Evacuation Goes Without Red Move

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 8—UP—Thousands of civilian refugees from Tachen Islands streamed aboard U.S. Navy and Nationalist transports Tuesday with no real signs of Communist interference.

Soviets Ask World Talk On Formosa

PARIS, Feb. 8—UP—The French foreign ministry announced Tuesday that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has proposed an international conference on Formosa.

Molotov made the proposal to the ambassadors of Britain and India when he saw them in Moscow last week, a French foreign ministry spokesman said.

Refugees Would Fight

'No evacuation is a victory,' said the British after the successful withdrawal of troops from Dunkirk early in World War II.

That's what the refugees from the Tachen Islands have to say today as they are being lifted by the Nationalist and U. S. Seventh Fleet ships to the shaky sanctuary of Formosa.

Fred Sparks, NEA correspondent, in exclusive interviews with Chinese refugees, gives a tragic picture of the events in Far East today. His first dispatch appears on Page 10.

Public Meet Set To Talk Of Bonds

The public meeting on the proposed $200,000 water improvement bond issue has been tentatively set for 2 p. m. next Tuesday in the Palm Room of City Hall.

City Manager Fred Brook told the Pampa City Commission that he and City Director of Public Works James Cowan would get together later this week and decide definitely on the time and date for the meet.

Vet Land Material 'Stolen'

Files Were Rifled, Shepperd Testifies

AUSTIN, Feb. 8—UP—Veterans land board files were rifled during the month of December, and material essential to possible civil and criminal prosecutions removed, Attorney General John Ben Shepperd said Tuesday.

Shepperd said he would refer the matter "in due time" to a Travis county grand jury, already investigating alleged irregularities in administration of the $100 million program.

There are many months of work out. As much as this grand jury will take," Shepperd said.

He declined to discuss details of what material had been removed from the land board files.

However, he said it was "not whole files, but material things."

He said some of the items carried "pencil notations."

Shepperd expressed doubt any would be recovered.

"They might turn up mysteriously, but I doubt it," he said.

"Could they be burned?" he was asked.

"It was all paper," he answered.

However, he said investigators were attempting to replace some of the items missing through affidavits and depositions taken from persons concerned in certain transactions.

Block Land Deals

Some of the items missing involved block land deals, a type under scrutiny by two legislative committees and several grand juries, he said.

Meanwhile, members of a Senate investigating committee sought a handwriting expert to answer the question of who wrote a memo offered in evidence at Monday's hearing.

A scheduled executive session of the Senate committee, previously scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, was postponed when it was revealed an unidentified person called as a witness was out of the state.

San Dorsey Hardeman, committee chairman, said the group might meet Wednesday, but expressed belief the next meeting will be postponed until next Monday.

Last Canadian Bridge Slab May Be Poured This Week

The 100th and final concrete slab on the Canadian River Bridge, between Pampa and Perryton, is scheduled to be laid by the end of the week.

Resident highway engineers today said there were 92 slabs in and that two can be laid each day, "provided this weather holds out."

Once all 100 are laid, only the setting down of the approach slabs, the installation of the railing and a paint job for the structure will remain to be done, engineers said.

The laying down of concrete slabs has been going on since the first of November. G. K. Reading,

5,312 Quality As Voters In Gray County

There are 5,312 Gray County residents registered to vote this year.

Deputies in the office of County Tax Collector Jack Back today had compiled the total of poll taxes paid and exemption slips applied for.

There were 4,352 persons who paid poll taxes and 960 more who received exemptions by the Jan. 31 deadline, the figures showed.

In 1954, a congressional election year with a large number of local offices "up" on the election block, there was a total of 7,053 persons qualified to vote in Gray County.

There is no way, however, of determining the exact number of persons eligible to vote. For those over 60 who live in the county but outside the Pampa city limits do not have to apply for an exemption. Some do, but probably many more do not.

PERRYTON—(Special)—Some 300 persons Monday saw 16-year-old Bill Jines, FFA member, of Perryton show the grand champion Hereford calf at the Ochiltree County Junior Livestock Show.

The 994 pound winner was bought at the sale following the one-day show by Equity Elevator Co. of Perryton for $1.01 per pound.

Sale price was $1.20 per pound. A 108-pound lamb entered by Bernard Phillips, 16, of the Perryton FFA, was the reserve champion which sold to the Perryton Implement Co., for 55 cents per pound.

GEORGI MALENKOV ... quits as Red leader

US Relieved Over New Soviet Chief

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—American authorities said Tuesday the surprise elevation of Marshal Nikolai Bulganin to the Soviet premiership indicates that the real power in Russia is being "spread out" among several top men in the Kremlin.

That, they said, could be "less dangerous" to the West and to world peace than concentration of supreme authority in one Stalin-like dictator.

When word of Georgi Malenkov's resignation first reached this capital, the initial reaction of diplomatic experts and congressional leaders was to interpret it as an ominous sign that Russia would adopt a tougher policy in world affairs. This appraisal was based on the almost-universal expectation here that Nikita Khrushchev, secretary of the Communist party, would succeed Malenkov.

The subsequent announcement of Bulganin's election brought expressions of marked relief from authorities who are intimately concerned with Soviet affairs. They said Bulganin, despite his Army background, has not been regarded as a particularly "strong man" or militaristic type. Rather he has been the "political commissar" type of general whose role in the Kremlin has been to maintain Communist party control over the army.

One expert said it is possible that Bulganin is primarily a "front man" for a ruling junta and that "the real leader or leaders are standing in the background."

Khrushchev, who nominated Bulganin for premier, and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov doubtless will remain "highly important" in the Kremlin hierarchy, he said.

In any event, authorities said, it appears that with Bulganin as premier there will be a spreading out of power, with the army and the Communist party both represented at the top, rather than a clear-cut emergence of one all-powerful ruler like Stalin.

Radical Action Less Likely

U. S. leaders feel that this kind of multiple leadership is less likely to take radical actions that might plunge the world into war than would be a single unchallenged dictator.

Congressional leaders were guarded in their appraisal of the sudden shift of Soviet leadership.

Navy Vet Kills Wife, Tots, Self

DENVER, Feb. 8—UP—A 29-year-old Navy veteran killed his estranged wife and their two small children in their ranch style suburban Wheat Ridge home Monday night, then ended his own life when officers tried to arrest him.

The Navy veteran was identified as Mitchell J. Berkeley of Denver. Investigators said he had been under psychiatric treatment.

His wife, Mrs. Yvonne Berkeley, was found dead in the blood-spattered bedroom of their home. Eight-year-old Lindsey Ann and 11-month-old Tommy Berkeley also were dead.

Marshal Bulganin Takes Soviet Helm

MOSCOW, Feb. 8—(UP)—Georgi Malenkov resigned as premier of Russia Tuesday and Marshal Nikolai Bulganin was elected unanimously to succeed him. Bulganin was nominated for the premiership by Mikita S. Khrushchev at the afternoon session of a joint meeting of the Supreme Soviet.

The same body only a few hours earlier had set in stunned silence and then had unanimously accepted the surprise resignation of Malenkov.

The election of Bulganin was almost as great a surprise as Malenkov's resignation. Bulganin is a military administrator, lately turned politician, and a comparative newcomer to the Soviet political aristocracy.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov or Khrushchev had been considered the most likely successors to Malenkov.

Bulganin became an important figure in Russia after the battle of Moscow in 1941. He gave up his job as chairman of the state bank and managed the civilian side of the city's defenses.

He rose rapidly after the battle was won and became a politburo candidate in 1946. In 1947 he reached the peak as vice chairman of the council of ministers, in charge of defense.

Dramatic Resignation

Malenkov's dramatic resignation came during the brief morning session of the Supreme Soviet.

Malenkov sat impassively in his regular chair in the brilliantly lit white chamber in the grand palace of the Kremlin as his combined resignation and confession of faults were read aloud.

He quit, his resignation said, "in the interest of the motherland" with a public apology for "my guilt." He said he was convinced of his own "inexperienced leadership."

Malenkov was the first to enter the chamber for the afternoon session. A wave of applause greeted him. Once again he sat expressionless as Bulganin was elected his successor.

Electrifying Developments

Malenkov's resignation and the election of Bulganin to succeed him were two of the most electrifying developments since the death of the late Premier Josef Stalin almost two years ago.

The last such comparable development was the Soviet announcement July 10, 1953, of the arrest of Lavrenti P. Beria, head of the Soviet secret police, on charges of sabotage and conspiring to restore capitalism in Russia.

Tuesday's sensational break came fast. The morning session which received the news of Malenkov's resignation.

