, Noah was to try again, along with most of the rest of the tournament's big guns. No. 1 seed John McEnroe of the United States, second-seeded star Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and 1982 French Open winner Mats Wilander of Sweden.

Also scheduled to see action today is America's Chris Evert Lloyd, who is out to defend her women's title and simultaneously halt Martina Navratilova's bid to capture the Grand Slam — consecutive victories at the French, English, U.S. and Australian championships. Navratilova is top-seeded among the women, while Lloyd is seeded No. 2.

"Those eight games were very reassuring for Yannick," Hagelauer said of Noah's match on Tuesday, "because he saw he could serve without holding back. There was no pain."

But Noah's return to form was the only ray of sunshine in an otherwise bleak afternoon.

Names in news

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan is a nonconfrontational man who became more easygoing after he lost the GOP presidential nomination to Gerald Ford in 1976, his son says.

"A certain sternness, rarely displayed to friends and family but apparent in photographs — arched eyebrows and set jaw — evaporated" after the defeat, Ron Reagan writes in an article for the June 19 issue of Family Circle magazine. "I've never asked him about this change, and it's entirely possible that he isn't even aware of it."

"His life has been less a race to the top than a voyage of personal fulfillment, a sensibility he has worked hard to instill in his children," the younger Reagan writes.

"My father tends to travel in straight lines toward fixed objectives, yet he's flexible enough, when faced with an obstacle, to move over, under or around it with equal facility," he adds. "By nature nonconfrontational, he prefers competition with himself."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Country singer Emmy Lou Harris, a winner on the charts with such hits as "One More Bottle of Wine," has scored to the tune of $60,000 in royalties in a federal appeals court decision.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Tuesday upheld a lower court ruling that Miss Harris had a right to royalties for "Gliding Bird" album.

The singer recorded six songs — including five she wrote — under a contract with Jay-Gee Record Co. After Jay-Gee filed for bankruptcy in 1971, its trustees sold the album's master tape to Suelien Production, which then transferred its rights to Emus Recordings.

Emus re-released a duplicate of the album, with Roulette Records licensed to handle foreign sales. Miss Harris never received any royalties from the three companies or from co-defendants Adho Music Corp. and Promo Records Distributing Co., according to testimony.

The court agreed Miss Harris is entitled to $10,000 per song and upheld a $34,152 award for attorney fees in the case.

Archaeologists study urban black cemetery

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 19th-century cemetery uncovered during construction of a subway tunnel may provide clues to the largely unrecorded history of black urban culture prior to the Civil War, archaeologists say.

Experts believe the First African Baptist Church Cemetery is the first burial ground for free blacks to be excavated in an urban area, said Michael Parrington, chief archaeologist of John Milner Associates, the West Chester firm directing the project.

"We know so little about urban black residents from historical sources," Parrington said Tuesday. "The things we are finding here are in some ways like a historical document, and we're trying to read the pages."

The cemetery, just off a downtown expressway, was discovered in November 1980 when workers digging a subway tunnel hit a wooden Forty minutes of each hour of the "Children's Miracle Network Telethon" will feature national performers, including Ms. Osmond and her brother, Donny. The remaining 20 minutes will feature the accomplishments of children's hospitals in the 90 television markets in which the telethon will be broadcast.

All the money raised during the 21-hour telethon Saturday and Sunday will go to 91 hospitals around the country, Ms. Osmond said. The $200,000 in production costs will be paid by corporate sponsors.

NEW YORK (AP) — A calligrapher has filed suit against Paloma Picasso, claiming the daughter of the late artist Pablo Picasso stole designs for her line of expensive jewelry.

In the suit filed in federal court in Manhattan, Arthur Baker charged that Ms. Picasso's "Gold Fish" jewelry was taken from illustrations in his book "New Calligraphic Ornaments and Flourishes."

The 18-karat-gold pins sell for up to $500 each at Tiffany's, which also was named as a defendant in the suit. Baker seeks profits from sales of the pins, plus $12 million in punitive damages.

