All-Time Great Duster Covers Panhandle

Information Setup To Be Overhauled

By CHARLES CORDRY

WASHINGTON — UP — An aroused administration Thursday set in motion a complete overhaul of the machinery for making defense information available to the public.

Professional military men will be ousted as top spokesmen for the armed services and their jobs will be put under civilian information chiefs directly responsible to service secretaries.

Military information staffs will be drastically cut, possibly by 200 to 300 people.

Strict new rules will govern release of data to the public. Military men will be barred from writing for profit articles based on information denied to reporters.

Immediate reaction in defense circles was that the new orders issued Wednesday by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson could slow down and complicate the release of military information. Some military authorities doubted that civilian information bosses will be taken into the confidence of military staffs or be able to give reporters precise information on professional military matters as well as flag and general officers customarily assigned the job. Two new directives were issued by Wilson in the wake of public storms ranging from Adm. Robert B. Carney's views on the Far East war danger to the publication of magazine articles by the skipper of the atomic submarine Nautilus, Cmdr. Eugene P. Wilkinson.

Carney, chief of naval operations, was publicly chastised Wednesday by President Eisenhower for his private, background briefing of a select group of newsmen last week. Carney forecast that war could come in the Formosa Straits as soon as mid-April.

A high naval official said Thursday that the Carney incident is now a closed "matter." He said that Carney had conferred with Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas and was not reprimanded. He said Carney "would be the last man in the world to do anything that would embarrass his commander-in-chief."

One of Wilson's directives could hamper or stop the anonymous briefings such as Carney's of last week. But it was mainly aimed at the writing of articles by military and civilian defense personnel and a general tightening of information policies. It was brought to a head by the Nautilus articles.

The directive ordered that all manuscripts for outside publication should be reviewed not only to prevent security leaks but to insure that they make a "constructive contribution to the primary mission of the Department of Defense."

The world-famous editor, whose newspaper sponsored the annual Pulitzer prizes for excellence in the field of journalism, had not suffered a long illness.

Pulitzer, apparently in excellent health except for long-standing failing eyesight attended a party honoring his birthday on March 21. Guests at a luncheon gathering included Mrs. Pulitzer, Joseph Pulitzer Jr., vice president and associate editor, and his wife and their five-year-old son, Joseph Pulitzer III.

Pulitzer died at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday night at Barnes hospital here. Death was attributed to a ruptured blood vessel in the abdomen.

Pulitzer worked at his desk on the third floor of the Post-Dispatch until 6:30 p.m., associates said, and left for home in good spirits and apparently feeling well.

He was stricken at home during the evening and was rushed to the hospital where death came within a matter of hours.

HIGH CALIBRE MAINTENANCE

There may have been a lot of "Texas rain" — dust to you out-of-staters — in the air this morning in Pampa, but there was one place that had too much water.

Justice of the Peace D. R. Henry's office has some green plants on the window ledge, but that wasn't where the water was, either. It was on the floor. All over the floor, thanks to a leaking pipe.

So Judge Henry went right to the "top" with his grievance. And the "top," in the person of County Judge Bruce Parker, came downstairs in the Courthouse, picked up a mop and pail and proceeded to swab out the office where the water runneth over.

But, as there must be, there was a superintendent on the job. A non-working superintendent. That was none other than County Clerk Charlie Thut.

Religious Army Joins Indo Chief

SAIGON, Indo-China — UP The commander-in-chief of the Cao Dai religious sect ordered his 25,000 Buddhist warriors Thursday to join Premier Ngo Dinh Diem in his battle to retain control of free Viet Nam.

The surprise move by Gen. Nguyen Thanh Phuong assured a victory for the American-backed premier over the rebellious Binh Xuyen sect of former river pirates who rose against Diem with a series of attacks that plunged Indo-China into a brief civil war.

Phuong's move deprived the rebellious sects of more than half their armed strength and cracked the so-called unified Nationalist front. Until Thursday the Cao Dai was allied with the Binh Xuyen and the Hoa Hao religious sect.

Phuong summoned Diem's representatives in his headquarters after an uneasy night in which government troops and Binh Xuyen war lords agreed to a truce after the first round of hostilities killed 26 persons and wounded 112.

Phuong told Diem's representatives: "The sect should keep out of politics. Today I and my 25,000 men rally behind Premier Diem. I support him totally."

Government authorities said a ceremony integrating the fierce Cao Dai warriors into Diem's 200,000-man army would be held.

Visibility Cut To Zero Near Dalhart; More Due

By UNITED PRESS

A dense black dust storm spread from southeastern Colorado over the Texas Panhandle Thursday and a meteorologist at the Amarillo weather bureau said it was "one of the all-time greats."

The visibility was reduced to zero at Dalhart, Tex., and at LaJunta, Colo. It was expected to drop as low as one-eighth mile at Amarillo.

Oklahoma Highway Patrolman B. W. Reed reported visibility at Guymon, Okla., was "10 to 30 feet," with winds of 60 miles per hour.

"The dust was so thick I never knew when the sun came up," Reed said. "Oldtimers say it is one of the worst they have ever had, equalling the worst of the '30s."

"The dust bank is about 400 to 500 miles in width, extending from the mountain ranges in eastern Colorado and New Mexico into central Kansas," Amarillo Chief Forecaster H. C. Winburn said.

"At present there is no serious erosion in the Texas Panhandle, but the front is picking up local dust as it moves along," he said. "The dust is about 20,000 feet high and will probably continue very dense up to the middle of the afternoon."

Winburn said the dust storm moved in from Colorado and south western Kansas with a cold front that moved through Amarillo at 9:06 a. m. est. He said the cold front was moving southwest at 18 miles per hour, and at some points along the front winds were 30 to 35 miles per hour.

"This is the worst storm of the year for the Panhandle," Winburn said. "It is as thick as the black duster that hit here Feb. 19, 1954. That storm had winds up to 60 miles per hour for 19 hours and dust for 27 hours."

Meteorologists said the dust, already general over a good deal of the Panhandle where it was being driven from southeastern Colorado, will move eastward across the state as the cold front moves through.

"There will be strong west winds following the front," a meteorologist said. "The dust is already as far east as Big Spring and will probably reach the Fort Worth area by mid-afternoon."

The cold front is coming from the Pacific and hence will not be as severe as an Arctic cold front. Low temperatures of 26 to 36 degrees were predicted Thursday night for the Panhandle, 35 to 45 for North Central Texas and 28 to 42 in the northern portion of East Texas and the extreme north-west portion of South Central Texas.

Some showers may develop in East Texas late Thursday afternoon or Thursday night, forecasters said.

Low temperatures early Thursday ranged from 44 degrees at Amarillo to 66 at Brownsville.

Other lows included El Paso 48, Lubbock 60, Amarillo, Lubbock, Beaumont and College Station 52, Houston 53, Waco 55, Abilene, Dallas and Fort Worth 56, San Antonio 60, Corpus Christi 63, Laredo 73.

Visibility in the downtown Pampa area late this morning was practically nil, as far as pedestrians and car-drivers were concerned. They could see perhaps as far as the length of a city block, or no farther. At Perry LaPorte Field, officials flatly called the visibility zero. One plane took off this morning, but quickly returned, they said. "Too dusty."

The only hope Pampans could see in the weather picture was by looking straight up. For there, the faint blue of the sky could be seen through the haze.

Weathermen, Texans all, said the dust front was coming down from southwestern Colorado, on through the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles, then north and east as far as Wichita, Kans. They said it was 400-500 miles in width.

But they by noon, anyhow — had not explained their weather forecast for the day. "Generally fair" was their report for Pampa and the Northeastern Panhandle, KPND quoted them as saying.

Phone Cable Dynamited In Big Strike

ATLANTA — UP — A coaxial cable was dynamited near Columbia, S. C., knocking out 1,600 telephone circuits early Thursday.

The lead-coated cable was blasted in two 19 miles south of Columbia.

Southern Bell Telephone Co. against which the CIO Communications Workers of America went on strike March 14 said 1,000 long distance message circuits, press, government, radio and television service were disrupted by one of the most serious incidents in a wave of vandalism that has plagued the company's property during the strike.

The incident happened shortly after midnight, about three hours after the CWA president, Joseph Beirne, talked to union members at Columbia.

In the address Beirne said the nine-state strike would end "in one minute" if the company agreed to arbitration. The company contends its insistence on a no-strike clause is holding up signing of a new contract.

Beirne also told the strikers they were not "mad enough."

West Berlin Votes To Pay Highway Toll

BERLIN — UP — The West Berlin city government authorized loans of 1 million marks ($250,000) to a Communist "cold blockade" threatening the city's lifelines.

In retaliation for prohibitory trucks to keep supply trucks rolling to isolated Berlin despite taxes imposed by the Reds on trucks supplying West Berlin the West German government broke off trade talks with the East Germans Thursday morning.

New Communist taxes on Berlin's trucks who supply nearly half the city's food go into effect at midnight Thursday night — seventh anniversary of the start of the crippling Soviet blockade of 1948.

The city's executive council, or Senate, voted a grant of 1 million marks as a "temporary measure" after the West Berlin mayor said the city's 200 trucks must get through "no matter what the cost."

But it is only enough to pay the Communist exorbitant tolls for two weeks.

The action came as Allied High Commission officials met West German officials in Bonn in a search for urgent measures to smash or circumvent the "cold blockade."

The Communists stepped up their pressure. East German newspapers accused the West German government of preparing "provocations" against the East the usual Communist procedure before announcing some new action against the West.

Waterfront Wins In Oscar Parade

By ALINE MOSSBY
HOLLYWOOD — UP — Marlon Brando, a three-time loser in the annual battle for Oscars, won the Motion Picture Academy award Wednesday night for the best male performance in 1954.

Miss Grace Kelly, a fellow New Yorker who has been in the movies only a year, was given the nod over veteran Judy Garland as the best actress.

It was a great night for their city, too. "On the Waterfront," a film about waterfront crime and violence which was made in New York, won eight Oscars, tying the record set by "Gone With the Wind" in 1939.

"On the Waterfront's" star, Brando, finally collected his Oscar for his portrayal of a brooding dock worker. His girl friend in the movie, Eva Marie Saint, won the best supporting actress award.

Miss Kelly won the best actress award for her role as a discouraged wife in "The Country Girl," Edmund O'Brien, the press agent of "The Barefoot Contessa," was given an Oscar as best supporting actor.

All four players are first time Oscar winners.

The usually casual Brando, who hadn't attended previous academy presentations, ran to the stage of the Pantages theater to accept a gold statuette from Bette Davis.

He was so moved he forgot his thank you speech and his hand shook as he held the statuette.

Later he recovered his memory and told reporters the awards "prove the voting was free from sentiment."

Fraser Plans New Addition

William T. Fraser, Pampa real estate and insurance man, Wednesday night announced the purchase of an estimated 150 acres north and east of the present Fraser Addition.

The papers, finalizing the purchase from Will Wilks, were signed about 6 p.m., Fraser told The Pampa Daily News.

Part of the new Fraser holdings lies north of Fairview Cemetery and extends north to the Overton Heights Addition, which the City of Pampa has just annexed. The other part of the newly acquired land is north of 23rd Street, between Duncan and the Perryton highway, and extends north for 2½ blocks.

Surveying of the new Fraser property was scheduled to get underway today, Fraser reported. As soon as the surveying and platting is completed, he said, he will apply to the Pampa City Commission to have the property annexed.

Fraser said that, like his Fraser Addition and Fraser Annex, the new Fraser property would be for the purpose of residences. All homes will be built, he said, by individual contractors.

Soviet Plans Shifting Men To Farm Area

LONDON — UP — Moscow radio Thursday announced a plan to shift thousands of top Communist party members to farms in a massive attempt to improve the Soviet's seriously lagging agricultural production.

The author of the plan is party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The Moscow broadcast outlined the "new look" Soviet agricultural plan which Khrushchev unveiled Wednesday at Voronezh in Russia's soil-rich "Black Earth" region.

Khrushchev and other top Soviet leaders are touring the provinces to win worker support for the new policy shifting the Soviet economy away from the "soft" policies sponsored by ousted Premier Georgi Malenkov.

County To Let Bids On Leases

The Gray County Commissioners Court Friday morning will open bids on oil and gas leases in Gaines County and on some shelves for the office of County Clerk Charles Thut.

County Judge Bruce Parker today said only the two bid-lettings and the paying of the bills and salaries were on the agenda for the court session.

The bids on oil and gas leases concern Gray County-owned property in Gaines County, Judge Parker explained. That said he had received three bids on the shelves which will be an extension of his present filing system.

New Action Urged On Gasoline Tax

AUSTIN — UP Rep. Jerry Sadler of Hickory Grove warned the House Revenue and Taxation committee Wednesday night he will call for immediate action by the House if it fails to report within a week his bill to abolish the four-cent state gasoline tax.

The bill levies a one-cent-a-gallon refunding tax to take the place of the gasoline tax now paid by motorists. The full committee sent the bill to a subcommittee Wednesday night in accordance with its usual practice.

Sadler estimates the processing tax on gasoline would bring in $100 million a year to the state but motorists would save $75 million a year in gasoline taxes.

However, Andrew M. Howsley of Albany, a spokesman for the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, said the bill would cost members of his association $225 million a year in addition to $112 million they now pay in state taxes.

