Wheeler backs prison plan

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHEELER — Monday's town meeting to gauge support for a local prison lasted less than 20 minutes.

But it was long enough for Wheeler Chamber of Commerce President Dan Kenney to find what he was looking for — an overwhelming "go ahead" on efforts to bring a state prison to the area.

Wheeler is one of several area communities to express an interest in obtaining a state prison after hearing that the Texas Department of Corrections may increase its prison facilities by 3,000 beds over the next two or three years. Despite the interest, there is no confirmation that the state will even build a new prison.

But that didn't deter nearly all the 100 Wheeler residents who attended Monday's town meeting from raising their hands in support of an area prison.

When Kenney asked if anyone opposed an area prison, nobody raised a hand.

That was all the meeting was supposed to do, according to Kenney, who admitted he did not have much information about the prison proposal to offer the community.

The "question and answer" period following the vote featured only one audience member who asked how the area could supply enough water for the prison.

Kenney agreed low water supply was a concern, but he added he did not know how the problem would be solved.

"Why don't you get the water from Oklahoma," one woman remarked. "They took all our water for their lakes."

Julie Culver, a Canadian second-grade teacher and legislative aide to District 88 Rep. Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, handed out a list of state legislators and prison officials whom residents who could write to express their opinions or get more information.

"We really didn't know what to expect,"

Coroner alleges cover-up

INDIO, Calif. (AP) — Liberace's doctors deliberately tried to cover up the entertainer's death from AIDS by reporting that he died from heart failure, the Riverside County coroner said.

"It is my firm belief somebody along the line wanted to pull a fast one on us," Coroner Raymond Carrillo told a news conference Monday. "The original cause of death did not make sense."

Asked if he believed Liberace's doctors knew all along that the showman suffered from AIDS, Carrillo replied: "Yes, sir, I firmly believe that."

Asked if that meant doctors covered up the cause of death, he responded: "That's a moot point. But yes, I believe that."

Dr. Ronald Daniels, a Whittier physician who signed Liberace's death certificate, had reported that the entertainer died of cardiac arrest due to heart failure brought on by subacute encephalopathy, a brain inflammation.

"Encephalopathy does not cause heart disease," Carrillo said.

Daniels' failure to report the correct cause of death will be reported for possible disciplinary action to California's Board of Medical Quality Assurance, he said.

Daniels' receptionist said the doctor is declining comment.

Forest Lawn Memorial Park's similar failure to report Liberace's true cause of death also will be reported to the state board responsible for regulating mortuaries, Carrillo said. A Forest Lawn official said Monday the mortuary acted properly.

The secrecy surrounding Liberace's death contrasted with the relative openness of the 1985 AIDS-related death of actor Rock Hudson, whose publicist freely discussed the ailment after it was revealed in a Hollywood publication. Hudson later said he hoped the notoriety would increase public awareness of the fatal disease.

Miscroscopic tissue analysis showed Liberace died because of cytomegalovirus pneumonia due to human immunodeficiency virus disease, Carrillo said. "In layman's terms, Mr. Liberace

Hoechst extends Celanese offer

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The closing date for the proposed Hoechst-Celanese takeover has again been postponed — this time to Feb. 17 — as Hoechst continues negotiations with the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC voted 4-1 on January 6 to seek a temporary injunction to block Hoechst's $2.72 billion tender offer for Celanese common stock.

The FTC contends the merger between the two chemical companies would hurt competition in the textile polyester fiber industry.

FTC public affairs officer Susan Ticknor said Monday that if Hoechst, the fourth largest maker of polyester in the country, merged with Celanese, the second largest, it would become the country's largest maker of polyester fibers. The largest polyester maker is now DuPont, Ticknor said.

The spokeswoman added that merger's effect on competition in the polyester fiber industry is the FTC's only concern.

Still, that stated concern prompted the FTC to seek the injunction to block the merger.

Joseph Singer, director of corporate public relations for American Hoechst, said Monday that the expiration date for the Hoechst tender offer has been delayed because officials of the parent West German chemical company are trying to reach a

'Hush-hush deal' reportedly buys hostages time

By RIMA SALAMEH
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The kidnapers of three Americans and an Indian are involved in secret negotiations with Israel after putting off plans to kill the four educators at midnight Monday, Beirut radio stations said today.

The Christian-run Voice of Lebanon and the Moslem Voice of the Nation reported that under the proposed deal, Israel would free 400 Arab prisoners in return for the release of the four hostages and of a captured Israeli airman.

The stations said their information that a "hush-hush deal with Israel" was under way came from "reports from Washington and other capitals."

In Israel, however, Israeli officials said today they were not involved in negotiations for the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon, but left the door open for talks about the Israeli aviator.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said no U.S. request was received to bargain for foreign captives and indicated Israel would not act without one.

State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty had no comment in Washington today on the radio reports.

The radio stations said the hostages would be part of a deal to swap the airman, who was captured Oct. 16 when his fighter-bomber was shot down by Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen, for the Arab prisoners.

Chart ranks states' education

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Education William J. Bennett released his annual report card ranking the states today and said it shows the pace of school improvement slowed in 1985-86.

College entrance test scores were unchanged or up slightly, while the high school dropout rate took a very small turn for the worse.

It was the fourth year in a row that the Department of Education has produced a "wall chart" ranking states on college entrance test scores, graduation rates, teacher salaries, class size and other measures.

"This year, after four years of improvement, we have basically held steady," Bennett said. "In 39 of the 50 states (college entrance) test scores improved over the previous year. But the graduation rate has declined slightly. In short, some gain, a little slippage."

Texas ranked 17th among the states in SAT scores, 43rd in its graduation rate, 34th in expenditures per pupil and 21st in teacher salaries.

"We have to do better. Our children deserve better," Bennett said. "We must redouble our efforts if we are to attain our goals."

Since its inception in 1984 under Bennett's predecessor, T.H. Bell, the wall chart has evoked howls of outrage over what some educators have charged was a simplistic and misleading approach to feeding the public appetite for school rankings.

EDUCATION RANKINGS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some of the key figures from the state-by-state school comparisons released today by Secretary of Education William J. Bennett. All figures are for the 1985-86 school year, except the graduation rates and per pupil expenditures, which are for 1984-85.

The figures in parentheses are the state rankings. Twenty-eight states are ranked on the ACT; 21 states and the District of Columbia on the SAT. Washington state was not ranked because fewer than 35 percent of its seniors took either exam.

U.S. NATIONAL AVERAGE

■ ACT score 18.8
■ SAT score 906
■ High school graduation rate 70.6
■ Expenditures per pupil $3,449
■ Pupil-teacher ratio 17.9
■ Teacher salaries $25,313

TEXAS

■ SAT Score 877 (17)
■ Graduation rate 63.2 (43)
■ Expenditures $3,043 (34)

■ Pupil-teacher ratio 17.4 (27)

■ Teacher salaries $25,160 (21)

Bennett's comment:

"Although Texas' SAT score is down one point in the past year, it shows a nine point gain since 1982. Along with the testing of current teachers, Texas also has enacted several other reforms to improve teacher quality, including testing of new teachers, performance-based incentives, and alternative certification. Texas is one of seven states that have provisions to intervene in academically bankrupt districts."

Fire report

The Pampa Fire Department reported no fire runs in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Prison

Kenney said, after the meeting. "We hadn't really approached the public with the prison idea yet."

Kenney said he was pleased with the turnout and the apparent support of the proposal.

"The opinion was positive enough to have us at least get more information," he said. "Our next step is to gather that information."

Kenney said that as chamber members get more information, they may decide not to seek a prison.

Canadian teacher Culver said that with other area communities such as Pampa, Borger and Booker expressing an interest in housing convicted felons, getting a state prison for the Panhandle "would have to be a regional effort."

"There's no way the towns can do this individually," Culver added.

Wheeler Mayor Wanda Herd agreed. "It's a regional issue, not just Wheeler or Wheeler County," Herd said, adding that Shamrock would be a good location for a prison because of its abandoned carbon black plant.

Celanese

compromise with the FTC. Singer added that he does not know how the negotiations are progressing or when or whether compromise can be reached. But Hoechst is doing what it can, he said.

"There is the possibility of a divestiture of some of our assets," Singer said, declining to comment on what assets Hoechst has proposed selling.

He reported that after several weeks of decline, the number of pledged shares of Celanese common stock in the Hoechst depository is again picking up.

He reported that 9.2 million shares (or 83.5 percent) shares of Celanese common stock; 13,952 (or 79 percent) shares of convertible preferred stock and 20,971 (92 percent) of 7 percent second preference stock are now pledged to Hoechst.

