Youth, 14, Held in Slaying of Boy, 11

Missing Boy's Body Found in Old Warehouse

NEWARK, N. J.—A 14-year-old parochial school student was held today for the slaying of an 11-year-old companion whom the FBI said he admitted garrotting with a leather belt in an abandoned warehouse because he wanted to prove himself "no sissy".

The FBI said the boy, Fred Walter Smigelski, signed a statement telling how he had planned to kill someone to assert his superiority in the face of his mother's continual demands that he wash dishes, dust furniture and do assorted household chores.

Smigelski was held without charge at the parental home in Bayonne. The body of the younger boy, John Preston, Jr., of Kearny, was found yesterday in the old warehouse, in nearby Harrison, a leather belt tightened about his neck and several gashes on his chest and wrist. The statement quoted Smigelski as saying he selected the Preston boy as his victim because he was certain he was weaker than himself and could be subdued easily.

The FBI said the boy admitted the slaying after he had been brought to headquarters here by his father, Walter Smigelski, a lathe operator, whose suspicions had been aroused by a copy of a kidnap ransom note found by Mrs. Smigelski yesterday morning in the pocket in one of the boy's trousers.

A similar note, crudely scrawled and asking $1,000 ransom, had been received by the victim's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Preston, Sr., in the city.

Crawford Trial Is Reset Here For November 17

The trial of Jesse Lee Crawford, charged with the murder of his ex-wife, Mrs. Bertha Bostick, in the bedroom of her home here on July 4 was reset this morning for Monday, Nov. 17, after 31st District Court Judge Lewis M. Goodrich formally granted a motion for continuance in the case.

The motion drawn by Chief Defense Counsel Aaron Sturgeon strongly indicated the defense would plead "an accident" in Mrs. Bostick's death and "self defense" in the death of Leonard C. Bostick.

The motion for continuance was granted on the grounds of illness of two material witnesses. The one, an expectant mother, and the other, Jimmie Crawford, brother of Jesse Crawford recuperating from injuries received in a recent automobile accident.

Sturgeon said that all subpoenaed witnesses will not be subpoenaed, but will have to be in court on the date of the trial or be held in contempt of court and be subject to fine. This statement was backed by Judge Goodrich, who added that subpoenas issued state they are to appear in court from day to day or term to term as the trial progresses.

The special venire of 120 men drawn and ordered to appear today were discharged by the court Saturday afternoon. A new special venire of 120 men will have to be drawn and served because the reset date falls during the September term of court.

No date has been set for Crawford's trial in the killing of Leonard Bostick.

U. S. Issues Challenge to Russia

Blow Made Relative to Use of Veto

NEW YORK—(AP)—The United States indirectly challenged Russia today to cooperate with the United Nations or face a world judgment that none can veto.

The challenge was couched in meaningful diplomatic language and came as an array of world leaders converged on New York for the opening tomorrow of a crucial session of the United Nations Assembly.

Obviously referring to Russia's use of the veto in the Security Council, Secretary of State George C. Marshall said in an address yesterday that members of the United Nations "have by no means exhausted the potentialities of the Charter in finding ways and means of overcoming obstruction and of meeting their common problems."

"We find it difficult to believe," he said, "that members of the organization would deliberately seek to destroy its structure by persistence in acts of aggression or by obstruction of a nature to paralyze the principal organs of the organization."

At Tarrytown, N. Y., John Foster Dulles, a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations Assembly, said that every government "now realizes 'if it goes against a strong prevailing moral judgment it may suffer grievous penalties.'"

"It was never expected that the Security Council could act decisively when great powers were on opposite sides," Dulles said. "It was expected that, even under these conditions, the U. N. could work for peace by requiring every nation, however powerful, to submit to a public judgment which none could veto—if it would be the conscience of the world."

In Baltimore, U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie said it was "not possible to expect that the Security Council could act decisively when great powers were on opposite sides."

MOTHER WINS SON'S CUSTODY—Mrs. Dorothy Brown weeps while her son, Paul Cagle, 4, looks on, unconcerned that he was the center of a bitter custody battle in a Los Angeles courtroom. The court gave Mrs. Brown custody of her son instead of to the boy's maternal grandparents with whom he had been living since Mrs. Brown's remarriage a year ago.

Joe Molnar Has His Own Report Card on Congress

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Ever since Congress went home, politicians have been working like mad, marking up their own report cards.

Take Rep. Hallett. This modest Republican from Indiana has carefully studied the efforts of the Republican Congress. His verdict: A straight "A" in everything. Hallett is GOP House Leader.

Take Senator Barkley. This modest Democrat from Kentucky has carefully studied the efforts of the Republican Congress. His verdict: Unsatisfactory, probably have to be set back a grade. Barkley is Minority Leader of the Senate.

You can't miss Joe. He's been a regular—and conspicuous—congressional visitor since 1938. Usually he's on the front row at important committee hearings, weighing, accepting, and discarding the evidence.

Joe looks like an ancient prophet, with his bushy beard, his long gray hair and his cotton suit which appears to be the direct descendant of a feed sack.

Okay, Joe. What's the lowdown on Congress? "No different from the others," said Joe.

And when he gave his reason, it turned out that Joe isn't any more prejudiced than Hallett or Barkley.

"I couldn't get anyone to introduce my bill," said Joe sadly. Born in Hungary in 1882, Joe came to this country in 1907. He worked in the Middle West as a carpenter, farm hand, laborer.

And then, in 1938, he had his big idea. Wouldn't it be nice, Joe thought, if everybody had a job? He

Balkan Issue Battle Looms For Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—A pre-Assembly battle on the Greek question loomed today in the United Nations Security Council where the United States moved to switch the whole Balkan issue to the 55-nation body.

Russia opposes transferring the case and Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko was expected to use the session to level a Soviet blast at the American maneuver and perhaps even attempt to veto the step.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall's declaration in New York yesterday that the "direct threat to Russia's Balkan satellites to Greek independence must be removed left no doubt that the Balkan case was given top priority in the American objectives for the Assembly opening tomorrow at Flushing Meadow Park, New York.

