

Oilmen get different flavors: Phillips official

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

The major oil and gas companies and the independent producers in the Panhandle Field use straws to drink from the same punch bowl. The major companies say the punch tastes like strawberry. The independents sucking the same Panhandle punch say it tastes like raspberry, said a high-ranking official with Phillips Petroleum Co.

The major oil companies think that the independents drinking from the bowl have a problem with their tastebuds: They can't taste the difference between the flavors, "Crude Oil" and "Dedicated Natural Gas," the oil company official said.

Glenn A. Cox, executive vice president of Phillips, made the punch bowl analogy to explain the current drilling war between the major companies and independents.

Cox, 55, of Bartlesville, Okla., is one of three executive vice presidents in the Phillips organization. He is also a member of the corporation's board of directors and of its executive committee. Cox is responsible for all corporate finances. Only two officials, the chairman of the board and the chief executive officer, rank higher in the worldwide corporation. The executive started his career with Phillips in 1956.

Charges of illegal drilling operations have been made by both sides in the current legal fight between the major companies and independents. The battle over drilling rights in the local oil and gas reservoir is being fought before the state and federal courts, the Texas Railroad Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in Washington.

In a stack of lawsuits and pleadings before the courts and state and federal regulatory agencies, each side has accused the other of taking its property. The dispute arose from the different parties' ownership of oil and gas rights under the same patch of ground. The major companies own the "gas rights," while the independent operators hold the "oil rights" on the same lease in the field. The majors call their wells "gas wells," while the independents call their adjacent wells "oil wells."

The majors claim some independents are pumping gas that belongs to the larger companies. The independents deny the accusation, saying their wells lawfully produce crude oil and associated casinghead gas.

Whether the hydrocarbons produced by the parties should be legally defined as "oil" or "gas" is at the heart of the dispute.

The rulings pending before the agencies and courts could decide who will produce oil and gas reserves worth an estimated $25 billion.

Cox said that in most cases, the dispute involves honorable men. See OILMEN, page 5

Beating victim dies of head injuries

The victim of a severe beating at a party here early Thursday morning, a 24-year-old Pampa man, was pronounced dead Saturday afternoon at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Robert Wayne Fritz, 924 S. Wells, was pronounced dead at 3:46 p.m. Saturday by Dr. Charles Rimmer.

Fritz died of severe head injuries sustained in a fight about 3 a.m. Thursday, police said.

The victim received initial treatment at Coronado Community Hospital. He underwent emergency surgery at the Amarillo hospital and was later placed on life support systems and listed in critical condition.

Gerry Lee Anderson, also 24, of 910 S. Reid, was arrested at his home shortly after 7 a.m. Thursday and charged with aggravated assault. Anderson, sporting a black eye, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge, who set bond on the charge at $30,000. Anderson remained in custody in the county jail Saturday.

Police said the district attorney's office will consider filing homicide charges in connection with the beating victim's death.

Police were called to the Pampa hospital at 3:37 a.m. Thursday, after the battered victim arrived there in a private vehicle.

Police said Fritz and Anderson had attended a party at 1128 Crane Rd. Police Chief J.J. Ryzman has said the suspect got a beer from a cooler box inside Fritz's car parked nearby and in the process, apparently spilled some water inside the vehicle. The victim later asked the suspect about the incident, and an argument started, Ryzman said previously. The argument led to a fight in the back yard of the party house, he said. The suspect pounced on top of the victim and repeatedly pounded his head into the ground, the chief has said.

The victim's wife, Neva Fritz, told police that people at the party eventually stopped the beating, Ryzman said.

RADAR DETECTOR—It pays to advertise. Pampa police officer Terry Cox watches his radar unit for speeders from a parking lot on North Hobart. Cox managed to nab a few violators, even though the sign he parked under seemed to give away his position. The sign advertised radar detectors on sale at Whites, 1500 N. Hobart. (Courtesy Photo)

Harlow attorneys attack oil consultant

Special to The Pampa News
LUBBOCK - Harlow Corporation attorneys continued attacking an expert witness' testimony Friday in the trial of the Dorchester suit and grilled the firm's attorneys over their requested fees.

Clarke Gillespie, a petroleum engineering consultant, testified under cross-examination that there was no significant change in gas production in Dorchester wells prior to the time he found increased gas production in Harlow oil wells south of Pampa.

Gillespie, hired by Dorchester

Gas Producing Company, testified previously that a nearby Dorchester gas well had produced many times less gas since October, 1981, than did Harlow's oil wells. Harlow attorneys tried to show that Dorchester's gas production basically had remained stable.

Dorchester is suing Harlow for $500,000 in damages and seeking a halt to its gas production in Section 117. Harlow claims it has a right to produce casinghead gas with oil in the West Panhandle Field near Pampa.

Harlow attorney Broadus Spivey got Gillespie to admit Friday morning that associated gas which is in contact with oil can be considered casinghead gas. Spivey was hoping to broaden the definition of casinghead gas being used by the court - that is, gas indigenous to an oil stratum and produced with oil.

Gillespie explained, however, that he believes associated gas cannot be casinghead gas if it exists above the gas-oil contact in a formation. He said there was no such contact under Harlow's lease.

He admitted to intervenors' attorney Pat Long that nearby wells produce oil from the brown dolomite layer at the same level as do Harlow's wells, according to reports. But, he added, he considers Harlow's data suspect.

Gillespie maintained under questioning that he has not changed his opinion on what is solution gas and free gas. Long attempted to show that he had reported both types as casinghead gas when working on wells in the 1960s.

Gillespie basically did not dispute a theory that the oil and gas underlying the area in question is mixed together such that the oil is not in a liquid state. But he never varied from his assertion that the brown dolomite contains no producible oil.

In a deposition read by Dorchester attorneys, Jack Chisum, a Pampa gas tester, testified there was no difference in the gas produced by Harlow's and Dorchester's wells. Testimony from another expert also was introduced to corroborate earlier testimony by Phil Moses of CORE Laboratories.

James Ekstrand, an oil testing engineer hired by Harlow, said in a deposition read Friday that he basically agreed with the lab's conclusion - that lighter hydrocarbons associated with natural gas were missing from Harlow's oil. When asked why, Ekstrand had no explanation.

Some of the more colorful exchanges the courtroom has seen in the past three weeks occurred Friday afternoon. Dorchester attorney Robert Templeton took the stand to testify about how much money Dorchester's legal team is asking for.

This set up a direct confrontation between the trial's chief gladiators: Templeton and Spivey. And neither lawyer shied away from their opportunities to impress and amuse the courtroom.

In addition to damages, Dorchester is asking for an aggregate total of more than $550,000 in legal fees and expenses. See HARLOW ATTORNEYS, page five

Miami's school budget increased

MIAMI — "Slapped in the face" with last minute state education curriculum and funding reforms, school officials Friday passed a tentative budget of nearly $1.4 million for 1984-85.

The budget, totaling $1,391,606, is a 5.6 percent increase over last year's budget of $1,317,110. Miami ISD Superintendent Billy Vestal said that the budget increase was prompted by a salary increase for certified personnel: teachers, administrators, secretaries and aides. Total payroll for certified employees jumped from $604,989 in 1984 to $726,515 for 1985. Teacher salary increases made up $94,000.

Remainder of the budget dropped six percent from 1984. Vestal added.

While the board members were not especially pleased with having to raise their budget to comply with the state mandates, six teachers attending the special meeting Friday cheerfully accepted the salary increases. They not only get the state mandated salary increase but a local payroll boost that school officials had approved before the state set the new salary schedule in July.

Vestal explained that the state's new teacher salary is a "single line schedule."

"We add $170 to the teachers' monthly salary to determine where they are on the scale," he said.

Trustees are expected to give final approval of their budget at a public budget hearing Aug. 30.

Although trustees approved the budget and its inevitable salary increase Friday, they also discovered that funding the budget with a decrease in state funds and no major jumps in property value may create problems.

The new funding formula passed by the state legislature bases state funding on average daily attendance and taxable value of property in each district. Consequently, schools such as Miami and Canadian, which have high property value, receive less state funds while schools with lower property value — such as Groom — receive more money. Vestal estimated about $51,419 in state per capita funding for 1985.

The drop in state funding, and the increase in state mandated programs and salaries will prompt the school to raise its tax rate, Vestal reported.

Using a tax rate of 22 cents per $100 valuation, Vestal anticipated $994,573 in local maintenance taxes for 1985. That is if there is 100 percent collection. He anticipates a reserve of $2,000 in taxes from prior years and $350 in delinquent taxes.

With the estimated $996,923 in total tax collection and the $51,419 in state aid, plus other revenue, Vestal estimates a total revenue of $1,126,192. That is about $264,000 less than what is needed to support the $1.391 million budget.

As a result, Vestal expects, the school may have to increase its tax rate 2 1/2 cents to 24 cents per $100 valuation, an increase of 11.6 percent. Usually, if the tax rate jumps by more than eight percent, the figure is subject to a rollback election. If more than three percent, there must be a public hearing.

However, Vestal said that state officials may allow schools to bypass the rollback if they lose an excessive amount of state funds. He added that, even with the increase, the tax rate is lower in Miami ISD than in other districts.

The state legislature is making itself known in other school matters besides budget.

In what Miami trustee Vernon Cook called "a slap in the face to smaller schools," the state legislature set a 10 day per year limit on absences for school related activities. According to Vestal, this not only includes games, band trips and speech and literary contests, but also class field trips. If a history class tours the Battle for Adobe Walls site, that would be counted in the 10 days.

The trustees agreed that the 10 day limit was not fit for a small and isolated school like Miami, where each student tends to be involved in several different activities. They predicted that there would be more competition among the activities

Gray commissioners talk pay hike

Gray County Commissioners discussed a possible small pay raise for county employees in the panel's further consideration of next year's budget, but the amount wasn't specified and no action was taken.

The budget discussion came during last week's regular meeting of the court. Earlier discussion has indicated that county spending will increase by at least $163,000 in calendar year 1985. If a pay raise is granted and other proposed expenditures are approved, spending will go up more than the $163,000 figure, according to the previous discussion.

Commissioners on Wednesday indicated that they are leaning toward approval of a small, though still unspecified, pay raise for county employees. The commission will continue the budget discussions and public hearings at its next regular meetings on Aug. 31 and Sept. 14. The county bosses hope to approve next year's budget and tax rate by Sept. 15, so that tax statements may be sent out before the end of the year.

In other action last week, commissioners:

— appointed precinct election judges for the November general election and approved their pay. Election workers will receive $5 per hour. Judges will receive an extra $25 for bringing ballot boxes to the courthouse.

— approved five pipeline crossings for Phillips Petroleum Co.

— considered paying a hospital bill for a minor under jurisdiction of the Child Protective Services board. No action was taken.

— agreed to a one-time payment of $6,700 for air rights over land north of the recently-extended main runway at the county airport.

— approved longevity pay for county employees in 1985. The longevity pay approved amounts to $5 per month for each year's service after five years.

— and approved county financial reports and payment of bills totaling $140,280.

Chautauqua funds many local projects

Chautauqua provides fun and education activities for all ages, but it also provides money for many worthy community causes.

The money made in a single day on the Labor Day event will be used by many non-profit organizations throughout the year for the betterment of our area, according to Darlene Birkes, chairman.

"Don't feel badly if you have to have that extra hot dog or try another sausage - on - a - stick, or take home some squaw bread, for the profits will help some worthy cause," she said.

Optimist Club members are hoping to sell gallons of homemade ice cream for money to help with their youth - oriented projects. Coming up this fall will be the bicycle safety program, respect - for - the - law project and Tiger League football. The club involved more than 1500 children in their programs last year.

Fruit - on - the - stick and squaw bread will be sold at the Altrusa Club booth. Profits will help support the Tralee Crisis Center, Pampa High School career clinic and club scholarships to high school students.

Ice tea drinkers will help Twentieth Century Forum provide a Girl Scout campership and a college scholarship and give contributions to Friends of the Library, Community Day Care Center, Meals on Wheels and the White Deer Lands Museum.

Zion Lutheran Church women will sell lemonade to help toward their kitchen fund for the sanctuary building being erected.

Xi Phi Alpha pretzels, groovers and Kool Aid will help provide items for food baskets for the needy at Thanksgiving and Christmas and assist with other community needs.

Kiwanis members fried over 1,100 hamburgers at last year's Chautauqua and expect to sell more this year to help finance their donations to Meals on Wheels, scholarships, shoes for underprivileged children and the American Field Service exchange program.

The Pampa Fine Arts Association's hot dog booth and donations for the many prizes to be given away at the event in Central Park will help pay for Chautauqua expenses, including the special events, publicity and coordinating activities.

The American Diabetes Association's popcorn booth provides funds for patient education and diabetes screening in Gray County.

The Boy Scouts use their cake sale funds for service projects and assistance with camping and skiing trips. The Girl Scouts hope to sell enough cotton candy to pay for their anti - litter promotion of Smokey the Bear directed to elementary schools in Pampa and throughout the 10 - county area serviced by Quivira Council. The Girl Scouts also will provide colored macaroni and help children string necklaces at Chautauqua.

Slush Puppies will be sold by the evening Kiwanis members to help with their two $1,000 scholarships awarded each spring. Christmas checks of $100 given to each Genesis House resident and support of the Gray County Mental Retardation Association.

Methodist youth will sell nachos and watermelon to get funds for service projects, special events and their summer choir trip.

The Dust Devils Booster Club will sell cinnamon rolls and crafts and man a trampoline to raise funds to send qualifying students to gymnastic events. Last year the team competed in nine meets and traveled 7,050 miles in a five-month period.

The booster club paid travel, motel and food expenses for all members and coaches. The team put Pampa on the map in gymnastics as members finished with two district champions, two district silver medalists, one district bronze medalist and one state champion.

The New York Cheerleaders will sell frito pies and the Step Savers Homemakers will have snow cones, with their profits helping with their clubs' projects.

St. Matthew's Day School will offer sausage-on-a-stick to help with school activities; the teachers will sell crafts, with profits used for room projects.

A pancake breakfast, sponsored by Drug and Alcohol Total Education (DATE), from 7 to 10 a.m. will feature "all you can eat,"

GOING FISHING - A young visitor at last year's Chautauqua in Central Park makes use of the "Go Fishing" booth operated by the Junior Service League to make a surprise catch as Karen Bridges supervises the activity. The JSL booth is one of many organizations scheduled for the third annual Chautauqua hoping to raise funds for their service projects and other community activities at the Labor Day event.

obituaries

CLAUDE C. MATHENY
 Claude C. Matheny, 84, Pampa's "King of the Hubcaps," died Saturday at Coronado Community Hospital.

member of the First Baptist Church. Matheny's stacks of about 10,000 hubcaps and other pieces of salvaged machinery, were a common sight at his shop on West Foster. Matheny, having reached 80 years of age, once used a pocket knife to fight off a man who tried to rob him outside his shop. He managed to slash the intruder, who ran, but not before the attacker sprayed Matheny's face with tear gas. The incident and Matheny's odd collection of salvaged parts were the subjects of stories in The Pampa News.

Survivors include his wife of the home; three daughters, Ruth Barrett and Ramona Gruben, both of Pampa, and Claudette Holder of Houston; two sisters, Lois Clarrage of Lubbock and Reba Williams of Bull Head City, Ariz.; one brother, Floyd Matheny of Pampa; six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Theresa Mary Kretzmeier

Services for Theresa Mary Wehling Kretzmeier, 78, of Pampa, will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church, with the Rev. Joseph Stabile, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

She moved to Pampa in 1929. She married Stanley Kretzmeier at Union City, Okla. The Kretzmeiers lived on the same farm all of their married lives. She was a member of the St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church, where she was church cook and cook for the church rectory. She was a lifetime member of the Altar Society and was active in the C.Y.O. youth organization. The family requests memorials be made to the Panhandle Children's Home or favorite charities.

Survivors include her husband of the home; three daughters, Mary Adair of Amarillo, Margaret Ann Hartman of South Gate, Ky., and Roberta Louise Schwind of Borger; one son, Stanley Warren Kretzmeier of Fritch; two sisters, Bernidine Holland of Eldorado, Ark., and Mary Dries of El Reno, Okla.; three brothers, Patrick Wehling of Albuquerque, N.M., Mark Wehling of San Antonio and Mike Wehling of Tampa, Fla.; 13 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

ELLEN MASON LAYNE
 Services for Ellen Mason Layne, 76, of Pampa, will be at 10 a.m. Monday in the St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church, with the Rev. Joseph Stabile, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

She married E.L. "Shotgun" Layne on July 31, 1937 in Pampa. Survivors include one daughter, Kay Layne of Washington, D.C.; one brother, A.S. "Phonse" Mason of Bakersfield, Calif.; and one sister, Merceda Cummings of Las Vegas, Nev.

C.B. HATCHER
 Services for C.B. Hatcher, 62, of Lefors, will be at 2 p.m. Monday in the Lefors Church of Christ, with David Fultz of the Spearman Church of Christ and Doyal Harris of the Elk City Church of Christ officiating.

He was born Aug. 6, 1922 in Stamps, Ark. He moved to Lefors from Miller County, Ark., in 1960. He was a pumper with Texaco for 30 years and was a member of the Lefors Church of Christ. He married Vivian Clark in 1942 at Louisville, Ark.

Survivors include two sons, C.B. Hatcher Jr. of Fayetteville, N.C., and Jack Perry of Wheeler; two daughters, Eleice Dennis of Alexandria, Va., and Verneice Gee of Lefors; one brother, Herbert Hatcher of White Oak; two sisters, Viola Allen of Longview and Mildred Esterham of Texarkana; and 14 grandchildren.

Zaccaro to release his tax returns

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro, hoping to close out a controversy that dogged the Democratic presidential ticket for a week, said Saturday her husband, John Zaccaro, has changed his mind and will make his income tax returns public on Monday.

Walter F. Mondale, campaigning in Missouri, and Ms. Ferraro, at home in Queens, both said they were "pleased" by Zaccaro's decision, disclosed in a statement.

The returns will be made public at the same time Ms. Ferraro complies with a federal disclosure law for vice presidential candidates.

Ms. Ferraro said she and her husband, a real estate developer who expressed fear that disclosing tax returns could harm his business, will release information that "goes beyond the requirements of the law."

The vice presidential nominee and her husband had spent nine hours meeting with accountants on Friday.

In another development Saturday, Ms. Ferraro reacted angrily to an article prepared for Monday's edition of New York magazine which says the family company, now run by her husband, owned a building from 1963 to 1971 listed as a residence of a reputed organized crime figure.

The building was sold the same year her husband took over the business in the wake of his father's death, according to the article.

Shown an advance copy of the article while being filmed by a television crew, Ms. Ferraro looked at it briefly and said: "I'm outraged, absolutely outraged. You go through life suffering discrimination."

Irish Protestants protest against brutality by police

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — After three nights of riots, thousands of Protestants paraded through Belfast on Saturday to protest what they said was police brutality against suspected Loyalist guerrillas and to demand an end to police use of informers.

Police wearing bullet-proof vests and carrying automatic weapons lined the streets as more than 20 bands led marchers past shops burned out in the rioting. There were no reports of violence.

Police estimated 3,000 demonstrators marched behind the bands. Some witnesses put the number of Protestant demonstrators as high as 10,000.

In London, meanwhile, about 3,000 demonstrators demanding removal of British troops from Northern Ireland paraded through the capital to mark the 15th anniversary this past week of troops being sent to the province.

A black wreath in memory of Sean Downs was carried by a small delegation to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's official 10 Downing St. residence. She is vacationing in Austria.

Earl Davis write-in commissioner candidate

Earl Davis, former local radio personality, has announced he will continue to campaign as a write-in candidate for the position of Gray County commissioner for Precinct 1.

Davis had filed for the Democrat primary elections last spring but was not placed on the ballot because of a technicality involving a check that did not clear before the deadline for filing.

At the time, Davis said he would consider a write-in campaign for the Nov. 6 general election. Friday he said that was still his plan.

He said he had been doing some campaigning in a low-key manner, but he plans to move into high gear after the start of school.

Davis has been visiting with people in the precinct and hopes to be able to contact all voting residents - either in person or by phone - before the election date.

"Davis, who said he is 'conservative by nature,' reiterated his belief that a Pampa resident should be serving in a commissioner position.

He said Pampa is the most populated area of the county, with "90 percent of Gray County population," yet no commissioner lives in the city. "I want to represent all the county, not just the rural areas, but Pampa, too," he said.

Davis said a county commissioner's duties are more involved than just taking care of county roads and bridges, with responsibilities for all residents in the county, not just those living in the rural areas.

"The most important thing is handling the county's money wisely," he said. "If we have surpluses, why can't we cut taxes?" He said public money should be spent only after careful consideration of expenses.

Currently self-employed as owner and manager of "Howdy, New Neighbor," a welcome service for newcomers to Pampa, Davis said he considers a county commissioner post as a full-time job. He said he feels he can handle his work and still "be able to devote the time necessary to being a full-time commissioner."

A resident of Pampa for more than 50 years, Davis worked with Radio Station KPDD as announcer, salesman and station manager from 1959 to 1982.

