Budget approved over Peet's dissent

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

With one commissioner objecting to what he contends are too many "typos and errors," the Pampa City Commission gave preliminary approval Tuesday to the 1987-1988 city budget.

An ordinance holding the property tax rate steady at 64 cents per $100 valuation passed unanimously on its first reading during the regular commission meeting.

The budget ordinance was approved by a 4-1 vote, with Commissioner Richard Peet casting the lone vote against the $9.2 million budget, some $600,000 under the current fiscal year's budget.

Peet's negative vote came after two of his motions to amend some wording in the budget failed due to lack of a second by other commissioners.

Peet tried to get wording included to require City Manager Bob Hart to get specific authorization from the City Commission before investing any city funds in savings bonds or other interest-bearing certificates or before OK'ing transfers of funds.

Saying he was not questioning the integrity of the city staff, Peet stated, "I cannot give my name to a budget" before it is finalized and all the corrections are made and all errors are eliminated in the typed materials.

Peet said the budget has typographical and addition errors "in a few areas" and said he does not see "how we can give final approval until we see the document in final form," with all the corrections made.

Referring to his occupation as a government teacher, Peet said he does not accept any student papers until corrections have been made and does not think he can approve the city budget until all errors have been corrected.

Mayor David McDaniel said the city staff "has credibility" and expressed his "utmost confidence" in them to make the corrections and eliminate the errors.

Hart said the staff is aware of the errors and is in the process of "double-checking all the figures" before the material goes to the printer. "We're running ahead on the corrections now," he added, saying they should be taken care of within 10 days.

Hart said the errors were minor, most coming from typos and from having to deal with figures and estimates that have been changing during the weeks the budget has been under preparation.

Commissioner Joe Reed said any objections "can be satisfied by the second reading" in two weeks.

Mayor McDaniel said Peet's objections "seem to be getting away from the basic ideas" in the budget, which, he noted, does not call for any tax or fees increases and cuts spending without eliminating any city services.

"I don't see any need to hold up adoption" of the budget, McDaniel said.

He added that Peet's objections and concerns should have been brought up and satisfied during the budgetary process and hearings. McDaniel said it seems Peet's questions are aimed more at concerns that should be addressed during the auditing process instead of the budget process.

"I have no trouble in passing this ordinance and getting on," the mayor said.

Aquino cabinet resigns

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino's entire Cabinet resigned today to allow her to reorganize a government widely assailed since last month's bloody coup attempt.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno said 28 officials, including the 25 Cabinet members and three others from the Presidential Commission on Good Government, submitted their resignations during a 15-minute emergency Cabinet meeting.

Mrs. Aquino curtly declined to comment on possible personnel changes. Asked by reporters when she would announce the new Cabinet, Mrs. Aquino snapped: "You will know."

Palace sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said she went straight from the meeting to a studio to record an announcement.

"The Cabinet felt it was appropriate for everyone to tender their resignation so that the president can have a totally free hand if she feels a need for a revamp," said Finance

Aquino returns to palace after cabinet resigned.

Secretary Jaime Ongpin.

Benigno said Vice President Salvador Laurel, who is on a tour of Mindanao, submitted his resignation as foreign affairs secretary by telephone. Laurel remains vice president.

Among those who resigned was Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo, considered the second most powerful person in the government.

The resignations followed growing calls for a government reorganization after the Aug. 28 coup attempt, the most serious challenge to the 18-month Aquino administration. The government has since been widely criticized for lack of leadership.

Arroyo's ouster had been demanded by business and military groups and members of Congress who have urged the government to toughen its stand against Communist rebels and halt a cycle of right-wing coup attempts.

During meetings conducted by Laurel this week, thousands of soldiers cheered calls for the ouster of Arroyo, who the military accuses of anti-military views and Communist sympathies.

City moves election dates, polling places

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

City voters face changes in election dates and polling places when they vote in municipal elections next spring.

In actions taken on first readings of two ordinances Tuesday night, the City Commission approved changing the dates for regular and run-off elections and authorized changing the places of balloting for two wards.

Both ordinances will have to be approved on second and final readings, scheduled for the next regular commission meeting on Sept. 22.

Under the first ordinance, the date for mayor and commissioner elections will be changed from the first Saturday in April to the first Saturday in May. Any run-off election would be held two weeks later, on the third Saturday in May, instead of on the first Saturday in May.

City Manager Bob Hart said the changes reflect optional dates permitted local governing entities by state legislative action.

If the election-date ordinance is approved, the changes in election dates will become effective in 1988.

Under the other ordinance, the Ward 2 polling place will be relocated from the North Fire Station to the Austin Elementary School building. The Ward 4 voting place will be moved from the South Fire Station to the Horace Mann Elementary School building.

Hart said the Pampa public school district has agreed to the use of the two school buildings for the municipal election balloting.

Hart said he has been concerned "for some time" with safety and other aspects regarding the use of the two fire stations for voting.

He cited availability of parking, voters having to wait in lines outside the buildings and privacy for election judges trying to count votes as being among the disadvantages to the two current locations. Hart said he also has been worried about problems that could occur in case firefighters had to answer an emergency call during voting time.

Hart said the new places would have more parking, cut down on the number of people kept waiting outside in lines and give more privacy to election judges. In addition, the new polling places would decrease the possibility of any accidents or injuries in case a fire call comes in, he added.

Noting that there has been discussion about having all city balloting located at one place, Hart said there are "a number of hurdles to having a single voting place with the school district."

Hart admits cheating on his wife

Former front-runner denies new campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Democratic presidential front-runner Gary Hart, grappling with the issue that drove him from the 1988 campaign, admits he has committed adultery and says he doesn't plan to re-enter the race even though he still wants to be "part of this debate" over the country's future.

"I'm not running for president," Hart said in a 60-minute appearance on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program Tuesday night. "I have no plans to run for president."

The former Colorado senator was contrite and defiant by turns during the question and answer session, which he concluded with an emotional apology to his children, Andrea and John.

"I just want to say to one very special young woman and young man how sorry I am for letting them down for many others like them. Have courage, we are not defeated and we will not be. I will find some way, I promise you, to continue on," he said.

Thus ended an extraordinary late-night television session in which Hart took full responsibility for the "serious mistake" of keeping company with Miami model Donna Rice. Questions about his relationship with Miss Rice led to Hart's withdrawal last May 8, at a time when he was the prohibitive front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I made a serious mistake. I should not have been in the company of any woman who was not a friend of mine or my wife," Hart said. "I should not have been with Miss Rice."

"I am totally and fully responsible for my own actions and I want to say to everyone how sorry I am. I want to apologize to you for those actions," Hart said.

Hart has stayed out of the public spotlight since his withdrawal from the race, and his appearance on the television program marked the beginning of his re-emergence as a public figure. He said he plans to meet later today with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, and has scheduled a speech in Philadelphia on Thursday that marks the start of a series of such addresses.

Asked by interviewer Ted Koppel whether he had an affair with Miss Rice, Hart refused

McLean increases city budget, taxes

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

McLEAN — A new fire engine, a possible street seal-coating project and a 5 percent payroll increase will mean a larger budget and a higher tax rate, city officials concluded Tuesday.

The McLean City Council approved the 1988 general fund and water-gas-sewer budgets and set a tax rate Tuesday at its regular meeting.

The new $173,000 general fund budget marks an increase of more than $53,000 over last year's estimated expenses.

To fund this budget, city officials raised the tax rate to 29.6 cents per $100 valuation, up slightly from last year's tax rate of 27.9 cents per $100 valuation. This means McLean homeowners will pay $148 in city taxes on a $50,000 house with no exemptions.

The 29 1/2 cent rate continues to

Houston quadriplegic triggers gun with string to shoot wife

HOUSTON (AP) — A quadriplegic who police say killed his wife using a wheelchair-mounted gun triggered by a string in his teeth contends he meant the bullets for himself, not for his bride of two weeks.

"Somehow the string got pulled ... somehow she pushed my head back," James B. Burns, 40, said Tuesday from his bed at his mother's house, where he lives.

Witnesses told police that Bertha Mae Burns, 37, had placed the string in her husband's mouth in a bar Monday night. She was shot in the neck and died before paramedics arrived.

Homicide Detective A.J. Toepel said murder charges against Burns would be filed today.

"According to witnesses, they were sitting there talking in quiet tones," Toepel said. "She then got up and put a string in his mouth and he jerked his head back once and the gun went off. "She said, 'You've shot me,' and then he jerked his head back two more times and two more shots were fired, and she said, 'You've killed me,' and then she collapsed to the floor."

School plans hearing on tax rate

Taxpayers will have a chance to put in their 2 cents' worth on a nearly 14½-cent tax hike planned by Pampa school trustees.

The school board will hold a public hearing on the proposed tax increase at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Pampa Middle School library, 2401 Charles St.

Trustees already have signaled their intention to raise school taxes from the current 71.8 cents per $100 valuation to 86.25 cents. A final vote is scheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, pending the outcome of Thursday's public hearing.

If accepted, the owner of a $50,000 home, who paid $359 in school taxes last year, will pay about $431 in 1987-88 under the proposed rate.

Despite a sluggish economy and overall decline in property values, the worth of most Pampa homes has increased this year, meaning the higher tax rate would be levied on already higher-valued homes.

Thursday's public hearing is required by law because the proposed rate exceeds by three the effective tax rate — the amount needed to raise the same revenues as last year. That rate is 79.97 cents per $100 valuation. The 86.25-cent rate will fund a budget of $12.06 million, up $500,000 from 1986-87. The new budget already has been approved by trustees.

The proposed tax rate is near the maximum allowed before citizens can seek a rollback election.

Even with the projected tax hike, trustees plan to dip into cash reserves to make up a $376,000 deficit.

Earlier, Peet tried unsuccessfully to get wording changed to increase the commission's power over day-to-day funding decisions, saying the governing system needs more checks and balances.

The commissioner said he has no objections to the concept of letting the city manager make investment and transfer decisions but added that he just feels such actions need specific commission authorization before the actions are taken.

Hart said investment decisions are often made daily as interest rates change. Obtaining approval from the commission for every such action would sometimes require having to call emergency meetings as many four times a week, he said.

Commissioner Ray Hupp stated that "it's imperative that the city manager have the flexibility to invest on a daily basis."

Discussing Peet's objections to inter- and intra-departmental fund transfers, Reed asked Peet if he was suggesting "we have a formal vote every time such a transfer is needed."

"Yes," Peet said, adding that "the ultimate responsibility comes from the City Commission."

Although the commissioners got stalled momentarily on action to adopt the budget, there was no delay on approval for holding the tax rate at the same level it has been for the past two years.

The commission voted quickly in unanimity to keep the rate at 64 cents. Under that rate, a person with a home valued at $50,000 would pay $320 in city property taxes.

be the lowest city tax rate in the area.

City Secretary Stella Lee figured that the tax would bring $33,750 into the city treasury. She expects another $35,750 from trash collections and $21,120 in sales tax collections.

The city will also use up the $40,000 in available cash on hand that Lee expects on Oct. 1. Lee does not expect any balance at the end of the 1988 fiscal year.

Council members approved the budget after conducting a public hearing at which no one made any comment.

The original 1988 budget allowed for a 10 percent across-the-board payroll increase. But, after a short executive session Tuesday, the council agreed to give all full-time city employees except clerk Anita Day a 5 percent increase. Day, an hourly worker, will get a raise to $4 per hour.

The higher budget was prompted by the recent purchase of a new fire engine. The engine, which costs $58,000, replaces a 1942-model truck that the city has used for 45 years.

"And it's still in real good shape," Lee said of the city veteran.

To help pay for the new engine, the city is charging a $1 per month surcharge on residents' utility bills. Lee expects to collect and spend $7,200 for the engine this year.

Another increase comes in the Street Department, where the city plans to spend $25,000 on a new seal-coating project.

Lee said the council has not decided which streets to resurface. But it will probably let bids in spring.

