Famished Convicts Give Up

Hostages Freed After 65 Hours

By FRANK W. RAIL

LINCOLN, Neb. — UP — Eight famished rebel convicts surrendered Wednesday after holding two guards and a fellow prisoner as hostages for 65 1-2 hours at the Nebraska penitentiary.

The three hostages emerged unharmed from the isolated, three-story maximum detention building where the rebels had been holed up since 10:30 a.m. (cst) Sunday.

They and their captors had lived for 65 1-2 hours on a single loaf of bread and a little sugar. Their real last meal was Sunday breakfast, served an hour and a half before the revolt began.

The diehard convicts finally surrendered to the pangs of starvation and the stern demands of Gov. Victor E. Anderson, who took personal command of the prison during the marathon riot and refused to compromise with the rebels.

Get Hot Meal
The rebels' first condition of surrender was a hot meal—right away.

Anderson granted it and the haggard, red-eyed convicts hurried off to eat their first real food since Sunday breakfast.

But the governor's terms were hard: 15 days for each of the convicts in the prison's "hole," 60 days in solitary confinement, and 90 days in segregation.

In return, Anderson promised a "fair and impartial" investigation of the prisoners' list of grievances.

While the rebels were eating, the guards who had been held hostage told the story of their ordeal to newsmen.

Warren Miller, 43, said the rebels had threatened him and 24-year-old Eugene Swanson several times with homemade knives.

Two Spoonfuls of Sugar
The two guards were also roughed up and got only two spoonfuls of sugar each for food Tuesday, Miller said.

But the guards said they were treated "pretty good" and added "we really feel they (the prisoners) had a bum rap."

Miller said the uprising started when one of the convicts burst out of his cell and grabbed him from behind. The bars of the cell had been sawed through, Miller said.

Uranium Bug Bites Pampa

Pampa may soon be bristling with scintillators, prospectors, mules, ore displays, geiger counters, maybe even a claim-jumper or two.

It may be, that is, if the wishes of some 50 or more people in the Pampa area come true.

Uranium. That's what it all has to do with... the fever has now taken in the Pampa area.

It all started when R. B. Brummett, an area farmer, dropped by the office of The Pampa Daily News Tuesday and explained that he had read a story in the News about a course in uranium prospecting being given over in Amarillo.

Brummett wanted to know if there was any chance of such a course being given in Pampa, too. He said he knew of 50 people or more in the Pampa area who would be glad to spend even more than the $1 that is being charged for the course in Amarillo if it could be given here, too.

So The News checked with the vocational department of Amarillo College, which is sponsoring the five-class course beginning tonight.

The office of William Sewell, assistant superintendent of the department, checked with W. H. Fitzgerald, the course instructor, who said he was interested and thought he would be able to get clear in about two weeks.

Of course, The News was informed by Sewell's secretary, a large enough room would be needed and so would a display of different-type ores.

"Do you have any ore specimens there in Pampa?" she asked.

The News advised as how it didn't really know. And she allowed, too, that she wasn't exactly an authority on the wiles of uranium prospecting.

Anyhow, Brummett is supposed to come by The News and, when he does, he will be told to contact Sewell or Fitzgerald at the college, so that the Pampa uranium ball can get rolling.

Fampans who want to get a taste of what the course is all about can hike over to Amarillo tonight. The first class — on geology and map reading — is scheduled to be given at 7 p.m. in the college auditorium. Other classes and the dates they are scheduled to be given are those on mineralogy and uranium minerals, April 6; land and leasing, and claim staking, April 15; instruments, April 20; and field equipment and evaluations, April 27.

The course, the college is quick to point out, does not guarantee funding uranium.

But, who knows, maybe the Pampa slogan will someday become, "Where the Wheat Grows, the Oil Flows and the Uranium Ticks."

Was Department Preserved?
WASHINGTON — UP — Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D-Fla.) said Tuesday that he has been told that "large contributors" to the Republican party pressured the Defense Department into choosing Cadillac, Mich., as an Air Base site. Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services committee promptly classified Bennett's charges as "rumors." He says he has no intention of investigating them.

ATLANTA — UP — The South has its attention focused once more on the U.S. Supreme Court. On April 11 it begins determining how to enforce its decision to outlaw segregation in the public schools.

When the court made the historic ruling last May, it recognized the terrific social impact of the decision and delayed enforcement procedure. Then it invited interested states to offer suggestions.

A number of Dixie states have filed briefs which in general beg for unlimited time to obey the court. On the other hand, the National Association for Advancement of Colored People is asking for enforcement by this fall and absolutely no later than a year from then.

As a final decision on the issue approaches, this is the situation in the segregation states:

New Battles Threaten In Indo-China Unrest

Giles Refuses Again To Talk

AUSTIN — UP — Former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles Wednesday refused for the second time to talk under oath in court about his previous administration of the scandal-ridden Veterans Land Board.

Giles, acting directly on the advice of his attorneys, pleaded the constitutional right which holds that a person need not testify if such action might tend to incriminate him.

The ex-land commissioner appeared in 53rd District Court in answer to a state summons. The state sought a deposition from Giles in connection with a civil suit filed by Attorney General John Ben Shepperd seeking to recover $35,000 the state alleges Giles accepted as a bribe.

As Giles finished taking the oath from the court reporter, his attorney, Clint Small Jr., stepped forward and asked that the record show Giles is under criminal indictment in connection with the same alleged offense figuring in the state's civil suit.

Claims Constitutional Immunity
Turning to Giles, Small inquired, "do you wish to claim your constitutional immunity?"

"I do," the former land commissioner replied.

The state was represented at the brief session by Assistant Attorneys General T. Kellia Dibrell and W. V. Geppert.

In a similar appearance, two weeks ago, Giles declined to say anything, and some sources speculated he would follow the same course Wednesday.

The state wants a deposition from Giles in connection with a civil suit in which Shepperd seeks the return of $35,000 to the state by the former land commissioner. Shepperd alleged in the state's suit Giles accepted the money as a bribe.

Holland OKs German Army
THE HAGUE, Holland — UP — Holland's lower house of parliament ratified the Paris treaty agreements to rearm West Germany by an overwhelming majority Wednesday.

The treaties were approved by a vote of 71 to six, with the Communists the only dissenters.

The vote was taken after an uneventful debate which proceeded much faster than originally expected.

Only the Communists used the full speaking time of 80 minutes allotted to each of the eight political groups in the 100-member house.

When Holland completes action on the treaties, Belgium and Luxembourg will be the only nations which must still ratify them.

Foreign Minister Johan W. Beyen, who defended the ratification bills for the government, used only one hour and 15 minutes.

The vote, therefore, came unexpectedly early in the afternoon, several members arrived too late to vote. Since all would have voted in favor of ratification, they would have swelled the majority.

The entire Communist representation of six members was present, and voted in a bloc.

some special legislative sessions may be expected in short order.

4. Throughout the South, Negro education received a shot in the arm when the court began consideration of the race issue. Southern states had hoped to convince the court of their determination to provide "separate but equal" facilities for Negro school children. They were engaged in an equalization program which some officials estimate will cost almost $1 billion when the court decided against them. Much of the program still is under way. In some states it has slowed pending a final verdict.

SLIGHT TANGLE ON THE QUOTES

SAN FRANCISCO — UP — Erudite Government Attorney John Lockley, during the immigration trial of Cesare Rossi, said in his summation:

"Oh what a tangled web we weave When first we practice to deceive."

"That's from Shakespeare," he said.

Defense Attorney Joseph Alioto shouted, "it is not! it's Alexander Pope!"

Coloring Contest

Starts Today

It's here. The Pampa News "Bugs Bunny" coloring contest blank is on page 5 of today's paper.

All of you youngsters 12 or under no matter what your drawing ability get on the bandwagon of this Easter coloring contest, for there are 150 prizes to be spread around among all of you.

The contest will run today, Thursday and Friday. The deadline for entries is midnight April 5. But one new element has been added in this the third coloring contest sponsored by the Pampa News during the past year.

In each of the three drawings to be colored, there will be a drawing mistake. It is up to you youngsters to find it.

Announcement of winners will be made Easter Sunday, April 10 with the grand prize of $10 going to Pampa's young master of coloring. The runner-up will receive $5. Third place money will be $2.50.

Hand puppets will be awarded to the next 12 winners, and all of 125 coloring books will go to youngsters placing in the contest.

The new Cree offices will occupy the entire fourth floor of the Hughes Building except for the office of B. R. Cantrell, architect, Cree said.

The Cree Co. will maintain possession of the "island" site, the official continued. Tentative plans call for the possible leasing of the south end of the "island" for the purpose of having a gasoline filling station there. No plans are in the offing for the remainder of the "island."

Court To Rule On Toll Road
AUSTIN — UP — The state Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to rule on a test case challenging constitutionality of the Texas Turnpike Authority and issuance of $28.5 million in bonds for a Dallas-Fort Worth toll road.

The high court granted the authority's request for permission to file a mandamus action against Attorney General John Ben Shepperd seeking to force approval of the bond issue.

The attorney general's office must rule on validity of most bond issues made by public agencies and governmental bodies.

The bond issue was turned down by the attorney general's office on three grounds.

West Berlin Mayor Otto Suhr made the squeeze against this isolated outpost 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain was part of the "next Communist reaction to ratification of the Paris pact" to rearm West Germany.

High Toll Put On E. German Highways
BERLIN — UP — The East German Communists imposed exorbitant tolls Wednesday on the highways supplying Berlin and West Berlin officials said the Reds had imposed a cold economic blockade.

