Gramm, Boulter push oil incentives

By ANDREW MANGAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Two Texas Republicans are asking their Capitol Hill colleagues to help bolster U.S. oil production by 1 million barrels a day within three years.

The package of tax incentives and deductions is sponsored by Sen. Phil Gramm and Rep. Beau Boulter.

The pair's legislation calls for a 10 percent tax credit for exploration, development and marginal well production; expensing of geological and geophysical costs; and removal of intangible drilling costs as a tax preference item subject to the alternative minimum tax.

It also includes a series of measures endorsed by President Reagan, including repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax, which Gramm said is costing the industry and the government $500 million a year simply to process the paperwork. No windfall taxes are being collected because the price of oil is below the tax floor.

"Our nation may be more than 50 percent dependent on imported crude within the next year," said Boulter, R-Amarillo. "Considering the extent of our dependency on foreign oil and the growing instability in the Middle East, it is imperative that we take steps to strengthen our domestic industry by reducing our dependence on OPEC crude."

Oil consumption in the United States this year is at 16.2 million barrels a day, with roughly 5.7 million barrels, or 35 percent, being imported. Some studies suggest that within three years that could be as high as 50 percent.

Even with the Gramm-Boulter legislation fully implemented, which Gramm said would probably take three years, the U.S. would still be importing more oil from abroad in 1990 than it is now, or roughly 44 percent, if the projections are used, prompting Gramm to clarify the bill's intent.

"I don't consider this the final bill. This is a beginning," said the Texas Republican.

Gramm said he wants a revenue-neutral bill, or one that would not increase the federal deficit. He suggested the oil industry tax breaks could be paid for in the near term by selling two of three U.S. Naval Petroleum Reserves operated by the government in California and Wyoming.

The Reagan budget has for the past two years sought such a sell-off, contending that running an oil field is a business rather than a government activity. Selling the reserves is estimated in the president's 1988 budget to reduce the deficit by $3 billion.

Eighteen House members have signed on as co-sponsors of the bill. All but one, Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., are from the oil producing states. Ten are Texans.

Subway shooting termed 'savage'

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Bernhard Goetz was a "dark spirit" in the grip of "a blind, self-righteous, volcanic fury," when he shot four young men on a subway train, a prosecutor said in summing up the attempted-murder case against Goetz.

"It's ugly, it's coldblooded, it's savage. It should sound alien to you," Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples told the jury Thursday, nearly seven weeks after he opened the trial with a similar condemnation of Goetz's actions.

After instructions from state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane, the jury was to begin deliberations today.

Goetz, 39, an electronics technician, has been charged with attempted murder, assault, reckless endangerment and weapons violations in the case, which has raised questions about how far citizens may go to defend themselves.

On Wednesday, defense attorney Barry Slotnick summed up his case, portraying Goetz as a victim who saw that Troy Canty, Barry Allen, James Ramseur and Darrell Cabey were about to rob him, and shot them first on Dec. 22, 1984.

Waples argued that the four 19-year-olds were too shrewd to rob Goetz in plain view of other passengers.

Waples said Goetz either overreacted or perhaps courted the Reagan challenges Soviets to tear down Berlin Wall

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

BERLIN — President Reagan stood before the concrete and barbed wire of the Berlin Wall today and issued a personal and dramatic challenge to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev: "If you seek peace ... come here to this gate ... tear down this wall."

The president, like John Kennedy two decades before, spoke briefly and poignantly in German as he embraced "this firm, this unalterable belief: 'Es gibt nur ein Berlin' — There is only one Berlin."

Before his speech, Reagan stood before the wall and looked across to East Germany, the Soviet ally which erected the barrier 26 years ago to keep East Germans from fleeing to the West.

His speech was delivered near the Brandenburg Gate, which towers over the wall from East Berlin, and broadcast throughout Europe. Reagan was heading back to Washington after nine days in Venice, Italy, site of the annual economic summit. Reagan wondered aloud about the openness and reform advanced by Gorbachev and spoke harshly about a Soviet system that cannot and can't produce enough food to feed its people.

His speech was met with occasional cheers. As he stood at a balcony overlooking the Wall, two guards in an East German tower grabbed cameras to take pictures of the American president, and on top of Brandenburg Gate, two others looked down at the huge crowd and the stage where Reagan spoke.

On the eve of Reagan's arrival here, hundreds of anti-American protesters smashed windows, looted stores and battled with riot-equipped police. Some 60 demonstrators were arrested and nearly 70 policemen injured.

Later, Reagan said, "The only demonstration I've seen has been one of utmost cordiality and hospitality for which I am grateful."

When a reporter noted polls show many Europeans think Gorbachev is more of a man for peace than he is, Reagan said, "They just have to learn don't they."

On a cool, gray morning, Reagan arrived from Venice aboard Air Force One at Tempelhof Air Force Base, waved to U.S. military personnel and their dependents as the U.S. Army Berlin Brigade Band played, and walked down a red carpet to review a multinational honor guard consisting of British blackwatch units, a French artillery unit and U.S. Army and Air Force units.

The president had been given a 12-boat escort out of Venice. Reporters noted that protesters were awaiting him in Berlin. He replied: "Nothing new about that."

His address was at the Brandenburg Gate, the most visually impressive landmark at the wall, the concrete and barbed wire barrier between East and West Berlin.

It was there Reagan was directing his most

'Iron Lady' Thatcher wins third term

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Britons elected Margaret Thatcher prime minister for a third straight term, handing her a strong parliamentary majority to pursue her goals of demolishing British socialism and updating the country's nuclear arsenal.

The contrasting sentiments inspired by the prospect of up to five more years of Britain's "Iron Lady" were evident, with the pro-Tory Daily Express headlining "SUPERMAG" and her foes yelling "fascist scum" at her.

Less than five hours after polling stations closed following Thursday's general election, official results confirmed that the 61-year-old grocer's daughter, Europe's first woman prime minister, was also the first in 161 years to win three consecutive terms.

With 595 of the 650 seats in the House of Commons declared, Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party held 348 to 225 for the socialist Labor Party and 16 for the centrist Alliance of the Liberal and Social Democratic parties. Minor parties held the other six seats.

With the remaining results expected this afternoon, Mrs. Thatcher stood for the moment with a majority of 100, down from her 144-seat majority in the 1983 election, but more than sufficient to guarantee stable Tory rule.

In January, she will have served for 8½ years, the longest unbroken tenure this century.

The election portrayed a Britain deeply divided between its prosperous South, where the Tories scored a near shutout, and the unemployment-stricken North where Neil Kinnock's Labor Party gained strongly at the Conservatives' expense.

Any hope of a bridging force emerging between the two hostile blocs vanished as the centrist Alliance of the Liberals and Social Democrats failed to win more seats and some

Robertson gets rave review

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Citizens who attended Wednesday's Pampa luncheon with TV evangelist and presidential hopeful Pat Robertson say they were pleasantly surprised by his knowledge and grasp of the issues.

"I had no idea that he was that well-versed on the issues," Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said.

Kennedy introduced the potential Republican presidential candidate to a crowd of about 100 enthusiastic supporters during the noon luncheon at the Coronado Inn. Robertson discussed a wide range of issues during a press conference and 20-minute speech.

The visit by the founder of The 700 Club and head of the Christian Broadcasting Network kicked off a four-state campaign tour that took him to Santa Fe, N.M., Thursday morning, then on to Denver and Iowa. Pampa was Robertson's only public appearance in Texas.

Robertson has vowed to seek the GOP nomination if three million voters pledge their support by Sept. 17. He said Wednesday that he expects to surpass that number by the end of August, and predicted success in Texas.

Judge Kennedy said he was "very favorably impressed" with Robertson as a political candidate because of the evangelist's knowledge of banking, finance and international affairs. He said the United States needs moral people like Robertson seeking political office.

University of Texas music major Carol Morgan of Pampa said she attended the luncheon expecting more of a preacher than a politician. She left with a different view.

"He really wasn't what I expected," Morgan said, adding that Robertson covered a wide range of issues with a conservative viewpoint.

"Personally, I like that," she said. Morgan, the 1986 Pampa High School senior class valedictorian, said she is not bothered by the prospect of a preacher in the White House.

"Maybe he doesn't represent all the people, but he represents good morals no matter what religion you are, and I think the United States could certainly stand some of that," she said.

Mahunta Hills, also of Pampa, said Wednesday's speech was enough to convince her that Robertson is her man for president. She said she has been turning down requests for contributions from other candidates because she was waiting to hear Robertson speak.

"I've heard him, and I'm for him," she said. "All the rest of the men don't have his qualifications. I really think the man is great."

Hills, a self-described "redneck conservative," said she, too, was pleasantly surprised by Robertson's knowledge of current and historical issues.

"Mr. Gorbachev, open this gate."

"Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall."

Specifically, Reagan urged increased air access to West Berlin and suggested the city be the site of United Nations meetings or world conferences on human rights, arms control and other issues.

Among other things, Reagan suggested that Berlin — East and West — be the site of a future Olympic Games.

Just after midnight on Aug. 13, 1961, thousands of East German soldiers and militiamen began unrolling barbed wire and installing concrete blocks around the perimeter of the western sectors of Berlin to prevent people from fleeing from the East.

Four children die in accident

VAN HORN (AP) — A two-vehicle accident on Interstate 10 left four youngsters, ranging in age from 4 months to 16 years, dead and six people hospitalized today, officials said.

Department of Public Safety dispatcher Terry Thummel said the crash happened Thursday night about 20 miles east of Van Horn when a pickup apparently swerved into a tractor-trailer rig that was passing it.

All of the victims were from Chihuahua, Mexico, said Ms. Thummel.

The four who died and the six who were hurt were ejected from a camper on the back of the pickup, she said.

The DPS said trucker C.L. Parish of Tyler was not hurt. The operator of the pickup, Jacob Peters, also was uninjured, said Ms. Thummel.

The dead were identified by authorities as brothers Jack Rampel, 1, and Benjamin Rampel, 4 months; and siblings Issac Peters, 11, and Tina Peters, 16.

Three people are hospitalized today in Sierra Medical Center in El Paso in critical condition. The other three are in stable condition in Culberson County Hospital here, officials said.

Van Horn is 120 miles southeast of El Paso.

Governor trades off expensive jet

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, who during last year's campaign promised to rid the state of a $3.1 million jet airplane favored by former Gov. Mark White, is making good on the pledge.

Jim Kaster, a member of the State Aircraft Pooling Board, said Gant Aviation of Georgetown, Texas, is going to trade the state two slower, propeller-driven airplanes for the Mitsubishi Diamond 1-A jet purchased for the governor's use in 1984.

Gant's bid was the best of nine submitted to the board, Kaster said.

He said the board decided to trade the jet for the less-expensive propeller-driven Cessna planes rather than sell the Mitsubishi because the used plane market currently is flooded.

Act I delights with Thurber

By LINDA HAYNES
Guest Reviewer

What fun!

ACT I's season finale, A Thurber Carnival, is a thoroughly entertaining two hours of fast paced humor as only James Thurber can write.

The collection will run tonight and Saturday with a spaghetti dinner at 7 p.m. and showtime at 8 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium Heritage Room. Reservations may be made by calling 665-7212.

The Pampa thespians are uniformly adept in their multiple roles with a few shining jewels among the ensemble.

Director Kayla Pursley, always a pro, handles the challenge of multiple scene changes and the open stage with aplomb.

A Thurber Carnival is a collection of 14 vignettes based on some of Thurber's short stories. The first three sketches, "The Night the Bed Fell," "The Wolf at the Door," and "The Unicorn in the Garden" were my favorites for the evening.

Kelly Beesley, who tells the first story, is a gifted actress with marvelous diction, very expressive facial and body movements and that indefinable something called "stage presence." The second sketch, "The Wolf at the Door," is extremely well-paced with narrator Cathy Spaulding moving the actors through their lines with great comedic timing. Spaulding shined again in the unicorn story, although Jean Dierich and John McKeon almost stole the whole show.

In other sketches, newcomers Bettany Cisneros and Jimmy Patterson were standouts, although Cisneros had difficulty being shrewish enough for the awful Mrs. Mitty in the final scene, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty."

Karen Patterson, appearing for the first time on stage was delightful in "The Pet Department" as she and ACT I veteran Bud Behannon hammed up the sketch about a leering television veterinarian.

"File and Forget" is a hilarious sketch about confusion in the business world before the advent of the computer. Bill Hildebrandt, another newcomer to the stage, was excellent as Thurber. We'll look forward to seeing him featured in future productions. Teen-ager Christy Searl, who has appeared in high school productions, was charming in this sketch and in her other roles.

ACT I is putting together more and more outstanding actors for their productions, and with each succeeding play, gains more of a patina of professionalism.

A Thurber Carnival will provide you with a delightful evening, and give you a new look at some of your friends and neighbors. It's an evening you shouldn't miss.

Haynes, a former English teacher at McLean High School and editor of the The McLean News, is the public relations director at HCA Coronado Hospital.

Espionage charges dropped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military prosecutors have dropped espionage charges against Cpl. Arnold Bracy, the second of two Marine guards accused of spying while posted to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, his attorney said today.