Molotov told the Supreme Soviet in a speech soon after Marshal Nikolai Bulganin succeeded Georgi Malenkov as Soviet premier—that the United States nurses "insane notions" of reclaiming Communist countries for capitalism.

"In our time," Molotov said, "battle is being joined between two foreign policies: that of peace and that of war."

He said the Soviet Union desires peace and decreased tension and heads a Communist movement that is on the rise while capitalism grows weaker.

Molotov said the United States today is "backward" politically. He bitterly attacked American foreign policy.

Congressional Roundup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—A few congressmen voiced complaints Tuesday about the way selective service is being run.

The dissatisfaction was expressed as the House prepared to debate a bill extending the draft law for four years. The bill itself had little opposition and was expected to pass easily.

But Rep. Burr P. Harrison (D-Va.) said it should be amended to nullify a directive by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, blocking draft deferments for farmers with surplus crops.

Harrison said Hershey was trying to take over the problem of deciding what is and what isn't farm surplus.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio) supporting Harrison, asked "who's Hershey to decide what's surplus?"

Other developments: SCHOOLS

President Eisenhower was ready to send congress a special message outlining his proposals for government help in providing more classrooms for the nation's school children. He was expected to recommend federal aid to states and cities in getting low-interest, long-term loans for school construction.

Wilson Says Military Pay Inadequate
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (UP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson told congressmen Monday that military pay now is inadequate and "invites and encourages mediocrity" in the armed forces.

Wilson appeared before a House Armed Services subcommittee to support the administration's proposed $729,600,000 a year pay boost. He said military pay has fallen behind that of industry and it has lagged behind the advanced cost of living.

A selective pay increase, he said is necessary to obtain and keep capable career officers and men. About a third of the armed forces will become eligible for some kind of release during the next year, he said.

Wilson made public a memorandum from the Joint Chiefs of Staff drafted in 1953 in which they not only criticized low pay but Congress itself for undermining "confidence" in the armed services as a career.

Brian, motion picture and television star, said in a brief speech that Texas had a "double blessing" in being able to live in Texas.

"Mr. District Attorney" is in Austin to serve as featured speaker Monday night at a state law enforcement and prosecuting officers conference.

Charges Filed In Assault
DALLAS, Feb. 8 (UP) — Indictments for rape, armed robbery and assault to murder were on file Tuesday against Billy Joe Houston, 26-year-old Dallas man who was wounded four times in losing a shooting duel with a policeman.

Houston, a papermill worker, is in Parkland Memorial hospital recovering from four pistol shot wounds. The indictments charge him with raping and robbing the 45-year-old wife of an oil company executive in her home shortly after noon on Jan. 27. Neighbors saw Houston cruising around in his car and became suspicious and called police.

Houston was confronted by Patrolman W. H. Hilliard as he was returning to his car. The worker pulled a pistol and began shooting without warning, but the patrolman's marksmanship was better. Houston said that he was just driving around and had an impulse to rape and rob the wife. He told police that he worked nights and his wife, a secretary, worked days.

DON BOLT ... Knife, Fork Speaker

Newsman Says U.S. Should Beat Reds

By ED NASH
Pampa News Staff Writer
The United States should defeat the cause of Communism without waiting for active Communism to be the foe.
Don Bolt, an Indiana-born newspaperman-lecturer who has become an authority on Central and Latin America over the last 28 years, thinks the Communist attempt to take over and remain in control of Guatemala and their ultimate defeat is the perfect example of what can be done to beat the Reds before they can become too well established.

A conservatively dressed man with short gray hair and a moustache, Bolt, the man who "scooped" the world out of the Guatemalan armistice, Monday night talked to the Top o' Texas Knife and Fork Club.

He gave a case history of Guatemalan political and military history for the last 10 years and labeled it a "stroke in your own back yard, here in Guatemala was a threat to your way of life."

"Our fellow Americans," he called the people of Central and South America, and added meaningfully, "They have empty stomachs which sometimes give rise to unpalatable ideas." And he cautioned, "you should not be unduly critical" of the Americans who went down to Central America and began "developing the country with their risk capital."

"What started out as a quest for virtue ended up as a striving for and an acquisition of power," he said, putting the Guatemalan situation in a nutshell.

Bolt was reading Karl Marx and sitting on his bed Monday afternoon, freshening up his material for his speech to the club. He showed the Pampa Daily News some pictures — they can not be published — of atrocities committed by Guatemalan Reds against their anti-Red foes. They were taken so that the Communists could not later say they had never so treated their enemies.

Red Directed
The Guatemalan revolution, he emphasized, was no native movement. It was directed and run by Reds in Mexico City, China, Russia and Czechoslovakia. True, back in 1944, it began with a revolt by students of the university, "a conservative type." But, by the time they were through, the Reds had completely taken over.

There were three things sparking the revolt: (1) the need for schools, (2) the need for the right to organize into independent labor unions and (3) the need for a land reform law. The big item was No. 3. The idea was good, Bolt said. But the way it was practiced was decidedly not.

In 1952, the newspaperman from Brazil, Ind., said, "Guatemala was a Communist government, not a pro-Communist government, but a Communist government. In other words, some 40 key members of the 3,000-member Communist Party in Guatemala were running the government. It was not till 1944 that the "Christianity of the people, a 'tough people,' began to resist.

Bolt credits John E. Puertofey, who was assigned by President Eisenhower to Guatemala, with doing much to end the Red rule. But kov's resignation lasted just four minutes.

MALENKOV

The afternoon session had been in session only five minutes when Bulganin, an old and long-time friend of Stalin, and lately Russia's defense minister, was elected premier.

As the applause for Malenkov died down at the afternoon session, a brief announcement was made that Khrushchev, chairman of the central committee of the Soviet Communist party, would speak on the new premier.

Khrushchev arose and walked to the speaker's rostrum. He spoke briefly, and almost in a matter of seconds announced that Marshal Bulganin would be the new premier.

In spite of his resignation, Malenkov was expected to remain in the government. His statement of resignation said:
"I will, under the guidance of the central committee of the CPSU monolithic in its unity and solidarity, and the Soviet government, perform in the most conscientious manner my duty and the functions which will be entrusted to me."

States Fighting US Control Of Workers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—It is a fact not generally known that the federal government has authority to drop a note to the governor of any state ordering him for cause to fire certain state employees—and make the order stick. The states are moving now to protect themselves.

The federal agency with power to do this is the Civil Service Commission. The authority derives from the Hatch act which was passed in the Roosevelt era to keep civil servants out of politics.

The Hatch act's ban on political activity by federal employees applies also to employees of any state agency financed in full or in part by federal funds. There is an exception in behalf of educational or scientific state agencies. Teachers, for example, would be exempt. But an employee of any other state agency which received so much as $1 of federal funds may be fired on orders from Washington if he guilty of political activity or the employe may be suspended.

Vermont, Indiana Take Lead
The states of Vermont and Indiana are taking the lead in curbing this extraordinary grant to the federal government of authority to dabble in state business. Vermont has gone to court.

The Civil Service Commission recently moved against an officer of the Vermont Department of Welfare who was found guilty of having acted as platform committee chairman at a state political convention. Vermont authorities refused to punish the man whereupon the commission leveled a fine against the state.

The punishment assessed was the withholding of federal welfare funds in a sum equal to two years salary for the offending welfare department official. Vermonters are not greedy, but they want

'Pike Work Starts Feb. 22

DALLAS, Feb. 8—UP—The president of the Sam Houston Turnpike Corp., Roy G. Baker, said Tuesday construction on the 100 mile Dallas-to-Waco turnpike was scheduled to begin Feb. 22.

The Dallas-Waco leg is part of the $140 million toll road planned between Dallas and San Antonio. Allen and Company of New York and Scherck Richter, Inc., of St. Louis have contracted to underwrite the $46 million worth of bonds for the Dallas-Waco leg, Baker said.

He added that right-of-way acquisition has already begun and this phase of the project will be finished in the near future.

He said the company had advertised for construction bids on the right-of-way already secured and work will get underway Feb. 22. The turnpike will have two lanes, 24 feet wide, separated by a 50-foot strip of paving will be placed outside each pair of lanes so that vehicles can be parked clear off the roadway. The entire road will not have a single stop sign, signal or reduced speed zone.

MANNERS MAKE FRIENDS

It is only good manners to treat workmen who come into your home with pleasant courtesy. It makes their job more rewarding and you'll probably get better service. It's still true that honey catches more flies than vinegar.

