Killer seeks new trial

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A five-year prison sentence that a jury doled out Friday to a man convicted of killing his wife 22 years ago has left relatives of both the victim and killer claiming defeat.

Meanwhile, a crippled Albert Branscum returned to his Kona, Okla., salvage yard this weekend, free on $5,000 bond pending appeal of his murder conviction, but knowing he'll be back in the courtroom within 30 days.

"Go home and sell all the auto parts you can," defense attorney John Mann told Branscum as the two left the 223rd District courtroom Friday afternoon, surrounded by the crippled killer's weeping children and neighbors who had journeyed from the eastern Oklahoma community.

"Pray for him, oh God, please pray for him," one friend of the family, Sara Flat, cried to reporters as she left the courtroom.

The 56-year-old Branscum, leaning heavily on a crutch that aids his partially-paralyzed left leg, had no official comment when asked about the outcome of his emotional four-day trial, but turned to Mann and asked if he could tell the folks back home in Konawa that Mann is one of the best attorneys in the world.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated for about two-and-one-half hours before pronouncing sentence in the 22-year-old shooting death of Glenna Fay Branscum, after Mann paraded 11 witnesses to the witness stand Friday morning in a plea for mercy in the form of probation.

The witnesses included Jamie Branscum — son of Albert and Glenna — and a procession of Konawa citizens who told jurors that the man they call "Alb" has been a quiet, law-abiding member of their community for the past two decades.

Most said they were aware of the tragic events of Oct. 8, 1964, just outside the Pampa city limits at 1242 S. Farley, when Branscum, despondent over divorce proceedings begun by Glenna two days earlier, pumped three bullets into his wife and two more into his own head.

The suicide attempt left Branscum a "mental vegetable," incompetent to stand trial, authorities claimed, and Branscum was never prosecuted.

But the case was reopened last January, after Glenna-Branscum's brother, Jerry Hollon of Amarillo, asked about it the status of the case. Michael Hartsock, an investigator for the district attorney's office, then found Branscum physically crippled but running a salvage yard out of his Konawa home.

Outside the courtroom Friday, Hollon said he was pleased to see

No one explains lapse

The tears that flowed in a 223rd District courtroom last week were solemn proof that time doesn't heal all wounds.

Twenty-two long years have passed since a distraught Albert Branscum shot his estranged wife, Glenna Fay, three times at his 1242 S. Farley home, then turned the gun to his head and fired twice.

Branscum did it, in his tormented mind, for the couple's eight children, a suicide note found after the shooting explained.

"This way they won't be tore up any more," he wrote. And he did it, too, he wrote, so that he and Glenna would be together forever.

Alb Branscum failed twice. Miserably.

His suicide attempt left him alive but partially paralyzed in the left arm and leg and sentenced him, in the words of his attorney, to the thing he feared most: Life without Glenna Brans-cum. Twenty-two years later, he would cry from the witness stand when shown her picture.

And, two decades after the fatal shooting, his children and Glenna's children remain blown apart by the five shots from the Browning .22-caliber semi-automatic pistol, divided over whether and how much he should now pay for the results of 1964's blind rage.

The relatives of the victim and killer sat on opposite sides of the courtroom last week, never, as Branscum's attorney had predicted, acknowledging each other's presence.

But if there is any common ground between the two halves of this divided family, it must be in the form of questions.

Why has Blind Lady Justice waited so long to allow the scales of Alb Branscum's life to be balanced? Why has this case taken so long to reach a point where a stern district judge would declare Alb Branscum guilty of murder and pronounce a sent-

Shamrock goes green for party

SHAMROCK — Kermit the Frog, who lamented It's not Easy Being Green, would have had no skin problem here Saturday.

Just about everything — from the sweaters on muffed pug dogs to the swirling skirts of Irish colleens to the banners stretched across Main Street to the Donnegal beard outlining Shamrock Texan publisher Bill Howe's chin — bore a greenish hue Saturday as part of the town's St. Patrick's Celebration.

This was the town's 41st commemoration of St. Paddy's Day, but Shamrock residents mixed their Irish giddiness with foot-stomping Texas good times.

Highlight of the celebration was the coronation of the 1987 Irish Rose, a Perryton High School senior with the appropriately Irish name of Sandra Dawn O'Dell. The 18-year old blue-eyed blonde, daughter of Tom and Nell O'Dell, also took the congeniality award.

The Hereford steer Chad Breeding sold at Saturday's Top O' Texas Livestock Sale may not help bring the Pope to Texas like his San Antonio steer did.

But it did bring the Roberts County 4-H Club Member $1,000 after Tejas Feeders bought the Top O' Texas Grand Champion. Gray County 4-Her Danny Stokes sold his grand champion Hampshire barrow to Top O' Texas Pork Producers for $500.

Michel Reeves, also of Gray 4-H, received $500 for her lamb, bought by Pampa New Car Dealers.

Garrett Scribner of Gray 4-H sold his reserve champion barrow to Addington's Western Wear for $250.

Pampa FFA member Timmy Ray's reserve champion steer took in $500 from Danny's Market.

Borger holds trump in hand of prison poker

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

BORGER — Area communities betting on a state prison played their hands Friday and discovered that Borger has the trump card when it comes to possible prison sites.

Wayne Scott, central regional director for the Texas Department of Corrections, District 88 Rep. Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, and area city officials lunched together here Friday to discuss the possibility of bringing a prison — and 750 potential jobs — to the area.

City officials and business leaders from Borger, Canadian, Dumas, Stinnett and Shamrock were among those attending the meeting that Waterfield set up for towns within his district. Pampa — Rep. Foster Whaley's turf — sent no representatives.

Neither Waterfield nor Scott were there to make a prison sales pitch.

Instead, they outlined the gamble involved in getting and maintaining an area prison.

For one thing, Scott indicated, area cities need to know what, or if, the state Legislature is dealing before they can play.

The TDC, caught in a population squeeze, hopes to increase its system by 3,000 beds within two years.

But the Legislature, caught in a budget squeeze, has yet to heed the TDC's cry and allocate funds to build a prison. Scott estimated that a 2,500-bed maximum security facility would cost $6.8 million to build.

"We don't know yet that were going to get any money," Scott said. "And we don't know how many they'll give us, two, one or none."

However, if the TDC is allowed to go ahead with its proposal, the agency will be selective in looking for a site.

Scott said a maximum security prison would require at least 200 acres, 78 of which will be located behind the prison walls. He added that 500 of the prisoners would be maximum security and 1,700 would be medium security.

"You would have to have plenty of good roads, an abundance of water and good utilities," Scott said, adding that the area's terrain also is important.

"How well do you pick up radio signals in the area," Scott asked.

Another factor would be the prison's proximity to airports and a wide range of medical facilities and educational institutions.

Civic leaders attending the meeting seemed to concede that only one town in Waterfield's district meets those qualifications: Borger.

And proponents of a Hutchinson County prison know that. City officials in Borger, Stinnett and Fritch have formed a task force and have gathered information boasting of Borger's Frank Phillips College, and its access to the Amarillo hospital district and airport. A potential site has reportedly already been selected.

"We just don't have the medical facilities," admitted Canadian mayor Therese Abraham. "We would like to have a prison in Canadian, but Borger does have the trump card."

If Borger has the trump card, downstate Texas communities are holding royal flushes.

"Borger has pretty good competition from the Lubbock area," Scott said after the meeting. "There will also be competition from Huntsville, Navasota, Palestine."

Scott said area communities must put up a united front in order to get a prison. They also need to make sure there is community support for a prison and be aware of some of the drawbacks of having a prison. He confirmed that some of the drawbacks would be that the county would be liable for court costs — including court appointed attorneys — for criminal offenses that happen within the prison. He added that counties, schools and communities derive no tax revenue from prison land.

But the prison would employ 750 to 800 people with average annual salaries of $25,000. And the facility would be a major consumer of area products ranging from baked goods to office supplies, Scott said.

Waterfield stressed that communities must work together to get a prison in the area. And, while he did not actually propose it, Waterfield did agree "Borger does have the strongest location in the district."

Canadian Chamber of Commerce Manager Diane Black echoed Waterfield's observation: "Any facility in the Panhandle would help Canadian."

After the meeting, Waterfield shared See PRISON, Page 3

Letters to the editor

Who is my enemy?

I praise Walter Shed for his letter to the editor that was published in the March 1 Pampa News, regarding my book, Love the Scarlet Harlot.

Mr. Shed loves people, especially those that are being deceived by the enemy. He sees the inevitable internal defeat that is accelerating upon America. He hears the Messiah telling us to be prepared for its arrival.

He has challenged Christians not to believe every word that clergymen preach and politicians speak. They are human and fallible, and each subject to deception.

Shed has reminded the reader, as the Messiah directs, to search for the truth and rightly understand the word. He knows that salvation is a precious stone, and the enemy will steal it by deception if you allow him to do so.

I must challenge every person, especially clergymen, that reads this letter to let us know who that enemy is that is defeating us.

Communism is not the enemy, because it was created by the Messiah according to Acts 2:44-45 and 4:32-37. Christians were together in Christ, and all property was sold, and the profits became community property according to their need. They prospered according to Christian principles. Socialism is not the enemy, for it was created by God, and practiced by the patriarchs, judges and kings.

Clergymen are not the enemy, because they are the Messiah's creation. Humanism is not the enemy; it is a creation of the Messiah. Satan is not the enemy; he is a creation of God and the servant of the Messiah. Sin is not the enemy, because it was paid for through the crucifixion of the Messiah.

The Jewish people are not the enemy but the servants of the Messiah. Roman Catholicism is not the enemy. Our constitutional republic of the states is not the enemy, because it was created by the Messiah to be that standard bearer for human government before all nations.

Please, tell me who my enemy really is!

Standards of taste

To the editor:

Thank you, Cheri Jarvis, for your letter to the editor about the behavior, or lack of same, of the students who apparently felt they were being forced to attend a play they neither liked nor comprehended.

This should be a lesson to those who attempt to force morality, good manners or good taste on everyone alike.

We are all different. Our tastes are different. Sadly, so are our morals. But, no one should by the stature of his office, attempt to force good taste, morality or attendance at a play that is very difficult to understand.

Students, there is a better way!

Ran for their lives

To the editor:

I was at the City Commission meeting on Feb. 24. I guess it's time the air was cleared.

Yes, a petition was presented requesting an election for the vacated Ward 2 commissioner's seat. And, yes, after a heated argument, the commission accepted and acted upon the petition.

The reason? They thought they might not leave that meeting with the breath of life still in them, that's why! It got pretty scary in there for a while. I was there, I saw!

A certain commissioner came to that meeting that evening with his "boy" all picked out, and with every other commissioner's "aye" in his pocket. At least, that's what he thought. He backed down only at the request of two other commissioners who were getting quite worried, and with good reason!

Need I say more?

The curse of Eve: An invitation to a shower

By CAROL RUST
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT (AP)—God was pretty mad at Eve after the bit about the apple. So mad in fact that he kicked her and her old man out of the Garden of Eden and told them they were going to have to work for a living and that she was going to have hell having children.

But what he didn't tell her was even worse. When he was outlining the curse of womanhood, he was probably saving the worst for last and then forgot about it.

He didn't say one word about showers.

At least they send invitations in enough time for you to plan a trip out of town. They can't just put a shower invitation on the bulletin board at work like they do for beer busts and free kittens.

But they're not really invitations. They're more like subpoenas. If you don't go, you've got to have a solid excuse like a broken back or no one will speak to you the following Monday at work.

They consult Emily Post and color coordinate everything and make things so proper you feel like you're in Sunday school. Every time I think about it, I get mad at Eve, too.

First of all, you have to get all dressed up on your day off even though everybody there has seen you in jeans before.

There's nothing but punch in the punch, and there's nothing to eat but nuts and those little mints that taste like flavored air. Maybe chips and dip, but nothing substantial like nachos or pizza.

Then you've got to sit around in a circle that reminds you of playing "gossip" in second grade.

As the shower honoree opens the 50-bezillionth present, careful to save all the bows and not tear the paper and ribbon, you've still got to "ooh" and "ah" like it's the first time in your life you've ever seen a waffle iron.

And do you know why they don't tear the ribbons at bridal showers? The myth goes that for every ribbon you tear, that's one baby you're going to have. Well, anyone who would rely on that for birth control will need all those untorn ribbons to tie their kids up with.

