Red China Wants US Branded 'Aggressor'

May Refuse Talk With UN Council

By BRUCE W. MUNN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 1—UP—Communist China indicated Tuesday it would refuse to send delegates to the United Nations Security Council unless the council took up a Russian resolution accusing the United States of "aggression" in Formosa.

One clue came from a Peiping radio broadcast demanding that the United Nations junk the New Zealand proposal for a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait. Another came from a pro-Communist newspaper in Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong New Evening Post which describes itself as independent but usually reflects the Communist line said "it seems that Peiping will not reject sending representatives" to the United Nations.

Held Up Discussion
The Security Council held up further discussion of the Formosa situation until an official reply is received from Chou En-Lai, the Chinese Communist premier and foreign minister. But Peiping radio broadcasts announced in advance the reply would be negative.

The Security Council voted 9 to 1 Monday night to invite Red China to New York and an hour later Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold dispatched a cablegram to Chou. The United States voted for the invitation but made it clear its vote did not affect U. S. opposition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

Nationalist China, which voted against inviting Red China, was bitter over the UN move. High officials on Taipei recalled the United States had opposed letting the Communists shoot their way into the United Nations and asked, "but what else can you call this?"

Call for Sanctions
Sources close to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek said the only way to handle a cease-fire is for the UN to demand that the Communists halt their aggression. If this fails, the sources said, the UN must impose sanctions. If the Communists still refuse, the UN must take "direct military action."

Whether Moscow could influence Red China to accept the UN invitation to send observers to New York was an open question. Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov relayed to Peiping Britain's recommendations that it accept the UN invitation. But whether Moscow itself recommended the move was doubtful.

Student Dies While Playing

AUSTIN, Feb. 1—UP—A 16-year-old student at William B. Travis high school collapsed and died Monday while playing alone with a basketball in the school gymnasium.

Donnie Johnson, a member of the school's B team, had an enlarged heart, an autopsy showed. Justice of the Peace J. H. Watson withheld his formal verdict, but indicated he would rule death was due to natural causes.

Nothing Severe Due From Cold Wave

By UNITED PRESS
A weak cold front built up over the South Plains Tuesday to bring much of Texas a promise of cooler weather during the next 24 to 36 hours, but no severe weather appeared in store for the state.

Counter-clockwise circulation of winds around a "pretty deep" low pressure system in Oklahoma pulled cold air down out of the Midwest Tuesday morning, and where the cold air collided with unseasonably warm weather a front began to build up.

This front was expected to overtake an ever weaker Pacific cold front which stretched across the state from Dallas to Eagle Pass early Tuesday.

The end result will be 25-35 degree minimums in the Panhandle and South Plains, 30-40 in North Central Texas and 35-45 in the northern portion of East Texas Tuesday night.

A few widely scattered showers may form over extreme East Texas Tuesday afternoon, but generally the state was expected to have fair skies.

Winds generally remained 20 to 25 miles an hour, blowing from the north behind the Lubbock area cold front, westerly behind the Pacific front and southerly elsewhere.

These winds kicked up some dust in West Texas late Monday and Tuesday night, but the dust was heavy only in scattered localities. None was reported Tuesday morning.

Overnight lows Tuesday ranged from 28 degrees at Dalhart to 66 at Brownsville. The Upper Panhandle reported the only freezing weather.

Other lows included 33 at Amarillo, 39 at Lubbock, 43 at Midland, 44 at El Paso and Del Rio, 48 at Presidio, 49 at San Angelo, 51 at Abilene and Wichita Falls, 55 at Texarkana, 56 at San Antonio, 57 at Dallas and Fort Worth, 58 at Port Arthur, 59 at Houston, Galveston and Waco, 60 at Austin and 61 at Corpus Christi.

Monday's highs ranged from 60 degrees at Dalhart to 78 at Alice and Presidio.

Evening Dress Necklines Go A-Plunging Ala Dior

PARIS, Feb. 1—UP—Fashion czar Christian Dior almost bared the feminine bosom Tuesday with the most daring evening necklines in years.

At the same time he completely banished it from sight by day. Dior unveiled a new "A" line for 1955 spring fashions at his swank showing that put him on both sides of the fence in the great battle of the bosom.

The "A" line for day wear begins at the neck with a silhouette that flares out like the letter "A" to the hemline, completely by-passing the bosom.

But for night his wide-plunging "V" necklines barely contained the bosom, pushed almost up to shoulder height by breathlessly tight corseting.

In the daytime "A" line the rigid corseting contained the bust and torso in an unbroken line. Skirts started from the hip-bone or lower and fell to just below the knee as last year.

Aid Bill Deadline Lures GIs Dems Boost Fight On Ike Policies

Enlistees Jam Recruiting Posts

By UNITED PRESS
Young men by the thousands jammed recruiting offices across the nation Monday night to enlist in the armed services before much of the GI bill of rights expired at midnight.

So many clamored to join up that hundreds were turned away because the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps quotas were filled or because the would-be enlistees showed up too late.

The youths formed lines and enlistments jumped as high as 500 per cent. In some cities many recruiting offices stayed open until midnight to handle the rush.

Gamble on Odds
Many of the youths were gambling on long odds. Recruiting officials said an enlistee must actually be sworn in to qualify for the old GI benefits, and this can take from several hours to several days.

The enlistees hoped to qualify for such benefits as farm and home loan guarantees and limited education grants. These went off the law books at midnight.

Remaining were such benefits as medical treatment, disability compensation and burial expenses.

A good number of the enlistees were apparently betting that congress would extend full educational benefits to persons enlisting before the Jan. 31 deadline. Congress has been pushing such legislation.

Rush Reaches Climax
Recruiters said the rush to get into the services, which reached its climax Monday night, has been going on all through January.

The heaviest last minute rush was in New England, where thousands of youths jammed the recruiting offices and hundreds were turned down. In Boston, January enlistments for the various service branches totaled 2,150.

Army and Navy recruiting offices in northern California said enlistments ran 300 to 400 per cent above normal and all stations stayed open until midnight.

An even greater percentage jump occurred at Portland, Ore., where the Army recruited 68 men. The average for a day is 10 enlistees, so Monday's bumper crop represented a 580 per cent increase.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—UP—Democrats stepped up their opposition Tuesday to President Eisenhower's health, trade, military and power policies.

Cops 'Know' Bomb Death Triggerman

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Feb. 1—UP—Investigators in San Angelo have the name and description of a man they think could be the "triggerman" in the bomb murder of Mrs. Helen Weaver on Jan. 19, it was learned Tuesday.

Harry Washburn, 38, a former Houston contractor, and Carl Heninger, 37, a jobless carpenter's helper from Houston, are in Tom Green county prison, charged with the murder. They were arrested before dawn Saturday.

Monday, reports circulated that Sheriff Cecil Turner and Ranger Ralph Rohatsch were after a man they suspected of actually planting the bomb.

Gave Mexican Name
It was learned Tuesday that the suspect is a man who gave a Mexican name and who caught a Pioneer Airlines plane for El Paso from San Angelo an hour and 10 minutes after Mrs. Weaver was blown up on Jan. 19.

Though he gave a Mexican name when he bought his ticket, he didn't look like a Mexican. He had bushy brown hair, a sallow complexion, was of medium build, five feet, nine inches tall and wore a dark business suit.

Houston police are holding John McKinnis, 45, an air conditioning installer, and James Fife, a construction worker, in the case. McKinnis gave police the information upon which they arrested Washburn and Heninger.

Tried to Hire Killing
He said that Washburn tried to hire him and Fife to kill Harry Weaver — it now seems certain that Mrs. Weaver was killed by mistake — and last April actually rented a car for them to go to San Angelo in.

