

Loaned executives announced

With the United Way fund campaign officially beginning today, drive chairman Steve Jones has announced the two loaned executives who will be working with the United Way board of directors.

The two men - Jack L. Peoples and Duane Harp - will help in fund raising activities to support the 15 agencies benefitting from the local drive.

The drive kicked off today with a special luncheon sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, with members of various civic clubs attending to participate in the opening of the annual campaign.

Peoples has his bachelor of science in industrial management degree from Louisiana Tech Institute at Ruston, La. A member of the Hi-Land Christian Church, he is a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, serving on the Fire Prevention and Safety Committee. He also is a member of the American Society of Safety Engineers.

"The United Way of Pampa has had a tremendous impact on our community," Peoples said. "And through the United Way effort, we have assured that those who have a need will be given assistance in meeting that need."

Harp has his bachelor of science degree in finance from West Texas State University. He is a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and the First Presbyterian Church.

"I enjoy working with the United Way and with the affiliated agencies because of the broad scope," Harp said. "With its range of impact going from benevolence-type services to youth programs to community-building activities, the United Way touches each of us."

Loaned executives are provided by firms willing to allow company employees to spend time on United Way drive activities.

Harp and Peoples join Jones and seven division chairmen in coordinating activities for the United Way campaign in collecting donations and contributions from businesses and individuals.

Funds from the drive will help support the services, activities and charities of 15 agencies in Pampa and the surrounding area.

City, county will hold tax hearings Tuesday

City commissioners will hold a public hearing on a proposed increased property tax rate at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday during its regular meeting.

The city has proposed an eight percent hike in the effective tax rate for fiscal year 1984-1985, raising taxes from 60.2 cents (the effective rate) per $100 valuation to 65 cents.

Based on a total taxable property valuation of $364,078,864, as determined by the Gray County Tax Appraisal District, the new rate would generate about $2,366,000 in tax revenues for the city.

Tax rate last year was set at 61.2 cents. The proposed rate, if approved, would represent an increase of 3.8 cents per $100 valuation from last year's rate.

Total taxable property valuation for last year had been placed at $330,605,505 by the appraisal district, indicating an increase of $33,473,359 in property valuations this year.

The city has tentatively approved an operating budget of $8,346,829 for 1984-1985, an 8.3 percent increase over last year's budget of about $7.7 million.

In addition to the tax hike, the city plans to increase water, sewer and waste collection charges by $1 each.

The commission also plans a public hearing on a request to annex a tract of land in the southeast quarter of Section 92 and the northeast quarter of Section 91, Block 3, I&GN RRC Survey. The area is located east of the city near the Pampa Country Club.

In budget related matters, commissioners will consider on first reading an ordinance adopting the 1984-1985 operating budget and amendments to ordinances concerning water service rates, water service tapping fees, sanitary sewer fees and residential and commercial solid waste collection fees.

Commissioners also will consider a proposed Hobart St. improvement project. The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has proposed rehabilitation of Hobart from Alcock to 21st St. at an estimated cost of $838,000. The federal government would supply 75 percent of the funds, with the state covering the remaining 25 percent.

The federal authorities turned down an initial request because of problems with signs and parking places along the route, suggesting replacing outdated traffic signals and elimination of current angular parking. The suggestions were made to reduce accidents.

At a public hearing on the matter Thursday night, a number of merchants and businessmen in the affected area voiced objections to the modifications, saying the stipulations could hurt their businesses.

In other matters, commissioners will consider on second reading an ordinance concerning litter control and an ordinance prohibiting the operation or parking of a motor vehicle in a public park.

The commission will consider payments to Stubbs, Inc., and Kelley Engineering for a waterline to the Chaumo Addition and to Lewis Construction Co. for street repair programs.

Final plat approval for a revised plat for Davis Place III, requested by John R. Davis & Sons, also will be considered.

Commissioners will hold an executive session to consider personnel matters and consider approval of salary changes for August and of accounts payable.

County proposes hike for salaries

Gray County Commissioners will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in a special session with a one-item agenda: "Hold a public hearing to consider an increase in property taxes."

Commissioners have proposed raising the county tax rate from 18.2 cents per $100 valuation to 22.1 cents per $100. The 3.9-cent hike in the county tax rate in calendar year 1985 would amount to a $19.50 annual increase in county taxes on a $50,000 home.

The higher tax rate would bring in an additional $682,233 in property taxes next year. The extra tax money would help fund a proposed budget of $4,012,426. The preliminary 1985 budget projects a $252,535 increase in spending over the current budget of $3,759,891.

The bulk of the increase in the budget would fund a five-percent pay raise for county employees and the higher costs of their benefits.

Because projected property values have increased, the county could drop the tax rate to 17.1 cents per $100 valuation and still raise the same amount of tax revenue generated by present 18.2-cent tax rate.

The commissioners have proposed raising taxes, while holding on to a $3,594,416 surplus created by the April 1979 sale of the county-owned Highland General Hospital. The surplus county fund, called the Highland General Hospital Account, earns interest in certificates of deposit at the First National Bank. The county representatives have said they intend to hold the account "in reserve" to pay for a new jail some day. The county representatives have agreed that a new jail isn't needed, but they expect the state or federal government to mandate a new facility. The county jail was built in 1929.

The public hearing on the proposed tax rate will be held in commission chambers on the second floor of the courthouse.

The city and Pampa school district also have proposed bigger budgets and tax increases for next year.

Mondale proposes delay in indexing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walter F. Mondale today unveiled a deficit reduction package of tax increases and spending reductions totaling $177 billion, and a "pay as you go" requirement that the president come up with new taxes or spending cuts to pay for any new federal programs he might propose.

Mondale's newest budget plan, released after weeks of preparation, suggested no increases in existing federal income tax rates. Instead, he called for further delays in the effect of a new law protecting taxpayers from inflation. The money raised through deferral of indexing, as inflation protection is known, and other previously proposed tax increases, would be funneled into a trust fund that by law would only go to offset the deficit.

Overall, staff aides in Washington said the package would cut federal deficits by two thirds, to $86 billion in 1989.

Since the Democratic National Convention, Mondale has said that whoever is elected president will have to raise taxes to offset the mushrooming deficit.

Texas incomes rise faster than in any state

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans have been increasing their incomes at a faster rate since World War II than the residents of any other state, according to a recently released U.S. Commerce Department study.

The figures also showed that for the first time in 10 years, Texas' growth in per capita personal income dropped below 10 percent between 1981 and 1982, the latest year for which figures were reported.

The consumer price index dropped, too, though, from an adjusted rate of 10.4 percent in 1981 to 6.1 percent in 1982.

Between 1971 and 1972, the state's per capita personal income rose 8.1 percent. Since then, it has risen annually at rates from 10.6 percent to a high of 15 percent between 1980 and 1981.

The department calls the figures "the most widely used yardstick for assessing a state's economic performance."