But wait! Before the gift-opening begins, they designate someone to write down who gave what for the sake of thank-you notes. They generally pick someone who writes very slowly, and even more so at the shower because she's trying to make it pretty since the shower honoree is going to save the list forever and ever as a lasting reminder of this magic day.

And then there's the thank-you notes themselves. They can't just say "Thank you," they've got to write the obligatory: Dear (blank): Thank you for the lovely (blank). I know I will get a lot of use out of it, and it will go so well with my (kitchen, bathroom, bedroom circle one) and the three others I got just like it. Again, thank you for your thoughtfulness. Love, (blank).

When the honoree finally finishes opening her gifts and the bow-person has collected all the bows (they select the second slowest person for that) and the hostess has set all the presents out on a table for everyone to admire even though you've all admired them already and are sick of looking at them because they're not yours anyway, the fun has just begun.

It's game time. You are each handed a pencil and a piece of paper and get to see how many words you can make from the letters in "It's a boy" or "wedding night jitters." The one who gets the most words gets a scoop in the shape of a duck or a grape holder, much to the envy of the others.

When I stop and think of how many single people I know who may get married and how many married women I know who may have children and equate that with the staggering number of mints that taste like flavored air, untorn bows and squeals over waffle irons that lurk in my future, I get real depressed.

I didn't even know Eve. But if she was around today, I'd break my longstanding policy of never having a shower and hold 72 in a row just to make her attend.

Senate bill restricts radioactive materials

AUSTIN (AP)—A state senator wants to require companies that handle radioactive waste to be more responsible to the public in the storage and transportation of the waste.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, has filed a bill that would require the Texas Radiation Control Agency to inform the public of changes in licenses or operations of companies near their homes.

The information would give the citizens a chance to request a public hearing and an opportunity to oppose the changes, Truan said.

"The unsafe transport and storage of radioactive waste has endangered Texas citizens for too long," Truan said Friday. "Up to now, no one has known what is being shipped through our communities and our cities. We have not known where it is going, and we have had no assurance that the public will be protected when radioactive waste is finally stored."

AIDS hospital turns away indigents

HOUSTON (AP)—The nation's first AIDS hospital will stop accepting indigent patients because of more than $2 million in losses caring for patients who have been unable to pay their bills, officials say.

Officials of the Institute for Immunological Disorders, which opened in September, denied the decision means the hospital is in serious financial trouble or that it might eventually be forced to close.

Institute spokeswoman Lynn Walters said Friday that treatment for patients already being treated for acquired immune deficiency syndrome would continue and only new patients would be affected by the policy change.

In the future, indigent patients who are residents of Harris County will be referred to the Harris County Hospital District, she said.

"The highest priorities of the institute are to continue to provide care of the highest quality to its current patients as well as to continue its research programs directed toward eventual elimination of this disease," the institute's board said in a prepared statement Friday.

"The need for services by patients who are without health insurance and have no other financial resources has reached a point that threatens the ability of the institute to serve these two priorities," the statement said.

Dick Durbin, chief administrator for the hospital district, said officials of the institute and the district discussed the issue several times before the decision was made.

"All we said was that we are a publicly supported institution, and it is our responsibility to care for the residents of this county," he said.

The AIDS hospital, operated by American Medical International, has provided $2 million in services to impoverished patients since it opened last fall, officials said. By August, hospital officials expect the total cost of caring for indigent patients will rise to $5 million.

Those costs are far in excess of the $250,000 committed to indigent care by AMI when it signed an affiliation with the University of Texas System.

The problem began when the institute accepted all the patients who were receiving treatment for AIDS at UT's M.D. Anderson Hospital. As a result, officials estimated the institute will be paid for no more than half the services it has provided to date.

Dr. Joseph Ainsworth, vice president for patient care at Anderson, said he was surprised at the institute's decision.

"I guess it was to be expected that they would develop a problem out there because this is an enormously expensive disease to treat," he said.

Houston ranks fourth nationally among metropolitan areas for the number of people with AIDS. Through February, 1,036 people had been diagnosed as having the disease in the Houston area.

FBI hammers mobsters

NEW YORK (AP) — The score now is 4-1 in the government's biggest battle against organized crime. Four of New York's top five reputed crime bosses have been sent off to jail, and only John Gotti — the "Dapper Don" — is free.

But even as Gotti, the reputed head of the powerful Gambino crime family, headed home to Queens after his acquittal on racketeering charges Friday, law enforcement officials were hinting at new forays against the mob.

"Let me say it this way," said Thomas Sheer, head of the FBI office in New York. "The criminal activities of the Gambino family continue to be under scrutiny, with the ultimate aim being to bring them before the bar of justice."

That determination, combined with a string of government victories against the mob before Gotti's acquittal, underscores the new order of things. It's tougher to be a Mafia boss than ever before.

"This has been the Mafia's worst year," U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said recently. "We keep making gains and they keep getting moved backward. If we take back the labor unions, the legitimate businesses, eventually they become just another street gang. Spiritually, psychologically, they've always been just a street gang."

The lineage of New York's crime families dates to 1931, when Salvatore Maranzano emerged from a round of gang wars to declare himself "capo di tutti capi," boss of bosses.

Maranzano divided the city's Sicilian crime factions into five groups that eventually took the names of their leaders: Carlo Gambino, Thomas Lucchese, Joseph Bonanno, Vito Genovese and Joseph Colombo.

As any pulp fiction buff knows, these were men who combined ruthlessness and a casual attitude towards violence with Old World values of family, honor and "omertà," the notorious code of silence.

While the ruthlessness and violence remain, the other arguably more admirable values seem to be eroding.

The government has found mobsters increasingly willing to squeal on their cohorts. Rewards have ranged from reduced prison time to grants of immunity, plus the comforting promise of new names, faces and addresses.

But the mob witnesses may have backfired in Gotti's case. Gotti's lawyer said the jury was "tired of paid government witnesses who lie."

Meanwhile, prosecutors have added powerful new weapons to the arsenal they deploy against the mob. Chief among these have been sophisticated new electronic eavesdropping devices and RICO, the Racketeer-Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act.

Giuliani successfully used the racketeering act to convict eight men — including the heads of the Genovese, Lucchese and Colombo families — on charges of participating in the "commission" that runs the Mafia in New York.

That was the biggest of several trials in the past year that seemingly have turned the N-Y court system into a nonstop inquisition against the mob.

Nunn expected to fight change in ABM treaty

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The fight over President Reagan's attempt to reinterpret the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty is likely to have a major effect on how much money Congress approves for "Star Wars," say lawmakers on both sides of the issue.

Several congressmen also said the opposition of Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga. to the reinterpretation of the ABM pact is a new and major hurdle for Reagan to clear to win support for the missile defense program.

Nunn, chairman of the Armed Services Committee and one of Capitol Hill's most influential legislators on national security issues, said last week the administration cannot unilaterally change the rules on the ABM treaty.

The pact limits the type of missile defenses each superpower can build, test and deploy, and the existing interpretation would ban tests of the Strategic Defense Initiative, the formal name of Reagan's 4-year-old Star Wars program.

But Reagan has asserted that his administration could switch to a "broad" view of the ABM pact, which would allow SDI testing. Nunn and other opponents disagree, arguing that the Senate ratified the treaty under the more restrictive reading.

Meanwhile, the House and Senate, both controlled by Democrats, are preparing to make decisions on a Star Wars budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

Reagan wants $5.8 billion for Star Wars, a 77 percent increase over the current $3.6 billion spending. The president also seeks $500 million more for the current year to pursue his dream of building a high-tech shield against nuclear attack. "This SDI spending level is hostage to the dispute over the ABM treaty," said Sen. John Warner.

Kids accused of pounding and stomping abandoned 2-year-old

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 2-year-old girl who had been taken from her mother because of alleged neglect died of injuries inflicted by three young boys after a guardian left her alone with them, authorities say.

"It's a motiveless thing," Detective Capt. Thomas Thelen said Friday night. "It's a bunch of kids who suddenly turn vicious."

The three boys, ages 7, 8 and 10, were placed in the custody of the Milwaukee County Social Services Department after the death. Authorities said they would decide later whether to charge the 8-year-old with the juvenile equivalent of second-degree murder and the other boys with child abuse.

The girl was pronounced dead early Thursday in St. Michael Hospital.

"They jumped on her and punched her and hit her with a bed slat," Capt. Albert Hentz said.

According to interviews with the children, the 8-year-old may have jumped from a low table onto the girl, knocking her down, Hentz said. The girl hit her head against a television stand at some point during the assault and was struck with slats from a bunk bed, he added.

Her eyes were swollen, she had severe bruises on the face, chest, abdomen, back and legs, and her body had teeth marks on it, according to the Milwaukee County medical examiner's report.

An autopsy showed the girl died of a lacerated liver and pancreas caused by beatings to the abdomen, and the death was ruled a homicide.

The girl had been removed from her mother's home Feb. 17 and placed with the guardian, her great aunt, authorities said. The girl's 1-year-old sister had been living with the guardian since Dec. 23.

"We were monitoring the situation on a neglect allegation that goes back two years" and was substantiated in November, said Jefferson Aiken, spokesman for the Milwaukee County Department of Health and Human Services.

He said the mother had been receiving counseling and visited her children often.

The medical examiner's report said the 26-year-old guardian left the girl with four other children in the care of the 10-year-old boy at about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The guardian returned home about midnight after playing softball and visiting a tavern, according to the report. She found the child unconscious and called paramedics, it said.

The 10-year-old and the 8-year-old are sons of a neighbor, and the 7-year-old boy is the guardian's son. Also at the home were the victim's sister and a 3-year-old daughter of the neighbor. The two girls were taken to foster homes.

SHAMROCK CELEBRATION

Shamrock

Claude, was second runner-up. Third runner-up was Valerie Malone, 17, daughter of Dan and Paula Malone of Pampa.

This year's celebration also featured a "genuine" leprechaun, Clancy Sheehy, who admits he's from Boulder, Colo., not the Emerald Isle. The 4-foot tall Sheehy, decked in green and smoking a skinny white pipe, mingled with the crowds that lined Main Street Saturday morning to watch the St. Patrick's parade. When he got tired of that, he plopped himself down in front of the judges' stand and watched the parade pass.

The Main Street parade was given somewhat of an international lilt as the Shamrock High School Irish Band was joined by the High Plains Pipers, a bagpipe band from Amarillo. Although the drone of a bagpipe is associated with nearby Scotland, piper Kelly Turner of Amarillo said bagpipes are also associated with Irish tunes.

"The Irish also have kilts, but theirs are solid-colored, not with a plaid print," Turner said.

Despite the Irish tunes, the Main Street show was nearly stolen by the zany Cowboy Band from Hardin-Simmons University of Abilene. The band was led by a high-stepping drum major who took time from drum majoring duties to visit with kids sitting along the parade route.

Parade watchers got another taste of Texas from a long line of riding clubs and covered wagons.

The Memphis Chamber of Commerce took top parade honors as the Judge's Choice. The city of Shamrock had the winning non-commercial float, followed by the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce, the Bob Willis Foundation of Turkey. Winner of the commercial class was Shamrock Co-op Gin & Elevator, followed by Southwestern Bell and Shamrock Federal Savings and Loan.

Top antique car in the parade was a Model A roadster owned by Melvin Sanders. A black Mustang entered by Mel's Auto Body was the best classic car. Top drill team was the Diamond High Steppers while the Coors Riding Club was the top riding club.

Another highlight was Friday's kick-off banquet at the National Guard Armory. Former U.S. Congressman Kent Hance was the featured after-dinner speaker. But it was the year-old Happy Hatters fun-time group from Dumas who topped the night's entertainment.

The rest of the weekend

Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band members greet spectators at the St. Patrick's Day parade in Shamrock Saturday.

celebration was just plain fun, ranging from Saturday's dance featuring the Clyde Logg Band of Amarillo to rodeo activities at the Brashears Arena. Sunday activities include a Cowboy Church Service at the Yarborough Horse Sale Arena. Team roping finals are scheduled at the Brashears Arena, and a calf roping competition will be held at the Sheriff's Posse Arena.

Children desperately try to save fire victim

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Two children used their hands and school books in an attempt to extinguish the burning clothing of a man who later died of his injuries, authorities said.

Clemente Salas, 70, died at Brooke Army Medical Center early Friday. He suffered burns over 65 percent of his body in a fire Thursday afternoon that roared through a two-bedroom house where he lived with 14 other people, officials said.