Dedication Ceremonies Set For Convent In Panhandle

Dedication ceremonies for the Sancta Maria Convent, American Center and Novitiate, in Panhandle will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

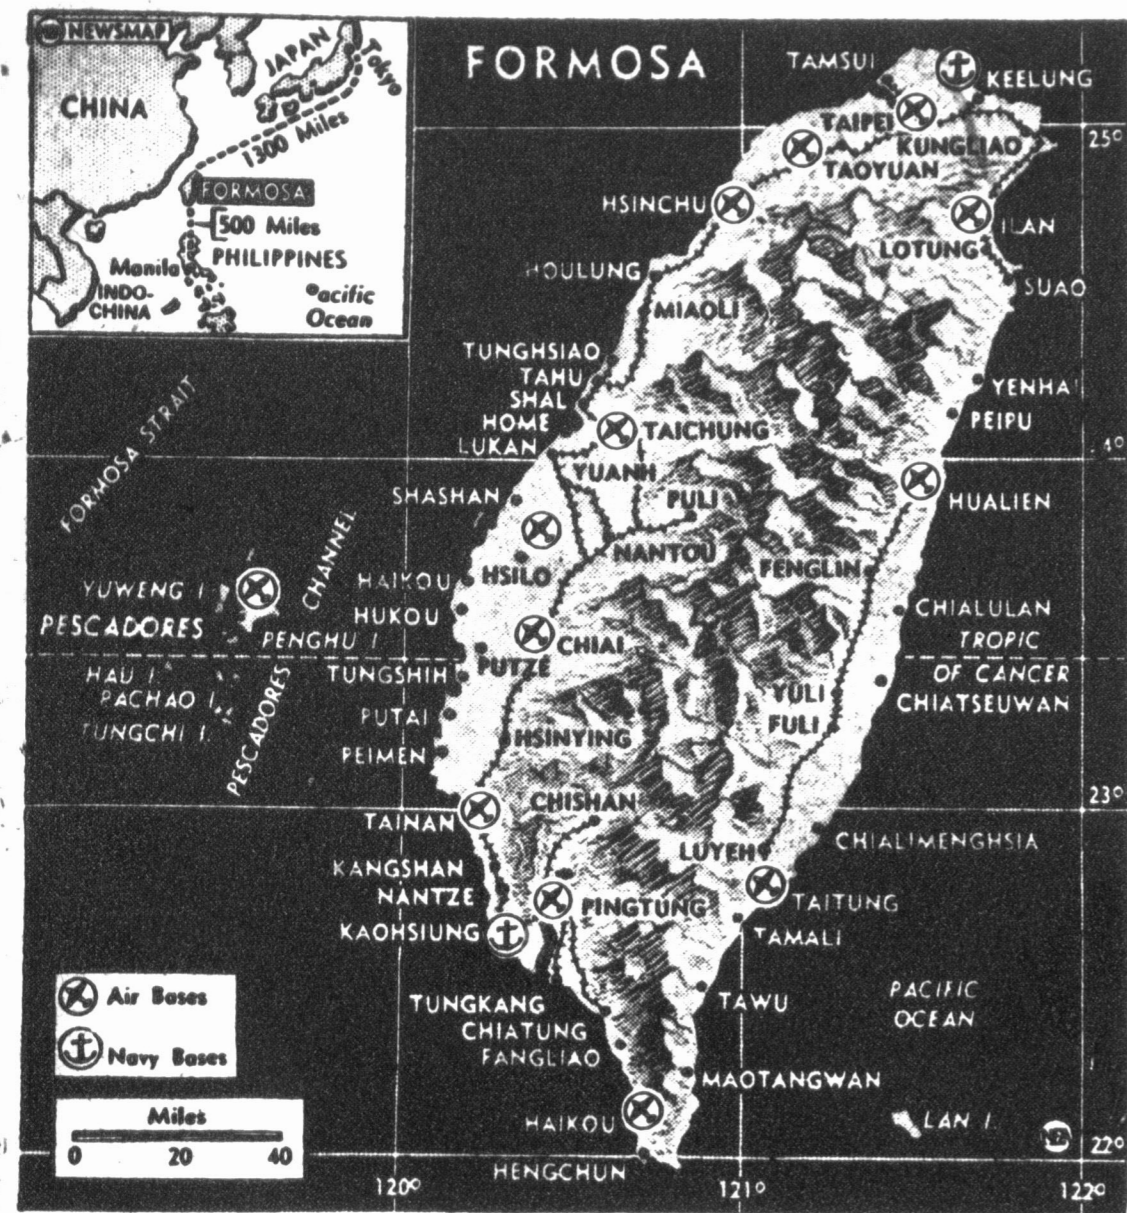

The land and the ranch home on the land were donated to the Amarillo Diocese by Mrs. Rose Gordon of Panhandle in memory of her son, John Bernard Gordon. The ranch home is now an orphanage and the convent stands just south of it.

Other Felicians, the superior, and five nuns, all of the Third Order of St. Francis, one novitiate and one candidate now live in the convent. It has a chapel, a dining room, library, office, guest room, six other bedrooms, three baths and a separate bedroom for novitiates.

The orphanage, opened in the spring of 1954, has six girls living in it from the ages of 7 to 13, who attend Panhandle public schools. The orphanage has a playground with television, a dining room, chapel, office, kitchen, four bedrooms and two baths.

The open house held at the convent and orphanage Sunday was attended by several hundred people from Pampa, Amarillo, Vega, Panhandle, Amarillo Air Force Base and St. Francis, Wellington, McLean and Groom.

FAR EAST HOT SPOT—This strategic stronghold of the Chinese Nationalist is the cause of all the trouble making top news today. The United States has announced it would use whatever force is necessary to defend the island from attack by the Communist Chinese. The Reds have said they would capture the island.

Nationalist Islands Get Heavy Attack

By WILLIAM MILLER

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 1—UP—Chinese Communist warships, planes and artillery attacked Nationalist islands off the China coast Tuesday and the defense ministry announced that more non-combatants were being evacuated from Tachen.

Four Chinese warships attacked Nationalist-held Yushan Island, a defense outpost some 40 miles north of Tachen, but were driven off by concentrated artillery fire from the island's defense garrison, the ministry announced.

An official communique said eight Communist MIG-15s attacked Tachen Island while Red artillery shelled it from nearby Yikiangshan which fell to the Communist forces two weeks ago.

Nationalist Chinese bombers struck enemy forces north of Tachen and hit a large Communist supply ship with bombs, rockets and machinegun fire, leaving the 2,000-ton vessel badly crippled and sinking.

Convey Heads for Keelung

The defense ministry said a convoy of American-built landing ships carrying civilians, wounded and prisoners of war would arrive at Keelung today.

However, there was no official word yet on when the evacuation of the Nationalist garrison would begin. The ministry said the garrison's orders were still to fight to the death if attacked.

The mightiest American naval force assembled since the Korean war stood off northern Formosa ready to help once the word is flashed from Washington. The fleet included five big carriers and Singapore reported the 45,000-ton carrier Midway passed there at full steam on its way to Formosa, three days ahead of schedule.

Fleet Standing By
A high American official said the fleet was delaying evacuation of the Tachens because the United States hopes a cease-fire in the Formosa Strait will permit a peaceful withdrawal without the danger of a major war.

American officials said the delay in removing the 10,000 Nationalist troops and 20,000 civilians from Formosa was not due to any stand taken by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

He said there was no doubt the Nationalists still were trying to get the Americans to make a definite public commitment regarding Quemoy Island, 300 miles south of the Tachens, and Matsu, midway between, but that this was not the main factor delaying the evacuation.

Water Bond Vote Set February 26

Pampans will vote Feb. 26 on a $300,000 water improvement bond issue designed to take care of present needs and provide for future needs.

The Pampa City Commission today unanimously passed a resolution calling the election, naming the date and the election officials and providing that notices be placed in public places.

The $300,000 is to be used for two wells; engineering and plans cost over a 19-to-15-year period; lines, valves and appurtenances; water rights; interim water construction; ditches, including machines and tools; and contingencies. City Mgr. Fred Brook and City Director of Public Works James Cowan presented the details of the plan to the commission this morning.

Talks Planned
Mayor Tom Rose and the four commissioners will hit the "service club circuit" and an open meeting for Pampa businessmen and other interested parties is being planned to advise citizens of what the election means.

The approval of the resolution, calling the election, was the culmination of several weeks of discussion on the part of city officials after Lynn Boyd and B. D. Robinson, the Pampans on the board of directors for the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, reported back that the present plans for the proposed dam - and a reservoir project on the Canadian River, north and west of Borger, was too risky. City officials decided then that something had to be done quickly on the local scene.

Ex-JayCees Urged To Attend Meet

The Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce is making a determined effort to get former members of the club to attend the first Pampa bi-regional convention scheduled this week end.

A letter went out Monday night to 75 former club members, asking them to attend the convention, according to Bob Parkinson, general convention chairman.

The JayCees met this noon, their weekly meeting time, to make final plans for the convention which an estimated 300 Jay-Cee delegates are expected to attend. The JayCees-Ettes will have a program of their own, including a "Coke-Tail" party from 3 to 5 p. m. Saturday and a "program and snack time" from 1:30 to 5 p. m. Sunday.

Working with Parkinson to "put over" the first bi-regional convention in Pampa are Jerry Young, Travis Lively Jr., Bob Carmichael, Mrs. Horton Russell, Ray Duncan, Dale Thut and Pat O'Connor.

