Installation of driveway ramps can lead to trouble-

BY JEFF LANGLEY Senior Staff Writer

Placing a steel ramp across a driveway could get you arrested in Pampa, Texas, especially when you ignore the new acting city manager's order to remove it, one man has found out the hard way.

Venus Collum, 1303 Williston, has been threatened with arrest for placing a steel ramp across the entrance to his driveway.

City crews recently ripped out the entrance to Collum's drive, as they have a hundreds of homes across the city. The city tore out an asphalt mound and steel drain pipe, which was built at the front of Collum's drive to lower the grade and ease access from the street.

Allyn Moore, the city engineer and public works director who was appointed acting city manager last week, made the decision to remove the driveway humps, a fixture at hundreds of homes in all parts of town for more than 20 years.

Moore has said the humps and clogged pipes cause drainage problems on city streets and hinder street sweeping and snow removal.

On Labor Day, Sept. 3, Moore passed by Collum's home and saw the steel ramp, the city boss said. The city official said he went up to the Pampa man's home to talk about the ramp. He said Collum became irate and refused to discuss the matter.

'He came out and told me: 'I'm not gonna' let you do that," "Collum said. He said he didn't know the stranger at his door.

"I didn't know this Moore," he said. 'One word led to another — I did tell him what I thought he looked like," Collum recalls.

"I just told him what I thought of him. Then, the next day, they came and took it (the ramp)," he

Moore and code enforcement officer Steve

Vaughn, accompanied by Pampa police officers, returned to Collum's home on Sept. 4. City crews picked up the steel ramp. Vaughn said he tried to get the man to sign a summons to appear in court, but that Collum refused.

"I told him that if he didn't sign, a warrant would be issued," Vaughn said. "We try to get them to come in voluntarily.

'We took some police officers, so there wouldn't be a repeat of the night before," he added.

After his ramp was taken, Collum thought he had heard the last of the matter. But Thursday, he received a notice in the mail saying a warrant had been issued for his arrest in connection with the violation of city ordinances. Collum said he didn't understand the charges and turned the paperwork

Municipal Judge Phil Vanderpool said that based on complaints lodged by Vaughn, he issued the warrant for the Pampa resident. Vanderpool said "no particular reason" had caused the delay in processing the charges.

Vaughn said Collum was charged with the violation of Ordinance No. 950: "constructing an approach on a public right of way without a permit" and of Ordinance No. 542: "impeding proper drainage of (Williston Street)."

If found guilty of the Class C Misdemeanors, Collum faces maximum fines of $200 on each count, Vaughn said.

The city employee said others have placed similar steel ramps across their drives but avoided trouble by having them "approved before they

50 passengers escape ship after it overturns at dock

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - A Spanish cruise ship with about 150 sleeping crewmembers aboard overturned in a dry dock here early today, briefly trapping about 50 people and injuring 25 others, authorities said.

The 50 people trapped inside the overturned vessel were rescued or got out on their own, according to the Coast Guard

Caroline Sullivan, an assistant supervisor at the Norfolk Police Department, said, "We have about 25 who are injured, four of them

Ms. Donner said all of those injured had been removed from the scene, but she did not know how many were hurt. "Some are extremely critical, most are minor." she said of the injuries

The accident occurred at 3:48 a.m. at the Norfolk Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., said Don Haupt, director of paramedical rescue in Norfolk.

Haupt said of the approximately 150 people aboard the ship at the time of the accident, about 100 got out as the vessel overturned. Another 50 were trapped inside the ship, he said.

But Lt. Susan Donner, a Coast Guard spokeswoman, said authorities believed all those aboard had been rescued or otherwise accounted for. She said authorities continued to search the water's surface below the dry dock platform "just in case. Guard Petty Officer Tom Armstrong identified the ship as the Vera Cruz, a Spanish-based cruise ship. Details about the ship's size and number of crew were not immediately available. 'Everybody is off the ship, Armstrong said

The ship was on a platform above the water when it overturned and fell into the water, said Ms. Donner

The Vera Cruz "fell off the platform, apparently crashed into the water and was listing about 20 degrees," Armstrong said. Workers "sank the dry dock again to refloat" the ship.

The accident occurred in drydock 2 at the shipyard, Haupt

Thomas Forrest, a dispatcher at Norfolk paramedical rescue, said most of those aboard the vessel were asleep at the time of the Coast Guard Petty Officer Vernon Covington said the rescue effort presented a language problem since the crewmembers from the vessel spoke Spanish. "The interpreter was one of the people hurt," he said

Boards seek changes in education reforms

Texas' new $2.7 billion education reform package could stand some improvements, the Texas Association of School Boards says, and it has adopted dozens of recommendations aimed at doing just that.

The TASB, which represents nearly all of Texas' 1100 school boards, concludes a three-day joint meeting today with the Texas Association of School Administrators.

The TASB's 500-member Delegate Assembly, a policy-making group, endorsed dozens of recommendations Saturday, including making the state Board of Education elected once again.

The Legislature, meeting in special session this summer, passed the package and an accompanying tax increase of $4.6 billion over a three-year period.

Prior to the convention, TASB's legislative committee commended the Legislature for its education package, and incoming TASB President John Quisenberry said they felt it appropriate to recognize "that we appreciate the funding." But Jerry Gerlich of the Sweeny Independent School District convinced the delegates to strike the commendation.

The extra money is not without Gerlich told the price. delegates. "We've paid that price by giving up local control. To keep the word 'independent' in our district names is just not realistic.

Newspaper sales tax takes effect

Copies of The Pampa News purchased over the counter will cost 26 cents as the new state sales tax goes into effect Tuesday.

The new tax cannot be applied to papers purchased from newspaper The sales tax will not be applied recommended.

The board had been elected by popular vote until the reform package, which called for gubernatorial appointment of a 15-member board until 1989. In that year, the trustees will be elected by popular vote.

The TASB delegates also urged non-partisan election of the board in April of election years and not November, as stipulated in the new

Proponents said holding the elections in November would reduce the attention the races might get in April, when most school districts elect their trustees. Also recommended was more flexibility on maximum class sizes. The education bill requires no more than 22 students per class from kindergarten through fourth grade

'We're sympathetic to focusing an emphasis on keeping class sizes down," said David Thompson, associate executive director of the down the line. The group urged more leeway so schools could have 27 or 28 students in a classroom staffed by a teacher and an aide

The TASB delegates also urged the Legislature to relax state laws on disciplining students

The reform bill "says you have to jump through a lot of procedural hoops - hearings, appeals and more appeals — to suspend a student," Thompson said. "Meanwhile, the student has to stay in school and the teacher is allowed to remove him from the classroom to maintain order.

"What are you going to do with the kid — put them in purgatory for six weeks?