Another increase comes in contractual services, which rise from $19,725 to $30,750. Lee said the contractual services include freight, utility bills, night watchman's car expenses and professional fees.

The general fund budget may have to be amended again soon, due to the resignation Tuesday of the city's night watchman H.E. Easton, 78, who has watched the city for 14 years.

Council members discussed whether they need to replace Easton or to get a certified full-time law officer.

Lee had appropriated $10,033 for the night watchman's salary and expenses. She figured a certified police officer would cost $25,000.

Council members decided Tuesday to ask city residents which type of city law enforcement — if any — they prefer. The city will include an informal survey in its next set of utility bills. Four law enforcement officers live in McLean — a constable, a Gray County deputy sheriff and two highway patrol officers. None of them are authorized to enforce city ordinances.

The water-gas-sewer budget, which is funded almost entirely from water-gas-sewer collections, rose from $370,000 to approximately $385,000. This increase is due to the proposed purchase of a $3,000 computer for City Hall and the purchase of a pickup truck and backhoe for the Water Department.

to answer directly.

"If the question is in the 29 years of my marriage, including two public separations, have I been absolutely and totally faithful to my wife, I regret to say the answer is no."

"But I also am never going to answer any specific questions about any individuals," he said.

Hart also said the question was improper and should not be put to another candidate.

As for his political future, Hart said that while he has no plans to run for president, "I want to be part of this debate...."

He also offered an explanation for a widely circulated photograph showing Miss Rice sitting on his lap. He said he had been posing for pictures with several people who recognized him at a boat dock, and she sat down on his lap unexpectedly. "I was embarrassed. I chose not to drop her off," he said.

Even as he apologized, Hart sought to score political points against President Reagan.

Hart admitted he made mistakes, but added that, "No troops were sent into combat to die unnecessarily. No laws were broken. No papers were shredded. No money changed hands. No one lied to Congress."

"And every one of those things has happened under this (the Reagan) administration."

Such a change would require the approval of the U.S. Justice Department, he said.

City Attorney Don Lane said any such change would have to be submitted to the Justice Department for its approval "since Texas is under the Voting Rights Act."

In a memorandum to the City Commission, City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers notes, "The conversion from four polling places to one is a change of major magnitude" subject to Justice Department approval. "It would appear that we would need much more documentation than what we have."

As an example of the documentation required, Jeffers notes that the city would need a complaint register "of those individuals who have perhaps gone to the wrong polling place and have to be sent to another place to help justify and document the need of going to one polling place."

Jeffers said more lead time is needed to gather and prepare the necessary documentation to present to the Justice Department in advance of approval of any such action as designating a single polling place.

Lane said the city also would have to prove that a single polling place would not deny voting access to any minority group or other population segment.

In other action Tuesday, the commission adopted the master plan for development of Recreation Park, prepared and recommended for approval by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

The plan includes road and landscaping improvements, installation of water sprinkler systems, additional restrooms and increasing the frequency of mowing and general grounds maintenance.
 The plan also includes major projects of a 4-field softball complex, a playground adjacent to the ballfields, a camping facility for recreational vehicles and trailer campers, a hike trail and rehabilitation of the former "City Lake" at the park.

Mayor David McDaniel noted that the plan is "the end result of two public hearings."

He stressed that additional wording had been added specifying that the master plan "is only a plan and is subject to change by the City Commission."

In other action, the commission:

- held a public hearing, with no comments voiced, on a request for annexation of the Lawley Ranch Addition east of the current city limits;
- adopted on second reading an ordinance increasing jail confinement credit from $15 a day to $45 a day toward satisfying fines;
- adopted on second reading an ordinance amending the plan for city employee benefits under the Texas Municipal Retirement System (TMRS);

Texas/Regional Governor discusses chief justice vacancy

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says the next chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court likely will be a Republican, but he hasn't made up his mind which one.

The Republican governor said Tuesday he has no specific timetable for naming a successor to Democratic Chief Justice John Hill, who is resigning Jan. 1.

Just back in the Capitol after vacationing in Colorado and New Mexico, Clements was asked whether membership in the GOP would be mandatory for getting the appointment.

"Not necessarily," Clements replied.

"But in all likelihood, it will be."

The governor said there's no front-runner for the job.

"I haven't looked at a list. I have no candidate. I have an open mind. I'm going to be talking to a lot of different people, and listening to advice and counsel, and looking at resumes and doing all those other good things," he said.

Saying "it's going to be an interesting appointment," Clements declined to accept Hill's suggestion that he name a special nominating committee to recommend candidates for chief justice.

Hill, an outspoken advocate of doing away with the state's system of partisan judicial elections, urged Clements to appoint such a panel as a merit-selection experiment when he announced his resignation last month.

"I will consult and discuss with many, many people all the various possibilities. I see no need to appoint a committee, per se," Clements said.

Hill said he wasn't disturbed by Clements' answer, saying the process the governor will follow appears to be an informal merit selection procedure.

"What's important is that the focus be on merit. And he's going to be looking at it that way," Hill told The Associated Press. "He did say he'd be listening to a lot of people, and that's what merit selection is about. He said he would be looking at a lot of resumes, and that's what it's about."

"The approach that he's outlining is following the concept of merit selection," the chief justice said.

The governor said he was surprised that Hill decided to step down halfway through the six-year term he won in 1984.

"I have to admit that I was (surprised)," Clements said. "I have not talked to John yet. I intend to do that in the next few days. I am sure that John and I will exchange many ideas about this particular situation."

Clements noted that he has appointed a chief justice before, and he said his record in that area was a good one. Near the end of his first term in office, Clements appointed Jack Pope to fill the vacancy created when Chief Justice Joe Greenhill stepped down.

"I very cautiously and prudently and carefully chose the successor, which I thought was a home run, frankly. He did a good job," Clements said. "I am equally confident that we can do the same thing this time."

Flooding dispute back in court

HOUSTON (AP) — The owners of a house in an area flooded four years ago by Hurricane Alicia are suing the city of Baytown for depriving them of using their property, which the city says is unsafe.

Roxanne and Ron Gillum have been fighting Baytown since 1983, when their low-lying Brownwood subdivision was flooded during the hurricane. City officials barred homeowners from repairing their houses and returning to them.

The city insists that repeated flooding and ground subsidence have made the area unsafe.

The Gillums are seeking unspecified damages in their suit before State District Judge Felix Salazar Jr.

"These folks are not deserving of any compensation because the city was proper in its actions," Baytown City Attorney Randy Strong told The Houston Post Tuesday. "We didn't oust them. Alicia did."

The Gillums are among about 70 of 300 Brownwood residents who have resisted attempts to be bought out, first by the Federal Emergency Management Agency and then by Baytown.

"It was not flooding three times in 30 years that made Brownwood property undesirable — it was lack of city services," said Jean Shepard, president of the Brownwood Civic Association.

Other holdout residents are watching the Gillums' case, anticipating that a favorable ruling would trigger similar lawsuits.

Baytown suspended condemnation efforts after residents appealed the buyout offers and won awards from the county that were greater than the amounts being offered by the city.

Three pieces of Gillum property, for which Baytown offered $5,050, were boosted to nearly $109,000 by county officials. If all property owners were so compensated, the bill could reach $5.6 million — much more than the city could afford to spend, it says.

The city wants to turn the area into a park and started condemnation proceedings against hold-out property owners.

In 1984, Mrs. Gillum was acquitted of charges that she was living in her Brownwood home in violation of a city ordinance. The ordinance later was rescinded, but city officials passed other measures making connection of utilities all but impossible.

Since then, the Gillums' property, which overlooks Burnet Bay and the San Jacinto Monument, has been vandalized and burned.

"Houses out there are burning left and right," Mrs. Gillum said. "After ours burned in January, two others across the street burned this summer. They were all arson, and the city's just not doing anything about it."

Football players hit by lightning

TYLER (AP) — A bolt of lightning came without warning Tuesday striking a junior varsity football player and 'splashing' onto six other players during afternoon practice.

"When it hit, everybody went down, and one didn't get up," said John Taylor, an assistant coach at Tyler Robert E. Lee High School.

Micah Alan Zapata, 15, was reported in critical condition early today at Medical Center Hospital in Tyler. The boy suffered cardiac arrest when the bolt hit him, hospital spokeswoman Martha Wiggins said.

Lee head football coach Biff Peterson said, "We really never saw any dark clouds, and there was no rain."

"We saw a bolt of lightning to the south so we got all the kids off the field. I hadn't taken 10 steps before the second bolt came," Peterson said.

Dr. Bob Fender, who was called in to treat Zapata said the player was struck directly and the lightning bolt "splashed off him onto the adjacent players."

Ryan Herley Bradshaw, 15; Freddie Ray Taylor, 17; Shelemuel DeBron Anie, 15; Lee Burns, 16; Durwin Browning, 16; and Michael Conley, 16; were treated for headaches and kept overnight at the hospital for observation, Wiggins said.

"The patient was rendered unconscious without a pulse or blood pressure at the scene," Fender said. "Coach (Mark) Gilbert began administering CPR within two minutes."

Gilbert, the team's trainer, said he rotated with Robert E. Lee coaches Mike Phillips and Chuck Bice in performing CPR and heart massages on the player.

Fender said the coaches' quick action saved Zapata's life.

The lightning came with little warning, coaches and players said.

"We were on the varsity field (about 250 yards from the junior varsity field) when we saw some lightning and Biff said, 'Let's go in,'" Taylor said. "When we were leaving, it hit again and kids were screaming and yelling running down to the field house."

Tony Pyle and Keith Hicks, tennis players at Lee, said they were nearby.

"We heard this loud noise and looked over to see what happened," Pyle said, "and when we figured out it was lightning bolt, we saw a whole bunch of people hit the ground on the football field."

Hicks said it sounded to him "like it hit a tree. ... We looked up on the football field, and there were a lot of them laying down and getting back up. They all started crowding around one person. All the football players left, and that's when we heard the paramedics coming."

Death row inmate awaits execution

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas death row inmate Joseph Starvaggi, convicted in a 1976 burglary that left a juvenile probation officer dead, hopes a federal judge will spare his execution scheduled before dawn Thursday.

Attorney Anthony Griffin said Tuesday evidence was insufficient that showed Starvaggi, 34, was a continued threat to society. He also argued that Starvaggi had ineffective legal assistance at trial and that jury selection was improper.

Griffin said he was uncertain whether he could win a stay from U.S. District Judge Lynn Hughes, but was prepared to take the case to the federal appeals courts.

"With the status of capital litigation as bad as it is, I don't know," Griffin said about prospects for a stay. "It's like going to a horror movie. We're getting blitzed. The object is to get a stay at some level."

Griffin said Starvaggi's case had been delayed because of the death of a federal judge who earlier had handled Starvaggi's appeal.

John C. Denson, 48, was shot three times and killed while his wife and daughter were tied up in a blanket at their Magnolia home. Starvaggi and two others were convicted of the slaying; charges against a fourth man were dismissed.

G.W. Green and Glen Earl Martin, both of Houston, also were convicted in Denson's death. Green is on death row. Martin is serving a life prison term.

The three were accused of breaking into Denson's home and stealing $6,000 worth of guns. Denson was a Montgomery County juvenile probation officer.

Starvaggi, who has been on death row since 1978, would be the 26th Texas inmate put to death by injection since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982 and the sixth this year. He is among at least 16 Texas death row prisoners with pending execution dates.

State's housing bond money in West Indies bank account

AUSTIN (AP) — A Fort Worth bank will be held responsible for $2.8 million in bond money that was put into an uninsured West Indies bank account, the state attorney general's office says.

The state will "seriously consider a lawsuit" against Texas American Bank, trustee for the Texas Housing Agency, unless the money is returned "real soon," Assistant Attorney General Lou McCreary said Tuesday.

"We are requesting that they (Texas American) go ahead and credit us for $2.8 million," McCreary said. "Then we'll help them try to get their money back."

