Judge sets penalties against Harlow, others

LUBBOCK - A judgment of more than $900,000 was entered against The Harlow Corporation, interest holders and investors in the lawsuit with Dorchester Gas Producing Co. over natural gas rights in Gray County.

According to documents filed Friday in the Lubbock District Clerk's office, 100th District Judge Robert Montgomery authorized the judgment against the defendants, who lost a lawsuit in August filed by Dorchester against Harlow.

The judgment included $723,331.29 against Harlow Corp., operators of the two wells in dispute; interest holders Lawrence Hagy, Sybil Harrington and the Harrington Foundation; and 11 investors.

In addition, the judgment included attorneys' fees amounting to $234,923 and paralegal fees of $7,778.33, the reports indicated.

A permanent injunction also was filed against Harlow to prevent the independent oil firm from producing natural gas from perforations in the brown dolomite formation.

The injunction applies to two of Harlow's oil wells located about eight miles south of Pampa on the Beavers Lease. The lawsuit is one of many arising out of disputes over the Panhandle Field gas and oil production.

The judgment was based in part on the value of natural gas produced by Harlow's wells No. 1 and 2 between June, 1980, and July,

In the trial lasting more than five weeks in Lubbock on a change of venue from Pampa, the Lubbock jury found Harlow had produced 187,000 cubic feet of gas allegedly belonging to Dorchester. The jury ruled the gas was valued at approximately $462,000, less than Dorchester had stipulated for its value.

The jury also awarded Dorchester legal fees of about $240,000, about half of what it had asked.

Jurors upheld Dorchester's contentions that the gas Harlow was producing from its oi! wells was free gas apart from oil and not from an oil producing stratum.

The judgment included $470,382.11 against Harlow, the principal defendant in the trial.

Hagy had a judgment of $29,398.88 against him for his one-sixteenth overriding interest in the production of the wells.

Judgments of $14,699.44 each were made against Mrs. Harrington and the Harrington Foundation. Both hold one-thirty-second overriding interests.

Other judgments were rendered against investors in the wells. These included John W. Adams, representing Adams and McGahey of Amarillo, $67,617.43, and Adams, representing the R. W. and June Adams Estate, $33,808.71.

Also having judgments entered against them were Eagle Investment, $15,847; Noel Bruce, $10,565.21; H. G. Cambern, $5,200; Kenneth Cambern, $2,600; C. A. and Joyce Scott, $2,600; Rick and Cindy Harris, $2,600; and David Martindale, $2,600.

The trial ended Aug. 30 in Lubbock. Judge Montgomery had indicated he would rule soon on the judgment. But the final judgment was filed Friday, about three and a half months after the trial concluded Harlow Corp. has indicated it plans to appeal the decisions.

Dorchester has filed at least six other suits in Gray and Carson Counties. Two claims have been filed in the 223rd Judicial District Court in Gray County against J. B. Watkins and Internorth et al.

Filed in 100th District Court in Carson County are suits against Meyer Farms, Inc.; Komanche Oil and Gas; Lucky Bird Petroleum and Mark Fahle; and Tri-Ex Oil and Gas, Inc.

In addition, Sharon Lease Oil and Judy Oil have filed a suit against Dorchester in the 223rd District Court in Gray County.

Ol' man winter leaves ice layer on the area

From staff and wire reports A cold front invaded Pampa and other Panhandle areas Friday, creating extremely hazardous driving conditions through the weekend from sleet and freezing rain and causing some power outages.

A freezing rain beginning early Friday morning, following on the heels of a lighter freezing rain system which pelted the area Thursday, coated streets, trees, vehicles and homes with a layer of ice up to a half-inch thick in places. A rash of minor accidents from motorists traveling on the slippery roads kept police and Department of Public Safety troopers busy for two days. A light, non-freezing rain falling about 9:30 p.m. Friday worsened the already ice-packed streets, with police issuing appeals to motorists to stay at home. Saturday morning electrical power in a large part of Pampa failed around 7:40 a.m. for about an hour and a half when an ice-coated transmission line to a feeder substation collapsed, causing the outage.

Southwestern Public Service officials said power to the eastern and northern sections of the city was restored by 9:15 a.m. to most residents hit by the outage. A few isolated sections were without power for awhile longer.

McLean also experienced electrical power failures from the ice-laden lines. Electricity went off in the city about 12:30 a.m. Saturday for about two hours before it was restored.

Lights went out again in McLean at 11 a.m. Saturday for approximately 45 minutes.

A crowd of shoppers at a half-price sale at Parsons Drug Store in McLean continued their shopping despite the failure, looking for their wares by flashlight and even candlelight. Storekeepers could accept only checks or cash for the correct amount since the electric cash register was not operating. Clerk Cherry Johnson remarked,

"It's nice to be in a small town and not be one bit afraid of anyone walking out with anything. Items were put in boxes and stored until power returned. Throughout Pampa hundreds of broken tree limbs and branches dotted yards, driveways and sections of streets as the heavy ice coatings caused them to break.

While the main purpose of the leaders to obtain funds to build a new community building came nearer to reality last week with word that a proposed foundation had received approval of its non-profit status.

The board of directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Foundation, Inc., have received verbal approval from the Internal Revenue Service of the foundation's 501 (c) (3) classification as a non-profit corporation for community betterment.

Official approval of the application should be received in the mail by Dec. 31, board members said.

In its application to the IRS, the foundation said its principal business activity is to receive and maintain a fund or funds of real or personal property, with the income to be used for charitable, literary qualifying as exempt or ganizations also classified under Section 501 (c) (3) of the IRS Code.

The IRS approval certifies the Chamber Foundation as a non-profit, charitable organization, board members explained. Contributions to the foundation thus will become tax deductible, they said.

The foundation's first major project will be establishing a fund to construct a community building. With its non-profit classification status approved, the foundation will officially launch its drive to raise $350,000 for the purchase or construction of the building.

The drive for the building began in August, when Ed Myatt, former Chamber president, approached the Chamber's board of directors about the project. The board approved the project. A special Chamber luncheon was unanimous support from past Chamber presidents, the board and other local business and civic leaders

Myatt offered to open the fund drive with a personal donation of $10,000.

The fund raising activities were placed on hold after the Chamber Foundation idea was conceived in September. The application for non-profit status was sent to the IRS, with the active fund drive postponed until the application was approved.

The foundation now is a non-profit corporation with an official charter, reported Charles Cooley, accountant working with the foundation for its IRS status. Members of the foundation's board of directors include Myatt, Floyd F. Watson, Jim D. Ward, Roy C. Sparkman and Phil B. Gentry community building.

It will not be just a Chamber building, but it will be available for community use for various activities. Residents can use the building for club meetings, wedding anniversaries, receptions, seminars and other events.

Ward explained the building also will be available for office space by other organizations having the 501 (c) (3) status, such as the Pampa United Fund, the Pampa Fine Arts Association, Clean Pampa, Inc. and others.

Once the building is obtained, such groups may apply for office space in the facility, he said.

Sparkman stressed residents need not be members of the Chamber of Commerce to use the facilities. Public areas will be available for meetings. A kitchen facility also is planned for the building to permit receptions, can benefit," Ward said.

Not everyone needs to give large donations to make the program a success, he added. Five and ten dollar checks all add up, he said.

Myatt said the capital improvement drive is not meant to be wholly subsidized by industries, businesses or foundations.

"All citizens can contribute," Sparkman said. "No donation is too small.

Myatt said the foundation is not specifically a Chamber project, though he approached the Chamber for its support. The foundation's board of directors is separate from the Chamber, he said

No Chamber money is being spent for the organization of the foundation or the operation of the building drive, Cooley stated. Instead, the Chamber is just serving as a vehicle for

In a letter mailed to Chamber members, the board said "this building will enhance membership and community pride." The project can "demonstrate to people of Pampa and surrounding area a continuing effort to match the industrial and commercial growth that has added so much to our social and economic stability," the letter states

A foundation account already has been opened in a local bank, the board members said.

Persons wanting to contribute to the foundation may mail their tax-deductible donations to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Foundation, P. O. Box 541, Pampa, Texas 79066-0541 or to Phil Gentry at the First National Bank

Margie Prestidge can't have office in the courthouse

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

Margie Prestidge, Justice of the Peace for Precinct 1, probably will have to find another office than the one she has occupied in the Gray County Court House, according to a report submitted to county commissioners Friday morning.

County Attorney Robert McPherson said he had reviewed state laws, rules of procedures, statutes and state Attorney General opinions concerning the office of Justice of the Peace He concluded in his findings that each J.P. "shall reside in and preside in his or her precinct.

The courthouse is in Precinct 2. according to the present districting of the county, McPherson said. The elected justice for each precinct must have his or her office in the precinct in which he or she was elected, he said

The commissioner's court may provide office space for a J.P., but they are not mandated to do so, McPherson said.

There is no exception that allows a J.P. to have his or her office located outside his or her precinct, be David Potter, Republican who was elected to the post in the November elections.

The commissioners had allowed Prestidge to perform the J.P. duties for both the Precinct 1 and 2

Duke is 34 years old but looks more like 45. His hair, what little he has left, is prematurely gray. His arms are scarred from needle marks and infections. He's jumpy and can't sit still. And after a life of petty crime and "sex, drugs and rock 'n roll' he's facing a prison sentence of 25 years or more, he said

At age 18, Duke took a 15 - year - old bride. Shortly thereafter, the couple had a child, and the young man made a mistake that sent him to prison for the first time. He and a young friend burglarized a Payne County, Okla., car dealership and got caught.

"Me and this old boy went over and stole some tools out of a Ford garage one night. I don't know why I did it, I didn't need the tools. It was just dumb, I guess," Duke said.

Shortly after his release, Duke stole some telegraph wire for its copper. He was caught again and was off to prison for a 15 - month stretch.

It was after his release in 1972 that Duke moved to Pampa.

"I did straighten out. I didn't do drugs then." he said

He got a job in the oil patch and met new friends, friends who introduced him to marijuana.

"I thought it was neat. It replaced alcohol. I never have been much of a drinker," he said. 'I wish to hell I'd never have done it. All it did was cause me more problems.

vehicles and blocked driveways. Travelers advisories were issued for Panhandle and West Texas streets and highways for Friday and Saturday.

Pampa had received 47 inch of moisture by early Saturday morning, with more rain and possible snow in the forecast through the evening hours. High Friday was 31, with an overnight low Saturday morning of 26.

Temperatures inched above freezing by late Saturday morning, melting much of the ice and sleet accumulations. But below-freezing temperatures after the setting of the sun threatened slick streets again, with travelers advisories still in effect.

Skies were forecast to be partly cloudy today, with a high near 50. Southerly winds of 10-20 miles an hour and gusty were expected to keep the chill in the air, however.

Pampa police listed 14 minor accidents for a 24-hour period from Friday to Saturday morning, but none were considered major. A number of other "fender-benders" were not listed on the report.

No major injuries were reported. but the emergency room at Coronado Community Hospital treated and released a number of people for minor injuries occurring in accidents or resulting from slipping on the ice.

The storm system that dumped up to 18 inches of snow across New Mexico and plagued West Texas and the Panhandle with freezing rain and light snow brought a mixed weather picture to the Lone Star State on Saturday

A flash flood watch was posted for the western two-thirds of Texas, as bursts of tropical moisture from the Gulf of Mexico collided with a stationary cold front.

Forecasters warned of the possibility of heavy thunderstorms, especially over North Central Texas, where a series of tornadoes in the Dallas area on Thursday left behind damage estimated at more than $20 million.

Accumulations of up to four inches of snow had been forecast for the El Paso area, but by mid-afternoon Saturday, the temperature was hovering in the upper 30s and most roads were open, according to the Department of Public Safety.

About 11/2 inches of snow were on the ground in El Paso, but most of it was melting by Saturday afternoon, DPS dispatcher Bill Edsall said fog created hazardous driving conditions between Van Horn and the junction of Interstate highways 10 and 20 in far West Texas.

'I understand it's pretty treacherous,'' Edsall said. However, there were no reports of major accidents.

In the Lubbock area, rain was falling Saturday and the DPS warned of the possibility of icy highways as the temperature dipped below the freezing mark.

"We still have some widely scattered ice" from Friday, DPS dispatcher Gary Gilbert added.

In Amarillo, where freezing rain and snow fell Friday, roads were clearing, though still slushy, authorities said.

Ahead of the cold front, temperatures in the 60s and 70s, along with cloudy skies, were the rule. A flash flood watch was posted west of a line from Paris, in Northeast Texas, to Tyler and Crockett.

Hundreds of families continued to dig through the rubble of their houses in the wake of devastating tornadoes that moved through a three-county area around Dallas on Thursday.

At least 45 people were injured and as many as 950 homes were ravaged along a 65-mile path.

State funds give teen hope for heart-liver transplant

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -State officials have agreed to pay part of the cost of a heart-liver transplant for a 17-year-old Lake Worth teen-ager whose family doesn't have the money or the insurance to pay for the costly surgery.

According to a letter from the Texas Department of Human Resources, Medicaid funds will be available to pay for the liver transplant and 30 days of hospitalization for Mary Cheatham.

The girl's mother, JoAnn Cheatham, said she received the letter Wednesday, but waited until Friday to tell her daughter about the news so she could confirm the letter with authorities.

"We're a lot more hopeful, a lot more happy," Mrs. Cheatham said. "We are going to have Christmas Saturday, a little early since we might get to go any time. Mary will get some clothes, a few pieces of jewelry and hopefully a new heart and liver. Mrs. Cheatham said she was hopeful that private donations would cover the cost of the heart transplant.

The entire procedure could cost $250,000, doctors say. Officials at a transplant program at the University of Pittsburgh are to notify the family next week of the amount of advance deposit necessary

Mary Cheatham suffers from familial hypercholesterolemia, a genetic disorder which causes a massive buildup of cholesterol in the blood. She suffered her first heart attack when she was nine and began suffering symptoms of impending heart failure this year, her mother said

'The chest pains increased more and more," Mrs. Cheatham said. 'There is shortness of breath. She can no longer walk long distances

Mrs. Cheatham's husband is disabled from a stroke. She quit her job to care for her ailing family

Although a special plea to the White House provided a guarantee that the federal government would pick up half the tab, state Medicaid officials had refused to pick up any of the bill, saying the procedure was considered experimental.

Dr. Hiliary Connor, deputy commissioner for the Texas Department of Human Resources. said the decision was changed after it was learned federal officials removed several types of conditions for children's liver transplants out of the experimental category.

"It's a tremendous ethical question and a very difficult decision to make," he said. "It's almost impossible when you are faced with one individual.

Heart transplants are still considered experimental - and ineligible for Medicaid funds, officials said

Probe sought by group in student death

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General Jim Mattox should investigate the recent death of a Nigerian student who suffocated in a fight with Austin police, officials of the Texas Civil Liberties Union say

The organization said in a Friday letter to Mattox that investigations conducted by the police internal affairs and homicide departments are inadequate.

The letter was sent nine days after Evans Ekiye died in his apartment. A neighbor had called police after she though she heard Ekiye beating his wife.

Ekiye, 28, struggled with police, and died while they held him face down and handcuffed on a water bed, investigators said.

From staff and wire reports The 39-year-old female manager of a branch bank in Geronimo, Okla., killed by a gunman Friday afternoon was the niece of three Pampa residents.

Kay Bruno, manager of the First Bank of Chattanooga branch, is the niece of Mrs. Flossie Anderson, Mrs. A.N. Rogers and Bill Johnson. Ms. Bruno's mother, Faye Stalkup, lives in Wichita Falls.

Ms. Bruno reportedly was shot in the head after being forced to lie face down on the floor of a room in the bank. She was one of three bank employees killed Friday. One of the two female employees also killed was six months pregnant.

A man who lined up seven people during an attempted bank robbery and shot them from behind, killing four and wounding three, ran out of ammunition as he repeatedly tried to shoot his eighth captive, a 1-year-old girl, authorities said.

The first person on the scene, Pam Matthews of Geronimo, said she had entered the bank to withdraw money for Christmas and found the lobby empty.

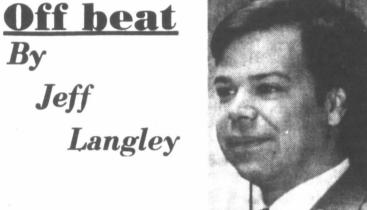

"I heard a baby crying I kept hollering 'Is anybody here, is anybody here?' All I kept hearing was a baby crying.

"I walked to the back of the bank and found them all in one room. No one was moving. I think they felt maybe the robber was still in the bank. Only the baby was crying, and I ran out to get help."

Robles "gave a really good description of the guy," said Dale. Robles' father said his son told him he never saw the gunman carrying money

Dale identified the dead, in addition to Ms. Bruno, as employees Joyce Mullinex, 20, six months pregnant; and Jeri Bowles, 18; and customer Eddie Zeller, 33, a farmer, all of them from Geronimo.

The third wounded person, Marilyn Roach, 24, was in serious condition at Oklahoma City Memorial Hospital, where she was airlifted after being taken to Southwestern Hospital in Lawton, officials said.

Feds haven't got message

The U.S. Department of Energy Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management's siting process rationale, used in determining the decriptors and discriminators, should engage the thought process, human factorwise, and progress into an assembly - phase mode of a nuclear waste repository at a more-preferred, site-sized area numerous kilometers distanced away from the Texas Panhandle, geographicalwise.

Translation: "Take your dump and shove it!"

The federal government still hasn't picked up the message that we don't want every drop of this country's high - level nuclear garbage, the most toxic substances ever introduced to this planet, buried in our backyard.

It isn't an ordinary "toxic - waste" dump that the feds may build ear Tulia or Hereford. It isn't another chemical waste dump, a Love Canal. It's much worse and more dangerous than any wasteland ever

The DOE has picked the Panhandle and proposed sites in Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, Utah and Washington as candidates for the country's first, permanent, high - level nuclear waste dump. The bureaucrats call it a "repository.

The material the government wants to bury for at least the next 10,000 years is "spent" nuclear fuel from nuclear power plants and weapons plants. The nuclear waste presently is piling up in temporary storage under pools of water at the facilities across the country. The government has accepted the problem of where to permanently dump this nasty material and took it off the hands of the power companies involved.

Somehow, the feds decided the Panhandle might make a dandy place for the permanent dump.

To illustrate how toxic these substances are, consider that a 10 second exposure to an unshielded load of the radioactive material will kill a man on the spot. I recall reading a wire story about a plutonium spill at a processing plant in Oklahoma. Seems an entire gram of the stuff, which would amount to a few sprinkles in the palm of your hand, had spilled from its container. The estimated cost of cleaning up this little accident: $300 MILLION. That tells me that the material - not grams, but tons of it - proposed for burial here is slightly dangerous.

Yes, Uncle Sam has proposed putting every drop of this "high level" nuclear waste from this country and several foreign countries right here in the Panhandle.

Under study for the storage site are salt beds about 1,200 feet down, directly under the Ogallala Aquifer, the main source of water in the great plains. The DOE hasn't decided what type of containers would hold the buried waste, and it hasn't decided how the waste, whether by truck or train, would be transported to the dump.

No part of the proposal to dump the poison here makes any sense at all, so it's a waste of time to even argue the great dangers involved, scientificalwise

The sites involved in the Panhandle are under fertile farmland inhabited by people. A farmer in the area once fumed that the federal government would stop a dam project over some "endangered" lizard with yellow stripes on its back, but the human beings in the area weren't being considered in the proposal to build the dump next to his land.

'I guess we're the wrong species,'' the farmer said.

In his campaign for the senate, Phil Gramm joked that the Boston area might make a better place for the dump. About 80 percent of this garbage is produced east of the Mississippi, yet by no coincidence, all of the proposed dump sites are in politically powerless areas such as the Panhandle.

It would make more sense to put the dump in a place like the Nevada desert, or some such totally - desolate area. Then after the accidents that are bound to happen, it wouldn't be as great a loss when the surrounding area became permanently uninhabitable.

But bureaucrats rarely try to make sense. Whom are they trying to kid when they say this junk can be safely stored for 10,000 years or thereabouts? The federal government can't guarantee the "safety" the social security program for the next five years.

We in Pampa ought to be concerned about this proposal because the some of the transportation routes to the Panhandle sites, U.S. 60 and the Santa Railroad lines, pass through town.

Of course, the DOE is keeping us "informed" about the proposal. The proposed sites have been narrowed down to nine, more - specific locations. Now, the agency must pick three lucky finalists for the drilling of deep and wide test shafts and further study.

In an "executive summary" of the results of its scientific study, the DOE described how the Panhandle sites were selected:

"The repository siting process rationale and 10 site performance criteria specified in DOE - NWTS - 33 (2) (DOE, 1981) are described...These criteria and interpretations by the National Waste Terminal Storage Program (DOE, 1981) were used to detemine a listing of descriptors (parameters) which, when considered as an integrated group, describes and represents the performance criteria. This list of descriptors is shown in Table 1.

"The logic sequence used to identify which descriptors could be used as discriminators is described. Data relevant to each descriptor are discussed, and each descriptor is tracked through the logic sequence to determine whether it is a discriminator or a nopdiscriminator. The logic path requires answers to the following questions: Are descriptor data available? Is the descriptor measure variable within the location? Can data be interpreted to depict variation? Is site preference sensitive to descriptor data?.

And blah, blah, blah, blab, blab, blab, yak, yak, yak.

I have a better plan. Take the descriptors and discriminators and nuclear waste and put them in a big hole under the White House. Langley is senior staff writer of The Pampa News.

Seven children perish in mobile home fire

BEASLEY, Texas (AP) - A fire raced through a mobile home early Saturday as a man failed to save his seven children and stepchildren from perishing in the blaze.

Sgt. Ken Lee of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department said the trailer, located in a mobile home park three miles east of Beasley, southwest of Houston, was fully involved when deputies and fire department personnel arrived on the scene about 4:15

Lee said a man who lived in the mobile home, identified as Daniel Montoya, 47, was burned while trying to rescue the children.

Montoya sustained second-degree burns over three percent of his body, primarily on his left hand, and was taken to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, where he was listed in good condition, said spokeswoman Linda Westerlage.

Montoya's wife, Delia Ramirez, injured in the fire, authorities said. The victims, which included five girls and two boys, ranged in age from three to eight years. Montoya was the father of four of the victims, while three of Ms. Ramirez's children were killed the blaze.

