Hotel causes boom

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

A building permit finally issued for the Schneider Hotel rehabilitation project pushed the value of reported Pampa construction more than $1 million above last year's totals.

According to the monthly report provided by the Department of Building Inspection, the valuation for the 1987 fiscal year — beginning Oct. 1 — stands at $3,497,715, up $1,025 million from the $2,472,569 recorded in the first four months of the 1985-1986 fiscal year.

The increase in construction is even greater for the calendar year, starting in January.

The city department issued only seven permits in January, but those included one for the hotel project.

The hotel rehabilitation into apartments for the elderly has a value of $1,472,600, easily the largest portion of the $1,522,600 listed as the total valuation for buildings issued permits in January.

Though work on the old hotel began in mid-September, the permit was not finally cleared until last month, allowing the valuation for the project to be included in the January report.

In January 1986 the city had issued 18 permits, but the total valuation was only $358,400. The hotel permit spurred the comparable monthly total for January to rise nearly $1.2 million for the beginning of the current calendar year report.

Department head David McKinney reported the other six permits issued last month were for one commercial building with a valuation of $14,000; two mobile homes, $9,000; one garage, $23,000; one alteration or addition to a dwelling, $4,000; and one relocation or demolishing, no value listed.

The department collected $1,600 in building permit fees last month, nearly $500 higher than the $1,012 in fees reported for January 1986.

For the current 1986-1987 fiscal year period, department personnel have collected $4,559 in fees for 62 permits, down from the $5,335 for the 73 permits in the previous comparable fiscal year period.

The department issued seven electrical permits for fees of $45 in January, declining from the 17 permits and fees of $239 recorded the previous January.

To date, the city has issued 52 electrical permits for the current fiscal year period, collecting $1,574 in fees. In the same 1985-1986 fiscal period, 70 permits were issued but a lesser amount of fees — $1,348 — was collected.

Twenty-eight plumbing permits were granted last month, with fees totaling $266. That's down from the 35 permits and fees of $395 recorded in January 1986, McKinney reported.

For the current fiscal year period, personnel have issued 175 plumbing permits for $2,865 in fees. That's up from the 134 permits and fees of $2,004 listed for the comparable 1985-1986 fiscal year period.

Only two mechanical permits were issued in January, with $50 collected in fees. The totals for the fiscal year period stand at 25 permits and $879 in fees.

The mechanical permits, generally concerning the installation of cooling and heating units, were instituted in March 1986, so there's comparable figures available yet for the previous fiscal year period.

Boulter fights pay increases

By CATHY SPAULDING

Area political leaders are asking a non-partisan "Why" in response to a $12,100 pay raise that Congress allowed itself this week.

The pay raise was granted, at least temporarily, when the House let pass a Tuesday deadline for rejecting salary increases for lawmakers and other top federal officials.

The non-action came after House leaders promised that the pay raise issue would come up for a vote before the Feb. 4 deadline. But the House adjourned one day earlier without voting on the resolution, an inaction that by law granted the pay increases.

In response to the automatic federal salary hikes, three Republican congressmen, including U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, have filed suit in U.S. District Court, challenging the constitutionality of the process employed to increase the salaries of high-level federal officials.

Boulter's lawsuit, filed jointly with U.S. Rep. Bob Smith, R-N.H., Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., and the National Taxpayers' Union questions the constitutionality of an automatic pay hike enacted into law in 1967.

The law permits the president to forward congressional, executive and judicial salary increases to Congress.

The federal lawsuit specifically challenges the law's requirement that Congress may halt the salary increases only by taking action within 30 days. The lawsuit says such a procedure for increasing federal salaries amounts to unconstitutional delegation of authority to the president.

"The fact that the House leadership prevented a vote on increasing government salaries is proof that the politicians in Washington want to avoid accountability to the people by hiding behind a law passed in 1967," Boulter said in a prepared statement. "This procedure is an abuse of the democratic process."

DPS to challenge Crossroads owner over trucks' titles

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

No date has been set for a hearing planned before a Pampa magistrate to determine ownership of three trucks seized when a local salvage yard was shut down for alleged participation in an auto theft ring.

Precinct 2 Justice of the Peace Wayne Roberts said today that he will set a date upon receiving a formal request for the hearing from Larry Kuceruk of the Texas Department of Safety auto theft division in Hurst.

The fate of two wreckers, a pickup truck and a Jeep frame, valued at $21,000 and seized from Crossroads Auto Salvage last year, is scheduled to be decided at the hearing.

The three vehicles and the frame are among the 111 items listed in a letter of demand mailed to Gray County officials this week by attorneys for Woody and Andrea Mitchell, owners of the salvage yard at 120 S. Hobart.

The letter requests payment of about $170,000 in damages and attorney's fees from Gray County for items that were seized when the Mitchells, of 1105 Christine, and the salvage lot were indicted last year on charges of participating in an auto theft ring that authorities said stretched from the Panhandle to the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

Former Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton had seized the property, claiming the Pampa salvage lot was a "criminal instrument." Authorities alleged that vehicle identification numbers were being taken off wrecked vehicles at the Pampa salvage yard and placed on vehicles reported stolen from Garland.

All Gray County charges were dismissed in December for what District Attorney Guy Hardin called insufficient evidence, and the lot was subsequently returned to the Mitchells.

However, Mitchell claims that Salesman wants to oust incumbent

Voters in the Pampa Independent School District now will have at least two contested races to decide when they go to the polls April 4.

A fifth school board candidate, Steve D. Phillips, 36, 2220 N. Christy, has filed for one of the panel's three positions set for election this term.

Phillips filed Thursday for Place 3 on the board, the seat currently held by board President Dr. Robert Lyle. Lyle, 57, 1827 Grape, had already filed for a fifth term on the board.

Phillips, a salesman for Perfex Chemical Co., said he filed because he has children in the school system and wants to get involved. He has lived in Pampa eight years.

The biggest problem currently facing Pampa schools, Phillips said, is the district budget. He said potential budget problems will affect all facets of district programs and require careful study.

Cabbies report seeing Waite with Arab gunmen in Beirut

By MOHAMMED SALAM
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Two taxi drivers said they saw 10 gunmen and four turbaned Shiite Moslem sheiks escorting Anglican envoy Terry Waite through a southern Beirut suburb as the missing hostage negotiator waved at onlookers.

"I stopped my taxicab to watch, but the escorts waved me away, shouting: 'Don't stop. Drive on.' I did," said one of the two drivers who reported seeing Waite walking in a street close to Beirut's airport highway at about 3 p.m. Thursday.

"I saw him smiling and waving his hand to onlookers as he walked. He wore a gray raincoat," said one of the witnesses. "I haven't the slightest doubt about his identity. I know him and I saw him this afternoon."

Waite wore a raincoat when he was last seen by reporters Jan. 20 leaving the seaside Riviera Hotel in west Beirut to meet with members of the pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad, Islamic Jihad, made up of Shiite Moslem extremists, has been holding Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland since 1985.

Waite, Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie's personal emissary, has not contacted the church or his family since Jan. 20. There have been several unconfirmed reports he was seen, including in east Lebanon's Bekaa valley.

New jobs keep rate steady

By MATT YANCEY
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON — The economy created 375,000 to 400,000 jobs last month to hold the civilian unemployment rate at 6.7 percent, its lowest in nearly seven years, the government said today.

The number of unemployed Americans, meanwhile, rose by 74,000 to 8,023,000 after dipping below 8 million for the first time since mid-1981.

The job gains almost mirrored a growth in the labor force of 450,000. In December, the labor force had dropped by 90,000 and the jobless rate fell 0.2 percentage point from November's 6.9 percent.

The Labor Department said the normal seasonal decline in employment after the Christmas buying season did not develop this year. For instance, employment in retail stores and restaurants grew by 165,000 in January after seasonal adjustments.

"Because pre-Christmas hiring this season was less than in the past, post-holiday job cutbacks were smaller than usual," the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Without the seasonal adjustment process, however, the bureau reported an actual drop of 650,000 in retail trade jobs.

Construction employment also declined less than in a normal January — by 225,000. After seasonal adjustments, that job total rose by 140,000.

"Construction activity was more vigorous than usual, in part reflecting favorable weather conditions and a surge in building permits that occurred at the end of last year," said Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, in testimony before Congress.

Manufacturers added 3,000 jobs, seasonally adjusted, much fewer than the 41,000 December job gain, but still the fourth straight monthly increase.

Those job gains came in the lumber, printing and chemical industries, offsetting losses in the metal, machinery, auto and electrical industries.

After retail trade, the largest job gain was posted by business and medical services, 115,000.

"The data for January show weakness in manufacturing, but strength elsewhere in the economy," Norwood told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Comparing the current economic recovery after the 1981-82 recession to the same period following the 1973-75 recession, Norwood said the number of factory jobs created in the 1970s was more than double those of the current recovery.

The bureau's survey of nearly 60,000 households showed an employment growth of 375,000.

Challenge

roughly $93,000 in property is missing, "due to theft, misappropriation or confiscation."

The disputed trucks and frame are currently being stored at Bob's Wrecker Service, 900 E. Frederic.

DPS investigator Kuceruk, who worked on the cases involving Crossroads, said Thursday that he is confident that the Mitchells won't be able to prove ownership of at least the two wreckers. Kuceruk continues to maintain that the wreckers confiscated from Crossroads had been stolen. The DPS spokesman claimed that evidence against the Mitchells and Crossroads is substantial, despite Hardin's dismissal of the charges against them.

The letter, demanding return of the Crossroads property or monetary damages, was sent to county officials this week by Amarillo attorney Robert Garner. The legal claim asks the county to settle for $170,000 or risk facing a $1.25 million lawsuit in federal court.

The demand letter accuses the county of letting former prosecutor Hamilton's "improprieties run rampant" and threatens to seek an additional $100,000 for "mental anguish" and $1 million in punitive damages if a settlement is not reached.

"I have been retained by Woody Mitchell since Jan. 30, 1986, simply waiting for the county to realize that it has done illegal acts through the good offices of David Hamilton, who in my opinion has conspired with others to bring about this fiasco," Garner wrote in the letter to County Judge Carl Kennedy.

Garner has been unavailable for comment since Thursday but has said that declaring the salvage yard a "criminal instrument" violated his client's civil rights.

Hamilton, who took a job as a prosecutor in the Lubbock County District Attorney's office after Hardin fired him in early December, said Thursday that he had not seen a copy of the letter but added that he expected a suit to be filed after the Crossroads cases were dismissed.

"Garner had bragged around for six or eight months that he was going to sue somebody over that," Hamilton said.

Hamilton said the Crossroads cases were strong but got bogged down behind other major cases pending at the time.

"I thought it was a pretty good case," Hamilton said. "There's some mental anguish going on, but I'm not sure Woody Mitchell's got it all."

But Hardin said he, too, could find no legal precedent for declaring the salvage lot a "criminal instrument." He also has criticized Hamilton's multiple-indictment strategy.

The criminal instrument label was what Hamilton gave to the salvage yard in order to seize the property by court order early last year.

Judge Kennedy said this morning that he plans to inform commissioners of the letter at their Feb. 13 meeting but said no action will be taken until commissioners can get more information from Hardin. He said the letter involves "events done without the county's knowledge or consent."

"At this point, we're needing to get enough information to know where we are," Kennedy said from his hotel room in Lubbock, where he is attending a judicial training seminar. "It happened in his (Hardin's) office, and he's the one that needs to take the lead. We will be looking to him for input to even consider what to do."

Kennedy said he has informed the county's liability insurance company of the letter.

The judge confirmed a statement made in Garner's letter that Hamilton signed a $100,000 bond on behalf of the county "under color of authority," without Kennedy's consent. Kennedy said he did not know anything about the bond, which was approved by District Judge Don Cain, until Garner mentioned it during a telephone conversation.

Pay

solution disapproving the pay raise last week and attached it to a House-passed measure providing $50 million in emergency aid to the homeless.

Area political leaders reacted with anger to the federal pay increase.