Lt. Col. Mike Powell, Bracy's chief defense lawyer, said he was informed of the Marine Corps' decision this morning.

The 21-year-old Bracy will be released from the brig at the Quantico, Va., Marine Base this afternoon and has agreed to meet with reporters later in the day, Powell added.

The Marine Corps refused to immediately confirm Powell's statement, saying it was not prepared to discuss the matter.

But a Pentagon source who requested anonymity said the military prosecutor handling the case, Maj. Charles Ryan, had decided he did not have sufficient independent evidence to prove the allegations against Bracy.

"I think they're dropping the charges because they think Bracy is an innocent man," said Powell. "They're dropping the charges because they don't have enough to sustain the charges in a court-martial," the source countered.

The decision marks a second major setback in the handling of the prosecution case against Bracy and Sgt. Clayton J. Lonetree, the first Marine arrested in the case.

Lonetree has been ordered to stand a general court-martial on espionage charges involving his alleged passing of classified documents and other information to Soviet agents. But the Marine Corps last month was forced to set aside the most sensational charges against the 25-year-old Lonetree — namely that he had actually escorted agents through the embassy last year.

Clements' veto kills measures

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday vetoed a bill that would give a pay raise to all Texas appeal and district judges, effective in 1989.

"While all state employees arguably deserve a pay raise, I am not persuaded that appellate and district judges should be singled out for special treatment," Clements' veto message said.

The governor also vetoed measures that would:

- Require all riding stables to be licensed by the state health department.
- Allow judges to appeal certain actions by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. Clements said the "worthy concept" was flawed because the appeal would be in the nature of a new trial, and not just limited to whether the action was supported by substantial evidence.
- Increase the punishment for conviction of cock-fighting to 10 years in prison for a third offense. The current law is a fine up to $2,000 or a year in jail. Clements said it would be better to combine higher fines with stricter enforcement of the existing law.

Prohibit employers from requiring agricultural workers to use, in a stooped position, a knife or hoe with a handle shorter than four feet. Clements said the availability of workers compensation to Texas farm workers now made the bill unnecessary.

Require voter certification for ill and disabled voters to include a statement that the disability would prevent a voter's appearance at a polling place. Clements said this would encourage fraud by unreasonably loosening the requirements.

Require the State Board of Education to provide a one-year emergency extension of the deadline for taking the required basic skills tests for teachers. Clements said the current rule providing for a six months period is sufficient.

Heavy rains continue to drench South Texas

By The Associated Press

Two people were missing and feared drowned in raging creeks in the San Antonio area as heavy rains continued to drench South Texas today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue a flood watch and flash flood watch for a vast area.

The area covered by the flood and flash flood watch included the cities of Houston, San Antonio and Austin.

Two people were reported missing in the San Antonio area. Authorities said a 20-year-old man and 12-year-old girl were feared to have been swept away in Apache Creek.

Southeast Texas authorities blamed the bad weather for two traffic deaths near Orange.

Authorities feared the two had drowned, but had to suspend the search at dark Thursday and were to resume the search early today.

Forecasters said the ground was already "super saturated" from earlier heavy rainfall and predicted more showers and thunderstorms, with some producing heavy rainfall, to continue through tonight.

An isolated thunderstorm produced four inches of rain in three hours at Lake Houston early today.

Heavy rain was reported falling during the pre-dawn hours in the Houston-Beaumont-Port Arthur area.

At San Antonio, the Leon and Helotes creeks spilled over their banks, forcing evacuations and dramatic rescues Thursday.

The intense scattered showers at San Antonio helped break the record for any 30-day period of rainfall as 18.41 inches of rain was recorded from May 13 through June 11, eclipsing the old record of 17.82 inches set from Aug. 29 to Sept. 27, 1946.

Waters rose 2 feet over the westbound lanes of Interstate 10 between Loop 1604 and Camp Bullis road, closing the lanes for two hours Thursday, officials said.

A KENS-TV helicopter rescued a Department of Public Safety trooper, who was stranded on top of his cruiser trapped on I-10 at the flooded Leon Creek bridge, and a highway worker at the same location.

Raging floodwater from Leon Creek also washed away a telephone cable at San Antonio, knocking out service to more than 10,000 customers.

Firefighters used helicopters to rescue people trapped in water crossings.

The non-stop rains have sent levels at the Edwards Underground aquifer to 695.8 feet above mean sea level, within a foot of the all-time high of 696.5 set Oct. 22, 1973, a record officials expect to be broken within days.

The latest round of pounding rains have caused at least another $300,000 in damage to San Antonio city streets and other facilities, bringing the total lost to near $1 million, City Public Works Director David Steitle said.

Police at San Antonio reported 246 minor and 40 major accidents through the evening rush hour Thursday, far more than the average of 100 minor and 20 majors accidents.

About 60 people, including 40 children trapped in a church during Vacation Bible School, had to be evacuated from Leon Springs, near San Antonio, Thursday after rising waters from rain-gorged creeks swirled into the town.

"It got pretty bad," Bexar County Fire Marshal Carl Mixon said.

"When you have a rapid rise of water, that's why we have these rescues, people are caught unawares," he said.

Texas 336 south of Leakey was closed because of high water, authorities said. Flood and road damage was also reported in Val Verde County and flooding was reported in Victoria, Goliad, Calhoun, Jackson, DeWitt and Lavaca counties.

More than five inches of rain fell in the Lower Rio Grande Valley Thursday, causing some flooding in extreme South Texas.

The children evacuated from Leon Springs were at the Presbyterian Church Vacation Bible School.

Kilgarlin lashes back.

State Supreme Court justice won't resign

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Texas Supreme Court Justice William Kilgarlin ignored Gov. Bill Clements' call for him to resign, telling a convention of lawyers that the charges against him are "trivial."

"I intend to continue my work on the court," Kilgarlin told the State Bar of Texas convention Thursday. "My effectiveness has not been diminished. I think most people who understand the nature of these charges understand how trivial they are."

Clements urged Kilgarlin and Justice C.L. Ray to step down after the State Commission on Judicial Conduct publicly reprimanded Ray for seven violations of ethical rules. The panel also issued a public admonishment of Kilgarlin on two points.

"My reaction to his request is: Gov. Clements is certainly a fine one to be discussing matters of morality and ethics in light of his involvement with paying athletes when he was at Southern Methodist University," Kilgarlin said, referring to Clements' tenure as chairman of the SMU Board of Governors.

Clements has admitted he knew about payments to football players and allowed them to continue. The payments prompted the National Collegiate Athletic Association to eliminate SMU's 1987 football season.

Despite Kilgarlin's comments, however, Clements said he won't change his mind about the judges.

"If he wants to make any comments, he can," Clements said Thursday. "I think they need to resign. I think there are a lot of others up here that think that. I think it's publicly been said. I think the situation is going to be studied in the House and the Senate. So we'll see what happens."

Sen. Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio, last year chaired the House Judicial Affairs Committee that investigated alleged improprieties by Ray and Kilgarlin. He said impeachment proceedings should be studied.

More than 2,000 attorneys have gathered for the 105th annual convention that spans three days and includes speeches from Secord, a primary player in the Iran-Contra affair, and Nicaraguan Supreme Court Justice Mariano Barahona.

Governor signs liquor liability law

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying Texans must crack down on drunk driving, Gov. Bill Clements has signed into law a bill to allow courts to hold taverns liable for accidents caused by drunken drivers they had sold too much to drink.

"It will go a long way in helping to save lives. But even if it saves just one life, I'm all for it," Clements said.

Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary, said Clements approved the measure while reviewing some of nearly 1,000 bills left on his desk by the Legislature.

The so-called "dram shop" measure, which takes effect immediately, was approved on the final day of the regular session after a conference committee eliminated a section that would have applied to hosts of private parties.

Under the new law, survivors of a person who is killed by a drunken driver could collect damages from a business that sold drinks to the driver if it was clear that the patron was sold drinks after he or she had become intoxicated.

The law would not affect cases already in the courts.

But the Texas Supreme Court ruled on June 3 that bars could be ordered to pay damages. In that opinion, the court said the time had come to hold liquor-sellers responsible for the drivers they put on the streets.

"Injury to a third person is no longer unforeseeable in an age when death and destruction occasioned by drunk driving is so tragically frequent," said the unanimous opinion written by Justice Franklin Spears.

Clements has 20 days from the adjournment of the regular session, which occurred on June 1, to make up his mind on bills passed during the Legislature's final days.

Among bills already signed into law is one making it illegal to drink while driving. That measure takes effect Aug. 31, the governor's office said.

Davis to return to stand for cross-examination

FORT WORTH (AP) — Oil millionaire Cullen Davis got the chance to tell his side of an 11-year-old murder mystery, saying he was not the man in black who launched a murderous rampage through his mansion.

But his ex-wife's attorneys were expected to bring Davis back to the stand today and comb through his testimony in a multimillion-dollar wrongful death suit filed by his ex-wife, Priscilla Davis, and her second husband, Jack Wilborn, for the death of their daughter.

They maintain Davis was the bewigged man in black who wounded Mrs. Davis and killed her boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, and her daughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12. Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, was permanently disabled by the assailant's gunfire.

Taking the stand in a final attempt to convince the jury he is not a killer, Davis testified Thursday he was upset, annoyed and confused when arrested at his girlfriend's home in the early morning hours of Aug. 3, 1976.

When told by his brother Ken in a 4 a.m. telephone call that Priscilla Davis and others had been shot, Cullen said:

"Well, I guess I'm going to go back to bed."

He said he did not learn until later that morning that Andrea Wilborn, his 12-year-old stepdaughter, had been killed.

Davis, who testified earlier, was recalled Thursday by his attorneys to provide jurors his version of the incident.

He said he left his office in a pickup truck around 8 p.m. that night 11 years ago, ate dinner alone and then went by himself to a movie at about 9:30.

Davis maintains he drove back downtown, picked up his Cadillac and arrived at his girlfriend's home shortly after midnight. He said he telephoned a friend at 12:15 and was in bed asleep when the killer invaded the Fort Worth mansion.

Nearing the end of four hours of testimony Thursday, defense attorney Steve Sumner cut short his questioning and asked his client: "Were you anywhere near 4200 Mockingbird Lane around midnight on Aug. 2, 1976?" "No," replied Davis, 53.

Governor: Budget a mess

AUSTIN (AP) — After getting a preview of the latest estimate on state income, Gov. Bill Clements described the state's budget crisis as a "fiscal mess."

Clements met for two hours Thursday with Comptroller Bob Bullock, who is preparing a new official revenue estimate for the special legislative session that begins June 22.

Clements said the estimate will be lower than it was in January.

"This whole fiscal mess that we have here, which I inherited, is not good," Clements said.

"The estimate is lower than I had anticipated. The economic health and the budgetary problems that we're confronted with here are far worse than anyone anticipated," Clements said.

Bullock, who must issue an income forecast for lawmakers, said he would release the exact figures today and the total will be down from the $35.1 billion 1988-89 projection issued in January.

"I think the entire situation in state government — from January, December of last year when the deficit wasn't taken care of — is a much worse situation than I would have dreamed of at that time," Bullock said.

Bullock in January projected a $4.8 billion revenue shortfall for 1988-89 and a $1 billion deficit being left at the end of the current fiscal year on Aug. 31.

"To tell you the truth, he (Clements) inherited a real bad situation," Bullock said.

"How would you like to inherit a billion-dollar debt? That's what the man did. It doesn't seem quite fair. After all, he had no part of it. Yet that's something that has to be taken care of," he added.

Despite the bad news, Clements said he still doesn't think the Legislature should increase taxes by more than the $2.9 billion that would be raised by continuing last year's "temporary" sales and motor fuel tax hikes.

"I think we can make the issue come together without any basic change," the governor said.

He also said he thinks the economy — and state's fiscal health — will improve eventually.

"As a matter of fact, there is an indication that we're going to turn around here and that we're on the way back up. But it's not going to be easy and it's not going to be quick," Clements said.

Acting good is difficult work

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

Let me start off by saying that I am not an actor. In no way, shape or form.

Yet, here I am, involved in Pampa's ACT I theatre presentation of A Thurban Carnival tonight and Saturday night at the M.K. Brown Heritage Room.

If I have learned nothing else in the last six weeks, I have learned to respect actors and the job they do.

To me, the toughest part of acting is memorizing. It is not easy for me to remember anything. My wife even had to remind me to remember my lines in time for opening night.

So, late last week, I set out to do just that. I tried and tried to memorize my parts. I said them over and over in my head and still couldn't remember them. I practiced in the car, in front of the television, and in total silence.

Finally, I hooked on to something that worked for me. If I may be so bold, the only way I was able to memorize these lines was in the bathtub drinking a cup of coffee.

I don't know why it worked, it just did.

My wife Karen has never been able to figure out some of my weird habits, but this bathtub memorization, she thought, was one of the weirdest.

The fact that Karen is also in the play helped a great deal. She has acting experience. I don't. She was in several plays in her high school days. The only thing I played in high school was the bassoon.

Let me put it this way: If Karen and Nell Carter were in the same play together, I'd have to say Nell would get stuck with the part of the tree.

Karen has the good acting experience in the family. I just act bad.