The United States asked for the Assembly vote council meeting under Article 12 of the U.N. Charter, which says:

"While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the U. N. Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Council so requests."

U. S. Delegate Hershel V. Johnson was expected to plump for a direct Council request to the Assembly for action. Success there probably would mean saving the Council's Balkan investigating Commission which still is checking border disturbances.

An alternative would be to ask the Council to drop the case outright and to insist that the path for the United States to seek Assembly recommendations. However, dropping of the case from the Council calendar probably would spell the end of the Balkan Commission, which Russia has been trying to liquidate.

Condition of Veteran Is Reported Serious

Leo (Gotton) Ferguson, who is a patient in the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo is reportedly ill after developing pneumonia.

His brother, W. L. Ferguson, and Mrs. Ferguson were at his bedside yesterday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Ferguson of Lefors, who are with him.

The veteran has been a hospital patient, except for short intervals, for the past four years. He received an injury while in military training which left him paralyzed.

Help of Housewives And Farmers Needed

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Under Secretary of Agriculture Norris E. Dodd said today voluntary rationing of food in this country appears to be the only way to avert famine abroad and prevent the collapse of friendly European governments.

He said such rationing should perhaps take these two forms:

(1) A reduction by housewives in the purchase of livestock products such as meats, milk, butter, eggs and poultry.

(2) A reduction by farmers in feeding of grain to livestock, particularly the use of less wheat for feed.

Dodd, who is acting as secretary in the absence of Secretary Anderson from Washington, suggested voluntary rationing at a news conference. He said that the government does not have the power to impose formal rationing or restrictions on use of foods and grains.

Voluntary rationing, as a means of increasing food supplies for Europe, also has been suggested by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and Chester Davis, former war food administrator and chairman of the President's Famine Emergency Council.

Taft, at Santa Cruz, Calif., Saturday, said that President Truman had advocated a similar course. He cited Mr. Truman as saying in a mid-year economic report to Congress "if real shortages should develop, the need of sharing such relative scarcity on an equitable basis as possible both among ourselves and between domestic and foreign users of food resources should be emphasized."

Just back from the annual meeting of the United Nations food and agriculture organization at Geneva, Dodd said the food situation in Europe is much worse than it was this time last year. The situation is complicated, he said, by the fact that crops in many exporting countries are down from last year.

"It is not pleasant to think what may happen to a lot of people this winter if we don't get food to them," he said.

Dodd said that "the present governments in Western Europe would not last long if we withheld supplies from them."

President Truman is due home from Rio this week to face the decision whether a special session of Congress should be called to supply emergency aid to Europe.

Secretary of State Marshall, now in New York for the United Nations assembly meeting, is expected to return as soon as possible after Mr. Truman arrives on Saturday to present the State Department's case in favor of a special session call.

Opponents of the State Department's view have been less outspoken than Marshall and Undersecretary Lovett but word from administration officials indicates that two arguments may be advanced.

That the European nations probably can pull through on their own until the Marshall Plan long-range recovery program can be put into effect next year.

That it would be a potentially dangerous move for the President to make for domestic political reasons.

There is considerable speculation within the administration over the position of Secretary of Commerce Harriman, chairman of the President's special committee studying United States resources for meeting European needs. Harriman told Lovett he had informed the committee of the situation in Europe, but the cabinet officer carefully avoided expressing his own opinion on the urgency of Europe's needs.

Actually, it is understood that some of Harriman's advisers contend that a special session help is necessary and that the British particularly

Varied Plans For Adjusting Costs Proposed

(By The Associated Press) The rocketing cost of foods called today in to "varied what-to-do-about-it" proposals offering Americans a choice of tightening their belts or curtailing exports, or both.

Asserting that the size of American exports is much too great, Senator Robert Taft (R-Ohio) suggested, however, that high food prices could be remedied if people would "eat less extravagantly." He added that exports can't go on at the "rate of $15 billion dollars a year without having an effect on prices."

Rep. Sabath (D-Ill.) countered that only the poor people, who are unable to pay high food prices, must cut their eating—not Senator Taft and his wealthy friends. Instead, Sabath proposed government anti-trust investigations be broadened to include five groups which he charged are "responsible for the ever-increasing high cost of living."

In a letter to Attorney General Clark, the 81-year-old dean of the House listed the five as meat packing, dairy, produce exchanges, "ferrous trust," and "the few men who manipulate the board of trade."

He added that it also would be "well to give some attention to the textile and wearing apparel manufacturing industries."

As Sabath made public his letter in Washington, a joint congressional subcommittee was preparing to open an investigation of food prices in the first of a series of public hearings at Providence, R. I.

An Associated Press survey of the retail price of eight staple foods in 13 key cities in eight sections of the nation showed the following average changes and prices from those for the same foods in the same cities a month earlier:

Bacon, up four cents a pound to 84 cents; pork chops up three cents to 80 cents; round steak, up three cents to 86 cents; bread, unchanged; butter up 12 cents a pound to 90 cents; eggs up 14 cents a dozen to 80 cents; milk up one cent a quart to 20 cents; tomatoes, No. 2 can, two cents to 16 cents.

Hurricane Alert Is Being Issued Along Seaboard

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—A preliminary hurricane alert was sounded as a measure of precaution today for residents along a 750-mile stretch of the Eastern seaboard between Vero Beach, Fla., and Cape Hatteras, N. C., as a great storm with winds up to 140 miles an hour raged through the Atlantic.

Actual storm warnings have not been displayed. The alerted area contains some of the South's most populous and historic cities—Daytona Beach, Jacksonville, Brunswick, Savannah, Charleston and Wilmington. The storm center at noon was 400 miles east-southeast of Vero Beach, moving between west-northwest and northwest.

Grady Norton, chief forecaster in the Weather Bureau's storm warning service, said the alert is not intended to spread alarm, but only to advise persons in the area to plan for the possibility of a hurricane and to keep informed of advisories. He confidently predicted a northward recurve which would end the danger.