Bexar County Fire Marshal Carl Mixon said the blaze began near a living-room couch and may have been caused by an electrical space heater.

Brenda Reyna, 12; her sister, Beverly, 7; and her brother, Billy, 9, were returning from school Thursday when Salas ran out of the home with his clothes on fire.

"She (Brenda) burnt her right hand," said Linda Reyna, the children's mother. "Her jacket and books were also burned. Beverly also tried to put out the fire."

Mrs. Reyna, her husband, three daughters, a son, two other sons with their wives and children and another family friend are without a permanent place to live.

Sweeny students paint history lesson for a classroom wall

By CATHERINE LEWIS
The Brazosport Facts

SWEENEY (AP) — Christopher Columbus, John Hancock and the defenders of the Alamo never looked so good.

The American historical figures decorate a classroom wall in a mural painted by students at Sweeny High School.

"It's history in living color ... that's better than just a book or even any television show I can think of," said Sweeny history teacher Doug Reed.

The mural will serve as a teaching tool, since it depicts some of the major events in American history in chronological order, Reed said.

"I tell my students to look back there and remember those crucial events. Then on tests when I ask about more specific facts, they'll be able to see where they fit into the scheme of things," he said.

In four panels enclosed in a painted frame, the mural shows Columbus discovering America, Paul Revere making his famous ride to herald the coming of the British during the American Revolution, John Hancock signing the Declaration of Independence, and Texans defending the Alamo against Mexican soldiers.

Next on the wall is a painting of 20th-century space travel, which is still nearing completion.

Scenes from the Civil War, the country's frontier period and World War II may be added to the wall, Reed said.

The brightly colored mural, unveiled recently in an informal ceremony at the school, is the work of two seniors, Diana Shelby and Dana Smith.

Miss Shelby and Miss Smith worked on the project almost 75 class hours last semester as well after school and in the evenings.

Reed says he is proud of their work.

"When I saw the classroom, I thought, 'It needs something.' Now, it's really spruced up," he said.

Inspiration for the project came to Reed last semester when he assigned a term project to the ninth-graders taking his American history class.

"When I asked the students to do the paper, I got a some blank stares and some groans, so I wondered how I could make history easier, more like telling a story. That's all history, you know," he said.

Miss Shelby and Miss Smith, both advanced art students, were eager to take on the project.

"I enjoyed every minute of it. Now, when I step back and look at it I'm glad we stuck it out. It'll be there forever, unless somebody paints over it," Miss Smith said.

The students said they had some difficulties with the mural, done in acrylic paint.

Miss Shelby said she found painting the characters' faces to be the hardest. Miss Smith said measuring and filling in the frame that surrounds each of the 8-by-6-foot paintings that make up the mural caused her the greatest frustration.

Their art teacher, Sharon Morrison, said the mural project was not only a constructive outlet for her students, but a good lesson in painting in a large perspective.

"This mural is a lot like painting a backdrop for a play. They had to think big, not details," Ms. Morrison said.

Functional necessity leads architect to creative solutions

By ELIZABETH EDWIN
Midland Reporter-Telegram

MIDLAND (AP) — Mark Wellen's father couldn't believe his son was going to enter a plywood table with a knife-fork-and-spoon base in a state-wide design competition.

When the piece was selected as a merit winner, Wellen took particular pleasure in calling his father, a hobby woodworker, to let him know.

"That's the funny thing about competitions — they are such a subjective thing," said Wellen, a Midland architect.

Wellen's plywood table was one of three merit winners and four honor award winners in Texas Homes magazine's 1986 annual Design Awards.

"I read about the contest in Progressive Architecture Magazine, I think," Wellen said. "My original plan was to design a base for a seven- to eight-foot dining table for the house. I started with welding steel, then I remembered some plywood I had left over."

His first design from the plywood was simply two X-shaped bases, but then he began to play with ideas and came up with the basic necessities for the process of eating — a knife, spoon and fork. After about one and a half hours, Wellen said his design was complete.

"Its design is really very simple, and it could be reproduced cheaply," Wellen said. These qualities seemed to be just what the contest judges liked most. Judges comments printed in the magazine said, "His knife-fork-spoon table was designed for ease of operation. A simple pair of plywood cutouts form the silhouette of said flatware, sliding together within a groove base, folding flat for storage."

"The judges were amused by the whimsy factor of the table, deeming it 'great pop-culture fun,'" the Texas Homes article said.

Wellen said the square wood top used for the competition wasn't what he had really planned. "The deadline to enter was coming up fast, so I had to make a top quickly and get the photos taken to enter."

Last October, five judges from different areas of the design industry selected the seven winners from a field of just under 100 state-wide entries. The winning entries were displayed Dallas, giving merchants a chance to see them and possibly purchase the design rights.

"I guess that would be a dream. For someone to buy my design and mass produce it," Wellen said.

Wellen says most of his designs are created from necessity.

He designed and supervised the construction of the house where he now lives with his wife, DeLayne, and daughter Erin, 2. The house features custom cabinets and a bed he designed.

Wellen was born in Fort Worth and was reared in Port Arthur. His father enjoyed making wooden toys, which Wellen said may have had some influence on his career choice. "I've just always loved to design," he said.

In 1977, he earned a bachelor of architecture degree from Texas Tech University and came to Midland to work for Frank Welch.

BRANSCUM TRIAL

Daughter Kathy Miller and Branscum embrace after jury verdict.

Miller rubs away tears.

Randy Branscum cries hard while brother Jamie looks on.

his former brother-in-law receive prison time, but added that five years is too light a sentence for his sister's murder.

"I don't think that there is too much justice there," Hollon said, noting that Glenna Branscum was 29 when she died.

Another brother, Don Hollon, said Saturday from his home in Fort Gibson, Okla., that he could not accept the jury's verdict. He called it "a complete slap in the face."

"If it's pity, the jury ought to put themselves in our shoes the last 22 years and feel what we've felt," Hollon said. "That was our sister that got killed, and we've lived with that for 22 years. Our suffering's worse now than it ever was."

Jamie Branscum, 24, of Burneyville, Okla., said he was glad the trial was over for the sake of the families involved and the jury. The son was about 18 months old when his mother was murdered.

"I still love him," he said of his father. "After 22, 23 years, it's hard for anybody to say what justice is."

Earlier, between sobs from the witness stand, he begged the jury not to send his father to prison.

Attorney Mann said his next step will be to file a motion before District Judge Don Cain stating that Branscum was not afforded a speedy trial. But Mann admitted that the motion for a new trial — on grounds that Cain has already rejected twice — would be little more than a formality, necessary before he appeals the case.

He predicted the appeals court would throw the verdict out and say the case never should have been tried after 22 years.

In closing arguments, Mann asked the jury not to "destroy the rest of his life that you hold in your hand." Pointing toward the county jail — one floor above the courtroom — Mann said inmates there were more deserving of prison than his client.

"There's more to every man and woman than the worst thing they've ever done and there's more to Alb Branscum than the terrible worst thing he's ever done," Mann said in pleading for probation. "If you judge him for only the bad thing that he's done, then you will not have judged fairly."

Mann pointed to testimony from Branscum's neighbors, who said he had led an exemplary life in Konawa.

"I could have filled this courthouse — not just this courtroom but this courthouse — with people that would have journeyed from Konawa, Okla., to support their neighbor and their friend."

One neighbor who did make the trip was Konawa mail carrier Lillard Berry, who testified that Branscum was extremely well-liked in the community.

"On the route yesterday, I had people asking me if it would be a help if they came out to testify on Alb's behalf," Berry told jurors.

But Assistant District Attorney Harold Comer told jurors Branscum has not been confined one day and has been able to watch his children and grandchildren grow up, a right Comer said the killer stripped from Glenna Branscum. He said Mann's arguments tried to "erase his guilt or erase the memory of Glenna Fay Branscum."

Comer asked the jury not to take into account the 22-year lapse in prosecution and to tell those who would "settle marital difficulties with the use of a gun... 'you can run but you can't hide.'"

"You should judge this case as if it were October the ninth, 1964," Comer said. "The law has not interfered with either his personal life or his family relationships for 22 years."

Comer said later he was "not dissatisfied" with the jury's verdict.

"The important thing," he said, "was to get the case to trial after 22 years and let a jury decide it."

Oilfield hand gets life

BRYAN (AP) — An unemployed oilfield worker has been sentenced to life imprisonment for killing a Texas A&M graduate student.

Malcolm Trent Primrose, 23, was originally charged with capital murder in the Nov. 25 slaying of Linden Kauffman-Linam, but pleaded guilty Friday to a reduced charge of murder.

He must serve 20 years before becoming eligible for parole, State District Judge John Delaney ruled.

Primrose was arrested Dec. 2 in Benton, Ark., and later confessed to investigators that he strangled Mrs. Kauffman-Linam, 34, in her apartment when she woke up and began screaming during a burglary.

Q: My dog's hair is also turning red, but mostly on his feet, which he seems to lick a lot. I gave him worm medicine from the grocery store and he still does it. Now what?

A: First, let me caution about the over-the-counter worming preparations. Most of them are only somewhat effective for only a portion of the different kinds of worms which your dog may have. In short, you're paying a lot of money for a small amount of good. Better to pay your veterinarian to do a thorough job, and have it over with. Next, when a dog licks his feet a lot, it usually means 1 of 3 things: his nails need to be trimmed, he has an arthritic condition or he has heartworms. I strongly recommend a visit with your veterinarian for a pedicure, and a heartworm check. If these turn out normal, further tests are needed. Finally, a dog left alone a lot occasionally does this from sheer boredom. In this case, a playmate usually corrects the problem.

Tar Heels grind Michigan

By The Associated Press

J.R. Reid scored 27 points, and Kenny Smith had 22 as North Carolina ran away from Michigan in the first half, breaking the 100-point barrier for the second game in a row. The Tar Heels opened the tournament with a 113-82 first-round victory over Penn.

North Carolina, 31-3, outscored Michigan 32-10 to take a 23-point lead during the first half, and Michigan never got closer than six points the rest of the way.

Gary Grant had 24 points for the Wolverines, which ended its season 20-12. Michigan opened the second half with a 15-4 run to close within 64-58, but North Carolina made a run of its own, outscoring the Wolverines 22-9 to lead 86-67 with 9:40 left.

No. 18 Notre Dame 58, No. 19 TCU 57

David Rivers' free throw with four seconds left broke a 57-57 tie and sent Notre Dame into the semifinals of the NCAA East Regional next Thursday. Rivers missed the second of his two free throws. Larry Richard grabbed the rebound for Texas Christian, but his pass was intercepted by Notre Dame's Scott Hicks as time ran out.

Rivers finished with 24 points. "We've lost games this way, now we win one this way," Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps said. TCU led 49-42 before Notre Dame rallied, getting two 3-pointers from Hicks, the second of which tied the score at 53 with 3:02 to play. Notre Dame is 24-7, the same record at which TCU finished its season.

SOUTHEAST REGIONAL At Birmingham, Ala. Providence 90, Austin Peay 87, OT

Ernie Lewis scored 26 points, and Billy Donovan had 25 to lead Providence over Austin Peay in overtime. Providence, 23-8, tied the score 82-82 on a jumper by Donovan that ended a run of 17-7 over the final six minutes and erased a 75-65 deficit.

Lawrence Mitchell, who had 27 points for Austin Peay, made one of two free throws 22 seconds into overtime, and Providence scored the next six points, four by Donovan.

Pampa girls win again!

HEREFORD — Similarities between Pampa's 1986 state track champions and this year's Lady Harvester squad are starting to appear. Especially after the Lady Harvesters breezed to an easy victory in the Hereford Invitational Saturday.

It was the second straight meet championship for the Pampa girls, who won the Dalhart XIT Relays last weekend. Pampa had opened the track season with a second-place finish in the Amarillo Relays.

Pampa compiled 102 points to outdistance Lubbock Estacado, which finished with 60 points.

"There was quite a big field. We got pretty lucky since there was a big split today in points among all the different teams," said Pampa Coach Gary Cornelsen.

Swift junior Tanya Lidy, the state's defending 200-meter champion, and senior strong girl Andrea Hopkins, paced the Lady Harvesters' lopsided victory.

Lidy won the 200 with a time of 26.01 and the long jump with a leap of 17-1. She also placed third in the triple jump and was a member of Pampa's winning 800-meter relay team and the third-place 400-meter relays.