The only time I was ever on stage was a four-year stint in Dallas as a very amateur stand-up comedian. The fact that I am now a sports writer gives you an idea of how good I was as a comedian.

In A Thurban Carnival, I have been cast as a wolf, a corporal, a drunk, a revisionist poet, a pilot and a doctor.

The corporal — Schultz in "If Grant Had Been Drinking at Appomattox" — is not your run of the mill military guy. I will say, though, that he is the kind of guy who probably didn't get married after he left the service.

The drunk — Bailey in "Gentleman Shoppers" — is kind of fun. As I have said over and over again, my playing a drunk is not tye-casting.

Don't ask me why I play a drunk so well. I guess I just do. It is difficult to play someone who's been to the till once too often when you are perfectly sober.

Karen plays a bar girl, a secretary, a receptionist and a nurse.

She fills her roles well and has no problem with her lines. Her theatre experience, along with her conscientiousness toward this play, has inspired me to do well.

I guess you might say her inspiration amounted to her locking me in the bathroom and making me take baths until I shriveled up like a large raisin.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Board of educators develops its power

It's hard to see how the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards is going to have any more success at education "reform" than the nearly 300 state-level task forces already in existence.

At best it is likely to bring about higher salaries for teachers, but not any corresponding increase in the amount of learning achieved by American students.

Formed in recent weeks at the Carnegie Foundation Forum on Education and the Economy in San Diego, the board suffers from the same inbreeding common to almost every education task force and reform group extant. It is made up almost exclusively of professional educators and thus lacks the sort of outside perspective that could breathe new life into the education profession.

The board's mission is to develop criteria for national certification, and then develop a way to use it to measure the worth of teachers. Those who measure up supposedly would be paid more, and given greater influence on curriculum and teacher training.

There's no guarantee, however, that board members who have spent most of their careers in either education or politics will be able to develop standards different from the ones already in use. Certainly there is a doubt that the board will develop standards against which current teachers — former students or peers of the members — will look less than sterling.

The best way to measure teacher performance is through wide-open — not show-case — competition, something to which teachers' unions are bitterly opposed.

Both Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of the National Education Association, and Albert Shanker, president of the National Federation of Teachers, have seats on the new board. Want to bet they'd be willing to consider an approach to education that lessened their power?

The best way to measure a system's performance is through wide-open competition. Yet private schools remain locked out of the present governmental system that favors its own. Bill Honig, California superintendent of public instruction, and Ruth Randall, Minnesota's commissioner of education, have seats of the new board. Want to bet they'd be willing to consider giving taxpayers vouchers to use at the schools of their choosing, be they public or private?

A good teacher inspires students to learn not by forcing them to memorize a set of facts, but by encouraging them to question the facts themselves. It's hard to see how a national board can successfully challenge a system that its members have spent years perpetuating.

That, however, is precisely the challenge it must take if education "reform" is to have any honest meaning.

Probe ignores bigger issue

If Elliott Abram's testimony achieves nothing else, it should force Americans to ask if they really want to retreat from this country's role as a world power. What could be more pathetic than the spectacle of a high State Department official, acutely worried by the emergence of a hostile left-wing government practically at our border, reduced to begging for help from the sultan of Brunei?

Brunei is, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, an "independent Islamic sultanate occupying an enclave on the northwestern coast on the island of Borneo." With fewer people than Shreveport, La., Brunei is not a major player in world affairs. Yet in 1986, its government was willing to do more to protect the United States' interests in Central America than the U.S. Congress had done.

At the request of Abrams, who was looking desperately for a way to keep Nicaragua's anti-Sandinista rebels from collapsing, the sultan agreed to donate $10 million to the cause. (Due to a clerical error, the money never got to the contras.) If the United States is an imperialist power, as its leftist critics never tire of insisting, then it's a weird kind of empire. Do the Soviets need the assistance of obscure monarchies to maintain their hold on Eastern Europe?

The congressional hearings make it easy to forget why Abrams and company did what they're accused of doing. Congress is made up mostly of lawyers, and lawyers tend to ignore those issues that aren't matters of the law. The notable legal issue in this dispute is whether members of the Reagan administration — particularly the president himself — violated a law, known as the Boland Amendment, that forbade direct or indirect support of the contras. But that isn't the only issue, or the most important one. Neither a president nor anyone else, after all, is obliged to obey a law that violates the Constitution. There is ample reason to think that this law — which presumed to restrict not only the use of funds appropriated by Congress but also the very words of the president in conversations with private American citizens or leaders of foreign governments — is unconstitutional.

Unfortunately, Reagan didn't do what he should have done in the face of such a law: Announce that he would not obey it and challenge his opponents to persuade the courts to force him to do so. Instead, he or his aides decided to circumvent the law in secret, hoping no one would find out.

In a democracy, government officials have a duty to answer to the public for their actions. In rare, urgent cases — military maneuvers during war, for instance — they may act in secret, because secrecy is indispensable to the success of a legitimate action. Here, Reagan and his aides relied on secrecy mainly to protect themselves from political accountability. For abusing the public's trust, they deserve condemnation.

But that is an issue about means. Ends are also important, especially in this case. The administration was trying to prevent the consolidation of a communist government in Nicaragua, a threat not only to its Central American neighbors but also to the United States. Congress, in passing the Boland Amendment, simply averted its eyes from something it preferred to do nothing about.

At bottom, this dispute concerns policy as much as it does adherence to the law. In shipping weapons to Iran, Reagan apparently broke the law on arms exports, but Congress has shown a lack of interest in exploring that violation. The secret help to the contras is more inviting because it can be used to discredit the administration's policy toward Nicaragua — and maybe to dissuade Congress from renewing the contra aid it approved last year.

It would be nice if we didn't have to choose between helping the contras and accepting another Soviet satellite in our hemisphere. But wishing won't make it so. And whatever reservations Reagan's critics have about financing the contras, they've offered no serious alternative for foiling the Sandinistas.

The latest fad is a peace plan offered by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez, which would commit Managua to stop getting military aid from Havana and Moscow, to free its press and opposition parties and to hold free elections. There's nothing wrong with the proposal. But it can't succeed unless the United States has the stomach to punish the Sandinistas if they renege. Congress' record so far inspires no confidence.

What has been largely overlooked in the congressional hearings is the fate of Central America, which is more important to the liberty and safety of Americans than the worst of what Oliver North may have done. Reagan will answer for the actions of his aides, but someone in Congress should have to answer for its irresponsibility in foreign affairs.

U.S. companies fight back

We are in trouble. The United States is right now more dependent on foreign oil than it was at the time of the 1973 embargo.

Robots were invented in the United States, and yet today 60 percent of the robots used in the United States were made in Japan.

Japan has captured 80 percent of the world market for semi-conductor chips.

Japan now owns seven of the world's 10 largest banks.

We are in trouble. The United States is importing ever more shoes, textiles, cars and steel. West Germany, a nation the size of Oregon, is now the largest exporting country in the world. Ahead of us!

We cannot remain independent if we become dependent on other countries.

Part of the problem involves some unfair trade practices on their part, but most of the problem results from the fact that other nations have been working harder!

But we are doing something about it. American industry is fighting back.

Kodak used to take five to seven years bringing a new product to market. Kodak had its new lithium battery on store shelves within 24 months.

It takes a near miracle these days to make the mining business profitable, but Cyprus Minerals did it — restructured, improved productivity. Output per hour is soaring 8 to 10 percent a year.

NAVISTAR, restructured, has cut its man hours per truck in half, and cut overhead from 13 percent of sales to 6 percent. And this year, NAVISTAR expects to turn a big profit.

Champion International, fourth largest U.S. paper producer, by "slimming down" has boosted itself — on return on equity — into the top 25 percent of all American industry.

Cutting costs and jacking up productivity, Champion is saving $400 million a year; 10 percent of its overhead.

Ford's Chief Executive Donald Peterson creates that company's record $5 billion in earnings last year to reducing costs in North America by $5 billion a year.

Fifty-six percent of Fortune's top 500 industrial companies have, within the last five years, "gone on a diet."

Ralston Purina sold off a mixed bag of small, low-margin commodity divisions that were not cost-effective. Today Ralston stock is selling for seven times its 1981 price!

American industry was believed to have grown too cumbersome, too "set in its ways" properly to compete with the lean, mean outsiders. Not anymore.

As recently as a year ago some 100 mutual funds had put most of their money in foreign stocks and bonds.

A lot of those are switching back.

And our nation's trade imbalance was less than last month. We're not yet out of the woods but last month our nation's exports surged upward more than any time in six years.

"There's MORE bad news, folks. My wife says the 'parsonage' needs DECORATING AGAIN!"

Baker alters menu in Washington kitchen

By William A. Rusher

The new White House chief of staff, former Senator Howard Baker, has settled comfortably into his job and is discharging it, to all appearances, extremely well. It may be a little too soon for a final evaluation, but the early indications are that, in picking Baker, President Reagan made a first-rate choice.

There is no sound reason for condemning Donald Regan's performance as chief of staff. He gave his total loyalty to the president and did his impressive best to implement the Reagan program. It wasn't his fault that his career on Wall Street left him untutored (for example) in the mysterious ways of Congress. But being a truly exceptional White House chief of staff requires very special skills.

Howard Baker comes from an intensely political background: Both of his parents represented Tennessee in Congress, and his father-in-law was the late Senate minority leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois. Baker's keen intelligence and diplomatic abilities marked him early as a "senator's senator" — one who instinctively knew how to obtain results in that prickly chamber. Nobody was surprised when the Senate's Republicans chose him as their leader.

Nobody was surprised — but conservatives were uneasy. Baker was no liberal, but neither was he identified with the fast-growing conservative movement. In most respects he was a cautious middle-of-the-roader; but he also voted to ratify the Panama Canal treaties — something many conservatives regarded as a make-or-break issue.

It is true that as Senate majority leader during the first Reagan administration Baker, in most cases, delivered remarkably well for the president. But when he retired from the Senate in 1984 to make some money practicing law, and to prepare for his own race for the presidency in 1988, the latter possibility still left most conservatives distinctly cool.

That was undoubtedly one reason why Baker's candidacy never really caught fire. And the dimness of his prospects in turn may have influenced his decision when Mr. Reagan asked him to become his chief of staff early this year. In any case, Howard Baker put his own presidential ambitions aside and went to work to make the last two years of the Reagan presidency a success.

Baker could have taken the condescending attitude that he was being begged to rescue a presidency gravely crippled by the Iran/contras affair. He could even have considered himself a trustee in political bankruptcy — almost a "surrogate president."

He could have, but he didn't. Instead, he went cheerfully to work to implement the remaining items of the Reagan agenda, using his own personal knowledge of Capitol Hill and his fabled skills as a bargainer on the president's behalf. (He also revealed himself as a shrewd tactician when it came to limiting damage from the Iran hearings.)

Far from trying to dilute the conservatism of the Reagan program, moreover, Baker has sought out leading conservative spokesmen and solicited their input.

Rejection of Saudi missile sale warning to Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional rejection of a proposed $360 million missile sale to Saudi Arabia should warn the Reagan administration to proceed cautiously before escalating the U.S. military role in the Persian Gulf, lawmakers say.

The administration was forced to drop the sale proposal Thursday after 67 senators, the exact number needed to override a presidential veto, signed a resolution of disapproval.

As his gulf policy was dealt a blow domestically, President Reagan said in Venice that he was satisfied with the limited support allies gave at the summit for his Persian Gulf security policies.

Reagan did not ask, and was not offered, military help for his plan to have the United States protect Kuwaiti tankers. Instead, the summit partners issued a communique pledging limited diplomatic support for the U.S. policy in the oil-rich region.

"I think it has been excellent that there was no criticism from any of our allies about this," the president said.

At home, however, Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., scheduled a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee next week to report out legislation that would prohibit the administration from reflagging and protecting the Kuwaiti oil tankers.

The bill would call on the United Nations Security Council to protect shipping in the gulf and to urgently seek an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

"A go-it-alone, high-risk, highly rhetorical policy will not re-establish U.S. credibility," Pell told the Senate. "It risks further damage to U.S. influence and prestige."

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole

of Kansas said there were many reasons for the widespread bipartisan opposition to the sale of 1,600 Maverick radar-guided, anti-tank missiles to Iran. One reason, he said, is the concern over Saudi Arabia's failure to dispatch jet fighters to intercept the Iraqi warplane that hit the USS Stark with two Exocet missiles last month, killing 37 seamen.

"There were questions being raised about what Saudi Arabia did or didn't do in the Stark incident," Dole said. "It just wasn't a good time" to go ahead with the sale.

Dole and other congressional leaders said the forced withdrawal of the sale underscores the need for close consultation before the White House makes irrevocable decisions to use the Navy to keep oil supplies flowing.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., warned that such an action would raise the risk of war with Iran.

"I hope the administration will learn from this and not proceed to put American flags on Kuwaiti ships without consulting very closely with the Congress," Cranston said.

Inflation eased during May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation eased in May as wholesale prices rose just 0.3 percent, the government reported today, with energy prices holding steady and declines recorded for a wide range of goods.