Sadler also said he will call for immediate House action if the committee does not report within a week another bill he has sponsored, this one increasing the beer tax a penny a bottle.

Sadler said he had heard administration forces were planning a change of strategy and would move for an increase in the omnibus tax rather than separate bills on gasoline and cigarette taxes proposed originally by Gov. Allan Shivers. Gasoline and cigarettes are included among items in the omnibus tax.

"An omnibus tax bill is a sales tax," Sadler said.

He also told the committee that if refiners were considering moving out of the state, they would find high corporate income taxes in some states which would cost them more than Sadler's proposed levies.

Giles, Two Land Promoters Charged With Stealing

By LLOYD LARRABEE
AUSTIN - UP Former Texas Land Commissioner Bascom Giles and two Brady, Tex., land promoters were charged Wednesday with stealing $688,344 in state money, District Attorney Les Procter said Thursday the charges against his "growing alarm" something might happen to hinder criminal prosecution.

The three men had already been indicted on a charge they plotted to steal $85,500 in state money, and Giles is also under indictment on a charge he accepted a $35,000 bribe.

Procter filed four felony theft charges Wednesday in Austin, each naming all three men but dealing with different transactions. He said he filed the charges to keep the men from repaying the state, paying a $1,000 fine and preventing other criminal prosecution under a loophole in the law.

The suits also name Brady land promoters, L. V. Ruffin and B. R. Stiffled.

Meanwhile, a hearing was scheduled Thursday in Crookston, Minn., on efforts by Assistant Attorney General Sam Kimberlin of Texas to bring Minnesota lawyer John Padden to Texas to testify.

Crazy Horse Film Erred, Solon Says

LINCOLN UP - Hollywood has "arrogantly portrayed" the death of the famous Indian Chief Crazy Horse, Sen. Monroe Bixler, Harrison, said Wednesday.

Bixler said the movie version of the death of Crazy Horse shows the Indian chief killed at Fort Laramie, Wyo., "instead of at Fort Robinson, Neb., where historical literature says he was killed."

Bixler was referring to a movie about the chief which was shown here recently.

Charles Rice, state resources director, also perturbed over the movie version of the death of Crazy Horse, said "history in Nebraska is being murdered by the movie industry."

Rice said Crazy Horse "didn't go from the Black Hills into Fort Laramie but went from the Big Horn country to Fort Robinson where he was killed."

Semi-Documentary Shows Coming Strong Over TV

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD - UP Television will have a different look next fall. Situation comedies are slipping, and semi-documentary programs will be the new fad. TV industry leaders agreed Thursday.

"Medic," the TV program that started the trend for educational and realistic stories, will be back next fall, white coats and all, followed by other shows with scalpel backgrounds.

As one writer complains, you have to put on rubber gloves before writing a television script these days.

Three filmed series about medical, "Family Doctor," "Doctor Christian" and "G.P." are in the works for autumn. Laraine Day has filmed a sample program of "Kelly," a female version of "Medic." Producer John Guedel is preparing a series about psychiatrists. It will not be called "Couch," however, he says.

The next profession that will be worked over by TV will be law. Worthington Miner, executive producer of "Medic," has a plot afoot to do for lawyers what he did for doctors. Next fall he'll launch a series called "Briefcase," described as "Medic" with subnasas. "These semi-documentary shows have more body than other series mid-March last year, farm prices and this are more durable," Minner explained Thursday while visit-

Nautilus Passes Tests Successfully

GROTON-UP - Cmdr. Eugene P. Wilkinson, 37-year-old skipper of the world's first atomic-powered submarine, the Nautilus, said Wednesday the huge $50 million craft had successfully passed all its trials.

The Nautilus, he said, had traveled more than 3,000 miles during 319 hours and 32 minutes under nuclear power, made 69 dives and spent 92 hours submerged.

Wilkinson said, "We have now completed all builder's sea trials, including the test dives to deep submergence depth and full power operation of the propulsion plant both surfaced and submerged."

The next step, before the Nautilus becomes a Navy ship of the line, he said, would be demonstration for the Navy's Board of Inspection and Survey. Some trials already made will be repeated, plus a few new ones. After that, corrections will be made by the builder and it will be turned over to the submarine fleet.

Wilkinson, in the first news conference on the Nautilus permitted by the Navy, disclosed the vessel had a few cases of trouble during the early period of the sea trials, which began Jan. 17.

But he believed "the Nautilus has developed far less than her share of troubles."

"We're pleased that the Nautilus did so well," he said. "My experience convinces me that nuclear power is here to stay."

South Building Negro Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE: The days of one-room shacks for Negro school children in the South are passing. Here is one of the factors responsible. This is the second in a three-part report on segregation as the U.S. Supreme Court begins final arguments on its decision to outlaw segregation of Negroes and whites in the public schools.

By AL KUETTNER

ATLANTA, Ga. —UP— Betty Leach, a Negro girl, changed schools this week and for her it was like going into another world. Betty, one of the 2,000 Negro public school pupils in Henry county, a farming section a few miles south of here, had been attending school in a two-room shack with no plumbing, no library, no lunch room and no light save that which filtered in through a few small windows.

On Monday, Betty boarded a school bus that took her to the county seat at McDonough where the new consolidated Negro school had been built at a cost of $650,000. It was one of four constructed to replace 24 small and dilapidated Negro schools in the county.

"I thought I was dreaming," she said.

"Finer Than Whites"

Betty's new school is finer than anything available to the county's 1,900 white pupils. It has a sparkling cafeteria, two libraries, a music-room, audio-visual education equipment with motion and still pictures, home economics department with new sewing machines, industrial shops for boys and a vocational agriculture laboratory.

Betty's new school is one of hundreds built in the segregated South in the past few years since the U.S. Supreme Court first began deliberating five cases demanding an end to public school segregation.

The South gambled a fabulous sum — some estimates go as high as a billion dollars — that the court would hold to the traditional concept of separate but equal facilities. They got busy equalizing.

The court's decision last May 17 in principle — regardless of the equality of educational opportunities — caught the Negro school building program at full stride. It's still going strong, although at a somewhat reduced pace pending final outcome of the court's enforcement decrees.

Dixie States Take Action

Officials of the five Dixie states and their legislatures have taken this action in recent months designed to put the new Negro school plants to use — for Negroes — regardless of the Supreme Court:

1. Georgia and Mississippi have passed standby legislation that could lead to abolition of public schools and creation of a "private system" as a last resort to preserve segregation.

2. South Carolina has repealed the compulsory attendance law and placed control of schools in the hands of local boards which can designate which schools pupils may attend.

3. Louisiana has a law giving police power to enforce segregation.

4. In Alabama, a legislative committee which studied for two years that state's approach has recommended abolition of the constitutional requirement for public schools. Under the plan, a segregated private system and a non-segregated public school system would be available and parents could choose.

Parking Blocks Courtesy Box

The courtesy letter box at the east corner of the post office is causing a few headaches to Postmaster O. K. Gaylor these days. Patrons can't get near enough to use the box.

"Motorists are unable to get up to the box because of people parking in the no parking zone. The yellow paint used to denote the no parking zone has not been helpful, because it seems to fade out too soon," Gaylor said.

Gaylor has decided to use "No Parking" signs attached to the box, and at curb. Russell Cartwright, Pampa street superintendent, is making up several signs which are expected to be in place Monday. Cartwright said the signs will read: "Please No Parking, Mail Drop Area."

Autos Damaged In Collision

Some $175 in damages resulted following a two-car accident Wednesday afternoon at the intersection of Naida and Montagu, according to police records.

A vehicle driven by Mary E. Long, 24, of Star Route 2, was in collision with a 1947 Chevrolet driven by Erdean Dalton, 34, of 729 Bradley Dr.

The accident occurred at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. Dalton's car was damaged to the extent of $100. Long's car was damaged to the extent of $75.

Wiring Group Meets Tonight

The Pampa Adequate Wiring Bureau tonight will hear a lighting specialist and see a film.

The organization was only recently formed in Pampa and its purpose, according to Joe Giddens, bureau secretary, is to insure adequate wiring in housing "from blueprint to purchase."

Today was the last day for rendering taxes to the City of Pampa and the Pampa Independent School District.

But the deadline for rendering Gray County and State of Texas taxes is a month away—April 30.

Both City Tax Collector Aubrey Jones and School Business Mgr. Roy McMillen today were expecting a last-minute surge of renderings. But County Tax Collector Jack Back didn't want all that he and his deputies were too busy selling 1955 Texas license plates.

Eisenhower Blasts War Speculation

WASHINGTON —UP— President Eisenhower Wednesday criticized speculation about the prospect of war in the Far East.

He took this position in commenting on estimates by Adm. Robert E. Carney, chief of naval operations, that an attack on the island of Malau by the Red Chinese might develop about April 15 with a following attack on Quemoy a month or so later.

The chief executive said he does not plan to rebuke Carney. But in answering a number of news conference questions he left no doubt that he challenged Carney's estimate of the situation.

The President made these points: 1. The peace of the world is not being served by speculating too much concerning such things as Red Chinese war potential in the Straits of Formosa.

2. He warned against saying or doing anything in this country that would destroy the morale of the Chinese Nationalists.

3. He doubted the possibility of accurately forecasting when and what the Red Chinese will do.

Eisenhower politely objected Wednesday to British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's suggestion that big power discussions begin with a conference of chiefs of state.

Without referring to Churchill by name, Mr. Eisenhower pointed out at his news conference that an eminent source had proposed a top-level meeting without an agenda, but he objected to it.

He was asked directly whether he disagreed with the proposition that there might be an attack on Matsuo from April 15 onward. He replied that anyone making such a prediction must have information not in his possession.

The President said that his aides and officials of the administration have a right to their own opinions, but they do not have a right to express their opinions if they create difficulty for the administration and operation of government.

In such an event, he said the aide or official responsible for this difficulty does not belong—in other words, such an offending official is not a member of his team.

(Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson cracked down Wednesday on military officials who write for publication. He also generally tightened rules on release of military information.)

Mr. Eisenhower's discussion of the Formosa situation blended at times in the news conference with talk about a series of two meetings he began Wednesday with House and Senate leaders of both parties.

The President insisted that the conferences were not called for a specific or special purpose, but to discuss the world situation in general.

Some Democratic Congressional leaders hoped the White House talks would give them an opening to tell Mr. Eisenhower they deplored what they called hot-and-cold talk from the administration about a war scare.

The President, in response to questions, deplored mud slinging on Capitol Hill between highly partisan elements.

Second National Guard Unit To Be Organized in Pampa

A second Pampa battery of the Texas National Guard will become a reality Friday night when it is inspected and receives federal recognition.

CWO William Leonard Wednesday afternoon announced the latest plans for the new unit and said that orders had been received for the new designation and reorganization of Pampa guardsmen, effective Friday.

It will mean another Pampa Guard unit with an authorized strength of three officers, one warrant officer and 51 enlisted men, Leonard said. A recruiting drive will get underway shortly so that the new unit — a service battery — can be brought to full strength.

In the meantime, two officers, a warrant officer and 30 enlisted men are being transferred from the present headquarters and headquarters battery to the new service battery so that the unit can be officially organized.

The inspection and federal recognition of the new Pampa battery will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Leonard said, and Capt. Verne O. Peters, Amarillo, will do the honors.

The changeover from an observation battalion to a firing battalion — from the 474th Field Artillery Battalion (Observation) to the 474th F. A. Battalion — will mean a total of four more officers and 40 more enlisted men from Pampa and vicinity in the Guard, Leonard summarized.

First Lt. Winford L. Veale, Jr., has been made the commander of the new battery. He has been bat-

Police Chief To Attend FBI Meeting

Police Chief J. McConner, along with two members of the department, will attend the Federal Bureau of Investigation conference of bank robbery in Amarillo April 7. The FBI has arranged for these round table discussions all over the state.

"Law enforcement agencies are feeling considerable alarm at the increasing number of bank robberies, burglaries and larcenies which have occurred during the past few years. Many of the offenses have taken place in our own area," Conner commented.

In view of this situation, conferences have been called not only throughout Texas but the nation so that law enforcement officers, bankers and others in related capacities can have the opportunity to exchange ideas for the best plan of attack on the problem, according to Conner.

Conferences in West Texas have been called not only in Amarillo but Sweetwater, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, and Mount Pleasant.

The Amarillo conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. and end at 4:30 p.m. with time out for lunch. There will be no speeches. The program will be devoted entirely to open group types of discussion.

Study Group Adds Session On Folk Song

Pampa's adult education group will sponsor Jose Requesens, dancer, pianist and composer, in connection with the launching of their "Sing Your America" discussion group, Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Lovett Library.

Requesens, who lives in Santa Fe, is on his way to New York for concert appearances, and will stop over in Pampa to play and sing numerous folk ballads of America and Mexico. He will play several numbers composed by himself.

The new discussion group will take its place beside the four programs presently in the program. Commenting on the "Sing Your America" group, Mrs. Cameron Marsh, secretary to the adult education board said "there is a need for understanding what made this country and what it now stands for. No better picture of the life and ideals of a nation may be found than in the songs of the people — their folk songs."

The study group will strive, through a study of the songs America has lived by as well as through the singing of folk songs, to gain a better understanding of the nation's past and present.

