ALL-MALE COFFEE FOR MOD

It wasn't planned that way originally, but that's the way it turned out today. Mrs. Gene Fatheree, above, a member of the Parent-Education Club, along with other club members in Pampa, have been giving coffees recently to aid the March of Dimes. Seems there aren't many women who live near the Fatherees, 502 W. Kingsmill, so she just invited the men. Sipping coffee, from left, are Tom Tipps, Luke McClelland, J. R. Senate Group Votes Formosa Aid Request

House Approves 409-3 Tuesday

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 — UP — The combined Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees Wednesday approved President Eisenhower's Formosa resolution by a 26 to 2 vote.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) a member of the Armed Services Committee, said Senate groups wrote in "some minor amendments."

Another committee member said Sens. Wayne Morse (Ind.-Ore.) and William Langer (R-N.D.) cast the "no" votes.

Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind.) said the administration proposal was approved without change after two substitute proposals were defeated, 20 to 8. One by Sen. Estes (D-Tenn.) was described as a resolution which would have put the Formosa problem up to the United Nations. The other, attributed by Capehart to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), would have confined use of U.S. Armed forces to the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores, excluding Quemoy, Matsu and the other islands nearer to the China coast.

House Has Approved — The House Tuesday voted 409 to 3 to empower Mr. Eisenhower to order American armed forces into battle if necessary wherever he sees fit to defend Formosa against threatened Communist invasion.

The Senate was expected to begin debate sometime Wednesday on the proposal, at least unofficially. However, it was not immediately determined when the proposal officially could be brought before the chamber Wednesday.

Approval of the resolution came during the third day of long, closed-door hearings by the two committees.

Senate committee action came in the midst of these related developments:

1. Some 300 warplanes from the U.S. Seventh Fleet ranged the skies north of Formosa in what dispatches from that area described as a warning to Red China against interfering with U.S. defense strategy there.

2. The Soviet newspaper Pravda charged that Mr. Eisenhower's fight-if-necessary message to Congress Monday was "brazen intervention" in the internal affairs of Communist China and an attempt to prepare an invasion of the mainland.

3. Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, in testimony before a Senate committee, described the Formosa crisis as "just a little ripple" as far as defense planning is concerned. He said there is no reason to abandon planned reductions in manpower of U.S. forces.

4. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said he believes the Formosa crisis can be settled peacefully if all governments concerned work for it. He said his government's primary concern is to stop the vast pocket war in the Formosa area.

U. S. Shows Air Might In Red 'Warning'

TAIPEI, Formosa, Jan. 26 UP — The U.S. Seventh fleet sent "large numbers" of planes into the air south of the Tachens as a warning to Red China that the United States means business, it was reported here Wednesday.

Waves of Nationalist heavy bombers smashed at Red Chinese invasion fleets north of the threatened island, sinking a 1,500-ton Communist warship, and Nationalist sources disclosed the Communists had made a fourth unsuccessful attempt to invade the Matsu islands.

Night raids by heavy Nationalist bombers appeared to have silenced Communist artillery on Yik-shing island, barely eight miles north of Tachens. The enemy guns which could interfere with evacuation of the island did not bombard Tachens during the day, it was reported here.

Chinese press reports said Vice Adm. Alfred M. Pride, commander of the Seventh fleet, used 300 planes in the show of force north of Formosa, but Naval sources would not confirm the number of planes involved.

American pilots from the carrier Princeton were seen in Taipei Wednesday, leading to speculation the carrier had arrived in Formosa waters to reinforce the big carriers Yorktown, Kearsarge, Wasp and Essex already here. That would raise to 500 the number of carrier-based aircraft available to help in the evacuation of Tachens.

Snow Predicted In Area Thursday

By UNITED PRESS

A thickening cloud cover and slightly surface winds kept Texas temperatures at moderate seasonal figures Wednesday after several days of clear, cold weather and damaging frosts.

Cold air out of the Rockies was expected to slide downlope into the Texas Panhandle and South Plains late Wednesday and Wednesday night, however, and some snow may hit the Panhandle sector Thursday.

A huge mass of Arctic air near the Canadian border also posed a possible threat for a return of frigid weather to Texas.

Family Visits To Red China Discouraged

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 UP — Chances for American families to visit their jailed kin in Red China faded Wednesday as U.S. Communist Chinese tension mounted over the future of Formosa.

Informed sources indicated the United States will not let any Americans travel to Communist China while there is danger of hostilities breaking out over Formosa. They said, however, that a final decision still must be made.

The State Department has not said yet whether it will permit or bar relatives of 17 imprisoned Americans from accepting Red China's offer to visit the men in Communist jails. The department has said only that it cannot "encourage" such visits to a nation where it is unable to guarantee protection of Americans.

The United States does not have diplomatic relations with Communist China.

Some top officials apparently feel that it would be even more dangerous to approve the visits now because of the possibility of hostilities breaking out in the Formosa Straits. If the relatives were in Red China at such a time, they might be trapped there.

The State Department had been hoping that none of the relatives would accept the Communist invitation which is believed by experts to be nothing but a silk propaganda trap. However, kin of at least five of the prisoners have said they want to go.

The State Department itself has said that three want to make the trip. It is considering replies to these three.

COMMISSION WASN'T QUITE READY FOR THIS EMERGENCY

For a long time Pampa dog-owners have been asking city officials to let them buy their dog licenses in the winter when they want their pooches to be vaccinated.

But the city had a rule that a dog license could not be purchased until the canine had been vaccinated 30 days.

And the tax office could not sell licenses till May 1.

So the city commission Tuesday passed an emergency ordinance permitting owners to buy a license anytime after the first of the year.

But there's one trouble. The tax office doesn't have a single dog tag.

Russ Threat Is Ignored

MOSCOW, Jan. 26 UP — Britain to dissolve the 1944 Anglo-Soviet and France Wednesday rejected treaty of friendship.

Soviet complaints against German rearmament contained in Russia's to France and Britain, the Soviet December notes threatening to Union said the German rearmament pact were aggressive in nature, were directed against the Soviet Union and were incompatible with the treaties of friendship.

Texts of the notes were not expected to be available for release by the press until 5:30 a. m. Thursday.

French Ambassador Louis Joxe called on Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov at 5 a. m. and handed him France's reply to the Dec. 16 Soviet note.

Thirty minutes later British envoy Sir William Hayter gave Molotov a reply to Russia's Dec. 20 note to Britain which threatened

LA Cheers MacArthur On Birthday

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26 UP — Gen. Douglas MacArthur Wednesday celebrated his 75th birthday with a busy schedule of three speeches and the unveiling of a bronze MacArthur statue.

The five-star general arrived in Los Angeles from New York Tuesday night with his wife and was cheered by a crowd of 500 when he stepped from an airliner.

His first appearance was at MacArthur Park, where he spoke briefly after Mrs. MacArthur unveiled a monument erected in his honor.

The monument is an eight-foot tall bronze statue placed in a niche in a curving wall covered with ceramic tile. At the base of the statue is a five-star insignia and the words, "General of the Army Douglas MacArthur."

Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles accepted the statue for the city. The invocation at the unveiling was delivered by James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles.

Gov. and Mrs. Goodwin Knight also participated in the ceremony.

Kidnaper Believed Bound For Denver

AMARILLO, Jan. 26 — UP — Authorities Wednesday extended a search for a missing baby sitter and her 10-month-old charge to Denver.

The sitter, Mrs. Diane Cartwright has been charged with kidnaping a chubby Randy Gene Caskey by wheeling the child away in a baby buggy from an Amarillo apartment late Monday.

Amarillo police are continuing search, but have notified Denver authorities that Mrs. Cartwright once lived there and may attempt to return with the child.

Reward Posted For Conviction In Bomb Death

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Jan. 26 — UP — Harry Weaver and his two step-daughters offered a $10,000 reward Wednesday for the arrest and final conviction of the killer who blasted Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver, 82, to death a week ago with a bomb planted in her automobile.

The reward was decided upon at a family conference Tuesday night. The stepdaughters, who were Mrs. Weaver's daughters, are Mrs. John Wilcockson of Billings, Mont., and Mrs. Ed Blackburn of Houston. Their husbands also joined in the offer.

Sheriff Cecil Turner said he doesn't put much stock in reports that the case will be wrapped up Friday. He didn't say whether this means he expects the case to be solved before or after Friday, but added: "We're going to break this one."

The police guard at the big home of Mrs. Ralph Harris, mother-in-law of banker, archeologist, rancher Harry Weaver, was doubled yesterday. One policeman was stationed inside the house and one outside.

New Age Takes Over A-Weapons To Be Top Defense Line

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 UP — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson disclosed Wednesday that military planners are working vigorously to make atomic weapons part of the nation's continental defense system.

He also revealed that the atomic-powered submarine Nautilus is performing beyond expectations and has paved the way for eventual operation of atomic-powered aircraft.

Wilson made these disclosures on the development of nuclear weapons when he appeared before the House Armed Services Committee to defend military budget cuts being questioned by Congressional Democrats. New Far Eastern commitments have heightened criticism of the cuts.

Wilson said a "vigorous research and development effort" is being made to use atomic weapons in "the continental air defense program (which) is being pushed with all practical speed."

He did not give details but presumably these would be atomic warheads in anti-aircraft guided missiles aimed at blocking any massive air strike against the United States. They probably would be used at high altitudes in the Arctic regions.

There had been hints of this program but Wilson's statement was the first official acknowledgment of the plans.

Wilson said newly developed weapons have added "tremendous striking power" to U.S. forces.

Tito Tactics In Dealing With Opponents Differ From Russ

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst
The trial in Belgrade of two high-ranking Yugoslav Communist leaders is a strange business. Here are two men charged with high crimes against the regime of President Tito. They were charged from the party line and sharply criticized to get back on it. In Six at Belgrade, or in any other Communist-ruled country, Milovan Djilas and Vladimir Dedjic would have been dead long ago. Secret Police would have seized them. Probably from their beds in the early hours of some morning they would have been put in solitary confinement and subjected to mental or physical torture, or both until they confessed their guilt. Then they would have been tried, their prior announcement, considered quickly and shot in the back of the head.
But Djilas and Dedjic were not even arrested. Their homes were put under guard, but only to keep them from carrying their defiance further by talking to foreign correspondents. When a correspondent visited Dedjic's home late in December, he found that Dedjic was out shopping for a new year tree, the equivalent of the American Christmas tree.
The two Communist deviants walked together to the district courthouse Monday for the opening of their trial. The five judges at first announced the trial would be public but suddenly changed their minds. Even their relatives of the two defendants Djilas wife and Dedjic's brother and sister-in-law and a few others were permitted to remain.
It was taken for granted that Djilas and Dedjic would be convicted. There was not much doubt that under Yugoslav law, they were guilty. But they didn't plead guilty, they defended their course with the aid of able lawyers.
Things Take Strange Turn
Altogether, things have taken a strange turn in Yugoslavia. Tito, one of the world's outstanding Communists, broke with the Kremlin rather than subordinate his own country's interests to Russia's. He has signed himself alongside the West against Russian aggression. And though he remains a Communist, he lets men accused of criminal subversive propaganda walk to their trials.
What happened was that Djilas, a vice president and a possible potential successor to Tito, wanted Yugoslavia to turn more toward Democratic government. He advocated a two-party system. He was purged from his government and Communist party posts. But he continued to draw a pension as a wartime partisan with Tito and Dedjic against the Germans.
Dedjic, biographer and close friend of Tito, defended Djilas. He kept his post in the Communist party leadership, nevertheless.
Around Christmas time both men still defiant, gave interviews to foreign correspondents reaffirming their views. It was decided they must be tried. But apparently neither need fear that whatever punishment the court may mete, he will have his brains blown out.
Convicted Man Given Appeal Right
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26 (UP) — Glen Dale Atkins, convicted of murder in 1946 and imprisoned in the Texas state penitentiary, Tuesday had the right to appeal his case.
The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals held Monday that the U.S. District Court for the southern district of Texas must hear a petition for writ of habeas corpus to free him.
The district court had denied the petition.
Atkins contended he was denied due process of law when convicted of slaying Clyde E. Ross.
The appeals court noted that Atkins contended his trial court did not appoint counsel for him until the day his trial began, and he had no time for consultation. It said in the ruling:
"We do not know what facts the hearing will produce and consequently we do not intimate an opinion on the merits. We hold only that if the allegations charged are proven, petitioner has been deprived of his liberty without due process of law."