Berlin city officials said the new highway taxes announced by the Communists raised the toll for an average heavy truck from around $7.50 for a round trip to as much as $100.

The tolls became effective April 1, the seventh anniversary of the first Soviet steps leading to the full land blockade of Berlin in 1948.

"This situation makes it completely impossible to operate trucks to supply Berlin on a normal economic basis," a West Berlin spokesman said. "This is a cold economic blockade."

Bevan To Stay In Labor Party
LONDON — UP — Left-wing Anhurin Bevan won his fight Wednesday to stay within the ranks of the British Labor party.

The party's national executive committee decided at a special meeting on his case to accept Bevan's assurances that he would not challenge the party leadership in the future.

He had been charged with rebelling against the moderate leadership of former Prime Minister Clement Attlee over a decision to support the use of the hydrogen bomb.

Thus, the decision of the national executive means that the fiery, 55-year-old Welshman will be retained within the party's membership.

U.S.-Backed Premier Puts Down Bloody Uprising

By LOUIS GILBERT

SAIGON, Indo-China — UP — American-backed Premier Ngo Dinh Diem crushed a bloody uprising Wednesday in Saigon but three rebellious religious-political sects threatened free Viet Nam in the spreading civil war.

Authorities announced at least 26 persons were killed and 112 wounded in the fighting that flared at midnight and raged until dawn between loyal government troops and rebel forces of the sects.

Diem won the first round, but the Binh Xuyen forces which control Saigon's police and its underworld were intact and firmly entrenched in the suburbs of Saigon. The city was tense, expecting further trouble.

To Throw Up Blockade
All three rebellious sects the Binh Xuyen, the Cao Dai and the Hoa Hao announced they would begin a complete blockade of the capital Thursday. Panic was increasing in Saigon, and hoarding began among the 600,000 population.

The sects cabled Emperor Bao Dai demanding that Diem resign. A close associate of Binh Xuyen commander Gen. Bai Vien said "all South Viet Nam will be put to blood and fire" if Bao Dai does not obey the demand.

Saigon's large Communist underground was reported jubilant, confident that the grave crisis threatening Diem would hand free South Viet Nam over to the Reds in the near future.

Intermittent Fighting
The fighting in Saigon raged intermittently from midnight until dawn when government troops backed by tanks overran the screaming fanatical riflemen of the Binh Xuyen and drove them back to their stronghold near the twin Chinese city of Cholon.

Diem met in emergency session with his cabinet.

Mortar shells exploded on the lawn of the premier's palace, killing six of the palace guardmen. Pools of blood lay in the streets of Saigon and Cholon. The rebels reported new government attacks outside Saigon.

French tanks guarded the residence of U.S. presidential envoy J. Lawton Collins and the several hundred American members of his diplomatic and military mission who were warned to remain in doors.

Reds Say Rule Not Violated

Soviets To Keep Giving Statements

By KENNETH BRODNEY

MOSCOW — UP — The Soviet Union Wednesday denied that Andrei Gromyko violated any secrecy agreement at the London disarmament conference. Russia said its representatives would continue to make statements if they so desired.

Foreign ministry press chief Leonid Ilychev read a prepared statement to a press conference denying flatly that any secret agreement had been reached by delegates to the United Nations disarmament sessions.

The statement added that Gromyko had reserved the right to make statements to the press such as his March 25 Tass interview which produced a furor at the London talks.

Wednesday's foreign ministry statement also said that Gromyko's interview did not violate the UN General Assembly's directive of Nov. 8, 1953, which set up the subcommittee on disarmament.

Gromyko "merely exercised his right to correct false impressions" given by western representatives of discussions in the subcommittee, the statement said.

When he had finished reading the prepared statement, Ilychev told the United Press, in reply to a question as to whether the Soviet government intended to continue making public statements to the press about the activities of the disarmament subcommittee.

"This changes nothing. We will continue to hold discussions in private. But we will continue to make statements to the press until it is decided otherwise and as long as the situation is unchanged."

South Eyes Supreme Court As New Segregation Hearings Near

EDMONTON NOTE: The Supreme Court begins hearing final arguments April 11 to determine the type enforcement decrees it will hand down on its school anti-segregation decision of last May 17. The United Press has prepared in three parts a report on what the public school segregation situation is on the eve of those hearings.

By AL KUETTNER

ATLANTA — UP — The South has its attention focused once more on the U.S. Supreme Court. On April 11 it begins determining how to enforce its decision to outlaw segregation in the public schools.

When the court made the historic ruling last May, it recognized the terrific social impact of the decision and delayed enforcement procedure. Then it invited interested states to offer suggestions.

A number of Dixie states have filed briefs which in general beg for unlimited time to obey the court. On the other hand, the National Association for Advancement of Colored People is asking for enforcement by this fall and absolutely no later than a year from then.

As a final decision on the issue approaches, this is the situation in the segregation states:

1. Five states—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina—form the bulwark of opposition. Their leaders have decided to abolish public schools and set up private systems, if necessary, in an effort to get around the Supreme Court decision.

2. Integration ahead of Supreme Court orders is in progress in a number of states bordering the Deep South. Scattered but violent opposition resulted in Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. The races were mixed in schools of St. Louis, a city that was split down the middle during the Civil War, without serious trouble.

3. Except for standby legislation, most states are marking time until the Supreme Court writes the final chapter in the segregation case. Should it be a strict one,

South Carolina, Virginia, Kansas and the District of Columbia will participate in the final arguments.

Of these, Kansas and Washington, D. C., are well on the way to voluntary obedience to the court. A similar attempt was made in a Delaware town, but the state supreme court ruled that, while Delaware schools could integrate if they desired, they could not at present be compelled to do so.

The Justice Department will uphold the Eisenhower administration's position of integration as rapidly as possible on a local basis.

Famed Choir To Sing Here Thursday

The First Assembly of God, 506 S. Cuyler, will host the John Brown University Cathedral Choir of Sioam Springs, Ark., Thursday night at 7:30.

Under the direction of Dr. Mabel Oiesen, head of the division of music, the choir presents an hour worship service in song centered around the Easter theme.

Dr. Stuart R. Schimpf, the university pastor, tours with the choir. He is the narrator of the worship service.

The character of the choral work done under direction of Dr. Oiesen was given recognition when the Bible Theological Seminary of Los Angeles conferred upon her the honorary degree of Doctor of Music at the close of the Cathedral Choir's California tour in June, 1949.

In preparing for the field of Christian work, Dr. Oiesen has made a special study of voice production, being awarded the Chalmers Clifton prize by the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music for her graduate research thesis on the correct functioning of the vocal mechanism in singing.

She has taken graduate Bible work at the Biblical Seminary of New York and courses in sacred music at the School of Sacred Music of Columbia University.

Michigan Man Heads Refiners

SAN ANTONIO — UP — The Western Petroleum Refiners Association, in convention here, elected Reid Brazell of Alma, Mich., its president for 1955-56.

Brazell, elevated from a vice presidency of the organization, succeeds Roland Rodman, president of Anderson - Pritchard Oil Corp. of Oklahoma City.

Bruce K. Brown of Pan-Am Southern Corp. in New Orleans was named vice president in Brazell's place. H. J. Kennedy of Continental Oil Co. of Houston, F. L. Martin of Sunlite Refining Co. of Corpus Christi, and J. W. Baiden of Skelly Oil Co. of Tulsa, were re-elected vice presidents.

Officers were elected in a session Tuesday of the 43rd annual convention of the refiners Association.

The oilmen were told by a Chrysler Corp. vice president that the coloring public benefits directly from competition in the auto industry, James C. Zeder, the Chrysler executive, added that competition in his industry had reached an "unprecedented scale."

Competition in the industry involves more than a struggle to seize a portion of already existing automotive markets, Zeder said. It involves "competition in the best means of the word in our free economy."

Soviet Apparently Ready To Sign Austria Peace Treaty

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

Russia is talking as if it is ready at last to sign a treaty for the restoration of Austria's sovereignty and independence.

Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab has been invited to go to Moscow to discuss the terms of a treaty. He has accepted and will fly here April 11.

There seems to be a feeling in Vienna and in some Western allied capitals that this time Russia means business.

If so, it must mean that the Kremlin is trying to strengthen its own position. It can hardly mean the Reds have suddenly become big-hearted.

Severely Block Attempts
Ever since the end of World War II 10 years ago, Russia has blocked every attempt by the Western allies to give Austria back the freedom it lost when Nazi Germany seized it in 1938.

Legislators Clear Flood Of New Bills

AUSTIN — UP — Texas lawmakers sent legislation dealing with insurance, labor, water, narcotics and lewd literature across the Capitol Tuesday for members of the other legislative chamber to consider.

Rapid-fire action Monday saw bills dealing with all those subjects approved by the chamber and sent to the other.

Meanwhile, the House spent the record-sized $1,553,000,000 state spending bill toward a conference committee by the technicality of refusing to accept the Senate version. The Senate is expected to give this week routine approval of a House request for a joint committee that will work out differences between the bill as passed by the House and approved by the Senate.

Appropriate $1,512,000,000
The House version would appropriate $1,512,000,000 for the next two fiscal years to run the state government.

Legislation approved by the House Monday and sent to the Senate included:
A controversial bill making Arlington State College a four-year senior college. The measure, sponsored by Rep. Jim Moore of Arlington, was approved 71-60 and now goes to the Senate.

A bill requiring an inventory of water use in Texas. It is one of a series of measures proposed by the Texas Water Resources committee and would require all water users operating under permits or certified fillings to report their use to the state Board of Water Engineers.