They were identified as Jessica Ramirez, 3; Rachael Ramirez, 7; Elizabeth Ramirez, 8; John Montoya, 4; Esmerelda Montoya, 6; Mandy Montoya, 7; and Daniel Montoya Jr., 8.

Spokeswoman Linda Verdecanna of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department said the bodies of the children were taken to the Harris County morgue.

Lee said authorities did not know the cause of the fire, but he noted that the mobile home did not have any smoke detectors

Sheriff's officers and investigators from the Fort Bend County fire marshal's office were looking into the cause of the fire, Lee said

The Bible does record that Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the King (Matthew 2:1.) The Bible does reveal that He was born of the virgin Mary, and that the conception was miraculous through the Holy Spirit (Matthew 1:18.) The Bible does record that the events surrounding His birth were the fulfillment of prophecy (Isaiah 7:14; Micah 5:2; Matthew 1:22,23.)

from the east, along with the shepherds from Judea, visited Joseph, Mary and the babe while they were in the stable in Bethlehem. The Bible, however, does not tell us how many wise-men there were. The Bible states that Jesus and His mother were in a house at the time of the visit of the wise-men (Matthew 2:9-11) Jesus is referred to, not as a babe, but as a "young child" at the time of their visit (matthew 2:11.) Luke records that the shepherds came to bethlehem and found the baby Jesus lying in a man-ager (Luke 2:8-16.) Undoubtedly, their visit was long before the visit of the wise-men. Also the fact that Herod had all the male children from two years old and under slain indi-cated that several months had passed before the visit of the wise-men (Matthew 2:16-18.)

The fact that Jesus was born is the important thing, not the exact day. His birth, life and death were neces-sary in order to His perfection, sac-rifice and exaltation to the right hand of God (Philippians 2:5-11; Hebrews 10:10.12) 10:10-13.) Billy T. Jones

This explains why the taxman cometh

Two bits of news that caught our attention this week reminded us anew why the taxman cometh eternally.

-A report out of Austin indicated it will cost the state of Texas $17 million to administer competency tests to teachers as mandated by the public education reforms enacted earlier this year.

-The Texas Alcohol and Beverage Commission held classes in Amarillo to instruct bartenders and others who sell alcoholic beverage on how to comply with liquor laws. Among the reported offerings were instructions on how to tell when customers had too much to drink and warnings that minors often attempt to use false identification in order to purchase liquor.

It is difficult for us to understand how the state could possibly spend $17 million administering tests to Texas teachers. We don't know how many teachers there are in Texas, but that would have to add up to a tremendous cost for each test

It seems to us that surely there is someone out there who could develop a satisfactory test for "only" a couple of hundred thousand dollars. We realize that might seem like a paltry figure for the hundreds of "consultants" who constantly keep their fingers in the public till, but surely the test could be developed for less than $1 million.

Once the tests are developed, it would seem equally simple to send them to the superintendents or principals in the various school districts, have them call the teachers in to take the tests, then send the results back to Austin or wherever and have them graded.

If that can't be done for less than $17 million, then perhaps the quickest way of getting rich in today's society is to become a grader of tests.

We don't know how much the Alcohol and Beverage Commission classes cost the taxpayers, but we assume since one was conducted in Amarillo they were also held in other parts of the state. And if they cost anything, that

Court subverts constitution

The U.S. Supreme Court seems to be confused over its constitutional powers. In fact, it should be charged with contempt of the U.S. Constitution. Now, this ignoble status wasn't achieved through appointments to the court by any recent president; it's evolved through an insidious process spanning several decades.

The 1930s is a good watershed mark for the court, thanks to what constitutional scholars call, "The switch in time that saved nine." This was the period when the court broke with its tradition of judicial review of economic matters.

President Franklin Roosevelt was pressing his interventionist domestic economic policy only to have the Supreme Court declare it unconstitutional. So Roosevelt tried to "pack" the court with six additional justices who'd rule in favor of his social programs. But court - packing became unnecessary when Justice Owen Roberts switched his vote to a position satisfactory to the New Dealers

The long reign of court constitutional terror began with its complete abandonment of SUBSTANTIVE interpretation of the due process clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. This was replaced by PROCEDURAL interpretation.

Essentially, the court used to judge whether government economic interferences ignored individual freedom and the right to contract. Today's court is no longer influenced by such

"trivia." All they want to know is whether government interference is PROCEDURALLY sound which means: was there notice, was it capricious or discriminatory, and was there a right to a hearing?

The pre - switch court would have (as it in fact did) thrown out the minimum - wage law on constitutional grounds. Mercantilist occupational and business licensure laws were thrown out on the same constitutional grounds.

And the court has overstepped its constitutional limits in other ways, most notably by ignoring the Tenth Amendment which says, "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution. nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

This is the "states - rights" feature of our constitution which served as a refuge for racists during the civil rights struggle. But the amendment also means the federal government CANNOT establish a local police force; mendate a 55 - mph speed limit; or constitutionally interfere in state and local matters.

If you read court opinions, you'll note the teeth grinding and handwringing attempts by the justices to re - interpret the intentions of the framers of our Consitution. Their behavior is as enlightened as that of ancient scholastics who argued how many teeth were in a horse's mouth, instead of getting up off their butts, going to the barn, looking in a horse's mouth, and counting the teeth

The framers made it patently clear what they meant when they adopted the Constitution. The justices - and any American - need merely read THE FEDERALIST PAPERS, which were written by Constitution drafters Alexander Hamilton, John Jay, and James Madison. The justices can't be that ignorant. They, more than anyone else, know precisely what the Constitution means. Yet they conduct their own private mini t constitutional conventions in their chambers.

Want proof? In 1984, the court ruled in HAWAII HOUSING AUTHORITY v. MIDKIFF that the State of Hawaii could, through right of eminent domain, confiscate private property, not for public but for private use. A large percentage of the land in the Aloha State is owned by five or six families who lease it to tenants. The court ruled that the state could take this land, giving the owners what the state deemed was a fair price, and, in turn, sell it to others. That is the court's largest, recent raid on private property.

I have been flattered by offers of cabinet - level appointments. I've turned them down. I'm afraid I would embarrass the president with my unyielding love of freedom. But, I will accept, without reservation, an appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court. Now you might say, "Walter, you're not a lawyer!" Well, The Constitution DOESN'T require a supreme court justice to be a lawyer Maybe its fractions to the supreme lawyer. Maybe its framers were trying to tell us something?

State officials teaching bartenders how to tell if someone is drunk makes about as much sense as teaching a politician how to spend money. If they didn't already know how, they'd be in a different business. And warning those who sell liquor that minors often use false identification falls in the same category.

Is there any wonder that Texas is experiencing a revenue shortage?

Berry's World

On't rile an Elvis fan

MEMPHIS, Tenn. -- I apologize for what is going to be a plug for my own product, but in order to set the scene for what is to follow, I must say that what I was doing here in Memphis, Elvis Presley's hometown, was autographing copies of my book. The book is titled "Elvis is Dead and I Don't Feel So Good Myself." The book is not about Elvis, but I use Elvis and his effect on my generation to explain why I feel so uncomfortable in the modern world.

Practically everybody I met in Memphis had an Elvis story. Said one of the ladies who worked at the bookstore:

"I grew up in Miami, but I decided to move here to Memphis so I could live in the same town with Elvis. I met him five or six times and I had my picture taken with him, too. It just hasn't been the same since he died."

Another Memphian said: "We lived just down the street from Graceland, where Elvis lived. One day he came flying down our street on a motorcycle. My daughter was out in the yard tossing a ball with a friend.

"When she saw Elvis, she got so excited, she forgot to look for the ball. It hit her right in the face and knocked out her two front teeth. She told me later it was worth it just to see Elvis.

Elvis' pictures still adorn the walls of bars and restaurants, and Graceland remains a mecca for tourists

"Elvis is sacred around here." said another Memphis native.

So I would find out.

There I was in the bookstore. From out of nowhere came a woman, an attractive woman, I judged to be somewhere in her 40s. I smiled at her She didn't smile back.

"You shouldn't have done this," she said to me. "Shouldn't have done what?" I said to her.

"Made fun of Elvis," she went on

"I haven't made fun of Elvis," I begged her pardon.

"That title makes fun of the fact that he's dead," she begged mine, "and I wouldn't have one of your books if you were giving them away." I wished the lady had stayed long enough for me to explain I certainly meant Elvis no harm in the title, or in the text of the book, but she quickly stomped away to breathe her fire on someone else.

But I know there are many other Elvis worshipers out there, and I want to set the record straight:

Elvis played background music while my generation grew up. The preacher preached one Sunday that anybody who listened to Elvis' music' would go to hell. I took a chance and continued listening anyway

I grew ducktails to be like Elvis. I even learned to raise my lip like Elvis did in his famous snarl. I saw "Love Me Tender," his first movie, three times. I still know all the words to "Don't Be Cruel" and "Return to Sender."

Did I make fun of the King? No. Do I hail him as: my personal Pied Piper? Hail, yes.

Anthony Harrigan Let's bust this trial balloon

John Randolph of Roanoke, one of the great statesmen of the early republic, frequently reminded voters in his time that "change is not reform.

One is reminded of that in reading descriptions of the tax proposal submitted to President Reagan by the United States Treasury Department. The authors of the tax plan undoubtedly were well intended, but their design includes provisions which would be counter - productive if the Reagan administration intends to continue to emphasize economic growth.

The most serious defects in the Treasury proposal are the recommendations for repeal of the investment tax credit and the accelerated depreciation system. The Wall Street Journal concludes that these and other features of the proposal would raise corporate taxes 37 percent. One has to stop a minute and ask oneself: is this the Reagan administration that wants to impose a huge new burden on business? This tax proposal makes one think that there is a Mondale administration in charge of Treasury

Perhaps this proposal represents the much discussed new Republican populism, which has a strong anti - business flavor. The new GOP populists are hard to distinguish from the old Jimmy Carter populists.

Whatever the ideological origins of repeal, it's a bad idea. Repeal would have the most immediate and severe impact on the nation's basic industries, which already are reeling under foreign competition. These industries and the busineses and industries which serve them need the investment credits and accelerated depreciation if modernization is to be accomplished.

Without modernization, these industries will suffer and continue to lose their ability to offer employment. The investment credits and accelerated depreciation are in the tax code because there was broad bipartisan awareness of the need to help American business and industry modernize.

Other provisions of the Treasury plan could have hurtful effects. For example, the proposal to limit deductions for interest could have a crushing impact on the home construction industry and its suppliers. A decline in investment in housing would mean extensive unemployment

Then there is the proposal for limiting the tax deductibility of charitable contributions. This most probably wouldn't affect those who donate millions of dollars. But it's very likely that it would dry up small contributions to charities, colleges, hospitals and other worthy activities. These small contributions are very important to tax-exempt organizations. Moreover, the limitation on deductibility is contrary to a Reagan administration emphasis on voluntarism and private initiatives. If private gifts to charitable, educational and religious bodies are cut back, there almost certainly will be a demand for new federal funding programs. Obviously, the Treasury people who drafted this provision didn't consider the practical effect or philosophical conflict involved.

The Treasury tax proposal is a trial balloon. In its present form, it deserves to be shot down. It's inconsistent with the growth theme that has characterized the Reagan administration.

2198 79065 Skyrocketing prices brought unprecedented boom in 1980 and 1981. But the bubble burst the next year. And business had only begun to recover midway through this year.

But now oil prices are sagging again, and the Treasury Department has 'come up with a tax restructuring proposal that has oil industry people upset about the possible loss of treasured deductions.

So it is worrying time again in the Permian Basin, the nation's biggest oil-producing area.

'There's so many 'ifs' in this industry that's it is hard to say what will happen next," said Ed Thompson, executive director of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. "Right now, we're all watching jitterally.

A major worry in the Basin, which covers more than 100,000 square miles in 54 West Texas counties and four southeastern New Mexico counties, is recent cuts by major oil companies in the price they are willing to pay for the top grade of domestic crude oil.

During the past two months, nearly all the major oil companies have announced price cuts, which generally lowered the price of West Texas Intermediate crude oil, the U.S. benchmark blend, by $1 to $1.50 a barrel to between $28 and $29.

Some companies, however, have slashed the price even further, lowering West Texas Intermediate below $28 a barrel. The industry also will be

-Letters to editor-America first Role of religion

To the editor,

It would appear to anyone who is in tune with the news media that the bureaucrats are a bit concerned with the budget. They are paying for their past sins of folly.

Twenty years ago a group of political thinkers tried to tell the government and the voters that we were headed for trouble if we kept spending our money the way they were. The government didn't listen.

The government could stop the givewaways to foreign countries and save a lot of money. That isn't hard to do, just stop. The bleeding hearts can feel for the people of Ethopia that are starving, but yet they overlook the poor American child that is just as bad off. We need to put Americans first. I wonder who would send aid to the USA if we needed it?

The government could put a lot of people to work if we stopped importing goods from foreign competitors. Let's build America products for the American market. Let's put farmers back to work growing food for Americans. We all hear about the food surplus. Tell the man out of work in Detroit about that food surplus.

We could put a lot of people to work just keeping illegal people from crossing our borders to take advantage of the tax-free income. We have never had an effective program to protect our borders from immigration. America is known as the melting pot, but the pot is running over. We need to stop this mass migration the only way it can be stopped, with force. That gets the attention of the illegal immigrant, no matter what

Dear Editor. I am appalled and dismayed by the stand the U.S. Catholic bishops are espousing in their so-called pastoral letter.

With all the religious problems within any faith, their time can be better used to work after that which is their role-religion.

It is not the duty or obligation of every part of our system of government to take away by taxation from those that have and give it to those that don't in an effort to eradicate poverty and hunger, or to assure equality in our economy.

If our bishops will put into practice what they are supposed to be preaching, then we will have no naked people, hungry children or persons living below the dignity that a human should.

It is not only the role of religion and obligation-but God's commandment given to us by our Savior whose birthday we soon will relive. On that last day, we will all be judged and because you gave me your food when I was hungry, you gave me drink when I was thirsty, you clothed me when I was naked, I was ill and you conforted me, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, the King will say 'Come, you have my Father's blessing. Inherit the Kingdom."

I believe that if all clergy and all religious denominations would assume and carry our their proper role there would be no need for any government to further burden us with additional taxes occurred so far, we expected," said Charles Perry, an oilman in neighboring Odessa.

Perry, president of Perry Exploration Co. and Perry Management Inc., said the price of crude oil would have to dip below $25 a barrel before producers in the Permian Basin felt an adverse effect.

Still, Thompson said the price cuts have made West Texas producers "a little edgy."

"They're not hitting the panic button, but this has made a lot of people nervous and probably there's some deals not being put together that would have if prices stayed the same," he said.

Thompson and Perry said that because most of the people in the oil industry today are those "who know what they're doing," they anticipated some drop in prices. The 1982 oil bust weeded out get-rich-quick oil investors from legitimate business people, they agreed.

"And that's why the industry and our economies are doing OK today," Thompson said.

When the latest boom began, drilling activity in the basin hit unprecedented highs and people flocked to the area to try their hands in the turbulent industry. The jobless rate stood at between 4 percent and 5 percent for both Midland and Odessa

When the bust hit in 1982, the result of an overabundant supply of oil and a more cautious approach by investors, unemployment shot up. Midland, the smaller of the two cities, saw its jobless rate hit 7.7 percent in June 1982, while Odessa's rate skyrocketed to 10.3 percent.

This year, unemployment is down in both cities. For October, Midland's rate stood at 3.3 percent, the third lowest in Texas. Odessa's rate was slightly higher, but at 4.4 percent still significantly lower than two years earlier.

Drilling activity in the Permian Basin also has improved greatly this year, spurred partly by the sharp drop in drilling fees brought on by the bust.

In November, 400 rigs were operating in the basin, the most since 1963 except for the '80s boom, Thompson said.

"We're utilizing the equipment pretty much to its maximum," he said. And because drilling costs are down, "we're getting a lot done out here.

But even with the recovery, the oil-based economy still has its problems, said James Williams of Texas Business Forecast, a consulting firm in Odessa.

"Both Midland and Odessa, on the employment side, have recovered quite well. However, that doesn't mean that everything is going real well out here." Williams said. "A lot of companies around here are just right on the edge." Most are worried about another current tax system would be to reduce the maximum tax rate from 50 percent to 35 percent. 'A lot of people don't realize this, but that's going to have a tremendous indirect effect on the business," Williams said. At 50 percent, Williams said, investors "only had to risk 50 cents on every dollar. If it goes to 35, people will be risking at least 65 cents. Any time you increase the risk, there's less incentive to invest. Less investing will do serious damage to the oil industry.

As with the drop in oil prices, William said, Permian Basin residents are watching "it all closely."

Thompson said independent producers would be the ones to suffer the most if the Treasury Department's proposal was instituted and if oil prices continued to fall:

"Independents have only one source of income - selling crude oil," he said. "Major companies have lots of other sources of income they can rely upon. The independent, he's at the mercy of the market.

Despite the worries. Thompson said oilmen "are taking a wait and see attitude toward it all.

He predicted that most independent producers would "continue on with their plans to close out this year. And for next year, wait and see if things go our

EDITOR'S NOTE — Financial focus, a column on investing written by financial consultant and columnist Bob Upton, is a regular Sunday feature of The Pampa News.

Regardless of what security we select, it should meet our goals.

One if the basic tenets of investing is that it should not be done on impulse. Know what you want before you buy. Then, determine if your selection will do for you what you want - in short, will it meet your needs?

If, for example, you wish your investment to give you income, then you must expect your choice to provide suitable dividends (stocks or equity investments provide dividends) or interest (bonds or debt securities produce interest) to meet your needs. In addition, you must be reasonably convinced that this income will be paid to you regularly and on time.

Whether or not you get your income will depend on the ability of that particular corporation to meet its obligations. It also is generally true that the higher your yield or return, the more risk you assume. A U.S. government - guaranteed bond probably will not provide as much income as an unsecured note of some small corporation. On the other hand, the government bond will afford you more safety and peace of mind. So, if you're aiming for maximum incuise on your investment, chances are you're going to have to sacrifice a bit of safety. To put it another way, "There's no such thing as a free lunch.

If, on the other hand, income is secondary and you're after capital appreciation, then you probably should invest in securities you think you may sell for more than you paid for them.

One thing you can be certain of, however, is that no stock or bond can simultaneously offer you minimum risk, attractive income and tremendous growth potential. If a security features one of these attributes, the others will be secondary or practically nonexistent. At certain times, however, it may be possible to obtain securities which potentially offer some modest combination of these features over a period of time.

INVESTMENT TERM OF THE WEEK

Bond - Baiscally an IOU or promissory note of a corporation, usually issued in multiples of $1,000 or $5,000. In every case, a bond represents debt - a bondholder is a creditor of the corporation. In most cases, bonds are secured by a mortgage.

Chalkboard comments disqualify jury

HOUSTON (AP) - A jury chosen to try a murder case has been dismissed and a new trial ordered after bored state's witnesses left a chalkboard full of prejudicial comments in a jury room.

Harris County prosecutor Clay Rawlings and defense attorney Frumencio Reyes picked a jury Tuesday and told its members to return to start the trial the next afternoon.

Three state's witnesses came to visit Rawlings Wednesday morning. They talked in a jury room briefly, then Rawlings left. About an hour later, the prosecutor came back and told the witnesses to go to lunch. He failed to notice certain additions to the chalkboard.

The witnesses left and jurors arrived. When the witnesses came back, they realized the panel was in the jury room.

'One of the witnesses asked me, 'Did you clean off the chalkboard?''Rawlings asked.

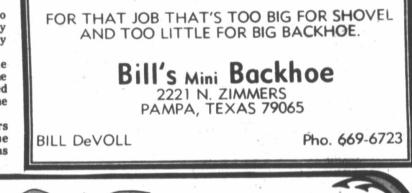

"I said, 'What do you mean, clean off the chalkboard? What did you idiots write on that chalkboard?''' he said. "They said, 'Maybe you better go look at it.''' A bailiff returned with the chalkboard and a big grin. The witnesses had recorded their version of the trial:

- Offense: Aggravated robbery and murder

- Verdict: Guilty as charged.

- Sentence : Life. - Board of pardons and paroles: No parole.

The government could build its fighting force with brilliant minds through the draft again. The volunteer army has a losing record. They finally won a victory in Grenada. Sometimes look up a map of this small country and decide what a major offensive that was. We could hire Americans to work in our factories and shipyards to produce the needed war machines. We would have to be ready to fight because when you have something that is successful, Pickens or someone else will want

The Falwells, Moons and any number of others should be advised if they were going to get into politics and business they would have to pay taxes just like the working stiffs they are trying to convince is going to hell, but might can find some help for a price. The foreign prisons are loaded with patriots today who they could never convince

Some of the freedom (what is left) exists today because the people in Washington realize that there are still a few patriots running around in this land that they can't push around. The churches that are going to become a part of the electorial state should also be required to carry some of the burden of financing it

The IRS and the FBI should have their ranks thinned as most of their staff and work is not of any value. I suggest again that you look at their track record. It is not impressive. The IRS should stop penalizing the working man and start prosecuting the corps. That is too hard. It is easier to harass a man making a living than it is to harass a company making a fortune. That is what we call justice today. Those two organizations cost the taxpayer far more money than they are worth each year.

Political writers stopped writing good political works years ago because it dawned on them that the government had quit listening. The good works of a political nature now are only published in underground papers and books aimed at particular groups. The writers know that the government still won't listen.

I doubt that if every person who read this letter wrote a senator or representative there would be any action taken that would benefit the working American. Greed, not liberty and justice for all, now dictates policy in the halls of government, both local and ational.

Shortage of cooking gas follows disaster in November

By CONCEPCION BADELLO Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Many residents of this sprawling metropolitan area are complaining of scarce gas supplies and price speculation after the destruction of the Pemex storage site that killed at least 452 people last month.

But the state oil and gas monopoly insists that its distribution system has not been affected by the disaster.

Politicans gearing up for'86 races

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Campaign '84 is history — but Campaign '86 has already begun, Campaign '88 is just around the corner, and some politicians will face hard decisions about both.

Some cases in point:

- Thirty-two senators must decide whether to run for re-election. Thirtyfour Senate seats will be contested in 1986, and two incumbents -Arizona's Barry Goldwater and Missouri's Thomas Eagleton - have announced that they won't run for reelection.

Twenty of the 32 up for re-election are Republicans, and it looks as if 1986 won't be a very good year for GOP Senate incumbents. Traditionally, when a president is in his second term, his party faces large congressional losses at the midterm. This may be especially true in '86: There 'are 11 GOP incumbents in states whose popular Democratic governors will complete second terms and become probable opponents.