Gray County Republican Chairwoman Susan Triplehorn called the raise a disgrace, but added "the Democrat-controlled House did what was expected."

"They're making us all think that they did not vote for the pay raise, but by not voting to do away with it before deadline, they passed it," Triplehorn added.

But Gray County Democratic Chairwoman Susie Wilkerson responded that "the Republicans will be cashing their checks just as quickly as the Democrats."

"It was disappointing but not surprising," Wilkerson said. "It's just politicians."

Wilkerson said the money would be better spent caring for elderly Americans.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, a Republican, said from his Lubbock motel room this morning that "it was very poor timing for anyone in government to get more of the taxpayers' money for himself."

Kennedy was away attending a training seminar.

"They want us all to tighten our belts, and we have been," said local Democratic Party leader Ruth Osborne. "The state legislators cannot raise their pay without a vote of the people," Osborne said, adding that the state legislators are underpaid.

"I know it costs more to live in Washington, D.C., but the congressmen all drive nice cars, and the senators have chauffeurs," Osborne added.

Boulter's aide, Ernie Houdashell of Amarillo said Thursday that he knows of no other congressmen taking such action, "but he will probably get more co-signers."

Triplehorn applauds Boulter's suit, but she questioned whether it will change anything. Wilkerson was not aware of Boulter's lawsuit.

"But I'm glad he did it," Wilkerson said.

Waite

Riviera hotel where Waite stayed after arriving Jan. 12 on his fifth mission seeking to free foreign hostages.

The drivers said that before his disappearance they frequently saw Waite strolling along the beach or traveling in motorcades to meet with Moslem religious and militia leaders.

In London, Runcie's spokeswoman Eve Keatley said: "We have no information to confirm a report circulating this evening that Terry Waite has been seen in Beirut under armed guard."

"Also, we certainly have heard nothing to suggest a report in a German newspaper that Mr. Waite has been involved in a shooting incident is true," she said.

She was referring to a report by the West German mass-circulation newspaper Bild that quoted unidentified "Beirut security circles" as saying Waite was shot and critically wounded when he tried to escape from captivity in Lebanon. The newspaper, in a report prepared for today's editions, did not say when the alleged shooting occurred or provide other details.

Shiite and Druse militia officials in Beirut scoffed at the newspaper report.

"It's absolute fantasy," said one militia official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity.

Also Thursday, police and military officials in Beirut denied rumors that U.S. Marines were landing in Lebanon with plans to attack Shiite guerrillas.

"We have had no report of any such attack anywhere in Lebanon, yet," a police official said. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

A flotilla of more than two dozen U.S. warships and support vessels sailed into the eastern Mediterranean this week. The ships were stationed 50 to 100 miles off Lebanon's coast, apparently in response to rising tensions in the Middle East and the kidnapping of 11 foreigners in Beirut in January.

The Reagan administration announced Thursday that the aircraft carrier USS Kennedy would begin a port call in Israel today and four of its escort warships had been ordered to sail for home.

"We're dropping back a bit because our presence there is being blown out of proportion with rumors of invasions," one U.S. official said.

Beirut's leftist As Safir newspaper today quoted Karin Brutents, the visiting deputy chief of the International Department of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee, as saying any American military intervention would have "dire consequences" for U.S.-Soviet relations.

Phillips' filing leaves only dentist Keith Teague, 39, 2525 Beech, without an opponent in the April election. Teague filed two weeks ago for the Place 1 seat being vacated by trustee Wallace Birkes.

In Place 2, where trustee Darville Orr has also announced he will not seek another term, Dwight Crocker, 33, 429 Doyle, and Jack Gindorf, 35, 2339 Cherokee, have filed for election, setting up at least a two-man race for that seat.

School Business Manager Jerry Haralson said the filing deadline for the election is midnight March 4 at the school business office, 321 W. Albert.

Potential candidates must be 18 years old, a resident of Texas 12 months and a resident of the district six months, by the start of the term on April 7. They must be registered voters and cannot be convicted felons or judged mentally incompetent, Haralson said.

There is no filing fee. All terms are for three years.

The election will be held at the Pampa High School band room, and polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Speaker Lewis opposes vocational education cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Gib Lewis says he can agree to some of the cuts Gov. Bill Clements is recommending in education, but not those that could damage vocational education programs.

"There are some (cuts in public education) that I might go along with," Lewis said Thursday. "I'd certainly hate to see us fight the way we have over the last several years to really place forward a good education format for quality education in Texas."

"And I hate all of a sudden when we've gotten to this point to start backing up, and that concerns me," Lewis added.

Lewis said earlier in a brief news conference that he opposed Clements' proposal to reduce the amount of state money spent on vocational education.

In his budget proposal for 1988-89, Clements said vocational education is "vital to the development of a diverse and skilled work force," but he added that studies have shown it "is not as streamlined or focused as it should be."

His proposed budget would reduce the program's allotment by $125 million over the next two years.

"I think the vocational program is a very important program for Texas and particularly rural Texas — that's where I think vocational programs really have the greatest impact. And I think if we make that degree of cuts in our vocational program, we'd be doing a great deal of harm."

Asked if he felt as strongly about the no pass, no play provision as maintaining funding for public education, Lewis said everything can use some fine tuning.

"I don't think that no pass, no play will have that much significance as long as you have some degree of no pass, no play," he said. "The time period, you can debate that all day long."

Clements suggested Wednesday that the suspension period from extracurricular activities for students failing a class be reduced from six weeks to three.

"I'm more concerned about funding the kindergarten programs, the vocational programs — those programs, that's what I'm more concerned with than I am with the no pass, no play," Lewis said.

In other matters, Lewis predicted a proposal for "merit selection," or a system of appointing judges, would have a fair chance of passing the House.

"I think most members realize the system needs to be changed," he said. "Now whether the system will be merit selection or non-partisan (election), I don't know. But I think some bill — one of the two — will come out of the House."

The House and Senate on Thursday referred bills to committees and adjourned until Monday.

Texas prisons remain closed another day

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Prisoners are being given mattresses on the floor in two county jails, but despite the release of more than 100 inmates, officials said the population in state prisons remained too large to accept more convicts today.

The prison system remained closed Thursday, a day after officials said the number of inmates had surpassed a 95 percent of capacity limit set to curb crowding.

It was the second time in a month prison doors were closed to new admissions.

On Wednesday, the Texas Department of Corrections' 26 units were closed when the population reached 38,472, or 95.21 percent of capacity — 86 inmates over the cap.

The closing came after 200 inmates were admitted, but only about 68 were released, pushing the population even higher in the nation's second largest prison system. Wednesday's midnight count, announced Thursday, was 95.34 percent, or 38,523 inmates — 135 over the limit.

About 120 were released Thursday, officials said.

"We'll have to have a few more days like that," TDC spokesman Charles Brown said. "Actually, it would be good if we had a week like that."

Brown said new prisoners would not be accepted today. The prison system traditionally does not receive prisoners during the weekend.

Although interim prison director James Lynaugh sent a teletype message to all Texas sheriffs informing them the system was closed, Hunt County deputies showed up at the prison system's Diagnostic Center in Huntsville Thursday with four inmates. A guard posted at the gate turned them away.

"The TDC said they would take ours this week because we hold some of their inmates here from time to time," Hunt County Sheriff's Department Lt. Neil Dent said.

"I'm full here," he said, referring to his county jail. "Our jail holds 81 and we had 79 this morning, not counting the four we sent to TDC."

Dallas and Tarrant — two other high-population counties — were assigning county jail inmates mattresses on the floor rather than bunks, but officials anticipated no serious problems unless the state prison closing was prolonged.

"If they will be down the rest of the week, we can handle that even though the numbers will start building," Dallas County spokesman Jim Ewell said. "If the shutdown continues for two weeks, then we are in the red zone."

Other sheriff's departments around the state said the prison closing was causing no immediate problems.

"We anticipate this present shutdown will be for only a short time," said Mark Keller, director of the detention bureau for Harris County, the state's most populous. "I think the impact for the near future will be minimal."

Harris County, which has a 4,400-inmate jail, had scheduled 35 prisoners for delivery to the state Thursday.

"We are holding our deliveries," Keller said. "We certainly can accommodate 35 more inmates."

"We are overcrowded, but we already shipped our inmates to the TDC earlier in this week," Bexar County Sheriff Harlon Copeland said. "We will manage OK."

The prison system closed its doors early last month after topping the 95 percent mark set by the Legislature in 1983 as a result of a federal judge's order to ease inmate crowding.

And in 1982, the system was shut for a week because it had too many inmates and not enough beds.

Trusty camps for minimum security inmates and a new maximum security prison are under construction to ease the population crisis, but those facilities, which will add about 4,200 beds, will not open until later this year.

Dallas National bank declared insolvent

DALLAS (AP) — This city's only black-owned and black-managed financial institution, Sunbelt National Bank of Dallas, has been closed by federal regulators due to management and lending problems, officials said.

Robert J. Herrmann, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision in the office of the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, declared the bank insolvent about 3 p.m.

"From my estimation, Sunbelt provided an alternative financial avenue for the black community," said Sunbelt president Arlander Jones.

"There are segments of the black community that don't have access to capital. One of the things Sunbelt did was service that segment," Ms. Jones told The Dallas Morning News. "A section of the city now will not be serviced."

Ms. Jones said the FDIC has received several bids to purchase the bank.

The bank is the fifth to be closed in Texas this year. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was appointed as receiver, officials said.

"At this point we are attempting to arrange a transaction with another institution," FDIC spokesman Stephen Katsanos said late Thursday afternoon. He said a buyer might not be found until Friday morning.

Sunbelt was the 20th bank to be closed nationwide this year, compared with seven the same time last year, Katsanos said. Overall in 1986 there were 26 banks closed in Texas and 138 shut down nationwide, he said.

Frank Vance, a spokesman for the comptroller's office, said the bank's problems primarily resulted from inadequate oversight by its board of directors and liberal lending practices by former management. Sunbelt National was chartered on Sept. 15, 1983, with initial capital of $1.8 million, Vance said.

Vance said the bank began experiencing loan-related problems in 1984, mainly as a result of speculative lending to borrowers located outside the bank's market area.

In January 1986, four bank directors provided $1.6 million in additional capital which averted insolvency, Vance said in a prepared statement.

"Despite the injection, current management was unable to remedy the bank's problems and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency," Vance said.

The bank had assets on Dec. 31, 1986, of about $11.4 million and deposits of $11.8 million.

The bank is not associated with Sunbelt Savings & Loan or Sunbelt National Mortgage.

Merit selection of state's judges proposed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas voters would have the final say on changing the state's method of selecting its judges under legislation introduced in both the House and Senate.

Backers of "merit selection" of the judiciary said Thursday they were proposing a constitutional amendment because they believe Texans want a change from the present election method.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, told a news conference that if the measure wins legislative approval, voters would still have a chance to cast ballots.

"This gives voters a chance to say before there is any change if they want anything changed," said Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

Other sponsors of the measure, which stemmed from findings of the Committee of 100 for Merit Selection of Judges, are Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, and Reps. Terrell Smith, R-Austin, and Bruce Gibson, D-Cleburne.

The panel was named by Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis. Twelve public hearings were held throughout the state.

The sponsors said their proposed amendment would let voters decide the judge-selection issue this November. Bills also have been introduced in the House and Senate to put the plan into effect Jan. 1, 1989, if the constitutional change is made.

Under the plan, there would be 29 nominating commissions to select three nominees for each judge's position, from district court to the Texas Supreme Court. The governor then would appoint one of the three, subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Official language and other topics

Off Beat

By Fred Parker

There seems to be considerable discussion recently on the topic of making English the official language of the United States.

In at least one state — California — voters have overwhelmingly approved in a general referendum a law to make English the official state language.

Now it seems the movement has moved to that city of confusion located on the Potomac River. In the House of Representatives 18 members have introduced a measure, officially known as HJRes 83, to make English the country's official language.