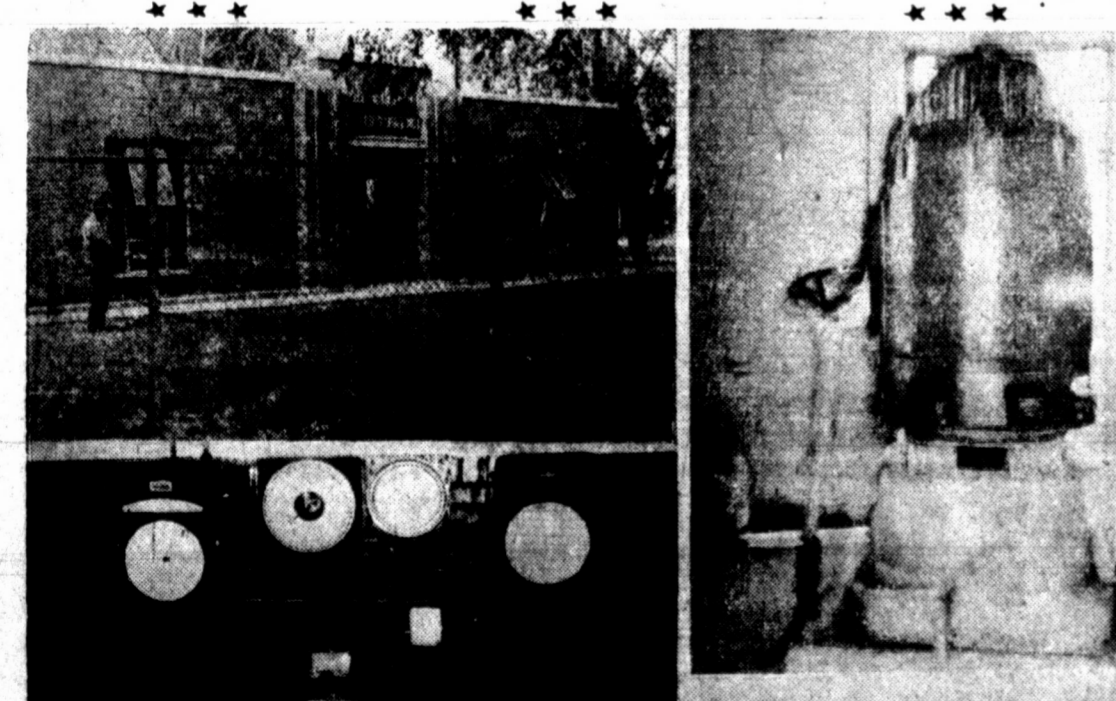

Storm warnings were flying in the northeastern Bahamas Islands, and an Army hurricane hunter searched for the storm in the east of the Windward Islands where three ships reported a new low pressure area—possibly another storm—was developing.

The present major hurricane developed in the same area five days ago.

The storm's center was placed in an 11:30 a. m. advisory at latitude 26 north; longitude 74.2 west. This position is 200 miles northeast of Nassau, or 325 miles slightly north of the east of Miami.

City Water Works Is Very Necessary Part of Pampans' Everyday Living

WATER SYSTEM—Shown above is a segment of the city water supply from the well to booster station. Upper left, main booster station containing booster pumps and meter boards. Lower left, intricate meters pointing water flow, amount in storage and pressure on lines. Right, the recently pulled and repaired pump on the south side, now drawing 750 gallons of water per minute.

A workman, tired and dirty, came home yesterday and went into the bathroom to wash his face and hands. He turned the faucet handle and out tumbled a steady flow of water.

This is a scene repeated day after day in every home in Pampa. But, behind that simple operation of twisting a spigot's handle lies an intricate system of water distribution from the wells, through pipes, into storage tanks, over more piping, booster pumping, more pipes, elevated tanks, still more pipes, and finally gushing out into the family tub, wash basin or shower.

Few, if any, ever stop to consider just what makes the water system of Pampa tick. It is taken for granted that the fluid of life is sucked out of a hole in the ground through water mains, not to mention passing through the water meter, into the house for everyday usage.

Actually, the city's water department is pulling 2,840 gallons of water per minute from six wells that average 475 foot depths. In one day of normal operation, Panhandle soil is giving citizens here 4,089,600 gallons of water.

The city now is operating six wells, four on the north side of town and two on the south side. The largest producing well, shown in the picture, was down to a production capacity of 250 gallons per minute and is being pulled for cleaning and general repair. Today it is pushing 750 gallons of water a minute into ground storage tanks. However, the well is capable of doing better than 750. It was checked as pulling over 850 gallons per minute.

The second highest producing well is also located on the south side. It is throwing 540 gallons per minute into the city's lines. Two wells on the north side are pumping 420 gallons per minute and the new well has gone up to 450 gallons per minute. The smallest is only giving out 280 gallons.

The last well put in by the city has not been fully accepted by the commission, and is being used by the city free of charge under a special arrangement between its driller, the McDonald Well Drilling Company, and the city fathers. Until its final acceptance the city technically owns only five wells.

As your water comes out of the bowels of the earth it is pushed into storage tanks that are built at ground level. These five tanks are situated near the wells. The largest, standing inside the grounds of the city barn, holds 3,360,000 gallons of water. Here the water is stored until it is needed by the elevated tanks. Once inside the huge cylindrical containers, the water is again pumped through a pipe into a booster station and from there into one of the three elevated water towers. In these towers it is pushed into a labyrinth of pipes into the homes and commercial establishments. It flows from the elevated towers into water mains by sheer force of gravity.

This sounds like a baby ocean of water divided up into little independent seas. It isn't.

Statistics over a period of years show that the water is flowing constantly through the pipes into the ground tanks, through the booster station, high up to the elevated towers, where it finally falls off into the mains. The same statistics show that the month of August shows the largest demand for water with the average daily consumption of 2,147,000 gallons for this year. Experts estimated that if water restrictions had not been placed on lawn sprinkling this year the average would have risen to 3,500,000 gallons. This plus the fact that a pump had to be pulled and another not producing what was expected, left little margin for fire protection in that short period of time.

Other statistics reveal that the least water is sent through the meters in December and January when the average daily usage is 886,000 gallons.