Legislation raising penalties for violation of the narcotics laws to life imprisonment. A second bill given approval would allow state narcotics agents to confiscate vehicles carrying narcotics illegally.

Board of Land Surveyors
A bill creating a state board for registration of land surveyors.

A bill changing the present law on lewd literature so as to prohibit that depicting acts of depraved violence, has been passed on literature and prohibit tie-in sales under which a distributor might force a dealer to take lewd literature.

The Senate approved Monday and sent to the House:
A measure tightening financial requirements and broadening state control over Texas life insurance companies. The bill, by Sen. Searcy of Brownsville, sets a minimum of $250,000 capital and $125,000 surplus on legal reserve companies, instead of the present $100,000 capital. It also limits size of policies existing companies may write until they meet the new financial requirements.

A bill banning payment of unemployment compensation benefits to employees idled because of a strike by a union of which they are a member, regardless of whether the strike is called in or out of Texas.

Legislation by Sen. George Moffett of Chillicothe, providing for construction of state courts and state office buildings, estimated to cost $3 million each.

Small Reward
WATERTOWN, N. Y. — UP — A "human fly" burglar climbed 25 feet up the side of a brick building here recently to enter the rear window to steal some money. The burglar got $3 or $4 in pennies on his strenuous efforts.

One reason is that Austria is a crossroads in the heart of Europe and it is valuable to Russia to keep occupation troops there.

It is difficult to believe the Kremlin is now ready to remove those troops within a reasonable time.

At any rate, Chancellor Raab seems to believe he has a good chance to work out acceptable treaty terms.

Molotov Resumes Situation
Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov reopened the treaty situation in his speech to the Russian parliament on Feb. 8. He said the Kremlin was ready to discuss an Austrian treaty provided the treaties to rearm Western Germany were not ratified.

This obvious attempt to impede ratification of the treaties failed. It became increasingly certain that the treaties would be ratified.

Nevertheless, last Thursday Molotov invited Raab to go to Moscow.

At the same time, Molotov in a formal note laid down two conditions — that Austria must not unite with Germany, and must not join any anti-Russian military alliance.

Raab Finds Terms Acceptable
These terms are acceptable to Raab. He believes Austria must maintain neutrality between West and East.

He has been working to find a basis for agreement with Russia ever since he became chancellor in April, 1953. If he succeeds, it will be a triumph for him.

Raab, 63, is a heavy-set, friendly man who is fond of good food and good cigars. As leader of the Austrian People's Party he represents the conservative element in Austrian politics. Because, before World War II, he was a member of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg's private "Heinwehr" political army, he has been accused of Fascist leanings. But he has proved an excellent chancellor.

A new system — called "Operator Distance Dialing" — whereby the operator presses a series of keys to dial Long Distance calls to other cities is rapidly replacing the present method of placing your calls manually.

Your Voice Travels Faster Now

Today, your Long Distance calls go through 3 times faster than they did 10 years ago — thanks to new equipment, new methods.

Last year, 33 Long Distance centers in Southwestern Bell territory were added to the "Operator Distance Dialing" network, making a total of 153 such centers now serving you in our five-state area. All cities we serve do not have this new system as yet, but we are adding the necessary equipment as fast as possible. In the next five years, nearly all your Long Distance calls will be dialed by an operator.

Improved Long Distance service is just one way Texas benefited last year by an $50 million telephone construction program. We know that a progressive state must have a growing telephone system. Although our increased investment increases operating expenses because it takes more money to operate a larger telephone system, we're moving ahead in 1955 with plans for greater telephone improvements — and greater benefits for Texas.

To enjoy the full advantages of this new, faster method, it pays more than ever to keep a list and place your calls by number.

ONE OF SPRING'S BAD FEATURES is cleaning . . . or maybe it's good, if you enjoy it. However, it is an annual tradition. Here are some tips on how to make the chore easier. And since Easter is creeping up on us, here are some suggestions on Easter card styles and Easter wrappings.

SPRING CLEANING this year and screens. The sprayer attachment is going to be easier for the American housewife. That's the word from Madge Lewyt, director of the home service department of one of America's largest vacuum cleaner manufacturers. Reason? The 1955 cleaners are easier to use and the attachments can handle a wider variety of cleaning chores. "Less than 7 per cent of all women who own vacuum cleaners take full advantage of them," says Miss Lewyt. "The average housewife limits the use of her cleaner to four or five basic chores. She cleans rugs, floors, walls, upholstery and drapes. That's all. Actually, today's vacuum cleaner is designed to do much more. And women who take advantage of the many unique things a cleaner can do will find her Spring cleaning job much easier and done in less time."

Miss Lewyt says there are ingenious ways to put cleaners to work. The crevice tool, for example, will lighten the job of cleaning drawers, bird cages, the inside of a piano, and hard-to-reach places, such as back of radiators. The dusting brush will speed up the job of cleaning ash trays, books, closet nooks and woodwork, picture frames, artificial flowers and screens. The sprayer attachment will moth-proof clothes before storing, paint, deodorize attics and basements and water-spray plants. The blower attachment will defrost refrigerators, moth-proof closets, quick-dry paint, clean rifles and dry the inside of wet boots. "All it takes is a little imagination," says the home service expert.

SOMETHING NEW in Easter greetings this year are cards with new full-color photographic reproductions of live chicks, ducklings and other traditional symbols of the season.

The Easter dinner table or party setting will be brightened by a colorful three-dimensional train in gay holiday colors. Thirty-six inches in length, the train is designed to hold a family's Easter cards as well as to decorate the home. Special Easter gift wraps featuring bunny, colored egg and gay floral designs will beautify your Easter gift packages, according to Kaye King, stylist for Hallmark Cards. For an extra fillip, add inexpensive gift trims and a bow of harmonizing or contrasting ribbon.

Mrs. Anna Budock of Perryton Feted With Open House, Parties On Birthday

PERRYTON — (Special) — Mrs. Anna Budock was honored with an open house in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Correll on her 82nd birthday. "Grandma" Budock, as she is known, has been a resident of this area for many years. W. E. McMillen and Mrs. D. A. Caldwell received and registered the guests. The buffet was centered with a white Irish hat, decorated with Shamrocks and filled with white carnations interspersed with green little bows. At either side were white candles in crystal holders. The serving table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations and Shamrocks, lettered with "Grandma—82." White tapers in crystal holders flanked the arrangement. A large birthday cake was decorated in green and white and held 92 yellow candies. Mrs. J. C. May baked the cake and Dempsey Malaney decorated it. Mmes. Robert Thurman, Rex Clark, Alfred Pittman, and C. L. Schell served coffee and cake. During the afternoon the honoree's Sunday school class, the Busy Ladies' Class of the First Methodist Church, presented a program, with Mrs. Anna Wilson in charge. Mrs. Rufus Bolerjack, accompanied by Mrs. Annie E. Rogers, sang and Mrs. Anna Wilson spoke on "God's Care of our Life," and read an original poem which she had composed in honor of Grandma's 82nd birthday. In the evening Mrs. Budock went to her home where she received guests. Mrs. W. B. LaMaster, Mrs. James Hardy, and Mrs. Budock's son, John, served cake and coffee to the guests who called during the evening. One of the highlights of the day for Grandma Budock was an airplane ride which she took with Lonnie McGarraugh.

Wesleyan Guild Has Education Program

The Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist Church met Sunday in the church parlor, with Mrs. Malcom Denison as hostess. Miss Alma Wilson, program chairman, spoke on "Education In Action." As an introduction, she read the poem, "A Package of Seed," by Edgar Guest. Special music was a duet by Brice and Mike Palmer, with Brice on the cornet and Mike on the clarinet, accompanied on the piano by their father, Coy Palmer. Their numbers were "Ivory Palaces" and "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Savior."

A puppet show was presented by Miss Pat Jones and Miss Heidi Schneider. A brief business session was led by Mrs. J. M. Turner, president. Miss Inez Clubb closed the meeting with the devotional, "Religion In Education," stressing the value of religious education in the home and how religious education or the lack of it affects the lives of children.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Coy Palmer and sons, Mike and Brice; and Misses Pat Jones and Heidi Schneider. Members present were Misses Alma Wilson, Lillian Mullinax, Inez Clubb, and Mmes. Ben Ogden, J. M. Turner, Diana Wood, J. B. Austin, J. M. Fitzgerald, Frank Shotwell, Irl Smith, R. M. Wells, Aubrey Jones, J. A. Knox and Malcom Denison.

John Beverly Will Hold Open House In Celebration Of 98th Birthday Today

John Beverly, who used to ride the Panhandle Ranges as a cowboy, is observing his 98th birthday today. And to show just how spry he is, he likes to dance a jig. Born in Parker County near Weatherford, Mr. Beverly first came to this area about 1909 when he was in charge of the Bar-X ranch near Clarendon, owned by his brother, Charlie. In 1929, he moved to Pampa where he has lived since that time. In reminiscing, Mr. Beverly states that times are not much different now, only better. He believes the drouths are worse now, however. "It used to rain lots," he pointed out. Mr. Beverly loves to tell of his first ride in a car when he was about 50 years old. And he saw the first ball of cotton raised in this area, near Clarendon, by Pat Powell. In Parker County during his youth, Mr. Beverly saw many exciting things, such as Belle Starr, the outlaw queen, crossing a river with a posse on her trail. He also met such outlaw notables as Sam Bass, the train robber; and Cole Younger and Frank James. When asked how it felt to be 98 years old, he quipped: "Like any other old fool." However, he added that he looks forward to each day. He states that when people ask him the secret to his long life, he says: "The Lord don't want me and the Devil won't take me. I'm like a man without a country. I haven't any place to go." Mr. Beverly has three children living. He has a daughter in Rawlins, Wyo., a son in Martinez, Calif., and another daughter, Mrs. Alice Wain of Denver, Colo., is now visiting him for his birthday. Mr. Beverly will observe his birthday with an open house today, and a small family dinner. He is also slated to appear on television, channel 4, at 6:15 p.m. today.

