NEW YORK -- Offhand I can think of no more hypocritical fraud on the people of the United States than the self-inflicted doctrine of equality among and between nations. Not one person in a million believes in his. Even those few who do so believe qualify their attitude with elaborate explanatory notes. The rest of us only pretend to believe that he wicked and the good, the ignorant and the educated, the yellow and the brave or even the dull and the amusing, are equal.

It is true that a minority of religious persons, by their habitual proximity to God keep themselves reminded of their limited belief in equality. That is to say they pinch themselves daily or once a week and assert, privately, that they humbly waive superiority as souls. However, it does not follow that even these subscribers believe in universal equality of persons, the dirty and the clean, the lazy and the diligent, and so forth.

Americans regard as virtues some qualities which, on examination plainly prove to be mere affectations. Cleanliness is one. The hygienic person is one who is unwashed and unclothed and even the unpressed, and feel superior to him. So robust this feeling is that one firm operated by progressive American business men spent millions profitably flattery the self-satisfied and that one group and crowding in the vile pools of their bathing those who have B. O. Yet, short of that point at which the nonbathers break out in leprosy, what authority tells us that the clean person is cleaner than the unclean and who being tidy would deny, under confidential vows, that he felt superior to the others, who include, significantly, many of the poor?

The Christian policy toward poverty, which, by the way, is invariably parodied if not frankly cribbed by political candidates, here builds a paradox. For, while it is elaborate to say that cleanliness is next to Godliness, still cleanliness is highly respected. And still poverty and filth are complementary, and not always perforce.

We honor heroes and despise the blameless wretches who are afraid in danger and wisely run away. That is a standard of virtue that we just made up. Without research, I venture the suspicion that it was propagated by barons or military executives to overcome the natural and not at

Truman

(Continued From Page 1) came as a surprise to the capital, which had thought in terms of a special session in December if there was to be one at all. But Mr. Truman said the need was urgent for legislative action on (1) high prices (2) foreign aid and (3) consideration of the Marshall program to help European nations help themselves toward recovery.

Island Fire

(Continued From Page 1) big furnace around us," said Mrs. Andrew Walls, 49. Mrs. Walls, after hours of waiting on a chilly, wind-swept pier, was one of hundreds evacuated in lobster boats, pleasure craft and coast guard vessels in a Dunkerque-like exodus. Despite the fearful experiences of the evacuees, "there was no panic," Abbott said. Two thirds of the refugees made their escape in the afternoon, before the flames reached the road. For three hours the island was cut off. In the belief that a mass evacuation by sea would be necessary, the Navy and Coast Guard sent 10 ocean-going craft speeding to the port. During those three hours, Abbott said: "All we did was sit there and pray that they'd hold the fire away from the main part of the town, and they held it. They not only held it, but they reopened the road—the only road to Ellsworth." When the situation first grew critical, 2,000 townsfolk gathered on the athletic field. "The Army told us to run to the athletic field in the afternoon," said Mrs. Katherine Davis, 40. "It was an awful scramble—women running through smoke with household goods and crying babies in their arms."

Memories

Now in retirement at his Putnam, Conn. home, Gilmour Doherty, one of football's greatest coaches, looks with nostalgia at a portrait of Minnesota's unbeaten team on which he played end and quarterback in 1900. Gilmour Gil coached at North Dakota—Washington, Navy, Cornell and Boston College.

"roaring inferno." The flames suddenly came down hill at us without warning, burning the trees and shrubbery around the field," she continued. "All of us fled for the town landing." At no time, officials said, were those on the landing in danger. Dynamiting of buildings, and a lucky shift in the wind, barred the flames from the business district, which is next to the waterfront.

Fire equipment and men came to the island from as far as a hundred miles away. With practically all women and children gone, Mrs. Margaret Blanchfield, 34, sleeping in a chair at the Isar Harbor fire station, was an object of considerable curiosity as weary firemen passed to and fro.

After a restless nap, Mrs. Blanchfield said, "I didn't want to leave my house but they made me, so I came." He said the "eruption" in the doctor's case came when heart disease, eye ailment and financial difficulties caused the man's mind to "explode." "The volcano is still there," he testified, adding: "The defendant should be confined."

Comal County Attorney Alton J. Luckett, in asking for the death penalty, told the jury: "The stillness of a Sunday morning was shattered by an explosion but it was not the explosion of the mind—it was an explosion of a high powered rifle, and it was not only one explosion, but several."

ODDS AND ENDS: Douglas Williams of San Angelo would like to take on the Russians. In parachute jumping, that is.

Col. Vasily Romanuk of Russia claims the current chute record of 43,963 feet. Williams, who served in the 101st Airborne Division during the war, making 11 jumps at distances of 350 to 3,000 feet, says he can beat that.

"The low jumps are the ones that are hard," he said. He wants to challenge the Russian record, says all he needs is a backer to furnish proper equipment and a "plane that'll take me up there."

This Is Happy

By PEGGY DERN

IT was a few days later that she saw the Savannah newspaper. She had come down to breakfast a little earlier than the others and was in the drawing room waiting or breakfast when she saw the tuck of neatly folded newspapers on a side table. Carelessly she lifted the newspaper on top and turned the pages idly. Suddenly she sat erect, bright-eyed and eager.

For Steve's face looked back at her from the newspaper, and beneath it there was a line of print: Stephen Landers, well-known newspaper correspondent and radio commentator, who will speak tonight at the Auditorium.

Beside the picture, there was the usual "interview with a visiting celebrity."

Madeline and Joyce came in with a casual "good morning," but Happy was on her feet, holding out the paper, exclaiming happily about Steve's presence in Savannah. So eager and excited was she that Madeline looked puzzled and a little disturbed.

