Pampa slaying year's first

Two stabbed in altercation with reported peeping tom

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Trying to be a good neighbor apparently cost a Pampa man his life Monday night.

Jaime Garza Barrientes, 22, 412 N. Somerville, died shortly after midnight from a single stab wound to the abdomen after he reportedly confronted a peeping tom at his apartment building.

HCA Coronado Hospital spokeswoman Linda Haynes said today that Barrientes was dead on arrival at the hospital's emergency room.

Injured in the incident was a man police identified as Noe Pedraza Barajas, 21, 1144 Neel.

Haynes said Barajas, whom the hospital has identified as simply Noe Pedraza, was in stable condition in the hospital's intensive care unit this morning with multiple stab wounds to the chest and upper thigh.

Police arrested George Rodriguez, 17, 420 N. Cuyler, at the North Somerville apartments and charged him with murder, aggravated assault and criminal mischief.

Justice of the Peace Wayne Roberts set bond this morning at $10,000 on the murder charge, $5,000 on the aggravated assault charge and $1,000 on the charge of criminal mischief. Rodriguez remained in the city jail following his arraignment.

Also arrested at the scene on a charge of public intoxication was 46-year-old Francisca Rodriguez, 412 N. Somerville, believed to be the murder suspect's mother. She was released from jail this morning after pleading no contest and paying a $110 fine.

Interim Pampa Police Chief Jesse Wallace said police were called to a duplex at 413 N. Frost, a block east of where the stabbing occurred, shortly before 11 p.m. He said officers found both stabbing victims at the address.

Wallace said the two apparently staggered to the Frost Street address for help after being stabbed.

Wallace said officers then pursued Rodriguez on foot and were told by a witness that he had entered an apartment at 412

N. Somerville. Officer Alan Smith said Rodriguez — still clutching a blood-spattered survival knife — opened the door to the apartment, but threw down the knife when he saw the officer's drawn gun. Police said the knife has an 8-inch blade.

City notified of derailment

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The Monday night derailment of four propane gas tanker cars posed no hazard to residents in the south Pampa area, Pampa Fire Chief J.D. Ray said this morning.

Ray said the wheels of the four Santa Fe cars slipped off the rails at a "Y" in the tracks near Brown and West streets about 10:30 p.m. Monday.

Ray added that although the 10,000-gallon tank cars were filled with liquid propane, there was no danger of spilling or leakage.

"It was no big deal," Ray said, adding that the four cars remained upright after they skipped the track and that there was no danger of the cars turning over.

Santa Fe workers spent this morning rolling the four cars back onto the track. Ray expected the cars back onto the track by noon.

"It's a simple operation," Ray said.

Santa Fe Division Superintendent Bob Dixon of Amarillo said the railroad has not determined what caused the derailment. But Ray attributed the derailment to a separation of the rails at the "Y."

Dixon said the train was going less than 5 mph when the derailment occurred.

Ray said the train had approximately 15 cars, eight of them containing liquid propane gas. He added that if the train had been going faster, the derailment could have posed more of a hazard.

Ray added that although there was no danger of LPG spillage, Pampa firefighters stood by at the scene for about an hour Monday night.

"Then Santa Fe more or less kept watch on it through the night," Ray said. "They cooperated with us real good."

Dixon said the railroad notified Pampa city officials of the derailment minutes after it happened.

"We have a mutual agreement to notify the Pampa Police Department when something of this nature happens," Dixon said.

According to Pampa Director of Environmental and Emergency Management Steve Vaughn, the railroad-city agreement was made after the city complained that it wasn't notified of a November train derailment near Hobart Street Park. At that derailment, three Celanese railroad tanker cars slipped the tracks near Hobart Street Park. Two of the cars contained a highly concentrated form of acetic acid, a third contained butyric acid and a fourth contained carbon black.

None of those cars spilled its contents.

Morgan joins race for Ward 2 office

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

W. A. Morgan, 72, a retired Celanese Chemical Co. official, has been active in numerous civic activities since his arrival in Pampa 35 years ago. But only now is he seeking his first elected position.

Morgan has filed for Ward 2 commissioner to fill the seat vacated by David McDaniel after McDaniel resigned to run for mayor.

Though first ruled ineligible as a candidate because his resignation was not acted on by the City Commission prior to the filing date in the regular city elections, McDaniel was reinstated on the ballot last week.

A decision by City Attorney Don Lane and City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers indicates a public officeholder can still hold a public office while running for another, with the first office being vacated if the candidate wins the election.

Though not required to vacate his position on the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, Morgan said he was resigning from the board since it was "more politically acceptable" to him.

With the filing deadline for Ward 2 commissioner candidates at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Morgan is one of four candidates to file for the position by Monday afternoon.

County supports commodities program

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A resolution seeking to rescue the government food commodity program from the federal chopping block was approved Monday by Gray County commissioners.

After meeting with program volunteer Maxine Smith, commissioners directed Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy to draft the resolution in time for the panel's March 12 meeting.

The resolution expresses commissioners' support for keeping the program and points out that Gray County has supported the program financially and is willing to continue. It calls on federal officials, from President Reagan on down, to reconsider the current presidential order freezing funds for the program.

Panhandle Community Services Executive Director Johnny Raymond notified county judges across the Panhandle that the program — which distributes excess food commodities to the needy — would be discontinued March 15 if a presidential order freezing funds for the program remained in effect.

Raymond's agency administers the program in the Panhandle.

PHS Little Harvester earns medalist rating

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Pampa High School's 1985-1986 school newspaper, The Little Harvester, has received a Medalist Certificate from Columbia Scholastic Press Association, honoring the publication as one of the best school newspapers in international competition.

The medalist standing is given only to those newspapers scoring a minimum of 925 points of 1,000 possible. Lynda Queen, publications adviser, said The Little Harvester received 954 points.

"I'm very well pleased," Queen said. "We're just thrilled."

By receiving the medalist rating, the PHS newspaper will be eligible for Silver Crown and Golden Crown selection to be awarded March 11-13 during the CSPSA meeting at Columbia University in New York.

Queen said the medalist rating, higher than a first-place rating, went to 16 percent of the 2,545 papers entered from 49 of the 50 United States, Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, Canada, Malaysia, Japan, West Germany and Indonesia.

The Silver Crown will be given to the top 4 percent and the Golden Crown to the top 1 percent, she said.

Queen said she won't be attending the meeting in New York because of a lack of funds.

She said the scorebook used to rate the newspapers "are very thorough," with judging in all phases of the newspaper coverage and operations.

Comments returned in the scorebook to Queen praise the Sarpalius returns to Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Bill Sarpalius, "in a lot of pain" from an off-road vehicle accident and surgery two months ago, has returned to the Senate. He told his colleagues "your 31st vote is here."

Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, who represents Gray County and the rest of the Panhandle, recalled in a Monday speech to the Senate that when his four-wheeler ran into a ditch and flipped over Dec. 26, "I hurt so bad that I prayed to God to just let me die."

Sarpalius, 39, had back surgery Jan. 2 at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. Two steel rods were placed on either side of his spine, and a bone chip from his hip was fused to the fractured vertebra.

He said the accident was a "terrible experience, but when I was in the hospital and I began getting cards and phone calls from you, it gave me strength, and I appreciate it so much."

In his absence, other senators handled some of Sarpalius' work, and he said, "When I heard... you offered as a body to help represent the people of the 31st District, it meant so much to me, and I want to thank you for that."

Slaying

A woman at the scene told The Pampa News that she sought help from Barrientes and Barajas after seeing a man peering into her bedroom window at her Somerville Street apartment. She said the peeping tom beckoned to Barrientes and Barajas when they came outside to help her and, as they drew closer, shook hands with Barrientes.

He then plunged the knife into Barrientes' belly, pulled it out and started stabbing the surprised Barajas, the woman said. She added that she then asked another neighbor to call police.

Barrientes, who had been an employee of Furr's Cafeteria, was conscious and sitting up on the porch when police arrived at 413 N. Frost. He was still conscious when Pampa Medical Services took him to the hospital but died en route.

Haynes said emergency room personnel were unable to revive the victim upon his arrival at the hospital.

He was pronounced dead at the emergency room by Dr. Earl Hoffer.

Justice of the Peace Roberts ordered an autopsy to be conducted by Amarillo pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann.

Police said they were unsure whether Rodriguez and the victims knew each other. Officer

Smith said all three were believed to have been involved in a scuffle in the Randy's Jack and Jill grocery store parking lot, 401 N. Ballard, several weeks ago. Several suspects were arrested following that brawl.

Wallace said Rodriguez was charged with criminal mischief after kicking in a wall inside an interrogation room at the police station. The suspect also reportedly smashed a radar unit in a patrol car before he could be subdued.

Barrientes is the first slaying victim in Pampa since December 1985.

Services for Barrientes are pending with Trevino Funeral Home in Brownsville.

Morgan

First to file last week was photography studio owner and minister Austin Sutton. Filing Monday were Dwight Fiveash, an engineer with Celanese, and Richard Peet, a teacher at Pampa High School.

Morgan retired from the Celanese Pampa plant in 1982 after serving in various management positions. His last major job with Celanese was project manager during the construction of the $70 million coal-fired boiler project at the Pampa plant. He also was project engineer for the coal handling portion of the project.

Morgan said his management experience and budget-planning experiences with Celanese would benefit his service on the commission if he is elected. He helped organize the engineering department at the local Celanese plant and was later manager of maintenance and construction.

"I feel like we need someone who has business experience with skills in planning multi-million dollar budgets," he said. Morgan said he has been concerned with city budget operations and wants to see careful expenditures of taxpayers' money.

"I realize there are difficult de-isions ahead for the City Commission regarding budgetary problems resulting from a projected shortfall in revenues," Morgan said, adding his experience would help city budget planning.

"I don't have any personal axes to grind," he said.

Morgan listed his goals for the city as:

- investigating a greater use of contract labor for possible reduction in the cost of seasonal work;
- studying further cost reductions in the solid waste collection and disposal, including possible reclamation projects;
- giving careful consideration to desalination of Lake Meredith water compared to acquiring additional water rights, water wells and piping systems;
- making an engineering study and correcting the hazardous "semi-culverts" at Duncan and 23rd streets;
- having Santa Fe Railroad repair and maintain the Stark-weather railway crossing;
- instigating a long-range tree replacement program in the parks with an adequate watering system;
- initiating periodic study and review meetings with the Gray County commissioners; and
- making regular public reports on the Main Street Project progress.

ram. "A city commissioner has a responsible position," Morgan said. "How the commission functions, long-range and short-range, can influence the well-being of the community long after the commissioner is out of office."

"Pampa's a great place to be, and I'd just like to see it fall together to make it an even better place," he added, noting that he supports stronger efforts toward improving the business and economic climate of the city.