In 1982, the average Texan made $11,419. The department's figures, which are estimates, date back to 1929. Texans made the least amount of money in 1932, when per capita income dropped to $202.

A separate table in the study comparing all the states showed that in 1948, Texas ranked 36th in per capita disposable income — which is the average yearly income per resident, minus such payments as taxes.

By 1969, Texas had risen a few steps, to 32nd, but the state jumped to 16th place by 1982, according to the department's report.

The average Texan had $9,641 in disposable income in 1982, it said.

Alaskans were No. 1 in 1982, with a per capita disposable income of $13,312. Mississippi was last at $6,666.

Rankings were provided for two other years. In 1969, Connecticut was first at $3,865. In 1948, it was the District of Columbia, with an average disposable income of $1,725.

The study showed the gradual decline of farm income as a percentage of Texas' income. In 1931, farming accounted for 15 percent of the state's personal income.

In 1950, it still was at 12 percent, but by 1960 it had dropped to 5 percent. In 1982, farm income fell to less than 1 percent of Texas' total personal income, which was $174.5 billion.

According to the study, manufacturing now is the biggest contributor to Texans' pocketbooks, accounting for $25.4 billion of the state's 1982 personal income. The biggest chunk in that category — about $4.6 billion — came from the manufacture of machinery. Production of oil and coal produced $2.1 billion in income and chemical production contributed $2.9 billion.

The next biggest category was wholesale and retail trade, contributing $2.4 billion, followed by services, such as repair, recreation, legal, health and education, at $2.1 billion.

Government payrolls accounted for $19.3 billion of Texans' income in 1982. Military income dwarfed civilian federal pay during the World War II years, but civilians topped military personnel for the years 1947 and 1948. The military took command again until 1962.

Three states braced for Hurricane Diana

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Diana blew into a hurricane today as winds reached 80 mph, lashing Florida's coast with heavy seas, forcing vacationers to flee Georgia resort islands and prompting school officials to cancel classes in South Carolina.

An 8 a.m. EDT advisory from the National Hurricane Center said a research plane flying over the storm had recorded highest sustained winds of 80 mph. A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when winds top 75 mph.

The storm's eye was near latitude 30.7 north and longitude 80.2 west, or about 75 miles east-northeast of Jacksonville Beach and 110 miles south-southeast of Savannah, Ga.

The hurricane was moving northward at 5 mph parallel to the Florida coast, pushing high tides and towering waves into oceanfront areas.

"Only a slight change in course could bring the storm on shore in a few hours," the National Weather Service said this morning.

As the storm approached, seaside residents were evacuated, classes were canceled and beaches were closed in areas of four states from Florida to North Carolina.

"Coastal residents in northeast Florida, Georgia and South Carolina should be ready for quick action in case Diana becomes a hurricane," the National Hurricane Center said early today. "Diana has the potential to strengthen to a hurricane at any time."

"We're trying to help get the folks off St. Simons and Jekyll Island as easily and quietly as possible," said Georgia State Patrol Trooper Robert Phillips. "Troopers are out in the area helping and everything is going OK so far."

A hurricane watch was posted from St. Augustine, Fla., to Oregon Inlet, N.C., and gale warnings were in effect from St. Augustine to just south of Virginia Beach, Va. Gales extended outward 150 miles to the northeast of the center and 50 miles elsewhere.

Tides of 2 to 4 feet above normal were forecast along the coast ahead of the storm and 5 feet above normal if the center moved inland, forecasters said.

Weather service offices in the Carolinas recommended that boat owners remain in port and suggested that coastal residents check medical supplies and batteries in flashlights and radios.

Street flooding in areas of poor drainage were expected in South Carolina and Florida.

Diana kept space shuttle Discovery from returning home to Cape Canaveral on schedule, forcing an overnight stay in Oklahoma. The shuttle continued its piggyback ride home to Florida atop a Boeing 747 today.

Classes in Beaufort and Colleton counties in South Carolina were canceled today. Emergency officials set up a 24-hour command post and considered evacuating Hilton Head and Fripp islands.

At least 94 military families near Beaufort were evacuated from their mobile homes, said Gunnery Sgt. Jim Kaufmann of the Parris Island Marine Base.

State Guard battalion faces dismissal for being 'gung-ho'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The 105th Texas State Guard Battalion have been described as "the best trained battalion in the United States" but are near being discharged for being "just too gung-ho," State Guard officials say.

On their training weekends, the men of the 105th spend their nights on their bellies, crawling up hills in preparation for dawn attacks on unseen enemy forces. The know the feel of an M-16 rifle pressed against their camouflage combat fatigues and military gear.

Col. Maurice Lambert, who oversees five State Guard battalions in North Texas, recently described the 105th as "the best trained battalion in the United

But Lambert said the 60-man group of volunteers is hovering a half-step away from dismissal.

State Guard officials said the 105th has become a combat team — a maverick pack of enthusiastic weekend warriors led by a former Green Beret, Robert C. Holloway of Fort Worth.

Violence a way of life in Texas prison, inmate says

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Increased patterns of racial violence and tensions in units of the Texas Department of Corrections will continue, inmates say, despite efforts being made to reform the state's prison system.

George Solomon, a 30-year-old inmate serving his second term in the TDC, said the prisons have become places where doing time is hell.

"There's no control here any more," Solomon told the Austin American-Statesman.

"People are walking a thin line and can snap at any time at anything," he said. "It's not random violence. There's a reason. But it doesn't take much to get hurt in here. Any time you get in somebody's business — you get in debt over dope or gambling — there's going to be repercussions."

Gangs, which were not a problem when Solomon served his first sentence, are creating tension among the inmates.

"There's racial problems right now and it's not getting any better," Solomon said. "You got gangs roaming the prison. You stay out of their way. You stay out of everybody's way. That's still no guarantee you can sleep well at night."

Another prisoner, Victor Viera, 44, spent 11 days in a hospital last month after he was stabbed six times by another inmate.

New ride guidelines at the state fair

DALLAS (AP) — State Fair of Texas officials say new amusement ride safety guidelines will be in place when the fair opens next month.

State fair officials adopted the inspection procedures in May in the wake of an accident that killed one person and injured 16 others when a gondola on the Enterprise ride fell to the midway on Oct. 17, 1983.

In 1979, one man was killed and 17 people were injured when a car from the Swiss Skyride dropped to the midway.

"I think they (Texas officials) are being very diligent and are to be commended," said Nancy Steorts, chairwoman of the National Consumer Product Safety Commission. "I am using them for a model for others to follow," she said.

Among the highlights of the new standards are out-of-state inspections of all rides that will be set up on the midway in Dallas and extensive checks of those rides that are permanent fixtures of the Oct. 5-28 state fair.

State fair spokesman Nancy

Wiley said the fair's program, developed by General Manager Wayne Gallagher with "input from a variety of sources," was based on guidelines issued by the American Society of Testing and Materials in December.