Many Panhans have contributed furniture and other items for the orphanage and convent.

School Officials' Trial Delayed

TYLER, Tex., Jan. 26 (UP) — The trial of two former Duval county school officials charged with misappropriating public funds did not open Tuesday as scheduled because one of their attorneys is serving in the Legislature.
The two officials are D. C. Chapa, former tax collector-assessor, and O. Carrillo, former secretary of the Benavides independent school district. They were to have gone on trial Tuesday on a charge of venue.
However, one of their attorneys, Victor C. Woods, moved for the postponement because Eligio de la Garza, another defense lawyer, is serving in the Legislature.
Presiding Judge Otis T. Dunagan granted a continuance under state law.

Vet Land Board Secretary Named

AUSTIN, Jan. 26 (UP) — Ray Clark Diebel, a member of the state auditor's staff since 1948, was named Tuesday by Land Commissioner J. Earl Rudder as executive secretary of the Veterans Land Board.
Rudder, chairman of the Veterans Land Board, said Diebel's appointment is effective immediately. He succeeds Lawrence C. Jackson, who resigned recently.
Meanwhile, members of the Senate confirmed Rudder's appointment as commissioner of the General Land Office. The action was included in routine approval given 24 appointments by Gov. Allan Shivers.
Rudder said Diebel has done a major share of the work for the auditor's office in the investigation of veterans land transactions under the $100 million program.

Indians Hopefully Await Results Of Tribal Dance

By MURRAY M. MOIER
WINDOW ROCK, Ariz., Jan. 26 (UP) — The Navajo tribe wondered Tuesday if the revival of their ancient war dance after 87 years would induce Congress to provide them with life-giving water from the Colorado River.
The chanting Navajos danced furiously for an hour Monday before an audience of 2,000 tribesmen and guests. They last performed the dance 87 years ago, before the tribe signed a peace treaty with the United States.
The purpose of the dance, performed in the natural amphitheater below the towering Window Rock on the 18 million acre reservation, was best explained by Maurice McCabe, tribal secretary-treasurer.
"We stand with our brother palefaces of Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Arizona and Utah in support of a project we feel benefits not only this area but the nation as a whole."
"The enemy for the dance are those who oppose the Colorado River storage project because of misinformation or selfish reasons."
The dance was climaxed by simulated burial of the enemy.
Tribal officers of the 75,000 Navajo, America's largest Indian tribe, revived the historical dance in an attempt to attract national attention to their support of legislation before Congress to authorize construction of the billion-dollar Colorado River storage project.

A "thank you" always makes you feel good, no matter what it's for. H. P. Shotwell, superintendent of the Children's Home in Waco, sent a thank you note to the Junior Red Cross chapter in Pampa High School via the downtown Red Cross office. His thanks were for the Christmas gifts of food, etc., sent by PHS. He said "they brightened the Christmas season for the children."

Yippee! And didn't those Harvesters trample the Sandies last night! The Fieldhouse was packed and the entrances were bulging with unseated people. In fact, Mrs. Russell Cartwright, manager of the PHS Co-op, said that she had sold more student tickets at the school this year than ever before. Now let's munch Berger's lunch!

The Student's Psalm
A man is my teacher, I shall not pass;
He handeth me the chalk,
He guideth me in a straight path, for my grades sake.
Yes though I walk through the valley of knowledge,
I learn not, for I am dumb.
My notebook and my pencil, they comfort me,
He maketh me to show my ignorance before my fellow students,
He anointeth my head with examples.
My fountain pen runneth over, Surely, Algebra and English shall follow me all the days of my life.
And I shall dwell in the eleventh grade forever.

PHS's Student Council received recognition and honor in the January issue of "Student Life." Student Council information, including "Helpful Hints in Organizing a District Conference Program," "A Model District Conference Program," and "A Suggested District Constitution," was taken from the booklet published last year by the Council under the direction of John Teed, who was then vice-president of the Texas Association of Student Councils. It's enough to start buttons popping from pride.

Seven Harvesters band members are now eligible to receive the emblems for their jackets due to their participation in band activities last spring and this fall.

Patry Ward, Peggy Ward, Larry Cox, Gwen Barrett, Donald Cox, David Gants and Dot Gants are the ones who have met the requirements.

To receive an emblem, the student must take part in 90 percent of band songs, including 100 class periods, 25 sectional rehearsals, and 25 extra rehearsals. One-half point is deducted for tardiness, one point for absence.

Heavens! Would you believe that a dignified senior would slide down one of the tempting banisters at PHS? That's right, she would and did. Betty Osborne yelled "Gang way!" the other day and took off! (Don't blame her. Sure did look like fun!)

Everybody may have giggled at the two little boys who dashed out on the gym floor to scoop up Darrrell Raines' cartoons after he finished his act in the talent show last Monday night, but the fellows had an angelic motive. The boys dashed up the stairs to the top side and displayed one by one the drawings which the people sitting up there had been unable to see.

Russ Further Ahead On Atom Research Than U.S. Realizes

Editor's note: There has been considerable speculation of late on Russia's success in producing atomic weapons. However, there has been no official word. The following dispatch represents informed opinion on Russian progress in atomic development.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (UP) — The Russians have tested a greater number and variety of atomic and hydrogen weapons than the U.S. public realizes, informed sources said Tuesday.

Official American and Russian statements to date indicate that the Soviets have fired at least 11 test shots, starting in 1949 when they broke the U.S. atomic monopoly. This figure is now obsolete.

The United States has staged a minimum of 50 nuclear explosions, Great Britain three. Both this country and Britain are getting ready to conduct new tests this year.

The Russians may be, too. In any case, it can now be said on high authority that they have set off considerably more than 11 test explosions. The true figure may be double that number.

Fired More Than Once
It also can be stated that the Russians have tested H-bomb reactions more than once since the only Soviet thermonuclear shot, fired on the morning of Aug. 12, 1953, which this country has announced.

The Atomic Energy Commission purposely does not announce each and every nuclear explosion in the USSR which the United States detects. Reason: To keep the Russians guessing as to just how accurately we are keeping tabs on their atomic progress.

Not since the Soviet hydrogen test of August, 1953, has it been possible for non-official observers in this country to maintain a tidy box score of Russian tests.

That explosion brought the officially reported Soviet score to four, including one in September, 1949, and two in October, 1951.

Since then, all announcements, U.S. or Russian, have been couched obscurely in terms of "test series" instead of individual explosions. Three such series have got (to see one eye closed and one eye open) Tak! tak! (Would love to read their thoughts.)

Safety Group Changes Title, Fills Posts

The Pampa Citizens Safety Commission directors today named the personnel of their three committees. But before that action was taken directors voted to change the name of the organization to the Pampa Citizens Safety Council. Led by Joe Cantrell, council president, the committees were selected: TRAFFIC: Gene Fatheree, chairman, Jim Conner, Bob Gordon, John Wilkinson, Dr. Nicholas Kadango, Ed Callahan, Rufe Jordan, Lester Mason and Marion Stone. HOME, SCHOOLS, PEDESTRIANS: B. R. Nuckols, chairman, Ernest Winborne, Ben Sturgeon, Mrs. Jack Foster, C. C. Henry, Joe Fortin, Max Hukill, J. C. Williams and Mrs. W. L. Boos. PUBLICITY: Miss Beuna Cox, chairman, Larry Gordon, Coy Palmer, Henry Gordon, Bob Getty, C. B. Lutes and Ed Nash. In other action council directors voted to permit more than two members from each participating organization to be directors, agreed to meet for breakfast once every three months and okayed a meeting of the administrative committee every month. The administrative committee is composed of Cantrell, president; Mrs. Lillian Jordan, vice president; Joe Fischer, secretary-treasurer; and Fatheree, Nuckols and Miss Cox, the committee chairman. A fourth committee may be formed in the near future, Cantrell said. That will be the finance or membership committee. But it cannot be done yet — all the 28 council directors are either the officers or committee members now.

Anti-Nude Crusader Would Ban Sale Of Nudist Magazines

By HOWARD WILSON
OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26 (UP)—A crusading evangelist minister seeking to outlaw nudists in Oklahoma said Wednesday a move was underway to change emphasis of a proposed law so it will forbid only state sales of nudist magazines. A public hearing before the Oklahoma House Advisory committee was scheduled to resume Wednesday, but Rep. Charles Ozmun, chairman of the group, said it may postpone work until next week because other urgent business is pending. The Rev. Braxton B. Sawyer of Fort Smith, Ark., a mortal enemy of nakedness, said he was considering changes in the proposed bill. "The bill now starts by saying nudists exist in Oklahoma to such an extent as to require a law against them," he said. "Some of the House fellows think this would give Oklahoma a black eye. So (Rep. James) Fesperman and I are talking about re-writing the bill to say only that nudist magazines are on sale in Oklahoma newspapers and thus a law against them is required. Nudists No Emergency "I never said nudists existed to such an extent as to create an emergency. I have claimed small groups existed," said the preacher who has led a drive against nudist activities in the Southwest. He added he still wants a law against nudist meetings. But a legislator who asked not to be identified said he thought "Sawyer has fallen on his face in his efforts to prove nudists exist in Oklahoma. Now he is trying to water down his bill." Tuesday's hearing drew an overflow crowd of some 200, mostly Sawyer fans. Out-of-staters carried the ball for the nudists. There remained a disagreement on how many nudists exist in various states of the Southwest. Mrs. Maria Park, 35, of Newton, Kan., wife of a railroad man and titleholder of "Queen of the Nudists" in the Midwest, was asked how many nudists were in her Kansas group. The tall, tightly-tanned mother of three children answered: "Mr. Sawyer testified that there were 131 of us. I like his figure better than mine." Mrs. Parks told the lawmakers "I believe in Christ, the Bible and the Lord, and have been a mem-

Discovery Sets Date Of Man's First Dwelling Site Backward

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—UP—A team of American scientists in the middle east reported Monday it had found traces of old dwelling places which pushed the date for mankind's first known permanent settlement back beyond 5,000 B.C. What they found wasn't any great shakes as a town, as such are known now. The "houses" were holes in the ground, roofed over perhaps with sod, or maybe with skins. There were traces of hearths. Probably the primitive city folk didn't even have clay dishes. Dr. Robert J. Braidwood, professor of old world archeology in the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, said exploratory digging by the university's Iraq-Jarmo expedition had uncovered a settlement considerably smaller and more primitive than Jarmo, previously thought the oldest. Jarmo, also in Iraq, was likewise discovered by Braidwood. Its time has been placed about 5,000 years before the birth of Christ. The new settlement is at M'Lefaat, 25 miles east of Mosul in north-eastern Iraq near the Iranian border. The exact date to which the newly discovered settlement is entitled was not given in the university announcement, which said merely that Braidwood reported it was "much older."