Recent Miami Bride Feted With Shower

Exemplar Chapter Chooses Officers

The Exemplar chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday evening in the home of Mrs. Bill Sullins, 1309 Coffee. Mrs. James Poole presided for the business session, during which new officers were elected. Those chosen were: Mrs. Bill Bridges, president; Mrs. Ralph Esson, vice-president; Mrs. John Phelps, treasurer; Miss Gerry Caruth, recording secretary; and Mrs. Martin Stubbe, president of the ESP council. Plans were made for a bake sale to be held in April. The program on window treatment was presented by Mrs. Joe Fischer. Following her presentation, the group visited Barber's Decorating Shoppe, where Mrs. L. A. Barber showed the women samples of material and told of new trends in upholstery in home decorating. Jack Edwards, new interior decorator, discussed custom-built furniture. The women returned to the Sullins' home for refreshments. Attending were Mmes. Bill Bridges, Stanley Chittenden, Joe Fischer, Bob Fugate, Travis Lively, John Plaster, James Polle, Martin Stubbe, Bill Sullins, and Misses Virginia Vaughan and Joyce Warner.

Mrs. D. W. Mayes Honored At Coffee

Mrs. Dwight W. Mayes was honored with a farewell coffee Monday morning in the home of Mrs. W. W. Bryant, 1145 Starkweather. Mrs. Mayes is moving to Sherman. Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts, mints and nuts were served from a lace-covered table. Present were Mmes. D. D. Tidrow, Buck Francis, Jack Rhodes, Charles Reeves, W. M. Davis, Paul Skidmore, Billy Cox and Si Conklin. The average housewife walks approximately 450 miles in her kitchen each year.

Shower Presented For Wheeler Bride

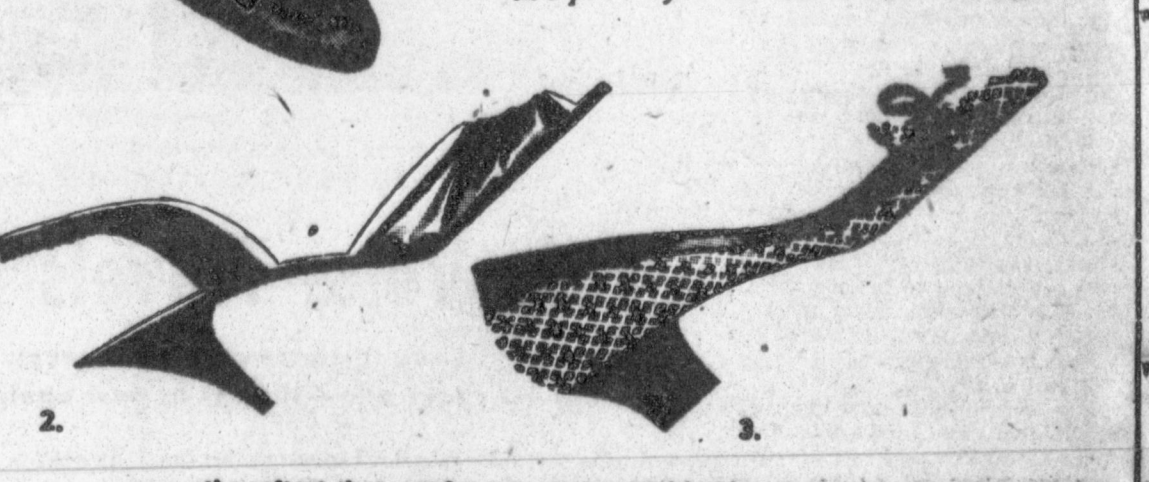

WHEELER — (Special) — Mrs. Harold Sivage, the former Rena Johnson, was honored with a bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Leo Hubble. Co-hostesses were Mmes. Leo Lamb, Boyce Farris, Aubrey Downs, Carol Adams and Shorty Sechrist. The bride's chosen colors of pink and white were used as a color theme. Refreshments of cake, spiced tea and coffee were served from a table covered with a lace cloth over pink, centered with an arrangement of white carnations and baby breath. Appointments were of crystal and silver. About 60 persons called or sent gifts.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
A young mother has reasonably challenged me on the confusion between two statements I have made. She writes: "In one column, you said that misjudgment was childhood's tragedy. In another, you agreed that we parents can't make accurate psychological judgments of a child's behavior. What then is the answer? I am not a psychologist. Doesn't this make misjudgment of my child inevitable?" Yes, I think it does. And I know no answer to this serious problem but the religious one — the perception that all human judgment, including that of psychologists, is subject to error. I know no answer but the old, old one of humility before the mystery of another human soul. If we possess this humility, misjudgment of Johnny can not greatly hurt him. For if we have it, we never content ourselves with emotional apologies when we discover that we have misjudged Johnny. Having found in our apron pocket the ball pen we accused him of taking, we pay him no 50 cents to assuage his hurt feelings. We use the occasion to illustrate the fallibility of human judgment. Gravely, we say to our little boy, "Now you see how mistaken even mother's judgment can be. Though I love you, even I cannot know you absolutely. Only God knows you absolutely. That is why we need never wholly trust another person's judgment of what we do. It is why we must try to know ourselves as well as we can, so that we can correct others' misjudgment of us." If we believe what we have said, Johnny will be less apt to accept misjudgment again. When it makes him uncomfortable, he will locate his own reasons for his misunderstanding action. And bring them to us so that we can rejudge it in the light of his new self-knowledge. Such humility is far more valuable to parents than psychological insight. Instead of encouraging us to give Johnny self-knowledge we've figured out for him, it forces him to struggle for it himself. Do we have to reserve judgment of a child because we know that it's subject to error? No, indeed we don't. Because we know it will be human, not divine judgment, we don't refuse to make any. That would be childish. We just refrain from demands that Johnny accept our judgment as divine. It is the idea that parental judgments are perfect — not the misjudgments themselves — that makes childhood tragic.

HOLLYWOOD TODAY!

MOVIES - TV - RADIO
 by Erskine Johnson

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Behind the Camera: Cyd Charisse and 20 pugilists with battered noses and cauliflower ears take their places for the big "What a Dame" musical number in MGM's "It's Always Fair Weather."

It's an intricate scene set against the background of Stillman's gym in New York, with prize fighters dancing with Cyd and rope-skipping past her. Dialogue and action must dovetail to the split second.

The dancing skill of the prize fighters is a "This is Hollywood" note. The studio drew a blank when it tried to find dancing pugs. So they hired chorus boys and made them up with plastic flat noses and cauliflower ears.

There's a healthy chunk of irony on the "illegal" set at Warner Bros. Edward G. Robinson is playing a criminal attorney involved with Albert Dekker, a crime syndicate boss.

To indicate Dekker's wealth, half a dozen original paintings by such masters as Gauguin, Matisse and Renoir decorate the walls. They were loaned to Warners by Robinson from his million-dollar art collection but as I watch the scene I hear this dialogue from the script:

Dekker: "Quite a collection, isn't it?"
 Robinson: "Quite. I envy you. All I can afford are reproductions."

THE PERMANENT western street at U-I has been converted into a pioneer town in Alaska

LEX BARKER and Warren Stevens are getting instructions from Director Bill Castle for an action sequence in "Duel on the Mississippi" at Columbia. The scene calls for Lex to climb a tree and take a place on an overhanging limb so he can jump on Stevens as he rides by. When Lex is asked if he understands what he is to do in the tree, he quips:

"After five years as 'Tarmas' there's only one man who knows more about trees than I do and that's Joyce Kilmer."

Siamese Twin Girls Separated
CHICAGO — UP — Siamese twin girls from Thailand were successfully separated Tuesday in a 2½ hour operation.

The 22-month-old twins, Prisana and Napit Polinyo, "survived the operation in good condition," the chief surgeon reported.

The children were joined by a band of flesh, bone and muscle from the chest to the stomach. The operation disclosed that only one vital organ was shared. It was the liver. The surgeons cut the liver in half, giving each twin a chance at a normal life.

Variety Picks Winners Of Film Awards

HOLLYWOOD — UP — Marion Brando, Grace Kelly and "On the Waterfront" will be the big winners at Wednesday night's Academy awards banquet, Variety magazine forecast Tuesday.

The trade publication's predictions were based on a straw poll of 15 per cent of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences membership. Variety has been right on better than 85 per cent of its selections in seven previous straw polls.

The magazine's predictions:
 Best actor — Marion Brando, as a dock worker in "On the Waterfront."

Best actress — Grace Kelly, as the wife of a broken down actor in "The Country Girl."

Best picture — "On the Waterfront," a grimly realistic story of a strike on the docks.

Best supporting actress — Eva Marie Saint, Brando's girl in "On the Waterfront."

Best supporting actor — Edmund O'Brien, as a publicity agent in "The Barefoot Contessa."

Best direction — Elia Kazan, "On the Waterfront."

Best screenplay — George Seaton, "The Country Girl."

Best song — "Three Coins in a Fountain."

Korea Vet Dies In Crash

SAN ANTONIO — UP — A Korean veteran who flew some 100 jet fighter missions was killed on take-off from Kelly Air Force Base when his F-84F Thunderstreak crashed, bounced into an embankment and a wire fence, then struck a parked freight train and burned.