However, the largest amount of water used in any one day this year was metered at 2,910,000 gallons. A total of 55 miles of 6 to 12 inch lines are carrying your daily aqua pura into your home, cafe, garage, and shop. Additional pipe is to be laid this and next year.

Unlike many cities in the nation, Pampa's water comes to it uncontaminated and without the use of chemicals for purification. Although the water is hard and a little salty it is pure and unadulterated, according to all chemical analyses made on it to date.

At present the city is laying aside, in next year's budget, $6,000 in research funds to be used for further exploitation of water for an ever-growing community. This money will be used for test drilling and other work necessary in locating new sources of supply of the H-2-O. As the city grows it will need more water and many more miles of pipe, not only for drinking, washing and sprinkling, but for fire.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NKA Staff Correspondent (Johnson on KFDN Monday thru Friday, 2 P. M.)

HOLLYWOOD—Kenneth Hopkins, who once made a hat for Elsie the Cow and who recently beat other hat designers to the punch with a flying saucer hat, is worried about Jane Russell.

Jane is a star without a hat to her name. And right out loud in public, without regard for the sensitive feelings of milliners, Jane has let it be known that she doesn't care about hats.

It's irreverence like that which gives Kenneth Hopkins sleepless nights. A woman's focal point should be her hat, Hopkins argues, and Jane's ideas are too painful for Hopkins to talk about.

Kenneth Hopkins is a lean, good-looking, serious six-footer who sees to it that glamor girls like Dorothy Lamour, Ginger Rogers, Joan Crawford and Esther Williams look like a million bucks above their eyebrows.

CHICK FOR DUNK N Right now he's working on a rubberized hat for Esther that she can wear in a swimming pool and still look as if she were on her way to an cocktail date with a couple of sea bass.

For years now Hopkins has been designing hats for Myrna Loy, but so far he has never met her. Myrna dispatches her maid to the salon and Hopkins selects a hat from his collection after hearing a description of what Myrna is wearing that evening.

Hopkins told me that he is a flat wolf. He whistles when a beautiful hat goes sailing by. If it happens to be one that he has made he winks and says, "hubba, hubba." Once an actress reported him to a policeman.

"Are you following this woman?" the policeman bellowed. "Indeed not," said Hopkins, "I was only following her hat."

Most stars, whose heads Hopkins adorns, know that he disapproves when they bring other women with them. It's his belief that if a hat flatters one woman, another woman will remark that the hat looks terrible on her. The only time a woman will call a hat divine is when it makes her best friend look sawed-off and sallow.

LAMOUR THE MERRIER Dorothy Lamour once brought Edith Head, the dress designer, along to read a verdict on a dozen hats she had chosen the day before. Edith shook her head negatively each time Dorothy tried on a hat. Almost on the verge of tears, Dorothy suggested that Edith remove her dark glasses.

Male escorts, on the other hand, are welcome, because Hopkins works from the male viewpoint. It was his wretchedness over his wife's hats that urged him to designing hats in the first place.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, he said, not long ago bought 26 hats for Barbara in one afternoon. Thirteen were Barbara's selections and the other half were Taylor's. Hopkins didn't turn an eyelash when Barbara wrote a check for her 13 and Taylor wrote a separate check for his choices. The hats that happen—all the time—between husbands and wives in Hollywood.

When Diana Lynn and Gail Russell came in for hats that would make them look older and sophisticated, Hopkins scared the wits out of them by saying: "We are not allowed to serve minors."

Hurricane (Continued From Page 1) Abaco group, were expected to feel gales and high seas as the storm bypassed the main Bahama Group. Caystary Island "Kingdom" in the Berry group probably will be swept by squalls and winds near gale force.

Winds of 125 to 140 miles per hour whirled near the center of the storm with hurricane force winds reaching out over an area more than 70 miles from the core. Gale winds extended outward 200 miles to the north and east.

"No land area is threatened at present," Norson said, "and no warnings have been ordered displayed."

Joe Molnar (Continued From Page 1) had the answer, too-cooperatives, set up by the government under the Molnar System.

So he started work on a bill that now fills three typewritten pages. "Naturally this was too good a thing to keep to himself. He hurried to Washington to share his discovery with Congress.

"There was a time," he said, "when I thought Senator Taft was interested. He was real nice when I talked to him. Now, I don't know. He always seems busy when I come around."

Last session 7,289 measures of one kind or another were introduced into Congress. Not one of these was Joe's. Obviously, by his exacting standards, the 80th Congress has been a failure.

Special Emphasis Being Placed on Math Department

WHITE DEER, (Special)—Miss Anita Couch has accepted the position of mathematics teacher in White Deer High School, and there by filled the one remaining vacancy in the White Deer-Skellytown schools.

Miss Couch arrived here Friday evening from Norman, Oklahoma, and began her classes on Monday. A graduate of the University of Oklahoma, she holds a B. S. degree with major in mathematics and a master's degree in education with major in educational guidance. Her thesis dealt with the subject of evaluation of present practices in keeping and using cumulative records.

She has had three years teaching experience in the high schools of Oklahoma, and for the past four years has been employed as sales engineer for the General Electric Corporation in Schenectady, N. Y. She was a member of Beta Sigma Phi, cultural and social sorority, and Phi Beta Sigma, national educational honorary fraternity.

Emphasis will be placed upon the mathematics department in the high school this year, according to Supt. Emmitt D. Smith. A testing program begun last year will be followed up, and the physical equipment has been improved. Along with the rest of the building, the mathematics room has been redecorated to secure maximum lighting, and as an experiment, plus-light boards have been installed, replacing the old blackboards. This yellow composition board not only lightens the appearance of the room, but since chalk is not used, all chalk dust is eliminated, thus increasing both efficiency and cleanliness.

Princeton H. S. Wins 1st Game Since 1945 Reason—A Juke Box

PRINCETON, Ill.—(AP)—Princeton High School's football team got a new coach this season and a new piece of locker room equipment—a juke box.

Al Lewis, who was mentor at Springfield Cathedral before taking over at Princeton, believes the music kept the players' minds off the game while they are getting into their football uniforms.

Does it work? Well, Princeton won its first game since Nov. 1945, by trouncing Walnut, 19-0, Friday.