Two incumbent senators face especially hard decisions:

- Gary Hart must decide whether to run for re-election in Colorado. Hart wants to be considered the frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988, on the basis of his good primary showing this year. However, Hart isn't that popular in his home state: In 1980, he won his Senate bid against a relatively unknown Republican, Mary Buchanan, by less than 1 percent.

Observers believe that Hart will even have a hard time winning his party's primary if he's opposed by either Gov. Richard Lamm or Rep. Pat Schroeder — both strong contenders. Hart's presidential hopes will be badly damaged if he loses a bid for another Senate term, or even if he's involved in a close race. Should he pass up the 1986 race to concentrate on another presidential run?

- Republican Robert Dole faces a similar decision in Kansas. Dole probably will face a popular Democratic governor, John Carlin. Dole will be the favorite - but if 1986 is a Democratic year, an upset is possible, and even the possibility of a nip-and-tuck race would hurt Dole's presidential chances. Should Dole pass up a bid for another Senate term and devote his full time to a presidential bid? The The government's Mexican Consumer Institute, which issues its figures according to the number of complaints received, estimated that about 45 percent of the area's 17 million residents have been affected by scarce supplies in the past two weeks.

It has started radio and television advertisements with conservation tips, saying "it is very important to save gas." The complaints are coming from all parts of the city, from its elegant neighborhoods as well as its slums.

In the older, central parts of the city where gas for cooking and heating generally is provided in individual tanks for each home or apartment, it is possible to see residents running after the trucks that distribute them.

"You have to wander like a pilgrim after them," one domestic employee complained. Some violent incidents have been reported. In one Monday incident in the southwestern part of the city, residents forced a truck to stop and deliver gas. But the truck was carrying only empty tanks. In newer neighborhoods, gas is

In newer neighborhoods, gas is distributed through a stationary tank filled by a tanker truck usually monthly — for each group of houses.

Private companies that receive the fuel from Pemex provide the gas to residents, offices and small factories. Facilities of two of those companies, Unigas and Gasomatico, have ceased operations since the explosions and fire Nov. 19 in San Juan Ixhuatepec on the northern outskirts of the city.

The two facilities were close to Pemex's giant storage and distribution center for liquid petroleum gas, which was destroyed in the disaster.

A government commission is scheduled to release its findings soon on the causes of the disaster. Pemex Director-General Mario Ramon Beteta said in the days after the disaster that supply would not be affected and gas would be brought in from the monopoly's production center in Puebla, 80 miles east of Mexico City, and Poza Rica on the Gulf of Mexico, 155 miles to the southeast.

The Mexico City metropolitan area consumes an average 46,000 to 50,000 barrels of gas each day. Pemex has said it is supplying the gas companies with 52,000 barrels daily.

"No other reason exists, then, for the chaos and bad distribution that the voracity and the illegaly desire to profit from the population," the newspaper El Universal said in an editorial Wednesday.

The newspaper Excelsior reported Friday that gas distributors are saying they will be able to normalize distribution in the next three weeks.

Commerce Department officials have issued statements warning that jail sentences could be levied on companies that hoard, refuse to sell, or speculate with gas. The price is controlled by thbe government.

chances are that he will run for another term.

- New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo is up for re-election in 1986. Cuomo has said that he won't run for re-election if he decides to run for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination. Some members of his staff are starting to hedge on that promise, saying that Cuomo could run for re-election and then accept a nomination that was the "will of the party." However, Cuomo himself hasn't backed away from his pledge.

In addition, New York Mayor Ed Koch — who is no friend of Cuomo's — might again challenge him in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, if Koch wins re-election next year.

- Geraldine Ferraro must decide rather quickly if she wants to challenge incumbent GOP Sen. Alfonse D'Amato in 1986. D'Amato received only 45 percent of the vote in 1980; he won by less than 1 percent in a threeway race, since former Sen. Jacob Jævits ran on the Liberal Party ticket. D'Amato has done a good job in Washington, but he's viewed as one of the more vulnerable Republicans in 1986, and quite a few Democrats are considering taking him on.

Ms. Ferraro faces pressure to make a quick decision: If she decides quickly and gains some major endorsements, she could freeze out the other Democrats — which is critical, if she hopes to avoid a stiff primary battle.

Vice President George Bush must decide how to act in the coming months. During the 1984 campaign, Bush emphasized his loyalty to President Reagan - an attempt to win over conservatives who see him as one of the "White House moderates" who are keeping Reagan from "being Reagan." However, Reagan probably will sit out the 1988 primary campaign and won't throw his weight behind any candidate - including Bush. Therefore, Bush must decide how independent to be: He must be regarded as loyal to Reagan, but also must be seen as his own man, especially if the administration runs into problems.

-- The toughest choice of 1986 may be faced by Missouri's Democratic Rep. Richard Gephardt, who is widely regarded as one of the most talented young House members. Gephardt is clearly destined to hold a major leadership position when the House Democratic majority reorganizes itself after Speaker Tip O'Neill's retirement. Most House observers believe that Gephardt could become speaker some day.

However, Gephardt is seen as the strongest candidate to replace Eagleton. Gephardt must decide whether to give up his House career and make the Senate race.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some of the nation's largest makers of candy and snacks say consumers would benefit if the government scrapped traditional price supports for peanuts in favor of a "market-oriented" program, a claim that is being challenged by producers.

A report released by American Peanut Product Manufacturers Inc. said that each year, "consumers are forced to pay $250 million to $300 million more for domestic peanuts than they would in a free-market environment." William C. Wampler, president of the association and a former Virginia congressman, said Thursday the government's price support program adds 10 percent to the cost of every jar of peanut butter sold in the United States.

In that case, about 13 cents of the $1.29 cost of a 12-ounce jar of peanut butter can be laid to federally guaranteed prices at the farm

The National Peanut Growers Group, which says it represents the nation's 50,000 peanut producers, disputed the manufacturers' reasoning American consumer, who will be subject to wide swings in availability and price of peanut products," the group's chairman, James E. Mobley of Shorterville, Ala., said in a statement.

Mobley contended that "peanut product manufacturers are already reaping huge profits," for instance, buying 30 cents' worth of peanuts and turning them into a jar of peanut butter costing $1.10.

Peanuts grown for domestic edible use are supported by the Agriculture Department at 27.5 cents a pound, while "additional" peanuts grown for export and certain other limited uses are

"It is ironic that U.S. consumers pay more for peanuts grown in this country than consumers in foreign countries pay for our peanuts,' Wampler said.

Members of his association, founded in 1983, buy more than half the peanuts used domestically. They include Beatrice Foods Inc., Best Foods-CPC International, Eagle Snacks Inc., Hershey Chocolate Co., The J.M. Smucker Co., Mars Inc., Nabisco Brands Inc., Procter & Gamble Co. and Tom's Foods Inc.

revealed the details, but officials have said repeatedly that programs should be more market-oriented.

Wampler's group has an opponent in Rep. Charles G. Rose, D-N.C., chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on tobacco and peanuts. "We are trying to make peace and get along with Mr. Wampler's clients, but we're having a hard time," he said a telephone interview.

Rose was among peanut-state congressmen who in 1981 resisted efforts to scuttle the federal program. Instead, compromise legislation was worked out to ease some of the strict allotment and price-boosting features of the peanut program.

"I feel that most peanut farmers have been very reasonable over the life of the current farm bill and have given the industry a plentiful supply of high-quality peanuts, which have enabled peanut products to reach new highs in popularity in America," Rose said.

"I'm sorry that they still object to the modest price support program peanut growers have in place today."

According to Agriculture Department budget officials, the net cost of the peanut program was about $5 million out of a total of around $10 billion for all commodity supports in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30.

"The Chicago commodity markets are the real winners when you return to the free market and the volatile swings that go along with it, and the American consumer and the American peanut growers are the losers,' Rose said.

But Wampler said that by limiting production of peanuts sold for domestic use through quotas and setting high price supports for domestic peanuts - the government "has ensured that U.S. consumers subsidize a small number of producers who hold quotas.'

Wampler said peanut quota holders - who are the only producers who can be guaranteed the higher domestic support price - are, in effect, granted licenses by the government to grow peanuts for the U.S. edible market.

"Right now, the government has pegged a price-support level for domestic edible peanuts at about 28 cents per pound, while the farmer can produce those peanuts for about 15 cents per pound," Wampler said.

Inmates give aid to victims of famine

ANTHONY, Texas (AP) - The starving people in Ethiopia will never know the money came from from prisoners.

About 200 inmates at La Tuna Federal Correctional Institution have contributed $1,629 to a relief effort aimed at helping the starving people of that African nation, which is suffering from the effects of a lingering drought.

The funds were raised by inmates who had seen accounts of the Ethiopian famine on television or heard about it, a prison official said Thursday.

"They decided that even though they were in jail, they weren't that bad off. They had three meals a day and a place to sleep," William Messersmith, executive assistant to the warden, told the Dallas

"They set up a dormitory competition, and out of about 580 inmates, 200 donated,' Messersmith said.

He said most of the gifts ranged from $1 to $10.

The money was collected in 10 days and was delivered Tuesday to a representative of UNICEF, the United Nations agency that is collecting funds to provide food for the starving Ethiopians.

The prisoners didn't actually reach into their pockets to donate spare change. They donated credits at the prison commissary, which issued the check to UNICEF. Some earned credits by working in the minimum-security prison's factories, where government office furniture is refurbished and wooden brushes, used to dust government offices, are made. Pay ranges from 11 cents an hour to positions, occupying the court. Juse office for about three years following the illness and then retirement of Precinct 2 J.P. Nat Lunsford.

The Precinct 2 post had been vacant for two years after no candidate filed for the 1982 election.

But Potter and Democrat candidate Roger Scott campaigned for the post this year, with Potter being the victor.

J.P. offices can be located anywhere in the precincts, McPherson noted. Theoretically, all the offices could be in Pampa, he explained, since parts of the city are located in each of the four precincts.

But "Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2, is it" for the county courthouse office, he stated.

Prestidge, who attended Friday's meeting, suggested she would like to have an office on North Hobart, saying she felt she could better serve the residents of her precinct there. She said most of her workload is handled with Pampa residents.

"I want to be busy," she said. With an office in the city, she could perform her duties better, continue to handle arraignments and assist the other J.P. as needed, she explained.

McPherson said an office on North Hobart would be in her precinct.

Vickie Moose, a Prestidge supporter, said the police had indicated they would be willing to transport prisoners to that office for arraignment as required.

McPherson said police eventually would be taking prisoners to both offices for arraignment after Potter completes his J.P. training.

He said the J.P. precinct lines do not have to follow the commissioner precinct boundary lines, though they do so now. But it would be a complicated matter to draw up new boundaries, he claimed

Moose said she had contacted personnel in the Attorney General's office and was told precinct lines technically could be drawn down the middle of the courthouse, allowing both J.P.'s to have an office there.

Dutchie Burns, another Prestidge supporter, questioned the commissioners why the budget had not included expenses for the operation of both offices after Precinct 2 candidates had announced their filings for the post. Commissioner Ted Simmons said, "Why should we fund any more if we can get along okay now?

Any funding for an additional office might be hard to include now, since the budget has already been adopted for the year, commissioners indicated. But Prestidge said she would check into another office space and prepare a budget to submit.

McPherson again noted it is not required of the county to provide office space for a J.P. He said Prestidge had operated out of her house in Lefors before coming to the Pampa office. And the J.P. in McLean has an office provided by that city in the Lovett Library there and McLennan, Inc., for $12,109. Duncan Insurance Agency was awarded the other two bids, $2,000 for airport liability coverage and $3,885 for general catastrophe liability, with $5 million in coverage.

The commissioners court also decided to advertise for bids for a law enforcement liability policy.

The court tabled any action of a plan for tax abatement for improvements at McLean until further submission of plans from the city.

The commissioners decided they would travel to Wichita Falls in the middle of January to check out the computer system there in response to a letter from Jordan and Associates, Inc., regarding possible implementation of a county computer system.

In other matters, the commissioners:

- approved a bond of $84,000 for Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray, as required by the state Comptroller's Office rules; approved salaries, bills, time deposits and transfers as recommended by the county auditor;

- accepted the county treasurer's report ;

and visited the new addition to the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion to check construction for final approval.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy announced the swearing in of county officials will be held at 9 a.m. Jan. 2 in the District Court Room.

Representatives of the Gray County Extension Service visited with the commissioners prior to the meeting and presented reports of the extension service's projects and activities.

the thinking of national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane and other White House foreign policy experts, blamed public exchanges between the two countries for the collapse of the Vienna space weapons talks before they began.

In accepting the Soviet proposal to meet in Vienna, the United States announced it would insist on discussing medium and long-range missiles as well and would accept "no preconditions" on discussions. The Soviets, who earlier had suspended talks on limiting intermediate-range missiles in Europe and reducing the two sides' strategic arsenals, refused to engage in wider talks. Neither side showed up in Vienna.

But the White House source made clear that the secrecy also is aimed at preventing disputes within the administration policy-making apparatus from interfering with development of the U.S. position or giving the Soviets clues to internal problems.

Uncle Sam has some money to return to area residents

'Tis the giving season, and the Internal Revenue Service is trying to give 4,194 taxpayers in the North Texas area the refunds it has been unable to deliver to them.

Sixteen of these with refunds coming to them live in the Pampa area.

"The total owed in this year's undelivered refund program is $1,913,913,'' said Pam Whittenburg, chief of the Dallas IRS Taxpayer Service Division. "That's an average refund of $456.35, although the range goes all the way from $1 to $22,416!

Whittenburg said the most common reason for the IRS' inability to deliver the refunds is attributable to taxpayers' moving after they've filed their returns and neglecting to notify IRS and the post office of their new address.

'Last year, a relative of a Texas man who was on a missionary assignment in Africa discovered his name on our list published in a local newspaper," she said. "Within two weeks, the missionary had sent in his claim for his overdue refund check.

'I doubt that we could have found this taxpayer any other way," she stated.

Eleven checks due taxpayers on the IRS list are from Pampa. They are Timothy L. Allen, Timothy L. and Lorraine Allen, Jur Lai Chen and Wu Chuen Shiang, Brian C. Cutshall, Steven M. and Kerrie S. Dobbs, Lonny L. Haas, Joe Ann Hernandez, Ricardo Munguia, Sherry L. Sipes, Donald L. and Rhonda Snapp, and Jackie L.

Even moving from one apartment to another in the same complex could be the reason for the snafu," she explained.

The IRS division has asked the news media to publish lists of those to whom refund checks are owed. Whittenburg said the IRS hopes the taxpayers themselves, their friends or their relatives will spot their names and contact the

EXODUS-Residents of Bhopal pack a bus Saturday as the exodus from the Indian city continued on the eve of the planned operation of the Union Carbide plant to make harmless the remaining poisonous gas. (AP Laserphoto)

Pesticide plant draped with giant shroud and sprayed with water

BHOPAL, India (AP) - Officials preparing for new pesticide processing at the Union Carbide Corp. plant shrouded it with a giant tarpaulin and doused it with water cannons Sataurday as precautions against a gas leak similar to the one that killed more than 2,000 people

The operation was one of the elaborate safety measures to slow or stop any new gas leak when the U.S.-based corporation starts processing the remaining 15 tons of deadly methyl isocyanate gas today

Spraying was done by overnment workers using a Soviet-made Indian air force helicopter. The tarpaulin was fitted over the top and sides of the plant by workers on the ground.

Authorities stressed they saw no new risk as a result of the processing.

However, rather than reassuring slum-dwellers who live beside the plant and survived the white cloud that they would not be endangered by the gas processing, which is expected to take four or five days. Other officials and the United News of India have reported that as many as 200,000 people had left.

Ten refugee centers have been set up, far from the Union Carbide plant, to house 50,000 people from the shanty towns. But by this morning, only an estimated 5,000 people had gone to the centers.

Because of the terror, they don't think they are safe in these camps. Most people fled to other cities," said Dr. N.K. Gour, a volunteer at one of the centers.

DALLAS (AP) - Police were seeking 30 people accused of selling drugs to officers during a

The exodus has tapered off since Wednesday, when the government announced that the remaining gas would be processed into pesticides. About 40 tons of the poisonous gas escaped from an underground storage tank earlier this month. Row after row of tin-roofed hovels and mud-brick huts near the plant were empty and padlocked today. Only a few score people remained, mostly those who were too old, weak, or dispirited to flee.

'My state can be compared to an injured bird which cannot fly," said Sarju Bai, an elderly woman. She said she saw her daughter and daughter-in-law die from the gas. Her son, the family's sole wage-earner, is missing.

Reagan to ignore budget cutters advice

By CLIFF HAAS AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) President Reagan appears set to ignore calls from his senior advisers, Republican congressional leaders and other elected officials for a slowdown of the defense buildup, a move that could force the president to seek still deeper domestic spending cuts or lower his deficit reduction goals.

Administration sources who insisted that they not be quoted by name indicated that Reagan could make known as early as this week that he is siding with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who has resisted significant military spending savings outlined by White House budget director David A. Stockman and supported by other senior budget advisers.

Last week ended with Reagan telling reporters that he is sticking with his goal of cutting budget deficits from a projected $200 billion in the current fiscal year, ending Sept. 30, to $170 billion in 1986, $138 billion in 1987 and $99 billion in 1988. To achieve that goal will require $42 billion in budget savings next year, $85 billion in 1987 and $110 billion in 1988.

The president already has tentatively decided on $33.6 billion in domestic spending reductions next year, but Weinberger is widely reported to have resisted the military spending cuts needed to make up the difference.

Reagan's senior budget advisers are virtually unanimous in pushing for a reduction of about $8 billion in the planned 1986 military buildup, according to administration sources.

Weinberger has offered to trim about $6 billion through certain savings, but budget advisers say they don't think Weinberger's cuts will actually amount to that much.

Officials said Stockman has proposed an overall plan for reducing planned military spending authority by $121 billion over the next three years. By contrast, the sources said, Weinberger's proposals would trim budget authority by only $19 billion.

The administration infighting over the Pentagon budget has presented Reagan with a dilemma between domestic economic and political pressures to trim deficits and national security concerns about continuing the costly military buildup.

Reagan also is facing a new round of arms control talks with the Soviet Union next year, and some officials have said the president may be concerned that backing a significant military spending reduction now would be interpreted by the Soviets as a sign of weakness.

PAMPA NEWS Sunday, December 16, 1984 9

If the president accepts smaller military spending savings than proposed by his budget advisers and he still wants to maintain his deficit reduction goals, he would have to return to domestic spending for more cuts.

Such a move, though, would bring angry cries from Congress, whose Republican leaders have repeatedly told Reagan and administration officials that domestic spending has taken about all the cutting it can.

The only alternative to further domestic spending cuts would be tax increases to keep the deficit reduction goals on target.

Two students claim in 'manifesto Baylor University not Christian

WACO, Texas (AP) - Two Baylor University students claim their school is no longer Christian because the student union shows R-rated movies and some faculty members aren't born-again Baptists

In a strongly worded "Student Manifesto," ministerial students Ray Smith and John B. Rollins warn that if things don't shape up, Baylor could be hit by the "wrath of God.

The two claim to represent 25 other Baylor students. They are demanding that the university's faculty members be required to have proof that they are born-again Baptists or else be fired.

Baylor president Herbert Reynolds balked at the students contentions, saying some of the manifesto's allegeations are inaccurate.

Reynolds also claimed the students were "being used" by two fundamentalist members of the Southern Baptist Convention, the Rev. Paige Patterson of Dallas and Houston state appeals court judge Paul Pressler.

"For five years now, they have been involved in the life of the institutions and agencies of the Southern Baptist and have orchestrated almost all the things that have gone on from the standpoint of a lundamentalist thurst," Reynolds said in an interview with the Dallas Morning News. Pressler, a state civil appeals court judge and a member of the Southern Baptist Convention's executive committee, called Reynold's statement "outlandish." 'I had nothing to do with the manifesto and if he had exercised any care whatsoever in investigating the situation, or the courtesy to talk to me about it, he would have realized it," said Pressler

Donald Regan, man of ideas

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - Treasury Secretary Donald Regan is emerging as the idea man of the Reagan administration, attacking some of the most time-honored precepts of economic administration in search of a better

In just a few days he has brought up the possibilities of revising the income tax system, eliminating the Council of Economic Advisers and reducing or even ending the independence of the Federal Reserve Board.

While all three ideas have been discussed in other administrations, nobody seems to have thrust them into the arenas of public discussion with the same force, conviction and verbal skills as Regan has.

For those unfamiliar with Regan's background, such a flow of ideas comes as a surprise, but for those who recall his tenure as chief executive of Merrill Lynch, the securities firm, his recent behavior is unsurprising.

New to politics, his voice was at first overwhelmed by experienced hands, such as budget director David Stockman, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, and Murray Weidenbaum, then-chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. The most controversial of Regan's suggestions involves the tax package which would, among other things, reduce or end many of the tax deductions that business and individuals had become accustomed to as a right. Most of the deductions, such as investment tax credits, accelerated depreciation of equipment, and interest payments, were designed as spurs to economic activity

Regan, however, tended to view them as privileges that increasingly were being abused by investors who designed their activities almost solely for private tax advantages rather than as businesses to benefit all society.

He became one of the point men in criticizing Weidenbaum's replacement, Martin Feldstein, and suggested strongly that it was the council's role to work quietly within the administration rather than to criticize it publicly.

Whether Regan and the president can eliminate the council is debatable, since it was created by Congress, but already it has been demonstrated that they can delay filling positions on the council and otherwise ignore it. To limit the powers of the Fed is a much bigger challenge, mainly because fears exist throughout the banking community, academe, business and other centers of influence that, without an independent Fed, economic policy would be distorted by political needs.

Patterson, president of the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies, also said he was not involved in the student's manifesto.

Baylor is owned and operated by the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the state group that comes under the umbrella of the nationwide Southern Baptist Convention

The dispute came to light Wednesday at a weekly student gripe session conducted by Reynolds.

Rollins, 20, said he and some other Baylor students believe some of the school activities "are not subject to the Lordship of Christ."

'Our intent was not to make a public scene," Rollins said. "Our intent was to inform President Reynolds and some of the trustees that there are certain that there are certain students who are not satisfied with some of the things going on.

The manifesto claims:

- Some faculty members aren't Baptist and others who are allegedly don't believe in the inerrancy of the Bible, a fundamental Baptist belief.