The delegates also advocated doing away with a new mandatory school calendar that requires classes to begin no sooner than Sept. 1. They said the calendar is better left to each district because of such factors as construction projects, climate and staff development activities.

The delegates also rejected new rules governing student absences. House Bill 72 requires a failing grade for students with five or more unexcused absences in a

Pair wants 'happy' out of happy hours

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — If these two men have their way, Texas bars will have to take the "happy" out of their "Happy Hours

A state insurance lobbyist and at least one state legislator say they want Texas to follow the lead of other states and attack drunk driving by banning inexpensive after-work bar hopping

Texas legislators have already adopted stiff penalties for drunken driving, but that isn't enough, says Jerry Johns, president of Southwest Insurance Information System

"When we allow bars to offer increased amounts of liquor at reduced prices, we're encouraging people to drink more, faster and then get in their cars and drive home," he said. Johns told the San Antonio Light he has not found a legislative sponsor for the bill, but Rep. Doyle Willis, R-Fort Worth, who sponsored legislation to increase the state's drinking age to 21, said he wouldn't mind tacking his name to an anti-happy hour bill.

"Anything that will lessen the number of tragedies on highways has my support," Willis said. " know other states have gotten rid of happy hours, and their statistics show it has reduced the number of early evening drunk drivers. New Jersey and Michigan have laws that prohibit the sale of two drinks for the price of one.

Local officer loses suit against suspect

A Pampa police officer will not get the $1,000 in damages he sought from a Pampa man who was involved in a scuffle with him in August, a six-member small claims jury ruled Friday.

Officer Jeff Torgerson was seeking $1,000 in damages plus $15 in attorney's fees from Marlin Scott Burns, 22, of 526 Zimmers for damages caused in a fighting incident Aug. 11.

According to assistant district attorney David Hamilton, the incident occured the night of Aug. 11 when Torgenson stopped Burns on suspicion of speeding and driving while intoxicated.

'There was an altercation which resulted in Burns being on top of Torgerson," Hamilton said, adding that another police officer later arrived to assist Torgerson.

Burns sustained some head injuries in the fight and both men were taken to Coronado Community Hospital for treatment. Burns was arrested on charges of aggravated assault on a police officer, driving while intoxicated and posession of marijuana. The charges are still pending. After a two-day trial under

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge, the jury ruled that Burns does not have to pay the Torgerson, who represented himself at the trial, was suprised that it took so long.

"I believe I should have had an attorney represent me," he said after the verdict was rendered. "I thought it would be an informal thing.

Between the hours of 6 p.m. April 4 and 8:30 a.m. April 5, 1984, an unknown person or persons entered Holmes Gift Shop, 304 South Cuyler, by removing a vent in the roof of the store and lowering themselves inside on a television cable.

Once inside, the intruders removed numerous items. mostly women's and children's size athlete clothing, but also a large number of steak knives, various kitchen utensils, and a number of pairs of shoes. Estimated loss was $3,000.

Pampa Crime Stoppers will pay $1,000 to anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this burglary.

Anyone with information regarding this crime or any other crime can report it and remain anonymous by calling 669-2222.

Youth's death ruled accident

The Saturday hanging death of a Pampa eighth grader has been ruled an accident, Gray County Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge said.

Vance Carl David, 14, was found dead Saturday evening at his family's home south of Pampa. Prestidge said that the boy was found hung by a rope at approximately 6:30 p.m. Saturday in a crawl space leading to a storage tank behind the house.

The Gray County Deputy Sheriff Oren Potter received the call at about 7:15 p.m. The youth

25th Street discussion set

The city of Pampa Traffic Commission will discuss changing signs on 25th Avenue, east of Duncan Street, during its regular motnhly meeting Tuesday.

The meeting will be at noon in the Coronado Inn Restaurant. Commission Chairman Tommy Kelly invited residents of the affected area to attend and make comments before the panel makes area residents two years ago, the commission recommended the placement of several stop and yield signs on 25th. Recently, the panel was approached by another group of residents who want the signs removed so that 25th can be a major traffic-bearing artery.

After hearing from a group of

After hearing the discussion from both sides, the commission will make a recommendation to the city commission for any changes it deems necessary, Kelley said.

Cheaper pork chops, sugar drop grocery tab last month

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE

AP Business Writer Much cheaper pork chops and sugar pulled overall grocery prices down 1.7 percent during September, the monthly AP Marketbasket survey found. The strong U.S. dollar in relation to other currencies has been a major factor in lowering prices, an economist said.

Pork chops fell an average 9.4 percent, after dipping 1.9 percent in the previous month Sugar fell an average of 1.2

percent during September. "The biggest single influence is probably the dollar, along with the continued very small inflation rate in the U.S.," said David A. Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

The continued decline (in prices) is showing the continued strength of the dollar. It's up 14 percent from last year. That's reflected in lower prices of imported goods.

Asked why pork chop prices fell so dramatically, John Ginzel, a livestock analyst in Chicago with the investment firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., cited a "very sharp price decline for fresh pork at the wholesale level."

Those wholesale prices, which have declined steadily, are at lows for the year, he said.

He said hamburger, in particular, was "attractively priced for retailing.

During September, overall prices fell in nine cities, an average of 4.2 percent. They rose in three cities, an average of 1.8 percent. The bill was unchanged in Salt Lake City. The marketbasket tab fell 0.7

The tab has risen a scant 0.7 percent since the beginning of the year, according to the latest check.

New state education board gathers first time

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Whether the new State Board of Education is elected or appointed should not be the key issue in Texas public education, new board member Maria Elena Flood says

"I'm not sure being elected or appointed is the point," she said Sunday at a reception for the new panel. "We have a legislative mandate and we're going to make every effort to implement the education reforms."

Mrs. Flood, of El Paso, and eight others of the 15-member board gathered publicly for the first time Sunday in a reception given by the Texas Association of School Boards and the Texas Association of School Administrators.

The two associations met in a joint convention this weekend to discuss a $2.7 billion education reform package passed by the Legislature in a special session this summer.

The reform bill called for the governor to appoint a 15-member State Board of Education, replacing the previous 27-member board elected at the polls.

The new panel, appointed two weeks ago by Gov. Mark White, will have the advantage of making a fresh start, said Emmett Conrad, a Dallas physician.

"We don't have any vested interest in what's been established. We won't fall in the trap of viewing things as sacred," he said.

The new board, said member Pete Morales Jr. of Devine, will have more latitude and more authority than the old one, although it will have to work out the reform bill's rough edges.

"But I hope it gets us back to the basics — reading, writing and arithmetic. I have a first grader, so I'll be wearing two hats. I'll be a father and a board member," he said.

Two board members — Jack Strong, a former state senator and now a board member from Longview, and Carolyn Crawford of Beaumont, said the new board will operate more smoothly because it is smaller.