For her birthday, for your weekend hostess, for a Valentine, Trifari suggests Zodiac as the ideal gift. It features the golden-tone figure of each of the signs of the Zodiac, worn as a charm on a handsome Trifari bracelet. An ideal gift for a wife or sweetheart, a more casual friend will be complimented that you know the date of her birthday and have bought her a gift uniquely and exclusively hers.

HERE ARE SOME easy-to-follow tips from the Pfaff Sewing Institute, guaranteed to produce a perfect skirt hem.

To prevent sagging later, always allow jersey garments to hang a few days before putting the hem up.

Instead of making a new hem on a child's dress that is too long, just make a wide tuck on the under-side of the original hem. This can be ripped out when the child has grown, and the original hem will still be good as new.

All but forgotten, the dress weights used by famous old Paris couturiers are still the best way to keep skirts hanging straight. Sew one in the hem at each seam of the skirt.

For a built-in flare, you don't have to wear a dozen stiff petticoats. Sew a 3" wide crinoline in the hem of a full skirt or dress before it is turned up.

There is no longer any need to sew hems by hand. The new Dial-A-Stitch sewing machines will waste, save over pins, even blind-stitch hems. Most of all, they save time and eliminate monotony in adjusting hems, ordinarily one of the most tedious jobs in sewing to do oneself, and one of the most expensive jobs to have done outside.

RUTH MILLET
Memo to men: If you want the respect of our wife and children if you want to be the real head of your house—then you've got to earn the right to be head man. If you expect your wife to help you earn a living, if you let your wife make all important family decisions, if you say to your children, "Ask your Mother" when they come to you for parental help or guidance—you are setting your wife up as head of the house.

If you do that, you have no right to feel hurt and cheated because your wife is a more important member of the family than you are.

You have no right to blame her for "wearing the pants" or to envy men whose wives and children look up to them as the head of the family.

Nobody has taken your masculine rights away from you. You've given them up because you didn't assume all the responsibilities that were naturally yours.

So quit feeling sorry for yourself. And quit blaming your wife and children for not showing you the proper respect.

Respect has to be earned, even in a family. And the man who takes the easy way out—who refuses to take on all the responsibilities that would make him head of his house—just isn't doing enough to earn the respect of his family.

The modern man who wants respect at home without earning it is doomed to frustration. For real respect just isn't there, unless he has a right to it.

So if you have let your wife become head of the house, don't kid yourself that you married the wrong kind of woman.

Be honest enough to admit that your wife has assumed only those responsibilities that you have shirked. And if your children always turn to her, admit that it is because when they turned to you you were too "busy" to be bothered.

BABY

Baby tries his teeth on everything. The crib bar takes a terrible beating. There are now cribs that have plastic teething rails for extra-delicious biting. They're also a protection against Baby's eating a chunk of wood.

Baby grabs the spoon while you're feeding him because he's trying to help. Don't fight him, it's his way of learning. Just get another spoon and feed unhurriedly while he experiments with trying the spoon on the edge of the dish.

If you have your choice, pick fitted sheets for Baby's crib. They are perfect, for Baby loves to uproot everything in his bed if he can get a start. There's no chance this way.

FATHERS AND SONS RACE

Crab racing was on the agenda of the Father's and Sons banquet at the First Christian Church Monday night. One of the losing paternal candidates, Sid Anderson, 1329 E. Kingsmill, was avoidably detained by some of the younger set whose sights were set on winning. Festivities at the church also honored Scouts of Troop 4. It was also Father and Son's night Monday, at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church.

Experts See Russia Shift To 'Tough' Policy Ahead

By W. A. RYSEK
Written for United Press
LONDON, Feb. 8—UP—The ideological dispute that has raged in the top echelon of the Communist Party of Russia since the death of Premier Josef Stalin has led full circle right back to where Stalin left off.

Soviet experts here detect a clear and significant shift toward "tough" policies in every field of Russian endeavor. This is their conclusion based on an analysis of the latest speech of party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev and the new budget presented to the Supreme Soviet last week.

The experts also doubted whether any conciliatory gesture could be expected from the Kremlin on foreign policy.

They noted the apparent continued growth of the authority of Khrushchev as the exponent of the views of the entire presidium of the central committee of the party—that is, the nine men who rule Russia today.

Emphasize Heavy Industry

The shift was pointed up by the renewed emphasis on heavy industry which was proclaimed both by Khrushchev in a speech to the central committee and Finance Minister Arseny Zverev's announcement of a significant increase in Soviet defense spending.

The new general party line is seen here as meaning the "new course" emphasizing consumer goods production, begun in 1953, is now officially dead and buried.

A combination of reasons is seen for the change. But the main ones are believed to be the necessity of producing more tractors for the gigantic land reclamation program in Kazakhstan and Russia's Military and industrial commitments to Red China.

According to official British sources, the size of the Soviet military establishment has not increased during the last 12 months. It is believed, therefore, that the additional money for defense will be used mainly to step up Soviet research and development of special weapons.

Stiffening on Foreign Affairs

The stiffening of the Soviet line in foreign affairs has become more noticeable day by day.

Observers point to Moscow's uncompromising support of Red China on the Formosa question and the violent anti-American campaign in the Soviet press as evidence of this. They expect no let-up either in Europe on the question of Austria and Germany.

No matter how prominent a role some of the members of the party presidium play in the present session of the Supreme Soviet, it appears evident that the nine top men want to tell the world they are as united as ever.

So far, the entire "collective leadership" has appeared at the sittings of the Supreme Soviet and their names were given in the press in alphabetical order, as usual.

Whatever the intensity of the struggle for power within the Kremlin, no one seems to have suffered seriously from it so far.

There is a new general party line now. But the men who will carry it out are the same.

Court Reverses Sentences in Union Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—The Supreme Court reversed Monday the convictions of three Wichita, Kan., taxi drivers sentenced to prison for refusing to answer questions at a closed-door judicial hearing.

The court announced its decision in a short order which did not state its reasons.

Cecil L. Courtney, Philip T. Ferris and Ray Parks were members of a cab drivers union participating in a Wichita strike that was marked by violence.

The three were brought before County Judge Howard C. Kline on Jan. 20, 1954, for a secret proceeding designed to perform the functions of a grand jury. In accordance with Kansas law, they were promised complete immunity if they would tell what they knew about the strike. When they refused they were sentenced to prison terms for contempt of court. Ferris and Parks drew one year in jail and Courtney a 90-day sentence.

The cab drivers contended they had no chance to confer with an attorney or to clear themselves of the contempt charge and that they were deprived of the right of a public trial.

Income Tax Primer

How To Decide Form You Use

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
Written for NEA Service

The tax forms for 1954 have many changes, but there are, as in the past, three types of returns available.

First, there is the wage earner's return, Form 1040A. It is the easiest form to fill out because the tax is computed by the District Director's office. However, only certain taxpayers can use this form and it does not always result in the lowest tax.

Then there is the short-form or optional tax return which can be used only by taxpayers whose adjusted gross income is less than $5000. This form is still called Form 1040 but the tax table from which the tax was determined has been shifted from the last page of the Form 1040 to the instruction pamphlet.

The last type of return is called the long-form return. Form 1040 is used for the long-form return as well as for the short-form return. Any taxpayer can use the long-form return, but, as will be explained in detail in later articles, it may be cheaper to use another form.

Before you can decide which of the three types of return to use, you must know:

1. What income you have to report.

2. What deductions you are entitled to.

3. What credits you can claim.

Subsequent articles in NEA's Income Tax Primer will help you determine your income, deductions and credits and then give you detailed help in choosing the best form for you.

Right now, however, let's consider whether you can and should file either a joint return or as the head of a household.

Any taxpayer who was married on Dec. 31, 1954, can file a joint return with his spouse. In nine times out of ten, it is advantageous for married persons to file joint returns on which they split their combined income in half before applying the tax rate.

In rare situations where both spouses have substantial incomes and one has large capital losses or medical expenses, separate returns might give a lower tax than a joint return. The best way to tell in such a case is to compute your tax both ways and then use the cheaper method.

If your husband or wife died during 1954, you are considered married for the entire year and may file a joint return provided, of course, that you report both your income and the income of your deceased spouse.

Any widow and widower whose spouse died in 1952 or 1953 can also, under the new law, compute the tax for 1954 as if he or she were filing a joint return provided:

1. He or she has not remarried.

2. He or she supports a child or step-child in his or her home, and

3. He or she was entitled to file a joint return in the year of the spouse's death.

This new tax break is designed to help the surviving spouse in the difficult early years following the death of the husband or wife. It cannot be claimed on Form 1040A (do not use this form if you are a surviving spouse entitled to this tax benefit).