"It's Steve," Happy explained eagerly, not realizing how much she was betraying her inmost feelings in the excitement of knowing that Steve was so near. "He's in Savannah! Oh, I'm going up to see him. It's not far—there must be buses and taxis."

Joyce and Madeline exchanged a swift glance and Madeline said quickly, "But of course, Happy, we'll all three go. It's only 80 miles, and a fine road. We can make it in two hours or less. Joyce and I have some shopping to do."

She excused herself and came back into the dining room when Joyce and Happy were almost half through their meal.

Company Is Fined in Wage, Hour Violations

FORT WORTH—(AP)—The Strickland Transportation Company of Dallas and two of its officers were fined a total of $1,500 for wage and hour law violations by Federal Judge Joe B. Dooley here yesterday.

L. R. Strickland, president, and W. T. Bullock, secretary, both of Dallas, were fined $375 each on six counts and the company was fined the remaining $750.

Harry Campbell and Earl Street, Department of Labor attorneys, said employees of the Amarillo office of the concern contended they had worked 44 to 60 hours per week on a stated salary. They claimed vouchers were marked 40 hours regardless of the number actually worked.

Defendants testified that employees were paid on a base rate of 40 hours plus overtime with a minimum guarantee whether they worked or not.

still tumbled, though he had combed it hastily, and a dark blue robe belted snugly about his waist as she came toward him down the corridor.

"Happy!" His arms went about her and caught her close to his frank delight of the elevator operator, who was lingering to watch. "Happy—migosh—you're real! I thought I was imaginings things. Come on in!"

THE sitting room of his suite was strewn with newspapers a portable typewriter stood open on a table, with an untidy sheet of manuscript paper on one side and an equally untidy sheet of typed sheets liberally adorned with penciled corrections on the other.

"Let me look at you!" said Steve and held her away from him. "By golly, you're prettier than ever—your life of luxury seems to agree with you! And what a swell tan!"

"Oh, Steve, it's grand seeing you again!" she cried. "And seeing you is like coming on a green oasis in a desert. What the heck are you doing in Savannah?" he demanded.

"Mrs. Harrell and Joyce brought me in. They wanted to do some shopping. Good grief, get with you! What are you doing in Savannah?" he demanded.

Steve looked genuinely alarmed. "Don't you dare!" he protested sharply. "Don't you dare come near the place! Good grief, get with you! What are you doing in Savannah?" he demanded.

And Happy, understanding, and laughing a little in warm, tender amusement, answered soothingly. "All right, all right, don't look so terrified. We'll just go to a movie, then, until you've finished."

"Having fun, Happy?" Steve asked after a moment. "Of course, Steve! But I'm getting a little homesick. Isn't that silly?" Steve nodded and gave her shoulder a pat. "Wait right here, pretty thing, while I toss on some clothes and we'll go out and see the town."

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(AP)—This happened in a city whose welfare department has asked for a budget of $224,000,000 for next year.

A big well-dressed man walked into one of those Sixth Avenue cafeterias where characters who never saw a racehorse spend hours poring over racing forms. It was just after 4 a. m., the bars were closed and the place was crowded.

The big man wanted a snack to fortify him against the subway ride home. He took a tray to the counter and for forty-five cents bought two fried eggs and a one-sided piece of ham—it's cut too thin to have two sides. He also ordered two glasses of milk.

He carried his tray to a table at which two people were already sitting—a red-haired man of middle age and a slight, bent woman of about 65. He sat down. At first he thought the other two were together, but soon he saw he was wrong.

The red-haired man was eating but the old woman had no plate before her. She wore a black dress of good material, but it verged on the shabby. A piece of adhesive tape on the bridge of her nose, worn sore by her glasses, had slipped from its mooring and gave a slightly rakish note to her air of faded gentility.

The woman watched with strange attentiveness the plate from which the red-haired man was eating. He finished, got up and left.

The old woman remained in her seat. The big man looked across the table and saw she was nervously fingering two nickels. She stared at the nickels and then glanced up at the sign over the cafeteria counter: coffee and muffins—15 cents; chopped steak and potatoes—35 cents; hot cakes and sausage—but nothing for two nickels.

The big man looked down at his plate. He had taken only a bite of the ham and a corner of one egg. For some reason he felt ashamed to see the food before him.

He got to his feet, pushed his plate to the center of the table, nodded good night to the old woman's half-averted face, and walked out.

Turning, he looked back thru the plate glass window. The woman, using his discarded knife and fork, was cleaning up the partly-eaten food on his plate. She drank the milk left in his second glass.

The big man passed another lighted cafeteria, paused, then decided he was no longer hungry. "Does she really have to?" he thought. "I wonder does she really have to?"

For in the city of many rackets there are people who even make a racket out of table scavenging. And you can't be sure.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A rally developed in old crop wheat futures shortly before he close on the Board of Trade today, carrying the December contract to a new high for any wheat delivery for the past 30 years. Other grains steadied. The late rally was not based on any specific news, but there was a little commercial buying. Traders felt the Commodity Credit Corporation may have purchased some cash wheat in the Northwest.
Food grains firmed lower throughout the session, although the late rally in wheat was reflected to some extent in both corn and oats.
Rains in Kansas and Nebraska, plus a government request for a small-er spring pig crop, caused a sell-off in early trading.
The new 30-year high for December wheat was $2.12.
Wheat closed 1/2 cent lower to 1 cent higher, December $2.12-1/2, corn was 1/2-2/4 lower, December $2.09-1/2, and oats were 1/4-1/2 lower, December $1.21-1/2.