Addressing an issue controversial during the joint convention, Strong said he's not sure if the teacher competency testing required in the education bill is the best way to guarantee quality teachers.

quality teachers.
"I have never talked to a teacher who said he or she didn't know of some incompetent teachers," he said. "Whether (the competency test) is the best way, I don't know. Our first obligation is to give the students the best education we can."

Public prison life concept not real

DALLAS (AP) — An assistant warden at a Texas prison says "free world people" have no real concept of what it's really like to be in prison.

"They see a lot of Alcatraz movies," said Jimmy Alford, an assistant warden at Coffield. "They figure we're in a dungeon-type building with water trickling down the walls."

In fact, he told The Dallas Morning News, most prisons are modern, clean and resemble a public school with bars.

But inmates, in their interviews with reporters the newspaper sent to each of the 25 units of the Texas Department of Corrections, said the public also has no idea how violent prison life is.

One prisoner, James Evans, said he has learned he can't read the Bible as long as he's behind bars and has no one to protect him.

"This is what came of it," he said, touching a left eye that was blood red and circled with a purple bruise

"A bunch of guys jumped on me.
One kicked me in the eye while I was down." he said.

By some accounts, Evans was lucky. Bible reading is a sign of weakness in prison, and a sign of weakness is a guarantee of torment, other prisoners said.

The strong prey on the weak, threatening violence unless they are paid off — in money, sex or both, Evans said. This practice is called "paying protection" or, more commonly, "hogging."

"My cellmate had no money coming in at all. He had to turn homosexual to make it," Evans said.

Prison officials say that because of a guard shortage, it's largely up to inmates to defend themselves.

"I tell inmates right off the bat that I can live with a fist fight. You have got the right to protect your property and your manhood," said Carl White, an assistant warden at the Coffield Unit.

Jerry O'Neal, who served time in prison in 1981 and 1982 for auto theft and was sent back to Pack II early in 1983 on a second auto theft conviction, has fought. In one scuffle, he stabbed another inmate 10 times, he told the News.

"I didn't plan to kill him. I only wanted to injure him," he said. Most weapons used by prisoners are homemade — the most common being a razor blade pressed into the melted handle of a plastic toothbrush.

O'Neal told the News he made his weapon, which resembled an oversized icepick, from a crutch left behind by another inmate.

"It took less than an hour," he aid.

O'Neal said he was stunned by the changes that took place in prison during his few months of freedom.

"We get treated a lot better by the guards than we did. They actually try to help you now. We get fed a lot better too," O'Neal said.

"But there's a lot more violence — more fights, more stabbings. And if you don't fight, you're going to have problems," he said.

Almost two-thirds of the inmates fall below the normal IQ range, the News reported. One warden described the typical inmate as "like a 3-year-old who bench presses 300 pounds every day."

The day starts at 4:30 a.m. Breakfast is over and the workday started by 6:30 a.m. Jobs range from chopping weeds in the farm fields to operating a computer.

Inmates quit at 3:30 p.m., take a shower, get freshly laundered white cotton prison uniforms and eat supper. In the evening, they watch television, play dominoes, read or go to the recreation yard.

Lights are out at 10:30 p.m. on weeknights and midnight on weekends, although they are allowed to stay up later during Monday Night Football.

There are 25 prison units and their atmosphere varies widely.

Jester inmate David Bowman called his unit "a summer camp."

Pack I inmate Robert Littlejohn said, "This is a Sunday school unit here."
Littlejohn, 61, has been in and out of Texas prisons mostly since 1941. The changes, he said, are good.

Lawmakers, commissioners predict problems with competency testing SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - predicted 5 percent fails the test, as Parker had harsh words for the SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas' controversial new teacher competency testing law will never be implemented because of the massive legal problems that would ensue, the chairman of the Senate Education Committee has predicted.

The testing requirement is part of Texas $2.7 billion education reform bill the Legislature passed in special session this summer.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and state Rep. Bill Haley, chairman of the House Education Committee, reviewed the education package in a joint appearance Sunday at the convention of the Texas Association of School Boards and Texas Association of School Administrators.

"I personally believe competency testing will never be put in place in Texas," Parker told about 1,000 listeners.

"If you're worried about lawsuits, you fire somebody for failing a test. You haven't seen anything yet," he said. "You're talking about the lawyers' retirement bill of Texas."

Haley, D-Center, said competency testing is a "legally questionable procedure. What can be accomplished by such a test?"

He said every professional

He said every professional licensing act he has seen pass the Legislature has included a grandfather clause allowing current practitioners to continue working.

Haley said the state could run into a teacher shortage with the testing because 5 percent could fail, another 5 percent are at retirement age and might opt not to take the test, and many more might refuse to take it.

In a separate appearance, Ray Bynum, commissioner of the Texas Education Agency, said if the Airlines concerned about airport

AUSTIN (AP) — Building a new airport here might discourage people from flying and cost airlines millions to move their offices, say airline executives who are skeptical of efforts to build a new airport.

Critics of Austin's municipal airport call it an aviation dinosaur dangerously near residential areas. Airport-area residents have mounted a "Move It" campaign that complains of low-flying, noisy aircraft.

has recommended building a new airport at a cost of about $449 million, but no location has been proposed.

predicted 5 percent fails the test, as many as 25,500 public school teachers could lose their jobs.

Bynum said many teachers have told him they will not take the test and risk losing their jobs.

"Particularly some people who have a spouse that makes a good income, who are 55 years old or older and have been teaching 25 to 30 years," he said. "I believe them."

Bynum urged school leaders to be concerned about their image — "the image that we are a split and fragmented group. If I would make a criticism of people in public education, it would be we are so fragmented anyone could whip

Haley urged the groups to have alternatives in mind when they approach the Legislature about making changes in the reform package.

"You can forget a frontal assault," Haley said. "You've got to address the Legislature with facts, reason and calmness. Those who come to us and say 'here are some suggestions' will gain an ear in the Legislature."

Parker had harsh words for the newly appointed 15-member State Board of Education. House Bill 72 abolished the old 27-member elected board and called for the governor to appoint a 15-member

The board, appointed two weeks ago by Gov. Mark White, will be elected beginning in 1989.

"I'm tired of people getting appointed just because they gave $10,000 to the guy who got elected governor," Parker said.

"The old board could have done it (implemented education reform package)," he said.

Parker said the reason the Legislature approved an appointed board is because "the 85 percent of the people who opposed it didn't come to Austin and raise enough hell to keep it from being passed."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Will black voting patterns change?

The conventional wisdom that presumes that most black Americans are not conservative or middle-of-the-road because they consistently vote in overwhelming numbers for even the most liberal candidates on the Democratic ticket. Yet, statistics show that blacks are considerably more conservative than their voting record would suggest.