Scout Troop Increase Seen

There are an estimated 300 boys in Pampa who want to become Boy Scouts this year, and that will necessitate four new Scout troops. Key Fancher, chairman of the Santa Fe District organization and extension committee, Tuesday night made that statement to the district committee meeting. Ross Buzzard, chairman of the district campaign and activities committee, reported that plans were all set for the Scout Week Birthday Party scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 11 in the Pampa Junior High School Gymnasium and for Scout demonstration day Feb. 12. Harry Wilbur, Jr., Canadian, co-chairman of the finance campaign, reported that plans in Higgins, Miami and Canadian were well underway. The drives in those communities will begin Feb. 14. Phil Pegues, district Scout executive, today said there were still some Scout units which have not registered for charter registration papers due in January: Troop 26, Higgins; Pack 83, PanTex; Pack 14, Troop 14 and Post 14, First Presbyterian Church, Pampa; Troop 24, St. Matthews Episcopal Church, Pampa; Pack 1, Panhandle; and Pack 19, Lefors.

Members of the team are Ronald Hower, Douglas Whatley, Gerald Hermesmeier and Dennis Kotara, serving as alternate. The team was coached by John E. Dwyer. Hermesmeier was high individual scorer, rolling up a total of 364 points. Pampa's Jimmy Baird was the only Pampa to make top honors. He came in first in the sheep judging with 133 points. Two Small Boys Beaten, Burned

PAULS VALLEY, Okla., Jan. 26—UP—County Attorney Raymond Burger said Wednesday two small boys were found at the home of their uncle and aunt Tuesday badly beaten and burned. One of the boys, George Stanley, 5, was in critical condition at an Oklahoma City hospital, suffering from numerous broken bones, cuts and burns on the buttocks and thigh. Burger, who took him to the hospital, said he kept screaming "take the iron away." Some of the injuries were as much as two weeks old. Both George and his brother, James, 3, had ugly scars on their lips and swelling and discoloration of their sex organs. The boys were discovered after a Ringling, Okla., evangelist, Charles Horner, told authorities the boys' aunt asked him to take George and said she would beat the boy to death if Horner didn't take him.

Amarilloan Faces Assault, Theft Charges

AMARILLO, Jan. 26—UP—A 17-year-old Amarillo youth faced rape and car theft charges Tuesday after his quick arrest Wednesday. The youth, Donald Ray Ellis, was captured by Amarillo police a short time after a 30-year-old Potter County mother told police that her assailant forced his way into her home and raped her. She was able to report the license number of his car after rushing to the window to see him leave. Two traffic patrolmen curbed the car, which proved to be stolen, a short time later in east Amarillo. The boy jumped from the car screaming, "Don't shoot," when the patrolman approached him with guns drawn. Police said after stealing the car in downtown Amarillo the boy drove west to the outskirts of the city. He walked up to the woman's house and asked her if she had any money. When she told him no, he pushed his way into the house and shoved her two children, ages one and three, into the bathroom and closed the door. Then he ripped off the mother's clothes and raped her, police said. Although he warned her against calling police, the mother ran to the window and got the license number as he drove off.

REWARD

(Continued From Page One) was killed. The bomb blasted parts of the automobile Mrs. Weaver was trying to start over half the block. District Attorney Aubrey Stokes said he knows who killed Mrs. Weaver and the killer knows he knows but it will be Friday before anything can be done. Stokes said he won't act for another three days because he must talk to more persons first. Even then, he said, the evidence will not be shown until the trial and the motive will remain secret for the time being. Meanwhile, the district attorney and a Texas Ranger took another mystery trip "into the country" Tuesday to "put together some more loose ends," but they wouldn't say where they went. Stokes told a news conference the killer was an intelligent San Angelo man, and said he told the man's attorneys their client is the primary suspect. A bomb planted under the hood of a parked automobile a week ago killed Mrs. Harris, 52-year-old San Angelo social leader and wife of Harry Weaver, prominent rancher, banker, architect and archeologist. The blast, set off when she started the motor to leave for a beauty parlor appointment, was so shattering it horribly mutilated her body and scattered parts of the car over a wide area. Stokes revealed the explosive used in the bomb was nitroglycerin, first believed used as the explosive. Stokes said he will ask the 51st District grand jury to return an indictment so the district attorney will not have to reveal his evidence until the trial starts. Mrs. Weaver's sister, Mrs. Beverly St. George Tucker, spent an hour with Stokes Tuesday, but neither would comment afterward on their closed-door conference. Stokes still conferring Stokes told newsmen he knows who manufactures the wire and the metal used in the bomb, and he needs only to talk with some more persons before he completes a good case. "We have picked up some stuff, certain types of evidence," the district attorney said. "I'll show it the first time in court. This murder was well-planned. The murderer is intelligent and has covered his tracks well." Stokes said the nitroglycerin apparently was packed around the floor boards of the car and anybody in the front seat would have been killed by the violent explosion. He has said earlier he was sure only Mrs. Weaver was the intended victim. Car Not Driven Far The automobile might have been driven a long distance with the bomb inside it, he said, but such is doubtful because the killer would have feared service station attendant would have spotted it. He said earlier the bomb must have been placed in position by an "expert" because "whoever did it knew what they were doing."

Ike's Manifesto

Those who are familiar with the Communist Manifesto, voiced by Karl Marx in 1848, must have received something of a shock when they heard or read President Eisenhower's message on the State of the Nation.

In very few particulars did Mr. Eisenhower's recommendations veer from the Communist line, of greater reliance on government.

Of course, to begin with, the President made certain that we all knew he was opposed to communism.

He said: "We shall continue to ferret out and destroy Communist subversion."

Then apparently obvious to the contradiction, he proceeded to advocate some of the very projects and socialistic schemes which Marx made famous more than a hundred years ago.

He called for Industrial Mobilization, an Americanism for "nationalization" of industry.

He indicated that American business would find Uncle Sam a big and rich customer, particularly in certain lines of goods. Of course, when Uncle Sam buys, Uncle Sam also controls. And control of industry, through whatever device, is the backbone of Socialism and its aggressive twin, Communism.

Then he called for a 10-year coast to coast Federal highway construction program. It will cost billions. The billions will come from taxes. The graduated and heavy income tax favored by Marx is to be retained and expanded to make just such mammoth dreams into Federal reality.

Next he called for some 35,000 more Federal housing units, thereby striking at the core of our entire real estate business. The right to own private property was at the base of the American picture when the early colonists proclaimed themselves in favor of "Life, Liberty and Property."

He called for an entrance of the Federal Government into Socialized Medicine. But knowing the uproar it would cause if he named it, he advocated a backdoor approach which he termed "a Federal reinsurance program to bolster and expand private health insurance plans."

Next he plumped for Federal Aid to Education, but fearful that here, too, his hand might be called, he said he would have a special message in this category next month, at which time he would try to get the Federal Government to increase its spending so that the "shortage" of school classroom facilities could be overcome.

He then went on to call for "resolute" continuance of farm subsidies, a revision of the Taft-Hartley law (to move it closer to the original shameful Wagner act).

He called for pay increases for those busy busy government men who are dreaming up all these benefits, which are, of course, patterned after the socialist archetype, and just to make sure that government gets bigger and bigger and more and more expensive he indicated that he would urge the creation of a permanent office of Public Works right in his own executive office.

Just in case there is any remaining vestige of belief that Mr. Eisenhower's regime represented a change in administrative aims and objectives, this should remove it. Obviously, governmental invasion of our economy and governmental competition with private business is to be retained indefinitely. Now we are to have a commissar installed permanently to oversee and "coordinate" the governmental invasion.

Just to guarantee that he and his clique are never to be turned out of office he advocated lowering the voting age from twenty-one years where it now stands. There is no evidence to support the thought that by getting more and more of our youth to vote that the quality of our legislative, executive and judicial branches will improve. There is some evidence to be found in car insurance rates and juvenile delinquency records that our inexperienced and unrealistic adolescents might conceivably lower even today's mediocre standards.

Pundits are predicting that Eisenhower will experience little opposition from Democrats in Congress. Such a conclusion is nearly inescapable. What the President has promised coincides with the promises of Lenin, Stalin, Clement Attlee, F.D.R. and Truman. Socialization has been advocated for years by the "liberal" wing of the Democratic party. It looks as though the Republicans are going to have to repudiate their own party head and cast about for a true conservative, or admit that they too have been taken over.

Comrade Mao, the boss of the Chinese Reds, explained it all, in 1934 when he said: "We play on the ambitions of thousands of disgruntled politicians. Men whose ambitions surpass their abilities. As Communists, we do not want them in our party. But we make use of them."

BETTER JOBS By R. C. HOILES

Who Is Teaching Teachers? Readers of this column will remember that in November I talked to a group of pupils attending a class that all prospective teachers must take at the University of California at Los Angeles if they are to receive certificates to teach.

In that talk, I told the students that I would give any one of them $500 if they would get either one of the two professors of education teaching this class to answer a few questions as he would before a court to determine whether or not tax-supported schools are in agreement with the Golden Rule, and I would also give the professor $300 for his attempt to throw light on this question.

This opportunity of getting $500 appealed to a couple of students. I had letters from Jack Blackmon and Rubin Wesley both wanting his proposition put in writing and inquiring about the terms.

I answered both of these students explaining that I could not tell in advance exactly what questions would be asked. I would ask successive questions after the first and succeeding questions had been answered. For example, if the professor said it would not be a violation of the Golden Rule to the question as to whether it would be a violation of the Golden Rule for John Smith to set up a school and choose another individual, say Bob Jones, either to pay a fee for Smith's school or to leave town. Then my second question would be different than it would be if he said it was a violation of the Golden Rule.

Then I explained to students Blackmon and Voti that the purpose of the interview was to ascertain whether or not tax-supported schools are in agreement with the Golden Rule. The requirements of the discussion would be that the professor would answer each question without evasion to the best of his ability in not over a minute's time without the consent of the questioner for longer time. The interview would not last over an hour and a half. I would make a stenographic report and make it available to anyone who wanted to publish it in whole or in part. I would pay the professor $500 for the interview and also would pay the student who got him to submit to the interview $500 for getting him to do so. The time and place to be mutually agreed upon, preferably a public meeting.