Education

FairTest, a Cambridge, Mass., advocacy group often critical of standardized tests, said Bennett's new wall chart should bear the legend, "Warning: Gross misuse of test scores is dangerous to the nation's educational health."

But the wall chart also has forced state superintendents and others to search for ways to give parents, politicians, school personnel and other citizens more feedback on how schools are performing.

Several states have installed their own reporting systems, and the Council of Chief State School Officers is trying to devise a better set of statistics.

Bennett actually issued two wall charts — one comparing the 1984-85 school year with 1985-86, and the other comparing 1981-82 with 1985-86.

The 1981-82 year was chosen as a benchmark because it was the year before a Reagan advisory panel report, "A Nation At Risk," rocked the schools into raising standards.

Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for the class of 1986, as reported last fall, were unchanged at 906. The test is scored on a 400 to 1600 scale. American College Test scores, on a scale of 1 to 35, rose from 18.6 to 18.8.

Only one state, Alaska, saw its college test scores drop from 1982 to 1986.

The public high school graduation rate for 1985 — the latest year available — was 70.6 percent, down from 70.8 percent in 1984. The Education Department said it adjusted each state's figure to take migration into account, but did not include dropouts who obtained high school equivalency diplomas.

The average teacher salary, based on statistics gathered by the National Education Association, was $25,313 for 1985-86, up from $23,595 the year before. The average class size fell to 17.9 pupils per teacher, down from 18.1.

The average expenditure per pupil in 1985 was $3,449, up $276 from 1984.

The average minority enrollment was 29 percent, ranging from a high of 96 percent of pupils in the District of Columbia to only 1 percent in Vermont and Maine. The handicapped enrollment averaged 11 percent, and ranged from 7.3 percent in Hawaii to 16.8 percent in Massachusetts.

Twenty-eight states were ranked on average ACT scores, since more of their students take that test. Twenty-one states and the District of Columbia were ranked on SAT scores. Washington state was not ranked because fewer than 35 percent of its seniors took either test.

Iowa posted the highest average ACT score, followed by Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska, and tied for fifth, Colorado and South Dakota.

The five highest SAT states were, starting at the top, New Hampshire, Oregon, Delaware, Vermont and Connecticut.

The five lowest ACT states, from the bottom, were: Mississippi, Louisiana, West Virginia, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

The five lowest SAT states were: South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, District of Columbia and Indiana.

Wheeler residents attending the meeting tended to agree that a medium security facility housing 500 to 1,000 prisoners would help the economy by employing nearly 300 people and distributing an annual payroll of $2 million.

"I think it will give the economy a shot in the arm," said area resident Loyal Lee.

The Rev. Ricky Pfiel, pastor of the Wheeler Christian Center, sees another boost from an area prison.

"It will bring more people in here for us to minister to," Pfiel said. "People in prisons need to be reached."

Pfiel added that a prison would be a boost to the area economy.

One Wheeler woman, however, had doubts. "What kind of burden would this place on the county," she asked after the meeting. "If something happened within the prison, do you know who would have to pay for attorney fees — Wheeler County?"

Kenney said he had no information on what the county's liability would be.

American Hoechst is a subsidiary of Hoechst AG, a West German chemical conglomerate that owns 475 affiliates in 144 countries.

Similarly, Ticknor would not speculate about what Hoechst must do to change the FTC's decision blocking the merger.

"The possibility always exists that the merger could be approved," Ticknor said. "The FTC will do whatever it takes to reach a compromise."

died of an opportunistic disease caused by acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Cytomegalovirus is a common virus that infects about half of all Americans by the time they reach middle age. It usually produces either cold-like symptoms or no noticeable or serious effects.

But it can be fatal to people whose disease-fighting immune system is weakened by the AIDS virus, which recently was re-named human immunodeficiency cy virus by an international panel on virus names.

Besides fatal pneumonia caused by the cytomegalovirus, Carrillo said other contributing causes of Liberace's death included lung and heart disease and a hardening, or calcification, of a heart valve.

Forest Lawn spokesman Dick Fisher said in Los Angeles that the mortuary had relied on the doctor's death certificate when it embalmed Liberace's body.

"We're not doctors, we're not medical examiners," Fisher said. "That's all we can do."

Carrillo said his office will report the autopsy results to the health department, but doesn't plan to notify any of Liberace's sexual contacts of the autopsy results.

"I don't know if he had relations with anybody or not," he said, adding that he couldn't tell how long Liberace had suffered from AIDS. Sexual contact is one way of transmitting AIDS.

Liberace's New York publicist, Denise Collier, and longtime manager Seymour Heller repeatedly had denied Liberace suffered AIDS.

Collier had said the entertainer suffered pernicious anemia.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, meanwhile, denied today the radio stations' reports that it might be involved in negotiations. Spokeswoman Françoise Derron said in Geneva, "The ICRC is never a negotiator."

Amal militia leader Nabih Berri, whose men hold the captured airman, on Friday proposed an exchange of the Israel and four hostages for the prisoners. It was not clear if Berri was involved in the reported negotiations.

Hostages

The group that kidnapped the three Americans and an Indian, Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine, announced at midnight it was postponing "until further notice" its deadline for killing the hostages because of "certain positive points" in statements by Peres. The group said it wanted the "fastest clarification" of these points.

Peres said Sunday Israel was willing to discuss trading Arab prisoners for the Israeli airman.

The kidnappers demanded the release of "400 Palestinians" held by Israel.

The wives of the four captive educators today expressed gratitude to the kidnappers for extending "until further notice" a deadline to kill their husbands.

"We thank you from the bottom of our hearts for showing compassion toward our beloved husbands," said Firyal Polhill, the Lebanese wife of hostage Robert Polhill of New York City.

She said on behalf of the wives that they "will continue to strive day and night and...continue to

Teachers join forces to ask for pay demand

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas teachers have told legislators they want pay raises ranging from $2,900 to $4,400 in the next two years.

"We are certainly aware of the state financial condition," said a joint statement issued Monday by the four major statewide teachers associations. "There comes a time when priorities must be established and we feel it would be an error of considerable magnitude to not address teacher compensation in this session."

"We'll look at it," said Reggie Bashur, press secretary to Gov. Bill Clements, who did not recommend a teacher's salary increase to legislators last week.

"I would think chances are very slim," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. "There is an all-around shortage of money."

"It would be very difficult for them to get it with the financial burden we have," said Speaker Gib Lewis.

The joint demand was issued Monday by the Texas State Teachers Association, Association of Texas Professional Educators, Texas Classroom Teachers Association and Texas Federation of Teachers.

The associations, which have separate legislative programs, said they were making the joint demand "to keep the Legislature from making the claim that the different teacher organizations do not present a clear message on salaries."

Texas teachers will abandon classroom jobs to seek other occupations if they don't get the raises, the associations said.

The proposal would increase starting salaries from the current minimum of $15,200 to $17,080 for the first year and then to $18,100 for the 1988-89 school year.

The current $26,600 maximum for experienced teachers would increase to $29,380 the first year and to $31,000 the second year.

The appropriation bills being considered by the respective House and Senate committees do not presently contain any teacher pay raise, lawmakers said.

Clements said last week he supported rewarding Texas' best teachers and providing all teachers with an incentive to stay in the classroom, but that the present "career ladder" program established in 1984 was not working.

Clements said he would propose specific legislation concerning the teacher appraisal system after hearing from a task force of teachers, administrators and legislators.

The teachers' groups said their pay demands were based on findings of the Select Committee on Public Education in 1983, which recommended starting salaries of $17,080. The special session of 1984, in House Bill 72, set starting salaries at $15,200.

"Although progress has been made with regard to teacher compensation, we still have a long way to go," the groups said. "Our standing in comparing states had risen when average teacher salaries are considered, but in virtually all other areas of education reform we are striving to be considerably better than average."

"Failure to address teacher compensation in the next biennium will almost certainly result in the loss of more capable professionals and necessitate another 'catch up' pay raise down the line."

Hightower pushes Democrats' farm bill

AUSTIN (AP)—Farm legislation proposed by Democratic congressmen offers a sensible plan to save family farmers while avoiding a sharp increase in consumer costs, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

Hightower said the bill introduced last week by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., would boost farmers' prices for commodities to cover production costs.

But because a farmer's share of the food dollar is so low, "even if General Mills chose to pass on to consumers the full cost of doubling the price it pays to wheat farmers, we are talking about a 1½-cent increase per box of wheats," he said.

In remarks to the Texas Corn Growers Association Monday, Hightower said President Reagan's farm policy has been a disaster.