Morgan is the immediate past chairman for Clean Pampa Inc. He also is chairman of the Legislative Affairs Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and a board member of Genesis House. His other civic activities have included Pampa United Way and the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

After a number of years working at Celanese, Morgan continued his education and earned a degree in economics in 1975 from West Texas State University, where he was elected to Omicron Delta Epsilon, the economics honor society.

He and his wife Mattie, a former teacher at Pampa High School, have two children, Cynthia Cohen and Douglas Morgan, both of Santa Clara, Calif.

writing and editing of material. "This is a strong area for you. It is evident that the staff is well-trained in journalism basics."

Overall comments include, "You should be proud of your paper. It is lively, interesting and professional."

Queen said she was excited at the high rating, noting that Amarillo High School's newspaper received a first place, a rating just below that of medalist. She said she has found only seven other times in the PHS newspaper's history that it has gained the medalist standing, adding that "it's been a few years" since the last time.

Queen said she already has high hopes for this year's issues. "This year's paper has improved a lot over last year," she said.

Co-editors of last year's Little Harvester were Reagan Eddins and Jay Taparia. Eddins is back as editor-in-chief this year, along with a number of other returning staff members, Queen noted.

Execution scheduled

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A man convicted of killing a state trooper during a 160-mile crime spree in 1983 was preparing to die before dawn Wednesday but another inmate scheduled to die the same day won a reprieve.

Eliseo Moreno, a former lawn mower repairman from Donna, apparently was continuing his insistence that he should die, his attorney said Monday.

Program

Smith said the program in Pampa has provided excess cheese, butter, honey, rice, flour and powdered milk to about 1,400 families in Pampa and Lefors during bi-monthly distributions at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church's Family Life Center, 1200 S. Sumner. The volunteer said the number of people seeking help has more than doubled since she began working with the program about three years ago.

Smith said Pampa was the largest single distribution spot in the Panhandle. The last distribution was Feb. 18.

The program also reaches about 230 recipients in McLean.

"I wanted to give you all the details so that it might encourage you to have it continue in Pampa," Smith told commissioners Monday.

Commissioners expressed strong support for the program.

"There's no problem locally. It's what's coming from the top," Commissioner Jim Greene said in calling for the resolution.

"If we don't give (the food) away, it's going to be dumped in the ocean or something," Commissioner O.L. Presley added.

Commissioner Gerald Wright said that the program is sorely needed in tough economic times, such as those now facing Texas. He said U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, told him he is committed to keeping the program intact.

"He's very concerned about continuing the program, probably on a basis pretty much like it was before, but maybe through different channels," Wright said of Boulter.

Commissioner Ted Simmons said several people involved with the program in McLean have suggested asking each recipient to contribute a dollar to help offset handling and other administrative costs.

"I don't think it would hurt those that are on a fixed income," Simmons said of the proposal.

But County Clerk Wanda Carter, who represents Gray County on the Panhandle Community Services board, said the agency would not be permitted to charge recipients for commodities—even if it were only $1. She said that has been declared illegal when attempted in the past.

Judge Kennedy said he plans to present the completed resolution to the Panhandle County Judges and Commissioners Association, when it meets March 13.

Simmons, noting that it will take a regional effort to get the program back on track, said he will take the resolution to the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association meeting March 18-20 in Midland.

In other action Monday, commissioners:

- agreed to let county work crews from all four precincts make temporary repairs at Clyde Caruth Pavilion, damaged by a January snowstorm, so that it will be ready in time for the Top of Texas Stock Show March 12-14;
- forestalled any further action on a water well at Perry Lefors Field until further water tests can be run on the existing well at the airport; and
- agreed to lease additional space at the Courthouse Annex on U.S. Highway 60 to the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Clements visits House to hammer home budget message

AUSTIN (AP) — Amid talk that some House members are not holding the line on state spending, Gov. Bill Clements ventured on to the House floor to chat with lawmakers in informal meetings. Just before Clements entered the chamber Monday, House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd said the governor's help could be beneficial in hammering home the budget message.

"We have a lot of people who run on a ticket of no new taxes, but they like to add money back in," Rudd said. Various House panels are putting together budgets for state agencies and programs. The proposals are being forwarded to Rudd's committee, which is working on the general appropriations bill.

"Everybody is coming in high," Rudd said. "The arts are coming in high. Tourism is coming in high. Higher education is high. The Department of Public Safety is high. We have a lot of people who claim to be conservatives who are not willing to cut in their own committees."

Clements has promised to block any budget that exceeds the $36.9 billion limit he set for 1988-89. "It seems to me like the governor should be out here working these people if he wants it done," Rudd said. As Rudd said that, Clements headed to the House floor. "I understand that he has a lot of problems with the spending cuts and the reallocating of priorities. We have talked about that, Mr. Rudd and I. I am continuously talking to not only members of my party but also members of his party in that regard," Clements said.

"What we need to do is think in terms of our present budget, our present programs and move from that point. I don't think too many people are now doing that. They're still thinking in terms of expanded programs and all, and that's just not going to happen," he said. The governor said he backs the tax package that is expected to hit the House floor Thursday. The bills, scheduled for a Tuesday hearing in the House Ways and Means Committee, would continue the temporary gasoline and sales tax increases. Clements also has called for an overhaul of the sales tax to include items that are now exempt, such as services. He said the main effort in the battle against a projected $5.8 billion state deficit should come in the form of spending cuts.

Prisons open to new inmates

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas prison system is opening its doors to new inmates today after being closed for five days because the inmate population exceeded a state-mandated 95 percent capacity.

"We have to open because we're under 95 percent," Texas Department of Corrections spokesman David Nunnelee said Monday. However, he was quick to point out that officials expect the prison system to close again later this week.

"I expect more than we have for," he said in reference to today's expected admissions. The population count at midnight Sunday was recorded at 94.17 percent, or 38,073 inmates — 335 beds under the limit. The population figure for Monday will be released this afternoon. This weekend, 242 prison inmates were released, some made possible through legislation approved by Gov. Bill Clements, giving the prison system a population count under the 95 percent cap.

Prison spokesman Charles Brown said 187 convicts were released Sunday to halfway houses throughout the state under the legislation approved by the governor while 55 others were paroled.

Clements on Friday authorized the use of a new state law that awards up to 60 days of good-conduct time to selected prisoners, allowing them to be moved to supervised halfway houses.

Master plan being studied for city's Recreation Park

The Parks and Recreation Advisory Board is studying a master plan for development of Recreation Park that includes camping facilities, a ball-field complex and a lake.

The board will be studying alternate plans during a work session at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Administrative Office Suite Conference Room at City Hall.

The board has been reviewing options for long-term developments at the park since a Recreation Park Subcommittee made recommendations last summer.

The Parks and Recreation Department staff had prepared two alternate plans that were discussed briefly at a work session last month.

Plan A includes a softball four-plex and a campground, both of the west side of the park area. Plan B calls for the campground and rehabilitation of the former Pampa Lake northwest of the rodeo arena.

The plans were presented for adoption of either option at the board's regular meeting last Thursday.

But board members deferred action on the plans, indicating they would like to see a plan incorporating both the lake and softball complex. They also said they would like to tour the park to better visualize the locations of the proposed developments.

PARD Director Reed Kirkpatrick said the staff would draw up a Plan C to include both the lake and ball complex, along with the campground and a hiking trail included in both previous plans.

At last week's meeting, Kirkpatrick said he had contacted KOA about the possibility of locating a camping facility at Recreation Park.

He said KOA representatives expressed some interest in the project. But Kirkpatrick said the normal facility built by a private concern would cost about $800,000, with an investor required. Kirkpatrick said he didn't think Pampa would need that sizeable a facility.

He said the KOA representative also indicated the company would like some form of commitment on the land, such as a very low-cost lease for a year, to allow time to locate an investor and to show investors they have access to the land for development.

In other matters last week, Kirkpatrick reported the department had received a check for $20,000 from the McCarley Foundation toward the proposed development of the Old Schneider Hotel park at Atchison and Russell. The money has been placed in a trust fund in an interest bearing account until the park is constructed according to submitted plans.

Kirkpatrick noted the city has made an application to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for a 50-50 matching funds grant. The Panhandle Regional Planning Commission has already recommended the project for approval, he said.

Kirkpatrick said because of statewide economic situations, many cities didn't make applications for the grants this year, greatly enhancing Pampa's chance to receive a grant.

The foundation donation "gives us money up front" toward the city's share of the funds for the park's development, he said.

In an action item, the board voted to recommend to the City Commission naming the proposed park the H.E. and Inez B. McCarley Park.

In other matters, Parks Superintendent Bill Hildebrandt said he had received a report concerning elm leaf beetle infestation problems in the parks. He said a tree trimming program has been started, with dead trees and those too ill to recover being removed.

But problems of reinfestation are still a threat "since the city can only deal with the trees in its parks," he said.

Hildebrandt said the report indicated several applications of pesticide would be needed on trees in the parks each year to prevent reinfestation from other untreated trees throughout the city.

But a systemic chemical — one that would be absorbed into the trees — could be used, he said. The granule chemical could be applied only once a year and with less waste, since it wouldn't be blown about by the winds, he explained.

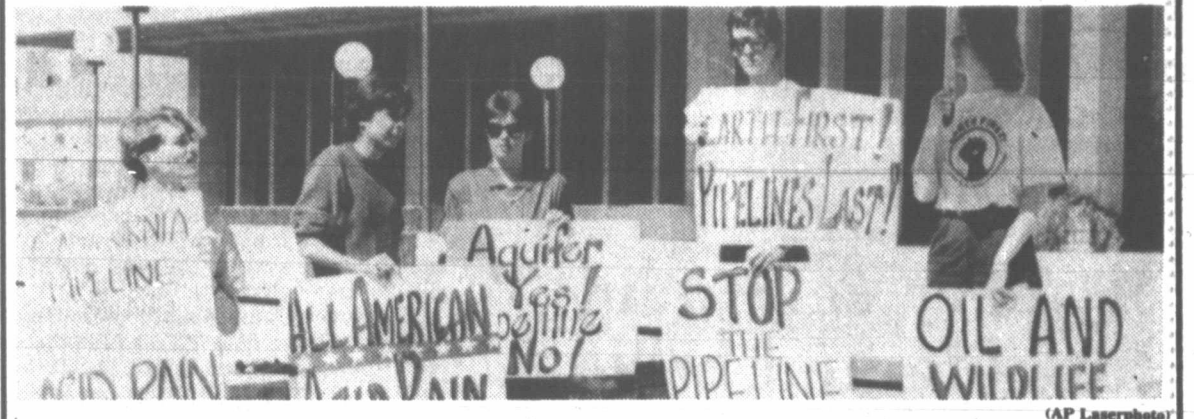

The board gave its consensus for the city to use the systemic granule chemical. Kirkpatrick reported he had been unsuccessful in getting the developer for a proposed automatic batting facility at Hobart Street Park to come in and sign the lease contract previously approved by the City Commission.