The measure is described as a way to end the conflicting signals in the nation's language policies. It is noted persons from other countries desiring to become naturalized citizens must now demonstrate an ability to speak and write in English.

Such a law might be a good idea. At least there would continue to be a common language for understanding in the country, but it seems there can be some problems.

Will this mean we have to change the national motto, E Pluribus Unum ("One Out of Many")?

Or, will all of the nation's currency have to be reissued with English words for the Latin phrases Annuus Coepit ("He Has Smiled on Our Undertakings") and Novus Ordo Seclorum ("A New Cycle of the Ages.")

Recently several people have been asking about the youngest member of the Parker clan — the "little guy" who changed his name from Jimmy to

Mike on his second birthday and made it stick.

So, now that he is a "big boy" at that great age of being mid-way between three and four, he has decided the name Jimmy isn't so bad. He told his mother the other night that since he is a big boy now it would be okay to call him Jimmy sometimes.

One of his latest escapades occurred several weeks ago. It seems Mike and his mother were in the back yard when his 14-year-old brother David took a ladder to the front of the house to climb onto the roof to recover a frieze.

When David reached the back part of the roof he heard a voice say, "David, look at me."

Mike was standing at the front of the roof, with a bare foot on either side of the ridge. Later David told me he didn't know he could make it from one end of the house to the other in three steps, but he did.

Sharon said she didn't think much about it when Mike left her to go back into the house since he goes in and out the back door all of the time. Gates on the fenced back yard are kept locked.

But, this time Mike apparently didn't slow down and went on out the front door, up the ladder onto the front porch roof and from there onto the roof of the house.

Needless to say, when ladders are in use, we now know where Mike is at all times.

Although Sharon and I are not superstitious, we dread to see a Friday the 13th approaching. The dread is all because of David. It seems that he has had five broken bones in his life and all five injuries were received on a Friday the 13th while at school.

So with next Friday being that dreaded 13th of the month, there is a strong possibility David will stay at home.

And, if having a Friday the 13th in this month isn't enough, a check of the calendar indicates we have to go through it again next month. If we get through both of these Fridays without problems maybe we can relax until November — when there is another those dreaded Friday the 13th.

Helicopter crash kills two people

ROCKPORT (AP) — An oil company employee and a pilot were killed when the jet helicopter they were riding in plunged into the Gulf of Mexico.

The Thursday crash 12 miles east of Rockport was the second fatal crash involving by an Air Logistics helicopter in two days.

Eight helicopters, a Coast Guard jet and an oil vessel arrived at the accident minutes after a mayday call was received by Coast Guard officials.

On Wednesday, two men were killed when an Air Logistics helicopter crashed in a field and caught fire five miles west of Angleton.

The Bell Jet Ranger helicopter had been contracted by Mobil Producing, Texas and New Mexico Inc., a division of Mobil Oil Corp., said Darlene Taylor, a Mobil spokeswoman.

The four crash victims were rushed by helicopter to Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass, where two were pronounced dead.

W.E. Ballard, 39, a Mobil employee from Kingsville, died in the accident, Ms. Taylor said. The pilot, employed by Air Logistics, based in New Iberia, La., also was killed.

The pilot's name was not released pending notification of relatives.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Bar association uses government coercion

An American Bar Association panel, supposedly breaking with centuries of tradition, has recommended that lawyers lose the right to regulate themselves in certain circumstances. The ABA Commission to Improve the Tort Liability System recommended: "Discipline should be lodged in the hands of a state body and not controlled by the profession itself."

Some may view the recommendation — which is expected to encounter strong opposition at the ABA Convention in New Orleans this month — as a public-spirited admission that a panel composed only of lawyers might be perceived as a conflict-of-interest when asked to discipline their brothers and sisters at the bar. Such a view would be disingenuous.

The legal profession has thoroughly entrenched itself as a special interest group protected from competition by the power of the state. The bar associations of several states have been designated as the administrators of this power, but it is in fact government power, not anything resembling "self-regulation" by the profession. If you doubt that, try practicing as an independent paralegal handling only simple forms and documents, as a highly experienced former legal secretary in Florida did not long ago, only to be harassed unmercifully.

The lawyer's guild, like most medieval occupational guilds, functions largely to enhance the income of those in the profession by reducing competition. Most lawyers prefer that the rules dictating the education required and tests to be passed before one may be a lawyer, and the definitions of what constitutes practicing law, have the full, coercive force of law rather than relying merely on the power of persuasion or their own self-evident wisdom. That way the government can do the dirty work of putting would-be competitors out of business.

In truth, then, insofar as policing the profession is concerned, bar associations now act as an arm of the government. To claim, as does Texas Bar counsel Steve Peterson, that "self-regulation is the hallmark of our profession" is to play fast-and-loose with the meaning of words. True self-regulation would not involve using the coercive power of government, but would rely on the prestige and persuasiveness of the profession's institutions. But try getting any bar association to give up that coercive power.

What seems more likely is that the present system — in which only lawyers sit on disciplinary committees in most states — has been criticized heavily enough to become an embarrassment. By recommending that non-lawyers be permitted to sit on the boards, the ABA panel hopes to defuse criticism — and, just incidentally, become even more thoroughly entrenched as a privileged, government-protected special interest. A few more lawyers may get disciplined that way, but the profession itself should thrive.

It will be interesting to see whether any of the delegates to the ABA convention have the insight or honesty to put it in those terms.

This Dole is no pineapple

WASHINGTON — Winning a presidential campaign is as much a matter of luck as of skill, and Bob Dole has already gotten a big break. It came in the form of the White House arms scandal, which, by taking the luster off the president, has made George Bush look less like a front-runner than a sure loser. Dole, without doing anything, saw his standing in the polls climb overnight.

The Kansas senator has been lucky in other ways, too. One is that two of the first three tests in the 1988 campaign are in Iowa and South Dakota, where his Midwestern roots are bound to make a welcome contrast to Ronald Reagan's happy-go-lucky style, which produced the current mess. The last two presidents were elected for their ability to inspire rather than to govern. If the country is now ready for someone with a knack for the more prosaic demands of high office, Dole fills the bill.

No one doubts Dole's talents as a legislator, honed over 26 years in Congress. Respected on both sides of the aisle as majority and now minority leader, he has been instrumental in the passage of any number of measures, from the 1983 Social Security bailout to last year's tax reform bill. His ability isn't limited to running interference for Ronald Reagan. In 1982, as Finance Committee chairman, he forced the White House to back off from its vows and go along with a bill providing for a sizable tax increase.

But Dole's strength is also his weakness. Success on Capitol Hill requires frequent compromise, and compromise doesn't excite Republican voters. What they want is ideology, something to which Dole seems allergic. Although he supports Reagan on most matters — keeping tax rates down, aiding the contras, proceeding with Star Wars, averting protectionism, he is a conservative more by temperament than by philosophy.

This manifests itself not only in votes for food stamps and programs for the handicapped but in a general refusal to view the world through an ideological lens. If you asked Reagan what he's achieved in office, he'd talk about unleashing free enterprise and making America strong. If you asked New York Gov. Mario Cuomo what he's done, he'd talk about helping the weak and strengthening the sense of community. When you ask Dole, he talks about "providing leadership, solving problems, handling tough issues."

He is easily irritated on this subject. In a recent speech in Dallas, Dole mocked the charge that he lacks a vision: "Do I have a vision? You've got to have a vision to run for president. So you're going to have a vision. . . We're just not going to have it yet." Not the stuff of inspiration, even for the GOP's less conservative voters.

Dole has other obstacles. It is his task to prove that a Washington insider can be elected president. Since 1924, only one president (John F. Kennedy) has gone directly from Congress to the White House. The Senate is regarded by senators as the training ground for presidents, but voters don't agree. Recent campaign trails have been littered with senators who faltered — George McGovern, Edmund Muskie, Henry Jackson, Edward Kennedy, Howard Baker, Gary Hart, Walter Mondale and, don't forget, Bob Dole, who got nowhere in 1980.

What makes 1988 different for Dole? It helps that Reagan isn't running, and that neither Jack Kemp nor Pat Robertson appears to have Reagan's ability to energize true believers without alienating everyone else. Dole's best hope is to be what Richard Nixon was in 1968 — a candidate acceptable to all the party's elements, though inspiring to none.

But Dole could just as easily fall victim to the error made by other senators, namely assuming that one's stature in Washington translates into votes in Iowa or New Hampshire. The ability to make the machinery of government function may be the main consideration in choosing a sewer commissioner or even a representative in Congress, but when it comes to presidents, Americans expect more.

Dole is the quintessential Washington insider at a time when that image may help instead of hurt. If he expects to be president, though, he has to offer something more than the promise of a well-managed White House. Dole has demonstrated that he knows how to govern, but he has yet to show that he knows why.

Playing safe with morality

I don't know how you legislate morality. For centuries we have piled laws on laws seeking to "clarify" the Basic Ten. Still, the highest court in our land can't yet agree on a definition of "pornography."

According to a report in USA Today, half of all American teen-agers are no longer virgins at 17. A million of them become pregnant each year. And sociologists surrender. They give up. They say we can't expect young people to behave so the only thing to do is to hand out birth-control devices in the classroom.

TV and radio — only recently willing to accept ads for Kotex and Tampons — are now beginning to accept ads for condoms.

"Play safe," the ads say. Sex education classes in schools emphasize the same theme: "Play safe."

Education Secretary William Bennett says such teaching suggests that the only purpose of sex is pleasure. If it feels good, do it — but play safe!

Secretary Bennett says such classes are worthless "unless they teach moral values." Imagine a bureaucrat who dares to suggest that children must be taught self-restraint.

Instead of "play safe," he says, "don't play." Secretary Bennett says school board members must not be intimidated by the so-called "sex experts," that sex education in school, in order to be effective, must teach the difference between right and wrong. He says fornication is "wrong!"

And he says teachers "should be examples of good character by the way they act."

He's asking a lot. Every magazine stand and theater marquee and an increasing number of TV programs flaunt extracurricular sex.

"Moonlighting," "L.A. Law," "Dating Game," "Newlywed Game," and most any soap opera — daytime or night — features bed-hopping. Comics joke about sexual positions.

Again, I don't know how to legislate morality. I am not passing judgment on our recent years' giggling about things we used to blush about.

What I am asking is whether schools — however they try to teach self-discipline — are any match for the myriad other influences which permeate our culture.

Dr. John Green, director of adolescent medicine at Vanderbilt, says it is unrealistic to subject 12- and 13-year-olds to sex in all media plus half-dressed models selling any product and then tell those children not to act the way their role models act.

Loyal Meek once wrote in the Phoenix Gazette, "Why is it that government can dictate what goes into the mouth and nose to be sure it's not harmful — yet will permit anything to go into our ears and eyes?"

Battles in '87 upstage presidential chase

By Robert Walters

BELLE CHASSE, La. (NEA) — With the memory of the 1986 political campaigns fading rapidly, it's fashionable to focus on early maneuvering for the 1988 presidential election — but first there are some intriguing, little-noticed 1987 contests.

Voters in three states — Louisiana, Mississippi and Kentucky — elect governors in this odd-numbered year. The race in Louisiana is likely to be especially fascinating if flamboyant Democratic Gov. Edwin W. Edwards seeks re-election.

A politician characterized as irrevocable by his friends and outrageous by his enemies, Edwards has twice thwarted federal prosecutors who secured criminal indictments charging him with fraud and racketeering. The first trial ended with a hung jury and the second in acquittal.

In a recent statewide survey commissioned by the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate to ascertain voter perceptions of politicians, Edwards scored near the bottom, with 59 percent of the respondents viewing him unfavorably.

In response to another question, 42 percent of those surveyed thought he was doing a "poor" job as governor, while another 21 percent classified his performance as "not too good."

Nevertheless, some astute observers here believe he has a fair chance to win another term, in part because his notoriety will give him the advantage of name recognition in the large field of Democrats gubernatorial contenders.