Hopkins easily won both the shot put (40-3/4) and the discus (124-1 1/2). Her discus toss bettered Caprock's Jenny Wilson's second-place throw by almost 17 feet. She won the shot by almost two feet over Lubbock Estacado's Valerie Conner.

Also placing for Pampa were Laquita Brown, second 100 hurdles; fourth, triple jump; fourth, long jump; Malori Davis, sixth, 100 hurdles and Tracy Stoddard, fourth, 1600-meter run.

"We're facing injury problems right now with only a few getting points at Saturday's meet," Cornelsen said. "But those few managed some big wins."

Amarillo High was also an easy winner in the boys' division with 122 points, compared to 56 for second-place Lubbock Coronado. Pampa finished eighth with 35 points.

Discus thrower Shawn Greene notched the only win for the Harvesters with a toss of 149-8.

Derrick Smith was third in the discus while Mark Williams was a second-place finisher in the 300 hurdles.

Willie Jacobs finished fifth in the 3200, but set a new PHS record with a time of 10:35.8. Jacobs was also fourth in the 1600 while Tommy Cathey was fifth in the high hurdles. Billy Butler and Derrick Smith were fifth and sixth respectively in the high jump for the Harvesters.

The Lady Harvesters are entered in the Canyon Relays March 28.

Razorbacks win first-round NIT game in overtime

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The celebration began a little early for California guard Kevin Johnson — in fact, too early.

Johnson deliberately dribbled away the final eight seconds in regulation, thinking

Cal was leading. Instead, the Golden Bears were tied at 60 with Fullerton State in their first-round National Invitation Tournament basketball game.

"I was just trying to run out the clock, and I guess I did a good job on that," Johnson said afterward. "I looked up at the scoreboard and saw the 60-60 flashing, and then I just covered my eyes."

Johnson, who finished with a team-high 30 points, scored Cal's first four points in overtime and then assisted on two important baskets as the Bears won their first postseason game in 27 years and offset a 35-point effort from Fullerton's Richard Morton in their 72-68 victory.

California will now travel to Oregon State Tuesday for a second-round game.

In other second-round matchups, Monday will find Illinois State at Cleveland State, Stephen F. Austin at Arkansas-Little Rock, Florida State at Vanderbilt, and Boise State at Washington.

1. Sam Vick, who died last summer at age 91, broke in with the Yankees in 1917 and started in right field before being replaced by Ruth a year later. He pinch-hit for the Babe once in 1918.

2. Schmidt, MVP in the National League; Knight, World Series MVP; Barrett, MVP of the American League championship series; and Scott, MVP of the National League series and winner of the Cy Young Award, all are graduates of Little League baseball.

3. From 1902 through 1943 the Browns played bridesmaids to the rest of the American League, 42 years without a pennant. The St. Louis American League squad won its only pennant in 1944.

4. Steinbrenner, who played end at Culver Academy in 1948, was end coach at Northwestern of the Big 10 in 1955.

5. Davey Johnson of the NY Mets hit two pinch-hit grand slam home runs for the Phillies in 1978, a feat equaled later that season by Mike Ivie of the SF Giants.

6. The Arkansas Hummingbird, Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs, tripled and scored in the sixth inning of the first All-Star Game in 1933, played at Comiskey Park in the Windy City.

7. A pig farm, and the Dodgers later hogged a lot of pennants.

8. Charlie Grimm was field manager of the Chicago Cubs and Lou Boudreau was radio broadcaster for the team. Owner Phil Wrigley decided a managerial change was needed, so he swapped Grimm to the radio station broadcast team and Boudreau moved to the playing field managerial post. Which reminds me that the Cubs and Houston swapped broadcasters a couple of seasons ago, Milo Hamilton moving to the Astros' booth, Dewayne Statts shifting to Wrigley Field.

9. Franklin P. Adams forgot about Harry Steinfeldt, who spent 14 seasons playing third base in the major leagues when he penned the little ditty which immortalized Steinfeldt's three teammates:

These are the saddest of possible words, Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance.

Trio of Bear Cubs Fleeter than birds,

Making a Giant hit into a double,

Words that are weighty with nothing but trouble,

10. August 19, 1951, St. Louis Brown Owner Bill Veeck sent 3-foot, 7-inch Eddie Gaedel to the plate to bat against Detroit's Bob Cain. Gaedel walked on four pitches, and Jim Delsing, who hit .255 over a 10-year major league career, pinch-ran for him.

In My Corner

By Jimmy Patterson

There's some great news in the world of sports. Perhaps you haven't heard. It hasn't been in any of the papers. The story hasn't appeared in any of the sports magazines.

So let me be the one to tell you first about the top sports story of the year. You read it here first, folks, that in fact there will be no baseball strike this summer. And that "non" story makes my year.

How come we only hear about a strike when there is one?

Why don't all the banner headlines proclaim, "Baseball to include 162 games this year—a full season is ensured."

After all, for any true baseball fan, the lack of a strike is the best news of the season.

Trust me. The big story won't be that someone broke Joe Dimaggio's 56-game hitting streak, or that the Rangers and Astros played in the first all-Texas World Series.

The fact that there will be a full season of the summer game is a great story in itself.

It is at this time every year that I grapple with wife Karen over the television remote control.

She wants desperately to watch the latest installment of The Wheel of Fortune. I, on the other hand, am not picky. I just want to watch whatever game happens to be on that day. And, in the typical give and take marital relationship, she let's me watch my game — after the big wheel is spun.

"Why do you like baseball so much?" she asks, rather confused.

"Why do I like baseball so much, you ask?" I ask.

It is the question I have been waiting for since last year at this time, and, as always, I have composed a brief summation on why baseball is as important as proper nutrition.

Baseball makes me feel like a kid again. It is one of the last vestiges of the innocence of my childhood. A time I spent idolizing the likes of Carl Yastrzemski, Reggie Jackson, Brooks Robinson, Frank Howard, Tom Seaver, Roberto Clemente and Pete Rose.

Listening to stories about the old days as told through the eyes of my dad. Stories about Musial, Mantle, Garagiola, Yogi, Stengel and Durocher.

Having given away my age, I can say I don't idolize players anymore — just what they represent.

The players may change. Their attitudes may change. Their salaries are everchanging.

But baseball, by its very nature, remains forever unchanging.

In all the lessons I've been taught about baseball over the years, I have formed an opinion in my mind that God made one person to be the perfect representative of the game of baseball — Yogi Berra.

It is men like him that only come around once in a game's lifetime, and Yogi epitomizes the humor, strategy, success and frustration of the game. I doubt there is anyone who knows more about the game than he.

Another reason I have grown to be such a fan is the simple beauty of the game. I heard it said somewhere before that one of the reasons baseball is so enjoyable is that you have time to think about the game. There is no clock to beat, no sudden death. Just extra innings.

Just pitch after pitch of unbridled sportsmanship.

Some may consider the game to be boring. And those are the ones that simply don't understand it. The ones that don't understand the strategy in every pitch, every movement. And yes, every time a third base coach wipes the bridge of his nose, or the sweat off his brow, there is a reason.

Baseball is like a complicated chess game played by uniformed athletes instead of two guys in suits and ties.

Baseball is appealing to the eye. The bright green grass contrasted against the rich tones of the infield dirt.

Baseball is as American as the garage sale, so why doesn't my mother watch it all the time? It is as thought provoking as Shakespeare, and as much fun as an old Cary Grant movie.

So do yourself a favor. If you don't yet appreciate the game, take some time to learn more about it. No matter what your age, if you come to enjoy the game more, you'll feel like you have a new friend.

Baseball brawls begin early

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A bench-clearing incident broke out early as the Mets and Boston Red Sox met Saturday for the first time since New York won the World Series last October.

What had been a festive afternoon suddenly turned serious in the second inning when Boston pitcher Al Nipper hit Darryl Strawberry squarely in the back with a fastball in the second inning. Strawberry had hit a towering home run off Nipper for the clinching blow in Game 7 last fall and had infuriated the Red Sox with a minute-long trot around the bases.

After being hit Saturday, the Mets outfielder started to walk purposely towards the mound while Nipper stared back and stepped towards the plate.

Home-plate umpire Dave Palone got between them as players from both benches spilled onto the field. There was some pushing but no punching and order was quickly restored without any ejections. Such incidents are virtually unheard of during spring training.

Before the fracas, the teams had been talking about their upcoming seasons. But the emphasis clearly was on the past.

"It's a fun thing to come out here, just reuniting the two teams that were in the World Series," Mets Catcher Gary Carter said.

"But there's no emphasis on winning, per se."

Players on each side downplayed the significance of the matchup, although fans began lining up outside Al Lang Stadium at 7:00 a.m. for bleacher seats and Commissioner Peter Ueberroth was in attendance for the game which was televised back to New York.

"It's kind of like the eighth game of the World Series," Ueberroth said. "I wanted to come to this one."

Many key performers from last October were absent Saturday. Series Most Valuable Player Ray Knight is no longer with the Mets and New York Manager Davey Johnson was away on family business. For Boston, pitcher Roger Clemens is a holdout, Rich Gedman is a free agent, while Wade Boggs and Bill Buckner did not make the hour-long trip to St. Petersburg.

"It's March. It's just an exhibition game," Boston Manager John McNamara said. "But in retrospect many people who say they weren't baseball oriented say the World Series captured their excitement. When you're so deeply involved you don't see it in that respect."

The Mets and Red Sox are scheduled to play once more this spring on March 18th in Winter Haven, Fla.

Morton wins 2A title

AUSTIN (AP) — Jerry Joyce scored 32 points even though he was hobbled for nearly a quarter with an ankle injury as defending champion Morton defeated Liberty Hill 84-72 Saturday for the boys' Class 2A basketball title.

Morton, appearing in the tournament for the 11th time since 1970, won its fifth championship.

Liberty Hill, a newcomer starting five juniors, only trailed 38-35 at halftime, converting 15 of 16 first half free throws.

Morton pulled away after three quarters, 54-47, but Joyce crashed to the floor with 6:21 left in the game when he was fouled by Steve Smets of Liberty Hill.

Joyce, a 6-foot-5 senior who was all-tournament last year, returned later and once again was a key to the offense and full-court press that forced 20 Liberty Hill turnovers.

Joyce also grabbed 12 of his team's 36 rebounds, the same as Phillip Lenox of Liberty Hill. Lenox led Liberty Hill scorers with 22 points but made only seven of 21 field goal attempts.

Liberty Hill made 24 of 30 free throws, including 10 of 10 for Clay Cole, while Morton was 12 for 22 from the free throw line.

Cole finished with 18 points, and Corby Davis had 17 for Liberty Hill.

Stevie Williams scored 14 and Rob Shields 12 for Morton, which finished with a 33-5 record. Liberty Hill completed a 34-4 season.

Sweeney edges Hughes Springs for 3A crown

AUSTIN (AP) — Sweeney fought off a furious comeback on the fourth-quarter shooting of Benford Williams to edge Hughes Springs 66-64 Saturday for the Class 3A boys' basketball title.

It is Sweeney's second title in three years, and the narrow victory spoiled Hughes Springs' bid for a perfect season.

Hughes Springs, a 1971 champion, finished the season with a 35-1 record. The Mustangs trailed 34-23 at halftime as Avery Helm pitched in 15 first-half points for Sweeney, and Williams had 13.

In the second half, 6-foot-5 senior Darrin Terry poured in 20 points for a game-high 28 as Hughes Springs erased the deficit and took its only lead, 58-57, on Jerry Martin's layup after a steal with 4:06 to play.

Williams' 16-foot field goal gave Sweeney the lead again, Helms followed with a goal after a rebound and Nick Bess' short jumper pushed Sweeney's margin to five points.

Terry swished a 20-footer and another from 16 feet to close the score to 66-64 with 0:01 left on the clock.

Hughes Springs called time out, but officials signaled no foul on a collision as the ball was thrown in, with Hughes Springs going for a steal.

The officials raced to their dressing room, escorted by two uniformed police officers, as loud boos came from part of the crowd of 10,685.

The key to Sweeney's victory was holding 1986 all-tournament player Eddie Jones to nine points. Twice his shots were blocked, and on one occasion Jones missed four straight shots from under the basket. He finished with three field goals in 15 attempts.

Williams and Helm each scored 23 for Sweeney, with eight of Williams' points coming in the fourth quarter. Bess had 15.

Sweeney finished with a 34-2 record.

Dallas team wins 4A title

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Hillcrest, tagged with 10 losses during the season, hit crucial free throws Saturday to win the Class 4A boys' basketball title over Cleburne 51-42.