So far we have discussed how married persons or "surviving spouses" file the returns. Unmarried persons must file separate returns but if an unmarried person can qualify as the "head of a household," he can use a special tax table that gives him about half the tax break given to those who file joint returns.

To determine whether you qualify as the head of household, answer the following questions and then compare your answers with the answer chart:

1. Did you furnish more than half the cost of maintaining the home where you lived in 1954? Yes No (Note: Include in the cost, property taxes, mortgage interest, rent, utility charges, upkeep and repair, property insurance and food consumed there. Do not count clothing, education, medical expenses, vacations, life insurance and transportation.)

2. Did you have living with you in the home any relative described in (a) or (b) below? Yes No (a) Your child (natural or adopted), a grandchild, a stepchild. (Note: If such a child is unmarried, it doesn't matter if he has income of $5000 or more, or if you don't contribute more than half his support. But if he is married, he must be your dependent. Article 3 tells about dependents.)

(b) Any other relative who is your dependent. (Note: Do not count an unrelated person living with you even though he may be your dependent. Also do not count a dependent you claim under a multiple support agreement as explained in Article No. 3.)

3. Did the relative described in 2(a) or 2(b) above live with you during 1954 or up to the date of his or her death except for temporary absences? Yes No (Note: A relative at college is considered temporarily absent from your home if he lives with you during vacations.)

4. Did you furnish more than half the cost of any home in which either your dependent mother or father lived during 1954? Yes No

5. Were you a non-resident alien any time during 1954? Yes No

Answer Chart
You qualify as the head of household if you answered 4 "yes" and 5 "no," regardless of what your answers to the first 3 questions were. If you answered 4 "no," then your answer to 5 must be "no" and the answers to the first 3 questions must be "yes."

You cannot get the benefit of the reduced "Head of Household" tax rates if you file on Form 1040A. Do not use this form if you qualify as a head of household.

Court Rejects Indian Claim

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—The Supreme Court Monday rejected the Tee-Hit-Ton Indians' claim to a part of the Tongass national forest in southeastern Alaska.

The court's 5-3 decision allowed the government to lease land for timber cutting to the Ketchikan Pulp and Paper Co., as provided in a 1951 contract.

Justice Stanley F. Reed wrote the majority opinion upholding the government. Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices William O. Douglas and Felix Frankfurter dissented.

The Indians, numbering about 65, contended that their claim to the land was not disturbed during the period Russia owned Alaska and that the U. S. government did not interfere with their ownership after the United States bought Alaska from Russia in 1867.

The government claimed the Tee-Hit-Tons had nothing more than an "original Indian title" to the land, such as American Indians possess. This is based on the argument that the discovering nations acquired absolute title to lands of this continent and granted the Indians only the right of occupancy. The United States Court of Claims upheld the government last April.

'Voice' Costs

Recently the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, under the velvet glove of Oveta Culp Hobby, took over the government's expensive and unnecessary function of the "Voice of America." In a move which cost American taxpayers more than $2.5 million, all programming of this questionable propaganda venture was transferred to the H. E. and W. building which has facilities now rivaling Radio City in New York. The layout is so extensive that the government is bragging it can now broadcast 26 programs simultaneously, a feat possible only where cost doesn't have to be figured, and where a dishonest ruse in the guise of paying for what isn't needed by means of compulsory taxation is the modus operandi.

Americans truly interested in good foreign relations should ask themselves just what good these broadcasts in foreign languages are doing when they are prepared and put over by the administration in power, whose objectivity regarding its own usefulness can be most seriously challenged.

Since Americanism is so closely linked with free enterprise and the productive genius which is the chief characteristic of this country, it seems reasonable to suppose that programs aimed at foreign listeners might carry considerably more weight if they were bought and paid for by entrepreneurs in the import-export business, or by those other daring souls who invest their money abroad. While it is safe to suppose that self-interest prompts free-enterprisers in whatever they undertake, it is equally safe to assume that politicians equal and even surpass the business man when it comes to looking after their carriers and their positions of power, affluence and prestige. The ambitions of the former are constantly checked and limited by their own financial ability and by unending competition. The dreams of glory of the latter know no check whatsoever, unless a wise and vigorous rebellion at the polls throws the most blatantly obnoxious out of office.

Federal Snoops

Federal snoopers will be very busy during the next two months.

Students at the University of Michigan, subsidized by Uncle Sam, and prompted by the census bureau, will be making the rounds in a lot of unlikely places, asking people picked at random a great many personal questions. Findings, if any, will be published in the spring.

We should like to point out that the federal government has no authority for all this question asking. You do not have to answer any question unless you want to. Further, you do not have to give your name, address, age or condition in life.

As a matter of fact, you can tell the questioner to go elsewhere, a course heartily recommended by this department.

We have no objections to the idea of answering questions asked by competent research men in private enterprise. Their findings make it possible for industrialists and business men to help to provide the very things you want.

But when the government gets into the act, it is astonishing how later on the very things you revealed in confidence have a way of being brought out to be used against you.

Don't say we didn't warn you.

SIXTY-FOUR MEN CAN SAVE AMERICA.

(By KEMLOW HARRIS)

(Agua Beach South Coast News)

Sixty-four men in the United States Senate can make the Constitution the "supreme law of the land" and thereby save this price-less document from becoming a scrap of paper.

Thirty-three men can sabotage it and leave nothing for future generations of Americans but ashes where once the torch of Liberty flamed.

We once more plead the cause of the Bricker amendment designed to plug the hideous hole in our Constitutional armor known as Article Six.

Left open the fanatical devotees of One Worldism will pour through and the United States, as Americans for 175 years have known it will be but a mocking memory.

In the hands of Sixty-four United States Senators the fate of future generations of this nation is balanced. What do they propose to do?

Will they emerge as statesmen or betrayers of their nation? It is just that stark an issue.

To the police guard of Eisenhower, which briefs him according to its lights... we say be damned. The Senate en masse should do the same.

Did Eisenhower say "I am unalterably opposed" or were the words put in his mouth by those who form an American Iron Curtain separating him from his people? We do not know the answers but we do know that a President of the United States has nothing whatsoever to do with amending the Constitution.

Amendment proposals are the sole right of the Senate in federal government. The only other governing bodies who can propose and enact such laws are the individual States.

Sixty-four men in Washington must, this time, forget everything except their obligation to their people. They must remember that they... have sworn to uphold and defend their Constitution. Their power in this case is greater than any group of men have held since the United States was born and the Constitution ratified. For once in their lives, whether they ever rise to such heights again, Sixty-four United States Senators, must be statesmen, proud and jealous of their power.

For once they must love their people more than any other earthly thing they possess. They must listen with their own hearts to the heartbeat of their nation. They must listen and act for a people who ask them to make the Constitution impregnable.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

A Pathetic, Irrational Book: I have been discussing the last few days the sixth volume of a Series on the Ethics and Economics of Society, published by the National Council of Churches. The last volume is called "Christian Values and Economic Life," and it is sort of a review of the first five volumes.

I had to force myself to read this book as there were so many statements in it that were irrational, if we are to use the Commandments and the Golden Rule as standards of what is rational and thus ethical. This book was published by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. The National Council of Churches selected the writers. It reads as if it were written for pay because it repeats and repeats and uses many words that have many different meanings.

No Material Or Spiritual Values: It was rather amazing to me that a book that was published by an organization that pretends to represent Christianity should deny that there are any absolute physical values in the material world, or any absolute moral values in the spiritual world.

John C. Bennett is one of the authors of this book. He is Professor of Christian Theology and Ethics at Union Theological Seminary. On page 231 he shows that all the writers of this book believe to some degree in a managed economy by the federal government. He writes:

"There has developed in recent years a type of economic individualism that condemns almost all action by the state in economic life, and does so in the name of freedom. Several organizations provide much literature for the clergy defending this doctrine as the Christian understanding of society. It opposes state initiative in the promotion of economic stability. It rejects completely the effort of the state to secure for the whole population a minimum standard of living, through such measures as the present social security system. It emphasizes out of all proportion the coercive aspect of governmental action, and sees only evil in the use of the taxing power to correct inequalities in the distribution of wealth. Most of the economic functions assumed by the state during the past half-century are regarded as stopping stones to an oppressive socialism."

There Mr. Bennett prettily well represents the beliefs of persons who know enough about Christian ethics and economics so that they are perfectly willing to answer questions on these subjects without evasion. On the other hand those who criticize these beliefs are not able to answer questions without evasions or contradictions.