The leading candidates in that field are believed to be Rep. W.J. "Billy" Tauzin, who shares Edwards' Cajun heritage, and Rep. Buddy Roemer, an articulate and formidable contender whose father was a senior aide to Edwards and was convicted on federal criminal charges in 1981.

Bowing out of the race in recent weeks were three potentially strong Republican contenders — former Gov. David C. Treen, former Rep. W. Henson Moore and Attorney General William J. Guste Jr. Their withdrawal means that Rep. Robert L. Livingston will be the leading GOP candidate.

In neighboring Mississippi, a constitutional amendment approved by the voters last November makes incumbent Democratic Gov. William Allain the first chief executive in the state's history eligible to seek a second term.

But that won't help Allain turn back a primary challenge from State Auditor Ray Mabus, whose ceaseless crusade against corrupt local government has alienated many of the state's politicians but captured the imagination of its voters.

The leading Republican candidates, according to the Southern Political Report, an authoritative Washington-based newsletter, are former state party leader Charles Pickering and businessman Jack Reed.

In Kentucky, Democratic Gov. Martha Layne Collins is constitutionally prohibited from seeking another term, but the probable Democratic field includes the lieutenant governor, Steve Beshears, and two former governors, Julian Carroll and John Brown.

Until recently, Republicans were especially enthusiastic about the prospective candidacy of attorney Larry Forgy, an unusually attractive contender who headed President Reagan's Kentucky campaigns in 1980 and 1984.

But Forgy recently withdrew, citing personal reasons and Reagan's sagging popularity. Republicans desperate for a credible substitute have implored Rep. Larry J. Hopkins to enter the race, but he has resisted.

Indeed, the Republicans' problems in Kentucky reflect the party's difficulties in Louisiana and Mississippi, where the Democratic primaries are likely to be more important than the general elections because the strongest candidates are Democrats.

Although a majority of the South's voters now almost habitually choose Republicans in presidential races and the GOP has made substantial inroads at the grassroots, Democrats still enjoy an edge in state and local races.

Boren: Casey's leaving should aid CIA-Congress relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee says he expects better relations between Congress and the CIA now that William J. Casey, "an old crony" of President Reagan, has resigned as director.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., made his comments in an interview with The Associated Press Thursday as Reagan administration officials, struggling to repair the damage from the Iran-Contra affair, renewed appeals to Congress to continue financing the Nicaraguan rebels.

A move is under way to cut off funds already appropriated in the wake of disclosure of the diversion to the Contras of proceeds from the sale of arms to Iran.

Boren said Casey's designated successor, career CIA officer Robert M. Gates, unlike Casey, "won't be an old crony... a longtime political associate" of the president, and "maybe that is good."

On another matter, Boren said he could not fully endorse legislation proposed by Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, the House Intelligence Committee chairman, which would strip the executive branch of all discretion on the question of when to notify Congress of covert acts.

Prompted by the administration's 10-month delay in telling Congress about arms sales to Iran, Stokes introduced legislation that would require prior written notice to both the House and Senate Intelligence committees of any planned covert action. Stokes would allow a 48-hour delay in notification in exceptional cases.

A 1980 law requiring timely notification of Congress of any covert action was left deliberately vague on the subject of reporting deadlines to avoid a constitutional confrontation over the president's right to withhold notice.

"We need to define what we mean by timely," said Boren. But "you can have a thousand pages of rules, and people will still find a way to get around them if they want to."

"The rules are very clear," said Boren. "They should have told us about things. But they didn't tell us."

The administration has justified its delayed notification to legislators about the arms sale to Iran on the basis of a document Reagan signed on Jan. 17, 1986, authorizing Casey to keep the operation secret from the intelligence committees.

Concerning the aid to the Contras, the president of Southern Air Transport used about $1 million from a Panamanian bank account to buy two cargo planes to help supply Nicaraguan rebels, two Canadian aircraft dealers who sold the planes have told The Philadelphia Inquirer. The sale of the two DHC-4 Caribous indicates the Miami-based carrier, formerly owned by the CIA, and its president, William G. Langton, played a larger role in supplying the Contra rebels than had previously been known, the newspaper reported in today's editions.

No smoking unless a sign says you can for federal employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The OK-to-smoke signs are not all up yet, but starting today 890,000 federal employees in 6,800 buildings officially cannot smoke unless a sign says they can.

The new rules, affecting employees in buildings owned or leased nationwide by the General Services Administration, aim to minimize the exposure of non-smokers to second-hand smoke.

The old rules required special sections for non-smokers. Everywhere else, smoking was allowed.

Now the presumption has shifted in favor of the 70 percent of the employees who do not smoke. Smoking is banned in offices, corridors, meeting rooms and public areas unless a sign says otherwise.

Although the GSA — the government's house-keeping agency and landlord — announced the guidelines two months ago, many government offices, including the White House, the Department of Energy, the Commerce Department and the Veterans Administration, are still formulating their plans.

Orders for signs, more than 27,000 so far, are still being received, said Gene Gillespie, sign group manager for Federal Prison Industries Inc., which manages shops in federal prisons that make the signs.

Despite some delays, GSA Administrator Terence C. Golden described the response as good. He said agencies that cannot meet today's deadline will be permitted to issue interim guidelines.

"Realistically we expect it will take time to get used to the rules, but we expect no more than the normal amount of startup glitches," he said.

The rules provide each agency with enough leeway to be miserly or generous with space allocated to smokers. Accommodations for them can range from an outdoor catwalk to a comfortable couch in a smoking lounge.

The Interior Department is leaving the decision to each office and is designating the wide corridors in its headquarters in Washington as smoking areas.

The approach of the Agriculture Department, according to Assistant Secretary for Administration John J. Franke Jr., "is not to make a fuss." Smoking prohibitions will apply only to "bullpen areas"; officials with enough rank to have their own offices will make their own decision, he said.

On the more restrictive side, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, which declared itself smoke-free on Jan. 1, allows no smoking in offices and provides only a few designated smoking areas, among them an outdoor catwalk.

Reagan turns 76 without fanfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, still shunning questions from reporters about the Iranian arms sale controversy, is turning 76 today without any of the fanfare that has marked some of his previous birthdays in the White House.

First lady Nancy Reagan said Thursday there will be a big birthday cake on the table as she and the president celebrate with friends tonight in a White House dining room.

Some of Reagan's past birthdays have been celebrated in public, with Mrs. Reagan bringing a cake into the White House briefing room or onto the stage at a speaking event. No public appearances were scheduled for today.

Mrs. Reagan told reporters the president, who has had no give-and-take sessions with journalists in recent weeks, would wait until he had more information before answering questions about the crisis brought on by secret arms sales to Iran.

But she scoffed at stories that have appeared suggesting that Reagan, the oldest man ever to serve as president, might be slipping mentally.

"I thought they were ridiculous," she said. "And anybody who has been in meetings with him lately would tell you the same thing."

The first lady suggested that her husband's recuperation from his prostate surgery on Jan. 5 might also be a reason that he has not scheduled any news conferences or other opportunities for reporters to query him.

She said he was "all recovered" from his surgery, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that, although in "excellent health," the president will continue on an abbreviated schedule for a few more weeks.

"The president still has a restricted schedule but his recovery is proceeding exceptionally well. He is gradually assuming a heavier daily schedule," Fitzwater told reporters.

Crash investigators check tip Conrail crew watching TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — Authorities began dragging a river near the recent Amtrak accident in Maryland in search of a television after a tipster raised the possibility that two train crewmen involved in the crash were watching a football game.

The National Transportation Safety Board disclosed Thursday that an anonymous telephone caller urged authorities to look at a certain location of the river near Baltimore, saying someone was seen throwing a television into the water shortly after the Amtrak train collided with a Conrail locomotive.

A National Football League playoff game between the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers began about 30 minutes before the Jan. 4 accident, and several dramatic plays occurred in the minutes just before the collision.

A spokesman for the Baltimore County Police Department said divers stopped searching the Gunpowder River near the accident site late Thursday afternoon without finding anything but that a resumption of the search has not been ruled out.

Investigators have been focusing on the conduct of the Conrail engineer, Ricky Gates, and brakeman, Edward Cromwell, whose locomotive ran a series of signal warnings before skidding into the path of the Amtrak passenger train. Sixteen people were killed and 175 injured in the accident.

John Rehor, chief NTSB investigator in the accident, said any conclusion that the two Conrail crewmen may have been watching television in the locomotive cab remained "highly speculative."

There had been unconfirmed rumors earlier that the two crewmen may have been listening to the game on radio, although that also has never been confirmed, according to sources close to the investigation.

At this point there is "nothing to contradict" statements made by both Gates and Cromwell during interviews with investigators denying that they were listening to the football game, Rehor said.

NTSB spokesman Bill Bush said the agency received an anonymous tip this week that shortly after the accident someone, believed to be one of the crewmen, was seen dumping a television into the river, which is within easy walking distance of the accident site.

"We're trying to check that out... This may amount to something or it may not," Bush said.

The investigation into Amtrak's worst accident has focused on the conduct of Gates and Cromwell before the accident in light of drug tests that showed both men had marijuana in their systems at the time of the accident.

Investigators have said they have yet to determine whether either of the two men were impaired by the drug, however.

Gates' locomotive approached the track interchange at about 62 mph despite a warning signal.

Judge orders international drug dealer held

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The location of a Colombian brought here to face charges he heads the world's largest cocaine smuggling ring is being kept secret to prevent any rescue attempts, authorities said.

"Anytime you have a billionaire trafficker with a violent past, you have to be careful," U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Billy Yout said in Miami, explaining the heavy security surrounding Carlos Lehder Rivas.

The 37-year-old self-proclaimed Nazi was captured by Colombian troops in a shootout at his jungle mansion Wednesday and flown here by U.S. Air Force jet, arriving early Thursday.

WJXT-TV in Jacksonville reported Thursday evening that he was being held at one of five military bases in the Jacksonville area.

An FBI agent contacted by The Associated Press at the Jacksonville office refused to release any information on Lehder's location. The agent did not give a name.

U.S. Magistrate Elizabeth Jenkins on Thursday ordered Lehder held for a formal hearing Monday in Jacksonville.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Destination Unknown

These super highways, these interlocking cloverleaves of shiny concrete that crisscross our land are an amazing marvel of our nation's engineering. And yet for all the time and inconvenience they save unless we know exactly where we are going they can become a confusing maze... a motorist's nightmare.

We can easily compare our lives to the automobiles that travel these highways. A driver without a known destination in mind, a motorist that does not know where he is going, a man without a map or a guiding plan is soon lost amid the complex interchanges. And so it is with life. Each of us has but one true destination and that is toward God and His promise of Eternal Life. The church, your church, is the guidepost that lights the way; it is the sign on the highway that points the route. Give your life a known destination... Go to the church of your choice.

The Church is God's appointed agents in the world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persist, and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Church plans film series on parenting

A six-part film series on parenting will begin Sunday at First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson.

Entitled Turn Your Heart Toward Home, the series will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday, with additional showings in the series showing at the same time for the five subsequent Sundays.

Director of Membership Shirley Winborne said the public is invited to attend the series, with refreshments of soft drinks and popcorn to be served at 5 p.m. by the Membership Department.

The film series features Dr. James and Shirley Dobson, presented by Word Publishing and Focus on the Family Inc.

The six films included in the series are A Father Looks Back, Power in Parenting: The Young Child, Power in Parenting: The Adolescent, The Family Under Fire, Overcoming a Painful Childhood and The Heritage.

Citing examples, the Dobsons portray the pressures faced by today's parents while challenging them to return to traditional family values. The stress of the series is on the protecting and strengthening of family relationships.

Dr. Dobson is a licensed psychologist, teacher and author of nine best-selling books. He served for 14 years as associate clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of Southern California and was on the attending staff of Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

Currently, he is president of Focus on the Family, a non-profit corporation dedicated to the preservation of the home.