For the second game in a row, Hillcrest made only one field goal in the final quarter but held on to win.

The Panthers defeated Bay City 54-51 in the Thursday semifinals and extended their record

Saturday to 24-10. Hillcrest led after three quarters, 38-30, and made 11 free throws and a lay-in field goal in the final period to capture the title.

Storm of terror swallows captives in Mideast mire

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

On the morning of March 16, 1985, Terry A. Anderson was sucked up into the eye of a Mideast storm. Two years later — years of family grief, of dashed hopes, of repercussions that reach to the Oval Office — the American journalist, captive of Shiite Moslem extremists, remains lost in Lebanon's turmoil.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, is the longest-held of eight American hostages in Lebanon.

Two recent events seemed to dim the chances for a hostage release: The political uproar in Washington over the White House's Iran arms-for-hostages deal, and the disappearance of hostage mediator Terry Waite in Lebanon.

But another event, the Syrian military intervention in Beirut's civil conflict, raises new hopes that the lawlessness of Lebanon may be brought under control.

Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, has never given up hope in her non-stop efforts to win her brother's release.

"I keep closely in touch with the various embassies of governments with influence in the region, and I am coming away with a feeling of their commitment to a resolution," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Batavia, N.Y.

Mrs. Say said she is encouraged by former President Jimmy Carter's planned trip to the Middle East later this month.

During his scheduled stopover in Damascus, she said, she hopes Carter will bring up the hostage situation with Syrian officials.

The free-the-hostages effort has a spiritual side as well.

The American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A. has designated Sunday as a national day of prayer for Anderson, 39, and the other captives, focusing on a special service at the First Baptist Church in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Say, who is Baptist, will join other hostage relatives and the freed hostage Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest, in a news conference Monday at Baptist headquarters in Valley Forge, Pa.

On that morning 24 months ago, when four armed men shoved Anderson into a green Mercedes and roared off, four Americans were already being held hostage.

Two — Jenco and the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister — were later released. Another, U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley, died after torture, American officials say. A fourth, Peter Kilburn, a librarian at American University of Beirut, was found shot to death.

Since Anderson's abduction, the kidnappings of Americans, Frenchmen, Britons and other foreigners in Beirut have averaged more than one a month. At least seven have been killed, and 26 are still missing, including seven Americans besides Anderson:

■ Thomas Sutherland, 55, of Fort Collins, Colo., agriculture dean at American University of Beirut, kidnapped June 9, 1985.

■ Frank Herbert Reed, 54, a native of Malden, Mass., and director of elementary education at Beirut's International College, kidnapped last Sept. 9.

■ Joseph J. Cicippio, 56, of Norristown, Pa., American University's acting comptroller, kidnapped last Sept. 12.

■ Edward Austin Tracy, a Rutland, Vt., native and free-lance writer. His abduction was announced last Oct. 21.

■ Alann Steen, 47, an American University journalism professor and longtime California resident, kidnapped with other professors Jan. 24.

■ Robert Polhill, 53, of New York, an American University business professor kidnapped Jan. 24.

■ Jesse J. Turner, 39, an Idahoan who taught mathematics and computer science at American University, kidnapped Jan. 24.

Kremlin vows to end 'mistakes'

MOSCOW (AP) — In a widely publicized address to the Soviet people, the Kremlin called on citizens Saturday to work hard for economic and social reform and vowed that "past mistakes will not be repeated."

The address by the Communist Party Central Committee covered the front page of all major national newspapers and led hourly broadcasts on Radio Moscow.

It did not mention Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev by name even once, but embraced his campaigns of reforms aimed at a more vital economy and higher standard of living.

The party leadership appeared to be presenting an image of unity amid speculation that Gorbachev faces opposition within the hierarchy.

Assurances that past errors would not reoccur may have been aimed at dispelling concern that Gorbachev could be headed for the same fate as former leader Nikita S. Khrushchev if he moves too fast.

The Central Committee ousted Khrushchev on Oct. 14, 1964, after he allowed a cultural thaw and failed to improve farm and industrial output.

The Saturday address came in connection with this year's 70th anniversary of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution which brought Soviet power to Russia.

The address declared the revolution "the most outstanding event of the 20th century" and said more than a third of the world's population has "already cast off the fetters" of capitalism.

"We do not have exploitation of man by man. We do not have unemployment, we do not have national oppression and we do not have poverty and illiteracy," said the Central Committee, which Gorbachev heads.

But it also alluded to "deviations" from the path of development forged by Soviet founder Vladimir I. Lenin, including "violations of legality and democratic norms, manifestations of voluntarism, dogmatism and inertia."

Those terms long have been used to refer to late Kremlin leaders Josef V. Stalin, Khrushchev and Leonid I. Brezhnev, not mentioned by name in the address.

Spring fashions feature Western, safari looks

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

Western and African looks dominate this spring's fashion selections, with bright colors, "Out of Africa" motifs and denim and chambray fabrics leading the way.

There's an array of bright colors to choose from, including lemon yellow and tangerine orange. Khaki, olive drab, neutrals and pastels are also available, and color combinations include white teamed with navy or black. Denim appears in white, black and indigo.

Denim and chambray lead fabric selections. Pants, skirts, tops, dresses and duster coats are all being fashioned from these fabrics.

Alternatives to denim and chambray fabrics are sheeting, twill and linen looks. Cotton knits make a strong showing, especially in separates and coordinates.

"Out of Africa," a safari theme, is the leading motif for prints in clothes for all ages. Others include bright florals, geometrics, Hawaiian and sailor designs, as well as traditional stripes and gingham plaids.

Shoulder pads are still present, as well as deep armholes and dolman sleeves. Some styles are oversized, especially big tops. Western looks dominate all age groups.

Shirtwaist dresses feature a simple cut with deep pockets and long circle skirts. Long, full skirts have matching long tops.

The trend is toward skirts and away from pants. Skirts are both narrow and full, with narrow skirts in shorter lengths and full skirts in longer styles. Petticoats are gaining in popularity.

(see SPRING FASHIONS, p. 16)

Dress flats for spring come in a variety of colors to match the season's fabrics.

Chambray and denim are the season's top fabric choices. Add-on collars are popular, and rhinestones and studs appear everywhere.

Men's and boy's styles

Hearts are still a popular motif for spring necklace styles.

Belts are a major accessory to this spring's fashions. The look is wide, with silver trim, and includes leather, denim and stretchable webbing.

Spring Fashions

(Cont'd. from p. 15)

Pants are available in twill and sheeting fabrics, with a standardized leg that is neither narrow nor wide. Pant lengths vary as much as skirt lengths, anywhere from mid-calf to ankle-length. Elastic waistbands offer added comfort for pants wearers.

Men's pants include trendy jams and clam diggers, especially for young men and boys. Jams are short, above-the-knee pants, often in bright prints. Clam diggers reach to just below the knee, and some sport Hawaiian motifs. Shorts are big and baggy, rather than tight-fitting.

The "icing on the cake" for this year's spring fashions are lace and jeweled trims. Lace appears on collars and skirts, along with eyelet trim. Rhinestones, studs and shaped stones, or "jewels," are added to tops, bottoms and matching outfits. Silver and applique trims are also abundant. Anything goes, as long as it's glitzy, shiny and glittery.

Make your brown eyes blue

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Just as a change in seasons can bring a change in popular fashion colors, it also is possible for people to change the color of their eyes — with tinted contact lenses.

But tinted lenses are not for everyone, according to Dr. James A. Boucher, chairman of the American Optometric Association.

"Sometimes the lens that will not compromise your eye health and will give you the best vision and most comfortable fit doesn't come in a tint," says Boucher. "In those cases, I recommend going with a clear lens."

"Having the best vision possible and good eye health is what matters most."

He points out that American consumers have a choice of soft lenses, soft extended-wear lenses and rigid gas-permeable lenses in a variety of tints, some of which can enhance natural eye color, while others can actually change the color.

Big and bright are the two words that best describe this season's fashion accessories.

Jewelry is big and chunky, and comes in a rainbow of bright colors. Large, colorful bead necklaces in a variety of lengths and shapes are most popular. Pastels are still available as an alternative.

Chunky wooden beads, including animal shapes, are also evident. Hearts continue to be a popular jewelry design.

Other styles include ethnic looks and a return to semi-precious stones, such as jade, amethyst, rose quartz, tiger eye and onyx. Venetian glass beads team well with denim. Pearls, a jewelry mainstay, keep their place as an important accessory.

Earrings are large, available in gold and silver tones as well as bright-colored novelty styles. Belts may be the most important accessory this spring. Look for wide styles worn at the hip or waist. Leather, webbed and denim, as well as other fabrics, are available. Concho and denim belts go well with denim fashions.

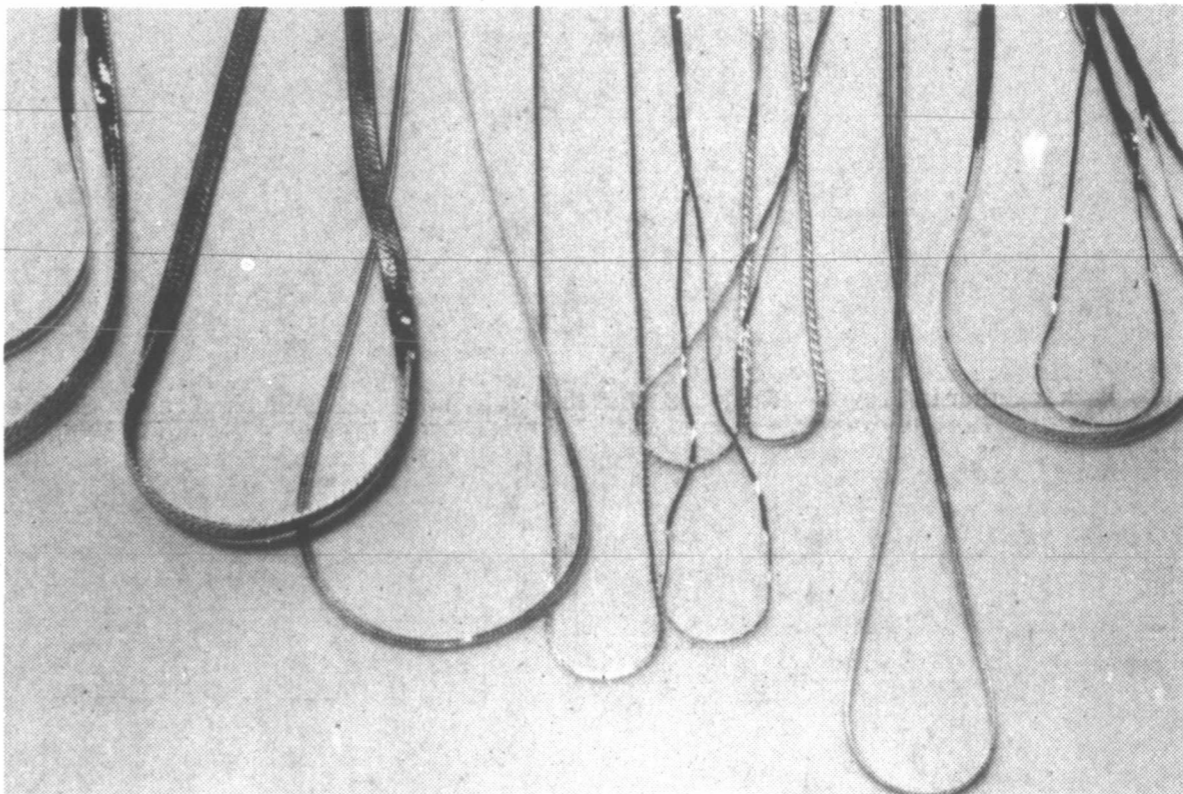

Add-on collars made of lace, bandanna prints and denim may be seen topping dresses, shirts and blouses. Some feature jeweled trims.

Fashion hosiery is textured and sheer, with lots of polka-dots and lace patterns. Spring selections favor pastel colors.

Hair bows are the main headgear. Large bows, four to six inches wide, are made of denim, bandanna prints, lace, grosgrain and satin, and include bright colors.

Hats, although available, are not as strong an accessory as the bows, perhaps because of the ever-present Panhandle winds.

Neck chains can be found in a wide range of lengths and weights.

Low heels, colors characterize shoes

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

Low-heeled pumps in an array of colors are this spring's major dress shoe style.