He said he has sent a letter to the contractor giving him until March 13 to sign the contract. If he has not come in by that date, Kirkpatrick said he will recommend to the City Commission that it rescind the lease.

The board gave a consensus to support action leading to the lease cancellation if the developer makes no effort to sign the contract.

In other matters, the board deferred action on naming Pump Station No. 1 park site to allow further study of a proposed war memorial and approved demolition of the vandalized restroom facilities at Lions Club Park.

Efforts underway here to erect monument for county's war dead

By LARRY HOLLIS News Editor

The local Veterans of Foreign Wars are hoping to get a monument for the war dead constructed in Pampa, a project now only in the planning stages.

Appearing last week before the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, John Triplehorn and VFW post commander Don Emmons discussed proposals for erecting Gray County's second war memorial in Pampa.

Triplehorn, a veteran of the Vietnam conflict, said he is working with the VFW on proposals for the war memorial.

He said a list of war monuments in the state indicates the only memorial in the county "is a plaque down in McLean."

"I hope Gray County can do more than a plaque" to honor those residents of the county who have died in military service in wars of the past century, Triplehorn said.

Emmons said he had only recently received a list providing names of Gray County residents who died in war service. The list contains 114 names from World Wars I and II and the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, he said.

He said until he received the list, he was not certain how many names would be involved in creating any war memorial.

Triplehorn said he feels a war memorial should seriously be considered, adding that he hopes patriotism is still alive in the county.

He said he is hoping the city and county will form a committee or similar group to consider the memorial as a joint project in studying the feasibility of erecting a memorial and in finding a suitable location.

"I would like us to have an appropriate monument," Triplehorn stated. He said if a decision is made to have a simple plaque located somewhere, "then it may not take much to do it." A larger monument, he said, may be a long-term project.

Triplehorn said he and Emmons were appearing before the parks board to ask that its members be aware that a war memorial proposal may be brought before them for recommendation approval sometime. He also was asking the board to support the proposal in principle.

Planning for 10th class reunion

Off Beat By Cathy Spaulding

I greeted the end of prep basketball season with mixed emotions.

I liked getting caught up in the kids' enthusiasm and exuberance and talking with them as they shared their dreams, gossip and attempts to impress me with their use of four-letter-words.

But the season also left me a bit depressed, yearning to return to the gaiety of my own high school years — those Future Homemakers of America slumber parties (during which we actually got to sneak into the boys' restroom), those ungodly long hours on the pep club bus or in speech booster cars, those crowded restrooms as we changed into our band uniforms or choir dresses, those tacky-tongued comments we made behind our classmate's backs.

My blue funk was made even bluer knowing this is the 10th anniversary of my high school graduation. Would the Deer Creek High School, class of 1977, have a reunion? And, if so, how are they going to know that I now live 200 miles from the place where I got my diploma?

Nostalgia got the best of me Friday. So I called the school office to see if they knew of a 10 year reunion.

"Yeah, some lady named Loretta called a few weeks ago and is trying to set one up," answered a voice that sounded younger than mine.

I called Loretta and sure enough, the Seniors of

'77 are planning a reunion for the middle of July, at the Sheraton Hotel, no less. Loretta assured me that — after going through the hassle of calling the school for my mother's last name, calling my ex-step-father (who left the family when I left high school) for my mother's phone number and calling Mom for my number — she has included me on the list and an invitation is forthcoming.

She then gave me progress reports on some of my classmates, which brought on another blue funk. Our head cheerleader has grown up to disprove my theory that girls who turn cartwheels and yell silly verses in front of crowded bleachers meet unfavorable ends. Four years ago, when I was unemployed, she was "architecting" in Oklahoma City. She is now in Washington, D.C., doing something considerably snitzier than writing up the daily hospital report.

She will probably come to the reunion dressed to the nines, while the best I can muster is to be dressed to the fives.

One of our valedictorians (we had two) is a pharmacist in Tulsa. She has not won a Nobel Prize. But then, there's always the 20th reunion.

Our other valedictorian is studying psychology. Our salutatorian is doing something successful in Abeline. The captain of our girls basketball team sells real estate in Irving and will probably come to the reunion dressed at least to the sevens.

And here I am, a junior staff writer for a small-town daily in the dusty and unglamorous Texas Panhandle; living alone with a cat and a 1982 Plymouth, neither of which work very well. My income is low enough to qualify me for the green "moron" income tax forms.

Strange how a reunion can be both welcome and intimidating.

I told Loretta to definitely add my name to the "Yes" list and began wondering what I should wear.

After all, I was too much of a recluse to make it to any of my classmates' post-game parties. I'm not about to miss this one.

Mystery secretary cuts bloated budget

The Washington Post recently profiled Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Samuel Pierce. The title, "The Mystery Man at HUD," did much to give away the premise of the article, which seemed to be that a cabinet officer has no business keeping a low profile.

How low has his profile been? One of the three original appointees to the Reagan cabinet still in office, the president himself called Pierce "Mr. Mayor" after he mistook him for a city official at a 1981 reception. Even Republicans have taken to calling him "Silent Sam" or the "stealth" secretary.

Nevertheless, Pierce is the one member of the cabinet working hard — and successfully — in pursuit of the original Reagan agenda: reducing an overgrown government bureaucracy.

Since he took office, Pierce has cut his bloated department's budget by 60 percent. It has shrunk every year, going from $35.7 billion in 1980 to $14.2 billion this year; the 1987-88 budget proposal calls for only $10.3 billion. Likewise, HUD's employee roster has shrunk from 15,613 to 12,056 bodies.

Like many other anti-poverty programs created in the mid-1960s, HUD had earned a reputation for helping politicians more than it helped the poor. Its Community Development Block Grant Program, for example, subsidized such affluent, non-needy communities as Santa Barbara, Calif.

The department spent so much in the late 1960s and '70s that it could have built more than 1.5 million new, single-family homes. That wasn't where the money went: inner-city conditions kept deteriorating.

Unlike his predecessors, who thought only government could help the poor, Pierce turned to market forces and private enterprise for more efficient proposals. He has steered HUD away from the construction of new housing projects — which themselves have often turned into slums — to the rehabilitation of existing structures.

He has launched a voucher program that allows low-income Americans to decide for themselves how to get the best value for their housing subsidies. With far less money, HUD now helps a million more poor families than it did during the Carter administration.

Pierce is open to criticism that he hasn't done enough to wean those whose talents could enable them to stand on their own without taxpayer subsidies. There is some merit to that.

Nevertheless, as Congress discusses this latest of Reagan's budgets, and as Cabinet officers one by one troop to Capitol Hill to argue for ever-increasing amounts of money, don't expect the secretary of Housing and Urban Development to be among them.

He'll be back in his office, doing just what the president once ordered him to do — cutting the cost of government.

Time to learn Constitution

WASHINGTON — Warren Burger has a whale of a job on his hands. Last summer he resigned his post as chief justice of the United States in order to devote full time to the national commission on observance of the Constitution's 200th birthday. As its chairman he heads an all-out effort to educate the country in what the Constitution is all about. Evidently this won't be easy.

A few days ago the Hearst Corp. released a survey of the American public's knowledge of the Constitution. Some of the findings were encouraging: The public has pretty fair understanding of constitutional provisions dealing with criminal justice. Three out of four persons participating in the survey understand the process of constitutional amendment. Large majorities know that a president, acting alone, cannot conclude a treaty. Beyond these elementary levels, it is downhill all the way.

The survey was conducted for Hearst by Research & Forecasts Inc., a national consulting firm based in New York. The findings were based on responses from a random sample of 1,004 Americans who were interviewed by telephone. What were the results?

Our people have only a fuzzy understanding of the U.S. Supreme Court. Almost half of the respondents mistakenly thought that a high court decision can never be overruled. Eighty-five percent supposed that an important case may be appealed from state courts to the Supreme Court. It doesn't work that way; the court chooses those cases it will hear. Who's the current chief justice? Notwithstanding the several million words that were written about William Rehnquist's confirmation hearings, fewer than half the respondents had heard of him. Seven percent thought Earl Warren is still chief justice.

Sad to say, 45 percent of the respondents thought that the communist doctrine of "From each according to his ability, to each according to his need" is part of the U.S. Constitution. Two-thirds were certain that the Constitution establishes English as the national language; 49 percent supposed that a president may suspend the Constitution in times of national emergency; 75 percent agreed — incorrectly — that the Constitution "guarantees every citizen's right to a free public education through high school."

The survey suggests that the people would like to see some constitutional changes. The pollsters asked about a constitutional convention: Should such a convention be assembled to consider amendments dealing with abortion, prayer in public schools, freedom of the press and other issues? A surprising 61 percent said "yes." Three of four respondents would support an amendment guaranteeing "every citizen's right to adequate health care if he or she cannot pay for it." Seven in 10 would have justices of the Supreme Court serve for a term of years and then be subject to reappointment. Thomas Jefferson, late in life, had the same idea.

But just to show how tricky these constitutional quizzes can be, the framers of the survey asked a question: "The president can adjourn Congress when he sees fit, true or false?" The pollsters' smug comment was that 59 percent of the American public "know the president cannot adjourn Congress." Really? Those who prepared the survey may have overlooked an obscure provision in Article II, Section 3, which authorizes a president not only to convene Congress on extraordinary occasions, but also, in the event the two houses disagree with respect to the time of adjournment, "to adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper." This doesn't exactly give a president power to adjourn Congress "when he sees fit," but the extraordinary power is granted. Incidentally, Harry Truman was the last president to invoke his power to convene Congress (in July 1948), and the presidential power to adjourn Congress never has been invoked at all.

Other questions in the Hearst survey might puzzle constitutional experts. The pollsters found that half of the American people "wrongly believe the Constitution gives every citizen the right to own a handgun." What about this? Never mind the Second Amendment, guaranteeing the right of the people "to keep and bear arms." The Fifth Amendment says that no person may be deprived of property without due process of law. Handguns are property, and no federal law ever has been enacted to forbid their possession.

Such constitutional questions fascinate scholars, but in this bicentennial year the Constitution ought to be the object of study and reflection beyond the academic groves. All of us ought to learn more about it. To judge by the Hearst poll, Burger has a big job cut out for him.

Condoms discussed openly

They are advertising condoms on television. And, look, I can even mention them in a family newspaper.

Lord, how things change.

A lot of us who grew up before there was the pill and the threat of AIDS find it hard to believe that condoms may be discussed openly.