Then I explained to these students that I would answer questions on the same conditions, other than I would do it for nothing.

I ended my letter by saying that I think there is nothing more important than to have honest and the technology of the means — that will best promote better education.

The two professors to whom I made the offer were George F. Kneller and Dr. McClean.

I received the following letter on December 7, 1954 from Dr. Kneller:

"I shall be glad to answer your questions in writing, if I can. I propose that the limit be 15 questions submitted, 3, 4, 5 at a time, so as to enable you to adapt your questions to my answers. We might later extend the 15 to perhaps 20 or 25 if you feel justice has not been done. I am not in favor of a public meeting at this time but could be convinced if beforehand we held a conference on the matter. The money factor is not of concern to me, Mr. Blackmon would get the $500 and I would give away my $500 in the form of a scholarship. Have no fear as to the length of my answers. I shall keep them all under 100 words and hopefully stick to about 50-75 night-letter style.

"So fire away... My answer to Dr. Kneller was made on December 13, 1954, as follows:

"Thank you for your letter of December 7 suggesting that I submit three, four or five questions at a time.

"I know of no question that does not require one question to be answered before another is asked. You also suggest a limit of 25 questions. That might be plenty, but it might not.

"Most of the questions could be answered by 'yes' or 'no'. Even a loaded question, such as 'When did you stop beating your wife?' can be answered in not over 10 words — I have not received an answer from Dr. Kneller, and I answered him over a month ago.

One wonders what standard of morals these two teachers of teachers use to teach their pupils moral principles. They certainly do not use the Golden Rule, nor the Coving or Stealing Commandments as a guide. They do not use the moral law that men should get what they want on a voluntary basis, nor do they use the moral standard that no one, under any circumstances, should ever initiate physical force or threats of same to get what they want. The only rule they seem to use is whatever will keep them in power. They love tenure. They love what they call "academic freedom" — that no

Stevenson's 'Egghead' Idea Adopted In Tammany Dist.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Adlai E. Stevenson's so-called "egghead" movement in American politics has been adopted and advanced in the strangest of all possible places, namely a Tammany district club — the Amsterdam Democratic club on New York City's Upper West Side. Around that development may be written a human essay and significant review and preview of recent and future history. The Tammany leader who has first sensed the need for a political transformation and revival, if politics is to remain a vital force among young men and women, is a new kind of district boss. He is 43-year-old Ludwig Teller, a practicing lawyer, a professor at New York Law School, an Assemblyman in the New York State Legislature, the author of a five-volume work on labor law, and a frequent arbiter in industrial disputes.

He believes that today's youngsters and even adults have lost interest in practical politicians, who battle against windmills. Their concern, in his opinion, touches such fields as social and economic progress, and the solution of such basic problems as full employment, juvenile delinquency, educational advancement, immigration, world affairs.

He plans to conduct seminars on these subjects, bringing in experts from nearby universities. Factual studies of conditions in surrounding areas — the Puerto Rican and Harlem districts — will furnish evidence of the causes and cures of our great cities' unsolved problems. In short, the Amsterdam Avenue clubhouse will become an educational and experimental laboratory in human behavior rather than in the mere getting of votes.

Tammany Boss Carmine de Sapio has given his blessing to the project. He hopes that Professor Teller's pioneering venture will serve as a "showcase" and inspiration for every Democratic club in Manhattan.

This evolution is no ordinary incident. It mirrors the vast social, economic and educational changes which have transformed the political landscape and thought in our time. It parallels such developments as the radio, the automobile, television and atomic power. In fact, these inventions are largely responsible for the new type of Tammany boss and clubhouse. And this same metamorphosis has occurred throughout the country, not only in New York.

Hardly a generation ago, the Tammany clubhouse was the lively social center of every neighborhood, ranking next to the church in influence. It provided entertainment, education of a sort, debates, companionships, jobs and charity. It was all things to all men and women, especially those on the threshold of life.

Several nights a week, the brick buildings blazed with lights and music, with balls, theatricals, minstrel shows and other entertainments. It dared question their infallibility.

It is no wonder our juvenile delinquency and our adult delinquency, education of a sort, debates, companionships, jobs and charity. It was all things to all men and women, especially those on the threshold of life. Several nights a week, the brick buildings blazed with lights and music, with balls, theatricals, minstrel shows and other entertainments. It dared question their infallibility.

Gift's To Unemployed Man's Child Ties In Toy Maker

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Associated Press on Christmas Eve published a big slab of partisan political cheese. An AP wirephoto printed in the New Brunswick, N. J. Home News showed a father, mother and seven children, by name Fitzgerald, resident in Campbell, O., enjoying a "Merry Christmas from the White House."

The cutlines read: "Deeply troubled because her unemployed daddy would not be able to provide much Christmas cheer, 12-year-old Laura Lee Fitzgerald wrote Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower about a week ago. On Wednesday an Army Lieut. Col. delivered the answer to her letter — a bulging box with toys for six boys and Laura Lee."

So the great, big, boyish, vacation-loving president took time out from his trouting and golfing to dispatch an army officer on salary paid by the taxpayers to deliver the toys.

I venture that this resort to mawkishness on a holy occasion was intended to ingratiate Ike with the public by being fetched and to aggrandize his friend, Louis Marx, already a man of mysterious prestige.

No reasons were stated why the Fitzgeralds found themselves wanting on Christmas. Did some union ostracize Fitzgerald, pere, from lawful toil and prevent the performance of his duties? We don't know, because the AP and the Home News were silent as to that. But the scene contrived by the publicity people emphasized the name of one of Ike's personal friends, stenciled in heavy letters on that "box bulging with toys." The legend advertised free: "Louis Marx and Co., Inc., 200 Fifth Ave., New York."

Mr. Marx manufactures and sells toys. His free publicity in syndicated "Broadway" and "Hollywood" columns never gives any corporate particulars. Recently, J. P. McEvoy and wife put Marx into the house of lords, as it were, with an unexplained, but markedly meager biography in the reader's digest. By way of good measure only, I mention the fact that McEvoy's son is a member of the editorial cabinet of the digest. I thought the tribute to Mr. Marx's charity was immodest and the description of dolls which could be opened to teach little girls garb and genital fundamentals was disgusting. However, I am hard to please.

During the war, Marx was a civilian guest at Ike's grand military headquarters, first at Rhams and later in conquered Germany. Germany was a great producer of ingenious toys. Soon before Ike was nominated, the Taft side put two and two together and added them up to a suspicion. Therefore, Marx arranged an audit to indicate that he had not availed himself of any chance to pick up any designs, ideas or secrets from the German toy industry. Advised of this by one of Ike's major generals, I called Mr. Marx, who was then in London, but got silence for an answer.

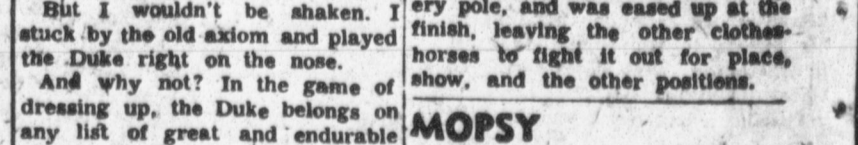

I first became conscious of Marx on a tip that General Ridgway, en route from Korea to Europe, was a guest in Marx's luxurious suite in the Waldorf, with Mrs. Ridgway, their child, and a servant. This startled me less than the alarm which I provoked in the General Intelligence Administration by asking what went on, any- how, later in the year. Mr. Marx, I later was informed that he and Marx were in-laws of some degree. Informants have since told me that Mr. Marx likes to "collect" American generals and that he had even formed a corporation and given five of them, including Ike and Smith, a chance to buy stock which had increased tenfold. As the publicity increased, I observed that Ike, Marshall, Bradley, Smith and Roscoe O'Donnell had been his house-guests and that he had named his own sons after them in descending rank until he ran out of sons. I believe O'Donnell is high on the waiting list.

Ridgway is the only one who held the Korean command who did not agree with MacArthur, Clark and half a dozen other noted American generals and admirals that the Truman-Acheson-Pentagon machine imposed conditions which made victory impossible and defeat inevitable. He is now chief of staff.

Intentionally or not, Marx is a built-up personality of wide renown. I submit that he and his friends, Ike, Marshall and Smith, ought to tell us why he, a civilian, was bidden to the grand headquarters and what he did while there. We might find reason to admire him the more.

Hank Votes For Duke Edward As World's Best Dressed

By HENRY McLEMORE

Always ride with the champion. That's one of the oldest axioms in sports, so when I heard that the voting to determine the ten best-dressed men had started, I laid a small wager on Edward, Duke of Windsor.

That was weeks and weeks ago, so I was betting the Duke in the Winter Book, and all horse players know that to play the Winter Book on anything is to run about the same as betting in a room with an unbuttoned pouch does at a pickpocket's convention.

The Duke wasn't even the favorite at the time. I got 4 to 1 on him, while Cary Grant was 4 to 5, William Paley was even money, and Serge Obolensky a short 2 to 1. Tips on Obolensky were flying all around Callente, and it was a temptation to follow what seemed the "wise" money, particularly when it was going on such a veteran and proven sartorial stakes winner as the Russian innkeeper.

What is more, there were all sorts of rumors about the Duke, the most persistent being that he had pulled up lame, so to speak, by coming out strongly for cuffs on his coal sleeves.

"Even the Duke can't beat that impostor," a haberdashery handicapper told me. "He's the real, solid class of the field, but even Native Dancer couldn't have won a race with Elze Maxwell up. He may place or show, but he'll never get the No. 1 spot. I look for Cary to take top money."

But I wouldn't be shaken. I stuck by the old axiom and played the Duke right on the nose.

And why not? In the game of dressing up, the Duke belongs on any list of great and enduring champions. Tilden in tennis, Hitchcock in polo, Hoppe in billiards, Cobb in baseball, none lasted any longer or more completely dominated his sport than the Duke. He is no longer young, but just let the valet-in-chief dust off the wardrobe and call "Play ball!" and England's former monarch will outdress them all.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

THERE IS A SMALL PAMPHLET that comes out every two months for clubwomen. It contains a lot of nice suggestions for programs. Some of you may receive it, but if you don't, I thought I'd pass a few of those suggestions on to you.

IN THE JANUARY-FEBRUARY issue a suggestion was made for a Valentine's party. I think it could also be applied at Christmas. It's called "Have a Heart" party. Each member is to buy a Valentine with a cute "doll" figure on it. The member then copies the costume of the "doll" and comes dressed like the "doll" to the party. She also dresses a real doll the same way. The dolls are then given to a hospital, community center or children's home. They might even be sent to a mission.

It might require quite a bit of work by club members, but is certainly worthwhile if a club has a request to donate dolls to some worthy group. Might be just a lot of fun for a purely social affair. Just have the members come dressed like the figure on the Valentine and not use the doll angle.

ADVICE TO FINANCIAL chairmen also appears in the pamphlet. Here are a few excerpts. "Remember, when you start a money-making program you are in business... for a profit; you can learn from business men's experiences. For one thing, profits in business or in any other money-making activity are seldom as big as you would believe at first, so don't be discouraged."