- Films with R ratings and "unacceptable themes" have been shown at the student union. "Godspell" and "Footloese" are two of the examples cited.

- The jukebox in the student union has three songs with sexual overtones, including the late Marvin Gaye's ''Sexual Healing.''

The university has discouraged the formation of Christian groups.

 Guests speakers have presented "viewpoints contrary to the beliefs of Southern Baptists."

- Baylor "must begin to offer courses taught by Christians, using texts authored by Christians, and presenting the Christian point of view.

Reynolds, who has been president at the university for three years and has been an administrator at the school for 15, says he is dismissing the manifesto

On Nov. 5, Braniff reduced its Dallas-Fort Worth operations from 30 airplanes to eight, lowered and simplified its rates and reduced its number of routes and its staff in cost-cutting measures aimed at salvaging itself.

Judge Michael A. McConnell ruled in favor of BRNF Liquidating Trust, which owns the airplanes and had sought to stop Braniff's so-called ''joint service agreement'' with Northeastern International Airways.

McConnell ruled that the agreement with Northeastern. based in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., violated Braniff's lease agreement with BRNF.

they've been gone a couple of sessions,'' Bullock said in an interview.

"About three years ago," he said, "I sat down with Hobby and Gov. (Bill) Clements, and I said, 'In the past, if you called upon me to come up with another $50 million or $60 million, I have done it, and there has been a time or two when it was really questionable whether I could do it

"I want you to know that I'm not going to do that anymore. I'm going to give you an estimate, and hope it's correct, and don't ask me to (raise it).' They never asked me to do it again.

Recent estimates of revenue shortfalls have put Bullock on the hot seat in Austin. But legislators know that he's been highly accurate in the past, and that his estimates are actually careful computer calculations developed with the help of indexes and experts from around the state.

The Texas Constitution requires the comptroller to submit a sworn statement at the beginning of each legislative session estimating how much money lawmakers can expect to have to spend. They can spend no more than the comptroller certifies is available. although the revenue estimates can be updated whenever Bullock thinks it's necessary.

Legislature more money to spend. To be safe, Bullock, comptroller since 1975, would issue conservative estimates and occasionally raise them to cover additional expenses - "coming up with another $50 million.

Recently, however, Bullock said he would be forced to lower his revenue estimate by more than $250 million when the Legislature convenes in January unless world oil prices turn upward. He predicted a revenue shortfall of $900 million.

His accuracy on past estimates would indicate he's probably right on the money this time, too.

Bullock's office prepared a sheet listing the accuracy of revenue estimates since 1947. The low "accuracy percentage" was 23.7 in 1951, meaning that the estimate turned out to be only 23.7 percent of the actual revenue. Bullock said that since he has been in office, the percentage has risen steadily to 88, 95.5, 96, 96.9 and 99.6.

Computers are only part of the reason why.

"With all due respect" to former comptroller Robert S. Calvert, Bullock said, "the computer over here was used mainly for mailing labels to send out sales tax returns. I believe I could take an Addressograph and do just about the same

Billy Hamilton, director of fiscal management for the comptroller, now has 16 economists and a room full of computers to work on revenue estimates. Hamilton is a graduate of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, and Bullock says, "He's the best there

Hamilton credits pressure from Bullock for better data for the larger staff and closer estimates.

In 1978, Bullock said, his office began accumulating data and now has 1,600 factors that go into an estimate. Some factors --industrial production, new car sales and energy demand - are predictable. Others, such as the number of housing starts in Japan, are not. Those overseas housing starts, it seems, can affect the demand for Texas products.

Also, Hamilton said, the comptroller's office surveys 300major taxpayers each quarter, asking each 10 questions.

CHAMP DEMONSTRATES—Boxing champion Larry Holmes carries a sign at the South African Embassy last week, protesting that country's policy of racial segregation. Holmes is accompanied by District of Columbia Congressional Delegate Walter Fauntroy, right, Groups have protested at the embassy daily for several weeks. (AP Laserphoto)

Protests at South African embassy are going on day-by-day like clockwork clockwork, American protesters opposed to South Africa's racial policies gather at 3:30 p.m. each weekday to march in a circle near Pretoria's embassy and court arrest.

The peaceful demonstrators, watched by police officers, television camera crews and drivers on fashionable Massachusetts Avenue, carry homemade placards and chant slogans such as "No business in South Africa. We mean it."

About half an hour into the protest, Randall Robinson, the tall, distinguished-looking man who founded the "Free South Africa Movement," holds an outdoor press conference to introduce the day's "messengers."

They're the people who have volunteered for arrest in a drama that has been played out since Thanksgiving Eve.

So popular is the anti-South Africa cause that 15 members of Congress, two teen-age children of the late Robert F. Kennedy and top labor and Jewish leaders are among those who have been arrested in Washington or elsewhere around the country.

In the nation's capital, more than 50 people have been detained in the non-violent, 1960s-style protests

WASHINGTON (AP) - Like against the South African system of denying political rights to 22 million blacks and against U.S. policy toward the white-ruled nation.

> A total of more than 100 people have been arrested in New York, Seattle, Boston, Houston, Chicago and Berkeley, Calif. Demonstrations also have been held in Mobile, Ala., Los Angeles, San Francisco and the University of Maryland in College Park, Md.

> At TransAfrica, the lobbying group Robinson heads, staffer Cecelie Counts said so many people are offering themselves for arrest that "we're turning people away." "It seems as if we struck a chord," said Ms. Counts, adding that the group has virtually lined up volunteers for arrest through the end of the year. "Little old ladies and handicapped groups" are among those wanting to get involved, she said.

In New York, so many people have called to jump on the arrest bandwagon that the winnowing process has become somewhat chaotic, said protest organizer Harriet Michel, president of the New York Urban League.

Leaders in both cities screen those who seek arrest to ensure they are who they say they are. They also like to space out celebrity arrests and designate each day for a certain constituent group

Although protests vary depending on the city, the civil disobedience in front of the Washington embassy and the consulate on New York's Park Avenue has a staged, theatrical quality, with protesters and police officers playing out fixed roles.

"We have good will" with the officers, said Ms. Michel, noting: "Our quarrel is not with the police, it's with the South African government."

In Washington that good will was brought home when Mayor Marion Barry drove up to the embassy in his limousine and, while arrests were under way, proclaimed the movement one of the "best things that's ever happened."

At the embassy, those volunteering for arrest are escorted by police on the block-long walk from the marching site to the embassy door, where they ring an intercom and ask for a meeting with Ambassador Bernardus Fourie.

After being told the ambassador is not available, the volunteers turn to face a street and sing the ballad of the civil rights movement, "We Shall Overcome.'

The police then give them two warnings to disband before they are arrested on the misdemeanor charge of protesting within 500 feet of an embassy. In New York, demonstrators have been charged with blocking an entrance to a public building

Some of the demonstrators have opted to spend the night in jail, an experience Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., described as "gross." He said his cell had "no bedding and a lot of roaches."

Yolanda King, the daughter of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., said she amused herself in jail by praying and singing.

The carefully orchestrated protests quickly spurred activity in official Washington. President Reagan strongly condemned South Africa's apartheid system after meeting with Bishop Desmond Tutu, the black South African cleric who won this year's Nobel Peace Prize

Imprisoned former Pemex chief is teaching and playing tennis

By CHRIS ANGELO Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) - His words competing with clanging padlocks and banging cell doors, Jorge Diaz Serrano, once one of Mexico's most powerful men, says he concentrates on tennis and classes he gives to other inmates rather than on the loss of his freedom.

When the former head of the government oil monopoly Pemex was accused of fraud, the case created a sensation. Since he was jailed July 30, 1983, Diaz Serrano has gradually dropped from the limelight.

'My friends advised me to flee abroad and I refused," Diaz Serrano said in an interview. "I preferred to turn myself in here voluntarily - and that is how it is in the court record - to come to be tried and show my innocence."

Diaz Serrano headed Pemex from 1976 until 1981, during the country's oil boom years.

In the "moral renovation" begun after President Miguel de la Madrid took office in December requires sentencing within a year of arrest, but he said government prosecutors submitted new evidence, keeping the case open.

"I think they believe that my stay should be prolonged here, according to their plans. I think the opposite," he added, chuckling. In the meantime, he keeps busy.

"Being deprived of freedom is the worst that can happen to you," he said. "But you must not think about it, to preserve your health. That is the key to survival. Avoid thinking of your own miseries and try to keep busy to take a positive attitude toward life. Everything in life changes and this must change. When, I don't know.

At 63, he is tanned from early morning rounds of tennis on the prison courts, at the base of mountains dotted with cornfields on the southern edge of the city. His thick gray hair is combed back from his face.

Four hours a day he teaches other inmates, diesel mechanics three days a week and French and English two days.

Because the prison is not full, the top bunk is piled with papers. Reproductions of Monets and other paintings decorate the walls.

He proudly takes snapshots of his five children and four grandchildren off the bookshelves to show to a vistor. Below are the computer and printer where he compiles statistics for the prison administration and takes classes from another inmate at night.

"But it all measures 3 by 3¹/₂ meters (9.9 x 11.5 feet) and in front it has seven vertical bars and 16 horizontal ones that are closed at 9 at night, closing one up until 6 in the morning," he said.

Diaz Serrano is the son of a government agricultural emploee. He has a mechanical engineering degree and says he became wealthy on his own, working for 40 years in the petroleum equipment business before moving into Pemex.

49ers break record in victory over Rams

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers have earned a new National Football League record for regular-season victories and the satisfaction of knowing they've done all they can to end the season for the Los Angeles Rams.

Despite a lackluster offense that produced only three points after the first quarter, the 49ers held on for a 19-16 victory Friday night. San Francisco thus finished the regular season with a 15-1 record. one win better than the previous mark shared by four teams, including the Washington Redskins last year.

In addition to doing all it could to eliminate the Rams from the playoffs - a trick the Rams pulled on the 49ers in 1982 - San Francisco's victory also had a direct bearing on the National Football Conference East playoff picture.

Washington, 10-5, is assured of a playoff spot if it beats St. Louis on Sunday, or if it loses to the Cardinals by less than 42 points. The New York Giants, hosts to New Orleans today, can make the playoffs as a wild-card team only if St. Louis and Dallas each loses its final game. And if either the Cardinals or Cowboys lose, the Rams, now 10-6, will get the other playoff berth and will host the NFC's wild-card game on Dec. 23.

In today's other NFL game, it's the Seattle Seahawks against the Denver Broncos. The winner will win the American Conference West Division championship, a first-round bye in the playoffs and a home game for the second round, the Dec. 29-30 divisional playoffs.

The loser will settle for second place, a wild-card playoff berth and the role of host on Sunday, Dec. 23, against the Los Angeles Raiders, this year's other AFC wild-card team.

On Sunday, it's St. Louis at Washington, Pittsburgh at the Raiders, Buffalo at Cincinnati, Chicago at Detroit, Cleveland at Houston, Indianapolis at New England, Green Bay at Minnesota, the New York Jets at Tampa Bay, Kansas City at San Diego and Philadelphia at Atlanta. Monday night, it's Dallas at Miami.

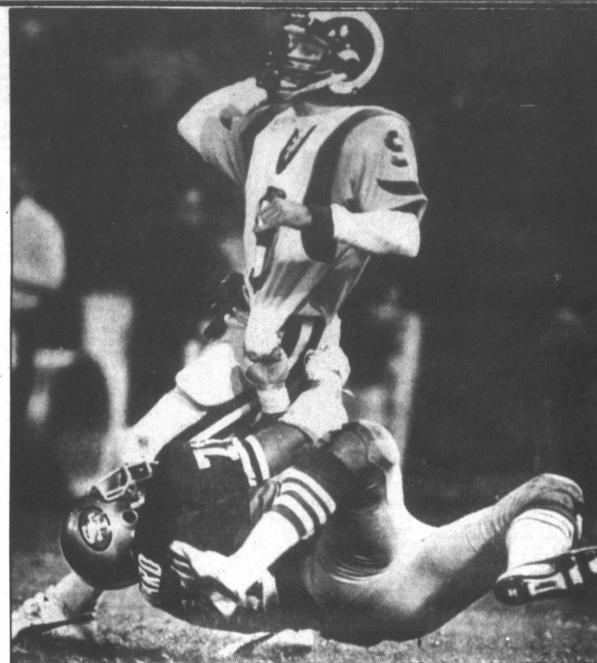

Quarterback Joe Montana, who threw for two first-quarter touchdowns but managed only 91 yards the rest of the night, put the San Francisco record into perspective.

"When you retire, it's great to be 15-1," he said. "... The record won't matter much when the playoffs start."

"We certainly won't be overconfident now, coming off a game like this," said linebacker Riki Ellison.

Rams Coach John Robinson was unfazed by having to root for the Redskins, who demolished his team in last year's playoffs. "We'll watch TV Sunday, and if we have to, we'll watch Miami play Monday night," he said. "... I think we'll be in the playoffs."

Dickerson denies contract story

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Running back Eric Dickerson has denied a published report that he intended to ask for a new contract after breaking O.J. Simpson's single-season National Football League rushing record.

"I'm very upset about that, especially this close to the game," Dickerson told sportscaster Ted Dawson of KABC-TV. "I'm very disgusted, and when I get back, there's gonna be something done about that article.

Dickerson was quoted as saying in Saturday's editions of the Los Angeles Times that his quotes in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner published Friday "came out of a lackadaisical conversation "The guy asked me about my conract, and I said it was a good contract, but we may have to talk about it after the season,' Dickerson said. "That was all that was said.

"I feel sick about it, to be honest. It makes me seem like I'm money-hungry, and I'm not a money-hungry person. I'm just looking for the best deal that I can get. But right now that's not in my future. I just want to finish the season

Dickerson is reportedly earning $175,000 in salary and a $225,000 reporting bonus this season, the second year of a four-year contract that totals $2.2 million.

Dickerson's lawyer, Jack Mills of Boulder, Colo., was in the visiting owner's suite at Candlestick Park in San Francisco with Rams' owner Georgia Frontiere Friday night, according to the Times.

The Rams dropped a 19-16 decision to the 49ers in the regular-season finale for both teams. Dickerson gained 98 yards to finish the year with 2,105 yards. Simpson held the record of 2,003 yards set in 1973 until Dickerson broke it last Sunday

Munday advances to

Class A state finals

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) - Quarterback Dent Offutt scored two touchdowns, one on a 36-yard, fourth-and-six play late in the game, to give Munday a 19-13 victory over Wink in a Class A semifinal football game Friday night

Offutt ran 1 yard for a touchdown in the third quarter and Ronnie Lawrance kicked the extra to tie the score at 13 in the third quarter.

Wink guarterack Travis Price ran 6 yards for a touchdown in the first quarter and then returned a punt 74 yards in the second quarter for Wink's touchdowns.

Todd Thompson ran 10 yards in the first quarter for Munday's first score.

Munday will play the winner of Saturday's Flatonia-Union Hill next weekend for the Class A state championship.

Sutcliffe becomes richest pitcher

CHICAGO (AP) - Less impressed by cold cash than the thought of a warm holiday, Rick Sutcliffe literally backed an armored truck up to the gates of Wrigley Field and allowed the Chicago Cubs make him baseball's wealthiest pitcher.

The 6-foot-7, red-bearded right-hander on Friday ended weeks of speculation and courtship by four clubs, insisting loyalty and an unsettled score convinced him to return to Chicago

The bottom line was $9.5 million for five years, but Atlanta, Kansas City and San Diego, Sutcliffe said, were all throwing around figures that were "basically the same."

"I don't know if it was loyalty or what, but something happened here the last three months of the baseball season," Sutcliffe said. "They took a person who was spinning his wheels and the fans, the organization and especially the players behind me turned it around

Broncos rip Seahawks to win AFC West title

The Associated Press

The Denver Broncos, with John Elway passing for one touchdown and running for another score, beat the Seattle Seahawks 31-14 Saturday to win the American Football Conference West title, but the National Football League playoff situation remained tangled in the final weekend of the regular season

Sunday games would determine whether Pittsburgh or Cincinnati wins the AFC Central crown and gets the final playoff spot in that conference.

Sunday games, along with the Dallas at Miami contest Monday night, would decide the final three playoffs berths in the National Football Conference among Washington, St. Louis, Dallas, the New York Giants and the Los Angeles Rams.

On Saturday, the New Orleans Saints got a 2-yard touchdown pass from Dave Wilson to Hokie Gajan early in the first quarter and beat the Giants 10-3. But because of the NFL's tiebreaker procedure, the Giants went into the game knowing a win or loss had no bearing on their playoff possibilities.

"I am not thinking about the variables," Giants linebacker Harry Carson said. "Right now, Game canceled between the way I look at it our season is over. I don't know what is going to happen in the other games. If it happens, it happens. I'm not holding my breath.

The AFC Central title will be decided in two games division-leading Pittsburgh, 8-7, against the Raiders in Los Angeles and Cincinnati, 7-8, at home for Buffalo. If the Bengals win and the Steelers lose, Cincinnati takes the title because their intra-division record is better.

The NFC playoff race is more scrambled. The Rams could have wrapped up a wild-card berth by beating San Francisco on Friday night, but the West champion 49ers

But, a Redskins' victory would give them the NFC East title, give the Rams a wild-card spot and knock the Cardinals out of the playoffs. Also, a Washington victory would leave the final playoff berth to be settled Monday night - if Dallas wins, the Cowboys are in; if Miami wins, the Giants are in.

If St. Louis beats Washington by no more than 46 points, the Cardinals win the NFC East and the Redskins get a wild-card berth. Also, a St. Louis victory would eliminate the Giants and again leave it up to Monday night's game Dallas goes to the playoffs if it wins, the Rams would go if Miami wins

In games with no bearing on the division races, Chicago is at Detroit; Cleveland at Houston; Indianapolis at New England; Green Bay at Minnesota; the New York Jets at Tampa Bay; Kansas City at San Diego and Philadelphia at Atlanta.

Cincinnati, which started the year with five straight losses, has now won seven of its last 10 games to put itself into position to take the AFC Central title.

If they do, as expected, win it, then Pittsburgh must win its game against the Raiders.

NFC Central champion Chicago, 9-6 and losers of its last two, will be trying simply to keep its players healthy for the playoffs. Detroit will be trying to salvage what it can from a 4-10-1 season that followed a division title.

Houston, 3-2 after starting 0-10, could actually move into third place in the AFC Central if its beats 4-11 Cleveland

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) -Quarterback Randall Cunningham passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third to lead Nevada-Las Vegas to a 30-13 victory over Toledo in the California Bowl Saturday.

It was the most one-sided margin in the bowl's short history as all three earlier games were decided by one touchdown or less.

And the Rebels' victory allowed the Pacific Coast Athletic Association to get even in its rivalry with the Mid-American Conference at two victories apiece. Despite a Cal Bowl record 154 yards running by Steve Morgan, Toledo was unable to generate enough offense on key third-and

The Rockets did close the gap to 16-13 in the third quarter on a 38-yard touchdown pass from quarterback A.J. Sager to wide receiver Bill Poure.

The Rebels exploded on their first offensive play of the game as fourth-down plays. wide receiver Michael McDade took a short pass from Cunningham, then scooted across the field before turning downfield behind several blockers for a 56-yard gain.

Cup finals Connors reaches Davis

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) -Jimmy Connors, never having played in a Davis Cup final, is finally there this year. Now, he's got another hurdle to overcome.

Connors will face Mats Wilander, Sweden's No. 1 tennis player, in the opening singles match Sunday as the United States goes after its fifth Davis Cup title in seven years.

to determine matchups for the best-of-five Davis Cup, which will be played on a clay surface.

John McEnroe will play Henrik Sundstrom in the second singles match Sunday. McEnroe and Peter Fleming, who are 14-0 in Davis Cup doubles, will face Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg in Monday's doubles, and in Tuesday's singles, consecutive final, having lost to Australia 3-2 on grass at Melbourne last year. The Swedes won the title in 1975.

American captain Arthur Ashe has expressed concern over the long layoffs of his players, compared with the recent activity of the Swedes.

Connors and Fleming have not played competitively for five

The two have met twice in the past with Wilander winning both times. He recently beat Connors in the Stockholm Open semifinals and defeated Connors in the ATP Championships at Cincinnati last August

The United States, winner of the Davis Cup a record 28 times, is 5-0 against Sweden in Davis Cup play. The Americans last won the Cup in 1982, defeating France 4-1 on clay indoors at Grenoble. For Sweden, this is the second

Six inducted into Texas sports hall

WACO, Texas (AP) - One of Texas high school football's most famous early-day products and its most recent Heisman Trophy winner are among the six former schoolboy standouts who have been elected to the Texas High School Football Hall of Fame.

Induction ceremonies for the six. and also for former Abilene coach Chuck Moser and the late H.H. 'Jinx'' Tucker, a famed Waco sports editor, will be held in Waco, home of the state's High School Football Hall of Fame, on Feb. 22.

The list of new members is headed by Alvin "Bo" McMillin, a high school star at Fort Worth North Side in 1915 who later won All-America honors at Centre College in both 1919 and 1921.

McMillin later became a winning coach at Centenary, Kansas State, Indiana and with the Detroit Lions. He died in 1952

The youngest of the new Hall of Famers is Billy Sims, who rushed for 7,738 yards and scored 516 points at Hooks before becoming a two-time All-American and 1978 Heisman Trophy winner at Oklahoma. Sims ranks second in career rushing behind Kenneth Hall of Sugar Land among the state's all-time top ball carriers.

Also chosen for induction were Bill Wallace, Dick Harris, Doyle Travlor and Bill Bradley.

Wallace was a football and track standout at Eagle Lake in the early 1930s before winning All-America honors at Rice in 1934 while leading the Owls to their first Southwest Conference football championship.

Harris won all-state honors at center at Wichita Falls High School in 1944 and then won All-Southwest Conference recognition at Texas for the next four seasons. He was an All-America selection at tackle in 1947

Traylor won all-state honors at quarterback in 1951 and 1952 while leading the Temple Wildcats to the state Class AAA finals both seasons. He was recognized as one of the finest high school passers of his era. Injuries blighted his career at Baylor.

Bradley, a four-sport letterman at Palestine, won the nickname of 'Super Bill'' after leading his team to the Class AAA state championship while rolling up more than 1,700 yards in total offense, punting for a 39.6-yard average, intercepting six passes and stamping himself as the most coveted quarterback in the state.