The monthly increase is the smallest since a 0.1 percent gain in February and was in sharp contrast to the 0.7 percent jump of April. Over 12 months, the May increase amounted to 3.7 percent, compared to 8.9 percent a month earlier.

Higher food prices were responsible for all of the increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index. The 1.4 percent gain, led by rapidly rising meat prices, was slightly less than the 1.5 percent boost a month earlier.

Energy prices overall were unchanged, in contrast to large increases posted in three of the four preceding months. Gasoline costs actually fell 1.1 percent, reversing the 2.3 percent jump of April. But that downturn was offset by a 2.2 percent rise in natural gas prices and a 1.4 percent gain in home heating oil prices.

Other than food and energy costs, prices for consumer goods dropped 0.2 percent, with decreases noted for a variety of items, including alcoholic beverages, women's clothing, tires, automobiles, furniture and home electronic equipment.

Analysts had anticipated the drop in car prices, which fell 0.4 percent, as manufacturers continued offering rebates and other discounts that were to have ended a month earlier. Automobile prices had risen 2.4 percent in April.

In another report likely to be greeted as evidence that the country's huge trade deficit has finally begun to turn around, the Commerce Department said today that the imbalance between imports and exports narrowed to $13.3 billion in April. In the second consecutive monthly improvement, the report said the trade deficit shrank from a March deficit of $13.6 billion. While the $312 million improvement was not a major change, many analysts had been expecting the deficit to rise sharply.

The improvement in the April trade figures came from falling imports which offset a decline in exports.

Imports declined 3.6 percent from a record $34.7 billion March total to a $33.5 billion April import figure.

Commenting on wholesale prices, Michael Evans, who operates an economic consulting firm in Washington, said the April car price increase had been an illusion.

Alcoholic beverage prices fell 0.5 percent. Women's clothing prices dropped 0.3 percent. Furniture costs were off 0.1 percent. Home electronic equipment prices declined 0.3 percent. Tire prices were off 0.6 percent.

Wholesale prices were up, however, 0.1 percent for men and boys' clothing, 2.5 percent for cosmetics, 1.8 percent for prescription drugs and 0.5 percent for carpeting.

The rise in food prices was led by a 4.9 percent rise in beef prices, a 7.8 percent gain in pork costs and a 2.5 percent jump in poultry prices. Dairy product prices jumped 10.7 percent, virtually making up for decreases in the preceding two months. Baked goods prices were up 6.3 percent. Fruit and vegetable prices rose a modest 0.4 percent and 1.2 percent respectively.

Air controllers approve new union by wide vote margin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of air traffic controllers welcomed a new union by a 2-to-1 vote that many of them say reflects a growing discontent with their federal employers.

The controllers, in balloting during the last five weeks, decided by a 7,494 to 3,275 margin to accept the National Air Traffic Controllers Association as their bargaining agent.

After the ballots were counted at the Federal Labor Relations Authority on Thursday, union organizers turned to celebrating.

"The real significance in this is that the vast majority of the air traffic controllers are not satisfied how the FAA has run the system the last six years," said John Thornton, the union's national coordinator.

At the Federal Aviation Administration, where some senior officials were said to have believed the union would be rejected, spokesmen pledged to work with the new labor group.

"The FAA now has 10 unions that it deals with on a daily basis," FAA spokesman Bob Buckhorn said. "We expect the same kind of cooperation with this union."

The vote came six years after President Reagan fired more than 11,300 controllers and smashed an illegal strike that also destroyed the controllers union. The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, which launched the ill-fated strike, was decertified shortly after the walkout and went bankrupt in 1982.

Thornton said the constitution of the new union has a no-strike clause and other protections against a strike.

According to the labor relations authority, 84 percent of the eligible controllers cast a ballot.

At a reception Thursday night, controllers talked of their next job after the union is officially certified, probably within the next week. They now must begin a recruiting effort at the towers and 20 air route control centers.

One controller, speaking on condition he not be identified by name, said that while he believes many of the 7,494 controllers will join the union, a fairly large number have indicated they likely would not despite having voted for it.

FAA Administrator Donald Engen and other senior agency officials have made no secret that they would have preferred the controllers did not organize a union. But since the balloting began, agency officials have attempted to portray a stand of neutrality.

Since the 1981 strike, the FAA has struggled to rebuild its air traffic control system, which agency officials admit is still short of the number needed to handle increasing numbers of aircraft.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole said last week her agency would hire another 580 controllers by the end of fiscal 1988 to bring their numbers to 15,805.

Bakker returns to PTL 'to say goodbye', may start new ministry

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker got a hero's welcome during a surprise visit to "say goodbye" to the Christian theme park he built before his downfall, and vowed again to start a new ministry if he can't return to PTL.

Hundreds cheered Bakker and his wife, Tammy Faye, on Thursday at Heritage USA during Bakker's first visit to PTL's theme park and headquarters since a sex scandal forced him to step down as head of the TV ministry in March.

Asked the reason for his visit, Bakker said: "To say goodbye to it all. If (the Rev.) Jerry Falwell lets us, we'll come back. But otherwise we are going to start a new ministry."

Falwell, who was given control of PTL by Bakker in March, has accused Bakker of avarice and homosexuality and has rebuffed Bakker's requests to return to his TV pulpit, given up after Bakker admitted having a sexual liaison in 1980 with church secretary Jessica Hahn.

Hours earlier Thursday, Bakker stood in front of the $1.3 million lakefront home in exclusive Tega Cay that the new PTL board has ordered the Bakkers to vacate and declared, "We're here to stay."

Bakker, who arrived with his wife at Heritage USA by limousine after being brought by motorboat from the Tega Cay home, did not elaborate and it was unclear whether he intended to defy the eviction order.

Tammy Sue Chapman, the Bakkers' daughter, told reporters Thursday night the family wants to keep living at the Tega Cay house. "We've lived here almost eight years. That's as long as we've ever lived in a house," she said.

1,000 at tribute to James Beard

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1,000 diners wore tuxedos and evening gowns but felt no reluctance about eating the Texas pit spareribs with their hands as they celebrated regional cooking with a dizzying display of foods from America's farms and waters.

Rockefeller Center was jammed Thursday night, and maps were provided to guide diners from the Dakota black bear to the cream of oysters Rockefeller soup to the Chippewa salmon sandwiches and on and on for 20 tables.

"I wouldn't want to be anywhere else in the world tonight," said Jack Czarnecki of Reading, Pa., who runs Joe's Restaurant and who cooked two popular dishes: a ragout, or stew, of wild mushrooms, and the bear, made with mushrooms known as shiitake, walnuts and cumin.

"It's a dream come true," said Robert Bennett, an Oklahoma City caterer whose grilled cowboy's tallgrass bobwhite quail won many compliments.

The Third Annual American Chefs' Tribute to James Beard honored the man who led a generation of cooks to search their backyards for inspiration and ingredients. Beard died in 1985.

The $350-a-plate feast benefited Citymeals-On-Wheels, which Beard helped found to feed the elderly shut-ins. The 18 chefs were selected in a competition meant to uncover trends in American cooking.

"You are going to see more and more people coming out of the American cooking movement," said Lawrence Forgione of An American Place in New York, one of the "celebrity chefs" who cooked at the first two Beard tributes and returned this year to coach his successors.

"It was great of those guys to say, 'Let's bring in some of the younger chefs,'" said Frank Brittsen of New Orleans, who prepared the oyster soup.

"It really shows how far the young American chefs have come," said Dean Fearing, chef at The Mansion on Turtle Creek in Dallas, who dressed in chefs' whites like his colleagues but added a pair of cowboy boots.

Trade deficit narrows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit narrowed to $13.3 billion in April, the second consecutive monthly improvement, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the imbalance between imports and exports shrank from a March deficit of $13.6 billion.

While the $312 million improvement was not a major change, many analysts had been expecting the deficit to rise sharply.

The new report was likely to be greeted as evidence that the country's big trade deficit has finally begun to turn around.

Pope at World War II battle scene: urges young to strive for freedom

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II today demanded greater respect for human rights in his "severely tried" Communist homeland and urged the nation's young people to strive for freedom.

"This is our homeland," the Polish-born pontiff said at the site of the first battle of World War II. He added that "no one can deprive us of the right" to determine the country's future course.

The Roman Catholic leader had spent much of Thursday speaking out forcefully in favor of the outlawed Solidarity independent labor federation.

In his speech aimed at Polish youth this morning, John Paul said: "Human rights must be the groundwork for this moral power which man reaches through his faithfulness to truth and duty."

"I wish to tell your contemporaries in all parts of the Earth that there are young people in Poland who wish for a better, more humane world — the world of truth, freedom, justice and love," the white-robed pontiff added.

The pope, starting the fifth day of his pilgrimage, spoke against the backdrop of an 80-foot-tall stone monument, erected by Polish authorities in 1966 to honor the heroes of the Westerplatte peninsula.

On the peninsula four miles north of Gdansk a tiny Polish garrison held out for a week against a Nazi attack in the first week of September 1939.

Tens of thousands of people, many of them young, crowded around a raised, white altar to hear the pontiff. The pope repeatedly invoked the memory of the heroes of Westerplatte, set against the clear-blue waters of the Baltic Sea.

"Everyone of you finds in life his own Westerplatte. A scope of tasks which he must undertake and fulfill. A just cause for which one cannot fail to fight," he said.

The crowd frequently applauded.

Two banks, one savings and loan close in Texas Thursday

By The Associated Press

Soured loans, poor management and the state's depressed economy are being blamed for the failures of two more banks and a savings and loan association, officials say.

Banking regulators Thursday shut down First State Bank of Milford and Northwest Commercial N.A. in Houston, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver, FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski said.

Meanwhile, regulators declared Security Savings Association in Texarkana insolvent, citing bad lending practices and speculative land purchases, Federal Home Loan Bank Board spokesman Paul Olkhovsky said.

The failures bring to 31 the number of banks that have collapsed in Texas this year, surpassing the national record the state set last year with 26. Eighty-eight banks have closed nationally so far in 1987.

Security Savings was the sixth S&L to close this year in the Dallas federal home loan district, which includes Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas. Four of those have been shut down in Texas.

With $424 million in assets, Security Savings was a state-chartered stock association with 10 offices in East Texas. It was to reopen today as a federally chartered mutual association with the same name, and no one lost money in the transfer, Olkhovsky said.

Speculative land acquisitions, development and construction loans, as well as reckless and imprudent lending practices, caused the S&L to collapse, he said.

Meanwhile in Milford, 50 miles south of Dallas, Ellis County State Bank will assume about $6.4 million in 1,400 deposit accounts at First State Bank and will purchase the failed bank's assets at a discount of $1.45 million, Olcheski said.

First State Bank, with total assets of $6.6 million, was closed by State Banking Commissioner Kenneth W. Littlefield, who said a high concentration of poor-quality loans made by a former bank executive to out-of-area borrowers resulted in losses far exceeding the bank's capital accounts.

The bank's directors and shareholders were unable to replenish the capital funds and no new investors were found to purchase and recapitalize the bank, Littlefield said.

The FDIC also approved the assumption of the deposit liabilities of Northwest Commercial, which had total assets of $12.1 million, by Jersey Village Bank of Houston.

Northwest had a substantial increase in problem loans which resulted from imprudent lending practices of former management and poor supervision of lending practices by the board of directors, officials said. The declining local economy also contributed to its problems.

Chernobyl plant managers to be tried

MOSCOW (AP) — Top officials of the Chernobyl nuclear power plant will go on trial next month on charges of criminal negligence in the world's worst nuclear accident, officials said.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Thursday the trial was scheduled to begin July 7 in the town of Chernobyl, 11 miles from the power station where a reactor explosion on April 26, 1986, caused 31 deaths and spread radiation worldwide.

Soviet officials have said the accident began during an unauthorized low power test while emergency safety systems were bypassed. Despite high levels of radiation, officials waited 36 hours after the accident before evacuating the 50,000 residents of a nearby town. Hundreds of square miles around the power plant were contaminated, and official Soviet estimates put the cleanup and relocation costs at $2.98 billion.

Fatal argument over Imelda Marcos, Princess of Wales

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A man stabbed and killed his brother and wounded a friend when they failed to agree that former first lady Imelda R. Marcos is prettier than the Princess of Wales, a news agency reported today.

Gerardo and Felino Delmo were drinking beer with their friend Manuel Dacanay at their home in the suburban Manila on Thursday when they began discussing the relative beauty of the two women, the Philippine New Agency reported.

When Gerardo Delmo, 29, said Mrs. Marcos is prettier, his 35-year-old brother, Felino Delmo, and Dacanay disagreed, the news agency said.

"Don't belittle Meldy, she's still the most beautiful woman in the world," Gerardo Delmo was quoted as saying before he allegedly ran to the kitchen to grab a knife.

Oil executive is optimistic

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — The incoming president of production for Texaco USA is forecasting slow improvement for the domestic oil industry.

L. Paul Teague who assumes his new post on Aug. 1, based his optimism on several factors, one of them continued uncertainty about the Far East and another the federal government's "drill-it-or-lose-it" regulation concerning offshore leases.

Texaco is involved with a large backlog of federal offshore leases.

Under terms of all Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) sales, companies must drill the tracts within five years, or return them to the federal government and lose millions of dollars spent in the purchase.