"Budget your advance outlay of cash at a reasonable amount (not too little for the necessities, but not enough to get up your potential profits). In short, keep your overhead down, and when someone starts getting expensive ideas—duck!"

"Remember that good management is the key to success."

'Sport' Luggage Is Popular With Teens

The teenage crowd is becoming "visi" conscious, say luggage retailers. Overnight pajama parties, cream study sessions, staying with a friend after the game or dance—all create a demand for accessory-type luggage which is fashionable, popular priced and easy to pack and carry.

Boys seem to prefer zipped styles in the popular club bag designs. Frequently, these are purchased to match a garment carrier which holds a suit wrinkle-free for after the game dates. Popular choices are blue and tan, although small checks and subdued plaids are often selected.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Palmerton, 603 Tignor, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary quietly in their home Tuesday. It was also the 74th birthday of Mr. Palmerton, a veteran of the Spanish American War. The couple was married in Portage, Ohio, and moved to Texas in 1934. They lived in Wink and Odessa before coming to Pampa in 1947. Their first introduction to Texas, however, came in 1919 when they visited Breckenridge during the oil boom. The couple has two children, a son, B. F. Palmerton of Rule, formerly of Skellytown, and a daughter, Mrs. W. Davis of Kerville — and five grandchildren. The bouquet in the picture was sent for their anniversary by their daughter. (News photo)

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

One gray dawn five years ago an old man slipped quietly into death, facing the P.'s with the question: "Do we now ask Grandma to live with us?"

A friend put their answer into words. She said, "Oh, you can't! You haven't room! Can you afford a bigger house with college afford for the children? Does Molly want to give up her club work to take care of it? Grandma would need ground-floor space because of stairs. How could you entertain—the children bring home their high school friends? You know how old people are about quiet. No, you had your own lives to live."

So the P.'s installed Grandma, enticed by shock and grief, in a "small place" of her own.

The other day their college junior son, home for the weekend, asked them to finance marriage for him until he could do it himself. Accused of irresponsibility toward them, he hotly protested that he, too, had his "own life" to live.

Would he have made this demand had Grandma become a member of his household? I'd doubt it. I suspect that the P.'s son, given his parents' example of inter-generational responsibility, would have developed some himself.

There is, may I suggest, a purpose in the fact that Grandma's dependence coincides with our child's adolescence. She intrudes her need of us at the identical time life's outgrowing it. As he approaches maturity, this coincidence gives us our chance to define his responsibilities to him.

The problem is one we didn't count on in the down payment for our efficient, two-generation houses that include no space for Grandma.

As television continues to replace her in our living rooms, I don't see how young people can avoid concluding that our middle-age is the Age of Self-Indulgence.

They're bound to feel, "We don't see you inconveniencing yourself for your parent. Why should we inconvenience ourselves for you?"

An irresponsible child is a bore, so the P.'s might try to improve their example of give-and-take between generations.

I urge that club work be curtailed to make more time for Grandma. Her need is not a liability. It offers the P.'s their opportunity to increase their son's respect for their usefulness at the very time that his depressing need of it tempts him to doubt it.

It's their chance to earn new appreciation.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

Most people who are ill prefer a little sympathy from friends to a hearty "You'll-be-all-right-in-a-few-days" dismissal of their troubles. When a doctor says those words they mean something.

When a friend says them they are likely to sound merely indifferent.

Harvesters Make It 12 Straight Over Sandstorm, 63-52

Win Is 44th In Row At Home For PHS

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Hustlin' Harvesters took over the driver's seat in the District 1-AAAA (Northern Hill) cage race last night when they ripped apart the Amarillo Sandies, 63-52, before an overflow crowd of 2,500 fans at Harvester Fieldhouse.

It was the second win against no losses in conference play for the Green and Golders. All other teams have been beaten at least one time, Amarillo and Borger each owns a 1-1 record in loop play while Lubbock is winless in two starts.

Last night's win was the 44th in a row for the Harvesters in games played at Harvester Fieldhouse. It was also the 12th straight time the Harvesters have downed the Sandies.

Amarillo was able to make it close throughout the first quarter and through the early part of the second period. But once the Harvesters got going it was no stopping them.

The score was deadlocked at 14-14 after one quarter of play and it was still tied 2:15 minutes deep in the second period, 18-18.

It was at this point the Harvesters caught fire. E. Jay McIlvain, who turned in another fine performance for the Harvesters, hit a jump shot to put the Harvesters ahead, 20-18, and the Pampans were never headed.

The Harvesters, in fact, scored nine points while holding Amarillo scoreless after the 18-18 deadlock. This put the Harvesters ahead, 27-18, with three minutes left in the first half.

The McNeelymen went on to a 33-22 halftime lead.

McIlvain High
McIlvain scorched the nets for 23 points to capture scoring honors for the game. McIlvain also turned in an outstanding game on defense.

The 6-3 Harvester forward alternated with Gary Griffin in guarding the Sandie hotshot, Bub Farrell, who registered only 10 points for his night's work.

Farrell was limited to one field goal the first three quarters, his next and last field goal coming with three minutes in the game.

Griffin, noticeably bothered by his back injury, got 12 points for the night, nevertheless, Griffin sat out most of the last half after committing his fourth personal foul.

The hottest scorer of the night, however, was Kenny Hinkle of the winning Harvesters. Hinkle poured in nine field goals out of 11 tries, most of them long range jump shots.

Hinkle led a third quarter Harvester spree that shot the locals ahead by 23 points at the three-quarter mark, 54-31. The speedy Harvester guard pumped in four field goals in the third period.

Harvesters Never Behind
The Harvesters were never behind in last night's tilt. But the Sandies were able to tie the score, five times, 2-2, 10-10, 12-12, 14-14 and 18-18.

On four of the five times the Harvesters unknotted the score, it was McIlvain doing the scoring.

Griffin broke the 14-14 first quarter deadlock with a field goal in the early seconds of the second period with McIlvain snapping the deadlocks on the other four occasions.

McIlvain hit 11 of 12 free shots for the night and added six field goals for his 23 points.

The Harvesters had a good night, percentage-wise, on their field goal shooting, hitting 23 times out of 42 tries for 52.3. The Sandies also wound up with a fair percentage from the floor, canning 18 of 44 tries for 40.9.

The Harvesters will journey to Borger Friday night to take on the dangerous Borger Bulldogs.

Saperstein Maps Trotter-Star Tour

NEW YORK, Jan. 26 — Abe Saperstein, owner of the Harlem Globe Trotters, announced the 11-city Tuesday for their sixth annual tour with a pick-up team of college all-stars which will depart on Sunday, March 27 in Madison Square Garden with afternoon and night games.

Saperstein booked a total of 22 games in 21 cities with daily appearances for the two teams until closing of the tour with an afternoon game at Detroit, April 16.

For the first time the road show will include Texas. Games this year are scheduled for Waco and Houston.

The all-star squad, made up of seniors who have finished their basketball careers and are ready to turn professional, will not be selected until the middle of March.

A panel of coaches from all sections of the nation will name the squad. Seniors from 55 different colleges have been on the rosters of past all-star teams.

The Globe Trotters won each of the previous tours.

The 1935 schedule:
MARCH 27—New York (day and night); 28—Boston; 29—Buffalo; 30—Hershey, Pa.; 31—Richmond, Va.; APRIL 1—Philadelphia; 2—Cincinnati; 3—Chicago (afternoon); 4—Indianapolis; 5—Elkhart, Ind.; 6—Iowa City; 7—Denver; 8—Kansas City, Mo.; 9—St. Louis, Mo.; 10—Waco, Tex.; 11—Houston; 12—Huntington, W. Va.; 13—Cleveland; 14—Des Moines; 15—Milwaukee; 16—Detroit (afternoon).

Selvy, former record-smasher from Furman, remained spot of the 91st points race with a grand sum of 915, followed by Pettit with 875.

It's the third straight week that the two newcomers have topped the list and these are the only occasions in history that the NBA has been led by two players who are rookies, or by two players on a last place team.

Selvy set the league lead on a basis of average points per game. He's notched 21.3 points per game while defending scoring champion Nell Johnston of Philadelphia, who had been leading steadily on this basis, dropped to second, an eyelash behind at 21.2.

Pettit grabbed the lead in rebounds with a total of 612 points to 608 for Johnston and 603 for defending champion Harry Gallatin of New York. But Bob has played four games more than Johnston and two more than Gallatin—so his lead is a fragile thing.

HERE'S HOW — Ken Hinkle, above, Harvester guard, displays the shot that accounted most of his 18 points last night in playing a leading role of the Harvesters' 63-52 win over Amarillo. Hinkle hit nine field goals in 11 tries. (News Photo)

Shamrock, Dumas Quints Break Even
SHAMROCK, Jan. 26 — (Special) — Shamrock and Dumas broke even in a District 1-AA basketball doubleheader here Tuesday night.

The Shamrock girls won by 61-37 while the Dumas boys walked off with a 61-50 verdict.

Connie Lewis with 33 points led the Shamrock girls to victory. The Irish lasses had to overcome a 13-10 Dumas lead at the first quarter mark. The winners moved ahead, 22-19 at halftime and 47-32 at the three-quarter mark.

Jim Smith was high for the Shamrock boys with 15. Bill Cleveland led Dumas with 22. Dumas led at the end of each quarter, 12-9, 31-19 and 48-31.

Catchers Blast New Ruling
NEW YORK, Jan. 26 — UP—Catchers Yogi Berra, Roy Campanella and Wes Westrum joined in a chorus of anguish Wednesday about baseball's latest rule changes and asked, "what about pitchers?"

The three veteran backstops were referring to the new rule announced Monday which cut the size of the catcher's box from a roomy eight feet to a skinny 43 inches and ordered the catcher to stay in that spot until the pitcher releases the ball.

Berra, the not-so-dumb New York Yankee receiver who was voted the American League's "most valuable player" last season, said "I want the umpires to explain to me how we can call for a pitchout and still stay in that narrow box without the ball flying past you."

Campanella shook his head. "Man," he said, "is that gonna cause some arguments."

The soft-spoken Westrum said he thinks the new rule is going to be just as tough on pitchers as it will be on catchers.

Giardello Meets Andrews In TV Bout
NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 26 — UP—What have cops, surgeons and boxing officials done to Joey Giardello, stormy petrel of the ring? Philadelphia Joey will provide the answer Wednesday night in his nationally televised make-or-break fight with speedy Al Andrews before a sellout crowd of 3,800 at the Norfolk City auditorium.

If the number one contender wins impressively over Andrews of Superior, Wis., he can clinch a shot at Bobo Olson's middleweight crown in late March at the Chicago stadium.

But if he loses, he can blame a knee operation, two embroilments with Philadelphia police and a ruckus with the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission. This is his first ring appearance since he ran the gamut of a madcap's misfortunes.

It is also the first fight ever televised from the state of Virginia, and Norfolk's first professional boxing show in seven years.