Then Mr. Bennett continues by saying: "There are two positive assumptions that underlie this rejection of action by the state. The first is the assumption of the adequacy of the self-regulating elements in a totally free economy."

Individuals who believe in free enterprise also believe that the state has a right to stop fraud and aggressive force in getting things in an involuntary way. They do not claim that free enterprise will eliminate fraud, but they do claim that the government's only purpose is to stop fraud and not to interfere with the free production and distribution of goods.

Then Mr. Bennett says: "The second is the assumption that voluntary action is always morally better than action that has the coercive power of the state behind it."

The free enterpriser believes and contends that people cannot be made to do good and be good by the coercive power of the state. The only right the state ever has to use force is to stop aggression. Then Mr. Bennett continues: "The first assumption is strangely abstract, and has no relevance to the actual conditions under which we live."

But the conditions under which we live are due largely to the state initiating force in an attempt to make people do what the majority or their agents regard as good.

Then Mr. Bennett thinks he has the final clincher. He says: "Under these conditions, if there is no coordinating action by the state, it is inconceivable that we can avoid socially disastrous swings of deflation and inflation. I believe all the writers in these volumes would agree on this point."

The primary remedy any of these people who want state interference to give employment and correct hardships has is to increase the quantity of credit, which eventually results in the government changing the gold content of the dollar. This is plainly unethical, dishonest and simply legalized robbery. It is a repudiation of obligations. It can only result in more debts and more confusion. The writers of this book seem to think we have made great progress in the last 30 years in controlling our economic life. They do not seem to realize that we have added from $2,000 to $2,000 debt for every man, woman and child in the nation. That is unfair and unjust to the children, who are not responsible for our sins that brought on depressions.

No Conception Of Cause Of Depressions: It is not inconceivable that we can avoid socially disastrous swings of deflation and inflation as Mr. Bennett contends. Mr. Bennett and the other writers of these books advocate the very things that bring on inflation and deflation and long periods of un-

Farm Real Estate Prices Encouraging To Benson

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Secretary Ezra Tatt Benson's confidence in the economic progress of millions of American farmers is supported by his recent study of the real estate market's activity in almost every agricultural area. Despite falling prices and lower price support levels for their crops, the value of farmland is going up steadily.

Like American industry, which will spend more than $20 billion on new plants and machinery in 1953, the nation's farmers are in an expansive mood. They are borrowing heavily on easier terms through mortgage operations in order to improve their soil, build up their stocks, buy labor-saving devices and electrify their homes and barns. They furnish a profitable market for appliance, farm implement and automobile manufacturers, as well as for consumer goods from urban centers.

They apparently count on the recent economic forecast by Arthur F. Burns, chief White House adviser on business conditions. He cautiously predicted at least a 3 or 10-year era of prosperity, barring global war.

Even though harassed by the Formosa crisis, President Eisenhower has taken time out to examine Benson's reports. In White House opinion, they help to explain why the Republicans held their own in farm states in last year's Congressional elections. They lie behind National Chairman Leonard Hall's predictions that he will be re-elected in 1956, and that the GOP will recapture Congress.

The economic stability also explains why Democrats at Capitol Hill will make no determined attack on the Eisenhower-Benson farm program at the current session. The results appear to disprove their gloomy forecasts that the 1954 Agricultural Act, with a sharp reduction from the 90 percent parity price level, would doom the farmers.

According to the Benson real estate review, farm land values throughout the nation increased by more than 1 per cent in the last six months of 1952, continuing an advance that had begun in late 1951. In some areas, notably New York, and Minnesota, the figures ranged from 3 to 4 per cent. Oddly, it was during this same period that the stock market registered its greatest gains.

Equally significant, in Benson's belief, the number of farms for sale has decreased, while the demand for farm land remains high. And it is not the "city tellers," seeking refuge from atom bombs, who are doing the buying. The postwar rush of "gentleman farmers" to the wide open spaces has ended. It is the farmers themselves who are doing the investing and reinvesting.

employment. They advocate labor unions that interfere with an unhampered market, that are bound to bring on depressions. They advocate the government attempting to regulate credit, and all depressions come after the government has made credit easy. These dreamers want the government to step in and do the very things that brought on the deflation to start with.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Unfortunately our medical investigators have not yet come up with a good answer to the question of cancer sores. Questions on this subject come in continuously and the one which follows is typical.

Q — Please say something about cancer sores. What causes them and what can one do for them? I get them frequently, two or three at a time.

A — This is a condition involving the formation of blisters in the mucous membrane of the mouth. The blisters break and leave a painful ulcer which ordinarily heals in a few days. However, in many persons cancer sores come in bunches at intervals of only a short time over periods of months or years, thus causing a great deal of distress.

In the majority of cases a definite cause cannot be discovered though in some low-grade infection, allergy or possibly vitamin deficiency are believed responsible. Treatment of most victims of cancer sores is unsatisfactory. Mild mouth washes may be soothing but do not really cure in a hurry. Although not dangerous to life, cancer sores are a painful nuisance to many and anyone who can come up with a good answer on treatment, preferably based on learning the cause, will certainly deserve our gratitude.

Q — Please say something about carotid sinus syncope. Does this cause a person to get dizzy and a feeling of fainting?

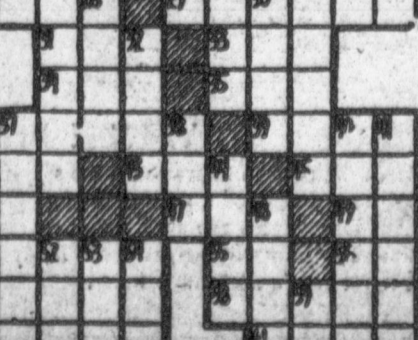

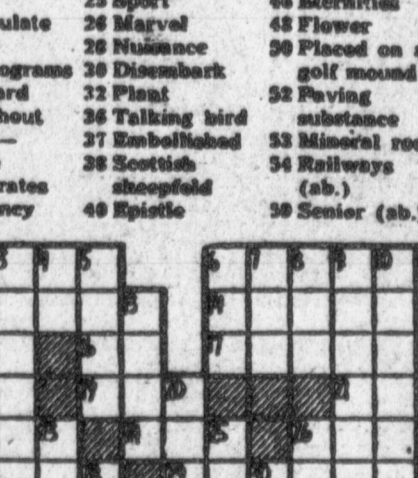

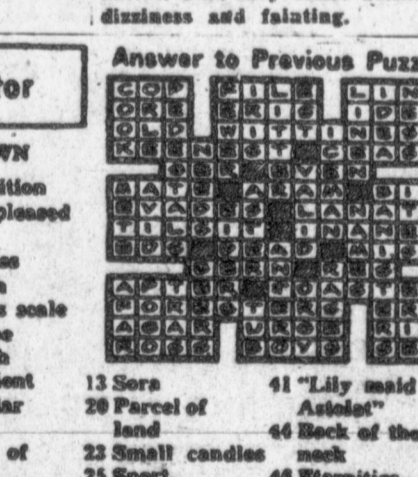

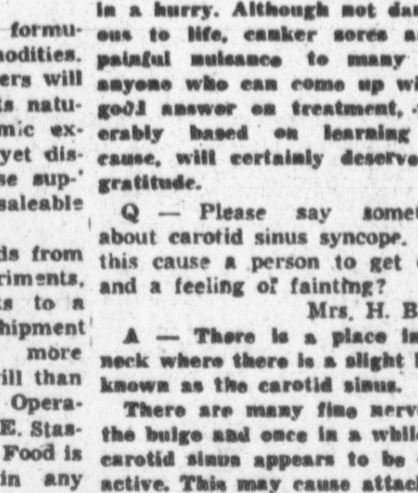

A — There is a place in the neck where there is a slight bulge known as the carotid sinus. There are many fine nerves in the bulge and once in a while the carotid sinus appears to be overactive. This may cause attacks of dizziness and fainting.

Letter Suggests Pickford's Attack On Pegler A 'Pitfall'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

I have a letter from Congressman Donald L. Jackson, Republican, Calif., bearing on the strange conduct and language of Mary Pickford in defending Charlie Chaplin and, at the same time, abusing me for disclosing Chaplin's pro-Communist conduct. Mr. Jackson is a friend of Miss Pickford. He regards her as a genuine Republican. He suggests that she was led by a team of radio propagandists called Tex and Jinx to attack me for exposing Chaplin's attachment to Russia's imperial design.