Lloyd Mangrum Wins Albuquerque Open ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—(AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, annexed the Albuquerque Open Golf Championship with ease yesterday, thanks to Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., who blew a six-stroke lead.

Mangrum won $2,000 with a 72-hole total of 269 in the 6,183-yard University of New Mexico course. Demaret, three strokes behind, took $1,400.

Demaret folded spectacularly with a tee shot into the rough on the 62nd hole. He stroked a four-over-par 76 for the final round after turning in course records of 66, 65 and 64 three days in a row. Mangrum's consistent par-reeking brought the Tam O'Shanter pro cards of 69, 66, 66 and 67.

'Book Fair' Aids Library Selection

WHITE DEER, (Special)—To aid in carrying out the policy adopted this year of purchasing no books unless they have been specifically requested by the teachers, preferably after personal examination of the books, various book companies were asked by Emmitt D. Smith, superintendent of the White Deer-Skellytown schools for a book display of "Book Fair" at the beginning of school.

Part of the opening day of the session was set aside for examination of the books provided and for the making of requests to the librarians for the selections desired. The display included books for all grades from the first through high school, as well as professional works of recent date, and a large number were selected for the three schools.

According to Supt. Smith, the plan proved very satisfactory to the administrators, teachers, and librarians, as well as the salesmen, and will be expanded next year to include even more companies.

Ambassador Uses Music, Static to Remove Squatters WARSAW—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Stanton Griffis is trying to evict squatters with music.

He has four powerful radios crying night and day, blaring into the ears of 10 women, one man, one cat and one dog who have occupied an American Embassy residence for two years.

Perhaps the noise will force them out. Radios have been placed in rooms next to the squatters' quarters. The scene is a four-story building in the heart of Warsaw, originally designated for the use of the American Ambassador.

The American Consulate succeeded in getting control of the first and second floors. The squatters held the third and fourth floors. The embassy needs the additional space.

Ambassador Griffis said he had made a fair money offer to the squatters to leave and promised to assist them in finding other quarters, but to no avail.

"Now the squatters have been getting all the news of the world and music and lots of static the last 10 days, in addition to enjoying free water, light and heat at the expense of the embassy," the Ambassador said.

Veto (Continued From Page 1) not the big powers but the former colonial peoples who perhaps are the greatest potential threats to world peace.

"Astoundingly as it may sound, the most important big powers are distinctly closer to each other than they were in the twenties," he said. "Some of the problems have been taken in hand by the former colonial peoples through nationalistic movements for liberation. Here, perhaps, lie the greatest possibilities for conflict today."

Slaying (Continued From Page 1) mail Saturday morning, some 12 hours after the boy was reported missing.

New Jersey FBI Chief S. K. McKee said the boy first insisted he met a masked man who asked for help in the kidnaping of the Preston boy. The youth broke down under questioning, however, and told the story of his long resentment over household chores and his plan to prove that he was no sissy.

Police Inspector James Hanna of Kearnay said the statement told of a long battle between the two boys in the warehouse, the two grappling and punching and threatening each other with pieces of broken glass before Smigelski subdued his younger antagonist.

Smigelski, an eighth grade student at Our Lady of Chenostowah Parochial school in Harrison, was quoted in the statement as saying he decided last week to kill someone in order to refute the "sissy" feeling which he attributed to the dishwashing and dusting chores.

Hanna said that Smigelski told how he lured the Preston boy from Kearnay to the warehouse after school Friday on the pretense of finding a secret hideout and then attacked the boy. After strangling

Jackie with a belt, Smigelski told in his statement of catching the boy's chest and wrist with broken glass. The statement said Smigelski then went to a nearby diner, washed his hands in the lavatory, drank a bottle of soda and went home.

Free Inoculations Given 90 Percent of Wheeler Co. Students

SHAMROCK, (Special)—City Health Officer Howard V. Sigler stated last week that Wheeler County's immunization program for school children had far exceeded all expectations with more than 90 percent of the students in the south part of the county taking advantage of the free inoculations.

So great was the response to the health program made possible by County Sanitarian W. R. Ritter that the supply of vaccine was exhausted last Thursday at noon. A telephone call to the State Health Department at Austin resulted in the stock being replenished and the inoculation program continued with only a short delay.

The vaccinations for the students in the south part of the county are being given by Dr. Sigler, the Shamrock General Hospital. He is being assisted by Ritter and the hospital staff.

Dr. Sigler stated Monday that he had discovered that only about 50 percent of the children had been vaccinated for small-pox and that in some of the rural areas the figure ran as high as 95 percent. The small-pox vaccination requires only one "shot" and that part of the program has been completed.

All of the students living outside Shamrock and not having access to chlorinated drinking water are receiving the typhoid inoculations. Dr. Sigler said, City children are being given the typhoid inoculation only if their parents request them. Immunization against this disease requires three shots which are given seven days apart.

A large number of the children are taking the diphtheria immunization which consists of two shots given three weeks apart.

Miss Smith Weds Mr. J. R. Newman

SHAMROCK, (Special) — Miss Avon Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith of this city, became the bride of J. R. Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Newman of Shamrock, Friday evening, September 5, at the twilight hour. Vows were exchanged at the First Methodist Church, with Rev. Bratcher, pastor, reading the impressive double-ring service.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Pendleton, organist, played "Romance" (Rubenstein), "I Love You Truly" (Jacobs-Bond), and "Because" (De Herdole) and during the ceremony, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life."

For the professional Miss Pendleton played "The Bridal Chorus," from the opera "Lohengrin," and for the recessional, "The Wedding March," by Mendelssohn.

Decorations at the altar featured tall white floor baskets of white gladioli and fern and cathedral tapers burning in wrought iron holders. The couple stood beneath an arch entwined with ivy, and above the choir loft was a lighted cross.

Candles were lighted by Miss Doris Bell and Miss Ada Jane Bratcher. The bride wore a gown of light weight wool with a black off-the-face hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of rainbow asters.

Miss Katherine Smith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pale green suit of light weight wool with a black off-the-face hat. She carried a colonial bouquet of rainbow asters.

Carmen Newman, small sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a gown in a yellow and brown plaid taffeta dress.