Indians Crowding Into Windy City

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—UP—Chicago, a melting pot that has absorbed hordes of immigrants, now is receiving a new kind—the American Indian.

Chippewas, Menominees, Sioux, Navajos, Hopis and Mohawks have left their reservations to seek success in the big city.

Some have found it. Others haven't. Some have turned out like Ira Hayes, a Pima Indian from Arizona, Hayes became a national hero when he helped raise the flag on Iowa Jima's Mt. Suribachi. Then last week he lost a life-or-death battle against liquor.

But for every Ira Hayes, there are hundreds of American Indians who have met and conquered the white man's high-tension world, a young Indian social worker told the United Press.

Absorbed by City

Ted White, a full-blooded Sioux, said the majority of the Indians who come to Chicago become absorbed into the city's life without ill consequence. White is director of the American Indian center here, an organization founded to help the Indians integrate.

In the last three years about 3,000 Indians have moved to Chicago, White said. They're arriving now at the rate of about 50 per month.

"They come here," White said, "because the reservations don't offer them much opportunity."

The reservations are getting crowded, White said.

According to Kurt Dreifuss, an official of the Indian relocation office here, there now are about 400,000 Indians in the nation—a 50 per cent increase in 50 years.

Dreifuss said the federal government subsidizes Indian families here to the extent of $25 a week for the wage earner and $10 a week for each dependent for four weeks.

"The government also pays for transportation and subsistence for all members of the family from their point of departure," he said.

Tides Them Over

This generally tides them over till they get a job, Dreifuss said. He said Indian men usually find jobs within two or three days after they arrive here.

White, 33, a former resident of Green Bay, Wis., estimated that about 25 per cent return to the reservation. Those who stay, he said, often send for relatives and friends.

The relocation office of the center attempts to scatter the Indian families over the city but, White said, they frequently drift together into tribal neighborhoods. There

'Baylor Day' Set Today By Shivers

AUSTIN, Feb. 1—UP—Gov. Allan Shivers Monday designated "Baylor Day" for Tuesday, and urged that "appropriate recognition be given the accomplishments of this great university."

The governor pointed out Baylor University "is older than the state of Texas," having been chartered on Feb. 1, 1845, by the congress of the Republic of Texas.

No Rent

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. — UP—A telephone inquirer asking whether an advertised room for rent was still vacant was told: "We have plenty of rooms—with and without. This is the police station."

Group Favors Gas Tax For Roads Only

AUSTIN, Feb. 1—UP—The Texas Good Roads Association announced support Monday for a proposed constitutional amendment which would dedicate any future gasoline taxes to highway purposes only.

The proposal is sponsored by Rep. Charles Murphy of Houston, who also introduced a bill to increase the state's gasoline tax two cents a gallon.

J. H. Kullgen of Waco, president of the Good Roads Association, said the group's executive committee met in Austin Sunday. The executive committee, he said, praised Gov. Allan Shivers' proposal that the legislature "provide necessary funds for the development of an adequate highway program," through an increase in the gasoline tax.

Kullgen said "the association believes that the members of the legislature in their vision will provide funds for this work."

Preparedness Fails

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — UP—A liquor store owner placed a loaded revolver in his coat pocket just in case holdupmen picked him for a New Year's Eve target. Two bandits, one carrying a gun entered the store and took $225 from the cash register. They also took his gun, which fell out of his pocket during the stickup.

Ridgway Won't Give Staff Views On Military Cutback

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — UP—developments in warfare warrant a reduction in manpower. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway declined Monday to say publicly whether the Joint Chiefs of Staff approved manpower cuts ordered for the armed forces by President Eisenhower.

The Army chief's reluctance to speak out followed an accusation by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services committee that the administration had flouted the will of Congress by cutting Army strength by 70,000 men during the current fiscal year.

When Ridgway told the committee he would prefer to answer the question about Joint Chief's approval of the manpower cuts in a closed session, committee members protested.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-N. Y.) said "the public is entitled to know" whether Ridgway and the other top military men approved the cuts.

TODAY'S COLUMN on fashions scurries from the use and practicability of Irish linen for resort wear, to how to store bulky petticoats and crinolines, to end it all with a few observations of the columnist on the latest spring fashions.

THE STRIKING AND EASY elegance of Irish linen fashions are more popular than ever on the resort scene with round the clock costumes from casual separates to formal the choice of smart women vacationing in the southern climes. One of the most versatile and practical of favored fashion fabrics, Irish linen is, of course, crease-resistant, its beauty of texture and finish is superb and its inherent quality in both appearance and performance has been proved over many years. A great variety of new textures and weaves, prints and colors, add to the fashion interest of this fine fabric.

broidered with glittering rhinestones and crystals.

Perfect for any occasion, Irish linen fashions will see you nicely through the spring and summer seasons in town, too.

BULKY PETTICOATS, pleated skirts and crinolines may now be stored wrinkle free in one-tenth the space they formerly occupied in clothes closet or suitcase in new cone shaped garment bags.

The trick is to roll the full skirt sideways then slip it, waistband in first, into the garment bag and hang it in the closet. The bags are made of washable plastic, taffeta embossed, with quilted tops and borders. The center section is translucent to show the petticoat "on file." They are available in pink, aqua, and champagne, in notion departments and closet shops.

A LOOK AT the new spring fashions show that full and fancy sleeves will definitely be seen. Some are loose and full, with accordion pleats. Necklines will be high, and one creation I saw had a rounded neck with a cape-like collar — very wide. And what is nothing new, is the higher bosoms and the long torso. Wonder how designers plan to modify that for short women . . . or maybe they're just thinking of the average and tall women. Just a few of my observations.

Suitable for any hour of the day, Irish linen shorts, slacks or skirts with interchangeable tops, are comfortable and impeccable for sports and lounging. Classic Irish linens are ideal for lunch, shopping or sight-seeing — and for cocktails there are dressy separates and jacket costumes of infinite chic to go on to dining and dancing. Formals, either long or short, are beautifully handled, often combined with satin or velvet or em-

Holy Souls Couples Have Organization Meet For New Club

Mr. and Mrs. O. Ray Hudson were appointed co-chairmen and Mr. and Mrs. John Frisby were chosen as secretaries for the couples club of Holy Souls Catholic Church at an organizational meeting Saturday in Parish Hall. The couples were appointed by Father Myles Moynihan, sponsor, for a period of three meetings, after which club members will elect officers.

During an introductory speech, Father Moynihan complimented the group on its interest and willingness to cooperate. He pointed out that there is a need for a social organization, especially with newcomers moving into the parish regularly. Purpose of the club, he advised, is to allow all couples, old-timers and newcomers, to become better acquainted.

Mrs. Hudson then spoke to the group, extending a special invitation to couples of mixed marriages. She pointed out that the primary purpose of the club is social. There will be no dues and only thing necessary for membership is attendance at meetings, she stated. Each couple was introduced by Mrs. Hudson.

The group decided to hold a dance, to begin at 8 p.m. Feb. 12, in Parish Hall. For those who don't dance, other entertainment will be provided.

Following the meeting, refreshments of cookies and coffee were served. Hosts and hostesses were Messrs. and Mrs. Ben Wood, Charlie Albus, Elvin Svoboda, Roger Farrow, Bill Herr and O. Ray Hudson.

RUTH MILLET Worthwhile HDC Has MOD Party

"Any time that an able-bodied female becomes a financial load, she is costing too much." That statement, made by a man reader of this column, is a blunt way of saying what an increasing number of men today apparently believe. They think that it is a wife's duty to bring home a weekly pay check.

This column gets a surprising number of letters from working wives who say they are tired of being both job holders and homemakers. But they can't quit work because their husbands have come to expect a two-pay-check standard of living as their due.

Most of them say that when they married they intended working only until their husbands were established, or the couple bought a home, or paid for a car. They meant to hold down a job for a year or two and then stop work to meeme full-time homemakers.

But they say they can't stop. Their husbands like a new car every year. They like to be able to buy expensive clothes. They have found that it is possible to have marriage without having to support a wife. And they see no reason why the set-up ought to be changed.

If women are wise they will fight this increasing reluctance on the part of men to take full responsibility for the financial support of marriage before it spreads any further.

There is only one way they can do it. And that is for the girls who are marrying today and who plan to work "for a while" to make it quite clear from the beginning just how long that "while" is to be.

Then when the time is up they ought to quit their jobs without a backward glance and let the man of the family assume the full responsibility of bringing home the bacon before he begins to accept his wife's financial help as his right.

Pampa News Staff Writer

THIS IS the first day of February, the shortest month of the year in days, but one of the longest in the matter of special "days," "weeks" and "months."