Teague said Texaco has interests in 111 leases in the Gulf that are scheduled to expire in 1988. An additional 72 leases expire in 1989.

In the April 22 OCS sale, Texaco was the high bidder on 34 of the 46 bids it submitted. The gross total of the 34 bids was $15.8 million.

Of the 34, Texaco has been awarded 30 bids. The remaining four are pending.

Teague is also pleased with the firming up and increase in oil prices, as well as favorable pricing conditions for drilling operations.

The posted price for crude oil is about $18.85, while the spot market has hit the $20 per barrel level. Last year's third quarter prices were in the $14 per barrel range.

"There's generally a lag between the two prices, but posted prices are generally what we live by," Teague notes. "We have quite a bit of confidence — at least for the short term — that prices will at least be stable or up moderately."

Through May, Texaco worked an average of two to five drilling rigs onshore and offshore. About half of those were in Gulf waters.

The company is currently operating nine drilling rigs, six of which are in the Gulf of Mexico.

"Our activity has been increasing since the start of the second quarter," Teague said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

Military 'decorator' works to match men with machines

By LARRY A. HICKS
York Sunday News

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Terri Wood is an interior decorator of U.S. Army howitzers — tracked combat vehicles similar to a tank in appearance — being built at BMY, a division of Harsco Corp.

Just so no one gets the wrong idea about what her job entails, however, be advised that she does not match striped wallpaper with earth-toned carpet. Her job, she says, is to provide soldiers with a work environment that will spawn improved efficiency and safer working conditions on the battlefield.

Ms. Woods, 28, is, in military jargon, a systems specialist with an emphasis on human factors engineering. She practices biotechnology — the technology involved with the application of biological and engineering data to problems relating to man and machine.

It's her job to properly match the howitzer and the four-man crew that mans each vehicle.

"In most cases, we're dealing with men and machines, but we're becoming more and more conscious of women because women will occasionally maintain the equipment in the Army," Ms. Wood says.

Her ultimate goal, she adds, is to "make the howitzer as easy to use as possible so that we can reduce the margin of error, the amount of training necessary to use the equipment, and eliminate safety hazards."

In particular, she's concerned with lighting levels, toxic fumes, shock and vibration, lifting requirements and task analysis (so it doesn't take two people to do the job of one or require one person to perform more tasks than are humanly possible).

While those areas might not be as aesthetically interesting as flowered wall coverings and textured carpet, they are considerably more important to soldiers in the field, according to Ms. Woods.

Ms. Wood went to work for BMY in 1985 after working at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, designing computer software and computer menus. Prior to that she was a graduate student in experimental psychology at New Mexico State University. She has an industrial engineering background, with particular expertise in statistics and computer science.

Her work designing the cockpit areas of BMY's howitzers is part of the Howitzer Improvement Program (HIP), through which the existing M109-A2 self-propelled howitzer is enhanced in an effort to meet new U.S. Army requirements.

"These improvements are being made so that the equipment will be more appropriate to changing Army tactics in the battlefield through the end of this century," Ms. Wood says. "Obviously in close confines like this, operations have to be very well orchestrated, which is why we carefully design each person's role in the cockpit."

The howitzer, an artillery gun system used to fire projectiles with relatively high trajectories, normally remains behind the front edge of ground forces on the battlefield. A tank — which is usually heavily armored — is a frontal combat vehicle that moves ahead with the foot soldiers in the battle area.

The design of a howitzer starts with the U.S. Army, Ms. Wood notes.

For instance, she says, BMY's engineers rough in the first design of the control panel and then she and Jim Hoyt, also a human factors engineer for BMY, evaluate the design from a human factors point of view and suggest changes.

Blind man is Black Belt in karate

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Arms outstretched, David Jainchill walked across the room and felt along the wall until his fingers touched the championship trophy the Black Belt karate expert recently won.

Jainchill can't see the 6-foot award — he's blind.

"He's very courageous, an intense human being," says John Giordano, who has been Jainchill's trainer and friend for 17 years.

At 50, Jainchill remains a featherweight in the 120-pound range. Physically, he's lithe and sinewy; spiritually, he's animated and secure.

It wasn't always that way.

Jainchill was declared legally blind in his late 20s. A congenital disease, retinitis pigmentosa, began when he was a teen-ager in Paterson, N.J., and gradually claimed 95 percent of his vision. He has no depth perception and sees only shadows.

"Going blind is a bummer," says Jainchill, a 5th-degree Go Dan Renchi Black Belt. "It's an emotional shock to the ego. I felt inadequate; unable to function — then paranoia."

When Jainchill's career as a hairdresser ended with blindness, it was replaced with a destructive lifestyle.

"I was carousing, drinking, living the fast life," he recalls. "I did drugs, including cocaine."

Karate, he says, was his salvation.

In 1970, while visiting relatives in Florida, Jainchill recalled a childhood fantasy he had of being a Black Belt.

"I walked into Giordano's place and said, 'I want to be a Black Belt.'"

"I figured I'd chase him out," says Giordano, "by being tough on him." He remembered Jainchill was so out of shape he was stooped and couldn't kick more than two feet off the ground.

"When I would stretch him, David would scream bloody murder," says Giordano, a 6th degree Black Belt.

The physical contact was particularly tough.

"He was scared. Close your eyes and have someone hit you," Giordano suggested, to experience the impact of Jainchill's handicap. "Now you can hit him with a chair and he'll whack you one."

The initial problem Giordano faced with his newfound friend was to get him to use a cane.

"He didn't want anyone to know he was blind. I remember him walking into poles and once he walked off a pier with his tackle box and fell 25 feet into the ocean," Giordano says.

"I look like I see," says Jainchill, "but I can't." His eyes are clear and he does not wear eyeglasses.

"I remember the first tournament I put him in. He wouldn't let me tell the other fighter he was blind," says Giordano.

"The guy was twice David's size. David beat him and when the guy found out David couldn't see, he cried."

Report says most Baptists believe Adam and Eve existed

DALLAS (AP) — An unreleased report that tries to ease tensions in the Southern Baptist Convention says most Baptists believe Adam and Eve were real people, and that's what seminary professors should teach, the Dallas Times Herald reported in today's editions.

But some Baptists who have heard about the report say such statements are the first step in forcing conformity and stifling academic freedom.

The report of the Peace Committee, a 22-member panel established during the denomination's 1985 meeting in Dallas, will be presented

Tuesday night to the Southern Baptist Convention meeting in St. Louis.

"There's a genuine concern that they may be moving beyond a statement of faith and telling you how to interpret scripture," said the Rev. Roy Honeycutt, president of Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky. "That's so far from the Baptist heritage."

Moderates and conservatives in the 14-million member convention have been fighting eight years. Conservatives say they are battling theological liberalism in the denomination's seminaries.

Moderates say conservatives are engaged in a political-style takeover of the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Although the committee has a final meeting Sunday night, several members agreed to anonymously discuss preliminary conclusions, the Herald reported. Committee members said the most controversial section of the 18-page report concerns theology: what Baptists believe and what the Bible teaches.

The section says most Baptists believe in Adam and Eve and that the Bible was written by the people cited in the text. The section also says Baptists expect these beliefs to be taught in their six seminaries.

An earlier report by the committee said some Baptists believe Adam and Eve were real people, and others think the couple is a symbolic representation of the first humans. Some scholars also question whether every book in the Bible was written by the author to whom it is attributed.

Peace Committee members said discussions about the theology section have stalled the report.

Prosecutors seek to revoke ex cheerleader's probation

AUSTIN (AP) — A former University of Texas cheerleader convicted of aggravated robbery faces 10 years in prison if prosecutors are able to have his probation revoked, court records show.

Prosecutors are trying to revoke the probation of a former cheerleader for the University of Texas who was convicted in 1985 of aggravated robbery in connection with 10 holdups of motels and spas.

Joseph Center, 24, convicted of the 1985 holdups, faces 10 years in prison if state District Judge Jon Wisser grants the state's motion.

A hearing in the case was scheduled for Thursday but was postponed till next week.

Wisser put Center and Bryan Geer, who was also a UT student, on 10 years shock probation in January 1985 after the students pleaded guilty to using an unloaded pellet gun to rob one of the motels.

Shock probation allows criminals to serve short prison sentences and then to be released and placed on probation. The theory behind the sentence is that defendants will get a taste of prison life and stay out of trouble when they are released.

Prosecutors originally criticized the sentence, saying it was unheard of for someone who admitted to committing 10 armed robberies to be placed on probation.

Prosecutors filed their first motion to revoke Center's probation on July 23, 1986. The motion, which alleged Center had tested positive for drugs and alcohol use on several occasions, was denied by Wisser.

A second motion was filed in January after prosecutors learned that Center was arrested for drunken driving.

Center was charged Dec. 13, 1986, with driving while intoxicated after a police officer saw him drive through a red light near Interstate 35 in Austin, court records show.

Texas World War I vets to attend ceremony

FORT WORTH (AP) — At the age of 96, Harry Cramer plans to perform his repertoire of French drinking songs in Paris next week while attending ceremonies commemorating the anniversary of the U.S. troops' entry into World War I.

Cramer and Elvin Sprague, 89, both of Fort Worth, are among 19 veterans who were invited to attend ceremonies honoring World War I veterans. Sprague also plans to attend.

It was on June 17, 1917, that Gen. John Pershing and the first of the American Expeditionary Force landed in France. To the tune of "Over There," 2 million more American soldiers soon followed.

"We got a wonderful reception — men and women crying, hugging and kissing us," Cramer said, recalling what it was like to arrive in Paris 70 years ago.

The ex-doughboys and their wives arrive Saturday in Paris for a wreath-laying ceremony at the French tomb of the unknown soldier at the Arch of Triumph. Additional ceremonies and tours are planned Sunday and Monday, including a visit to the Belleau Wood Battlefield with French World War I veterans.

U.S. Veterans Administration officials called two weeks ago to offer the five-day, expense-paid trip, said Cramer's wife, Bertha.

"They called us and said, 'Would you like to go?' Well, actually, they first said, 'Are you physically able to go?'" Mrs. Cramer said.

Sprague and Cramer were chosen for the commemorative trip through their activity in the Veterans of World War I of the U.S.A., a national veterans service organization. Sprague is a past national commander. Cramer is currently national junior vice commander.

Landmark clock will be relit as part of building restoration

FORT WORTH (AP) — The giant revolving clock-sign that has adorned the top of the Texas Building as a downtown landmark for 31 years will be turned on again in early July as part of a restoration of the office building.

When the Texas Building celebrated its grand opening in 1956 as the city's first skyscraper, its 30-story rooftop was adorned by a revolving cube flashing up-to-the-minute time on what was then thought to be the world's largest clock.

The massive digital clock stood 28 feet tall and 44 feet wide, gracing two faces of the cube, while the giant letters "CNB" lighted up the other two to identify the building's primary tenant, Continental National Bank.

The 77-ton clock was the postcard-picture trademark for the Fort Worth skyline throughout the 1960s.

"It used to be the whole skyline," says Jeff Jeffers, who has managed downtown office buildings in Dallas and Fort Worth for three decades and is overseeing restoration of the Texas Building. "This was the place to be. If you told somebody you were in the Continental National Bank building — that's what everybody called it — that was a big deal."

"If the clock was two minutes off, the phone calls would pour in from people saying, 'Hey, the time's wrong,'" Jeffers said.

Next month, New York-based Empire of America Federal Savings Bank will open a branch office in a renovated ground-floor lobby of the Texas Building, which has been largely vacant in recent years. The new tenant is taking over the old CNB sign.

Friday, the old letters will be taken down and replaced in upcoming weeks with giant, backlit, blue-and-white "Big E" logos.

The Lubbock savings association that owns the property is spending an estimated $10,000 to relight the clock and restore its timekeeping apparatus to its old reliability.

MX missiles inoperative

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chronic delays by Northrop Corp. in delivering guidance systems for the MX missile have left a third of the nation's deployed MX weapons unuseable, a member of the House Armed Services Committee says.

Air Force officials told the committee that production delays in the guidance devices have forced the Pentagon to keep seven of the 21 silo-based MX missiles off alert status, Rep. John G. Rowland, R-Conn., said.

In addition, 14 of the 36 guidance systems that have been delivered did not work and had to be returned, he said. The Pentagon has cut off $76.2 million in payments on the $686 million guidance system contract.

Rowland also confirmed reports that the California-based contractor is the subject of a criminal investigation by the Justice Department for allegedly double billing for certain parts and falsifying employee time cards in an attempt to pad the payroll by up to $14 million.

The company also is being investigated for allegedly falsely certifying that the guidance system's "heater exchange" had been pressure tested, Rowland said. He said Northrop does not have the required testing equipment.

Police issue national alert for ring leader

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A woman accused of being a major operative in a gang of women who stole watches and wallets from businessmen they picked up and then drugged has been arrested, police here say.

And a nationwide alert and arrest warrants have been issued for the man accused of leading the gang, which might have raked in up to $10,000 a day, police Capt. Al Ortenzo said.