"It no longer is alarmist to say that America's system of independent, competitive family farms is on the brink of destruction. It is now a fact," he said.

Since Reagan took office, Hightower said, the farm program has "deliberately busted U.S. farm prices" and "put an intolerable debt loan on the backs of our nation's independent producers."

Of the approximately 640,000 full-time, commercial farmers still working nationwide, at least 280,000 are in serious financial trouble and 120,000 of those could be out of business in two years, he said.

Hightower has worked with Democratic lawmakers in Washington on farm policy and was a major author of the farm plank in the party's 1984 presidential platform.

He said that since 1981, more than 500,000 farmers have been forced out of business, but the process wasn't a natural shakeout of bad businessmen.

Hill, fellow justices spar on selections

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court's newest member says Chief Justice John Hill favors the appointment of state judges because Hill wants to run for governor in 1990.

Justice Oscar Mauzy made the comment Monday at a news conference after Hill's "State of the Judiciary" address in which the chief justice said the election of state judges has produced "big-bucks" races and a judicial system that has lost the confidence of many Texans.

"It is unconscionable for a judicial race to cost a million dollars, as is sometimes the case today," Hill said.

Hill is pushing a "merit system" in which all state judges would be appointed, subject to "retention-rejection" elections at which voters could throw them out of office.

The change would require legislative approval of a constitutional amendment that would then face voter review.

The chief justice's plan is opposed by the eight other members of the Supreme Court. Mauzy said Monday that Hill is seeking to become more powerful by pushing a system in which the governor would select judges.

"The reason he did that is because he is interested in running for governor in 1990," Mauzy said.

Hill, a losing candidate for governor in 1978, said, "I have no self-interest to serve in this matter at all. I have no plans to run for any other office, period. I'm addressing a public issue I feel strongly about."

At the post-speech news conference, Justice Franklin Spears said, "In his remarks, particularly with regard to judicial selection, the chief justice speaks for himself and not for the court. And, I might add, for himself only, as eight members of the Supreme Court are on record as opposing the political patronage system of selecting judges."

Spears, an eight-year member of the court, said a chief justice's address to lawmakers had never before drawn public rebuttal comments from other Supreme Court justices.

"It doesn't remove the selection of judges from politics," Spears said of Hill's plan. "It simply removes the voters from the process."

He said some modifications could be made, but none as sweeping as Hill's proposal.

"What we're talking about is keeping it out in the open, not taking it into the back rooms," said Spears who also complained that Hill had not consulted the other justices before delivering the address.

Hill said Spears asked Monday morning for a copy of his speech but that it was unavailable.

"I said to him, 'I'll tell you this. I think you'll like everything in the speech except the part dealing with merit selection,'" Hill said.

Lawmakers have filed several proposed constitutional amendments which, with voter approval, would change the system. In addition to the system backed by Hill, lawmakers will review a proposal to keep judicial elections on the ballot, but make them non-partisan.

At their news conference, Spears, Mauzy and Justice Bill Kilgariin discussed several possible changes they said could make it easier for voters to be informed about judicial candidates. Among the ideas mentioned were:

- Drawing smaller districts for trial courts.
- Electing appellate court judges by single-member districts, instead of the current at-large system.
- Establishing a qualifications system for judges.

Lefors to consider fire code

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

LEFORS - Lefors City Council members have decided to review a possible fire code for the city after the fire marshal suggested the code would aid fire prevention efforts and "protect the city" from possible lawsuits.

Lanny Atchley, a member of the Lefors Volunteer Fire Department serving as city fire marshal, said Tuesday night at the council's regular meeting that the state is urging cities to adopt and update fire codes.

Atchley said an ordinance adopting a fire code would help the fire department and city in implementing and enforcing better fire prevention policies.

He said the state has encouraged cities to adopt and enforce fire codes to serve as a defense in case of lawsuits resulting from fires possibly occurring because fire prevention efforts were not made under city policy.

"People are suing the cities," not the state, Atchley said, "in cases where fire codes don't exist and aren't enforced."

Mayor J.W. Franks said the city has met compliance with insurance requirements and suggested the city might have no need to deal with a code until the insurance firm suggests it, expressing concerns about enforcing an extensive fire code.

Saying not all the code would apply to Lefors since it's not a metropolitan area, Atchley said "mainly what we need it for down here" is for fire inspections of buildings. He noted, for example, there are problems with some buildings keeping doors locked that should be available for fire exits.

But a fire code also would help the fire department in preparing its monthly reports for insurance purposes by showing what guidelines are in use and providing more specific standards, Atchley said.

He said the lack of a fire code hinders implementation of some fire prevention efforts since there's no power of enforcement behind many desired standards.

The council members noted there are already some applicable city ordinances regarding such matters as weed and trash control and suggested

Atchley review them to see if some of them need better enforcement.

At the suggestion of City Attorney Mark Buzzard, the council agreed to table action on a fire code to permit Buzzard to review the recommended state code and to consider it again at the March meeting.

In other matters, the council decided to join the Texas Civil Justice League in efforts to support tort reform to combat increasing costs of settlements in liability cases.

Mayor Franks read a letter to the council in which the Texas Municipal League is encouraging more cities to join the TCJL in support of tort reform. The letter also encourages more people to contact legislators and inform them of concerns about lawsuits creating financial crisis situations for many cities.

Councilman Gene Gee said he felt Lefors should join the TCJL in its efforts for tort reform, noting "the only way for those guys to shut up is for us to stand up" and show support for limiting the climbing costs in legal settlements.

The council also discussed a need to find materials to repair streets that have been washed out by the heavy rains and melting snows of the past several years.

"If we had $100,000, we could get all our roads in shape," Franks said. But the city doesn't have that amount of finances, he noted, adding that the repairs need to be done in some way at feasible costs.

Council members noted that water lines are being exposed on some of the washed out streets, posing problems of freezing water lines.

Franks said he would check to see what materials, such as gravel or caliche, are available at reasonable costs and can be obtained for spreading on the dirt roads of the city.

In other business, the council:

- appointed election judges for the April 4 city elections;
- approved the Lefors Art and Civic Club plan for painting the Lefors Civic Center, with the city providing the paint;
- approved getting estimates for repairs to the civic center's roof to prevent leaks; and
- discussed problems of people still dumping trash at the wrong place at the city landfill.

Exotic dancer aids homeless

EL PASO (AP)—An exotic dancer says she's out to change the way people view the homeless.

The dancer, who says her legal name is Marlina, said that she has contributed money to organizations that shelter or feed street people everywhere she has appeared for the past five years.

She donated $300 Monday to the Rescue Mission of El Paso.

"Street people are looked at as a nuisance," Marlina said. "We forget they are people, struggling people. The only difference between them and us is a job."

By helping out and speaking for street people, Marlina says she hopes to get others to contribute to rescue missions, soup kitchens or other agencies for the homeless.

The woman said the first two times she was in El Paso, she went to the downtown San Jacinto Plaza and gave away money to individuals.

"That almost caused a riot, so we decided to give the money to the mission this time," Marlina said.

Baby disappeared from hospital in Crosbyton

CROSBYTON (AP)—The investigation into the disappearance of a 4-month-old girl from a local hospital has come to a standstill, leaving authorities in this small town frustrated and baffled.

Sheriff's officials and the FBI have been searching for leads since Lynsae Lysette Quintero disappeared from the Crosbyton Clinic Hospital early in the morning of Jan. 31.

Crosby County Sheriff Red Riley said normally patient townpeople are becoming angry because they think officers are harassing them.

"This whole case has been strange from the beginning," Riley said. "Our small town doesn't know what to think about this. I'm getting frustrated because no two people have given us the same story. Everywhere we turn, we just run into another dead end."

Riley said the baby's 18-year-old mother, Carmel Julie Quintero, was sleeping in the infant's room when the incident occurred; but added that the baby was being treated in a noisy oxygen tent. Someone possibly could have taken the child without awakening the mother, he said.

"I can hardly eat or sleep. Food just won't stay in my stomach," Ms. Quintero said. "Now, I'm just waiting for someone to bring me good news."

Chamber of Commerce meetings scheduled

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce will have breakfast and luncheon membership meetings this month, one each on the next two Tuesdays.

The monthly membership luncheon will be at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 17, in the M.K. Brown Room at the Pampa Community Building.

Lonnie Johnson and Jeff Andrews will present a program entitled "How Now Dow Jones?" consisting of general comments on current stock market conditions and recommended do's and don'ts for investing in stocks, said Chamber President Norman Knox.