Requesens, a well-known concert artist will appear here with his manager, and secretary, Don Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Russell, 723 N. Dwight.

At 15, Requesens went with the Ballet Russe of Mexico City, becoming its male star. He danced with the celebrated prima ballerina Nina Shestakova, and toured throughout Europe. In his appearance here he will play seven of his own compositions, representing countries he has found of most interest.

J. W. Henry Rites Friday

Funeral services for James W. Henry, who died Tuesday evening at 8:30, will be held in the Chapel at Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Friday.

J. M. Gilpatrick, Minister of the Central Church of Christ, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

$86,000 Suit Filed Here

A Pampa man has filed an $86,000 suit in 31st District Court, on behalf of his wife and son, against George B. Cree for injuries received in an accident earlier in the year at Cuyler and Brown.

F. E. Dyer, 600 N. Dwight, charges Cree with four counts of negligence in the Feb. 2 accident in which, the suit says, a Cree truck-trailer became unhitched, resulting in the trailer part crashing into the Dyer vehicle which was stopped for a red light.

In Mrs. Dyer, the driver, and Roy, 11, her son and passenger, were injured in the collision, the suit claims.

Dyer is asking $50,000 for Mrs. Dyer's injuries, $25,000 for Roy's injuries, $10,000 for the loss of the car itself. The suit does not identify the driver of the Cree truck-trailer; it just says "one of his (Cree's) drivers."

Firemen Put Out Two Small Fires

The Pampa Fire Department answered two calls yesterday. The first was at 535 S. Somerville where a wash house was ignited by a faulty heater vent. Damage to the roof was estimated at $50.

At 8:15 p.m. a pickup truck fire was extinguished at 515 N. Somerville. There was no damage reported to the vehicle owned by C. D. Wilkinson.

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Un-Covering Hollywood: It's a sanitarian retake for Gail Russell on the advice of her medics. Friends are making light of the confinement, saying she's in excellent health and close to a movie comeback try.

Is Clark Gable too old for romantics with Jane Russell in "The Tall Men"? Not by Jane, who flashes it: "Gee, he isn't THAT old!"

Janet Leigh goes to Lone Pine for a location trip with Tony Curtis. Both insist there's no truth to the domestic tension rumors.

Jimmy (I saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus) Boyd is making the switch from singing to acting. Play's his first straight role in U-I's "The Second Greatest Sex" and laughs: "I'm getting old—I'm 16—and my voice is changing a little. I'm still making records but I'm concentrating on dramatics."

Director Mitchell Leisen, on the lack of film comedies: "TV has proven that America wants to laugh and it is up to Hollywood to again resume the filming of big league comedies that made millions for the industry before the war."

HOLLYWOOD AND GRAPEVINE: Virginia Mayo is using her own vocal pipes on "I Can't Get Away" for "Pearl of the South Pacific." Warner Bros. always dubbed her singing. . . . There's a chance that Barbara (Mrs. North on TV) Britton's local play hit, "The Woman With Red Hair," will reach Broadway in the fall.

Exclusively Yours: Is Jennifer Jones replacing Elizabeth Taylor as the feminine star in the film version of "Giant"? A few days after she returned from Hong Kong location scenes for "A Man Called Horse," she secretly flew to Texas, under an assumed name, to confer with high brass there on a film role that sounds exactly like "Giant."

The Bishop School Play was postponed last Friday because of bad weather. The play "They Went Thataway" will be presented at a later date according to John Leithner, superintendent of the school. The Lipcomb County 4-H Club Council met March 12 with Mrs. Charles Brown, county agent's wife, attending in the place of Mrs. Clyde Fogh, the H. D. agent. Mrs. Hugh wasn't able to attend on account of a recent operation. Wanda Willyard and several more 4-H members attended from Higgins. Mrs. M. R. Merydith has spent the last two weeks in Perryton. Her mother, Mrs. W. F. Taylor is in the hospital there. James M. Bryant, pastor of the Higgins Baptist Church, was in Fort Worth Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week attending the World Missions Conference.

Experimental Mercury Auto To Show Here

The experimental Mercury Monterey XM-800, a startlingly new automobile whose advanced design combines both the features of a "sports" and "dream" car, will be at J. C. Daniels in Pampa Friday and Saturday.

The XM-800 was created by stylists of Ford Motor Company's engineering staff in Dearborn, Mich., working closely with Lincoln-Mercury engineers.
 The "800" is a four-passenger "hardtop" coupe and has an overall height of only 55.6 inches, or three inches lower than the 1955 Mercury Montclair hardtop currently in production. It maintains passenger comfort by a new frame construction and a lowered rear floor. Its low center of gravity gives better stability on the road. The prototype display car has a fibreglass body, which is mounted on a new chassis having a 119-inch wheel base.

The crisp, sweeping lines begin at the forward-canted headlamp and carry through to the twin tail light isolating the center body area.

The concave front grille is an entirely new treatment and has the added advantage of providing more air flow for engine cooling. The plain-flowing hood has a functional air scoop which also improves engine performance. Noticeable is the absence of any hood ornamentation.

A forward-sweeping pillar post supports the wide wrap-around windshield which is further enhanced by a chrome overlap of the roof. The graceful body lines are emphasized by the absence of chrome side moldings. Flush-type door handles are designed to flow with the body line.
 A chrome roof rail molding is carried from the windshield to the rear deck. A wide band of chrome accents the division between the roof and the rear window.
 The rear of the XM-800 is featured by the severe angle of the quarter panels, the integral chrome impact bar with imbedded dual exhausts, and the gently sloping deck lid. A radio antenna is centered on the deck lid.

The car is painted in pearlescent white with pearlescent copper colored roof, which sets the theme for an attractive interior two-tone combination of copper and white vinyl.
 The Mercury Monterey XM-800 features individually contoured seats front and rear. Stationary arm rests divide the seats and contain controls for the driver's four-way power seat, the front passenger's reclining seat, electric

Man Charged In Bribe Try

DALLAS —UP—A 73-year-old Dallas lumber firm executive whose financial records were undergoing a routine check was charged Wednesday with attempting to give a federal tax agent a $1,000 cash bribe.
 The lumber firm executive, Fay Hope Clem, was arrested late Tuesday at his place of business minutes after federal officers said he turned over a bundle of $50 and $20 bills to the agent.
 Participating in the arrest were James Conner, revenue service intelligence chief, and assistant regional tax inspector Walter McBride.

Charges were filed by U.S. Assistant District Attorney William Braecklein before U.S. Commissioner William Madden Hill. Clem waived a formal hearing and bond was set at $500.
 window lifts, cigaret lighters and ash trays.
 The instrument panel shows the influence of aerodynamics in its design. Clustered in front of the driver are the gauges for water temperature, oil pressure, battery and fuel. Each of these gauges is monitored by a warning light which flashes red if the performance of any of these operations nears the danger point. A tachometer, a speedometer, an electric clock with sweep second hand and radio controls complete the panel.

Other innovations in the Mercury Monterey XM-800 include a door-pull and door handle combined in a single built-in unit and a fluted-type steering column.
 The car has a V-8 engine, power steering, power brakes and Merc-O-Matic transmission.

Military Services Criticized
 WASHINGTON —UP— The Senate Armed Services committee Tuesday criticized military service for increasing the number of generals and admirals while reducing the number of enlisted men. The committee voted to impose a limitation on the number of high-ranking officers until it can check further into this "perplexing" and "apparent imbalance" between chiefs and Indians.

Woman Tells Of Shooting

BOURBON — UP — Mrs. Alice Henry McCasley, 27, calmly testified at her trial Wednesday that she fatally shot her 54-year-old husband's husband to death but couldn't remember it.
 "My mind was gone," the attractive red-haired housewife said. "I don't remember anything. But I know I did it."
 The victim, for whose murder Mrs. McCasley is on trial, was Fred McCasley. He was shot in the back four times while sitting at the dinner table last Aug. 8.
 Mrs. McCasley took the stand in her own defense Wednesday and said she shooting stemmed a general fight that had raged for several hours after she had learned, she said, that her husband had tried to divorce her 18 days ago.

This Is My Dish

Cherry Wink Cookies Make A Tasty Dessert

By JANE KADINGO Pampa News Women's Editor Mrs. Ray Jones, 2230 Christine, has a recipe for delicious "cherry winks" which are a good dessert, good for a party and good to feed the children as snacks.

A native Pampan, Mrs. Jones cooks for her husband and three children — Sherry, 2½ years old; Pamela, 1½ years old; and Larry, 7 months. Her husband, who is originally from Laketon, works for the General Supply Company. Mrs. Jones is the former Ottolene Patton.

Mrs. Jones cooked some before her marriage, but really learned afterward. Her "hobby" is taking care of her children, who keep her pretty busy. She is a member of the Church of Christ.

CHERRY WINKS Sift together 2½ cups flour, 1 tsp. baking powder, ¼ tsp. soda,

By GAYNOR MADDOX NEA Food and Markets Editor The fresh tang of lemon juice, the bright yellow of lemons and the pungency all suggest Easter menu. Our friend, Gertrude Austin of Los Angeles, showed us how to make them in her Sunkist test kitchen. Here is what we learned in that land of the lemon trees.

Little Lemon Tarts (2 doz. 2-inch tartlets) One and one-quarter cups sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups water, 3 eggs, separated; 1-3 cup fresh lemon juice, grated peel of 1 lemon, 3 tablespoons margarine, ¼ cup sugar.

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Add water gradually and cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until thick and clear (8 to 10 minutes). Beat egg yolks; stir ½ cup hot mixture into them. Stir egg mixture into saucepan and cook for 5 minutes. Remove from heat; add lemon juice, grated peel and margarine. Cool.

Make meringue: beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add ¼ cup sugar gradually and beat until whites are firm and glossy. Fold meringue into cooled filling. Pour into tart shells. Set on small tray or piece of cardboard, slip into padded bag or cover with moist paper and freeze.

Place one and one-half cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, ½ cup water.

Mix flour with salt; cut in shortening with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal.

Novel Swiss Steak Rated Timesaving

A meat dish with vegetables cooked right in the same pot always proves timesaving. This delicious round steak dinner, with onions and potatoes baked on top of the meat, is an example.

ROUND STEAK DINNER

1 round steak, cut about 1 inch thick
Flour, salt, pepper, fat
1 clove garlic
Basil, thyme or marjoram; seasoning salt
2 onions
2 potatoes
1 cup bouillon

Cut steak into 4 to 6 serving-size pieces. With a meat pounder, or the edge of a heavy saucer, pound meat on both sides. Combine ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper and coat steak pieces. Brown garlic in 2 tablespoons hot fat; remove garlic and in the fat brown steaks. Place steaks in a large casserole or Dutch oven and sprinkle lightly with basil, thyme or marjoram. Add ¼ cup water, cover and bake at 350 degrees F. for 1 hour.

Top meat with a layer of sliced onions and a layer of 1-inch thick potato slices; sprinkle with salt, pepper and seasoning salt. Stir 1 tablespoon flour into the hot fat in which the steaks were browned; add bouillon, made by dissolving 1 bouillon cube in 1 cup hot water. Cook, stirring until thickened; then pour over steak and vegetables. Cover, continue baking at 250 degrees F. until meat and vegetables are tender, about 1 hour, 4 to 6 servings.

Cabbage Beef Rolls Give Popular Meal

A long-time popular restaurant dish is meat-stuffed cabbage rolls. These little "bundles of goodness" make an interesting variation in planning home menus, too.

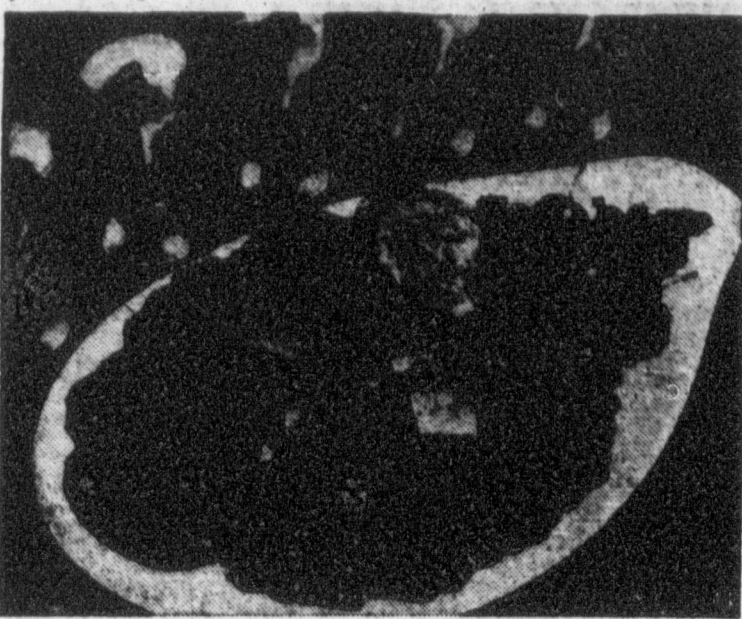

IN THIS HOME-KITCHEN-TESTED RECIPE, ground beef is combined with rice, rolled in cabbage leaves and baked in tomato soup.