"What we are doing goes beyond the guidelines," Ms. Wiley told The Dallas Morning News.

Ms. Steorts, who investigated the Enterprise accident personally, said the crash prompted the changes and a review of national standards.

"It was that tragedy that has been the cornerstone of trying to get a national initiative brought forward on the regaining of the authority of the Consumer Products Commission over all amusement rides," she said.

That authority was taken away in 1981 when Congress reauthorized the commission.

The state fair has hired four national safety inspectors who caught up with all traveling rides on the roads. It also has insisted that operators fully dismantle equipment for thorough inspection.

All that glittered wasn't silver in this scheme

DALLAS (AP) — Early investors in Peggy Stines' deal got returns of between 8 and 12 percent. But last spring the checks began arriving late and then not at all.

Now, Mrs. Stines is awaiting trial on federal charges of defrauding at least 400 people out of more than $10 million. Investors have filed numerous lawsuits.

Federal authorities allege the Stines ran a pyramid scheme in which the returns paid to early investors were, in fact, funds from the same or other investors.

Mrs. Stines told the people in her Garland office that she was looking for money to recover silver from scrap film. She said she had contracts to supply General Motors and General Dynamics with industrial grade silver, and plants in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

She promised a monthly return of at least 2 percent — far better than any traditional investment — and actually delivered returns to early investors of between 8 and 12 percent, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

When checks stopped arriving, investors went knocking on her door, but no one answered.

"It's hard to think we could have misjudged somebody so bad," said Harry Dean Wood, a Dallas investor and public relations representative for the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas who invested nearly $200,000 in the venture and another $100,000 on behalf of his wife and children.

"She had really convinced me. She looked me right in the eye and said she could use another $3 million," Wood said.

On Aug. 2, the Securities and Exchange Commission, acting on complaints from investors, charged her with defrauding the investors.

Six days later, a federal grand jury followed up the SEC charges with a 25-count indictment charging Mrs. Stines and her husband, Donald, with essentially the same offenses.

The couple surrendered to authorities Aug. 9 and face trial Nov. 5. They face a maximum prison sentence, if convicted, of 140 years and fines of $52,000.

Stines could not be reached for comment by the Times Herald or the Associated Press. Through her attorney, Mark Elliston, Mrs. Stines declined comment.

According to court documents, the money that was supposed to buy equipment for the silver reclamation actually supported a regal lifestyle for the couple that featured at least nine vehicles, a private plane, 140-acre ranch, 45 Quarter horses and a company with interests in oil and gas leases.

The Stines' assets are frozen in federal receivership now, but they add up to only a small portion of what investors say they poured into the Garland Film Buyers Group.

"We were so damned greedy. After all, you had a chance to double your money," said Ray Cripps, business manager for Salvage Carpet in Dallas, which had $140,000 in an employee profit-sharing plan in the venture.

The collapse of the company also stung the 70-member Big Prater Baptist Church in rural Buchanan County, Virginia. The Rev. Stafford Compton said $10,000 from the church's building fund was investor in the venture.

"It's kind of an embarrassing thing," Compton said.

Doug and Sharon Smith, a young Houston couple, borrowed more than $60,000 over the last year to invest in the Garland Film Buyers Group thinking it would be a good hedge against the medical expenses of their 19-month-old daughter, ill with cerebral palsy.

"My husband and I both told her

(Mrs. Stines) how much she was doing for our daughter," Mrs. Smith said. "She said, 'Well, I just like helping people out.'"

Idle boats kept shipshape for Navy use

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — People sometimes refer to it as a bone yard, but George Woddall Jr. says his fleet of ships is ready to help U.S. forces in the event of war.

The 61 cargo ships, barges and tugs are part of the National Reserve Defense Fleet and are nestled in a 214-acre reserve on the Neches River near Beaumont. They have been standing ready for war since 1947.

"They'll refer to this place as a bone yard," Woddall said. "That's not right. When you have a ship that you can have on berth in five to 10 days, you have to keep it up pretty good. A lot of people don't have any idea what goes on out here."

The hodgepodge of ships is one of three government fleets of reserve cargo ships in the nation. The oldest ships date back to World War II, and the newest was built in 1981.

"The importance of this fleet is there's no cargo ships around to handle bulk cargo when the Navy needs it," said Woddall, a veteran of the merchant marine. "There's just not that many of the bulk cargo ships left."

The need for a reserve fleet arose during World War II, when thousands of merchant marine ships sailed in convoys to transport the tons of material needed to supply the Allied forces in Europe and the Pacific, said Walter Oates, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Commerce's Maritime Administration, which oversees the reserve fleet.

Commercial ships were contracted by the government for the work. But in the 1950s and 1960s, the number of merchant ships flying the American flag went down by nearly a third, Oates told the Dallas Morning News.

Today, there are only about 425 American-registered cargo ships, down from nearly 1,200 ships in 1950.

"That fact makes the reserve fleet all the more important," Woddall said.

"The bottom line is this: In the Vietnam War, we didn't have access to even friendly foreign flag merchant ships," Oates said. "If we didn't have that reserve fleet, guys would've been running out of ammo and toilet paper and everything else."

In addition to Beaumont, the fleet of nearly 300 ships is anchored at Suisun Bay in California and near James River, Va.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Who will pay for this new model?

During the Democratic primaries, Walter Mondale and Gary Hart fought long and hard over the domestic content of cars manufactured in the United States. Mondale wanted most everything under the hood to be stamped "Made in USA." Hart held out for the freedom of manufacturers to use the best parts, even if they're foreign.

Then the candidates beat their swords into chisels and sculpted the 1984 Democratic platform.

"It is a sound principle of international trade for automakers which enjoy substantial sales in the United States to invest here and create jobs where their markets are," the document reads. "We also believe U.S. automakers need to maintain high-volume small-car production in the United States."

That sounds like a domestic content roadster with free trade hubcaps and a Mondale hood ornament. How would it operate?

It would have protectionist tail fins and a scaled-down three-cylinder Cadillac engine developed by Japanese miniaturization experts. The muffler would be built to stifle the cries of consumers looking at the sticker price. And the turning signals would always flash left, no matter how far right the driver would want to go.

What will it cost? Estimates run to several billion dollars a year, to say nothing of the cost of re-equipping it to be an armored tank to fight in the international trade wars.

Who's going to pay for it? Certainly not the candidate who will ride if from coast to coast. The American consumer will pick up the tab.

Needlepoints

We noticed a story in the Amarillo paper Saturday that said President Reagan "accused those who oppose mandatory prayer in schools of being 'intolerant' of religion. Someone should clip that story and send it to the president because it would be news to him. He thought he was criticizing those who oppose voluntary prayer in schools.

We are glad to see all these political candidates saying Christian values cannot be separated from politics. If they are elected, we trust they will obey the commandment that says "Thou shalt not steal" and refrain henceforth from forcibly taking money from working citizens to finance their own social schemes.