A National Opinion Research Center survey found that 62 percent of blacks are opposed to abortion, even though millions of black voters cast their ballots for candidates who support government-funded abortions. An Associated Press poll disclosed that a majority of blacks oppose the liberal philosophy of cross-district busines to achieve racial balance. Similarly, a survey conducted by the Anti-Defamation League showed that most blacks believe companies should hire the best-qualified job applicants regardless of their race or ethnic background. A majority of blacks, moreover, reject the "remedy" of hiring quotas, which is an article of faith for liberal

Public opinion polls also show that 90 percent of blacks favor legislation to authorize voluntary school prayer, a proposal adamantly opposed by most Congressional Democrats. A recent New York Times-CBS News survey indicated that blacks support tuition tax credits by a 2-1 margin. Liberals maintain such credits would discriminate against minorities and foster educational elitism. Yet the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights reports that 72 percent of the parents who send their children to inner-city Catholic schools have incomes of less that $15,000 per year. And blacks, who constitutie only 2 percent of the nation's Catholic population, now account for nearly 8 percent of the Catholic school enrollment.

Black Americans, such as Walter Williams and Thomas Sowell, who understand that liberal spending programs and big government have hurt the black population more than thay have helped, have achieved national prominence in speaking out against the liberalism espoused by traditional "black leaders."

As the voices of people such as Williams and Sowell gain prominence, and as black Americans gradually begin to vote in accordance with what these surveys show they believe, rather how the NAACP and Urban League say they should. Americans could see a gradual shift in black voting patterns in future elections.

"If Walter Mondale had a DEEP, RICH SPEAK-ING VOICE, would you vote for him?"

Warren T. Brookes

Young liberals see the light

Even as Walter Mondale was asking the nation to support his plan for $85 billion in new taxes, including higher tax rates on the so - called "rich" (those over $25,000!), the younger liberals of his own party in Congress were moving in the opposite direction. The basic bipartisan thrust of recent hearings before both the Senate Finance Committee and the Joint Economic Committee (JEC) is the need to broaden the tax base by LOWERING - not raising top tax rates. And why not? For four years now, Congress has been pounded with a growing body of research showing that high tax rates are counterproductive, making the tax system more

The reason is clear: The higher the rates, the more Congress is forced to grant shelters to avoid harming sectors of the economy. As people have been shoved by inflation into higher and higher tax rates for lower income levels, more and more taxable income has sought refuge in these shelters - and the tax base has actually narrowed. This, in turn, has increased the share of taxes paid by the middle and lower incomes. Mondale's plan would

The crowning proof of all this (in reverse) came in the 1982 IRS tax return analysis which showed that, although the top tax rates on the rich dropped from 70 to 50 percent in 1982, both the share and the amount of taxes actually paid by them ROSE substantially, while the share paid by the poor dropped. Taxes actually paid by those earning over $100,000 rose 13 percent, and their share rose 12 percent. Taxes actually paid by those with incomes above $500,000 rose an astonishing 40.4 percent, and for those with $1 million or more they

The main reason for this startling development is that the lower tax rates increased the number of rich taxpayers reporting taxable income (out of shelters) by 53 percent. So, while Mondale was beating up Ronald Reagan for lowering top tax rates twenty points "for the benefit of the rich" two prominent liberals in his own party, Sen. Bill Bradley (D - N.J.) and Rep. Richard Gephardt (D - Mo.) were telling the Senate Finance Committee about their own plan to lower the same top rates another twenty points to 30 percent!

At the same time Republicans were presenting at least four such plans. Chief among them is the Kemp - Kasten proposal for a single 25 - percent rate, but with huge exemptions for low - income and working people providing even greater

In early June, these two major radical reforms were joined by a surprisingly similar proposal by the prestigious liberal Brookings Institution to cut top marginal rates to 32 percent, a proposal with "supply - side" written all over it in red, white,

In short, Reagan's supply - siders have already made their point: high marginal tax rates are self - defeating, because they drive workers and savers off the tax rolls.

This thesis received another significant boost last month from research by Dr. James Gwartney, an economist from Florida State University, which was first presented at a June hearing of the JEC. The research took an entirely new approach that completely wipes out all the uncontrollable factors that arise whenever you compare one tax year with another (inflation, recession, stock market, etc.). Gwartney took the single year of 1979 and analyzed income - tax payments by STATE so as to reflect the combination of federal marginal rates plus the varying income tax rates of the fifty states, that range from 0 to as much as 17 percent.

He says,"Taxpayers residing in states where the state marginal tax rate is higher will confront higher marginal tax rates than taxpayers in states with lower rates."

His theory is "the higher the tax rate, the less taxable income rich people would report." Nice theory, but did it hold up? You bet! Gwartney's research showed that the higher the income bracket, the faster each additional percent of tax rate actually LOST more revenue than it gained.

For lower and middle incomes each ten dollars in higher tax rates produced about as much in tax revenues actually raised. But, as you get up into the higher tax brackets, each ten dollars in higher tax rates actually LOST revenues for government. For example, Gwartney found that for income groups over $80,000, a $10 rate increase actually produced a net LOSS of $10.29 in actual tax revenues. And, when you get up to those with incomes above $200,000, a $10 rate hike actually cost the government nearly $40 in lost tax revenues

Gwartney's research shows that a 10 - percent surtax on the rich (as Mondale proposes) would actually result in an average 20 - percent LOSS in taxes paid by this group - and vice versa. This is why both Congress and the president are now moving faster than anyone would have expected toward fundamental tax reform, to expand the tax base by LOWERING top tax rates. As usual, Mondale hasn't gotten the word.

HAS TOCCURRED TO ANY ONE THAT WE MIGHT BE RUNNING THE RISK OF THE VOTERS FORGETING WHATSHISNAME..!

Today in History

Today is Monday, Oct. 1, the 275th day of 1984. There are 91 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 1, 1949, Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung raised the first flag of the People's Republic of China in a proclamation ceremony in Peking.

Five years ago: Pope John Paul arrived in Boston to begin a seven-day visit of the United States.

One year ago: Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale won a straw poll in Maine, the same day he received the endorsement of the AFL-CIO's general board.

Today's birthdays: Pianist Vladimir Horowitz is 80. Actor Walter Matthau is 64. Actor James Whitmore is 63. Former President Jimmy Carter and U.S. Justice William Rehnquist are 60. Actor Tom Bosley is 57. Actor George Peppard is 56. Actor Richard Harris is 51. Actress-singer Julie Andrews Edward Villella is 48. All-star first baseman Rod Carew is 39.

Waging war on parasites

Our country is being invaded by AIDS bugs from Haiti.

Leprosy is an increasing stateside menace.

And TB and foot - long intestinal worms. For parasitic diseases Americans have no natural immunity. Parasitic diseases now infect or affect 130 million Americans. Parasitic diseases tend to circumvent the body's immune system, much as cancer does. It is a problem so complex that not even governments can mobilize adequate countermeasures. For all their investment in time and money, the scientific frontier has appeared to be a dead - end — a scientific Vietnam But on at least one front there has been a breakthrough.