The second meeting will be an Eggs and Issues breakfast sponsored by the Legislative Affairs Committee at 6:45 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 24, also in the Brown Room at the community building.

The subject of the meeting is the deregulation of the trucking industry in Texas, an issue due to come before the state Legislature this year. Representatives from both sides will present their views, Knox said.

The luncheon meeting, sponsored by First Equity Management Systems, will have a buffet meal of beef and sausage barbecue catered by the Hickory Hut.

The breakfast will be catered by McDonald's Restaurant.

Reservations for both meetings should be made with the chamber office at 689-3241 by 5 p.m. on the day before the meeting, Knox said.

Child care programs increasingly important

WASHINGTON (AP)—Families that have struggled to arrange child care while both parents work may find things a bit easier in the future, as employers begin to recognize the need for benefit programs to keep skilled employees on the job.

"The continued demand for child care by working parents and the growing influence of women in the workplace may encourage broader changes in personnel benefits, tax laws and other aspects of women's lives that will make juggling jobs and babies a little easier," suggests a new study issued Monday by the private Population Reference Bureau.

Child care increasingly poses a major dilemma and expense for families trying to cope with rising costs of living by having both parents work. "In the future, tight labor markets will make it harder to replace experienced female employees who leave work to start a family," the new report warns. "Employers will have an incentive to cater to the special needs of working mothers."

The change will result from the shortage of workers expected to develop in the 1990s as the small Baby Bust generation enters the work force.

This group of people is much smaller than the post-World War II Baby Boom — that massive group of folks who created the Baby Bust by pursuing education and careers instead of marrying and having families.

As these Baby Boom youngsters were moving into the labor market, better education, increased freedom from housework and childrearing, coupled with economic necessity, drew an ever larger share of women into jobs.

Today, more than half of married women with a child under 6 are employed, compared with only one such woman in eight in 1950, Census Bureau statistics show.

"The growing number of women working raises a number of very difficult issues for them and their families. Indeed, most working women face a tremendous personal struggle in trying to balance their personal and professional lives," the new study observes.

Responses to this change have varied from family to family and region to region, with some employers initiating programs to assist their workers. Those actions will become increasingly important, says the study by Martin O'Connell of the U.S. Census Bureau and David E. Bloom of Harvard University.

"Many women find it extremely difficult to decide whether they are mothers who happen to work, or workers who happen to be mothers. ... Their simultaneous involvement in career and mothering entangles many women in exhausting lifestyles," O'Connell and Bloom observe.

This occurred as women sought jobs in a market with a surplus of labor, but that situation will change as the smaller Baby Bust generation comes along and there are more jobs than workers, the report comments.

That means companies will be faced with competing for experienced workers and the result could be incentives to improve benefits such as child-care programs.

In addition, pressure for better child-care programs will also be created by other recent trends, according to the report "Juggling Jobs and Babies: America's Child Care Challenge," published by the non-profit population research center.

Delayed childbearing, for example, has been occurring as women sought educations and careers before starting families. The result is that when they do have children, women have accumulated more work experience and earn higher salaries, making them more likely to want to return to work and to be able to pay for child care.

Civil rights activists arrested during Forsyth County protest

CUMMING, Ga. (AP)—Coretta Scott King says she's outraged by the jailing of eight civil rights activists arrested while protesting the exclusion of blacks from the audience of a nationally televised talk show.

The arrests were made Monday as the demonstrators stood along a highway near the restaurant where "The Oprah Winfrey Show" was being broadcast.

Miss Winfrey, a black talk show hostess from Chicago, brought her program to Cumming to find out "why this community has not allowed black people to live here since 1912."

The audience was comprised of 100 residents of Forsyth County, the scene of two recent marches that protested the expulsion of blacks from the county 75 years ago.

Ordered by law officers to leave the roadside, protest leader the Rev. Hosea Williams refused, shouting, "If I'm wrong, arrest me."

He and the seven others were then forcibly removed and taken to the county jail on charges of unlawful assembly.

Four were released on their recognizance, but Williams and three others said they would remain in jail to protest until the charges were dropped.

"I have committed no crime," Williams, an Atlanta City Council member, said in a statement issued by his office.

"The treatment we received from most of the arresting officers was some of the worst I have experienced in my civil rights career, especially in view of the fact we were arrested on public property while attempting to begin a totally peaceful, non-violent news conference."

In Atlanta, Mrs. King said, "We, the members of the Coalition to End Fear and Intimidation in Forsyth County, have assembled to express our outrage at the unlawful arrest of our colleague."

She said the group wants to meet with Gov. Joe Frank Harris "to seek a just resolution of the situation."

Williams helped lead a Jan. 24 civil rights demonstration that attracted about 25,000 people to Forsyth County. A week earlier, about 75 marchers were confronted by 400 Ku Klux Klan members and supporters, some of whom hurled rocks and debris.

Williams' arraignment on the misdemeanor charges is set for March 23.

"We offered him the opportunity to sign his name and leave," said Forsyth County Sheriff Wesley Walraven. "I guess he can stay here until he's arraigned and goes to court."

During the show, residents discussed the recent events with Miss Winfrey.

Many said they supported the right of blacks to move into the county, but one woman said she believes "we have a right to have a white community."

Some told Miss Winfrey they feared violence from other whites if they welcomed blacks.

After the show, Miss Winfrey said she was "very, very sorry" Williams was arrested. "I have nothing but respect for Reverend Hosea Williams," she said. "At some other time, we would like to have him on the show perhaps."

Miss Winfrey said she saw fear on both sides. "A lot of white people ... are afraid of other white people in this community."

McFarlane hospitalized after apparent attempted suicide

WASHINGTON (AP)—Robert C. McFarlane, the former presidential adviser whose mission to Tehran was at the heart of U.S. arms shipments to Iran, remains hospitalized today for what police are investigating as a suicide attempt.

McFarlane, 49, was taken to Bethesda Naval Medical Center in a Maryland suburb of Washington after he swallowed 25 to 30 Valium pills, said Detective Lauren Acquaviva of the Montgomery County Police Department.

He was listed in good condition, said hospital spokesman Lt. Rus Sanford.

McFarlane, the former national security adviser to President Reagan, was conscious when he was taken by ambulance to the hospital Monday morning but did not say why he had taken the pills.

"He made no statement as to the reason why, although there's every indication it was an overdose," Acquaviva said. "He did not talk, outside of indicating he had taken the Valium. ... Mrs. McFarlane appeared to be upset but also apparently perplexed about the situation."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We don't have any information on his condition."

The detective said paramedics determined McFarlane had swallowed 25 to 30 of the tranquilizers, but did not know the strength of the tablets. The paramedics did not indicate how long the drugs had been in McFarlane's bloodstream, although "he was described as being in a physically depressed state — the chemicals were already working on his nervous system."

Acquaviva said a police investigation was routine procedure after a report of "an unattended death or death attempt."

McFarlane was to have appeared at 10 a.m. Monday before the Tower Commission, the presidentially appointed panel investigating the role of the National Security Council in the Iran arms affair, The Washington Post reported in today's editions. CBS News, quoting sources it did not name, reported Monday that hospital officials believed the overdose resulted from a suicide attempt and cited friends of McFarlane as saying he had been depressed and emotional recently.

But McFarlane's lawyer, Leonard Garment, called the story "the most irresponsible and obscene piece of sourcing and reporting I've heard of in my whole professional life."

The lawyer said he had not talked with McFarlane since Friday. But, he said, experts on the drug believed it was virtually impossible to commit suicide with Valium.

"Bud McFarlane has served his country long and faithfully, and never with greater distinction than by coming forward and being the only one to give a full story, under oath and without access to a single page of his official record, of the Iranian arms sale," Garment said.

Valium is available in 2, 5 and 10 milligram tablets. The usual daily dose is between 2 and 10 milligrams taken two to four times daily, according to the authoritative Physicians' Desk Reference.

Symptoms of a Valium overdose can include sleepiness, confusion, diminished reflexes, depressed blood pressure or coma, and treatment includes close observation and administering intravenous fluids, according to medical reference books.

McFarlane is a former Marine lieutenant colonel and combat veteran, which permits him to use the Navy's medical facilities near his home in suburban Maryland.

He was the second major figure in the Iran-Contra controversy to be hospitalized. CIA Director William J. Casey underwent surgery for a malignant brain tumor and resigned his post last week.

Reports: 12 indicted in racial attack death

NEW YORK (AP)—Twelve youths have been indicted in connection with a racial attack that left a black man dead, according to news reports today that said some of those accused have been charged with murder.