What healed a sick state?

When N.Y. Governor Mario Cuomo lashed out at President Reagan's "veranda vision" of a "shining city on a hill," no one asked him why, in June when national unemployment, under Reagan, dropped from 7.5 to 7.1 percent, New York's ROSE, from 6.4 to 7.1 percent, then up to 8 percent in July - well above the national average.

If Cuomo is seeking the reason for this sudden reversal of the much more favorable trend he inherited from Hugh Carey, he can find a fuller explanation in a new book by Wall Street Journalist James Ring Adams: Secrets of the Tax Revolt, published by Harcourt Brace. On pages 110 to 114, under the subheading "Recovery: The Supply Side Saves New York," Adams describes how Carey and NYC Mayor Ed Koch proved that cutting the huge liberal - inspired tax burden would help the state's staggering economy.

Adams writes: "From 1977 to 1979, the total N.Y. state and local burden fell at an annual rate of 3.2 percent. (In the previous decade it had risen at an annual rate of 3.4 percent.)"

As a result, New York's tax - sick economy suddenly got much better relative to the nation, and during the 1982 recession its unemployment was actually consistently below that of the nation.

"(Incoming) Governor Cuomo had the chance to restrain state spending and resume his predecessor's policy of tax reduction." Instead, he RAISED taxes by over $900 million, producing a nearly half - billion - dollar surplus. Then, instead of returning the surplus, "in January 1984 he chose to let his budget rise by 19 percent."

On June 8, retiring "neo - liberal" U.S. Senator Paul Tsongas (D - Mass.) gave the keynote speech to the Massachusetts Democratic Convention. The mostly leftist delegates were primed for a steamy Cuomo - like attack on the horrors of Reaganomics. But, with the most robust state economy in fourteen years (4.1 - percent enunemployment rate, 4.6 - percent inflation, and state personal income growing at its fastest real rate in two decades), Tsongas had too much integrity to comply. Instead, he told them what they did not want to hear: his liberal friends have something to learn about economics.

It was an extension of his Senate speech a month earlier, that "Democrats are viewed as people who care less about how well the economy is doing, and spend all of their time worrying about how you distribute the golden eggs. The goose's health is irrelevant. You know, the funny thing about it is we deserve it, because it is true."

Within a few minutes, the expectant hush in the Worcester Centrum gave way to defiant distraction and disinterest. The delegates did not need reminding that they had been dragged kicking and screaming into the world of supply - side economics by a conservative citizen tax revolt in 1978 and 1980. A revolt that lowered the Massachusetts tax burden more than 20 percent, and in the process, transformed the third most stagnant economy in the nation (in 1978) to the third fastest - growing personal income in 1983.

All this, literally over the dead political bodies and dying protests of the liberal delegates of the Dukakis machine who had fought the tax revolt every inch of the way - and still are. Indeed, Tsongas admitted to his Senate colleagues that he had opposed one of the first great supply - side tax cuts, the Steiger Amendment in 1978, which cut capital gains taxes from 49 percent to 28, and did wonders for the high - technology industry.

"That bill," he said, "which I did not support, did more for the economy of my state than anything I did as a congressman."

Tsongas will find further justification in Adams' book. Tracing the intellectual origins and the present economic effects of the national tax revolt movement of the late '70s and early '80s, Adams devotes two chapters to Massachusetts; one on its historical past as the progenitor of the tax - protest underpinning of the American Revolution.

Unfortunately, the Massachusetts Puritan tradition of meddling in the lives of others, as a form of social virtue, which gave it such relatively high taxes in the 18th century, returned with a vengeance in the 1970's bipartisan activist liberalism. The state's tax burden soared from the nation's 28th highest (1968) to 5th (1978) - while the state's personal income plunged from 10 percent above the nation to only 3 percent.

By 1977, "The undeniable fact was that a pall of lethargy and demoralization had settled over the commonwealth...unemployed men...made plans to relocate to more abundant economies." It was a condition readily predicted back in the 18th century by philosopher David Hume, "Exorbitant taxes...destroy industry, by producing despair."

But, Adams writes, "a diagnosis (high taxes) and a remedy (tax revolt) were right at hand," along with a coalition of high - tech industry entrepreneurs and citizen activists who in 1978 helped dump the high - taxing Michael Dukakis as governor, then rammed Proposition 2 - 1/2, a tough tax - limitation measure, down his conservative successor Ed King's political gullet.

But Adams says, "the most spectacular success, still ignored by the academic critics, came in the measure's supply - side economic impact. Massachusetts, which less than a decade ago had been one of the sickest state economies, was now the healthiest."

If Cuomo wants to know why his keynote address was bofo baloney - he should read Adams' book. It could help him for 1988.

Legacy

In this feature, we excerpt material that has appeared on Freedom Newspapers editorial pages in previous years, whether from the editorials or the column written for many years by Freedom founder R.C. Holles.

Although this is going to sound almost unbelievable to a great many, the evidence in increasing that newspapers do a better job of reducing the crime rate than many courts of law. The courts are judicial and punitive agencies, and, of course, are not engaged actively in preventing anything. But the theory persists that actions of courts in punishing offenders provide some kind of warning to future offenders and serve a preventive purpose. But publicity, the full disclosure of the identity of the perpetrator of crime - that is the Achilles' heel through which a reduction in crime may occur.

Presidents can't raise taxes

Despite the president's charm it is still uphill for Republicans. Among registered voters they are still outnumbered by Democrats.

The necessary GOP strategy, therefore, includes making converts.

President Reagan, who once was one, is inviting Democrats to follow him. He said their party "belongs to the past," his "belongs to the future."

Mondale strategy, on the other hand, seeks to embrace myriad minorities with promises of compassion for the poor, the unemployed, the aged.

UPI's Arnold Sawislak says for politicians to promise everything to everybody is not without precedent.

A book publisher discovered that the books which were selling best were about pets or medicine or the Civil War.

So he wrote a sure - enough best seller. He called it "Lincoln's Doctor's Dog."

The only issue you could call an issue separating the parties this fall is new taxes, yes or no.

But neither candidate can deliver on this promise, either way.

Mondale promises if elected to raise taxes. He can't.

Reagan promises if re - elected not to raise taxes. He can't promise that, either.

Under the Constitution of the United States, no president can raise taxes.

A president may suggest or recommend - or urge - more taxes, but only Congress can vote more.

Indeed, Congress can even override a presidential veto.

The authors of our Constitution were running scared from "taxation without representation."

It was to make certain that no despot could arbitrarily raise our taxes - ever again - that they delegated this authority exclusively to the regionally elected representatives of the people.

So - only Congress can raise taxes.

So - if our nation has run up a trillion - dollar national debt since 1932, it is not the presidents who did it. Congress did it. All tax and appropriation bills originate in the Congress.

If we taxpayers are paying $100 billion a year just for interest on the debt, Congress did that to us.