New York University announced progress toward Encouraged, scientists are on the attack now. Recently the National Institutes of Health and development of a vaccine for malaria.

If it does in the field what it does in the lab, this vaccine could be in general use in five years. Yet malaria is but one of hundreds of parasitic diseases

Fortunately scientific research is all interrelated For example, what we have learned in our quest for an answer to cancer can now be used in efforts to prevent and treat parasitic diseases. Presently, young researchers who don't know what "can't be done" are using our newest understanding of genetics and molecular biology to study how parasites survive and flourish in the bodies of their victims.

To exploit this new opportunity, the MacArthur Foundation is financing research in a consortium of 11 institutions worldwide - with three objectives:

Pushing back another scientific frontier. Improving chemical intervention - the treatment of parasitic diseases.

And third, to seek and find a vaccine to prevent

The World Health Organization, recognizing the significance of this undertaking, is participating,

For all that medical science has been able to accomplish we are just barely beginning to understand how cells work. And understanding, of course, necessarily precedes intervention Historically, parasitic diseases were "mostly somewhere else''; not any more.

As environmentalists have learned we can't clean up half a sky, we can no longer stop the bugs at the border

This is the challenge in which the MacArthur Foundation is investing tens of millions of dollars and the efforts of many of the world's foremost research scientists.

Mondale faces disaster in

By Robert Walters

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (NEA) -Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale's serious political problems elsewhere in the nation pale in comparison with the potential disaster he faces on election day here in the South

Even if Mondale is victorious in major battleground states in other regions, he must also capture about 30 to 40 Electoral College votes in the South if he is to score an upset victory against President Reagan.

But Reagan's appeals to conservatism and patriotism have given him a commanding lead everywhere in a region where Mondale is viewed by many voters as too liberal.

"Almost without exception, journalists and political insiders from both parties throughout the South (say) that Reagan has a strong lead in their states," notes the Southern Political Report, a highly regarded newsletter.

Darden Research, an Atlanta-based survey research organization that specializes in Southern polling, found throughout this year that the region's voters prefer Reagan over Mondale by an overwhelming margin of almost 2-to-1.

Southern Democrats, many of them ideologically moderate to conservative, have been repeatedly rebuffed this year in their quest for represen-tation at the highest levels of the national party's structure.

Eliminated early in the primaries were three contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination - two of them from the South - who framed their campaigns to appeal to center-to-right voters: South Carolina Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Ohio Sen. John H. Glenn Jr.

After they were defeated by

Mondale, he sought to assuage the South by including on his list of potential running mates a number of prominent politicians from the region.

Included in that category were Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Texas Gov. Mark White and Arkansas Sen. Dale Bumpers. But they were rejected in favor of New York Rep. Geraldine A.

At the Democratic National Convention, Mondale made a final but clumsy effort to placate the South by tentatively selecting Georgia Democratic Party Chairman Bert Lance to be chairman of the Democratic National Committee — an unsuccessful ploy that humiliated both Mondale and the South. Notwithstanding that recent history of missed opportunities for improved relations, Mondale has an outside chance of defeating Reagan in the most populous state in the South — Texas, with 29 electoral votes. But it will happen only if the Democrats mobilize vast numbers of black voters in the Houston area and elsewhere, and Hispanic voters in the Rio Grande Valley.

The South's second most populous state - Florida, with 21 electoral votes - has consistently voted for Republican presidential candidates in recent decades. It almost certainly will support Reagan this year.

The states that lie in a crescent stretching from Louisiana and Arkansas through Virginia were an integral component of the Democratic political base formed during the 1930s. But their support for the party's presiden-tial nominee has declined markedly in recent years.

Indeed, a majority of those states has given its votes to the Democratic nominee in only two of the five presidential elections during the past two

Offers to fix old jukebox are music to family's ears By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: On Aug. 22, the following letter appeared in my column:

"Dear Abby: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, this is not the problem; I'm coming to that.

"Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records—mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

"Abby, the model is 2810 and it plays only 45s. It had a beautiful tone before the switch broke.

"Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?—Gertrude B. in Wilkes-Barre, Pa."

"Dear Gertrude: There must be someone out there who has an old Wurlitzer transfer switch. Readers? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif.

Did I get letters! My mailman isn't speaking to me, and my staff is still working overtime to handle the responses.

More than 10,000 people from all 50 states, Canada and Puerto Rico wrote, offering to send a transfer switch. And at least a dozen people volunteered to custom-make one! Michelle K., an employee of the H and G Amusement Co. in Milwaukee, was the first to call my office to say that she had already started taking up a collection at work in order to send a good, rebuilt Wurlitzer to Gertrude's children. She added,

"The Milwaukee Sentinel, which carries your column, agreed to pay the $75 shipping charges."

An engineer in Maryland offered to fly to Wilkes-Barre and restore the jukebox to working order, regardless of what was required-free of charge.

I heard from people offering to send Gertrude their collections of old records. Some kindhearted strangers even sent checks to "help out."

The outpouring of generosity and compassion for Gertrude and her three disabled children had me and my staff typing through tear-dimmed eyes.

I telephoned Gertrude and spoke to her and her husband, Chuck. They were overwhelmed with gratitude and said, "There is no way we can thank all those wonderful people, so will you please thank them for us?"

You will be pleased to know that the sound of music will again be heard in Gertrude and Chuck's home thanks to Philip Roth, owner of Roth Novelty Co. in Wilkes-Barre. He wrote to say that he has represented the Wurlitzer Co. for 25 years and he will gladly provide the music-loving family with the best rebuilt jukebox available at no cost. And because of the special circumstances, Roth agreed to service the unit free of charge-forever.

Now, who says we're living in a cold, selfish society where people care only for themselves?

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif.

Pampans honored at WTS

CANYON - J.W. and Shirley Gist of Pampa have been nominated as Parents of the Year at West Texas State University.

Parents of the Year were honored during the ninth annual Parents' Day on Saturday, Sept. 22. Receiving the recognition were Archie and Gladys Looten of Panhandle. Five of their seven children have earned degrees at WTSU. About 500 parents registered for the day's activities. The Gists were nominated by their daughter, Lisa Schaub, a graduate student in recreation. Nominees included 24 parents.

"They have been understanding and supportive through both of our adjusting to me being away from home, through my changing majors three times, through my stressful final exams, through my learning and growing into a responsible citizen," she wrote on the nomination form.

She said her parents have attended Parent's Day each year she has been enrolled at WTSU.