His community service has included membership and activity in the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club, the Gray County Retarded Childrens Association and the Friends of the Library. He also has served with the March of Dimes and the United Way.

A former Pampa High School student, he served in the United States Air Force and has attended courses in speech and announcing. He also has attended several sales seminars.

He is married to Ruby Winegeart Davis, a teacher in the local school system.

His campaign treasurer is Mrs. Jimmie Kay Williams.

Paraplegic asks court to block foreclosure

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston paraplegic is asking a state court to block a mortgage company from foreclosing on his house, saying an insurance firm was supposed to make his monthly payments.

Following a hearing Friday, Robert Odom received a temporary restraining order from State District Judge Thomas Phillips allowing him to remain in his home until foreclosure proceedings are finished.

"Really, I haven't never been so scared in my life," Odom said. "After you realize they're really trying to take it."

But a spokeswoman for the mortgage company said the insurance firm stopped making payments on the house because Odom did not file some necessary paperwork and filed other reports late.

Odom said he paralyzed in June 1979, when someone he never saw shot him.

"As far as I can recall, I heard a shot ring out and the next thing I knew I was in Ben Taub Hospital," he told the court.

The shot severed his spinal cord, Odom said.

Now Odom, his wife and their three children live on Social Security payments of about $500 a month, his attorney said. Odom said his wife must take care of him full-time and cannot work.

He said Fort Worth Mortgage notified him in May some of his mortgage payments had not been made. He called a representative with the mortgage firm and said he had copies of checks that his insurance company had sent for the mortgage payments.

But in June, the mortgage company told him that his house was being foreclosed on, he said.

"I planted the first flowers, the grass and the trees," Odom said. "I don't think it's (foreclosure) bad. I know it's bad and it's wrong."

The hearing was scheduled to continue this week.

Herbicide damages crops

AUSTIN (AP) — State agricultural officials are assessing information on damage done to some 30,000 acres of cotton that was hit by herbicides in Panhandle cotton fields.

The use of herbicides on cotton is prohibited. Agriculture department officials said Friday that the herbicide, which apparently drifted onto the cotton, was 2,4-D — a chemical intended for killing weeds in grain crops.

After three weeks of field work, state inspectors reported that damage was most widespread in Farmer County. Cotton also was damaged in Castro, Deaf Smith and Randall counties, plus areas of New Mexico, officials said.

"In some cases it appears that the cotton was hit more than once," said Al Hernandez, of the agriculture department's environmental sciences division.

Officials said 95 percent of the acreage affected is irrigated land, where the cost of production can exceed $300 per acre.

Much of the the damaged crop will not be harvested this season, agriculture department officials said. They said the full extent of the herbicide damage cannot be determined until the harvest begins, early in November.

Fifteen state agricultural inspectors investigated 117 complaints of suspected herbicide drifts onto cotton fields. Inspectors also interviewed 57 licensed pesticide applicators and 30 pesticide dealers.

The inspectors have gathered in Austin to evaluate their findings, Hernandez said.

The investigators are plotting maps of which wheat and sorghum fields were sprayed with the herbicide and which cotton fields suffered damage.

Republicans gather to kick off Reagan re-election bid

DALLAS (AP) — It's already all over but the shouting as Republican delegates — a confident, conservative chorus with hardly a dissenter in the house — gather deep in the heart of Texas this week to provide President Reagan with a rousing boost toward re-election.

"We believe in ourselves, we're hungry for any opportunity and we're up to any challenge," Reagan said Saturday, using his final pre-convention radio address to depict the nation as stronger for his leadership.

For sure, Reagan will be master of all he sees at the 33rd Republican National Convention — unchallenged leader of his party and holder of an enviable lead in the public opinion polls over Democratic rival Walter F. Mondale.

So large was the lead — 23 points in one recent survey — that party leaders said they worried about overconfidence.

The opening gavel of the convention falls Monday, giving delegates two days to sample the political rhetoric and the hospitality of the convention city before Wednesday evening's televised renomination of Reagan and Vice President George Bush.

The convention will be a four-day pageant combining rhetoric, rallies and filmed tribute to Reagan and his wife. The program has been scripted for television, and the president is ready with a "rip roaring" speech for Thursday night. Campaign director Ed Rollins predicted a "hard-swinging" answer to Mondale's well-received acceptance speech last month.

The week's supporting cast runs from former President Gerald R. Ford to the Rev. Jerry Falwell, evangelical leader of the Moral Majority, to Charlton Heston, better known as an actor than former film star Reagan ever was.

Party leaders promised a convention that would leave people "entertained and informed." But chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr. said his worry was how to keep the television networks on the air with live coverage for an event lacking the slightest element of suspense.

So routine were the convention's earliest sessions that Reagan's own campaign activities — stumping in Midwest farm country on Sunday and Monday — seemed certain to upstage them.

He comes to Dallas on Wednesday, just hours before the delegates roar their approval of his nomination.

Mondale, nominated by the Democrats precisely one month ago, sniped at the Republicans from a distance. Embarking on a brief campaign swing to Missouri and Iowa, he ridiculed "this almost kook-right platform that they've cooked up ... That platform is going to help me because people are not going to believe it," he told the Dallas Morning News in an interview.

Not that there aren't Republicans who don't harbor doubts about the president or the uncompromisingly conservative platform he will run on.

There will be 2,235 delegates in the hall — 2,234 committed to Reagan, and Susan Catania of Chicago, officially uncommitted.

Some of the party's outnumbered moderates — Rep. Jim Leach of Iowa and Sen. Mark Andrews of North Dakota among them — cautioned that too strong a swing to the right could harm the party in the fall and in the future.

Outside the hall, city authorities prepared for dissent from non-Republicans, erecting a fence that stretched a mile and a half around the vast convention center, and raising $25,000 in private contributions to build a tent city for demonstrators that includes running water, electricity, pay telephones and a paved road.

More than 100 men and women took part in a pre-convention demonstration against the president, a three-kilometer run "against Ronald Reagan" through the streets of the convention city.

"The right wing of the Republican party, led by anti-women President Ronald Reagan, has shut out virtually all American women," said the event's organizer, Deborah Erb.

Inside the convention center, workers toiled into the weekend finishing the hall. Red, white and blue standards marked each state's delegation on the floor, and local teen-agers hurried to spray paint the last of thousands of signs for the nomination-night floor celebration.

Reagan, 73, is a four-time contestant for the party's nomination and this will be his last campaign. There is no shortage of those eager to take his place — for just as Bush plays a prominent role during convention week, so, too, will Sens. Howard Baker and Robert Dole and Rep. Jack Kemp audition for leading man in the post-Reagan age.

The convention marks the 20th anniversary of Reagan's emergence as a leading American conservative. His political debut came in a paid television speech in 1964 urging the election campaign of Barry Goldwater.

Wife fined, given probated sentence in husband's death

DALLAS (AP) — A housewife was cleared of a murder charge when a jury decided the woman, who said she was frequently beaten by her husband, accidentally knifed him while trying to deter another attack.

Tina Moffett, 23, was convicted of misdemeanor negligent homicide Friday by a state district court jury which sentenced her to one year of probation and fined her $2,000.

Mrs. Moffett testified during the four-day trial that she hoped her husband, Alan Keith Moffett, would back down when she brandished the double-edged, three-inch blade. But he grabbed her and pulled her toward him, forcing the knife into his groin and severing a major artery, she testified.

Moffett, 28, bled to death while being rushed to a hospital after the Oct. 23, 1983, knifing, authorities said.

The jury of six women and six men, some of whom were tearful during Mrs. Moffett's testimony, took less than five hours to reach a verdict.

"The jury was very sympathetic to her plight as a battered wife," said defense lawyer Carter Thompson. "She was more or less reduced to a constant state of anxiety because of the constant abuse."

Prosecutors had argued that the nature of the wound, which they said was six inches deep, indicated the knife had to be thrust deliberately and strongly.

"He pulled the knife into himself, according to her," Assistant District Attorney Mark Nancarrow said of Mrs. Moffett's testimony. "She just happened to be holding it when it happened."

Nancarrow said he thought the verdict was unjust.

"She (Mrs. Moffett) is just not the way they (defense attorneys) make her out to be," he said.

Thompson, who called the verdict a victory for the "battered wife syndrome" defense, said Moffett often tied up his wife with a rope and physically and verbally abused her. Thompson said Mrs. Moffett once had to be treated in a hospital after her husband pushed her out of a car.

The couple had been married for three years and had two children.

Benefits refused to Bell workers

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Texas Employment Commission has denied unemployment benefits to 3,200 union members suspended by Bell Helicopter Textron, sending many of the workers scrambling for odd jobs.

Bell said Friday that it had received notification from the TEC that the workers were disqualified from receiving unemployment compensation because they had "walked off their jobs without good cause connected with their work."

Officials with the United Auto Workers said the decision would be appealed.

Meanwhile, some suspended workers are picking up odd jobs in the construction trades and others are mowing lawns, union members said.

Other workers have gone to work temporarily for companies that do subcontracting work for Bell and, in some cases, are doing almost the same job for the subcontractor that they used to do at Bell, union members said.

"Don't get me wrong. Some boys are already starting to lose things, some of the niceties of life," one of the union members told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "But nobody is starving. We're a long way from that."

Union members, who deny staging a walkout, say they were ordered to leave all of Bell's various manufacturing, testing and warehousing facilities in Tarrant County and then locked out on July 26.

At least 2,000 of the suspended employees had applied for unemployment benefits, officials said. The employees will be receiving $85 a week from the UAW's strike fund rather than a maximum $182 they could have received each week in unemployment benefits.

Most of the suspended workers earned between $10 and $13 an hour.

Although the workers' incomes have been cut drastically, few of their number are in financial jeopardy, union members said Friday. Most of Bell's union employees, they said, have 10 years or more in seniority because the company's previous layoffs already had eliminated younger employees.

Because the suspended workers are older, relatively few of them have children at home to support and most have spouses providing income, the workers said. In addition, most of the suspended workers own older homes with low payments and drive less expensive, older cars, they said.

One union member questioned the morality of his fellow members' working for Bell subcontractors.

"It just isn't right," he said. "They ought to just tear up their union card and say 'I don't need you fellows' and go back to work for the company. They're working for the (subcontractors) and doing the job for the company. They ought to have the guts to go back into the plant and do the job in there if that's what they're going to do."

Other than announcing that Bell had been informed of the disqualifications, company officials declined comment.

Bob Williams, an international UAW representative, said the union is instructing its members to appeal their disqualifications.

"We're going to appeal all these decisions on the basis that the company instructed us to leave the plant," Williams said. "Anybody can walk up and see the gates are locked to (union members).

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

The harvest is sometimes bitter

Despite its best efforts, sometimes even the U.S. government can't stifle success.

A news story says the nation's wheat surplus continues to grow despite government attempts to cut down unwanted production with its payment - in - kind program. For years, of course, the federal government has been rewarding farmers for not producing food. PIK was just the latest wrinkle.

As long as there are hungry and unfortunate people in this world, it seems perverse, perhaps sinful, that any agency of government should be trying to cut down the production of food, or hoarding food in bulging store-houses to keep prices high.

Down through history crop - tenders have wrung their hands over droughts and other natural hardships causing famines. Is it unique to the modern American world that fruitfulness and productivity should be regarded as curses, and land taken out of production and lying fallow should be seen as a blessing?

Certainly the Bible has strong words for those who curse the blessing of fruitfulness, or refuse to develop their gifts. From any perspective, however, one must view frantic efforts to undo agricultural success with amazement.

If success is so burdensome to some farmers, maybe they should get out of the profession. Maybe they should be land developers or car salesmen, or maybe they can even ship some of that unwanted production to hungry people who would appreciate it more.

One reason for a grain excess is politically motivated government embargoes on overseas sales, which have cost U.S. farmers some markets, demonstrating once again the folly of the government trying to balance out all the peaks and valleys of life rather than allowing things to be worked out under the mantle of freeness and individual responsibility.

A factor leading to increasing wheat productivity has been agricultural advances that allow more harvest to be taken from the same amount of land. So greatly has wheat - growing technology progressed in the last decade that it is scarcely folly today to speak of the United States being able to feed the entire world. Yet government efforts are bent on reducing production rather than on getting food to hungry people. Perhaps we should be grateful. Most government programs fail (if expensively). In most circumstances the best thing government can do to advance a given goal is to stay out of it.

You do wonder, however, what other nations could do toward ending world hunger if their economies were even as free to produce needed food as the United States' hobbled economy is. (Russian farmland's reputation as an international breadbasket was destroyed soon after the communists took over. Poland is a similar story.)

U.S. bureaucrats may be weeping tears of frustration over their inability to throttle farmers' productivity, but hungry people in other lands would be weeping tears of joy to have the same "problem." Who are we Americans to mourn such a blessing? Would we be better off as a socialist country where even a blade of grass looks tasty?

What problems the government creates when it decides to be court of first resort as well as last.

Blacks not taken seriously

Blot voting by blacks is poor political strategy. The Democrats, who are virtually guaranteed the black vote, get it cheap. The Republicans have little incentive to bid. It's like ladies who promise their all to one suitor; they are taken for granted because the other guys don't even try.

So between now and November, Democrats just have to humor blacks. This means discreet rhetoric, like speeches for "social justice" and "open doors," and an abundance of Reagan - bashing thrown in for good measure. Walter Mondale must, however, be careful to avoid alienating Jewish and Southern voters.

Women have not promised their all to the Democratic party, which means both Democrats and Republicans must take them seriously. Geraldine Ferraro's vice - presidential candidacy was the result of the National Organization for Women's threat to walk out of the convention. Jesse Jackson made a similar threat if his platform planks weren't adopted. Mondale people laughed him off because blacks, a secure Democrat constituency, couldn't walk out.

Monopoly in politics means the same as in economics: fewer choices and higher costs. Through some stroke of fate, imagine Mondale winning in November. What would he owe blacks for their political support? The same thing Jimmy Carter owed. When the Congressional Black Caucus descended on the Carter White House to mau - mau the president by reminding him that the black vote gave him the election, in effect, they were told to go play in traffic. Mondale has incentive to do the same thing, for how credible is the threat that blacks would vote the Kemp - Williams ticket in 1988?

Although blacks have been led into a political Dunkirk by black politicians, it pales compared to the economic massacre. The main victims of this massacre are the poor blacks: the programs are enacted in their name, while the benefits go to the more fortunate blacks.

When Atlantic City legalized casino gambling, a quota agreement was reached during the ensuing building boom requiring blacks to have a certain percentage of the construction contracts; the beneficiaries were well - to - do blacks. Government racial hiring quotas benefit mostly better - educated and higher - skilled blacks. Racial quotas in college admittance, especially in law and medical schools, don't chiefly benefit the down - and - out black in the run - down ghettos; the primary beneficiaries are middle - class blacks.

All this explains income differences that are greater AMONG blacks than BETWEEN blacks and whites. Of course, some people will say you need blacks in high positions in order to help those in lower positions - in other words, trickle down.

At the Democratic convention, not one word was heard of effective programs to help the economically massacred. One such word is deregulation. Restrictive occupational and business licensing laws must be eliminated. Labor laws must be changed so blacks can compete with privileged union members for jobs. Young people ought to be exempt from any requirement of the minimum - wage law.

To deal with the grossly fraudulent education delivered to blacks by the monopolistic education establishment, we need the competition that would come with an education voucher system or tuition tax credits. It's sad that these effective measures will not be advocated because: (1) there are no jobs for elite overseers; (2) taxpayers wouldn't be ripped off in the name of the poor; and (3) no handouts - hence no opportunity to buy votes.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, Aug. 19, the 232nd day of 1984. There are 134 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 19, 1812, the U.S. frigate Constitution, also known as "Old Ironsides," defeated the British frigate Guerriere in the North Atlantic during the War of 1812.

On this date:

Ten years ago: The U.S. ambassador to Cyprus, Rodger P. Davies, was killed by a bullet that penetrated the embassy in Nicosia during an anti-American demonstration by Greek Cypriots.

Five years ago: Two Soviet cosmonauts returned safely to Earth after orbiting the Earth in a space station for 175 days.

One year ago: Southeastern Texas began cleaning up from the ravages of Hurricane Alicia. (The death toll would eventually reach 22.)

Today's birthdays: Publisher Malcolm Forbes is 65. Producer Gene Roddenberry is 63. Jockey Willie Shoemaker is 53. Actress Debra Paget is 51. Minnesota Sen. David Durenberger is 50. Singer Johnny Nash is 44. Actor Adam Arkin is 28.

Amtrak getting a bum rap

In September I have to make a trip from Atlanta to New York. I am going to take the train.

My love affair with trains goes back too far to allow me to panic over the recent flurry of Amtrak accidents, five in 22 days in July, all involving deaths.

And although I have sworn to write not more than one train column a year - and I already have used up my quota for 1984 - I can't remain silent while the Amtrak system gets a bad rap that it doesn't deserve.

I admit somebody needs to do something to make sure that people who prefer rail travel don't have to take white - knuckle train rides, but have you stopped to consider the following?

—Three of the five Amtrak accidents in July involved the train colliding with motor vehicles trying to cross the tracks.

I knew a man once who was a railroad engineer. He said, "For every train, there is at least one idiot in a car or a truck who will try to beat it across the tracks at a crossing just for the hell of it and two more who do not understand the words 'Stop, look and listen.'"

Such people need to have their heads examined while they still have one.

—One of the other Amtrak accidents involved a flash flood washing out a section of track. An investigator called the accident an act of God. So are hurricanes and tornadoes and other quirks of nature. We live with them because we have to.

—The other accident, the head - on collision of two Amtrak trains on a bridge in New York, was the result of an error by a signal tower operator. Investigators tested the urine of the operator and found small traces of cocaine.

If it is determined that the signal tower operator was under the influence of drugs when he allowed the two trains on the same track, which resulted in one death and 125 injuries, I hope God decides to act on him.

But the fact that there was one yo - yo in a signal tower doesn't mean there are others, and we have to accept the fact that there is such a thing as human error, too.

I have traveled on 90 percent of the Amtrak national system and I have fond memories. I have seen most of the nation from eye level, including seeing nude people waving at the train as it passed in California. The airlines can't top that.

I even spent a honeymoon night in a roomette on a train, barely large enough for one person, much less two. I don't accept the idea that that is why the marriage didn't work out, however.

We need passenger trains in this country. They are fuel - efficient; they are a most civilized means of travel, a means of escaping from telephone calls for hours at a time. You don't have to pass through a metal detector to board one. And even with the latest rash of accidents, trains are an inherently safe way to travel.

Consider this, too: More people died in automobile accidents in this country in the time it took me to write this column than in all five July Amtrak crashes.

All aboard.

Help wanted: trade adviser

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The quality of economic advice that President Reagan receives affects both his political future and the future of the nation. President Reagan - indeed any President - needs to hear a wide range of responsible viewpoints.

The country is fortunate in that Mr. Reagan has good economic instincts. He well understands, for example, that the American people don't want more taxes and that such taxes would be a drag on the economy. Indeed they would be an incentive for liberal politicians to indulge in more spending.

Both the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce have offered sound advice in the administration. Both, for example, have pressed for Japanese action to open up their market to American goods. Both have complained of Japanese foot - dragging that results in an enormously unfavorable U.S. trade balance.

One executive branch unit that has been a failure in the administration has been the President's Council of Economic Advisers, the chairmanship of which is now vacant. Although the CEA operates without a chairman, it is not without an influential voice: William Niskanen, an economist who is outspoken in his opposition to confronting America's trade adversaries who target U.S. industries. Although Niskanen sincerely believes in his free trade dogmas, his dogmatic line is a disservice to the his free trade dogmas, his dogmatic line is a disservice to the President in this election year and to the American people in a year when the foreign trade deficit may total $120 billion.

Niskanen's approach will further enrich the Japanese, Koreans and other trade adversaries, who have their state - directed trade strategies, and will also result in additional industrial deterioration in the United States.

Niskanen and other free trade dogmatists have a perfect right to preach their gospel in the face of worsening conditions in U.S. industries hurt by unfair, subsidized competition and by foreign nationalized companies. But the president should have an in - house adviser who is keenly aware of foreign industrial targeting and who is concerned about the people and places affected by the targeting.

This is the type of adviser whom the president needs right now, in the midst of his re - election campaign, as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. People in the steel, automobile, footwear, textile, apparel, electric and computer industries, among others, who are appreciative of the Reagan economic reforms and resistance to high tax policies, are in a position to suggest to President Reagan the names of suitable economists who have a common sense approach to the country's trade and industrial situation.

One would think that the President and his inner circle would want such an economic adviser to be in place now.

Grandview Hopkins lowers taxes

Trustees of the Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District were able to drop their tax rate slightly last week as they approved their 1984-85 budget.

Anticipating $241,217 in revenue from the local maintenance tax, school officials set the tax rate at approximately 17 1/2 cents per $100 valuation. That is down from about 18 cents per $100 valuation last year.

At a public hearing on the budget and tax rate, school officials approved a budget of $260,900 for the 1984-85 school year.