The money is part of $21 million in bond funds that Texas American put into a checking account maintained by Equity Continental Bank Ltd. at Fidelity Bank in San Antonio.

Equity Continental is registered in the British West Indies island of Montserrat and is not protected by federal deposit insurance.

About $18.2 million of the bond money has been recovered by Texas American, the Austin American-Statesman has reported. Of the $2.8 million that is missing, $1.8 million was used for an Indiana apartment construction loan.

Attorney Mark Hill, representing the Fort Worth bank, said part of the remaining bond money could be the subject of dispute.

But McCreary said Texas American should assume responsibility for the missing money, plus $196,500 in agency expenses caused by lack of access to the funds, because the bank did not properly carry out its job as trustee.

Under its agreement with the agency, the bank is supposed to invest agency money only in insured, fully collateralized accounts, McCreary said.

Not only is Equity Continental uninsured, he said, but Texas American only got $8.4 million in collateral for certificates of deposit issued by the bank.

McCreary also said agency investment officer Edena Grays told Texas American to buy CDs from three San Antonio banks — Fidelity, Frost National Bank and First Republic Bank — not from Equity Continental.

Hill said Texas American was instructed to buy CDs from Equity Continental as well as the three banks and to send the money to the West Indies bank's account at Fidelity. He also said Texas American received "confirmation" of the collateral for the CDs.

McCreary said Texas American has been the agency's trustee since 1980. He said he knows of no other problems that have arisen in the relationship.

Cocaine worth more than $1 million seized

DALLAS (AP) — Federal drug agents seized more than 11 pounds of cocaine with a street value of $1.1 million and arrested three men in two drug busts, officials said.

Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agent Phil Jordan said the pounds of cocaine was wrapped in bricks similar to those seized by federal agents and Dallas police last month.

Patricio Ojeda, 32, of Dallas was arrested Friday after he allegedly tried to sell the cocaine to undercover agents at a hotel.

In a separate incident Friday, DEA agents arrested 38-year-old Daniel Hernandez of Plano and 25-year-old Rosalio Esparza as they were allegedly delivering about a pound of cocaine.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Communist nations envy free markets

Two communist governments are, to the surprise of nobody, in sad economic shape. Vietnam, which we gave to the communists a decade ago, is finding that capitalism might not be such an evil thing after all. And our own hemisphere's Nicaragua, which we are edging closer to giving to the communists this decade, is whirling in a sea of debt and inflation.

Vietnam's case is the most bizarre — that Asian country is now seeking the wealth of its hundreds of thousands of "boat people" and other exiles. Cash and other material goods these emigrants send back home to relatives are eagerly welcomed. The expatriates are even allowed to visit Vietnam, provided they bring some dollars with them.

Vietnamese officials also are going after foreign investors, having at last concluded that chanting "Ho Ho Ho Chi Minh" doesn't fill hungry bellies. Luu Van Dat, a Hanoi trade official, publicly concedes, "We have had many, many complaints about our bureaucracy, and we must improve." This is an important first step, when a bureaucrat acknowledges something is wrong with bureaucracy.

Dat is actively campaigning for a new investment code that he hopes will convince Westerners that the country is a treasure-house of "abundant products of land and sea."

Nicaragua's woes are similar, but its current dictators whine that the "U.S. war of aggression" is almost totally to blame for its 657 percent inflation rate last year and increasing scarcities of goods like food and fuel. Nicaraguans are now being rationed at 17 gallons of gasoline a month, the price of which shot up 277 percent in June and another 100 percent in one recent week.

Actually, the pesky Contras are responsible for only part of Nicaragua's troubles. Bungling bureaucrats have allowed grain to rot in government warehouses, sugar production has plummeted by more than one-quarter, and cotton production has dipped to nearly one-quarter of what it was in 1977.

Economic problems the Sandinistas blame on America are very similar to problems the Vietnamese communists face today — but it has been 14 years since U.S. combat troops left Vietnamese soil. The Vietnamese cannot blame the "U.S. aggressors." They can blame only their stifling, totalitarian government which has thrown the nation backward by decades. Only now are the communist rulers beginning to look with envy at the greener grass just across their borders.

This is the story of communist governments of every place and time — they promise a Utopia free from "dog-eat-dog" capitalism. But they deliver societies where the dogs aren't even fat enough to eat.

When Americans were still in Vietnam they built a lot of roads — today the best roads in that country are these, even though they are crumbling from age. These roads symbolize a decayed country — a country with almost no place to go and no way to get there. No way except by emulating the foe it vanquished.

Europe hosts working holiday

LONDON — This has been a different trip. Ordinarily a newsman travels abroad with a heavy schedule of interviews and appointments — Salazar in Lisbon, Heath in London, Nakasone in Tokyo, Ian Smith in what used to be Salisbury, Rhodesia. The years have been rewarding years. But lately, in Paris and in London, I have been doing — nothing.

Well, not exactly nothing. With two granddaughters in tow — one 17, the other 11 — one does a great deal. One dutifully returns to the Champs Elysee and the Bois de Boulogne; one rides to the second level of the Eiffel Tower; en famille, we observe a ritual visit to the Tower of London, where the crown jewels are judged to be merely "OK" and the thumbscrews are "grody to the max."

But no interviews. Deliberately, no interviews. This trip offered a chance to see old scenes through young eyes, and it provided an opportunity to talk with total strangers about events that do not shake the earth. By way of example, consider the game of cricket. It mystifies.

The Times thus reported a match between Nottingham and Trent Bridge: "Off a short run and from an open action, Greene's quicker ball is fast. His wickets came through catches, mostly close to the wicket, the batsman unable to smother the lifting ball. At they took a particularly fine catch at second slip to account for Scott. By them Robinson had gone, trying to cut Greene, and the last nine wickets fell for 61 runs."

Meanwhile, Lancashire was beating Warwickshire: "Watkinson alone survived to play an innings and his 56, as he held Lancashire together, along with his haul of eight wickets, was a match-winning performance."

It is enough to make a traveler hungry for something simple, like the bloop single that briefly preserved Paul Molitor's hitting streak for the Brewers.

A few days ago a manic gun collector went berserk in the little market town of Hungerford. Before he ended a rampage by taking his own life, he killed 24 innocent persons. The massacre set off cries for tighter gun controls in England, in exactly the pattern of such bloody episodes in the United States. Great Britain's problems in this regard are less than ours. It is much more difficult to buy a concealable handgun here, but for some inexplicable reason it seems to be possible to purchase automatic rifles. Tory politicians at once promised to introduce legislation to correct the situation. Evidently there is no equivalent here of the National Rifle Association, for the politicians have been denouncing guns fearlessly and demanding voluntary surrender of unlicensed weapons.

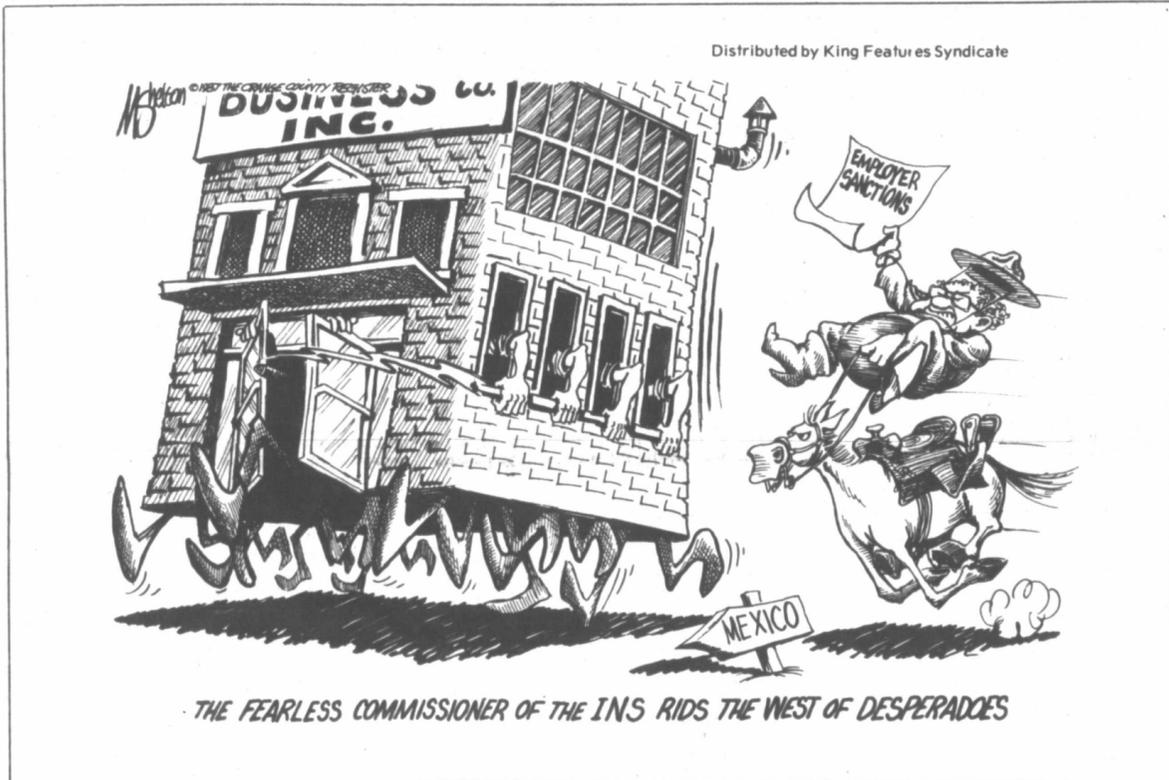

They are having school problems here, too, of the same kind we have at home. A poll conducted for Reader's Digest found intense dissatisfaction with the school system, coupled with an overwhelming demand for restoration of basic learning. Teacher salaries in the United Kingdom are even poorer than ours, and the identical complaint is heard that the best teachers are leaving in order to take better paying jobs in private industry.

The papers are filled with ads for employment opportunities — for secretaries, salespeople, engineers, accountants and computer specialists. The National Miners Union, as usual, is huffing and puffing, but the power once exercised by Britain's leftist unions is a thing of the past. Housing is expensive here, as it is in the States. A newly built house of 2,150 square feet goes for about $152,000. You wonder how on earth a young couple can afford any such home, but we wonder the same thing at home.

For the American tourist, both Paris and London are painfully expensive. The 17-year-old granddaughter, watching her figure, ate modestly, but the 11-year-old ate like a hungry lion. The humblest hamburger costs upward of five bucks, and a Coke in France is $3.50. A nice room at the London Hilton, which certainly is not the city's flossiest hotel, goes for $140 a night.

We have noticed one delightful advance in international relations: The rudeness level has dropped. The insolent French customs official must still exist somewhere — the breed seemed too hardy to have become extinct — but we have not encountered the slightest bit of arrogance or hauteur. On the contrary, even the French taxi drivers were cheerful; the hotel people have been pleasant, and waiters in three different Parisian restaurants listened to my Oklahoma French without visibly flinching. I haven't hit a lick of work for two weeks. It's the nicest trip in years.

THE FEARLESS COMMISSIONER OF THE INS RIDES THE WEST OF DESPERADOES

Costly ordeal sucks away fat

Got some fat you don't want? Last year a hundred thousand Americans had the fat "sucked" out of their bodies with a procedure called liposuction.

Linda Martonik of Vista, Calif., 46, spent $10,000 to have her eyes, stomach, hips, thighs and knees sucked.

Shirley Grimes of Escondido, Calif., 41, had fat sucked out of her upper eyelids, upper hips, outer thighs, stomach, inner thighs and knees.

She says her husband calls her the "$6,000 woman."

Recently the Wall Street Journal surveyed critics of the liposuction procedure and concluded that there is something of a "turf war" going on. Plastic surgeons feel that they alone are properly trained and equipped for liposuction — but everybody's doing it: dermatologists, orthopedists, gynecologists and otolaryngologists.