Tex and Jinx are generally local in scope in the region of New York. Some years ago they requested me to perform as a guest pundit, or sucker. I have a right to no reprisal and I did. The refusal was followed by a campaign of abuse on a broadcast which never before had referred to me as far as I knew. I have no recollection of ever having met "Tex," who had a brief career in the newspaper business, or "Jinx" his wife, a clothes model now grown mature.

On Feb. 24, 1954, Mary Pickford attacked me in language which was vague and, in spots, incoherent. The burden of her broadcast, under guidance by Tex and Jinx, was that she resented denunciation of Chaplin's pro-Moscow bias. She challenged me to call her a Communist. In that case, she would prosecute me.

All this was strange to me because on Nov. 8, 1944 Miss Pickford wrote me that I had, that very day, after Roosevelt's election for his fourth term, given her "fresh courage and hope" in "the struggle for decent government."

In this particular broadcast, Mary Pickford said: "I want the torch of Liberty to be handed on to my two children. I think we should be allowed the freedom of speech which is granted us and anything I am saying I'll say before Mr. Pegler, before Uncle Sam himself and if the Lord — I am sure the Lord is listening — before the Lord God Almighty because I believe in that I'm very sincere and I'm not afraid, thank God. If I were in Moscow I wouldn't be allowed to express my feelings. And I want to keep it free for my grandchildren, for my great-grandchildren and on to the generations unknown because they fought for you and me to give us this privilege, to speak on the air our feelings, our convictions and I'm convinced that it isn't because — and I'm going to reiterate that — that Charlie Chaplin I've known for years. I don't know his political views. Being an artist he may have had some mistaken ideas." In June, Chaplin, exiled in Switzerland, accepted a "peace award" of $14,000 from the World Peace Council. The New York Times, always slow to acknowledge the Communism of accused persons and fronts, said this "council" was "Communist-sponsored." The Times bade Chaplin "farewell" in a reluctant editorial. On July 21, Chaplin was a dinner guest in Geneva of Chou En-Lai, the Chinese Communist potentate, all this within six months after Miss Pickford's confused remarks under the prompting of Tex and Jinx. That prompting was undisputed and repeated with the obvious purpose of holding me up to hatred.

On that point, Congressman Jackson now writes, "I was impressed with the thought that Tex and Jinx appeared to deliberately lead the conversation in the direction that I took. I had the feeling that Mary was placed in a position where the answers that were desired were the answers that would normally be forthcoming under the preceding circumstances. I do not know whether the team has been carrying on an attack on you but I have made enough appearances on forum programs to know when a pitfall is being prepared. Keep up the good work."

United Artists, of which Mary and Chaplin were the only surviving owners, had come into the control of Robert S. Benjamin and Arthur B. Krim, Broadway lawyers. United Artists' board undertook to distribute two pictures which ran into blockades on patriotic and moral grounds, respectively. First the national executive council of the American Legion resolved to ask Krim and Benjamin to withhold Chaplin's own picture, "Limelight." They were warned that the Legion posts might picket the show. In New York, Cardinal Spellman formally condemned another U-A picture called "The Moon is Blue" as "an occasion of sin." Catholics were admonished to avoid this one and thereafter to shun indefinitely the actress which showed "condemned" pictures.

Mary Pickford and Chaplin each owned 25 per cent of U-A. Krim and Benjamin own the other half. Mary stood to profit from both of these pictures.

'Who's Who' Is After Hank For Biographical Material

By HENRY McLEMORE

For quite a few years now, the A. N. Marquis Co., publishers of "Who's Who in America," have asked me to furnish them with biographical material, and they couldn't have picked out a man more eager to get in their book.

Every time I hear from them my chest goes out two inches, and I have to buy a new hat, but every time I think of revealing certain pertinent data I find it impossible to put pen to paper. I'll give you a sample of what I would have to reveal, and I am quite sure you will agree with me that it would look pretty silly in there alongside the biographical material of, say, Douglas MacArthur, Herbert Hoover, Helen Hayes, and a host of other distinguished men and women.

I'd have to reveal my hobbies, for example, and I'm not quite sure I want anyone to know that my very favorite hobby is peeling apples so that the peeling comes off in one long piece, without breaking. No fair peeling deep; the skin has to be almost razor thin to afford any sense of real accomplishment.

Another hobby that takes up entirely too much of my time is watching telephone linemen climb poles. After a high wind I'm sometimes gone from home for days. Harmless enough hobbies, to be sure, but they just wouldn't stand up against model boat building, painting in oil, and raising orchids.

My list of honors would be a trifling list, but those of Governor Dewey, let us say, I'm proud of them, but there aren't too many of them. I could list the Good Conduct Medal, third prize in a turkey shoot (I received a plump steaming hen), a leather book mark for going to the semifinals in a regional spelling bee (I was knocked out of the running when I put an f in phlegm), chosen from 82 third-graders to play Miles Standish in a Thanksgiving Day pageant, corresponding secretary of innumerable Brownings Societies, and assistant manager of a girl's field hockey team that won twelve games in a row.

"Who's Who" wants to know about activities, too, come to think of it, I wouldn't look so bad here. I'm pretty active. I belong to the Red Cross, the Community Chest, the Baseball Writers' Association of America, the Book-of-the-Month Club, am up for membership in the Literary Guild, and the Peopy Club of America. Other activities include marketing on Saturdays, trying to get the hot and cold water balanced when taking a shower, jaywalking, earning the resentment of children by talking baby talk to them, discussing with friends my own age how much better the old days were, overbidding in bridge, trying to make a broken shoestring tie when it is obviously too short, eating too many starchy foods, promising myself to take more exercise, and taking harmonica lessons by mail.

Now that I have sketched some biographical data, I am more sure than ever that I won't send it in. Could be that after reading it, the Editors of "Who's Who" would turn me down and send me a note asking me to forget all about it — or suggest that I send it to the Editors of "Who Ain't in America."

Harvesters In Last Scheduled Home Game

Seek 46th Straight Home Court Victory

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Hustlin' Harvesters will host the tough Lubbock Westerners in their last regularly scheduled home game tonight at Harvester Fieldhouse.

The game, a crucial District 1-AAAA affair, will start at 8. The Harvesters will be gunning for the 46th straight home-court victory in tonight's contest.

It will be a tough assignment for the Harvesters tonight. Lubbock, who has the best "losing" team in any district in the state, extended the Harvesters to the limit when the two clubs met at Lubbock.

Coach Clifton McNeely's Green and Golders had to come from behind in the last four seconds to

Shockers Win 81-56 Over Phillips Five

By RAUL (Rabbit) RAMIREZ
The Pampa B team Shockers rolled over the Phillips B team, 81-56, last night at Harvester Fieldhouse.

The win was the 21st against only five losses for Coach Terry Culley's Shockers. It was the second win over Phillips B, the Shockers winning the first game, 58-38.

The Shockers wasted little time in taking command of last night's game. They took a 22-14 lead at the first quarter mark and then extended the margins to 47-32 at halftime and 65-46 at the three-quarter stage.

The score was tied three times in the first quarter before the Shockers pulled away for good. Dickie Mauldin led the Shockers with 30 points, canning 14 from the field and two free tosses. Gerald Clark followed Mauldin in the scoring column for the Shockers with 19 points.

Mauldin and Clark set the pace in the first half for the Shockers, the former getting 10 in the first quarter and the latter 11 in the second period.

The Little Blackhaws pulled up to 47-39 early in the third before the Shockers hit their stride again and coasted to victory.

Coach Culley swept his bench in the top-lapided victory. John Benefield was high for the losers with 15 points.

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

THE OILERS WILL DEFINITELY operate this year regardless of how the season ticket sales fare, it was decided at the weekly meeting of the Pampa Oilers Community Baseball Association yesterday.

While the season ticket sales are still running at a pace below expectation, the POCBA is confident there are enough fans who are planning to buy season tickets in the future to reach the goal of 3,000.

It was voted at yesterday's confab to set the deadline for purchasing season tickets for the opening home game, April 22. If the opener is rained out, then the deadline will be extended until the opener is played.

The baseball directors also set the deadline for renewal of box seats for March 27, opening day of spring training. All fans who had box seats last year may reserve their same boxes this year if they act between now and March 27.

It was also pointed out in yesterday's meeting that the boxes this year will be better policed than in the past. It got to the point last year that anyone could sit in a box whether they had box seat reservations or not. It will be different this year, though.

The directors voted to postpone the "baseball rally day" until after the current Harvester basketball season.

Allie Reynolds, an all-time Yankee great, is due to be here for the rally day. Details of the rally day will be ironed out later.

In another move at yesterday's meeting, the POCBA voted unanimously to allow both local radio stations, KPND and KPAT, to broadcast both home and road games.