Superintendent T.J. Adkins said that this year's budget total was the same as last year's. He said that increases in salaries were countered by drops in capital outlay and maintenance and operation costs.

"We're not buying any new expensive equipment," Adkins said. A new set of playground equipment, a new lawn and a mower, at a total cost of $20,000, was amended into the 1984 budget.

A bulk of the 1985 budget, $109,100 will go for instruction, with $84,000 of that going to teacher salaries.

Also, $3,000 will go for wages for substitute and part-time teachers, and $15,700 was appropriated for such contracted "professional services" as electrical contracting and the Gray County Appraisal District.

Administration expenses are estimated at $80,900 for administration, with $70,000 going to payroll and $8,500 for professional services. Also, $33,500 will go for maintenance, with $15,000 for salaries. Health services were budgeted $1,300, $1,000 of that going for wages for a part-time nurse.

Adkins anticipates $261,117 in revenue; $241,217 will come from local taxes. About $1,000 is expected from cafeteria revenue and $16,000 from interest-bearing accounts.

Under a new state-funding formula, Grandview-Hopkins could lose up to $8,000 in state per capita funding. Adkins said the school would get about $2,100 for the 1984-85 school year. Last year it got about $10,000.

Education funding and curriculum requirements passed by the Texas Legislature earlier this year affect other areas of the school, even school bus routes.

A new state law requires that schools offer two 45-minute tutoring sessions each week for students who want or need them.

"I toyed with the schedules and I must have made 30 different schedules," Adkins told board members. "We could have the sessions start at 8 a.m. before school starts at 8:45 or at the end of the day."

Adkins reported that the school would have to pull teacher Rebecca Stroud off a bus route so she could teach a tutoring session if needed. There are four teachers and four bus drivers in the district.

Trustees hired Barbara Morris to drive the bus route in place of Stroud.

Trustees also approved the appointment of resident Kenny Babcock to fill the school board seat vacated by Stan Anthony, who resigned last month.

Dissidents gather for GOP convention

DALLAS (AP) — Delegates to a convention of dissidents gathered under a brightly colored circus tent on the Trinity River floodplains Saturday to formally open a city under canvas for protesters at the Republican National Convention.

An estimated 1,500 people gathered in the blazing Texas heat, enduring temperatures above the 100-degree mark to make preparations to protest against President Reagan and members of the national GOP, who meet in air-conditioned comfort this week at the nearby Dallas Convention Center.

Protesters erected 26 barracks-sized tents and two blue-and-white circus tents between bridges spanning the Trinity River.

Smaller two- and three-person tents were sprinkled across the camping area, which had been mowed, sprayed and cleaned by the city of Dallas.

Cold-drink stands, small stores and merchants selling items out of their suitcases lined the makeshift town's main avenue, which protesters dubbed "John L. Lewis Street," in honor of the late leader of the United Mine Workers.

More than two dozen Guardian Angels, donning white T-shirts and maroon berets, patrolled the area.

Ron Hartman, head of the group's Dallas chapter, said, "We are here to keep the peace."

Guardian Angels from across Texas and four other states had been invited to patrol Tent City by the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, or ACORN, Hartman said.

Letters to editor

Higher gas prices

Dear editor: I note from news reports that wholesale gasoline prices in July dropped 3.1 percent and nationwide have been lower only in two months of the past five years.

Of course, motorists in Pampa would never know this except by reading it in your newspaper or from a trip to Panhandle or Amarillo where gasoline prices are 10 cents to 15 cents per gallon less than in Pampa.

Although all posted gasoline prices here are monotonously the same, the Texas Attorney General's office could find no evidence of price fixing during a purported investigation of alleged collusion among local gasoline dealers.

Anyway, it's nice to know that other communities benefit from a world-wide dip and lower crude oil and, consequently, gasoline prices.

The OPEC cartel that has been responsible for astronomical oil prices may have weakened a little but Pampa gasoline dealers still have a firm and united grip on local prices.

Apparently competition in Pampa stops at the gasoline pump.

Driveway torn up

Dear editor: Louis XVI was a French tyrant who lost his head. Certain tyrannical beings involved in Pampa's city government deserve the reverse fate — they should lose their seats (on the City Commission, that is).

The reason I now broach this worn-out subject is because this (Wednesday, August 14) is the day that the bridge between my car and my driveway has been cut. I must, however, give the city credit. They do not show favoritism. Although all repairs and improvements begin in the north part of town, so does all the destruction.

It is my understanding that the initial reason our imported city engineer wanted drain pipes removed from drives was to halt further damage to city streets. Our street, the 100 block of North Nelson, was quite traversable. (Ask any of the speeders who use it each and every day.) There are now small holes out from the drive which I fear will gradually become larger.

Although my husband and I have not obtained estimates on repair to our driveway, my mother has, and repair to her drive will cost from $500 to $700. That kind of money does not come easily to my mother or to my husband and me. I would be interested to know the financial situations of those beings on the City Commission, of the city engineer, or of Mr. Duncan, the gentleman who so graciously came down from lofty heights to inform Pampa citizens through the editorial column of this paper that HE had decided the drain pipes must go. If his address in the phone directory is correct, he is not affected by this issue as his drive is in the more "fruitful" part of Pampa and has no pipe.

This issue is not closed. Citizens of Pampa who care more about people than places will support continued efforts to make things right and just in this community. I hope I recall the following quote correctly, "The only thing needed for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing."

Deborah L. Bailey
Pampa, Texas

May supported

Dear editor: We, as the appointing body (mayor and city council) and registered voters in the Mobeetie District and of Wheeler County are pleased to be represented by Melvin May in this very important project. True this project was defeated in Mobeetie, but is not the end of the project and the need will arise for one who will give his consideration to the interest of the people he represents.

To the best of our knowledge, Mr. May represented the people of Mobeetie in their wishes.

We deny accusations that Mr. May neglected his duty and maintained a blanket disregard of his constituency.

Certainly we, as the governing body of the City of Mobeetie, see no reason to ask that Mr. May resign his office of Board Member of the Wheeler County Water Supply District.

Templeton said. Of that, $180,000 would go to Templeton and partner Bob Garner and $66,500 would go to official lead counsel Hubert Johnson.

"It looks to me like y'all are pumping cash out of Dorchester faster than they're pumping gas out of their Beavers No. 1 well," Spivey quipped.

"Well, I'm sure you know that a lawyer's time and advice are his stock in trade," Templeton replied.

"Yeah, and I know Abraham Lincoln said that, and he'd probably roll over in his grave if he knew you were quoting him," Spivey shot back as laughter erupted in the court chambers.

Among other things, Spivey asked Templeton if the change of venue from Pampa to Lubbock had something to do with where oil and gas were being produced. As Templeton denied that insinuation, Spivey inadvertently referred to him as Garner.

"My name's Templeton, Mr. Spivey," Templeton interjected. "What's your next question?"

Spivey then asked Templeton to reveal who put oil in Harlow's soil wells in order to alter Dorchester's tests performed this summer. Templeton objected, saying he would do so later but claiming the lawyer-client privilege.

District Judge Robert Montgomery sustained his objection.

Long tried to show Templeton had a conflict of interest because he had represented Harlow's ex-wife in their recent divorce case. Templeton had originally represented Dorchester when the suit was initially filed about two years ago and then dropped out to represent her. After the divorce, he returned to the Dorchester case.

who have "good faith" differences of opinion in interpreting contacts and regulations governing oil and gas production.

The Phillips executive, confident that the major companies will prevail, said his company will accept the decisions handed down by the courts, the Railroad Commission and FERC.

"Phillips doesn't make the rules, but we have to operate by them... We'll live by the rules and let everybody get about his business... I think if that's the final word on it, then, that's how we'll operate. We can't make that decision. It's in the hands of elected officials," Cox said.

Dorchester Gas Producing Co. instigated FERC's investigation of charges that 37 independents in Gray and Carson Counties have diverted natural gas from interstate markets and violated federal price controls in selling the gas.

Cox and Phillips executive Jack Ritchie both said their company has no specific plan for asking FERC to extend enforcement into other parts of the field, if the agency orders the independents to shut down wells on Dorchester's 49,000-acre lease.

However, both said that much of the gas outside the Dorchester property also is "old," dedicated gas and should be produced and reported as such.

"We have a lease for gas, and we're producing gas. Along comes someone else producing the same hydrocarbon and calls it something else... We think that someone is taking a hydrocarbon that we have under reservation," Cox said.

and more competition among the teachers.

Adding to the heated discussion was a mandate that schools must set the number of days in each semester that a student may miss for school related activities.

Trustees pondered simply letting the 10-day limit stand and not divide it.

Trustee Marcele Locke believed that dividing the 10 days into five days per semester is most fair.

Board members agreed to leave the 10-day limit alone and not to divide between semesters.

Principal Phil Barefield explained that the 10-day limit is an attendance policy, not an absence policy. It does not apply to Ten percent of the profit from all sales booths will go toward park improvements made each year through Pampa Fine Arts, sponsors of Chautauqua. In 1982 $2,000 was awarded for trees.

Profits from the 1983 event are being used to build a stage stand in Central Park that can be used by groups throughout the year.

Many of the events at the one-day celebration will be free. The stage arena will include three bands, singers, instrumentalists and dancers in shows that will open at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m. The Pizza Inn Metric Bicycle Tour and Fun Tour will kick off at 8 a.m.

Most of the booths will be open by 10 a.m.

A hot air balloon will circle overhead in the early morning, weather permitting. Approximately 30 exhibitors will show arts and crafts, and there will be at least 20 displays. The children's Carousel has grown this year to include 24 events.

State agriculture department steps up in international marketing efforts

MICKIE MUSGRAVE

NICKI JELINEK

Sisters head Amarillo firm

Two Pampa sisters have been named co-managers of Amarillo's Atlas Van Lines agent.

Mickie Musgrave and Nicki Jelinek have been named co-managers of Atlama Moving & Storage, owned by their father Paul Musgrave, who also owns Pampa Warehouse & Transfer.

Miss Musgrave will be responsible for the company's administrative and dispatch operations while Mrs. Jelinek's area of responsibility will include financial operations.

Miss Musgrave has been employed in the moving and transportation industry for 12 years. She has worked in the Amarillo and Pampa Atlas offices for the past six years.

She attended McConnel Travel School in Minneapolis, where she earned a degree for studies related to the transportation industry. Miss Musgrave has also attended Atlas Van Lines sales management courses.

Mrs. Jelinek has been with Atlama for four years as a bookkeeper. She also has several years of experience in other fields of business.

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Department of Agriculture is using personal service, computers and foreign languages to put Tex-Mex food in Hamburg, Germany, restaurants and Ruby Red grapefruit on the shelves of Toyko supermarkets.

Texas feed corn goes to Egypt, peanut butter to Bahrain, sorghum to Taiwan, sweet potatoes to England, sheep to India, cattle to Korea and cotton and wheat all over the globe.

Texas, it appears, has become a player in the highly competitive world of international marketing.

The agriculture department was reorganized after former journalist Jim Hightower became commissioner in January 1983, and in some cases Chinese dialects have replaced Texas twang in selling the state's farm products overseas.

"What we didn't have in-house were people with knowledge of the cultures, languages and marketing practices of the international marketplace," said Paul Lewis, the department's first director of international marketing.

How far his division has come in 18 months was illustrated at a recent meeting of the House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock when staff presentations were made by Kenneth Chuchen of China, Ricardo Garres of Mexico and Mortada Mohamed of Egypt.

Lewis himself, a native Texan, is "very provincial as far as where my heart is." But he speaks French and for six years lived in Brussels, Belgium, as European director of Cotton Council International.

Lewis' international marketing specialists, such as Chuchen, who speaks English, Vietnamese and four Chinese dialects, spend 50 percent of their time on the road.

The goal, Lewis said in an interview, is simple: "To increase the sales profits of Texas agricultural products and livestock."

His job has been made easier by the television program "Dallas," which is syndicated worldwide.

"Texas has fantastic identity in places you would never imagine it does, and a lot of it is because of its western image from films," Lewis said. "Currently, I guess, the biggest promoter of the name of Texas is the TV show, 'Dallas.'"

Last year, international exports from Texas totaled $2.8 billion, Lewis said. Japan was the major buyer, and cotton was the biggest value export.

"We know 65 percent of our cotton is sold for export," he said. "We would guess 80 percent of the wheat produced in Texas is sold for export."

Texas' grain-fed beef is more expensive and also faces tariff barriers and quotas, so what may once have seemed ridiculous to Texas beef processors — invoking the name of God while slaughtering cattle — is now part of doing business in the international market.

Asked about exporting Texas wine, another burgeoning industry, he said, "The next big thing for Texas."

Jane R. Howard is bank officer

Jane R. Howard, a native of Lefors, has been named vice president of First City Bank, Central Park, in San Antonio, according to Richard E. Lane, bank president and chief executive officer.

In her new position, Mrs. Howard will direct the bank's business development, advertising and public relations program, as well as the credit card department.

She has been with the San Antonio bank for 10 years and is a member of the National Association of Bank Women, the American Institute of Banking and the American Marketing Association.

She is the daughter of Monroe Boucher of Lefors and the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard of Pampa.

Jack Dupy retires

Jack L. Dupy of White Deer retired July 1 from Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America after 27 years of service with the firm.

Dupy began his career with Natural in 1957 at White Deer, where he worked at various positions prior to taking his last post of field booster operator in 1973.

He and his wife, Bernice, have been married 34 years and live in White Deer.

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America, an interstate gas transmission firm, operates a 12,750 mile pipeline network supplying gas to 49 customers serving 12 million consumers in a nine-state area.

It is a subsidiary of MidCon Corp., a diversified natural gas transmission company headquartered in Lombard, Ill.

Mines continue to damage ships, but none are located

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — U.S. and British minesweeping forces combed the Gulf of Suez on Saturday seeking to recover a mine similar to those that have damaged at least 18 ships in the gulf and the Red Sea since last month.

U.S. explosives experts believe the devices are resting on the sea bottom rather than floating on top, according to a military source in Cairo.

Four British minesweepers and a U.S. transport ship carrying minesweeping helicopters were at work Saturday in the Gulf of Suez, according to military sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified. The gulf lies between the Suez Canal and the Red Sea.

U.S. experts examined two of the damaged ships and determined that the damage was caused by an external explosion, consistent with that of a mine, said one of the sources.

The number of ships reported damaged since July 9 rose to 18 on Friday when Lloyd's of London insurance underwriters said it received a belated report of an explosion that occurred on July 28.

Lloyd's said the Esta, a Panamanian vessel, was damaged in the Gulf of Suez, but managed to arrive in Jiddah the next day, as scheduled.

No mines have been found. The British and American were seeking to recover an unexploded mine to help determine who made it and who was responsible for sowing it.

The Egyptian navy also was searching for mines.

Mines resting on the sea bed may be exploded by one of three methods — by the sound of the ship moving overhead, by its magnetic field or by the change in water pressure. Because no mines have been recovered, experts say they do not know what type of mine was used.

One military source said normal mines containing between about 550 pounds and 1,100 pounds of explosives would be expected to do more damage than that suffered by the 18 ships. That leads specialists to believe the mines are small and may be intended to send a political message rather than destroy shipping, the source said.

Military experts also said mines are readily available for purchase on weapons markets and are relatively simple to build. The mines easily could have been employed by one ship or several, they said.

U.S. warns Soviets, Cubans on Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has informed the Soviet Union and Cuba that it would be deeply concerned if either assisted Nicaragua in the acquisition of advanced fighter aircraft, the State Department says.

Department spokesman John Hughes, following Nicaraguan confirmation that a major military airport is under construction, said Friday the addition of such aircraft to Nicaragua's existing military capability "would alter the balance of power in the region."

"The building of this airport, as well as the improvements and lengthening of several other military airfields in Nicaragua, would not appear directed, at least potentially, against Nicaragua's armed opposition as much as against Nicaragua's neighbors," Hughes said.

He said both the Soviet Union and Cuba are well aware of the U.S. position on this subject.

According to Pentagon officials, Nicaraguan air power is limited to a few jet trainers inherited from the previous government headed by President Anastasio Somoza.

In contrast, neighboring Honduras, aligned with the United States, possesses 26 combat jet planes, including 12 French Super Mystere fighters, four Korean War-vintage F-86's and 10 A-37 converted trainers.

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said Nicaragua would gain immediate air superiority over Honduras if it acquired MiG jet fighters. The Reagan administration has been concerned about this possibility for some time because it claims that some 50 Nicaraguans have been trained in Bulgaria to fly MiG's.

In addition, Nicaraguan defectors have said that MiGs have been sent to Cuba where they are awaiting delivery to Nicaragua after the November presidential elections in Nicaragua.

Hughes was asked about U.S.

policy on the issue after Sandinista officials took reporters on a tour Thursday of the airport, located some 13 miles northeast of Managua. The main runway would be 4,400 yards and an alternate runway is planned for 3,900 yards. U.S. officials said either one could easily accommodate MiG jets.

A U.S. official, requesting anonymity, said recently that Cuban workers have been constructing the airport on a round-the-clock basis.

Appeals of Lebanese said ignored by U.S. officials

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Rashid Karami charged Saturday that the United States had done nothing to stop "inhuman repression" by Israel in occupied southern Lebanon. Karami said his government may take its complaints to the U.N. Security Council.

Karami told reporters after a 1½-hour meeting with President Amin Gemayel that a final decision on lodging a complaint with the 15-nation council and seeking intervention against Israel would be made at a Cabinet meeting Wednesday.

"The United States has exercised no pressure to stop this inhuman repression" in southern Lebanon, Karami said. "So we are discussing a case at the U.N. Security Council to put things in their right course."

Local radio stations said Karami and Nabih Berri, the state minister for southern Lebanon, had appealed to the Reagan administration several times in the past two weeks to bring pressure to bear on Israel.

"The message we've got is that the United States is totally indifferent," Karami said.

U.S. officials in Beirut have said that the Lebanese must work out their own solution with Israel. They have been particularly adamant about the U.S. maintaining a neutral stance since Lebanon last March canceled the U.S.-brokered troop withdrawal agreement it negotiated with Israel last year.

State and privately owned radio stations said Israeli authorities put up posters at the crossing that said taxis and cars would be banned from the gateway starting Sunday and trucks starting Aug. 29.

The ban means civilians would have to cross into and out of the south on foot, and truck owners would have to unload their cargos and carry them across.

Naturalists rally to save vanishing waterbird

By MARY ESCH
Associated Press Writer

PAUL SMITHS, N.Y. (AP) — As a battered canoe glides toward an island in Upper St. Regis Lake, a lilting falsetto laugh drifts across the waves, and two sleek birds — one apparently with three heads — are spotted.

"It's the loons," says Jim McVey, a graduate student from Thunder Bay, Mich., who is one of six people studying the birds for New York state this summer. "One has a couple of chicks on its back." The spine-tingling wail of the loon across a misty, moonlit lake has stirred the human soul for centuries. The Cree Indians called it Mookwa, Spirit of Northern Waters.

But the waterbirds have vanished from many lakes, and naturalists are rallying to save them in New England, New York and the Midwest.

McVey keeps a distance from the loon family as he notes the size of the chicks. The researchers will return later in the summer to every nest, to again check the young before they migrate south.

They are magnificent birds, with garnet-red eyes, black, snaky necks encircled with a collar of white bars, white-flecked black backs and bright, white breasts.

One of the adults sinks slowly like a submarine, swimming with crooked neck extended like a periscope. Then it vanishes — resurfacing just as smoothly a few dozen yards away.

The loon's peculiar way of submerging, made possible by heavy bones and an ability to squeeze the air from its feathers, is unlike that of other diving, fish-eating birds.

"Loons are one of the oldest species of birds," says McVey. "They've been around for 65 million years."

Loons are superbly adapted for subaqueous propulsion, but they flail around like seals on land. So they nest at water's edge — where they are vulnerable to dams that change the water level, wakes from motorboats, and disturbances by birdwatching canoeists.

"Some people around here say they don't think the loons are declining, since they still see them around," says McVey. "But since adult birds live maybe 20 or 30 years, they may be seeing the same birds year after year — it's the reproductive success and the survival of the young that will determine the long-range survival."

"The loon isn't threatened on a national basis," says Rawson Wood, founder and chairman of the North American Loon Fund, a New Hampshire-based federation of loon associations from eight states where the birds still breed. Wood owns property on Squam Lake — the New Hampshire lake where the 1981 film "On Golden Pond" was filmed. When he noticed around 1975 that the birds were disappearing, Wood and others gathered evidence that led to endangered species status for the loon in his state.

Teams of volunteer Loon Rangers organized to stop disturbance of nesting pairs. Artificial nest sites were built. And an educational campaign — boosted tremendously, says Wood, by Katharine Hepburn's Golden Pond loon scene — was launched.

New Hampshire's loon population grew from 271 birds in 1976 to 363 in 1983, Wood says.

In Vermont, he says, the loon population declined from 56 in 1978 to 34 in 1983. In Maine, the Audubon Society estimates there are more than 3,000 loons; concern is centered on the more developed southern part of the state.