Liposuction is a money machine, and any doctor can attend a seminar on the subject and start advertising himself as a professional in liposuction.

It can be dangerous. A Baytown, Texas, mother of two wanted to look better in a swimsuit. Three days after the liposuction she died of infection.

There have been at least six other deaths resulting from or related to liposuction. And it is neither as simple nor as painless as it sounds.

A body job may take three hours. The patient is injected with a saltwater solution to make the fat pliable.

Lines are drawn on the body to guide the doctor. Polaroid pictures of the patient are on the wall as a further guide. The patient is under general anesthesia when a blunt steel instrument is inserted into a small incision.

The instrument is attached to a clear plastic tube connected to a vacuum pump.

While the doctor moves the instrument back and forth under the patient's skin, a mixture of fat and blood is sucked out.

With his other hand the doctor is molding the flesh.

Afterward the patient, bruised and swelling, is bound tightly with tape for about a week. Some wear support garments for several weeks more.

Mary Auble of Dublin, Calif., says, "It's a lot more painful than we were told."

Insurance companies do not pay for cosmetic surgery, but costs are coming down as doctors compete.

Long-range effects we can't yet measure. When fat dies it eventually forms calcium deposits. In recycling fat from one part of the body to another we may be inviting problems we don't yet know about.

But television has placed such a premium on the slender, shapely feminine form that the cost, the pain and the risk are an acceptable price in the name of vanity.

Kindly kooks deliver tidings of harmony

By Sarah Overstreet

Harmonic convergence weekend — the dawning of a new age — has come and gone, and I enjoyed it.

No, I wasn't one of the network of believers who gathered at various "sacred" locales around the world to usher in the "New Age." I don't even know what the "New Age" is, although I like the magazine. It may be the same new age the Fifth Dimension sang about what seems like a lifetime ago, but I'm not sure. I sold the album in a yard sale in 1979.

I don't know much more about it now. With all due respect to the tens of thousands of people who believe one weekend in August signaled the beginning of a 25-year "transition period" that will culminate in a bunch of us talking to folks from outer space, I just don't believe it. Or rather, I'll believe it when I see it. It's the same quality that made me the scourge of my Methodist Youth Fellowship Bible study class.

But I did enjoy the celebration and the hoopla. The festivities started for me about a month ago with a diatribe on a right-wing radio program (my co-worker's choice on a trip to an assignment in a news car) delivered in a monotone by a woman who sounded like she'd spent the last 16 years in the "occult" section of a library hoping to meet up with Beelzebub and stare him down. She had written a book called "The Danger of the Rainbow" (with a subtitle that said something disparaging about the New Agers). The best I could tell from her harangue, these Aquarians are supposed to scare up some ghosts of dead Mayans and lead a panty raid on Sunday schools all over the nation.

Then there were the New Agers themselves, offering themselves as "channels" for psychic messages from the ancients. Now, don't get me wrong. If one of them comes up with a message that says something of relevance to me personally, I'll be the first one to eat crow. Perhaps this bespeaks nothing more than inferior intelligence on my part, but I just can't get much meat out of obscure prophecies and references to even more obscure prophecies made thousands of years ago.

As I said, I'm just waiting to take a look before I buy.

My favorite harmonic convergence story was in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch the Monday after the Saturday kickoff celebration. The writer said believers were convinced that the Mexican god of death and destruction would rise up that very day in the state of Oaxaca, Mexico, and reveal his true identity — that of his opposer, the Mexican fiery serpent god.

(I've been scouring the papers ever since. No mention of the rising up of the Death and Destruction Duo.)

But on one issue I can't fault the New Agers: They believe that if they all focus their thoughts on harmony and caring for one another, it will tip the scales of the world toward harmony and peace. So what can it hurt to try? There are lots worse ways to spend a Saturday. At the lake, drunk behind the wheel of a speedboat, for instance. Or shopping for Reeboks.

If a group of people want to work on thinking good thoughts about each other and the planet they live on, then God bless 'em. When they're doing that, they're not going to be going around shooting each other on freeways.

Verity expected to be confirmed as Commerce secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — C. William Verity, President Reagan's choice for Commerce secretary, appears headed toward easy Senate confirmation, despite criticism from a few conservative groups and some environmentalists.

Conservative organizations are unhappy about Verity's outspoken advocacy of expanded trade with the Soviet Union. Environmentalists want the Senate to focus on Verity's role in directing a Minnesota mining company, accused in the 1970s of dumping millions of tons of asbestos-laden mining wastes into Lake Superior.

Verity, 70, was named by Reagan last month to succeed the late Malcolm Baldrige, killed in a horse-riding accident while he was practicing for a rodeo.

The Senate Commerce Committee has scheduled a confirmation hearing on Verity for Thursday.

A committee source, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said little organized opposition to Verity has materialized and that the former chairman of Armco Inc., one of the nation's largest steel companies, will win the committee's bipartisan backing.

But Verity will be questioned closely on his views on trade and on the Soviet Union and on his previous political activities, the committee aide said.

He also will be asked to elaborate on a 1979 comment that the United States bowed to Jewish political pressure in linking emigration to trade, the congressional official said.

Thus far, not a single member of the committee has voiced opposition to Verity's nomination.

Still, a coalition of some conservative organizations urged the Senate on Tuesday to reject Verity's nomination.

"It is clear that Verity's chief mission as the new Commerce chief would be to revive economic detente with the Soviet Union," said Anthony Harrigan, president of the U.S. Business and Industrial Council.

Verity, who as Commerce secretary would enforce trade controls on exports of sensitive material to the Soviet bloc, in the past has criticized those controls as overly restrictive.

From 1979 to 1984 Verity was co-chairman of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council, an organization of U.S. and Soviet business executives seeking expanded East-West commerce.

Other conservative groups opposing Verity include the College Republican National Committee, the Conservative Caucus, Coalitions for America, Free the Eagle and the Center for Russian and East European Jewry, organizers said.

Verity also is expected to be questioned by the Senate panel on his role in litigation in the 1970s that ultimately resulted in a ban on further dumping of mining wastes into Lake Superior by the Reserve Mining Co., a jointly owned affiliate of Armco and Republic Steel Corp. in Silver Bay, Minn.

Some environmental activists have accused Verity of using his access to government leaders to delay implementation of court orders in the Reserve Mining and other pollution cases.

"He had the responsibility and authority to stop the dumping. But Reserve refused to get out of the lake," said Verna Mize, an environmentalist who organized grass-roots opposition in northern Michigan to the Reserve Mining activities.

She contended there had not been enough time to mount an organized campaign to rally major environmental groups in opposition to the nomination.

The Reserve Mining litigation came at a time when Armco was making illegal corporate political contributions and paying millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials. Armco admitted the payments in filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Workmen completing altars, security checked for Pope

By The Associated Press

Carpenters pounded nails into place on outdoor altars, security teams welded down manhole covers and church officials scrambled to meet budgets today as cities from coast to coast prepared for the pope's second U.S. tour.

In Miami, the first of nine cities John Paul II will visit in 10 days beginning Thursday, Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy set a tone of public celebration Tuesday by blessing a giant rosary hanging from a downtown apartment building. The rosary consisted of 50 Styrofoam beads, each 2 feet by 8 inches, extending 80 feet across the building and hanging over a 12-foot-by-8-foot wooden cross.

From Miami, the pope will fly to Columbia, S.C., then New Orleans; San Antonio, Texas; Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles; Monterey, Calif.; and San Francisco. His final U.S. stop is in Detroit, but before heading back to Rome, he will visit Fort Simpson in Canada's Northwest Territories on Sept. 20.

Most of the stops are in the Sunbelt, where the Hispanic population plays an increasingly vital role among the nation's 53 million Roman Catholics, and where the pope's visit is sure to produce huge crowds.

In Phoenix, for instance, so many people are expected to throng the streets Monday that the U.S. Postal Service said mail delivery might be postponed a day.

Aside from that possible complication, Phoenix Bishop Thomas J. O'Brien said "every 'i' has been dotted and every 't' has been crossed" in the way of preparations.

O'Brien said a special collection would be taken up in churches Sunday in hopes of raising the last $150,000 of the $1.5 million budgeted for the visit.

In San Antonio, the Rev. Larry Stuebgen, chairman of the Texas Papal Visit Committee, said a $2.5 million goal was still $600,000 short, but he remained optimistic.

In each city along his route, the pope, who survived a May 1981 assassination attempt in St. Peter's Square in Rome, will ride in an enclosed, bulletproof car known as the "popemobile." Police, National Guardsmen and Secret Service agents plan to divert rush-hour traffic, weld manholes shut, station sharpshooters on roofs and even make airliners change course.

During his first stop, in Miami, the pope will be protected by 2,000 Dade police officers, 1,000 Miami officers, 2,400 National Guardsmen, 900 state troopers, scores of Secret Service agents and a contingent from the Vatican's own Swiss Guard.

A tangle of twins

Teachers at Longfellow Elementary School in Portland, Maine, are likely to be doing a series of double takes when they see five sets of twins in their building. The twins, who make up six percent of the 160 kindergartners in the school, include, front row from left, Ely and Amos La-Blanc-Simpson and Adrienne and Carrie Lock; back row from left, Monica and Jessica Wetherington, Eric and Scott Wespi and Lacey and Jeffrey Smith.

Ortega's trip may help Contras in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are delighted by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's planned trip to Moscow, believing it will give a boost to the White House's troubled campaign to aid the Contra rebels.

"Whoever is planning Danny Ortega's schedule is obviously on our side," one White House official said Tuesday. "We love it."

"It's hard to believe he would do it," said another official, who like the first, spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Publicly, the administration declined comment about the trip.

Two years ago, Ortega made his first official visit to Moscow, after the Democratic-controlled House had voted down an aid package for the Contras. Angered by Ortega's trip, the House quickly reversed itself and approved Contra funds.

Hoping Ortega's plan will have the same impact again, the administration adopted a low-key stand about the announcement that the Nicaraguan leader will be in Moscow to celebrate the Russian Revolution on Nov. 7, the day a newly signed Central American peace plan is to go into effect.

The only comment from presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was to question whether Ortega was "visiting the homeland."

The Washington Times today quoted White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker as saying it was "as bad a political maneuver as Ortega could think up."

State Department spokesman Charles Redman noted that the Soviet Union and Nicaragua have been close friends since the start of the Sandinista revolution.

President Reagan, in a speech, said the United States should resolve to help the Contras if the new peace accord fails to produce democracy in Nicaragua.

"Let's be clear about one thing," Reagan said. "We will not abandon our friends in Nicaragua. We share their desire for peace, prosperity and democracy."

The president said "if the recent peace agreement does not work, let's resolve that they will be able to count on our continuing assistance until Nicaragua is a genuine democracy."

Speaking in the East Room to political appointees in his administration, Reagan acknowledged said "the real issue is peace and democracy in Central America and the national security of the United States."

To have democracy, he said, the Nicaraguan government must declare an immediate cease-fire and a general amnesty, accompanied by "the negotiated release of the thousands of political prisoners now held in Sandinista jails, a firm date for free, contested and internationally supervised national elections and the immediate recognition of fundamental human rights."

The best the Contras can hope for over the short term is for humanitarian aid, the officials said.

Prime year for U.S. cotton may mean $1 billion savings

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP) — As cotton planters begin harvesting in this Delta county and around the nation, farm officials are predicting that higher market prices will save the U.S. government $1 billion in subsidies.

"The outlays will probably be a billion dollars less this year than last year," said Dean Ethridge, director of economic services for the Memphis, Tenn.-based National Cotton Council. "The difference is that the farmer will be getting the money from the market and not the U.S. government."

In 1986, market prices for cotton dipped to an average of 53.8 cents per pound, the lowest price since 1975. But Ethridge said the federal government gave growers $1.8 billion in subsidies to make up the difference between the market price and a target price of 81 cents per pound.