Heels are 1½ to 2½ inches tall. Higher heels, 3 to 3½ inches, are falling out of favor.

Flats and sandals are also good choices. Huaraches, or woven materials, are available in sandal, oxford and flat-heel styles.

Both bright and pastel colors, as well as metallic and neutral shades, are available. Pink, yellow, green, blue, peach, turquoise, orange and red appear in both bright and pastel shades.

Traditional neutrals such as white, black, bone, navy and taupe are found in pumps, sandals and flats. Pastels are present but not as emphasized as brights.

Gold, silver and pewter metallics appear in every style. Even canvas sneakers range from metallic to bright rainbow shades.

Leather is the dominant footwear material, although trendy denim shoes and boots are becoming popular to go with this season's denim fashions. Some huaraches are made of light and dark denim alternating with silver straps. Snakeskin looks, silver and rhinestones decorate some denim footwear. "Croco-print" shoes made of pebble-grained leather add textural interest.

Handbags echo shoe colors and fabrics. Materials include leather, tapestry, patent, straw and — you guessed it — denim. Clutch bags are popular, and color choices are numerous.

Handbag sizes range from an envelope size that almost appears to be a child's purse, up to an oversize bag, with ample, roomy styles more predominant. Jeweled stones and studs decorate some bags.

Low-heeled dress pumps are a leader in spring shoe styles. Some sport bows, and may be teamed with matching purses in both neutrals and colors ranging from pastels to brights.

Men's dress shoes this season include some tried-and-true favorite styles.

Hairstyles, makeup echo spring trends

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

Makeup looks for spring '87 are bright and bold, matching fashion colors.

An overall finished appearance is emphasized, with blush, lip and nail colors coordinated.

Colored mascara is still popular. Eyeshadows are both bright and pastel, and teals and pink heater tones are much in demand.

Nail polish comes in an array of colors to match everything in the clothes closet. Creams, or slicks, are more popular than frosted in nail polish as well as lipsticks, eyeshadows and blushers. Sculptured nails, or artificial nails, retain their popularity.

Squared-off medium length nails are this season's choice. This style is durable and doesn't break easily.

The trend in skin care products is toward a healthy look. Those that keep skin elastic and healthy are in demand, as well as cell renewal products that keep skin looking young as long as possible.

Top-selling fragrances for women include Magic Noir ("Magic Night"), Fidji by Guy Laroche, Nina Ricci, J. Osi, and Galore and Royal Secret, both by Germain Montiel.

Men's fragrances that are currently popular include Grey Flannel, Pierre Cardin, Capucci, Halston, Halston 101, Wall Street, Giacomo, YSL (Yves St. Laurent) and Punjab.

Popular women's hairstyles are short and asymmetrical. Permanents are a styling mainstay, and a common technique is to let permed hair dry without styling to achieve a wet look. Color highlights are in demand.

Men's hairstyles include the bos cut, with hair spiked on top and short on the sides. Hair at the back of the head is cropped close, with one long strand left from the crown.

Soft textures and smooth lines work together in Trevor Sorbie's overlapped hair style that gives a sense of movement to longer hair.

Hairstylists Irvine and Rita Rusk use what they call "unexpected width" in this short, upward-cut look styled with Rusk Edition products.

The "Lioness" style developed by Trevor Sorbie layers color onto the hair. The finished style is a sculptured look taking off in London today.

Origin least important factor in buying clothes

By The Associated Press

Where a piece of clothing is made counts very little in the decision to buy, according to an Oregon State University study.

The survey was conducted among department department and discount store shoppers in Oregon by OSU graduate student Kay Gipson. She found that 83 percent were unaware of the national origin of a garment they had just bought.

Those surveyed said "country of origin" was the least important factor among 16 criteria given for deciding which garment to buy.

"This study is important because it shows where the consumer really stands on the issue of domestic vs. imported clothing," says Miss Gipson, a master's degree candidate in OSU's College of Home Economics.

"If all factors were equal, then where a garment was made probably would be important," she says. "But in decisiveness, it was not an actual factor."

A previous survey, conducted in 1982 by Kitty Dickerson, a home economist from Virginia, concluded much the opposite. That survey asked 1,350 American consumers the importance for them of having a garment made in the United States. Miss Gipson says. More than 58 percent answered it would be a "somewhat or very important" factor when they bought a piece of clothing.

"What I did," says Miss Gipson, "was actually test that statement at the point of purchase and with a garment bought for the consumer's own use."

Book teaches children to dress themselves

NEW YORK (AP) — Teaching children to dress themselves is one way to fuel their independence and reduce parental stress, suggest the authors of two free books on hassle-free dressing for toddlers. "Let's Get Dressed" is a full-color activity book for preschool children produced by Levi Strauss & Co. and the Bank Street College of Education.

"Dressing Your Preschooler with Less Hassle," an accompanying guide for parents, contains advice on how to deal with dawdling; teaching children about snaps, zippers and buttons.

Furs need to be kept cold, clean

By The Associated Press

Most animals are by now coming out of hibernation to enjoy the late spring and summer — but it's time to reverse the process for fur coats, according to an industry consultant.

"Leaving your fur out in hot, dry weather is one of the worst things you can do to your coat," says Konnie Karopoulos, executive director of the Master Furriers Guild of America, an association of fur retailers.

An annual cleaning is a must to remove dirt and grime that accumulates in the lower layers of fur, according to Ms. Karopoulos.

"Cleaning rejuvenates your fur, returning the loft and luster you originally bought it for," she says. "Cold storage also is a must, and your local furrier will arrange for your coat to be stored in the properly controlled climate to help preserve it."

This, she adds, should be 45 degrees Fahrenheit and 50 percent humidity.

Other suggestions include the repairing of worn spots and tears in the fur pelts and replacing of a worn-out lining if necessary.

BRIDAL BOUQUETS

TWO'S A CROWD

Inviting, or not inviting, dates of your single friends to your wedding can be a sticky question. Unless money, and size, is no object, you'll need to control the number of guests at your wedding. When constructing your invitation list, consider which singles will be invited with escorts. It's unwise to be simply arbitrary about this; a consistent policy will make your life easier when the inevitable happens and a single friend asks you, "Can I bring a date?"

Good policies that make such questions easier to answer include: only members of the wedding party; only engaged couples; only those over 21. Reassuring the person that other singles will be there is also helpful (and, conversely, if there AREN'T other singles, then it would be polite to allow a guest).

You'll want to avoid having unexpected guests at the wedding. It helps to avoid issuing invitations to a friend "and guest." Rather, ask the friend informally if he or she would like to bring a date and if so, get the address and send another invitation—which etiquette says is the proper thing to do anyway.

4-H celebrates 80th anniversary

DATES

March 15 — Texas 4-H Foundation Scholarships due.

March 16 — 7 p.m., 4-H Horse Project meeting, Courthouse Annex.

March 17 — 7 p.m., E.T. 4-H Club meeting, Calvary Baptist Church.

March 18 — 4-5 p.m., 4-H Bedroom Improvement Project, Courthouse Annex.

March 21 — 2-5 p.m., Lefors Crafts Project, Lefors Senior Citizens Center.

4-H — SOMETHING TO CELEBRATE

As the 4-H program approaches 80 years of existence in Texas, there are reasons to celebrate.

First, 4-H is the largest youth organization in America with 4.5 million members. As other youth organizations decline in membership, 4-H has continued to grow. Texas boasts 305,000 members.

In the 80-year history of 4-H, 50 million Americans have been members — one out of every six people.

Secondly, 4-H is youth and adults working together.

The 4-H volunteer leader concept is one of the program's strengths. For every hour of professional employees' time spent in the 4-H program, volunteers contributed 10 hours.

4-H emphasizes families because they are the strength of our country and our way of life; 4-H works to strengthen families.

The third reason to celebrate 4-H is that it teaches leadership and citizenship. 4-H members and clubs participate in projects to benefit the community, and the international program extends 4-H pathways across our borders. 4-H's ultimate goal is youth leadership development.

Another reason to celebrate 4-H is that 4-H has something for everyone. Through 4-H projects ranging from beef to beekeeping, from forestry to food and nutrition, and from safety to sewing, 4-H members experience "learning by doing." They can select projects and set their own goals. These projects enable 4-H'ers to learn useful skills, the dignity of work, and the satisfaction of responsibility. Many times a 4-H project will lead to a career.

By comparing accomplishments, 4-H'ers develop higher standards of excellence and the self-confidence to broaden their goals and interests.

4-H is a way of life. Through 4-H, a member gains an attitude and a sense of values — moral and practical — that will remain through life. 4-H then is a way of doing and thinking — a physical and mental way of making our "best better."

The county Extension office has further information on 4-H and how to get involved in this "action" program for youth.

Art decorates denims

By The Associated Press

Looking for a somewhat different kind of artistic expression? How about wearable art? The canvas can be as close as the seat of your pants.

According to some representatives of the denim industry, there is a resurgence in the popularity of decorating basic blue jeans.

Would-be artists are using rhinestones and appliques, bleach, paint, feathers and patches of fabric to create some of the more imaginative works of fashion self-expression.

Among the one-of-a-kind creations were elegant evening looks with sea pearls, fur, suede and leather trim, jackets with floral appliques and quilted silk linings and colorful back-yoke artwork.

Blue jeans art is not new but the motivation has changed, says Dean Christon, spokesman for Levi Strauss & Co.

Anniversaries

MR. & MRS. LARRY L. CROSS

Crosses observe 25th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Larry L. Cross of Pampa celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with a family reception in their home on Sunday, March 8.

The event was hosted by their daughters, Mary Cross of Lubbock and Barbara Bigham of Pampa.

Also honoring the couple were their parents, Mrs. Dulcie Duke and Mr. and Mrs. Merle S. Cross, all of Darrrouzett.

Homemakers' News

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

When looking at delicate subjects for young marrieds to discuss, money takes the top spot with sex and death following closely behind. A recent survey revealed that 54 percent of all couples argue a great deal about money. When money is tight, that figure jumps to 64 percent. It is clear that the success of many relationships may depend in large part on how well partners are able to deal with financial matter.

Money management can mean anything from making budgets and sticking to them to deciding whether a sudden windfall should be spent on a charitable donation or an expensive vacation. Conflict can occur when partners have different views about how the money ought to be spent, or when they disagree on the process to be used in making a decision. One partner may want all decisions to be fully discussed and jointly reached, while the other may feel it is his or her right to make a spending decision without asking the other.

Money management is accomplished with the least conflict when partners have an equal influence over decisions. If either partner is too dominating, conflict occurs. It may be tedious for couples to create budgets together and decide jointly what to spend on everything from groceries to entertainment to clothes and even furniture. And it may not be possible for the two partners to do all their spending separately, without conflicting with each other's decisions. When couples do take the time to share control over money management, they seem to have happier, calmer relationships.

Communication about any subject, but especially money, is an essential aspect of family relationships. An effective communications network can bring a couple closer together through increased understanding and appreciation of one another. Unfortunately, one of the chief causes of frustration, confusion and unhappiness in human relationships is communications.

When family members communicate, they share feelings, ideas, facts, attitudes and beliefs. This exchange of messages often helps each family member know what to expect from others as well as what is expected of them. Communication also provides a means of testing thoughts, reducing tension and resolving conflicts, solving problems, gaining knowledge, and developing a better understanding of others.

Keys to effective communication include:

- Be warm and friendly.
 - Be reliable and dependable.
 - Have honest intentions and motives.
 - Have knowledge and understanding.
 - Believe in what you say.
 - Acceptance by others means you are trustworthy.
- Communication barriers include:
- Ineffective listening.
 - Putting others on the defensive.
 - Jumping to conclusions.
 - Closed mind.
 - Being self-centered.
 - Creating obstacles to self-expressing (nagging, sarcasm, preaching and emphasizing other's mistakes).

• Unaware of how we come across to others.

To keep your marriage on firm ground, establish good communication and cooperative planning in all areas, especially financial. Discuss your goals and priorities for tomorrow, next year, and the years ahead. These can range from buying your own home to raising children, to starting your own business. Whatever your goals are, identify them and aim to work together to attain them.

In her book, "Stress and the Healthy Family," researcher Delores Curran says that her studies of stress-effective families show they use four common money management techniques:

- They learn to control money stresses together.
- They budget by planning for fixed monthly costs like a home, car and medical and insurance payments and then divide the rest into savings, food, clothing, recreation and miscellaneous.
- When money gets tight, healthy families develop methods of making major purchases without the need for painful arguments.