Montana volunteers report about 125 birds there. Loons have mostly disappeared from southern Michigan, and about 100 are left in the Upper Peninsula, Wood says.

Wisconsin has about 1,500 loons, he says, and Minnesota, where the loon is the state bird, has several thousand.

In New York, there are about 200 nesting pairs, mainly in the 6-million-acre Adirondack Park, according to Bob Miller, head of the loon survey for the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

In all states but New Hampshire, studies have not been conducted long enough to determine whether the loon population is stable or declining, Wood says.

"But there is one common trend everywhere," Wood says. "As development comes in, the loons disappear."

"Loss of nesting sites is the main problem," he says. Rafts of logs and natural vegetation have provided about 23 percent of the successful nesting sites in New Hampshire, says Wood.

"These artificial islands may be as important to the survival of the loon as the nest box has been for wood ducks," he says.

Lakefront development isn't the only threat to the loon. There is also a menace from egg-loving raccoons, which proliferate around campgrounds where free lunches are to be had in the garbage pit. There are toxic chemicals and diseases, which killed more than 2,500 loons along Florida's Gulf Coast in 1983. And there is acid rain, which some say is the biggest threat to New York's loon population.

While acid rain has killed the fish in hundreds of Adirondack lakes, Miller says there is no evidence that it is affecting loons. "The loons could simply nest on other lakes that have fish," he says.

This year's study in New York is the beginning of a two-year project to gather data from 600 to 700 lakes that will be compared with data gathered in a 1977-1980 survey of 450 lakes, Miller says.

The study is funded by $20,000 from the "Return a Gift to Wildlife" program, to which state residents donate by checking a box on their income tax forms.

In addition, scores of volunteers organized by the state Audubon chapter and the environmentalist Adirondack Council are gathering their own data to be incorporated into the state study, Miller says.

The North American Loon Fund has distributed more than $70,000 for loon surveys in New York and other states, Wood says. The money was raised through donations and sales of loon T-shirts, belt buckles and other wares.

The most successful money raiser is a recording of loon calls, narrated by Robert J. Lurtsema of PBS radio's "Morning Pro Musica" program. "We expected to sell a few hundred — but we've sold around 25,000 copies," Wood says.

"What we've proved is that loons can co-exist with humans if they are given some kind of protection," he says. "Public education is the single most effective tool in protecting the species."

AN EXAMPLE OF CONVERSION

"Now there was a certain man in Caesarea, Cornelius by name, a Centurion of the band called the Italian band, a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, who gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always" (Acts 10:1-2.) Cornelius was a Gentile and at this time the gospel had not been preached to the Gentiles. God chose to show His acceptance of the Gentiles through miraculous means. Thus the vision was sent to Cornelius in Caesarea and also in Joppa Peter saw a vision. In compliance with the instructions in the vision, Cornelius sent servants to Joppa bring Peter back to Caesarea.

Peter did not understand the vision he saw in Joppa until after the men from Caesarea arrived and told him of Cornelius' vision. The six men who accompanied Peter were convinced of God's acceptance of the Gentiles when they saw the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon Cornelius and his household (Acts 10:44-48). But the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon Cornelius did not save him because Peter says, in his rehearsal of the events, that he was sent to Caesarea to tell Cornelius "words whereby thou shalt be saved, thou and all they house." (Acts 11:14.)

God's power to save is the gospel of Christ (Romans 1:16.) These are the terms of the will and testament of Jesus Christ. There was no exception in the case of Cornelius. While his was to serve as an example of God's approval of the Gentiles being admitted into the Kingdom of His Son, Cornelius' conversion, itself, was no different than any other. He still had to hear, believe, repent and be baptized in order to be saved. Christ's testament has been rendered effective through and by His death (Hebrews 9:15-17.) Therefore, we have to go by those terms of His will in order to receive the benefits.

Historic Cleveland theater given a new life

CLEVELAND (AP) — Once slated for demolition, the State Theater in Playhouse Square — Cleveland's theater district — stands scrubbed and polished and boasting a new $7 million stage and stage house as it again becomes a center for entertainment.

The 3,100-seat theater opened in 1921 at a time when movies and vaudeville flourished. It closed in 1969 as movies followed patrons to the suburbs.

Now with a new stage and state-of-the-art equipment, the State opened its inaugural season this spring with the glitter and glamour of the Metropolitan Opera from New York on its annual week-long visit to the city.

The State is one of three theaters — all historic National Landmarks — in what is now Playhouse Square Center. The area was dubbed Playhouse Square 60 years ago when its many theaters created a bustling entertainment district a half mile out from the heart of downtown Cleveland.

Officials at the Playhouse Square Foundation, a non-profit group that manages the theaters, banked on the reopening of the State to resurrect the area by drawing theatergoers and their entertainment dollars to the theaters and area businesses.

"The grand opening of the State marks the end of a dream and beginning of a legacy," said Larry Wilker, foundation president. "Great care has been taken to transform the State into a performance facility that will rank among the best in the country."

The State, primarily a movie house, and the adjacent Ohio Theater, a legitimate theater, opened in February 1921 under the auspices of the "Loew's Ohio Theaters." In its heyday the top names of the entertainment industry performed on its stage.

The State is considered one of the finest of the nearly 300 theaters designed by architect Thomas Lamb, according to a history written for the foundation. Its architecture is a blend of Roman, Greek and European Baroque. Two marble staircases carry patrons from the lobby, which is dominated by four 50-foot murals, mahogany pillars and a huge marble fireplace.

The State and the Ohio were saved from the wrecking ball in the early 1970s by the combined efforts of volunteers, civic groups and government agencies. Preservation of the two theaters was clinched in 1977 when the Cuyahoga County government bought the Loew's Building which houses them. The foundation also secured a long-term lease with private owners of the third theater, the Palace Theater.

A $27 million fund-raising drive launched in 1980 brought in private and public money to renovate the theaters. The refurbished 1,000-seat Ohio reopened two years ago as the home of the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival, the Ohio Ballet and other performing groups. Restoration of the 3,200-seat Palace is to be completed in 1986.

The State renovation included replacement of the stage, which was 25 feet deep, with a 65-foot stage and the latest in lighting and sound equipment. The house includes two rehearsal halls, dressing rooms and an orchestra pit.

City tackles decay of business district park

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Cows and pigs no longer roam Bienville Square, as they did more than a century ago, and gone is the sight of townsfolk hanging clothes from the park's tree limbs.
Gone, too, is the fence which the city erected around the square in the 1850s to keep out livestock.
But a fence couldn't keep out the urban problems which now plague the historic park in downtown Mobile— problems such as congestion and the annoying wayfarer with a sleeping bag under his arm or wine bottle is a paper sack.

Since Hurricane Frederic struck the city in 1979, leaving tons of fallen tree limbs in its rubble wake, concern has increased over the city's landscape appearance and the survival of wind-damaged trees that form a canopy over historic Government Street.
Bienville Square, with its 77 live oaks and solitary magnolia, draws particular concern, since the public park is set in the middle of the downtown business district and plays a key role in the city's history.

It is named after the city's founder, Jean Baptiste LeMoynes, Sieur de Bienville, who also founded New Orleans.
Last year, the city threw out an annual Mardi Gras drinking and rock 'n' roll party that had located itself in the park and added to the wear and tear on the square.
A more dangerous threat has been the trample of feet over the past 141 years, packing the sandy soil to such compactness that water can hardly seep enough to reding to Ray Dickens, a turf specialist at Auburn University, one of many specialists who have examined Bienville Square.

Years ago, the city attempted to build a bus stop canopy on one side of the park, creating such a stir the project was cancelled, leaving an odd piece of concrete on the north side of the square.
"Park desecration," critics called the idea that sent attorneys to search deeds. They found that the park must always be a park.

GROWING GRASS UNDER TREES

Deteriorating lawns are often blamed on a lack of fertilizer or competition with tree roots when the actual culprit is too much shade.

This is especially true in newer residential areas where lawns were established and trees planted shortly after the owner moved in. Everything grew beautifully the first eight to ten years, and then suddenly the grass began to thin out and weeds started to invade the lawn.

What actually happened was that as the trees grew larger, their shades covered more area.

Bermuda grass is sun-loving and will look ragged in shaded location. It is seldom worthwhile to attempt to grow Bermuda grass beneath trees.

Tall Fescue is more shade tolerant, but it won't thrive in heavy shade. Fescue will do fine under young trees, but as they grow and produce more shade, the grass begins to thin.

Grass leaves need ample light to produce necessary sugars and starches through photosynthesis. Without light, the plant starves for lack of food, and no amount of fertilizer or water will cure it.

These few steps may help grass in shady areas:

Raise the height of your mower blade so the mowing height is at least 3 inches in shaded areas.

Avoid using high-nitrogen fertilizers which can promote disease problems.

Practice deep watering at less frequent intervals.

Avoid foot traffic over the area. Thin out the crowns of trees by cutting back to side branches, allowing more light to penetrate.

Remove a few of the trees completely. The remaining trees will soon fill in, and you will seldom miss the ones that were removed.

Remove leaves promptly as they fall.

Remove a few of the lower limbs on existing trees to a height of 8 to 10 feet. This will permit more sunlight to reach the grass.

Shade tolerant ground covers can be an alternative to grass. Good shade-loving ground cover plants include English ivy, ajuga, vine minor and mondo grass. If the shade is not too heavy, Asiatic jasmine will also do well.

Unfortunately, these ground covers will not tolerate foot traffic, but they will cover the area and look much better than bare ground.

A POWER MOWER SAFETY QUIZ

How well do you know your power lawn mower? Your mower is a dependable friend, but do you treat it as it should be treated - with safety and respect?

Here is a true or false quiz that will test your knowledge and ability to operate your mower safely. Answer true or false to these 10 questions.

1. When your mower runs out of gas after you've been operating it a while, refill the tank quickly to make sure it will restart easily.

2. Make sure children and pets are at least five feet away from an operating lawn mower.

3. That latest lawnmowers, especially riding models, are powerful enough to forget the old rule about clearing the area to be mowed of stones and twigs before mowing.

4. It's best to cut grass while it is wet.

5. It is always better to push instead of pull your mower.

6. Never attempt to unclog your mower while the motor is running.

7. Mow steep slopes sideways with a walk-behind mower.

8. When using a riding mower, mow steep slopes up and down - in a vertical direction.

9. Mowing is a fine American pastime and one of the best ways for young children to earn some extra spending money.

10. If you've turned off the engine, it's safe to work on your mower.

Now for the answers.

1. False. Refueling a hot engine can cause the gasoline to ignite and explode. Wait until the engine cools down somewhat, and always remember to refuel out-of-doors.

2. False. Five feet is much too close. Make sure they're completely off the lawn. Children and pets can be seriously hurt by small objects flying from the discharge chute, or by accidentally backing into them if you use a riding mower.

3. False. Pebbles, twigs, etc., when picked up and hurled from the mower's discharge chute, can fly at bullet speeds. It makes no difference whether the mower is new or old, pusher-type or rider.

4. False. Wet grass can cause you to slip and catch your foot under any type of mower. Wait until the grass dries out even if it means mowing later in the day.

5. True. If you pull your mower, you can easily slip and pull it over your foot.

6. True. This is one of the most common causes of power mower accidents, when a hand gets caught in a moving blade. When clogging occurs, always shut off the engine and discharge gears.

7. True. Up-and-down mowing on grades with a walk-behind power mower can cause the operator to lose control and have the mower slip onto him.

8. True. The rule for steep hill mowing is: With riding mowers - up and down; with walk-behind mowers - sideways.

9. False. Power lawn mowers can be a dangerous tool for most youngsters under 14. Never allow small children to operate a power mower.

10. False. Without a spark plug wire disconnected, your mower's blade can start like a plane's propeller. One turn of the blade and you're in real trouble.

How did you make out? If you made less than a perfect score, then why not go back and review that part again. Better be safe than sorry. And that beautifully trimmed lawn will be reward enough for a job well done, and safely done.

LAXATIVE ABUSE
Laxatives should be used only to relieve constipation not to speed up elimination after a binge. For occasional constipation, caused by poor diet, inactivity, stress or travel, a few days is ample time for a mild laxative to work. Do not use a laxative any longer unless specifically prescribed by a physician. The best cure for constipation is to increase the intake of fluids and fiber and by regular exercise. Prolonged use or abuse of laxatives can lead to dependency. It will then be difficult to do without one. Laxative abuse can lead to damaged bowel function. Many laxatives will also irritate the lining of the bowel while others will impair its normal contractions. Most lead to dehydration, imbalances in body minerals and faulty absorption of nutrients.

Missouri leads in soil conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the battle against soil erosion, one of the nation's most serious environmental problems, Missouri residents "put their money where their mouth is," as one conservationist describes it.

The point of his praise is what agricultural and conservation officials enthusiastically describe as a first in the nation — a referendum approved last week by Missouri voters enacting a $30.5 million sales tax increase with the revenue divided equally between soil and water conservation and state parks.

"It's significant that they found an innovative way to fund soil conservation. They are pioneers," said Edward Thompson Jr., counsel for the American Farmland Trust, a Washington-based conservation group.

Others share his view. "It's definitely a precedent. Nobody has taken the step of earmarking money to go to soil and water conservation like Missouri," says Peter Meyers, chief of the Agriculture Department's Soil Conservation Service. "I expect we will see a few other states try this."

The one-tenth of a cent tax increase, which takes effect in July 1985 and will expire automatically five years later, is the first statewide tax dedicated to soil and water conservation programs, according to Eugene Lamb, state programs specialist for the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts in Washington.

"We consider it quite significant," says Lamb. "We're seeing public support for soil and water conservation."

For the most part, states divert a share of their general tax revenues to conservation projects and combine it with federal money. A few have issued bonds or enacted special minerals production taxes to finance conservation efforts.

"I think we kind of surprised the country," says Fred Lafser, director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources. "We immediately had a number of calls from other midwestern states with similar problems that wanted to know how we did it."

Missouri now spends only about $10 million a year on conservation programs, with only about $3 million coming from state government. That doesn't come close to addressing all erosion problems, says Lafser.

By some estimates, it would cost nearly $1.4 billion just to take care of erosion-prone cropland. Even more if pastureland and forests are included.

According to the USDA, Missouri has the second worst rate of cropland erosion from water, losing an average of 9.8 tons of soil a year. It is second only to Tennessee.

Generally a loss of five tons per acre is the most that soil can lose in a year and still maintain its productivity. In Missouri, like many other areas, the problem has grown more acute.

In June, heavy rainfall stripped away an estimated 300 million tons of topsoil in some parts of the state. "Under normal situations, it's considered a disaster if you lose that in 10 years," says Lafser. "We are not going to solve the problem with the five-year duration of the tax amendment but it will make a substantial dent in the most serious problems."

The sales tax revenue will be used mostly for cost-sharing and loan programs to help farmers build terraces, grassed waterways and watershed projects. Some money will go for technical assistance to advise producers of new conservation techniques such as no-till farming.

The sales tax proposal came from a state legislator, and was patterned somewhat after a similar tax increase in 1976 that funneled money into Missouri's fish and wildlife services.

In Agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

The following information is from Dr. Carl Patrick, Amarillo Extension entomologist, and represents the insect situation over the Panhandle area.

Greenbugs continue to develop in grain sorghum. While predators and parasites are providing some control, it is not enough in many fields. Producers need to check individual fields for greenbug infestations are highly variable within the same area. The brown, swollen mummies comprise less than 5 percent of the infestations in most fields checked to date. It is not until mummies reach about the 20 percent parasitism rate that they are considered to have a green bug infestation under control.

Mites are beginning to appear in grain sorghum fields. They usually start on the lower portions of the plant and move upward. Considerable webbing on the underside of the leaves is associated with spider mite infestations. Continue to check for this pest, for they will tend to increase as greenbugs disappear.

Headworms will be the next pest of concern in grain sorghum. It could especially be bad this year in light of what we are seeing in cotton. The cotton bollworm and sorghum headworm are the same insect, and since bollworms are very heavy in cotton, the potential is very high for them to infest sorghum. Headworms need to be detected early in order to prevent yield loss. If an average of 2 per head is found, an insecticide application is due. An average of one per head is needed to justify an insecticide application in seed production sorghum. One of the best ways to check sorghum for headworms is to shake the heads in a white plastic bucket.

DEADLINE NEAR FOR SMALL GRAINS INSURANCE

Farmers interested in signing up for federal crop insurance on their 1985 wheat, oats and barley have until Aug. 31 to do so.

This applies to farmers not previously enrolled in federal crop insurance.

Producers who insured their crops last year will automatically have their contracts renewed unless they were cancelled or terminated. However, if such producers want to change their level of coverage or price election, they need to do so by the same Aug. 31 deadline.

Crop insurance is designed to take some of the risk out of farming. It is an alternative strategy for managing yield or production shortfalls. In a sense, crop insurance protects the money that it takes to make money.

When a producer applies for a crop insurance, he must specify the level of coverage (50, 65 or 75 percent) and the price. Price options include $1.75, $2, and $2.40 per bushel for barley; $1, $1.25 and $1.50 per bushel for oats; and $2.50, $3.25 and $3.75 per bushel for wheat. The higher the coverage and price levels selected, the higher the premium.

For the insurance to be effective, a producer must plant his crop prior to the county's final planting date. He also must file an acreage report with the insurance agent by the acreage reporting date. This report provides a portion of the information needed for the summary of protection - number of acres insured, total bushel guarantee and net premium.

While most small growers have already done most of their planning regarding their 1985 crop, they may not have given careful consideration to risk management. There's still time to do this, including taking a close look at crop insurance.

DON'T KISS $8,938 GOODBYE

That's how much you could lose just on resale value if you don't buy a John Deere

Looking for a big discount when you buy a tractor? Don't get stuck with an even bigger discount when you want to sell it.

Always consider resale value when you price a field tractor. Because the differences among brands may sometimes be bigger than ANY purchase incentive.

Compare John Deere with our two leading competitors. According to the Spring 1984 Official Guide of the National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association, the average 5-year-old John Deere 4440 sells for 106 percent of its 1979 list price. One leading competitor averages 87 percent of its 1979 list price. The other averages 73 percent.

What's that mean in dollars? Add the John Deere gain on original price to the competitor's loss. The John Deere advantage is as much as $8,938!

Is this only true of one model?

No. Every 40 Series 90- to 180-hp tractor has an average resale price that's higher than its new price five years ago.

Is resale your only John Deere advantage? No. Don't forget the remarkable fuel efficiency of today's 50 Series

John Deere tractors. And don't forget our unmatched reputation for high quality and high reliability. See your John Deere dealer. He'll be happy to explain the big difference between a low-price tractor and a low-cost John Deere: 100-hp 4050, 120-hp 4250, 140-hp 4450, 165-hp 4650 or 190-hp 4850.

NOTE: Average resale prices taken from Spring 1984 Official Guide of The National Farm and Power Equipment Dealers Association. Percentages calculated from best currently available information on 1979 list prices.

South Texas thirsty for rain

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Dust swirls behind a farmer plowing a parched black field, and heat waves sizzle in the distance on the wide coastal plain outside of town.

On the horizon, an elusive pool of blue water promises relief from the killing heat. But it's only a mirage. Corpus Christi hasn't seen water in a long time.

In fact, so little rain has fallen since 1982 on the watershed serving the city that, at the end of this month, water in Corpus Christi will be rationed.

Other parts of the state are in a similar fix, and some say the drought is the worst in 30 years.

A dozen smaller cities feed off Corpus Christi's water system. Although few in number, the towns cover a large part of the state — about 7,000 square miles — an area larger than the states of Delaware, New Jersey or Rhode Island.

Families living in this area will be allowed only a set amount of water each month based on household size. Water gluttons will find a surcharge on their bills, and three-time ration violators will be cut off from the water supply.

Doug Matthews, director of public utilities, said the plan was implemented to make current reservoir resources last through the fall of 1985 with a minimum of sacrifice.

"The limits are set high enough so they won't substantially change anyone's lifestyle... except maybe the guy who takes a half-hour shower," said Matthews.

If the hot and dry weather continues, officials say residents in a large number of South and Central Texas towns also may be in for shorter showers — or worse.

Cattlemen and ranchers in West Texas still are reeling from the financial blows dealt them by a year-long drought that is just ending. Many lost crops or herds.

The drought has drifted east, and extends from Del Rio west through San Antonio and Austin, north to Abilene and south to Corpus Christi.

More than 72 Texas cities have instituted water conservation plans. In 28 towns, they are mandatory.

"But in another month, without rain, we could be looking at 100 cities with mandatory rationing," said Jack Stearman, a hydrologist with the state's water resources department.

Stearman said this drought is not yet as severe as one in the 1950s that lasted three years, "but the impact of this one is comparable because of increased population and the demand this has placed on water supplies."

Corpus Christi, a city of 232,000, is expected to grow 23 percent in the next decade, rivaling Texas boomtowns like Dallas, Austin and San Antonio, where water supplies can't keep up with demand.