Only men and boys — at least that's we boys thought — talked about condoms in my youth, and we talked of them only in hushed tones.

I remember the first one I ever saw. A friend of mine found one in his father's desk drawer and brought it to school. We were in the fifth grade.

We inspected it as if it were some rare find. The principal found us with the thing and took it away from us, however, and gave us a stern lecture regarding our morals and the sanctity of femalekind.

In high school, it was a measure of our manhood whether or not you had a condom on your person at all times.

Skeeter Whitlock bought one out of a machine in a restroom and put it in his wallet.

Some months later, his mother was cleaning his room and saw his wallet. There was an oval imprint being caused by something inside it.

Skeeter's mother looked in her son's wallet and found the condom.

"She had my dad talk to me about it," Skeeter explained later. "He told me that messing around with things like that could cut my wind and cause me not to get a football scholarship after high school. But I never really like playing football that much in the first place."

Now that condoms may be discussed openly you hear a lot of men my age (40) and older remembering various experiences. Most all of us have a going-into-the drugstore-to-buy-condoms story.

"I stood outside the drugstore for an hour trying to get up the courage to go inside," a man was saying.

"When I finally walked up and asked the druggist, very quietly, what I wanted to purchase, he yelled to his assistant, 'Hey, Bob, where do we keep the rubbers?'

"I looked around and two Miss-Goody-Two-Shoes with big mouths from high school heard what he said. I ran out of the store without my purchase."

Women, we have recently learned, now account for over half the condom sales in this country, and that figure will likely go up.

Most of us never would have believed that could happen in 1960, but another acquaintance does tell this story.

"When I was a teen-ager, I worked in my daddy's truck stop after school. The condom salesman came by one day, and I couldn't believe it when he went into the women's restroom after going into the men's."

"When he came out I asked, 'You mean women buy those things, too?'

"I got a machine in there, and I get a lot of quarters out of it, but I never put no condoms in it," he said, adding with a laugh, 'Heard any women complaining?'

Today, he most certainly would. Lord, how things change.

Drivers race toward 65 mph speed limit

By Robert Walters

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (NEA) — Steve Shutta's claim to being a scrupulously law-abiding driver sounds preposterous, but he insists that he never exceeds the 55 mph speed limit when traveling in his personal car on interstate highways.

Most drivers would encounter incredulous reactions if they made similar assertions, but there is reason to believe Shutta — because he is a sergeant in the Pennsylvania State Police assigned to Troop M here.

Shutta acknowledges that he is constantly passed by other motorists when driving off duty — and that he never stops anyone driving less than 60 miles per hour when on duty, principally to provide a margin of error for his radar unit.

Now, for the first time in 14 years, the maximum speed limit on some interstate highways in rural areas may be raised from 55 mph to 65 mph — a development Shutta predicts will lead motorists to drive even faster.

"With the legal limit at 55, most people go 65," the veteran state trooper notes. "If you say it's OK to go 65, they're going to go 75."

The ceiling now in effect on all interstates dates back to the 1973 when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries placed an embargo on crude oil shipments to the United States.

To conserve gasoline and the crude oil from which it is made, a federal law was enacted that mandated a reduction of highway funds from Washington to any state that did not immediately reduce its maximum speed limit to 55 mph.

When the oil embargo was lifted, safety replaced energy conservation as the rationale for perpetuating the 55 mph limit rather than allowing a return to unlimited maximum speeds in Montana and Nevada or 75 mph ceilings in North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Arizona and other states.

Indeed, the ensuing years have produced ample evidence directly linking lower speed limits to reduced accident and fatality rates in Great Britain, France, Finland, Sweden, New Zealand and other nations.

In this country, the fatality rate per 100 million vehicle miles on all interstate highways was almost 2.3 in 1973, the last year prior to the imposition of the 55 mph speed limit. In subsequent years, it has declined to the range of 1.2 to 1.6.

In a nationwide survey conducted last year by the Gallup Organization two-thirds of those queried supported the 55 mph speed limit as an effective means of preventing accidents and saving lives.

But there is a serious problem that can be described in a single word — hypocrisy. People may endorse the 55 mph limit when talking to pollsters on the telephone but they don't obey it when driving their cars on the highway.

There is no cause for cheering the prospect of even a modest increase in the highway death rate, but that may be the price the country is willing to pay for a more realistic 65 mph speed limit on rural interstates in place of a chronically ignored 55 mph ceiling.

Nation Reagan launches new search for CIA chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is again looking for someone to run the CIA, his nomination of acting chief Robert Gates a victim of congressional outrage over the Iran-Contra affair.

Faced with the Senate Intelligence Committee's determination to stall the nomination pending further investigation of the arms-and-money scheme, Reagan on Monday accepted Gates' offer to withdraw.

Reagan, alluding to the climate on Capitol Hill, said in a statement released Monday that "at any other time, I am certain he would easily have been confirmed without delay."

The names of retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, former CIA deputy director Bobby Inman and National Security Agency chief Gen. William Odom immediately surfaced as top-level prospects, along with former Sen. John Tower and Vernon Walters, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Scowcroft and Tower were both members of the Tower commission that investigated the Iran arms deals. The Washington Post reported today that Tower had been offered the job and turned it down. Tower declined to comment on the Post report.

Newly installed White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker said the administration was on the verge of announcing a choice to replace Gates, 43, as the nominee for the job vacated by William J. Casey last month.

Casey resigned as CIA director Feb. 2 following surgery several weeks earlier to have a malignant tumor removed from his brain. The 73-year-old Casey was released Monday from Georgetown University Hospital.

Baker told reporters in the White House briefing room that the original plan was for Reagan to appear before reporters Monday to make the announcement of the Gates withdrawal and the name of a new nominee. But he said that "when it didn't quite come together that way, it was decided that I would come down and do this."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters he thinks there are at least half a dozen people in and out of government who would excel as head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

He named Inman, Odom and Scowcroft.

"You couldn't do any better than Brent Scowcroft," Nunn said. "He's certainly qualified." Scowcroft was national security adviser to President Ford.

"I think it ought to be someone who is not in any way involved in these current episodes involving Iran and the Contras," the senator said.

Baker said selection of a new nominee would be "an urgent item" on Reagan's agenda, and that some names had been bandied about.

"No choice has been made by the president as of this moment," Baker said. "Certain contacts are still under way and where they mature into acceptance or turndown I cannot say, but we do not yet have an acceptance."

Reagan's nominee, who held key CIA posts during the period that weapons were shipped secretly to Iran and money apparently was diverted to Contra rebels in Nicaragua, was quizzed about his involvement by members of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The Tower panel released a 300-page report last week that was sharply critical of the administration's handling of the Iran-Contra case.

Until February 1986, Gates was head of the CIA's analytical division, which performs research and produces intelligence reports.

At the same time, Gates sent a letter to Intelligence Committee Chairman Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okla., defending himself against several charges that grew out of his confirmation hearings last month.

Gates denied, for example, that a May 1985 intelligence report on Iran had been doctored to make it dovetail with administration policy. While the National Security Council requested the report, it was not involved in the drafting of the paper, Gates said.

He also said he had not encouraged a plan for a joint U.S.-Egyptian invasion of Libya.

18 of 19 Mafia leaders are guilty in 'Pizza Connection'

NEW YORK (AP) — The "Pizza Connection" trial, marked by the slaying of one defendant and an attempt on another, ended with the convictions of a former Sicilian Mafia boss and 17 others as part of a ring that sold $1.6 billion worth of heroin through pizza parlors.

U.S. District Court jurors who returned the verdicts Monday afternoon had listened to about 400 witnesses over 17 months, sorted through 15,000 exhibits, and studied a 410-page book that charted evidence against what U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said was the biggest U.S. heroin ring to be smashed.

"This is a great victory for international law enforcement in its effort to smash the mob throughout the world," said Giuliani. "Some people thought it couldn't be done."

Of 22 men indicted in 1984, one was murdered, another was seriously wounded in a botched "hit," two pleaded guilty and one was acquitted of all charges.

One juror was excused during deliberations after her family got a threatening phone call, even though all jurors' names were kept confidential to avoid interference.

The former mob chief, Gaetano Badalamenti, 63, of Cinisi, Sicily, was convicted of narcotics conspiracy, carrying a maximum of 15 years in prison, and of running a continuing criminal enterprise, which carries a maximum penalty of life in prison without possibility of parole.

But Badalamenti was extradited from Spain under an agreement that limits any sentence to 30 years, Giuliani said.

Sixteen others were also found guilty of the narcotics conspiracy charge. One defendant was cleared of the narcotics conspiracy charge but convicted of currency violations that could draw a five-year sentence.

Defense lawyers said they would appeal. Prosecutors said the drug ring took morphine from Turkey, turned it into heroin in Sicily and shipped it to New York and other cities in the Eastern and Midwestern United States. Cocaine was brought in from South America.

The indictment said that since 1979, the ring imported 1,650 pounds of heroin with a street value of $1.6 billion.

The case was dubbed the "Pizza Connection" because prosecutors charged that the defendants used pizzerias in the Northeast and upper Midwest as fronts for the distribution of the heroin.

Badalamenti's son, Vito Badalamenti, 29, was the only defendant to be acquitted on all counts. He was also extradited from Spain and faces deportation, Giuliani said.

U.S. District Judge Pierre Leval set sentencing for May 5, and ordered all defendants held until a hearing today on whether they should be jailed until then.

Five defendants were convicted of running a continuing criminal enterprise. Fifteen were convicted of racketeering conspiracy.