A graduate of Pasadena College, Mrs. Dobson has taught in the Hudson and Arcadia, California, school districts for seven years. Choosing to become a full-time mother and homemaker after the birth of her first child, she has been active in recent years in a variety of Christian endeavors.

Mrs. Dobson has served as director of women's ministries for a large evangelical church and as a leader in Bible Study Fellowship groups.

For more information on the film series, contact Winborne at 669-3225.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: My soul yearns, even faints for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh cry out for the living God. (Psalm 84:2 NIV)

A typical spoiled American, I occasionally find myself a victim of my self-indulgence, overweight and under-disciplined. I distinctly remember one particular effort to lose weight.

I had no more than determined to lose 10 pounds when a Mars candy bar television commercial wormed its way into my mind. For the duration of the diet, the mental image of the sight and taste of Mars candy bars haunted me, even in my dreams. No substitute satisfied my craving for a Mars bar; only the genuine article eased the sensation of deprivation.

People who do not have the Lord in their lives suffer a much deeper sensation of deprivation. So do Christians who are walking away from God instead of with Him.

Unfortunately, such people rarely have a clearly defined image of Him whom they crave. In their effort to fill the void, they scramble for material wealth, social acceptance, power and success in the business world and-or public acclamation.

The abyssal emptiness is the result of spiritual starvation and can be satisfied only by the acknowledgement of the deity and sovereignty of the Lord God and the savoring of His presence within.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A Roman Catholic bishop and a Jewish leader say a new era of harmony and understanding has opened between Catholics and Jews.

Terming Catholics spiritual "Jews or Hebrews," Charleston's Bishop Ernest L. Untermyer told a symposium at Synagogue Emanu-El that while it was "once common for Catholics to consider the Jewish people responsible for Jesus' death, it is sinful to teach that today."

He and Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, the American Jewish Committee's international relations director, voiced confidence of a common Jewish-Catholic front against racism, persecution and other social injustice.

Pampam pens religious book

A Pampa resident has published what he calls "a truthful but controversial book on Bible truth" as a result of five years of research, Bible study and writing.

Paul T. Buchanan Sr. has published Love — The Scarlet Harlot: A Dissertation on Spiritual Warfare, through Quarterion Ministry in Pampa.

Buchanan has been a Pampa resident for 36 years and a Christian for 57 years.

The author claims his book presents Bible truth "in opposition to anti-Christian truth that is preached unknowingly in all churches."

Buchanan says the final result of the false preachings and other events will be "a holocaust encountering citizens, organized churches and organized government now under the guarantee of the U.S. Constitution."

Claiming he received an anointing power and command to write on Jan. 31, 1982, Buchanan says his book aims to "bring a renewal of the mind and the heart with Christ's gospel, not man's gospel, for our brainwashed, denominational Christians."

Buchanan said, "I have stood aside and watched while the basic human loyalties — loyalty to God, loyalty to country and loyalty to family — were being destroyed by evil forces which now permeate every segment of American life. I have had enough, but I shall no longer refuse to get involved."

In his book, Buchanan writes of what he feels has created problems with Christian faith and doctrines in America and other nations, including a plethora of denominations and communist subversions.

He notes that the 1986 World Almanac states there are 310,000 churches and 350,000 clergymen preaching every week to 61 percent of the U.S. population.

"The New Testament says that Christ has grouped us into seven churches, but now we have 350 different denominational churches in America. This reflects a possible 350 errors of disagreement and interpretation," Buchanan claims.

"Christ gave America just one and only one Gospel," he claims. "The Reds saw this as one great opportunity for propagandizing to take over America without firing one shot."

Buchanan says many clergymen are "so gullible and with closed minds relative to spiritual discernment" that they "fail to even try to prove their denomination may be in error."

He adds, "With church members repeating the enemy's subversion that they hear from their clergymen, then repeating this subversion they hear to their children, then it is evident that we all become guilty of enemy subversion."

Buchanan claims churches "are now on a sled going downhill into a bottomless pit." But "our Messiah will allow His Last Tribulation period and the Great Tribulation to come upon us to correct our disobedience and redeem us."

Buchanan says his book is a challenge to clergymen who desire "at internal fire of the Lord within their soul." He claims his book "will bring truth, confession and repentance" and challenges the clergy "to read my book and prove me wrong. I ask that the clergy start being honest in the pulpit."

Inquiries concerning Love — The Scarlet Harlot may be addressed to P.O. Box 2738, Pampa, TX 79065.

Christian unity goals elusive

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Working for Christian unity has become thoroughly institutionalized, a part of the organizational machinery of virtually every major church body and of liaison units among them.

But as the special week approaches, Jan. 18-25, when Christians around the world pray, as Jesus did, "that they may all be one . . . so that the world may believe," the goal is seen as still elusive and perhaps fading.

Some say the effort has sagged at a critical impasse.

"We are at an ecumenical crossroads," says the Rev. William T. Rusch, ecumenical director for the Lutheran Church in America.

The doctrinal dialogues continue among denominational theological teams, Protestant,

Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox, and the "convergence" agreements proliferate, but without steps implementing them.

What's needed, says the veteran United Methodist ecumenist, the Rev. Albert C. Outler, is some sort of intercommunion "that could authenticate the oneness in Christ that so many feel is now so near and yet still so far."

His comments, and those of a wide variety of others, came in the January issue of Ecumenical Trends, published by Catholicism's Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, of Garrison, N.Y.

It coordinates the week of prayers for unity together with the doctrinal commission of the Protestant-Orthodox World Council of Churches.

"Reconciled to God in Christ," is the theme for the week taken from Second Corinthians 5:17-20, to be used in thousands of church services, many of them on an ecumenical basis.

The observance is sponsored in this country by units of the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, and by the U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' conference.

In the compendium of comments, Lutheran theologian Martin Marty of the University of Chicago says churches are bound to remain "rich in diversity" that won't be blended into sameness.

But he adds they must also "remain in the process of convergence, always moving toward each other and union in Christ," demonstrating their "mutual acceptance, shared ministries and witness."

He says Christianity's "real divisions are within and across" denominational lines, not so much between them.

Church gets interim pastor

Rev. Robert Graham, the interim pastor at First Presbyterian Church, will be the first to admit he's just passing through.

Graham began his interim pastorate Sunday, replacing Rev. Joe Turner, who is now pastoring in Odessa. Graham and his wife Peg moved to Pampa in late January.

A Texas native, Graham received a degree in philosophy from Texas Tech University at Lubbock and his doctorate from Princeton Seminary. He was ordained in Pennsylvania and served churches there and in central and south Texas before retiring from fulltime ministry seven years ago.

Since his retirement, he has been interim pastor of churches in Freeport, Conroe, Navasota and Crockett.

Graham sees a two-fold ministry in his work.

"First, I am a breaker of old wine skins, if those old skins need breaking," Graham said, explaining that one of his tasks is to look at the congregation's long-held practices and see what needs changing.

"I'm also a John the Baptist — always to point to the person coming, the person who will be their fulltime pastor," he added.

Graham said an interim pastor's average length of service is six months, a period which enables the congregation to untie the bonds from a former pastor.

Rev. Graham is used to 'just passing through'

Witnesses plan circuit assembly

"Joyfully Enduring Trials Gains God's Approval" will be the theme of the two-day Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium.

Doug Collins, local minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, estimated attendance for the convention will be more than 2,000, with delegates from 20 congregations in Northeastern New Mexico and the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandles.

Robert L. Hartman will be the assembly overseer assigned to this area by the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Hartman has been an ordained minister for more than 30 years. He has served in more than 15 states, with 16½ years in Alaska and the Yukon Territory of Canada. He has been serving this area for the past two years.

Assisting with the assembly will be Ernie Morris, circuit overseer for the Texas Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico.

While speaking recently at the North Congregation in Amarillo, Hartman said, "Saturday will take up the use of the Bible and the ministry, with the highlight being the baptism of new ones."

Hartman will be the featured speaker at the Sunday 2 p.m. session. His topic will be "You Can Enjoy Life in Peace Now."

All sessions will be open to the public from 9:55 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Saturday and from 9:55 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Hartman said the public is especially invited to attend the 2 p.m. Sunday session.

'Cry From Mountain' scheduled

Cry From the Mountain, a World Wide Pictures release featuring an appearance by evangelist Billy Graham, will be shown locally at Cinema IV Theater Saturday through Thursday through the sponsorship of Central Baptist Church.

Feature times are 7 and 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, 2 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Advanced discount adult tickets are available at the church, 513 E. Francis, for $3. Children's tickets will be available at the theater door.

Cry From the Mountain, rated PG, is an Alaskan adventure film centering around the Sanders family and concerns about an imminent divorce of the parents.

Larry Sanders takes his 10-year-old son Cal on a camping trip, where he is to break the news that he and his wife Carolyn are to get a divorce. A life-threatening accident and an old hermit living in a deserted mining camp combine to change the course of the family's direction.

The wife, bitter and unable to forgive her husband for a temporary affair, is faced with the option of getting an abortion. The couple's marriage is on the brink of disaster because of Larry's affair and his wife's unwillingness to forgive.

Methodist women attend training

LUBBOCK - Representatives from the Pampa District recently attended the District Officers Training of the Northwest Conference of United Methodist Women at St. John's Methodist Church in Lubbock.

The theme for the Jan. 31 training was "United Methodist Women: A Creative, Supportive Fellowship."

Following the welcome by Inelle Bagwell, president of the Northwest Conference, a panel discussion was held on "Why United Methodist Women as People of Faith Should Be Involved in Nuclear Waste Disposal Issues," with scriptural background cited.

Officers Responsibility Group Training was conducted by conference officers. The training will be continued in local units of the Pampa District.

Officers from the Pampa District attending the training included Hallie Burrell, Shamrock, president; Mildred Hickox, Borger, vice president; Florence Blair, Borger, treasurer; and Mary Graham, Pampa, Christian Global concerns.

Also attending were Ruth Magee, McLean, Christian Social Involvement; Vida Brown, Wheeler, Publicity and Public Relations; Jyniece Lee, Fritch, Supportive Community; Mary Dwyer, McLean, Conference Nominating Committee; and Bonnie Fabian, McLean, Conference Christian Personhood.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Declaring the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, including the U.S. Episcopal Church, "have moved closer toward communion," Episcopal Presiding Bishop Edmond L. Browning told Pope John Paul II:

"We are convinced of the necessity for the churches to make peace among themselves in obedience to the prayer of our Lord."

Texts of the audience between Browning and the pope Jan. 12 show the pope in his response said, among other things:

"We thank God for the progress that has so far been made along the paths to unity of faith between the Catholic Church and the Anglican Church. May that progress continue..."

Sowed wild oats need explanation

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, while I was still in college, I got a young woman (older than I) pregnant. Marriage was out of the question, but I faced up to my responsibility and agreed to pay child support. I have since moved 500 miles away and have been paying child support ever since. Now the problem: I'm in a new area with new friends and peers, and none are aware of my past. I have fallen in love with a wonderful young lady and we're talking marriage. She is not aware of this episode in my life, and as we move closer to marriage I don't know what to say or how to say it. How should I go about letting her know about my past mistake? I just can't find the words.

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Try this: "When I was in college I fathered a child by an older woman. Marriage was out of the question, but I faced up to my responsibility and agreed to pay child support."

Be prepared for some follow-up questions such as: "Have you ever seen your child?" "Do you plan to have a relationship with this child?" And many more. Your future wife has the right to know the extent of your involvement, and the sooner you tell her, the better.

DEAR ABBY: My prayers and suggestions culled from my experience as a registered nurse have done little to aid my suffering choir director at church, who sweats profusely and noticeably while conducting us.

Who can snicker in God's house as your conductor mops his brow between movements of music, when you are facing the audience or congregation? At intermission, he pleads, "Does anyone have a cure for sweating?" The poor man looks as though he has been standing under a shower!