The grand jury's indictments, handed up Friday, were to be unsealed today when the youths are arraigned, according to The New York Times, the New York Daily News, the New York Post and WNBC-TV.

An official quoted anonymously by the Times said the indictments "ran the whole gamut" of charges, including murder, but that not all dozen youths were indicted on the same charges.

WNBC-TV reported Monday night that there were three murder charges among the indictments.

Daniel Hawkins, a spokesman for the special prosecutor in the case, declined to comment on the reports.

Camaro, Cutlass most stolen cars

DETROIT (AP)—The most frequently stolen car of 1986 was a 1984 Chevrolet Camaro, followed by a 1981 Oldsmobile Cutlass, according to a Chicago company that helps insurance companies determine the worth of stolen cars.

All top 10 cars on the list were built by General Motors Corp., the nation's largest automaker and maker of nearly half the cars on U.S. roads.

"The reason is most cars are stolen for replacement parts, and there's a big demand for American car parts because there are so many" of the cars, said Glen Tullman, vice president of Certified Collateral Corp.

"Thieves typically are not going to steal a 4-year-old car to resell it as a whole," Tullman said.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be on the lookout for possibilities to increase your income through a second source. Someone you did a favor for in the past may provide you with a tip.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership arrangements should work out well for you today, especially those with people you like both businesswise and socially.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The harder you work today, the luckier you'll be. Strive to utilize your time and talents in ways that are truly productive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your organizational abilities are rather remarkable today. You'll have situations that others find perplexing and unmanageable running like clockwork.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) What you unselfishly want for others you will also receive yourself today. Your desires will be fulfilled in a circuitous fashion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you keep everything in proper balance, this should turn out to be a very pleasant day for you. Spend equal hours on leisure and work.

Girl serious about love still plays behind parents' backs

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 years old and have been having a serious love relationship with a 21-year-old guy who is in the military. We met four months ago and see each other four or five times a week, but I feel very guilty because the time we spend together is kept from my parents. I have to make up lies about where I'm going and who I'm with. All my friends know about him and have helped us to sneak around.

We are very much in love and tell each other so often. This is not a schoolgirl crush, Abby. He's the man I want to spend the rest of my life with. We're having sex but we are careful.

I want to introduce this wonderful guy to my parents, but I'm afraid if they know I'm seeing a 21-year-old guy they will forbid me to see him again, or even make trouble for him at the base.

I've read your column since I was 11 years old and trust your advice. Please publish this for us and other couples who have this problem, and don't say where it's from. I know we're not the only ones.

FORBIDDEN LOVE

DEAR FORBIDDEN: A 21-year-old guy is a man — or should be — and it's very unmanly to sneak around with a girl behind her parents' backs. I think you should introduce this wonderful guy to your parents. If he's as wonderful as you say he is, he will quit sneaking around and look them in the eye. If he's not, maybe he's not as wonderful as you think he is. Think about it.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just received another one of those so-called invitations that go like this: "The children of Mr. and Mrs. Blankety-Blank are planning to honor their parents on their 25th wedding anniversary. It will come to $17.50 a plate for the dinner, plus $7.50 if you want to go in on the group gift."

Abby, if children want to "honor" their parents, why don't they give them a party instead of inviting people and asking them to pay for it? We have received several invitations like this one, and think it's terrible. We aren't cheap, but this is like buying a ticket to a party.

Most of the people in this area read your column, so maybe if you ran this (no names, please) you could put a stop to these pay-your-own-way affairs.

MASSACHUSETTS MRS.

DEAR MRS.: If a group of friends want to join together to honor someone, then each cheerfully pays his or her own way. But for family members to "honor" one of their own, and ask invited guests to pay for it, is out of line.

***

DEAR ABBY: I do my grocery shopping at a very large supermarket. There is one checkout woman (I guess you'd call her a cashier) who has been there for many years. She's not young.

Anyway, yesterday when she checked out my groceries, she leaned toward me and said, "I lost my beloved Ricardo after 48 years of marriage; he had a massive heart attack with no warning." I didn't know what to say except, "Gee, I'm really sorry."

Abby, I don't even know this lady's name! She certainly did lay a depressing bit of news on me. I left the store feeling down in the dumps. I didn't need to hear that kind of news from a total stranger. Please comment.

IN THE DUMPS

DEAR IN: Perhaps you didn't need to hear that kind of news from a total stranger, but apparently she needed to talk about it. Sometimes the best thing we can do for a person is to listen. A little compassion, please.

Don't get stuck when putting up wallpaper

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Experience makes the difference when it comes to putting up wallpaper. A person has to get the hang of it, as any novice who has gotten tangled up in this type of decorating project can attest.

But did you ever wonder how, short of mutilating their own walls, individuals can learn to put up wallpaper? Not to worry. There is a school for it.

The U.S. School of Professional Paperhanging in Rutland, Vt., has been operating since 1973. Its founder and current president, Stan Warsaw, claims to have trained more than 750 students.

Most people, of course, don't want to become professional paperhangers. They just want to redecorate a room or two. For them, Warsaw has some advice on how not to get hung up on the task.

He says there are at least three circumstances under which consumers should hire a professional rather than attempting to do it themselves. These situations include: when dealing with expensive wall coverings; when one is lacking in manual dexterity, and when it is a problem room. The problem could be unusual architecture, a very large room or one with walls in poor condition, that need extensive preparation.

Warsaw advises checking references before engaging a paperhanger and seeking a recommendation from a local decorating products dealer.

A professional job will be smooth and wrinkle-free, without any tears. Patterns should be well-matched and vertically straight, corners tight and the pattern should be level around the room. Seams should just touch. An installer who provides a written guarantee of adhesion and satisfaction should get an added plus.

Those who elect to do their own installation should remember that most failures result from improper wall preparation. Warsaw says to be sure to buy enough material to complete the job since dye lots vary. Begin at the easiest wall, planning where the seams will fall before actually starting. It is essential to have the correct adhesive.

Beginners should purchase wallpaper from a store that provides service. Ask the retailer to inspect your material for shading, bias printing and other possible flaws since, as a beginner, you don't know what to look for, Warsaw suggested. The retailer can and should provide information on what adhesive to use and how to prepare your walls. When deciding how much to buy, estimate generously to ensure enough material. Uncut packaged rolls can be returned with only a modest penalty, he said.

Finally, work in a quiet atmosphere. Keep children and pets out of the area and if possible take the phone off the hook.

Warsaw says that he frequently receives calls from consumers who encounter problems in the middle of a job as well as from interior designers, architects, specifiers, painters, contractors and stores who may have questions during or after a job.

One reason why is that there is surprisingly little documentation on correct wallpapering techniques, in his opinion.

As is typical, Warsaw learned his trade by going to work for his father, a wall-covering contractor in New York. He joined the business after the Korean War, despite the fact he had a degree in marketing and public relations.

"My father offered me $30 a day to paste wallpaper. I asked him how to make $50 and he said 'for that, you have to learn how to hang.'"

Warsaw eventually found there was little written and no formal training in the industry. "We needed more young people in our business towards the mid-to-late 1960s. We were looking for a school and I was shocked to find no formal schools existed. I decided to start my own school."

He first considered setting the school up in New York, but eventually chose to establish it in Vermont in 1973.

Individuals who write for information receive a packet of information that includes tips for the do-it-yourselfer, information on adhesives, guidance on how to choose and evaluate a professional paperhanger, a list of types of wall coverings and their properties, such as whether they provide a thermal barrier.

(The packet costs 50 cents plus a stamped self-addressed business envelope. For further information, write to the U.S. School of Professional Paperhanging, 16 Chaplin Ave., Rutland, VT 05701.)

Auctions may provide affordable furnishings

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Although many people are afraid of buying at auction, they shouldn't be.

A person furnishing a home can use them to find interesting, beautiful and useful home furnishings at affordable prices, according to Emy Leeser, an interior designer who is associated with the John Stuart showroom in New York.

The collector can gratify his thirst for knowledge and secure additions for his collection at auction, says Richard Manney, a collector.

To Leeser, "the surprise, spontaneity, excitement and aura which pervade an auction surpass any visit to a gallery or antique store." It's worth learning how to buy at auction, she told a group of designers recently, since they can be sources of great finds, sometimes at reasonable prices.

Although reputable auctioneers attest to the authenticity of the objects for sale, they do make mistakes on occasion so the rule is buyer beware, she added.

However, she continued, those buying primarily to decorate don't need to be concerned about authenticity. For them, the best reason to buy at auction is to find objects of quality and interest.