Bradley became an outstanding defensive back at Texas and in the National Football League

Moser was coach of an Abilene High team that won three state championships in a row in Class AAAA and rolled up a 49-game winning streak, a record for that level of competition

Cowboys snubbed by Pro Bowl voters?

DALLAS (AP) - Several Dallas Cowboys are convinced their team was snubbed by voters picking players to compete in the National Football League Pro Bowl, and contended that "people in the league don't like the Cowboys.

Dallas had only three players selected to the National Football Conference team, none as starters,

'It's quite obvious to me that people in the league don't like the Cowboys," said running back Tony Dorsett. "The voting this year was amazing. It really makes you think about it

Safety Michael Downs was outraged to learn that, despite his six interceptions and a team-leading 93 solo tackles, he had not been selected to the team.

He said he was surprised that San Francisco's Carlton Williamson, a cornerback most of the season, made the team as a safety. The 49ers' Ronnie Lott, injured for four games, and Dwight

Hicks were each selected at cornerback, even though both have played safety this year

The three 49ers were selected despite their team's ranking of 17th in pass defense in the league.

"How can they select those guys?" Downs asked. "If I didn't make it this year, how will I ever make it? I had all the statistics. I had the interceptions, I had the quarterback traps (3½), and I led the team in tackles.

Players on the 28 NFL teams submitted their ballots Monday.

"I feel some anger because they should have been more responsible with the way they voted," Downs said. "Some of the guys who made the team didn't even play most of the year. How fair is that?

Doug Cosbie, Randy White and Bill Bates were the only Cowboys selected to the team, the fewest Cowboys on the team since 1975. "I know why our guys aren't going to the Pro Bowl," fullback Ron Springs said. "Because the other teams are stuffing the ballot boxes against us. They don't like us because they think we get too much publicity. It's got to be something like that

Pioneers win over Sul Ross

SAN ANGELO - Wayland Baptist University opened the Angelo State Classic Friday night with a 93-57 win over Sul Ross State.

The win snapped a three-game losing streak and gave the Pioneers an overall 8-5 record. Carl Davis led WBU in scoring with 20 points. Michael Parks followed with 17. Aubrey Kennedy led Sul Ross with 14 points.

Oilers eye season finale

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers, 3-12, and Cleveland Browns, 4-11, go into their final National Football League game in the Astrodome Sunday with little more to play for than pecking order in the National Football League draft and a good start on next season.

Houston Coach Hugh Campbell and Cleveland's Marty Schottenheimer will try more for victory than a chance to look at young players.

"I think we'll really point to this game to try to go out and see what level we can end the season at, Campbell said. "Hopefully, it will be at our highest level of the year. That's would be important."

The Oilers lost their first 10 games of the season but rallied for three victor s in the past five weeks.

The Browns have been victims of close losses all season, including three defeats that came on the final play of the game. Last week's 23-20 loss to Pittsburgh came on the next to last play of the game.

"I've always contended that there's nothing much to be gained by losing and when you are 4-11, I would be less than honest if I didn't say that a win would enable me to have good taste in my mouth," Schottenheimer said.

"Our objective to win every game we play. When that's over, we'll decide what we need to do about next season. Right now we're interested in winning a football game.

The Oilers have already taken long looks at their youthful team, Campbell said

"We wanted to get the younger people playing time and we feel we've done a pretty good job of that this year," Campbell said.

"We would hate to end this season and not have a strong opinion as to the future of any player. We think we've gotten that

Cleveland tight end Ozzie Newsome, named earlier this week to the Pro Bowl for the second time in his seven-year career, needs 85 yards receiving against the Oilers to become the Browns all-time leader.

Newsome caught 10 passes for 102 yards in an earlier 27-10 victory over the Oilers.

Oiler running back Larry Moriarty has had 100-yard performances in three of his last four games. He gained only 81 yards in the Oilers' last meeting with the Browns when he was forced out of the game in the fourth quarter with a pinched nerve in his neck

Kickoff is at noon CST.

MIAMI (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers provided the first half of a two-part scenario which could land the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football League playoffs. Now comes the tough part.

To gain a post-season berth, the Cowboys needed some help from the 49ers. They got it in the form of a 19-16 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Friday night. That means all the Cowboys have to do to earn the right to play another game is beat the Miami Dolphins Monday night. But that means stopping record-thrashing Dan Marino and the 13-2 Dolphins before a sold-out Orange Bowl.

It could have been worse. The 9-6 Cowboys could have been playing Monday night with nothing at stake. With the Rams dropping to 10-6, though, the Cowboys can clinch the final NFC post-season berth with a victory. A loss, however, will leave Dallas out of the playoffs for the first time since 1974 and only the second time in 18 years.

"I don't want to think about it being over," said Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett. 'We've had ample opportunities to secure a playoff spot and blew them. Now our backs are way up against the wall. But there's still a chance.

Dorsett, who has gained 1,131 yards on 283 carries in what he considers a "down year," may hold the key to that chance Opposing teams have been bludgeoning the Dolphins defense in the past few weeks, keeping the ball on the ground and thereby keeping it out of the hands of Marino and company. The Dolphins know what to expect

"Tony Dorsett is one of the greatest running backs ever, said Miami nose tackle Bob Baumhower. "He cuts back well and all he needs is a little room and he's gone. We are looking at this as a big test for us."

PAMPA NEWS Sunday, December 16, 1984 15

The Dolphins, after generally breezing through their first nine games, have been in battles each the past six weeks. They trailed the Indianapolis Colts 17-7 at halftime last week before rebounding behind Marino's four second-half touchdown passes.

That improved the second-year pro's NFL record for TD passes to 44. Marino, who was voted to: the AFC Pro Bowl team for the second time last week, also increased his passing yardage total to 6,744 to move within 59 of Dan Fouts' league mark of 4,802. The next Dolphin touchdown will break the league record of 66.

Oklahoma City officials 'bitterly disappointed' by NFR move to Las Vegas years.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) -Officials here say they are "bitterly disappointed" by the shift of the National Finals Rodeo to Las Vegas, but they will continue plans for a domed stadium that was a key part of efforts to keep the rodeo from relocating.

The board of directors of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, in a marathon meeting in Colorado Springs, Colo., announced late Wednesday night that Las Vegas had been awarded a five-year contract to host the finals, "which its organizers claim is the "World Series" of Rodeo. The decision capped a frantic year in which Oklahoma City and Las Vegas had heavily wooed the rodeo, which ended Sunday.

"We're still bitterly disappointed," a tired Chamber of Commerce President Ed Cook said Thursday after returning with the Oklahoma delegation from Colorado.

"We really and truly felt that things went so well." Cook said. 'We didn't see how we could miss it.

Oklahoma City - which advertises its image as "Where Success Meets the West" inherited the rodeo 20 years ago from Dallas, and turned in from an event with a $144,000 budget in 1965 to one which, for the first time ever, had a prize purse of almost $1 million. Every performance has been sold out for more than 10

It is also big business for the city bringing an estimated $8 million to $10 million to the local economy. Las Vegas based its pitch on a prize purse of $1.79 million, a 16,000-seat arena - 40 percent larger than the 11,000-seat Myriad Convention Center - and other perks, including free hotel rooms for contestants, reduced rates on airfare and tickets to the event.

Oklahoma City was nearly able to counter all the offers, a last-minute fund drive among the city's business community raised the projected prize money to $1.5 million for the next three years, and the perks promised by Las Vegas were duplicated.

Oklahoma City officials have aggressively promoted the idea for a domed statium on the state fairgrounds, with the rodeo the centerpiece event for the $82 million, $75,000-seat, structure.

Cook said despite the rodeo's move, plans for the stadium would 'press ahead.''

'We still need a stadium," he said. "We'll just have to proceed in much the same fashion that Indianapolis did.

City officials also stressed the rich history of the rodeo in Oklahoma City, claiming that that had taken it in when no one else wanted it.

'We nearly matched dollar for dollar their bid," Cook said. "And that took a lot of effort...their bid was only $90,000 more - almost nothing.

"I think the determining factor was they decided to go for the glitter and tinsel of Las Vegas,' Cook said.

"It's been here for 20 years they didn't have any other reason for moving it, because we answered every one of their questions.

"We just don't have the glitter that Las Vegas does," he said. "We just have to make up for it in other areas: family, atmosphere, loyalty and tradition.

Rangers provide comic relief

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The Texas Rangers of the American League have found their station in life and we're all better off because of them.

In a grim world of hijackings, industrial accidents, and day-long traffic jams, the Rangers keep proving their worth to society as comic relief.

Need a tension-breaker? Turn to the sports pages and catch the Rangers' latest funnybone buster.

One day they sign a 37-year-old designated hitter to a guaranteed, two-year contract. That's $600,000 a year, Cliff Johnson, Merry Christmas!

The next day they draft a left-handed pitcher with a 5-run ERA. That's you, Mitch Williams. Sit down before you faint!

Or they try to get back a former whipping boy catcher they gave up on. That's you Jim Sundberg. What's that quote? "Crazy, isn't Sure, it's crazy, Jim, but it's a wonderful tonic for relieving the tensions of life.

Ranger fans, here is a non-serious, All-Joke team. These are players that gave us some laughs in their tenure with Texas.

It's simply some hot stove humor until the Rangers can get back to Arlington Stadium and deliver some live laughs.

the Rangers is you'll split your side giggling. Or bruise a knee with a laugh slap.

We missed some potential mirth when the Rangers failed to give away 100-RBI producing Larry Parrish during the winter meetings, but they tried. Not even Johnny Carson connects everytime.

The Rangers haven't won a pennant in their 12-year existence and finished dead last in baseball's worst division in 1984.

They're baseball's biggest joke - but we don't mind. If we can't have a pennant, we'll take slapstick.

It's fun to see other teams do well with Ranger castoffs. It's a kick to watch them bungle transactions like the Ned Yost for Sundberg deal.

The Rangers can make a man on death row chuckle. They're a gift certificate of guffaws.

STANDINGS League

Eagles in Philadelphia PHILADELPHIA (AP) — After a day of intense negotiations and the filing of a lawsuit by the National Football League, Mayor W. Wilson Goode said the odds of keeping the Eagles in Philadelphia had improved to "70-30." But a source close to the team said Friday that owner Leonard Tose already has signed an agreement - although not a contract - to sell 25 percent of the team and has received part of the $30 million a Canadian businessman has offered for that minority interest.

The source said the deal with James Monaghan would require the Eagles to move to Phoenix, but Monaghan on Friday denied that the agreement stipulated a move.

Since reports of a possible Eagles move surfaced earlier this week, Tose, who reportedly is $40 million in debt, repeatedly has denied he had signed any agreement with Monaghan.

After emerging from a three-hour meeting with Tose on Friday night, Goode said he was "convinced that Mr. Tose is trying to work to find a way to keep the team in the city.

"I think there is absolutely no certainty that that will happen, but I think the odds indeed have increased because of his expressed desire to do so," Goode said.

The mayor said negotiations, which have dominated the time of city and team officials for the past three days, would continue today.

The NFL on Friday joined the city's fight to keep the Eagles in Philadelphia by filing a damage suit in U.S. District Court. The suit charges Tose with acting in "bad faith," and asks the court to prevent the Eagles from leaving Philadelphia without league permission.

The suit also seeks unspecified damages and a declaratory judgment from the court, saying that if the NFL forces the Eagles to comply with league regulations about moving a franchise, the league will not be violating any antitrust law

Texas catalog made-to-order for romantics

By ANN OWENS GILLIAND Fort Worth Star-Telegram FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "As I leaned toward the flickering candle, the black jet beads sparkled and the net veiling of my hat dipped over one eye. I caught Philling's look of total approval Phillipe's look of total approval. "Thank goodness," I thought, "that women are wearing hats again!" Ashley D. Adams said. The veiled hat is $80. The romance is free.

Harlequin romances meets mail-order business — that's the latest venture of three Fort Worth entrepreneurs who envisoned a new way to market specialty items in a catalog.

Exotic locales and sales pitches, romances and refunds, adventures and advertisements — that's the dichotomous world of Ashley D. Adams, a character created by Mary Elizbeth Ashley to appear, not between the sheets of a Gothic romance, but in the pages of a catalog.

The catalog company, Nostalgia Shoppe Inc., is a division of Haltom International. Its idea was generated by Haltom's chief executive officer Ron Adams, businessman Bob Driscoll and the catalog's president, Mary Elizabeth Ashley.

The Woman's News wrote that "Ashley's running commentary is high entertaining and only a little less camp than a Barbara Cartland novel."

Ashley prefers sleeping on satin sheets — "ordinary sheets are so declasse," she says — deplores practical things that look practical, and keeps her secret rendezvous key hidden in an elliptical opium box (priced at $70) that she discovered on a journey to India.

As the masked Ashley travels via her magic time machine through the pages of the catalog, her descriptive commentary is as imaginative as her romantic adventures.

"Under the scorching Indian sun, I imagine myself and Clark riding this horse-drawn carriage, with Gunga Din at the reins frightfully unaware what awaits us," she says, referring to a $45 brass copy of an antique Indian toy horse and carriage.

Next to a selection of earrings, Ashley declares: "Lobe and behold,' I joked to William as he nibbled on my ear. To this day I'll never know if it was me or my geometric earrings that inspired his attentions.'"

A $25 Victorian-style whistle inspires Ashley to say, "It was a dark grey night and Byron was late. Clutching this silverplated Victorian whistle, engraved with scrolls and flowers, I felt safe. Not only could I summon for help, but I was comforted knowing that inside this authentic replica of the 1893 original was a secret compartment containing a lock of Byron's hair. My friend Karensa uses her whistle as a key chain and for discreetly storing her smelling salts and cash." is a collection of letters and experiences that Mary Elizabeth Ashley plans to include in a future book: "How I Began in Mail Order and Got a Marriage Proposal."

"This is a very public business," she said, adding that the marriage proposal was real. It came from a mountain recluse who had seen her picture in the catalog and called long-distance from a phone booth to offer his hand in marriage.

So far, she has heard from the editor of Forbes magazine, who suggested that a leather portfolio would be marketed better with his magazine peeking out of the case rather than another's. "Frederick and I share thoughts, jokes and secrets but not our supple leather portfolios!" Ashley says.

Some of Mary Elizabeth Ashley's favorite stories come from people who send long letters along with their orders telling her about their gout, their cataract surgery and their varicose veins.

"People reveal so much by mail," she said. "They're just wonderful."

Before joining Nostalgia Inc. Mary Elizabeth Ashley was a marketing consultant who, incidentally, owned a gold mine in Alaska with 20 people.

Looking for a way to sell raw gold direct from the mine, the group developed a "security pill" just as the price of gold soared.

It was a capsule — similar to a real one — that contained a piece of raw gold and was packaged in a little leather sack with a note explaining how to use it. The group advertised in the Wall Street Journal, and sat back and waited for the orders to come in, she said. "You were supposed to put the security pill under your pillow and security pill under your pillow and think secure thoughts," she said. "Silly, huh? But it made money." This was six years ago. "Things don't happen like that in the mail-order business anymore," she said. "Now it is more scientific." After months of marketing research, Nostalgia Inc. set out to find just the right items with the criteria: "I had to want it, and it had to be animated," she said.

"We had a raft of people — an army of little gnomes — going around Texas asking 'Do you have some people with speciality items we can mass-produce and sell?' We had so many responses, we were able to select special pieces."

Among the best sellers since the catalog hit home mailboxes in August is the sequined dress — Dolly Parton bought one, Mary Elizabeth Ashley said — a $13.50 set of frosted candle Christmas tree lights, and a $15 voodoo doll that comes complete with pins and suggested target areas (such as "beach-bulge" on the hips) as vulnerable bullseyes for those you love to hate.

"It's fun to get even when you've got your very own Sweet Revenge Doll," Ashley says with a chuckle. "Don't y'all have someone in mind who'd just hate for you to own one ... or more?"

ind Drug Centers

In another picture, wearing a $500 sequined gown, a flirtatious Ashley notes, "Some dresses are made for memorable nights. This one can create one."

And, as Ashley would expect, the first catalog has been a smashing success, Mary Elizabeth Ashley said, adding, "It has been way over projections."

"We did followup calls on more than 400 mail-order customers," she said. "They said the story is so cute they saved it. People usually look at catalogs and then throw them away. Instead of being disposable, people were captured by the cover, read the story and were entertained by it. And that was our goal."

Ashley also captured the attention of US magazine and CBS television, which plans to run a spot of the catalog and its character shortly before Christmas.

What Mary Elizabeth Ashley stresses is that it is a "Texas" catalog with at least half of the items offered by Texas artisans, including 22 from the Fort Worth-Dallas area.

"I have always thought that Fort Worth — and Texas in general was rich, rich shopping ground," she said. "A lot of people skip hometown. They think New York's the place to go shopping, but it's right here," she said.

Silk flowers manufactured by an Arlington woman tempt Ashley to say, "Sipping mint juleps one spring afternoon, I pointed out the magnolia tree to Montgomery, saddened that my favorite flower comes and goes so quickly. The next afternoon, what did I find but three extraordinary, handmade silk matgnolias lying on my swing!"

Although not everything in the catalog is Texas-born — including a $22,900 authentic replica of a 1929 Mercedes SSK (what else would Ashley use to whisk from party to party?) — Mary Elizabeth Asley wanted to ensure that it has a definite Texas taste, from a lunch box full of Gold Medal Pralines, to a red Christmas stocking filled with ashes and switches for bad little children, to haute couture designs, all created by Fort Worthians.

Band of Navajos is battling big government

By STEVE BREWER Associated Press Writer

CANONCITO, N.M. (AP) - Canoncito Navajo leaders are clamoring for more autonomy, saying they can provide for their people better than the central government of the nation's largest Indian tribe

It's a battle of history versus current needs; of big government versus the little guy with a new idea. And it threatens the framework of the tribal government.

We can't be on our knees to the Navajo tribe all the time asking them to give us money," says George Platero, the Canoncito band's representative to the Navajo Tribal Council. "We want them to give us the authorization to use the federal money, to have it directed to us so we can do our own thing.'

Tribal officials say the only legal way Canoncito can get such direct funding is to become a separate entity from the Navajo tribe, a move they likely would fight.

"The Navajo tribe is probably afraid that if they let us go, there would be others who would want to go, too," Canoncito President Tony Secatero said.

Canoncito is one of three "satellite chapters" of the Navajo tribe, separated by miles and mountain ranges from the main reservation. Navajo leaders say the other two chapters, Ramah and Alamo, have raised similar autonomy questions.

The dispute between the band of less than 1,700 at Canoncito and the central government peaked earlier this year over a plan to build a dog racing track at Canoncito.

The band's leaders wanted the track to take advantage of the proximity of Albuquerque, which is only about 30 miles away, and to provide jobs for residents.

But the Tribal Code forbids gambling and alcohol sales on reservation land and the tribal headquarters in Window Rock, Ariz., nixed the plans. Investors since have taken the $10 million plan to Santa Ana Pueblo, which wants to implement it despite state opposition.

The dog track fight raised the question of who owns Canoncito land and gave the band's leaders the impetus to push for more local control

Both sides scurried to research documents that set aside the land as a reservation to determine who was right. The research so far has been inconclusive: Canoncitos say they have an ancient right to the land; tribal officials say government documents give Canoncito lands no separate status.

"All of these lands remain under the central administration of the Navajo government until our research determines otherwise," said John Chapela, counsel to Tribal Chairman Peterson Zah.

Chapela said the tribe's legal department is continuing the paper chase "to determine if there was in fact any intent (by Congress) to give Canoncito any independent status.'

Secatero and Platero insist the land was given to the local band in 1877 through government allotments and the grants should override a 1949 law that set boundaries for the reservation. They have demanded that land that would revert to the Navajo Nation when a tribe member dies revert instead to Canoncito.

As important, however, is their desire to control funding and programs at Canoncito

'The way it works now is that the Navajos request funds for Canoncito, but most of the funds are used for administrative costs in Window Rock," Secatero said.

Chapela denied that assertion, saying less than 15 percent of federal grants are used for administrative costs.

Either way, say Secatero and Platero, the money that trickles down to the Canoncito band isn't enough for the social and economic programs their people need.

"The Navajo tribe has to give it to us at their discretion," Platero said. "They use their discretion to throw us a penny."

The Canoncito leaders believe they could get more federal funds with less administrative cost if they could apply for grants reasons: It was not an American plane and "without being callous, we suffered little loss." Also, Kupperman said, an assault force would have been killed by the Iranians.

Anger isn't a policy

But, he said, when it is clear that a country was directly responsible for acts of terrorism a number of options are open economic such as stopping bank transfers and air traffic, and the use of force.

themselves rather than through the tribal government.

"We have the capacity to administer the contracts and government programs," Secatero said. "We've trained our people to do that."

The training has come through the band's past successes in getting government funding and money from the private sector, he said.

Secatero said a school and clinic being built on the reservation, an alcoholism prevention program and other projects have been funded by money gathered from foundations and the state and federal government "without the assistance of the Navajo tribe.

The band has made those strides because of its unique local. government set-up, he said.

Most of the 109 local chapters of the Navajo Nation govern by a town meeting system that sends resolutions to the central government. The actual decision-making and funding is handled by officials in Window Rock.

The Canoncitos have a 12-member tribal council that makes its decisions from the people's recommendations and officers, including Secatero, who implement the decisions and represent the band when making contracts with outside groups.

"We feel we are a very beneficial model for the Navajo Nation," Secatero said Chapela said the nation would welcome a model for changing local government structures, adding, "there's always room for improvement.

One of Zah's campaign platforms when he was elected was to place more control with local chapters. But Chapela said the method for the decentralization still has not been decided.

"The analysis of ways in which the central government can better provide services and be more accountable to the local chapters is continuing," he said. "Hopefully, in the future we'll be able to provide options to the chapters on tribal government and local government."

passengers were murdered by the hijackers, more were tortured and many were brutalized for an extended period of time without any effective measures being taken by the government of Iran." Speakes described President Reagan as outraged.

But anger isn't a policy, although it may act as a catalyst for whatever is finally decided.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz has declared the United States must be ready to use its power against terrorists, even at the risk of public disapproval.

Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, with whom he is in friendly disagreement on a number of issues, takes a more cautious stance. He would like to have public and congressional support lined up before military action is taken

An expert on terrorism, Robert H. Kupperman of the Center for Strategic Studies at Georgetown University, said in this case there is nothing practical the United States can do. He gave two

The United States has felt the sting of terrorism many times. Embassies have been destroyed, diplomats killed or taken hostage. U.S. officials vowed retribution after the Marines were killed last year in Lebanon, but there was none

Shultz clearly is hinting that once it marshals the facts the United States may strike back. "One way or another," he said in a speech last Sunday in New York, "the law-abiding nations of the world will put an end to terrorism and to the barbarism that threatens the very foundations of civilized life."