The Air Force identified the victim of the crash Tuesday afternoon as 1st Lt. Donald W. Culver, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Culver of Houston.

Culver was stationed with the 1737th Ferry Squadron at Dover, Del., and was to ferry the plane that crashed from Kelly AFB here to Severt AFB near Nashville, Tenn.

He was a veteran of 500 hours in jets and had flown about 100 missions in F-84's over Korea.

The Air Force said his plane crashed on attempted takeoff, struck an embankment at the south end of the runway, bounced into a high mesh wire fence and then slammed into a freight train parked on the Southern Pacific tracks nearby.

"Several" freight cars were caved in and damaged by fire that was quickly extinguished, Kelly AFB spokesmen said. The plane was destroyed.

Anderson To Get Replica Of Ancient Firing Piece

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON — UP — Robert R. Anderson, deputy secretary of defense, is going to get a replica of a weapon that helped us out in two wars.

This beautiful hand-made firing piece will come in mighty handy if Bob Anderson happens upon a charging buffalo along Pennsylvania Ave.

The National Rifle Association of America is presenting to Anderson an exact copy of the flintlock. This was used by our forebears in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812.

The rifle people are holding their 84th annual meeting in the capital. Some months back, Maj. Gen. Meritt A. Edson, USMC, retired, decided that a suitable memento for the guest speaker at the big banquet would be a flintlock rifle. Since Edson is the executive director of the National Rifle Association, everybody agreed.

So the general dropped a line to Cecil G. Brooks of Lowell, Ohio, an expert craftsman when it comes to building rifles. He told Brooks to get busy. Brooks studied up on what went into a flintlock rifle and got busy.

The finished product, which cost a pretty penny and is something to catch the eye of any lover of firearms, is now shined up and ready — with a silver "presented by" imbedded in the Ohio curly maple wood stock.

Groom Team Wins Dairy Judging

GROOM — (Special) — The Dairy Cattle Judging team, consisting of Max Reno, Kenneth Friemel, Bobby Husted and Donald Mansel, took first place in the Dairy Cattle Judging Contest held Monday, March 21, at Abilene Christian College.

There were 75 teams entered in the contest. Max Reno was the high point man of the entire contest and was awarded a check for $30.00 for being first out of 300 boys.

The Livestock Judging Team made up of Gerald Hermesmeier, Ronald Homer, Doug Whatley and Denny Kotara placed eighth. This is the same team that won the Top of Texas Livestock Judging contest held at Pampa Jan. 25 of this year.

At A.C.C. a sweepstake trophy is given to the team placing the highest in all contests. The Groom boys won third in this division.

Brooks worked hard to recapture the past. The rifle he has recreated precisely in the best tradition of early America, measures 62 3/8 inches overall and has a 46 2/3 inch octagonal barrel rifled with eight grooves. Its bore measures 0.37 inch.

Nothing is more traditionally American than the flint, or the Pennsylvania or Kentucky rifles used by the men who fought their way west, tamed same, cleared the land of buffalo and staked claims to the good earth.

It was developed by German rifle makers who came here in the 18th Century. The flintlock, indeed, was the finest firing piece of its day. Its inception introduced a new standard of deadly accuracy.

Hearing Set For Nurse In Murder Case

ROSWELL, N. M. — UP — A preliminary hearing will be held this week for Capt. Glenna I. Cunningham, a 31-year-old Air Force nurse charged with murdering her newborn infant.

The Abilene, Tex., nurse has been held in her quarters at Walker Air Force Base here because of her physical condition which delayed the preliminary.

The murder charge was filed against her Saturday after a coroner's jury, acting on the basis of an autopsy report, found that the infant had lived a short time after birth but had died from "lack of oxygen," possibly suffocation.

Capt. Cunningham apparently gave birth to the infant unattended in her apartment the night of March 17 or early March 18, authorities said. She later called for an Air Force ambulance which took her to the Walker AFB hospital.

There doctors saw she had recently given birth and when asked about the baby, Capt. Cunningham directed them to her apartment where they found the body in a box in the bathroom.

The unmarried captain was a veteran of seven years in the Air Force and recently had been in charge of the obstetrics ward at the Walker hospital.

Billions, Baloney

Eugene W. Castle, founder and former president of Castle Films, Inc., has authorized a book which is a must for every lover of liberty.

The title of the tome, just off the press of Devin-Adair Co. of New York, is "Billions, Blunders and Baloney." Mr. Castle traveled 75,000 miles at his own expense to look into the squandering of American billions abroad. What he found is ably and forcibly presented.

For instance, Mr. Castle reveals that the Associated Press, the largest private news gathering association in the world maintains its very extensive day and night wire services with a total of 3,000 employees. The New York Times publishes a huge daily and Sunday edition which, with supplements runs into several hundred pages of copy. The editorial and news staff of this paper is approximately 325.

Yet the USA, the gigantic foreign propaganda machine of the United States government had in fiscal 1954 a total of 10,171 persons on its payroll. The average annual salary aggregated $5,735.

According to Castle, Harold E. Stassen, head of the Federal Foreign Operations Administration has openly admitted that "handouts for foreigners must come ahead of security for Americans." Stassen says: "We cannot nor must we ever trim our own aid to needy free nations just for the sake of cutting our own budget."

As an example of wasteful and risky give-aways, Castle reports that we have sent to politically unstable countries huge stockpiles of war material which might very conceivably be used against us later. For instance, to France, not noted particularly for a single political point of view, we have been most generous.

To France and other NATO countries in four years ending December 31, 1953, we gave: 99,444 electronic and signal equipment items, 30,792 tanks and combat vehicles; 176,343 motor transport vehicles; 30,037 artillery pieces; 35,372,000 rounds of artillery ammunition; 601 naval vessels; 5,340 aircraft.

In sending this vast assortment of war equipment overseas we have weakened American home preparedness without any certainty that the material will not ultimately be used against us. "Billions, Blunders and Baloney," by Eugene Castle is timely and in a sense, terrifying.

Hank Loading Down Auto With Indian Handicraft

By HENRY McLEMORE

Sitting Bull's house, even when he was expecting guests and had all his best things out, won't have a thing on ours when we get back from this automobile swing through Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and California.

The car is already loaded to the Plimo line with Indian arts and handicrafts and Mary and I are only at the Grand Canyon, with hundreds of miles of red-man territory yet to travel.

At present our home is done along French Provincial lines, but we plan sweeping changes. Tentative plans drawn up as we roll along Highway 66 between Albuquerque and Flagstaff call for a house so decidedly Indian that if Custer were to visit us he'd hold on to his scalp from the second he entered the door.

The breakfast nook is going to be pure Hopi, with the central piece a big tom-tom I can bang on when I want more coffee, or think it is wise to warn Mary that the toast is burning.

We haven't definitely decided whether to make the bedroom Ute or Pueblo, but there is no doubt in our minds as to the living room. It is going to be Apache from start to finish. We are going to build the living room around a buffalo head reading lamp that we picked up in Gallup, and a coffee table with legs made of old peace pipes.

With crossed bows and arrows over the mantelpiece, a pair of stuffed jack rabbit book-ends on the TV set, and "The Ballad of Davy Crockett" coming from a record player, it'll be a mighty snug place for a man to slip on his beaded moccasins and toy with his arrowhead collection.

Mary, who knows much more about these things than I do, says that it is the little odds and ends one picks up here and there that give charm to a home. If that is true, then our home is going to be just about the most charming spot in the world. For if there ever was a place to pick up odds and ends, Highway No. 66 is it.

As it rolls through the plains and over the hills, No. 66 is lined with shops that offer the most entrancing bargains. We were tantalized by roadside sign after sign, and more often than not we drove in and made a purchase.

How could a couple resist the lure of signs like these: Feather Bird Pictures and Pillow Tops . . . Bows and Arrows and Hand-Made Indian Moccasins . . . Cactus Plant Lamps, Tablecloths and Aprons . . . Indian War Headdresses and Beaded Belts . . . Indian Silverware at Work . . . Cactus Hankies 25 Cents . . . Copper Bracelets for Your Rhuematisms . . . Stuffed Rattles . . . Hand-Tooled Belts . . . Indian Skirts and Squaw dresses . . . Petrified Wood for Gem Cutters . . . Free Uranium Ore.

I bought a copper bracelet for a collar bone that has been acting up lately, and I must say that I hadn't worn it more than an hour before I noticed that it felt about the same as ever.

We didn't buy any cactus handkerchiefs or any cactus tablecloths. I just can't imagine reaching over a cactus tablecloth for a hot biscuit, or folding a cactus handkerchief in my breast pocket.

Just about my favorite sign was that of the Navajo Service Station which offered free parking. A gracious gesture, being as the station was located in a spot where the open spaces stretched to the horizon without a single break, and higher sections is, in a true sense, as arbitrary and unreal as the division of history into ancient, medieval, and modern periods. If, then, a Christian church relinquishes its claims on any one of the divisions of formal education, it implicitly admits that it has no part in education.

If a church withdraws from one division of education, the logical consequence of that withdrawal will be the ultimate abandonment of all formal education by that church.

Then he points out that colleges that were formally under the control of the church have gradually relinquished their control. Then he observes:

"The Churches And The Schools"

I have come across a very interesting new book called "The Churches and the Schools" written by Frances X. Curran. Mr. Curran is a Catholic and the book was written under the Jesuit Studies. Since I have been so concerned about the way our children have been educated in government schools. I enjoyed reading this book on this important subject.