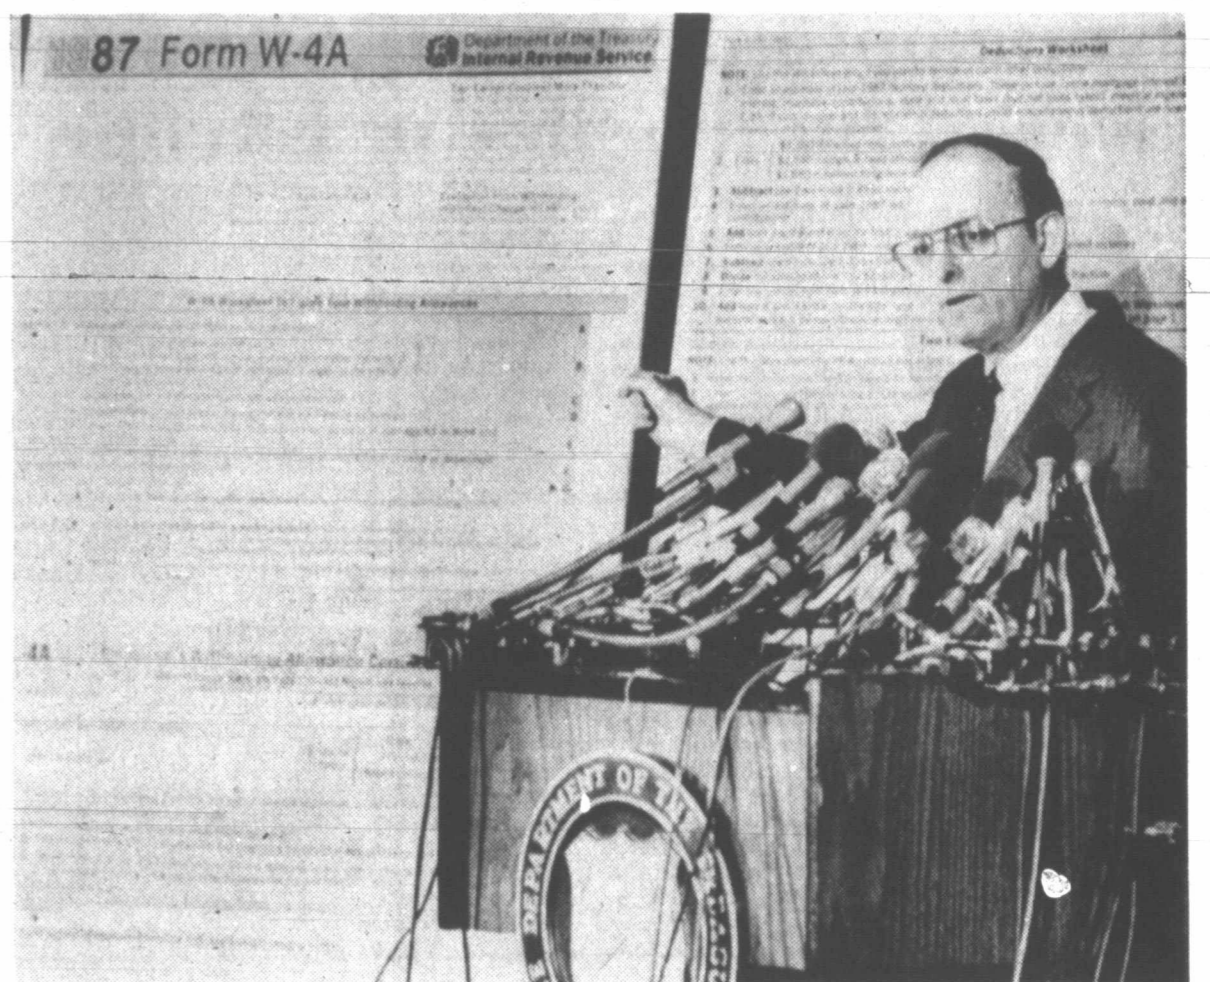

Prosecutors said the conspiracy was controlled by the Sicilian Mafia and one faction of its American counterpart.

One of the defendants, Gaetano Mazzara, a 51-year-old pizzeria owner from Sayreville, N.J., was found slain last December.

Another defendant, Pietro Alfano, 51, a pizzeria owner from Oregon, Ill., was shot on a Greenwich Village street Feb. 11 and left paralyzed below the waist. Six men have been arrested in the shooting, including supermarket executive Pasquale Conte, described by federal officials as a capo in the Gambino crime family.

The jury found Alfano guilty on two counts: narcotics conspiracy and continuing criminal enterprise in narcotics.

The jury was ordered sequestered following the Alfano shooting to avoid seeing or hearing accounts of the bungled murder attempt.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs points to enlargements of the new W-F form in Washington Monday.

What that new W-4 form is all about

WASHINGTON (AP) — Designing one tax-withholding form that every taxpayer can use is akin to making a suit of clothes that fits everybody, the head of the Internal Revenue Service says.

It can't be done, the IRS has concluded. As a result, taxpayers soon will have a choice of withholding forms: the imposing four-page W-4 that was made public last November and the semi-sleek W-4A that was unveiled Monday by Commissioner Lawrence B. Gibbs.

Here are some questions and answers about the forms:

Q. What was wrong with the November version?

A. Everything, critics say. It was too complex, written in legalese, with a mind-boggling 24-column-wide table of figures.

Q. And the new one?

A. Simpler and shorter. The IRS says half of all wage-earners will be able to fill out the form in as little as five minutes. They won't have to go beyond six brief paragraphs of instructions, a seven-line worksheet and the seven-line form itself.

Q. So why didn't the IRS give us the W-4A to start with?

A. When Congress passed the big tax overhaul plan last year, it directed the IRS to come up with a new W-4 that would permit taxpayers to adjust their withholding so it would, as nearly as possible, match their actual tax liability. The form meets that goal. But, as Gibbs said Monday, accuracy is irrelevant if taxpayers can't understand the form.

Q. So the simpler form is less accurate?

A. Yes. And most people who use the form are more likely to have too much tax withheld from each paycheck.

Q. But they'll get the money back at the end of the year?

A. Yes. Under the old law and with the pre-1987 W-4, more than three-quarters of taxpayers were overwithheld, many of them deliberately. They received refunds last year averaging nearly $1,000.

Q. I got a big refund each year to finance our family vacation. What do I do now?

A. You may claim fewer withholding allowances than you are entitled to (each one allows $1,900 a year to escape withholding) or you may use Line 5 on either form to direct your boss to withhold an additional amount from each check.

Q. I still don't see why we have to have new withholding forms, what with all the taxpayer irritation and confusion they are causing.

A. Two reasons. First, the big 1986 tax law cut tax rates, almost doubled the personal exemption and reduced or eliminated some key deductions. Changes of that magnitude will affect virtually every person's tax bill. Many will get significant tax cuts; some will barely break even; some will pay more.

Second, the new law raises to 90 percent (from 80 percent) the portion of tax liability that must be paid in advance, either through withholding or quarterly estimated payments.

Danny Kaye dead at 74

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Danny Kaye, the red-haired clown prince of musical comedy who worked his way from busboy to Broadway and Hollywood, died early today at 74.

Kaye, who was hospitalized Sunday, died at 3:58 a.m. of heart failure brought on by complications of internal bleeding and hepatitis, said Warren Cowan, chairman of Rogers and Cowan public relations firm.

Kaye's wife, Sylvia, and daughter, Dena, were with him when he died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, Cowan said.

Kaye's performing career spanned television, Broadway, movies and the concert stage. In addition, he was known as UNICEF's longtime "ambassador to the world's children."

Kaye, the red-haired rubber-faced star of such film classics as "White Christmas" and "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," was reported in extremely critical condition Monday night.

Kaye was released from the hospital last week after spending three weeks being treated for a leg condition, spokesman Ron Wise said.

The Brooklyn-born entertainer got his start as a clowning busboy on the Borscht Belt during the late 1920s and went on to Broadway, Hollywood and the concert stage.

Among his movies are "The Inspector General" in 1948, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" in 1946, "Hans Christian Andersen" in 1952 and "White Christmas" in 1954.

Denmark's Queen Margrethe knighted the rubber-faced song-and-dance man in 1983 for his portrayal of the Danish author Hans Christian Andersen in the Hollywood musical. The citation called him "the Pied Piper to the children of the world."

Kaye won Emmy awards for television's "The Danny Kaye Show" in 1963 and best children's special in 1975. He received a special Oscar in 1954.

He also has served as the official permanent ambassador-at-large for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Kaye conducted some of the world's greatest symphony orchestras, once sang for Queen Elizabeth II and was awarded the American Symphony Orchestra

Kaye

League's gold baton for distinguished service to music and the arts. But he couldn't read music.

In a 1981 performance of the New York Philharmonic, Kaye entered with a quiver of batons, occasionally cued the violins with a leg kick and conducted "Flight of the Bumble Bee" with a flexible red flyswatter.

During one piece, he faced the audience, contorting his rubber face to the music and wisecracking in gibberish German and in British and Bostonian accents.

Conducting, he said afterward, is "the greatest feeling of neurotic power in the world."

"The man is the prime goofball in America," producer-director Carl Reiner told a 1984 audience at Washington's Kennedy Center during a salute to Kaye for his more than 30 years' work with UNICEF.

Born David Daniel Kaminsky on Jan. 18, 1913, Kaye began his career at summer resorts on the Borscht Belt in New York state's Catskill Mountains.

He moved from nightclubs to Broadway, appearing in "Lady in the Dark" in 1940 with Gertrude Lawrence, stopping the show nightly with the song "Tchaikovsky," in which he reeled off the names of 54 Russian composers — some real, some not — in 38 seconds. He starred in "Let's Face It" in 1941.

He came to Hollywood to work for producer Samuel Goldwyn, beginning with "Up in Arms" in 1943.

Kaye and his wife, the producer, lyricist and composer Sylvia Fine Kaye, were married in 1940 and have a daughter, Dena Kaye, born in 1946. Mrs. Kaye wrote many of her husband's songs and was involved in the production of his movies and TV specials.

Girls four times as likely to reach 100, statistics say

NEW YORK (AP) — Children now around 7 years old have the greatest chance of living to 100 in Hawaii, and the smallest chance in Alaska, according to a statistical publication.

In addition, girls in that age group are more than four times as likely as their male counterparts to reach their 100th birthday, said the latest Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Of every 100,000 girls born from 1979 to 1981, 1,927 will reach the century mark if current mortality rates remain unchanged, the bulletin said. Only 423 of every 100,000 boys born during that period will become centenarians, it said.

For babies born from 1900 to 1902, only 43 of every 100,000 girls and 22 of every 100,000 boys could expect to reach their 100th birthdays, the quarterly bulletin said.

In Hawaii, 1,713 of 100,000 people born in 1979 to 1981 are expected to reach 100, the bulletin said.

Shultz calls for China to remain open to foreigners

DALIAN, China (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz, in a strong call for China to remain open to foreign ideas and investment, warned today that no closed market is large enough to sustain a prosperous economy.

Shultz, the first senior Western official to visit China since student unrest led to the ouster of Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang on Jan. 16, urged in a speech in the port city of Dalian that the Chinese continue to introduce market forces into their economy.

"Closed societies will fall behind and wither," Shultz said.

Earlier, he met with China's paramount leader, Deng Xiaoping, and they assured each other that the political problems faced by their two countries were largely overcome. Shultz had sought to determine the extent to which the political campaign against Western "bourgeois liberalism" in China may undermine the nation's new economic policies.

Shultz, referring to the Iran-Contra scandal, said President Reagan had "had a rough patch but he's dealt with it very swiftly." He said that with the appointment of Howard Baker as Reagan's chief of staff "he has a great person and a great team."

Deng said that "as for the troubles we recently encountered, they are also finished."