James Dunivan of Miami, served the bridegroom as best man, and Edd Haynes of Miami, and Horace Morgan, were ushers.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a tailored suit of dark green wool gabardine, and a beige blouse, with a brown off-the-face hat. Her accessories were brown and she carried a white Bible topped with gardenias and showered with white satin ribbon.

Miss Simms and Mr. Randolph United In Impressive Late Summer Wedding

PANHANDLE—(Special)—Highlighting the late summer weddings was the marriage on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock of Miss George Ann Simms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Simms of Panhandle, and Ben Wade Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Randolph, of Hobbs, N. M.

Rev. Harbert Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church, performed the double-ring ceremony in the sanctuary of that church.

The ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with white gladioli and ferns, and lighted by cathedral tapers in woven candelabra. The candles were lighted by John Murray, of Lubbock and Harold Huff of Ft. Worth, cousin of the bride. They also served as ushers.

While the guests were assembling, Mrs. Douglas Smith, organist, played "The Rosary" and "Liebestraum." Following the ceremony, Miss Joyce Simms sang "Love Thee" (Ortiz) and Miss Simms and John Collier of Hobbs, N. M., sang "At Dawning." Mrs. Smith played "I Love You Truly." She also played the traditional six-avenue waltz from Wagner and Mendelssohn.

Miss Joyce Simms served her sister as maid of honor, while Mrs. W. R. McGregor of Claude, was matron of honor. Both wore yellow, over-the-shoulder ensembles with bouffant skirts. On their heads they wore colonial bandanas of pastel colored flowers and carried colonial bouquets of the same flowers.

James Harold Simms of Clovis, N. M., cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer, and Mary Kate Benney, of Wayside, wearing a white gown, fashioned like the bride's, served as flower girl. She carried a colonial basket of rose petals.

John Collier served as best man and Trust Randolph of Hobbs, served his brother as groomsman.

Mrs. Simms, mother of the bride, wore a pale green ensemble with black accessories, while Mrs. Randolph, mother of the groom, wore lime-green with brown accessories. Both wore identical corsages of Tallahassee roses.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, wore a gown of white tulle, with long sleeves, and a marquisette yoke, and an Irish lace bertha. Her bodice was long and fitted with long light sleeves, coming to a point over her hands. Her full skirt ended in a cathedral train. Her veil of imported illusion came to the edge of her train and was caught on her head with a coronet of orange blossoms. For something old she wore her paternal grandmother's wedding ring and her maternal grandmother's emerald pendant. For something borrowed she wore the string of pearls given to her mother by her father on their wedding day. Her bouquet was of white orchids surrounded by white posies made into a colonial bouquet.

Concluding the ceremony, John Collier sang "The Lord's Prayer" (Malliot).

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents for the bridal party and members of the families of the couple.

For a wedding trip to the Ozarks, Mrs. Randolph wore a green suit with an ecru lace blouse and brown accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. After September 15 they will be at home in Lubbock.

WE, THE WOMEN Good Companionship Required in Wife

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

The average American man thinks good companionship is a more important quality in a wife than anything else, according to a recent report by a public opinion poll.

If that is true, women ought to give at least as much thought to being companionable as they give to their appearance, their social position, and their reputation for being good housekeepers.

But what makes a woman companionable? To begin with, she must have an easy, good-natured attitude toward living.

She also has to be willing to accept her husband's spur-of-the-moment invitations. If he says, "Why don't you and the kids ride along to the office with me?" a companionable woman goes with a minimum of fuss and bother.

A truly companionable woman doesn't do most of the talking. She can sense whether or not a man is in a mood for conversation. If he isn't, she lets him alone. And if he is, she listens at least as much as she talks.

A truly companionable woman always has a sense of humor. That doesn't mean she has to have a sharp wit, but she does need to be able to see the funny side of life.

In a sense a companionable woman never grows old. Although her hair may turn gray and wrinkles appear, she doesn't lose her youthful approach to life. She is always ready to try new things. She refuses to be discouraged by problems. She goes right on regarding life with keen anticipation.

Your USED FATS ARE Still Needed!

says KATHARINE FISHER,
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

We're still not out of the woods, by any means. There is still a fat shortage all over the world. Here is what Mr. Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, says about the situation: "It is still necessary to conserve every pound of used fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year." So... all of you women who have done such a marvelous job... please, keep up the good work. It's the only way we can beat the shortage. Remember, every pound of salvaged fat helps.

Always Patriots On Sept. 16, 1949, the First National Guard units were called into service for the emergency which resulted in World War II. President Truman, a former Guardsman himself, has selected the seventh anniversary of the date the National Guard Day, which opens a two-month recruiting campaign. The campaign's object is to stimulate the rebuilding of the National Guard to a strength needed in case of emergency. Not all the emergencies are of a military nature. The National Guard has performed valuable service during floods, tornadoes and other disasters.

There had been 100,000 enlistments by July 1, of this year. The goal of this two-month drive is 88,888, which figures out to be one new Guardsman a minute during the period. But that is only an immediate objective. The long-range targets are 250,000 men for the present fiscal year and a peak strength of 682,000 by June of 1951.

The National Guard is a direct descendant of the pre-Revolutionary militia or home guards. The present Guard, though modernized and mechanized, serves essentially the same purpose. Its members devote two hours a week and 15 days in summer to training, and they are called on only in cases of emergency. Not all the emergencies are of a military nature. The National Guard has performed valuable service during floods, tornadoes and other disasters.

New development and knowledge which came out of the research are being used in training and equipping the present Guard. Instruction is by Regular Army officers. Many of the members are veterans who are refreshing or expanding war-taught skills. Others are youngsters receiving training which will be used in civilian life.

In time of tension and uneasy peace, when the Army is below strength, this recruitment drive deserves the best support. The demands of National Guard membership are not onerous. The rewards in safety which a fully-manned well-trained and well-equipped National Guard gives can hardly be over-estimated.

As the country's oldest defense force, at least in tradition, and a truly democratic organization, the National Guard has a proud and cherished history.