Mrs. James E. Whitmarsh of Pampa was recognized among the most children enrolled at WTSU this semester. Her children at WTSU include Cheryl

Whitmarsh, junior music therapy major; Katrina Bradford, senior elementary education major; and son - in - law Steve Bradford, senior

Practical advice on establishing credit

Bruce Williams

SMART MONEY

Editor's Note: This week, The Pampa News begins "Smart Money" by Bruce Williams, to run each Monday when space permits. Williams, a broadcaster with extensive business experience, bases his column entirely on readers' questions about everyday financial problem with his down to - earth informed answers.

DEAR BRUCE WILLIAMS -My husband and I are in our early 20s and we cannot get a credit card. We don't owe anybody. Nobody will give us credit so we can owe anybody! I'd like to have a credit card. We wanted to rent an automobile, but nobody would rent us one because we didn't have a card. Yet every time we apply, the credit companies say, sorry, no credit history. How do you start establishing credit? - NO CREDIT, LOTS OF CASH, NEW YORK CITY.

DEAR NO CREDIT - This is a question that comes up regularly. The situation is almost a catch-22 but not quite.

First of all, perserverance pays in this area. If you are turned down for a credit card, apply again and againt to the same companies. I can tell you from personal experience that sooner or later somebody will issue a card.

If you want to expedite the situation, you might apply for what is called a collateralized card. There are a number of savings and loans and banks in the country that will issue a credit card to people who normally would not quality if the person opens a savings account in the bank. Now the savings account is held hostage. That's right. You can't get any money out of it, although you do get your 5.5 percent interest or thereabouts. This way, if you don't pay your bill, the bank has the money in your account to pay for it. But after a year or so, when you have established the fact that you are a solid citizen and you pay your bills in a timely fashion, the likelihood is they will let your bank account out of captivity. Then, you will have established yourself as a credit card user in good standing.

Another avenue open to some young people is to have a parent with a solid credit reputation guarantee your card for the first year or two. This is particularly valuable for college students. It gives them the convenience of a credit card and the experience in its use that could be invaluable in later life.

DEAR BRUCE WILLIAMS -Late this week my wife and I were doing our weekly marketing and, while our car was parked in the supermarket lot, a careless driver bumped it on the side. The damages are not extensive, but there is no question that the other guy was wrong. He won't pay us and his insurance company says they won't pay. Can they do this? Clearly he was wrong, yet our car is damaged and nobody will pay the bill. - C.K., PROVIDENCE,

DEAR C.K. - You have touched upon one of the most misunderstood relationships that I know of — the relationship between an insurance company, its insured and the claimant. The insurance company has the responsibility to do two things — and only two things. One, to defend its insured if, in fact, an action is brought against the insured person. The second is to pay a claim up to and including the limits of the policy if an award is granted to the other party. The insurance company has no obligation to pay you - even though their customer is clearly wrong - unless and until a court orders the company to do so.

Garden club raises funds for statue of Edison

MILAN, Ohio (AP) - Thomas A. Edison might be proud of the 37 women in the Milan Garden Club.

Members of the club this year honored the memory of Milan's best-known citizen with a sculpture which culminated five years of fund-raising effort. The work by Cleveland artist Michael Iradowsky is a bronze likeness of inventor Edison as a boy of 7 years standing next to his seated mother while she reads to him. Edison was 7 years old when he left Milan.

The work is valued at $125,000 and the work of the garden club to raise funds for it took longer than creation of the monument.

The idea for a memorial was broached in 1979 by Alice Bagley and Jeannette Henry, members of the club. They wanted the village to have a work of art that both commemorated Edison and conveyed a message.

Club members caught their enthusiasm but accomplishing the goal became a long-term project. The search for an artist took more than a year and the club heard from several sculptors before hearing Tradowsky's proposal. He proposed to depict a young Edison, barefoot and seemingly preoccupied as his mother, Nancy Elliott Edison, tutored him from a

They sought legal advice from attorney Paul Carpenter. They got a $1,000 donation from the Milan Chamber of Commerce and other contributions from local businesses.

George R. Mayer, a bank president, served as financial advisor and the monument fund was invested at peak interest. Donations still were far short of the goal so the women of the club projects.

They sold mementos and artifacts of Edison door to door. A glass plate was created for the project and a limited number of hem were sold Club members held garage and yard sales. They conducted raffles and bake sales.

By 1982, Tradowsky had completed his research and crafted a model in 1,200 pounds of clay. He invested an estimated 2,000 hours of work in the project. A woman and her son from Kirtland served as models, sitting for about 100 hours while Tradowsky worked.

When the artist was satisfied with the work, the sculpture was cast in bronze and mounted atop a granite pedestal. At the unveiling this spring, Mrs.

Henry reminded onlookers, that not just punch and cookie

HOTEL FIRE-Firefighters reach guests on a 12th floor balcony of the Fort Worth Hilton Hotel Sunday night as smoke billows from an open door at left. No injuries were reported in the five - alarm blaze which broke out on the 11th floor. (AP Laserphoto)

Investigators searching through damage left by 5-alarm hotel blaze

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -Investigators today were trying to determine what started a five-alarm blaze in the downtown Hilton Hotel that forced the evacuation of more than 400 guests and extensively damaged the top two floors

The fire, which started just after 9:30 p.m. in an 11th floor maid's closet, forced top-floor guests out onto their balconies where they screamed for help, officials said.

Fort Worth Fire Department spokesman Jim Noah said those guests, their faces covered with wet towels, were later escorted down the 435-room hotel's interior fire escape

Only one man, who was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation, was injured. Deputy Fire Chief Don Peacock said.

'We were lucky to get him out of there," he said. "He was asleep and had had a whole lot to drink." Soon after firefighters quelled the blaze shortly before 11 p.m., guests at the 12-story hotel at Commerce Street and Interstate 30 were allowed back inside. Noah

The fire, which drew scores of spectators and more than 65 firefighters to this east side hotel, was confined to the 11th and 12th floors. Noah said

Several guests complained that they didn't hear smoke alarms until it was much too late.

Janie Williams of Austin, who was with her husband Ken on the ninth floor when the fire began, said that "you couldn't hear the alarms on the top floors. They were muffled. We couldn't hear them until we got down to the third

Clifton James of Comanche, Texas, claimed the fire alarm never went off at all. Vance Tanner, and IBM Corp. employee from Tucson, Ariz., was on the 12th floor when the blaze

"I started to be concerned when I stepped into the hallway and couldn't breathe," he said. "The firemen came up and rescued me.

Noah called the incident "a good kind of high-rise fire." very different from last year's blaze at a Fort Worth Ramada Inn that killed five people

You don't go 110 feet in the air with a bunch of equipment and attack a fire without it being difficult," he said. "But everything worked properly.

James later told Noah that "if you boys hadn't come in and got us, we'd have been in a lot of trouble. We didn't know anything about it until we heard your fire engines.