Shultz, in the Dalian speech, said, "Success requires that an economic system be open and flexible enough to produce goods and services that are competitive in the global market place." It was his strongest public speech since arriving in China on Sunday.

He spoke at a joint U.S.-Chinese center which has trained more than 1,000 Chinese in American management techniques since 1980 and is considered a beachhead for the introduction of Western business practices.

On Monday, Shultz held seven hours of intensive talks with an array of Chinese officials, including Zhao Ziyang, the premier and acting Communist Party general secretary, President Li Xiannian, Li Peng, a senior vice premier widely mentioned as a rising star, and Defense Minister Zhang Aiping.

"These discussions have reinforced my confidence in the durability of our relations and the firmness of your commitment to the policies which have brought your country the unparalleled successes of the past decade," Shultz said Monday in a banquet toast to his Chinese counterpart, Wu Xueqian.

Zhao told Shultz that "a change in these policies is out of the question."

"Nor do the reforms and the opening of the country (mean that China will) abandon the leadership of the Communist Party or the socialist road," Zhao said in a statement distributed by the official Xinhua news agency.

Shultz warned that some actions by Beijing could shake the confidence of U.S. businessmen in China's modernization and thereby jeopardize the supply of American capital and technology which is helping to drive the transformation.

American firms have invested more than $1.5 billion in China, said Shultz, a rate of investment exceeded only by Hong Kong.

"More than ever before, the economic well-being of all nations is dependent upon their ability to adapt and compete within an open and growing world economy," he said. "Closed national markets, no matter how big, are no longer large enough to ensure a competitive and prosperous economy."

While praising "a growing bilateral economic relationship," Shultz warned that soaring Chinese textile exports to the United States should be matched by a rise in China's imports of U.S. goods.

U.S.-Chinese trade has grown to $8 billion a year, he said.

Nunn optimistic on U.S.-Soviet accord on missiles in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn says he is optimistic that an agreement can be reached with the Soviet Union to eliminate medium-range missiles in Europe.

"Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters Monday that many of the potential obstacles being raised by the Reagan administration are "serious," but "none of them are show stoppers."

And two private arms control experts suggested that some officials in the administration may have raised new concerns to dampen enthusiasm for what appears to be a breakthrough offer by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Gorbachev announced Saturday he has dropped his demand that the two sides settle their differences on President Reagan's "Star Wars" missile defense program before reaching agreement on the issue of medium-range missiles in Europe.

The concession appeared to pave the way for a separate agreement to eliminate from Europe the 572 U.S. Pershing 2 and cruise missiles now being deployed on the U.S. side and the estimated 441 Soviet SS-20s. All these weapons can hit targets at least 1,100 miles away.

Under a tentative agreement reached by Gorbachev and President Reagan in Iceland last October, each side would keep 100 warheads, but the Soviet weapons would be put in Asia and the U.S. arms would be brought home.

Though the administration has praised Gorbachev's announcement, officials have pushed to the forefront several new possible impediments to an agreement. Nunn referred to four of them:

—Verification problems. The United States wants on-site inspections to make sure the SS-20s are destroyed and moved eastward. The Soviets have traditionally rejected scrutiny of their missile sites.

—What the mix of the remaining 100 weapons would be. The Soviets want all remaining 100 U.S. weapons to be cruise missiles, which travel at jet aircraft speed. The United States wants to keep some Pershing 2s, which travel at rocket speed.

—The location of the remaining 100. The United States wants the option of putting them in Alaska; the Soviets, who have important installations in Siberia, don't want them there.

—How to deal with a seeming Soviet superiority in shorter-range missiles. A Soviet proposal to freeze the levels of such weapons would give them an 800-0 advantage, Nunn said. The United States wants the right to build up to such a level.

There are conflicting reports on the numbers of nuclear weapons on the short-range Soviet missiles, the SS-21s, SS-22s, and SS-23s.

"This is of critical concern to the security of (West) Germany, and any giveaways on this issue will be very unsettling to the German allies," said Kenneth Adelman.

Riot police take away anti-government demonstrators Tuesday near downtown Pagoda Park in Seoul, South Korea. Opposition and dissident groups gathered in memory of a dissident student who died under police torture.

Police, protesters clash in Seoul

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Tens of thousands of riot police firing tear gas on Tuesday blocked an opposition-sponsored "peace march" commemorating a dissident college student who died under police torture.

There were no immediate reports of clashes in six other provincial cities where similar marches were scheduled to take place simultaneously at noon.

The clashes in Seoul broke out as thousands of people tried to march along sidewalks marking the 49th day after the death of Park Chong-chul, 21, a Seoul National University student who died by police torture Jan. 14.

Police acknowledged that Park suffocated when his head was forced into water twice during an interrogation by two police officers about his connection with a fugitive student activist.

A 49th-day memorial rite is a Buddhist practice to mark the entry of the deceased person's soul into another world.

Witness, weeping, describes the horrors of Treblinka

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Holocaust survivor testifying today at the trial of retired U.S. autoworker John Demjanjuk wept uncontrollably as he described how a dog at the Treblinka death camp in Poland would tear off parts of human bodies on command.

Warsaw-born Josef Czarny, 60, broke down repeatedly during testimony, sobbing and wiping his eyes while a capacity audience of more than 500 watched in silence.

Czarny, who spent 10 months at Treblinka at age 16, told of a "large vicious dog with brown spots," named Bari. "This dog had been trained to snap off genitals," Czarny said in a frail voice.

A German guard "would call to this dog and point at someone and the dog would tear off the sexual organ, and the blood would flow all over the place. Can anyone understand this?" Czarny said, pulling out a handkerchief.

He halted his testimony for five minutes, weeping constantly. Presiding Judge Dov Levine repeatedly asked the witness: "Please try and control yourself. We understand what you're going through, but please try."

"I'm sorry your honor, but you must understand, I'm reliving Treblinka right now," said Czarny, whose three sisters died in Treblinka's gas chambers in Nazi-occupied Poland. His parents died in the Warsaw ghetto. Czarny was the third prosecution witness at the trial of the Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk, 66, accused of operating the engines of Treblinka's gas chambers where more than 850,000 Jews perished during World War II.

Demjanjuk, a retired autoworker who moved to Cleveland after the war and was extradited to Israel last year, says he is a victim of mistaken identity.

Don Ramsey wipes down the Mitsubishi Diamond jet owned by the State of Texas, called the most controversial item on the state government inventory. (AP Laserphoto)

Controversial governor's plane proving a tough sale for state

AUSTIN (AP) — They call it simply The Jet. It may be the best-known, most controversial, most notorious item on the state government inventory.

It's been praised, cursed, stuck in a corner and offered for sale. The previous governor liked it. The new governor hates it. It was a campaign issue and a campaign promise.

"It normally just sits in the hangar now," said Bob Dulaney, executive director of the State Aircraft Pooling Board, which operates airplanes used by many state agencies.

To Gov. Mark White, the blue-and-white Mitsubishi Diamond 1A jet was the only way to fly. To Gov. Bill Clements, the 400-mph jet symbolized what he considered White's high-flying, big-spending style.

"When my hand comes off that Bible, it's sell the jet," Clements vowed during last year's campaign. The $3.1 million plane was too expensive and too extravagant for a public servant, he said.

Clements' hand has been off the Bible for six weeks now. The state still owns The Jet.

Jim Kaster, Clements' appointee to the Aircraft Pooling Board, said the plane has lost about two-thirds of its value, so 1984's $3.1 million plane is worth about $800,000 now.

"You can't really sell the jet because you couldn't get anything for it," he said, adding that the best plan may be a swap for two smaller turboprop planes.

So today, the Mitsubishi sits in a hangar at Austin's Robert Mueller Airport.

"It's for lease to fly for agencies, just like our other planes," Dulaney said. "At this point, we haven't flown it for anyone."

Because of higher operating costs, Dulaney said, the Mitsubishi leases for $1,000 an hour. In contrast, a propeller-driven Beechcraft King Air 200 leases for $395 and gets you there almost as fast.

"On short hauls, the jet's just too expensive," said Bob Cargill, a special assistant and pilot for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"On a short trip, the jet's not significantly faster. If you're talking about a trip from here (Austin) to Houston, it might be five minutes faster than a King Air," Cargill said.

The jet — complete with $4,500 toilet, $4,215 swivel seat, $5,135 food and drink galley and other options — was a source of controversy from the moment the order was placed.

Texas Republican Party Chairman George Strake assailed the decision, saying Democrat White bought "a fully loaded Cadillac with deluxe accessories."

White defended the plane as more efficient than the 20-year-old Grumman G-1 he inherited when taking office. That plane cost $3,158 per hour to fly, White's staff said. They dubbed the old plane "the St. Bernard" because it was "a big dog."

The Mitsubishi is a good plane, aviation experts say. Indeed, Gantt Aviation in Georgetown said it has sold 12 used Mitsubishi jets in the past year, with asking prices around $1.1 million.

"In my opinion, it's a good airplane. It's a good design, fast and economical. They did a good thing getting out of that G-1 and into the Diamond 1A," said a Gantt spokesman who declined to give his name.

Cargill noted that the state's depressed economy has forced many corporations to trim costs by unloading their planes, making the market more crowded.

"They're not that hard to sell, it's just getting a decent price for them," Cargill said. "If you think a new car has depreciation, you're going to love airplanes."

White, who often touted the Mitsubishi's virtues when reporters accompanied him on trips in the plane, developed a sense of humor about it.

Toward the end of his ill-fated 1986 campaign, White referred to Clements' criticism and defended the jet as much safer than the Grumman, which he said needed constant repairs.

Supreme Court will consider federal employees immunity in Alabama case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to study how much immunity federal employees have against being sued for personal injuries they may cause.

The justices, acting on an appeal by the Reagan administration, said they will consider killing a lawsuit by a warehouseman injured at an Army depot in Alabama against three of his supervisors.

Administration lawyers say a 1959 high court ruling appeared to give federal workers broad protection against personal injury suits.

But federal appeals courts "have developed a bewildering variety of standards" in interpreting the decision, the government's lawyers contend.

They asked the court to review a 1985 ruling by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstating a suit by William T. Erwin, a civilian warehouseman at an Army depot in Anniston, Ala.

In other cases the Supreme Court:

- Agreed to settle a constitutional dispute over the placement of newspaper boxes in a Cleveland suburb. The court said it will review a ruling that struck down as free-speech violations three parts of a Lakewood, Ohio, ordinance regarding the boxes, also called newsracks.