CABBAGE BEEF ROLLS

1 pound ground beef
2-3 cup uncooked rice
1 teaspoon salt
8 large cabbage leaves
2-3 cup finely chopped onions
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Salt, pepper, poultry seasoning
1 can tomato soup; milk
Cook rice in boiling, salted water for 15 minutes. Cook cabbage leaves in boiling, salted water for 5 minutes. Drain and cool. In 2½-cup saucer, lightly brown beef and onions. Add rice and Worcestershire sauce; season to taste with salt, pepper and poultry seasoning. Divide mixture among cabbage leaves, placing it toward the stem end. Roll up, folding opposite ends toward the center; fasten with toothpicks. Place in a large casserole and over the rolls pour the tomato soup diluted with an equal quantity of milk. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serve topped with tomato sauce.

Try These New Salmon Cakes

Here is a recipe "find." There are three big reasons why these particular salmon cakes are outstanding. They are wonderfully tasty... a cube of cheese hidden in the center of each salmon cake gives a creamy texture and special flavor. The cost is low... a one pound can of salmon makes five generous servings. They are easy and quick to make.

Family Treat Supper

Hidden Treasure Salmon Cakes
Buttered Peas
Hash Browned Potatoes
Spiced Crabapples
Melba Toast
Cherry Parfait
Coffee

1 can (1 lb.) salmon
2 eggs
5 slices day old bread (shredded)
1 small onion (chopped)
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup milk
¼ lb. Cheddar cheese

Drain liquid from salmon into mixing bowl. Add flaked salmon, slightly beaten eggs and rest of ingredients, except cheese. Mix. Shape salmon cakes around a ½-inch cube of cheese. Brown in a small amount of shortening. Five servings.

Cherry Parfait: Mix ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, and ¼ teaspoon salt in a saucepan. Add liquid drained from a can (1 lb., 4 oz.) water pack red tart pitted cherries. Mix until smooth. Cook until thickened, stirring. Add cherries and continue to cook for 5 minutes. Cool. Serve alternate layers of cherries and vanilla ice cream in parfait glasses, or dessert dishes. Six to eight servings.

Dogs-In-A-Blanket Are Easily Fixed

A real He-Man main dish, quickly cooked and easily put together — franks, stuffed, then wrapped in smoky bacon are broiled until the juices ooze through the filling.

Each frank is stuffed with a tasty mixture of rice, sharp cheese and green pepper — a very companionable threesome. What the broiler does to these stuffed franks can't be described in words — such succulent flavor is developed.

1 cup uncooked white rice
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups water
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon black pepper
¼ cup grated sharp cheese
10 frankfurters (about 1 pound)
20 slices bacon

Put rice, salt and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil over a high heat. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover, cook over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on for 10 minutes. Add the green pepper, mustard and pepper. Stir in the grated cheese.

wise almost through to the opposite side. Spoon a generous amount of the rice and cheese filling over the entire length of each frankfurter. Wrap two slices of bacon around each filled frankfurter so that all of the filling is covered by the bacon. Hold the bacon in place with three toothpicks. Chill until ready to cook.

Place the stuffed frankfurters on a shallow pan and broil in the broiler of an over set at 450 degrees F. Broil for 15 to 20 minutes, turning so the bacon will cook on all sides. Do not place too close to the heat or cook quickly because the filling must have time to heat through.

THE ROMANCE OF COFFEE

THE FIRST KNOWN USE OF COFFEE CENTURIES AGO WAS AS A FOOD, WINE AND MEDICINE. EVEN TODAY, AMONG THE WANDERING GALLA TRIBES OF AFRICA, THE PULVERIZED BEANS ARE MIXED WITH FAT AND USED IN A FOOD RATION.

COFFEE WAS FIRST ROASTED IN THE 15th CENTURY BY "COOKING" A FEW BEANS AT A TIME IN CRUDE CLAY DISHES OR STONE VESSELS OVER OPEN FIRES.

MODERN ROASTERS PROCESS 500 POUNDS OF BEANS IN ABOUT 14 MINUTES. IN THE PERFECT ROAST, NOT ONLY DOES EACH BEAN EMERGE IDENTICAL IN COLOR, BUT EACH IS ALSO THE SAME COLOR FROM OUTSIDE TO INSIDE. BECAUSE OF SHRINKAGE DURING THE ROASTING PROCESS, IT TAKES 119-122 POUNDS OF GREEN BEANS TO PRODUCE 100 POUNDS OF ROASTED COFFEE.

Handy Franks Make Tasty Lunch, Snack

It's a good idea to include a pound or two of frankfurters on the shopping list each week. You can plan at least one dinner around them and a hot lunch for the children. As franks are fully cooked when purchased, you don't need to worry if the young fry eat them right from the refrigerator as a hurry-up snack.

For dinner here's an easy frankfurter combination: Split frankfurters lengthwise, almost all the way through, and stuff with seasoned mashed potatoes combined with grated cheese and minced onion. Broil till hot and slightly browned.

Grownups sometimes laugh uproariously when a child or teenager misuses a word or mispronounces a big word he is trying out. You wouldn't laugh at an adult under the same circumstances. To be laughed at is just as embarrassing to a child.

Apple Surprise, Apple Bran Muffins Have Distinctive, Fresh Fruit Flavor

In the Apple Surprise Muffins, the apples are cooked and spiced with cinnamon before being added to the batter mixture; in the second recipe the uncooked fruit goes directly into the bran batter. For both recipes, the all-purpose Winesap apples from Washington State are suggested because this variety holds its identity under the baking process which means the muffins will have the distinctive, fresh fruit flavor you want.

APPLE SURPRISE MUFFINS
2 red Winesap apples
1 cup water
¼ stick cinnamon
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 ½ tsp. red food coloring (optional)
2 eggs
1 cup milk
3 tbsps. melted shortening
2 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
4 tps. baking powder

Peel and core apples, cut into eighths. Bring water to a boil, add cinnamon stick, sugar and red food coloring, if desired. Add apples and cook until tender but not soft. Drain. Beat egg slightly, stir in milk and melted shortening. Sift flour, measure and sift again with salt, sugar and baking powder. Add to liquid mixture and stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Drop a small teaspoon of batter into bottom of greased muffin pans.

Place a cooked apple chunk in the center and thoroughly cover with additional batter, filling muffin pans ¾ full. Bake in moderate oven (425 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes or until muffins are browned. Makes 12 large muffins.

APPLE BRAN MUFFINS
1 cup shredded bran cereal
¾ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 tps. baking powder
1-4 tsp. soda
¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 egg
2 tbsps. melted shortening
1 red Winesap apple
Combine bran cereal with milk in a mixing bowl. Sift flour, measure and sift again into mixing bowl with baking powder, soda, salt and sugar. Add egg and melted shortening. Peel and core apple, chop finely and measure 1 cup. Add to mixture and mix lightly until dry ingredients are barely moistened. Fill greased muffin pans 2/3 full. Bake in moderate oven (400 degrees F.) for 25 mins. Makes 12 muffins.

Tasty Pork Chops For Company Meal

Here is a delicious recipe for pork chops — we think it is a real taste thrill and want you to try it. Make company of your family one night soon and regale them with these delicately flavored chops. It is an easy recipe to prepare... all top stove and short cooking time. It's braised pork chops with orange sauce.

4 medium-thick pork chops, about 1½ pounds
1½ teaspoons Kitchen Bouquet
¼ cup condensed frozen orange juice
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
Brush pork chops with Kitchen Bouquet on both sides. Place in 9-inch frying pan over moderate heat and brown lightly on both sides. Meanwhile combine orange juice, water, lemon juice, cornstarch, sugar and salt in small saucepan. Bring to boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. When chops are brown, drain off excess fat and pour the hot orange sauce over them. Cover and cook over low heat until chops are tender, about 30 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

1 ½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin, softened in 2 tablespoons cold water

Zale's Plans Anniversary Celebration

Climaxing a year of expansion which has seen the number of stores increase 32 per cent Zale's Jewelers Friday will celebrate their 31st birthday with the "biggest promotional event in their history." Al Metz, manager of the local store, 107 N. Cuyler, said yesterday.

"The 31st year celebration is our way of saying thank you to more than a million regular customers who have made this expansion possible," William Zale, vice president, Dallas, announced.

Fourteen stores will participate in the birthday event for the first time. Nine of these formerly Lee Jewelers, were acquired at one time to become Zale's first outlets in Colorado.

Zale Jewelry Company was founded 31 years ago this month in Wichita Falls by Morris B. Zale, president, who has guided it from a one-store, one-employee firm into its present 38-store status and 1500 employees.

For President Zale, a 58-store-wide celebration of the birthday of the company he founded has special significance. He pioneered a credit practice of no down payment, no carrying charges and a year to pay when few thought it would work.

The company has a foreign office in Antwerp, Belgium, diamond buying center of the world, where diamonds are selected and bought at the rate of 10,000 per week for direct importation to Zale's New York office where the company's own craftsmen handle settings. Zale's also own the Baylor Watch Company which imports movements from Switzerland and cases them in New York under the Baylor trade name.

Director Of National Clean-Up Is Dignified Prof. Monaghan

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON — UP — If you see a tall man in a smart gray suit and a pearl-gray homburg sniffling through a trash can in an alley in your town it could be Dr. Frank Monaghan.

The dignified professor, Historian and editor is perhaps America's No. 1 sworn enemy of uncleanness.

Dr. Monaghan is director of the national clean-up, paint-up, fix-up bureau. If there is one thing he can't stand it's a house peeling off old paint, or something out back that would be on the seamy side, like a garbage pail with its lid off.

National clean-up week is his annual goal, and always comes in the spring, but the professor has his nose to the stone, or to the wind, the year around.

"I run about the country looking for filth," he said in an interview. "If I find any, and most of the time I do, I try my level best to see that something is done about it. You can get a lot done by screaming 'for shame!' and leaning on civic pride. If there is no civic pride around, stir up some."

Folks to whom the graying professor lectures often are astounded at what he knows about their town.

"But doctor," they say, "you just got here."

Odds are that he didn't just get there. He sneaked in during the black hours and did some prowling around the streets, alleys and by-ways, taking mental notes on neglect and dreaming up a picture of what could be a lovely town.

Tax Extension Vote Postponed
WASHINGTON — UP — House leaders agreed Monday to postpone until Wednesday a final vote on an administration request to extend present corporation and excise tax levels beyond April 1. The House had been expected to send the one-year extension bill to the White House Tuesday. The Senate approved it last week.

Ike May Get New Support On Policy In Far East

WASHINGTON — UP — The President stood a chance Thursday of winning new support from Democratic congressional leaders for his policy toward Quemoy and the Matsu islands off Red China's coast.

Mr. Eisenhower gained some Democratic backing Wednesday after personally briefing House leaders of both parties on foreign problems. He was to hold a similar briefing for Senate leaders Thursday.

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee said in advance of Thursday's meeting that the President is right in keeping the Red Chinese guessing about whether we will defend the offshore islands.

"Circumstances may force the President to make the decision (on defense of the islands), but the interests of peace will not be served by doing it until the decision is actually necessary," George said.

None of the seven House Democrats at Wednesday's briefing expressed any criticism of the President's policies. Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services committee said he was "in complete agreement" with the administration's handling of "a most delicate situation in Asia."

Civil Service Labor Job Open

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced examinations for laborer (Custodial), grade WB-3 at $1.49 per hour for employment at Amarillo Air Force Base. The position is restricted to persons entitled to veteran preference so long as such persons are available.

Full information and applications may be obtained from the post office or from the Executive Secretary, Amarillo Air Force Base, Amarillo, Texas.

Braniff Asks Merger Halt

NEW ORLEANS — UP — Braniff Airways Wednesday asked the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals for an injunction to prevent the merger of Continental and Pioneer Airlines. Braniff said the merger would cost it $2,092,980 annually in revenue.

The Civil Aeronautics Board has approved the measure and has twice refused to rehear the case at the request of Braniff. Braniff complained CAB is destroying distinction between long-haul carriers and local service lines since Pioneer is local and Continental a trunk line.

The merger was to have been effective Friday under Continental's name.

Substitute Mail Job Open Here

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced that examinations are still open for substitute clerk-carrier in the Pampa Post Office. The initial rate of pay for substitutes is $1.61 1/2 per hour. Applicants must be bona-fide residents of Pampa or patrons of the Pampa Post Office.

Application blanks can be obtained at the post office.

PLANE

Members of a Joint Atomic Energy subcommittee bluntly advised the Air Force to speed up its work on an atomic-powered airplane. The committee's demand was conveyed to Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbot and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, at a closed-door meeting.

HOSPITALS

The House voted $30 million to begin a program of modernizing old veterans hospitals, some of which have been described as fire traps. The funds were included in a $3,845,385,375 money bill containing appropriations for 15 independent agencies.

FOREIGN TRADE

Informed sources said the President personally and emphatically told GOP congressional leaders this week that he wants his foreign trade program passed. The legislation has cleared the House but has bogged down in the Senate.

YALTA

A report on the Yalta papers prepared by the staff of the Senate GOP Policy committee blasted the Roosevelt administration for its concessions to Russia at Yalta. The report also emphasized the role Alger Hiss played at the World War II conference.