So, if we want to do something about the national deficit, we'll be careful for whom we vote in November - for Congress.

Ferdinand isn't out of the woods yet

I would not have believed it a year ago.

Following the assassination of Benigno Aquino, I thought Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos' lease on power was about to run out. But the first anniversary of Aquino's death has come and gone and Marcos is still in charge, as he has been for 19 years.

Not that it hasn't been a rough year. The commission Marcos set up to look into the Aquino killing quickly changed from a cover-up operation to a forum for Marcos opponents. Still, the panel hasn't succeeded in implicating him directly. The best thinking is that Aquino, an exiled opposition leader, was shot at Manila airport by parties close to Marcos, probably in the military, who wanted to do the president and more likely themselves a favor.

They certainly didn't do Marcos any immediate favors. Because of Aquino's murder, the White House canceled a scheduled Reagan visit to the Philippines.

Then the economy took a nose dive. Not that it was in such great shape before. Marcos economics had been called "crony capitalism," with lucrative contracts and posts going to a small group of friends and relatives of Marcos and his manipulative wife, Imelda.

Then came elections this spring in which the opposition - possibly to its own surprise as much as anyone's - picked up something like a third of the assembly seats at stake.

Marcos still has an overwhelming majority and the power to rule by decree. But his rule is now subject to more than token scrutiny.

Also, for a considerable period he was ailing, from precisely what was never made clear. Now, Marcos, 66, is reported to be in much improved health and planning to run for re-election in 1987.

But that hasn't settled the succession question. Despite pressure to name a vice president, he resists designating an official heir. Wife Imelda is believed to be intensely interested, but she is also intensely unpopular.

The black humor at the time of the spring elections had it that if she rather than Aquino had been assassinated, Marcos would have taken every seat by acclamation.

As it is, his position was probably strengthened in the long run by the opposition gains. They make his regime look partially democratic without threatening his control.

Nevertheless, the Philippines are at a crossroads, with some observers comparing it with South Vietnam in the early '60s and Nicaragua in the late '70s.

The Philippines has a democratic tradition, the legacy of the half century of American rule, and today's political opposition is in that tradition. It is non-communist, overwhelmingly moderate and essentially pro-American.

That could change rapidly if Marcos resists real change. A communist rebellion continues to sputter in the south and may be gaining strength.

There was a disturbing note to the Aug. 21 demonstrations in Manila. Anti-American as well as anti-Marcos banners were displayed. Speakers using English were heckled.

There is evidence that Washington is pressuring Marcos to ease up and permit an orderly development of democratic processes.

If Marcos is listening, the experiment could be historic. The Philippines could be the perfect test for U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick's thesis that a crucial difference between authoritarian regimes of the right and left is that the former may be induced to change for the better.

On the other hand, this test case might show up flaws in her thesis. Marcos may be listening to Washington and perhaps even consider change, but what about Imelda and the cronies? They may have as much or more to say about the direction the Philippines will take as does Marcos.

Meanwhile, there's more to come. The demonstrations did not end with the Aquino anniversary. Organizers say the protests will continue at least until Sept. 21, the anniversary of Marcos' imposition of martial law in 1972.

Ferdinand isn't out of the woods yet.

Early education protects kids from sexual abuse

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: In recent months, a national disgrace of epidemic proportions has come out of the closet—the sexual abuse of children. It began when the owners and operators of a prestigious day care center were charged with having sexually abused more than 40 children who ranged in age from 2 to 5.

The suspects were charged with, among other things, having posed and photographed the children in sex acts with other children and adults, then selling the pictures and movies to a large porno ring.

It seems incredible that these children had been repeatedly sexually abused over a period of so many years, yet no child told anyone. It was later learned that the children had been threatened that if they told anyone, their parents would be tortured and killed!

As is usually the case, when one can of worms is opened, others follow, and now we discover that children in day care centers in other areas of the country may have also been victimized by sexual abuse.

As a result of the publicity, my office has been deluged with books dealing with the sexual abuse of children. Most were good, many were very good, but in my estimation the one book that topped them all was "No More Secrets for Me" by Oralee Wachter. This plain-speaking little gem is written for children of all ages. Children who are just learning to read will understand it. Children who are too young to read, but are read to by their parents, grandparents, teachers and sitters will understand it.

It handles a very delicate subject with great sensitivity and taste. But more important, it tells children how to protect themselves against being sexually abused.

I telephoned the publishers at Little, Brown and Co. and told them that I thought "No More Secrets for Me" was the best book I had seen on the subject, but $12.95 was too much for the millions of people who should buy it.

I urged them to bring it out in softcover for under $5. It is now available in paperback, and I do not overstate my enthusiasm when I say that no home with a child between the ages of 2 and 14 should be without it.

The introduction to the book begins: "It's not fair, but it happens. Someone you know, or someone you like, or someone in your family touches you, and you don't like it. It doesn't feel good the way hugging and holding hands does. It isn't fun like wrestling. It doesn't feel close and comfortable the way it does when someone you love puts an arm around you.

"If someone touches your body in a way you don't like, you may feel mixed up. You may feel as if you were tricked or forced into it. Or maybe the person makes you promise not to tell anyone and to keep the touching a secret. This book is about taking care of yourself, just in case this ever happens to you or a friend."

"No More Secrets for Me" is now available at your local bookseller for $4.95. If it's not in stock, order it directly from Little, Brown and Co., Distribution Center, 200 West St., Waltham, Mass. 02154. Add 50 cents for postage and handling.

To order by phone: The toll-free number is (800) 343-9204. In Massachusetts call collect: (617) 890-0250.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Woman's Health: the safety of the pill

By LUELLA KLEIN, M.D.
President The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Almost 10 million women in the U.S. use the birth control pill each year. It is the most popular form of reversible contraception in use today.

There are two types of oral contraceptives, the combination pill and the mini-pill. The combination pill contains both synthetic estrogen and progesterone (two female hormones) and acts to suppress the normal release of eggs. It tricks the pituitary gland in the brain into not sending a signal to the ovaries to release an egg. Without the egg, no pregnancy can take place. It is very effective. Over the course of a year, a maximum of only two women out of every 100 who take the pill will become pregnant if they use the pill correctly.

The mini-pill contains a small amount of synthetic progesterone only. It does not suppress ovulation every month, but it does create an environment in the uterus and tubes that is not favorable for pregnancy. It is slightly less effective than the combined pill and may cause irregular bleeding which may be quite bothersome.

The pill is quite safe for a healthy woman. You should have a physical exam and give a medical history before the pill is prescribed. The exam should include: blood pressure, pelvic and breast exam, pap test, and sometimes other laboratory tests.

Some women should not choose the pill as their form of contraception. For instance, if you have high blood pressure, blood clots in your legs, have had a stroke, liver disease, or unexplained vaginal bleeding, you should not use oral contraceptives. Women who have diabetes, high cholesterol levels, or excessive weight are more likely to have clotting problems, and are not good candidates for the pill. If you can't stop smoking, the pill becomes much less safe for you.