In an affidavit filed with the court, Ms. Picasso admitted using Baker's book, according to the June issue of Connoisseur magazine. But Anthony Ostrom, president of Tiffany's, said, "It's not a case of copying, but of inspiration, of poetic license."

Marc Schiller, Baker's lawyer, said Ms. Picasso "brought about as much 'originality' to her copy of Baker's designs as a child mimics in rendering 'three-dimensional' cookies with a cookie cutter."

Attorney Paulette Goddard has sold at auction two of the three paintings she acquired from Mexican artist Diego Rivera more than 40 years ago.

"Flower Vendor," inscribed to Miss Goddard, dated 1941 and signed by Rivera, was purchased for $429,000 Tuesday night by an anonymous American collector, according to spokeswoman Batya Knapp Monder of Sotheby's.

Rivera's "Young Woman With Sunflowers" brought $242,000 from an anonymous phone bidder, Mrs. Monder said.

Miss Goddard, 71, whose four husbands included Charlie Chaplin, has retained one other Rivera painting — a portrait of herself. The actress lives in Switzerland and did not attend the auction.

Technology displayed in space

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Reagan, mixing politics and patriotism in a conservative western state, told Air Force Academy graduates today that the space program is demonstrating an era of technological greatness in the United States.

"We have only seen the beginning of what a free and courageous people can do," Reagan said.

In a text prepared for delivery before about 1,000 graduates, Reagan said, "The bold, not the naysayers will point the way, because history has shown that progress often takes its greatest strides where brave people transform an idea, which is scoffed at by skeptics, into a tangible and important part of everyday life."

Reagan said the space age, only a quarter century old, already has led to the space shuttle and dozens of scientific advancements.

The president's two-day trip, paid for by his re-election committee, started Tuesday.

Before leaving Washington, Reagan said he believes the Soviet Union is boycotting the Los Angeles Olympics to retaliate against the United States for boycotting the 1980 games and to prevent Soviet athletes from defecting.

On the trip, he gave a pep talk to aspiring American Olympic athletes, met with Republican campaign volunteers and appeared at reception Tuesday night for about 500 Colorado Republicans, including former Army Secretary Howard "Bo" Callaway, and Holly Coors, wife of conservative multimillionaire beer maker Joseph Coors.

In an interview with an Irish television journalist released on Tuesday, Reagan said, "I know that no one can really understand or fathom the thinking of the Politburo."

But Reagan said two ideas "stick in my mind" as a possible explanation for the absence of Soviet athletes at the Summer Games in Los Angeles in July.

Recalling former President Carter's decision to keep U.S. athletes out of the Games in Moscow after the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan, Reagan said the first reason is "retaliation for the boycott... Number two, frankly I think they don't want to be embarrassed by having revered athletes in their country come to this country and decide to stay."

Conservative organizations in Los Angeles received some attention by disclosing that they had set up safe houses for athletes who decided to defect to the United States.

So far, a dozen communist bloc nations have announced they will stay away from the U.S. Games this summer, but Reagan told several dozen athletes at the U.S. Olympic Training Center here Tuesday that while it is "unfortunate that not all nations will be represented... I hope you realize that the success of the Olympics and your personal success in the Games in no way depends on political machinations of powerbrokers in less-than-free countries."

"The games are moving forward and they are successful," Reagan said.

At the center, the 73-year-old Reagan appeared with some of the best young amateur athletes in the country, and recalled that in college he was forced to make a choice between being on the track or swimming teams. When he disclosed that he chose the water sports, a group of Olympic swimmers cheered.

Reagan also tried his hand at a bench press machine, watched some boxers spar, took a jab at a punching bag and sat along the court while women's Olympic basketball team members scrimmaged, all with the television cameras running.

In his earlier interview with Irish television, Reagan was asked if there were a possibility of direct American involvement in the increasingly tense crisis in the Persian Gulf.

"Well, so far, it doesn't seem to be. The Gulf states have themselves said that this is their problem and they want to deal with it... They have not asked us to intervene and certainly we have not offered to intervene."