United Press March Played

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — UP — A crowd of 6,200 persons filled the Purdue University auditorium Monday night for the National Broadcasting Company's Band of America program during which the United Press March was featured. Paul LaValle, conductor of the Band of America, wrote the United Press March and dedicated it to newspaper, radio and television reporters from the free world.

Jane Talk

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Women's Editor

IT'S RECIPE DAY TODAY — and I just love collecting them to pass on to you. Some time ago, I featured Mrs. Porter Brooks in "This Is My Dish." She gave me some additional recipes which I will pass on to you. These are especially interesting since Mrs. Brooks was reared pretty much in Germany, so cooks in that style. She was looking through a cookbook trying to find a certain recipe while I was interviewing her. I went over to help her look, only to find the recipes were all in German!

HERE IS Mrs. Brooks' recipe Add eggs and salt. Knead thoroughly so bread soaks up excess moisture. If too soggy, add a handful of flour or cream of wheat. Form balls and drop into plain boiling water. Cook 30 minutes over low heat. Turn from time to time, but not before 15 minutes. Serve with beef rolls' gravy or sauerbraten gravy.

BEEF ROLLS
Use a nice, lean upper half of round steak, cut to 1/2 inch thickness, not thicker. Take out bone and cut in two pieces. Take off fat. Chop up onions fine. Cut thin strips of bacon, about 1/4 inch wide. On the round steak put onions, and bacon. Salt and pepper to taste. If you desire, you can also use green peppers, tomatoes and celery salt. Roll up the long way, 1 1/2 times. Tie with thread all the way around. Dip in flour.

MRS. JESSIE STROUP was raving the other day about a unique salad her sister, Mrs. C. B. Teagarden of Dallas, makes. Jessie calls it a "birthday salad" because she first ate it at a birthday party.

BIRTHDAY SALAD
2 pkgs. raspberry jello
2 bottles Coca Cola
1 bottle or jar of ping dark cherries
1 flat can crushed pineapple
1/2 cup pecans
Pit and drain cherries and place pineapple and cherries in colander. Save juice. Measure and add water to make just 2 cups. Heat and put in jello. Let stand until cool. Pour in the coke (2 bottles). Let it start to thicken. Add crushed fruits and nuts and mold. Serve with sour cream or mayonnaise.

POTATO DUMPLINGS
1-1/2 portion cooked potatoes
1-1/2 portion raw potatoes
1-1/2 portion dried bread crumbs
3 or 2 eggs
The cooked potatoes should be put through a grater, so they are fluffy. The raw potatoes should be grated very fine, and put in linen sack. Squeeze as dry as you can. Add to bread and cooked potatoes.

County HD Council Has Planning Meet

The Gray County Home Demonstration Council met recently in the office of Miss Helen Dunlap, HD agent, in the Courthouse.

It was announced that the 4-H Club girls will give a demonstration on cooking in the VFW Hall Saturday. The women were invited to attend.

Members were urged to attend the district convention in Spearman April 12. Miss Dunlap requested that those planning to attend should meet at 7:45 a.m. in her office. Meal tickets must be purchased by Wednesday. Miss Dunlap also announced that any member wishing to display her work at the convention may do so.

Plans were made for a training school on beauty culture, to be held April 16, for all clothing leaders. Plans were discussed for a tea, to be held May 5, during National HD Week, in the City Club Room. A film on lung cancer will be shown. The program will also include a dress review, and exhibits of baking and clothing will be placed in store windows.

A course in tailoring, to be taught by Miss Dunlap, is slated for September. Following the business session, a word game was played under the direction of Mrs. W. C. Epperson.

Summer Shrug-On

Here is a Summer shrug-on that you'll enjoy crocheting. It is inexpensive to make from soft rug yarn and quickly finished.

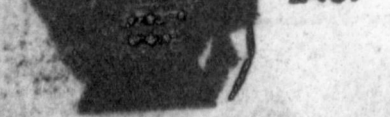

Pattern No. 2439 contains crocheting directions; material requirements; stitch illustrations.

Higgins' Busy Bee Club Has Election

HIGGINS — (Special) — The Busy Bee Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Kelley Gragg. A covered-dish luncheon was served to 8 members and several visitors. Visitors were Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Fitz, Mrs. Howard Word and daughters, Mrs. Marion Word, Mrs. Nella Mae Bettis and son, Mrs. George Neu and daughters.

RUTH MILLET

If your life seems dull and drab and all your days too much alike it may be that you are neglecting to, as one writer phrases it, "cultivate the minor ecstasies." What are the "minor ecstasies?" They are the bright spots that lighten the dullest days, if you aren't too intent on bemoaning the dullness to see and appreciate them.

The mother of five young and noisy children once told me: "They've already repaid me for all the trouble they've caused. They're so funny when they aren't trying to be that I sometimes have to get out of the room fast to keep from doubling over with laughter at their questions and comments."

That mother didn't find looking after five small children a burden because she took time to enjoy the minor ecstasy of being entertained by her children.

The woman who works in her garden is enjoying the minor ecstasy of making things grow.

The woman who paints a room or a picture with pride and satisfaction is enjoying the minor ecstasy of self expression.

The woman who stops a moment in her dishwashing to watch the antics of a squirrel or the beauty of a cardinal perched on the highest branch of a tree is enjoying a minor ecstasy. So is the woman who walks to a window to see a beautiful sunset when a child has called, "Mom, come look at the sky."

The woman who takes every opportunity to lend a helping hand to friends and neighbors enjoys many minor ecstasies — the ec-

A new accessory that will delight Baby's mother if not Baby is a storage cabinet and clothes hamper. The storage part swivels out like a tray so you can get at the hamper. The whole works is covered with circus-printed vinyl fabric that swishes right off with suds for cleanliness.

Baby's first book is usually cloth. Today they are of cotton, nontoxic and colorfast. They may be machine-washed and may even be sterilized. Some come with toys to match.

If Baby thinks that his little spoon is a teether, there is now just the product for him. It's a soft rubber feeding spoon that's appealing to bite (to him) and can be washed in hot soapsuds or boiled. It holds its shape forever.

Life is unbearably dull only for those people who don't take the time to enjoy the minor ecstasies of every day.

Life is doing something for another for the pure joy of doing it. The woman who chuckles over the funny incidents of her day and stores them up to tell her husband is not only enjoying minor ecstasies, but is anticipating sharing them.

Life is unbearably dull only for those people who don't take the time to enjoy the minor ecstasies of every day.

Miss Joy Rhodes Meets With Scouts And With Leaders

Members of the Girl Scout training and program committees and out-of-town representatives met Wednesday morning in the GS Little House to hear Miss Joy Rhodes of the National GS staff tell about the uses of the "American Girl" magazine.

Miss Rhodes gave the women pointers on using the magazine in leaders' training sessions. She also pointed out how the program committee could take programs from the magazine and how leaders could use it as a program aide. She explained to the women that the magazine has material for all age groups and is going to start a "things to do and things to make" feature.

Following her talk, Miss Rhodes asked the group for suggestions on making the magazine better, what features they liked and those they didn't like.

Attending the meeting were Mmes. Marian Osborne, J. D. Wright Jr., Bob Gordon, A. L. Smiley, J. H. Walker, Herman Brown, and Burl Lewter, all of Pampa; Mrs. Bennie Duncan of Skellytown; Mrs. Earl Atkinson of Lefors; and Mrs. Thelma Hopkins of Hopkins.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Mrs. K.'s brother makes nearly three times as much money as her husband. Her children resent the contrast between what their father can give them and what their uncle gives his family.

Recently, her ten-year-old son made a bitter attack upon his father when he was denied a duplicate of his cousin's expensive movie projector.

Mrs. K. writes, "After the boy was in bed, my husband accused me of also wanting the advantage my brother gives his family. He said he knew that I was jealous of my sister-in-law's new fur coat . . ."

Is his accusation true? Maybe. Lots of us resent the fact that we cannot share the money that belongs to adult brothers and sisters.

This is not surprising. Didn't we spend our most impressionable years with them? As children, didn't we learn to expect to share equally with them?

As a little sister, Mrs. K. got one wing of the turkey from which her brother was served the other. Her dessert was sliced from the same cake from which his was cut. And if she complained that her portion was less, didn't Mommy rush to make it equal?

Why then should she be surprised to find herself now expecting Life to behave like Mommy? Or to discover herself living with a bitter sense of injustice that it failed to mete Mommy-protection to her and make her grownup brother be "nice" to Sister?

Such hold-over childish expectations are in us all. The trick is knowing their source in dependence on Mommy. So that when we discover ourselves expecting fur coats from grownup brothers, we can recognize the infant in us, yelling, "Mommy, come and make Buddy give me a bite of his cookie!"

And then we'll stop expecting, knowing that Mommy cannot make Buddy give us anything any more. Let's come down to grownup earth here. Mrs. K.'s brother is not going to give her a fur coat. He's not going to buy his nephew a movie projector. When she accepts these facts, her son will like her, her children will recover joy in what they have in reality instead of losing it to dreams of something better from their uncle.

March Dies Like Lamb In The East

By UNITED PRESS
March went out like a lamb in the nation's East Thursday, but insisted on acting like a lion in the Great Plains and western mountains.
A developing cold front dropped temperatures as much as 20 degrees in the Northern Plains and Northern Rockies and stirred up blowing dust in eastern Colorado. Douglas, Wyo., got a three-inch snowfall during the night, while 11 inches of new snow piled up at West Yellowstone, Mont., over a 12-hour period. There were 155 inches of snow on the ground at Stampede Pass, Wash., and 73 inches at Mullen Pass, Ida.
The U.S. Weather Bureau said the cold front would move into the Midwest Thursday and Friday, dropping temperatures and sending showers across the area's central portion.
In the East, meanwhile, skies stayed clear and temperatures rose to springlike levels.

Blame Guards For Walking Into Pen Trap

LINCOLN, Neb. —UP—Nebraska penitentiary officials said Thursday that two guards could blame themselves for walking into a convict's trap and touching off a 45-hour rebellion.
Deputy Warden Don B. Greenholtz said the guards, who were held as hostages during the marathon riot, "were lax in handling the men."
The guards, Warren Miller, 42, and Eugene Swanson, 34, were released unharmed when the eight rebel convicts surrendered early Wednesday.
Both guards were relative newcomers to the prison and Miller admitted "I got in trouble helping a prisoner—taking him some tobacco. I was jumped and a knife was stuck in my back."
Greenholtz pointed out Miller broke regulations when he approached the convict's cell to give him the sack of tobacco. The bars of the cell had been sawed through and the prisoner slipped out, jam-

Rotary Club Hears Music

The Pampa Rotary club had an entertaining musical program at their meeting in the Palm Room of the City Hall Wednesday at noon.
Lloyd Patten, tenor, who is the head of the Music Department of Amarillo College, sang several solos, including "My Lady of Love," by Ernest Charles. Patten was accompanied by Russell C. Curtis, professor of piano at Amarillo College.
The Scholar Quads, quartet composed of Amarillo College students, pleased the Rotarians with their renditions of "Bright Was the Night," "Sweet Roses of Morn," "Maharajah of Magadore," a novelty song, and their mimic of the Ink Spots' "We Three."
Members of the quartet include Bob Hamilton, Warren Tuckness, Troy Jordan, and Larry Ramsey. The group was called back by the applauding Rotarians and sang an old barber shop favorite, "Liza Love You."

Black Market In News Never Better Than In Ike's Reign

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON — UP — The black market in news was never better than in the Eisenhower administration, some of whose members are dissatisfied with the normal channels of lively information.
The term black market is used because the method of planting or leaking these news stories is strictly secret. There is nothing sinister about the system until it miscues as it just has in spectacular fashion.
Then big names are exposed as the alleged sources of embarrassing or misleading leaks. Efforts are made to repair the damage by denials or fuller explanations. At that point the news reports flowing from Washington become confused and contradictory. If newspaper readers and radio and television listeners are not confused it is a wonder, because the newsmen right here on the spot frequently are.
For a peek backstage to the source of some of the big news you read or hear, this is how the black market works.
An individual reporter or several of them want some high-level background information on some developing situation. For example, the situation now developing around the off-shore Chinese islands, Quemoy and Matsu.
The reporters are not interested in a half-hour discussion. They want a couple of hours, hair-down talk with some one high in government who knows or should know what is going on and what is likely to come next. They pick their official and ask him if he will dine or lunch with a group of newsmen soon. If he agrees, the party is on, and the reporters who set it up invite secretly a dozen or so of their associates to be present. The attending official usually knows in advance the identities of those with whom he is to discuss confidentially highly sensitive subjects.
It is customary that these meetings are for "background" only. That is, in making use of the information obtained, the reporters may not name the official who gave it, or sometimes not even say it came from "authoritative sources." They must use it on their own responsibility. More often than not there are points brought up in such meetings which are not even for background. They are off-record — not to be published at all.
A group of newsmen met one week ago Thursday night under precisely these circumstances. Their guest was Adm. Robert E. Carney, chief of naval operations and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. To shield further the source of information gained in such meetings it usually is the practice to let a day or so elapse before any use whatever is made of it.
It was not until last Saturday morning that the Carney story broke — without, of course, mentioning the admiral's name. Carney's story jarred the country, jolted Allied foreign offices and brought none knows what smiles or frowns in Moscow and Peking. Carney's story was that the big Red Chinese grab for the two Chinese islands was coming around April 15 — a war probably was just around the corner.
None was jolted harder than President Eisenhower. The New York Daily News is authority for the statement that James C. Hagerty, Mr. Eisenhower's press secretary, secretly met with a hand-picked group of reporters on last Monday night to deny the Carney story in detail and over-all.
However that may be, big headlines in Tuesday morning papers said President Eisenhower emphatically disavowed Carney. These stories did not say who had revealed Mr. Eisenhower's point of view — merely that he disagreed.
There was an instance of the black market miscue. More often, however, there is no miscue. The leaked or planted story slips easily into the news stream without the source of the information accepting public responsibility for it. That lays a heavy burden on the reporters who participate in such meetings.
They must consider carefully the advantages held by a high official whom they have placed in a position to float a big and important story without accepting responsibility for it. The reporters must decide whether they are getting something on the level or being sold a bill of goods. There have been some famous instances of brought up in such meetings which

THE HARVESTER TRACK TEAM could very well claim the title of the "travelingest" high school team in the state of Texas this season.