Most women taking the pill find that their periods become shorter and regular with less menstrual flow, fewer cramps, and less premenstrual symptoms. When you first start on the pill, you may feel as if you are pregnant for the first month or two with some nausea, bloating and breast tenderness. Sometimes you will spot or bleed a little between your periods, particularly if you miss a pill during your cycle. These reactions usually go away within the first three months when your body has a chance to adjust to the hormones. If these mild side effects persist, see your doctor. Often, changing the dose or type of pill can eliminate some of the problems.

For most women, the pill provides very effective birth control and decreases the risk of a number of things, including pregnancy outside the womb (ectopic pregnancy) and breast disease. Ask yourself if the benefits and low risk of the pill are outweighed by the problems and risk of an unintended pregnancy.

QUIZZER!

WOULDN'T YOU

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol
Sept. 11, 1984

A number of important chances are in the offing for you this coming year. One that may appear to be unfortunate at first glance will turn out to be the luckiest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be quite lucky today in involvements you have with family or loved ones, but you might not be equally as fortunate on flyers with outsiders. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as shows you to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally, you're able to size up situations quickly and accurately, but today your initial assessments might be off-target. Take a hard second look.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you could be rather biased about general circumstances, but should you spot an opportunity for personal gain, you'll be ingenious and determined.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have the capability today to get what you go after, but there is also a chance you might not know how to hold onto your gains once they're in hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something you thought would come automatically today may fall by the boards. However, if you regroup and try a different approach, it can still be achieved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Resist temptations today to pass onto others hearsay or gossip that has yet to be verified. Say nothing until you have all the facts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're adept at acquisition today, but equally as adroit at squandering. Don't allow extravagance to offset your gains.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although you may be full of good intentions today, it could be difficult to stay on track. Don't permit others to alter your course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're extremely imaginative today, and this could work both for or against you. Be careful not to lock in on an impractical idea.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your guard up today if you have to do business again with someone who bested you in the past. He or she may still be flying false colors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Hard feelings will result if you try to back out of a favor you promised to do for a co-worker today. Do your best to honor your commitment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pleasurable pursuits should not be given priority over your duties or responsibilities today. If you alter your schedule, it will make more work for you later.

Are Giants that good or Cowboys that bad?

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New York Giants were not making any playoff predictions after defeating the Dallas Cowboys to get off to their best National Football League start in 16 seasons.

But they are more confident than before the season began, and the word "playoff" is at least getting into their vocabulary after a 3-12-1 record last season.

Phil Simms fired three scoring strikes and linebacker Andy Headen returned a fumble 81 yards for another touchdown Sunday as the Giants defeated Dallas 28-7 behind a defense that ran down, roped and hogtied new Cowboys quarterback Gary Hogeboom.

The victory raised New York to 2-0, their best start since 1968 when they went 4-0.

"We have a lot of players who think we can win," said All Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor, who sacked Hogeboom three times, forcing the fumble that set up Headen's long return and another that derailed a Dallas drive.

"We're not saying there's a new game in town and it's called the New York Giants," added Taylor.

What he was saying is that the Giants are a better team than last year.

In the same vein, Dallas, now 1-1, looked nothing like the team that was 12-4 a year ago.

"They got the turnovers and took advantage of them," said Hogeboom, who completed 21 of 43 attempts for 242 yards, including a 2-yard touchdown toss to Doug Cosbie in the third quarter after New York took a 28-0 lead.

"They had a tough rush, no doubt about," added Hogeboom, who was sacked five times. "Things just weren't going right, but that's life."

The Giants broke the game open late in the first quarter, scoring twice in 75 seconds.

Simms, who fired four touchdowns last week against Philadelphia, marched the Giants 88 yards in four plays, the touchdown coming on a 62-yard scoring pass play to Bryon Williams.

"It was a delay pattern," said Williams, who hauled in the pass around midfield. "Phil threw it and Everson Walls bid on it and failed. And I was off to the races."

So was safety Terry Kinard three plays later, when he stepped in front of a Hogeboom pass at the Dallas 45, intercepted it and returned it to the Cowboy 16.

Simms rolled right on the next play and hit rookie Lionel Manuel on a 16-yard touchdown. It was his first NFL reception.

Dallas took the ensuing kickoff and drove from its 10 to the Giants 6, where they faced a third and 3.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry called for a pass.

Giants Coach Bill Parcells responded with a blitz. It worked to perfection when Taylor came through the guard and tackle hole untouched.

"As soon as I came in I saw he was holding the ball like a loaf of bread and I just punched it out," said Taylor.

The ball bounced a couple of times and Headen scooped it up at the Cowboys 19 and scored untouched to give New York at 21-0 lead.

"There was nothing we could do about the blitz," said Hogeboom. "They just had the right plays called against what we were doing on offense."

The Giants special teams set up their final score when they forced a Ron Fellows' fumble on the opening kickoff of the second half and Byron Hunt recovered at the Dallas 18.

Simms found paydirt on the next play, hitting tight end Zeke Mowatt.

"We didn't wait for things to happen today, we created them," said linebacker Harry Carson, who called the game one of the highlights of his nine-year career with the Giants.

"But to say after two games we're going to sail into the playoffs, that's silly. I hope nobody tries to claim that," added Carson.

Landry said he was disappointed with the loss but he did not blame Hogeboom.

"I never considered taking him out," said Landry. "With a young player you have to stick with them."

No doubt about No. 1

NEW YORK (AP) — If there were any questions about the pre-eminence of John McEnroe and Martina Navratilova, they were answered most emphatically at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

"I would say he's No. 1," said Ivan Lendl.

"Yes, I would agree she's the best," said Chris Evert Lloyd.

They spoke from experience — the experience of being only No. 2, and from the experience one gains only from the other side of the net, watching passing shots whiz by, lob sail overhead, drop volleys fall helplessly out of reach.

On Sunday, McEnroe defeated Lendl in the minimum three sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1. On Saturday, Navratilova defeated Lloyd in the maximum three, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

After an extraordinary

Saturday in which both men's semifinals as well as the women's final were taken to the limit of player and audience endurance (three matches amounting to 9 hours, 11 minutes of play), Sunday's 100-minute men's final was almost anticlimactic.

The New York crowd, which has rarely rooted for McEnroe, a neighborhood kid if ever there was one (he grew up about 15 minutes from the National Tennis Center), cheered him for two sets Sunday. Then the fans swung their affections to the gaunt, stoic Czech.

"I think they just wanted to see some more tennis," Lendl said.

Lendl, for his part, had seen enough. "In order to play even or beat him, you have to return his serve and break him, too," he shrugged. "Since I didn't break him ... Not even once. Only once did he even come close, at 15-40 in the second game of the second set. But McEnroe was more than equal to the situation.