Agriculture Department is under fire on its civil rights record

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department, which thought it was used to shocks during the long current downturn in the farm economy, is now under increasing fire on a new front: civil

Black lawmakers and leaders, in Washington this weekend for a major legislative conference, took aim at the department for allegedly ignoring equal opportunity laws in its own bureaucracy and discriminating against black farmers who apply for federal loans.

At the core of the complaint is the decline in the number of black farmers. That number, tapering downward since it peaked in about 1910, dropped sharply during the last decade. Now there are about 57,000 black-operated farms out of 2.4 million farms nation wide.

'At the present rate of farmland loss by blacks, there will be no farmland owned by this minority within as few as 10 years," said Joseph Brooks, president of the Atlanta-based Emergency Land Fund, a black farm aid group.

Brooks and others said largely to blame is the Farmers Home Administration, the farm lender of last resort, whose loans to blacks have dwindled at the same time need for them has risen.

"Local FmHA administrators still operate in an 'old boy network'" that is essentially closed to blacks in the South, where most black farms are located, said Rep

Edolphus Towns, D-N.Y., who is originally from North Carolina.

The department's Office of Equal Opportunity, which is responsible for overseeing enforcement of civil rights laws in employment and benefit programs, has had seven directors since President Reagan took office 31/2 years ago, said Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich.

He said the department has "clearly failed to meet its responsibility to enforce our civil rights laws" both in personnel practices and in offering financial assistance to farmers.

The criticism has clearly political overtones - the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who has been campaigning for Democratic presidential challenger Walter Mondale, took up the issue last week. But the department's own inspector general has found merit in the charges.

"Our preliminary findings are that management problems exist in the Office of Equal Opportunity and we recommend prompt remedial attention," Inspector General John V. Graziano wrote in an August report to John J. Franke, assistant secretary for administration.

Graziano found the office had been lax in submitting required annual reports to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and had failed to establish any policy for investigating complaints of discrimination in administering program benefits - such as the farmers' complaints that they can't get FmHA loans. He also noted low employee morale in the office.

Responding to the report Alma R. Esparza, director of the office, called the charges "false and personally motivated" and cited what she said was an enforcement plan already published that covers most of the complaints.

But another department source familiar with the issue, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said yet another review of the office had found a serious lack of leadership.

Among specific problems cited by Brooks and the other black farm leaders last week were that FmHA operating loans to blacks have fallen from 8 percent of the total in 1980 to 5 percent last year, and ownership loans have declined from 3 percent to 1 percent in the same period. Loans to blacks, who tend to have smaller farms, were less than the average loan size.

He also said the makeup of FmHA county committees, the groups which advise about administration of programs on the local level, has declined from 4.3 percent black in 1980 to 3 percent in

SMU gets break; Longhorns eye No. 1 spot

Southern Methodist gets a well-deserved rest while the remainder of the Southwest Conference gets down to family feudin' this Saturday with four games.

Texas, an impressive 28-3 conqueror of Penn State and likely to be ranked No. 1 in the nation, is at Rice to play the Owls, who were battered 38-3 by Miami.

Texas Christian, which lost a hard-fought 26-17 verdict to SMU, travels to the Ozarks to help Arkansas open its SWC campaign. Arkansas routed Navyt 33-10 over the weekend behind backup quarterback Danny Nutt, who threw three touchdown

Ray Berry's pass interception seconds later set up another Stockemer touchdown, this time on an 11-yard run, and the Bears had launched the SWC campaign on a winning note.

But the league's two biggest surprise teams might have to share the spotlight with the Major League Baseball Umpires Association. Then came the excitement.

Houston quarterback Warren Moon, suffering from a stomach virus, was replaced for the second half by Oliver Luck, who led the Oilers to Florian Kempf's 25-yard field goal and Earl Campbell's one-yard touchdown dive.

Suddenly the Oilers had momentum and the Saints were struggling, but Todd stopped the rally by guiding the Saints to a 27-yard field goal by Andersen and Gajan's second TD, a 37-yard run in the fourth quarter.

"I'm getting better, but I'm still making critical mistakes," said Todd, who completed 14 of 22 passes for 188 yards. "I still think we can get a lot better. With almost 400 yards of offense we should have scored more. When we got to their five-yard line, things got really tough.

Bill Turner, Brazos County district artorney, said he may help Brown prepare the cases, but that they might not go to trial for six weeks.

A grand jury indicted the four students Friday in the Aug. 30 death of Bruce Goodrich, 20, a Webster, N.Y., transfer student.

Misdemeanor charges of negligent homicide and hazing were returned against three juniors present the night Goodrich collapsed. The student later died and a preliminary autopsy listed heat stroke as the cause of death.

The juniors are accused of waking Goodrich and forcing him to perform "motivational" exercises, including situps and pushups.

Indictments on hazing and tampering with evidence were returned against a fourth student. Turner said a final autopsy report is expected to be released today

Ward Goodrich, the father of the dead student, expressed sympathy Saturday for the four students when contacted at his home in Wesbter, N.Y.

Grain elevator ruled in default

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government will declare a West Texas grain storage house in default on a multimillion-dollar grain storage contract today, an official at the U.S. Department of Agriculture said.

P.L. Blake of Greenwood, Miss., did not pay the government by last Friday's deadline the 966,000 bushels of corn his warehouse came up short in an August inspection, or $2.9 million to cover the missing grain, said Merrill Marxman, deputy administrator for commodity operations at the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

'We will proceed this morning to ask our contracting officer in Kansas City to declare the house in default," Marxman said.

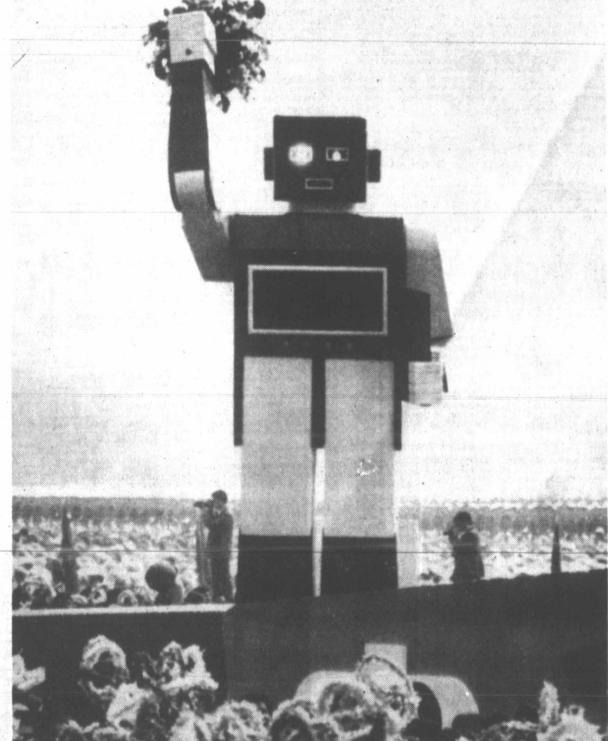

He said PLB Grain Storage Inc., located in Plainview, has 20 days to request a hearing before the contracting officer. In the meantime, Marxman said, he is negotiating with Blake's attorney to arrange to have the warehouse reopened so other depositors can have access to their grain.