Coach Dwaine Lyon and his cindermen will participate in their fourth meet of the year this weekend, all on far, far away soil.

The thrills this week go to Brady which is some 350 miles distance from Pampa.

And the previous three meets the Harvesters have taken part in have been upwards of the 300-mile mark.

The Harvesters opened the season at Graham, the shortest "hop" of the season "only" 300 miles from Pampa.

Then came the Southwestern Recreational Meet in Fort Worth, 325 miles away and the West Texas Relays in Odessa, 320 miles distance.

By adding these mileage figures and doubling them to take care of both ways, the Harvesters will have traveled more than 2,500 miles after the Brady trip.

One may ask this question "why do the Harvesters participate in so many far-away meets?"

The answer is simple. There haven't been any track meets held any closer to Pampa than the ones mentioned above. And, of course, a track team must compete against tough competition to get ready for district, regional and state meets which come later in the season.

Despite competing in these top-notch meets on foreign soil, the Harvesters haven't gained too much experience towards getting ready for the District 1-AA meet, which, incidentally, comes off next week at Amarillo.

Inclement weather has marred two of the three meets the Harvesters have taken part in. It rained all week end at Fort Worth and last week at Odessa cold temperatures slowed the thrills down.

The season opener at Graham was the only decent weather the Harvesters have been blessed with an even there it was a bit chilly the night of the finals.

Coach Lyon said this week that the bad weather has slowed his runners down in getting into shape. Especially sprinter Harold Lewis who has been bothered with pulled leg muscles much of the year. Let's hope the weather is warm in Brady this week end.

WE HAVE RECEIVED NUMEROUS calls regarding the opening of Little League and Pony League tryouts for the coming season. Tryouts for both leagues will start April 5. The exact site of the tryouts hasn't been determined but it will be revealed within the next day or so.

Only the boys who didn't play last year in either the Little League or Pony League are required to attend the tryouts.

Boys playing in the farm leagues will also be required to attend the tryout sessions.

Little Leaguers who graduated last year and who'll be playing in the Pony League this season will be required to attend the Pony tryouts.

All boys who were on the official rosters of teams in LL and Pony last season and who didn't graduate will be retained on their respective teams for the coming year.

These boys may start working out anytime but they won't be required to attend the tryouts.

Pony League graduates will be come eligible to participate in the Teen Age League this summer. Date and site for the Teen Age tryouts haven't been set. The Teen Age League, in fact, is still in the organization stage.

As soon as something definite is worked out in regards to the Teen Age League we'll pass it along.

Richards In Big Rebuilding At Baltimore

EDITORS NOTE: This is the 16th and final story in a series on the 1955 prospects of the major league clubs.

By LEO H. PETERSEN

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—UP—Paul Richards is rebuilding the Baltimore Orioles from the bottom up with a mass turnover of players, and he hopes to finish in the first division. It appears he may be aiming too high although he declares confidently that "we'll finish in the middle of the pack." He is going to out-pitch Casey Stengel of the Yankees this season, using two different players at every position except right field and catcher. The veteran Gene Woodling, a hero in many of the Yankee victories when Stengel led the club to five consecutive World Series triumphs, will play right field against all comers. Otherwise, the opposing pitcher will decide Richards' lineup.

When left-handers go against the Orioles, it will be Gus Triandos at first; Billy Cox, the former star third baseman of the Dodgers, at second; Willie Miranda, a switch-hitter at short; and one of two veterans, Vern Stephens or Bob Kennedy at third.

Waikuis Picked for First Against right-handers, Eddie Waikuis will take over at first; Bobby Young at second; Cox at short and either the veteran Johnny Pesky or rookie Don Leppert at third. Leppert, who hit .313 with Birmingham last season has been the most impressive of the young infield candidates.

In the outfield it will be Hoot Evers and Gil Coan alternating in left and Cal Abrams and Chuck Diering in center. All four are major league castoffs. Evers and Diering will go against southpaw pitching. Coan and Abrams, who hit .293 for the Orioles last season after they picked him up from the Pirates, against righties.

Hal Smith, one of the nine players Richards acquired in that million dollar deal with the Yankees, will be the No. 1 catcher, with two veterans, Matt Mattis and Les Moss, in reserve. Smith hit .250 at Columbus last season and has a chance to become one of the outstanding catchers in the league. As a matter of fact, Richards would not have let pitchers Bob Turley and Don Larsen and shortstop Billy Hunter go to the Yankees unless Smith were included in the deal.

Three Pitchers May Start Three pitchers obtained from the Yankees—Jim McDonald (4-1), Harry Byrd (7-1) and Bill Miller (0-1)—figure to be starters, along with holdovers Duane Pillette (10-14), Joe Coleman (13-17), and Erv Palica, the ex-Dodger who won only three games for Brooklyn in 1954. McDonald has looked the sharpest of all the hurlers so far and Byrd also has shown signs of coming to life.

Carmona Arrives In Oiler Camp

Second baseman Pete Carmona arrived in the Oiler spring training camp last night. Carmona's arrival completes the roster as it now stands. He is the 14th Oiler to join the spring training camp. No others have been signed but at least three more pitchers are ticketed for the Oilers.

Shreveport will option three and possibly four pitchers to the Oilers within the next few days. The sandstorm that hit Pampa

John Carleton, Oiler public relations man, reported today that the Billy Martin All-Stars will play here as scheduled, April 16. A rumor had gotten out that the All-Stars' tour, headed by Martin, the Yankee second baseman before going into the service, had been called off.

The rumor, however, was proved to be false according to Carleton, who talked this morning with Fort Carson officials, the home of the Martin All-Stars.

will probably cancel today's workout although it may be held later in the day if the sand lifts.

The other 13 Oilers in the fold are catchers Jack Hall and Jerry Bupp; infielders Joe Fortin, Johnny Bruzga and Jack Sluder; outfielders Dick Hairston, Paul Halter and Sonny Tims, and pitchers Red Dial, Jack Venable, Bobby Votaw, Dean Higgins and Virgil Frazier. The Oilers will open their spring exhibition on schedule at 2 p.m. Sunday against Amarillo. Manager Grover Seitz said yesterday that Venable would start against Amarillo in Sunday's game. Admission prices for the exhibition games will be 50 cents adults and 30 cents children.

Aldridge To Hurl For Tribe Today

BEAUMONT, Tex.—UP—Oklahoma City Indians faced a heavy day Thursday, with a tie-breaker game with Beaumont and a night contest at Crowley, La.

Coach Tommy Tatum's Warriors evened a two-game exhibition series with the Exporters here Wednesday night, coming from behind to snare an 8-4 victory. The Indians swung out in front with five runs in the top of the ninth, wiping out an apparently safe Beaumont lead of 6-3 with four hits, a walk and two errors.

Howie Bolea gave relief hurler Bob Upton the victor's honors, setting up the two winning runs. Al Pappi and Jack Cardey were tabbed to work against Beaumont Thursday, with Roger Aldridge and Bill Bagwell handling the pitching chores at Crowley.

Harvester 9 To Oklahoma This Week End

The Harvester baseballers will depart tomorrow at 11:30 a.m. for their invasion of Oklahoma where the Green and Golders will play three games over the week end. Coach Deck Woldt's charges will play Sayre Friday and Clinton Saturday.

Woldt said today that his charges would meet one of the two teams twice. However, it was unknown this morning which of the two teams that would be.

The Harvester coach said Sayre has informed him that it would play the Harvesters twice if Clinton rejected to playing the Green and Gold nine a doubleheader Saturday.

Should the Harvesters play Sayre twice, the second game would be played at Clinton Saturday. In other words, according to Coach Woldt, the Harvesters will play two games one way or the other Saturday.

The Harvesters have played two games to date, winning one and losing one. The PHSIans opened the season by dropping a 4-3 decision to Frank Phillips Junior College and then won over Panhandle, 26-9, Tuesday.

After this week's Oklahoma invasion, the Harvesters will wind up their pre-District 1-AA schedule next Tuesday against Berger at Oiler Park.

Mustangs Nip Texas, 5-3

AUSTIN —UP—The Southern Methodist University Mustangs, with a 5 to 3 victory tucked under their belts, were scheduled to meet the Texas Longhorns again Thursday in another Southwest Conference baseball game.

Danny Brown drove a 380-foot home run over the left field fence in the second inning with two men on base Wednesday to give SMU its win. The contest was the Mustangs' first conference game.

Pitcher Tommy Bowers pitched the entire game for the Ponies, and gave up only five hits. But, with a strong crosswind, he walked nine and fanned five.

All of the scoring took place in the first inning and a half. SMU led 3-0 after two were out in the first inning, and Bob Bogan singled one man home.

Thursday's pitchers will be Tommy Jungman for Texas and Ernie Proud for SMU.

Dodgers Win Third Game From Braves

NEW ORLEANS —UP—The Milwaukee Braves' front-line pitchers have been uniformly effective against Brooklyn this spring but they haven't prevented the Dodgers from taking a 3-1 edge in the series.

It was more of the same Wednesday at Mobile, Ala., when Lew Burdette pitched only one run in five innings only to have the Dodgers score twice off Jim Wilson for a 3-2 triumph. Wilson yielded the winning runs in the sixth on four walks and a single by outfielder Sandy Amoros.

Pete Wojty, Bob Darnell and Tom Lasorda—all "borderline" Brooklyn pitchers, held the Braves to nine hits. Frank Keller, acquired from Baltimore for pitcher Erv Palica, continued his impressive hitting for the Dodgers with a double off Burdette.

Helmet Saves Shantz WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—UP—Bobby Shantz, the Kansas City Athletics' key pitcher, disclosed

'The Whip' Is Sold To Kansas City

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—UP—Officials of the Kansas City Athletics insisted Thursday that the A's purchase of three players from the New York Yankees had "nothing to do" with a reported Yankee offer for pitcher Arnold Portocarrero.

The deal announced Wednesday night, first made by the A's since their shift to Kansas City, brought to last season's last place team pitchers Erwell (The Whip) Blackwell and Tom Gorman and first baseman Dick Kryhoski.

The purchase price was not announced, but was estimated at $50,000. Ray Kennedy, the A's director of player personnel, said that the straight cash transaction did not stem in any way from a report two days ago that the Yankees had offered five players to Kansas City for pitcher Arnold Portocarrero, generally regarded as the ace of the Kansas City staff.

However, many observers at the training camp here believe this purchase may be the forerunner of still further deals between the two teams, possibly involving Portocarrero.

None of the three players obtained by the A's figured very prominently in Yankee plans for the coming season. But all could prove valuable to Manager Lou Boudreau.

Blackwell, 32, quit baseball last season after recurrent back and arm trouble. The one-time Cincinnati Reds star, whose "trade mark" is the cross-fire pitch, was given a 30-day trial by the Yankees this spring at his own request.

In six innings of exhibition work against major-league teams, he escaped serious damage but failed to display his old speed.

Gorman, 29, is a right-hander like Blackwell and could be the top man in the deal. He played part of the season with Kansas City of the American Association last year, winning three and losing two, and had an 0-0 record in 33 games as a Yankee relief pitcher. Strong and a keen student of pitching, the bespectacled hurler is given a chance of becoming a first-line player.

Kryhoski, 30, lost out in a five-way battle for the first base job on the Yankees. The job currently belongs to Bill Skowron, with Joe Collins, Eddie Robinson, and Frank Leja other first basemen on the Yankee squad.

A .240 hitter last season who can occasionally hit the "long ball," Kryhoski will battle with Don Bollweg, another ex-Yankee who hit .224 last season for the A's, and Lou Limmer, a .231 hitter last season, for the first base job in Kansas City. Kryhoski played for Baltimore last year, going to the Yankees during the winter as part of the huge player deal between those two clubs.

Thus for the second straight season, Kryhoski will be a member of a team playing its first year in the American League.

Texas Golfers Win WACO, Tex.—UP—The University of Texas varsity golf team defeated Baylor, 4-1-3 to 1-2-2 Tuesday. The Longhorn freshman squad also won from Baylor Friday, 3 to 1.

Thursday that he "just remembered" to put his protective headgear only a few moments before he was struck on the head by a line drive in Tuesday's exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Shantz said it was the first time this spring that he had worn the headgear but added, "I'll tell you for sure I won't ever take it off."