The thing that impressed me most was that it is only in America that the Protestant churches have practically abandoned their responsibility of educating their children. In Canada and most of Europe the Protestants still believe that it is their duty, and not the duty of the state, to educate their own children.

The Preface of the book starts out in this manner: "The relations of the church and the state to education is now, and promises to remain, a much agitated question among Americans. Even while the present study was in preparation, a number of books and magazines and newspaper articles discussed the topic. Overlooked in these publications — as, indeed, in the general histories of American education — was a revolutionary development in the history of education and in the history of Christianity: the surrender by American Protestantism during the past century of the control of popular elementary education to the state.

"This fact is unique in the history of Christendom. Traditionally, the Christian Church has claimed the right to exercise at least a measure of formal control over the education of its children. The Catholic Church still seeks to implement this claim. So, apart from American Protestantism, do the Protestant churches. Only in the United States has Protestantism relinquished the traditional claim of the Christian Church to exercise control over the formal education of its children in the elementary schools.

"The fact of that unique development is too enormous to be completely ignored. But when educational historians have been perceptive enough to discern the fact, they have shown a massive unconcern in the investigation of its causes. The object of the present volume is to explore those causes.

In the first chapter Mr. Curran observes: "In the nineteenth century a powerful and ultimately successful drive for universal education on the elementary level developed in western Europe and its overseas extensions. In European countries with a predominantly Protestant population — in the British Isles, Holland, Germany, and Scandinavia — this popular elementary education was entrusted largely to the control of the Christian churches. In North America denominational schools became the usual means of elementary instruction north of the Canadian border.

"As American Protestantism departed from its European prototype in the marked growth of the American Evangelical denominations, so the Protestantism of the United States diverged from the European Protestant tradition of the control of education by the church. The connection between the two peculiarly American developments would appear to be more than casual."

Then the author goes on to contend that the only way children can be educated is either by the parochial schools or by the state. He puts it this way: "Organizations of parents or private educational institutions cannot hope to supply the rudiments of education to all the children of a nation. Popular elementary education must therefore be imparted by the church or by the state, working singly or together."

It does not seem to me that he gives any evidence to prove that either the church or the state can do a better job in supplying the rudiments of education than groups of real libertarians can do, who recognize that the responsibility for education of the children belongs to the parents and neither to the state nor the church.

Then he relates: "American Protestantism has handed over to the state its claim to control the primary education of children. What have been the consequences of that act? It is doubtful whether an adequate answer to the question can be given. And whether the consequences are considered praiseworthy or damnable will depend largely on one's viewpoint.

"One consequence seems beyond doubt. Education, like history, is a whole. For the sake of convenience, both are divided into periods. The division of formal education into elementary, secondary, and higher sections is, in a true sense, as arbitrary and unreal as the division of history into ancient, medieval, and modern periods. If, then, a Christian church relinquishes its claims on any one of the divisions of formal education, it implicitly admits that it has no part in education.

If a church withdraws from one division of education, the logical consequence of that withdrawal will be the ultimate abandonment of all formal education by that church.

Then he points out that colleges that were formally under the control of the church have gradually relinquished their control. Then he observes:

Graft in Asia Makes Solons Reluctant To Vote For Aid

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Only with great reluctance will Congress vote $2 billion for Asian military and economic aid, because of official admission that a vast amount will be pocketed by foreign government officials in Southeast Asia as "honest graft."

The only defense for tolerance of these dishonest practices on the part of our allies is that the grafters lead the fight against Communist expansion in that area. Foreign Operations spokesmen have told Congressional Committees that these conditions exist as "the custom of the country." They hope to wipe them out or minimize them. Meanwhile, they must wink at local racketeers because the racketeers represent our main bulwark in the cold war.

Thailand, for instance, is ruled and controlled by a small clique of politicians, policemen and military officers, from the top down to minor officials. They enjoy power as authoritarian as the Kremlin's. Nobody dares to challenge them save the Communists, whom they hate, if only because the opposition represents a threat to their pilfering.

These bosses, like Tammany grafters of old, demand a cut on every contract for construction and improvement financed by American money. They insist on majority ownership of private enterprises established to modernize food and clothing and beverages.

Nor do they expect to pay for the stock; they require that it be handed over outright. They also stipulate that all key jobs be given to their hordes of relatives, regardless of their efficiency or experience. It is simply patronage.

These are not clandestine or hidden operations. Thand officials make these requests in smiling and friendly manner in negotiations with American representatives. They see no reason why ancient and honorable methods of doing business should be disturbed by their Western benefactors. In a sense, it is part of the price we must pay for their resistance to Communism.

In South Vietnam, the powerful religious sects refuse to disband their armies and integrate them with the government forces, unless accorded the expensive privileges they enjoyed under the French regime. For fear that they may overthrow our friends in power, we may have to accede to their costly demands. It is another form of highjacking Uncle Sam.

In Korea, the grafters resemble more closely the racketeers of Capone days. They drag their profits from the disposal of about $100,000,000 of surplus war materials.

When auctions are held, they browbeat legitimate rival bidders so that they obtain the goods at extremely low prices and sell at huge profits. If an honest merchant outbids them, he is forced to give them a 20 per cent kick-off as "protection." Since many of the racketeers are war veterans, they have public sympathy to such a degree that neither politicians nor police dare to interfere with them.

United States representatives have demanded that Syngman Rhee, South Korean President, clean up the mess. Otherwise, we shall sell the property elsewhere, although the sales were originally intended to rebuild the nation's economy.

THE MOOD OF YALTA

(The Wall Street Journal)

The mistakes of Yalta — and their tragic consequences — have been apparent for years. The value of the long official record of the conference is that it permits us to sense the mood and atmosphere in which the mistakes were made.

They were going to remake the world, these three, and at least two of them were confident they could. Prime Minister Churchill said he felt as though "standing on the crest of a hill with the glories of future possibilities stretching before us." President Roosevelt said, in the words of the record, that "he felt the atmosphere at this dinner was as that of a family, and it was in those words that he liked to characterize the relations between our three countries."

In this atmosphere of supreme self-confidence it is not really so remarkable that the American officials were more concerned with the post-war dream-world of the United Nations than they were with the implications of the fact that they were putting Soviet Russia in the heart of Europe and the heart of Asia.

Nor is it, in such a mood, altogether surprising that they could casually hand over to Stalin Manchurian rail and port rights and Pacific territories without the advice or consent of the Chinese Nationalists, or indeed even without much discussion. Or that Mr. Roosevelt was more concerned about the American political repercussions of carving up Poland than he was about Poland itself.

Underlying the individual errors of judgment was the fundamental flaw. The ancient Greeks called it hubris — overweening pride. If you really think you can remake the world and, set about trying to do it, you cannot be too particular about the people your efforts affect; otherwise you wouldn't get anywhere.

Lenten Guideposts Writer Called Notorious Character

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON, Ariz. — Jenkin Lloyd Jones, of the Tulsa Tribune which is consistently honest and courageous, made a speech to a coalition of Arizona editors at Phoenix a few weeks ago. He told them that the trouble with our newspapers is that they are cowardly. Not venality but cowardice. He said there were some awful crooks in charge of many papers years ago but they had plenty of guts. Too many fellows on the current roster are too comfortable, too fond of their material luxury, and their "importance," their country-club social status, to put it that way, to campaign for virtuous causes which would be unpopular with the majority of the readers.

Mr. Jones said, "who the hell is going to defend rabies?" This is all by way of a practice swing.

I now call to your attention a particular case. Mr. Jones' same Tulsa Tribune recently published a series of pious howlers entitled "Lenten Guideposts" accredited to "the magazine Guideposts" and copyrighted by "Guideposts' Associates," Carmel, N. Y. The particular piece that I refer to is one carried under the by-line of Charles A. Ward of St. Paul and Minneapolis. Ward is president of Brown and Bigelow, which prints calendars, fancy labels and color-press advertising matter. It is an old firm of national renown which Ward acquired by a strange process following a term he had served in Leavenworth after being convicted of dealing in narcotics in Denver. In prison, he met Herbert Bigelow, who was doing a short job for income tax fraud. Being a fellow of commanding personality, Ward took Bigelow under his protection and eased his way. When they both got out, Bigelow took Ward into the business in St. Paul and in no time at all, Ward was the works. Bigelow and a woman were murdered by an unknown assassin and Ward was Bigelow's principal legatee. This crime has been the subject of many of those reminiscent mystery features. It never was solved. Apparently Bigelow was lured into a clandestine deal.

It is needless to say that Mr. Jones was unaware of Ward's background when he printed this piece. I telegraphed to inquire where he got it. He replied "Lenten Guidepost syndicated by Des Moines Register Tribune Syndicate."

The Des Moines Register outfit operates the monopoly paper in Minneapolis, which is cheek-by-jowl with St. Paul. Everybody who knows anything in either city knows that Ward is a notorious character. He snuck into New Deal politics early in the game. He got a presidential pardon, attacked Anna Roosevelt Bogtiger to $50,000 for her newspaper flap in Phoenix and wrote it off along with the rest of the donors who had various obvious motives, and most recently turned up in the prosecution of Joseph D. Numan, Jr., the former Democratic commissioner of internal revenue who was convicted of tax fraud himself and sentenced to prison. Ward paid Numan $25,000, in stock of his company, to "expedite" a tax case involving Brown and Bigelow. Numan's "services" as an attorney to earn the $25,000 consisted of four phone calls. Ward already had received a favorable ruling valuable to him from Numan as commissioner. The documents in this case were labeled "commissioner interest."