Leigh Miller, 19, was arrested Tuesday in a Fort Lauderdale hotel room on charges of armed robbery, auto theft and kidnapping. She was one of at least three women who lured men into hotel rooms or their homes, drugged them and stole their Rolex watches, diamond rings, cars and cash, police said.

Victims of such robberies number in the hundreds across the country, Ortenzo said. But, he said, "we're not necessarily attributing everything that happened to this group."

Ms. Miller, who was being held Wednesday night at the Broward County Jail, was charged with the May robbery of an unnamed Fort Lauderdale boat captain. She allegedly stole a $10,000 Rolex and $800 in cash from his yacht, as well as his car, which was later abandoned, said police spokesman Ott Cefkin.

Wednesday, police issued a warrant for a 29-year-old Dallas man known as Michael or Melvin McFare, Cefkin said. At least three people have implicated McFare as the leader, Ortenzo said.

Police are unsure how many women in addition to those already identified may have participated in the robbery ring, Ortenzo said.

The ring has been known to operate in North Miami Beach — where about 30 such robberies have been reported — and in Miami, West Palm Beach, Orlando, Atlantic City, N.J., Dallas and Los Angeles, Ortenzo said.

At least 100 men have been victimized by the ring over the last 18 months, authorities said.

The victims usually were middle-aged men on business trips sporting gold watches and diamond rings, according to robbery detective Roger Miller.

Overall sensation

(AP Laserphoto) Sandy Brash, 7, of Lyme, Conn., reacts as a 14-foot-long Burmese python slithers over his body recently at the Hollingsworth School of Connecticut in Old Saybrook. Brash said, "I wasn't laughing or crying, I think I was smiling."

Student trick rider in class by himself

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — As a young boy, Angelo Iodice dreamed of riding his pony in the open plains of the American West and imagined that the high-rise apartments and elevated train tracks that screened the sun in his Bronx, N.Y., neighborhood were really tall cactuses and canyon boulders.

Now, at age 18, he still has not crossed the Mississippi River, but part of his fantasy has come true. His riding skill has won him a place on the equestrian and polo team at Pace University in Pleasantville.

Iodice also practices trick riding stunts which combine horsemanship and gymnastics. One of his favorite tricks is reverse cruppers, where he leaps off a galloping horse and does a back flip into the saddle. Others include saddle somersaults and cartwheels, as well as side drags, where he's tugged by his horse like a water-skier.

He is still working on the ultimate horse-riding trick. This daring move requires a rider to slide underneath the horse's belly and back into the saddle without touching the ground. Iodice says he is practicing the trick at a walk since it is easy to be kicked by a hoof or trampled when the horse breaks into a gallop. The trick riding actually has helped his polo game, he says, giving him the balance and poise to lean over the horse and whack the ball without tumbling off, but this was not always the case.

Iodice's interest in trick riding began when his older brother took him to a rodeo.

"I was fascinated by the riders' daring movements and flashy costumes," he remembers.

Soon afterward, he checked out a book from the library on trick horse riding and tried imitating some of the positions on the pony that his parents had given him.

Easy instructions on computer use a bonanza

FORT WORTH (AP) — Reconsider the simple "return" key.

On a typewriter, it merely signals a return at the end of a line. But on many computers, that key does more, such as telling the computer to execute a command.

Now consider what a funny thing happens in the computer world, like no one telling the computer operator about that little quirk.

For a company, that is not funny, as the new operator sits bewildered, frustrated and unproductive at the computer. The operator has, after all, followed all the instructions.

Too often the problem lies in the software's operating manuals, says Cindy Boyd, president of Communication Strategies Inc. The manuals simply are not explicit enough. They often describe all commands — but not how to execute them.

That's where companies such as Communication Strategies come in. The Fort Worth-based firm specializes in a growing niche in the computer business: manual and communications writing.

Software, the programming that operates computers, is written by technical people called programmers. Typically, Ms. Boyd says, those same software programmers write their own manuals. And after all, she emphasizes, who knows the program better?

That's a big mistake.

"They assume too much," says Ms. Boyd. They assume the user knows a lot about computers. They assume that using the return key to execute commands is understood.

Not to the people who use software manuals.

"Manuals have to be written for the newest employee in the company," Ms. Boyd says. "That's the only employee who's even going to look at the manual."

Ms. Boyd started the company four years ago, when the General Dynamics Fort Worth Division was instituting a corporate-wide automation program.

Communication Strategies' task: Develop documents and training programs that could bring 9,000 employees, of all levels of expertise, up to speed on the new systems.

In the last four years, other clients have included Colt Industries, Galaxy Software, World Video Library and other Fort Worth-area firms. The expertise of creating materials that communicate simply and clearly to users has built a business that now records roughly $500,000 in annual billings.

The main traps that companies fall in, Ms. Boyd says, are:

■ Assuming too much. They assume users all are intimately familiar with computer operations. That means training and instructions miss steps, don't list all instructions and give undecipherable messages, particularly when things go wrong.

■ Using too much jargon. They assume familiarity with computer language, which differs wildly from the English language.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

ENTER HERE!

... with resolutions to lift yourself onto higher planes. Plan now to put more faith and trust in the Lord. Resolve now to seek God's wisdom to guide you through the year. Also plan to enter the Lord's house regularly.

"Open to me the gates of righteousness: I will go into them, and I will praise the Lord."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

White Deer Baptists mark 75th birthday

WHITE DEER - The First Baptist Church of White Deer will celebrate its 75th birthday with a homecoming celebration Sunday.

Several former pastors will be among the 400-plus persons expected to attend the all-day festivities. All former members are also invited.

Organized on June 16, 1912, the church first met in a three-room school house. Later, the Baptists worshipped with all faiths in the Presbyterian Church at White Deer.

"Although the church membership loved the other friends with whom they worshipped, they desired a church home of their own," said Yvonne Thomas, 75th Anniversary Committee representative.

"With this in mind, they launched out to build for the 'Glory of God.' The dream came true when the building was completed in May 1921," she added.

With members desiring a more modern auditorium and additional classroom space, a new building was built in 1960. As the enrollment continued to grow, the original building, which is still used for classrooms, kitchen and Fellowship Hall, was remodeled to make more classrooms.

In recent years, the kitchen and Fellowship Hall have been remodeled again and updated as they continue to be a focal point of the church.

The church currently has a Sunday School enrollment of 250, with membership of 365. Eddie Coast is pastor.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light for my path. (Psalm 119:106 NIV)

When traveling through much of our area of the country, a motorist has little to see but wide open spaces. However, God compensates with spectacular sunrises and sunsets.

While returning from a recent trip into Oklahoma, my family drove straight into a unique sunset. A heavy cloud cover blocked the brilliant rays of the naked sun and created an optical illusion of distant blue hills extending beyond the prairie. As the sun dropped lower in the sky, its light penetrated the cloud formation in connecting streams striking golden highways through the clouds.

We're living in an era when the concept of secular humanism is rapidly gaining popularity. Already we are seeing the results of a generation of people who recognize no moral boundaries.

Disrespectful, irreverent and filthy language flows unchecked, soiling and demeaning both speaker and listener who have smelled the stench for so long they no longer realize it stinks.

Alcohol and drug abuse is rampant. Child and mate abuse are so common a nationwide network of shelters for the victims has been established. Marriage, as often as not, ends in divorce rather than in a lifetime of shared love.

The crime rate far exceeds the prison capacity. Venereal diseases, illegitimate pregnancies and abortion rates are of such proportions that birth control and disease protection are being taught in many elementary schools.

Little children too young to understand the adult desire for sexual closeness are necessarily having the fear of AIDS instilled; paradoxically, the same children see promiscuity, prostitution and homosexuality constantly portrayed as acceptable lifestyles.

The absence of moral instruction clouds right and wrong and blocks the light of decency.

However, the Holy Bible strikes golden highways through the clouds. It provides scriptural instruction in the safety, security and health of spiritual and moral cleanliness.

Religion Roundup

TUPELO, Miss. (AP) — A broad, national coalition, Christian Leaders for Responsible Television, have called for a boycott of two companies, Mazda Motors and Noxell Corporation, calling them leading sponsors of sex, violence and profanity on television. The coalition said repeated appeals to the two companies to reduce the amount of such material they sponsor have been unavailing, and consequently a boycott was urged of Mazda cars and Noxell's cosmetic products.

Religion

Beyond basics

Nursing home ministry meets needs of elderly

By LYNN BULMAHN
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO (AP) — When residents are admitted to a nursing center, they usually have to adjust to many changes in their lives. Frequently, they may be depressed or in need of emotional comfort.

Inner City Ministry of Waco, a non-denominational social service agency focusing on the needs of the elderly, sponsors a nursing home ministry that employs two chaplains to help center residents feel more at home.

The ministry recognizes elderly residents' needs and goes beyond their physical and emotional needs to address the spiritual dimension as well.

All of the nursing homes in Waco have religious programs, but five homes expanded their programming to include Inner City Ministry chaplains.

ICM's full-time chaplain, the Rev. Libby Bellinger, visits Woodland Springs, Quality Care and Crestview Manor nursing homes. The program's part-time chaplain, the Rev. Dale Peterson, visits Jeffrey Place and Haven Manor.

The position of nursing home chaplain is designed to serve all residents, Mrs. Bellinger said. That means serving every faith represented within a home.

The chaplains help residents use their own faith as a resource for strength, she said. The chaplains' efforts are focused on "strengthening the bonds with the residents' home churches or synagogues," she said.

The Chaplaincy Program fulfills a primary element of Inner City Ministry's value system, Mrs. Bellinger said, because it enhances residents' quality of life.

In addition to residents, the chaplain ministers to the employees, she said.

"If staff members feel good about themselves, they'll feel good about their jobs," Mrs. Bellinger said. "The residents, in turn, will benefit."

Chaplains also assist in educational programs directed to staff. They conduct classes on bereavement, stress management, death and dying and group dynamics, she said.

Chaplains also can minister to residents' families, Mrs. Bellinger said. They offer support and counseling and provide resources that help families deal with the guilt and sadness they feel when a loved one enters a nursing home.

The chaplaincy program also provides a specialized religious service.

"It is especially important to provide such a service for older people who have lost touch with their faith," Mrs. Bellinger said. "We sing the favorite old hymns and provide familiar Bible readings, besides the Lord's Supper."

Rev. Libby Bellinger, left, of Inner City Ministries of Waco visits Irene Hanna, a nursing home resident, as part of her duties in ICM's chaplaincy program.

Monthly in each home, the chaplains offer a Communion service, Peterson said.

"Following a Communion service, several residents will come up to me and say, 'That was really different from what we usually hear. It helped me a lot,'" he said. "I suppose we chaplains do provide a breath of fresh air around the nursing home."

Most important in viewing the program's benefits is how residents feel about their chaplains and the program, Mrs. Bellinger said.

She remembers the time a home resident stopped her as she strolled down a hallway and said, "Every time I see you, I feel better."

Mrs. Bellinger said she immediately began to feel guilty about not spending more time in that home and with this woman specifically.

As she began to apologize, she said, the woman interrupted saying, "No, no. I mean, I feel better just because you're here. It shows that I live in a place where they care enough to have you on staff for my benefit. That makes me feel good."

Vacation Bible School planned

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ will hold its annual Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday, June 15-19.

For the first time in several years, the classes will be held during the morning hours. Classes will begin at 9:30 a.m. with an assembly and end at 11:45 a.m. with another assembly.

Refreshments will be provided.

Classes will be held for youngsters from 3 years old through fifth grade, with the public invited to attend the week-long Bible school.

Carl James, missionary to the Spanish-speaking people in Miami, Fla., will be the guest speaker at the morning worship services at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

Minister Gene Glaeser said James has been very successful in the missionary area and has been able to reach into the federal prison system and minister to a large number of prisoners.

Speaker for the 6 p.m. evening worship service will be Keith Feerer, youth minister.

Spirit Wind choir to be in Shamrock

SHAMROCK - Spirit Wind 1987, Northwest Texas United Methodist Conference youth choir, will be performing at 7 p.m. Sunday at Shamrock First United Methodist Church.

The choir is a select group of United Methodist Church young people from churches all over the Panhandle and West Texas area, including three from the surrounding area.

The youth members have been selected from more than 70 who auditioned in the past year and are representative of all size churches in the Northwest Texas Conference.

Area youths in the choir include

Amy Hester, Canadian; Julie Moore, Shamrock, and Erin Eschle, Groom.

The Spirit Wind program for 1987 is four sections, representing different styles of sacred choral music written by various composers. Composers include John Ness Beck, Douglas Wagner, Lloyd Pfautsch, Edwin Penhorwood, Ken Medema, Michael Jothan, J.S. Bach, John Rutter and Eugene Butler.

Spirit Wind 1987 is under the direction of Bert Bostic, director of program-music at St. Luke's United Methodist Church at Midland, and Donny McAvoy, music major at Southwestern University at Georgetown. Bostic has served as director for the summer touring choir since 1982.

The choir is accompanied by Mrs. Debby Vester, music assistant at St. Luke's. This is her fourth year as accompanist for the group.

Patsy Giles, a guidance counselor at Hereford High School, is the technical director and arrangement coordinator. She is a six-year veteran with Spirit Wind.

The concert is free, with the public invited to attend the special performance in Shamrock.