Obviously, there is no disagreement within the administration that terrorism is repulsive. But that does not mean the president and his senior advisers will be able to agree on a response - or whether to retaliate.

Weinberger underlined at least part of the problem when he said in his speech last month that before the United States commits combat troops abroad "there must be some reasonable assurance we will have the support of the American people and their elected representatives in Congress.'

Boll Weevils are emboldened despite shrinking numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — They've been sprayed with political pesticide, but the "Boll Weevils" are alive and squirming.

This Congress, "we're going to be a force to be heard," says Charles Stenholm, who co-founded the Conservative Democratic Forum, a loose-knit group of maverick Democratic congressmen, in

The group was at its height in 1981 when it bucked the party eadership to back President Reagan's economic proposals and ained its nickname. But CDF membership has dwindled from 46 to 33 since then

"Of the 13 that we lost, three retired from office, three ran for other office, three switched parties, three were defeated and one just dropped out," Stenholm said.

'As a group, the Congress is right of center," says CDF member Buddy Roemer of Louisiana. "But within the Democratic Party, the numbers (of conservatives) are shrinking, not expanding."

According to the CDF's scale, there were 109 moderate-to-conservative Democrats in the House during the 96th Congress, the year before the CDF was founded. By the 98th Congress, the number had dropped to 58. Of those, 52 were re-elected, said Stenholm.

Despite the trend of the last few elections, the group expects to recoup its lost membership and make some gains in unofficial support during the upcoming Congress. Roemer estimates there will be a core of about 70 yotes for the CDF's positions.

"That's enough to win some votes in the House," he said.

If the Democratic party doesn't give the conservatives something in the next couple of sessions, they may have to consider leaving the party, said Marvin Leath, who represents a conservative Central Texas district.

"At some point in the future, I don't know if that's four years, six years, 10 years, 15 years from now, people like myself who would intend to stay in politics actively would have to make a decision," he said

After their own party put two northern liberals at the top of its ticket this year and was swamped in a Reagan landslide, a handful of conservative House Democrats rallied behind Stenholm's challenge of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., a symbol to them of Démocratic liberalism.

After fading into the background for two years, the CDF was back in the headlines.

But Stenholm, a three-termer from West Texas, dropped out of the race after he and Roemer met with the 72-year-old Speaker, who told them he would retire after this term.

Roemer and Stenholm said they told O'Neill they wanted him to promise not to block their legislation, like a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. They said the Speaker assured them of "a place at the table," and now it is up to the conservatives to get their share.

"We're going to be a lot smarter than we were four years ago," Stenholm said. "We learned a lot in the budget process. We've learned a lot in the last two years about what's do-able and what's not, about what a package has to look like if you're going to get votes.

Despite some talk among its members about broadening the CDF's interests to include defense and foreign policy issues, it remains, as does most of the Congress, focused on the budget and the federal deficit.

Roemer said he recently met with Budget Director David Stockman on behalf of CDF and told the president's budget-writer that conservative Democrats want to reduce spending, including defense.

Roemer, who had set up the meeting between Stenholm and 'Neill, said he and Stenholm promised the Speaker they would try work within the party first before seeking Republican support for an alternative budget.

"We'll go where we think the best budget is," Roemer said. "We're open to other coalitions, but we will begin within the party.

He and Stenholm say they have been forced into roles as mavericks by party leadership that has abandoned the middle of the road for the far left lane.

"What do moderate and conservatives in the Democratic Party do?" asks Roemer. "I don't want to change the party as much as add to it. I don't want the Democratic Party to back off civil rights. Call me a liberal. I don't want the party to back off environmental considerations. But on economic issues we tend to drift off to the left.

UNITED NATIONS (NEA) - A reporter called the U.N. press office recently to ask a question about the terrifying famine in northern Africa. He said he had seen news pictures of people starving in Ethiopia, and, given the circumstances, he wondered why their stomachs seemed to be big and bulging.

The question was completely sincere. The reporter said he was stunned by the news pictures, and was going to send money to help relieve the hunger. But he also wanted to know more about the process of starvation itself: he wanted to know what actually happens to people who can't find food to eat.

So he was referred to the experts. What he learned is gruesome. One expert is the Rev. Carlo Capone. He is a medical doctor and director of the health and nutrition division of the Catholic Relief Service. He says stomachs don't bulge on people who are starving, they just collapse, and what happens to people who can't find food is that they begin to deteriorate permanently. to eat themselves.

The reason is they don't have enough fat stored in their bodies. Fat the natural physical defense is against short-term hunger. Dr. Capone says that when a normally healthy person goes without food, on a fair amount of sustenance by consuming its own lard.

But the consumption is more like cannibalism in perennially famished Ethiopia. Because the scant fat in the people there can quickly disappear. Dr. Capone says that when the fat is gone, the body has to turn to other tissue for nourishment, and the process of starvation accelerates.

Then, as the tissue continues to burn off, the muscles break down. And here is where the stomach starts to protrude. The body robs the stomach muscles of protein, the muscles lose much of their strength and elasticity, and the stomach falls down and diet or whatever, the body can get a out to hang empty, grotesque and distended.

Dr. Capone says the rest of the body becomes grotesque as well. Starving people change into zombies in as little as four weeks. The skin loses its uniform color, hair fades and falls out, and gums shrink. Even the eyes are affected: At best, they will Still others die from the diseases that are associated with hunger. They lose the fluids that help control the rhythm of their hearts, or they lack the vitamins to prevent rickets, beriberi and pellagra. Bronchial pneumotion and food, but not many: "Once a nia is a frequent killer of hungry

Dr. Capone says most starving people die in one of these indirect ways. And, on consideration, they may be the lucky ones. People who die of starvation itself, actually die of carnivorous cold; the body can't keep. warm without calories, and so, at length, the tissue, muscles and organs cool down dead.

In all, the experts say the starvation process takes five to seven weeks, if there is no food available at all. And children are usually on the short end of the scale. Dr. Capone says it's something to think about this holiday season; it has to be the very worst scourge in the pitiless world.

The voting for other leadership positions was even more telling. A majority of GOP senators didn't want to be seen as moving too far right: They quickly eliminated Idaho's James McClure on the first ballot for the majority leadership, and did the same to Wisconsin's Robert Kasten in the election for majority whip, the No. 2 leadership position.

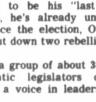

As head of the official party caucus the No. 3 GOP post - they chose Rhode Island's moderate John Chafee over Utah's very conservative Jake Garn. Finally, they chose Pennsylva-nia's John Heinz over Wyoming's Malcolm Wallop to head the GOP's 1986 campaign committee.

These votes indicate that for most Senate Republicans in this Congress the first priority will be their own political survival.

The Democrats retained control of the House, but the GOP's pickup of 14 seats clearly makes the House a bit more conservative - and, like the GOP in the Senate, the House majority has its problems.

Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill will retire in 1986, and he'd like this Congress to be his "last hurrah." However, he's already under pressure. Since the election, O'Neill has had to put down two rebellions in the ranks

First, a group of about 30 younger Democratic legislators demanded more of a voice in leadership deci-

Said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia: "If President Reagan is going to have any success with this Congress, he will have to press his agenda in the first several weeks of 1985. With each day that goes by, he more and more becomes a lame duck.

MOOERS, N.Y. (NEA) - Members of the U.S. Border Patrol received a sobering surprise not long ago when they stopped a motorist who was trying to sneak across the line from Canada. First hard freeze delays Texas harvesting COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - The first hard freeze of the season temporarily delayed harvesting and field operations in some areas, but did not harm the South Texas vegetable crop, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Carpenter noted in his weekly report on the state's agriculture that temperatures late last week dropped to the mid-30s in the Rio Grande Valley, but did not harm vegetables. The harvest continues for peppers, tomatoes, cabbage and lettuce, and the onion crop also is making good progress, he said.

In the South Plains, several counties have harvested about 70 percent of their cotton, while a number of others north of Lubbock are approaching the halfway mark in cotton harvesting. In counties south of Lubbock the harvest ranges from 20 to 25 percent complete, Carpenter added. That harvest was delayed somewhat by cold weather, but light snow that accompanied it boosted moisture, he said

Cotton harvesting is 20 to 30 percent complete in the Panhandle, and other cotton remains to be harvested in the Rolling Plains, West Central and Far West Texas, where field activity was halted by the wet weather.

The wheat crop is making good progress where moisture is adequate. Wheat pastures are generally providing good grazing in the Panhandle, where range grass is short and some supplemental feeding is occurring under range conditions.

In the Rolling Plains, germination and emergence of newly-sown wheat is being hampered by cold temperatures. Newly-arrived stocker cattle are reported with heavy health problems in Archer County. Some wheat fields cannot be grazed in Baylor County due to lack of stock water, Carpenter said.

Supplemental feeding of livestock is under way in many areas following the heavy frost and freezes. In Southwest Texas, some ranchers are again burning prickly pear cactus to provide nutrition for cattle, while others are feeding hay and range meal mixes. The hay crop is generally short in most areas of the state, with some peanut hay being baled as the peanut harvest nears completion.

Through the state, the pecan crop also is winding down with yields lighter than usual, particularly on native pecans.

PANHANDLE: Some light snow early in the week added to the moisture supply, which ranges from adequate to short. Wheat continues to make good progress and the cotton harvest is 20-30 percent complete. Land preparation continues active for the next spring's crops. Some range cattle are receiving supplemental feed since range grass is short. SOUTH PLAINS: Additional moisture slowed the cotton harvest this week. Counties north of Lubbock are approaching the halfway mark in cotton harvesting. with 2 or 3 counties 70 percent through the harvest. South of Lubbock, cotton is from 10 to 25 percent harvested. Sugar beets are percent harvested, and corn, soybean and grain harvests are complete. Wheat pastures are providing good grazing and stocker cattle are making excellent progress

ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat continues to make good progress where moisture is adequate. Germination and emergence of newly-sown wheat is being hampered by cold temperatures. Native range grasses are generally short and supplemental feeding is under way for livestock, particularly in central counties of the district. Peanut harvesting is nearing completion, and final cuttings of coastal and sorghum hay are being made in Wichita and Fisher Counties.

NORTH CENTRAL: Pastures are improving with recent rains. although cattle continue to be marketed despite poor prices. Supplemental feeding of livestock also has begun. Peanut harvesting was delayed by the rain, and cotton waiting to be harvested was hurt by the rain. Fields of wheat and oats are making good progress, and some hay is still being baled. NORTHEAST: The pecan harvest is nearing an end with both quality and quantity somewhat short, although prices remain Wheat is providing good good. grazing and clovers are progressing. Livestock feeding is being stepped up. Some frosted hay is being cut due to short supplies. Vegetable crops are progressing and the sweet potato market is FAR WEST: Hudspeth County recorded its first two inches of snow for the season this past week, while other parts of the district received heavy frosts. The green pepper harvest is at the halfway mark, but the cotton harvest was slowed by the wet weather. Some green cotton bolls were cracked as result of this week's frost. Ranges and livestock are in excellent condition.

WEST CENTRAL: Cold temperatures, rain, sleet and snow combined to halt most agricultural activities earlier in the week. Pasture growth has just about stopped, and while good grazing is available for sheep and goats there is only limited grazing for cattle. Some cotton harvesting continues with low yields reported. About 90 percent of the wheat crop is up, but some greenbug activity is reported. The pecan crop is short and quality below average in most of the district.

CENTRAL: Additional moisture will boost small grain growth, and many fields are being grazed. Some producers are topdressing small grain crops with nitrogen somewhat earlier than normal. The pecan harvest is at the halfway mark. Cattle continue to move to market due to short pastures and minimal hay supplies.

EAST: A hard freeze throughout the district has made permanent pastures go dormant. Winter pastures are improving after recent rains and warmer daytime temperatures. Culling of livestock continues as owners begin hay feeding programs. Most pecans have been harvested. Some onions and greens are being planted by home gardeners. Soybean yields are good. SOUTH CENTRAL: Wet weather halted field work temporarily, as the first hard freeze of the season arrived. Wheat generally looks good, although some greenbugs are causing problems. Oat fields also are progressing. The peanut harvest was delayed by rain. Fair yields of pecans are reported as the season nears completion. Pastures are providing little grazing so supplemental feeding of livestock AI AI fr is continuing. UPPER COAST: Large sales of Christmas trees continue in Orange County, and wholesale trees are being shipped throughout the state. Soybean quality is poor as the harvest continues. The hard freeze and heavy frost of the past week have caused native pastures to go dormant, but wheat pastures are improving following nitrogen fertilizer application and rain.

SOUTHWEST: Two killing frosts stopped grass growth this past week and ranges are turning brown. Although livestock are in fair to good condition, some ranchers are starting to burn prickly pear cactus to provide supplemental nutrition, while others are feeding hay and range meal mixes. Above average livestock market activity continues. Small grain fields are progressing where moisture is adequate. Wool and mohair markets are active. Harvesting of peanuts, cabbage, carrots, broccoli, greens and spinach are in full swing. Many hunters are spending time at deer leases.

COASTAL BEND: Wheat and oat crops are progressing following recent rains. Hay supplies are short, with the final cutting about completed. Ranges and pastures have declined since recent heavy frosts. Most livestock are in fair to good condition. The pecan crop is 85 percent harvested.

SOUTH: Moisture ranges from adequate to short, with the area west of Highway 281 the shortest. Ranges and pastures are providing fair to good grazing, and most livestock are in good to fair condition. Recent temperatures in the mid-30s did not harm vegetables, and the harvest continues on peppers, tomatoes, cabbage and lettuce. Onions are making good progress. The sugarcane harvest is progressing satisfactorily. Reconditioning continues for many citrus groves.

Soviet-bound corn goes elsewhere

WASHINGTON (AP) - Half a million metric tons of U.S. corn, initially destined for the Soviet Union, have been switched this week by private exporters to other buyers, says the Agriculture Department.

A routine sales announcement said Wednesday that 250,000 metric tons of corn - nearly 10 million bushels - had been changed from the Soviet Union to "unknown corn had been changed from the discuss the grain supply Soviet Union to unknown destinations.

Sales are reported to USDA by private trading companies, whose identities are kept confidential, along with prices and other details. The grain initially had been reported as sold to the Soviets for delivery during the 1984-85 year that began on Oct. 1, the second year of a long-term agreement agreement, a routine "consultation" specified by the pact.

At that time, USDA officials later confirmed, the Soviets raised questions about the quality of some of the American grain, including complaints of insect infestation.

A drought sale of livestock held for draft. breeding, or dairy purpose may be an involuntary exchange, regardless of how long you have owned the animals.

If, because of drought conditions, you sell more animals than you would have sold had you followed your usual business practice, you may elect to include the sales proceeds in the next year instead of the tax year the income is received if the following conditions are met: 1. Your principal business is

3. You can show that, under your usual business practices, the sale would not have occurred this year except for the drought, and

4. The drought has resulted in your area being designated as eligible for assistance by the federal government.

Sales made before the area became eligible for federal assistance still qualify, as long as the drought that caused the sale also caused the area to be designated as eligible for federal assistance

The number of animals you would have sold if you had followed your usual business practice in the absence of the drought needs to be determined. The sale does not have to take place in a drought area to qualify for this postponement. However, the sale must occur solely because of drought conditions that affected the water, grazing, or other requirements of the livestock to the extent that the sale became necessary.

Dietician's job isn't a piece of cake

By BRENDA ALVARADO Valley Morning Star

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) -Raw beef, crickets, rats, rabbits, fruits and vegetables are on Jerry Stones' menu.

Those who eat daily from his menu are the 1,810 animals at Gladys Porter Zoo, one of Brownsville's top attractions.

The task for Stones, general curator of the zoo, which was rated this year by zoo professionals as one of the nation's top 10 zoos, is far greater than any mess sergeant will ever encounter.

Opening to the public in 1971, the zoo is noted for its absence of bars and cages and its collection of rare and endangered animals.

Stones' task of feeding them begins with deciding what foods to purchase. This is no simple chore because he's trying to placate the appetites of so many, while staying within a budget.

His primary responsibility is to the large and exotic mammal collection. But, he does spend a lot of time ordering and purchasing food Although Stones has a heavy hand in the planning, much of the food is prepared by the zoo's two full-time cooks - Uvaldo Manzano and Jesse Rodriguez.

All the animals are fed twice a day, 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. A prescribed diet based on their native food requirement with some adjustments made for certain foods is followed. The diets are decided upon, supervised and changed periodically by the curatorial staff.

Seven days a week, early morning sounds the bugle reminding the cooks that time is of the essense while hungry animals wait to eat. Manzano and Rodriguez prepare dinner first by drilling out fruit and vegetable slices by hand with the velocity of a food processor.

"I prepare food all day long," said Manzano. "I love my job because I have compassion for the up, and I want to give myself to them, they're lonely.

In early afternoon, the cooks prepare the day's second meal (scrambled and hard-boiled eggs, fruit and vegetables.) By 4 p.m., they begin stacking clear plastic bags marked according to species and filled with food into marked buckets and cardboard boxes.

animals, because they're locked (approximately 40) zookeepers who will do the actual feeding.

Most of the bags, if nothing else, are colorful and nutritious. The monkey and ape diet bags contain bananas, carrots, celery, watermelon, bread, hamburger patty (cooked with salt and no pepper) and hard-boiled egg. Vitamins and other additives also supplement the diets wherever specifically called for.

Farmers Market eight times a month for the best fruit and vegetable buys. Once a week, he also orders grain and 30 dozen eggs shopping list includes: 12 (50-pound) boxes of bananas; five boxes of oranges, 300 pounds of carrots, two boxes tomatoes; two boxes apples; 1 pint of honey; 1 box of celery; one (40-pound) bulk box of raisins; 10 pounds of sweet potatoes; one box of green peppers; one box of cantaloupes and any other fruts and vegetables in season.

In the search to satisfy the carnivore diet, Stones' legwork takes him to purchase raw meat from the local slaughterhouse.

For snakes who need the beef. the zoo produces beef sausage; about 10 pounds are made every two weeks for snakes. The sausages are 2-3 feet long and 1-inch in diameter.

Judge backs HOUSTON (AP) - A federal judge has upheld a pact in which Continental Airlines cut flight attendants' salaries after filing for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws.

Continental attorneys said they received notice last week that U.S. Bankruptcy Judge R.F. Wheless Jr. approved the airline's dealings with the Union of Flight Attendants in September 1983. The ruling was issued Dec. 5.

The airline closed down for three days in September, filed papers in bankruptcy court asking for protection from creditors, then reopened with its wage scales cut roughly in half. Debbie Powell, a member of the unioh's negotiating team, said the decision "was not unexpected. This is the first step in a very long legal process. Based on the record, we feel very confident that as this proceeds through this process we will prevail."

"This allows us now to proceed further along the road of getting the reorganization plan together Continental spokesman now," Mike Cinelli said. He said talks with the union have been "off and on over the last few months."

Wheless ruled earlier this year the airline was justified in its actions regarding the International Association of Machinists and the Air Line Pilots Association, but withheld a finding in the flight attendants' case, saying he hoped they would be able to reach a Catholic bishop voices anti-nuclear stan

By RENAY SAN MIGUEL San Angelo Standard-Times

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) -During his anti-nuclear speeches, the Most Rev. Leroy Matthiesen, bishop of the Diocese of Amarillo. has often called for increased dialogue between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Some of the people who object to his controversial views wish he would start that dialogue by becoming a permanent Russian resident.

"I've been invited several times to go there and stay there," Matthiesen told a crowd of about 100 people recently at the Knights of Columbus Hall. He was at a Catholic symposium on the 1983 bishop's pastoral letter on war and peace.

"I'm glad I was introduced as a peacemaker and not a troublemaker. Several people had much nicer words for the 63-year-old Matthiesen, who was born in Olfen east of San Angelo and attended school there. This is a homecoming of sorts for me," he said before the symposium as friends lined up to greet him.

Those friends may have seen Matthiesen describe the Catholic Church's moral perspective on the nuclear issue during interviews on "60 Minutes," "The Phil Donahue Show" and "The MacNeil-Lehrer Report."

Most of the controversy Matthiesen has generated centered on his speeches at three anti-nuclear rallies at the Pantex nuclear missile assembly plant near Amarillo.

Yet he does so with the approval

More suits AUSTIN (AP) - The state's crackdown on overweight trucks will be expanded to include some shippers and receivers who have been forcing truckers to overload their vehicles, Attorney General Jim Mattox says.

His statement came last week after a state judge issued temporary injunctions against nine firms accused of violating weight-limit laws.

"Many of the truckers are telling us that they are being coerced into accepting overloads by shippers of the Vatican and his fellow bishops, he said. He has never been censured for his views.

With expansion of that plant under way, and plans to bury radioactive waste in the Panhandle recently proposed by the government, it appears that Matthiesen will have more material with which to work. "They've proposed two high-level nuclear waste dumps: one at Tulia, near prime farmland, and the other near Hereford, also prime farmland. And we're supposed to be patriotic enough to say, 'Okay, put it here,' with the threat of polluting the Ogallala Aquifer from Lubbock to Montana."

The Pantex plant and waste dumps were not Matthiesen's reason for coming to San Angelo. Matthiesen and the Most Rev. Joseph Fiorenza, bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo, were here to explain the finer points of last year's pastoral letter, "The Challenge of Peace.'

The bishop's letter generated intense reactions when it released last year for its call to a halt of production of nuclear weapons, bilateral cuts in superpower arsenals and a comprehensive test ban treaty.

It also condemned nuclear warfare as morally wrong, since it violated what the bishops defined as two universally binding principles; discrimination (the killing of innocent people) and proportionality (answering conventional warfare with nuclear weapons).

The letter did state that "just war." for the defense of a country from a "real and certain danger." is acceptable as long as nuclear weapons are not used.

No other pastoral letter has created this kind of reaction, Matthiesen said.

"None did. We've had intense reaction from both ends of the spectrum. This one was drafted in public. The public was invited to comment. The other documents have sort of come from on high.

business with them if they refuse overloads," Mattox said.

"So we expect to expand this crackdown to include shippers and receivers who violate the law."

After issuing the injunctions, state District Judge Joe Hart scheduled a June 17 trial for the nine companies, which were the first sued by Mattox's office.