All profits from the expected gate of $17,000 will go to the "March of Dimes" polo fund. In addition, the International Boxing club will contribute $2,000. The IBC and Goldie Adams of Washington, D.C., are co-promoting the show to help the March-of-Dimes drive.

Giardello, 24, is favored at 13-5 although he hasn't fought in nearly four months—not since Sept. 24, when he outpointed Ralph (Tiger) Jones.

Joey was slated to fight Olson for the 160-pound title at the San Francisco Cox Palace, Dec. 15, but he couldn't go through with the match. Pierre Langlois of France substituted as challenger and was stopped in the 11th round.

126 pounds — Tony Lopez, Amarillo, TKO Carl Danner, 35 seconds, third round.

126 pounds — Clark Darden, Borger, dec. Frank Bielea, Amarillo, 126 pounds — Willford Taylor, Canyon, KO Gary Green, Pampa, 1:15, second round.

126 pounds — Larry Ledbetter, McLean, KO Reuben Hernandez, Amarillo, 22 seconds, first round.

135 pounds — Tom Crump, Amarillo, TKO Ray Williams, Lockney, second round (Williams failed to answer bell).

135 pounds — Arthur Vineyard, McLean, TKO Donnie Appersh, Abernathy (Plainview District), 17 seconds, first round (Appersh cut under eye).

135 pounds — J. C. Hayden, Amarillo, dec. Dick Knight, Abernathy (Plainview District).

135 pounds — Jesse Ring, Pampa, KO Ronnie Ratliff, Canyon, 1:10, first round.

147 pounds — Don Britain, Canyon (Plainview District), TKO Bill James, Amarillo, 28 seconds, second round.

155 pounds — Jerry Halford, Plainview, TKO Larry Stroup, Canyon, 28 seconds, second round.

Furgol Enters Scotch Open

McLean 5s Take 2 From Memphis
McLEAN, Jan. 26 — (Special) — McLean won both games of a doubleheader from Memphis here Tuesday night.

The McLean boys romped to a 61-45 win over the Cyclones while the Tigertettes downed the Memphis girls, 68-37.

Jim Ferren led McLean boys with 27 points.

Harlene Moore was high for the Tigertettes with 23.

Both games were District 1-A affairs.

Andrews Climbs To No. 2 Spot In Lighthweight Ranks
NEW YORK, Jan. 26 — UP—Paul Andrews of Buffalo, N.Y., was boosted into position to negotiate for a light heavyweight title fight Wednesday by the Ring Mag. Andrews, 24-year-old protege of Joe Louis, was lifted from fifth to second place among 175-pound contenders because of his upset knockout over Boardwalk Billy Smith.

Smith of Atlantic City was the top contender when Andrews stopped him in the sixth round at Miami on Dec. 29 and snapped Billy's winning streak at eight straight. The defeat dropped Smith to fifth rung.

Maxim Above Andrews
Now, only ex-champion Joey Maxim of Cleveland is ranked above Andrews; but Maxim already has engaged champion Archie Moore in three title fights and lost three decisions. Andrews is in an enviable position for negotiating title fight.

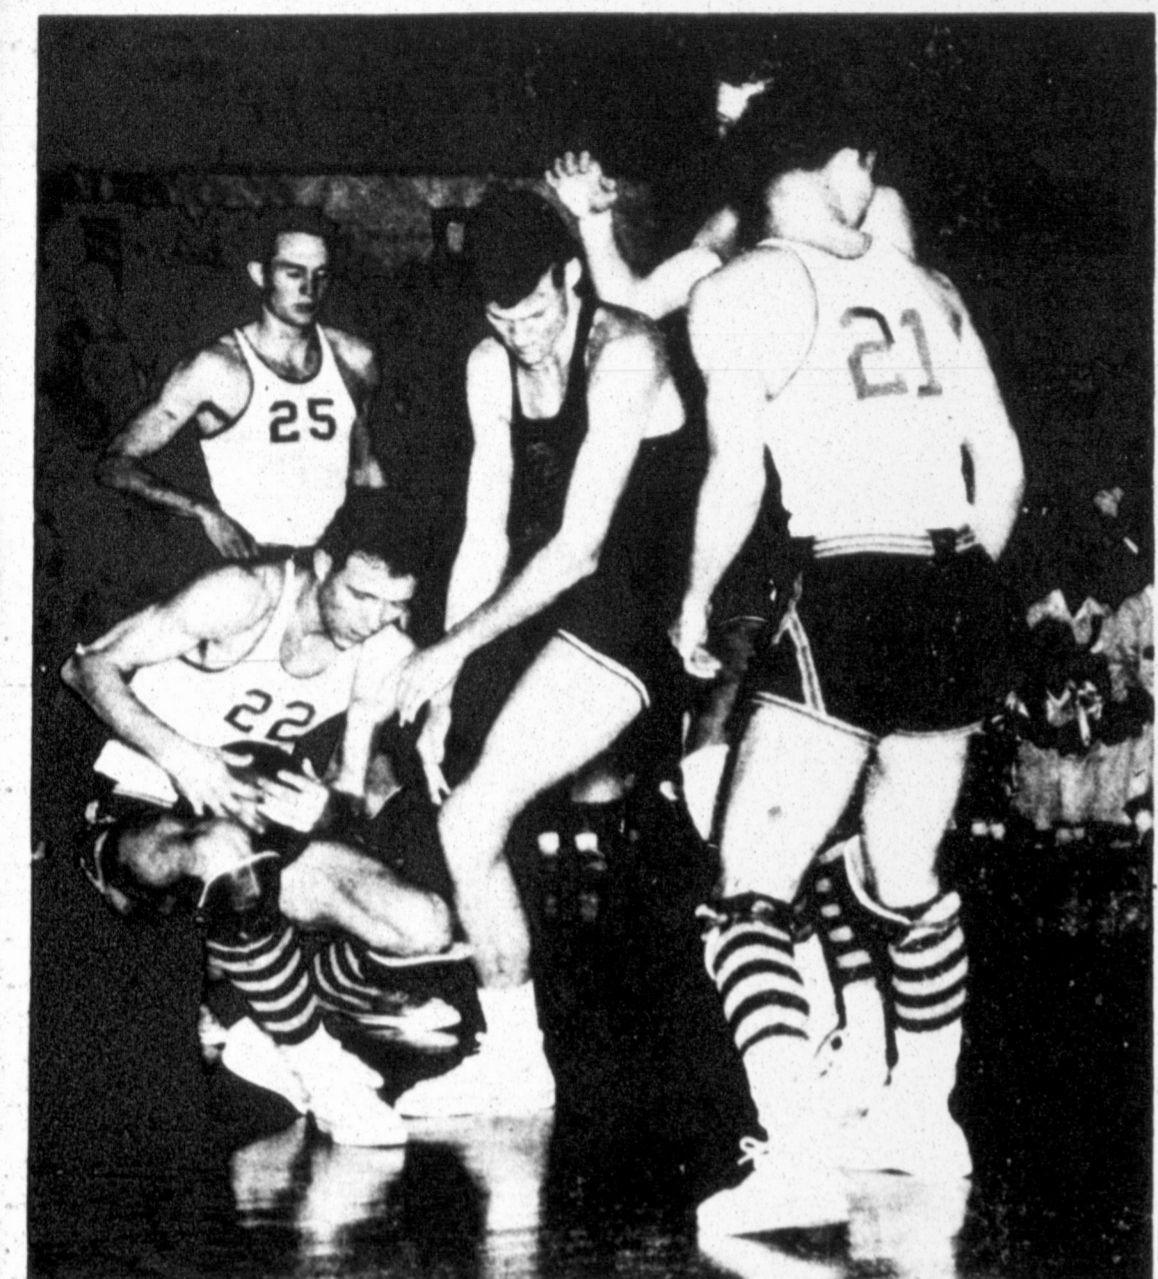

Harold Johnson of Philadelphia and young Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn remained in their third and fourth berths, respectively.

In the heavyweight division, Rex Layne of Salt Lake City, Utah, was boosted from ninth to seventh; and Charley Norikus of Jersey City was lifted one notch to ninth. But Jimmy Slade of New York was dropped from seventh to tenth.

Martinez Rises
Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., rose from sixth to fourth among welterweight contenders because of his victory over Al Andrews. Walter champ Johnny Saxton, who was rated only third in ability in the last previous ratings, the annual ratings, was not ranked in Wednesday's regular monthly list, which considers only the ability of contenders.

Among lightweights, Johnny Gonsalves of Oakland jumped from tenth to sixth because of his draw with fifth-ranked Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati. Cicco Anzade of Compton, Calif., beaten by third-place Ralph Dupas of New Orleans, dropped from eighth to ninth.

Raton, Macias of Mexico replaced the retired Jimmy Carruthers of Australia as top bantamweight contender; and Mario D'Amagata of Italy moved up to second place. The Ring Magazine continued to recognize Robert Cohen of France as world champion although the National Boxing Association recently vacated his crown for failure to defend against Macias.

WONDER IF ART GATTS. Lubbock sports scribe, would like to retract the statement he made last week when he said, "Outside of Griffin and McIlvain, the Harvesters are weak."

Gatts, apparently, like a lot of critics do, judge a basketball player by his scoring ability alone.

And even so, the Lubbock type-writer-puncher must have over-looked the scoring ability of guard Ken Hinkle, not to mention the other two starters, Benny Cartwright and Buddy Sharp.

Before the Harvesters met Lubbock, Hinkle had scored in the double figures (10 points or more) eight times in 17 games which is a fair record for a guard.

And Sharp, the other guard, had hit the double-figures four times.

Then Hinkle has been pouring it on in conference play. He started off with eight points against Lubbock and then scorched the threads for 18 points in last night's win over Amarillo, giving him a 13-point per-game average in 1-AAA section.

But Hinkle's value doesn't lie in his scoring ability alone. He's one of the finest defensive players in the state.

Hinkle always draws the assignment of guarding the opposition's "hottest" scorer (other than the center position).

And he never lets Coach Clifton McNeely down in turning in a fine sportscaster of KGNC-TV, didn't give the Harvester-Amarillo score on his 10:30 broadcast last night?

I don't believe the Harvesters

Porkers Meet OCU Tonight

By UNITED PRESS
Arkansas cagers, concerned mostly with final examinations this week, meet Oklahoma City University in a non-conference game Wednesday night at Fayetteville. It's the Razorbacks' only basketball contest this week.

The big Southwest Conference match will come Friday night, when Baylor and Southern Methodist tangle to decide who will climb into the No. 1 spot beside current, loop leader Texas Christian.

SMU, with a 3-1 win-loss record in conference play, meets Baylor also 3-1, in Dallas. The two high-scoring clubs have conference competition all to themselves this week as most cagers cram for final exams.

TCU meets Abilene Christian at Abilene and Texas meets Houston in Houston in two non-conference games Saturday night.

The Methodists and Baptists enter Friday night's game as scoring leaders in conference play—SMU with 79 points averaged and Baylor with 81. The contest will see SMU's Jim Krebs and Baylor's Murray Bailey battle for points on the hardwood.

Krebs has averaged 21.0 points per conference game, while Bailey has averaged 23.2. Both are running considerably below the leader, however, as TCU's Dick O'Neal boasts a torrid 30.4 in the Fogs' 4-1 league competition.