Lendl tried a passing shot. McEnroe, anticipating it, was already moving to his right when the ball clipped the net and headed skyward. McEnroe chanced directions as quickly as the ball. He lost sight of the ball for an instant, whirled in place, located it again and rammed a forehand down the line.

It wasn't game, set, match — but it might as well have been.

McEnroe held service, broke Lendl's at deuce five games later with a forehand cross-court passing shot and then a service return that Lendl netted.

Then he put him away at love in the 10th game and demolished him in just 26 minutes for the third set that gave McEnroe his fourth U.S. Open title.

Lendl was a loser as a U.S. Open finalist for the third year in a row and a loser to McEnroe in nine of their past 11 meetings.

"I feel tired," said McEnroe, who looked quite fresh despite what he and Jimmy Connors had been through in their semifinal match the night before.

Houston digs 'bigger grave'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Indianapolis Colts and Houston Oilers entered Sunday's National Football League game digging furiously to get out of a losing rut but only the Colts made progress.

"Every win is important to teams like us and Houston," Colts Coach Frank Kush said. "You either dig a bigger grave or you dig your way out."

Colts quarterback Mike Pagel fired three touchdown passes and ran for another score to dig the Colts out with a 35-21 victory and the Oilers, well, they're still digging their wheels a bit deeper. "The key is progress," Kush said. "It's important to be poised and this win is important because we were doing some things well and when you do that, winning will take care of itself."

The Colts, who built their game plan around a strong running game led by Curtis Dickey, found they also could score points through the airways with Pagel targeting Ray Butler for two of his touchdown passes and going to Tracy Porter for a third strike.

Pagel completed 15 of 20 passes for 215 yards which did not compare to Houston's Warren Moon, who hit 23 of 43 for 365 yards. But Pagel will take his three TD shots to zero for the more publicized Moon.

"In the NFL you are going to get beat playing man to man unless you have great corners," Butler said. "Their corners (Steve Brown and Willie Tullis) haven't been in the league that long and we took advantage of it."

"They came up and tried to bump and run. All you have to do is give them a move to freeze them and then run past them."

The Oilers built a 14-7 lead early in the second quarter on touchdown runs of two and 15 yards by Earl Campbell. The Colts' first score was Pagel's one-yard keeper following a 36-yard pass interference call against Brown.

The Colts then zoomed to a 28-14 lead on Dickey's 15-yard run and touchdown passes of 31 and 14 yards from Pagel to Butler.

The Oilers narrowed the gap to 28-21 on Campbell's third touchdown of the day, a one-yard dive in the fourth quarter, before Pagel's third strike, a 33-yarder to Tracy Porter with 5:58 left in the game.

"Pagel kept us off balance all day with his play calling and his execution," Oiler Coach Hugh Campbell said. "He was probably the biggest thorn in our side."

Kush was pleased with the Colts' passing improvement.

Scott wins Pamcel title

Mackie Scott shot rounds of 79 and 80 to win the Pamcel Ladies golf championship by nine strokes in the tournament held Saturday and Sunday at the Celanese court.

Taking second in the championship flight was Linnie Schneider, who had rounds of 80 and 88. Shirley Stafford won low net with 139.

Scott also won the championship flight's long driving contest.

Elaine Riddle holed the longest putt on No. 9 and Vera Williams beat the field in the closest-to-hole contest on No. 8.

Joyce Epperson won the first flight with 190 and JoAnn Crafton was second with 194. Retha Oler had low net, 140, and Epperson won the long driving contest.

In the second flight, Lois Watkins finished first with 207 and Kathy Crawford was second at 222. Andrea Walling had low net, 154. Crawford won that flight's long driving contest.

Pampa volleyball team tournament runnerup

The Pampa High School volleyball team posted three victories and lost only once in an impressive showing that netted a finals berth in the Seminole tournament over the weekend.

Pampa opened the tournament Friday with a 15-11, 15-12 victory over Midland. Then Saturday morning the locals met arch-rival Pecos, which had defeated Pampa twice in bi-district, and the locals came away with a 15-13, 4-15, 15-9 victory to gain the finals.

Lubbock Coronado scored a 15-10, 15-4, 15-9 victory over Pampa for the title.

Earlier in the week, Pampa won a dual match against Hereford, 15-12, 15-6. The Jayvees also beat Hereford, 15-2, 15-6.

"We were really pleased with the girls' performance all week," said Coach Phil Hall. "The victory over Pecos was a real mental gain for us and although we lost in the championship game, we never quit."

Teresa Perkins was cited for a solid tournament, with Monica Kelley and Leslie Cash starring on defense and Michelle Eakin doing an outstanding job in serving. Irene Perez performed steadily throughout the week.

The varsity will be off for a week, but the Jayvees will host a tournament here Saturday.

A stumbling start for SWC teams

By DENNEH. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

Six Southwest Conference football teams get their seasons underway this weekend and the first order of business is to do something about the league's stumbling start on the intersectional front.

With Baylor and Rice losing Saturday and Texas A&M barely beating Texas-El Paso the week before, the SWC has a shaky 333 ledger below .500 record in a decade.

The SWC was 14-15-1 against non-conference teams last year, its first below .500 record in a decade.

Texas and Southern Methodist, the co-favorites to win the SWC title, swing into action.

Texas host Auburn Saturday night as the War Eagles hope to extract some revenge for last season's 20-7 loss to the Longhorns.

SMU travels to Louisville to play a Cardinal team which has already lost twice.

In other openers, Texas Christian is at Utah State, a 42-7 loser to Southern California; Arkansas with a new coach Kenny Hatfield hosts traditional rival Mississippi; Houston entertains Miami of Ohio and Texas Tech is at home against Texas-Arlington.

Brigham Young University bounced Baylor 47-13 Saturday while new Rice Coach Watson Brown fell to Minnesota and Lou Holtz 31-24.

Junior quarterback Robbie

Bosco delivered six touchdown passes and BYU atoned for a loss to Baylor the year before in Waco.

He hit 26 of 41 passes for 311 yards and Teaff said later, "I could have sworn it was 900. What can you do? We'd have a great defensive play and he'd wipe it out with one throw."

"It seemed our receivers were always able to get open."

Rice led Minnesota 21-14 in the second half but back-to-back lost fumbles cost the Owls the game.

"I've been coaching against Rice for eight years, and I feel sure that was the best Rice team I've seen," said Holtz, who lost to them once when he was at Arkansas. "They were very, very well coached. They really have a chance to be a very good football team later in the season."

Brown said "I'm very disappointed that we lost but to tell you the truth it turned out better than I thought it would with a quarterback (Kerry Overton) who had never played."

Fertilize for wheat PROFIT!

You may be looking for ways to cut costs. Who isn't? But one thing all agronomists tell us is: "Don't cut back in areas that cause yields to decrease!"

They are talking about fertilizer. They encourage the wheat farmer to select varieties and apply fertilizer for optimum yields — that's your most profitable yield.