The spirit of its membership perhaps is nowhere better expressed than in a motto inscribed on a beam in the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Officers' Club: "National Guardsmen are citizens most of the time, soldiers some of the time, patriots all the time!"

I believe that the economic future of Japan will be at stake during the next six months. This period probably will be the last opportunity for Japan to discover whether she is able to start on her own feet or become an economic burden on the world.

Premier Tetsu Katayama of Japan. We know that any future war may mean the end of all we value. Wars are bred by poverty and oppression. Economic peace is possible only in a relatively free and prosperous world.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON WASHINGTON, (NEA) — The United Nations committee report, recommending partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states, is a good bit like the judgment of old King Solomon in the case of the two women and the divided babe. Gold-star Sunday School scholars all know the story. The two women came before the king, each claiming to be mother of the same child. "And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king. "And the king said, Divide the child in two, and give half to the one half to the other." Up to this point the parallel is perfect. Here is a high committee from 11 nations having no direct interest in Palestine. They are set up like King Solomon to pass judgment on the case. Palestine is the child. The Jews and the Arabs, like the two mothers of Bible times, both claim it. The King Solomon says, "Divide the child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other. The Jewish Zionists are apparently agreeable to this decision. But the Arabs are yelling bloody murder.

CONTINUING THE PARABLE According to the Bible parable, this might be taken to mean that Palestine rightly belongs to the Arabs. For the rest of the narrative goes like this: "Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for her bowels yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it. "Then the king answered her and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it; she is the mother thereof. "And all Israel heard the judgment which the king had judged; and they feared the king; for they saw that the wisdom of God was in him, to do judgment."

There is no indication that the judgment of the UN committee on the infant Palestine is going to have any such happy ending. Partition of Palestine has been suggested since the end of World War I. The British Royal Peel Commission recommended it in 1936. The Anglo-American Crady-Morison Cabinet Committee revived the idea again last year. But there have been no takers. The United States government has taken no official position on this proposed solution. President Truman's Day of Atonement statement, and his letters to Prime Minister Clement Attlee and King Ibn Saud last October, still stand as U. S. policy. They merely call for immediate admission of 100,000 Jewish refugee immigrants to Palestine.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG news behind the news

WASHINGTON By RAY TUCKER EISENHOWER, "Is General Eisenhower a Republican?" asks R. O. P. of Columbus, O., as well as many other readers, doubtless due to frequent mention of the popular Chief of Staff as a prospective Republican presidential candidate in 1948. Answer: Although few regular Army men have close partisan ties, because of their constant shifting from one post to another and their need for a show of political interest will jeopardize their advancement. General Eisenhower comes from a long line of Republican ancestors, despite his Texas birth. His Kansas background also influenced him in that direction. I go know that, when he was aide to the then Chief of Staff, Douglas A. MacArthur, he privately disliked and feared the more extravagant reforms of the original Gen. Douglas. I go know that, when he was aide to the then Chief of Staff, Douglas A. MacArthur, he privately disliked and feared the more extravagant reforms of the original Gen. Douglas.

As Pegler Sees It By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1947) NEW YORK (AP)—The Committee on Un-American Activities of the House of Representatives has redressed some clumsy errors done by its predecessor, the Dies Committee, and has become, on achievement, a valuable body of the national legislature. By the initiative and diligence of this committee, a number of the most dangerous enemies of the United States have been sent to prison on various charges arising out of their treachery as communists or in collusion with the communist conspiracy. Several thousands of alien spies and provocateurs and American traitors who, in the role of red Quislings, collaborated with them, have been catalogued in a permanent directory in relation to one another and to the hundreds of communist fronts. This invaluable record of the like of which thought to prepare. The Federal Bureau of Investigation has its own copies of the committee reports and relies on it in its current anti-communist activity.

The F. B. I. was firmly restrained as long as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt exercised power in the White House in a patriotic and sincere spirit of service. The communist desk of the navy was abolished early in our war and the rule of the army excluding communists and their feather friends from commissioned ranks was revoked. In consequence communists and trojan horsemen were given commissions and access to information which any prudent nation would entrust only to persons of reliable devotion. These infidels were turned loose in the role of writers and lecturers in the "indoctrination" phase of the military training with a mission to corrupt the patriotism of loyal Americans. Some of the lessons taught by the doctrinaires were anti-Fascist from the standpoint of the communists, but not from the hygienic standpoint of American patriotism which exists with them with an equal abhorrence.

The F. B. I. has consulted the records of the Dies Committee, now known as the Thomas Committee, ever since these inquiries began. The Departments of State, War and Navy have made equally free with the files. Probably, in many cases, the State, War and Navy Departments were fishing to learn what the committee had discovered about them, because they were miserably infested thanks to the hospitality of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Except as to a few select file-clerks, the F. B. I. seems rarely satisfied with its inquiries to have been addressed to the committee in good faith on legitimate government business.

Martin Dies, the congressman who was chairman of the special committee, suffered much for his country. He was a Texas country boy. See PEGLER, Page 3

POTATOES—"What department or official," J. W. D. Sr., of Shawnee, Okla., wants to know, "is responsible for the burning and dumping of potatoes and other foods? I directed an inquiry to the Agricultural Department but got no reply." Answer: Keep on sending your complaints to Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture. He is the executor of this policy although he did not originate it. Incidentally, he has warned that the price of this product will probably increase during the winter.

NOMINEE—Question from W. F. H. of San Diego, Cal.: "What would happen after a party convention if the presidential vice-presidential candidates should die before the November election?" Answer: Almost as its last act, the national convention of both parties empowers its National Committee to meet and select a substitute nominee if either should die before Election Day.