Find out about sales through newspaper advertisements. Then check the items of interest in person at the preview days. It's a good idea to go back for a second look if you intend to bid, she said.

To gain some idea of the likely bidding range, check the estimated prices nearly all auctioneers list in the catalog or supply on request.

Examine objects carefully for possible flaws. If there are one or more things you want to bid on, buy a catalog and mark the items along with estimated prices. Find out the approximate time these items will be called and be there ahead of the time of sale, she said.

In order to bid, you must register with the auctioneer. You will be given a number; usually it is on a paddle which you will raise to bid. Based on your review, decide how much you would be willing to bid for an item; make a note of it and then stick to your decision. When the auction is in progress, impulse bidding should be only a rare occurrence.

Leeser says dealers and private individuals have very different bidding styles. "Private collectors may get locked into competitive buying at all costs. That is the time for you to lie low. Don't ever feel bad if the bidding goes over your limit. There are always other opportunities."

Besides furnishing or refurbishing a home, another occasion when auction-going is called for is when starting or adding to a collection. Collector Manney says the auction process helped him learn and make early mistakes anonymously.

Manney, whose collections of Federal furniture, contemporary sculpture and 19th-century Belter furniture are of museum quality, still loves an auction because it adds to the thrill of the chase which is a part of collecting for him.

Besides learning from his mistakes, he also learned from watching dealers at auctions because "they don't overpay." An important value of auctions is to study the pre-sale estimates and actual bids. That way you get a good sense of where the current market is.

When buying for a collection or investment, authenticity is important, and Leeser advises obtaining documentation of an object's history from the auctioneer (who gets it from the consignor). If there is no provenance, consider hiring an expert to view and give an opinion of the work in question at the preview.

Auctioneers can also be helpful if you want to know what some of your collectibles are worth. A number of large houses, such as Sotheby's, Christies and Phillips, hold free appraisal days from time to time during the year when people can bring in an item or a photo of it and get some idea of what it is and what it might bring at auction.

These verbal estimates are rendered by the auction house's experts, but are not usable for insurance or estate purposes. Those who live outside the New York area can send in photos of their objects, along with any additional information such as a tracing or drawing of identifying marks, said spokesmen for both Sotheby's and Christies.

Both houses also offer such appraisal days in other parts of the country, often in connection with a local arts group or museum which charges admission and uses the event as a fundraiser.

Clemens concerned about Sox

By JOHN F. BONFATTI
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — There are three questions that dog Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens this off-season.

Should he have won the American League's Most Valuable Player Award?

Will he suffer the jinx endured by recent Cy Young Award winners in the season following the award?

Can his team repeat as AL champions?

The pitcher has no problem speaking his mind on all three.

Taking the last question first, Clemens almost came out Monday and said he doesn't think the Red Sox have what it takes to contend in 1987.

"Right now, we're not even close to being ready to repeat," said Clemens, speaking before he received the Dunlop Award as professional athlete of the year.

"We don't have a catcher," he said, alluding to a contractual dispute that has made catcher Rich Gedman a free agent. "Our centerfielder (Dave Henderson) just had knee surgery. (First baseman) Bill Buckner had a couple of big old bone chips taken out of his ankle."

And then there's Clemens, who after a 24-4 season that featured a 14-game winning streak and a major-league record 20 strikeouts in one game against Seattle, is having contract problems of his own.

"I would like to get my contract taken care of," he said, adding he's looking for a two-year deal. "I put up very good numbers. I never think I'm THE best pitcher, but I feel I'm one of the best pitchers."

Clemens said his agent "has only talked to the Red Sox (general manager) Lou Gorman one time" but expects there will be more negotiations after arbitration cases have been settled.

The general tenor of the Red Sox off-season makes Clemens uneasy.

"You can't relax in the American League East," he said. "I don't know what's going on. All I can say is when you've got a guy like (Detroit Tigers pitcher) Jack Morris shopping his services around for one year and the man's been the best pitcher in baseball for the last five years and you've got the Yankees out there ..."

"There's no shoe-ins in the American League East, but you get another pitcher like Jack Morris, you can almost write yourself into the number one spot," he added.

Ro's big day

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman has the kind of confidence in himself as a shooter that Jack Nicklaus has as a putter when he needs a five-footer for a major championship.

"I shoot jumpers," Blackman will often shout at nobody in particular after he makes a critical shot during a Dallas Mavericks' game.

Blackman hit two free throws in Sunday's 37th annual NBA All-Star game after regulation time had expired to send the game into overtime. Blackman's West team eventually won 154-149 and the Dallas guard finished with 29 points off the bench.

Blackman shouted at the basket after his second free throw went through the hoop.

"I'm not sure what I said," said Blackman, a three-time NBA All-Star.

Blackman's role with the Mavericks is an off-guard. He's one of the best drivers and jump shooters in the NBA.

"It was just a great thrill to succeed in that spot," Blackman said. "With the Mavericks, I'm usually successful in that situation."

Blackman finished second in the Most Valuable Player balloting behind Seattle's Tom Chambers, who scored a game-high 34 points.

"Tom deserved it although I would have liked to have the trophy," Blackman said.

Players from the East squad yelled everything they could at Blackman, trying to get him to miss, including "choke," "sissy" and "punk."

"It's not a happy situation to be in," Blackman said. "Anybody who says they love that situation is crazy. But it happens all the time. If you can't handle it, you're out of it."

Mark Aguirre, the other Maverick in the game, couldn't watch. He put his hands over his eyes while Blackman shot the free throws.

Chambers received eight of the 15 votes for MVP. Blackman got six and Moses Malone got one ballot.

Blackman was asked what would have happened if he had had such a game in Dallas last year at the All-Star game.

He just smiled.

Pittsburgh takes Big East lead

By The Associated Press

Jerome Lane was ready, and Pittsburgh now sits atop the Big East.

The 6-foot-6 sophomore, who leads the nation in rebounding, scored 21 points and grabbed 14 rebounds Monday night as the 10th-ranked Panthers beat No. 9 Syracuse 63-61 to take sole possession of first place in the conference.

"It was the biggest game we've played here, and I love big games," Lane, who scored 16 of his points in the second half, said. "I was so pumped up I wanted the ball every time down the court in the second half."

Pitt's final shot did not come from Lane, however.

Lane made one free throw with 1:23 to play to tie the score at 61. Syracuse's Sherman Douglas threw up an airball on a jumper with 58 seconds to play.

The Panthers, 20-4 overall and 9-2 in the conference, worked the shot clock until three seconds remained on it. Freshman Rod Brooks missed a baseline jumper, but Charles Smith grabbed the rebound and was fouled. He made both free throws and Syracuse's Greg Monroe missed a 3-pointer at the buzzer to give the Panthers their biggest victory since joining the Big East five years ago.

In other games involving ranked teams Monday night, No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas beat Pacific 73-59; No. 6 Temple defeated Penn State 73-70 in overtime; No. 13 Georgetown beat Boston College 78-56; and Auburn defeated No. 19 Florida 84-70.

Deadline nears on coaching resumes

Yung hasn't applied yet

With the cutoff date only four days away, Pampa High's two-man search committee has received 30 resumes on the vacant Harvester head football coaching position.

One of the missing resumes is that of former West Texas State head coach Bill Yung, who had earlier expressed an interest in the job.

"We have talked with him and he seemed interested, but we still haven't received a resume," said Pampa High Athletic Director John Kendall. "We had several other resumes come in this week."

Friday is the deadline for receiving applications, according to Kendall and interim superintendent Tom Cathey, who are heading the search for a new head coach.

"After Friday we won't be taking any more resumes. Starting Monday, we'll be going through all of them and reviewing them for the best possible applicant," added Kendall.

Sources indicate that some PHS football supporters have talked to Yung, urging him to apply for the job.

Yung, now an insurance salesman in El Paso, won two Missouri Valley Conference football titles in five years as head coach at West Texas. He was the conference coach of the year in both of those championship seasons.

Yung then took over the head coaching post at UTEP, but the Miners won only six games in his four years there. His overall record at WT was 26-27-2.

Yung told the Pampa News three weeks ago that he was considering the Harvester job because he had relatives living in Canyon, but was reluctant to leave his business at the present time.

Yung coached at the high school level at Garland and Grand Prairie before moving into the college ranks as an offensive coordinator at Baylor University. Yung was on the Baylor coaching staff when the Bears went to the Cotton Bowl in 1972.

Kendall and Cathey are scheduled to review the current resumes through next Friday before conducting personal interviews Feb. 23-27. The finalists will then be selected and interviewed by school board trustees. The new Harvester coach is expected to be announced March 17 and is tentatively scheduled to take over his new duties April 1.