It's quite a collection. From National Freedom Day (today), they whip you right into Ground Hog Day and Kraut and Frankfurter Week. But they don't think you're getting enough to eat. So, right after Kraut, comes Pimiento—Pimiento Week, that is. Then the Boy Scouts and Table Tennis take over for their weeks.

The dentists then got worried about kids' teeth—National Children's Dental Health Week—followed by Americanism Week and National Defense Week. Of course, the advertising boys—National Advertising Week—and the crime buffers—National Crime Prevention Week—get their licks.

But then comes, of all things, Valentine's Day, followed logically by Sew and Save Week and National Beauty Salon Week. National Engineers' Week and Brotherhood Week have Pancake Day stacked right in the midst of them.

The whole month—and March, too—is labelled "Better Breakfasts." Wonder if that means pancakes every day? The eggmen sure missed a bet there.

EVERY BLADE of grass is a sermon. . . . That's what Rev. Bob Lloyd, a former Baptist preacher in Groom, told his congregation one day. A few days later, The Groom News tells us, he was out mowing his lawn when Jack Bivens came by and commented: "That's right, Brother Bob. Cut those sermons short."

THESE CONFUSING TIMES: Pampa has a Schneider Hotel Garage but no Schneider Hotel. . . . It's the Pampa Hotel now.

BEN EZZELL, up Canadian way, managed to get his foot in his mouth last week when he implied in print that there is only one post office in Hemphill County, the one in Canadian. . . . He heard from Glazier, but fast! . . . The postmistress in Glazier, Mrs. Grace Tipton, let Ezzell know the error of his ways by sending him a card postmarked Glazier. "We should've known better than to try to take Glazier, of all places, off the map," Ben wrote. "Even the granddaddy of all tornadoes couldn't do that." . . . Ben referred to his error as the "hoof-and-mouth disease, which Southwestern cattlemen have learned to dread. . . . also sort of an occupational hazard in the newspaper business."

ISN'T IT SOMETHING, the reasons for writing checks people put in the lower left-hand corner of the checks? . . . That's especially true of that Coleman man who is wanted for forgery in Pampa and other parts of the country. . . . Perhaps he had a good sense of humor when he "passed" a check in Pampa bearing the words, "Donation for church work."

EVER HEAR of a "paptient"? Know who Mrs. Lewis is? . . . Folks over in Wheeler might have been puzzled, too, when they read in the paper that a "Mrs. Lewis" was listed under "Patients Admitted" to the hospital. . . . But, on the other hand, they probably do know who she is. That's one good thing about a small town, they say. You know everybody, whether it's a "paptient" or a "patient." And regardless of which Lewis it is. . . . And, besides, it's all too easy to make mistakes in the newspaper business. The Pampa Daily News does, too, we've heard.

Washington School Bans Tight Jeans

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 —UP—What's new in Washington:

A high school in the Washington area has placed a ban on "teen-aged boys wearing skin-tight jeans to classes. The head master even sent a few kids home. This prompted a letter to the editor of the Washington Daily News: "This controversy about students wearing skin-tight jeans is embarrassing to us." The memo was signed "George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, et al."

Freshman congresslady Coya Knutson, the Democrat from Minnesota, says in her newsletter that she is happy to be the first woman what makes an airplane purr. So in history ever to be on the House Agriculture committee. At the first meeting of the group, Rep. Watkins Abbott, the Democrat from Virginia, was the host. He passed around "fresh, plump peanuts."

"When it comes my turn," Mrs. Knutson asked her voters, "what shall I serve?" It has to be something in common with her state. How about a smorgasbord, lady?

The Civil Aeronautics Administration is having to re-jigger its mailing list. One man has been taking a correspondence course in aircraft and engineering mechanics.

The fellow has passed his tests and wants to learn more about what makes an airplane purr. So he wrote the CAA about a change of address — from one prison to another.

Most senators think law-making is a fulltime job. But Sen. Strom Thurmond, the South Carolina Democrat, managed to handle two assignments without fear of criticism. In addition to being a senator, he happens also to be a Brigadier general in the Army reserves.

While he's in Washington, he is assigned to the 352d Military Government Area headquarters here.

A certain elevator boy in the Senate side of the Capitol is still shaking his head in confusion. The lad was in the middle of an up-trip and at one floor said "going up." A lady visitor fidgeting in the hall yelled in anger: "Where in tarnation are the elevators that go 'down'?" The lady got straightened out after our boy went to the top and then came down. "Oh, this is the one," she said.

Firing Anew In Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Feb. 1 —UP—Costa Rica charged Monday Nicaraguan troops fired across the border during a weekend clash between rebels and government forces in the northwestern battle zone.

The Organization of American States is sending three observers to the border to investigate the Costa Rican charge.

Col. Rodolfo Quiros, Costa Rica's chief of staff, said a band of rebels that ambushed a government patrol Saturday fired northward into Nicaragua, apparently hoping to provoke an incident.

Three tommygunners north of the border returned the rebels' fire, Quiros said, and Nicaraguan planes "buzzed" the battlefield but did not open fire. It was not clear whether anyone was hit by the cross-border firing.

The chief of staff, who returned late Sunday from a tour of the frontier, said 12 rebels were killed and "several" wounded in two clashes Saturday. He listed government casualties as seven killed and two taken prisoner.

Mercury gives you high horsepower you can use in all performance ranges—not just brag about.

More important than high horsepower alone is pickup, passing, hill-climbing power—more power for your everyday driving.

That's what the 1955 Mercury was specially designed to give you. The tip-off is in the name of Mercury's new V-8 engine—SUPER-TORQUE. You get more usable power . . . more actual horsepower at the rear wheels where it counts . . . more forward thrust when you need it.

Everything about Mercury's new engine is designed to increase this thrust—to give you super pickup in every speed range.

It's a short-stroke, low-friction design, with high-turbulence combustion chambers, full-vacuum automatic spark control—all specially engineered to squeeze more power out of every drop of gas.

And there are Mercury exclusives like:

1. A 4-barrel vacuum-operated carburetor for instant response. Only Mercury in its field offers it as standard equipment on every model.
2. A dual-exhaust system on all Montclairs and Monterays to cut power loss and to add more economy. Only Mercury in its price class has it as standard equipment at no extra cost.

3. High-compression spark plugs—a revolutionary new design—for peak performance at all speeds without overheating or fouling. Only Mercury has them in its field.

They all add up to a new kind of high-horsepower performance by Mercury—the car that's always used V-8 engines—built over 2,000,000 of them, more than any car in its field. We invite you to come in and try the new 198-horsepower Montclairs, the 188-horsepower Monterays and Customs. Just stop in at our showrooms.

Mesalliance

What is termed "administrative opposition" to the TVA is breeding an interesting development on the American scene.

It is a close co-mingling of funds and follies committed both by American business and the federal government.

The TVA, which up to now has cost the American taxpayers just under $2 billion, is facing a hard fisted attitude in the Eisenhower administration. Resistance to its yearly demands in the budget have caused TVA General Manager Aubrey J. Wagner and its proponents in Congress to cast about for other ways of getting hold of money.

TVA advocates are now certain that this tax-supported boon-doggle is well enough along to stand on its own financial feet.

Therefore, the proposal now is that instead of going to the Federal Treasury, the big power project will seek to win private capital for its support, in the form of bonds. The bonds of course are to be insured by the Federal Government.

The true greatness of the American conception of free enterprise is found in totally unshackled free enterprise. Where the business man teams up with government, he opens the door to Federal regulations and restrictions. While it is frequently a temptation for the business man to try to find support for himself or limitation of his competitors through the medium of government, it is always a two-edged sword which in the end would wound both those against whom it is wielded and those who hold it.

The turning of TVA to free enterprise, while it is an open admission that free enterprise is more to be relied upon than government, is also an attempt to convert a giant Federal swindle into a justifiable private endeavor.

We are not impressed when Free Enterprise in the role of groom woads and weds the Federal Government in a mesalliance of un-like mates.

We are no more impressed when the Federal Government, in the person of one of its agencies, plays at groom with a somewhat effeminate portion of American Free Enterprise. These two things are dissimilar in all respects and cannot mix. Offspring of this union tend to rapacity and abnormality.

If the TVA can no longer remain a Federal agency, then let us be honest about it and say so. How about selling the monstrous thing to the highest bidder, reimbursing the American taxpayers who have put up the funds, and then letting it operate as a private business should?

THE NATION'S PRESS

THE UNION BOSSES GET A NEW DEVIL (Chicago Tribune)

It is reported that the bosses of organized labor have dropped the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law as their first objective and are now seeking federal action to render "right to work" laws in 17 states inoperative. This is sought to be accomplished by persuading the Eisenhower administration to sponsor an amendment to the Taft-Hartley law, which makes such laws permissive.