A line drive by rookie outfielder Earl Smith glanced off Shantz's glove and struck him on the side of the head. Shantz suffered only a cut ear but the inner-liner was created by the force of the blow.

Shantz had a 24-7 record in 1953 and won the American League's most valuable player award but has been troubled with a sore arm for two years.

Yanks To Make Cut ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—UP—The New York Yankees were expected to make their first large squad cut Thursday before breaking camp to begin an eight-game trip northward.

Pasticular interest centered on whether Negro catcher-outfielder Elton Howard and rookie pitcher Johnny Kucks would stay with the squad. Both were expected to be retained although Kucks was hit hard Wednesday in the Yankees' 10-10, 12-inning tie with the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Yankees disposed of three supernumeraries Wednesday when they sold pitchers Erwell Blackwell and Tom Gorman and first baseman Dick Kryhoski to the Kansas City Athletics for an undisclosed sum.

5 Red Sox Optioned SARASOTA, Fla.—UP—The Boston Red Sox Thursday optioned five members of their pitching staff to their Louisville farm club now in training at Deland, Fla.

Sent to the Colonels were Truman Cleveland, Joe Trimble, Al Schardt, Jack Thomas, and Al Curtis. This was the first major reduction in the Boston pitching staff which now has 15 members left.

Manager Mike Higgins plans to take all the remaining pitchers to Boston when the club breaks camp Friday.

Cub Rookie Hunt MESA, Ariz.—UP—Sully Drake, 24-year-old rookie rated a chance to be the Chicago Cubs' regular centerfielder this year, will be sidelined for an estimated two months with a dislocated right ankle and broken skull.

Drake, whose spring batting average was .678, suffered the injuries Wednesday when his cap caught in the ground while he slid into second base during an intrasquad game. Dr. George C. Truman said Drake would be hospitalized three weeks and out of action at least two months.

Bucs Option Gorman DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—UP—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Thursday that pitcher Chuck Gorman has been returned to Boston in the Western League. Gorman had a 1-6 record with Denver last season but did not pitch an inning of exhibition ball this spring.

The Pirates bowed to the Baltimore Orioles, 3-1, in the opener of a doubleheader Wednesday but bounced back to win the second game, 2-0, for their seventh triumph in their last eight games. The teams were to resume their spring series Thursday.

Porterfield Unbeaten AUGUSTA, Ga.—UP—Bob Porterfield, who hopes to get back among the 30-game winners this year, pointed to a 3-0 Grapefruit League record Thursday as evidence he's ready for the Washington Senators' opening day mound assignment.

Porterfield, a 23-game winner in 1953, was credited with his third victory of the spring Wednesday in an 8-5 win over the Cincinnati Redlegs. Porterfield had a shutout until the sixth inning when jobs support in the field helped the Reds' legs score four runs.

Tigers Down Red Sox SARASOTA, Fla.—UP—Ozzie Morton Jr., son of a former Cleveland Indians' pitcher, was sent to the Boston Red Sox Thursday to their Montgomery, Ala., farm club.

The Red Sox, who were to play the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday, were battered Wednesday by the Detroit Tigers, 9-3. Ivan Brlock was charged with all the Phillies' runs.

Woodling To Stay DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—UP—The Baltimore Orioles have rejected an offer to trade outfielder Gene Woodling to the Chicago White Sox for outfielder Johnny Groth, 19-game winner last season and two other pitchers, it was learned Thursday.

General Manager Frank Lebbs made the offer to the Orioles recently because he believes an outfielder of Woodling, Jim Rivech and Elmer Mince would enable the White Sox to win their first American League pennant since 1919. It is known that Lebbs has been attempting to acquire Woodling for some time.

Sports Afield Players Today Lack Desire To Be Great, Says Mel Ott

Ott will never forget how the "desire" of manager John McGraw for perfection "made me a good right fielder in the polo grounds even though I was always playing with skinned knuckles."

The Evaders

Of course we do not favor the man who violates the law. But when the law is oppressive, onerous and cruel, one cannot help having a fellow feeling for a fugitive who manages to circumvent the long and mighty arm of government.

Recently, for instance, came word that the Federal Income Tax Collector is developing new creases on his brow because there are a number of wealthy Americans who are successfully evading the payment of the communist-inspired progressive income tax. Word has it that one in particular is getting away with plenty. His name isn't revealed, he has fled this country and is living abroad, is allegedly worth between 150 and 200 millions and is in arrears something like 20 million to Uncle.

The reason this particular entrepreneur is getting away with it is that he has apparently never filed an income tax return.

Now here is a neat point. Once you file, you are on the tax, and the mulcting minions of our sprawling super government can trail you down and squeeze you for percentages. But if you haven't filed, you are not on the tax; the government hears about you only indirectly.

We have recently had word from such a man. He lives in Brazil and is making plenty of good South American pesos in the cattle and agricultural industries. For all we know, he could even be the prime target of the Revenue Agent's worry stripes. He has written to advise youngsters starting out in life to keep this important fact in mind. If you don't ever pay . . . you may never have to.

Of course, you may have to hie yourself beyond the border. You may have to endure the vagaries of tricky and unstable politicians in foreign lands. But that, according to our informant, may be better than enduring the certainty of the cyclopean exactions piled on you here in what is rapidly becoming the home of the fee and the land of the knife.

In any case, there is growing concern in Washington, for it seems that more than half a million well-to-do Americans have already migrated beyond the reach of the income tax collectors. Branch business offices are being set up in scores of countries where business impresarios now find it expedient and wise to make their permanent residences.

Motion picture companies are producing more and more celluloid across the seas and many there are who when the age for retirement comes along take a chance on a foreign language and a potentially hostile shore rather than face the certainty of predation and hostility from the palace guard on the Potomac.

We take no sides here. We favor freedom. We think an income tax is evil in every instance. It levies a penalty upon all production, thereby limiting production. It discourages savings if it doesn't make savings totally impossible. We believe that America turned a corner toward the left when the 16th Amendment to the Constitution finally gave the federal government the right to establish a peek and pry gestapo with unlimited power to steal.

We do not believe that we will ever regain our lost liberty until the 16th Amendment is repealed. But we rather wonder what would have happened if the half-million evaders who have fled this land had remained here, and at the same time refused to pay their percentages. We might have had so much opposition developing from the taxpayers that we would all of us have considerable more use of our money by now.

We have been informed by no less an authority than author Taylor Caldwell that there are many more thousands fleeing the tax collector every year . . . particularly to South America. We hope the next half-million or so who decide that the income tax cannot be borne will stick around and fight.

SMALL BUSINESS AMENDMENT

By DEWITT EMERY

A total of 117 pickets was counted during a strike at a small business enterprise not so many months ago. Only four of the pickets were company employees and at the time of the strike there were only 57 employees of the company. Those figures will surprise you if you had the old-fashioned idea that strikes were conducted by and for employees.

Possibly this example is a bit extreme, but the situation is one which the National Small Business Men's Association seeks to correct by amendment of the Labor Management Relations (Taft-Hartley) Act. An amendment was introduced at the last session when, despite much public discussion, the Act was not amended. The same amendment is slated for introduction at the current session of the Congress.

Basically, the proposed amendment provides that, in case of a strike or strikes where a picket line is set up, each person participating on a picket shall display a placard on a company identification.

Anyone in the picket line who fails to have such identification shall be subject to a mandatory fine of $500.

and do mix in, that cause the trouble.

The Association says it wants to give its members a 50-50 chance in case of strike. Possibly, say its leaders, the amendment may not mean much to the big companies, but the smaller employer has trouble pitting his limited resources against the practically unlimited resources of the big union.

Possibly the amendment should be set forth in behalf of small business, but it seems to me that it would be good for all employers, for all business and for the country as a whole. Certainly if the entire history of strike violence were written, participation of outsiders, some even who had no interest whatsoever in the strike settlement, would loom large in the story. There is a question but that much of the physical violence and personal injuries would have been avoided.

Whether or not any amendment to the Labor Management Relations Act will be adopted in the current session in Washington is anyone's guess. The past two years have been ones of relative quiet so far as major strikes are concerned. There seems to be much less highly vocal demand on the part of labor for repeal of the "slave labor" law than there was a year or so ago.

There have been some predictions of renewed difficulty this year when some of the larger unions will be negotiating. Cost of living, it is reported, will take second place to the guaranteed annual wage in these negotiations.

Apparently, too, the Taft-Hartley Act looms less large in the view of the politicians. It received very little direct mention in the campaigns of last fall in most sections.

"The Churches And The Schools"

In the last issue I was quoting from the new book "The Churches and the Schools," by Francis X. Curran. It ended by pointing out that as the churches withdrew their influence in education, the influence of the state grew. Mr. Curran discusses the changes of the various denominations on the question of the churches controlling education. He writes:

"It may be illuminating to discover the reasons why a church decided to turn over the control of the formal elementary education of its children to the state and to surrender its claim to control popular education. It may be even more illuminating to discover whether, and why, a church came to the conclusion that the control of popular elementary education should be vested solely in the state."

He points out that it would be impossible to analyze the viewpoints of all the Protestant denominations on this subject. He says there are four real streams of Protestantism. They are: Anglicanism, Calvinism, Lutheranism, and Evangelicalism. Then he analyzes these different denominations. He points out that the Episcopalians in their early history had strongly contended that education was the responsibility of the church.

Government Schools Favorable to Vice

He quotes from an Episcopal Journal as follows:

"To speak in the most moderate terms upon the subject, it is now generally conceded that the morals of children are not improved by their attendance at school (government schools). Indeed, were we to reason exclusively from educational statistics, we should be driven to the conclusion that education is favorable to vice."

Then he quotes several other articles along this same line. Then he points out that later in the history of these Episcopalians, however, they came to the conclusion that education is favorable to vice.

"The fear of the alleged Catholic threat to the state schools now infected the 'Churchman.' In the course of a series of articles it radically changed its stand on the control of education. Finally, the article in the Episcopal Churchman declared:

"It is necessary in our government,—in fact, in any government, to have instruction given to children which will tend to sustain and strengthen government; and we Americans calculate to give this instruction in schools over which the government shall have complete control."

"Let the Roman Catholic have his own school, if he will and withal be exempted from taxation for the schools sanctioned by the State; but let the inevitable result be, loss of all qualifications as a voter."

That certainly is rather interesting that the Episcopal Church should want to deprive a parent from his right to vote if he didn't pay taxes to support state schools.

The author of the book goes on in this manner:

"Thus anti-Catholic animus changed the strongest champion of church-controlled popular education into a proponent of state control of education. At the Second Church Congress of the Episcopal Church other voices were raised to demand universal compulsory education in secularized public schools. The church was told that it conducted schools, not of right but only on tolerance of the state, which alone had the right to conduct schools."

"The Third Church Congress explicitly considered the question of religious and secular education. The first speech on the topic, accepting state control of primary education, called up on the Episcopal Church to exert its influence on the common schools. The second orator lamented the secularization of the public schools, and urged their retention of the Bible. The third speaker, on the other hand, demanded the complete secularization of public education."

Then, after giving several quotations, the author observes:

"In effect, the Episcopal Church rejected its educational heritage. The control of popular education was yielded to the state. The duty of the church to assume full control of the education of its young, once unanimously accepted, was denied."

"With the acceptance of the public schools came a modification of the Episcopal viewpoint regarding them. Although they continued to be censured for their neglect of religious training, they were no longer stigmatized as schools of vice. The Episcopal Church abandoned its former policy of abstention, and began to urge its members to exert Episcopal influence on the common schools. Indeed, the General Convention reached the point where it officially endorsed the state schools 'for the sake of Christianity itself.'"

Ike Is Thinking Of Himself When He Discusses Yalta

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Barring a shooting war that does not command popular support, President Eisenhower will carry almost as many southern states as he did in 1952, if he runs for re-election next year. He will not roll up as large majorities as he did three years ago, but he should corral the electoral votes of Texas, Florida and Virginia. He may lose in Tennessee because of the Dixon-Yates, TVA-AEC deal.

This estimate of Ike's second term chances in Dixie is based on the forecasts of Capitol Hill politicians, mostly Democrats, who have rarely been wrong in analyzing public sentiment. It runs counter to the predictions of Hodding Carter, the "liberal" Democratic editor in Greenville, Miss., and to the reports which professional leaders of that Party make to National Chairman Paul M. Butler.

Eisenhower's innate decency and simplicity, as well as his inclination to eschew partisanship as much as is possible for a President, are given as the reasons for his continued popularity below the Mason and Dixon Line. Moreover, the South now realizes that its economic, industrial and agricultural progress is not dependent on the political affiliation of the man who sits in the White House.

With the possible exception of the Far West and Northwest, no section of the country has made such advances. It is true that the great gains began under Franklin D. Roosevelt's regime. But they have continued under the successor to the New Deal-Fair Deal chief executives.

Ike's majorities will fall because, as elsewhere, many southern voters were voting against Harry S. Truman rather than for Eisenhower in 1952. Next year, however, there will be no nink costs in the Democratic campaign closet, and many 1952 defeatists will return to the old homestead.

With good times expected to prevail in 1956, Southern sentiment may react most sharply to the Administration's conduct of foreign affairs. On this issue, Dixie's key men in Congress generally support the White House.