Can you offer a graceful solution to this awkward dilemma?
PRAYERFUL TENOR
IN PHOENIX

DEAR TENOR: Prayers won't help. Your choir director is suffering from "hyperhidrosis" — excessive sweating. He should consult a family physician, dermatologist or endocrinologist (gland specialist) — all or none of whom may be able to help him. Sweating is a natural function that can be controlled to some degree by medication, but some possible side effects could be worse than sweating, in which case it might be healthier to just sweat it out.

DEAR ABBY: I appreciate your alerting readers to various dangers — the most recent concerning children riding on escalators.

Several years ago you cautioned readers who stored their old refrigerators in their garages or basements to either turn the refrigerator with the door facing the wall, or to remove the refrigerator door so that small children could not crawl into them and have the door close behind them and suffocate to death. Recently, three young children were found dead in a refrigerator stored in a barn. Please repeat that warning. It could save lives.

CONCETTA CICERELLA,
PITTSBURGH

DEAR CONCETTA: Thanks for the reminder. Over the years I have published this warning many times, and I am grieved when I read that this type of accident has occurred again.

Readers, if you see a temporarily stored or discarded refrigerator or freezer in your neighborhood — or anywhere else — you could prevent a possible tragedy by calling the potential safety hazard to the attention of the owner, or telephoning the police department for prompt attention in eliminating the danger.

CONFIDENTIAL TO W.W. IN SANTA ANA: "There's a time to wink as well as to see" (Benjamin Franklin). Wise man, Ben. You should have been seeing instead of winking.

Stenciling adds unique touch

By Beth Cotten

Few of us have time to spare. And though the results are usually worth it, many crafts are quite time consuming.

That's why I'm such a fan of stencil decorating. It's a quick and easy way to transform any room from cold to cozy.

What's more, it is easy to master, requires no artistic abilities and costs next to nothing! You can stencil just about anything: walls, pillows, curtains, tablecloths — even the floor!

The stencil material should be fairly heavy and stiff, and non-porous. It helps if you can see through it. I used clear plastic sheets that are normally used to cover photos in an album. The heavier the material, the harder it will be to cut but the easier it will be to work with as you paint the designs.

A good latex enamel paint works well, and is a good way to use up leftover paint you may have on hand. I used ordinary blunt-ended paint brushes in 1/2- and 3/4-inch widths, and a very small artist's brush for touch-up.

To cut the stencils you will need a very sharp razor knife with a pointed blade. Purchase several extra blades — cutting the heavy stencil material is easier, cleaner and less time consuming with a sharp blade.

You'll also need masking tape, clean rags, a container of water for cleaning brushes and spills, and a hard surface on which to cut your stencils. A piece of glass is a great cutting surface, but the edges should be taped to protect your hands.

The first step is to choose a design. If you can't draw your own, look for books full of different designs at your library. The designs can be enlarged quite easily on an opaque projector, which can be found at most libraries and schools.

To cut the stencil, place the plastic material on top of your design and tape securely in place. Work slowly with the razor knife to cut out the various design elements.

You can cut separate stencils for the areas of the design you want in different colors, or cut just one stencil. If you cut just one, tape off selected areas and paint the first color, then wash the stencil and tape off other areas to paint the second color, etc.

Tape the stencil to the surface to be painted. Dip just the end of the brush in the paint and wipe off most of the paint. A drier brush (and fairly thick paint) will give the best results.

Dab the brush over the openings in the stencil — don't wipe the brush along as you would in normal painting. You want to avoid getting any paint underneath the edges of the stencil openings.

Carefully remove the stencil and inspect your work. Until you get the hang of it, you may have to touch up the edges with a small artist's brush. You'll be surprised at how quickly you become proficient at this easy craft!

Stencil decorating is a fast, easy and inexpensive way to give your home a warm, new look.

Melodrama now showing

An old-fashioned melodrama reminiscent of the early silent movies, complete with villain, hero and heroine, is now being presented at the Country Squire Dinner Theater in Amarillo.

The audience is encouraged to boo, hiss and throw popcorn at the villain and cheer for the heroine and her hero during "Dirty Work at the Crossroads," an Adventure Theater production written by Bill Johnson.

The drama's old-time flavor is enhanced by exaggerated acting from the cast members, background music throughout the show, and even a scene in which the heroine, Lily Fairlane, is tied to railroad tracks by the dastardly villain, Craven Murgatroyd. Action begins when the railroad makes plans to buy Lily's farm. Murgatroyd finds out about the deal and woos Lily in hopes that she will marry him and give him control of the money from the farm sale.

But Lily is in love with the hero, Noble Oakhart. She rebuffs Murgatroyd's advances and he retaliates by trying to get her committed to a mental institution. When this fails, he accuses Oakhart of murder and the hero is jailed on false charges.

No matter what Murgatroyd does, Lily refuses to marry him. The desperate villain then ties her to the railroad tracks, leading to the climax of the drama.

E. P. Simmons, a Pampa native, is pianist for the production. He graduated from West Texas

State University with a bachelor's degree in music education and is currently employed as a computer operator at Simmons Business Services in Pampa.

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads" is showing now through Feb. 28, Tuesdays through Saturdays. Buffet opens at 6:15 p.m.; the show begins at 8 p.m. The dinner theater is located at 135 Sunset Marketown in Amarillo.

"The Invisible Dragon," a theater presentation for children, is also being presented on Saturday afternoons now through Feb. 21 at the dinner theater. Lunch starts at 12:30 p.m., and the show begins at 1:30 p.m.

Association studies gravestones

Gravestones are excellent sources of information for the genealogist and should be recorded with as much detail as possible.

The Association for Gravestone Studies, Rosalee Oakley, Executive Director, 46 Plymouth Road, Needham, Mass. 02192, will send a pamphlet giving recommendations on the care of old gravestones to anyone requesting the material. Remember to include a self-addressed business length stamped envelope.

Membership in the association costs $15 and includes a quarterly newsletter and access to the Research Clearinghouse where researchers can discover others who are engaged in similar areas of study.

The annual conference will be June 25-28 at Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., and one of the special features will be lectures and seminars for genealogists, using gravestone data in research. For registration information, contact Mr. and Mrs. Newland Smith, Hosmer Road, Heath, Mass. 01346.

The Association has a variety of material available for purchase, including a bumper sticker, "I Brake for Old Graveyards." Eight information leaflets can be purchased as a kit or individually. Subjects include: making photographic records, symbolism in carvings, gravestone rubbings, and the care of gravestones. All items are discounted for members but can be purchased by non-members.

AGS is a national non-profit organization established to create an awareness of the importance of gravestones and the role they play in our heritage. If you have access to neglected or private family cemeteries, record the data on all the markers, including a description of the carvings, and send the material to AGS for their archives. Use of the archives, located at the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston, Mass., is available to members.

Iowa, Tennessee picked for 1987 Kickoff Classic

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
AP Football Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)—The Big Ten and Pac-10 have conference tie-ins with the Rose Bowl and it is beginning to look like the Big Ten and Southeastern Conferences are locked into the Kickoff Classic.

That's something of an exaggeration, but the Big Ten and SEC have supplied half of the 10 teams for the five Kickoff Classics, including this year's match between Iowa and Tennessee.

"In trying to develop a game like this, there are three factors to take into account," Robert E. Mulcahy III, president and chief executive officer of the New Jersey Sports & Exposition Authority, said Thursday in officially announcing the 1987 match.

"The game is based on inviting people who potentially provide excitement and an entertaining game.

"Second, we have to have a game that's balanced as far as excitement in the stands and appeal to the fans in this area.

"Third, we have to have a game that has appeal to TV."

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry reportedly told the game's sponsors the Hawkeyes could bring as many as 20,000 fans with them and Tennessee's Johnny Majors said he expects a large number of his backers to be on hand, as well.

In addition, Iowa provides a market in the populous Big Ten viewing region while Tennessee is expected to command higher TV ratings in the Southeast than Texas A&M, say, in the Southwest, according to Raycom, which televises the Kickoff Classic.

That's one of the reasons the sponsors turned to Tennessee, the sixth-place SEC team, rather than Texas A&M, the Southwest Conference champion. Under the guidelines for the game, the sponsors have two more years in which to invite a SWC team.

Last year, Alabama of the SEC defeated Ohio State of the Big Ten, 16-10, in a mistake-filled defensive struggle. The SEC also provided a participant in 1984 when Auburn lost to Miami, Fla., 20-18.

The fifth annual Kickoff Classic probably will be played the night of Aug. 31. The exact date is expected to be finalized next week when the rival coaches conduct a news conference at Giants Stadium.

Pampa Blue extends perfect w-l record

Pampa Blue ran its won-lost record to a perfect 14-0 Thursday night with a 52-36 win over Borger White in a seventh-grade boys' basketball game in the PMS gym.

Pampa Blue, 7-0 in district, was led in scoring by Paul Brown Cedrick Wilbon, both with 13 points each. Joe Yurich followed with 10 points. Brown also had 5 rebounds, 3 steals and 2 assists. Randy Nichol added 8 points and 5 rebounds while Yurich had 2 steals.

Also scoring for Pampa were Donnie Medley with 4 points and Dusty Weatherly and Phillip Sexton 2 points each.

Pampa Blue, coached by John Charles, entered the game holding its opponents to 22 points per game.

"This is the most points we've given up this year, but I was playing a lot of different kids and using different combinations," Charles said.

Pampa's fullcourt press created several turnovers, resulting in easy baskets against Borger White. Pampa also shot almost 60 percent from the floor.

Pampa Blue is closing in on an unbeaten season with two games remaining. In his 14 years of coaching, Charles said he has coached only one other unbeaten team — a JV squad in Missouri.

Pampa Blue play at Canyon Monday night and then closes out the season on the homecourt Thursday night against Valley View Silver.

"We want to try and get as many people out for that final game as we can," Charles said. "These players deserve a good crowd."

Pampa Red's seventh-graders fell to Valley View Blue 38-34 last night.

Jeff Young was Pampa's top scorer with 18 points. Also scoring for Pampa were Chad Augustine with 6 points, Ryan Erwin 4, Jeremy Ferrell 2, Brent Skaggs 2 and Brian Hall 2.

Top defensive players were Farrell and Aaron Frye, according to Coach Steve James.

The Pampa Red team has a 9-5 overall record and is 5-3 in district play. They close out the season next Thursday against Dumas Orange at Dumas.

Five players to be inducted into Basketball Hall of Fame

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—For the first time in its 28 years, all of the inductees to the Basketball Hall of Fame in one year will be players. And these five men could play.

Walt Frazier, Rick Barry and Pete Maravich, three men known for their varied styles of play during the 1970s, and Bob Houbregs and Bobby Wanzer, who played during the 1940s and 1950s, have been selected for induction into the Hall of Fame, it was announced Thursday.

In each of the previous years when the Hall of Fame announced inductions, there was at least one non-player honored. It will be all players this year when the ceremonies are held on May 5.

Frazier narrowly missed selection each of the past two years. He is the fifth player from the New York Knicks' 1973 championship to be inducted.

Frazier, who lives in his native Atlanta, joined the Knicks in 1967 after playing college ball at Division II Southern Illinois. He was named to six National Basketball Association all-star and seven all-defensive teams during his 13 years with the Knicks and Cleveland. In the 1973 championship game he had 36 points, 19 assists and seven rebounds.

Frazier's backcourtmate on that team, Earl Monroe, was among 11 persons selected by a screening committee for possible induction, but he failed to receive the 18 votes needed for election from the 24-member Honors Committee.

Barry is now a television sportscaster. He was named to all-star teams 10 times during a 14-year professional career that included four years in the American Basketball Association with Oakland, Washington and New York and 10 years in the NBA with Golden State, with which he won an NBA title, and Houston.

Maravich, the nation's top collegiate scorer for three years at Louisiana State, still holds the NCAA career scoring record of 3,667 points in 83 games, and points scored in one season, 1,381 in 1969, when he averaged 44.2 points a game.

He led the NBA in scoring in 1977. He was named to four all-star teams during his 10-year career, which included stints with Atlanta, New Orleans, Utah and Boston.