The unions have been able to derive some hope from the speech before the national convention of the CIO last December in Los Angeles of Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell called for the repeal of the state right to work laws, which forbid compulsory union membership as a condition of employment. Mitchell's predecessor, Martin Durkin, a high AFL official whose appointment to the Eisenhower cabinet was termed "incredible" by the late Sen. Taft, had listed the same goal in a 19 point program for amendment of the Taft-Hartley law which he said had White House approval when it was circulated in 1953.

The union bosses, in their official programs and publications, have taken up this issue in a large way. The AFL and CIO have distributed extensive booklets attacking the state laws, and the AFL International Association of Machinists has got representatives of different religious faiths to write that such laws are "immoral."

One of the ironic side-lights in this controversy is that the union bosses object to the "right to work" term as a propaganda label, inasmuch as people in general are reluctant to take issue with the contention that an individual has a right to work. This attitude may be related to the union propaganda that the Taft-Hartley law was a "slave labor" measure. Apparently it is all right for union bosses to apply "bad" words to things they don't like, but unfair for others to use "good" words for things the union bosses don't like.

As we have mentioned from time to time, the whole issue here is whether the union bosses have any legal or moral authority to reduce all workers in the country to a captive labor force, which must join up with them, pay their dues, obey their rules, and do as they order. If such a status could be achieved, union monopoly power would be absolute. Nothing, and nobody, could oppose it.

The argument in support of the authority of the states to legislate against union monopoly power goes far beyond the issue of state right to work. It involves the fundamental freedom of the individual. The right of the worker to independence of unions, if he so wills it, is implicit in the 5th and 14th amendments, providing that "no person... shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law," and that "no state shall... abridge the privileges and immunities of citizens."

It will be a basic test of the Eisenhower administration's bent when it is confronted with the decision of whether to throw its weight to the side of the unions or to stand fast with the individual and the states. That decision will test no less the good faith that the administration chooses to keep with the precepts of the late Sen. Taft, its majority leader at the onset of an administration, which has now swung far to the New Deal side.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

"Freedom To Shop Around"

Here is the last installment of a speech made by Hart Buck on "Freedom To Shop Around." Mr. Buck, a statistician of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, sees very clearly the blessings of a free and unhampered market.

Under the heading of "Free Economy is New" Mr. Buck says: "In brief, we are accustomed to thinking of the free market as an antique institution which has outlived its usefulness and of the government-controlled economy as the up-and-coming thing which holds the promise of the future. It isn't."

The government-controlled economy is a superseded institution that holds the miseries of past ages. It is the free economy, centered on the idea of liberty to shop around, that has been new for the last couple of centuries only. What is new is the idea of forcing the economy to provide the goods the customer wants most, rather than the goods that custom or authority dictates that they should have.

"Under the free market the government has one all-important function: to protect the free public in their choice of goods to consume. The cost of government's work is to secure the people against violence and fraud, whether from outside the country's borders or within, and this is a man-sized job for any government to undertake. The benefits of safety from force and deceit are so general that the cost of providing them cannot accurately be assessed against individual citizens. Accordingly, the cost of government can only be assessed against the citizens in some more or less arbitrary way: the most usual method is to presume that they benefit most who prosper most, and in that way, impose some sort of tax scheme adjusted to income."

What About the Distressed? There is little, however, in the way of social welfare which governments can do which under the free market cannot be done better otherwise. With everybody free to shop around, everybody will find the best-paid job he is capable of; if therefore there is any distress left in the economy, it will be only among those who cannot work and have no assets. In the nature of the free-market economy as it develops, there should be fewer and fewer people left without assets. This shrinking load of distress can best be cared for by the churches, the service clubs, and similar voluntary groups of citizens. As the free-market economy expands, they should have more and more funds at their command for their good work.

Opponents of freedom to shop are not slow to find nasty names for the ways of life that are founded on it. Such names may be innocent enough in their origin, but the enemies of free enterprise know how to make them sound nasty. Names such as capitalism or laissez faire are such as few advocates of freedom to shop are anxious to use nowadays to describe their way of thinking. Without a name to call their system by its advocates hesitate to describe it at all; and so they tend to let the case against it go by default, instead of arguing it in detail and on its merits.

Path to Progress Capitalism, after all, only emphasizes the central importance of tools and equipment in the provision of people's wants, and the usefulness of allowing individuals to own tools or an interest in them, to use or to rent to their users, so that people's wants may be best served. The important thing is not who owns the tools and equipment, but that they should be there. Under a developing free market, all the people should end up by being capitalists. Meantime, let us believe in capitalism, and believe in it hard. It won't kill us. On the contrary, it is the one economic system that can be counted upon to improve the material conditions of a class of people, by delivering the maximum of goods to go around. This is the one and only thing that can be claimed for capitalism, and this is in itself enough to claim for any economic order.

The other day a man said in Niagara Falls, 'Laissez faire is dead. It should have been given a decent funeral or it should have been stuffed, mounted, and properly labeled and given a respectable place in a museum.' Presumably this personage thought that laissez faire means 'let things slide.' It doesn't.

It means exactly what it says: Let goods be made; let things be done; let there be production. Anything which interferes with people's freedom to shop around can only cause fewer goods to be made and fewer things to be done, and can only interfere with production. If we believe in an expanding economy of Canadians free to shop around, our slogan ought to be: Forward to Laissez Faire."

Kefauver's Crime Hunting Publicity Suffers Setback

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Senator Estes Kefauver's annual attempt to win headlines and 1956 Presidential delegates by sensational crime forays has met determined opposition from Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., and J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director. They have already out-maneuvered the ambitious Senator from Tennessee.

Senator Kefauver had prepared a measure to bar interstate transmission of gambling information on sports contests, aiming to break telegraphic communication between race tracks and bookies. He has been introducing the bill ever since his sensational television investigations of 1951, but it had been pigeonholed by Senator John W. Bricker of Ohio, the lackadaisical chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee under Republican rule.

Kefauver felt assured of more favorable treatment and action from the new Democratic chairman, Senator Warren G. Magnuson of Washington. Both a liberal and not averse to publicity, Magnuson was counted on to promote new headline-making hearings into operations of the politico-criminal underworld. But while a more comprehensive Kefauver proposal was in preparation, applying to other sports besides racing, Attorney General Brownell forwarded an identical identical measure to Capitol Hill. Chairman Magnuson, however, will probably give preference and precedence to the Tennessee Democrat's remedy.

Kefauver has also framed several harsher measures in the renewal of his hitherto one-man attack on organized, interstate racketeers. He disapproves that Hoover's recent statement that nationwide syndicates have been broken up, resulting in what Hoover describes as a cycle of "vicious, personal crimes" — murder, burglary, rape, assaults and street hold-ups.

In the nationwide revision and execution to Kefauver's earlier televised revelations, Congress passed a law barring interstate shipment of slot machines. Now, he would extend that prohibition to all "mechanical gambling devices," such as roulette wheels, chuck-a-luck and other equipment in that category. Kefauver hastens to explain that such a law, if enacted, would not apply to playing cards, scrabble sets, Chinese checkers or bingo games. He says that he is simply anti-racketeer, not the politically unpopular brand of blue-nose. He recalls that, when he sought the Presidential nomination

I got all excited the other night when I thought I heard the fellow on the radio say that Zsa Zsa Gabor had captured Formosa. Turned out he said "Rubirosa." And that wasn't news. Jonathan Yank

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Well, will wonders never cease? Q — How can I pacify doctors who are concerned about my peculiarities which never have done any harm? In my teens they said I had a weak pulse, thin blood, slow digestion and now they talk about low blood pressure and low metabolism. Every doctor is sure that I have very bad health which must be corrected, but to me my health seems to be nearly perfect and I don't want to change. What should I tell the next doctor to deter him from prescribing some heart stimulant, laxative or something else to upset my health when all I want is to have a wound sewed up? G. S. W.

A — Tell him you feel fine, have been told you have minor ailments for years and that you don't need anything unless he finds that something new has developed. Many doctors will be amazed and pleased at your point of view. Q — Will you please say something about Page's disease? E. S. and J. B.

A — This is a form of chronic inflammation of the bones, which at the present time is believed to be the result of some local disturbance in the bones themselves the exact nature of which is not known. The symptoms vary a great deal and sometimes there are none at all and the disease is discovered accidentally. When symptoms are present, pain is the most common. There is no thoroughly satisfactory treatment though diet, X-ray and sometimes surgery are often used to bring a measure of relief. Q — Is it true that a person with a slight heart condition can stimulate the heart by taking a certain amount of liquor each day? If so, how much would you say a person should take? Mrs. M. B.