Rosaries reach around the world

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The men and women who work in the modern, spacious building consider themselves "armchair apostles." Their product reaches around the world, facilitating prayer.

They start each day with a prayer of their own and then begin sorting, packing and shipping kits for making rosaries.

"We're just like a mail order house, with one exception. We never show a profit, but are self-maintaining," said Tom Young, president of Our Lady's Rosary Makers.

It was started here by a Xaverian brother in 1949 and the club now has 13,000 members scattered across the United States and other countries. Dues are $2 a year.

"After purchasing their supplies from us, the members assemble the rosaries in their homes or in groups and send out about 4 million a year," Young said.

Most go to missionaries who have requested them in the club's monthly bulletin. Others are mailed to hospitals or to prisons.

"Naturally, there is no charge. Our people do this to help spread the faith and as an act of love," Young said. "It's a passport into almost every area of life."

The kits cost $10.25 and contain an instruction book, enough material for 10 rosaries, plus special pliers with pointed ends.

"We obtain the pliers from a factory in Germany because we couldn't get anyone in this country to furnish them. I guess our orders aren't large enough."

After serving with the Air Force during the Korean War, Young was a manufacturer's representative and was transferred to Louisville in 1952.

"I was in town two years before learning about the club. The idea fascinated me, partly because it became something for me to do while on road trips. Pretty soon, I was completing a rosary a day in my motel room."

Young retired in 1980 and began spending most of his free time at the club, which is open five days a week. There are 18 full-time employees, and three or four volunteers usually drop by to lend a hand.

Gospel singing planned at park

New Life Worship Center will be sponsoring an evening of gospel singing and fellowship Sunday evening in Central Park.

The program, with the theme "Bringing People Together," will begin at 6 p.m. at the bandstand area in Central Park.

Special singers will be the Emmanuel Gospel Singers.

Pastor John Farina said he and the congregation invite the public to drop by the park and join with them in the special evening activities.

Religion Roundup

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Roman Catholic leaders in the national civil rights movement meet here June 13-15 to consider means of sharpening their vigilance in that area.

Citing "recent serious incidents of overt racial hostility," the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice says there is an "increasing perception that widespread subtle racism continues" against minorities.

Archbishop John L. May of St. Louis, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops; Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston and Auxiliary Bishop Eugene Marino of Washington, D.C., are co-chairing the conference.

First Serve.

Take the initiative. Don't always wait for the return. That's what Jesus did when He died for us. He wasn't just "returning a favor" — we've done nothing to deserve that kind of love.

God made Himself our servant. How can we do less for each other?

At First we would consider it a privilege to serve you in His name. Because of Jesus' love, the First Serve is a penetrating one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A wise course of action for you today is to stay at arm's length from complicated situations that are no direct concern of yours. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on your best behavior today in situations where your reputation and image are on the line. Bad moves will leave negative, lasting impressions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A responsibility that you have been neglecting will only get tougher the longer you put it off. Eventually, you'll have to meet this problem head on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Disappointment could be in the offing for you if you bank too heavily on people who have poor track records for being dependable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your household is not likely to run too smoothly today if you and your mate have trouble deciding who is the head honcho. Committee rule won't work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) What you deem to be constructive criticism may not be viewed as such by the recipient. Before correcting others, put your own house in order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are unrealistic in the way you manage your resources today, you could maneuver yourself into a serious financial bind. Don't create problems that can be avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you dislike may offer you some sound advice today. If you ignore it because of the source, you may later have cause to regret your prejudice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Shortcuts or labor-saving devices could turn out to be the hard ways of doing things today. To be on the safe side, it's best to stick to proven methods.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but try to do so as inexpensively as possible. An activity isn't necessarily enhanced by buying costly equipment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make it a point to be methodical and orderly today, or you might miscalculate and deprive yourself of an objective you are anxious to achieve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be a trifle too glib for your own good today. Before accepting information given to you by a glib talker, be sure it is valid.

Turn PVC pipe into picnic table

By BOB SAWYER

I was recently handed a flyer containing the world's finest words of wisdom (author unknown):

"Attention young adults and teenagers. If you are tired of being hassled by unreasonable parents, now is the time for action! Leave home and pay your own way while you still know everything!"

I am reminded of the day I brought home my first load of PVC plastic pipe and fittings, not to re-plumb the kitchen sink but to build a picnic table.

My kids asked what I was doing. When I told them, there were sidelong glances, followed by snickers, which led to undisguised, side-splitting guffaws and much shaking of heads. Crazy old Dad.

The last laugh was mine, of course. We have a handsome, sturdy picnic table that will seat the entire family and then some. It can be hosed off when it needs cleaning. The table top, bench seats and backs are redwood planks. Overall size is 5 by 7 feet.

The plastic pipe frame requires only a hack saw, ruler and PVC cement. Pre-formed fittings make assembly a breeze. If assembled with screws instead of cement, it can be disassembled for storage.

Our step-by-step plans for the picnic table include a complete materials list, illustrated cutting and assembly instructions, plus tips on buying and working with PVC pipe.

If you're as hooked as I on the idea of PVC furniture, you might also enjoy building the 12 projects contained in our special packet of PVC plans: glider, coffee table, serving cart, sling chair, etagere, sofa and easy chair, hammock, patio table and chairs, end table and chaise lounge.

To order plans for the picnic table, specify Project No. 2046 and send $4.95; for the PVC packet, specify No. 3035, $19.95. Save a dollar and order both items for only $23.90.

Easy-to-assemble picnic table is made of PVC plastic pipe and wood planks.

Mail to: Backyard Builder, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Add $2.95 for a catalog with coupons worth $16.

To build the picnic table, I used 65 feet of 1 1/2-inch pipe, (28) 90-degree elbow joints, 18 T-joints, four 45-degree joints and four Y-joints. For the planks, I used 5-foot lengths of 2x8 redwood lumber.

The frame consists of two end sections joined by seven connecting pipes. Each end section consists of a central table support connected to two bench supports. Do the entire assembly to make sure of the fit, before securing the joints.

The table support looks like the outline of a giant block-letter "T". Start with a top horizontal 28-inch length of pipe. At one end, install an elbow, a 4-inch pipe, another elbow, a 7-inch pipe, another elbow, a 6 1/2-inch pipe, a T-joint, a 6 1/2-inch pipe, and a T-joint installed crosswise.

Install the same pipes and fittings at the opposite end of the long top pipe. This should give you the "T" shape except for the bottom line, which consists of another T-joint between two 3 1/2-inch pipes.

Each bench support consists of a rectangular seat section and a back support that periscopes up from the seat.

The front leg of the seat is a vertical 10-inch pipe with a T-joint at the bottom and an elbow at the top. Insert a horizontal 10-inch pipe into the elbow, and another into the T-joint.

The back leg consists of: elbow at the top, 1 1/2-inch pipe, Y-joint, 1 1/2-inch pipe, T-joint, and elbow at the bottom. Turn the top and bottom elbows the same way, so you can fit them onto the free ends of the horizontal pipes extending from the front leg.

For the back support, insert a 1 1/2-inch pipe into the open socket of the Y-joint in the back leg of the seat support. Working upward, add a 45-degree joint, a 16-inch pipe and an elbow. This completes one bench support.

Assemble a second, mirror-image bench support. Use a 13-inch pipe to connect each bench support to a T-joint at the bottom of the table support. This completes one end section.

Build a second end section. Turn all of the open fittings the same way in each end section. Place the two end sections about 4 feet apart, with the open fittings facing center. Connect each pair of corresponding fittings with a 48-inch length of pipe.

Finally, place five wooden planks across the table supports and secure with screws inserted down into the pipes. Use an additional plank for each seat, and another for each seat back.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Girl's sex education omitted basic definition

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl. At the age of 17, I had my first sexual experience with my boss, whom I thought I loved. The problem is, I already wasn't a virgin. What could have caused this?

I wonder if my horseback riding could have caused it. Or maybe it was my dancing. I took professional dance for three years. Is it possible to lose your virginity without knowing it?

Anyway, I now have a boyfriend. He is 25 years old and we plan to get married. What am I going to do when he finds out I am not a virgin? I have heard a plastic surgeon can make virgins out of non-virgins. Is that true? Please help me. I can't ask my parents.

TROUBLED NEAR CHICAGO

DEAR TROUBLED: A virgin is a person who has had no previous sexual experience. (More specifically, has not gone "all the way.") By that definition, it is not possible to lose one's virginity without knowing it.

Forget plastic surgery to restore your virginity. Even if it were "restored" physically — technically you would not be a virgin. Don't worry about what to tell your fiancé after you're married. The chances are he won't ask.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I would like you to settle a difference for us. I am "Dear Abby" to a lot of people. Sisters, brothers, friends, in-laws and people I hardly know will tell me their troubles about every thing and anything. I don't mind, I just listen a lot. I do worry about them, and can often see that they are doing nothing to help themselves. I know I can't solve their problems, but I wish I could.

My husband is a kind and loving husband and father, but he is not so tolerant of his fellowman. We will let you settle this for us. Should I back off and tell these people to talk to someone else? We respect your opinion. Please help us. My husband nicknamed me ...

"DEAR ABBY" NO. 2

DEAR NO. 2: Sometimes the best thing you can do for a person who is hurting is to listen. But, people who seem to be "hurting" too long or too often need professional counseling. You would do them a kindness (as I do) by advising them to seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Before the season begins for weddings and receptions, I need to air my gripe about some guests. I refer to those people who rush to the buffet table and load up their plates. (Boiled shrimp are usually where you will see the clods gather.)

Also, children whose parents allow them to go get anything they want; their eyes are invariably bigger than their stomachs, and most of the food is wasted.

Guests, please take small portions and wait until everyone has been served before going back for seconds — or thirds. And if the food is too delicious to resist, ask the hostess for the recipe, then go home and make yourself a 55-gallon barrel of it.

And, please, don't ask if you can take a plate of goodies home to Harry.

FED UP IN GEORGIA

DEAR READERS: Mother's Day has come and gone, but the results of a survey by USA Today still linger on. It revealed how often adults see their mothers:

Never	3 percent
Mother deceased	14 percent
Less than once a year	3 percent
Once a week	40 percent
Once a month	17 percent
Once a year	23 percent

Avoid certain types of aerobics

NEW YORK (AP) — Several aerobic dance exercises have high injury potential and should be eliminated from routines, says Lorna Francis.

Francis, an exercise physiologist at San Diego State University and a research consultant for Reebok, says non-stop hopping, locked elbow and knee joints and torso-twisting windmills are the culprits.

She says steady pounding of one leg can tire it, making it prone to overuse injury. Her advice: vary the time spent on hopping.

Extreme movements such as bending at the waist and windmilling the arms from foot to foot put undue pressure on the spine. She says the same benefit can come from standing and alternately lifting each leg, pulling the knee as high as possible.

Beginning 1 July, 1987, my practice will be decreased. I will not be available for emergencies and office hours will be limited markedly.

Patients should make other arrangements for continuity of care.

Celtics bounce back with a vengeance

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston team returning to Los Angeles isn't the same battered bunch that got run out of town last week. That gives the Celtics hope for a seemingly hopeless task.

The Celtics have lost six straight road games, including Laker routs by 13 and 19 points in the first two games of the NBA championship series. They are trying to become the first team to survive a 3-1 deficit in the finals.

But after cutting that to 3-2 with a 123-108 romp Thursday night, they said they are better prepared to beat the Lakers at The Forum than they were in the first two games.

"I expect a lot better effort out of us in Los Angeles this time," said guard Danny Ainge, who sparked Boston with five 3-point field goals.

"We had one day off and one day to prepare going into the finals. We should have three days to prepare," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Going to the finals with one day preparation spells disaster.

But if we go out there and get blown out, I can't use that as an excuse anymore."

That is a distinct possibility Sunday in Game 6 of the best-of-seven series when the Lakers get their second opportunity to win their 10th NBA title and fourth of the decade. If needed, a seventh game will be played Tuesday night, also at The Forum.

The Celtics outplayed the Lakers in winning two of three games in Boston, where the Celtics are 86-3 in their last 89 games. But Los Angeles is 46-4 this season on its home court and has to win just one of a possible two games there to take the title.

"We wanted to win, but we've got two games at home," Lakers guard Magic Johnson said. "It wasn't a do-or-die situation. We've been playing well out in L.A. On Sunday we are going to win."

"Maybe (by) just getting back to The Forum our players will remember what it's like to play Laker basketball," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said.

After seeing it for five games, the Celtics are more confident that they can handle that style, which emphasizes a relentless fast break.

In addition, center Robert Parish and forward

Kevin McHale don't seem as limited by their foot injuries as they were earlier in the playoffs.

Since those games, Boston has controlled the scoring of Los Angeles starters James Worthy and Byron Scott, slowing down the Lakers' running attack.

Thursday night, the Celtics led 103-95 with six minutes left and got 13 of the next 17 points to go ahead 116-99 with 2:57 remaining.

Los Angeles had taken its last lead, 31-30, on two foul shots by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 10:17 left in the second quarter. Boston got the last eight points of the period, including a 40-foot 3-pointer by Ainge at the buzzer to go ahead 63-48 lead. The Lakers hit just 38 percent of their field goal attempts in the first half.