Yes, your cost per acre will increase as you move up toward your optimum yield. But your cost per bushel will be reduced.

You not only get more bushels per acre, you get more profit from every bushel you raise!

Base your fertilizer applications on soil test results and your yield goals. Let our Fertilizer Specialist help you.

We're ready when you are, with both anhydrous ammonia and dry blends.

Americans glad Nixon pardoned, but still unfavorable toward him

NEW YORK (AP) — A decade after his resignation and pardon, a majority of Americans are against former President Nixon returning to an official role in government, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

Four of five agreed that it was a good thing Nixon resigned rather than fight impeachment in the wake of the Watergate scandal, and a plurality agreed with former President Ford's decision to pardon Nixon.

The 1,451 respondents in the nationwide telephone survey were asked, "Looking back, do you think it was a good thing that President Nixon resigned, or should he have fought impeachment by Congress?" and 81 percent said they thought it was a good thing he resigned rather than fight impeachment.

At the same time, by 48 percent to 39 percent, respondents agreed with the decision by Ford, Nixon's successor, to pardon him. Thirteen percent said they were not sure.

A 57 percent majority said they were against a more active Nixon role in government today — for instance, as a roving ambassador or as a formal adviser to the president. Thirty-five percent said they would like to see Nixon back in some official role, while 8 percent were not sure.

And 44 percent said they have a generally unfavorable opinion of Nixon today, while 38 percent said they have a generally favorable impression of him and 18 percent were not sure.

Nixon was an undicted co-conspirator in the scandal growing out of the 1972 attempted bugging of the Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate office complex in Washington. Secret tapes subsequently revealed that the Republican president had knowledge of a coverup by his aides, several of whom went to prison for obstruction of justice.

A congressional committee had already taken the first steps toward removing Nixon from office when he resigned on Aug. 9, 1974, citing the damage an impeachment trial could do the country.

A month later — 10 years and one day ago — Ford took the unusual step of issuing a presidential pardon even though no formal criminal charges were pending against Nixon.

Ford said one of the main reasons for the pardon was to preclude any charges against Nixon — something Ford said could slow the nation's "healing" process following the scandal. The pardon, however, was widely criticized and became one of the factors blamed for Ford's loss to Jimmy Carter in 1976.

Nixon retired to his San Clemente, Calif., estate, later moved to Manhattan and now lives in a fashionable New Jersey suburb of New York.

Confined to the role of a quiet elder statesman, his advice generally has not been publicly sought by subsequent administrations.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,451 adults across the country Aug. 1-8. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,400 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points. Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

WAVES TO CROWD—Pope John Paul II waves as he arrives at the altar platform in Quebec City, Canada, Sunday to say mass before hundreds of thousands of people.

Pope: faith must illuminate culture

QUEBEC (AP) — Pope John Paul II, beginning his 12-day pilgrimage to Canada with a strong defense of traditional values, told Roman Catholics they must make faith the bedrock of modern culture.

"Do not accept a divorce between faith and culture," the pope told 250,000 worshippers — including Prime Minister John Turner — at an open-air Mass Sunday in the capital of Quebec province.

In remarks to a mainly French-speaking audience, he also paid tribute to Canada's ethnic diversity, then retired to prepare for his first meeting today with Indian and Eskimo groups at a shrine on the banks of the St. Lawrence River.

Several thousand native Canadians, representing Eskimos and nine Indian tribes, were scheduled to meet the pope at the sanctuary of St. Anne de Beaupre, dedicated to the patroness of Canada. It has been a pilgrimage site for centuries for Indians converted to Catholicism by French missionaries.

The session is one of three planned meetings with native groups during the pontiff's tour — the first visit by a pope to Canada.

Church officials said the pope specifically asked to meet with native groups, who are struggling to retain their cultural identity and — in some cases — demanding political self-determination.

Information released by the Conference of Canadian Bishops for the papal trip said Canada's native people have the highest rate of infant mortality in the country as well as the highest rates of suicide and unemployment.

Two years ago, John Paul met at the Vatican with four Canadian Indians who asked his help to protect their land rights.

As he opened his Canadian trip Sunday, the pontiff drew enthusiastic crowds to his processions around this historic walled city, many shouting, "Vive le pape!" — Long live the pope.

"I thank God that I had the chance to see him before I die," said Jean-Guy Grancher of Val Belair, Quebec. "But I'd say he's come 25 years too late. Nobody goes to church anymore."

Church officials say about 30 percent of Quebec's Roman Catholics attend church regularly.

At the outdoor Mass, John Paul cited contributions of various ethnic groups to the building of Canadian culture.

French Canada "has taken to itself a distinctive contribution of Amerindians and benefited from the English presence on this continent. It has been enriched by the successive waves of immigrants from all over," he said.

While the pope conducted Mass on a Laval University athletic field, late-afternoon sunshine turned to dusk, punctuated with lighted candles in the throng.

Unexpected questions bug candidates and their staffs

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — You're one of the presidential candidate's media managers and you've worked for a week to position your man out front on the tapioca issue.

You've arranged for him to visit a tapioca plant, to ride in a parade with the Tapioca Queen and to deliver a major address dealing with the threat of foreign tapioca imports. It's been scheduled for 11 a.m., in plenty of time for the evening network news.

You know — everyone knows — that the candidate's audience, the occasion and the setting are mere backdrops for the image that will be projected in the news media.

All's set. And then, as the candidate gets off the airplane, he is met by a swarm of news people, carrying cameras, microphones and tape recorders, and asking a bunch of questions that have nothing at all to do with the theme of the day, tapioca.

And when the candidate answers those questions, for which he has not been primed, it is those unpolished, spontaneous answers that make the night's newscasts and the next editions of the newspapers.

Small wonder, then, that candidates' staffs worry about unexpected questions from the press and sometimes try to do something about it.

Walter F. Mondale tried to impose a rule in August that anything that happened on his chartered plane, on which the press pays to ride, is off-the-record and non-reportable, as though it didn't happen. Geraldine Ferraro sought to impose a similar rule.

The press protested, Mondale's people relaxed the stricture and now what happens on the Mondale plane is on the record unless the candidate specifies, before responding to questions, that what he is about to say is off-the-record.

Rules governing coverage of Ms. Ferraro aboard her campaign plane are in a state of flux and still being negotiated. She doesn't like informal question-and-answer sessions with the press to respond to the latest campaign development or opposition charge, but she did undergo the longest, toughest grilling within anyone's memory when she had an almost two-hour news conference on her family's finances.

The White House changed its ground rules for presidential coverage on Sept. 2, but four days later made some modifications. At issue was the number of people in the press pool that accompanies President Reagan as he walks along the ropes at airports and other campaign stops greeting voters and sometimes making small talk with them.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the pool would be cut from 11 news people to five — a television correspondent, a TV cameraman, a soundman and two photographers — but no pencil-and-paper reporters. Other reporters could watch, but were held so far back they could not hear what Reagan was saying.