A — Alcohol is not a specific treatment for any form of heart disease. Some doctors feel that a small amount is useful in some cases, however, for its relaxing qualities.

Federal Intrusion Pollutes Teaching Called 'Education'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Properly, the education of the citizens of our states is not the business of the government of the federal union of those states. Better put, it is none of Washington's business.

The intrusion of the federal government into this business of the states, which have in many ways polluted the teaching called education, is now close to saturation. The states have been surrendering many of their rights to the federal government in return for favors, usually expressed in the spending of federal tax money, much of it in wasteful ways.

An essayist for a large segment of our journalism, which, incidentally, offers only a feeble, token resistance to the federal encroachment, recently wrote that the states for years, markedly since President Eisenhower and other powers in the federal bureaucracy were determined that the federal union should make up the deficiency caused by neglect, incompetence or poverty of the states. If this pundit had even suggested that this was deplorable because it further enfeebled the sovereignty of the states, this statement of a defendant, unconstitutional policy would have been serious enough. But to make it worse, he expressed his knowledge with gusto. And this tone of expression is so pleasant to much of our press that the pundit's syndicate recently announced that a large proportion of our daily papers were now his clients.

This trend will not be reversed, although a few dogged idealists will continue to resist. The federal government gives up nothing that it grabs in its clutches. And the states for years, markedly since 1932, have been abandoning their rights as they have defaulted their duties. Both rights and duties thus have been concentrated in Washington. And the sources of tax revenue available to the states have been exploited so greedily by the federal government that the states have despaired of financing themselves and become beggars in Washington.

"Education," consisting largely of political "indoctrination," as term introduced during the war by the Communists and fellow-travelers, is now practically guaranteed as a government subsidy to millions of men and women in partial compensation for service in the armed forces. The United States never saw the day when it was so short of manpower for all duties of the armed services that the enrollment of women was necessary. During World War II the union sabotage in 5,000 strikes a year and in mock-work and fake-work was equal to many divisions of soldiers.

But the unions were and still are political proteges of the national government, so discussion of this imposition on the whole people was condemned as labor-baiting.

If the federal government must draft millions of men for military service even in peacetime, disputing their lives by lifting them out of college and shipping them away from surroundings in which they would normally marry neighbor girls and progress gently to the status of established local citizens, then the government has a welcome and plausible excuse to "educate" these millions and to subsidize the construction and purchase of homes.

Great frauds have been perpetrated in both in peacetime. The "education" which is thrust upon most of these victims is palatable to them because they don't know it is polluted. The University of Arizona recently hung an "award" on E. Palmer Hoyt, the editor of the Denver Post. This was a political stroke engineered by a partisan Democratic organization to exalt a man for an abusive campaign against Senator Joe McCarthy.

This is a flagrant example of the political pollution of education to which millions of young men are subjected, as though it were a favor to soil their minds as compensation for their sacrifice of time and opportunity under the draft. However, it is only a minute instance. The whole system is now polluted.

Students may learn that General Grant's regime was crooked and that Grant himself was personally honest. But they will not be taught that F. D. Roosevelt helped Elliott to trim one sucker out of $200,000 and later invented a crooked scheme to get back Elliott's collateral. They will be taught that Jackson's wife was a victim of unjustified scandal, but nobody is going to teach them the truth of Eleanor Roosevelt's visit to her friend, Joe Lash, in the Pacific at the people's expense and her interesting relationship with Earl Miller, her favorite sergeant of the New York State Police, who got a commission as lieutenant commander and a soft, safe assignment by her intercession.

Only a few stubborn minds among the millions will ever learn that as recently as the Civil War, people of these states were not citizens of the federal union of states but citizens of their respective states, and that this relationship was changed not by congress but by the supreme court. Science and technical subjects may be proof against pollution by political propaganda. History and literature are their best fields of imposition on the victims.

Nehru's Challenge To Men 65 Good Chance To Win India

By HENRY MCLEMORE

America's chance to swing India to our side in the fight against Communism is wide open.

The gates were thrown ajar a few days ago when India's Prime Minister, Jawaharlal (spelling not guaranteed) Nehru, challenged any man of 65 — Nehru's age — to beat him at swimming, running, and riding.

In effect, Pandit Nehru said he was the best-conditioned man of 65 in the world. He made it clear that he was ready to drop world problems for the 100-yard dash, the mad gallop through woods astride a spirited jumper, and the splash toward the end of the pool.

Russia is sure to meet Nehru's challenge. It is a good bet that, right this minute, a man with a beard is running around the Kremlin, stop watch in hand, and that when he finishes his time trials on foot he will continue them in water and on horseback.

If a Russian is the first one to beat Nehru, it is easy to imagine the world propaganda. Pravda will banner line the results of the contest. "Ivan Licks Nehru Going Away in Dash." "Ivan Rides Saddle and Outdistances India's Leader." "Ivan Swims Underwater and Still Manages to Break Aquas Mark."

Russia's triumph over Nehru will overshadow the results of the 1956 Olympics, about which we are so concerned, despite the fact that Americans will win the majority of track and field events. So, I have been casting about for an American to go to India and beat Nehru. It's a thankless task. Johnny Weissmuller said he wasn't quite 65 to begin with, and, besides, he couldn't swim in a turban. The track and equestrian athletes I approached also had excuses.

It looks like I am going to have to go myself.

I'm not quite 65, but there are days when I look a good 79, and I will make an effort to arrive in New Delhi on such a day. Could be that Mr. Nehru, after taking a look at me, will give me a handicap of ten years in the track and swimming events, and allow me to carry a battery on my horse.

Starting tomorrow, I am going in training for India's leader, a gentleman, by the way, I had the privilege of meeting not too many years ago. He was the one who told me to see Kashmir, no matter if I had to miss the Taj, and he was right.

There is a chance that Mr. Nehru will beat me at swimming. I am a dog paddle swimmer. It is a stroke that isn't much for speed, but, my! how dependable it is. So let's give Nehru a win in the water. But he doesn't stand a chance in the dash and the horse event. I'm remarkably fast off the block. I once ran a race against Jesse Owens, the greatest sprinter of all time, and when I had finished he gave me an autographed calendar, saying, "Use that in your next race. It's a perfect timing device for one so fleet as you."

Mr. Nehru learned to ride in England, as an undergraduate. That's good training. But I learned by television. That means I'll spring on my horse without touching foot to stirrup, and will be so far ahead at the end of a mile that I'll have time to pull up alongside a stagecoach and rescue an Indian maiden from the villains. My acceptance of Nehru's challenge is going to cost me mightily in money and energy. But, once Secretary of State Dulles cracks a bottle of champagne over my head and launches me as America's Athletic Ambassador, all the expenditures will be worthwhile. So, don't worry about our side losing. I will win.

Patterson Knocks Himself Out Of Easy Opponents

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Custy D'Amato hunched over so he could see through the ropes better. He was watching two fuzzy-faced youngsters boxing in the ring of his third-story gymnasium on New York's 14th Street. "They're amateurs, just came up here the other day," he said quietly. Then, to one of the kids who had been backed into the ropes above him, he shouted: "Go to the side . . . to your right. Don't stand there. Move away until you have some room to punch." On the other side of the room, under a bright light, Frank Lavalle, the trainer, was rubbing a white towel over the sweating face of Floyd Patterson, who had just finished working out. "PATTERSON IS THE BIG FIGHTER under D'Amato's wing. The biggest, in fact, that the white-haired manager ever has come across. He also guides Frankie Ruff the lightweight. "I found Floyd right here in this ring — a beginner just like these kids," D'Amato said. "Can you blame me for watching any kid, like these two right here, closely? I might find another Patterson." Across the room, in the cluttered office, the telephone rang. D'Amato left the floor to answer it, came back smiling. "Somebody wants to give me a date for Patterson. I told him we don't know. Confidentially, I'm just waiting for the IBC to call me and say that we have a definite with Dan Bucceroni on their Baltimore show Feb. 9."

"Now, with 20 VICTORIES IN 21 STARTS — the lone loss a very disputed one to Joey Maxim — the game is about concluded for D'Amato and his fighter. D'Amato frankly says he has two and perhaps three bouts left before his fighter goes for a championship. Bucceroni, if I get him, is one," he explains. "Then I go after Harold Johnson — and that means getting proper bouts for Patterson — would be in walking across his."

"If YOU WERE TO HAVE GONE to D'Amato a year ago and told him the only effort he would have getting proper bouts for Patterson would be in walking across his."