The nine companies are accused of repeated violations of weight limits. All have received at least 250 tickets for weight violations, said Elna Christopher, a spokeswoman for Mattox.

Because state criminal law sets only a small fine for weight violations, Mattox brought civil lawsuits against the companies, seeking thousands of dollars in damages.

The temporary injunctions. agreed to by the companies, forbid the firms from any acts of

"If we find that any of these companies violate the terms of the injunctions, they could face very stiff penalties for contempt of court, including both jail terms and fines," Mattox said.

The companies which agreed to the injunctions Thursday are Hibbs Trucking of Austin, Aggregate Haulers Inc. of Houston, Freeway Ready Mix of Farmers Branch, Chemical Express Carriers of Dallas, Koch Oil Co. of Dallas, McMillan Trucking Co. of Lubbock, H.R. Moye Trucking of Round Rock, Womack Trucking Inc. of Bridgeport.

"It's a teaching document. It does not intend to give the last word on nuclear policy. It's primarily for Catholic people in order that they can reach a conscientious decision for themselves. And it's also intended to be a contribution to the public discussion on nuclear policy. It merely repeats moral teachings that have always been held sacred in Judeo-Christian tradition: that no one may directly take the life of an innocent person. Now, Catholics in the armed forces can disagree with that ' overloading, Mattox said.

VIENNA (AP) — The man once hailed by the late Tennessee Williams as America's "only great playwright" scowled when talk turned recently to two pillars of American theater: critics and Broadway

Of critics, Edward Albee said, "The world would be a better place without them." And as for Broadway, the award-winning dramatist said it's turning into the "staged equivalent of television.

The 56-year-old dramatist recently was interviewed during a break from directing two of his classics, "The Zoo Story," and "Counting the Ways," at Vienna's English Theater.

Bundled up and battling the flu, he spoke in the theater bar between sips of orange juice. Many of his observations dealt with his adversary relationship with the Broadway theater establishment.

It was not always so for Albee, whose numerous distinctions include two Pulitzer Prizes for drama and the 1962 New York Drama

Honoring zany redhead

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Lucille Ball, unquestionably the most popular comedienne in entertainment history, still reacts with wide-eyed "Who, me?" wonder when honors are heaped upon her.

She did so recently when she received Variety Clubs' humanitarian award on a CBS television special attended by the biggest stars in the industry, including Frank Sinatra, James Stewart, Burt Reynolds and Sammy Davis.

They praised her to the skies. But the zany, wide-mouthed redhead seemed vaguely unbelieving, as if they had somehow honored the wrong person

It's no act. Lucille Ball's modesty is not phony. Rather than accept credit for the success of "I Love Lucy," she invariably claims it should be given to the writers, technicians, co-stars and especially to her former husband, Desi Arnaz.

Still, it was her timing, wails and pratfalls that made the show one of the most popular in television history.

"There comes a time in your life when you get a lot of plaques," the 73-year-old star said one afternoon in the den of the house she shares with her second husband and partner, Gary Morton. "It's very flattering, and I'll go along with it, especially if it benefits children.'

Proceeds from the CBS special established a Lucille Ball Diabetes Research Library at a children's hospital in Denver, Colo

Miss Ball got to Hollywood in 1933 via modeling. As a blonde, she appeared with the Marx Brothers, Fred Astaire and Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers.

In 1940, her tresses a fiery red, Miss Ball met Arnaz, a rumba star. They married within six months.

Over the years, she's appeared in more than 75 movies and on television from 1951-74 in "I Love Lucy," "The Lucy Show" and "Here's Lucy." Miss Ball once headed a television empire that included three studios and numerous series She and Morton maintain a production office at 20th Century-Fox, and their company produced the successful feature, "All the Right Moves," starring Tom Cruise.

Her life seems like a happy climb from one success to another. Yet even at the height of "I Love Lucy," her life was a misery.

"Living through the last five years of the show as a Pagliacci took the edge off any enjoyment I might have had," she said. "Desi's drinking and carousing were a terrible embarrassment - bad for a woman's self-esteem. The talk around town was 'Poor Lucy. Because I couldn't face people, I became a recluse for more than 51/2 years.

"Our commitments kept us together, and I always had the hope that things would change. But they didn't."

Couple receives equal billing on Broadway By MICHAEL KUCHWARA

Critics Award for "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf." The play had Broadway and its reviewers at Albee's feet and went on to more success with the 1966 screen version starring Elizabeth Taylor and the late Richard Burton in the epic marital battle.

But New York productions of Albee's later plays were often panned.

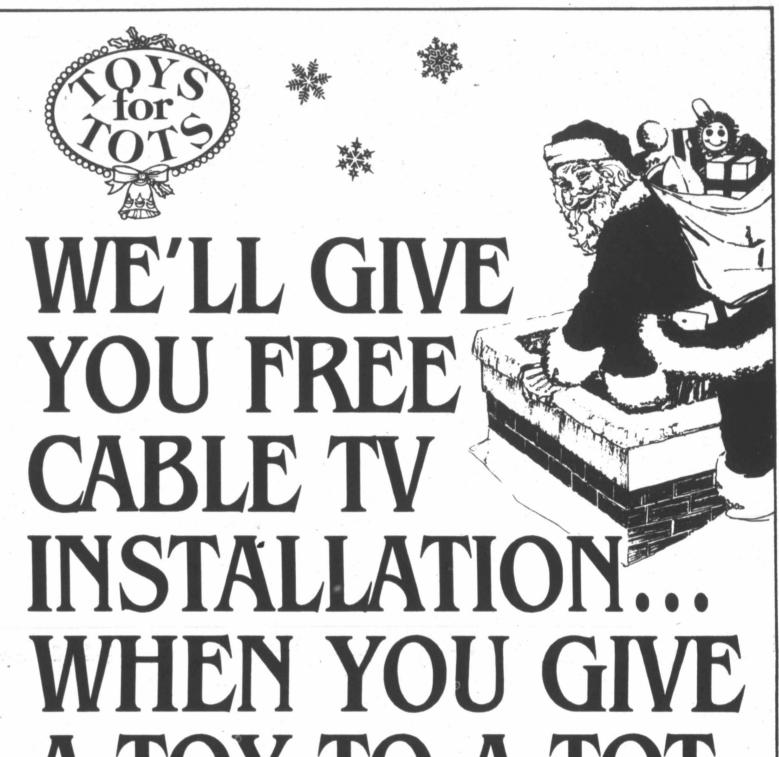

In January 1983, "The Man Who Had Three Arms" opened on Broadway and closed less than three weeks later. The play, in part an attack on the critics, had come from a successful run at Chicago's Goodman Theater.

Albee hasn't had a New York performance since, concentrating on regional and college theaters. He staged two short new pieces, "Walking" for the University of California at Irvine, and "Finding the Sun" at the University of Colorado in Boulder; before coming to "The Man Who Had Three Arms' is the play where more than any other I've written ... my peers have liked a great deal," Albee mused. "Fellow playwrights, composers, painters, sculptors people who think — they like it enormously, and it was destroyed by the New York critics.

"That tells you something," he said. "Either intellectuals in the United States are completely out of touch with reality, or our critical circus has as its standard something other than absolute excellence, giving the public the half truths and simple answers that it wants."

Albee plays generally do well abroad. Both "The Zoo Story" and "Counting the Ways" received sparkling notices here. A Czech version of "Seascapes," which opened in repertory about a year ago in Prague, is sold out there for 1985.

NEW YORK (AP) - They are husband and wife, father and mother and now star and co-star.

Sandy Duncan and Don Correia are getting equal billing in "My One and Only," having recently replaced Tommy Tune and Twiggy as the leads in the long-running musical built around classic Gershwin melodies.

Miss Duncan has had her name above the title before, most prominently in the 1978 revival of "Peter Pan," and it won her a third Tony nomination. But despite his extensive credits, this is Correia's first starring role in New York. It's something both can savor.

But at the moment, they are prouder of their two other productions - Jeffrey, who arrived in 1982, and Mikey, who first made his appearance in early 1984.

Parents and children are now settling into backstage routine at the St. James Theater, where "My One and Only" is currently playing. The boys have a nursery next to Miss Duncan's dressing room. Dad's space, complete with a barber chair to entice the children, is located one floor below. Adjusting to their new family life - revolving around eight performances a week - has taken some accommodation.

"Actually, it's a combined effort," says Miss Duncan, a spritely but determined woman who appears to have a handle on motherhood. You wouldn't expect anything less from someone who was Peter Pan on Broadway and the road for two years without missing a performance.

"My One and Only," which is set in the 1920s, focuses on the romance of a barnstorming Texas pilot named Billy Buck Chandler, now played by Correia, and an English swimmer called Edith Herbert, Miss Duncan's role. Such Gershwin standards as "'S Wonderful," "Strike Up the Band," "Funny Face" and "Soon," are introduced into the proceedings before the inevitable happy ending.

Some minor changes in the musical had to be made. For one, with Tune tapping in at 6-foot-6 and Correia at 5-foot-10, the height jokes had to go. But with Miss Duncan a more accomplished dancer than Twiggy, some movement could be added.

Correia and Miss Duncan met in the early 1970s when she was in the middle of the television phase of her career. A veteran of two TV series, she was starring in a special called "Sandy in Disneyland." Correia was a dancer on the show

"It seemed every special I got, Sandy was on, too," says Correia.

FUN-LOVING JUDGE-Harry Anderson is seen recently on the set of "Night Court," where he stars as the fun-loving judge, Harry Stone. Anderson, a former street perfomer, is still not sure how he was chosen for his role in "Cheers," the TV show which gave him a start in the business. (AP Newsfeature Photo)

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS. ANGELES (AP) - Harry Anderson's first venture into acting literally was a gamble. He was a street performer running a shell game in San Francisco, Austin, Texas, New Orleans and other places. "The gambling got a little rough, so I turned it into a magic act," he recalls. "I made it into an expose of the shell game, which led to the con man role I did on 'Cheers.' "

Anderson appeared in four episodes of the NBC comedy series, but he's still not sure how he got tapped for the role. "I think someone saw me working as a street performer," he says. "Then, I've heard they saw me on 'Saturday Night Live.' ''

Anderson was invited to play a character hanging out in the bar on 'Cheers.'

Now Anderson is starring in his own series on NBC as the unconventional and fun-loving Harry Stone, the judge on "Night Court." The show, created by Reinhold Weege ("Barney Miller"), got off to a shaky start but is now a confirmed hit on NBC running in a Thursday night comedy block with "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties" and 'Cheers.''

Anderson took up magic when he was a child and was being shuttled back and forth between his divorced parents. By the time he was 18 he was on his own and performing in Oregon. "Night Court" made its debut last January, but the midseason replacement caused hardly a ripple in the Nielsen ratings. NBC had enough faith in the show to renew it and over the summer it went through a re-tooling and cast change.

The central character, Judge Harry Stone, is described as unorthodox. But Anderson says, "Just being a judge is an unorthodox job. All the evidence I have is that judges are very eccentric. They tend to be characters."

Band survives loss of lead singer

NEW YORK (AP) - When lead singer Peter Wolf departed the J. Geils Band, the remaining five members didn't exactly line up and audition for each other.

"We already had a pretty good idea who could sing and who couldn't." smiles guitarist Geils. Before the split last year, the J. Geils Band had been together without a personnel change since they first formed in Boston in the late 1960s On the first album without Wolf,

"You're Gettin' Even While I'm Gettin' Odd," keyboard player

Seth Justman and drummer Stephen Jo Bladd sing most of the leads. On next year's tour, harmonica player Magic Dick also will do a few. Bassist Danny Klein

"We're very pleased with the album," said Justman, long-time composer and arranger for the group, in an interview with fellow band members. "It turned out exactly the way we wanted it to. We wanted to make a strong musical statement. It seems to be striking a chord with everybody."

When Wolf left, word went around that the J. Geils Band had fired him. The band denies it and presented a chronology. After 1982's "Freeze Frame," the group's biggest seller, the band toured for 15 months. Then Wolf left.

"We got him to come back. He said he would sing on the next album," Justman said. "He didn't want to participate much in anything else - song writing, business, rehearsals. ... In July 1983, we went in the studio and got seven instrumental tracks down. After that session, I got together with Peter. He said he had things he wanted me to hear. He played me a tape that had six songs on it, with synthesizer, background bed she does not believe that Liza singers, bass, drums, pretty extensive harmonies.

"I suggested we play it for the whole band, which we did a few days later. It was troubling to everybody that he hadn't told anybody in the band he was writing and working with musicians we didn't know.

Justman said Wolf wanted the Geils band to play five or six of the songs on the album.

> EASTGATE, Texas (AP) - Wild tales of devil worship at a rural Catholic church made the sanctuary a target for teen-agers armed with bricks and beer cans.

> "Each kid was trying to outdo the other with a better story," says Frank Falcone, an investigator with the Liberty County sheriff's office.

He said the lies climaxed when two teen-agers told of sneaking up on St. Anne's Catholic Church and watching hooded figures butcher a calf at the altar and drink its blood.

Working from the license plate numbers of two cars, Falcone tracked down 22 teen-agers who admitted vandalizing the church.

"They were all scared, but were very honest and told the truth," said Falcone, himself a member of the church. 'Only one tried to lie.''

St. Anne's is in a field about 20 miles northeast of Houston. Polish and Czech settlers built it about 35 years ago.

Most of St. Anne's assailants go to high school in Huffman. The attacks started about six months ago.

The Rev. Paul Fee, pastor at St. Anne's for 17 years, said he thought the rumors gained steam when teen-agers saw parishioners celebrating All Souls' Day by walking across a field to the church cemetery, putting flowers on the graves and praying for the dead.

The window-breaking reached its height Nov. 16, when 51 panes were shattered

"It looked like a bomb had gone off," said Alvina Ubnoskye, who lives across a field from the church. "We were upset and frustrated. Some talked about sitting out there on weekends with their guns."

Fee said the church was damaged at least 10 different times. He estimated damage at $2,000. Aside from the broken glass. Fee said the students dug ruts in the yard, shot a hole through the stained glass picture of St. Anne above the altar.

It takes many years for an evergreen tree to grow to a size for cutting as a Christmas tree. Members of the First Baptist Church, however, can provide a 35-foot tall living Christmas tree in a week. But while decorated with half a ton of evergreen boughs, the structure is a metal and wood framework with the boughs attached to a wire screen. Then it is decorated with lights and topped with a star. Forming the ornaments or garlands will be members of the church choir.

Church members have spent the past week in preparations for its third annual presentation of "The Living Christmas Tree."

The first program will be at 7 p.m. today in the worship center of the church. Two other performances will be held at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Construction of the tree began Monday when boxes of frames, platforms, nuts, bolts and other pieces were opened in the worship center. Most parts are listed by row and number to facilitate the erection of the massive structure, standing more than three stories tall.

Tuesday the one thousand pounds of silver spruce tips, brought in from Oregon, were dipped in a fireproofing solution and then hung out in the church's bus garage to dry.

Wednesday a few members began putting on the strings of lights, with more than 2,000 bulbs. The choir scheduled its first rehearsal on the tree that evening.

On Thursday the evergreen boughs were hung on the wire screen placed over the framework. Other ornaments and bows were placed on the tree and the lights were checked for finishing touches.

Dress rehearsal was held Friday night. Choir members took their places on the ten tiers of platforms, one lone person at the top beneath the star. and increasing to 15 members on a lower tier.

In addition to the Christmas carols and hymns, the program this year will feature a life-sized "Living Bible" and a "Burning Bush," according to John Glover, minister of music.

The program is centered around the first chapter of John: "And the WORD became Flesh and dwelt among us." Two special features will include a black-light number and a penlight number. The program is approximately one hour in length.

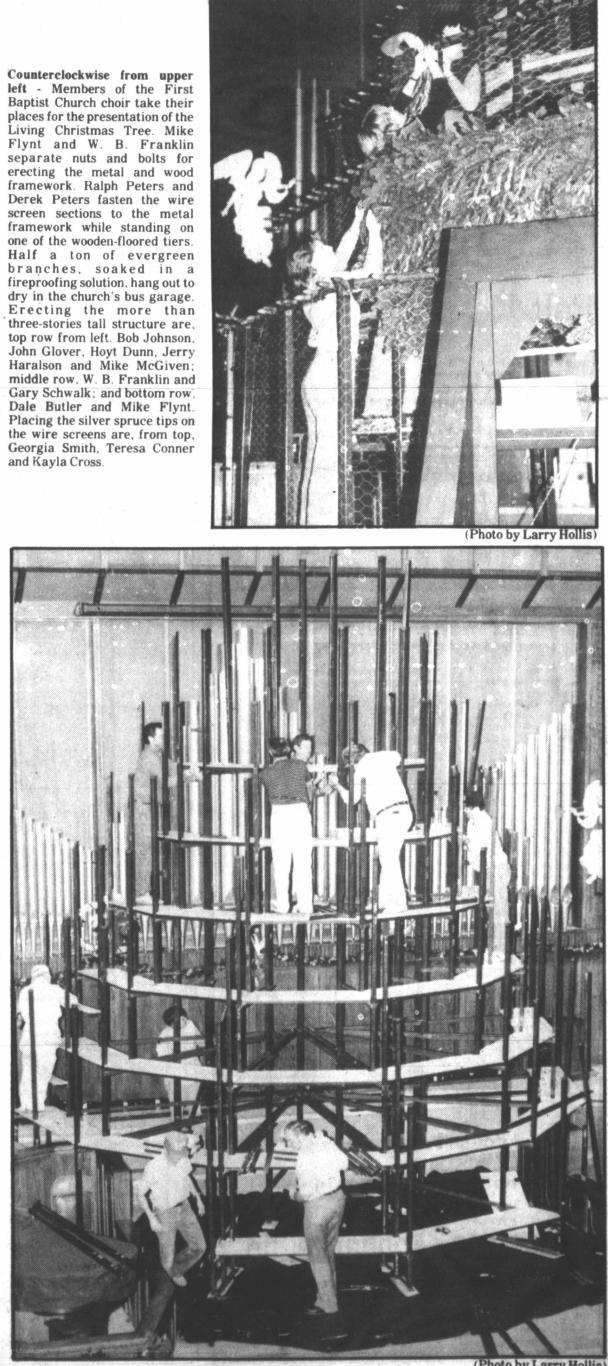

The church considers the Living Christmas Tree a special gift to the city. While no admission is charged to the presentations, a free-will offering is collected. The money is given to charitable organizations in the city. In the past two years, almost $5,000 has been contributed.

Offerings will be taken again this year to continue the support for worthwhile organizations in the city. Previous contributions have been made to the Good Samaritan Christian Services and to Foster Children of Pampa and Gray County. The program is presented free of charge to the public. But tickets are required to assure everyone a seat and to balance the attendance for each night, Glover said.

Tickets may be obtained after regular Sunday services at the church today, or they may be acquired at the church's Music Department office by calling 669-1155

Customer discovers a beauty shop that's gone to the dogs

By Abigail Van Buren 9 1984 by Universal Press Syndical

DEAR ABBY: I'm new in town. I went to the neighborhood beauty parlor near my house because it was handy. It looked pretty nice from the outside, but when I got inside I noticed the floor needed a good scrubbing. Before my beauty operator put me in her chair, she went to the hamper and picked out a dirty towel and wiped the chair with it!

I noticed two dogs sitting in the drying chairs, scratching to beat the band-both of them. I asked if they had fleas, and the operator said, "No, my dogs are cleaner than most of my customers."

She owns the shop, and there was a sign on her mirror, big as life, that said. "Yes, you may tip the owner"!

Before she set my hair she said, "Who gave you this miserable haircut?" Then she reached for her scissors and said, "I'll see what I can do-it's the worst botched-up mess I've ever seen."

I told her not to cut anything, then I started to cough and asked for a glass of water. She brought me some water in a dirty glass with lipstick on the rim.

Abby, don't beauty shops have to pass some kind of inspection? I hate to be a stool pigeon, but who should I report her to? This place was so filthy, I went home and took a bath. DISSATISFIED CUSTOMER

DEAR ABBY: I am a gentleman, middle-aged, refined, always welldressed and better looking than most men. My problem is women. When I'm in a restaurant, whether I'm alone or with a lady, women give me the eye.

I wouldn't mind if they were young and beautiful, but all the fat old ladies stare at me, trying to make eye contact. I try to ignore them in an effort to discourage them, but in a minute or two, they are at it again, trying to catch my eve.

I would appreciate any advice you can give me.

Peeking at Pampa

'Tis the season when thoughts of Christmas preparations abound, sandwiched between shopping sprees, parties and vacation travel.

Penelope and Russell Garrison celebrated an early family Christmas with Russell's brother in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico.

Marge and Ken Lemons missed some of our cold weather by pending two wonderful weeks in Hawaii.

The Jack Meltons returned vesterday from a cruise that all egan in New Orleans.

Young Gordon Bayless came from Washington, D.C., to visit family and friends in time to sing with last week's performance of 'Messiah'' at M. K. Brown.

Overheard several appreciative comments on Jerry Whitten's contribution as accompanist on the harpsichord, an important role in any musical presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Outlaw, Pat sports section and said, "You won't and Tereasa recently visited in Bethany, Okla.

Sabrina and John East and son John Colby visited friends and family recently Sherry Guinn enjoyed a December trip to California.

Lois Teel spent a week in Houston visiting with her daughter and helping her get settled in a new home.

Joyce and L. G. Clifton and Retha (Mrs. Ray) Jordan saw the Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboy game. Retha is a true blue cheering wildly for USC while sitting in the Stanford section. Cowboy fan.

APPROXIMATELY THREE dozen gifted and talented students accepted the invitation given by Pampa TAG Association to attend the Lone Star Ballet Company's presentation of the Nutcracker Suite in Amarillo with transportation furnished by the school district. School sponsors are Kay (Mrs. Jim) Crouch and Marcella Diller.

Last month's Rotary Club travel film was on South America, not Tahiti as reported in this column. The film on Tahiti was shown on Dec. 4, perhaps the coldest Tuesday night of the season. Clint Denn was narrator. Just imagine -Tahiti inside, a freezer outside!

There's time to make it to St. Matthew's Church in time to attend Brian Hanson's slide-narration presentation of his recent trip to Scotland and England during church school, preceding the Sunday services. Special emphasis will be given the beautiful, old cathedrals of the area.