- Said it will consider the constitutionality of a San Jose, Calif., rent control law. The justices agreed to review a California Supreme Court decision upholding what the state court called a unique measure that allows landlords to raise rents up to 8 percent a year, with increases over that amount subject to being challenged by tenants.
- Agreed to hear appeals by the Reagan administration and a private company seeking broader authority for the Interior Department over water in Missouri River Basin reservoirs.
- Rejected an appeal from a cable television operator ordered to pay $35.8 million for using illegal tactics in trying to retain its franchise in Jefferson City, Mo. The court let stand rulings that TCI Cablevision Inc., violated federal antitrust and state laws in its 1981 effort to retain what lower courts said amounted to an exclusive cable franchise.

Former oil entrepreneur to launch oil-gas exploration

DENVER (AP) — John M. King, founder of the defunct Denver-based King Resources Corp. and an ex-federal convict, says he's about to re-enter the petroleum industry with an ambitious plan to find gas and oil.

King, 59, has lived in Midland, Texas, for the past 1½ years and says he will move to Dallas soon where he will operate Recovery Resources Corp.

He is trying to raise $10 million in seed money for his exploration enterprise by selling stock privately to foreign investors.

King once operated an oil and gas empire estimated to have been worth $480 million. His wealth was tied mainly to his stock in King Resources and closely held Colorado Corp. In 1971, King and his two companies filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

He was convicted in 1976 on securities fraud violations for inflating the value of oil and gas leases in the Arctic Islands and was sentenced to a year in prison. King spent three months in a federal prison in Lexington, Ky., and was transferred to a halfway house in Boulder. He was released after serving about two-thirds of his sentence.

Recovery Resources will gain control of the company.

King said ND Resources attracted his attention because it has no debt, "several million dollars" in assets, a tax-loss carry-forward of $10 million to $12 million and 2,200 acres of gold claims in Arizona.

William W. Deloney, president of ND Resources, said the firm will move its headquarters to Dallas in about five weeks.

Asked if this is the time to move into the petroleum industry, King answered:

"Bernard Baruch said to always buy cheap and sell high. And that also causes most of the major banks and banking institutions in the United States to be under water, because almost all of them made loans to oil companies."

He said he believes oil and gas not only will make a comeback, "but it will be twice as exciting as it was before.... From our standpoint, this is the time to be in the oil business and to be a wild-catter."

Don't give up on the goals you've set for yourself for the year ahead until they are achieved. Nature may be tardy in acting, but she will eventually deliver as promised.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The victims of your procrastination may gang up on you today and pressure you to do all the things you promised to do, but have thus far neglected. ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you say unkind things about others today, don't be surprised later when you learn unkind things are being said about you. What goes around comes around.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't involve yourself in a financial situation today that is similar to one that did not work out well for you in the past. Profit from your mistakes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The outcome of events will be substantially influenced today by the people with whom you associate. Don't saddle yourself with losers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The weight you may feel on your shoulders today could be the heavy hand of neglected responsibilities. Do everything within your power to start alleviating these burdens.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't allow peer pressure to cause you to do things today which violate your better judgment. When you say no, mean it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your public image is extremely fragile today, so be extra mindful of your behavior. Don't do anything that could arouse resentment in others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of wasting time today trying to establish who's at fault for a blunder, it's far wiser to expend that effort correcting the mistake.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The world isn't about to give you a free ride today, so don't expect it. If you want to dance, be prepared to pay the piper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The kind of response you get from others will be determined by your attitude today. If you're sharp-tongued or critical, anticipate similar treatment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid taking things out of context today, or you might feel others are dictating to you. In reality, they may only be offering helpful hints.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Steer away from expensive involvements today; you might not be up to par at getting proper value for what you spend.

Today's furnishings may be 'fit for a king'

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures Thanks to the growing popularity of documentary fabric and wall-covering collections, American homes today can be furnished with designs that once were found in ancient civilizations and at the courts of kings.

This spring, for example, several new collections are based on rare documents from the Textile Museum in Washington and from the Musee des Arts Decoratifs in Paris.

The process by which these documents get translated into yard goods suitable for today's upholstery, curtains and accessories is an involved one, according to the fabric firms.

Anne Hahn, design projects director at Lee Jofa, supervised that company's new Caravans Collection, based on Textile Museum documents. She said the eight-fabric collection had taken three years to produce.

"It takes anywhere from a year and a half to three years to go from concept to finished fabric in a documentary collection," according to Corinne Samios, who is head of the design department of Brunswick & Fils, Inc., and who played a major role in the development of Brunswick's new Decorative Arts Museum fabrics and wallcoverings.

Even the first step of selecting the documents can require difficult decisions with so much to choose from. Hahn noted that after visiting the Textile Museum to choose potential documents to copy, she returned home with 36 carousel trays of slides which she eventually had to reduce to 16 selections. (The second group of eight will be marketed next year.)

Going from document to a reproducible contemporary design involves further agonizing. Sometimes wonderful designs have to be discarded because they would cost too much. "A fabric that requires 42 screens could be wonderful, but at what price?" Murray Bartlett Douglas, Brunschwig's senior vice president, asked.

Once selections are made and the museum's officials have been consulted and have approved the choices, the process of getting the fabric woven or printed and colored begins.

As a rule, the fabric firm does not actually weave or print the fabric. Instead, the company employs fabric producers, printers and screen makers. The printers and screen makers are usually in European countries, such as Switzerland, France, Italy and Belgium, where the best work is said to be done. The process of making the screens, then coloring them and getting samples involves sometimes dozens of tries with different craftsmen and can take a year or more.

Both Douglas and Hahn say negotiations with museum curators are a delicate area. The curators may be most interested in retaining historical accuracy in reproduction, while the fabric firm is most concerned with the marketing potential.

"What might be a beautiful wall hanging isn't necessarily what makes a beautiful wall covering; what you wear isn't necessarily what your sofa wears," said Hahn.

"We have to convince the curators to let us create things that will sell," said Douglas. However, since both stand to benefit (the museum generally receives a negotiated royalty on each yard of fabric sold) the two usually manage to come to an agreement.

With all the difficulties, one may question why documentary collections are on the increase. The main answer appears to be that the public likes them. "The appeal to consumers is that they are unique," notes Hahn.

"We rescue 18th and 19th-century fabrics that are still good, but wouldn't work today for one reason or another," said Douglas. One of the most typical updates is to change the cloth itself, perhaps from silk to cotton.

Words of love, comfort help widows overcome grief, pain

DEAR ABBY: I am a single parent of a lovely 15-month-old daughter. Her father (I'll call him Brad) and his family do not acknowledge her socially, but Brad is paying child support.

Brad plans to marry in three weeks, and says he does not intend to tell his fiancée that he has a daughter to support. I feel that his fiancée has a right to know before she marries him.

Would it be wrong for me to tell her? I am fairly certain that nobody in Brad's family will. If I were in her shoes, I would consider it a favor to be told.

I wish I could go to every widow and say, "You are not crazy, and believe it or not, you will survive this overwhelming pain."

It took me two years to understand the words of a young widow who came to console me. She said, "You wonder when the pain will go away. Well, it never goes away completely, but I promise it becomes more bearable as time goes on."

My dear widow friends: Be forgiving and understanding with others, and always remember that we, too, were once oblivious to this kind of pain. Counseling is very helpful, but the bottom line is "self" — self-searching, self-understanding and, most important, self-love. Be good to yourself, and you'll be good to others.

3. I have just passed the first-year milestone of my dear husband's death. I received many calls and personal notes to let me know they remembered, and missed him, too.

My husband was killed two days after we had attended her concert, and I wanted to thank her for adding to my precious collection of happy memories. You did not disregard my pain with cliches; instead you comforted me with simple, loving words, and ended with, "He must have been a wonderful man." Abby, I needed to hear that! Thank you.

Yeoman admits making cash payments to players

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Former University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman admitted to investigators that he gave cash to his football players on occasion, but never more than $35, a memorandum released by the school says.

Yeoman, who resigned last fall after serving as the Cougars' head football coach for 25 seasons, defended his actions on the grounds the money was given in small amounts and was generally given for humanitarian purposes.

The memo, released Monday, quoted Yeoman as saying he gave money to players for gas for their cars, utilities or rent for players' parents. The former coach said such money was not given to the players, but went directly to the parents.

"For example, if one of the player's parents could not pay rent and were about to be evicted, Coach Yeoman would provide the money for that month's rent," the memorandum written last July says.

The admissions by Yeoman were released in the memorandum as a result of a school in-house investigation by the Houston law firm of Liddell, Sapp and Zivley looking into allegations that Yeoman and his assistant coaches had paid players in violation of NCAA rules.

The former coach told the investigators some of the money came from his own pocket and occasionally he called on alumni to contribute money.

"I have no comment now, tomorrow, next week or next month," Yeoman said Monday. Attorneys for the school said they would not comment pending completion of the NCAA investigation.

That investigation is in the preliminary stages.

The in-house investigation emerged after several former Cougar football players said that while on the team they either received cash from coaches, bought gasoline with the coaches' school credit cards or had car repairs made free of charge through arrangements made by the coaches.

Some former players also cited payments for a wedding, an abortion and rent. All are in violation of NCAA rules.

Yeoman, replaced as head coach by Jack Pardee, currently is special assistant to University President Ricahrd Van Horn in charge of athletic fundraising.

Pampa tops Caprock in baseball opener

AMARILLO — Bret Mitchell threw a three-hitter and his teammates backed him up with solid defense as the Pampa Harvesters routed Caprock 12-3 Monday to open the high school baseball season.

The non-district game had originally been scheduled for last Friday, but it was postponed due to muddy field conditions.

The Harvesters committed only two errors in the nine-inning game while the Longhorns were charged with eight miscues.

"I was really surprised at the way we played defense. It's something we didn't do last year," said Pampa Coach Bill Butler.

Second baseman Grant Gambelin turned in a pair of defensive gems for the Harvesters when he cut off two groundballs hit deep in the hole to throw out Caprock runners. Mitchell also played some good defense himself when he stopped three hard-hit grounders hit up the middle.

Mitchell gave up a single, double and triple with two of those hits coming in the third inning. He struck out nine and also walked nine.

"Bret walked about five too many, but he had nine strikeouts. That's pretty good for the first outing," added Butler.

Pampa put together eight hits, including a single and double by Kenny Steward. James Ellison had a run-scoring double while Gamblin had a single and scored three times. Jon Roe had a double while Shawn Frye and Kyle Clark each had one hit.

Pampa led 6-0 after six innings and knocked Caprock starter Scott Knutson out of the box in the seventh. The Harvesters plated two more runs in the seventh and closed out the ninth frame with a 4-run tally.

Pampa returns to Amarillo today to play Palo Duro with the non-district game scheduled to start at 4:30 p.m. Glen Pruet is slated to start on the mound for the Harvesters.

Pampa's first home game is scheduled next Tuesday against Amarillo Tascosa. Gametime is 4:30 p.m. Pampa opens the District 1-4A season March 21 against Levelland on the home field.