Houbregs, a three-time All-American, was the University of Washington's leading scorer in 1953, when the Huskies finished third in the NCAA tournament, scoring 49 points against Idaho, 45 against Seattle and 42 against Louisiana State. He played professionally for the Pistons, both in Fort Wayne and Detroit, the Baltimore Bullets and briefly in Boston and Milwaukee.

Before becoming general sales manager for Converse Inc., Houbregs served as general manager of the Seattle SuperSonics from 1970-1973.

Wanzer, 66, played for the Rochester Royals for 10 years before retiring in 1957. In 1962, he was named the first basketball coach at St. John Fisher College in Rochester and has held that post ever since.

Spurs closing in on winning streak mark

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—For the first time since 1981, the San Antonio Spurs have won seven in a row, putting them one game shy of a club record.

The Spurs defeated the Seattle SuperSonics, 117-111, Thursday night.

That put the team close to record eight-game streaks set in 1970 and again in the 1978-79 season. They play the Rockets Feb. 10 at Houston after the All-Star break.

"We made a few mistakes in the fourth and they pushed us a little out of our game," Spurs coach Bob Weiss said.

"We had some turnovers and missed shots (the team hit just 21 percent of its tries in the fourth), but then we steadied and held on."

The Spurs held a 70-51 halftime lead.

San Antonio led by as many as 24 points in the third quarter when the Sonics stormed back to within two points, 111-109, with 2:25 left in the game.

Forward Mike Mitchell grabbed an Alvin Robertson shot blocked by Alton Lister and fired it back in from seven feet to put the Spurs back up by four and the Sonics never got closer.

Mitchell, rumored to be on the trading block, had not seen action in the last five games.

Spurs guard Jon Sundvold scored a career-high 25 points, including two long sailing three-pointers. He fueled the Spurs engine with 10 assists, including bounce passes for the easy layups and slams.

"Jon is really a heady player and he's been playing well at both ends of the floor," Weiss said. "He shows a great deal of leadership and that's what I expect from my point guards."

David Greenwood worked his way to 18 rebounds and 20 points and had five assists.

Seattle was led by forward Xavier McDaniel with 26 points and Maurice Lucas with 22.

"San Antonio played well tonight," Seattle coach Bernie Bickerstaff said. "They had 23 points off the offensive boards in the first half, plus the fact we didn't shoot well really made it tough."

Johnson leads Sarasota Classic

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Chris Johnson thinks of herself as a pretty good mudder, one of those golfers who may not like to play in wet weather but who still performs well on soggy courses.

Those were the conditions Johnson was faced with Thursday during the first round of the LPGA's $200,000 Sarasota Classic.

"I hit some ugly shots, but I worked well with what I had," Johnson said after she shot a 5-under-par 67 at Bent Tree Country Club.

"The conditions really didn't bother me," she said. "I think they actually turned things around."

Johnson, who made adjustments in her swing to make allowances for gusting winds, led Cathy Morse by one stroke.

Pampa's Miller draws praise from coaching great

ALSO NOTED: "He's the finest sophomore athlete I've seen in a long, long while," said retired Borger coaching legend TEX HANNA. "He reminds me of our Mack Lane," he said of the Harvesters' multi-sport participant DUSTIN MILLER. In an unprecedented action, the Texas Tech faculty senate recognized Hanna's former student, Raider basketball Coach GERALD MYERS, for allowing two players to miss a pair of road games in order to remain home and study.

Former WT Buff MAURICE CHEEKS, who will perform for the East in the NBA All-Star Game this weekend, has played 300 more minutes than any of his teammates this season and is second in team scoring. ESPN deserves an award for its complete and exciting coverage of the America's Cup races. Even a landlubber had to enjoy all but the late hour.

"What are they waiting for?" asked the District 1-4A coach who has been facing the Harvesters regularly for the past 15 years, and will again next fall.

"If they can hire BILL YUNG they ought to do it right away and not waste the time of other coaches and spend money on interviews. They can't get a better one." ... ESPN missed a good story on the CBA All-Star Game telecast last weekend. Host La Crosse Catbird Coach RON EKKER was an assistant under All-Star Coach BILL MUSSELLMAN at the University of Minnesota prior to Ekker's arrival at West Texas State. Pampa girls solid third

By L.D. STRATE

Pampa girls' coach Albert Nichols doesn't have to get out a Texas map to find out where Levelland and Canyon are located. He knows exactly where those two cities are located, much to his chagrin.

Nichols feels his Lady Harvesters would be thinking about the playoffs right now if Levelland and Canyon weren't in the same district with Pampa. Levelland and Canyon are not only the number 1 and 2 teams respectively in District 1-4A, but are the top two teams in the state's Class 4A rankings.

"It's a crying shame we're in the same district with these two teams, but right now we're a solid third in a 9-team league and that's hot bad," Nichols said. "I feel like if we were in any other district we would be headed for the playoffs."

Levelland has a 26-1 record and is 13-0 in district play. Canyon is 12-1 and also 26-1 overall with the Lady Eagles only loss coming against Levelland. Canyon also handed Levelland its only loss in a tournament, so it didn't count as a district game.

How does Nichols compare the two teams?

"Levelland is a little quicker and their press is harder to break," Nichols said. "Levelland's bench is a little better and that's probably the main difference."

"We had a lot of turnovers against Canyon's Press (Pampa girls lost to Canyon 78-42 Tuesday night), but most of them came because we were forcing the ball. Levelland comes right in and steals the ball," Nichols said.

Pampa has a 9-4 record in district play with all four losses coming against Levelland and Canyon. Overall, the Lady Harvesters are 16-7 going into tonight's game against Frenship, starting at 7 p.m. in McNeely Fieldhouse.

"This is the best record a girl's team has ever had here. The girls want to buckle down and win the rest of their games," Nichols said.

Pampa just barely got past Frenship 51-45 in an earlier meeting and Nichols expects another tough game.

"Frenship has a lot of quickness and good ballhandlers," Nichols said. "They have a sophomore point guard (Rosie Lanass) who is real quick and is a good penetrator. She's good at dumping the ball off to an open player when she drives to the basket."

Frenship had 3-10 and 4-18 records going into last Tuesday night's game against Lubbock Dunbar.

Tonight's game will be the final one at home for the Lady Harvesters, who have two road games remaining — Feb. 10 against Dumas and Feb. 13 at Lubbock Dunbar.

The Pampa-Frenship boys' game follows at 8:30 p.m. tonight. Tonight's games will be aired over KSNZ radio (1340 AM) in Pampa.

Knowing a good product when they see one, U-Houston officials contacted Appalachian State AD JIM GARNER and made him say "no" three different times to their offer to head the Cougar athletic fortunes. "And it's been wild ever since then," Garner tells me. "I've been contacted by New Mexico, SMU, Maryland and North Texas. Guess turning down Houston put my name on everyone's list." Garner told three of the four "no," but will look at the other one.

Corey Pavin lines up a putt.

Pavin leads Hawaiian Golf Open

O'Grady, Renner trail by 1 stroke

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — The greens on the Waialae Country Club course have the reputation of being among the best on the PGA Tour. And history shows that scores in the Hawaiian Open, year after year, are among the lowest of the season.

All of which, Corey Pavin said, puts the premium on putting. "If you can't putt well here, you're just not going to do well in the tournament," said Pavin, the defending title-holder in this $600,000 event.

"These greens are the best I've seen. They're just getting better and better," said Pavin, winner of the Bob Hope Classic last month and the PGA Tour's leading money-winner at this early stage of the season.

And Pavin took full advantage of those good greens Thursday en route to a 7-under-par 65 for a one-shot lead over Mac O'Grady and Jack Renner after one round.

Tom Watson, once recognized as the most dangerous putter on the Tour, used an altered putting grip to shoot a 67 that left him only two off the pace and full of enthusiasm.

"It's a great feeling to make some putts again," said Watson, a five-time British Open champion who is seeking an end to a two-year non-winning string.

O'Grady and Renner shared second at 66, six under par on the windswept Waialae Country Club course.

O'Grady, winner of the Tournament of Champions that opened the 1987 season, had a 4-hole stretch that he played birdie, birdie, eagle, birdie, while Renner, a former winner here, got his spot among the leaders despite a double bogey.

Bruce Soulsby, a rookie from New Zealand was tied with Watson at 67.

Isao Aoki, the Japanese veteran who won this title with a last-hole eagle in 1983, led a group at 68 that also included Dave Eichelberger, Bill Britton and Dick Zokol.

Spring training a short flyball away

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Tim Raines could put the Los Angeles Dodgers back on top. Bob Horner might do the same for the Toronto Blue Jays and Lance Parrish would give the St. Louis Cardinals a chance.

Rich Gedman could fill a hole in Houston. Andre Dawson might make Detroit dangerous.

Spring training starts in less than two weeks in places like ters after reaching the 1985 playoffs. Instead, not able to find anyone else, they wound up keeping Cliff Johnson. Wouldn't they rather have Horner?

The Boston Red Sox, in the meantime, could use Gedman. He was their starting catcher until Jan. 8, when he rejected a three-year, $2.65 million offer and became a free agent, ineligible to re-join the club until May 1.

Many Boston players have said the team should re-sign him when

Bock's score

Vero Beach, Clearwater and Phoenix. But for many teams, the baseball season will begin in limbo.

This is the time of year when rosters are always uncertain. Which of those left-handers can overcome arm problems and become the missing piece of the pitching puzzle? Can the young stallion beat out the fading slugger in left field? Is there a good-fielding shortstop among the bunch?

Such questions seem important now. By midseason, they may be meaningless. The rookie sensation is back in Double-A because he can't hit a curve, and the lefty is out of the rotation because he can't throw one over the plate.

With apologies to the likes of Vince Coleman and Calvin Schiraldi, how often does that maybe, maybe-no player in spring turn out to be summer's hero?

But this year is different. Much different.

Never before have so many players who could make an impact in October been floating around so freely in February. And when the difference between first-place and first-plane-home can be so small, never have so many good teams still faced critical needs that could be filled with the available talent.

Meanwhile, high-priced free agents like Raines, Parrish, Gedman, Horner and Dawson are sitting at home, occasionally going through the now-seemingly routine of turning down contract offers for less than they could have gotten from the clubs they departed.

The Dodgers have wanted a replacement for center fielder Ken Landreaux for two years, and need a sparkplug to help them rebound in the National League West. Raines could be the exactly what they're looking for.

From the time the Cardinals lost the 1985 World Series, Manager Whitey Herzog said the club's No. 1 priority was getting a catcher. Since then, they've traded for Mike Heath, tried Mike Lavalliere and Alan Knicely, and are still searching. A power hitter like Parrish could be the perfect answer, even though the Cardinals are saying they do not want him because of back problems.

The Blue Jays were inclined to dump all of their designated hit-the rules allow, and the Red Sox have said they will leave their offer on the table.

So say Boston does re-sign him. Where does that leave the Red Sox and their hopes of repeating in the American League East?

For the first month of the season, Boston's catcher would be — at this point — Marc Sullivan. He is a .200 career hitter and son of the team's chief executive officer. So what is the difference between Gedman and Sullivan for a month? A few victories perhaps, and maybe another division title.

But, dollars and cents notwithstanding, good sense continues to say there there a lot of clubs and players — and possible pennants — lingering in limbo these days.

Tarheels' point guard overcomes hectic schedule

By The Associated Press

Kenny Smith, North Carolina's senior point guard, has had a rather hectic schedule over the past eight days:

Jan. 28—Score a career-high 41 points against Clemson.

Jan. 31—Undergo arthroscopic surgery on left knee.

Feb. 1—Get released from hospital as teammates lose No. 1 ranking after loss to Notre Dame.

Feb. 5—Return to starting lineup and score a game-high 21 points as Tar Heels beat North Carolina State 96-79.

And how's the knee, Kenny? "It's definitely not 100 percent," Smith said. "I could have dunked it tonight, but it didn't feel like I had a great deal of elevation."