A good wish and a happy thought would be for an addition to the Christmas Eve broadcast on Radio Station KSZN from St. Matthew's to be moved to 10:45 p.m. to include the pre-service violin concert to be given at that time by Father Ron McCrary, accompanied by Jerry Whitten at the organ.

because you don't know what to Ron is an accomplished, say? Thank-you notes, sympathy well-disciplined, highly artistic violinist. The children's handbell choir will perform with the adult choir during the service.

ve a part of yourself for Christmas this year

By DONNA BRAUCHI County Extension Agent

Many people feel the need to spend more and more money on gifts each year at Christmas. Many times the gift would be more valued and loved if a little more imagination and time were spent on it. To help you get your imagination in gear and your creativity flowing, the following ideas are offered.

A GIFT FOR THE TRAVELER

big trip planned for the upcoming year? If so - a very special gift could be a travel guide researched by you! Libraries and travel agencies can help you with information about the location. Find out about weather, points of interest, shopping tips, transportation, dress, etc. Throw in a travel poster for good

Do friends or relatives have a information in a large box wrapped with a map of the place they will be visiting

A GIFT FOR THE GOURMET COOK

Compile a special cookbook by selecting your best recipes, adding interesting tips to each one, and gathering other recipes from family and friends of the honored cook. Put the recipes in a ring binder of plastic sheets or mesure. Arrange all this put them on index cards in a

Handling negative behaviors

An interesting thing about children's behavior is that the same discipline problems often come back in different forms at different times

Parents who recognize these behavior patterns and know some ways to deal with them have a head start in keeping the family peace, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. The following basic principles may help. Principle No. 1: Don't reward negative behaviors

Most experts agree that behaviors that are consistently rewarded are the very ones which tend to become "built-in" - that is, they become part of the child's behavior pattern. Parents often unthinkingly reward negative behaviors. For example, punishment is often seen as a 'reward'' by the child because at least the parent is noticing the child and paying attention to him while the punishment is happening. Thus, the child may misbehave to get attention - even if it is painful. Principle No. 2 is an alternative to punishing negative behavior. Principle No. 2: Ignore negative behaviors as much as possible

At times it is necessary to punish negative behaviors, but punishment does not necessarily mean spanking or other direct action. If you ignore negative behaviors, most often they will simply go away. Why? Because you have taken away the reward simply by not paying attention. You can get a lot of mileage out of this principle if you learn how to use it.

Principle No. 3: Avoid confrontation

Try not to get into fights with your child when he is behaving negatively. After all, you are smarter than he is, and you should be able to manipulate the situation (and him) so the behavior does not bring on fights. This takes much extra effort on your part, but it's worth it.

What can parents do instead of punishing or confronting? They can use one of the most effective behavior modifiers: positive

recipe box. DINING OUT AT HOME

For the friend who had rather do other things than cook, give a meal prepared ahead and frozen to be used at a later date. Prepare the dishes in disposable containers and attach explicit directions for cooking and serving.

TIME AND TALENT

Consider giving lessons in a skill you have: knitting, bridge, sewing, woodwork, art, etc. A gift of your time may be one of the most appreciated gifts you can offer. A young mother would consider your time babysitting with her children sometime a thoughtful and useful gift. Retired people on your gift list might enjoy a luncheon date betleen just the two of you. Give children a time for you and the child to spend together doing what the child wants to do. Gifts of time and talent make memories that will be forever -never obsolete, no wrong sizes a part of you!

MONEY

Always the right color and size - money may be your answer for someone on your list. Be creative in how you present the gift. Carefully open a cracker jack box, remove contents, and insert money in an envelope inside. Tie up with a bow and watch the surprise! Christmas colored balloons with a bill inside, inflated, and pin attached to pop the balloons would be interesting and fun. Use your imagination and come up with some ideas of your own. FOR THE READER

Tie a bow to a magazine rack filled with December issues of f vorite magazines for a special person on your list.

A NATURAL WREATH A wreath made of natural materials, macrame, straw, etc., can be used throughout the year. Enclose several different bows in the box you wrap the wreath in. These bows can be of colors that will denote other celebrations in the year.

LET'S PRETEND BOXES

A favorite playtime activity for most children is pretending they are adults involved in adult roles. What better way to help youngsters with their games of pretending than in a box of costumes. Some items to include would be sashes, jewelry, hats and caps, sports uniforms, high heels, old ties, aprons, watches, purses or wallets, old eye glasses or sunglasses. pocketnotebook, etc. Use your imagination and knowledge of likes and wishes of the youngsters you have in mind and treat them with this special Christmas surprise box.

reinforcement Principle No. 4: Reward positive behavior Pay attention to the positive things your child does, and which you think are good. Praise him for positive accomplishments. Give him attention - a smile, a hug, a compliment - and he is likely to repeat the positive behavior. The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month - by - month from birth to six years old. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind., 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

ALCOHOL IN DRUGS A child's first sip of alcohol may come from an unexpected source, the family medicine chest. Many teething preparations, cough syrups, de congestants and pain and fever re-ducers contain from three tenths to 68 percent alcohol. The American emy of Pediatrics indicates that Acad anything over 5 percent may be harmful. If kids take an alcoholcontaining medicine along with another drug, such as taking certain antibiotics along with antibacterial drugs, negative side effects like nausea and flushing could develop. This does not mean that kids should not take any medications that con-tain alcohol. Consult your physician more than 5% if the medication has alcohol or, if your child is under age six. Carefully read the labels on all medications and choose one with the least amount of alcohol.

B&B PHARMACY one of the major roles we play is in explaining to patients how to take drug products and to provide other necessary information to achieve the most positive value from the product or products their physicians prescribe. > 4-H has a rich traditon in recreation. Recreation has been used as a way to develop an individual's personality, confidence, leadership and skills throughout the years.

Since about 1970, 4-H recreation has not been emphasized as much as in previous years. Many 4-H clubs do not have recreation leaders. It is not that people don't want to have fun and play, but rather there is a general lacking of recreation skills among 4-H leaders and older 4-H members.

The State 4-H Recreation Project Development Team has the challenge of revitalizing recreation and bringing it back to the forefront as a major 4-H project and activitya.

We are pleased to announce future may hold regarding this

l. Learn the basic principles and theories of electricity.

2. Learn the effects electric energy has on man and his recreation team is to submit an environment.

3. Use and promote safe practices to prevent personal injury and property damage.

4. Learn about efficient use of electric energy through production of heat, light, power, communications and computations.

5. Learn about the generation, transmission and distribution of electric energy.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. supports the 4-H electric energy program by providing numerous awards and incentives to top evers, including medals of honor at the county level, a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago each fall for one individual per state and six $1,000 scholarships at the national level.

4-H'ers interested in learning more about the electric energy program should contact the County Extension office.

Handicapped inmates have special needs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) ---Meeting the needs of the physically handicapped in Ohio prisons presents special non-security problems for corrections officers because there are so few of them.

Of the 18,000 men and women in state correctional facilities, about 20 are paraplegics and a few more are amputees, according to Lou Ann Smith, nursing director of the Limited Duty Unit at the Orient Correctional Institution, just outside Columbus. ''In a minimum-or maximum-security setting, the handicapped prisoner tends to get a lot of assistance from the well inmates, who seem to have a little sympathy for them and their problems. You don't get a lot of hostility from what. I have observed," she said.

One problem, she said, is that paraplegics must be taught to be as self-sufficient as possible. Another is that some prisons aren't equipped to accommodate the handicapped. "The community is much more in tune to their needs,' she said.

Only a few paraplegics are housed in regular inmate facilities. she said.

At the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, the state's maximum security prison near Lucasville, two paraplegics live in the infirmary because both need frequent medical care for circulatory problems, said Bonnie Hubbard, state corrections medical coordinator.

At the 150-bed Limited Duty Unit, Ms. Smith said, "We are trying to teach people with chronic illnesses and problems how to get through their daily activities in a prison setting in a comfortable way." The unit's shift from medical care to teaching self-sufficiency to handicapped inmates began about two years ago, she said.

Its medical staff includes a physical therapist who visits once a week and supervises a full-time physical therapy aide, a social worker and an activities therapist.

Beyond equipping the handicapped inmate with skills for living in a cell, "we'd like it not to be a shock to them when they are paroled," she said.

About half of these inmates require constant medical attention, she said. That includes paraplegic, cardiac, hypertension and

December 16, 1984 PAMPA,NEWS و المار المار المار المار و ا For Horticulture neck poinsettias before buying

BY JOE VanZANDT COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT CHRISTMAS POINSETTIAS

The poinsettia is one of the most popular gifts of the Yuletide season. Its showy bracts or modified leaves give it a distinctive appearance which has become a traditional Christmas symbol. These plants are grown in 4 - inch and 6 - inch pots but trees and hanging baskets are also available. The poinsettia can provide long lasting beauty in the home or office if you follow some basics in selection and care.

When purchasing a poinsettia, examine the plant carefully. Avoid one which has dropped the yellow flowers at the end of each branch. Select plants which have only three to five fully opened flowers in a tight cluster. Also, avoid plants which have brown or moldy bracts. Look for strong upright plants that are well - rounded.

Once in its new environment, a poinsettia can easily last for more than a month if given proper care :

1. Remove or punch holes through any decorative foil or wrapping on the pot. Although it may be attractive, foil wrapping impedes drainage and holds water. This may cause the roots to rot and the plants to deteriorate quickly.

2. Keep the plants out of hot or cold drafts. Excessively hot, dry air from heating ducts and appliances will reduce the quality of the plant. 3. Poinsettias cannot tolerate cold or rapidly changing temperatures. Keep the plant where temperatures remain above 60 degrees F, between 65 and 70 degrees is ideal.

4. Place the plant in good light, but no direct sun.

5. Poinsettias use a moderate amount of water and should be checked daily. Make sure the soil remains moist but be careful not to over - water. When adding water, allow some to run through the root mass and allow some to drain out of the pot.

To be sure you receive a quality poinsettia, ask for a Texas product. It's your assurance of a locally grown plant at its peak of freshness.

CONTROL OBESITY IN PETS

Obesity, the most common nutritional disease in dogs and cats, results from overfeeding and inadequate exercise.

Boredom, idleness and nervousness are known to increase food intake in people and that happens in dogs and cats, too.

Pets fed home - cooked meals, table scraps, treats and snacks have a higher incidence of obesity than those fed only commercial rations.

Neutering decreases roaming and thus energy needs, so dietary energy intake should be decreased or exercise increased

Since weight reduction, regardless of age, primarily decreases fat cell size but not numbers, puppies that become obese during growth will frequently have a problem with obesity throughout life.

The management tips for the overweight pet are suggested :

By STEVIE BALDWIN

"But, Ed, I don't have a thing to wear!" Now I ask you, isn't this a legitimate reason for buying a new outfit for the holidays? Not any more. To be well dressed today, a woman must have one of two things; a lot of ingenuity, or a key to the back door of Fort Knox.

That special key doesn't seem to be on my keyring, so I charged up my ingenuity and designed this beautiful and versatile string - quilted holiday vest. Now I can mix and match a variety of skirts and pants to create a host of holiday outfits.

The fully lined vest is really easy to make. The patchwork strips that form the front and back sections run vertically, while those that form the yokes and side gussets run horizontally. All of the edges are trimmed with eyelet for that extra - special touch.

You can make your own holiday vest using our fully illustrated plans. They include a complete materials list, step - by - step instructions, cutting and assembly diagrams, scale drawings, pattern altering instructions, and tips and techniques for quilting and assembling patchwork.

plans, please specify Project No. 1570-2 and include $3.95. Now would also be a great time to order your new copy of our color catalog. It's packed with practical and just - for - fun fabric and wooden projects for you to make, and it's only $2.95. Mail your order to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla., 74008.

The vest requires about 2% yards of 36-inch-wide fabric for the patchwork outer layer, two yards of fabric for the lining, lightweight batting, and several yards of gathered eyelet trim. For the patchwork, I chose five different calico prints in traditional holiday colors, and some white eyelet fabric. Just imagine the endless possibilities provided in the selection of fabric colors and patterns!

Cut a total of 51 straight strips, each two inches wide and 18 inches long. Each vest front requires six strips for the vertical lower section. Sew the strips together side by side and even at both ends. They can be assembled in a random pattern of colors or in an ordered fashion.

Place the vest front pattern on the assembled strips to see if they are wide enough. Depending on the pattern size, you may need to add one or more additional strips

To create the yoke portion of each vest front, measure the width of the pattern, and trim several of the unsewn strips to match. Sew them together side by side, as you did the others.

Now sew the lower - section vertical strip assembly to the yoke - section horizontal strip assembly. Place the vest front pattern on top, and trim the patchwork assembly to match the pattern coniours.

Follow the same procedures to form the second vest front, the vest back, and two side gussets. Use the pattern to cut the lining pieces.

The patchwork vest pieces are sewn together to create the outer layer of the vest, and the lining pieces are sewn together in the same way. Use the vest lining as a guide to cut a complete vest piece from batting. To quilt the layers, stitch in the ditch by hand or machine. Add the eyelet trim and hem binding to finish

December 16, 1984 PAMPA,NEWS For Horticulture neck poinsettias before buying

BY JOE VanZANDT COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT CHRISTMAS POINSETTIAS

The poinsettia is one of the most popular gifts of the Yuletide season. Its showy bracts or modified leaves give it a distinctive appearance which has become a traditional Christmas symbol. These plants are grown in 4 - inch and 6 - inch pots but trees and hanging baskets are also available. The poinsettia can provide long lasting beauty in the home or office if you follow some basics in selection and care.

When purchasing a poinsettia, examine the plant carefully. Avoid one which has dropped the yellow flowers at the end of each branch. Select plants which have only three to five fully opened flowers in a tight cluster. Also, avoid plants which have brown or moldy bracts. Look for strong upright plants that are well - rounded.

Once in its new environment, a poinsettia can easily last for more than a month if given proper care :

1. Remove or punch holes through any decorative foil or wrapping on the pot. Although it may be attractive, foil wrapping impedes drainage and holds water. This may cause the roots to rot and the plants to deteriorate quickly.

2. Keep the plants out of hot or cold drafts. Excessively hot, dry air from heating ducts and appliances will reduce the quality of the plant. 3. Poinsettias cannot tolerate cold or rapidly changing temperatures. Keep the plant where temperatures remain above 60 degrees F, between 65 and 70 degrees is ideal.

4. Place the plant in good light, but no direct sun.

5. Poinsettias use a moderate amount of water and should be checked daily. Make sure the soil remains moist but be careful not to over - water. When adding water, allow some to run through the root mass and allow some to drain out of the pot.

To be sure you/receive a quality poinsettia, ask for a Texas product. It's your assurance of a locally grown plant at its peak of freshnes

CONTROL OBESITY IN PETS

Obesity, the most common nutritional disease in dogs and cats, results from overfeeding and inadequate exercise.

Boredom, idleness and nervousness are known to increase food intake in people and that happens in dogs and cats, too.

Pets fed home - cooked meals, table scraps, treats and snacks have a higher incidence of obesity than those fed only commercial rations

Neutering decreases roaming and thus energy needs, so dietary energy intake should be decreased or exercise increased

Since weight reduction, regardless of age, primarily decreases fat cell size but not numbers, puppies that become obese during growth will frequently have a problem with obesity throughout life.

The management tips for the overweight pet are suggested:

Discuss the pet's weight reduction goal and steps necessary to reach that goal with all family members.

Feed the pet a low calorie, high fiber diet specifically formulated for weight reduction as prescribed by a veterinarian.

Keep the pet out of the kitchen and dining areas and feed it before the family eats.

directed by a veterinarian.

Record the pet's weight progress for visits to the veterinarian.

"But, Ed, I don't have a thing to wear!" Now I ask you, isn't this a legitimate reason for buying a new outfit for the holidays? Not any more. To be well dressed today, a woman must have one of two things; a lot of ingenuity, or a key to the back door of Fort Knox.

That special key doesn't seem to be on my keyring, so I charged up my ingenuity and designed this beautiful and versatile string - quilted holiday vest. Now I can mix and match a variety of skirts and pants to create a host of holiday outfits.

The fully lined vest is really easy to make. The patchwork strips that form the front and back sections run vertically, while those that form the yokes and side gussets run horizontally. All of the edges are trimmed with eyelet for that extra - special touch.

You can make your own holiday vest using our fully illustrated plans. They include a complete materials list, step - by - step instructions, cutting and assembly diagrams, scale drawings, pattern altering instructions, and tips and techniques for quilting and assembling patchwork.

Roger Ebert is his own best critic

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - "There are few professions that give you the license to ask questions. And how else in the world am I going to spend Sat-urday morning on the beach with Lee Marvin who's fighting a hangover?" So says Roger Ebert, explaining why he loves being a newspaperman, which he has been for 17 years.

Longer, actually. "I started as a sportswriter for the local paper in Urbana, Ill., at 15 and covered most of the other beats there as well."

Later, there was the Unversity of Illinois where he majored in English and journalism; a one-year fellowship at the University of Capetown in South Africa; and, after a year working toward a Ph.D. in English at the Unversity of Chicago, he says:

"I dropped out to work for the Chicago Sun-Times as a feature writer in the fall of '66. By spring, I was their movie critic because theirs had sweater who, with Gene Siskel of the retired and I'd written some articles about the movies.

It was a fitting assignment (which he's still fulfilling). Movies have always been dear to him, says Ebert, 42, a happy only child whose father was an electrician; his mother, a bookkeeper.

"I'm under the impression I was going to the movies when kids elsewhere were watching TV because it came late to Urbana. I spent Saturdays at the Princess Theater on Main Street watching two features, plus five cartoons, plus news, plus ads."

No telling how many miles of celluloid passed before his young eyes. Or since. As a critic, he sees perhaps 350 films a year. And writes two or three reviews a week plus a Sunday feature. So well does he do this that he won a Pulitzer Prize for it in 1975.

Which makes it even more ironic that the country basically knows him as the pudgy, spectacled man in the

Roger Ebert

Chicago Tribune, reports on movies in "At the Movies," the syndicated, weekly half-hour TV show.

It may also surprise some that Ebert has compiled the most penetrating, entertaining and touching of his celebrity features in "A Kiss Is Still a Kiss," his first book (Andrews, for money, he's still enamored of the McMeel & Parker, $14.95).

Robert Mitchum, Woody Allen, Martin Scorsese, the list is impressive. And his essay about the controversial Bob Woodward book on John Belushi is so sensitive and informed can't you try to be objective?' was typical of someone addicted. There was a chance for him to be saved but he never got it. Meantime, he had enormous courage to continue to work and make people laugh even though he was so often sad or sick himself."

That generosity, as Ebert calls it, is what he also admires about John Wayne and other stars who escaped the self-destruction so prevalent among the species. In the beginning, though, stars of any kind simply awed

"It took a long time for me to realize that the qualities these people have are only in my mind, and that's a relief," he says. "It gets me off the hook. I don't have to be a hero now because there aren't any."

Rather, he is a baby-faced bachelor who'd like to marry and have kids, but who meanwhile occupies a cluttered eight-room house in the near North Side of Chicago with two cats - Orange Cat and Sports Fan and, he says, "thousands of books. used furniture and a lot of art that's not very expensive. Employers need three qualities

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) - In the search for a career, job-hunters should look for the same three qualities in an employer they would value in a spouse commitment, character and 'chemistry.'

That's the advice offered by William Redgate, employee relations vice president for Pitney Bowes, a national mailing systems manufacturer with some 18,000 people on its payroll.

The guidelines are as applicable to a "mom-and-pop" operation as they are to a large corporation, says Redgate. Since most Americans spend more time on the job than at home, he explains, they should like their work environment.

On the subject of commitment, Redgate suggests one good sign is for the potential employer to have a written policy that governs how employees and customers are

"Just the fact that there's something documented in writing, like a marriage license, indicates that the employer realizes a mutual agreement is essential," he says, adding that most important is a demonstration of commitment

actual commitment is to see whether an open communications system exists. It's important for employees to work in an environment where they aren't afraid to ask questions or voice opinions to management.

"Besides, an ongoing dialogue forged out of honest concerns benefits the health of not only the employee but the company, too."

As for character in an employer, Redgate says job-hunters should look for an established firm that has shown survival in good and bad times - much as stability and maturity count in a prospective spouse. He adds that a company should have a healthy mix of employees where individuality is valued

Finally, in the same way the "inexplicable chemistry" has to be present for romance, so also should it exist between company and employee, according to Redgate.

"There should be a good feeling between employee and employer,' he says.

'Even if the firm makes sense logically, you should discount it immediately if you just don't get a good feeling from the atmosphere or feel you couldn't relate to your peers there.

happened." It's a self-indulgent business. No one tells him what to watch or tampers with what he writes and therefore, he says, "I live in a world I pretty much control."

Yet that freedom is not free of hazards: "My biggest problem is feeling I can control everything in life. Sometimes I get angry because the world did not get a copy of my scenario for how things should be and memorize it in time. I'm not as nice or generous as I should be, but I'm working on it."

And, in the end, his vision of what he's doing is sharply focused. For all his knowledge of camera angles and techniques, he insists he's qualified to be a film critic simply because, "I've got an opinion and a place to express it. There's a difference between professions and jobs. Movie critic is a job. If I got fired tomorrow, I wouldn't be a movie critic, but," he says, "I'd still be a professional writer."

The traditional religious aspect of Christmas is observed here, just as everywhere else. Except there is a Christmas holiday, she says, flying a slightly Hollywood tinge to it.

Currently, one of the biggest Christmas attractions is "The Glory helicopter. She got her helicopter pilot's license within the past month, and so, naturally, she is still of Christmas," the Christmas pageant intrigued. She says she plans to take at the Crystal Cathedral, the huge allglass church founded by Dr. Robert her family on a series of short flights. Then there is Barbara Bosson, who Schuller in Garden Grove, not far is married to the show's executive from Disneyland.

The pageant is so big that there are herd.

That began, Hollywood historians say,

The others, including Mr. T, Jan-Michael with Make-A-Wish, a group which tries to make the wishes of dying children come true.

By and large, Hollywood's Christ-mas is like Dubuque's or Milwaukee's, only bigger. Even the gifts are bigger. In the Neiman-Marcus store in Beverly Hills, you can buy a replica of the "Airwolf" helicopter and have it gift-wrapped and delivered for $2 million (plus tax).

Or, if you prefer, hop over to anoth-er Beverly Hills department store, Robinson's, and get your loved one the chance to be executive producer of a movie. Pegasus Group II pictures will let your giftee produce "Flint," based on a novel by Louis L'Amour. The price is $6 million.

"Subject to prior sale," says the catalog, so you'd better hurry. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)