Since January, the market price has risen from 57.2 cents to 73.1 cents, while this year's fe-al target price has been lowered to 79.4 cents.

Ethridge said demand for cotton remains strong because poor weather has prevented a bumper crop in China, the world's leading producer. Another major producer, India, has indicated it may import cotton because of poor harvests.

He said the falling dollar also has strengthened demand for U.S. cotton.

The combination of factors brought a smile to L.A. Gray, manager of Leco Gin Co., a busy cotton gin near here in an area that boasts some of the nation's richest fields.

"I'm looking for the biggest year I've ever had," said Gray, who started ginning at the 45-year-old plant Friday. Screened cotton trailers already are lined up outside the plant, and Gray is hoping for a long season.

Mississippi, ranked third nationally in cotton production after Texas and California.

Bork's honesty questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A retired federal judge says Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork once tried to shift the decision of a judicial panel that both men served on to reflect Bork's own, differing viewpoint, according to a published report today.

The Washington Post said the criticism of Bork's "basic honesty" came in a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee from retired U.S. District Judge James F. Gordon about a 1983 case.

Bork served with Gordon and the late Judge Roger Robb on a three-judge federal appeals court panel that heard a lawsuit by Republicans challenging their committee assignments in the Democratic-controlled House.

In writing the panel's decision, Bork tried to sidestep an agreement among the three judges and replace the majority view with his own opinions, wrote Gordon.

Gordon said the judges agreed to rule on narrow grounds that the court should not interfere in the dispute, but that Bork produced a draft majority opinion saying the lawmakers had no standing to sue.

Gordon said he was "shocked to say the least" when he discovered that Bork was trying to shift the decision to reflect his own views. Gordon said he objected and eventually ended up writing the majority decision, with Bork filing a concurring opinion.

National guardsmen carry a body found in the wreckage of a car on a winding mountain road in central Venezuela.

Thousands evacuated from stricken areas; crews dig for bodies

MARACAY, Venezuela (AP)—Rescue crews today dug for bodies along a three-mile stretch of mountain road where a torrent of mud swept away hundreds of cars. At least 200 people were reported dead in the mudslide and floods.

More than 250 people were missing, 1,000 were injured and 20,000 left homeless following heavy rains Sunday that left a trail of destruction from the Ocumare resort on Venezuela's northern coast to the city of Maracay, 20 miles south.

No official casualty figures were released and officials said a thorough search for bodies could take weeks.

Soldiers, civil defense units and volunteers today turned to digging out bodies near the mountain road that links Ocumare and Maracay. On Tuesday, they evacuated more than 1,000 survivors along the two-lane highway. "It is a very ugly disaster. There must be plenty of dead still up there," said Col. Hector Vargas, a member of the army rescue team, pointing toward the mountain road.

The highway had been jammed with families returning from beach outings Sunday when tons of mud, boulders and uprooted trees swept down the mountain, knocking hundreds of cars off the road and burying scores of them.

A civil defense official said: "I can't give you official figures because we don't know ourselves. But if you say around 150 cars buried and at least 200 people killed, I don't think you can go wrong, according to what we're seeing now."

More than 100 bodies were in the Maracay morgue, most retrieved from the city of 500,000, whose northern neighborhoods were inundated by the Limon River. The river also destroyed seven villages north of Maracay.

More than 7 inches of rain had drenched the normally dry area Sunday in less than six hours. The Limon's rise was four times greater than normal for the rainy season.

President Jaime Lusinchi toured most of the disaster areas Tuesday and ordered an immediate relief effort.

Mudslides destroyed five bridges on the highway.

Rescuers on Tuesday evacuated many of Ocumare's 5,000 residents and hundreds of vacationers cut off in the resort. Bananas, beans and bottled water were sent to the area by helicopter.

Luis Mora, a survivor of the highway mudslide, said a crowded bus was swept over the road edge as people tried to squirm through its windows, and a woman he was trying to save was torn from his grasp.

Mora said his aunt and cousin lived in Maracay's destroyed El Limon neighborhood.

"I know all the houses disappeared, but I haven't even gone to search for my people," he said. "I don't want to know. I don't want to know yet."

Auto industry resuming operations

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The country's second-largest automaker today resumed operations under police protection at its main assembly plant, which was shut down for two weeks by a violent strike.

About 900 riot police in green combat uniforms and black helmets guarded the main gate at Daewoo Motor Co.'s main plant at Pupyong, near Seoul, as thousands of workers returned to their jobs. No violence was reported.

However, police arrested 15 returning workers suspected of leading demonstrations during the strike, officials said.

With the reopening, South Korea's strike-hit auto industry was nearly back at full operating strength.

In other industries, too, there were signs today that the nationwide labor unrest that began two months ago was easing. Hundreds of strikes and sit-ins broke out after President Chun Doo-hwan agreed to democratic reforms, including greater labor freedom.

Iraq resumes air raids against Iran

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP)—Iraq resumed air raids on Iranian cities today and Iran promised swift retaliation as the Persian Gulf war heated up prior to U.N. chief Javier Perez de Cuellar's peace mission to the region.

Iran claimed it shot down three Iraqi jet fighters, and Baghdad announced attacks on shipping off Iran in combat that ended a brief lull in the 3½-year-old "tanker war."

The resumption of attacks surprised diplomats in the gulf, who had predicted Iraq would refrain from raids while Perez de Cuellar, secretary-general of the United Nations, visited the combatant nations in an effort to end the 7-year-old war. The U.N. official is due to leave New York for Tehran on Thursday.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said Iraqi warplanes hit six cities, and that the attack on Bakhtaran in northwestern Iran killed at least five people and wounded 25.

There was also no immediate Iraqi comment on the raids reported by Iran.

Baghdad's official news agency announced Tuesday night that its jet fighters hit two "large naval targets," meaning tankers, off Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. They were the first announced attacks since Saturday.

IRNA reported two Iraqi jets shot down today, one over the central Iranian city of Arak and the other over Doroud, in Lorestan province, which borders Iraq. The agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Iraqi jets also bombed the city of Dezful in the adjacent Khuzestan province.

Iran earlier today claimed its naval forces shot down an attacking Iraqi jet Tuesday night in the southern part of the gulf, but Iraq denied the report.

IRNA said two civilians were wounded in the air raid on Arak. A raid on Arak, 220 miles from the Iran-Iraq border, would be one of Iraq's deepest penetrations into Iran since Baghdad escalated its air raids against its enemy's industrial targets last month.

There was no immediate report of casualties from Doroud and Dezful.

The reports of an Iraqi ship attack, which were not confirmed, raised fears that Iran might resume retaliatory raids on vessels in the oil shipping lanes.

The warring nations have claimed hits on 25 ships since Iraq broke an informal cease-fire on Aug. 29.

Gulf-based marine salvage executives said their tugboats were put on alert today after the reported Iraqi attacks. No distress calls had been heard by midday, they said.

The resolution, which calls for a permanent cease-fire, was passed July 20. During the next six weeks, Iraq refrained from attacks, prompting Iran to do the same. Iran has said it will discuss the cease-fire resolution, but has not agreed to it.

Iraq strikes at ships carrying Iranian oil to hurt its enemy economically. Iran strikes at other shipping, saying if the gulf is not safe for its vessels it will not be safe for anyone's ships.

Twenty percent of the non-communist world's oil passes through the gulf.

The Reagan administration agreed to reflag 11 Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from attacks by Iran, which accuses Kuwait of aiding Iraq.

Two of the reflagged tankers finished loading at Kuwait's offshore oil terminal Monday. They are expected to leave the gulf with their U.S. Navy escorts within days.

Denmark's premier resigns, cites coalition crisis

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—Prime Minister Poul Schluter resigned today after his center-right minority coalition suffered an unexpected election setback.

Schluter, 58, who lost his working majority in Parliament in Tuesday's voting, handed his resignation to Queen Margrethe II at Amalienborg Palace following a meeting with opposition leaders and his partners in the four-party coalition.

"I have informed Her Majesty the Queen that I am handing in my resignation," Schluter told reporters.

The resignation signaled a political crisis calling for the involvement of the queen, who must now consult the nine parties in Parliament to resolve the deadlock.

In the voting, Schluter's conservative alliance won 70 seats in the 179-seat legislature, a loss of seven. The coalition is composed of the Conservative Party; Liberal Party, Center Democrats and Christian People's Party.

The Social Democrats, Denmark's largest party, and the allied Socialist People's Party together picked up four seats.

Easy and fun-to-fix Strawberry Banana Creme Pops will end the search for kid-pleasing after-school snacks.

After-school fuel gives kids a boost

After school, refrigerators undergo top-to-bottom inspection by youngsters searching for snacks. Between-meal snacks are an important part of children's daily food intake. Their smaller stomachs need frequent refueling, and kids need an energy boost from after-school fuel.

This fall, fill the refrigerator and freezer with wholesome, sure-to-please homemade snack treats that won't spoil mealtime appetites.

Two satisfying, kid-pleasing yogurt-based treats that are easy enough for youngsters to make themselves with just a minimum of adult supervision have been developed by the Kraft Kitchens. The key to their steamlined preparation is marshmallow creme, the "secret ingredient" that ensures a pleasantly smooth texture and sweetly complements the tanginess of yogurt.

Strawberry Banana Creme Pops are deliciously smooth, lightly sweet freezer pleasers that youngsters will have fun preparing. Cool fruit smoothies, they feature frozen strawberries and fresh banana in a creamy blend of yogurt and marshmallow creme.

Made in minutes and frozen in disposable paper cups, these sure-to-be-popular pops are as easy to prepare as they are to enjoy.

After-school appetites will also be pleased with Peanut Butter Pudding, a tangy-sweet, creamy blend starring kids' all-time favorite spread. This wholesome snack combines just four ingredients — peanut butter, marshmallow creme, milk and plain yogurt — with the junior cook's choice of chocolate chips or raisins as a garnish.

This smooth and satisfying pudding will keep for two days in the refrigerator, but don't be surprised if it disappears even more quickly.

Spread provides lunch variety

With each weekday's dawning comes the daily dilemma — what to pack for lunch.

The kids, of course, want food that's fun. Dad calls for something substantial; hearty fare to help him through the afternoon. Mom herself, whether she's eating at the kitchen counter between chores or at her desk between meetings, prefers a lighter lunch, low in calories. With those demands, lunch making can consume more time than a morning offers.

Cheddar Snack Spread provides the solution! A creamy, cheesy spread with a bit of tang to the bite, it is a quick blend of four foods often kept on hand — shredded sharp Cheddar mixed with dairy sour cream, sweet pickle relish and finely grated onion. A few basic steps and presto — a number of lunchtime options to brighten the day.

Cater to the kids by spreading a frankfurter bun with butter and chili sauce; add ¼ cup of cheese spread and top with slices of leftover frankfurter. It's fun, filling and nourishing. With it, pack a piece of fruit and several oatmeal cookies.

Dad's deli corned beef gets layered on rye. Top one slice with mustard and corned beef, the other with a heaping portion of Cheddar Snack Spread. Add a few rings of onion for extra snap. And while anything goes with Cheddar, few things go better than a crisp apple or a slice of apple pie.

For mom, lettuce is used as a stand-in for bread. Portion out the spread on leaves of greens and roll up snugly, smugly counting the calories saved.

Office-going brown baggers can pack lettuce leaves and spread separately to keep the greens crisp until noon. Cheddar Snack Spread is a natural with carrot and celery sticks, as well as radishes, cucumber slices and tomato wedges.

As an added bonus, Cheddar Snack Spread freezes well. Sandwiches can be made ahead when time allows and tucked into the freezer as insurance against that hectic morning when making lunch would otherwise make one late.

CHEDDAR SNACK SPREAD

- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (at room temperature)
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- ½ teaspoon finely grated onion

Combine all ingredients in small mixer bowl. Beat until well combined.