Peeking at Pampa

Two seasons for one and lots of activities made up last week's calendar. The calendar looked something like this.

Belated birthday wishes to Bess Rice, a perky, stylish little lady who is now 90 years young. Bess was born in Ontario, Canada. Her family moved by train first to Miami and then by open wagon to Mobeetie before moving to Pampa. Her father, F.P. Reid, was Pampa's mayor during the late '20s and early '30s. Her son and family, Otto, Jr., came from Richardson to be with Bess and her son Bill. Her daughter, Lillian Benedict, called from San Antonio with a promise of an in-person visit a little later. Congratulations on a milestone birthday, Bess!

Rosemary and Bo Boulter are the proud grandparents of their first grandchild, Amy, born to Rebecca and George Daughtery of Valdosta, Ga.

Zela and Ralph Cole of Rapid City, S.D., were Pampa visitors last weekend. Johnnie Kitchens and sons Jory and Toby of Portales, N.M., Patricia and John Lauen of Spavinaw, Okla., visited parents Evelyn and Melvin Chandler.

Mamie and Jack Thurne and daughters June and Debbie of Jacksonville, Fla., have been houseguests of their daughter and family, Joyce and Keith Feerer, Janice and Ryan.

Thelma and Frank Thomas returned to Pampa after a 30-day trip to Australia and New Zealand.

Darla, Rick and Gina Hugg spent a wonderful week at the Stouffers Grand Hotel in St. Thomas.

Drs. Tesi and Rene Grabato took in the sights and important places in England. Dr. Vijay K. Mohan visited family and friends in India.

Kaylene Tuttle of Arlington visited her parents and brother, Anthony, Hugh and H.A. Layne.

Pam Ryzman has been busy going back and forth to Corsicana where J.J. now serves as police chief.

Susie Wilkerson, director of Agape Health Services, attended a week-long seminar on documentation in Dallas. As a member of the Texas State Board and a local representative of licensed vocational nurses, she attended a three-day board meeting in Austin.

Mike Kirkpatrick, director of nurses, and Joy Evans, LVN, attended a seminar on Medicare and documentation at Hot Springs, Ark.

Bob Cooper has pictures to show of his and Charlotte's brand new granddaughter. Charlotte spent a week with the little miss at her home in the Nashville, Tenn. area. Bob named the wee one Natalie Breanne. Congratulations to the proud grandparents!

Congratulations to Sandie and Shane Stokes on the birth of little Kindel Shae. Proud first-time grandparents are Linda and Ronnie Stokes.

Cap Jolly is out and around after a bout with broken ribs suffered in a motorcycle accident. In true airplane pilot tradition, Cap is waiting for the day when he can ride again.

Lois Marsh presented a coordinated picture of loveliness in a wallpaper printed stripe blouse, blue denim skirt, long and full, gray hose and shoes, hair smartly coiffed.

Kind words and accolades to Gretchen Osborne, who is a role model in courage and in setting personal goals. Gretchen attends the hospice class at Clarendon College, Pampa Center, where she shares first person insight. As an Agape volunteer, Gretchen puts some bright spots in the life of a little family through personal visits and phone calls.

Another Agape volunteer, O.C. Penn, willingly sits with male patients to allow family members a break. The men do enjoy visiting with another man.

Lorene and Marion Kuhn took time out to make a few minor, much-needed house repairs for an elderly couple. Pampan care enough to share of themselves wherever needed.

Susan and Johnnie, Jacky and Rebecca Furgason pulled a sneaky trick on their parents, Helen and J.L. Furgason. The trick was a surprise reception on their 25th wedding anniversary held in Fellowship Hall of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ last Sunday.

A group of 23 high school youth from Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ tested the ski slopes at Rio Costillo. Sponsors were Keith Feerer, Libby and Gene Glaeser, Ruby and Bob Adecock, Nelda and Joe Johnson and Tony Clark.

Little 2-year-old Megan Ward, granddaughter of Goldie and Simon Ward, took her own little Bible to Sunday School every Sunday for the past three months. Wilma Mason is the class teacher.

A group of 20 high school youth from First Baptist Church enjoyed a ski trip. Sponsors were Gwen and Glenn Shock, Tammy and Donnie Bennett.

And a Happy St. Patrick's Day to you!

See you next week. Katie.

Tenant's little secret is big surprise to landlord

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own and manage a very nice small apartment building. We've never discriminated against anyone, and have always rented to tenants based on their applications being approved through credit checks, references, etc.

We recently rented an apartment to "Douglas," a nice single man (or so we thought); then we noticed a strikingly glamorous woman leaving and entering his apartment with increasing frequency. One night last week we saw this woman, beautifully dressed, leaving Douglas' apartment, so I went out and asked her where Douglas was. She smiled and in a very husky voice replied, "I am Douglas, but when I'm in this attire, you may call me Melanie."

Abby, we certainly don't want this type of person in our building.

How can we get him out?

IN SHOCK

DEAR IN: Unless he creates a disturbance, damages your property, falls behind in his rent, or in some way becomes an undesirable tenant, if he has a lease, you cannot legally get him out. "This type" of person isn't harming anyone, so if you've never discriminated against anyone, please don't start now, and give Douglas high marks for honesty.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm having problems with my husband of six years and need your opinion. I am 5 foot 5, 110 pounds and I'm considered very pretty. Yet I've been feeling very down because "Tony" is more interested in his Playboy magazines than in me! I'm lucky if he makes love to me once every six weeks.

I was very jealous of the girls in Playboy, so I had some pictures taken of me by a top professional photographer. There was nothing showing except a little bit of breast underneath a sheer fabric. When I gave Tony those pictures for Christmas, he just put them aside and hasn't looked at them to this day.

Abby, I thought the pictures were lovely. They gave me a totally new image of myself. I felt like a beautiful, sexy woman instead of a rejected, unloved housewife. I did this for both of us. Your opinion?

HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: There's nothing wrong with fantasizing — but it shouldn't be a substitute for the real thing.

Tony should see his doctor for a thorough examination to determine whether his low sex drive is the result of a hormonal deficiency or some kind of medical problem. If there is nothing physically wrong with him, his next stop should be a marriage counselor with you at his side.

Man is keeper of the clocks

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

PHARR (AP) — Jim Shawn once offered to sell his collection of clocks for $100 apiece. Simple enough, right?

But when the buyers reached 984 timepieces and still had to count the stopwatches, the digital clock from 1870 and all the other clocks behind glass cases at his clock museum, he says they "stalled out and left."

"I really don't know what I do have in numbers and I never will," says the 80-year-old keeper of clocks of all kinds, including a master clock that ran slave clocks, risque French clocks and stately English and Scottish clocks, timepieces from the Civil War and the Revolutionary War, and timers for the henhouse, boiled eggs and gamblers.

Shawn doesn't wind the clocks so it's hard to find one that tells the right time in the corrugated metal building next to his house that has held the collection since 1968.

Clicking and ticking fill the 2,100-square-foot building in the Rio Grande Valley as each clock marks the time in its own fashion — leisurely or melodically, clipped and concise.

"How would you like to wind all of them?" Shawn says with a sweep of his hand. "I haven't got my new ones running. It'd take three or four days to wind them all."

Shawn spent a lifetime repairing 10-ton trucks and tractors, but his retirement years have focused on keeping the smaller gears and cranks of clocks running.

"They're nothing but a 10-ton truck transmission, but a lot smaller," he says.

Watches are another matter, he says, a chew of Redman tobacco tucked in his mouth: "I don't touch watches. They're too small."

And digital clocks are eschewed by Shawn. The only one in the collection is a forerunner of the modern version, an English clock from 1870 that didn't go over very well because people missed the face, he says.

"I don't like them," he says of today's digital timepieces. "That electronic goulash can quit you too quick when you really need to know something."

Shawn says he began collecting and repairing clocks in 1965 — and the fascination grew with each addition.

"There's more variety of clocks than there ever was automobiles," he says. "Automakers got the idea of changing models every year from clocks."

He fixes clocks acquired for the collection, as well as for the public, and opens his museum at all hours — once at midnight for visitors leaving the area the next day.

His oldest piece is the movement of an English grandfather clock from 1690, and the most modern timepiece in the place is the 25-year-old watch on his wrist (except for the reproductions of old clocks).

Business leaders say government still plays too big a role

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Business leaders are accusing President Miguel de la Madrid's administration of being slow to implement a plan to reduce the government's bloated role in the battered Mexican economy.

They also say a lack of information about the progress of the plan is causing confusion.

The most precise criticism yet came in a report released this week by the Center for Economic Studies of the Private Sector, a research organization created by the country's leading business and industrial organizations.

Among other things, it accused the government of dragging its feet in divesting itself of hundreds of state-owned enterprises, which the de la Madrid administration promised to do four years ago in order to help reduce the huge national budget deficit.

Although there are no reliable statistics, the ballpark figure used by economists is that the government owns or controls about 80 percent of Mexico's economic activity, from industrial monopolies to tiny businesses.

Constitutional provisions stipulate the petroleum, heavy petrochemical, power generating, nuclear, telecommunications and railroad industries should be outright state monopolies.

But over the past 50 years, the government also has been acquiring part or complete ownership in hundreds of businesses, from airlines to nightclubs, hotels, movie theaters chains and studios, and even small laundry chains and tiny tortilla-making factories in remote areas.

It has virtual monopolies on coffee and sugar exports, steel and iron making, commercial aviation, banking and dozens of other activities. The various departments also have majority or minority shares in hundreds of companies more, from automobile and truck assembly plants to shipyards.

The Mexico City government, for instance, owns Atlante, the country's most popular soccer team, which it bought at couple of years ago from the Mexican Social Security Institute.

Virtually all of them are money losers.

The enterprises were acquired by the government to keep them from closing down and thus save jobs — one of the main planks of the Institutional Revolutionary Party, which has held power in Mexico since its founding in 1929.

Mexico has a high population growth rate that far exceeds its economic capacity.

Although the growth rate dropped from a record high of 3.4 to 2.1 percent in the past decade, the country still needs to create 1 million new jobs annually — from now until the end of the century — just to provide for youths seeking employment for the first time.

The government traditionally has been the main source of employment.

Government employment, financed by oil-export dollars, soared to an all-time high under the 1976-1982 administration of President Jose Lopez Portillo, when the number of state-owned companies surpassed 2,000.

But when oil prices started dropping in 1982, that income shrank sharply, plunging the country into its worst economic crisis ever.

Under a plan introduced by the de la Madrid administration, which succeeded Lopez Portillo's, the government claims it has been reducing both the bureaucracy and divesting itself of unprofitable state-owned companies.

REPAYMENT ABILITY INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT
Changes in agricultural lending policies and practices have resulted from greater loan losses during the past few years.

"The most dramatic change has been the increased emphasis on repayment ability," says Dr. Danny A. Klinefelter, former economist-management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Until recently, most agricultural lenders based loan decisions primarily on knowledge of the borrower, the borrower's past repayment record and adequacy of collateral margins.

While these are still necessary and important considerations, they are not sufficient. Collateral-based lending has two major weaknesses — it considers only lender protection and does not address whether the loan will benefit the borrower, and such lending is procyclical.

Since collateral is relied upon for repayment only in the event of default, the important consideration is its expected value at the note's due date or the next scheduled payment date. Therefore, there is a tendency for lenders to be more liberal and for borrowers to borrow excessively when asset values are appreciating, and to be very conservative when asset values are declining.

Large numbers of borrower failure and loan losses for lenders have resulted where asset values have declined sharply. Thus, more lending is being based on repayment ability, with collateral providing insurance and control rather than justification for borrowing or lending.

Many lenders and farmers, however, are going halfway in analyzing repayment ability by evaluating only annual cash flow projections. Cash flow analysis is important for repayment ability, but on an annual basis it is a short-run concept.

"A firm can be going broke and still be generating a positive cash flow by reamortizing debts, selling off assets including inventories and not replacing capital assets as they wear out," Klinefelter says.

The frequently neglected half of repayment analysis is profitability, he explains. Without sufficient inheritances, non-farm income and-or asset appreciation to offset losses, in the long-run, a business has to make a profit to survive. While occasional or periodic losses may be tolerated, income trends need to be a major consideration in any sound borrowing or lending program intended to be an ongoing relationship, he notes.