Numan resigned in June, 1947 and Ward hired him to make the phone calls in November. As a result of those calls the documents in the second problem were labeled "rush," after months of delay.

Ward's power in politics is real and ruthless. He once tried to appoint the United States Marshal in St. Paul. The FBI balked and cooperated with Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin and Ward's man did not get the job. He was close to the late Robert La Follette, Jr., who was either an accomplice or a tool of the Communists. Joe McCarthy beat him and thus eliminated Ward.

About 1935, Ward and La Follette conceived the idea of making a political revolution in the midwest with either Ward or La Follette as the presidential nominee, although, at that time, Ward could not even vote, to say nothing of holding office.

In the 1947 tax problem, Ward's personal lawyer proposed that Ward engage the late Robert Numan, of the Truman Missouri gang, who died rich after a penitentiary start and a short career. He was chairman of the Democratic National Committee and postmaster general. He was too busy to take Ward's business so Numan got it.

Ward has claimed that he soldiered with Pancho Villa in Mexico, but his whole career is cloudy and that phase is not verified. The federal judge who sentenced him in Denver gave him an unusual tongue-lashing which summed him up as an inveterate rascal of long experience in the underworld.

Ever since he got into Brown and Bigelow, Ward has made a good deal of his preference for conviction. He claims he runs with them because he sympathizes with them in their social problems. Nevertheless some resemble Al Capone's convoys of "muscle."

On the 28th anniversary of Ward's graduation from Leavenworth, Truman sent him a written greeting, supplementing one of those phony "E" awards which were tossed around during the war. After Truman left the White House, Ward offered him $20,000 a year to be his sales manager.

The Cowles Brothers, who own the Minneapolis and Des Moines newspapers as a political force, know Ward's whole story and they once gave him the standard stammer treatment in "Look."

In his "Lenten Guidepost," Ward sprinkles himself over with newsworthy lies as a great philanthropist and a sinner who has reformed.

The Doctor Says

By EDWARD J. JOHNSON, M. D.

I do not know how to improve on a little leaflet issued by the National Association for Mental Health on the subject "What Every Child Needs for Good Mental Health." In this case as in many others it often seems that the most important facts can be put briefly.

The point brought out by this little pamphlet is that in addition to having plenty of good food, sleep, exercise and fresh air children must have their emotional needs met also. The child's immediate happiness is important but parents who would raise their children to be healthy and stable grownups must pay attention to the emotional as well as physical requirements of their offspring.

EVERY CHILD NEEDS to feel the love of his parents and that his parents want and enjoy him. The child needs to believe that his parents like him for himself, not only when he acts as they want him to but all the time, even when he misbehaves.

Security is a deep-seated need in every child. The home must be built up as a good safe place of retreat with the parents available to support the youngster when he needs them. The protection of the home and parents when a youngster becomes frightened — as every youngster does sometimes — gives renewed confidence and fulfills a basic need.

EVERY CHILD NEEDS to know that his parents want him to grow up, that they have confidence in him, and encourage him to try new things for which he is ready and that they do not hold him down with too firm a hand.

The parents are also basically responsible for helping a child to develop such social qualities as courage, honesty, generosity, and kindness. Children are imitative and if they find their parents possessing such qualities they will, in all likelihood, develop them also.

GUIDANCE IS ANOTHER element which every child needs. He is helped in his first halting steps at walking and should have aid for many years in the problems of life and behavior, towards others which the parents have already learned themselves.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME—Suzanne Stephens, eight, certainly gave a hair-raising shout of joy on her return to New York from Heidelberg, Germany. She and her parents sailed to the U. S. en route to their home in Riceville, Ia.

THE FUN GOT DAMPENED—Flood waters went higher than the base of the roller coaster at an amusement park in Cincinnati, O., as the Ohio River rose after a steady rainfall. Flood conditions in the Ohio River Valley had left thousands of people homeless in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana.

HOWARD IN ACTION—Elston Howard, first Negro on the N. Y. Yankees' roster, appears in action in the Yankees-Red Sox game in St. Petersburg, Fla., catching, top photo, and batting fourth in the line-up, below. Howard grounded out to the second baseman on this cut, but got one hit in four trips to the plate. Umpire is Ed Hurley and catcher, below, is Pete Daley. The rookie turned in a fine job catching, frequently stopping wild pitches by Bob Wiesler. The Red Sox won this game, however, 4-2.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE WORLD

A LOVELY VIEW—The scenery at Miami is always nice to look at, but pretty girls like these also add some enchantment to the view. The six lissome lovelies are enjoying a romp along the beach, and they look like bathing beauties who do go near the water.

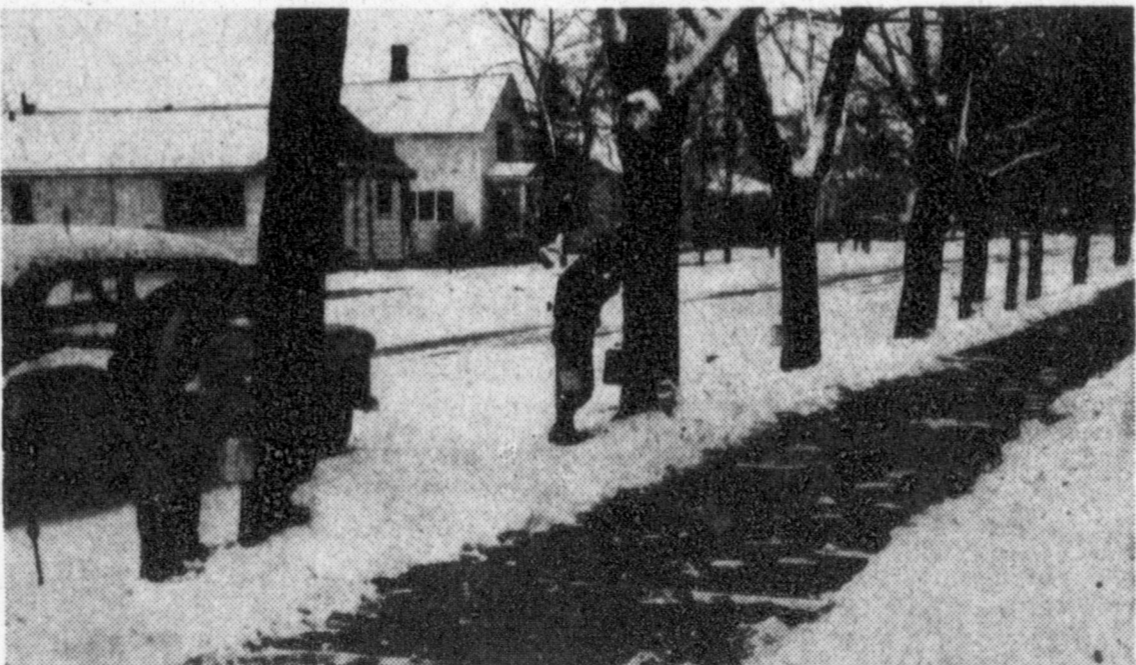

COSTUME BAWL—Something awful must have happened to put this three-year-old in such an unhappy state at a children's carnival ball in Rome. Perhaps it was caused because someone else turned up in a 16th Century costume just like hers.

READY FOR SPRING—With the Washington Obelisk in the background, workmen are scrubbing the Reflecting Pool in the nation's capital. The pool is only three feet deep, but it holds 7,500,000 gallons of water and gets cleaned at this time of year to look its best for spring visitors.

TRANSPLANTED RHYTHM—A bit of rural Greece came to Paris with performances of Greek folk dances such as this. The boisterous performers are members of the Greek National Ballet which is demonstrating native folk dances in the French capital. They seem to involve a great deal of activity.

TAP O' THE MORNIN'—Just because young Robert and Wayne Garbisch live in town is no reason for missing the fun of maple sugar time in Wausau, Wis. The boys tap the maple trees on their street after making their own spouts for the job.

GREEN ISHUE MULL—Lou Lou, an Irish setter in Chicago, is certain she didn't give birth to 17 puppies. Paula Lee Culpepper and her brother, Sam, to play with. But with so many to care for, perhaps Lou Lou will be glad to have some baby-sitting assistants.

DOWN AGAIN—Middleweight Sammy Walker, of Springfield, Mass., heads floorward under the impact of a fifth-round punch by Salt Lake City's Milo Savage, left, in New York. It was down number-two for Walker and it lasted for a count of nine. But he regained composure and managed to register a split-decision victory in the ten rounder.

FAMILY HARMONY—A cabinet member with a chamber music family is unusual in Washington. Assistant Secretary of State Henry F. Holland is a guitarist and his wife plays the harp. Daughter Anne, 12, plays a smaller harp, 10-year-old Henry is studying violin, and three-year-old William is undecided. Here, they've switched instruments to make some music.

Committee OKs Military Pay Hike

WASHINGTON—UP—The Senate Armed Services committee Tuesday unanimously approved a $745 million selective pay increase for military personnel. The measure, providing an average pay increase of 6.7 per cent to career personnel, is scheduled for debate on the Senate floor Wednesday. Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) predicted quick approval. The Senate committee made only a few minor changes in the bill, which has already been approved by the House by a 399-to-1 vote.

Teen Topics

By MARLENE KOLT

"Egad! Celanese has moved to town; to the top floor of Pampa High in the chemistry lab in fact!" That was the gist of the comments Monday when the chemistry students seemed intent on perturbing the whole school. They were testing to find out if organic acids and alcohols act like inorganic acids and bases.

And besides creating the odors of wintergreen, pineapple and banana oil they also came up with a "hospital smell."