Yield: 1½ cups.

mixture; add eggs. Beat with an electric mixer on low speed 30 seconds, scraping sides of bowl constantly. Beat on high speed 3 minutes. Using a spoon, stir in as much remaining flour as you can. On lightly floured surface knead in enough remaining flour to make a stiff dough that is smooth and elastic (8 to 10 minutes). Shape into a ball. Place in lightly greased bowl; turn once to grease surface. Cover and let rise until double (30 to 45 minutes).

Punch dough down. Divide in half. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Shape dough as desired. Let rise until nearly double (about 20 minutes). Bake in a 375-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 24.

Shortcut cloverleaves: Lightly grease 24 muffin cups. Divide each dough half into 12 pieces. Shape each piece into a ball with a smooth top. Place 1 ball in each muffin cup; smooth side up. Using scissors dipped in flour, snip top in half, then snip again to make 4 points.

Butterhorns: Lightly grease baking sheets. On lightly floured surface roll each dough half into 12-inch circle. Brush with melted butter. Cut each circle into 12 wedges. Roll up each wedge from wide end toward point. Place, point down, on baking sheets.

Rosettes: Lightly grease baking sheets. Divide each dough half into 12 pieces. On lightly floured surface roll each piece into a 12-inch rope. Tie in a loose knot, leaving ends long. Tuck top end under roll. Bring bottom end up; tuck into center of roll. Place 2 to 3 inches apart on baking sheets.

Burr Williams, owner of Gone Native, a nursery that specializes in native plants, is a leader in the movement toward xeriscaping, which is landscaping with plants native to an area or more adaptable to a particular soil and climate.

Water-wary Texans begin gardening with native plants

By SAMI HARMAN
The Odessa American

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Xeriscaping. Not many people know what it is, but Burr Williams said he thinks people should take the time to learn.

Xeriscaping is a lot like landscaping. Adapted from the Greek word xeros, meaning dry, xeriscaper refers to landscaping with plants native to an area or more adaptable to a particular soil and climate.

In West Texas, Williams, owner of Gone Native, a nursery that specializes in native plants, is a leader in the movement toward xeriscaping.

A "self-taught" plant man, Williams, 33, calls xeriscaping "not only a way to use plants that are more adaptable out here, but a way of gardening that saves water."

The seven principles of xeriscaping call for planning and design; limited turf areas; efficient irrigation; soil improvements; the use of mulches; lower water demand plants; and appropriate maintenance.

Of the seven principles, saving water through the use of plants with low water requirements is first on Williams' list of priorities. All the plants he uses survive on water similar to natural rainfall amounts.

"There's no plant that needs to be watered more than once a week, except annuals like pansies which need more just until they come up. Nurseries only water once a week."

The key to conserving water and having a green yard, he said, is "deep watering. Turn it on slow and let it seep down."

In addition, mulching around trees and in flower beds is one way to stop evaporation.

Williams said he taught himself about plants by spending time outdoors and with books. He didn't get involved in xeriscaping until he was 24 and worked for a nursery in Midland. "I got tired of selling things that didn't belong out here, things that would die," he said.

He found that around the Southwest there were other people who thought the same way. He knew there were "things that would grow and not take as much water."

Apparently, xeriscaping has caught on. In 1979, $3 million worth of native plants were sold in the western states of Utah, New Mexico, Arizona and Texas. That amount has jumped to $20 million today, Williams said.

"Thanks to the xeriscaping program in Austin," Williams said, "we're (Texas) getting real close to being the leader in selling native plants."

And according to Steve Patton, the Texas Highway Department is the leader in using xeriscaping along its highways.

As the resident landscape architect at the Odessa office of the Department of Highways and Public Transportation on East U.S. 80, Patton uses native plants to landscape highways from Abilene to Del Rio and El Paso.

In his business, Patton, 27, said xeriscaping is "wise water conservation. I have to use it. I don't have a choice. It would be stupid not to use native plants," he said.

The concept of xeriscaping, he said, provides that plants requiring less water are planted in large beds, minimizing the turf (or grass) areas that need more water to survive.

In his planting beds, Patton said he utilizes large boulders to take up space, provide decoration and prevent evaporation of the soil.

Some studies done by xeriscaping proponents, he said, have shown that even swimming pools can be worked into a xeriscaping program. Pools have been shown to be more water efficient than a tree, he said.

A long time ago, Williams said, people would plant cactus and fill in the rest of the yard with gravel if they wanted to conserve water. That practice has since given way to native plants that have "blooms and green leaves and things like that."

Evergreen shrubs, including mountain laurel, evergreen sumac and junipers, are good varieties to use in xeriscaping.

For blooming plants, Williams said he uses "bunches of things that people already use" including ruellia, or Mexican petunias, and turk's cap.

Williams said he often meets tourists from foreign countries who are familiar with native Texas plants. Many plants, he said, "have a national horticulture reputation. Because they grow here, we think they're weeds. But the rest of the world thinks they're beautiful."

Other flowering plants, he said, including orange lantana and Indian blankets with orange and red blooms, are not sold in nurseries much but are passed on from person to person. Purple sage is another example of a colorful native plant often used.

For trees, the native Soapberry tree and desert willow, with its purple blossoms, are most popular, Williams said. In contrast to its cousin the Siberian elm, well-known for disease and a penchant for crawling into sewage pipes, the native Cedar elm is "a lot more pleasant of a tree to be around," Williams said. But "the best pine possible out in this country" he said, is the Mondale pine.

Although several large nurseries, including Lone Star Nursery in San Antonio, provide wholesale native plants to xeriscaping businesses, Williams still grows his own.

"The average nurserymen will sell what people are familiar with," particularly cactus, yuccas and shrubs like purple sage. "Most don't take the time and effort to market them (native plants)."

However, Williams specializes in perennial flowers. At his nursery south of Midland, he grows thousands of plants in trenches and underground greenhouses, techniques he developed.

In the trenches, the wind doesn't dry out the plant's soil as much. In the underground greenhouse, which is equipped with a fiberglass roof, Williams is able to grow plants more economically because the house doesn't need as much heat. It also is cheaper to build "because you only have to build the roof and not the walls," he said.

Williams, in addition to marketing his xeriscaping program as a business, pushes it as a way of conserving water. He is the regional vice president of Texas Native Plant society and a founding member of the Sibley Nature Center in Midland.

Williams and several other West Texas xeriscaping supporters are currently organizing a West Texas Xeriscaping Committee to provide information on the concept.

Although xeriscaping has its proponents, Williams said, the problem of selling people on its benefits cannot be ignored.

"Hopefully, someday, every town will have their own xeriscaping board. Things are looking up, but it's a slow process."

School lunches should be nutritious

Most parents will agree that a healthy, hearty lunch is an important and fun part of every child's school day. But school lunches and bag lunches have different advantages that deserve some attention from parents, according to the Texas Medical Association.

Public school programs in Texas provide one-third of the daily nutritional requirements for children. Each school district's menu planners must follow strict standards when deciding what to serve, including the number of servings from the four basic food groups, as well as the quantity of each serving.

Another plus for school lunches is that certain children are eligible for free or reduced-price meals.

Possibly the only disadvantage of the school lunch program is that your child may not always like what is being served and consequently may not eat well. TMA suggests following the school lunch menu and packing a lunch for your child on those days.

When packing a lunch, remember that children have different nutritional and caloric (energy) needs than adults.

TMA offers these tips for parents:

- In general, children need more nutrients and calories than adults because they are very active and have rapid growth "spurts."
- Iron tons the list of nutrient needs during early childhood and adolescence. Iron is necessary for the formation of red blood cells and other functions and is especially important for adolescent girls.

- Protein is necessary for bone and cell growth, and calcium is vital for building strong bones and teeth.

- Use the four basic food groups — meat, milk and cheese, fruit and vegetables, and bread — to plan lunches. Include a wide variety from each group to ensure that your child gets a balance and enough of the essential nutrients.
- Finally, remember that a child's eating habits often stay with him or her to adulthood.

Night out leads to blackmail

DEAR ABBY: My husband travels for his business about three or four days a month. We've been married for four years, and I really do love him. One of my friends (she's divorced) invited me to her place for a party, and she had a lot of unattached guys and girls there. Anyway, I got very drunk and went to bed with a guy I had never seen before. I couldn't believe it until he showed me the evidence; he had some guy take pictures of us "in the act."

Now I am being blackmailed. The guy I went to bed with is a big coke user and he is hitting me up for money. I don't have a whole lot, but I'm not about to help him support his habit. I've given him $100 twice, then $50 another time, with a promise to give him more when I get it.

What should I do? If my husband finds out about this, it will be the end of our marriage. He's such a sweet, trusting man. I am not a tramp. I know this is blackmail, but I can't go to the police. Help me, please!

IN A MESS

DEAR IN: You must go straight to the police and short-circuit this blackmailer, then tell your husband exactly what happened. It won't be easy, but it's the most intelligent way to resolve this mess. (Did it ever occur to you that you were set up? I think you were.)

***

DEAR ABBY: My very good friend "Wanda" is also my neighbor. Our children grew up together. Wanda's son got married about five months ago. Wanda didn't care very much for the girl. She didn't think she was good enough for her son, but now that they are married, she's trying to accept it.

My wedding gift to this couple was selected with much care, and because I am so close to the family I spent more than I usually do for a wedding gift.

I have not had any kind of thank-you for my gift. Wanda would flip if she knew her daughter-in-law had not written her thank you notes. (At least, I didn't get one.)

Should I tell Wanda I haven't received a thank-you note yet? If it were my son, I would want to know. Maybe the note got lost in the mail. What should I do?

NOT THANKED

DEAR NOT: For heaven's sake, don't tell Wanda. Why give her further reason to dislike a daughter-in-law she's already having trouble accepting? If you believe the note could have been lost in the mail — or was misaddressed — get in touch with the couple. And don't "blame" the bride. A wedding gift is intended for both husband and wife, and the responsibility for acknowledging wedding gifts is now frequently shared.

***

DEAR ABBY: "Missing Calls" complained because people would hang up instead of leaving a message on the answering machine provided for that purpose.

You said, "Don't sweat it — they'll call back."

You're so right. And when they do call back, it's with scoldings: "I've been calling you for days — you're the hardest person to get hold of!" They also ask nosy questions such as: "Where have you been?" And, "How long does it take you to get home from work, anyhow?" Some tell outright lies: "I let the phone ring 20 times!"

Please tell "Missing Calls" she ain't missing much.

Teen-age mom views future with optimism

By SUZANNE BOYLE
Belleville News-Democrat

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Tina Depper gave her 26-month-old daughter, Jessie, a hug and a kiss, then sat her on the floor, a bottle of apple-apricot juice clutched between very small hands.

"After I had Jessie, I guess I grew up a little ... You play, you pay," said Tina, 17. At the time she became pregnant, she had never really dated. Her boyfriend was 13.

"I was only 14. I thought, 'I'll never get pregnant,'" she said, looking back on her attitude toward her first sexual encounter.

Tina lives with her parents, Bob and Georgianna Depper, in a mobile home south of Belleville.

"She made a mistake, but you hate to call it a mistake when you look at Jessie," said Tina's mother.

"We're proud of the way she's handling things," she said. "She's done a good job" as a mother.

Betty Eugea, a caseworker for the Children's Home and Aid Society of Illinois, says Tina has come a long way in a short time. She credits part of that success to the moral support from Tina's family.

"Not all parents react that way," Eugea said. Some want nothing to do with their daughters if they become pregnant, "as if it's some reflection on them."

Tina learned about the society through the Pregnancy Care Center in Belleville and the state Women Infant Care program.

Eugea visits Tina and her family about twice a month, playing a variety of roles. "We have her hooked up to various agencies that can help her, and we do individual and family counseling," she said.

When the Deppers' home burned last year, it was the society that found Jessie a playpen and told Tina where she could get donated clothes and other things for the baby.