More people using more water have placed a particular strain during the drought on the underground reservoir serving much of Central Texas, including San Antonio, the Edwards Aquifer.

Without replenishment, the aquifer water table had been dropping to levels like those reached during the 1950s drought. But with conservation, the level has stabilized and rationing is unlikely, San Antonio water officials said.

Still, the San Antonio water authorities are watching Corpus Christi with keen interest. They know that someday, with or without rain, water rationing may be a fact of life in Texas.

"We have water resources for the next 20 to 30 years to provide for our projected rate of growth, but after that we're going to have to learn to get along with less or turn to the Gulf of Mexico as a supply," said Wayne Jordan, director of the Water Resources Institute at Texas A&M University.

"Who knows, 100 years from now things like water rationing may be commonplace," Jordan said.

Matthews said the drought has been a lesson in planning for city officials who thought construction of a new reservoir, completed after the start of the drought, would supply the city for the next 40 years.

"We really felt we were in good shape, but it turns out we weren't," Matthews said. "We've learned we need to look for a variety of water sources."

A special city commission now is studying alternatives like seeding clouds, drilling new wells, transporting water through 100 miles natural gas pipeline, desalinating seawater and recycling waste-water.

Like aluminum cans, wastewater already is being recycled by enterprising Corpus Christi entrepreneurs who have found a way to profit from the crisis.

Frank Dietz, owner of Perma Grass Lawn Care, said the lawn installation business dried up without rain. So Dietz has turned his 10 gardeners into waterboys.

Each day, about 10 of Dietz's 1000-gallon tank trucks get in line at a city treatment plant to load up on sewage effluent, free of charge. Sewage effluent always has been dumped in the Gulf, but no more.

Dietz sells truckloads of treated wastewater for $40 each to residents hoping to rescue dying lawns and shrubs. A similar amount of water run off the city system costs about $2.

"I like to say you have to be affluent to afford effluent," Dietz joked. He can afford to. At 25 lawns a day, Dietz stands to earn $2,500 a month until the drought ends.

Other Corpus Christi businessmen aren't so fortunate. Royel Martinez' pool construction company hasn't received any new work for more than three weeks.

"Nobody in their right mind would buy a pool right now because they can't fill it up," said Martinez, who plans to lay off six of his 15 employees.

Martinez and other pool builders, nurserymen, canoe rental company owners and businessmen who depend on water for their livelihood are praying for rain.

Prospects don't look good. "The fall in Texas is normally a dry period so the chances would be pretty slim that we'll be breaking out of this drought anytime soon," said Larry Peabody, chief forecaster for the National Weather Service in San Antonio.

Unless a hurricane hits, August, September and October probably will be dry, Peabody said.

While a hurricane would certainly bring rain, it "would be a case of the cure being worse than the sickness," he said.

Too much rain in parched South and Central Texas would cause flash flooding.

DATES

August 20 - Community Service Project for Bake Show participants
August 23 - Gray County Bake Show at the Pampa Mall

GRAY COUNTY BAKE SHOW

Come be a part of the 1984 Bake Show!! When: Thursday, August 23; Where: Pampa Mall; Time: Turn in product and project record form at the Mall between 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m. Judging will be held from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. (You need not be present). Awards Assembly will be at 6:30 p.m. in the Pampa Mall. Who: Anyone ages 9-19.

There is no deadline for entry. You only need to turn in a project form and a product as designed above.

Juniors are making Special Peach Muffins. Seniors are making Whole Grain Honey Bread.

Prizes: Gift certificates to Pampa Hardware for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place Juniors and Seniors.

If you are interested in entering, please call the office to get your recipe and further instructions.

All 4-H'ers who plan to enter the Bake Show are encouraged to participate in the community service project. Everyone needs to take either one or two dozen peach muffins or a loaf of whole grain honey bread to the Meals on Wheels between 7 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday. Meals on Wheels will distribute the bread. Please try to participate in this activity. It will be a great experience for you and will help you complete your project record form.

4-H CAN MAKE IT HAPPEN

With the many problems facing this nation, it is refreshing to see young people ready and willing to help bring about solutions to these pressing concerns. Enthusiasm and optimism have always been admirable qualities of American youth. Their vigor inspires all of us to do a better job in coping with problems.

Youthful exuberance combined with the guidance and experience of adults provides an unbeatable combination. The results of that cooperation are evident in the 4-H program.

4-H'ers from all economic, ethnic and social backgrounds are helping clean - up and protect the environment and natural resources. The youth work to conserve energy, assist in agricultural production, and help improve health and nutrition habits of the community. In the process, 4-H'ers develop good citizenship and leadership traits and acquire skills that will help them in later life.

Youthful enthusiasm and energy combined with adult guidance and support and working together in a common purpose - that's the 4-H story today. County Extension agents support the efforts of 4-H'ers, their parents, their leaders and alumni "to make the best better."

County Extension agents encourage young people who have plenty of enthusiasm and adults who may wish to volunteer their time and talents to get involved in 4-H and help "make it happen."

Information on 4-H programs and activities is available at the County Extension office.

Dow wants more money for power

AUSTIN (AP) — Dow Chemical Co., which produces enough electricity for 160,000 homes, wants the Public Utility Commission to make Houston Lighting & Power pay more for that power.

But HL&P, which is forced by law to buy the electricity generated from Dow, says it doesn't need all the electricity Dow produces, and definitely doesn't want it at the price Dow is seeking.

"We don't need 600 megawatts, not in 1984 in any case," said HL&P spokesman Graham Painter. "We do have an offer on the table with Dow to buy 300 megawatts, but they are trying to go for the bigger dollars."

"We are not going to be bulldozed by Dow into paying more than we

PRE-SEASON INTERVIEW— Pampa High head coach John Kendall talks to an Amarillo television reporter about the upcoming 1984 football season. The Harvesters started contact workouts Friday as the season opener Sept. 8 with Monahans draws closer. (Staff Photo by L.D. Strate)

Harvesters don full pads

The Pampa Harvesters donned full equipment Friday and Saturday as workouts shifted into higher gear in preparation for the 1984 football season.

"The kids are working hard and the attitude is great," said Pampa head coach John Kendall. "In the mornings we've been working on our offensive game and in the afternoons its been defense."

Pampa opens the season Sept. 8 (Saturday) at Monahans.

"We don't have any spots filled yet. The positions are open to anybody."

The Harvesters may start working on a two-platoon system after Thursday's scrimmage with Boys Ranch, Kendall said. That scrimmage will be held at Harvester Stadium. Another scrimmage is planned (Aug. 31 at Tascosa) before the season opener.

Although Kendall is concerned with the Harvesters lack of depth, he's impressed with the size of some of the players.

"Lyle Van Buskirk and David McGrath both weigh 245 pounds, so I'm pleased with that," Kendall added.

The Harvesters are also working on the kicking game with Jimmy Bridges, David Carter and Paul Graves trying to land a first-team job as punter.

"Right now, it's a little early to tell if anybody's got an edge yet," Kendall added.

Kendall's coaching staff includes

Gary Cornelsen, offensive line and defensive secondary; Billy Butler, offensive backs and defensive linebackers; Sam Porter, offensive and defensive tackles and tight ends; Tom Pollack, receivers and secondary; Dale Minor, centers and defensive ends.

"We've got a good group of coaches," Kendall said. "I feel real fortunate to have the quality of coaching we have this year."

Mike Lopez is the new freshmen coach and he'll be assisted by Mike Traphagan and Larry York.

Pampa freshmen begin workouts at 5 p.m. Monday.

Middle school coaches are Steve Porter, Dick Dunnam, Mark Bowman and Melvin Morris.

Trevino leads PGA tourney

By KEVIN McCULLEN
AP Sports Writer
PROVO, Utah (AP) — In 13 seasons at Brigham Young University, LaVell Edwards has guided the Cougars to eight consecutive Western Athletic Conference championships and created a passing offense that has become the most potent in college football.

With All-American quarterback Steve Young, BYU's offense in 1983 became the best in collegiate history with a staggering average of 584 yards total offense per game en route to an 11-1 season, a Holiday Bowl championship and the No. 8 ranking in the country.

But Young and All-American tight end Gordon Hudson now are in the United States Football League, and Edwards — for the first time in a 105-37-1 career at BYU — enters a season without a proven quarterback.

In addition, the Cougars' first four opponents include Pittsburgh, Baylor, Tulsa and Hawaii — expected to offer BYU a stiff challenge for WAC predominance — to form what Edwards calls "one of the toughest beginning schedules we've ever had."

Still, Edwards is approaching 1984 with a hint of optimism.

"We have the potential to be a very good team," said Edwards, whose winning percentage of .734 ranks seventh among active coaches.

Much will depend on how quickly BYU's graduation-thinned backfield and tight ends develop and prosper in an offense that contains no set passing routes and forces a quarterback to constantly read the defense to find open receivers. The latest heir to a BYU quarterback position previously held by such past and current professional athletes as Gifford Nielsen, Marc Wilson, Jim McMahon and Young will be either Robbie Bosco, a 6-foot-3, 190-pound junior from Roseville, Calif., or 6-0 junior Blaine Fowler, from Elmira, N.Y.

Bosco, as Young's backup in 1983, completed 17 of 28 passes for 252 yards and three touchdowns. Bosco's arm is accurate and strong — he had a team-best 64-yard completion last season — but untested.

His running backs also will be new, forming what Edwards calls "the most inexperienced backfield situation we've had in a long time."

BYU's running backs probably will include sophomore Lakei Heimuli, Vai Sikahema and converted running back Kelly Smith. Seldom-used senior David Mills gets the nod at tight end.

But three starters return on the line, including 6-5, 260-pound Craig Garrick at guard, a second-team all-league selection. The receivers will be veterans Glen Kozlowski and Adam Haysbert.

The Cougars' defense has six returning starters and contains a line and linebacker corps that Edwards considers "one of the strongest fronts we've had coming back in a long time."

Seniors Brad Smith and Jim Herrmann anchor the line, while 6-2, 227-pound junior Leon White, senior Marv Allen and junior Cary Whittingham are back at three of the linebacker positions.

Senior safety Kyle Morrell, a second-team all-league pick, leads a relatively seasoned secondary. The punting and kicking duties again will fall to Lee Johnson, who averaged 50.6 yards per punt last year.

BYU's chances of extending its string of league championships to nine, however, ultimately depends on how long it takes either Bosco or Fowler to assume mastery of their position.

BYU faces uncertain season

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Lee Trevino, apparently poised to make a rout of it, squandered two strokes in the placid pond by the 18th green but still retained a one-shot advantage Saturday after three rounds of the 66th PGA National Championship.

Trevino, 44, grinding away in grim-faced pursuit of his first victory in more than three full seasons, salvaged a 5-under-par 67 despite a 5-6 finish over the treacherous, 7,145 yards of hilly terrain that make up the Shoal Creek Club course.

A brilliant 30 over the front side put him four shots clear of the field most of the hot, humid day, but the faltering finish turned a potential run-away into a close race going into Sunday's final round in the last of the season's four major championships.

Trevino, who now spends as much time as a television commentator as he does as an active player, finished three trips over the deep, punishing rough in 204, 12 strokes under par.

His double bogey from the water on the 18th opened the gate to a host of challengers, with old friend and golfing foe Gary Player and the dangerous Lanny Wadkins in the forefront.

Gary Hallberg and veteran Ray Floyd, twice a winner of this title, each had a 68 and were at 208.

Soviets open "Friendship 84" games

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet victories by Oleg Protzenko in the men's triple jump and Nadezhda Ralldugina in the women's 1,500 meters Saturday bettered marks set in the Los Angeles Olympics in action following the official opening of the Friendship '84 Games.

The day saw no world records here or in the other cities hosting the Eastern Bloc's answer to the Olympics.

While Protzenko was competing in the men's triple jump and field competition, Sergei Kopylov, also of the Soviet Union, took the 1,000-meter cycling race here. His time — one minute, 3.56 seconds — easily bettered the winning Olympic mark, but conditions at the Moscow velodrome and at the Los Angeles Olympic track are not comparable.

Dalton leads club tourney

LaVonna Dalton held off three challengers to take a one-stroke lead in the Pampa Ladies Club Championship Saturday at the Country Club golf course.

Dalton shot an 84 to earn medalist honors after the first 18-holes of play. The tournament ends today with 18 more holes.

Joan Terrell is just one stroke behind Dalton at 85. Mackey Scott and Mary Myatt are tied for third at 86 in the championship flight.

Other flight leaders are Margaret Lawyer, 92, first flight and Mary Fain, 103, second flight. Jeanene Augustine and June Kelp are tied for the third-flight lead at 114.

In the putting contest, Vi Dunnam and Margaret Lawyer tied for first to force a putt-off between the two today.

Dunnam won the closest to the pin contest at two-foot, five inches.

Giants edge Mets

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manny Trillo's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth lifted San Francisco to a 6-5 victory Saturday over the New York Mets.

The winning rally started on Jeff Leonard's leadoff single. Dan Gladden sacrificed, and Leonard went to third on a wild pitch by Brent Gaff, 1-2. Randy Lerch, 4-1, pitched one inning for the win.

The Giants trailed 3-1 before racking up four runs against relievers Wes Gardner and Ed Lynch in the seventh.

Johnny LeMaster doubled, advanced on a grounder and scored on Dan Gladden's single. Trillo's double made it 3-3. Chili Davis doubled in the tie-breaker. Lynch replaced Gardner and Dusty Baker hit an RBI single for a 5-3 lead.

The Mets bounced tied it with two runs in the eighth off reliever Greg Minton. Danny Heep singled, reached third on grounders and scored on George Foster's single. Singles by Hubie Brooks and Rusty Staub scored Foster.

NFL Roundup

Patriots surprise Redskins

NFL ROUNDUP
By The Associated Press
New England was credited with a National Football League preseason victory over Washington because the Patriots put more points on the scoreboard. But Coach Ron Meyer wasn't about to smile over that.

"The point is not to win these games," a downcast Meyer said after Friday's 31-27 triumph over the Redskins.

"The point is to stay healthy," added Meyer. "We lost a couple of key players."
Notable among the hobbled Patriots were wide receiver Irving Fryar, New England's No. 1 draft choice, and punter Rich Camarillo. Fryar suffered bruised ribs and an early report was that he might miss the regular season opener. And Camarillo, who suffered a knee injury, must undergo x-rays before his status is determined.

In the other NFL game Friday, Dave Kreig and Jim Zorn each threw touchdown passes as Seattle shaded St. Louis 17-7 in a battle of exhibition unbeaten.

Tonight's exhibition schedule features 10 games — Cincinnati at Chicago, Cleveland at Kansas City, Indianapolis at Denver, Detroit at Buffalo, Green Bay at the Los Angeles Rams, New Orleans at Houston, the Jets against the Giants in a battle of two New York club, Philadelphia at Minnesota, San Francisco at San Diego and Tampa Bay at Atlanta.

In addition to Fryar and Camarillo, New England also lost quarterback Tony Eason to a shoulder injury in the fourth quarter, which cleared the way for Tom Ramsey to come on and throw the game-deciding 40-yard touchdown pass to Craig James. Mosei Tatupu's second touchdown of the evening, a 23-yard run, gave New England a 31-17 edge.

While Meyer lamented the injuries that dimmed the luster of New England's first victory in three exhibition outings, Washington Coach Joe Gibbs was voicing concern over his mistaken-identity club.

"Obviously, we are pleased with neither our offense, defense nor special teams," Gibbs said. "We fumbled the ball in close and we threw some interceptions. Those are mistakes we just can't make."

Joe Theismann ran for one touchdown and passed for another in staking Washington to a 17-10 halftime lead.

Kreig threw a 13-yard scoring pass to Allen Bryant in the first half to tie Seattle, 4-0, into a 7-7 halftim tie with St. Louis, 2-1. Norm Johnson's 37-yard field goal broke the tie midway through the third period and Zorn completed the evening with a 40-yard strike to Chris Castor later in the quarter.

The Cardinals' only score came on a 1-yard pass from Neil Lomax to Doug Marsh 10 minutes into the game.

"We're competitive, but we're not where we want to be, not where we need to be to start the season," said Seattle Coach Chuck Knox, although he did admit that the Seahawks are "ahead of last year's team."

"Seattle's a pretty good football team," said Coach Jim Hanifan of St. Louis. "Like last year, they're a force to be reckoned with... in the second half, the Seattle defense shut us down."

Lopez sets records in Chevrolet tourney

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — Nancy Lopez, making up eight shots in 14 holes, shattered two tournament and two course records Saturday, shooting a 7-under-par 65 for the third-round lead in the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's Golf.

Her 54-hole total of 208, eight strokes below par at Shaker Heights Country Club, as the lowest score for three rounds in this 5-year-old tournament that matches the best 12 players of the year.

Donna Caponi owned the previous 54-hole record of 210, shot in 1980. Lopez's 18-hole performance also broke the record of 66 that Sally Little, JoAnne Washam and JoAnne Carner had shared.

Her 18 and 54-hole totals also represented club records. Lopez was two shots ahead of Betsy King, who after 36 holes had led by three shots over Patty Sheehan and by five over Lopez.

King, appearing in this event for the first time, matched par of 72 and it was good enough to keep second place at 210.

King had led or shared the lead with Sheehan through the first eight holes. Sheehan used a birdie on the ninth hole to assume the sole lead for two holes.

Sheehan, however, ran afoul of three straight bogeys at 13, 14 and 15 and fell from the top spot while Lopez birdied 12, 13 and 14 and took a three-shot lead.

Lopez, chasing the 29th victory of her nine-year LPGA career, broke the 18-hole record when she knocked in a one-foot birdie putt on the 48-yard par-5 17th hole to dip 7-under for the warm, sunny day in suburban Cleveland.

Sheehan, this year's No. 1 money-winner, equaled par of 72 and slipped into a third-place tie at 213 with defending champion Carner going into Sunday's final round.

At stake is the richest first prize in the women's sport, $65,000, from the total purse of $200,000.

Carner's chances of a third consecutive victory in this tournament were still alive. She shot a 70, but was five shots behind Lopez.

Pat Bradley was fifth with 72-216, followed by Juli Inkster 72-217, Amy Alcott 74-218, Alice Miller 72-219, Ayako Okamoto 74-220, Donna H. White 74-221, Laurie Rinker 68-222 and Hollis Stacy 73-223.

Tickets on sale

Season ticket holders to the Pampa High football games have the opportunity to purchase the same seats prior to the tickets being offered to the public.

Tickets will go on sale to the public Sept. 4 and past ticket holders have until Aug. 31 to renew their seats.

Tickets can be purchased by going by the high school athletic business office next to the football stadium Call 669-6722 for more information.

Tickets are $15. The Harvesters first home game is Sept. 21 with Clovis, N.M.

Rice Owls to launch run and shoot offense

HOUSTON (AP) — New Rice football coach Watson Brown admits he's been called "crazy" for accepting the mammoth rebuilding job at a school that hasn't had a winning season in 21 years.

And last spring, Melvin Robinson, a senior from Garland, wondered if the rumors were correct when Brown christened the 5-9, 170-pound receiver as the Owls' starting tight end.

But don't look for any comical scenes of the diminutive Robinson blocking 230-pound defensive ends. There is method to Brown's madness.

"In essence, we will be kind of like the (United States Football League) Houston Gamblers," Brown said of the Gamblers' productive "run and shoot" offense. "We plan to put a lot of little people on the field and spread them out."

Robinson, who missed half of last season with a knee injury, will be a key factor in the Owls' bid to break out of a two-year record of 1-21. He'll be a prime target in the pass-oriented Brown offense.

"It's going to be very wide open," Brown said. "The running game will come off of the passing game. We'll have a lot of one-back sets."

The Rice offense puts pressure on the quarterback, and Brown thinks the Owls will be adequate at the position with Kerry Overton, a former option quarterback at Austin LBJ, and Eddie Burgoyne, a drop-back passer at El Paso Eastwood.

The newcomer is junior college transfer Sean Sterle, whom many expect to be the eventual starter.

"A lot of people are saying that, but he's going to be way behind," Brown said. "Kerry is so much improved from the first week of spring. He's got to come through for us to have a chance."

Marc Scott, a sophomore from Albuquerque, N.M., and senior Larry Collins will line up as the starting running backs and tackle Scott McLaughlin anchors the offensive line.

The Owls hope for better team performances both offensively and defensively. Rice averaged only 213 yards per game on offense in 1983, last in the Southwest Conference. The Owls yielded 45 touchdowns and 419.5 yards per game.

Increasing numbers will be important, Brown said.

"We've got to have a lot of people playing defense," Brown said. "We haven't had that at Rice before and a lot of people are getting tired in the third and fourth quarters."

In another position shift, quarterback turned linebacker Doug Johnson made a third shift to defensive end.

"He's up to 233 pounds and he's really trying to give it a go," Brown said. "It's important for us to have a good season from Doug. It's been quit an adjustment for him but he's making it."

Promising cornerback Alvin Rettig will sit out the season as an injured redshirt, leaving only two returning starters, nose guard Eric Sampson and rover back Gary Butler.