Mavericks wallop Suns

DALLAS (AP) — Phoenix center Alvin Adams disagreed with the hypothesis of a sports writer after the Suns' game with the Dallas Mavericks Monday night.

"What game?" Adams threw back at his questioner. "We played horrible. We let them get off to a good start. ... We had maybe three aggressive minutes the whole game, and that was with six minutes to go."

The Mavericks shot off to a 41-26 lead after one quarter, increased the advantage to 75-54 by halftime, and opened up a 33-point margin in the third quarter before finally cruising in with a 135-112 victory. Substitutes played much of the fourth quarter for Dallas.

Rolando Blackman scored 25, James Donaldson 22 and Mark Aguirre 21 for the Mavericks, who improved their Midwest Division-leading record to 38-20. The victory puts Dallas in position to go 19 games over .500 for the first time in club history if it can beat Denver on Wednesday night.

Larry Nance led the Suns with 25 points and guard Walter Davis had 17.

"Dallas did it inside and outside with their offense and their defense. They just took it to us," Adams said.

Dick Van Arsdale, leading the Suns for the second straight game after the firing of John MacLeod, said he had been apprehensive about coming into Reunion Arena.

The Mavericks were coming off their second worst defeat of the season, a 123-98 loss at San Antonio on Saturday night. Spurs in San Antonio.

"It's so hard to play a team as good as Dallas after they got beat so badly by San Antonio," Van Arsdale said.

"It was a tough day at the office," Van Arsdale said. "I don't think you could say that we were ever in this one. We tried everything. The problem was not necessarily offensively, but on defense."

For Donaldson, it was his sixth game of 20 or more points. He had been held under 10 points in his past seven games. The contest was also his 23rd game with double-digit points and rebounds. He had a game-high 11 rebounds.

Donaldson said, "We came out and played as hard as we possibly could. We felt we had to make up for the loss in San Antonio. We had a lot to prove to the coaches, fans and ourselves. A lot of people were starting to doubt us after that loss and we really wanted to put out a concentrated effort tonight."

Dallas coach Dick Motta said, "We tried to do some things tonight on defense. We played more intense on defense tonight. Of course, we had a lot left over after the other night in San Antonio when we didn't play well at all."

Dallas rookie forward Roy Tarpley, who scored 15 points, said "We jumped out early and really got on them."

The Owls opened the Optimist Club basketball tournament with a 33-11 win over the Longhorns in girls' division action Monday night.

The Owls never trailed as they jumped out to a 12-0 first-quarter lead.

The Owls will meet the unbeaten Bears in second-round play at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The Owls' top scorer was Alana Ryan with 18 points. Christy Hoover added 6 points for the Owls.

Katie Hamilton and Heather Wheelley had 5 and 4 points respectively for the Longhorns.

In the boys' division, the Celtics won over the Spurs 29-21. Justin Cornelsen was top scorer for the Celtics.

The Knicks slipped past the Sonics 28-27 in the other boys' game played last night. Kurt West and Will Winborne had 10 points each to lead the Knicks.

In tonight's action in the boys' division, the Sixers meet the Bulls and the Mavericks go against the Suns.

The Cougars play the Mustangs in girls' action Wednesday while the Owls go against the Bears.

The finals in boys' play is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Saturday, preceded by the girls' championship game at 3:15 p.m.

Indians' Carter walks out of spring training camp

By The Associated Press

Joe Carter, a player who is used to swinging the bat, has taken a walk.

Carter, who sparked the revival of the Cleveland Indians and led the major leagues with 121 RBI last season, walked out of that," second baseman Tony Bernazard said. "The type of season Joe had was unbelievable. But there's nothing I can do about it. You could sit back and say this or that, but the front office — that's what they're here for — and it's their decision."

Dan O'Brien, the Indians'

his agent refused to agree not to sue major league baseball over alleged collusion by the owners. However, a source told The Associated Press Monday that the Phillies and Parrish have resumed negotiations.

Last week, the Major League Players Association filed a grievance against the Phillies challenging the club's insistence on a no-suit clause in Parrish's contract. The association claims the Phillies and Parrish had agreed on a one-year, $1 million contract before the team asked for the no-suit clause.

A grievance hearing is expected in two weeks.

Phillies slugger Mike Schmidt said Monday that the addition of Parrish would make the team a contender and possibly change Schmidt's plans to retire after this season.

"It would make the pitching staff better, just like that," Schmidt said.

The Phillies are the only team that has offered Parrish a contract since he broke off negotiations with the Tigers. Parrish hit .257 with 22 home runs and 62 RBI for Detroit last season. He didn't play after July 26 because of a chronic back problem.

More Renewals

In other developments, the New York Yankees renewed the contracts of third baseman Mike Pagliarulo and pitcher Dennis Rasmussen. Both will get the same as last year, about $175,000. Pagliarulo hit 28 home runs and drove in 71 runs last season, while Rasmussen went 18-6 with a 3.88 earned run average.

The Los Angeles Dodgers renewed the contracts of shortstop Mariano Duncan and relief pitcher Ken Howell. Howell was 6-12 with a 3.87 ERA and 12 saves last season. Duncan hit .229 in 109 games with eight home runs and 30 RBI.

The Indians reached agreement with all their other players besides Carter who had not signed. These included outfielder-infielder Cory Snyder, pitchers Tom Candiotti and Greg Swindell, and outfielders Dave Gallagher, Miguel Roman, Bernardo Brito and infielder Junior Noboa.

The Cincinnati Reds signed pitchers Ron Robinson, John Franco, Tom Browning and Frank Williams, and outfielders Kal Daniels and Eric Davis to one-year contracts. The San Francisco Giants renewed the contract of pitcher Scott Garrels.

Looking for a Team

Free agent Andre Dawson showed up at the Chicago Cubs' training camp with his agent Dick Moss, who said they were paying a surprise visit in order to present a contract proposal to Cubs President Dallas Green.

Last week, Moss had said Green was restricted from signing Dawson, a free agent after 10 years with the Montreal Expos, because of constraints from Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and Tribune Co. executives, owners of the Cubs.

Green countered by lambasting Moss in a letter and suggesting Dawson get a new agent.

Green, who was aware Moss might pop in with his highly-publicized client, wasn't on hand to receive the proposal, and Moss said he and Dawson will return to the Cubs camp today and try to meet with Green again. Earlier Monday, Green told club officials that he was not willing to talk to Moss because he was still angry with the agent.

Michelle Keelin

Keelin inks volleyball scholarship

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

Kelton High School senior Michelle Keelin has signed a volleyball letter of intent with Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls.

The 5-2 Lady Lion, known for her play as a setter and server, helped lead the Kelton volleyball team to the regional finals in the 1986 season.

MSU Volleyball Coach Dave Simeon, who has spoken with Keelin on the phone several times and has seen her play on video tape, had only words of praise for her.

"She does have a great deal of athletic ability," Simeon said. "I very much like her leadership qualities and am looking forward to her joining our team."

The volleyball program at MSU is entering its third year and will open the 1987 season September 5 at home against Howard Payne.

An NAIA District 8 team, MSU is looking forward to a good recruiting year with hopes of making it to the NCAA Division II playoffs for a second time since 1984.

Simeon said Keelin will be used as a defensive specialist, working mainly at center back and left back. He also said he would look for Keelin to be a server at certain times.

"I'm not looking for her to come in here and set the volleyball world on fire in her first year," Simeon said, "but I do look for her to make a definite contribution to our team."

Simeon said one of the problems of being a college freshman is making the successful transition from high school to college life.

For Keelin, that shouldn't be too hard. She has excelled both academically and on whatever field or court in which she chooses to play.

Selected to the All-District basketball team in her first three years of high school, it would be a safe assumption that coaches will choose her again this year.

Keelin has also qualified in various track and field events in regional meets during her career at Kelton. In her freshman year, she finished fourth in the state in the two-mile run.

Keelin's coach at Kelton, Dave Johnson, also had encouraging words following her signing.

"She'll do a fine job there," Johnson said. "She's very competitive and I think whatever she decides she can do, she'll be able to do."

Keelin said her first choice for a college was Midwestern, where she is considering a major in accounting.

Softball meeting set

The City of Pampa Parks and Recreation Department will host its annual organizational meetings for summer league softball in the Lovett Memorial Library, located at 101 North Houston.

Coaches or managers are urged to attend to obtain pertinent information concerning the leagues. Also, player who aren't on a team are welcome to come to the meetings and organize new teams.

DUMAS — Pampa defeated Canyon and Dumas by identical 11-7 scores in tennis duels Saturday. Pampa boys and girls now have a combined record of 4-1 in duel meets this season. Pampa boys are 5-0 with tournament wins at Wichita Falls and Vernon.

"The guys are just playing super tennis," said Pampa Coach Jay Barrett.

In the boys' division against Canyon, Pampa's Matt Walsh and Reagin Eddins, the No. 1 and 2 seeded players respectively, both won by forfeits. Jimmy Ashford posted a win for Pampa, defeating Chris Barrett 6-4, 7-5.

"The team played very well under very tough conditions. They didn't let the wind and cold bother them," said Barrett. "This is our first win over Canyon in the two years I've been here and I was very pleased about that."

In the girls' division, Pampa claimed four of the six singles matches with wins coming from Susanna Holt, Allyson Thompson, Amy Sprinkle and Daphne Cates.

"The girls played better than they have so far," Barrett added.

Rockets victorious

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Houston Coach Bill Fitch says defense is the key to the Rockets success.

"We had to play defense tonight in order to win," Fitch said after his teamed downed San Antonio 105-100 Monday night. "Defense is our game. If you score more than 101 points on us, you will probably beat us."

San Antonio Coach Bob Weiss didn't have much to say after the loss in NBA play.

Weiss, who earned a technical early in the game, greeted reporters in front of a television showing a tape of an inbounds throw with 12 seconds left on the clock and the Spurs down by four points, 102-98.

The officials called a five-second infraction on the inbounds and turned the ball over to the Rockets.

"I just want to say that we played well tonight and otherwise I have no comment," Weiss said and walked away.

Fitch noted, "No coach is going to be completely objective in that situation, but, really, I was already up to six seconds in my head and I was up and hollering. I thought the Spurs got the benefit of the doubt, actually."

San Antonio's Artis Gilmore said, "There were a number of things that went wrong tonight, and you probably had a better view of that last call than I did."

The Rockets went to the free throw line for 43 shots, making 32, as the Spurs were called for 26 fouls.

The Rockets were tagged with 13 fouls and the Spurs shot 15 free throws.

Akeem Olajuwon scored 32 points to lead the Rockets.

"I think we've been lucky against the Spurs this year," Olajuwon said. "None of the games we've had against them have been easy."