The head coaches' position became available when Kendall stepped down as Harvester mentor last month and assumed duties as full-time athletic director. Kendall had a five-year record of 10-38-2 and his 1986 Harvesters went winless.

McVea arrested again

HOUSTON (AP) — Former pro football standout Warren McVea was arrested a second time in a raid at a southwest Houston apartment complex, but authorities say he will probably be released today without charges.

Three other men and a woman were arrested Monday afternoon in the raid, police said. But only one of those arrested, a man living in the apartment, faces cocaine possession charges, police said.

The apartment complex was the site of McVea's Dec. 18 arrest on a cocaine possession charge. McVea was taken to the city jail while police investigated a packet containing a small amount of cocaine that was hurled onto the roof of the complex, Houston Police Sgt. J.W. Collins said.

"We found no prints on the bag and decided to release McVea and three other people who were inside the apartment," Collins said.

On Friday, McVea pleaded guilty to the cocaine possession charge.

Chris Pryor trying to overcome bad attitude and poor grades

By BILL HART
Abilene Reporter-News

BROWNWOOD (AP) — Chris Pryor was an explosive runner and one of Texas' best high school running backs in 1984. He had the world at his feet.

He led Converse Judson to the Class 5A state championship. Texas Tech University was all smiles after it had scored a coup in the recruiting wars by signing Pryor.

But Pryor never played a down for the Red Raiders. He failed to graduate with his high school class, an NCAA no-no.

He earned his diploma that summer and after a short stay at Texas Tech, enrolled at Texas A&I University, then dropped out of school there after six weeks. He would re-enroll at A&I in the spring only to drop out again.

During this time, the NCAA began investigating alleged recruiting violations by Texas Tech concerning Pryor. A ruling is expected to come in the near future.

Today, Chris Pryor is a student at Howard Payne University, a Baptist college. He enrolled at midterm. He wasn't recruited and he's not on a scholarship. He'll pay for what grants won't cover.

"I always knew I'd go back to college. I've wanted to coach," Pryor said. "I had to take time off to get my mind together and get my priorities straight."

Why Howard Payne? Students who had heard of Pryor's athletic prowess asked the question. So did HPU football coach Jerry Millsapps and President Don Newbury.

"Baylor was my first choice, but I found out I'd have to sit out another year before I'd be eligible," he said. "Then I thought about Henderson Junior College. I'd go there for a year, then transfer to Baylor."

"But I was tired of moving. To Lubbock. To Texas A&I twice. Back to San Antonio. I didn't want to go to Henderson, then move again."

Had he gone to Baylor, he would have only one year of football eligibility left. At Howard Payne, he'll have three. Athletes attending NCAA Division I schools have five years to use up four years of eligibility. The NAIA, which Howard Payne joins in August, allows athletes 10 semesters to complete their eligibility.

Pryor said while he was talking to Baylor Coach Grant Teaff last fall, he mentioned he wanted to go to a good Baptist school. Teaff mentioned Howard Payne, he said.

Then a month or so ago, he ran into a former Converse Judson teammate, Eddie Nelson, who had just transferred to Howard Payne. So Pryor called Millsapps and registered at the Brownwood school.

"I told Coach Millsapps that I wanted a degree more than just playing football," Pryor said. "I don't think he believed me, because later I read a story in the San Antonio newspaper where he said I was here now, but might not be tomorrow or next fall. I had to go to him and tell him I was here to stay."

The first day on campus, Pryor spent about 30 minutes in the president's office. Newbury wanted to know why he was at Howard Payne.

"I talked to him about our school rules, alcohol, drugs, attending chapel, those kind of things," Newbury said. "Chris had all the right answers."

"We have these 10-minute noon devotionals that are optional for our students, and I went that day because I was to speak. Lo and behold, there was Chris in the middle of the students. He showed me that he was going to do the things he said he'd do."

Pryor says he doesn't object to the school rules.

"I have never had problems with drugs or alcohol in the past or present," Pryor said. "When I was in high school, I was a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and we had meetings in our home. When my mother heard Howard Payne was a Baptist school, she was happy I was coming here.

"To be honest with you, that's one of the reasons I'm at Howard Payne. After high school, Chris Pryor got the big head (over the recruiting). I didn't need the Lord anymore, but He showed me that it doesn't work that way."

Pryor rushed for 2,800 yards and had scored 36 touchdowns in leading Converse Judson to the 5A state championship, beating Midland Lee 25-21 in the finals. He set a career San Antonio schoolboy rushing record of 4,250 yards that was broken this past season.

He was high in the clouds. The only reason he wasn't even more widely recruited was because a number of colleges doubted he would be able to meet the academic entrance requirements.

He chose Texas Tech. But as some had predicted, his grades fell short. Once he failed to receive a high school diploma, he was ineligible for a scholarship from an NCAA Division I school.

Pryor went to Tech anyway after getting his diploma in the summer. He couldn't work out with the team, but he could lift weights and go to school. A week and a half later, before classes started, he decided to go to Texas A&I, a Division II school where he would be eligible right away.

He rushed for more than 100 yards in the first game and played ed in six games. Then he left.

The NCAA approached him about the allegations that Texas Tech representatives furnished him a rental car, credit car use for a month for motels and meals, plus the promise of a pair of cowboy boots, Pryor said.

"I had heard getting a car was illegal, but I thought rooms and meals were just part of recruiting," Pryor said. He never got the boots.

Since he had left Tech, there was talk he was just getting back at the school. Pryor said that's not true.

"To be honest, at first I lied to the NCAA, trying to protect Tech," Pryor said. "The investigator asked me about how many times Tech visited me, and I said three. The man had talked to another Judson player and he had told them it was seven or eight."

"That's when the investigator told me if I withheld evidence, I could be suspended or in trouble, I decided to tell the truth. Coach Jerry Moore (then coach at Tech) also called me and told me to tell the truth."

When the investigation talks began, Pryor said, he decided to leave A&I.

"I was confused and decided I didn't want to go to school and play football anymore," he said. "I went back the second semester, but I left again. The NCAA again visited with me and by then, my mind wasn't on school or football."

Also, he would have had to pass 22 hours that spring and summer to be eligible.

So he stayed in San Antonio in 1985, first driving a truck and then working for a construction company.

It took Pryor a year to realize he truly wanted a college education — and to coach. Some members of his family, his former high school coach and friends wanted him to return to Texas A&I and play in the same backfield with standout running backs Heath Sherman and Johnny Bailey.

"I would have had to pass those 22 hours to be eligible, and I felt that would be pushing me," he said. "After all, I haven't had any practice at studying in over a year."

Pryor enrolled at Howard Payne on a Thursday. The next Monday, the football off-season program was under way and Pryor wasn't there. Millsapps became concerned.

Later, Pryor showed up. "Sorry I'm late, but I had a class, and it went a little longer today than it was supposed to," the athlete said.

"Chris, are you here for education or football?" Millsapps asked. Then they both broke into a laugh.

Speed records fall by the roadway at Daytona 500

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The odd couple wound up on the front row of Sunday's $1.5 million Daytona 500.

Bill Elliott, the established fastest driver in NASCAR stock car racing, won the Daytona 500 pole in spectacular and record fashion with a lap of 210.364 mph on Daytona International Speedway's 2.5-mile tri-oval on Monday.

That buried his own track qualifying record of 205.114, set in 1985. In fact, 13 of the 37 drivers who went faster than 200 mph Monday exceeded the old mark.

It was no surprise that Elliott became the first driver since the late Glenn "Fireball" Roberts from 1961 through 1963 to win stock car racing's most important pole three straight times. The Dawsonville, Ga., driver, who holds the all-time stock car record of 212.229 mph — set last May at Talladega, Ala. — was the odds-on favorite to be right where he is after the first round of qualifying, which was postponed from Saturday by rain. However, the outside position on the front row of NASCAR's richest and most prestigious event will feature a new face with a familiar name — Allison.

Davey Allison, 25, veteran of eight Winston Cup races — none of them the Daytona 500 — and son of longtime NASCAR star Bobby Allison, outdid all the big names but Elliott with his 209.084 mph.

"He may be a rookie in some other people's eyes, but not in mine," Elliott said of his young competitor.

It's true that racing has been a part of growing up for Allison, the youngest member of the "Alabama Gang" — which includes his father, his uncle Donnie Allison as well as Neil Bonnett and Red Farmer — from the area around Davey's native Hueytown, Ala.

Not only has he finished seventh in a Winston Cup race at Alabama International Motor Speedway in Talladega, Ala., but the youngster has driven Daytona's high banks in several of the lesser events here in previous years.