Eugea also drives Tina and Jessie to St. Louis to see doctors at Cardinal Glennon Hospital. The baby has only one kidney and is not maturing at a normal rate physically or mentally, Tina said.

She does not hide the fact that she and her daughter are on public aid. But she doesn't like it.

"I get $241 a month," she said. "I give my parents $200 for food, clothes, gas, rent. I keep the $41 for myself ... I want to get off of it as soon as possible, but I'll have to keep Jessie (on public aid) because of the medical bills."

She says she receives no financial help from the father. They had talked about getting married but broke up last year. She began seeing someone else, but stopped when she felt he wasn't mature enough to handle his own problems. "I'm raising a baby. I don't need to raise somebody else, too," she said.

Eugea sees both of those actions as a step in the right direction. Part of the society's role is to educate teen-agers, who may feel overwhelmed by their responsibility at such a young age, she said.

The society also tries to advance Tina's mind and her outlook on life.

"We have teen groups for the girls," Eugea said. "Part of the problem is isolation. These groups really help. They realize they're not the only ones" who are teen mothers.

"We encourage them to stay in school, to set goals, to be realistic ... Maybe one of the problems is that sometimes they're content to be on (public) aid. They're not dreaming. The discouragement may get to them. We try to let them see they have choices."

Tina now has a car, which needs repairs before it will work, and no driver's license. But that hasn't stopped her from making decisions.

"I'm going to apply for a ... license and then I want to try and get my GED (General Education Development degree) — and then a job," she said. "I've got to think about these things."

Mexican holiday planned

A celebration of Mexico's day of independence from Spain will be sponsored by El Centro de Perryton.

The independence day is Sept. 16; the celebration will be held at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11 at the EXPO Center. A queen will be crowned, followed by a grand ball.

Los Atlanticos will provide music. Prizes will be given to the best male and female Mexican costumes.

Entry fee is $5 per person. Children under 15 will be admitted free of charge.

"This is an important celebration for people of Mexican heritage," according to an El Centro spokesman.

Mexico decided to try her own hand at independence after the United States succeeded in proclaiming its independence from England. Initiated by the Cry of Dolores, a pronouncement issued by a priest in the little township of Dolores, the rebellion was sparked by the Mexican people, not by the leaders of the political and economic hierarchy.

The war for independence lasted some 20 years before the Mexican people were victorious. They have since endured other difficulties, including a period of French rule under the emperor Maximilian.

Giants fight off Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — The San Francisco Giants had their biggest game of the year Tuesday night. Now it's the Houston Astros' turn.

The Giants fought off the Astros' seventh-inning comeback try for a 6-4 victory on Mike Aldrete's two-run double with two out in the ninth inning, extending their National League Western Division lead to 5 1/2 games over the Astros.

"If we lose tomorrow night (Wednesday) the Giants pretty much have to collapse and with their pitching staff, you can't expect them to do that," Astros second baseman Bill Doran said.

The Giants, coming off a 4-2 loss to the Astros on Monday night, felt they had to beat the Astros Tuesday to quell their momentum.

"They've got to play .800 ball and we've got to fall flat on our face to lose it," Giants Manager Roger Craig said. "If we had lost tonight it would give them momentum for tomorrow (Wednesday) and the rest of the season."

San Francisco took a 4-0 lead into the seventh inning on a two-run homer by Kevin Mitchell, a sacrifice fly by Candy Maldonado and a throwing error by Astros catcher Alan Ashby.

But the Astros bolted into a 4-4 tie in the seventh with a two-run double by Bill Doran, a single by Gerald Young and Ashby's single.

San Francisco starter Mike Krukow had a three-hit shut out until the seventh.

Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova wins Tuesday's only match.

Weather washes out U.S. Open

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Helena Sukova spent nearly 4 1/2 hours reading magazines, nibbling at fruit and watching television. She also played some tennis — when the rain held off long enough to permit it.

And the sixth seed became the only winner Tuesday at the U.S. Open with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over No. 9 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany.

The Sukova-Kohde-Kilsch match was the only one completed as the poor weather wrecked the Open schedule. Other seeded players who got onto the court included Sweden's Stefan Edberg and Mats Wilander, the No. 2 and No. 3 seeds, respectively.

Edberg led countryman Jonas Svensson 6-2, 5-5 when the fourth-round match was postponed. Wilander was beating Ken Flach 6-3, 6-3 when their match was halted.

Those matches were to resume today. Also scheduled were fourth-round men's matches between No. 5 Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia and Mark Woodforde of Australia, and Andrei Chesnokov of the Soviet Union against Ramesh Krishnan of India.

A pair of men's quarterfinal matchups featured No. 6 Jimmy Connors meeting No. 13 Brad Gilbert, and, at night, top-seeded Ivan Lendl against

No. 8 John McEnroe.

The other three women's quarterfinals were scheduled for today. Second-seeded Martina Navratilova faced No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, with the winner headed for a semifinal showdown with Sukova. Top-seeded Steffi Graf of West Germany played No. 5 Pam Shriver, and No. 3 Chris Evert took on No. 11 Lori McNeil.

Sukova, who lost in last year's final to Navratilova, was anxious to get in her match with Kohde-Kilsch, an upset winner over No. 4 Hana Mandlikova on Monday.

"I think when you start a match and can finish it the same day, it is better to finish it," she said. "Can you imagine how we would sleep tonight if we didn't finish the match?"

Sukova came to the Open in a slump. After surprising Navratilova in the finals of the Eastbourne grass court tournament that serves as a Wimbledon warmup, she lost to Pam Shriver in the quarterfinals at Wimbledon.

"Wimbledon was very disappointing, it is impossible to describe how it feels," Sukova said. "I felt I should have beaten Pam. A win could have helped me more than it didn't help me by losing to her."

She wasn't thrilled with the state of her game earlier in this tournament.

AHS spikers hold off Pampa girls

AMARILLO — Pampa gave Amarillo High a hard-fought battle before losing 12-15, 15-13 and 8-15, in high school volleyball action Tuesday night.

Had it not been for some erratic serves in the third game, the Lady Harvesters could have come away with a victory.

"We played very well overall," said Pampa Coach Mike Lopez. "I said before that we lacked the killer instinct, well, we've got it now."

In the second game, Pampa rallied from a 9-4 deficit behind the serving of Keitha Clark and Jeana Macon. Clark's serves helped put Pampa on top 9-8 and the two teams traded leads until Macon put the Lady Harvesters on top 14-13 on a pair of service points. A kill shot by Tanya Lidy gave Pampa the winning point.

Lopez said Clark played well at both the service end and at the net while Yolanda Brown came through with some important spikes.

"Glyness Brown, and Lisa Lindsey had some good sets for us throughout the match," Lopez said. "All the girls played well."

Pampa enters the Vernon Tournament this weekend before preparing for the District 1-4A opener Sept. 15 at Dumas.

"We played Amarillo High a good game and showed a lot of improvement," Lopez said. "That's a good morale booster for us going into district."

Upshaw announces strike date.

NFL players strike set for Sept. 22

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The upcoming NFL season will be halted after just two games if the league's union and management do not make significant progress in contract negotiations over the next two weeks.

The NFL Players Association on Tuesday set a strike deadline for Sept. 22, one day after the conclusion of the second week of the regular season. Gene Upshaw, executive director of the union, said the walkout date was set to get the Management Council to the bargaining table.

"Management left us no choice but to set a strike date," Upshaw said. "By setting a deadline we hope to get management to talk to us."

The announcement came after a meeting between the union executive board and most of the league's 28 player representatives. Upshaw said the vote to set a strike date was unanimous and it was 24-4 on the Sept. 22 date.

The two sides have met for just 4 1/2 hours since Aug. 14 and the contract expired Aug. 31. Regardless of which side is at fault, if there isn't movement soon toward a settlement there will be a strike, the union said.

"Unless there is significant progress I just can't see us moving the date," NFLPA assistant executive director Mark Murphy said. "Management would have to show they would be willing to negotiate. They haven't so far."

Upshaw, asked if the date could be moved, said, "At this point the date is there, but everything is negotiable."

The current deadline is the same as it was five years ago, when the players struck after the second week of the regular season. The walkout lasted 57 days, eliminating seven games of the 16-game regular season.

The last four negotiations with the union have resulted in strikes, a fact that has not gone unnoticed by Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council.

"The history of this union is to put negotiations in crisis," Donlan said in a prepared statement. "They've never had a negotiation without a strike." The owners are scheduled to meet Thursday in the Chicago area to discuss the progress of the talks with Donlan. Both sides said they hoped negotiations could resume as soon as Friday.

The union, which had set the strike deadline Aug. 31 but kept the date secret until it could poll its player representatives, made the date public one day after management delivered its "proposal for settlement" to the NFLPA.

"It's not a proposal, it's a position, and that position in no way is a framework for settlement," Upshaw said. "It's quite the opposite. What it is, in all honesty, is a $45 million takeback on part of the clubs."

Upshaw has said he plans to talk to Commissioner Pete Rozelle later this week to discuss the negotiations. Upshaw indicated that he would not mind having Rozelle join the talks, but he said the union perceives the commissioner as a representative of management.

Rozelle restated his willingness to join the talks in a telephone news conference Tuesday.

New Pampa coach takes no-nonsense, positive approach

IT'S A SMALL WORLD! The phone rang the final week of December 1986. "I hear the football job is open at Pampa and I want it," said the answer to the trivia quiz: Who is the only football letterman from West Texas State whose name begins with the letter "Z"? "I told him the job wasn't open, yet. I just got a call from a friend who is up in New Mexico skiing and somebody from Pampa told him your coach had been fired," said Mike Zoffuto. I had known Mike for 20 years, knew his background, personality and great coaching record, so I promised to call him when it became open.

Several weeks later the Pampa school board made the move, and I called Mr. Fixit immediately. He was in San Diego attending the NCAA conflag, but would be home the next night and his wife promised to relay the information. However, by that time former state 5A champion Dallas (Richardson) Lake Highlands, down on its football luck, had already called the repairman and Zoffuto was headed for the 12-5A metroplex area school.

And when the smoke had cleared here, the ultimate winner (?) of the PHS post was Dennis Cavalier, showing how small the world can be. Cavalier and Zoffuto were high school teammates over 20 years ago back in Brockway, Pa., where the head coach for 27 years has been Zoffuto's father, Charles. And it doesn't take much visiting with Cavalier or observation of his work habits to detect the elder Zoffuto's training was instilled in both these immigrant Texas coaches.

And that is good news for PHS football fans. Teammate Mike got the Mr. Fix-it label for his willingness to accept happily de-generated schoolboy programs and revitalize them through discipline and hard work. Examples: Great Bend, Kan., from 0-9 to the semis and finals of that state's largest classification; Mt. Pleasant, Tex., from 1-9 to five playoffs and one semifinals; and most recently, 5-5 Red Oak in 1985 to 7-3 last season, the only former 3A school that moved to 4A last season that attained a winning record. Cavalier, as my good friend Mike (a former Marine who earned two purple hearts while serving as a 22-year-old platoon commander in Viet Nam), is a no-nonsense, positive-minded individual. That style has brought success at previous stops in Kansas and Oklahoma high schools. "We will have a disciplined program. I think that discipline is highly sought, and our goal is self-discipline in the end, using athletics to teach it as a lifelong principle, for both boys and girls," he told Kiwanians last week. It will take time and patience. "After studying the films of last year, it is obvious that we won't have nearly as good talent; but I'll promise you we'll have a better team," was his commitment. And after a very difficult scrimmage with Tascosa ten days ago there were some encouraging moments. "We are starting to put some things together. We aren't that far away," his positive demeanor beamed. Pampa fans can only hope he is right. Previous coaches who took the Pampa job as their first high school post in Texas haven't had much success, totally underestimating the strength of Schoolboy Football in the Lone Star State compared to neighboring programs. In fact, the record for those initiates is a combined 22-86-5, thoroughly emphasizing the lack of recognition of the quality game played inside these boundaries, and reflecting similar lack of understanding by some school boards. If things don't go well at the start, Cavalier can call teammate Mike, who lost starting veteran quarterback Dan Dungan to knee surgery just before the season opened, and was beaten by Denton last weekend 14-8.