The two stations will pay the Oilers $10 per game for all home game broadcasts.

It was stipulated in the motion that if the station broadcasts the home games it would be obligated to also air the road games.

Manager Grover Seitz told the directors at yesterday's meeting the Oilers will be the best dressed "home team" in the league next year.

The 1955 Oilers will be dolled out in brand new uniforms next season. Cost of each uniform will be $80.

No other player deals have come up in the past few days although contracts to last year's returnees, Jonas Gaines and Dick Hairston, have been mailed. Hope these lads see fit to ink the pacts.

Well, you can see the baseball directors are getting a lot of things done in readying for the 1955 baseball season.

You can help this group to get more done and more quickly by picking up your season tickets today.

It would be great if we could outdull Amarillo in the season ticket drive since the odds are 8-1 against us to start with. We're speaking, of course, of the difference in population of the two cities.

WE HAVE BEFORE US A couple of recent copies of the Wichita State Journal, the daily newspaper in Madison, to which our own Bobby Wilhelm comes in for quite a spread on the paper's sports pages.

Hogs Eke Past Bears 75-72 In SWC Till

By UNITED PRESS The Rice Owls can move into third place in the Southwest Conference standings Tuesday night if they win as expected against the Texas Longhorns in Houston.

Rice currently has a 3-3 won-loss conference record, while the Longhorns are just a half-game out of last place with a 1-4.

The conference arrangement was juggled slightly Monday night when Arkansas substitute guard Leo McDonald led the Razorbacks to a 75-72 victory over the Baylor Bears in Waco.

It was a close, hard-fought game all the way, with the Bears leading 39-38 at halftime.

Jerry Mallett of Baylor was the highest individual scorer with 23 points, but Arkansas put McDonald's 17 together with 14 by Perry Day and another 14 by Jerald Redd to edge the Bears on the final score sheet.

The victory moved Arkansas into third place with a 4-3 record, just a half-game below Southern Methodist and its 4-2. Baylor now has a 3-4.

Wednesday night Texas Christian and SMU—the No. 1 and 2 teams—tangle in their final scheduled show-down contest of the season. Even if SMU wins, TCU (6-1) would hold a half-game lead in conference play.

Tennis Stars Honored NEW YORK, Feb. 8—UP—Davis Cup stars Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas Tuesday were named co-winners of the Tennis Writers of America award as the persons who rendered distinguished service to tennis in the United States in 1954.

Mallett Writing Basketball History On Baylor Campus

DALLAS, Feb. 8—UP—Major league baseball beckoned for Jerry Mallett when he graduated from high school two years ago, but the Beaumont, Tex., youngster ignored the quick money offer and cast his lot with Baylor, where he is writing basketball history.

A baseball future may still lie ahead for the 6-5, 210 pounder but right now he's the pride and joy of Baylor basketball Coach Bill Henderson who tabbed Mallett as the "greatest sophomore we ever had at Baylor."

And the wily Henderson wasn't overlooking fireball Jackie Robinson, the sensational preacher-floor man who led Baylor to the NCAA cage finals in 1948 and went on to become a member of the U. S. Olympic team.

Mallett, who made a name for himself as a combination pitcher-outfielder, as well as earning all-state cage honors at South Park high in Beaumont, started this season as a sub.

Outstanding Against Sooners But even the seniors couldn't keep him out of the limelight. In the second game of the season against Oklahoma, Mallett came off the bench, bagged 18 rebounds and scored 22 points. He's been a regular ever since.

Baylor probably won't win the Southwest Conference championship, but the Bears have already scored the daylight out of pace setting Texas Christian, which had to have a final-second goal by towering Dick O'Neal to squeeze by Baylor, 77 to 75, last Saturday.

And Henderson's cagers get a chance this Saturday night at home

Playoff Games In 1-A Set Tonight

Playoff games in both boys and girls divisions of the Southern bracket of District 1-A will be unreeled tonight.

Both playoff tilts are for second place in the respective divisions. White Deer and Panhandle will meet at Panhandle in the boys game playoff, starting at 8:30.

In the girls playoff, the Canadian Lassies, winners of 14 of 19 games this season, will meet Gruver on a neutral court in White Deer tonight at 7.

All four of the above teams won't play with 3-3 records in district play.

Winners of the two games will complete the 1-A tournament field. The tournament will be held at White Deer, starting Thursday and extending through Saturday.

Panhandle in the girls division and Gruver in the boys have already qualified for the tourney from the Northern Half.

The Southern bracket is already complete. McLean finished on top

No Announcement On Re-Districting

AUSTIN, Feb. 8—UP—A special committee working on revision of the Interscholastic League's high school football and basketball districts said Tuesday it expected to make a report about June 1.

The revision program was started as an effort to reduce travel to keep natural rivalries alive.

O. T. Freeman, Wichita Falls superintendent, is chairman of the committee. The group met Monday and heard two superintendents during the day. They were John W. Culwell of Breckenridge and John W. McFarland of Vernon.

On a rounds basis, referee Ray Miller favored Mims, 6-5-1. Judge Tony Rossi agreed, 5-4-1. But Judge Joe Agnello called it even. He gave each five rounds and each five points.

It happened in the third round. Savage, scaling 160½ pounds to Mims 157½, suddenly pointed with his left glove at Mims' shoe. He said, "your shoe lace is untied."

As Mims stopped and glanced down at his shoe—wham! Milo hit him on the chin with a straight right that knocked him backwards four steps. And then Savage swarmed over him in a corner.

It was the first time the shoelace trick had been used on television. And it was the first time any one could remember its use in a main event since 1921, when the late Benny Leonard used it in his lightweight title defense against Richie Mitchell and knocked him out in the sixth round.

Savage, an underdog at 3½ to 1, surprised every one Monday night by beating Mims at his own body-punching specialty in their excellent fight. The United Press had Milo winning six rounds, from the second through the seventh. He tired in the later going.

On a rounds basis, referee Ray Miller favored Mims, 6-5-1. Judge Tony Rossi agreed, 5-4-1. But Judge Joe Agnello called it even. He gave each five rounds and each five points.

Frisco Climbs To Top In UP Cage Poll

NEW YORK, Feb. 8—UP—San Francisco, the surprise team of the college basketball season, clinaxed a steady rise in the United Press national rankings Tuesday by taking over the top spot with an overwhelming margin over Kentucky.

Coach Phil Woolpert's Dons, whose 1954-55 prospects were so lowly regarded that they did not even receive a single vote in the coaches' pre-season sizeup of the national race, were the No. 1 choice this week of 27 members of the 35-man United Press rating board.

San Francisco thus ended six straight weeks of Kentucky domination by extending its unbeaten string to 14 and its overall record to 16-1 with two triumphs last week while Coach Adolph Rupp's men faltered. The Wildcats were beaten by Georgia Tech for the second time, giving them a 14-2 record at week's end. The west coast independents enjoyed a wide 32 to 228-point margin over Kentucky.

The Dons, unranked for the first two weeks of this season and placed only 23rd the third week, made their first big impression on the coaches by winning the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City during Christmas vacation week. That triumph earned Woolpert's team the No. 6 ranking and it has made steady progress ever since.

KEELUNG, Formosa — (NEA) — Gray, grim faces come swaying down the gangplank of filthy Chinese landing craft. They are bent under huge bundles. Ropes crudely hold their entire possessions. They look like lines of ants hauling crumbs thrice their size. They are refugees from the Tachen islands — islands battered at the bargain counter of power politics; islands that for generations have been their homes. Little children with shaved heads, wearing fat layers of shawl, shapless housewives in dull cotton skirts and black stockings; strong men with the huge hands and crinkled skin of fishermen. I don't know any of them, but their faces are familiar. I've seen these people before as they were fleeing Chinese communism, that crawling dragon still burning all before it.

arms like a scarecrow. White-coated medics spray DDT up both sleeves. Another takes of his hat and shoots a flowering gob of disinfectant on his head. The refugee is given a card number and shuffles off to stand silently in an open Army truck next to a woman with a baby strapped to her back. Then I meet an officer I last met on Tachen itself a year ago. I'm sorry I met him. Somehow I feel ashamed, as if I am to blame for this retreat, this failure. For when I was his guest on Tachen, America had raised his hopes. U. S. arms and supplies poured into the horseshoe-shaped harbor. Our officers were easy with their advice, suggesting how to make Tachen first a fortress that couldn't be denied, then a stepping stone across a thin slash of water to the invasion of Red China.