The OCU Chiefs hope their game with Arkansas Wednesday night will break a two-game losing streak. Arkansas downed the Chiefs 81-76 in an overtime clash last month at Oklahoma City.

The Razorbacks hold a slightly better season record than the Chiefs, though. Arkansas has won 7 out of 11 games, while OCU has finished on top in only 4 out of 11 tries.

Sooner Aggies Try Houston 5 Tonight

By UNITED PRESS
Cincinnati shoots for win No. 14 in 17 starts and the Oklahoma Aggies and Auburn try to improve their conference standings in the last two straight. Georgia Tech feature games of Wednesday has won only one of five starts since its slim college basketball product.

Cincinnati, flirting with a spot in the national rankings but presently just outside the top 20, is heavily favored in a home game against Baylor State. The Bearcats, who have beaten such outfits as Mississippi Southern, Georgia-Mercer, Indiana, Western Kentucky, Mississippi, and Dayton, have won their last four games.

The Oklahoma Aggies, who meet Houston Wednesday night, have won or shared the Missouri Valley conference title in 14 of the last 19 seasons but this year they're figured as outside hopes for the crown. A win Wednesday night would make their league record 2-1 and put them in third place behind Tulsa and St. Louis, both unbeaten in league play.

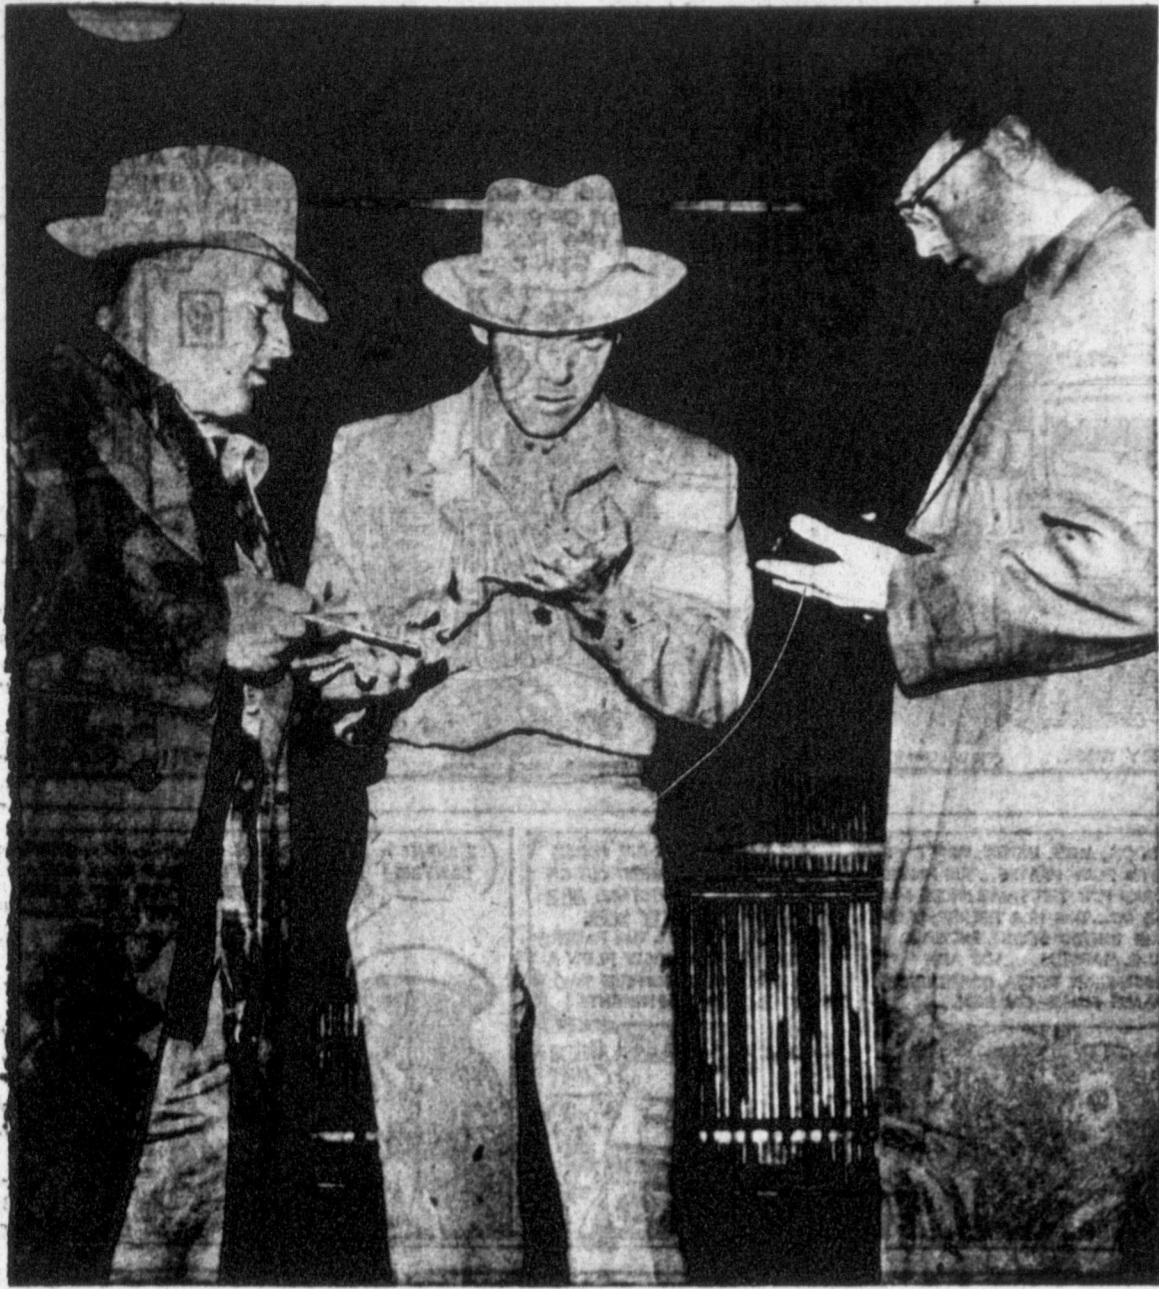

Auburn, now seventh in the Southeastern Conference, will have to beat Georgia Tech to keep from losing that spot to the Engineers. Auburn was the last major-college team to remain unbeaten, winning Aggies and Auburn try to improve their conference standings in the last two straight. Monroney Says Big Dams Do Only Half Job

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26—UP. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) says the government is spending 94 cents of every flood control dollar on big dams that do only half the job. "The flood control potential of upstream dams is being pushed aside by the more spectacular program of major dams sought by the Army engineers," Monroney told a meeting of Oklahoma soil conservation leaders Monday. "Farmers' dams—those built upstream where the water falls—would do more good for the money spent," he said. Army Gets Most Upstream flood control currently is getting $21 million per year from the federal budget, while Army engineers are spending $350 million each year on main stream projects, Monroney said. Monroney said the Budget Bureau should change practices which permit this one-sided division. He said big dams are designed to curb only 50 per cent of the flood damage in the country. He said upstream flood control funds are included in the Agriculture Department budget but should be an item on the Civil Functions bill. "We must try to transfer the place from which we get money for upstream control," he said. "The Agriculture Department budget is largely for current expenses for management of the department. Subject to Misunderstanding "When flood control funds are included they are subject to misunderstanding because it appears the overhead of the department is out of line." Monroney said the $21 million available for "dams on the hill-tops" this year will be spent largely on watershed projects, including the Trinity and Colorado River projects in Texas and the Washita Project in Oklahoma. "The dribble is so small, Monroney said, "it will take 150 to 200 years to complete the program at the present pace."

Kin Of Jailed Airmen Plan To Visit China

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—UP. The second of three families visited by Canadian Squadron Leader A. R. (Andy) MacKenzie said Tuesday they intend to visit their imprisoned son in Communist China. W. G. Parks, father of Lt. Roland Parks, said in Omaha, Neb., that he and his wife "definitely intend to go." Parks' decision meant that the relatives of four of 17 imprisoned Americans have decided to accept Red China's offer to visit them. MacKenzie, who was released from two years of Communist imprisonment only last December, is visiting the families of four Americans who shared his captivity. He is telling the fathers and mothers that "I'm sure the boys are dying to see their families." The parents of Capt. Harold Fischer Jr. of Swea City, Iowa, had already decided to go to China before MacKenzie visited them. Other relatives who want to make the trip are the wife of Capt. Elmer F. Llewellyn and the brother and sister of Alrman Steve Kiba. Parks, who was at first "wary" about making the trip, said "we looked into the matter further and decided if it would help we would go."

U. S. Forest Service Proud Of Campaign Measurement To Be Taken

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—UP. The U. S. Forest Service, created 50 years ago next Tuesday, looked back proudly Monday at a conservation campaign that has changed the face of the nation and assured it of all the wood it needs. More than that, present wood production could be doubled if necessary, a forest expert estimated. When President Theodore Roosevelt signed a bill on Feb. 1, 1908, creating the service, lumbermen were chopping through the nation's dwindling forests and leaving wastelands behind as their sawmills moved on. Today, conservation-minded forest industries manage their land for continuous production and encourage farmers to handle trees on small woodlots like other crops. Service Grows The Forest Service has grown from a handful of crusading conservationists to a great land-management, research and educational agency within the Department of Agriculture. It has more than 8,700 permanent employees and about 12,700 working at the height of the forest fire seasons. Half a century ago, the few areas set aside as national forests were in remote "back country" with few roads or other facilities for fire protection and timber harvesting. The Forest Service today operates 118 national forests covering 181,151,000 acres in 39 states, Alaska and Puerto Rico. These forests cover 18 per cent of the nation's commercial forest land. Under scientific management, the national forests now supply more than a billion board feet of timber annually and the harvest is growing. The forests also furnish seasonal grazing for millions of cattle and sheep and supply recreation for millions of city-bound citizens. Scientific Methods The shift to scientific cutting methods and re-planting of cut-over lands has not been the only factor in rebuilding forest resources, Leonard Barrett, a Forest Service official, said. The growth of fire protection systems under private, state and federal sponsorship has been important in preserving woodland that might otherwise have been destroyed. Federal co-operation with states for the protection of state and private lands from fire began on a small scale in 1911. Today more than 374 million acres of state and private lands are protected by the system. Forest service research, in addition to searching for new and better wood products, is turning out faster-growing trees to speed up wood crops. Experiment workers are cross-breeding trees hoping for the same sensational results that came from hybrid corn.

Big Eaters Hurl Gustatorial Insults

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 26—UP—Seventeen broiled lobsters and two lime pies at one sitting.

Or: Twelve steaks with five lamb chops on the side.

Lobster and rice salad, 13 slabs of thick roast beef, half a strawberry pie decorated by six scoops of ice cream.

There are three of the gustatorial feats listed by Sports Editor Walter Stewart of Memphis in the latest skirmish of a war of words running from Tennessee to New York to London over who is the world's champion eater.