"We're going to be very young on defense," Brown understated. "I've told the incoming freshman I don't know if they consider it an advantage or disadvantage, but when they walk through the door, be ready to play."

The Owls open the season Sept. 8 at Minnesota, led by former Arkansas head coach Lou Holtz.

OUT AT THE PLATE—The Braves' Glenn Hubbard arrives a split second too late at the plate as the Cardinals' catcher Tom Nieto waits for a throw from outfielder Lonnie Smith. Hubbard was tagged out, but the Braves won, 8-3. (AP Laserphoto)

Braves pound Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Glenn Hubbard blasted a three-run homer and Dale Murphy collected five hits and scored four runs, keying a 14-hit attack that powered the Atlanta Braves to an 8-3 triumph Saturday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hubbard's ninth homer of the year came off St. Louis starter Danny Cox, 6-10, during a four-run Atlanta uprising in the second inning. That blow and a barrage of extra-base hits, which included three Murphy doubles, proved more than enough support for Tony Brizzolara, 1-1, who yielded nine Cardinal hits in six innings. Gene Garber pitched three innings to earn his sixth save.

Murphy's first double triggered the Braves' big second inning. Chris Chambliss followed with a walk and Murphy advanced on a fly ball by Rafael Ramirez. Hubbard then homered to left-center on a 0-1 delivery from Cox.

Alex Trevino scored the final run of the inning when he singled, was sacrificed to second and came home on Jerry Royster's double.

Orioles blank Angels, 1-0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Boddicker pitched his second successive shutout as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the California Angels 1-0 Saturday, the only run scoring on a first-inning error by hard-luck loser Mike Witt.

Boddicker, 15-8, allowed four hits, struck out two batters and walked three en route to his fifth straight triumph, a personal high. It was the fourth consecutive loss for the Angels.

Witt, 11-10, allowed six hits, struck out six and walked six in seven innings. He has lost three in a row to the Orioles this season without benefit of a California run, and the Angels have scored no more than two runs in eight of his losses.

Minor injuries plague Buffaloes

Minor injuries continue to pick away at West Texas State as the Buffaloes finished their first week of fall football practice Friday.

Four more players have joined the injured list, but all are expected back the early part of next week, according to WT trainer Chris Gage.

Defensive tackle Baron Jackson and defensive tackle Don Wood have sprained ankles, while flanker David Wood and offensive tackle Craig Paschal have strained hamstrings. All but Paschel are starters.

On the good news-bad news side, linebacker Jon Langston will undergo arthroscopic surgery on his knee next week. But expected to return is senior defensive back Jeff Smith, who missed all of spring practice and the first week of fall after having knee surgery.

Smith's injury, and now the one to Don Wood, has somewhat hampered the progress of the Buff secondary.

WTSU opens the season Sept. 1 at Northern Illinois.

Padres' manager admits giving beanball orders

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An unrepentant Dick Williams openly admits he instructed his San Diego pitchers to try to bean Atlanta's Pascual Perez, and the Padres' president thinks the decision was part of Williams' "job."

Nevertheless, Williams says he expects no trouble between the National League West rivals and no fisticuffs between him and Atlanta Manager Joe Torre when the teams meet again in September.

"We went after Perez. There's no question about it — we tried to get him," Williams said Friday at the outset of his 10-day suspension from managing as a result of the action. "I think we had some honor to defend there."

The manager was one of seven people suspended as a result of Sunday's game between the Padres and Braves, which degenerated into a series of bench-clearing brawls after Perez and three San Diego pitchers were involved in brushback attempts.

Williams, who also was fined $10,000, was banished from the Padres' clubhouse an hour before Friday night's game against Montreal. He watched from General Manager Jack McKeon's press level box seat.

Ballard Smith, the Padres' president, appeared with Williams and McKeon at a news conference Friday evening to announce that National League President Charles "Chub" Feeney had reviewed the matter and refused to reduce the penalty.

"I have been very disturbed that Dick has been painted as the villain. One of the jobs of a manager is to protect his players, and that's what Dick was trying to do," said Smith.

Williams made no secret that he told pitchers Ed Whitson, Craig Lefferts and Greg Booker to throw at Perez after the Atlanta right-hander beamed Alan Wiggins with the first pitch of the game.

The gist of his plea to Feeney was that the beanball war never would have started if Perez hadn't thrown at Wiggins, an action the Padres maintain was intentional.

"He's a headhunter — always has been," said Williams.

Dallas is a town business-orientated, disciplined like the Republican party

EDITOR'S NOTE — Selection of the 1984 presidential nominees began in San Francisco and winds up in Dallas. In most ways, the distinctions between the two cities match that between the two parties: Raffish, liberal-minded San Francisco vs. disciplined, business-oriented Dallas.

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — It's no longer the city of the red neon winged Pegasus, and J.R. Ewing, the finagling oilman of television's semi-mythical "Dallas," no longer typifies the Texas metropolis.

Pegasus, for decades the principal landmark on Dallas' skyline, has vanished behind taller towers built in the past 10 years. J.R. and his real-life counterparts are only peripheral to the Dallas that the Republicans will find this week at their national convention.

Today's Dallas is a sophisticated boomtown of young urban professionals, relocated corporate executives, traffic-clogged highways and sparkling steel-and-glass buildings that sprout along the roadside like bluebonnets.

And there's money, lots of money.

Millions of dollars in private and public money are being spent on art, music, libraries and public transportation — projects older cities dealt with years ago.

There is low unemployment and a high standard of living in a largely Republican city, which is grappling with the problems that prosperity brings.

Dallas today is wrestling with race relations, public education, immigration from Mexico to opportunity, and migration from the "Rust Belt" to the Sun Belt.

Fortunes still are made and lost here just as fast as they were in the old days — the days when Dallas was dominated by the wheelings and dealings of billionaire oilmen and millionaire ranchers.

"The people here are ambitious and forward-looking and still a little bit hungry," says multimillionaire H.R. "Bum" Bright, who recently became the majority owner of the city's exalted football franchise, the Dallas Cowboys.

"It's an adventurous spirit here, and the ones with the adventurous spirits are the ones who come here. I think it is infectious when you get here."

Bright is typical of today's Dallas business magnates. He made his money not only in oil, but also in banking, trucking and real estate.

Billionaire H. Ross Perot turned his Electronic Data Systems from a one-man show into one of the largest computing services firms in the country.

The integrated circuit — the building block of the computer revolution — was invented here at Texas Instruments Inc.

"Dallas is a wide-open city," said restaurateur Tom Stephenson. "It's a comfortable city to live in, but it's a real pressure-cooker too. It's a sexy city. And it's a fast city. There's one lane here, and it's the (fast) one."

Yet, Dallas has retained much of its Texana.

Porsches are popular here, but so are pickup trucks. Republicans will hear a slow Texas drawl, eat red-hot chili, and down it with longneck beers. Blue jeans aren't out of fashion, and neither are cowboy boots.

The 1970 census found 844,401 residents of Dallas. Today city officials estimate the population at more than a million. LBJ Freeway, built through farm pasture in the late 1960s, now carves a congested loop through the city and to several of its shopping malls and booming suburbs.

The state's only toll road is being expanded far to the north ahead of the growth — so far in fact that pundits have said only the Oklahoma border will be able to stop the sprawl.

And Dallas, the largest city in the country with a city manager at the controls, has kept its city services and zoning in step with the growth.

But while the city feverishly plans for its future, it finds itself in the awkward position of trying to shed its past.

Dallas was scorned after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 during a downtown motorcade. Ever since, it has been as concerned about its image as an pimply adolescent high school student.

The nation's seventh-largest city hopes the Republican National Convention — which runs Monday through Thursday — will be its "coming out" party, a chance to reshape its image as one of culture, class and clout rather than of scandalous oilmen and scantily clad Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders.

"This is our chance to show people what Dallas is all about," said Mayor A. Starke Taylor, a millionaire cotton broker and the latest in a long line of mayors tapped from the business-country club establishment.

The city has undertaken campaigns to kill weeds, tow away junk cars, "beautify" the streets surrounding the GOP convention site and run prostitutes out of town. It even sent messengers to meet with news media executives in New York and Washington in advance of the convention, trying to anticipate problems.

Security — both to avoid violence with protesters and to protect President Reagan — will be elaborate. Every taxi in town has been inspected. Every hotel housing delegates has been checked for fire code violations. City officials have taken a crash course in how best to deal with the news media.

"If Dallas lives through it without any major embarrassment, then I think the experience will tend to break this kind of fervor of self-consciousness that the city has suffered since the assassination," says Dallas Times Herald columnist Jim Schutze who, like many here, migrated from the industrial North.

"If Dallas winds up looking terrible, then it's going to be back on the (psychiatrist's) couch."

Dallas sent a delegation to San Francisco to take notes on the Democratic Convention in July and learn from miscues there.

The two cities reflect the contrast between the political parties this year. Democrats chose an off-beat, more liberal, largely blue-collar city of picturesque vistas and a growing population of "Yuppies" — young, upwardly mobile professionals.

Dallas, on the other hand, is full of what one writer dubbed "Ruppies".

A pretty girl is like a melody

GLADYS ROBINSON said, "I think I'm going to cry," when she was presented with long stemmed roses as the 1984 Mrs. Senior Citizen, ambulatory division. And she did.

If what this song says is true, then Pampans heard a symphony last Saturday when Gladys Robinson and Marguerite Smith were crowned as Mrs. Senior Citizen at the second annual pageant Aug. 11 in the Pampa Mall. Francis Austin was named first runner-up.

The two were selected from a field of 14 lovely ladies from the Pampa Nursing Center who competed for the title. Mrs. Smith was winner of the wheelchair division and Mrs. Robinson winner of the ambulatory division.

Mrs. Smith is to celebrate her 73rd birthday Aug. 23. She has been recovering from an illness at the nursing center for less than a year and hopes to be well enough to return home in the near future. A long-time resident of the Pampa area, she continues to keep an active interest in her wheat farm through her recuperation.

She is the mother of two sons, a Methodist minister in Lewisfield, Neb. and a retired Air Force sergeant, once stationed in Australia, but now of Amarillo. Her father, J.W. Noel, was personal bodyguard for President Teddy Roosevelt during the Spanish-American War, she told judges during the contests.

Mrs. Robinson, 81, has lived in the Pampa Nursing Center for two years. She has lived in Pampa most of her life. She and her husband were owners of Home Builders Supply. She operated the business herself after her husband died, and until she sold it in 1972. She has one daughter of Odessa, Barbara Dockter, narrator of the pageant, described Mrs. Robinson as having a wonderful sense of humor "that really keeps the place going!"

Mrs. Robinson wowed the judges with her wit, especially with one story of how she ended up living in Texas. It seems that she was born in Watonga, Okla., but sometime along the way her mother decided that it was time for the family to move to Texas. When she informed Mrs. Robinson's father of her plans, he replied "Where in the hell is Texas?!"

Mrs. Austin told the judges of her life as private housekeeper for the Don Heine's family for 25 years. When she was asked if she thought she was a good housekeeper, she replied, "You better believe I was ... and I was a darn good cook, too!" Mrs. Austin's family bought her a new dress for the pageant, and all arrived to cheer her on.

Contestant Pauline Thornton at 69 was the youngest mother in the event. She has three children and has been a resident of the nursing center for the past two years.

Manila Twigg had the most children — six. And she loves to dance.

Etha Ruston was the bachelorette of the group. She said she never had the desire to marry, plus she loved to travel.

Ruth Sewell has traveled completely around the world. She retired from Southwestern Public Service Company after 41½ years of service. She was married to an area rancher.

Estelle Purvis, last year's winner, worked as a registered nurse at both the old and new Worley Hospitals. She's been a resident of Pampa many years.

Noel Thompson, another of last year's winners, has traveled to Canada, and worked at Cabot during the war making gun barrels.

Alta Haddock, wife of an Air Force sergeant, was a waitress here for 15 years. Most people might remember her from the Highway Cafe.

Ruth Strickland is a relative newcomer to the nursing center having only lived there a few months. She was a waitress in the Pampa area for 40 years.

Delia McGonigal was born in Tennessee, seven miles from where Tennessee Ernie Ford was born, although she said she never had the opportunity to meet the singer. She's traveled extensively, including Europe and six other countries.

Clara White, 89, has been a resident of the nursing center for two years. She was born in Missouri and worked for many years as a telephone operator. She has a son living in Borger and a granddaughter her in Pampa.

Matron of honor was Debbie Cookman of Anderson, sister of the bride. Dana Schuster of Denver City was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Katie Spear of Amarillo and Naomi Davis of Anderson. Flowergirls were Tiffany Cookman and Andrea Davis, both of Anderson, and Natalie Davis of Anderson was ring bearer. Melissa Cookman of Anderson attended the guest register.

Dub Taylor of Pampa, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Doug Allen and Jim McDermaid, both of Amarillo and Jeff Davis of Anderson. Ushers were Gary Free and John Mitchell of Pampa, Steve Brown of Amarillo and Tim Sage of Andrews.

A reception followed the wedding service with Lisa McCown and Charli Fuller of Amarillo and Cayle Holder of Abilene, serving.

After a honeymoon in the Bahamas, the couple plans to live in Austin.

The bride holds a degree in nursing from West Texas State University in Canyon. She is a member of the Amarillo Big Brothers - Big Sisters organization and is employed as a registered nurse at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

Taylor graduated from West Texas State University with a bachelor of arts degree in business management. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and is manager for Steak and Ale Restaurant in Austin.

Fort Cobb, Okla., is to be the couple's new home.

The bride is a graduate of Pampa High School and has attended West Texas State University in Canyon. Pendley graduated from Fort Cobb High School and holds a bachelor of science degree in vocational agriculture from Cameron University. He is employed by Warehouse Foods in Anadarko, Okla.

Quattlebaum-Taylor

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church was the setting for the evening wedding ceremony of Kay Ellen Quattlebaum and Randy Scott Taylor on Saturday, Aug. 18. The Rev. Ron McCrary, pastor, performed the wedding service for the couple.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quattlebaum of Pampa. The groom is the son of Mrs. Emmett Howry of Amarillo and Alvin Taylor, also of Amarillo.

Matron of honor was Diane Saied of Amarillo. Bridal attendants were Mary Lee of Pampa, Kim Young of Amarillo and Shauna Taylor of Amarillo, the groom's sister. Flower girl was Monica Saied of Amarillo.

Joel Young of Amarillo was best man. Groomsmen were Dawayne Marchbanks, Toby Taylor, the groom's brother, and Steve Rael, all of Amarillo. Joseph Young of Amarillo was ringbearer.

Candlelighters were Summer Hudson and Matt Martindale, both of Pampa. Crucifer was Matt Martindale of Pampa and lay reader was David Martindale of Pampa.

Kelli Campbell of Amarillo sang at the wedding service and played the piano at the reception. Jerry Whitten was organist. Guests were seated by Michael Bednorz and Michael Gee.

A reception followed in the parish hall. Serving the guests were Sann Bogard, Susan Richardson, La Donna Bednorz and Ginny Quattlebaum.

After a honeymoon trip to Dallas, the couple plan to live in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High School. She is a senior at West Texas State University in Canyon, majoring in elementary education. She is employed by Kiddie Kollege.

Taylor is a 1979 graduate of Caprock High School. He is employed by Southwestern Public Service Company.

Spier-Hall

Gena Renee Spier and David Brett Hall exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony at 3 p.m., Aug. 4, in the First Baptist Church of Clarendon. Bright Newhouse performed the wedding service.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Neal Spier of Clarendon. Hall is the son of Sharron K. Osborne of Miami and Jack Hall of Clarendon.

Tammy Kuhn of Clarendon attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Briget Spier, the bride's sister; Dondra Holland, Stefani Graham and Stacy Graham, cousins of the bride, all of Clarendon.

Best man was Bobby McLaughlin of Houston. Billy Bentley, Miguel Villarreal, Brad Brelsford and Kent Taylor, all of Houston, were the groomsmen.

Guests were seated by Scott Collier of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Barry Osborne of Pampa, both cousins of the groom, and Mark Simmons of Canyon.

Candlelighters were Nichole and NeAnne Spier, cousins of the bride, both of Artesia, N.M. Flower girl was Meredith Shields and ring bearer was Brandon Shields, both of Dallas and cousins of the bride.

Wedding music was provided by Valorie Ashcraft and Jim Shadle, vocalist.

The couple was honored with a reception at the Patching Club House following the ceremony. Kim Formway of Clarendon registered guests for the wedding. She and Dalyn Croslin of Clarendon served at the groom's table. Serving at the bride's table were Kristen Walker, Linda Weatherton of Clarendon and Mykie Patterson of Amarillo.

Following a wedding trip to the island of Maui in the Hawaiian Islands, the couple plan to live in Lubbock where the groom is to be a senior mechanized agriculture major at Texas Tech University and the bride is to be a Texas Tech freshman in the fall.

Murdock-Pendley

Luanne Murdock and Kenneth Earl Pendley were joined in marriage in an evening wedding service Saturday, Aug. 18, at the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Charles Murdock of Pampa are parents of the bride. Pendley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Henry Pendley of Fort Cobb, Okla.

Attending the bride were Doretha Turney of Fort Cobb, Janna Hogan of Pampa and Jerrie Pendley, the groom's sister of Lawton, Okla.

Groomsmen were Jerry

Mullican of Fort Cobb, Bill Freeman of Shawnee, Okla., and Earl Lee Posey of Fort Cobb.

Steve Murdock, the bride's brother, sang and played the guitar for the wedding along with Mrs. Michael Cox, soloist, and Mrs. Randy Land, organist. Charles Johnson sang and performed a flute solo as the couple's mothers were being seated.

The couple were honored at a reception in the church parlor following the wedding ceremony. Assistants were Michelle Frye, Tammy Johnson, Michelle Barbaree, Melanie Garrett, Susan Sneed and Mrs. Tim Hutto.

Jason Garren — a future astronaut?

Pampa boy reaches for the sky

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyle Editor

Jason Garren, 13, first heard of the United States Space Camp on the television program, "Good Morning, America" about two years ago and he knew the minute he heard about that he wanted to go there.

It took two years for him to make it, but on Aug. 5, his dream came true. He was flying to the United States Space Camp at Huntsville, Ala.

Garren, the son of John and Jamie Garren of Pampa, learned various techniques used by the National Aeronautics & Space Administration (NASA) to train its astronauts while attending the five-day camp. He learned about computers, building rockets, zero-gravity simulations, eating freeze-dried food and trying on a 40 pound space suit.

Garren found out that space travel is not all fun — there's some real problems the astronauts have to face. Like where do they turn their head when they have to sneeze in their space suit? To the right, Garren said. "Your food comes in on the left side, you have to talk in the front, so you have to turn your head to the right when you sneeze," he explained.

And taking a shower in space is a major production, he learned. First the astronauts have to get into a plastic bag which they zip over their heads. A hose inside sprays water, but astronauts learned that spraying water directly on the body in zero gravity tends to make the water bounce off, so they fill a sponge with water and wipe off instead. Then they have to take another hose and suck up all the water that's floating around in the air or else it will escape from the bag and ruin the computers, Garren explained.

And if an astronaut has to, you know, go... Garren said, well, he has two handles he has to hold on to. Every action has a reaction, you see.

Friday was the highlight of the camp, Garren said, when he and his team members were divided into astronaut crews and mission control personnel for a simulated countdown and launch of a space shuttle. The outcome of the launch depended on how the group applied principles they had learned throughout the week.

Garren was mission director of the mission control group, he said. "I read from scripts and punched in the buttons as the script told us to do. And they gave us two problems that we had to figure out. Our two problems were that the main engines wouldn't fire while the shuttle was in space and the other was that the shuttle was coming down too fast — that was easy to solve, just lift the nose."

The camp provides young people with space and science knowledge. It helps them gain first-hand knowledge about space technology and the principles of rocketry.

Jamie Garren, Garren's mother said they first applied to the camp last year, but were too late. This year, Garren's application was sent in by January and he was approved to attend the camp. Applications include a letter from the applicant's science teacher telling why the student should go to the camp.

Many of the activities occurred at the Earth's Largest Space Museum which adjoins the NASA-Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville. Campers joined museum visitors on simulated space flights and experienced weightlessness as well as triple gravity forces.

Garren found out one thing about the centrifugal force machine — you don't turn your head while you're riding on it. "They told us not to turn our heads. I forgot and turned to look at my friend," he remembered. "Boy, it made me sick! It was funny; we were going around so fast I could see people talk, but I could hear their voices behind me. And they showed a film up at the top of the building to make it seem like it was a space flight."

NASA developed the propulsion system for the Space Shuttle in Huntsville, the nation's center for rocket research for 30 years.

After arrival and a brief orientation on Sunday, Garren and his fellow campers watched "Flyers" and "Hail Columbia" in the $4 million Spacedome theater, the newest addition to the center. "One of them almost made me sick," Garren recalled. "It felt like you were flying."

Monday began a week full of space-oriented activities. The campers were divided into groups of 10 with a team leader. Each group was named after a planet. Garren's was Jupiter — they wore green caps throughout the week.