The buzz of plans heard from seniors the last few days probably meant that they were getting ready for the first of several scheduled "Strictly for Seniors" activities. Tomorrow night at 7 the First Baptist Church will host the Class of '55 at a formal banquet. Some pretty spring formal should appear.

Congratulations to Ted Swindle on his election as president of the Pampa High School Press Association. Ted is also student body vice-president elect.

PHS's Romans had a gala time at their annual banquet last night. Fifty the poor slaves. Freshmen especially invited to fill this capacity, who were commanded to do all sorts of things — from proposing marriage to squinting perfume on guests. Marsha Rogers even had to sing "Jingle Bells."

Earl Cooper, presiding as master of the wine (grape juice) bowl, made Melvina Romine dance with slave Lynda Bonny for his punch. You've missed something if you've never enjoyed a banquet as the Romans did.

Shouldn't be too long now 'til the seniors can let their hair down.

Defense Rests In Jelke Case

NEW YORK —UP— Defense attorneys for Minot (Mickey) Jelke suddenly rested their case Tuesday after presenting eight witnesses in an effort to disprove charges of compulsory prostitution against the former playboy.

The defense rested in the 14th day of the trial on a note of bitter argument between defense attorney George W. Herz and Assistant District Attorney Anthony J. Liebler. The dispute was over admission in evidence of a bank statement on an account which Jelke had at the First National Bank, Lake Forest, Ill.

The sudden end of the defense case came as a surprise. Herz had indicated he might have additional witnesses, and during a recess he had brought into the court house a wire recording machine and speaker attachment.

The final defense witness was Charles F. Salkeld, an official of the Banker's Trust Co. He spent the entire morning under cross-examination by Liebler as to amounts deposited and withdrawn by Jelke in checking accounts. Salkeld testified under direct examination Monday that the former playboy had received about $30,000 in loans and gifts during the period in which he shared an apartment with Pat Ward, 21.

Miss Ward and Marguerite Cordova, 28, are the two women Jelke is accused of luring or attempting to lure into a life of prostitution. The oleo heir was convicted at his first trial two years ago but won a re-trial on the grounds that Judge Francis L. Valente had closed the courtroom to the press and public.

Oil Output Sets Record

TULSA —UP— U.S. crude oil production soared to another all-time high last week, hitting a daily average of 8,849,550 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal reported.

Output climbed 14,850 barrels over the previous week. Oklahoma led the nation with a 7,900-barrel gain.

Alabama posted a gain of 100 barrels, Arkansas 1,000, Colorado 1,800, Louisiana 2,450, North Dakota 200, Utah 2,100 and Wyoming 2,900.

California dropped 400, Illinois and Indiana 500 each, Kentucky 100, Kansas 1,000, Michigan 1,900, Montana 300, and Nebraska 300.

Henry Gruenwald Is Convicted

NEW YORK —UP— Henry (The Dutchman) Gruenwald, Washington influence peddler and tax fixer, was convicted Monday night of fraud and obstructing justice in a $200,000 tax bribery case. Gruenwald was freed on $30,000 bail until his sentencing Friday despite a government warning that "the mystery man" has more than $1 million in hidden cash and might try to flee the country. Gruenwald could be sent to prison for five years and he fined $25,000.

(in long curls and pig tails even) and pretend they are in grade school again. It's Kid Day that I'm speaking of. Remember Alton Flynn last year in his little tin army hat; and all the girls with big hair ribbons and organdy pinafores and millions of giant all-day suckers.

Something new has been added to the shorthand classes. Miss Betty Norman, PHS graduate and now a student at West Texas State College in Canyon, is here to practice teach in the commercial department.

All has been quiet on the Youth Center front lately — how are things progressing? The need for one has not decreased but if anything, increased.

Today is the day! For the start of the Pampa News Easter coloring contest. Teens are too old for such things, yes; but don't you have a little brother or sister who might need a bit of prodding to enter the contest? Don't let them pass it by.

It's almost time to start boiling eggs and getting out the dyes. Why? Easter eggs, of course. Remember all the egg hunts of grade school days? and how, if you were unusually lucky, your family ate hard boiled eggs for days and days.

Mary Spoonmore and Jackie Edwards sing solo parts in an A Cappella Choir number, "Easter Eggs."

A goodly number of Spaniards, PHS style, will travel to Lubbock Saturday for the Spanish Fiesta. Best of luck to Pampa entrants in the contests. DeAnn Shirley has entered the art contest; Mary Ann Becker, Mary Janice Silcott, Ted Strindie, and Jeanene Price — reading and pronunciation; and Paula Stevenson, poetry.

Has anyone discovered yet what kind of clothes are suitable for this time of year? But still, with all its problems, wouldn't trade it for the world. There's NOTHING like spring in Texas. All cowpokes who agree, give a roaring "WHOOPEE!"

Beating Victim To Be Released

OKLAHOMA CITY —UP— A three-year-old boy, whose aunt nearly beat him to death and killed his brother, was to be released from University hospital here Tuesday.

However, it was not immediately known whether the boy, James Stanley, would be returned to his mother, Mrs. Helen Stanley, Houston, Tex., who was coming here. Garvin County District Judge Garland Hope was to meet with the mother some time Tuesday regarding custody.

James still must undergo more plastic surgery to repair the holes his aunt had burned and gouged into his mouth. James' five-year-old brother, Lloyd George Stanley, died of the beatings, administered early in January.

The aunt, Mrs. Virginia Thompson, was charged with murder and is undergoing a sanity test.

Two Missing In Jet Crash

SHERMAN, Tex. —UP— Two airmen were presumed dead Wednesday after their T-33 jet trainer crashed in Lake Texoma.

Their names were withheld pending notification of next of kin. One officer aboard the plane was seen to parachute into the lake, while the other remained with the craft as it crashed in the middle of the huge body of water. But an intensive search found neither man.

The jet trainer was on a routine training flight and the two instructors were flying together to get instrument flying time, Air Force officials said. Engine trouble was believed to have caused the craft to crash into the 30-foot deep water.

PEACH CROP TOTAL LOSS

Peach grower in Fort Valley, Georgia, center of the peach belt, frantically haul tires to orchards in effort to save their crop. Smudge pots proved useless against severe cold over week-end and entire crop, estimated at $10,000,000 was wiped out. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Grand Jury Critical Of Water Dept., But None Indicted

GALVESTON. —UP— A grand jury that investigated but failed to return indictments in a $16,082 city water department shortage report Wednesday it could not pin-point responsibility for the loss of funds because of "lackadaisical" book-keeping.

But water works Commissioner Marshall McNeel branded the jurors' actions as "filthy politics" and said he intended to see justice done.

A 10-page grand jury report released Tuesday severely criticized the water works department and the board of city commissioners, and said "it is virtually impossible to pin-point the shortage."

The panel said "there is a strong suspicion that an even greater shortage would have been revealed if the audit had included the years of 1952 and 1953." The audit was for only eight months and unofficial reports have said the shortage may be as high as $80,000 for the two year period.

Runaway C46 Smashes Jet

GREENVILLE, Miss. —UP— A runaway C-46 transport plane smashed a jet trainer to pieces Tuesday, killing a flight instructor, then careened in flames into a snack bar occupied by several Air Force personnel.

None of the men in the building was hurt seriously. Col. John Chick, commanding officer of Greenville Air Force Base, said the instructor of the T-33 jet trainer was killed as he stood beside his plane and four other men were hurt.

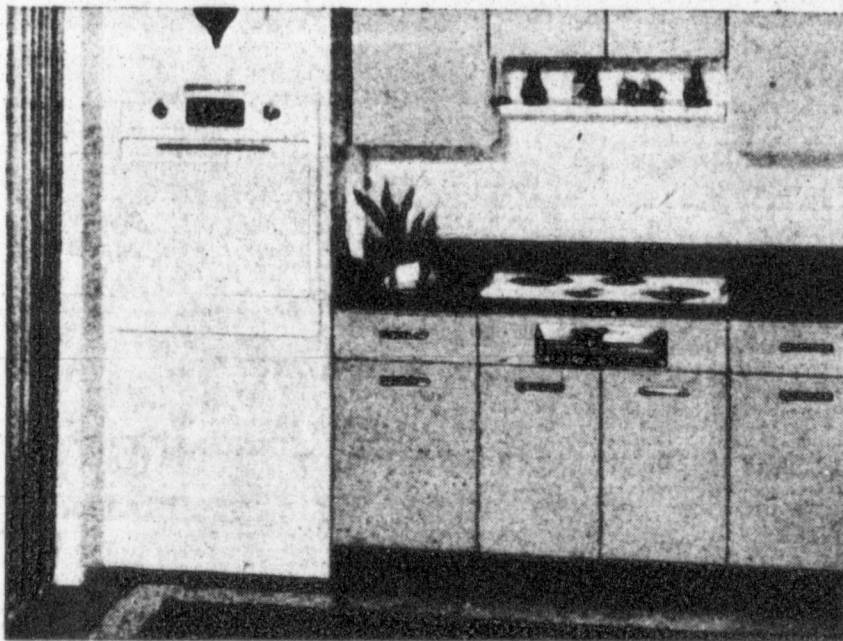

Chick said the big transport plane, a transient aircraft here from Floyd Bennett Air Force Base in New York, was being warmed up by its crew chief, who suffered a fractured shoulder in the accident.

The dead instructor was identified as 1st Lt. Robert M. Pierce. Chick said the C-46 crew chief, identified only as O'Donnell, apparently "let the engines run away" causing the transport to break loose.