The Celtics increased their lead to 96-77, their biggest of the game, at the end of the third quarter, in which Ainge hit four of five 3-point shots. Twice in the final period the Lakers came within eight points of the lead, the last on Abdul-Jabbar's sky hook that made the score 103-95. Then Dennis Johnson had eight points in Boston's 13-4 run.

"Ainge's 3-pointers seemed to come at the right times," Magic Johnson said. "We'd make a move and he'd hit one."

All five Boston starters, led by Dennis Johnson's 25 points, scored at least 21. Larry Bird had 23, McHale 22, and Ainge and Parish 21 each.

The Lakers were led by Magic Johnson with 29, and Abdul-Jabbar and Mychal Thompson with 18 each.

Boston held a 46-40 rebounding advantage but moved the ball much better than Los Angeles. The Celtics had 33 assists to 16 for the Lakers and outshot them 52 percent to 45 percent. Boston also had an effective fast break while controlling the Lakers' running game by hitting its outside shots and dropping back quickly on defense.

"We didn't get the runs tonight that we usually do. We didn't have any 12-2 or 14-2 spurts," said Scott. "It was in the back of our minds that if we lost tonight we could take care of it in L.A. I don't think they can beat us two games, not in L.A."

Tube plays key role in recruiting

NOTED: The Class AA Texas Baseball League has eight member teams, but only three (El Paso, San Antonio, Midland) are in Texas. The others are in different states (Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Kansas). The Division II Lone Star Athletic Conference has eight members, of which five are from Texas, the others from New Mexico (ENMU) and Oklahoma (Cameron, Central State).

The great importance of television on recruiting is emphasized by the fact De Paul rejected a $1 million offer to have its games televised on a local Chicago channel in order to continue with coast-to-coast exposure on Super Cable Channel WGN for considerably less money. Explained De Paul AD Bill Bradshaw: "You can't quantify how many recruits we get, how many donors we reach and how much our image as a national team has to do with our WGN exposure." That used to be the correct philosophy of Regents and Administrators at West Texas State, the drops in enrollment and athletic department revenue supporting the De Paul (and other top schools) thinking.

Former U-Houston assistant basketball coach Terry Kirkpatrick is among four people indicted in Houston on federal charges accusing them of conspiring to pass about $114,000 in counterfeit money.

$250,000. And in the face of all that, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros is seeking voter approval to use a one-half cent transit tax to pay for a proposed $125 million downtown domed stadium in a bid to attract an NFL franchise. Cost for such a team is near $1 million just for the franchise, and the Mission City entry in the defunct CFL couldn't make it.

After the Chicago Cubs became the first team to hit four home runs off one Houston Astro pitcher, Bob Knepper, in the Astrodome, Chicago Tribune sportswriter Fred Mitchell opened his game story thus: "HOUSTON — Come visit the Astrodome — the Cubs Best Little Homer House in Texas."

Detroit Piston star Isiah Thomas put his foot down his throat with racial comments about Larry Bird (only kidding, hah, hah) but he did the right thing on Mother's Day. Because of a play-off game against Boston that day, Thomas sent his mother, Mary, to receive his diploma during graduation exercises at Indiana University.

Each of the guest announcers who filled in for the ailing Harry Caray on Cub radio-TV broadcasts received union wages of $420, plus a videotape of the game

Keyes Pharmacy rolls to victory

Keyes Pharmacy rolled to a 16-6 win over Chase Oil in an American League Bambino game Thursday night.

Jackie Gross was a perfect four of four at the plate with three singles and a triple to lead Keyes 15-hit attack. Eddie Hernandez had two singles and a double while Bryan Stout had two hits.

Josh Nix had two hits for Chase.

Coy Laury was the winning pitcher.

In other AL action, Dyers scored seven runs in the seventh inning to defeat Dunlap 11-4.

Ross Johnson picked up the mound win in relief for Dyers. He allowed two hits and walked one in the seventh inning after relieving starter Clarence Reed.

Shawn Hays and Reed were the leading hitters for Dyers with three hits each.

Sabas Armendarez, Rene Armendarez, Jason Soukup and Jason Warren had two hits each to lead Dunlap. Warren had tied the game in the bottom of the sixth with a hit up the middle that scored two runs.

Glo-Valve Service erupted for seven runs in the first inning to coast to a 10-3 win over Celanese Corporation in a National League Bambino game last night.

It was the ninth win of the season for Glo-Valve and Jeff Tidwell won his fourth game of the year against no losses.

Tidwell went the distance for Glo-Valve, striking out nine, walking two, allowing four hits and giving up just one earned run. Justin Johnson, who was relieved by Danny Frye in the first, was the losing pitcher.

Chad Dunnam, Mitch Spence and Tidwell had two hits each for Glo-Valve. Dunnam's and Tidwell's hits included a double.

Michael Gandy with a run-scoring single and Brad Smillie with his fourth home run of the season rounded out the Glo-Valve hitting.

Bryan Sims paced Celanese with two doubles and two runs scored. Jason Johnson and Bryan Williamson contributed hits to the Celanese effort.

Glo-Valve remains in first place in the second half of Nationally Bambino play.

In other NL action, OCAW blasted Moose Lodge 17-8.

Greg Moore and Chris Gilbert pitched three innings apiece for OCAW.

Moore led OCAW with three hits while Will Winborne, Bret Queen and Mike Foote had two hits each. Seth Foster, Jason Clark, Dan O'Dell and Matt Winborne had one hit each for OCAW.

Jeremy Roberts, Justin Corneisen, Matt Finney and Jason Cochran had one hit each for Moose.

In Babe Ruth 13-15 play, First National Bank outlasted Cree 5-4 in extra innings and Grant slipped by Lions Club 7-5.

The Bankers scored the winning run on a passed ball in the eighth inning.

James Bybee was the winning pitcher while Mike Cagle registered a save.

In T-Ball action, Wayne's Wildcats edged Tri-City Office Supply 15-14.

Joshua Brookshire and Eric Graham pitched for Wayne's. Ryan Schumacher and Matt Evans pitched for Tri-City.

Top hitters for Wayne's were Brookshire, Kyle Easley, Amanda Tyrell, Heather Garner, Clint Curtis and Seth Stribling.

Top hitters for Tri-City were Schumacher, Evans, Josh Austin, Todd Harrison, Brian Brown, Chad Wilson and Bryan McCormick.

The NBC Cubs won over Bowers Ranch 19-11 in another T-Ball game played last night.

Wade Bruce had three singles to lead the Cubs in hitting while Amy Morris, J.D. Woelfle, Jerren Miller and Matt Rhine had two hits each.

Shawn Harris, Blaine Northcutt and Christian Bruce had one double each for Bowers while Ernie Cruz had a triple.

Pampa's Hopkins, Brown bound for overseas meet

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

For Andrea Hopkins and Laquita Brown, the task of preparing for the international track meet in China has been both nerve-wracking and exciting.

Word came earlier this year that the two Pampa High track standouts had been selected to represent the United States in the International Sports Exchange meet in Canton, China. Both were seniors this year and members of Pampa's state runnerup track team.

"I'm been both nervous and excited," said Hopkins, as Thursday's departure date drew closer. I know this is something I'll probably never do again."

"I've been kinda counting off the hours," Brown said.

Brown's father, Tommy Murry, can attest to her nervousness.

"She's been ironing and ironing clothes, and I told her, there's no way you're going to be able to wear that many clothes. She's a little nervous about flying over water, but she'll be okay."

A reception was held for both girls Thursday at the high school football fieldhouse, giving friends and relatives a chance to say goodbye and good luck.

"I'll be thinking about all of you when I'm in Honolulu," said Hopkins, as she prepared to leave.

One of the stops on the overseas trip is a two-day layover in Hawaii. The high school athletes will also visit Seoul, Korea and Hong Cong, China.

Hopkins and Brown are among 70 Texas high school seniors who were chosen by state track coaches to make the trip. The Long Star contingent will be joined in Canton by 70 more high school athletes from Indiana.

The Texas athletes arrive in Los Angeles June 12 to make final preparations for the trip. The meet itself will be held June 15-25.

Pampa's Chamber of Commerce launched a fund-raising campaign that netted around $4,000 to send the two girls to China.

Hopkins will be competing in the discus and shot put. She won the state title in the shot at this year's state meet and finished fourth in the discus. Hopkins owns the school record in the discus with a throw of 132 feet. She also set both discus and shot marks at the district meet this year.

Brown is a member of the state champion 440-meter relay team, but she is expected to compete in the hurdles, long jump and 200 at Canton. She holds the school record in the hurdles (15-3) and is co-holder of school records in the 440 and 880-meter relays.

Hopkins was chosen as the best all-around girl athlete at Pampa High this year and she shared the outstanding track performer award with Brown.

Both were also members of the Academic All-District team this year.

Time running out on Cooney

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "I just feel it's my time," says Gerry Cooney.

His critics say he's wasted time and that a loss to Michael Spinks on Monday night would be the end of time for him as a fighter.

Cooney has fought just seven rounds since he lost to Larry Holmes in a World Boxing Council title bid on June 11, 1982.

He has fought only a total of 26 rounds in the 1980s, yet has earned a reported $18 million, most of it in this decade.

"I want to be heavyweight champion of the world and nothing is going to stop me," Cooney said.

Promoter Butch Lewis is billing Monday's scheduled 15-round bout as being for the heavyweight championship even though the WBC, World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation do not recognize it as a title match.

Even the New Jersey State Athletic Control Board is not recognizing it as a title fight. Only commissions from Florida and the District of Columbia are.

"To me this is good for boxing," Cooney said. "It shows that boxing is not being monopolized, that this is a free country."

"It isn't the alphabets that matter to me," Spinks said. "It's the people."

But while the 16,000-plus-seat Atlantic City Convention Hall is expected to be full, people haven't been rushing to buy tickets at closed-circuit television locations around the country. On Wednesday, the telecast was cancelled at the 20,000-seat Joe Louis Arena at Detroit after fewer than 30 tickets reportedly were sold.

While Cooney might not be recognized as champion in many quarters should he win, a victory would establish him again as a major attraction. It also would set up a major-money match between Cooney and unbeaten Mike Tyson, who is recognized as champion by the WBC and WBA.

Tony Tucker is recognized as champion by the IBF, which stripped Spinks of the title for refusing to agree to a mandatory defense against Tucker. Cooney, who will be 31 on Aug. 24, blasted his way to the forefront of the heavyweight division in 1980 and 1981 by stopping Jimmy Young in the fourth round, knocking out Ron Lyle in the first and knocking out Ken Norton in 58 seconds.

However, since he was stopped in the 13th round by Holmes, he has fought just three times.

He knocked out Philip Brown in the fourth round and George Chaplin in the second, then knocked out Eddie Gregg in the first in May 1986.

Europeans pace Westchester

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Europeans Sandy Lyle and Seve Ballesteros took advantage of a familiar pairing and perfect weather to set the pace in the first round of the $600,000 Westchester Classic.

"We've played together many times, both here and in Europe," Lyle, a Scotsman, said Thursday after shooting 65, one stroke better than Ballesteros, a Spaniard.

"I enjoy playing with Seve. I'm not awed, because we've played together so often, and sometimes you respond to his good play with good play of your own."

Ballesteros, who ranks as Europe's leading player, agreed.

"It helps you play better when you're with someone who is playing well," Ballesteros said after he and Lyle combined for a best-ball 60.

McCarty-Hull downs C & C

McCarty-Hull won over C & C Hydrocarbon 27-7 in a Senior girls' softball game last week.

Melissa Brookshire and Leslie Bailey led McCarty with three hits each. Christy Plunk had a single.

Patsy Preston and Jessica Smillie had two hits each for C & C.

Winning pitcher was Kandy Winton, who struck out seven, walked six and allowed seven hits.

In Junior league play, Williams Appliance defeated Garvin-Pulse Brothers 26-12 and Moose Lodge downed First Landmark Realty 40-13.

Williams hitting attack was led by Julie Forman, who had two singles and a home run. Misty Summers also had a homer, along with a double. Shawn Hunter had two base hits.

Forman was also the winning pitcher, striking out five, walking 19 and not allowing a hit.

Moose's 19-hit attack was led by Tonya Brown's four hits. Kara Kay Skaggs and V. Brown had three hits each.

Robin Burke, Misty Shaw and Kelley Ford all had two hits each for First Landmark.

Laura Curfman gave up seven hits while striking out five and walking 15 to gain the mound win.

Golf clinic set

The second session of a golf clinic at Clarendon College-Pampa Center is scheduled for June 15-19.

The session, taught by PHS golf coach Frank McCullough, will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and is for both children (8 and up) and adults.

Cost is $40 and interested persons may register by calling Clarendon College at 665-8801. The fee may be paid at the first class meeting.

Palmer wins discus event

Pampa teacher Wendell Palmer just missed setting a world record in the discus at the Duke City Masters track meet held recently in Albuquerque, N.M.

Palmer, competing in the 55 and over division, won the discus with a 150-4 toss. The world record in that division is 151-6.

Palmer also won the high jump, shot put, javelin and long jump in the pentathlon event.