STEPS UP—Floyd Patterson wonders when he'll have to forget about knocking over second-raters—as he is doing here with Gordon Wallace—and begin to take on the light-heavyweight leaders. (NEA)

Ex-Oiler Skipper Martin Eager To Start Scout Trail

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article comes by way of Bob Carroll of the Plainview Herald which was given to him by a Plainview fan returning from a visit to Philadelphia. The story has clipped from a Philadelphia newspaper.)

By FRANK YEUTER
It's difficult to understand how a guy can admire a way of life that has brought him little but pain and travail and almost ended his life. But that's the way Herschel Martin feels about baseball and that's why, even now suffering from the after-effects of an almost fatal accident, he is eager to get started as a mid-western scout for the Phillies.

Martin is no stranger to Philadelphia, to Connie Mack Stadium — (a jinx park to him) — or to wandering around minor league baseball.

During 1937, '38, '39, and '40, Herschel was centerfielder on Phillies' teams, playing between Moe Arnovich in left and either Chuck Klein or Gibby Brack in right. They weren't exactly exhilarating baseball teams but Martin was an outstanding outfielder even in those days.

And it was after the Phillies moved from Baker Bowl to the then-named Shibe Park that Martin's string of adventures, all resulting from baseball started.

His first injury was a broken leg when he slid into third base as an "actor" in the late Jimmy Wilson's movie film "How to Play Baseball."

"My contribution was sub-titled 'How Not to Slide,' Herschel said, recounting some of his experiences at lunch with Frank Powell at the Vesper Club.

Then as late as last August, when Martin's active baseball career ended, he narrowly escaped death when he was hauling the Pampa team — (he was manager) — of the Texas-New Mexico League, crashed into three other cars. Herschel got out of that with a bad stinging right arm, five broken ribs and a punctured lung.

Between those two serious injuries, Herschel was spiked, "beamed," had several torn or pulled muscles and "I even played two years with the Yankees when they didn't win a pennant," he added.

Despite those injuries and journeys through both major leagues, around the International, the Texas League, the Pacific Coast League into a welter of all classifications of minor league ball, baseball is Martin's only way of life.

"Once you put on that uniform it seems to stick to you like a tattoo," he said. "I guess I could make a living in other businesses, but I'd rather be in baseball. That's about the only way to explain why I want to scout."

But all was not gail and wormwood during Martin's 21 years in baseball. There were lots of laughs, many well-filled fly envelopes and a scrapbook full of fond recollections.

"But the funniest thing that ever happened in any ball game happened here in Philadelphia," Herschel recalled. "It was the day Arnovich swallowed a Japanese beetle chasing a fly ball.

"Moe couldn't talk. He grabbed his throat and kept gasping. I finally got him on his feet but he still couldn't talk. We finally got three men out and on the bench when Moe could again talk he said he swallowed the beetle.

"That was funny enough but Moe made it even funnier by saying, 'I hope it was a kosher beetle.' "We didn't have the worst team in the National League those days," Martin said, "but we usually played like the worst team. We'd get a one-run lead then someone would boot a double play ball and we'd lose.

"Or we'd get three men on base with one out and the next batter would ground into a double play. (Martin might have been talking about the 1954 Phillies at that point) We had Hughie Mulcahy, Claude Passeau, Al Hollingsworth and Max Butcher as pitchers. If they gave one run we failed to score. If they gave eight, we'd make seven.

"But they weren't the only pretty good pitchers who went through troubles like that. When I was with the Yankees in '44, we thought we'd coast into the pennant. We went into St. Louis with a two game lead in first place. So we lose four in a row with the Browns beating Red Ruffing, Hank Borowy, Atley Donald and Floyd Bevens.

"I guess I was never supposed to play in a World Series." Martin is a graduate of Oklahoma A & M, is 44 years old, is married and asked if the writer remembered small Herschel, Jr., who was the big outfielder's pride and joy during his days here.

"You get some idea how time flies," Herschel said. "That little guy who used to run around the dressing room is now in the Coast Guard, almost finished a four year enlistment."

Redlegs Sign Greengrass

By UNITED PRESS
Outfielder Jim Greengrass signed his 1955 contract Tuesday and reported the injured right leg which slowed the Cincinnati Redlegs' bid for a fourth-place finish last season "feels great."

"I'm ready to go now," the 27-year old slugger said. "I feel like this is going to be our year."

Greengrass batted .280, hit 27 homers and drove in 95 runs last season but in mid-September developed a blood clot in his leg which Cincinnati General Manager Gabe Paul says cost the Redlegs fourth place.

The Redlegs were a half game in front of the fifth-place Philadelphia Phillies when Greengrass was sidelined and closed the season one game behind them.

Greengrass' signing increased Cincinnati's "satisfied list" to 30 with infielders Ted Kluszewski and Bobby Adams, outfielders Lloyd Marriman and Angel Scull and pitchers Jerry Staley, Bud Podbielan, Jim Willis, John Stewart, Howie Judson and Don Gross still to agree to terms.

Clint Courtney, meanwhile, returned his signed contract and announced his intention of being the Chicago White Sox' first-string catcher. Rookies Earl Battey, 19-year old catcher, and Bill Fischer, 24-year old pitcher, also agreed to terms.

In the day's only other signing activity, pitcher Bubba Church and rookie first-baseman Bob Speake agreed to their pacts with the Chicago Cubs. Church had an 11-9 record and pitched a no-hitter for Los Angeles last season while Speake hit .284 for Des Moines.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1—UP—Vernon Hallbeck, a star guard last year, looked so good running at fullback in opening spring grid drills Monday that Coach Abe Martin and his Texas Christian staff were hopeful he'd make the grade there permanently.

POWER IN SMALL PACKAGE--Solar energy is used to power this experimental radio transmitter which has a range of 100 feet. It was built by Edward Keonjian, of the General Electric electronics laboratory in Syracuse, N. Y. The unit uses transistors instead of electron tubes, and selenium solar-energy converters instead of batteries. When light rays strike the selenium, sufficient electrical energy is delivered to transistors to operate transmitter.

HOME FOR A FUTURE DATE--High on the list of President and Mrs. Eisenhower's personal projects is the rehabilitation of this 200-year-old farmhouse which they purchased near Gettysburg, Pa., in 1950. Workers are shown reconstructing the exterior of the house, which will probably be completed in spring of 1955. It is expected to be the Eisenhower's permanent residence when they leave the White House.

Your Heart's In Your Hands

Why You Had Or May Have Your First Heart Attack

By DR. WILLIAM A. BRAMS
Distributed by NEA Service
(First of A Series)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If you've had, or are due for — a heart attack, the chances are better than good that you're one or more of the following:
A man over 45 who works in a busy office. Hurried and over-worked. Inclined to be too ambitious. A victim of constant worry. Restless, unhappy at home. A heavy eater. 10 or more pounds too heavy, who tends to be fond of stimulants.
Heart specialists have learned to expect this type of person when they are called to see a patient with coronary thrombosis. But millions of men fit the picture, and only a small fraction of them ever develop heart trouble.

What determines which ones? Why do some people get it while others who lead a similar life have hearts that are sound?

Exactly how does it happen? And how can you keep yourself well, once the attack is over?

First, let's recall your attack. Though yours may have differed in details, the story commonly runs like this:
You are 50 years old and work in an office. For weeks you'd been feeling tired, and had noticed a passing sensation of pressure inside your chest. In the last few days it had happened oftener, but you drove yourself on.
That day everything seemed to go wrong. After a hectic morning, you stopped for lunch. You ate your usual big meal, gulped with the usual haste, and talked the usual shop talk.

You went back upstairs in a hurry, for hurry is one of your habits. Then, as you reached the top you were suddenly overwhelmed by a crushing pain in your chest, as if you were caught in a vise which was tightly squeezing your ribs.

You had to fight for breath. You felt so nauseated that you went to the bathroom to vomit. Sweat rolled down your face and great weakness came over you. By now you were sure afraid and sure you were going to die.
With your last strength, you staggered out of the washroom and slumped on the floor outside. Someone summoned a doctor.
You remember he told you not to move and injected some stuff in your arm. It was morphine. Soon it began to take effect: the pain eased and you grew drowsy. An hour and a half later you awoke in a bed at the hospital.
Now you are more comfortable in body for the agonizing pain is gone, but you're still scared.

Through your mind race a hundred questions, and the one you want answered first is, "just what has happened to me?"
Your doctor tells you the answer. He says you have just had a heart attack. Coronary thrombosis. As you lie there feeling depressed, you ask yourself still another question: Why did it happen to ME?