President Eisenhower is keenly aware of the fact that the question of peace or war may be predominant in the voters' mind next year and for many years. Both he and Secretary Dulles were prompt to acknowledge that there was no fundamental difference between their position on a conference with the Russians and that advocated by Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, the distinguished spokesman for the Southern bloc in this field.

He got another warning from another respected Southerner, who refused to support Adlai E. Stevenson in 1952—namely, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. Together with many of his colleagues, Senator Byrd does not believe that Church did not formally reject the claim of the Christian Church to control popular elementary education; but to the voices upholding the sole right of the state to control that education, it answered with silence of consent.

the United States should chance embroilment in general war by an attempt to defend the Matsu-Quoy Islands group.

In both respects, the White House seems to be veering toward the George F. Byrd theories. Although some military advisers demand a warlike stand on the offshore islands; it is feared that this policy would involve Formosa, whence the Chinese Nationalists would operate planes and warships, and provoke an all-out clash with Red China.

The outcome will hang on Mao Tse-tung's strategy and tactics, but it is probable that Formosa and the Pescadores will become the Rubicon of the Far Eastern crisis.

Another sensitive factor in the South's 1956 political behavior will be the attempt to implement the Supreme Court's decision against segregation in the schools.

As of today, this action is not held against Ike. The movement was started by the Roosevelt, and climaxed by a high tribunal with a majority of Roosevelt-Truman appointees.

Contrary to the opinion expressed in so many magazines published in the North, Southern spokesmen and newspapers, including Hodding Carter's, warn that there will be trouble, possibly violence, if the Federal government uses harsh or precipitate methods in the enforcement of this revolutionary change in the social and educational system.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

When I was a boy I never realized how hard it was to be a good parent. Personal experience has given me a new slant; large numbers of parents send in difficult questions also. A few of these are discussed today.

One mother writes that her 13-year-old son weighs 175 pounds, which is far too much, and some people say he has glandular trouble and others that he eats too much. She adds that he does have a large appetite and the possibly significant item that he is an only child.

ONE COULD NOT SAY that the boy does not have glandular trouble without examining him, but it is certainly much more likely that his overweight is the result of too much food. Perhaps he is deeply unhappy for some reason and he eats too much because that is one of the few things he thoroughly enjoys.

This possibility should at least be explored by the mother and perhaps a sympathetic physician. The child should also be steered into better dietary habits and, if possible, into activities other than eating from which he can derive pleasure.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM of another kind is presented by Mrs. H., who says that her six-year-old child was fine until he started school. He went to school for a couple of weeks and then became so nervous that he stuttered. On the day of the school he was taken out, but when he was started the next year the same thing happened.

This is really a serious problem and the child should be most carefully examined mentally and physically to find out whether the nervousness and stuttering are the result of some emotional difficulty which can be remedied by calm and careful handling or whether there is some more deep-seated mental difficulty which would make it better for the youngster to be sent to a special school. When this kind of thing develops there should be no delay in getting the best possible advice.

Ike's Chances In The South In '56 As Good As In '52

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

President Eisenhower is pleading in his own behalf and on behalf of the Roosevelt cabal when he argues and, to some extent directs, that the American people should refrain from damaging the reputations of rogues and, at best, fools who took part in the tragedy of Yalta. The next we can expect of him is a similar advisory plea on behalf of whoever waived access to Berlin and the exact details of that surrender.

Eisenhower knows that his pleas or recommendations have some of the force of executive orders to the American press. He knows he carries a large proportion of that press in his hip pocket. He may be excused contempt for that much of the press, including slick weekly propaganda blatters, because he has had intimate political, personal and social relations with most of its dominant magnates. He knows that many of these captains of a mercenary industry are hag-ridden slaves of wives who have not the faintest concept of morality in the whole sense of the word as distinguished from the Jeltke sector, which is the total scope of morality to them.

The males, too, are vain and are proud of an autographed photo of a president, however evil, or a round-robin White House menu than they would be of Peter Zenger's reputation. So Ike's admonition that we refrain from examining Yalta to place guilt will take him off the hook in the long run, along with Roosevelt, Morgenthau, Truman, Harry Dexter White and other beneficiaries of a disgraceful verbiage. This is book-burning on a scale which discredits the paltry snarl that someone wrote into his Dartmouth speech in a backhand cuff at McCarthy, whom he didn't have the guts to fight on the tailboard of the train through Wisconsin.

For years now, a dead man who never gave evidence of appropriate competence, has been taking the blame, by innuendo and rumor, for the decision to surrender a strip of Germany 100 miles wide to the Russian enemy after American and British citizens had captured it by terrible warfare. That man's name was John G. Winant. He was a political hack, ex-governor of New Hampshire, and a nonentity. He had no qualifications for the job of ambassador to London beyond the conventional docility toward Roosevelt. The Yalta papers now prove that when he was appointed to a mysterious thing called the European Advisory Commission, whose powers and works still are wrapped in mystery, he did not even know what his duties were.

Pretextual political "reviews" have made a few passes at this European Advisory Commission. One such treatise which I studied a few years ago and even in confidence to himself, Patton related no challenge to this terrible fall, although he did drive into Eisen, a suburb of Prague, Ike ordered him back.

Ike's reasons for wanting to spare reputations is plain. His own reputation would suffer terribly from the truth. In the greatest crisis of his life he flinched and bowed to a president who had shown abundant proof that his judgment toward Russia was unwaveringly true whatever his loyalty may have been.

You Can't Be Too Heavy For This Little Jaunt

By HENRY McLEMORE

If someone walked up to you and asked you the connection between the Grand Canyon and (1) a cup of black coffee, (2) half a grapefruit, (3) cottage cheese, (4) a small serving of lean beef, and (5) a glass of buttermilk, you'd probably answer none whatsoever.

You'd be wrong, though. There is a very definite link between all these standard diet dishes and the Grand Canyon, as Henry and I found out yesterday when we inquired about a trip from the rim to the river by mule-back. About the first thing the man at the Hotel El Tovar desk asked about was my weight, just as they used to do when you bought an airplane ticket.

Under the rules and regulations the management has the right to refuse passage to anyone who weighs more than 180 pounds fully clothed. This is considered the maximum load for a mule making the eight-and-a-half-hour trip to the Colorado River and back. (I can't help but wonder what happened when President William Howard Taft came here and expressed a desire to make the trip. It would take a clerk with a lot of savoir faire to point out to the President of the United States that he was too darned fat.)

It's a good thing that I have been on a diet for two months and have lost 27 pounds, else I would have had to sit on the porch of the El Tovar and try to ease my disappointment by recalling spaghetti dinners, chocolate eclairs, and rice and gravy of the past.

The mule is the ideal means of descent into the Canyon — for more reasons than one. The Canyon is millions of years old, and it would seem entirely wrong to zip down by some 20th-century device such as a helicopter. The mule is slow, careful, and quiet, and the river was in cutting the gorge, and as you meander down Bright Angel Trail time seems to lose hold of its meaning.

The mule is sure-footed, too, and that is comforting to know when you are riding along a rocky trail no more than six feet wide, and with a sheer drop of 600 feet on the side. My mule, a big fellow named Jerry, was as nimble as a ballet dancer and as careful as a new father holding his first born. By the time we had covered four miles, and were halfway down to the Colorado, I would have trusted him on a tightrope.

I found out that Jerry was pushing 21 years of age, and had been carrying tourists for 17 of those years. The guide said Jerry could make the trip blindfolded at midnight, and not make a mistake.

To realize fully the wonder of the Canyon, a mule trip is imperative. It's even worth the tediousness of lettuce, black coffee, and lamb chops, and more lamb chops. We made the bus tours of the Canyon's rim, and while they offer superb scenery, as deep the view from the rim at sunrise and sunset, they cannot match the magnificence of the Canyon as seen from mule-back.

Talmadge Hits Law As Enemy Of Country

SAN ANTONIO — UP — Former Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia, discussing segregation, foreign aid and presidential treaty powers, said here the United States will not be destroyed by war or battle, but "we are slowly being destroyed by law."

Talmadge spoke almost an hour Wednesday night to 1,300 persons gathered under the auspices of the American Heritage Protective committee, a group headed by retired insurance executive Austin F. Hancock.

The former governor attacked foreign aid, declaring, "history teaches no lesson more clearly than the fact that friendship cannot be purchased with gold and silver."

He said "foreign aid giveaways" have cost American taxpayers $112 billion without improving relations with other nations.

Talmadge also denounced the U.S. Supreme Court's anti-segregation ruling last May.

He said the nation reached the culmination of its new philosophy then, "when the court overruled separate decisions of its own rulings, 18 separate decisions of the U.S. Circuit Court and district courts, and 59 separate decisions of state and territorial courts that held the states had the power to regulate their public school systems."

Only a few Negroes were present in San Antonio's Municipal Auditorium. One young Negro woman said she had come to hear Talmadge "and see if he is a Christian." She did not reveal her decision.

Talmadge urged "return to the principles of Thomas Jefferson. Sam Houston and others who believed that local self-government and local self-determination is the best form of government."

The Georgian endorsed the proposed Bricker Amendment to curb the President's treaty-making power.

He pointed out Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said that a treaty made by the President "can cut across the rights given the people by the constitutional Bill of Rights."

Talmadge, who received sedate applause throughout his speech, said "such a right, given to the executive branch of government is today, in my opinion, more dangerous for the freedom of our people than all the armed might of the Communist empire."

New Filibuster Bogs Senate On Bill To Reduce Bus Fees

By O. B. LLOYD JR.

AUSTIN — UP — The Texas Senate was bogged down in its second filibuster within a week Thursday as Sen. Wayne Wagonseller of Bowie and two helpers tried to delay action and thus kill a bill reducing motor bus registration fees.

It was a unique type of filibuster, wherein Wagonseller held the floor, but for hours on end Sens. Kilmer Corbin of Lubbock and William Moore of Bryan alternated in reading the state history from the Texas Almanac.

The new filibuster mushroomed on the heels of a record-shattering one Thursday and Friday, when Sen. Jimmy Phillips of Angleton set a national mark of 23 hours, 33 minutes. That record could be tied by Wagonseller's holding the floor until 1:35 p.m. Thursday, and he seemed to be shooting for that mark.

The deadline on purchasing 1955 bus licenses is 12 midnight Thursday. Bus companies would save an estimated $406,000 in reduced registration fees if the bill should clear the Senate and be signed into law before then.

House Leaders Must Sign

But once the measure is approved by the Senate, it must be signed by House leaders while the lower chamber is in session and Wagonseller's objective was to prevent action until the midnight deadline or until the House adjourned. The latter action would halt the bill's progress on a technicality.

A 12:00 noon recess Wednesday gave Wagonseller a two hour rest after originally gaining the floor at 11:40 a.m. He began speaking again at 2 p.m. Moore and Corbin expressed confidence Wagonseller could break Phillips' national record, but Wagonseller was not so committal.

Moore carried the discussion most of the early-morning hours, stopping each 15 minutes or so to let Wagonseller answer his question. The answers were almost never more than three words.

But Wagonseller's helpers left the floor at 3:40 a.m. and he found himself literally talking to himself.

Gallery Is Empty

The gallery was empty and there were no other senators on the floor. Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo was presiding in the speaker's chair, but he was far removed from Wagonseller, they faced in opposite directions, and Hardeman gave no indication of paying attention to the orator.

"This bill manipulates the finances of the state for the personal, private gain of the bus companies," he said.

It was a House bill, but its sponsor in the Senate, Sen. Johnnie B. Rogers of Austin, argued reduction in cost of license plates was "justified by the dire financial condition" of most bus companies.

Wagonseller, Corbin and Moore each said they could not in good conscience vote to reduce the taxes on bus companies while they are facing the prospect of levying millions in additional taxes.

Filibuster Is Unique

This filibuster—the word should almost be in quotation marks—was unique for the casual, complacent manner in which Wagonseller conducted it. It was in sharp contrast to the desk thumping, shouting, arm-waving oration that Phillips used in his almost single-handed attack last week on the state appropriation bill for the next two years.

Phillips wanted "a measly" $2 million appropriation added to money for John Sealy Hospital in Galveston.

In other legislative action Wednesday, a controversial bill revising the Texas Securities Act so as to bring trust companies under state regulation, was approved 95-50 by the House and was returned to the Senate for concurrence in House amendments.

Gov. Allan Shivers, charging that "a few greedy, unscrupulous promoters" were trying to block the bill, had urged its passage by the House.

Attempt Checked

The lower chamber rejected an attempt by Rep. Vernon (Gene) Smith of Fort Worth to send the securities bill back to committee. Smith said he favored state regulation of investment and trust companies, but that "one paragraph" could do that without revising the entire act.

He complained the bill would "create a czar in Texas" by giving unlimited authority to the secretary of state, who administers such regulations.

Rep. Frank Carpenter of Sour Lake said opponents to the bill had spread "misinformation" and were "beclouding the issue." Answering a charge that it would alter the present arrangement on oil and gas lease registration, Carpenter said both the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association and the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association have said they did not oppose the bill.

In other action, the House concurred in Senate amendments to a long bill revising and recodifying the Texas Corporation Code. The measure, sponsored by Carpenter, now goes to the governor.