Team leaders introduced campers to Rocket Park, one of Garren's favorite parts. Rocket Park is a spectacular collection of Army missiles and NASA rockets, including the Saturn I and V rockets and various crafts which began a large part of the American space program. They explained the giant foil-covered lunar lander and the Huntsville-developed "moon buggy," three of which are on the moon.

NASA's largest facilities, the Marshall Space Flight Center and toured the 75-foot, one million gallon tank of highly filtered water used to train astronauts for weightlessness. Campers saw the Saturn V Test Stand and facilities used to build the Space Shuttle's external tank and propulsion system.

They also toured part of the U.S. Army's Redstone Arsenal which is so secret, the students were not allowed to bring their cameras, Garren said.

Garren tried out the 1-6th gravity simulator, a chair used to demonstrate what it is like to walk on the moon and the Multi-Axis Trainer which spins astronauts to train them for disorientation. Outside the museum is the Zero-Gravity Machine where Garren experienced a no-gravity environment.

"The food was all right," Garren added — food is very important to a growing young man of 13. He was not particular impressed with the

MR. & MRS. LAGUSTA (GUS) SARGENT

MR. & MRS. SHERMAN (TEX) COWAN

Sargents to be honored for 65 years of marriage

Lagusta (Gus) and Lola Mae Sargent are to celebrate 65 years of marriage today, Aug. 19, with a come-and-go reception at 421 N. Doyle from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. Hosting the event are the couple's daughters, Maudine Rayburn of Houston, Marcella J. Stokes of Pampa, Druella Hamrick of Phoenix, Ariz., and Audra Lee Mayo of Seminole. Gus Sargent and Lola Mae McBee were married Aug. 19, 1919 in Wirt, Okla. Mr. Sargent was employed for 32 years as a pumper and chief mechanic for Skelly Oil Co., retiring in March 1966. Mrs. Sargent is a homemaker. The Sargents are long-time, active members of The Church of God of Prophecy. They moved to Pampa in January 1929. In addition to their daughters, Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Rayburn, Mrs. Hamrick and Mrs. Mayo, the Sargents have six other children — Jack Sargent of Pampa, Winford Sargent of Houston, Leroy Sargent of Casper, Wyo.; Preston Sargent of Pampa, Dallas Glen Sargent of Kingfisher, Okla.; and Tony Sargent of Pampa. The Sargents have 40 grandchildren, 50 great grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren. Friends of the honored couple are invited by their children to join in the celebration of their parents' anniversary.

Cowans celebrate anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman T. (Tex) Cowan were honored Aug. 11 for their 50th wedding anniversary with a buffet-reception in the Garden room of the Hilton Inn in Amarillo. Hosting the event were the couple's six children — Sherman G. Cowan of Pampa, Robert L. Cowan of Amarillo, Gwenda Peets of Midland, Jeannie Wilkinson of Irving, Danny R. Cowan of Pampa and Vicki Kelp of White Deer. Mr. and Mrs. Cowan were also honored by their 17 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren with a money tree totaling the grandchildren's and great grandchildren's ages. The couple were married Sept. 23, 1934, in Medford, N.J. They moved to the Texas Panhandle in 1937. Mr. Cowan is a veteran of World War II and is a retired employee of Getty Oil Co. Mrs. Cowan is a member of the nursing staff of St. Anthony's Hospital of Amarillo.

Space Camp

freeze-dried foods served on their last day. "The chicken and rice soup was pretty good but the corn was not that terrific." He brought home the strawberries and the ice cream to share with his family, Garren said.

Garren plans to return to the camp next year as a Level II camper. This level explores the space program in more detail and Garren is eager for a chance to try his hand at the more intricate stuff.

Who knows one of these days when we look up into the sky and see a little object blinking its way across the sky, Jason Garren may be on his way to the moon. And we can all say with pride, "Oh, I know him. He comes from my home town. Isn't it a small world?" For more information on the camp, write U.S. Space Camp, Alabama Space & Rocket Center, 500 Tranquility Base, Huntsville, Ala., 35807, or call Jamie Garren at 665-2786.

Beauty Digest

Test skin type

To find out if you have oily or dry skin, perform this simple test. Wait at least an hour after washing your face, then press separate tissues against the forehead, sides of the nose and center of cheeks. If a stain appears on all three tissues, you have generally oily skin. No stain means dry skin, while stain from forehead and around the nose only means combination skin.

When to color

Some hair tinting may be necessary as early as age 18, at which time natural hair color peaks. To enhance natural hair color, rinses or semi-permanent tints will do the job for a number of years. Permanent colors are needed when you want to change your natural color or when gray hair appears. Only permanent colorings can really cover more than a small amount of gray hair.

Think before charging

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Two of the most popular words in the American vocabulary are "Charge It". About 2-3rds of American families now use credit for day-to-day expenses, and even more buy furniture, automobiles or appliances on installment contracts. Buying on credit is so common that some consumers don't realize there are both good and poor reasons to do it. Certain circumstances make borrowing financially sound. Some of the best reasons to use credit include:

- Anticipated price increases. Even though inflation has slowed down, some cost increases are inevitable and can justify the interest expense that comes with borrowing.
- Major events in life, such as beginning a new job, establishing a household or family, take a lot of money which it can make sense to borrow.
- A genuine emergency, if you have not accumulated a sufficient emergency cash fund.
- Making essential big-ticket purchases that you could not pay for with cash on hand. Cars, furniture, major appliances and a home are traditionally purchased on credit.
- Taking advantage of attractive seasonal sales or specials on which you can save money, assuming you want or need the items.
- Borrowing for educational purposes.
- Credit can be a valuable resource that helps families reach goals. However, overuse of credit can also result in financial disaster. An early warning sign of problem credit use is borrowing for poor reasons. For example, borrowing up to the limit of your capacity to repay simply because you want something is not a good idea since even a minor miscalculation can force you to default. Living beyond your income and using credit for day-to-day living expenses is also a poor reason to borrow because any unexpected expenses can result in financial disaster. It is also unwise to use credit just because you anticipate a pay raise. If the money doesn't materialize, it can create a financial hardship.

Buying because the terms seem easy is a form of self-deception that can lead to financial problems. This is especially true if you are buying items impulsively without considering their quality and price. Buying on credit to boost morale is at best a temporary solution, since you may find yourself even more depressed when the bills arrive. If you buy on credit to raise your standard of living or status, without raising your income, you can also wind up with an unreasonable debt load. The overuse of credit can creep up on anyone. All it takes is a bit of financial carelessness, a false sense of security and a few concessions to the temptations of easy payments. An unexpected cut in income or an unforeseen expense might bring the problems to a crisis, but more often the problem develops slowly and gives off many warning signals. That's why examining your reasons for buying on credit can help avoid a serious financial trap.

ABWA discusses fall activities

Plans for raising scholarship funds and hosting a booth at Chautauqua were discussed at the Aug. 14 meeting of the Pampa chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

The Ways & Means committee outlined plans for making money for scholarships to be presented this year. Members also agreed to man a booth at Chautauqua celebration during Labor Day.

Cindy Grundler, supervisor of surgical services at Coronado Community Hospital, spoke on the new out-patient services now being offered by the hospital. She showed a film and discussed the advantages of one day stays for minor surgery. Jimmy Ivey, an R.N. at CCH, gave the vocational speech. She is coordinator of patient education and discharge planning nurse. She helps patients with plans for after-hospital care and explains the free services offered by the hospital. Hostesses were Darla Jewett, Alice Parker and Pauline Barrett. Next meeting is to be Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. in the Rustic Inn.

Pam Extension Club meets

Members of the Pam Extension Homemakers Club met for a covered dish luncheon, Aug. 10, in the Pam Recreation Hall. G.C. Davis conducted the business meeting. The 10 members attending answered roll call by telling one way to make their family life better.

Fran Gross of the "Tralee Crisis Center" presented a program on national and local statistics on family violence and on how to prevent violence in the home. Next meeting is to be a covered dish luncheon on Sept. 14 in the Pam Recreation Hall.

LORDS OF THE EARTH — Patrick Anderson: At the center of this shattering novel looms a self-made oil baron whose hunger for wealth and power threatens to destroy the one possession he values most — his own family.

AMERICA'S FAVORITE QUILTS — Leslie Linsley: How to make 26 of our country's most popular patchwork and applique quilts.

DEATH IN CYPRUS — M.M. Kaye: Amanda Derington, 20, is on an extended cruise with her uncle when she decides to make a short side trip to the sun-washed isle of Cyprus. But even before the ship arrives in port, there is a suspicious death, and what was meant to be a pleasant excursion quickly turns into something else.

LONG TIME PASSING — Myra MacPherson: As Americans once again face the specter of sending another generation to war — this time in the Middle East or Central America — these voices of a generation that can't lay its war to rest send a haunting message.

FLAWLESS — Burt Hirschfeld: Behind the magical beauty and instant status with which diamonds bestow their owners, is a multi-billion dollar industry. This novel creates one of the most memorable families in recent fiction — the historic diamond clan of Foxman, and how this powerful and cultured family wages a campaign for survival against incalculable power.

ROBERT MITCHUM — George Eells: The sleepy-eyed, swaggering hero, or anti-hero of more than 100 films, stands as a unique enigma, with his humor, frankness, acting ability, boorishness and plain old bad-boy antics.

Dear Abby

Reader regrets his role in the tragedy of Miss America

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If I don't write this letter, I won't be able to sleep tonight. First I want to say that I have never before bought a Penthouse magazine, but I was one of the first to run out and buy one as soon as that well-publicized issue was on the newsstands. I gloated over that piece of trash just like everybody else, and even took it to work to show around!

Now I feel rotten. I'm no better than the Penthouse publisher who made millions off that poor girl's misery. And I helped him do it.

I hope you will print this to let the former Miss America and her family know how sorry I am.

Go ahead and let me have it, Abby. I have it coming. I'm too ashamed to sign my name, so sign me...

SORRY AND SICK AT HEART

DEAR SORRY: Stop beating yourself. Your curiosity was only human. Perhaps the ugly incident that sent shock waves through the land was not without its positive side, for in it is this valuable lesson for all young women:

Think before you act, and refrain from conduct that could bring disgrace upon you or your family. And should you have a lapse of judgment when you are young and foolish—or hungry for money and fame—don't count on your misdeeds never being exposed.

If millions of young women can benefit from the former Miss America's fall from grace, then her "contribution" may be even more lasting than all the previous Miss Americas who wore their crowns with dignity and were honorably retired.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the letter from "Keep Me Anonymous," the woman who lied about her age on her job application. She was 41, but feared she would not be hired if it were known, so she put "29" on her job application and got away with it.

Abby, this woman urgently needs to be alerted to a serious potential problem when she reaches retirement age.

A woman I know well recently retired. In applying for her pension, she submitted her birth certificate, which revealed that she was 75 years old—not 65 as her employment records showed.

The private pension plan carrier, alleging fraud, denied her pension application. She received nothing, even though her employer had paid premiums for many years!

Please advise "Anonymous" to get her correct age into her pension file immediately. Faithfully yours,
(THE REV. CANON)
OLIVER B. GARVER JR.,
LOS ANGELES

DEAR SIR: Bless you. Your informative letter will no doubt save many souls. And a few heels, as well.

DEAR ABBY:

We know you're bombarded with questions. Your mail likely runs into tons. After picking the questions to answer, Must they always be answered with puns? Your wisdom we value most highly.

Your witty responses are fun. We love you, Dear Abby—but spare us

The silly, nonsensical pun!
TOM IN CAMBRIDGE, MD.

DEAR TOM: Writing would be much less fun. Without the "nonsensical" pun.

I know you abhor it, But others adore it. You lose—by 10 million to one.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my daughter, who had just turned 12, did not want me to see her yearbook. We had some words about it, and when I looked at it I knew why she didn't want me to see it. A girlfriend had written something really obscene, so I called the girl's father and told him about it.

My husband wrote to the school authorities and made a case out of it. This year just before the annuals came out, we won a school-wide vote requesting that parents carefully examine their children's yearbooks, and if we come across anything offensive, we should call the parents of the offending writers.

This sets higher expectations.

Peeking at Pampa

Let's loosen up firm facial muscles, best done with a smile, and relax a bit while we peek at what Pampans are doing around town.

Brothers, nieces, nephews, children and grandchildren joined the R.C. and Joe Brown families in Pampa for a reunion of an old time family. Several Brown brothers were husky, hustling Harvester football stars during the '30s, perhaps even the '40s. At least 40 family members, who sat in a body, were recognized during the morning services at First Baptist Church on Aug. 5. Some of the out-of-townners were Teresa and John Davis, Oklahoma City; Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis and Mark, Sioux Falls, S.D.; Doris and W.J. Brown, Odessa; Jeff Brown, Jim Mitchell, Houston; Carl Brown, Farmington, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Hassell of Fort Worth. Flowers were placed on the altar in memory of deceased parents, brothers and sister.

Here's why Cindy and Clark Grundler know it's a small world. Bad news: About 200 miles from Pampa on the way home from a vacation in San Antonio, their car broke down. Good news: Two Pampa people stopped to help — the Truitt Wrens of Pampa. There's more! The Wrens went to Throckmorton, attended a reunion and brought more help with them — the Dwayne Furrhs and children, also from Pampa. Help meant transportation of the Grundlers, clothes, boat and dog, all the way home. Well, a public heartfelt "thank you!" to the Wrens and Furrhs from the Grundler says it mildly!

One night in San Antonio, Cindy and Clark met Nancy and Jerry Whitten for dinner. Jerry attended a choral directors convention there.

Fred Mays of Seminole, who has been named PHS choral director believes everyone at Seminole knows someone in Pampa. He and his wife, Jo, and Jennifer, 7, described as a sheer delight, moved to Pampa last Saturday. Jo will be a teacher's aid at Pampa Middle School. Yes, they are active Baptists.

Welcome back home after an absence of almost 20 years to Barbara Holt Lallement, her husband Jack, and children Damaris, Mike, 15, and Jon, 12. Damaris is entering Abilene Christian University as a sophomore in the fall. Jack is a CPA with Dickey - Corey firm. They lived in New Mexico and Amarillo during the years away from Pampa.

Elena Donald and other school choral directors from Amarillo, Canyon, Hereford in Region I that included Libby and Billy Talley, now of Amarillo, met in San Antonio for an informal Fred Mays welcome to Region I get-acquainted dinner while attending the choral directors convention. Nancy and Jerry Whitten stopped by to chat. Welcome to Pampa, Jo, Fred and Jennifer!

Janet and Mike Sears and five children took their new camper on a camping trip to Kentucky and Florida and points between. Betty and Wally Simmons and son Shannon, took in parts of Texas on their recent vacation.

Betty and Joe Gordon took an enviable Mediterranean cruise that included, among others, a stop in Rome.

John Laughlin of Oklahoma visited Coralie and Gerry Laughlin. There was a family camping trip as part of the entertainment. Coralie is sporting a short, cool and chic hairdo — very becoming. Jim and Jo Austin and Joshua chose a popular vacation spot in Colorado for their vacation — Lake City.

On a recent weekend, John Garren and Doyle Beckham took eight boys for a camping trip near Lake McClellan. They camped out on the historic land of Mertie (Mrs. Claude) Schaffer, great grandmother to Jason Garren — John's son.

Making the trip were Jason, Chris Didway, Rick Sewell, William Simpson, Brad Hinkle, Terry Stroud, Mark Aderholt and Mitch King. Jamie (Mrs. John) Garren, daughter Jessica, and friend Keri Barr joined the group for a while to hunt for arrowheads, but headed back to town when it began to grow dark. As darkness fell, the boys gathered around the campfire for ghost stories. Sounds like good ol' fashioned summer fun.

Mrs. Steve Donald, Elena's mother, moved from her ranch home at Goodnight to become a full-fledged Pampan at last. The transition has been gradual with cat-sitting when Elena was out of town plus membership and regular attendance at First Baptist Church for five years. She's a doer and a go-getter, a lovely lady. Welcome to Pampa!

Be prepared to see dozens of pictures of a new grandson when you meet Dorothy and Ed Juenger. Debbie and Greg bowers of New Jersey are proud parents of the little guy. Dorothy was there and Ed went later.

Debra and the Rev. Jim Tolbert spent vacation time earlier in California. Later Debra visited family in El Paso.

The recovery room at Coronado Community Hospital has two new faces: Vickie (Mrs. Frank) Venal and Wanda Redeemer, both R.N.s to replace Janice Ford and Norma Baggerman. Janice retired to White Deer for full-time motherhood. Norma accepted a "traveling position." Denise Storey is new to the operating room. She replaces Jimmie Ivy, R.N., patient education coordinator, a newly created position.

Brian Hanson narrated a slide presentation on his recent trip to Belize and Guatemala for the evening Kiwanis Club and Rotary Club. His narration always includes geography, culture, social problems — an all around look at the country.

Ruby and James Mullins attended a recent family reunion in Tulia. Sheila and Jack Hood, former Pampans now living in the San Francisco area, visited family and friends on their way home from a Chisholm family reunion in San Antonio, which Roberta Pugh and Lucille Foster of Pampa attended.

There was a farewell fellowship at Central Baptist Church to honor Paula Barton, church secretary, and Tonia and Mark Walters, who moved to Fort Worth. Good luck to both families! Joyce and Kevin Creed, Cari and Cameron visited family and friends in Arkansas.

Sue and Frank Snow and daughter Melinda (Mrs. Ben) Fallon spent a few days visiting relatives in Duncan, Okla. Then Frank's sister Joyce Jones and Jimmy Jay of Edmond visited in Pampa. Melinda and Ben are

Homeopathy taught in Mexico state school

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A national medical school here is keeping alive the 200-year-old healing art called homeopathy, which has been spurned for decades by the medical establishment in the United States. The National School of Medicine and Homeopathy is the only state-sponsored school in the world where homeopathy is taught side-by-side with surgery and other standard clinical techniques, Dr. Roberto Chavez Oloquin, the school's director, said in an interview.

"Here in Mexico we have a tradition of herbal healing," Emilio Ygartua, spokesman for the Mexican Health Department, said. Herbal healing is still practiced by Indian groups here, and Ygartua said "that has made it easier for this type of medicine to continue developing." Homeopathy takes its name from the Greek words meaning "similar" and "suffering," and practitioners of the art often repeat the standard aphorism, "Like cures like." If a patient is nervous, on edge and hopelessly addicted to cigarettes, the cure according to this theory would be tobacco. "We would give him tobacco in very small dilutions, prepared according to homeopathic rules," Dr. Ester Valero, head of the clinic at the national homeopathic school, said.

Washington, D.C. Today, no American medical school teaches homeopathy. And only some 300 doctors, nurses and other health professionals are registered with the center as homeopaths, having taken courses offered by the center or other homeopathic groups, Brawley said in a telephone interview.

"It would take away the nervousness and within three months it would take away his need to smoke."

Among the array of substances used to make homeopathic medicines are bees, spiders, marijuana, ants, flowers and snake venom.

Ninety years ago, there were some 10,000 homeopaths and two dozen homeopathic medical schools in the United States, according to Sumter Brawley, executive director of the National Center for Homeopathy in

Writer changes point of view

By ERMA BOMBECK

Every year, a child who is sick and tired of a mother shoving this column into her face and shouting, "Read this! It's you!" will write and ask why I always take the parents' point of view and never the child's.

This year's writer is from Long Beach and she says, "For so long you have written about children that do things that make their parents miserable, how about a few measly words to make parents feel like maybe they have done something right?" Signed: T.H.

You're right, T.H. It must seem like there's no pleasing us. It's time for my yearly child-appreciation tribute.

Parents have done something right when they ask a child to bring them a glass of water from the kitchen and the child knows where the kitchen is.

They've done it when they get a birthday present on their birthday that their child has bought with his own money.

They've pulled it off when their child volunteers that she dropped the camera she borrowed and when the parents ask, "Have you any idea how much a camera like this cost and who is going to pay for it?" does ... and will.

They've raised a winner when they point out to a son that his pants are ripped, his shirt is not ironed, the sole is coming off his shoe and his sweater is inside out, and he looks rotten ... and he agrees with them.

It's a good day for any parent when their child speaks to them in public, when they put gas in the car after they've used it, ask if you're watching a TV show before they flip the dial, do dishes when it isn't their night, and thank you for anything.

It's a good time for parents when their children tell them the truth when you're gonna kill 'em for it, answer their parents without saying, "What do you want?" shut the door in the winter because it makes their Dad smile, or respect their mother's cold as they do their own.

Good kids are like sunsets. We take 'em for granted. Every morning they rise. Every evening they disappear. Most parents in a single lifetime will never imagine how hard they try to please us and how miserable they feel when they think they have failed.

Take a good look at your kids. I mean really look at them. You've done a lot better than you think you did. Now, tell them.

infantipating with expected date of arrival in December. No one could be more thrilled than grandmother - to - be Sue!

Maud Vinyard and Peggy Turner attended a workshop for church secretaries at Wayland Baptist University campus in Planview. Jenny Roden, daughter of Monica and Joey, attends school in Austin where she has won several athletic trophies. Backing her all the way are Cris and Victor.