I've seen their faces jamming landing ships as we evacuated North Korea... choking jungle paths as the French evacuated North Indo-China... crossing slight bamboo bridges as the British evacuated sections of Malaya... swaying in cattle cars heading into Hong Kong as the Nationalists evacuated Canton. All these previous evacuations were like the current one, accompanied by the fine promises of a new stand on a new line of "development."

A considerate gentleman of the Orient, he did not discuss our last meeting. I shook his hand and wished him well. Still more and more come down the gangplank. Puffs of DDT powder whiten their hair, and they exchange their names for numbers. I remember a British statesman who, with characteristic understatement, said at the time of Dunkirk: "An evacuation, no matter how brilliantly executed, is not a victory."

The new line is still a vision of the future; few in free Asia today believe there will be any kind of a line stronger than a tape barrier guarding a freshly built bridge. This reporter is becoming an expert on democracy's retreats and evacuations. Today's refugees seem like newsworthy flashbacks of yesterday's refugees.

Even the words they speak are similar. Here's a man who is balancing two baskets of penned-up chickens on a bamboo pole sawing on his shoulder. "What does he think?" I ask my interpreter. "What does he think of leaving his home?" "It was not necessary," is the translated reply. "We were all ready to fight for Tachen. We were well underground, deep in the rock. There were few shelling and few bombings. They were nothing. It is not our weakness that has made us leave. It was others. We do not understand."

His slant eyes and black hair are different from the blue eyes and blond hair of the American foot soldier I met on a frozen road, retreating south of the 38th parallel a few years ago. His words were spiced with Army anger but they meant the same. "What the hell are we bugging out for? After all those guys got clobbered for real estate, we give it to the Reds. We can't figure it out."

More and more refugees come down the gangplank. They pause briefly to be dusted with white DDT powder in assembly-line precision. A refugee holds out his

Tyler Will Tear Down Courthouse

TYLER, Tex., Feb. 8—UP—Smith county commissioners have rejected two offers by a Tyler oilman aimed at keeping the present courthouse intact. The county will soon move into a new courthouse next door and has asked bids on the job of tearing down and removing the old building which was built in 1908. This action came after commissioners refused oilman D. K. Caldwell's offer to rent the old courthouse for the next 15 years for $180,000 or to pay the cost of a special election to see if voters want the courthouse to remain or be torn down. Caldwell said that the new building will soon be overcrowded and the old building could be used for additional office space.

Vinson Gives Support To Military Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—Despite the threatening Far East situation, Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services committee Monday threw his support behind the administration's plan to reduce the armed forces slightly. The veteran Georgia Democrat told the House Rules committee that, after hearing testimony from top defense officials on the manpower cut and receiving assurances that the new Army level of 2,850,000 would be maintained indefinitely, "I had no hesitancy in saying it (the cut) would have my wholehearted support." Vinson appeared before the rules committee to obtain clearance for the start of House debate Tuesday on the extension of the draft law for four years. Its passage appeared assured. The reduction of manpower will slice about 140,000 from the Army next year, despite protests by Army chief of staff Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. Penny Foolish CHESHIRE, Conn.—UP—A $20,000 fire broke out in the Grange Hall when someone placed a penny in a fuse box.

Beaten Man Found Dead In Trinity

TRINITY, Tex., Feb. 8—UP—The beaten body of a 40-year-old jobless bridegroom, apparently the victim of a gangland-style murder, was found on the steps of a hotel here early Monday and police began a search for the bride and her ex-husband. Sheriff Lynn Evans identified the victim as Willie Morris Driskell, a guest at the hotel for about a week. He said Driskell apparently had been dragged from a car to the hotel steps and dumped there. Sheriff Evans immediately ordered a search for a woman who was reported to have married Driskell several nights ago, and her one-time husband. He said the couple was reported to have had an argument with Driskell at a tavern Sunday night and all three were seen later in Driskell's car. The body, the head brutally beaten, was found shortly before 7 a. m. by another guest at hotel, John Sheffield, Peace Justice W. E. Morris said Driskell had been dead about four hours. Morris said a woman telephoned to the hotel from Grapeland shortly after the body was found and asked for Driskell. When told he was dead she hung up, Morris said. Driskell originally was from Woodlake, in Trinity county. Morris said he had been unemployed and was drawing disability compensation checks from an insurance company.

Oil Field Mishap Fatal To Worker

ROSWELL, N. M., Feb. 8—UP—One man was killed and another seriously injured Monday when they were yanked to the top of an oil rig on which they were working southeast of here near the Chaves - Lea county line. Bill Vanderman of Post, Tex., was killed, Allen Whitley of Lovington, N. M., was taken to the Lovington hospital where attendants said he is in serious condition. Deputy Sheriff Marvin T. Hill radioed Chaves county sheriff's officers here that the two men were caught by a rope which was slack off on the floor of the rig. It entangled about their legs and they were jerked to the top of the rig, their bodies hitting the framework. A spokesman at a Lovington funeral home said both were employees of the Penrose Oil Co., but it was not known immediately who operated the rig.

Receipts Short BARRINGTON, R. I.—UP—Barrington post office missed becoming first class last year by a few sacks of mail. It was $107 short of the $40,000 in receipts needed for a first class rating.

Latest Official Dispatch Says Absolutely Nothing

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—What's new in Washington? The gook-de-gook around here is wearing a little thin. Here is the text of a dispatch that made the rounds of government agencies. It said: "In conjunction with other government agencies we are taking steps to clarify this problem, and to develop official data on which to base definite corrective action. We are not yet in a position to estimate just when this may be effectively accomplished." End of item. Ground is being broken for a new Senate office building, and things are bad all over. About 400 government workers are about to be dismissed from their free parking space. And they don't like it. A lot of them have seen the light and are showing up early — a couple of hours, even. Parking a few blocks away, drinking their coffee out of thermos jugs and eating hard-boiled eggs out of manila sacks. And jamming traffic in the area.

Resolution Asks Limit Oil Imports

AUSTIN, Feb. 8—UP—A resolution asking Congress to give "immediate attention" to proposals to limit foreign oil imports was before the Texas Legislature Tuesday. The measure, introduced by Rep. Marshall O. Bell of San Antonio, said oil production in Texas "has been unrealistically curtailed to an injurious extent, as a result of the growing encroachment of foreign oil on the markets normally supplied by oil producers of Texas." Bell noted that oil production taxes form a primary source of state revenue in Texas—some "68 per cent of all business and property taxes." He said foreign oil is curtailing the Texas output and "is seriously undermining our state tax structure to the extent that harmful losses are inflicted on state budget requirements for schools, colleges, highways and other essential public projects." Bell's proposal asks Congress to give "immediate attention" to proposals now pending and to others that may be introduced on the subject of oil imports.

Australian States Visit WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—UP—Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies will visit here March 13-16 as the guest of President Eisenhower, the White House said Monday.

Grand Jury To Hear Bomb Death Case

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Feb. 8—UP—Witnesses will begin Thursday telling a Tom Green county grand jury what they know about the Jan. 19 car-bomb killing of wealthy Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver. Mrs. Weaver, Houston contractor and former son-in-law of the 32-year-old San Angelo social leader, faces possible indictment. He is charged with murder in the case and has been held without bond in a county jail since Jan. 29. Mrs. Weaver was killed when a nitroglycerin bomb placed under the hood of her light green Chevrolet exploded as she pressed the car starter to leave for a beauty parlor appointment. District Attorney Aubrey Stokes said most of the witnesses will come from Houston, but two persons expected to testify before the grand jury are San Angelo residents who told police they saw Weaver in San Angelo the night before the Weaver killing. Police have said Mrs. Weaver apparently was killed by mistake, that her husband, Harry Weaver, might have been the intended victim. An examining trial originally was set for Washburn for Wednesday but Stokes decided later he would give his information, instead, directly to the grand jury when it meets at 1 p. m. Thursday.

Solon Calls Ike, Dulles 'Do Gooders'

AUSTIN, Feb. 8—UP—A ranking member of the Texas Senate Monday called President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "international do-gooders." Sen. Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo, successfully arguing for adoption of a resolution calling for the congress to ease restrictions on amending the federal constitution, was denouncing what he called "international do-gooders" who endorsed "one-world" treaties infringing on the domestic life of citizens. "Do you include the President and the secretary of state in that?" Sen. William Shireman of Corpus Christi inquired. "I certainly do," replied Hardeman. The senator later told reporters he classified former President Truman in the same category. Hardeman lauded Mr. Eisenhower for his "sincerity" and said he was "glad he's up there trying to clean up that mess," but he sharply disagreed with the President on foreign policy.