His performance Thursday night lifted the No. 3 Tar Heels to the easy road victory as the New York native and freshman J.R. Reid combined for North Carolina's first 14 points, with Smith hitting two 3-point field goals.

"Kenny Smith was great from the opening 3-pointer to the final buzzer," North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano said.

The Tar Heels are 19-2 overall and undefeated in eight Atlantic Coast Conference games.

The Wolfpack are 12-9 and 4-4.

In other games involving ranked teams Thursday night, No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas routed Utah State 113-78; No. 6 Temple beat Rhode Island 87-75; No. 7 Purdue defeated Wisconsin 70-62; and No. 14 Illinois downed Northwestern 72-43.

No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas 113, Utah State 78

The Runnin' Rebels broke the 100-point mark for the fourth consecutive game and the 11th time this season as they built leads of as much as 45. Armon Gilliam led Nevada-Las Vegas, 22-1 overall and 10-0 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, with 22 points.

The Aggies are 11-12 and 4-7. No. 6 Temple 87, Rhode Island 75

Nate Blackwell scored 31 points, 21 on 7-of-10 shooting on 3-point field goal attempts, and Ramon Rivas added a career-high 22 points and 13 rebounds as the Owls remained unbeaten in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

The Owls are 22-2. Rhode Island, 13-8 and 6-6, has never beaten Temple in the 20-game series which began in 1940-41.

No. 7 Purdue 70, Wisconsin 62

Three 3-pointers in the closing minutes finally gave Purdue its 20th consecutive victory over the Badgers since 1977 and its 26th in 27 games since 1973.

The Boilermakers moved into a tie for second place in the Big Ten with Iowa at 8-2, one game behind Indiana.

Wisconsin is 11-12 and 1-9.

Bentzen disbands club

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, conceding he made a "doozy" of a mistake, announced today that he will disband his club of lobbyists who agreed to pay $10,000 apiece to have breakfast with him once a month.

The maximum allowed political action committees under campaign financing laws, was to go into Bentsen's 1988 re-election campaign fund. The three-term senator said he will continue fund-raising efforts, primarily in Texas, and added that he expects well-financed Republican opposition to his re-election bid in 1988.

Bentzen, a Democrat and the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said in a prepared statement, "I'm not known to make many mistakes but when I do it's a doozy, and in forming that breakfast club I really blew it."

The breakfast club, which held its first meeting a week ago, was formed after Bentsen sent out a letter Jan. 15 asking for "advice, assistance and early financial support crucial to a successful campaign." The letter went to 200 lobbyists.

"I didn't anticipate the perception of it," Bentzen added. "The last thing I want is anything that would reflect on my integrity."

Bentzen's new position as Finance Committee chairman gives him substantial influence in writing trade, tax and health care legislation.

The senator's statement said the club, which was called the "Chairman's Council," would be disbanded today, and the money collected from an estimated 40 lobbyists would be returned.

Aides to Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who served as Finance Committee chairman in the last Congress, have said Packwood developed a similar breakfast council of campaign supporters, but the tab was only $5,000 each.

Liberace's burial delayed; coroner to test for AIDS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace, the showman who loved audiences and glamour, will be remembered by fans and colleagues at public memorial services in Palm Springs and Las Vegas, Nev.

Deaths that occur in the home or without a physician present.

Denise Collier, spokeswoman for the family, said two public memorial services will be held for Liberace, including a service Friday in Palm Springs at Our Lady of Solitude Roman Catholic Church, and one Feb. 12 at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church in Las Vegas.

"This is a case that should have been reported to the coroner's office," said Coroner Raymond Carrillo. The county health department refused to accept the death certificate when officials there learned the coroner's office had not been contacted.

Our Lady of Solitude is across the street from Casa de Liberace, the desert home where the entertainer spent his final days with family and friends. He died Wednesday at age 67.

Dr. Ronald Daniels said the cause of death was cardiac arrest due to congestive heart failure brought on by subacute encephalopathy, an inflammation of the brain. Spokesmen had denied a published report that he had AIDS.

Meanwhile, Riverside County officials Thursday rejected Liberace's death certificate pending an investigation into allegations he had AIDS.

Carrillo said that if there still is blood in the body, tests would look for evidence of AIDS. If the body has already been embalmed, tissues could be used for the test, he said.

State law requires county coroners to investigate deaths suspected of being caused by contagious disease, and it is county policy to investigate the rejection of the death certificate will delay burial, Carrillo said.

Do investors know something?

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Do investors know something that is hidden from the rest of the public?

It has been falling since 1972. Not rising, as many believe, but falling, the evidence was somewhat obscured by heavier borrowing.

It would seem so because the bull, so to speak, has outperformed the cow that jumped over the moon. After one of the great leaps in market history, stock prices are, relative to a couple of years ago, in outer space.

And, while we have been creating jobs, we haven't been doing so swiftly enough. It is difficult to ignore the numbers. Unemployment averaged 4.8 percent in the 1960s, 6.2 in the 1970s, and 8.1 percent between 1980 and 1985.

While critics can contest the significance of these numbers — many people listed as jobless are said to be shifting from one job to another over a matter of a few weeks — they still are concerned about the pattern of employment.

That pattern is shifting. The nation is losing jobs paying $25,000 or more in both large and small manufacturing firms, and replacing them with jobs in services and retailing paying less than one-half that amount.

In a report called "Making America Work Again," the National Commission on Jobs and Small Business this week detailed some of the deep economic concerns that contrast vividly with the rising market.

Since 1980, the report states, the country has lost more than one million production jobs in manufacturing that paid an average of $13 an hour, while creating 5.5 million jobs in services and retail trade at $5 to $7 an hour.

The U.S. percentage of world exports, measured in constant dollars, shrank by nearly one-third between 1980 and 1984. Market share declined even in such high-tech industries as aircraft, computers, engines and turbines.

The commission has its own response to this deterioration: spur the small-business community into creating more enterprises that will offer more jobs and more opportunities for Americans to resolve the problems mentioned.

Since 1970, the report continues, the growth of American productivity has been cut in half. And without productivity growth, it should be noted, material well-being cannot spread to a growing percentage of the population.

It reminds us that this technique is nothing more than the way America grew in the past, and that the technique is hard to improve upon. Small businesses are the job creators. They spur inventiveness and competition. They grow.

According to the Office of Management and Budget, the national debt doubled between 1980 and 1985. And annual budget deficits accelerate its growth. From 1954 to 1975 the debt grew at an annual rate of 2.8 percent; from 1980 to 1985 it grew at 16.1 percent, putting the annual interest cost at $180 billion.

On that basis, if it is saying anything sensible at all it might be that investors sense we are about to stop talking about problems and get to work on solutions.

Meanwhile, real wages and salaries, the income on which most families de-

Expelled journalist arrives in Zurich

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Gerald F. Seib, the Wall Street Journal reporter detained in Iran for six days on accusations of spying for Israel, arrived in Zurich today aboard a Swissair flight from Tehran.

Seib waved to reporters as he got off the Swissair plane, then hugged his wife, Barbara Rosewicz, and walked with his arm around her to a car waiting to take him to the airport press room to meet with reporters.

Seib, a 30-year-old American based in Cairo, was detained by Iran on Saturday and accused of spying for Israel during a government-sponsored press tour of the battlefield. Iran said Wednesday he was to be "expelled."

The plane arrived at 2:20 p.m. (8:20 a.m. EST), according to a Swissair official in Zurich who refused to give his name. There was no immediate information on whether Seib was planning a brief stay in Zurich.

The Swissair flight originates in Tehran, goes to Bandar Abbas in southern Iran and has a stopover in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, before proceeding to Zurich. It was not immediately clear where Seib would have boarded.

Seib was among 57 foreign journalists invited by Iranian authorities to tour the Iran-Iraq war front. When arrested, he was accused of gathering intelligence for Israel.

Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Said Rajai-

Khorassani, said in New York late Wednesday that Seib had been turned over to the Swiss Embassy.

The Information Ministry announced his expulsion following completion of a what it termed judicial probe into his case and said he would be permanently barred from returning to Iran.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, which reported the announcement, gave no details of the investigation or its findings, but Seib apparently was cleared of the allegations.

Meanwhile, Canada's Foreign office said it had been advised that a Canadian engineer arrested Dec. 2 on espionage charges would be "released soon." An American telecommunications specialist and a British businessman also are imprisoned in Iran on similar charges.

The Canadian, Philip Eng, 29, was accused of possessing secret documents and taking pictures of top-secret installations in Iran.

Jon Pattis, 50, of Bethesda, Md., was arrested June 16, 1986, after Iraqi warplanes bombed the Assadabad telecommunications center southwest of Tehran. The Iranians claimed Pattis, working in Iran as a consultant, gave the CIA information on the center that was passed to Iraq.

John Cooper, 51, a British businessman and part-time financial journalist, was arrested a year ago. He was charged with espionage Dec. 10.

Clements completes his visit in Mexico

CIUDAD VICTORIA, Mexico (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, who flew here to renew ties with Mexican leaders, says investment dollars could flow into Mexico if the nation would relax its laws on foreign investments.

"It has enormous potential. It is a country that needs help," Clements said Thursday after meeting privately with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid.

The governor and his wife, Rita, were guests here, 180 miles southwest of Brownsville, for the inauguration of new Tamaulipas Gov. Americo Villarreal.

The trip came a day after Clements told Texas lawmakers that improved relations with Mexico are crucial for the state. He called the trip worthwhile, and said de la Madrid was enthusiastic about future meetings of border governors from both nations.

For Texans, improved relations with Mexican border states could mean "jobs, jobs, jobs," according to Clements. But the effort might need a boost from Mexico's federal officials, he added.

"In the past they had a hang-up about taking help from the outside or encouraging people to come into Mexico to help them develop their industries. I think that now has diminished. I don't think it has gone away, but it is not the barrier it was in the past," Clements said on the flight back to Austin.

The barrier was built by a fear of exploitation that leaves Mexico suspicious of foreign investment, according to the governor. He said there are "enormous reservoirs of risk capital" in the United States that could be funneled into Mexico.

"The (Mexican) federal laws applicable to risk capital in Mexico will have to be altered, amended, changed to create a situation, a business climate, that is conducive to foreign capital coming in," Clements said.

The Texas governor had a front-row seat in the theater in which Villarreal took his oath of office and gave a 40-minute speech.

After the inauguration, Clements walked across the crowded square to the Tamaulipas Capitol building, where he said he met privately with de la Madrid and Villarreal for about 30 minutes. The discussions included immigration law, oil prices and future meetings of border governors from both nations, Clements said.

He said Villarreal soon would visit Austin, perhaps next month. Throughout the day, Mexican reporters questioned Clements.

U.S. Army troops build air strip in dust

SAN LORENZO, Honduras (AP) — Hundreds of U.S. soldiers are working ankle deep in dust under a tropical sun to complete a dirt and concrete airstrip that seasonal rains will make unusable in just six months.

The project is a drill for the 548th Engineer Battalion from Fort Bragg, N.C., which would be expected in war time to quickly build airstrips for troop landings.

It is part of the U.S. Army's latest joint military exercises with Honduras, designed to underscore American opposition to the leftist Sandinista government in neighboring Nicaragua.

However, the 4,200-foot airstrip, which will be capable of handling C-130 transport planes, will not play a role in the fight of U.S.-backed Contra rebels against the Nicaraguan government. The airstrip, less than 2 miles from the Gulf of Fonseca, is about 120 miles southwest of Contra bases inside the Honduran border.

At the airstrip, on a clear day one can see Nicaragua about 25 miles across the water.

"We are about a week ahead of schedule and with any luck this strip should be completed in March," battalion commander Lt. Col. Donald Tomasik told visiting reporters Thursday.

For the troops working on the project, it has been a constant battle against the powdery fine dust and heat that at times reaches 105 degrees.

"The winds sometimes have kicked up to 35 knots, really creating a brownout where you can't see a thing," said Tomasik, of Allentown, Pa., as he watched a pair of earth movers race up and down the fledgling strip, carrying their payloads of dirt.