OATH — E. L. P. of Bradshaw, Okla., asks: "What department or official," J. W. D. Sr., of Shawnee, Okla., wants to know, "is responsible for the burning and dumping of potatoes and other foods? I directed an inquiry to the Agricultural Department but got no reply." Answer: Keep on sending your complaints to Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture. So They Say Investment capital cannot be accumulated if the money that is pooled will normally save and invest in job-creating enterprises is siphoned away by excessive taxation. What is Your Education Worth? The Reader's Digest in its September issue reproduces an article under the above heading which is condensed from This Magazine. It was written by Philip Wyle. The article doesn't mean that your education is worth from a material standpoint, but it includes what it is worth from the standpoint of building character. Mr. Wyle starts out with this statement: "The educational system of the United States has disappointed the world. It is not necessary to look far to discover our intellectual incompetence and lack of moral courage. A third of our marriages end in divorce. The American home is striving to become not a better center for family life but a mechanized hotel, a human filling station—and nothing else. Our young men are undisciplined and increasingly delinquent. Adultery is the rule and not the exception among our dissatisfied adults. Our foul jails bulge; our vilest asylums swarm. We cannot even house ourselves."

"We boast that we are not thieves, aggressors, but we have committed a terrible aggression against our own grandchildren. We have stripped them of their continent of every resource—trees, soil, oil, iron, lead, copper and tin—to wage wars we could have avoided by brave foresight, and to manufacture automobiles in which a million of us are mutilated every single year." "How does it happen that 140,000,000 people have reached such a condition of myopia? How is it we have lost sight of ourselves as the champions of liberty and become mere seekers of security?" "The reason, of course, lies in our schools. But the pattern of our corruption and our degradation may be traced most plainly, perhaps in our schools. Bear in mind that, when we ask what is wrong with our schools, we really mean what is wrong with ourselves."

That most certainly is true. If the adults believed in individual responsibility, if they believed in the Ten Commandments, if they would not be shifting responsibility to the state or any subdivision of the state, this column has repeatedly said, it is impossible for the public schools to teach ethics. The author of this article recognizes that "the pattern of our corruption and our degradation may be traced most plainly perhaps to our schools. How is it, however, see the fact that it is impossible for the public schools to do other than degrade the morals of its pupils."

This is so because we are imitative animals. We learn from example and by imitating; and when we see the pattern of our responsibility, it is only natural for us to do the same. This responsibility and when they grow up to believe that the state owes them a job and a living and security. The author of this article seems to think that the schools in the 19th century had a fundamental and uncomplicated purpose to teach freedom. Most of our older adults who were in the schools in the 19th century and most of these adults do not believe in freedom and we are just now reaping the fruits of this 19th century compulsory education."

The author says that it is a tragedy that "our schools themselves have steadily lost prestige. It is not at all a tragedy. It is a blessing. We cannot possibly lose the immortality of compulsory education as long as public schools have prestige. The lack of prestige is an inevitable result to everyone who believes in the Ten Commandments; in the Commandments "Thou shalt not covet" and "Thou shalt not steal."

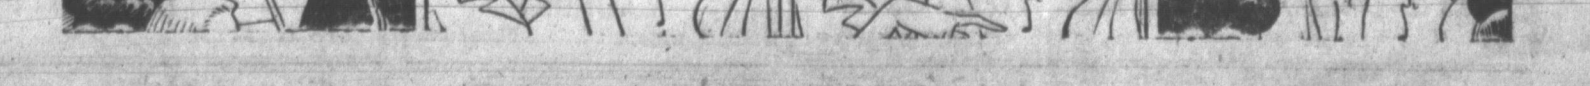

The purpose of education, a belief is to articulate, self-disciplined, reasonable, informed, responsible human beings. Happiness depends, after all, on two qualities in the individual: confidence and trustworthiness. Then he goes on to say, "All we have left of that ideal is material progress. We are a nation of fairytale children who grow up. The pleasures of the lower school grades are the main leisure preoccupations of the average grown-up American: games, sports, parties, fairy tales on the screen, the soap opera, magazine fiction and comics. We use our automobiles as big baby carriages." "The educated man seeks more truth, more education, and his life is more clean and its intellectual and mental but honest, and he expresses it by the way he acts. He can be trusted, and he serves himself by serving liberty, which is his fundamental principle."

Yes, if we judge from the fruits of compulsory education, and that's the only way anything can be judged, is a great organization to destroy, not build, character. The sooner public education loses what little prestige it has left, the better off the youth of the land will be. Then we will begin to try to educate the people to believe that the government or none of its subdivisions has any right to do anything that each and every citizen doesn't originally have a right to do. That's exactly what the public educational institutions are not teaching. They cannot teach the opposite of what they are doing. They are saying the state is over and above the individual. In other words, they are teaching the collectivistic, communistic, Russian idea of government instead of the ideas set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

Partitioning Palestine, as now proposed, offers no lasting solution to the Arab-Jewish conflict, anyway. It merely gives the Zionists a beachhead from which to seek further expansion.

There has been too much partitioning of the better world as it is. India is partitioned into Hindustan and Pakistan. China is unofficially partitioned into Communist and Nationalist halves. Germany, Austria and Korea are partitioned into Communist and Allied zones. And Europe, in fact, is partitioned by an iron curtain.

Industry, labor and agriculture must march along together or wobble. —H. P. Russ, dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

WHAT'S THE WORLD COMING TO

I actually had a bona fide wheat farm listed with me for sale... this farm lays west of Pampa on the pavement... it's plowed now, and it also has some paying gas and oil royalty that goes with it... You know it's not very often I get a good wheat farm listed with me, but when I do they don't last long... If you're interested in this call me up, and I'll tell you the location and the price...

Would you invest 2000 for a pretty good furnished 3-bedroom home to live in or rent out, and besides get two more houses that are priced right, and bringing in 45.00 per month... We just have this listed with me, and it's got to sell this week as the people are moving out and going to Calif... These 3 houses are on two 50-ft. lots. We will take 2000 for the whole thing, and the lots and furniture are worth that much...

I have a nice home... east front... located at 1321 Garland St... It has a beautiful front and back yard, with lots of big trees... even have a big strawberry bed... I'll tell you what I'll do on this house, if you happen to be the lucky one who buys it... I'll have it redecorated on the inside... You can pick your wallpaper, also the color you want your room walls... Then we'll have the floors stained, filled and varnished, and I'll pay the bill... You ask what I'm doing this... I'm beginning to worry some over my income tax... Anyway I want to sell it pretty quick, and you could have immediate possession, as the people are moving out this week...

Somebody buy my 35 pigs... the feed bill is killing me... take 16.00 per.