Jim Hall (Karen's husband) is recuperating from recent eye surgery. Best wishes to Ruth Casey as she recovers from a recent broken arm.

Pampa is fortunate to have Lillith Brainard who carries the Texas hospitality theme to a T. She and Ted Gikas recently planned a Sunday evening gala dinner of the Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, added a lively narration to the parade of fashions.

Colonel Ottaway presented Betty (Mrs. Tom) Bates a dozen red roses in appreciation for her work in putting the show together and furnishing many of the fashions.

Bett is attending the Republican Convention in Dallas by special invitation as a member of the Senatorial Inner Circle. In the last two years as a professional artist, Betty has presented invitational showings in Australia and New Zealand. In October and December 1983, she toured 12 European countries while presenting art showings.

At the Saturday night banquet for the air field reunion, Colonel Binge presented Nina Spoonmore with a necklace, one of several he purchased in Taiwan to give only to special people. Nina qualified for her untiring efforts in making the reunion a success year after year.

Spied Walter Eller, Lavenia and Russell Abbott, Evelyn and Louis Epps, Beedie and James Baird there.

Congratulations to Gladys Robinson and Marguerite Smith for being named Mrs. Senior Citizen of Pampa Nursing Center in the second annual pageant that drew a crowd of several hundred people at the Pampa Mall last Saturday afternoon. Francis Austin was runnerup for the ambulatory division.

Velda Jo (Mrs. Floyd) Huddleston did a top - notch job pages of history at the Friday night dinner of the Pampa Army Air Force Reunion.

Models included Julia (Mrs. Glen) Dawkins, Sue (Mrs. Tim) Fatheree, Donna (Mrs. Wayland) Acker and daughter Trinity Jones, who wore flapper clothes and danced a mean Charleston to the delight of the crowd, Lisa (Mrs. Greg) Archer, Angela (Mrs. John) Spearman, Janice (Mrs. David) Miller, Dee Dee (Mrs. Vic) Laramore, Sue (Mrs. Hal) Cree, Pat (Mrs. James) Winkleblack, Kim (Mrs. Jerry) Brazile, Jona Daniels, Wanda (Mrs. Bob) Johnson, Vickie Yurick, Brenda (Mrs. Chris) Coffman, Louise Brown, Donna Seitz.

Myrna (Mrs. Darville) Orr played appropriate background music as JoAnn Arisim, curator at the Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, added a lively narration to the parade of fashions.

Participants in addition to the winners were Manila Twigg, Clara White, Alta Haddock, Etha Rustin, Eva Richardson, Pauline Thornton, Ruth Sewell, Estelle Purvis, Ruth Strickland, and Delia McGongial.

Delia's ever - attentive nephew

Pat Jernigan took charge of Delia's presentation with a special hairdo and makeup. Volunteers with dressing and hairdos were Pat Bolton, Dutt Sutton, plus Dorris Houck and Barbara Dockter and the entire PNC staff. Cathy Pettit, LVN, kept a watchful eye on the contestants. Karen Ables minded Merle Norman Cosmetics Studio while her mother - in - law had all the fun with makeup artistry for the pageant entrants. Iva plans to do a re-run sometime! Escorts were Jess Hardy, Orville Dockter and Paul Brevard, a 14-year-old volunteer. It was a fun time for everyone.

Parents urged: train kids in managing money

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The sooner parents begin to let their children experience how the economic world works, the sooner the children will understand what it takes to get the material goods they want, says psychologist Dr. Robert Leone.

"Some parents make the mistake of giving their children a spending allowance without expecting the children to do anything in return," says Leone, assistant director of the United States International University psychological clinics in San Diego.

"A spending allowance may only give them the idea that money is always just going to come their way, that it will just fall into their lap," he explains. "Well, that's not the way of the world. In the real world you do 'x' amount of work and you get 'x' amount of money in return."

Leone says an allowance for "value received" can instead be a wonderful opportunity for parents to teach their children the value of a dollar.

For example, parents could give their children an allowance in exchange for a certain number of chores performed each week. Parents can also give their children extra money or extra benefits — such as the opportunity to choose the dinner menu once a week, or a movie, or any of a number of things — if the children do extra work.

"This way," says Leone, "they soon learn to make the connection between what they do and the things they earn and also that if they do extra, they often get extra."

Even children too young for an allowance can "earn" things, Leone says. Parents can set up a system of gold stars for certain tasks or chores performed. Once a certain number of stars are earned, parents can then reward the child with an outing, a special movie or something else already agreed upon between parent and child.

"Is this bribing, this system of rewarding children with money or other benefits for certain behaviors?" asks Leone.

"Well, the classic answer is 'Sure it is; that's the way the world works.' Is it bribing for the opportunity to have more control in their lives based on what they can do?"

To let teen-agers know how much goods can cost, Leone suggests parents give their children a certain amount of money for clothing or other necessities and let the children choose the items themselves. The child learns what items actually cost, realizes he can't have everything and soon accepts the need for a budget.

When a teen-ager begins to earn money at a part-time job, Leone recommends parents consider requiring their child to contribute a small portion of the earnings to the upkeep of the household. This "withholding tax," Leone says, is a good way to ease children into the real world of rent, utilities and other necessities.

"I believe this is something that needs to be done somewhere along the line," Leone says. "So many kids don't realize what it actually costs to live today. This is a means of 'weaning' them into it."

"It is so important to start very early showing your children how one gets money," he adds. "The younger they are and the sooner they start, the better off they'll be. "You will encounter resistance from your children; they will make mistakes, so you must have patience," Leone warns. "But it you don't teach them about money early, you will have little room to complain about your child's lack of money values later."

Socially, the coming year should be especially active. How much enjoyment it will prove to be, however, depends upon with whom you'll spend your time. The wrong types could introduce frustrations. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If possible today, try to get out of a social situation you know could be costly. Chances are it won't turn out to be much fun anyway. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you are an organized and orderly person, a few surprises today may disrupt your game plan. Keep calm so that you can cope with them. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's not like you to be negative but, unfortunately, those preconceived notions you have today may be misleading. Don't prejudice anything. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) The smartest course to follow today is to not get involved financially with anybody. Somehow, things will work out so that you'll be the only loser. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're used to making spur-of-the-moment decisions, but today that might not be such a good idea. There are too many variables to be considered. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't attempt any shortcuts today, even if a whole army of unexpected chores are dumped in your lap. Only proven procedures will work. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you allow them to, busybodies will butt into your personal affairs today. Just because someone asks you a question, it doesn't mean you are obligated to answer. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Everyone is a trifle edgy today, so take extra pains not to speak absentmindedly. The slightest infraction could be blown out of proportion. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Failure to get persons to follow directions today might be traced back directly to you. Cloudy instructions on your part could be the cause. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Ill-planned or impulsive actions may prove to be costly today. Don't take any risks, especially when you're laying hard cash on the line. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Wasting time is a luxury you can ill afford today. There's a good chance many unexpected additional demands will be placed on your shoulders. CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't be able to talk your way out of why you neglected anything today, so show a responsibility for your obligations and you won't have to try.

Nashville music business has grown very sophisticated in recent years

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Behind the corn-pone jokes on "Hee Haw" and country music's zany song titles like "You're the Reason Our Kids Are Ugly" is a city-slick business and technological operation that belies the Nashville image of barefoot hillbillies.

Supporting folksy country stars are millions of dollars' worth of sophisticated equipment, computers and sharp business executives with a critical eye on the bottom line.

It may look like a simple operation for the Oak Ridge Boys to step on stage and sing "Elvira," but it takes three buses and three

"18-wheelers" to transport the flashy quartet and their 40 tons of equipment from show to show.

According to Kathy McClintock, spokeswoman for the Oak Ridge Boys, it costs the group $7,500 to $9,000 per concert for sound and lights. Each bus is valued at $375,000 and the big tractor-trailer rigs are leased for approximately $60,000 per year per vehicle, not including fuel.

Besides a 25-person road crew, 55 other employees work in other operations. The group also owns two publishing companies, a recording studio and two radio stations.

The computer craze has even caught up with "Hee Haw," the syndicated television show portraying country bumpkins wearing overalls and standing in cornfields.

Each segment of the show is time coded, so each show is laid out by a computer according to the minutes available.

"It's like fitting pieces into a jigsaw puzzle," said David Ward, a spokesman for the country music-comedy show.

Even some of the stars on the show are not the uneducated, poor characters they portray.

"It's always amused me that Archie Campbell would do a corn-pone segment on the show, then go off and talk to his stockbroker," Ward said.

Joe Galante, head of RCA Records in Nashville, says the music business has grown much more sophisticated during his 11 years with the company.

Alabama's "When We Make Love" didn't make No. 1 on the country charts by accident. RCA has about a dozen country promotion staff members who contact radio stations, urging them to play RCA songs such as the June chart-topper.

Helping the promotion staff and other RCA employees is a computer which can give them access to the record charts.

Multimedia Entertainment, a major producer of country music television shows, relies on post-production equipment in Nashville to syndicate programs like "Music City USA."

Unknown star may become a star at last

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Mary Cadorette has reason to remember the famous line from "42nd Street," "You're going out there an unknown but you're coming back a star."

She was understudy for the lead role of unknown actress Peggy Sawyer (who's pulled out of the chorus to fill in for the ailing star on opening night) and played the role 70 times during 3½ years with the Broadway show, based on the 1933 movie musical.

Miss Cadorette hasn't become a star yet, but she may with her first-ever television role in the revamped version of ABC's "Three's Company," now called "Three's a Crowd."

Miss Cadorette (as Vicky Bradford) becomes the new love interest of John Ritter (Jack Tripper) in the comedy series. They move into an apartment over Ritter's new bistro, and her father, who can't tolerate Jack, becomes their landlord and the crowd.

Viewers first met Miss Cadorette in May in an episode which shows the two of them getting together. She's a stewardess and they become entangled during some turbulence and end up in the plane's restroom.

The facelift for the opening of the eighth full season will see only Ritter returning from the original cast. The old performers will bow out in a one-hour opening special that sets up the new situation.

Joyce DeWitt was the only other member of the original cast. Norman Fell and Audra Lindley left in 1979 in a spinoff series called "The Ropers." Suzanne Somers left two years later in a contract dispute.

Until "Three's a Crowd," Miss Cadorette had never been before a camera except to do commercials and dance in a film.

"I had been in '42nd Street' for 3½ years and was looking for a change," she says. "I was thinking a soap opera, which I could do in New York. I never even thought of moving to California. But I'm really not right for soap operas. I'm too clean-cut. I wasn't vampy enough, and I was too young to be a siren."

When the audition for "Three's a Crowd" came up she did it — and forgot about it. A week later she was called back to audition again.

"I forgot about it again," she says, "then two days later they called and asked how much notice I had to give '42nd Street.'"

Her husband, advertising man Michael Eisen, quit his job and now works here with several clients. He also advises her on her career.

Miss Cadorette, who's 5-foot-6, has light brown eyes and dark blonde hair, says she identifies with Peggy Sawyer in "42nd Street."

"Peggy's story is parallel to mine," she says. "She just wanted to be in a Broadway show."

"The writers and producers felt they had exhausted all the story possibilities under the old concept," she says. "A guy living with two girls is no longer controversial or novel."

LARKIN MALLOY (Sky, EON) has been seen alot lately with DENISE COWARD... and who can blame him?

Recap - 8/13 - 8/17
Previews 8/20 - 8/24

RYAN'S HOPE—Max surprises Maggie as she steals the gold coin. She panics and agrees to go to bed with him to cover her deceit. Later Maggie breaks up with Dave saying that he can't offer her the lifestyle she has grown accustomed to. He is devastated and rips down all her pictures. Frank breaks into Maggie's hotel room to talk some sense into her and is greeted by the sound of alarms. Rick and Pru successfully fight off the thugs. Matthew tells Delia he was murmuring Murdoch's name because he wanted to make sure his lawyer took care of Delia in case something happened to him.

THIS WEEK: Frank blames Jack for Maggie's change of heart. Max becomes possessive of Maggie.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS—Andy tells Paul about his distrust of Jack Abbott with Diane and that he is going to follow Jack to make sure he is not leading Diane on. Eve has developed a plan for both her and Rick to escape. She'll disguise Rick as a doctor and he'll order her release. Ashley tells Jack she'll rehire Lindsey but against her better judgement, but any more insubordination and she's out for good. Jazz tells Boobsie that he's worried and scared about the position his association with the mob has put his brother in. Jack kissed Lindsey and she asks him to please not leave her tonight. He stays. Lauren is able to get through to her voice coach, David. After listening to Traci sing "The Rose" he tells her not to have too much hope. She is devastated.

THIS WEEK: Douglas gets to know Boobsie. Traci leans on Danny for support.

GENERAL HOSPITAL—The hospital's buzzing about Rick's and Ginny's marriage. Leo gives Mrs. Barrington the blackmail photos for her $125,000. Lorena keeps Beatrice from eavesdropping on the transaction. Grant 2 kisses Celia passionately before all the guests and promises a night of love. Bobbie, emotionally, makes slurs against Rose. Brock slugs Bobbie a devastating blow to the ribs again, which drops her to the floor! Celia gets a telegram from Borden, saying he's coming to New York with proof of Grant II's psychosis. Grant II calls Western Union and finds out the telegram was from England. He takes Celia to the airport, and after seeing her off, books himself on the next plane to New York.

THIS WEEK: Edward keeps an eye on Jimmy Lee. Holly does her own investigating.

THE GUIDING LIGHT—HB accepts Billy's stipulation that Reva forfeit her share in the company in case of divorce. Reva agrees. Fletcher comes on to Susan Piper. All Billy can think of is getting revenge on Reva and driving her out of the family. Jim stuns Hillary by asking her to marry him. Ross worries about the change he senses in Phillip. Tony and the Man in Black struggle in the cottage. Tony falls to the floor and is knocked unconscious.

Katie thinks about marrying Louie. Miss Piper warns Fletcher never to cross her.

THIS WEEK: Vanessa leaves Billy. Phillip turns against Ross.

AS THE WORLD TURNS—Brian tells Lisa he'll take over the reins of the family business. Diana tells Steve she's going to annul her marriage to Frank. Steve tells Lisa he fought with Whit the night of the murder, and he doesn't know if he killed him. The forensics report comes back revealing that the fibers on the screen and Craig's coat are of the same material. Frank orders Craig brought in for questioning. Barbara and Gunnar vow to fight his illness. Bob can't keep himself from thinking romantically about Kim. John accuses Lucinda of trying to buy him.

THIS WEEK: Jay is aghast. Lisa comforts Diana.

THE EDGE OF NIGHT—As the three bikers go at Sky and Raven with their knives drawn, Preacher runs down the road and quickly overpowers the thugs with the Whitney's help. Alicia and Del arrive back from the lab after proving the formula is a fake. Liz asks Miles if she might be allowed to reconstruct the skull of the bones she found to help establish the identity of them. Sky tells Alicia his theory of how Krich killed Logan. She agrees that is what happened although she and Del know different. When Krich tries to make a break for it and he and Preacher struggle on the terrace Krich falls over the ledge to his death. Calvin and the police arrive at the villa and immediately place Raven under arrest for the murder of Logan Swift.

THIS WEEK: Raven looks to Sky for support. Liz does some lab work.

ANOTHER WORLD—Julia is found murdered in her hotel room. Donna confronts MJ claiming MJ's brother misled Donna and Marley into believing he had money. Donna tells MJ to keep Ben away from Marley. Ross wonders if Herb has everything under control with Sally. Nancy is shocked when she discovers Catlin hiding in Ada's room. Ada is put in the hospital suffering from exhaustion, concerned for her mother's health. Nancy tells Catlin he must leave. Sally finds herself and looking for her errant husband. Bo is spotted just escaping and the guards give chase. Liz is worried by Neil's bad dreams and he makes a desperate call to Max to be let off the hook. Bo gives Howie the prism and Hope's watch and goes off to meet Hope. Howie is attacked from behind by Shane and Shane goes overboard with the watch and the prism.

THIS WEEK: Maggie is deeply touched by Mickey. Liz is worried about Neil.

LOVING—Stacey, Tony and Dane search for Jack and find him lying motionless off a dirt road. As Shana struggles to break free from Harry, he panics and shoots Jim. Mike quickly fires back. Edy tells Jonathan she wants a divorce—now. But Jonathan says she'll have to wait a bit until he's ready, then he'll give her a divorce. Jonathan comes on to her but Edy fights him, saying she hates him. Shana refuses to leave the hospital and she's furthered panicked when Jim's condition worsens and they have to rush him into emergency surgery. Dane blames himself for Jack's accident and Ann offers to speak to Jack again to help pave the way between father and son.

THIS WEEK: Dane sneaks into Harry's room. Shana prays for Jim.

SANTA BARBARA—C.C. Capwell calls in Cruz Castillo to do battle with a disastrous oil rig fire. Jade travels to Hollywood and invites herself to stay indefinitely with Ted and Danny. Dominick hands Joe a key to C.C. Jr.'s bedroom and tells him the mystery surrounding the death is locked in the room. Joe's homecoming put a strain on Peter and Kelly's relationship. The ever jealous Mason picks up a spark between Cruz and Santana.

THIS WEEK: Joe's family fears he will violate his parole. Mason confronts Santana.

TRACK WRECK—Chicago transit officials converse among themselves at the site of Friday's rush-hour collision between two rapid-transit "el" trains. One death and at least 40 injuries were reported. (AP Laserphoto)

Train reported brake problem before crash

CHICAGO (AP) — A commuter train that rolled backward into another train at the height of rush hour, killing one person, injuring 44 others and leaving two cars derailed, had reported a brake problem just before the accident, a transit official said.

Two people were pinned under wreckage in the rear car of the lead train and had to be removed by firefighters with hydraulic jacks after the ground-level trains crashed Friday about seven miles northwest of the Loop on one of Chicago's busiest lines, authorities said.

The eight-car trains were carrying about 100 people south toward the downtown loop. If they had been traveling north, away from the city, about 2,000 passengers would have been aboard, said Michael LaVelle, a Chicago Transit Authority spokesman.

LaVelle said the CTA's automatic train control system is supposed to prevent trains from getting too close together, adding, "We're investigating the possibility of sabotage."

LaVelle said a 20-foot piece of pipe was found lying on top of a wooden wire spool about five feet from the point of impact, between the northbound and southbound tracks. He wouldn't say if the pipe might have been a factor in the accident.

"There was a big crash and I nearly fell off my seat," said Earl Santy, 30, of Decatur, who was riding in the rear train. "The window next to me shattered. I just remember a bunch of people flying up in the air in front of me."

"There was just, like, panic," said Santy, who was treated for minor injuries at a hospital. "Everybody was saying, 'How are we going to get out of here?' Nobody knew what had happened."

The Cook County medical examiner's office identified the dead passenger as Pablo Rosendo, 60, of Chicago. Three passengers were listed in good condition today at area hospitals, officials said.

After taking on passengers shortly after 5 p.m., the lead train stopped about 1,000 feet past the Montrose Station to allow the motorman to report a minor problem with the train's braking system, said CTA Chairman Michael Cardilli.

As dictated by CTA procedure, the second train, which was just leaving the station, also stopped, Cardilli said. At that point the lead train started rolling backward and struck the stopped second train, Cardilli said.

Cardilli declined to speculate on whether the brake problem contributed to the crash, saying the CTA "would like to reserve judgment."

He estimated the grade at the accident site at about 5 degrees, but said he didn't know the speed at impact.

Partial service on one track was restored an hour after the accident. Cardilli said both tracks might be operating normally by Monday.

The last major wreck in the Chicago transit system occurred in April 1982, when one train rear-ended another, injuring 40 people.

Wall Street worrying less about deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — Although it is far from resolved, the issue of the federal budget deficit seems to be troubling Wall Street less than it used to.

Bond and stock prices have staged significant rallies of late, suggesting that fears have abated of renewed inflation and upward pressure on interest rates arising from the deficit.

It has helped, most analysts agree, that recent projections of the size of the deficit, while still very large, have been smaller than previous forecasts.

"Everybody, it seems, is coming out with lower deficit estimates," observed Jeffrey Applegate, political economist at E.F. Hutton & Co., in a recent commentary.

The Congressional Budget Office recently lowered its estimate of the gap between the government's income and spending for the current fiscal year to $172 billion, compared with $195 billion in fiscal 1983.

This past week, the Reagan administration also issued a projection of smaller deficits than it had previously predicted.

Earlier in the summer Congress passed, and Reagan signed into law, a weighty tax bill designed to make what the president has called a "down payment" toward shrinking the deficit.

That measure by itself isn't expected to make a big difference in the final numbers that come in. But participants in the markets appear to be increasingly convinced that more substantial steps will be taken next year.

"The deficit may still be of enormous proportions, but the financial markets don't seem to care," observed John Connolly, analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "Gold prices have plunged and bond prices have soared, eventually inspiring a remarkable rally in stocks as well."

The stock market rally paused in the past week. After soaring 103.47 points in the two previous weeks, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped back 6.19 to 1,211.90.