But if things go well, Cavalier can join the ranks of other Pampa head grid mentors who turned some programs around the first year. Most successful was John Welborn, who took a 2-8 Buddy Williams season and built an 8-2 mark in 1974, a plus-6 gain. Buck Prejean turned an Odus Mitchell 3-6-1 team into 8-2 the next year and Danny Palmer went from 3-7 to 6-4 in his solo 1979 season. Tom Tipps matched that plus-3 turnaround with a 3-7 season before his arrival to 6-4 his first year in 1947. Negatively, but true, an 0-10 season would not be the first in school history.

Some other interesting facts after an analysis of PHS coaching records indicate that when a coach has been moved up to the head spot from an assistant's post (as has been done for 10.7 seasons) a combined 38-69-1 record has been attained. When they come from a small school head post, a 30-41 mark has been built. But when moving from a big school position the experience and understanding of what it takes results in an 83-37-2 composite. Cavalier comes with leadership experience in both sizes, which should be beneficial for everyone.

Before leaving, coaches, here's a happy birthday wish to possibly the oldest living former coach, Alf Landon, celebrating his 100th today. As our halftime guest during a game broadcast at Wichita State about 15 years ago, the one-time presidential candidate told of his experiences coaching Kansas schoolboys, and how he enjoyed the job. As Cavalier is demanding of all athletes who represent PHS, Landon was a "first class act, on and off the field."

Wheeler County battle set

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

"The Battle for Wheeler County" has been fought yearly now since the 1930s.

No one knows for sure who holds the advantage in the all-time series, but it is a football game that both the Wheeler Mustangs and the Shamrock Irish take very seriously.

Friday night, the two teams meet again for the fiftieth—some-odd time and the tradition will continue, according to both coaches.

"It's pretty important to our kids," said Wheeler Coach Preston Smith, whose team has won eight of the last ten contests.

"There's a lot of tradition there (in Wheeler)," Irish coach Buck Buchanan said. "We're trying to make a tradition of our own here. This is the one they look for. It's the talk of the town."

Both teams go into the game almost injury free as compared to a week ago when every team in the area experienced a key injury of some sort.

Back-up Wheeler running back Larry Irwin is out with a broken leg, an injury he experienced early in fall workout two-a-days.

Shamrock's tailback, Donald Bryant is listed as questionable and is still nursing a severely sprained ankle. Bryant suffered the injury prior to last week's win over McLean.

Wheeler is heavily favored in the contest for a number of reasons.

The Mustangs are this week's No. 4 ranked team in The Associated Press 1A Texas Schoolboy Poll. Last week, Wheeler trounced Amarillo Highland Park 35-0.

While the Mustang offense rolled, their defense held Highland Park throughout the game. The Amarillo school, in its first season on the varsity level did not once penetrate the Wheeler 20-yard line and only late in the game did they make it across midfield.

Shamrock, meanwhile, performed well above average in blanking the McLean Tigers 42-0. The final score could have been worse as three touchdowns by quarterback John Terry were called back after penalties.

"I'm sure they'll play tough," Smith said. "They always play us tough. They always play their best game of the year against us."

If anyone doubts Smith's claim of Shamrock's toughness, they only need look back to last year's game when the Irish fell to Wheeler by a slim margin of 17-8.

"I think if we can play mistake-free ball," Buchanan said, "and if we execute both offensively and defensively, we can play with 'em."

"They've got Bubba Smith and Grayson Benson (in the backfield) and they're both quick. Bubba's more powerful and Grayson is just quick. Their quarterback (sophomore Shawn Bradstreet) throws the ball and runs the bootleg real well."

Townpeople are also looking forward to the game and the tradition it carries with it.

"Everybody seems to be excited," Buchanan said. "Everybody's happy and the kids are all fired up. It's the talk of the town."

Groom tries to extend streaks; 'Cats hope to avoid penalties

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

The Groom Tigers are hoping this Friday to extend a couple of impressive streaks while at the same time adding to their four game win streak.

The Tigers have not been scored upon in eleven quarters—since Kress scored 14 points in the first quarter on Halloween '86.

Even more impressive is that Groom has held its opponents to under 100 yards rushing for four consecutive games, dating back to October 24, 1986.

"We pride ourselves on stopping the rush," Tiger Coach Terry Coffee said. "We want them to throw the ball on us."

The Tigers have a good chance to increase both marks as they host Amarillo Highland Park Friday at 8 p.m.

Last week, the Hornets were shut-out 35-0, while only managing 133 rushing yards against the Wheeler Mustangs. The Hornets only made it across midfield once and never penetrated the Mustang 20-yard line.

"They moved the ball on Wheeler pretty good," Coffee said. "I'm sure they'll be able to move the ball on people. We want to establish ourselves on defense early."

On Friday, the Hornets will be playing only their second game ever on the varsity level and one thing Coffee and his Tigers want to avoid is making it into the Highland Park record book.

"I hope we're not underestimating them," he said. "They're the kind of team that might sneak up on somebody and win. I don't want to make history and let us be their first varsity victory."

Canadian head coach Paul Wilson remembers well last season's game against the Sanford-Fritch Eagles.

Had it not been for penalties, the Wildcat record at season's end would have been 7-3 instead of 6-3-1. When the final gun sounded on Sept. 12, 1986, it was Canadian 6, Sanford-Fritch 6.

Canadian had an unbelievable five touchdowns negated because of various infractions.

"We were up and down the field at will," Wilson said. "It seemed like we would drive, score, be penalized and back out we'd come. It was a nightmare."

S-F ended its season at 2-7-1 and very well could have been 2-8 had it not been for the Wildcats' sloppy play.

As for this year's contest, Wilson is again concerned about the threat the Eagles will mount.

"They're very quick and aggressive defensively," Wilson said. "They're going to give us a lot of trouble in the first part of the game. They'll stick you."

"Offensively, I don't think they're as quick but they throw the ball well and are real disciplined." Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. Friday at Wildcat Stadium in Canadian.

An extremely rare Siamese crocodile pokes his head out of a shell after hatching recently at the St. Augustine, Fla., alligator farm. Measuring only 12 inches and weighing 2 ounces, these reptiles are the first offspring

UT students more cautious

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas students and officials say last year's drinking death of a fraternity pledge and stronger penalties in a new anti-hazing law have increased caution about group activities.

While not claiming that problems of hazing and alcohol abuse have been eliminated, many say students have more information about the dangers of those activities, and that the new hazing law will be a deterrent.

"At this point there is a heightened awareness of liabilities as far as penalties go," said Glenn Maloney, an assistant dean of students who works with student organizations.

"I would like to think we've also got students more aware of their responsibilities on moral grounds. I don't think that's the case, but I think they're more concerned legally," he said.

Maloney and Scott Wilder, director of the Interfraternity Council, plan a meeting to discuss the new hazing law and related issues with the presidents and pledge trainers of the 29 fraternities that belong to the council.

Maloney said he hopes the meeting will provide an opportunity for him to listen to concerns of the fraternity leaders and encourage closer cooperation between the university and the student groups on problems such as alcohol abuse.

Wilder said the meeting will be a good way to impress on fraternities the seriousness of the hazing law.

"Once they see it down on paper and see it has very serious penalties, then I think it will be a deterrent," Wilder said.

The new definition of hazing in the law "is really a re-orientation of what fraternities should already know from their national organizations, because they all have policies against hazing, but they need to know the specifics of what's in the law," he said.

Until the Legislature revised the law this year, hazing carried a maximum penalty of a $250 fine and 90 days in jail. Now anyone convicted of hazing will face a minimum penalty of a $500 fine and 90 days in jail.

An incident that results in death would carry a fine of $5,000 to $10,000 and a jail sentence of one to two years. An organization found guilty of hazing will face fines of $5,000 to $10,000, and people who fail to report a hazing incident to authorities also could be prosecuted.

Revision of the law was partly a response to the death last September of Mark Seeberger, a UT freshman who was a Phi Kappa Psi pledge when he died of alcohol poisoning.

A Travis County grand jury declined to indict anyone in the death, but UT officials disciplined several students who were involved in the incident and suspended the fraternity from campus activities for at least four years.

Candidates tout RRC campaigns

AUSTIN (AP) — Former state Rep. Ed Emmett is going to try again to win the Republican nomination for the Railroad Commission — this time for the seat held by Democrat Jim Nugent.

"I'm doing this because I believe that the Texas economy is in critical condition," Emmett said on Tuesday. "The Railroad Commission is one of the few agencies that can truly do something about that."

Emmett lost to Milton Fox and John Thomas Henderson in last year's GOP primary for the commission seat that was won by Democrat John Sharp.

Texas has become unattractive to businesses "simply because our intrastate trucking rates set by the Railroad Commission are so much higher than the interstate rates which are set by free-market competition," Emmett said.

The commission also "has got to be innovative" in regulating the energy industry, he said.

"Natural gas prices have been artificially driven down because the commission has not taken a strong stand to protect the rights of all mineral owners and producers," he charged.

Emmett said Nugent "is still trying to regulate the transportation and energy industries like a good ol' boy spoils system."

Nugent, a commissioner since January 1979, said Emmett's assertions "are hardly worth answering."

But the incumbent added, "I have a question about his competence" because as executive director of the Texas Association to Improve Distribution, Emmett "masterminded" passage of a bill in the Legislature "under the guise of deregulation" that had to be amended in the special session.

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television game show host Bob Barker got a standing ovation on the set of "The Price Is Right" for giving up his dyed brown pompadour and reverting to his natural gray-white shade.

"The women were screaming and whistling and howling. You look gorgeous!" Barker's publicist, Roger Neal, said Tuesday.

"He's going to let the people decide how to wear his hair," Neal said. The television audience will be asked to write in with their choice, he said.

Barker's "new look" debuts Oct. 15 on the popular game show, which was videotaped on Labor Day.

LONDON (AP) — Peter Sellars, the American director whose offbeat staging of plays and operas has excited and enraged critics, makes his British staging debut next month at tony Glyndebourne opera house in the Sussex countryside.

Sellars, 29, will direct the Oct. 5 world premiere of "The Electrification of the Soviet Union," an opera adapted from Boris Pasternak's 1929 novella "A Tale," known in England as "The Last Summer."

Nigel Osborne is the composer. Poet Craig Raine, twice Osborne's previous collaborator, is the librettist.

Sellars is known for controversial stagings of operas like Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" and "Don Giovanni" and such plays as "King Lear" and Sophocles' "Ajax."

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — The son of legendary heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis has interviewed Max Schmeling, the German fighter who had two memorable fights with his father in the 1930s.

Joe Louis Barrow Jr. interviewed Schmeling, 81, for a biography he is writing about his father.

"He (Schmeling) had tears in his eyes when I asked him where he was and what he thought when my father died," Barrow said. Louis died of a heart attack in 1981.

Schmeling was the only German to hold the world heavyweight title. He defeated Louis in a non-title match in 1936 on a 12th round knockout.

In 1938, the 24-year-old Louis, by then world heavyweight champion, knocked out Schmeling in a title match at 2:04 minutes in the first round.

Barrow — Joe Louis' real surname was also Barrow — is a marketing consultant in Denver.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — It was no act when Poland's leading film star overpowered a man who attacked a stewardess and tried to force his way into a jetliner's cockpit during a flight.

Daniel Olbrychski, 42, went into action Saturday on a LOT Polish Airlines flight from Warsaw to Athens when a 25-year-old Greek who was being deported from Poland jumped up and ran toward the cockpit.

"I grabbed him by the legs and felled him, then the other passengers helped me," Olbrychski told the newspaper Kurier Polski. He was flying to Athens to finish a film in which he plays a suspected terrorist.