That is a hard one to answer. Perhaps the best we can do is to look again at the victims to learn more about who they are.
The usual victims are men. We do not know whether it is the kind of life that men lead, or whether there's something in sex itself that makes the difference. The fact remains: for every woman who dies of coronary thrombosis, four men are taken.

They are usually "older" people, from 45 to 70. This is because, in part, we survive the many infections with the help of the wonder drugs, only to be attacked later in life by diseases of wear and tear.

We do not know enough about causes to blame any occupations, though people in high-powered jobs do seem especially prone. It is often said, for instance, that a factor which helps to cause heart trouble is hard physical work. Yet farm laborers are not particularly subject to coronary thrombosis, while barbers and bartenders, whose work is lighter, seem to have more than their share.

Especially puzzling is the fact that Negroes, who have plenty of hard work and worry, are not as subject to it as whites.
One fact seems to be clear: it is much more likely to strike if you tend to be overweight. Extra flesh is a curse, putting unrelieved strain on your body which makes it prey to disease.

Does coronary thrombosis run in families? Again, we have no precise information, but we do notice, that, time after time, our patients tell us of others in their families with the same trouble. Whether this is due to hereditary influences or to conditions of environment or to other factors is impossible to say.

At any rate, now that you've had your own attack, you'll be glad to know that the outlook is good. Of every 10 persons who have one, eight or nine get better and live to a ripe old age.
We will see how they usually do it in the four installments to follow.

Man Wounded In Assault Try

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Feb. 1 — UP — A 26-year-old San Angelo man, charged with trying to rape a housewife, was in serious condition Tuesday in a San Angelo hospital with a gunshot wound.

Leonard C. Arndt was charged with assault with intent to rape. During the attempt, a gun he was using to pistol-whip the young wife went off and seriously wounded him in the chest.

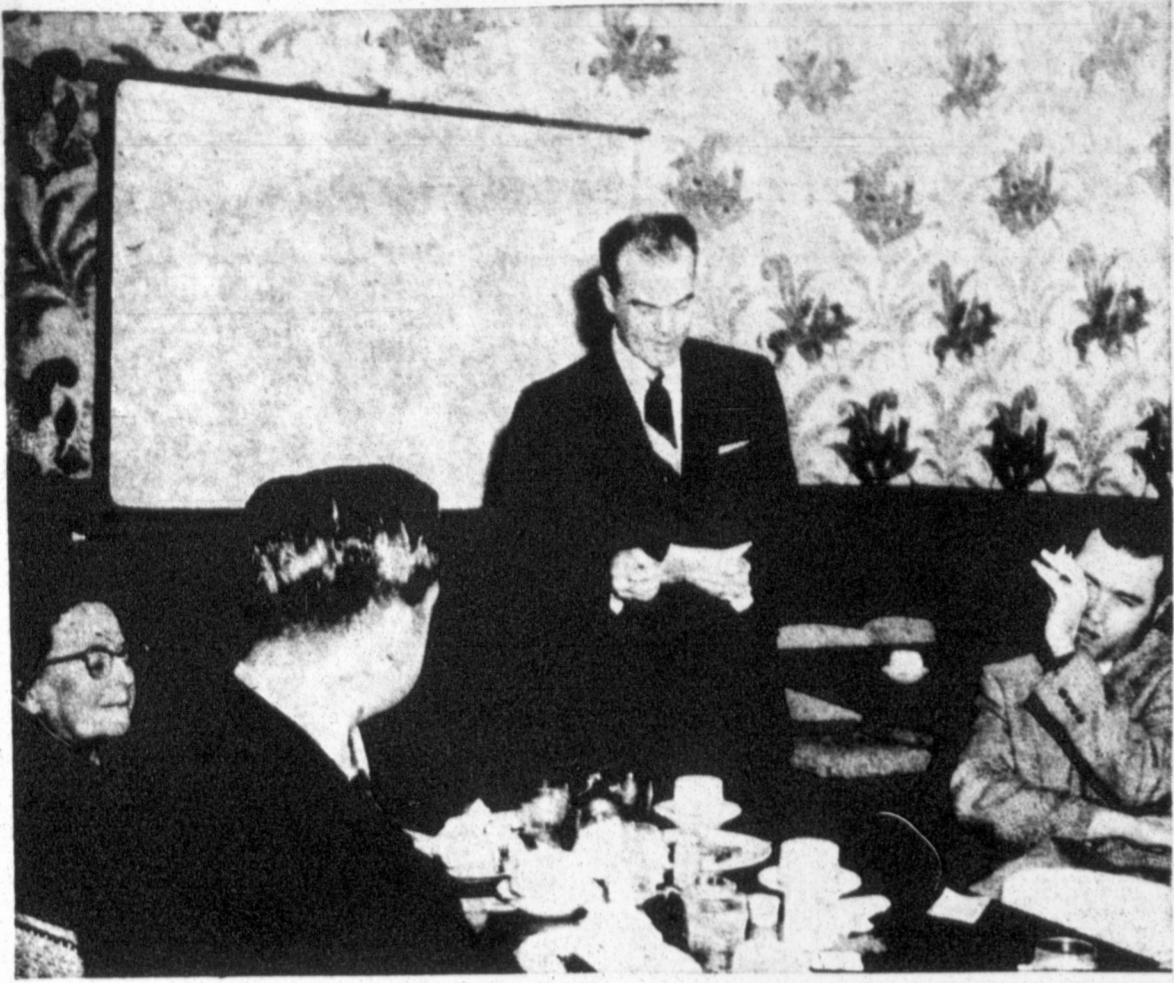

The alleged attack occurred in a home at Watervally, a small community about 25 miles northwest of San Angelo. The woman said the man was beating her over the head with his gun when it went off and the bullet entered his left chest. Arndt died in a pickup truck, but was found in the vehicle about a mile north of Watervally after the woman notified authorities.

'Chute Fails, GI Demands Better One

FORT RICHARDSON, Alaska, Feb. 1 — UP — There's an old saying among paratroopers that "if the chute doesn't open, take it back and get a new one."

This is supposed to be a joke — but Pvt. Stanley A. Melczak of the 11th Airborne Division is serious about it. He's going to take his back as soon as he gets out of the hospital.

The 20-year-old paratrooper from Pittsburgh, Pa., fell 1,000 feet into a four-foot deep snowdrift and lived to demand a better parachute. He's in the Fort Richardson hospital with a possible fracture of the left shoulder and back injuries, but he will be as good as new in a few weeks.

Stanley was one of some 2,000 paratroopers who jumped into the Alaskan wilderness in the past two days in the joint Army-Air Force winter maneuver "Exercise Snowbird." He's the only one whose chute didn't open.

He said the first flinking he had that things were not good was when the wind blew his seat pack up over his face and he saw it was still unopened.

"I thought I better pull my reserve chute and I gave the ring a yank—but before it popped I hit the snow. Scared! Heck, I didn't have time to get scared."

"The first thing I knew I was in a hole in the snow and trying to get up. My back was hurting and I couldn't make it. Then some guys were there and said 'Take it easy and we'll get you out of here.'"

Illegal Herd Going Back To Mexico

BATON, ROUGE La., Feb. 1 — UP — A much-publicized, $1 million herd of smuggled Charolais cattle will start back to Mexico "within a couple of days," state and federal officials said Monday.

The 96 animals are now being paint-branded at LaFayette, said Dr. E. E. Saulmon, veterinarian in charge of agricultural research for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

State veterinarian Frank Wheeler added that final arrangements for trucking the large, creamy-cheated animals back to Mexico are being completed.

"They'll definitely be out of there this week," Dr. Saulmon said, "probably within a couple of days," Dr. Wheeler agreed.

Plans call for the herd to enter Mexico at Eagle Pass, Tex., Saulmon said, but the definite route has not been set. The route may be kept secret, Saulmon said, "because we don't want a lot of traffic and curiosity-seekers to hold up removal of the animals."

Man Escapes Lampasas Jail

LAMPASAS, Tex., Feb. 1 — UP — A search was underway in the Lampasas area Tuesday for a 30-year-old ex-convict who tore a hole in the ceiling and escaped from the Lampasas county jail Monday night.

The escapee was identified as Leonard Alvin Manning, originally from Gatesville, Tex. Sheriff Luther Persons said Manning was wanted in California for parole violation and had a number of other charges against him, mostly forgery counts. Only last Monday he was arrested on a charge of forgery.

Manning, who was lodged with two other prisoners in the "run-around" which circles the cells on the high second floor of the old jail, broke out by tearing some boards out of the ceiling and descending to the ground on a rope made of mattress covers.

Bloodhounds were aiding authorities in the search for the escapee.