The PLB elevator, the nation's largest, has been storing government grain since 1980, following the U.S. grain embargo against the Soviet Union. About 22 million bushels of corn went to the PLB

the dollar overvalued

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The fireworks going on lately in the foreign exchange markets may strike most Americans as little more than distant rumblings.

They can be heard without much immediate sensation of either benefit or harm.

Plenty of people do care a great deal about whether the dollar rises or falls in value against the Japanese yen, the West German mark, or the British pound

Employees and shareholders of multinational companies know that foreign-exchange fluctuations affect earnings, and hence the possibilities of things like yearend bonuses and dividend increases.

Small-business men and women who buy imported merchandise or sell overseas also feel a direct impact.

And American travelers found bargains in Europe thanks to favorable currency rates.

But ups and downs in currency values don't usually manifest themselves emotionally on the domestic citizenry the way something like a change in the unemployment rate might. If the dollar's rise lately has produced any general emotion at all, it is probably a vague sense of pride that the national currency is the object of so much worldwide respect Lately, as widely played news stories have related, the dollar has wobbled a bit. Its rapid rise to record or near-record highs prompted intervention by at least one European central bank, which exchanged large amounts of dollars for its own currency, thereby sending the dollar into retreat.

There are arguments both for and against the virtues of a mighty dollar. But most experts agree that instability in foreign-exchange markets poses threatening possibilities of concern to evervone.

If the dollar is "overvalued," and does come down somewhat in the foreign exchange markets, they hope it happens in an orderly way. A sudden, rapid decline, they point out, might hit the bond and short-term money markets hard, sending interest rates higher amid fears of a dramatic shrinkage of foreign capital to finance the U.S. government's borrowing needs.

It would also increase the cost to consumers of foreign-made goods. Domestic business that compete with imports, at the same time. would find themselves under correspondingly less pressure to hold prices down.

"The benefits of the strong dollar mostly have related to its impact, both direct and indirect, on inflation," observed Charles Lieberman, economist at Shearson Lehman-American Express.

A possible reversal of the dollar's fortunes, he said, "threatens to undermine some of the important benefits achieved over the past few years."

Of course, the dollar has been called "overvalued" frequently in the last year or so, and that hasn't stopped it from climbing steadily to new heights. Central banks can exert a strong influence on the foreign exchange markets

Local Rotary Club plans

The series features films this year on South America, China, England, Ceylon, and Tahiti and the Cook Islands, according to Hal Cree, chairman of the club's Travel Film Committee.

Phil Gentry, Rotary Club president, said the series is made possible "only through the support of the community." All profits from the project are distributed to about 15 local charities, he said.

All films will be shown in the M. K. Brown Auditorium, with shows beginning at 7:30 p.m. on the scheduled dates.

The first film in the series -"Adventures Across South America'' - features a journey through the untamed jungles of the Amazon, over the Andes and on to the southmost tip of Argentina.

The film, scheduled for Monday, Nov. 5, will be narrated by Rudi Thurau. Born in West Germany, Thurau now maintains his residence in Hemet, Calif. Thurau served as cinematographer for portions of the journeys made in South America by raft, train, plane, bus, reed boat and foot.

Set for Tuesday, Dec. 4, "Tahiti and the Cook Islands" will be narrated by Clint Denn, who produced the look at the culture of

The film will highlight the people, customs, traditions, religion, dance and song of the Polynesians. In addition, the movie will feature the exotic scenery: tropical sea, volcanoes, white beaches and green valleys in the mountain chains, along with a catamaran ride, snorkeling, scuba-diving, shell collecting and a visit to an ancient worship center.

Raphael Green, a native of Maine, will narrate "China," the first American travel film on Communist China, on Tuesday, Jan. 15, offering a look at the people and lifestyles in modern

Three years in the making, the film includes a calvacade of scenes such as the medieval Castles of Arundel, Penshurt and Knole; the opera festival at Glyndebourne, the royal Windsor Castle, and the Barnard Castle in the romantic North Country

The film will be narrated by Howdee and Lucia Meyers, called by the Chicago Sun-Times "the most stylish performers on the travelogue stage today." The 1984-1985 season will conclude Thursday, April 18, with "Ceylon - the Magic Island," featuring the ancient ports, magical mountains, lost civilizations and modern people of this exotic island off the coast of India.

Narrated by Ed Lark, a native Californian, the film will highlight visits to Colombo, the island capital; the ancient capitals of Anuradhapura and Polonnaruwa, ruins of a civilization existing when western culture was still in caves: and the top of Adams Peak, a holy spot for Buddhists, Christians and Moslems.

Season tickets are $10 for adults; $5 for students, and $25 for families.

Tickets may be bought from Rotary Club members or purchased at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, Citizen's Bank and Trust Co., First Financial Banking Center, First National Bank National Bank of Commerce and Security Federal Savings and Loan.

Shultz: talks 'not very

WASHINGTON (AP) -Secretary of State George P. Shultz says chances are now 'reasonably good" that the United States and Moscow can establish constructive negotiations aimed at improving superpower relations. But Shultz said Sunday it would be incorrect to say that the talks between President Reagan and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last week were very positive.

"Not very positive — sober and intense," Shultz said in an appearance on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

Meanwhile, Robert C. McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, said it would probably take a couple of months for the Soviets to respond to Reagan's proposals for regular high-level contacts focusing on arms control and other issues.

"The Soviet process is a very deliberate one, and they've had a lot to chew on after this week, so it will take some time," McFarlane said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Shultz said that in the nearly nine hours of talks with Gromyko - 31/2 hours with Reagan and the rest with Shultz - "practically all subjects of concern" between the two nations were discussed.

As a result, he said, "the chances of a more constructive dialogue with the Soviet Union ... are reasonably good." He said the two sides agreed "to keep in touch, carefully and systematically" through diplomatic channels.

Shultz said there will be follow-up consultations at the ambassadorial level in Washington and Moscow to decide plans for specific meetings on specific issues

But Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic presidential hopeful, told reporters Sunday that the Reagan-Gromyko session was an "apparent failure in arms control," and "both disappointing and a basis for apprehension' because it raised doubts about "which Reagan will we see" if he

"Will we see the Reagan who for four years has engineered an arms race ... or will we see a Reagan who as he has in the past week, talks about peace?" he said.

Mondale, who met with Gromyko in New York on Thursday, said afterward he thought there was an opportunity for Reagan to make progress toward breaking the impasse over arms control talks.