Profitability is evaluated usually on the borrower's cash-basis tax returns, which is fine for tax management purposes, but it can misrepresent business performance significantly. True profitability has to be analyzed on an accrual basis, but this does not mean farmers need to maintain two sets of records or switch from cash-basis tax reporting.

Accrual income can be estimated fairly accurately by adjustments to the cash-basis date to account for changes in inventories, accounts payable and accrued expenses. These adjustments are simple but critical because cash-basis accounting can hide developing profitability problems for as much as two years, and that can be critical to both the borrower and the lender.

"The change to repayment-based lending is long overdue. But it shouldn't be done halfway. It is not borrowing money that causes trouble, it is borrowing for things that won't pay for themselves," Klinefelter cautions.

Joint ventures look promising for you in the year ahead, especially if you associate yourself with someone with whom you have strong emotional bonds. You'll each protect the other's interest. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best to limit your business dealings today to people you've either dealt with previously or know by reputation to be ethical. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't agree to do something today that's not to your advantage just to appease a sensitive associate's feelings. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could be a trifle slow getting started today, and you're not apt to be productive unless you're working on something creative. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Gauge your audience carefully today, and don't come on too strong about recent good fortune if one of your listeners appears envious. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take time to put things back in their proper place around the house today, or you may go looking for something you need and find it has mysteriously disappeared. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before passing on information you are told today, be certain your informant has all the facts straight, or you're the one who'll look foolish. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do some comparison shopping before making costly purchases today, or you might be talked into paying more for things than they are actually worth. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) When dealing with others today, flattery will not serve a useful purpose. If you feel a need to compliment anyone, be sure he or she is deserving. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Listen with your logic, not your emotions today. If your feelings dominate your thinking, you might be hurt over something where no ill will was intended. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If there is something expensive you want, but can't afford at present, wait until you have the funds instead of running up new bills. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Needless anxiety could impede your progress today. Don't carelessly leave the phone off the hook and then start worrying when no calls come through. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your initial impressions might not be wholly reliable today. Wait until you have sifted through all the facts before making major decisions.

Prince's new LP due soon

Big album news: The new Prince disc is due March 23. It's a double-LP release entitled "Sign of the Times."

The Purple Pain tracked most of the instruments himself (since he had fired the bulk of his band), although there is a guest appearance by percussionist Sheila E.

Concert plans for summer are in the works.

Also due in March: the latest effort by socio-political rockers U2; a follow-up entry from acclaimed newcomers Simply Red; and (maybe) Whitney Houston's follow-up LP.

Offering less star power — but potentially more interesting music — is the March release of "Will Power," the latest in a series of career twists and turns by eclectic Joe Jackson. This time, the balding Brit has put together a symphonic instrumental work, performed with a 50-piece orchestra.

The tracks reportedly veer from classical to minimalist to Oriental to jazz — and there is one short vocal piece to change the pace.

- Only the soundtrack cut will be out in March, but Beach Boys fans are still excited to know that Brian Wilson, the troubled creative force behind the band, is working on a solo album project. His debut tune, "Let's Go to Heaven in My Car," appears in the movie "Police Academy IV."
- Casting coup of the decade: Billy Joel and Bette Midler take starring roles as, respectively, a terrier and a poodle, in an upcoming Disney version of "Oliver Twist." (To be fair, only their voices star — since the feature is animated.)
- When Quiet Riot bandmates Frankie Banali and Carlos Cavazo announced they had "fired" lead singer (and band founder) Kevin DuBrow because of his big mouth, "Mr. Big Mouth" himself was strangely, ah, quiet.

Turns out, DuBrow was in Florida producing an album for newcomers Juliet when QR's stinging press release was mailed out. Video Beat had to call him and read the vitriolic statement over the phone.

Replied a shocked DuBrow, "Wow! And I thought nothing would ever be as nasty as the Van Halen split! Where do they say I'm responsible for AIDS, the Iran crisis and World War II?"

The flamboyant vocalist, uncharacteristically, had nary a discouraging word about his former cohorts; and he simply said he plans to form a new band as soon as the Juliet recording project (tentative title: "Boys Will Be Boys") is completed.

City Slicker band leader Eddy Davis is enjoying success playing weird instruments in revival of Spike Jones' style of music.

Spike Jones' lunacy revived

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddy Davis is partial to idiot babble. He enjoys all the sneezes, giggles, gurgles, clucks, hiccupps, gunshots and other assorted mayhem that his band commits nightly, but idiot babble is his favorite.

Davis is an accomplished jazz musician, a man of refinement and taste. At least he was until he undertook a lifelong ambition of reviving the music of the late, great and utterly demented Spike Jones.

Now his nights are spent in a cacophony of cowbells, washboards, auto horns, brake drums, duck calls, toilet plungers and buckets of junk. And he loves every minute of it.

Spike Jones was the impish bandleader who sprang fully crazed onto the American scene in 1942 with a wild recording of a song called "Der Fuehrer's Face," which offered the Bronx cheer to Adolf Hitler.

After that, he made a successful career of satirizing popular tunes and murdering the classics with a band that significantly expanded the definition of a musical instrument.

Jones died in 1965 at 53, and for a while his music seemed dead as well. But it was revived on the radio in the early 1970s by Dr. Demuto, the Los Angeles disc jockey with a passion for the bizarre. Last month, nearly 30 years after Jones' death, Eddy Davis and his New York Repertory Jazz Ensemble began playing the music of Spike Jones and his City Slickers at Michael's Pub, a Manhattan nightclub.

"Ever since I was a little kid, I've heard the records and always wanted to be part of a band like this," the 46-year-old Davis said.

Davis made it happen after he was approached with the idea by the owner of Michael's Pub. He began work on the project just before last Christmas, poring over scores provided by Spike Jones Jr., the bandleader's son, and transcribing the scores to other songs from records.

The scores, he said, had notations such as "glug," "hic" and "sput" — which together described a vocal chant of "gut-a-but-hic-sput, gut-a-but-hic-sput" — as well as the aforementioned "idiot babble." That's created by having everyone in the band babble incoherently.

The hardest part was assembling the "instruments."

For example, Davis said he couldn't find the tuned Kentucky cowbells that Jones used, so he had to settle for alpine cowbells from Germany.

Davis brought together an ensemble of six other musicians and put together a show that touches on the highlights of Jones' career: "Der Fuehrer's Face," "Cocktails for Two," "Holiday for Strings," "Serenade for a Jerk" and "The William Tell Overture."

Davis said the group has been swamped with calls for concert performances, and he is thinking of creating a Broadway show.

Young actor concerned with his image production from Back to the Future.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eric Stoltz came to an interview with his own tape recorder, and not because he wanted to protect himself from being misquoted.

"I was so horrendous a couple of years ago," the 25-year-old actor said. "The poor publicist on Mask showed me a 20-page transcript of an interview she did with me, and it was horrible. Only four pages were usable. I have a tendency to start sentences and get lost, not finishing thoughts."

"By taping interviews and studying the transcripts, I've been able to improve. After all, (publicity) is part of the business. It's something every actor should learn," he said.

Stoltz has had an unusual film career. After a stunning performance as Cher's deformed son in Mask, he was fired in mid-

He has recovered from the loss of that megahit and has since starred in three films: Lionheart, a Crusades epic directed by Franklin Schaffner; a suspense thriller, Sister, Sister; and the current Some Kind of Wonderful.

Paramount's Some Kind of Wonderful casts Stoltz as a high school senior who wants to pursue an art career instead of going to college as his father insists. The film, which also stars Mary Stuart Masterson, Craig Sheffer and Lea Thompson, was produced by the guru of the teen movies, John Hughes, and directed by Howard Deutch.

Stoltz can still pass for a high school student, despite the red stubble on his chin. Born in California, he spent part of his youth on American Samoa and then later in Santa Barbara.

After his film debut as Sean

Eric Stoltz
Penn's surfing buddy in Fast Times at Ridgemont High, he kept busy in movies and television. Mask launched him into leads. He remembers the film with a mixture of pleasure and pain.

"The makeup took three or four hours a day, and the longer the picture went on, the more difficult it became. Thank God I got along with the makeup man, Zoltan, who won an Academy Award for the makeup. . . . The picture took 12 weeks, maybe longer. It seems like four or five years."

The Stoltz career seemed to be flying high when he was cast by Steven Spielberg in the fantasy comedy Back to the Future. Then, midway in filming, he was replaced by Michael J. Fox. The director, Richard Zemeckis, explained later that the role needed a lighter touch.

Stoltz recovered by taking a year off, studying at an actors' studio called The Loft. He has worked ever since.

Meat Loaf feels career on rise again

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer

heading back toward the upper half of the curve. However, the powerfully voiced singer says it's not because he's trying to follow the latest musical trends.

"I don't like hip. I like Huey's line: 'It's hip to be square.' I mean, Huey (Lewis) actually held up a golf ball in a car in People magazine: 'Ahhhh! No! A rock 'n' roller playing golf! Oh my heavens!' Meat Loaf almost shouts, waving an ever-present cigarette."

Meat Loaf burst into prominence in 1978 with his Bat Out of Hell album, a theatrical effort best characterized by his teen anthem, "Paradise by the Dashboard Light," which featured a play-by-play account from Phil Rizzuto, former Yankee shortstop and TV announcer.

Before that, he was best known for playing the slightly deranged

Plagued by throat problems brought on by extensive touring, Meat Loaf was unable to record a follow-up until 1981's Dead Ringer. Although it was a hit in Europe, as was the album, Bad Attitude, there's been no success in the United States since Bat.

"America does not know my work," he said. "In Europe, we sell out every show. They like my stuff. America would like it too, if they listened."

"Audiences don't differ. If a record's good, it's good."

For the new album, Meat Loaf recorded songs by John Parr, Rick Derringer and members of the band Mr. Mister. He also developed a new technique for acquiring material.

"I stole all this stuff. Really," he confessed. "RCA signed Mr. Mister for the song, 'Standing on the Outside,' but they decided not to do it. There was a tape sitting there, I heard the song, I just picked up the tape and put it in my pocket."

The Loaf, while hopeful this record can break him back into the Top 40, said the radio business has changed quite a bit from the days when virtually every cut on Bat received airplay.

"It's dollars and cents," he said. "It's ratings — how much money they can get for a minute commercial, how they can get draw the listeners in, who's getting the press, who's hip," he said. "Who does the audience know?"

"It's corporate mentality. Coca-Cola owns everything — except Michael (Jackson). Pepsi owns him."

World sugar prices up, but far below price to U.S. consumer

DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although the world price of sugar has risen sharply, it still is far below what American consumers must pay as a result of quotas and other devices that restrict imports, a report by the Agriculture Department shows.

In 1986, the world price of raw sugar averaged 6.05 cents a pound, a 50 percent increase from its 4-cent level of 1985, the report said Thursday.

"Prices have strengthened further to about eight cents a pound in mid-March," the report said. "Much of the increase is a result of the trade's perception of a tightening in the global demand-supply balance in 1987, and the uncertain production and trade outlook in Brazil, Cuba and the Soviet Union."

Despite the recent increase, the price of raw sugar on the international market is still well below the most recent 10-year average of 10.4 cents per pound, the report said. In 1981, global sugar prices averaged almost 17 cents per pound.

Meanwhile, raw sugar imported into New York has been going for a spot price of about 21.8 cents per pound this month, the highest in over two years, the report said. But U.S. import quotas, domestic sugar supports and import duties have kept the New York price fairly stable.

In 1981, for example, the New York price of sugar averaged more than 19.7 cents per pound, rising to 19.9 cents in 1982, and to more than 22 cents, on the average, in 1983, according to USDA figures. The New York spot price dropped to about 21.7 cents in 1984 and to 20.3 cents in 1985. It rose to an average of almost 21 cents last year.

Consumer advocates and many members of Congress have criticized the U.S. quota system and price supports as protectionist barriers that keep cheaper foreign sugar from American retail shelves.

University students admit illegal phone calls

DALLAS (AP)—More than 1,000 students at North Texas State University in Denton have admitted illegally using MCI billing codes to make more than $100,000 in phone calls, MCI officials said.

The confessions came after an offer from the long-distance telephone company not to prosecute students who came forward by Feb. 27.

The 1,020 students who admitted making the calls will be billed, and a small number of others who remained silent will be prosecuted, MCI spokesman John Houser said Wednesday.

"We're preparing cases on half a dozen of the most flagrant abusers," said Houser. He said those students either chalked up several hundred dollars worth of calls or were "bragging about having escaped our claws."