Stewart rose in indignation after reading some stunts by Herman Hickman, former Yale and Army football coach. Hickman had been challenged by the British title holder, a 154-pound sportswriter named Harold Mayes who specializes in meat and potatoes.

Hickman, a 306-pounder, suggested that Mayes first take part in an elimination involving "a second or third-string eater like Walter Stewart."

What particularly incensed Stewart, though, was Hickman's account of a brief encounter with Stewart a couple of years ago at Mississippi State. Hickman said he outate Stewart so thoroughly that the Memphis man reeled off into the darkness sobbing hysterically while Hickman waved a chicken leg in gleeful triumph.

"Nothing, with the exception of Mr. Hickman could be further from the truth," Stewart says in rebuttal.

"We remember the incident perfectly for it was embedded in a balmy summer's evening following a coaching clinic. So we soaked up four barbecued chickens and so did Herman. Then he disappeared in the direction of the pit and returned with another one.

"Come on," he roared, splitting out a thigh-bone and a dislodged incisor. "I'll eat you under the table. Come on, you boaster."

"We merely smiled thinly, for it was obvious that Herman was reaching the point of no return. As any expert eater knows, there are certain physical phenomena which indicate this condition in red neon—the cold sweat on a pallid brow, glazed eyes and shallow breathing. Herman wore every symptom like a banner, so our smiles dissolved into a laugh as we moved off to the pit for a fresh chicken.

"But the treacherous Hickman had taken the last one before throwing down the gauntlet—then went about crowing over a triumph hollow as we were after a mere four fowls."

Stewart said he could recall another night when Hickman ate a lone barbecued ham and had to have a stomach pump.

"Herman has burst entirely through the seat of his glittering blue serge pants and we're tired of concealing facts pertaining to this babbling balloon," the Memphis scribe said.

Stewart refused to be drawn into a new contest with Hickman. He said he had retired and gone on a diet, given up competitive eating.

"And why not?" he asked. "Would Jack Dempsey come back in order to mingle with Archie Moore? Would Tris Speaker pull on a glove to prove that he used to be a better fielder than Ralph Kiner?"

"Well, Hickman's brassy challenges are just as effective. We'd no more condescend to meet him than Mars would come down off Mount Olympus to do battle with Mortimer Snerd."

Take it from there, Hickman!

Pilots, Airline Settle Dispute

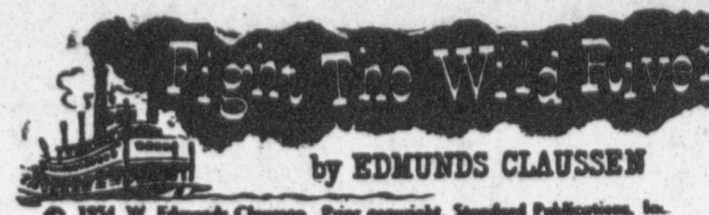

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—UP—The heads of American Airlines and the Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA) have announced the settlement of a dispute over flying time for pilots on non-stop cross-country flights.

The issue erupted in a 25-day strike by members of the ALPA against the company last September.

American's president, C. R. Smith, and Clarence N. Sayen, president of the union, announced the agreement in a joint statement Monday night.

Under its terms, transcontinental flights will continue, with pilots on flight time credit at a rate of one-and-a-half time for all time over eight hours.

The agreement also provides an "override" of $1.50 an hour for captains and $1 for pilots on non-stop transcontinental flights.

XXVIII SUGAR LOGAN wasn't waiting at the appointed place as Crotch put his steamboat against the mud bank at Yuma. The captain stepped ashore, hurrying toward Fernand Modest's store, still searching for Logan.

The trading establishment was a long, barnlike interior, with shelves piled high with merchandise from the East. Modest did a prosperous business with post soldier, redman and miner on the trail.

The trader stepped out from behind an aisle heaped with goods. "A Merry Christmas, Captain! Am very glad to see you!" A broad smile touched Modest's face.

"The same," Crotch acknowledged. "Where is he? What happened to that chiseler from La Paz Milling Company?"

"Too bad, Captain. This man Logan, the one you persist in calling your friend, went upriver this morning on the Clearmore. I tried to call attention to the fact that you are dependent on his contract for La Paz ore—but it was no use. What can mortal man do, when the devil works his way in us?" and Modest quickly made the sign of the cross.

"The end of our contract," Crotch murmured. "If I could get my hands around Jamison's neck! Don't these poor fools know his smooth talk is only a lie? That man will triple our rates as soon as I'm off the river."

"Of course. And his Amador has been towed to dry dock at Port Isabel. I saw her go below Yuma a few weeks ago."

The prize Navigation steamer that for years had fought Crotch's tooth and nail was indeed being rebolted.

"Always something for men like Ben Goss and Melott and me," Crotch nodded. But he knew the combine was fighting ruthlessly up and down the river to prevent him carrying a pound of cargo.

CLIMBING onto his gangplank, he found his Cocopahs had already transferred most of their cargo to the landing on their backs. A woman stepped up beside the gangplank, waiting to talk to him. It was Queenie, completely outfitted in skirt and new coat that had kept him from recognizing her until he was close.

"Captain," she said, giving him that faint smile, "I want to go with you."

Her presence put undeniable new life into him. He felt the rebound of a lighter mood that had been completely out of him for weeks. But her appearance was complicated by other troublesome matters and his face lost little of its frown. He said shortly:

"It would have been best had you gone with the stage."

"But not nearly so exciting. Everybody's going upriver. All the strays and the miscasts you've sent to Lavinsky. Will there be room in camp for me?"

His voice was sharpened by regret. "I'm sorry; I've got no stateroom to offer."

She gave him a half-believing side glance. "You're not lying?"

"No. The preacher—Armond Snodgrass—look my last."

She gave an expressive movement with both her hands, laid one lightly against his chest.

"The man who bought Dreyfus's claim has followed me to Yuma, Captain. I don't want to meet him."

He gave her a long, full study. There was no despair in Queenie's no anxiety. He didn't believe fear held her back from meeting this man. It puzzled him how a woman thus implicated as she had become with Calhoon in selling a worthless vein could remain so calm.

"Do you have any luggage?" "Oh, yes! China Boy has already taken my bags to a state-room. He told me it would be No. 3."

"That Chinaman!" Crotch pulled his look back over Melott. "Now what's up?" he asked.

"You should meet Goss?" "Where didn't I have met him?"

A brittleness came to Melott's vision, a hard wisdom that the river had taught in its own grim ways. "Ben got a message. One of the Mexican street boys came up and said you wanted to see him. About Sugar Logan."

"It's Jamison!" Crotch growled. "One of those cutthroats has got Ben this time!"

Melott nodded, turned in beside Crotch, starting with him over the gangplank. But Crotch stopped him short.

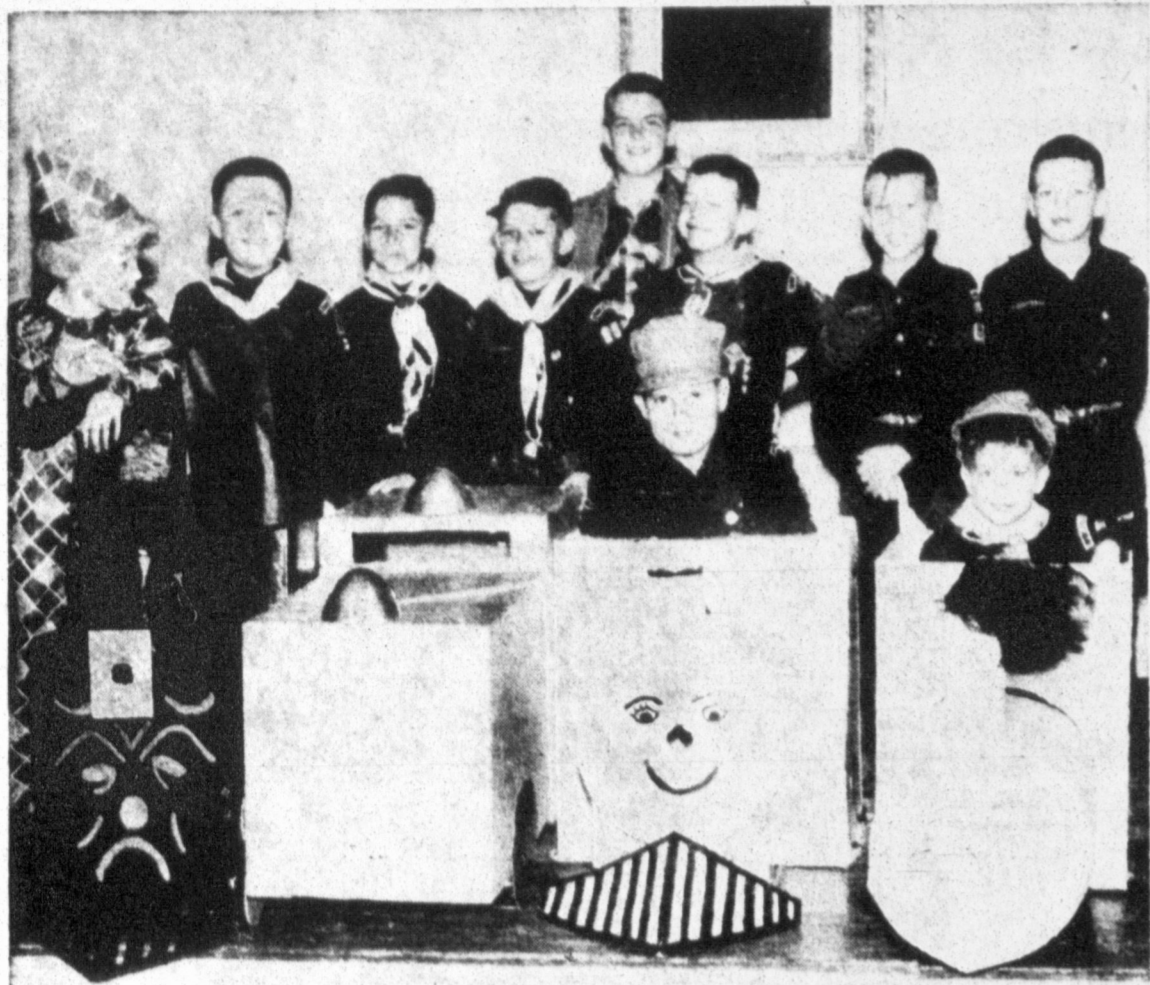

"Jim, you better watch the boat. I'll go after Ben."

A CROWD before one of the liquor dens confirmed his worst fears. The place was a retreat that catered to the river crowd, a squalid adobe building known as El Manzana—the Apple.

Ben Goss was inside the cleared barroom, sitting upright on the floor. He was in wretched condition, sawdust and floor refuse matted against one side of his head. The blood gushed from a knot on his forehead. Crotch burst into the liquor-soaking chamber at the same moment a marshal was stepping up behind his mate and jerking him to his feet.

Crotch grabbed up a stool that had rolled near the street entrance, set it beneath Goss as the marshal lifted him from the floor. Goss sat with his back to the wall, a thick, dull stare about his face. "Water!" Crotch yelled at the bartender.