And Allison, who didn't appear overly excited about his achievement Monday, talks like a veteran even though he will be vying for Rookie of the Year honors this season.

"I don't feel like a rookie," he said. "With the races I've run here since 1981 and with all the testing we've done, I feel like I've been around a long time."

"Our speed didn't surprise me. We thought we had a real chance to win the pole. After that lap, we knew that Bill could beat us, but we didn't think he could beat us by that much."

Elliott, 31, was a bit more surprised by his own showing, especially after predicting on Sunday — following his $75,000 victory in the Busch Clash — that a 210 mph lap was very unlikely.

"It took a perfect day," Elliott said, referring to temperatures in the mid-40s and moderate winds. "Really, when I said that, I didn't think anybody would go 210. I didn't realize it was going to get this cool."

Only Elliott and Allison locked in starting spots in Sunday's 40-car field. Positions 2 through 30 will be determined in Thursday's twin 125-mile qualifying races, with the rest of the field filled by cars posting qualifying speeds Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Kings fire Johnson

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Reynolds' debut tonight as a National Basketball Association head coach will put his Sacramento Kings up against a team that broke a fistful of NBA records when they crushed the Lakers last week.

"Why not (make it against) the Lakers?" Reynolds asked rhetorically when reminded that the Phil Johnson last time the Kings took the court last Wednesday before the All-Star break, the Los Angeles Lakers took a 29-0 lead, held them to 0-for-18 from the field in the first quarter, and ended the quarter ahead by an astonishing 40-4 on their way to a 128-92 victory. The Kings meet the Lakers again tonight in Sacramento, and Reynolds promised a new attitude, but no miracles.

"The people we've got are the people we've got," Reynolds said of the team. "I can't make any promises ... The record speaks for itself — 14 and 32, and probably the easiest part of our schedule is behind us."

The Kings, owners of the third-worst record in the NBA, fired Coach Phil Johnson on Monday and replaced him with Reynolds, who has been an assistant coach for the past 1 1/2 years after 10 years as head coach at Rockhurst College in Missouri and Pittsburg State in Kansas.

The Kings also fired assistant coach Frank Hamblen and replaced him with Don Buse, a former NBA player who had been a scout for the San Antonio Spurs since his retirement as a player two years ago.

It was the second time the Kings had fired Johnson as head coach. He coached the club, then in Kansas City, from 1973 through 1978, and returned to the head coaching post in 1984 after working as an assistant in Chicago and Utah.

Kings Managing General Partner Gregg Lukenbill said Johnson and Hamblen were fired because "we need a new direction" and that the team was not playing up to its potential under Johnson. The team currently has a five-game losing streak.

Kings President Joe Axelson, who jointly announced the coaching change with Lukenbill, said the change was made because "the psychology, the chemistry, the mix ... is wrong (under Johnson). As a team, we're not equalling the sum of the parts."

Axelson said Reynolds was picked as interim coach to "provide us with valuable continuity while the search for a permanent head coach goes on," but that with only 1 1/2 years with the club Reynolds "has not been directly involved in the decline of the franchise."

Axelson refused to say how long Reynolds would be the coach, adding that a permanent replacement could be named before the end of the season.

Neither Johnson nor Hamblen was available for comment. Axelson said both had been offered other posts in the organization but that neither had made a decision.

Breland to undergo surgery

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

Mark Breland's hands are thin and narrow, with long graceful fingers.

Before his fight with Harold Volbrecht for the vacated World Boxing Association welterweight championship, he had said, "My hands are just too small for banging."

In the seventh round last Friday at Atlantic City, Breland banged the South African on the chin with a couple of rights and won the title.

Six rounds earlier, Breland had broken a metacarpal bone in his left hand. It also was his fourth knockout since September.

The day after he became a world champion in his 17th pro fight, Breland talked about the break and about surgery that will need to correct a tendon problem in the same hand. Manager Shelly Finkel said the operation would be performed Friday.

In 1983, a year before he won the Olympic welterweight championship, Breland had tendon surgery on his right hand.

Breland also revealed the morning after his title victory that an examination on Dec. 16 showed he had broken a bone in his left hand in September. In the meantime, Breland had fought three times and scored three knockouts.

It also was revealed that, while sparring on Dec. 26, Breland broke the bone again. A physician told Breland it would take at least two months for the break to heal properly. Breland, ranked No. 2, opted to go after the vacant WBA title within six weeks.

Had Breland backed out, he would have been replaced by another contender. The title was there to be had. It was the reason for his being a pro. Go for it.

Besides, the 30-year-old Volbrecht's power and skills didn't back up his No. 1 ranking.

Now Breland, who will be 24 on May 11, will have four or five months to heal before going after the universal championship.

Lloyd Honeghan is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Council and the International Boxing Federation.

And Breland knows Honeghan is not a man to be faced at less than 100 percent.

330-pound lineman to play for Mountaineers

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — John Ray, a highly recruited, 330-pound lineman who was named a Parade magazine All-America player despite playing only half his senior season, has decided to play football at West Virginia, a published report says.

The 6-foot-9 Ray said he had narrowed his choice to West Virginia or Alabama. He told The Charleston Gazette that he would feel most at home in Morgantown, which is just 2 1/2 hours from Charleston.

"I decided West Virginia is the place that I would feel more comfortable," Ray said. "I think it's the best place for me."

"I've been to a lot of WVU games and it's a tremendous feeling when the Mountaineers come on the field and the fans go crazy. I decided I would like to be a part of that."

Troops, rebels in first clash

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Troops battled Communist rebels today in the first reported fighting since a cease-fire ended, and the army said a lieutenant and 11 rebels were killed.

It was the first reported clash with the rebel New People's Army since a 60-day cease-fire expired Sunday. The government's chief negotiator said he doubted peace talks could be resumed on a national level.

The constabulary commander for central Luzon, Brig. Gen. Eugenio Ocampo Jr., said troops intercepted about 50 rebels at 7 a.m. near Lupao in Nueva Ecija province, about 90 miles north of Manila.

He said a second rebel force managed to enter the town but was driven off after a gunfight in which two civilians were injured. Army and constabulary soldiers backed by helicopters were pursuing the rebels into the hills, Ocampo said.

Capt. Aaron Fidel of the 3rd Regional Unified Command said an army lieutenant was killed and the bodies of 11 rebels were found.

Soviets announce dissidents release

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today that 140 people sentenced for anti-Soviet propaganda have been freed and said other appeals for clemency were being considered.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said the prisoners were freed by decree of the Supreme Soviet, the nominal parliament, on Feb. 2 and on Monday.

Import of diet pills will be halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Customs officials have been ordered to seize Mexican diet pills that have been linked to four deaths in Texas, officials say.

U.S. officials have said ingredients in the banned pills are prescribed in the United States, but not in the same combinations as the Mexican drugs and not for the type of diet regimen prescribed by Mexican doctors.

The Food and Drug Administration issued the "import alert" to Customs officials Friday, but a Customs spokesman in Houston said Monday the paperwork had not been received.

Once the formal instructions are received "we'll stop it," said spokesman Charles Conroy. The drugs apparently are being prescribed primarily at a dozen weight-loss clinics in Nuevo Laredo, just over the border from Laredo.

U.S. residents returning from Mexico have been allowed to bring the drugs with them in amounts consistent with personal use if they show the drugs were prescribed by a doctor and the prescription was filled by a registered pharmacy in Mexico.

Under the new policy, the drugs will be seized. The major one is Redotex, which the FDA said appears to contain a hormone used to speed metabolism, two stimulants, a laxative and the tranquilizer diazepam.

Also now banned are Ponderex, an amphetamine used as an appetite suppressant, and Moduretic.

Dennis Baker, a program manager for the Texas Health Department's Food and Drug Division, has said four deaths have been linked to the Mexican diet drugs. The victims were all from southern Texas and died within the past six to eight months, he said.

Though all four had at some time taken the pills, medical researchers have not been able to prove the pills caused the deaths, he said.

The FDA's Center for Drugs and Biologics labled the drugs in Redotex an "irrational" combination that can cause "serious and potentially fatal adverse reactions, including alteration of metabolic rate, increased heart rate, lowering or increasing of blood pressure, loss of body electrolytes and confusion and hallucinations."

FDA officials in Washington have said the now-banned drugs apparently have been a problem only in the Southwest.

Ted Rotto, chief investigator for the FDA in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, has said he knows of buses loaded with people going into Mexico to get the pills, and other officials said they suspect large quantities have been smuggled into Texas for resale.
